Fast track Dreaming of a runner

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Ricky Brown dreams for a runner — a fine, fast horse that will make his name known in the racing industry. Brown trains race and saddle horses and shoes them for his living at his 16-acre place off FM 700 north. At 27, he's a youngster in the racing world, but his horses have won almost 40 futurity races and innumerable match races, he said.

No matter how many races he wins, though, it takes a special horse to give a trainer a name.

"Everybody says 'I'm gonna have a runner some day,'" Brown said while shoeing a horse in his 21-stall horse barn. "One horse that's a real runner will make you. You got to have that runner."

"You get one of them big runners — I'm talking about a Sgt. Pepper or a Denim and Diamonds — that's something you dream for," he continued. "Your breeder dreams for it, your trainer, even your jockey dreams for a runner."

"You get one of those and people notice," he said. "They say 'Well this boy can ride or this boy can train. A runner is where it's at in racing. If you don't find it, you're still just trying.'"

Brown does keep trying. He's been riding race horses for 16 years and shoeing horses — back breaking work — for seven years.

"I'll break anything with four legs," he said, adding he'll take anyone's horse.

Perhaps the difference between Brown and many other trainers is the care he takes with his horses. He works with them constantly. "I like my horses gentle," he said, crawling between one gelding's legs. The horse never flinched. "I just keep messin' with them and make a pest of myself to them."

Brown said he got his start in racing at 11 years old when he went to work for local trainer Joe Falkner. At 13, he rode mules because he didn't have a jockey's license.

Then he trained horses for local veterinarian and racing enthusiast Dr. Joe K. Neff. He branched out on his own in 1980, though he still trains for Neff.

"He's real good (at training race horses)," Neff said. "I think he's one of the best trainers in this area. He's probably trained 35 or 40 of my horses."

Neff said he believes Brown's dream will be realized. "All you gotta do is get a runner," he said. "He'll get one of them one of these days and then he'll be on top."

Brown said that training horses is his life's work.

Action/reaction: Smokeless

Q. Why do some stores charge a tax on smokeless tobacco and tobacco products and others do not?

A. Tobacco products are taxed under different laws, according to Bob Bain, special assistant to the state comptroller. State sales tax is supposed to be collected on all items marketed as chewing or smokeless tobacco, Bain said. Cigars, cigarettes and others are taxed under the Tobacco Tax Act, he said. Some items are exempt from certain taxes if taxed under another law, Bain added.

Howard House on the block

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

The Howard House Hotel at 118 E. Third will be auctioned off Tuesday at a substitute trustee's sale on the front steps of the Howard County courthouse.

Charles Schuler Jr. of Petersburg, Texas, — who sold the hotel and three city lots two years ago for $60,000 to J.W. (Bo) Rich and his wife, Georgia Lee, of Odessa — said he foreclosed on their transaction because Rich has not made payment on the hotel in six months and has not paid the delinquent taxes, a requirement of the deed of trust.

Schuler said Rich had met all his payments until six months ago and that Rich still owes him $38,000 on the property, which includes lots 1, 2 and 3 of block 20. The hotel rests on lots 1 and 2, and lot 3 is vacant.

Schuler said he decided to foreclose because Rich indicated that he would not make any more payments on the property.

The substitute trustee sale notice was posted on the courthouse bulletin board on April 8. Local attorney Bob Miller was named substitute trustee of the property in August, 1981 when the deal between Rich and Schuler was transacted.

Miller is out of town this week on vacation and could not be reached for comment on the sale.

Rich said Tuesday that he doesn't know all the details of the foreclosure because he has been concentrating on other business.

"It's kind of a mixed-up deal," Rich said. "I imagine we'll wind up and have a lawsuit."

A total of $4,496.49 in taxes are owed to the city, county, state and school district for the property, according to the county and school tax offices.

FOR SALE — The Howard House Hotel at 118 E. Third will be auctioned off in a trustee's sale next Tuesday in front of the courthouse. The previous owner said he foreclosed on the sales transaction between him and Bo Rich of Odessa.

Bo and Georgia Rich also own the Settles Hotel and its lots — 11 and 12 of block 19. City, county, state and school taxes owed on that property total $60,440.74, according to school and county tax offices.

Local attorney Elliott Mitchell, who previously served as city attorney, said the proceeds from the sale would go to the person who holds the note (Schuler) to the extent of the amount owed on the trust. The rest would pay legal and other expenses, possibly some of the delinquent taxes. The excess, if any, would go to Rich and his wife.

