Et tu, Goliad?

(Shamir Caplan). These two unrelated scenes were from the Monday night performance of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" by the seventh grade Signal class at Goliad Middle School.

It was a gym of a play

By KEITH BRISCOE
City Editor

When William Shakespeare wrote that all the world is a stage, he could never have imagined that a gymnasium would be included someday in his dictum of drama.

But art knows no boundaries, and Monday night, among the barbells and tumbling mats and bleachers of the Goliad Middle School gymnasium, the Bard's beckoning lines once again proved versatile verse.

Julius Caesar and Banquo met their ignominious fates on a hardwood basketball court and Mark Anthony eulogized eloquently in the shadow of a backboard as the Goliad Signal classes staged capsule versions of "Julius Caesar" and "Macbeth."

The performances capped a nine-week study of Shakespeare and his works by the sixth and seventh grade Signal classes, special sections of intellectually gifted students.

Kathleen Newman, Signal class teacher, said the students chose to perform the plays after "they found out that Shakespeare was not as horrible as they had always heard."

Dressed in costumes of their own making and acting around props of their own design, the students, performing in front of parents and school officials, gave an inspired if somewhat nervous rendition of the shortened plays taken from the book "Shakespeare Hands with Shakespeare."

The dialogue was delivered in modern English, "but a few 'thees' and 'thous' were thrown in to retain the flavor," Mrs. Newman said.

The sixth graders, who performed "Macbeth," had studied Shakespeare's biography and his sonnets, while the seventh graders had wrestled with the original "Julius Caesar" before rendering the special version.

The students were allowed to try out for three parts each, and the final casts were selected by a jury of peers. The actors rehearsed the plays twice a week for six weeks.

Shamir Caplan, who gave an intense and emotional portrayal of the bereaved Mark Anthony, said he chose the part because "he seems like a nice guy. There's one part I'm surprised at. He cleverly works the crowd of people to turn against the conspirators. That's what I think is nice."

Shamir, 12, son of Dr. and Mrs. Brian Caplan, said the Mark Anthony role marked his second dramatic appearance.

"I once acted as a rabbi at camp," he said. "I did a terrible job...that's why I was scared about taking the part of Mark Anthony."

Appearing as Macbeth was another veteran thespian, Erin Kelly, 12, who starred in previous school performances of "Scrooge," "Oliver" and "Christmas on Angel Street."

Erin, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Jerry Kelly, said she had no qualms about playing a male part. "That's all I've ever played," she said. "I didn't want to be Lady Macbeth, so that was the only good part left."

Her first exposure to Shakespeare gave her an unusual insight into the 16th Century playwright. "He's weird," she said. "He's got some weird ideas. He's pretty down on life."

Grand tragedy on a small scale can be great fun, the actors agreed. It was a gym of a performance.

Hispanics demand VA chief's ouster

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Hispanic leaders are calling for the firing of Veterans Administration official Harry Walters, who has been accused of uttering an ethnic slur during a visit here.

Leaders of the American Federation of Government Employees Local 3511 contend Walters made an insulting remark about Mexican-Americans during a visit at Audie L. Murphy Memorial Hospital.

The VA administrator, appointed by President Reagan four months ago, was there Wednesday to dedicate a $1.8 million clinical research center inside the hospital.

But Walters has heatedly denied making any disparaging remarks about Mexican-Americans.

"It's an obvious lie," he told The San Antonio Light from his Washington home. "I would never in my wildest dreams say anything to damage the Hispanic community. It's not in my blood."

Union Vice President William Fenstermacher said Walters shrugged off the employees' complaints, including when they told him hospital officials had cleaned up the usually dirty premises only for his benefit.

Fenstermacher said Walters was then told: "Then you won't be surprised when I tell you management is cooking your fajita lunch outside next to the trash compactor, where all the flies are."

Big Spring and the arts

Group would share nation's resources

By MIKE DOWNEY

Allan Longacre, director of the Texas Regional Exchange Office, wants to bring the arts of America to Texas and take Texas arts to the nation.

Longacre was speaking today at a consortium meeting of the arts at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Arts Council. Arts show directors from a 150-mile radius of the area are expected to attend the presentation.

TREO is a non-profit organization established to bring the arts to places that normally could not support them, Longacre said. The organization has an arts alliance with two national groups: Mid-America Arts Alliance and Western States Arts Foundation, he said.

"We can bring greater variety and, in some cases, higher quality arts to states and communities," Longacre said.

Longacre, the former director of the Texas Commission on the Arts, brings 20 years experience in presenting the arts from his beginnings as a community theater director in Iowa. He said this grass-roots experience has been invaluable in working with smaller art show directors.

... arts director

"Energetic things happen in small towns," Longacre said. "People who have the drive can be very creative if they don't have the money."

Longacre works closely with smaller communities such as Big Spring to improve arts presentations in those places. He said TREO offers fee support to touring groups as well as workshops and other aid to the numerous presentors of those arts.

"We can save them money by developing communication and cooperation between communities to bring in arts," Longacre said. "This provides work in areas for the arts as well."

Education for arts appreciation should begin in the schools, Longacre said. People should know why classical music, country music or a painting means so much to some people, the TREO director said.

