Angry words mark fees on commitments

By MIKE DOWNEY Staff Writer

Tempers flared at the close of Monday's all-day Howard County commissioners meeting as commissioners reversed themselves on whether to allow a county employee to receive fee payments in addition to a salary.

County Judge Milton Kirby accused County Attorney Bob Miller of conducting a personal vendetta against the judge's secretary. Kirby also said the commissioners had "singled out" his secretary at the first of the year.

Commissioners moved to again allow the county judge's secretary to collect a $10 fee for handling court papers for commitment to the Big Spring State Hospital.

Commissioners had decided Jan. 25 to have all BSSH commitment fees go into the general fund, ending a county practice apparently extending back 30 years.

Last year, the fees totaled about $4,000. Traditionally, the county judge's secretary has received the fee for doing the commitment papers.

Kirby asked commissioners reinstate the fee for Secretary Vanessa Cooper. However, Miller said county employees should not receive special compensation for doing county work to avoid "the appearance of a problem."

"A person should be paid a salary for doing work for the county," Miller said. "If Howard County is doing work for other counties, the money should be paid into the general fund."

Miller suggested raising Ms. Cooper's salary to compensate her for the state hospital work, but to do See Tempers, page 2A

Typewriter wars at end for county

By MIKE DOWNEY Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners awarded a contract for the courthouse typewriters after about four hours of demonstrations, deliberations and discussions. The approval came during an all day meeting yesterday at the courthouse.

Malone Business Systems of Midland was awarded the $10,785 contract for nine electronic typewriters. Six basic Olivetti machines cost $850 each while three advanced models cost $1,895 each. Commissioners questioned whether the various offices needed the new machines after checking the ages of current typewriters, but moved to award the contract after excising one advanced model intended for the library.

Five offices and the library will receive the new machines.

Commissioners also approved a secretarial position for Juvenile Probation Officer Margy Thompson after a complicated situation involving the county judge, the county attorney and Big Spring State Hospital. See Commissioners, page 2A

Action/reaction: Health code

Q. Does the city, county or other governmental agency conduct periodic inspections concerning health code standards on local eating establishments?

A. Yes. James Luck, director of the Big Spring-Howard County Health Unit, said his agency has health inspections every 60-90 days in the county and city. Luck said the agency handles all health complaints in the county and city.

Calendar: Open house

• Howard College will have an open house from noon to 3 p.m. for the school's new occupational-technical building and baseball park. Open house ceremonies will precede a Hawk game with Paris College.

• Today is the last day to vote absentee for the April 2 election of the Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees and the Big Spring city council.

• The kickoff for the 1983 WalkAmerica/TeamWalk March of Dimes Campaign for the prevention of Birth Defects will be at 8:30 a.m. in the Chamber of Commerce office. There will be a film and information related to a planned April 23 10-mile walk-a-thon called WalkAmerica/TeamWalk.

WEDNESDAY

• L.U.L.A.C. will meet at 7 p.m. at Spanish Inn.

Tops on TV: 'Thorn Birds'

Part 3 of "The Thorn Birds" continues on channel 2 at 8 p.m. Meggie becomes neglected by Luke and meets up with Father Ralph and the two finally consummate their love. Also at 8 p.m. channel 7 offer the Mel Brooks movie "High Anxiety."

Outside: Windy

Partly cloudy and windy today with a high temperature in the lower 70s. Winds from the west-southwest at 5-15 miles per hour. Tuesday's forecast calls for more wind and a high in the mid-70s.

Learning the ropes

HC hosts bull riding school for high schoolers

By CLIFF COAN Staff Writer

They may never climb on board a bull again, but yesterday afternoon, 20 Abilene High School students became real cowboys with the aid of the Howard College rodeo team.

The Howard College rodeoers played hosts and instructors to the Abilene rodeo club in the first bull riding school for high school students sponsored by Howard College.

"One of their principals heard we had a good rodeo program and decided to send them over here," HC rodeo coach Dusty Johnson said. "We've been working on this for two months. We hope it's successful for both us and them, and maybe we can set up some more."

From Howard College's point of view, Johnson said, the bull riding school could prove to be a good recruiting tool. "A lot of these kids have never heard of Howard College," he said. "But if they like this and if each of these kids tell two or three of their buddies and they tell others ..."

LEARNING — Howard College bull rider Jeff Archunde, right, and Rusty O'Donnell, center, show an Abilene High School student the proper grip on a bull rope.

After arrival at Howard College, the Abilene High students viewed a video tape on bull riding "produced, directed and narrated by me," Johnson said. "We were out there for three hours one day and we got 18 minutes of tape."

The film, with a soundtrack produced by one student turning up the stereo in his pickup truck, shows the HC bull riders going through the steps of a bull ride.

From there, the Abilene students moved to the HC arena to practice riding a mechanical bull before they took on the real thing.

While most of the 20 Abilene students were not experienced riders, the concept of bull riding was not new to them.

"About half the kids ride at junior rodeos around Abilene," said AHS rodeo team sponsor Ned Follis. "They were rip-roaring and ready to go. We're basically an agriculture-type community, and about half these kids live on a farm or their parents own one, so they've been around livestock all their lives."

HC bull riders Tony Dodds, David Conklin and Lynn Moore presided over a bull session of questions and answers about the art of riding bulls.

After coaching by Johnson, HC bull rider Jeff Archunde and local professional bull rider Rusty O'Donnell on the mechanical bull, the high school students were ready to try a real, live animal. HC rodeoers Dodds and Chuck Senter did the clowning chores at the school, protecting the fallen riders from the bulls.

"It felt scary," said Chris Bayless, treasurer of the AHS rodeo club and the only girl in the AHS group. She had never ridden a bull before.

"You can't think while you're on there," she said, after her short ride on a steer. "It's just 'oh, no' and you mind goes blank — then you go. It's thrilling. It's fun to show the guys that girls can ride bulls."

"Now, if I can just remember and hold on to it," she said. "I've got to forget they can hurt you and just hold on."

Mark Roe, a senior and president of the AHS rodeo club, rode his sixth and seventh bull at the school.

"It's just a hobby — a sport," to him, but he's "definitely" going to rodeo in college, he said.

CISD school board hopefuls face issues

By RICHARD HORN Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Candidates for the Coahoma Independent School District board of trustees last night told residents why they were running and what they will do if elected Saturday.

About 40 people heard the five candidates answer questions and make statements in the Coahoma High School Cafeteria. Coahoma Parents Care organized the forum.

Two seats are open on the board. Incumbents Kirby Brown and Donnie Reid are seeking re-election and are challenged by Bill Gressett, Guy White Jr. and C. Roy Wright.

Candidates were given 20 questions to answer three weeks ago. Copies of their written answers were available and each candidate picked four questions to answer at the forum.

All candidates said they felt the Coahoma school system was in good shape. All said the discipline program and pay scale were adequate in the Coahoma schools.

However, there was some disagreement on course curriculum. Incumbent Donnie Reid said that he was not in favor of offering remedial reading and remedial math in high school.

"At some level in lower grades students should already have achieved these basic improvements," he said.