Robert Kendall, a Dallas businessman who has been making plans to buy both the Settles and Howard House properties, said he will not bid on the Howard House. His plans include restoring the Settles and tearing down the Howard

Federal workers miffed at chamber

By BOB CARPENTER

A resolution adopted last month by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce asking for several spending freeze measures by the U.S. government is still drawing anger from local federal employees.

Federal employees became upset over the resolution adopted March 16 by the board of directors which contained a paragraph asking for a freeze in government employees' pay.

The paragraph, which was included along with four other freeze suggestions, asked Congress to "freeze federal civilian pay for a year, as suggested by President Reagan, and then hold aggregate pay roll costs to a 3 percent annual increase."

Yesterday, several federal employees went before the board to discuss the possible rescission of the paragraph. Speaking to the board were C.K. Johnson of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, Frank Hardesty of the U.S. Postal Service and Michael Wyant of the VA Hospital.

"We felt like we had been stabbed in the back by the local chamber of commerce," Johnson said.

"Reagan is attempting to balance the budget on the backs of federal employees. We comprise on a small percentage of the federal budget and we think we are being singled out to carry the burden."

Wyant said it would be virtually impossible to balance the federal budget just by freezing employees' pay. He also said the chamber was unfairly singling out the federal employee as the cause for the government's inflated spending.

"Did you send a resolution when Congress raised its pay, what about one on the C-5A (airplane), they say the wings fall off of it when its loaded too heavily, or one about the EPA superfund and the fact they can't account for half the money spent? I didn't hear any outcry on those things," Wyant said.

Paul Shaffer, vice president of the board, said he felt the chamber was surprised that local federal employees took the resolution as a personal rebuff.

"I do not wish to go on record that I'm against federal employees or that he should carry more than his share of the burden," Shaffer said.

Max Green, treasurer of the board, said the resolution was an overall plea for government to cut all spending except for defense purposes.

"We never intended to single out one group," Green said.

Johnson also brought up the issue that federal employee pay scales were falling below that of the

Smoldering sulfur cause of fatal blast

Jim Wright, owner of Universal Construction of Big Spring, says sulfur smoldering in a pipe joint was responsible for an explosion that killed one of his employees Tuesday afternoon.

Randy Wallace, 22, died on the scene from injuries suffered when an oil tank exploded while he and two other employees were working on the R.C. Scott lease south of Big Spring.

Wright said the men used a cutting torch to cut a joint of pipe to screw into the top of the crude oil tank. Wallace carried the four-foot section of pipe to the top of the tank, Wright said.

The worker was preparing to screw the pipe into the top when tank fumes ignited from the smoldering sulfur in the pipe, Wright said.

The other two workers, Johnie Ray Wright and Timmy Trawick, were knocked down but not injured by the blast, Wright said. Wallace was thrown some 200 feet and killed, he said.

The explosion ruptured the tank, causing crude oil to spread, Wright said. The fire engulfed the Universal company truck and destroyed it also, Wright said.

Volunteer fire units from Coahoma, Sand Springs and Jonesboro were called to the site to fight the blaze.

Senate gives okay for four-year UTPB

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — The Senate paved the way Wednesday for the University of Texas at the Permian Basin to become a four-year institution.

With hardly a word, the legislation sponsored by Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, passed 18-13 and left for the House where a committee already has recorded support of the change.

Afterward, Montford noted that the Permian Basin deserves a four-year university, rather than the two-year, upper-level institution it now has. UTPB offers junior and senior courses, as well as some graduate programs.

He acknowledged that attempts to create the four-year institution have been made for several sessions but this session the bill appears to have a good chance to become law.

Montford also denied reports that he won support for the bill by agreeing to switch his vote and thus allow consideration of the controversial pari-mutuel betting bill that squeaked through the Senate Tuesday.

Reagan speech revives Monroe doctrine

Military package still under attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Reagan's warning that "the safety of our homeland" is at stake in Central America, his proposed military aid package for El Salvador and CIA support for Nicaraguan rebels remain under attack in Congress.

In a rare foreign policy address to a joint session of Congress Wednesday night, Reagan declared that a leftist guerrilla victory in El Salvador could undermine U.S. credibility around the world, and he called for bipartisan backing for his Central American policies.