Area may lose DWI test

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners indicated yesterday they may not support a three-county move to continue funding for an alcohol breath test program to determine driver intoxication.

Harold Loveless of Midland told commissioners yesterday the Midland College Chemical Breath Testing Program had lost its federal grant after 12 years. Loveless serves Midland, Ector and Howard County with maintenance and training on the Intoxilyzer.

The Intoxilyzer is a breath-test machine used by law enforcement officials to measure the level of intoxication in persons detained for suspicion of driving while intoxicated or public intoxication.

Loveless said if his program ended, the county would lose the use of the Intoxilyzer, presently located at the Big Spring Police Station. Big Spring police officers would also lose their certification on the machine, he said. The county would have to depend on the Texas Department of Public Safety for breath tests on alcohol-related arrests, Loveless said.

DPS Trooper Bill Jennings said the Howard County DPS office is currently using the city's Intoxilyzer. However, the state would probably put one here if the city's unit is lost, Jennings told the commissioners.

"We've got to have one," the DPS officer said. The cost for Howard County to pay its share with Midland and Ector Counties would be between $707 and $786 a month, Loveless said. Howard would be paying 19 percent of the costs, he said.

Midland County commissioners had unanimously approved their funding for the program, Loveless said. Loveless said the county would lose the revenue from DWI fines without the Intoxilyzer as well as incur maintenance costs on whatever machine was used.

Commissioners decided to study the problem further before making a decision.

Intoxilyzer fund loss could hurt Midland, Ector counties, too

ODESSA (AP) — Some West Texas drivers may find it easier to fight drunken driving charges, if a state-financed program for administering breath tests isn't rescued, officials say.

Intoxilyzer technician Harold Loveless, a Midland College instructor, will lose his job Oct. 1 unless three counties agree to finance the program to service the equipment and teach law enforcement officers how to use it, the Odessa American reported Monday.

Loveless services Intoxilyzers used by five law enforcement agencies in Ector, Midland and Howard counties.

The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation program will run out of funding Sept. 30, Loveless said.

Furor continues over Hitler diaries

LONDON (AP) — Adolf Hitler disliked writing and dictated his major work, "Mein Kampf," says an eminent British historian who doubts the authenticity of the purported Hitler diaries unveiled by a West German magazine.

Donald Cameron Watt, professor of international history at the University of London, was quoted in today's Times of London as saying: "It was a devil of a job to get 'Mein Kampf' out of Hitler."

"It was dictated in two chunks, the first while he was in jail when he had nothing to do, and the second two years later, when as a result of some disturbances around his speeches he was forbidden to speak publicly for six months," said Watt. "His publisher dragged him back to a desk and again provided a stenographer who wrote down what he said."

Hitler was imprisoned for 13 months after his abortive attempt to seize power in Munich in 1923.

Watt, 54, spent six years studying German government and military documents of the Hitler era seized by the allies after World War II and edited a British edition of "Mein Kampf" in 1969. He said he recollected very little signed by Hitler after the German dictator came to power in 1933.

His impression was that Hitler tried to avoid putting pen to paper. "It is very odd if he did write these diaries," Watt told the Times.

The newspaper carried Watt's statement although its parent company, News Corp., agreed to pay $400,000 for serialization rights of the diaries to the West German magazine, Stern.

Publication was to start in the weekly Sunday Times three weeks after Stern, "to allow further work on authentication," the Times stated. It indicated that because of doubts about the diaries by historians and others, the pre-publication period will be extended.

A news conference Monday in Hamburg at which two historians of the Nazi period asked Stern to allow expert examination of the diaries was a front-page story today in the Times and other British newspapers.

The request was made by Hugh Trevor-Roper, who investigated Hitler's death for the British government in 1945 and wrote the book "The Last Days of Hitler," and Gerhard L. Weinberg of the University of North Carolina, author of two works on Hitler.

Trevor-Roper, who has the title Lord Dacre, wrote in last Saturday's Times that he was satisfied the 60 volumes of hand-written diaries now stored in a Swiss bank were by Hitler. But he and Weinberg said Monday the diaries, which are dated from 1932 to 1945, had not been studied sufficiently.

An editorial in the liberal newspaper The Guardian praised Trevor-Roper for his "moral courage in publicly expressing his willingness to think again."

It said the diaries could be "the biggest scoop since the invention of the wheel" or a fraud "even more embarrassing than the last three times they found (Hitler aide) Martin Bormann."

Britain's chief rabbi, Sir Immanuel Jakobovits, protested today in a letter to the Times that whether the diaries "are authentic or not is quite immaterial to the outrage of resurrecting the incarnation of evil and his (Hitler's) propaganda, rehabilitating him for a generation which knew not this master-gangster."

Jakobovits wrote that the diaries, "even if they are genuine, are calculated to whitewash the blackest chapter in the annals of man."

HOT OFF THE PRESSES — West German citizens read through the magazine "Stern" which includes the purported Hitler diaries Monday in Frankfurt. British historian Hugh Trevor-Roper says the diaries cannot be authenticated without further study.