The other candidates favored offering the courses.

"I would like to think it was unnecessary, but, if there is a need, regulations say we must have it," said C. Roy Wright.

"Every child should have the opportunity to learn whether it be in remedial or advance classes," said

Bill Gressett.

Reid also disagreed with the other candidates on offering expanded programs, such as music, art, Awake, CVAE and building trades.

"I don't think they are as important as the basics," Reid said.

Other candidates felt the students should be given the opportunity to take the courses.

"They fulfill a vital need for many of our students," said Guy White Jr.

"I believe every student should have the opportunity to expand their knowledge," said incumbent Kirby Brown.

The candidates gave their views on changing from at-large elections, in which candidates run for a certain number of seats for the entire area, to by-place elections, in which candidates run for a specific seat representing a specific area.

Coahoma presently elects board members at-large and all but Reid felt the elections should remain that way.

"I think with by-place elections you would actually strengthen the board," Reid said.

"The problem with it (by-place) is that you may not have anyone in your area who is interested in running," said Guy White Jr. "I also believe that if we change to at-large we would not be able to change back."

"With by-place elections, I think you start to sling mud," said Gressett.

"They've never clarified to me what it (by-place) would involve," said Wright. "I think we should keep it the way it is."

"We've elected at-large for many years with a good response," Brown

Texas couple returned home from Cuba

HOUSTON (AP) — An airplane crash and 136 days in Cuban prisons interrupted their courtship and ruined plans for a December wedding, but Gina Strickland and Berni Hofstadter were free today and planning a wedding.

Miss Strickland, 22, and Hofstadter, 29, both of Brownsville, arrived by private jet at a Houston airport Monday afternoon after a four-hour flight from Cuba. They were released to U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, after the congressman met with Cuban President Fidel Castro over the weekend.

"I love you, America!" shouted Miss Strickland after she and Hofstadter stepped onto U.S. soil. They both fell to the runway to kiss the concrete and were immediately enveloped by more than a dozen relatives.

"This is the happiest day of my life," shouted Hofstadter.

The couple was arrested after their small plane crashed in Cuba on Nov. 12 during a flight from Grand Cayman to Miami. They were forced to sign confessions of drug trafficking and spent 43 days in solitary confinement, they said.

Cuban officials repeatedly promised their release, said Hofstadter.

"If you've been in Cuba you would understand that you can't believe anything until you see it happen. It's a land of manana (tomorrow)," he said. "They always said 'tomorrow, tomorrow, tomorrow.'"

Asked about the couple's immediate plans, Hofstadter said: "Get married and raise a family and live happily ever after."

They couple, who plan to wed next month, said they would have been married last December, but instead spent most of that month in solitary confinement in Cuba. The sweethearts were separated throughout their imprisonment for all but a few minutes.

"The only time we saw each other was on her birthday, Dec. 7, and that was only for 15 minutes," said Hofstadter.

Leland, who helped in the 1979 release of American prisoners and again last year, said the Cubans were "forthright and cooperative with us" in arranging the release of the couple.

The congressman said he and his party "were treated with courtesy and dealt with in a spirit of extreme cooperation."

Leland said he met with Castro for about two hours and also discussed the release of another Texan, Neal Nichols, 29, of El Paso. Nichols was a passenger in a small plane that crashed in Cuba 26 months ago and the congressman said he has been sentenced to six years in prison. Leland said he is "convinced" Castro will release Nichols soon.

The congressman said he and his staff are "digging down" to pay most of the $5,000 cost of fuel and pilots' fees it took to affect the release. He said the use of the airplane to return Miss Strickland and Hofstadter was donated.

Hofstadter said Cuban authorities gave him and Miss Strickland a choice of confessing to one of two crimes — one for drug trafficking and one saying they were working for the Central Intelligence Agency. The CIA confession carried a sentence of "20 to 30 years", he said, and the drug charge only "four or five days."

They signed the drug confessions, but Hofstadter said he noted beside his signature that it was "under duress."

Both adamantly denied they were smuggling drugs.

Hofstadter said he and Miss Strickland had flown from Brownsville to Jamaica on a business and pleasure trip. He said they started back from Jamaica, made a stop in Grand Cayman and were trying to reach Miami when their rented airplane developed engine problems.

"We landed late at night — about 9:30 — in a sugar cane field," said Hofstadter. They grabbed their luggage and left the scene, he said, and hid for four or five hours after seeing people with weapons.

Later, he said, they found a road and tried to hitch a ride. When they came to a sign, he struck his lighter and realized the sign was in Spanish.

"It was only then that we knew we were in Cuba," said Hofstadter. They turned themselves over to authorities.

HOME FREE — Gina Strickland, left, shouting "I love you, America!" arrived home to Texas with her boyfriend Berni Hofstadter Monday at Hobby Airport after being released from prison in Cuba earlier in the day. U.S. Congressman Mickey Leland, center rear, flew to Cuba for talks with Fidel Castro to arrange the release of the Brownsville couple who had been held there since November.

Reagan to offer Russians compromise

Proposal could end arms negotiation deadlock

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will make an announcement Wednesday on the deadlocked U.S.-Soviet arms negotiations, and a senior administration official said the president would likely reveal his new compromise proposal aimed at breaking the deadlock on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes disclosed the announcement as the arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland, recessed for eight weeks. It was believed that the new U.S. interim proposal was made to the Soviets, but neither side would comment on the talks.

Speakes also refused to say whether the United States had in fact presented its proposal for Moscow to consider during the recess.

"The official White House comment is that we have consistently declined comment on the content of the talks in Geneva," Speakes said when pressed on the subject. "We will not discuss the specifics of the negotiating situation today."

The president will make his announcement in the East Room of the White House at 10 a.m. EST, four hours before he leaves for a five-day trip to California. Reagan is also expected to speak on the new U.S. proposal in a speech Thursday in Los Angeles.

Speakes, in refusing to say whether the U.S. proposals had already been delivered to the Soviets, said, "We prefer to negotiate in Geneva and not in the briefing room."

The United States and the Soviet Union have a standing agreement not to discuss the negotiating sessions with reporters.

Soviet negotiator Yuri Kvitsinsky, leaving the hour-long session in Geneva, said only, "I'm not very optimistic. Let's wait and see." Aides to chief U.S. representative Paul Nitze refused to confirm that any new proposals had been advanced.

Before today's session, a senior administration official said the new proposal was to be offered before the talks recessed.

The Soviets have steadfastly rejected the administration's "zero-zero" plan, and Reagan has come under increasing pressure from European allies to offer an alternative. NATO defense chiefs told Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger last week that Reagan should come up with an option to the zero-zero formula.

The senior administration official said Reagan is sticking with his goal to eventually eliminate all medium-range weapons.

Kidnapped baby, mom reunited after 4 days

DALLAS (AP) — Harold DeShon Patterson was unfazed by the excitement surrounding his first week of life.

He slept peacefully through the chaos of Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, the bright television lights and the hugs of his mother, from whose arms he had been kidnapped four days earlier.