The first test of the speech's impact could come as early as today. The House Intelligence Committee was expected to consider a proposal to cut off CIA aid to insurgents fighting against the leftist Nicaraguan government.

That proposal, sponsored by Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., committee chairman, would terminate covert U.S. support for the insurgents within 45 days and establish instead a public fund to help Central American governments stop leftist gun-running in the region.

House Republicans are trying to delay a vote on the proposal.

Although some Democrats praised the generally moderate tone of the president's speech, others disagreed with what they regarded as his over-emphasis on military assistance.

Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut, responding for the Democrats, called Reagan's policy of increasing military aid to El Salvador and support for counter-revolutionaries in Nicaragua "a formula for failure" that can only lead to "a dark tunnel of endless intervention."

Dodd, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a Peace Corps volunteer in the Dominican Republic from 1966 to 1968, urged instead a negotiated settlement to the Salvadoran conflict.

"American dollars alone cannot buy military victory," said Dodd, who argued that the source of revolution in Central America was not Cuba or the Soviet Union, as the president has argued, but poverty and injustice.

"The painful truth is that many of our highest officials seem to know as little about Central America in 1983 as we knew about Indochina in 1963," Dodd said. "We cannot afford to found so important a policy on ignorance."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he was

RONALD REAGAN
... homeland's safety at stake

"deeply concerned that the president's overall policy is a prescription for a wider war."

However, Republicans said they felt the president's speech had helped him build support in Congress and around the nation.

"There was a noticeable lack of support for those who would just turn their back and cut and get out," said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said he thought the president "definitely changed some minds because the American people have been believing the lies they read in the newspaper and now they have the truth."

Democrats' reactions split on issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Christopher Dodd, giving a Democratic reply to President Reagan's Central America address before a joint session of Congress, attacked the speech as a "formula for failure."

But other key Democrats — including House Minority Leader Jim Wright of Texas — reacted more positively to Reagan's call Wednesday for a bipartisan consensus on U.S. policy toward the strife-torn region.

Wright warned against U.S. "self-righteousness" in attempting to impose unrealistic standards on the government of El Salvador, which has been heavily criticized for human rights abuses.

House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois said Reagan's speech may have succeeded in gaining more public backing for additional U.S. military aid to El Salvador.

"It was a darned good speech," Michel said, adding: "Not everybody (in Congress) is set in concrete on this, and it may influence people out there."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., also said he thought the speech would help enhance support for Reagan's policy. "I don't say he's going to get every dime and nickel (in aid funds) — but he is certainly going to get what is necessary to do the job," Jackson said.

Dodd, D-Conn., declared in a televised response on behalf of the Democratic Party that "American dollars alone cannot buy military victory" against leftist insurgents in El Salvador and elsewhere in Central America.

The Reagan administration's policy, he said, has involved "ever-increasing military assistance, endless military training, even hiring our own paramilitary guerrillas. This is a formula for failure."

"The American people know that we have been down this road before — and that it only leads to a dark tunnel of endless intervention," said Dodd, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In the House, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., declined to comment when asked by reporters for his reaction following the Reagan address.

CHRISTOPHER DODD
... dollars can't buy victory

Wright, the House's No. 2 Democratic leader, said: "Fundamentally I agree with the basic precepts set forth in the speech."

Noting congressional demands that the Salvadoran government improve its record on human rights, Wright contended that "we have the responsibility, as well, to guard ourselves against the temptations to self-righteousness."

"We cannot, after all, insist that other governments fashion themselves ... as carbon copies of the United States," he said.

Shultz: will redouble efforts to get troops out

Secretary of State in Mideast to 'bring negotiations closer to successful conclusion'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz met with President Amin Gemayel today on issues holding up the withdrawal of foreign troops from Lebanon.

U.S.-sponsored talks between Israel and Lebanon have dragged on for four months without accord on a troop withdrawal and Shultz pledged in an arrival statement at the heavily guarded Beirut airport to "redouble" U.S. efforts to reach a solution.

"I am here to help bring these negotiations closer to a successful conclusion," he said.

He then flew on a U.S. military helicopter to the site of the U.S. Embassy, where a terrorist bomb blast April 18 killed at least 49 Americans and Lebanese.

"It was a crime against both of our people and tied us closer together by the very special bond of shared sacrifice," Shultz said of the bombing.

After his two-hour meeting with Prime Minister Menachem Begin earlier today, Shultz said, "I expect to be in the area for a while, and perhaps we will regard this as the first in a series of private meetings which we will have."