Shultz, Mubarak agree:

Foreign troops must leave Lebanon

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said he and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak agreed today there was an urgent need for all foreign forces to withdraw from Lebanon to permit the Lebanese to run their own country.

Shultz said that in his meeting with Mubarak there was "emphasis on the urgency on arriving at a solution (in Lebanon) and the importance of the removal of all foreign forces if you are really going to have a solution in a manner that is consistent and honors the necessity of a sovereign Lebanon able to rule itself."

"The views of the president of Egypt and the views of the president of the United States are identical on this issue," said Shultz following a meeting of nearly four hours with the Egyptian leader.

Asked if the Israelis might withdraw their troops from Lebanon during Shultz's current trip to the region, the secretary replied, "It is certainly possible but we will see."

Shultz said Mubarak made suggestions on Lebanon, which Shultz did not specify. But with Mubarak at his side, Shultz pledged that, "We will do everything we can in bringing about a resolution of the Lebanon issue."

He said Mubarak also encouraged him to make a "continued effort" on the overall peace initiative, which seeks to get Jordan to join peace talks with Israel. Mubarak told reporters, "We hope that the trip of the secretary of state to this area will conclude with something beneficial for the whole region."

Mubarak said Shultz gave him a letter from President Reagan concerning Middle East issues. He said his talks with Shultz were "very fruitful" and he considered that Egypt and the United States have "very good relations."

Mubarak emphasized Egypt has supported the Reagan peace initiative from the outset as a "golden opportunity" for a final peace settlement and urged Palestinians to "declare a linkage with Jordan" to make possible peace negotiations with Israel under the Reagan initiative.

The Cairo newspaper Al Ahran, generally well-informed about government policy, said the Egyptians would present Shultz with proposals for breaking the deadlock in the Lebanon withdrawal talks and achieving a pullout of an estimated total of 60,000 Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian troops from Lebanon.

Shultz also planned a second meeting in two days with U.S. ambassadors to key Mideast countries. They included ambassadors to Israel, Egypt, Algeria, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Tunisia who converged here for the meeting.

"Obviously there was very much discussion about the Lebanese situation, which is the focal point of the secretary's trip," said State Department spokesman John Hughes about Monday's session with the ambassadors.

Weather

Partly cloudy across Texas

By The Associated Press Low clouds developed over South Texas early today as southerly breezes brought moist air inland from the Gulf of Mexico.

Patchy fog formed along the upper coast and in Southeast Texas. Clear skies were the rule across the rest of the state before dawn.

Temperatures were in the 50s and 60s statewide. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 51 at Lufkin to 69 at Brownsville.

Winds were mostly from the south and southeast with some gusts hitting the 15 to 20 mph range in North and West Texas.

The forecast called for partly cloudy skies through Wednesday.

The Nation's Weather Skies were clear over much of the nation today, but rain continued to swell New England rivers and streams, posing the danger of flooding.

Extended Forecasts West Texas — Fair Thursday becoming partly cloudy Friday and Saturday. A little cooler north Saturday. Highs Thursday and Friday lower 80s north to mid 90s Big Bend valleys cooling to mid 70s north to mid 90s Big Bend valleys Saturday. Lows mid 40s Panhandle to near 60 extreme south throughout the period. West Texas — Mostly clear through Wednesday. Highs 80 Panhandle to 88 south and 95 Big Bend valleys. Lows 40 Panhandle and mountains to 53 south. Highs Wednesday 78 Panhandle to 83 south and 95 Big Bend.

Hostage takers settle for reunion with dogs

NORWICH, N.Y. (AP) — A couple who took 16 hostages in an eight-hour siege demanded return of their seized dogs, $4 million, a meeting with TV stars and a chat with President Reagan — but finally settled for a reunion with two ex-pets, officials said.

Lawrence Gladstone, 49, a convicted gun-runner, and his wife Christine, 31, surrendered Monday afternoon after using weapons to take hostages in the Chenango County Office Building. No injuries were reported.

They demanded better treatment for animals — their own 43 dogs were seized in 1981 after a complaint — and asked for the money as compensations for "the war crimes perpetrated by the forces active against our persons and those of our dogs."

They were arraigned before City Court Judge Howard Sullivan on charges of first-degree kidnapping and held without bail in the county jail, pending a preliminary hearing Friday.

On a typewritten, 21/2-page list, the Gladstones demanded the presence in Norwich of Gov. Mario Cuomo, New York's two U.S. senators, and television figures Frank Gifford, Dan Rather and Bryant Gumbel.

They also asked that telephone lines be opened to connect them with Reagan and actress Doris Day, a supporter of animal rights.

Rescuers near spelunkers

MOUNT VERNON, Ky. (AP) — A team of seven rescuers entered a cave this morning and began crawling toward eight spelunkers who had been trapped by high water 1,800 feet into a hillside for three days.

The cave explorers were found on a dry ledge Monday night after the discovery of a note scribbled on a tool box. They were taken food, dry clothing, and blankets by police divers while pumps worked through the night draining water from the flooded cave 50 miles south of Lexington.