"He looks perfect, just perfect," Gretchel Patterson said after her son was placed in her arms.

FBI agents and Dallas police flew Harold back to Texas Monday afternoon from Lawton, Okla., where he was found in an apartment shortly after 7 a.m.

Two women — one in Lawton and one in Dallas — remained jailed today in lieu of $20,000 bond each on federal kidnapping charges.

The FBI accused Norma Jo Smith of Lawton of being the woman who masqueraded as a nurse to take the baby from his mother's arms last week at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Neighbors became suspicious about her new baby, because she had not appeared to be pregnant, and called authorities, said Oklahoma City FBI agent Gene Pogue. Her husband — with whom she had no children — was not arrested.

Yvonne Nelson, 25, also arrested Monday morning at her Dallas home, "arranged the whole deal,"

GRETCHEL AND HAROLD ... reunited said Dallas police Sgt. Jack Clower.

"She waited in the car ... and took the woman with the baby to Oklahoma. She furnished the transportation," he said.

"I don't know if they are friends or related or what," he added.

Others who were taken into custody at the same house where Ms. Nelson was arrested later were released as material witnesses, Clower said.

The boy was examined at Comanche County Hospital in Lawton, where doctors said he was in good condition.

Lizzie Patterson, the boy's grandmother, was flown here with her daughter from the elder woman's East Texas home.

"For a while, I thought I'd never see him again," the Palestine woman said of her grandson. "People told me there was a black market for babies."

But the baby's 18-year-old mother never gave up. "I hoped that I would get my baby back," she said.

The Pattersons said they learned the boy had been found when a relative saw television reports in Dallas and called them.

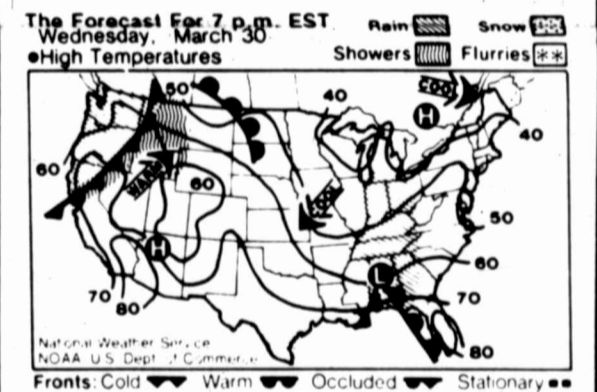

Mrs. Patterson said she held no grudge against the woman who took her grandson.

"I feel like the lady might be sick and need help," she said.

The mother, who is unemployed, said she wanted to forget about her son's kidnapping and "love him and take care of him the best I can."

"Of all the other babies in Parkland, they had to pick that one," she said.

The best choices in city elections

Big Spring voters will go to the polls Saturday to elect two city councilmen and three school board members. The persons elected will play an important role in Big Spring's future.

In the city council race, the Herald supports incumbents Jack Y. Smith and Russ McEwen. Both men are intelligent and honest, and both have served the city well during their recent terms. Their cool-headed leadership is needed.

It is easy to pick them as the most qualified candidates in the city council race.

In the school board race, however, the choices are not so obvious. Several good candidates are running.

After much study, the Herald endorses Dan Wise, incumbent Carol Hunter, and Bill Brooks.

Wise, a professional counselor with a master's degree in social work, has impressed us not only with his educational qualifications but with his desire to keep high standards in the quality of education.

Mrs. Hunter, a former president of the school board, is a sincere, confident person whose six years' experience on the board allows her to make sound decisions. She is not afraid of hard work. Her leadership ability is needed.

Bill Brooks strikes us as a level-headed man who is realistic enough to know some of the problems the board may face but who is capable of and earnestly interested in helping to resolve those problems for the betterment of all.

All of these candidates are highly qualified for the job, and we believe they will do the best job for Big Spring.

My husband is not interested

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband has absolutely no interest in religion — in fact he leaves the room when a religious television program comes on. I know I can't force him to believe, but how should I deal with him? — Mrs. B.T.H.

DEAR MRS. B.T.H.: Yes, you are right that you cannot force him to believe. In fact, the worst thing you probably could do would be to nag him about this. It would probably just make him that much more determined to avoid religion.

The most important thing you can do is to live a consistent Christian life before your husband, so that he sees that Christ means something to you and helps you every day. Pray that God will work in you to bring to your character the fruit of the Spirit. "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control" (Galatians 5:22-23). And do your best (with God's help) to be the best possible wife you can be toward your husband. "Wives, in the same way be submissive to your husbands so that, if any of them do not believe the word, they may be won over without talk by the behavior of their wives, when they see the purity and reverence of your life" (1 Peter 3:1-2).

Then pray for your husband, that God will overcome his pride and his spirit of independence and convince him of his need of Christ. This will not be easy, and humbly speaking it is impossible. But as Jesus declared, "With man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible" (Matthew 19:26). Pray also that God will make you very sensitive to your husband, and that you will know when to speak about Christ and what he means to you. You might pray also that God will bring across your husband's path a friend whom he will respect and who loves Christ. Sometimes someone like that can say things that you might not be able to say. But the important thing is for you to recommend your own life to Christ, and then seek to show by your life and your words that Christ makes a difference to you — and can make a difference in his life as well.

Around the Rim

BY RICHARD HORN

Sailing away

Mark Twain was an American original.

His work does not remind you of anyone else's, and no one's work really reminds you of his.

He was known as a misanthrope, but readers can't help but notice an affection he held for the subjects he ridiculed. And I have the uncomfortable impression that the people he would dislike the most are his own fans.

I have a lot of these same impressions about Randy Newman, a Los Angeles singer-songwriter.

I don't mean that Newman is as good a writer as Twain (they're incomparable), but if Samuel Clemens had been a musician in the mid-1900s instead of a riverboat pilot, reporter and author in the mid-1800s, his songs might be something like Newman's.

Both write about Americans as a breed apart from the rest of humanity, with more responsibility for their actions and with a greater tendency to behave like idiots.

Listen to Newman's recent album, Trouble in Paradise. In a 45-minute record, the following targets are effectively torpedoed:

Chamber of commerce pitchmen ("I Love L.A."), South African racists ("Christmas in Capetown"), heartbroken singer-songwriters ("The Blues"), aging hippies who hate modern music ("Mike's"), Bruce Springsteen ("My Life is Good"), the false paradise of the Sunbelt ("Miami"), egomaniacs ("I'm Different") and attitudes in the Vietnam War ("Song for the Dead").

MOST OF THOSE targets have been hit before, but the beauty of Newman's writing is that he first makes you understand and even appreciate the people or attitudes he lampoons.

A listener's first reaction to his songs is to wonder which side he's on. In one of his best songs, "Rednecks," he slips into the character of a good 'ol boy who describes the South and in effect patronizes his Northeast liberal critics ("We've got college men from LSU/Went in dumb, come out dumb too"). I'm still not sure which region he's trying to insult.

That's one beauty of his writing. The other is that he can write about America and Americans better than any other modern songwriter. He has a great feeling for American landscapes and the voices of America.