A high-ranking Israeli official said his government hopes Shultz can convince Lebanon to accept Israel's conditions for a troop pull-out, including giving Maj. Saad Haddad, a Lebanese militia leader, a command role in southern Lebanon.

An Israeli official, briefing reporters under a guarantee of anonymity, said of Shultz's mission: "We would like him to get Lebanon to agree on those issues (that remain). It's as simple as that."

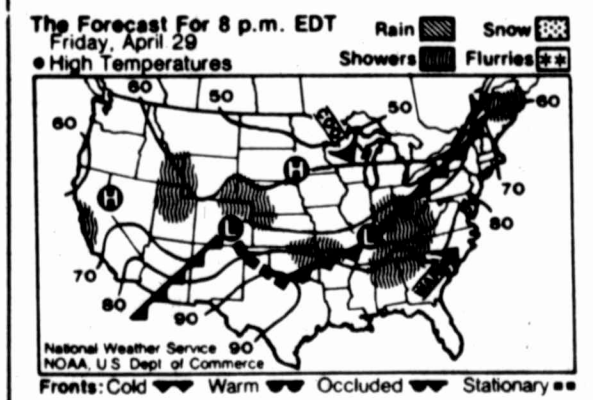

The official also said the United States should open talks with Syria to learn the conditions under which Damascus will withdraw its troops from Lebanon.

If Israel and Lebanon are unable to work out an agreement or if the Syrians fail to withdraw their forces, the official said, it is "a likely scenario" that Israel would unilaterally pull its troops toward its border but leave them in southern Lebanon.

Gemayel's government opposes such a move for fear it would divide Lebanon into permanently held zones, with the Israelis in the south and the Syrians in eastern Lebanon.

Writer blasts non-voters

Dear Editor,
We are now entering the last stage of our fight to remain free, but you can see how bad we are losing this battle to the elite.
Big Spring has 24,700 people in it, yet only 1,700 people came out to vote. The people who did not vote are the ones who cry the most when our elected politicians take away their rights.

We as a nation are not fighting for capitalism anymore which was the system this nation was founded on, we are now in a fight between fascism or socialism. They are leaving us no choice.

Look at what our great leader Mr. White down in Austin has come out with. To bail out unemployment which is an inducement for non-work, they are trying to raise the TEC from 35.00 to 218.00 and put it on the producer. Ask yourself why people cannot find a job. A fifth grade student can see the producer is now paying more to the state and federal government than he pays to the man who works for him.

Freedom in a political context means freedom from government, state and local coercion. This means freedom from coercion from our local elite. They scream and shout, slobbering and foaming at the mouth with their eyes all bugged out for the "common good," "the State's interest," for the good of the country," "for the good of mankind," and just keep on taking your rights away one after the other.

Ask yourself what about your individual rights? Everyone now is just pressure groups like the NAACP, LULAC, The National Socialistic Democratic Party, just gangs or groups wanting more rights for their gang or group, and the old Democrats and Republicans both screaming.

Men should be left free to produce without being looted by the federal, state and local governments. That is what is wrong with America today. The city and state is supreme. They are gods and people must now pay 70 percent of our produce money through taxation.

If a gang of robbers rode down from the hills and robbed you of your wealth, you would call them outlaws and thieves, but what do you call our local and state government that does the same thing at the point of a gun?

Who else can stick a gun to your head and take your money, except the government?

Don't go vote people, just let them keep on taking away your rights. This way they can take you over without ever firing a shot.

Around the Rim

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Sweet summer

The temperature reading at a downtown bank finally topped 90 degrees Wednesday afternoon, reminding me "Why I Like Summertime..."

I like summertime because waking up early in the morning is less agonizing than in the winter. I'd much rather sleep without a blanket than dread crawling out from under one.

I like summertime because my car starts right up, not requiring 18 turns of the ignition to turn over. Also I don't have to wait 15 minutes for my windows to de-ice.

I like summertime because I can wear shorts everywhere except around the boss and at the movie theater. Growing up in California and Hawaii, I still find trousers too hot to handle on a hot day.

I like summertime because swimming pools are open for business. I can get really lazy lying poolside, soaking up the sun and sipping on a tall glass of iced tea.

I like summertime because of vacations. Somehow I've never been able to take my ski vacation during the winter so summer remains my only reprieve from the office.