The rescue was expected to take as long as two hours because of the difficulty of reaching the stranded explorers, said Tom Staubitz, vice chairman of the Greater Cincinnati Grotto Club, a spelunkers club. The rescue team, clad in diving suits and equipped with air tanks, made their way into the cave after one of the rescuers made an "exploratory pass" through the entrance, Staubitz said.

The passage was found to be open, thanks to seven water pumps that were draining the cave's stream at the rate of 7,000 gallons per minute.

Crews installed an extra pump outside the cave early today to speed drainage of the cavern, which was flooded when a sudden rainstorm caused a stream to rise and seal the only exit.

The spelunkers were found in good spirits and good health on the ledge deep in the cavern. They were "living the life of Riley," Staubitz said.

Four divers wearing air tanks, making a third rescue attempt Monday, finally reached the eight explorers at about 10:20 p.m.

Gardening is actually farming

COLLEGE STATION—It's time for gardeners to stop gardening and start "farming."

Dr. Sam Cotner, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, says gardeners are, in reality, "urban agriculturists" and therefore should relate to farming.

Conservative estimates indicate that about half the population of Texas is involved in growing fruits and vegetables at home. These urban agriculturists should look at their "backyard plot" as a small farm, says Cotner, even if it is just several hundred square feet in size or perhaps only a couple of tomato plants growing in a flower bed.

"Urban agriculturists encounter exactly the same problems as do the farmers and ranchers who are feeding our nation," notes Cotner. "The same weather problems, hungry insects, devastating diseases and pesky weeds affect backyard vegetable gardens just as they do commercially grown crops."

These urban agriculturists make exactly the same important decisions as farmers regarding what varieties to plant, planting dates, what and how much fertilizer to apply, when to water and how to cope with numerous production problems.

"Though only about 3 percent of our nation's population is actually involved in production agriculture, it's vitally important that the millions who are growing fruits and vegetables at home relate their food producing efforts to agriculture," Cotner emphasizes.

"When these gardeners start considering themselves as 'urban agriculturists,' perhaps they will appreciate our farmers and ranchers more."

Cotner believes that it's important for our population to understand the cost of technology requirements necessary to produce and make available high quality, fresh fruits and vegetables.

Urban agriculturists should also appreciate the fact that when their gardens fail, for whatever reason, they can, make a trip to a local supermarket or a roadside stand to purchase high quality tasty fruits and vegetables.

Can an 8-pound-2-ounce baby be premie?

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it possible for a premature baby to weigh 8 pounds, 2 ounces. I was told my son was a premature baby, but I know I was pregnant for 9 months. I was told I delivered two months before the date calculated for it. — P.M.

Most authorities define prematurity as birth before the 37th week of pregnancy. You start counting weeks from the first day of your last menstrual period. By another definition your son would not be called premature. That is the definition that uses birth weight as the rule, with a weight of less than 5.5 pounds indicating prematurity.

However, birth weight is not as reliable as is the time of development (gestation). For example, half of low-birth-weight infants (5.5 pounds and less) have had 37 weeks of development. Four percent of infants over that weight have had a gestation period of less than 37 weeks. I do agree that an 8-pound-2-ounce infant is unlikely to have spent less than 37 weeks in the womb. Nevertheless, it could happen. If you could chart the baby's development from the date of your last menstrual period you would be able to properly describe your son as premature or full-term.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am wondering if there is anything one should do to prevent glaucoma. I am 56 and have an eye check every two years, and I have never had a sign of it, but I do have a cousin who is blind and my great grandfather was blind. My own father has glaucoma. — Mrs. D.B.

You're asking, of course, whether or not you might be prone to developing glaucoma because of your family history. The answer is not so easy. Families with one member having glaucoma do run an increased risk of developing it, but a true inheritance pattern cannot be predicted. However, because of the known increased risk factor in such families it is especially important for close relatives to have periodic checks before symptoms appear. You're doing exactly that and you should continue to do so.

So far as we know, there is no way to prevent the development of glaucoma — no medicine to use, no change of diet, no vitamin to prevent the rise in eye pressure from beginning. This is why it is so important for people to have glaucoma checked periodically, whether or not there is history of it in the family. It's important because there is medicine to take to stop the pressure buildup if it occurs. And in some cases, there is surgery to correct the problem. Prevention comes from early detection. You will find the problem discussed in the booklet "Cataracts and Glaucoma," which other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can shingles affect more than the skin. I mean other parts of the body, like internal organs? — Mrs. A.F.

It's rare for this to happen, but it can. This may occur if the person's defenses against infection have been weakened by another disease — for example, by cancer. Then the zoster virus can spread to many organs — the brain, lungs, liver, pancreas. That's called disseminated zoster.

BECOMING

BECOMING INFORMED — Howard County Extension Agent Naomi Hunt introduces Mrs. Zula Rhodes to a variety of pamphlets the extension office has available to help persons become better consumers. Providing information to consumers is only one of the many services available at the extension office. It is located in the basement of the Howard County Courthouse.

Dear Abby

Shape up or ship out

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with you, but you disappointed me when you told "Not Content in California" to seek therapy to find out why he found his mate of over 40 years "physically repugnant" because of her "protruding tummy and lovely time-etched face." (She was 60 and he was 69)

Abby, with young, beautiful women so available these days, most men wouldn't even bother with "new trim on an old model." This man gave his wife fair warning that he'd be happier if she'd have cosmetic surgery, but she insisted she wanted no part of such an operation.