He is well-known today because of his 1978 hit "Short People." It's not a very good song. Newman doesn't come across very well on the radio.

You can get a much better idea of his talent in such earlier songs as "Davey the Fat Boy," a horror story in which an overweight child dreams he is sold to a carnival freak show, or "Sail Away," a pre-Roots song about a 19th century slave trader describing America to a boat-load of negroes enroute to the U.S. ("You'll just sing about Jesus and drink wine all day/It's great to be an American").

LATELY THERE has been a streak of pure nastiness, as in 1980's "Half a Man," about a Texas truck driver who "catches" homosexuality from a transvestite.

But after doing a highly-praised score for the film version of "Ragtime," Newman has returned to the lighter touch of his earlier albums.

He was trained as a classical musician, but he has uncovered a great Southern California rock melody for "I Love L.A." It's hard to resist his joy of rolling down the highway with a big nasty redhead at his side, despite such inconveniences to the L.A. scene as bums and the nondescript nature of the city.

Sometimes the song's music makes its point better than the lyrics. The parody of Bruce Springsteen's saxophone player is really nasty, and on "The Blues" (sung with Paul Simon; Linda Ronstadt, Bob Seger, Rickie Lee Jones, Don Henley, half of Fleetwood Mac and all of Toto also appear on the album) tales of childhood misery and lost love are sung against a tune that sounds like a McDonald's commercial.

Newman has said for years that he doesn't think songwriters like Simon and Jackson Browne are honest and confessional at all. "Isn't it silly that millionaire rock stars can only complain about life?" he once said in an interview.

Of course, Newman complains about life, too. Like Twain, Newman acts as though everybody can have opinions, but those greasy wheels who squeak the loudest deserve to be heard.

These people probably aren't much fun to be around, but if you can escape their wrath and satire they can certainly spice up life.

Why Jason can't read

Newsweek's cover story last week dealt with parents who are pushing their kids earlier and earlier into schools. The post-Spock generation of parents believe the sooner their babies get an education the better chance they will have of being successful when they grow up.

I thought Newsweek was exaggerating about mothers and fathers wanting their toddlers to become early achievers until I went over to dinner at the Markses' the other night.

There was tension in the house. "What's going on?" I wanted to know.

"We're waiting on word whether Jason will be accepted in Culpeper's pre-pre-nursery school."

"I don't think you'll have any trouble," I said. "After all, Jason seems like a bright 2-year-old to me."

"He is bright," Mr. Marks said. "But they won't take him unless he's potty trained. We only have to September, and so far he won't cooperate."

"I see the problem," I said. "But you would think if Jason really wanted to go to school he'd get his act together."

"That seems to be the trouble. He doesn't seem to care if he gets into the school or not," Mrs. Marks told me. "Everytime we mention pre-pre-nursery school, he tries to crawl into a shopping bag."

"Maybe he wants to take a year off to find himself," I suggested.

"This isn't a joking matter," said Mr. Marks. "I laid out $16.95 for a toilet trainer last week. You sit the baby on it and it plays music everytime he does something. But Jason still won't use it."

"Maybe it's not playing his song."

"We never had this kind of trouble with his brother Ben," Mrs. Marks said. "He's a brilliant student."

"How old is Ben?"

"Almost 5, and he been accepted by three of the best nursery schools in the area."

"Perhaps the pressure of living up to his brother Ben is too much for Jason to handle right now," I suggested.

"We're not just going to let him sit at home for a year and twiddle his thumbs," Mrs. Marks said. "He has to learn there is no such thing in life as a free lunch."

"You can't imagine the humiliation parents have to go through to get their kids in pre-pre-nursery school," Mrs. Marks said. "Our friends Ed and Anne Weinberg went for an interview with their son, and swore to the admissions director the child was potty trained, and right in the middle of the interview the kid told his mother he has to be changed. The Weinbergs never heard from the school again."

"Well you've got to September. Jason could shape up by then. Maybe if you don't make a big deal of his having to go to school, he might just use the potty trainer without being forced to."

"That's easy for you to say," said Mr. Marks. "You don't have to live with the anxiety of it all. If Jason doesn't get into pre-pre-nursery school, he'll never get into nursery school."

"It can't be that big a deal," I said.

"Oh yeah?" Marks said. "How would you like to raise a kid who, by the time he reaches 4, can't even pin a tail on a donkey?"

Could murder have been prevented?

WASHINGTON — This week the Justice Department has loosened the guidelines that govern the FBI's use of informants and undercover agents who infiltrate domestic political groups.

The discarded rules were adopted in 1976 after evidence that the G-men had clearly gotten out of control in their zeal to satisfy the whims and personal prejudices of the late J. Edgar Hoover. The danger, of course, is that the FBI will interpret the relaxation of the rules as a license to return to the old practices.

Perhaps the most scandalous mishandling of an FBI informant involved the murder in Alabama of civil rights activist Viola Liuzzo on March 25, 1965, by a carload of armed Ku Klux Klan. Among them was FBI informant Gary Thomas Rowe.

Internal FBI files seen by my associates Indy Badhwar and Tony Capaccio show that the woman's murder might have been prevented — if FBI officials had acted on information Rowe had provided.

In fact, within three weeks of the Liuzzo slaying, Rowe's "handler," special agent Neil P. Shanahan, was quietly censured for failing to pass along what Rowe had told him before the shooting.

A memo to FBI officials in Washington, dated April 15, noted that Rowe had given Shanahan "certain items of information" on Klan activities that were news to the FBI and local authorities. For example:

On March 16, Rowe told Shanahan that Klan leaders were planning to drop hand grenades on any civil rights marchers in Birmingham.

On March 18, he reported that Klan leader Robert Shelton was planning to have two activists beaten up on the forthcoming march from Selma to Montgomery.

On March 21, he reported that he and three other Klansmen had delivered a load of weapons to Selma: two Browning automatic rifles with 12 clips of ammo, 25 hand grenades and six land mines.

Finally, on March 25 — the day of the murder — Rowe called Shanahan and told him he was leaving for the march area with three Klansmen, including Eugene Thomas, who he had earlier identified as armed and violent.

Yet the only information the FBI gave local police was a description of Thomas' car, its tag numbers and the message: "purpose of trip not known. These only known Klansmen of Birmingham en route to march."

Alabama police, in fact, flagged down the car shortly before the killing. Not having been told the men were armed and dangerous, the police issued a ticket for a noisy muffler and let them go.

The memo recommending Shanahan's censure said that he "deeply regrets his failure to have made a full and immediate dissemination of the information," and stressed that Shanahan "has been made fully aware of his dereliction."

The public, of course, was never made aware of it.

In one of the many ironies in the situation, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. — obviously unaware of the FBI agent's negligence in the Liuzzo murder — sent a telegram to Director Hoover on the occasion of the killers' arrest within 24 hours. "Let me congratulate you and the FBI for this speedy arrest," King wired. Hoover's right-hand man, Cartha DeLoach, wrote in a memo: "I do not believe this wire should be acknowledged, because a reply would only help build up this character and a communication from Mr. Hoover will tie us in with him and put us under obligation to him. I likewise feel that King's telegram to the Director should not be released to the press for the same reason."