I like summertime because of summertime movies. I can't wait for Return of the Jedi and the other thrillers and chillers of matinee movie fare.

I like summertime because of major league baseball. Few things in life are better than sitting in the outfield bleachers at a Rangers game, enjoying an order of Texas nachos and a cold beer and watching the great American pastime.

I like summertime because of evening thunderstorms. I'm not much into tornadoes and hail but a raging storm complete with wind, thunder and lightning washes the air and starts each next summertime day fresh.

I like summertime because of summertime girls. Yes, I was labeled a "male chauvinist" in yesterday's paper but I still get weak in the knees when I see females in shorts, bikinis, sundresses...

I like summertime because my bills are less. How's that with air conditioning so high? I avoid the AC whenever possible plus thongs, shorts and T-shirts cost less than boots, long-johns and pullover sweaters.

I like summertime because of open windows. A normal drive down Gregg St. becomes a pleasure cruise when the Beach Boys are surfing in my stereo speakers and the breeze is ruffling the few remaining hairs on my head.

I like summertime because many of friends are free to visit or to be visited. Otherwise, I spend all winter writing to them...I'd much rather see them in person.

I like summertime because of the Texas Jam. Cramping 80,000 people into the Cotton Bowl doesn't turn some people on, but just watching music-lovers from all walks of life congregate, have a good time and get a famous Texas lobster sunburn is a great way to pass one day of the year.

I like summertime because of cicada (locust) noise. When I first arrived in Texas at age 9, I couldn't stand them but now I rate them up there with armadillos...the National Insect of Texas.

I like summertime because I like Texas. Where else can you rumble down a dusty backroad in an old pickup listening to Willie Nelson on the eight-track in the afternoon and then slip into a tux to attend a Western art show premier in Dallas that evening.

I like summertime because the days last forever. You can play tennis, golf, softball or whatever until almost 10 p.m. at summer's peak which is good for us 8-5er's who need more evening activity time.

I like summertime because I can stay in shape easier. Swimming, running, tennis, etc. are fun to do and good for you too.

I like summertime because it's hot. Having sweat pouring off of me during the college summers I worked construction and furniture-moving jobs made me feel like a real macho man. It's been downhill since.

I like summertime because of jazz. After a long, hot day, sinking deep into a cool recliner and listening to Pat Metheny, Chuck Mangione or the Crusaders casts your weary thoughts aside.

I like summertime because my birthday is in the summertime. Not that it is cause for a holiday — I usually work all day and night just the same as always — but it's still fun to get another year older.

Finally, I like summertime because of autumn. By the time the summertime is almost over, there's football, crisp fall nights and the holiday seasons to anticipate.

I like summertime. Texas summertimes. Can't beat it with a stick, my Yankee friend.

The SEC and the First Amendment

Censorship. Prior restraint. Licenses to publish. These are the familiar tools of foreign dictators — but also of our own Securities and Exchange Commission, which operates on the assumption that the First Amendment doesn't mean what it says.

But that assumption is being challenged. The agency's authority to restrict what investors may read, and by whom it may be written, is disintegrating under judicial scrutiny. A recent court decision dramatized the essential point: The SEC's rules are incompatible with a free press.

The case involved one Christopher Lowe, a registered investment adviser distinguished only for his convictions for everything from theft to tampering with evidence. Taking a dim view of that record, the SEC revoked his registration, making it illegal for him to publish his investment newsletters. But U.S. District Court Judge Jack Weinstein of New York ruled that, under the First Amendment, it cannot prevent Lowe from publishing.

That decision may be the beginning of the end for these restrictions. Since 1940, the SEC has had broad powers over investment advisers, including anyone giving advice "either directly or through publications or writings."

Those who fail to register with the agency can be imprisoned for five years and fined $10,000 — even if they are doing nothing more than exercising what look suspiciously like First Amendment rights. Besides giving the SEC the effective right to license publishers, the law allows it to regulate the content of such publications and to restrict the sale of the publishers' assets.

To give the appearance of complying with the First Amendment, Congress exempted "the publisher of any bona fide newspaper, news magazine or business or financial publication of general and regular circulation." But the distinction won't wash — as the case of SEC v. Lowe suggests.

Who would imagine that the constitution would allow similar rules for ordinary newspapers? A criminal conviction may be reprehensible, but it isn't — and shouldn't be — a legal obstacle to putting out a newspaper. As Geoffrey Stone, a law professor at the University of Chicago, puts it, "Prohibiting someone from engaging in future speech because of his past transgressions is about as clear a violation of the First Amendment as any restriction could be."