Instead of siding with the wife, you should have said, "Honey, make yourself as attractive as possible for your man. There are plenty of available women out there just waiting to grab him!"

This is not a put down of women, Abby. Most women will do everything possible to look better for themselves. And if that's not enough motivation for cosmetic surgery holding a husband should be. REMODELED IN SOUTH CAROLINA DEAR REMODELED:

Read on for an opposing view:

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the husband who asked you to persuade his wife to undergo cosmetic surgery really fired my ire!

It's incredible that this man has lived 69 years but has not yet reached maturity! Obviously he has so little self-esteem that he must catch some reflected glory from his wife's beauty. Consequently when her looks started to go, it was no small matter to him since his very image in the eyes of society was threatened.

Of course he will say he was thinking only of his wife. I say "Baloney!"

When people stake their happiness on something as transient as good looks, they are doomed to inevitable disappointment. Is there any wonder there are so many empty marriages?

ON YOUR SIDE

DEAR ON: Here's another one for my side:

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Not Content in California" that he has made me appreciate my husband even more.

We've been married for 46 years, and I, too, have a "lovely time-etched face" (wrinkles), and a bulge below the waistline that doesn't respond to diet or exercise, but I have never heard a word of complaint from my husband.

I'm nearly 70, and he's two years younger. For years I've suggested cosmetic surgery for myself, but he has resisted the idea out of concern for welfare because he fears I might come out looking like "somebody else."

In short, he loves the real me, and he lets me be. And I return the compliment. He's not as slim and youthful looking as he used to be either, but if we can't relax and enjoy just being alive in these advanced years, when will we ever?

Tell "Not Content" to thank God he still has the same faithful wife after 40 years. Not many can say that, and the familiar is so comfortable!

HAPPY OLD WIFE

Problems? Everybody has them. What are yours? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ms. Hunt speaks at meeting

Naomi Hunt, county extension agent, presented "Cleaning on a Shoestring" to Creative Homemakers at a meeting April 11 in the home of Bonnie Proctor. Mrs. Hunt talked about how cost efficient it is to make cleaning supplies.

She made soap jelly, glass cleaner and tile cleaner and gave everyone samples to take home. Anita Gorham visited.

Next meeting will May 14 at County Extension-sponsored Women's Seminar.

Consumers are hub of U.S. economy

President Reagan has declared the week of April 24 as National Consumer Week. In his declaration, the president states that we must "fully recognize the crucial role consumers play in our economy."

Most persons know what government, agriculture, industry and labor contribute to the economy. But many do not recognize how individual consumers contribute to the economic health of the nation.

Consumers are the hub of the nation's economy. Their demand for goods and services determines which goods and services will continue to be available in the United States free market economy.

Consumers have the right to accurate consumer information, to product safety and to product choice. Along with consumer information and help are: Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. responsibility to exercise their right to be heard as citizens and consumers. An informed and assertive consumer citizenry is the cornerstone of a democratic society.

By participating in government and corporate decision-making, consumers can influence the formation of policy. Informed and motivated consumers also can make improvements within their local communities, even when the traditional marketplace or general public has been unresponsive. Food cooperatives and bartering networks are examples of local efforts which provide consumer services for the community.

For information about consumer education programs, the Howard County Extension Office can help. Japanese make advances in car safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Japanese are making advances on American automakers' traditional safety edge with a surprisingly good showing in a ranking of car performance in crash tests, according to a public interest group.

The Center for Auto Safety, examining frontal crash tests on about 100 cars, on Monday released a list of the 10 cars that performed best and the 10 that did the worst. Among the top 10 were four Japanese imports and four cars built by General Motors Corp., a past critic of the government tests.

The list, using frontal crashes at 35 miles an hour, showed the four-door Chevrolet Celebrity at No. 1 with the Volvo DL and the Honda Civic not far behind. Two Renault cars — the Fuego and LeCar — ranked at the bottom in the survey.

"The ratings are not exact," said Clarence Ditlow, the center's director, "but what they are is they give you a very good indicator of which cars are the safest and which are the worst... This represents the relative likelihood of survival in a front seat crash..."

The ranking was based on government crash tests on 1981 and 1982 model cars. But Jack Gillis, who compiled the list, said the findings can be applied to current models because the cars tested had no substantial design changes in the 1983 model year. The test results had all been made public previously, but the ranking is new.

Gillis, a former employee at the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said a surprise in the rankings was the performance of the Japanese imports, which previously had shown poorly using a "pass" or "fail" standard.

"American manufacturers' competitive edge on safety is now being eroded by the Japanese... While American automobile manufacturers fight safety regulations and the crash test program, the Japanese are going back to the drawing board and building safer cars," said Gillis.

The crash tests have been criticized by the auto industry for some time. The manufacturers claim a single test may give an erroneous reading because of many variables and that a "pass" or "fail" grade — as the government once used — can be misleading. Instead, manufacturers have said a numerical ranking would be more appropriate.