FAILED MISSION: Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir's main purpose in coming to Washington was to bypass President Reagan's special envoy in the Middle East, Philip Habib. Shamir tried to impress on Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz the Israeli belief that Habib simply isn't up to the task of bringing peace to the area.

What Shamir apparently didn't realize is that Habib had the president's unqualified support. I've learned that Habib, who suffers from heart trouble and is under family pressure to quit before the strain kills him, has told the president he's ready to retire anytime Reagan won't support his efforts. He asked for the president's full backing — and he got it.

The crux of Israeli discontent — and of Habib's difficulties — is the U.S. insistence on winning approval of a peace settlement from most of the Arab states, including Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. The Israelis see this as an impossible dream.

Instead, Israel wants what it set out to get when it invaded Lebanon last year: a bilateral peace treaty with a friendly Lebanese government to protect Israel's northern flank. Shamir tried to persuade Reagan and Shultz that this could be achieved, but only if the United States gives its firm support.

With U.S. backing, the Israelis argue, Lebanon could be another Egypt and dare to make a separate peace with Israel.

Political feud leaves city without government

GOLD HILL, Ore. (AP) — The people in this tiny town, "a quiet city" if you believe the sign on the outskirts, have lost their entire local government to a political feud that one resident says smacks of the Hatfields and McCoys.

Even the one-man police force tried to resign in November, citing "politically related harassment." But with no mayor and only two people left on the city council, officer Terry Underwood couldn't be replaced. So he's still working.

He and a maintenance worker are the sole employees of this southern Oregon town of 900 people on the banks of the Rogue River.

The feud has focused on town finances, but many say privately that personalities and wounded egos are as much to blame.

On Tuesday, the roughly 400 registered voters of Gold Hill will pick a mayor and four new members of the city council to join the two council members who remain in office.

That may not end the feud but at least the town will have a government again.

The town now has no mayor because the mayor quit. The city council president has been recalled. Three other council members have resigned, and the public works director and city recorder also left their jobs.

About two weeks ago the city attorney and two clerks quit. One of the clerks locked city hall behind her March 11 as she left, and gave Underwood the key.

"It's pretty well down to the Hatfields and the McCoys," said Peter Tarzian, who has lived here four years. "There are a lot of bad feelings on all sides."

In recent weeks, the battle has been fought in city council chambers, in newspapers, in a federal courtroom and on the streets of Gold Hill, where citizens have been bombarded with campaign fliers and posters loaded with conflicting allegations.

"I don't care who gets elected, there's a big job ahead," said former city recorder Pauline Alvarez. "I can't see it being anything but a long recovery for the city and an expensive one."

On one side are backers of former city council President Gene Brown, who was recalled by a narrow vote Jan. 23 after he appointed defeated mayoral candidate Jack Spaulding to a vacant council seat. The recall was followed by three resignations from the council.

Dear Abby

Second opinion

DEAR ABBY: My doctor, who is also a surgeon, tells me I need an operation for gallstones. I've had gallbladder troubles off and on for many years, but I hate to have surgery at my age. (I am 71.)

You always say, "Get a second opinion," but I have had the same doctor for many years and don't know any other. So where do I go for a second opinion? I like my doctor and don't want to get him mad at me. Thanks for any help you can give me.

NEEDING ANSWERS

DEAR NEEDING: Getting a second opinion is a common practice that most doctors encourage, so don't be afraid to tell your doctor you want one.

To find another specialist in your area, ask your doctor, or call the government's Second Surgical Opinion Hotline. The toll-free number is 1-800-683-6833. In Maryland, call 1-800-492-6603.

If you do decide to go ahead with the operation, you will be asked to sign a statement giving consent for the operation. It's important to discuss all your concerns about your condition and the operation with your surgeon before you sign anything. Don't hesitate to ask these questions:

1. What are the chances of survival without the operation?
2. What are the chances of survival with the operation?
3. Are there other forms of treatments that could be tried before surgery?
4. How much will the operation cost? And will my insurance cover all the costs, including special tests?
5. How much experience has the surgeon had with this particular operation?
6. What percent of the operation were successful?
7. How will the operation affect my health and lifestyle? Are there any activities I will not be able to do after surgery?

Above all, be sure an operation is necessary and that the benefits outweigh the risks before you agree to undergo surgery.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue

Plantar fascia

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you tell me what is good for plantar fascia? I have brought several pairs of expensive shoes and have gone the arch support route, and I'm worse off now than when I started. — V.C.

Do you mean inflammation of the plantar fascia (plantar fasciitis)? That will cause pain on the bottom of the foot just in front of the heel bone. And continued inflammation results in formation of bone spurs. If this is your problem, you would feel tenderness in that area and would have pain when you turn your toes upwards, at least that would aggravate your pain there.

You ask about exercise (another part of your note). You have to rest the fascia to get rid of the inflammation. Then the answer might be switching to shoes with heels of a soft material, like crepe. Meanwhile, anti-inflammatory medicine, like buffered aspirin, will help. Warm soaks are good.

Is this self-diagnosis? There are other conditions that can lead to plantar (bottom of the foot) pain. And if you do have plantar fasciitis, there is other help available, like cortisone injection into the pain area. Perhaps you are referring to a relaxed plantar fascia — flat feet. If so, take a look at the following letter.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can flat feet cause pain in the feet? I've had flat feet since childhood. Any suggestion for correcting that? — P.G.

There's a tough band of ligaments that keeps the arch of the foot in place. It's called the plantar fascia. (Are you reading, V.C.?) When it is lax, the arch falls and the foot flattens, especially when walking. It's the abnormal walking gait that produces the foot pain. It can also end up as leg, even knee, pain.

If you have been told that this is your condition, you can take certain measures. Your shoes should be moderately stiff and you will probably need some kind of arch support, especially if you are doing any running. You will probably need what is called a heel counter in your shoe. These are especially built up areas at the back of the shoe behind the heel. You may have to have shoes prescribed by a foot specialist.

There are a few exercises to help strengthen foot muscles and help stretch heel cords; tightened heel cords is another contributor to flat feet. Stand on a block (three or four inches high) with your heels protruding over the edge. Raise yourself up on your toes, and then lower the heel. With practice you can become quite good at this, but don't overdo it at first.

The old idea of picking up marbles with the toes works, too. Another trick is to wrinkle up a towel laid out on the floor. Still another is to stand on the outer edges of your feet as you flex and straighten your toes. These exercises will help strengthen the foot muscles and the fascia. I spoke of earlier. You may find other tips in the booklet "Relief and Care of Your Feet." Other readers can order by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Winners of 'Thistles' writing contest named

Winners in the 1983 "Thistles" writing contest in the Howard County Junior College District were announced last week by Susan King, English instructor at Howard College.

In the short story division Bill Taylor took first and second place with honorable mentions going to Kathleen McChristian and Jacquelyn McElroy. First place in the poetry division went to Sanden Lora Daughettee. Second place went to Lori Andrews. Honorable mentions were awarded to Jacquelyn McElroy, Kathleen McChristian, Tamula Williams, Kari Robinson, Brenda Johnson, Melinda Vassar, Debra Day and Bill Taylor.