The theory behind the First Amendment is that the reading public is the best judge of the press. Bad ideas and even false information may get propagated in a free marketplace of ideas, but competition among different voices is the public's best protection — far better than letting the state dictate what may be written and read.

The SEC assumes the investing public can't distinguish good advice from bad, or honest advisers from criminals. But investment publishers face the same imperative as newspapers: to please their readers. Because its readers judge it by the strictest and simplest of standards — whether or not it makes them richer — an investment newsletter is probably more vulnerable than a newspaper, not less.

If it consistently recommends what turns out to be poor investments, it won't have many subscribers. If it provides fraudulent information, it will be liable for damages to the victims.

The SEC's rules have always rested on sand, surviving only because they have rarely been challenged in court. As a recent article in Reason magazine pointed out, "The one time the SEC actually received a court ruling on the issue of whether a financial publication must register as an investment adviser, it lost." Make that two times.

In this case, the agency argued that "commercial speech" has always gotten less protection than other types of speech. "To be sure, the investment publisher has a financial motivation to disseminate his analyses and recommendations," said Judge Weinstein, "but so may the literary publisher or political pamphleteer." Investment newsletters, he concluded, are more like newspapers than like commercial advertisements. Hence, they should be protected like newspapers.

That is a long step, though hardly the last one, toward making the First Amendment operable for the press in all its forms. In considering the SEC's powers, the courts should keep in mind what a lawyer once told the Supreme Court: "The commandment of the First Amendment is simply: Thou shalt not abridge. And it is not, 'You may abridge, but please try to keep it reasonable.'" charges against the two were suddenly dropped, allowing them to flee to Australia.

Cracking the Capitol cocaine club

Another matter the attorney general should ask about is the mysterious withdrawal by prosecutors of a crucial grand jury subpoena issued to Capitol Police Chief James Powell. His men had collected information about drug use in the Capitol, but the grand jury's subpoena was withdrawn after it had been served — because of a phone call from Powell to prosecutor Daniel Bernstein.

Part of the evidence the grand jury wanted has apparently disappeared. A secret investigative document seen by my associates Jack Mitchell and Indy Badhwar states, "It has been indicated that these records (the Capitol Police data) are no longer complete, and that the U.S. Attorney's office will withdraw its subpoena." This, of course, is precisely what happened.

Sources close to the case estimated that a thorough follow-up on the allegations given to the prosecutor could have resulted in as many as 100 witnesses being called before the grand jury. There was no such effort to break the case.

A year ago, an eyes-only memorandum prepared for the atorney general's signature ordered his lieutenants to form "Law Enforcement Coordinating Committees... to focus on the social environment which has helped to create the vast market for illegal drugs."

But it's apparently the political environment that has been the decisive factor in the investigation of the Capitol cocaine club.

Attorney General Smith has personally ordered Justice Department officials to abandon their usual policy in this sensitive case and prosecute users as well as

Billy Graham

Is marriage worth it without the joy of love?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband and I no longer love each other, and there just doesn't seem to be much point in keeping our marriage together any longer. Do you think we are wrong to think this? — Mrs. G.C.A.

DEAR MRS. G.C.A.: My prayer is that you and your husband will do everything possible to restore the joy and happiness that once was central to your marriage. I hope you will do this first of all because marriage is a sacred vow or commitment you both made before God, and it is a very serious matter to break that vow. I also hope you will do it because God gave marriage to us for our happiness, and I believe with his help you can discover what it means to build your lives together on Christ's foundation.

As you look back on your marriage, it would be good for you to think about what has gone wrong. Has there been a slow drifting apart, a slackening in communication and trust? Have other things — a job, money, personal ambitions — come between you and your husband? Have there been little things — a sharp tongue, an unforgiving spirit — that have eaten away at your relationships? One of the hardest things you both may have to do is face these and say "I'm sorry." And yet it could be the first step in restoring a wonderful relationship.

But I want to challenge you to add a new element to your marriage that your letter suggests has been lacking. That missing ingredient is God. Elsewhere in your letter (in a part I have not quoted) you acknowledge that God has played almost no part in your lives. But God gave marriage to us, and a solid marriage actually involves three — you, your husband, and God. You both need to turn to Christ and invite him into your lives — not only for the sake of your marriage, but for every aspect of your lives, both now and in eternity. Yield yourselves to Christ by faith, then get involved in a church where Christ is preached and learn to walk with him every day. Let God heal your marriage. It is worth it, and he wants to help you if you will turn to him.