Ditlow said the ranking, using an indexing formula that takes into consideration the degree of injury to an occupant's head, chest and thighs, was meant to provide a more detailed comparison of various car models.

With the lower the number, the better the test results, here are the center's 10 worst and 10 best cars:

Best
Chevrolet Celebrity, 1,502; Volvo DL, 1,703; Honda Civic, 1,753; Chevrolet Camaro, 1,784; Honda Accord, 1,788; Toyota Celica, 1,839; Cadillac Seville, 1,911; Nissan Sentra, 1,950; Chevrolet Cavalier, 1,981; Ford Mustang, 2,015.

Worst
Toyota Corolla, 3,054; Dodge Colt, 3,097; Ford Fairmont Futura, 3,260; Mercedes 240D, 3,275; American Motors Concord, 3,286; Volkswagen Jetta, 3,451; Toyota Starlet, 3,848; Toyota Cressida, 3,964; Renault LeCar, 4,784; Renault Fuego, 6,069.

PIONEER PASSES PLUTO — Pioneer project manager Richard Fimmel shows the path of the Pioneer 10 spacecraft as it crosses Pluto's orbit Monday on an endless journey through the Milky Way galaxy. The spacecraft outlasted its intended 21-month life by nearly a decade and left scientists with the prediction that the craft, launched in 1972, would outlive the solar system.

Pioneer leaves solar system

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The Pioneer 10 spacecraft, bearing a message to any alien intelligence, has crossed Pluto's orbit at the outer reaches of the solar system on a journey through the Milky Way galaxy that could last forever.

"The chance in the next 10, 20 or 30 billion years of this spacecraft hitting something is essentially zero," said Dr. Joseph Wampler of the Lick Observatory at the University of California-Santa Cruz.

"The only way it could be stopped is for some other intelligence to catch it, to go out and stop it," he said Monday.

Because there is no certainty that intelligent life exists elsewhere in the universe, Pioneer 10 "will live in interstellar space for 100 billion years," he predicted. "For me, that's an eternity."

With the hope that the craft might be intercepted, scientists have attached an anodized aluminum plaque to it showing the location of the Earth and solar system, a woman and a man, his hand raised in a gesture of good will.

"If it is ever found, it will prove that we exist," Wampler said.

The spacecraft with a "simple, straightforward design" was launched March 2, 1972, for a rendezvous with Jupiter. It came within 81,000 miles of that planet on Dec. 3, 1973.

Pluto, because of its elliptical orbit, is closer to the sun than the planet Neptune. Pluto will remain inside Neptune's orbit for the next 17 years.

Pioneer 10, sending data to Earth with a radio transmitter powered by eight watts, or the equivalent of a Christmas tree light, exceeded Pluto's distance from the sun — nearly 2.8 billion miles — at 2 p.m. PDT Monday. It will surpass Neptune in distance from the sun on June 13.

In distance traveled, Pioneer 10's curving flight already has taken it on a journey of 3.5 billion miles since it left Earth.

"This is another proud day in America," said Angelo Guastaferrro, which manages Pioneer 10.

It pays to know how much it costs to heat/cool the house.

With electric bills up these days, it'll pay you to know how much you're spending to use electricity all around the house. For example, how much does it cost to cook a meal... to dry a load of clothes... and to heat and cool the house? It all adds up.

At Texas Electric, we're doing everything we can to hold down the cost of electricity. We use the cheapest generating fuels available to us — natural gas and lignite coal. And we're building a plant to use uranium, a cheaper fuel.

You can help hold down your electric bill by conserving everywhere you can. We've included a list of approximate operating costs on this folder to help you estimate the costs of using your household appliances.

And remember. It pays to know... because it all adds up.

Haskins signs with U of H

The envelope, please.
The winner, the University of Houston. And so the Lady Cougars win the 1983 recruiting award for "Best Basketball Player" after signing Howard College all-time leading scorer Nell Haskins to a scholarship agreement.

Haskins had narrowed her choices to Houston, Missouri and Arizona State University but chose the land of "Phi Slama Jama" because the school is close to her hometown of Orange.

"It is close to home," she said, smiling. "My high school coach, my dad and mom and sister have talked about how they haven't seen me play much since high school. We'll still get to travel a lot...there's one tournament we're going to in Las Vegas."

Were the Lady Cougars excited to have her sign on the dotted line?

"Excited? Yeah, they were pretty excited. They wanted to have a party for me and it was midnight," she laughed.

Houston has been upgrading its program in recent years and this past season lost to the eventual SWC champion in the spring conference tournament.

Texas lost in the NCAA women's playoffs to Louisiana Tech which advanced to the national finals.

"They are lacking inside people, someone to go to the boards," she said. "They want me to play a power forward at the high post."

Houston lost just one starter to graduation, but that one player was an inside person. Haskins will help fill her basketball shoes next season.

What will she do not being the star of the show, after scoring 29 points per game for the Queens this past year?

"It'll be all right," she said, "just as long as we're winning."

She is sad, however, about leaving Howard College behind.

"I'm leaving with a lot more than when I came up here," she admitted. "Now I've got a lot more basketball sense."

When she was a freshman, she wasn't so sure about liking HC and West Texas. "At first, I was going to leave before Thanksgiving...I couldn't take no more desert," she recalled, shaking her head.