First place in the essay division went to Kathleen McChristian. Second place winner was Debra Day. Honorable mention went to Sanden Lora Daughettee.

A portion of the entries will be published next month in "Thistles," the Howard College literary magazine. Thistles is a literary organization at Howard College that meets twice monthly to provide beginning writers with the companionship and criticism of others with like interest.

Officers are Brenda Johnson, president, and Kathleen McChristian, secretary.

Les Kinman wins national award

Les K. Kinman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Kinman, 2302 Roemer, has been named a 1983 United States National Award winner in band, according to the United States Achievement Academy.

Kinman, a Big Spring High School student, was nominated by Steve Waggoner, BSHS band director. Kinman will appear in the Academy's yearbook, published nationally.

The Academy selects winners upon recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors, and upon selection standards. Criteria for selection are academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, and dependability.

Kinman is the grandson of Mrs. Mamie E. Kinman, 1700 Lancaster, and Elmer E. Gibbs, Vernon.

Lawmakers eye repeal of Blue Law

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite an estimate that legalized Sunday shopping would spark more than $28 million in state sales tax, the 1983 effort to repeal the Blue Law ran into strong opposition from some lawmakers Monday.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Richardson, brought Comptroller Bob Bullock's sales tax estimate to the House Committee on State Affairs, which will consider several attempts to strike down the 1961 statute banning the sale of 42 items on both days of a weekend.

Anti-Blue Law witnesses — including a judge who ruled it unconstitutional — testified Monday that the law is vague, unenforceable, unfair and misguided.

But questions from the committee indicated the law may survive for at least another two years. Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, said Blue Law opponents should concentrate on revision rather than repeal, because, "Repeal is probably not going to happen this session and maybe not next session."

Reps. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont; Smith Gilley, D-Greenville; Randy Pennington, R-Houston; Alex Short, D-Texarkana; and Green indicated by their questions that they support the Blue Law's effective ban on Sunday shopping.

Gilley said he favors a revised, more stringent law. "Almost no one would be able to buy anything if I had my way," he said.

Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie and a repeal advocate, said the majority of the committee seemed to favor keeping the Blue Law on the books.

Lawmakers pushing for repeal talked of the possible economic benefits of Sunday shopping. Ceverha said it would create jobs, Bob Valles, D-El Paso, said the Blue Law forces his constituents to shop Sundays in Mexico and New Mexico — "a state that thrives on El Paso dollars on Sunday."

Longtime Blue Law foe Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, said it's simply a matter of "people like to shop on Sunday."

Religious groups have said the law protects employees from Sunday work. But Ceverha said less than 4 percent of the state's work force is covered by the law.

"This is not a religious issue," Ceverha argued. "How many of you go to church on Sunday and go to a neighborhood restaurant fully expecting someone to be there to cook your food and wait on you?"

Witnesses from Tom Thumb-Page and Skaggs Alpha Beta stores said employees like to work Sundays because they are paid time and a half. "Most of ours want to work on Sundays," said Houston Holmes Jr., an executive of Tom Thumb-Page stores.

Robert Goodfriend, a Dallas lawyer who has fought the Blue Law in court, said his clients have trouble figuring out what the law covers.

"What you have done is make legitimate business men in this state operate in continuous legal peril," he testified.

Goodfriend also argued that the intent of the 1961 law has become a reason to repeal it. The statute says the intent is "to promote the health, recreation and welfare" of Texans.

"The shopping center has become a recreation center," he said. "It's like the park used to be. It is a place to be with the family."

But Green said he doesn't like the look of Sunday shopping in states that allow it.

"There's just no difference between Saturday and Sunday (when stores open on Sundays). I don't want to see that happening in my area," he said. "I personally don't like to shop on Sundays. My wife happens to disagree with me."

State District Judge Dee Brown Walker of Dallas, who struck down the law, called it a "continual irritant to the people."

MARY LEATHAM (THE "M" OF G & M GARAGE) AND SON ...garage offers friendly service and years of experience

G & M Garage offers complete car service

If you are looking for the most complete car repair service in Big Spring, look no further than G & M Garage at 809 E. 2nd.

Owned by G & M (George and Mary) Leatham, the garage provides almost complete in-house car maintenance. They specialize in tune ups, but they don't stop there. They have remodeled their office area to give their customers more comfortable surroundings and will do all they can to make sure their service is friendly and speedy.

They are an independent operation and they will give you the best service for your car's drive train, the rear end system and complete engine work.

Whether it's a dirty air filter, misfiring spark plugs or a sticky carburetor, G&M has the tools to make your car run smooth and sure.

Such as the brake lathe. Take your car to G & M for complete in-house brake maintenance. The brake lathe can save you time and money because it makes it possible for the brakes to be tuned and adjusted in the shop, without the expense and time of having them sent out. They can tune the rotors on the brakes right there.

G & M's has a fuel exhaust system analyzer and full electronic equipment to make your car's next tune-up the best ever.

Proper maintenance of your car is important because it can save you from bothersome breakdowns, especially in the coming summer months — when your car will push-ed near its limits.

G & M has many tools and skills to keep your car running all year around.

Rebels arrive for showdown at Steers' corral

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

It's time for the Big Game. "This is definitely where we want to be," said Big Spring High coach Frank Ibarra during practice Monday afternoon. "Lee is one of two teams we need to beat this half."

The Steers put their unbeaten District 4-AAAAA record on the line this afternoon when they host the Midland Lee Rebels at 4 p.m. at Steer Park. Both teams are 4-0 in 4-5A play and the winner of this game will take undisputed possession of first place in the league race.

"They're tough," Ibarra reports. "We've been winning games and not playing that well. They've been winning games and playing well. That's what scares me."

The Rebels boast the league's hottest bat in shortstop Barry Blackwell. The honorable mention all-district choice last season has eight hits in 11 at-bats for a blistering .727 average. Outfielder Bryan Willis — the team's ace pitcher last spring, is batting .455. The Rebels are hitting almost at .300 as a team.

"They are a real good situation hitting team," Ibarra says. "They hit and run well, bunt well...they just do all the basics."

And on the mound, Lee has 4-5A's top pitcher in Craig Ray. Ray has won all three of his starts and has posted a 2.45 earned run average with 25 strikeouts in 141/3 innings.

Should he run into problems, Kerry Robertson is available. Robertson has yet to give up an earned run in 62/3 innings and has 10 strikeouts. Another possible pitcher is John Denton who owns Lee's other district victory.

"They're a lot like Coronado. Not flashy but solid. We're going to have to play well to win." Although Lee is a formidable opponent, the Steers are not shabby themselves. In four district games, Big Spring is hitting at a .330 clip with third baseman David Anguiano the surprising team leader with a .471 average (8 hits, 17 tries). Valenzuela has stepped into the designated hitter's slot to hit .467 while slugger Jay Pirkle is hitting .333 and has four home runs.