A heavy dew is actually the portent of good weather. On cloudless nights the earth loses its heat more rapidly, and a heavier dew results.

The first Ferris wheel was erected at the 1893 Columbian Exposition in Chicago.

Actor's career built on tissue

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Thurs., April 28, 1983 5-A

DICK WILSON
... please don't squeeze

LOS ANGELES (AP) Dick Wilson — former Canadian airman, New York vaudevillian and father of three — never expected to build his acting career on toilet paper.

But in 483 television commercials, he's been curmudgeonly "Mr. Whipple," the whining grocer who begs customers, "Please don't squeeze the Charmin!" — and sometimes ignores his own advice.

Jokes about the role seem to come with the territory.

Wilson first heard about the job 19 years ago when his agent phoned to ask, "Dick, how do you feel about toilet paper?"

"I think everybody should use it, especially when they're coming to my house," Wilson recalls replying.

A screen test was filmed the day after his agent called.

"They flew the film overnight to New York and the following Monday we shot my first Charmin Toilet Tissue commercial in — are you ready for this — Flushing, N.Y.," Wilson said.

But he's not complaining. The commercials have

Wilson first heard about the job 19 years ago when his agent phoned to ask, "Dick, how do you feel about toilet paper?"

"I think everybody should use it, especially when they're coming to my house," Wilson recalls replying.

provided a comfortable living for his wife and three children, and they've made his face famous.

"There was a contest a few years ago when Jimmy Carter was in the White House," Wilson said making an appearance in San Diego last week. "They asked fourth-grade kids who knew who Jimmy Carter was and who knew who Mr. Whipple was. Sixty-nine percent knew Mr. Whipple and 22 percent knew Jimmy Carter."

"I'd tell people if more kids know who's in the bathhouse than in the White House, we're really in trouble."

Wilson, born 66 years ago in England, says he hopes never to retire. He lives in North Hollywood and spends his time doing Charmin commercials, dinner theater shows, an occasional TV pilot and standup comedy shows.

He says his father starred in a vaudeville minstrel show and his mother was a singer. He served in the Canadian Air Force during World War II, and last week celebrated the 29th anniversary of his naturalization as a U.S. citizen.

His first television appearance — on an experimental broadcast at the Canadian Exposition in Toronto — came when he was 12. By the time he was 17, he appeared in twice-daily vaudeville shows in New York.

He came to Hollywood before his 20th birthday, getting involved in movies by offering to fill in for a missing stunt man during filming of "Mutiny on the Bounty" with Clark Gable and Charles Laughton.

After that came nine Broadway shows, including "Laughing Room Only" and "Brigadoon," plus movies such as "Shakiest Gun in the West" and "What a Way to Go." He also appeared in the "Bewitched" TV series.

Wilson said he's "not too happy" with today's movies, citing the time he was asked to play a nude scene.

He says he told the filmmaker, "Hold it pal. Have you ever seen me without my clothes? The first four (theater) rows will throw up!"

Felicia Ford: her heart remains in Big Spring

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Although Felicia Ford is this year's Miss San Angelo, her heart remains in hometown Big Spring. "I'll never be all San Angelo's girl," she said in a recent interview. In preparing for the Miss Texas Pageant, Miss Ford has run into road blocks with some Big Spring and San Angelo citizens because as a Big Spring girl she won the Miss San Angelo Pageant. Part of Miss Ford's requirements to be in the Miss Texas Pageant is to sell Miss Texas Pageant program book ads to businesses, friends and supporters. In completing the requirement, Miss Ford and her mother, Mrs. Preston Dunbar, ran into complications in that Big Springers believed that since Miss Ford won a San Angelo pageant, she represents San Angelo and should get San Angelo ads.

The double standard comes in with San Angelo persons believing "why did a Big Spring girl win a San Angelo pageant instead of a San Angelo girl?" Since Big Spring does not have a city pageant Miss Ford was unable to compete and be named Miss Big Spring. Since city pageants are open to any girl regardless of her hometown, she competed in the San Angelo pageant to achieve a step toward her goal of competing for Miss Texas. Because girls may compete in any city's pageant, a girl has more chances to win and progress to the next higher pageant.