"Coach (Don) Stevens said to stay until Thanksgiving and then everything would be smoothed out."

After the holiday, of course, basketball began and soon she forgot about home.

Haskins is eager to meet former teammate Susan Cordell on the basketball court. Cordell signed a scholarship agreement two weeks ago with Baylor University and the two inside players (Cordell is 6-6) will meet on opposing teams for the first time next fall.

"I'm really looking forward to playing Baylor," Haskins said. "It'll be nice to see what it feels like to be on the opposite side from her. It's been funny seeing how other players try to get around her. I guess I'll find out now."

Haskins was impressed with Houston's overall program for the female athlete. "They have a real good weight program and they play in Hofheinz Pavilion, which is like the (Dorothy Garrett) Coliseum except the seats are red."

The sophomore from Orange holds numerous Hawk Queens records, including single season and career scoring marks, season and career rebound records and most points scored in one game. She was National Junior College Athletic Association and Kodak all-American choices this past season in addition to making the Western Junior College Athletic Association first team for the second year.

Colts pick Elway; he picks baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, doing the one thing few people expected, made Stanford All-American quarterback John Elway their No. 1 pick today in the National Football League draft only to be told that he would play baseball instead.

Baltimore Coach Frank Kush said he talked to Elway on the telephone shortly after the Colts announced they would keep him for themselves rather than trade their pick for others.

"He was disappointed. He said he was going to play baseball," Kush said. "I told him I wished him well in whatever he did. He was pleasant, but he said he was not going to play football in Baltimore. ... We'll be patient and time will tell."

Elway let it be known weeks ago that he had no intention of signing with Baltimore, that he wanted to play for a West Coast team or for the Dallas Cowboys, and that baseball's New York Yankees were in the running for his services.

Last summer, Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner paid Elway a reported $140,000 to play outfield for their Class A minor league team at Oneonta, N.Y.

In the weeks leading to the draft, trade rumors surfaced and vanished almost daily in the sweepstakes for the 6-foot-2½, 205-pound Elway, a pure passer whose extraordinary arm strength and quick release have stirred comparisons to Joe Namath and Terry Bradshaw.

San Diego, one rumor had it, would deal its three first-round picks to the Colts for Elway. That apparently fell through when the Chargers signed their record-breaking passer, Dan Fouts, and balked at relinquishing their top pick — No. 5 overall. They used it to pick Arkansas linebacker Billy Ray Smith, the most dominant defensive player available.

The Cowboys, another rumor went, were prepared to send quarterback Danny White, defensive tackle Randy White and more to the Colts. The Los Angeles Raiders, yet another report went, were considering Marcus Allen, their brilliant rookie running back of 1982, as part of a trade package.

The Colts' least likely move — in view of Elway's desire to play football elsewhere and his option of playing baseball for Steinbrenner — seemed to be their drafting him.

But there was no deal.

When NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle opened the draft and called Baltimore's name, David Filar, the Colts' purchasing administrator and their man on the phone here, took only a moment before following instructions and printing Elway's name on the index card. "There was no discussion," Filer said.

In Baltimore, Kush and General Manager Ernie Accorsi all but admitted that drafting Elway was not their first desire but that the failure of other teams to come up with the proper package left them no other choice but to go head-to-head with the Yankees for his services.

"I hate to say this, but it's a gamble we have to take," Kush said in an intriguing choice of words considering that one of the Colts' first-round choices of a year ago, Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter, is contends his client would rather sign a contract to play baseball for the New York Yankees than play for the Colts.

now enmeshed in an NFL probe over his heavy gambling.

Said Accorsi: "We listened to trade talks right up to the last minute. We never got the compensation we thought the pick deserved," most notably the three first-round picks held by San Diego. He said the decision to sign Elway "was based on a positive philosophy. We understand the risks involved but if we are going to win we have to make those decisions."

Both Kush and Accorsi insisted they had no intention of trying to sign Elway and then trade him. But even before the first round of the draft had ended, Elway said he was contemplating prospective trades.

"There are still some deals I'm listening to," Elway told Stanford's sports information director, Steve Raczynski.

While the back-room bargaining over Elway went on, so did the 12-round draft, reduced from two days into a one-day marathon by NFL owners concerned that the rival United States Football League would try to pressure undrafted players into signing with them between the two days.

After the Colts picked Elway, one of a record six quarterbacks who would be chosen on the first round, the Los Angeles Rams used the pick they'd gotten from Houston to take halfback Eric Dickerson from Southern Methodist. Unlike Elway, Dickerson was delighted to be headed for Los Angeles. He'd known all along that's where he was going.

The Seattle Seahawks, who had traded up from No. 9 to No. 3 in the first round, chose Penn State halfback Curt Warner, then Denver chose Northwestern's Chris Hinton, the first lineman taken. Hinton, who played offensive tackle for the Wildcats, was projected as a guard by the Broncos.

Cowboy's pick Arizona's Jeffcoat

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, desperate for linebacking and defensive line help, selected Arizona State defensive end Jim Jeffcoat in the first round of the National Football League draft today.