Valenzuela has been tough on the mound if not as spectacular as Ray or Robertson. He defeated Abilene 8-5 in the district opener and then tossed the Steers to a 5-4 win over Odessa in eight innings. He came on with the bases loaded and none out in the seventh inning to save Big Spring's narrow 5-3 win over Cooper Saturday.

"It'll be a good game," Valenzuela predicts. "Both teams are undefeated and both can hit the ball well. I predict they will hit the ball. I just need to keep it down and force them to hit the ball to our infield."

Big Spring has not been as awesome as it was last year when the Steers won 12 of 14 league games. But Ibarra isn't complaining, either. "I'm happy that we're playing good baseball when it counts," he said. "Cooper had us in pressure situations from inning one and we just hung in there. That's always a good sign."

Big Spring did not make an error Saturday and that's also good news for Ibarra. Now if he can find a designated hitter for this afternoon's game. With Valenzuela batting for himself, the third-year coach will go with Mark Walker, Billy Thompson or Joey Herrera batting for shortstop Chris Lamb.

"This is a big game but the loser will still be in decent shape. We've got to win this game at home. You would like to split games with a team like Lee but if we can win today, we can worry about the split later," Ibarra added.

Fresno, DePaul reach NIT title game

NEW YORK (AP) — The Wake Forest Demon Deacons found out a little about defense in the National Invitation Tournament — not theirs, Fresno State's.

"No Atlantic Coast Conference team played defense like this," said Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy after his team was smothered by the Bulldogs 86-62 in the NIT semifinals Monday night.

The surprisingly easy victory for Fresno State over the Deacons sent the Bulldogs into the finals of the nation's oldest post-season basketball tournament Wednesday night against DePaul, a 68-58 winner over Nebraska in Monday night's other semifinal game at Madison Square Garden.

Ron Anderson and Bernard Thompson each scored 10 points in the first half to help Fresno State pull out to a 14-point lead at intermission and the Bulldogs breezed home from there over a seemingly stunned Wake Forest team.

"I don't think we quit," said Tacy. "We just didn't concentrate. Once we got behind, it got out of hand. Their pressure hurt us — we just didn't concentrate on offense."

IN EVERY aspect of the contest, the game plan worked to perfection for the team from the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

"Our plan was to get a big lead in the first five minutes, then make them (Wake Forest) play from behind," Anderson said. "Offensively, Wake Forest was being denied the ball and couldn't get going — our defense was too tough."

The Bulldogs, actually finished the regular college basketball season ranked No. 1 in the nation in defense.

Fresno State virtually settled Monday night's opener with a 38-24 halftime lead. The Bulldogs then delivered the knockout blow at the start of the second half by outscoring the Deacons 13-4 during a stretch that gave the Bulldogs a 59-36 lead with 11:30 left in the game.

With a host of their red-clad fans from California rooting them on, the Bulldogs led by as many as 28 points twice before the one-sided contest was over.

Anderson was the game's high scorer with 24 points, while Thompson added 23 for Fresno State, which won its 11th game in its last 12 and improved its record to 24-10. Delaney Rudd scored 16 points and Anthony Teachey contributed 14 for Wake Forest, which closed out its season at 20-12.

"I thought Wake Forest would run the ball more," said Boyd Grant, the Fresno State Coach. "We respect their guards. We figured we had to stop their guards from penetrating — and we did."

"Tonight was the best game we've played since I've been at Fresno State."

DEPAUL'S VICTORY wasn't as easy in this 46th NIT. The Blue Demons had to come back after blowing a 15-point lead and finally broke away in the last six minutes behind Tyrone Corbin's cool foul shooting and key baskets.

"Credit Nebraska with trying to force us out of our patterns," said DePaul Coach Ray

Meyer. "Nebraska is better defensively than I thought. But we did what we had to do when it was necessary."

DePaul, 21-11, broke away from an early tie with 15 straight points midway through the first half to lead 23-8 before the Huskers of the Big Eight Conference stormed back to close within 31-29 behind the shooting of Claude Renfro, who scored 11 of his 13 points in the first half.

DePaul's lead at the half was 36-31, and Nebraska eventually came back to tie it at 52-52 late in the second half with a one-man performance by Dave Hoppen, who scored 11 straight points for Nebraska at one stage.

But, with DePaul leading 56-54 with 6:15 in the game, the Blue Demons used the free throw line to salt the game away. Corbin hit three foul shots and a basket in a 12-2 run that put the Blue Demons up 68-56 with 30 seconds remaining. Corbin finished with 15 points and a game-leading 16 rebounds.

Hoppen finished with a team-leading 15 points for Nebraska, 22-10. "When we got that 23-8 lead," said Corbin, "we relaxed. That's how they got back into the game."

Stan Cloudy, who had been tearing up this tournament for the Huskers, was held to a sub-par game of merely four points.

"We didn't play well all night," said Nebraska Coach Moe Iba. "DePaul had a lot to do with it, of course. They outthrust us. We took some poor shots after we got back into the game. The way we played tonight, we were fortunate to be that close."

UP FOR GRABS — Fresno's Omel Nieves (15) leaps for the ball in the second half of the National Invitational Tournament against Wake Forest at New York's Madison Square Garden Monday night. Also in the scramble are Fresno's Ron Anderson (35) and Bernard Thompson (34). Fresno moved into the finals, defeating Wake Forest 86-62.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAR. 30, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to be more thoughtful of the future. Try to enter into new agreements which could give you and associates an opportunity to express your talents. Be optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Using spare time for being with persons you enjoy can add much to your happiness at this time. Use your skills.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Taking time to improve conditions at home is wise. Do some entertaining, but don't invite a troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Talk with associates about new ways to improve mutual projects. Don't overlook important correspondence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day for expansion, so put your mind to work on projects that could add to your income in the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are magnetic today and can achieve a great deal if you contact the right persons. Strive for increased happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make long-range plans for the days ahead and be sure to talk them over with trusted allies. Obtain the data you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) State your aims to a loyal friend and you will get good suggestions on ways to add to your income. Become more popular.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your position in your line of endeavor and know what should be done in order to become more successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Stop wasting time and put those new ideas you have to work instead of procrastinating. Outsiders can be helpful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a true understanding with those you do business with and much can be gained. Become more efficient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Clarifying with associates what each of you expects from the other is the best way to proceed at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You hardly know where to begin with all the work you have to do, but if you control your temper, all will be fine.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have to be taught early to smile more and gain the goodwill of others. Don't let pride get in the way of progress. Direct the education along lines of governmental work for best results. A good family member in this chart.

Bigamist receives 34-year sentence

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — One victim of a man who admitted marrying more than 100 women says his 34-year prison sentence for fraud and bigamy is fair punishment for "devastating a human being."

Giovanni Vigliotto, a traveling flea-market trader, was sentenced Monday to a maximum 28 years for fraud and six years for bigamy, plus a $336,000 fine.

Patricia Gardiner, one of 105 women Vigliotto admitted marrying and whose testimony helped convict him, was awarded $42,739 of the fine as restitution. "I hate him," she said after Vigliotto's sentencing, which she watched. "It was so unnecessary to devastate a human being like that."