The Cowboys, picking 23rd, passed over Nebraska center Dave Rimington and linebackers Vernon Maxwell of Arizona State and Darryl Talley of West Virginia to make their selection of Jeffcoat.

Dallas coveted Arkansas' Billy Ray Smith going into the draft and was trying to trade with the Denver Broncos, who pick fourth in the first round.

Linebacker Guy Brown will not return at weakside linebacker because of injury problems and Mike Hegman had an off year at strongside linebacker.

"Ideally, we would like to draft a linebacker or defensive lineman," said personnel director Gil Brandt. "If it doesn't work out, we'll still take the best athlete."

The Cowboys have made Denver an offer which reportedly includes disgruntled tight end Jay Saldi, wide receiver Butch Johnson, quarterback Glenn Carano and Dallas' first-round pick.

Denver apparently wants more and Coach Tom Landry will make the ultimate decision whether the Cowboys up the ante.

Draft day began at 7 a.m. and Brandt conceded, "The odds of anything happening don't look good."

The draft was to be a one-day only affair.

The NFL did not relish the thought of the United States Football League moving to sign up players it did not draft on the first day. Normally, the NFL draft is a two-day affair to get the 12 rounds completed.

Dallas drafted Kentucky State defensive back Rod Hill in the first round last year although they were rich in the secondary.

It was the Cowboys' "best athlete available" theory in motion.

The Cowboys had considered Rimington because center Robert Shaw is contemplating retirement because of a slow-to-heal knee injury.

"I think Rimington will be gone before we draft," said Landry. "He's going to be a good player."

Oilers pick offensive line to protect Campbell

HOUSTON (AP) — Versatile Southern California guard Bruce Matthews, the Houston Oilers' first pick in today's National Football League draft, says he's looking forward to moving to tackle and blocking for Earl Campbell.

"I've seen him play on television and in college and I just hope I can help him out a little," Matthews said shortly after the Oilers made him the ninth player chosen in the overall draft.

The Oilers continued their trend toward offensive linemen in the second round by selecting Harvey Salem, 6-7, 270, of California, rated by scouts as one of the best pass blockers in the draft.

Salem, a second team AP All-American, allowed only one quarterback sack his junior year and graded out as the Golden Bears' top lineman 34 times.

Matthews, a first team Associated Press All-American guard, is expected to shift to a tackle position with the Oilers where he will challenge another former USC player, John Schuhmacher, for a starting position. Matthews has played every position on the Trojan offensive line but has not played at tackle since his freshman year when he became a starter. He snapped all placements for USC the past three years.

...guard

"I have more confidence in my pass blocking but I think I can run block also," said Matthews, 6-4, 275.

Matthews is the younger brother of starting Cleveland linebacker Clay Matthews. His father, Bruce Matthews Sr., played for the San Francisco 49ers in the early 1950s.

The Oilers, hurting for offensive linemen, had reportedly planned to choose Pittsburgh's Jimbo Covert, a 6-4, 280 tackle from Pittsburgh, but he was taken by Chicago before the Oilers had a chance to pick him.

The Oilers went into the draft with hopes of drafting instant depth.

"With this many draft picks, we've got a good chance to add depth," Biles said Monday. Through a series of weekend trades with Los Angeles and Seattle, the Oilers parlayed the second choice in the overall draft into eight picks in the first 88 selections.

Reagan to name envoy for Central America

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, preparing a major address to Congress on his Central American policy, has decided to name a special envoy to the region, administration sources say.

The appointment had been sought by critics of his efforts to increase aid to the war-torn area and was revealed Monday as several congressmen were returning from inspections of El Salvador and Nicaragua.

One official, who asked that he not be identified by name, said Reagan's decision would be conveyed in a letter drafted at the State Department and addressed to Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee handling Reagan's request for $60 million in emergency military aid for El Salvador.

The administration source said the letter would probably be sent after the subcommittee votes today.

The NBC-TV "Today" show said today that former Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., was "in line" for the appointment, but deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan had not formally decided who would be named.

"Those decisions have not been formally made by the president," Speakes said, stressing the word "formally."

He said the administration was continuing to consult with members of Congress and that the letter to Long had not been sent. Reagan planned to meet in the afternoon with several members of the House Intelligence Committee.

One administration official, asked about the report that Stone, who has represented Reagan in Central America, might be named to the post, said "it's certainly possible."

The source, who requested anonymity, said that the decision about a special envoy had not been refined to determine whether the president's representative would deal specifically with El Salvador or with the entire region.

Long, who held two days of talks with Salvadoran officials, declined to say what recommendation he would make to his subcommittee, but indicated he was encouraged about prospects for appointment of a high-level envoy to seek a political solution to the civil war in El Salvador.

He has said that such an appointment should be made if Congress is to be expected to appropriate more money to help the Salvadoran regime in its battle against leftist guerrillas.

"I would not have gone down to El Salvador if I did not think ... that things were moving ahead satisfactorily," he told reporters on his arrival Monday night at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

Reagan's speech Wednesday will be his first to a joint congressional session focused entirely on foreign policy.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan "believes there is a challenge to our ideals and national security emerging in Central America and it requires a bipartisan course."