She said the long sentence means, "He won't do it to anybody else for a while, will he?"

Vigliotto, 53, complained in a 20-minute speech before sentencing that he was the victim of a "shocking travesty of justice."

"Your perverted sense of morality and hang 'em high justice ... precludes any hope of even minimal reasoning," Vigliotto told Superior Court Judge Rufus C. Coulter.

Vigliotto said he expected a maximum sentence and asked: "Why do you hate me so? What have I possibly done to incur your hatred? Why do you want to destroy me?"

Coulter said he "would not dignify" Vigliotto's attack with a response.

Mr. Gardiner, a real estate saleswoman, testified she met Vigliotto in November 1981 and agreed to marry him when he held her hand and told her she was warm and lovable.

"I liked him because he just kept looking right into my face and right into my eyes ... I liked that honest trait of just looking into your eyes," she testified in the five-week trial.

But she said Vigliotto disappeared three weeks later with most of her belongings and $11,000 cash from the sale of her home.

Joan Bacarella, 45, of Manalapan, N.J., testified she met Vigliotto in February 1981 and that he left her and her three children stranded in a Florida motel.

"I realized I had been victimized and my prince had turned into a frog," Mrs. Bacarella testified.

Sharon Clark testified Vigliotto bilked her out of $36,500 in cash and property and vanished about three weeks after they were married in June 1981.

"From the day I met the man, I never had any money. He had all the money, but I trusted him," said Ms. Clark, of Ray, Mich.

Prosecutor David Stoller asked Coulter for a maximum sentence, listing a dozen reasons. They included Vigliotto's alleged failure to demonstrate remorse; the "devastation" he brought to Ms. Gardiner, and Vigliotto's conviction on three previous felonies.

"Society needs to be protected from this individual for the maximum amount of time," Coulter said in pronouncing sentence.

The judge agreed to a post-sentence hearing April 14 to allow the defense to argue that excessive pre-trial publicity warrants a new trial.

Defense attorney Richard Steiner he would appeal, based on allegations of misconduct by the prosecution.

BEFORE SENTENCING — Giovanni Vigliotto, who says he married 105 women, confers with his attorney before drawing a maximum sentence of 34 years in prison for bigamy and fraud Monday in Superior Court in Phoenix, Ariz.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND PARTIES

You are hereby notified of the opportunity for written public comment concerning the Construction Permit Application No. 9287 by Hunt Oil Company to construct an Amine Gas Treating Plant in Howard County, Texas. This plant will be located in the NW 1/4 of the SW 1/4 of Section 18 of Block 23 in T & P RR Co. Survey or approximately 4.5 miles southwest of Big Spring, Texas. The facility proposes to emit the following air contaminants: Sulfur Dioxide, Oxides of Nitrogen, and Hydrogen Sulfide. The Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board has made the preliminary determination to issue this permit. Before a permit can be issued for this facility, all emission sources must demonstrate compliance with all Rules and Regulations of the Texas Air Control Board and all applicable Federal Regulations. This includes the application of "best available control technology" to each emission source and compliance with all ambient air quality standards.

A copy of all materials submitted by the applicant including the preliminary analysis thereof is available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board Region 6 office at 1901 East 17th Street, Suite 101, Odessa, Texas 79762, and at the Texas Air Control Board, 6330 Highway 290 East, Austin, Texas 78723. All interested persons may inspect these materials and submit written comments to the Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board. All comments received in writing by April 28, 1983, shall be considered by the Board in making its decision on the application. All comments will be made available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board office in Austin.

Stenholm proposes agriculture forum

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
 WASHINGTON — An ad hoc committee of national farm leaders has been chosen to decide whether to establish a new bi-partisan agriculture forum that would meet periodically to develop long-term solutions to farm problems.

Several farm state congressmen and approximately 200 national farm leaders met last week to discuss forming the National Agricultural Forum. The idea is the brainchild of Reps. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, and Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

"We in agriculture usually react to the problem rather than focus on what the in-depth, alternative solutions are," Stenholm said Monday.

The forum, which would be modeled after Stenholm's Conservative Democratic Forum, would meet approximately every two or three months to discuss current and future farm problems. After each meeting, the group would issue a report detailing the various ideas discussed in the forum.

"I call this trickle-up agriculture policy," Stenholm said. We would have representatives from every group in agriculture and they would tell the government what they want."

Administration officials and congressional farm leaders said the forum would be a helpful monitor of the agriculture mood.

Every (farm) organization that has paid executives is going to look after their own people," said House Agriculture Committee Chairman E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Mission.

Everyone says they need something different... Who in the hell am I going to listen to."

Wilmer Mizell, an assistant to Agriculture Secretary John Block, said it's time that we did sit down and look at the long-term needs of agriculture."

But several farm representatives questioned whether Washington needs another farm organization. They voted to create a committee to decide if the forum would be effective.

Stenholm and Roberts stressed that the forum would not be just another farm organization."

"We've got a lot of farm organizations," Roberts said. "But I would like to have a forum that is simply producer-oriented."

Space scope use delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Technical difficulties over a space telescope designed to detect objects 50 times fainter than those seen by earthbound instruments will push its cost to $1 billion and delay its launch by a year — to 1986 — House investigators say.

Their weekend report estimated the sophisticated telescope will cost the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $203 million more than the $797 million currently projected.

The surveys and investigation staff of the House Appropriations Committee also concluded the 45-foot-long device will be carried into Earth orbit by the space shuttle no earlier than April 1986, a year later than planned.

James Beggs, NASA's administrator, said he had "little disagreement with the report's conclusion, other than minor differences with the estimate of the slippage and the overrun costs." He said a separate NASA investigation had drawn similar conclusions.

He declined to make an estimate in either area, saying the final cost and flight date would depend on management and technical programs now underway to correct the problems.

Beggs placed part of the blame on deficient communications between NASA headquarters in Washington and the agency's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., which is in charge of the Space Telescope program. He noted that NASA has had five different space science administrators here since the project started in 1977.

The telescope is being developed by Perkin-Elmer Corporation of Danbury, Conn. Lockheed Missiles and Space Company, Sunnyvale, Calif., is responsible for building the support module.

Beggs said that once it flies, "there is good reason to believe the Space Telescope will be the most important scientific instrument ever flown." It will enable astronomers to see seven times deeper into space and to gaze at up to 350 times the volume of the universe now visible.

The staff report said there are many outstanding questions about the design of three fine guidance sensors locking the telescope onto distant stars. It also said an instrument for aligning and securing the scientific instruments in the payload must be redesigned.

There also is a question whether to clean the telescope's primary mirror. The report said the mirror has accumulated so much dust after 15 months in a Perkin-Elmer "clean room" that it has lost 20 to 30 percent of its reflecting power.

The report put most of the blame for the delays and cost overruns on NASA for understaffing the program by 50 percent in its early development and on Perkin-Elmer, which it said "failed to recognize and properly plan for a project of the technical and manufacturing difficulty of the Space Telescope."