"I'M TOLD THEY ARE trying to get one (a pageant in Big Spring) for next year, so maybe I can come back next year and win it if I don't get it (Miss Texas)," she said.

The girls in the Miss San Angelo Pageant have one thing in mind, Miss Ford said, and that is to win the Miss Texas Pageant. They may have to try out several times by winning city pageants.

About 1/3 of the girls have been at it for three or four years and have competed in different towns. I can try out for Miss Texas until I'm 26 years old. It couldn't be that way if you could only compete in one town," she said.

Whoever I represent, in all these years, Big Spring will always be in my heart, because it has put me through about eight years of pageants," Miss Ford said. She added that about 75 percent of the participants in a pageant do not live in the town they represent. She said, even if she is Miss San Angelo, she represents all Texas girls and is allowed to get ads from anyone. The reason she asks Big Springers for their ads is because she is proud of the town she lives in and wants their names in the program book. Pageant judges receive the book a week before the pageant. At that time they look through it and will notice the contestants pictures and ads. According to Miss Ford, the more a girl is pictured in the book, in each ad, the more likely the judges will remember her.

WEST TEXAS BEAUTY — Felicia Ford, the reigning America's Perfect Teen and Miss San Angelo, will compete against 12 finalists for District Key Club Sweetheart this weekend in Houston during the Oklahoma-Texas District Key Club convention. She also is preparing for the Miss Texas Pageant this summer.

Mrs. Dunbar is handling the ads in Big Spring. Miss Ford's Miss San Angelo managers, Chuck and Micki Johnson, are handling ads in San Angelo.

MISS FORD WILL COMPETE in the Miss Texas Pageant July 5 to 9 in Fort Worth's Tarrant County Auditorium. If she wins, she will progress to the Miss America Pageant, the granddaddy of all pageants, which will be held in late summer.

The Miss Texas America Pageant is a preliminary of the Miss America Pageant and shouldn't be confused with the Miss Texas U.S.A. Pageant, the preliminary to the Miss U.S.A. Pageant. The difference in the two pageants is that Miss Texas America and Miss America require a talent competition.

Miss Ford's pageant directors for the America's Perfect Teen Pageant have allowed her to compete in the pageant and Miss San Angelo Pageant while also holding the America's Perfect Teen title. "The reason why they have these pageants (teenage pageants) is to open up opportunities for girls to go on to better things," she said. "The pageants little girls are in now — like Cinderella and Little Miss, the ones I started out in — and the teen pageants all prepare you and give you the experience that you need to do anything in life."

"The experience I've gotten in getting up before people and singing has given me the incentive to be a professional singer and entertainer some day and the confidence to perform my talent at the Miss Texas Pageant," she said.

"It (pageants) gives them (contestants) the confidence they need to achieve the things to come — goals," Miss Ford said. "The more pageants you compete in the more confident you become and you are less apprehensive about things like interviews, public speaking, school — to be outgoing and try for things."

MISS FORD HAS MORE things on her mind than just competing in the Miss Texas Pageant. She is one of 12 Sweetheart finalists in the Texas-Oklahoma District Key Club Convention in Houston this weekend. Bret Crenwelge, the district's treasurer and member of the local Key Club, will be Miss Ford's escort during the convention and contest.

Following her graduation from high school next month, she will live with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson to prepare for the Miss Texas Pageant. She presently travels to their home each weekend to prepare herself.

As Miss San Angelo, Miss Ford travels throughout the state where pageant officials want her to go. She said her principal and teachers have been supportive of her achievements and allows her to miss school for these appearances as long as she makes up her schoolwork. "That means more to me than anything" she said, "because it shows that they are willing to stand behind anyone who wants to make something of themselves, whether it be myself in pageants or Kelley Rogers with his trap shooting events, just to name a few."

Ms. Jody Fox speaks on drug interaction

Drugs interact together in a number of ways — one may make another act faster or slower, or more or less powerfully than it normally would," said Jody Fox, Malone-Hogan Hospital dietician.

Ms. Fox spoke at the Elbow Extension Homemakers Club meeting April 21 in the home of Mrs. R.P. Morton.

And drugs combined with chemicals in certain foods also can produce the undesirable results," she said. "A combination of some antibiotics with dairy products isn't life-threatening, but drastically reduces the medicine's effectiveness." She urged members to read labels on all drugs and inform doctor of drugs being taken when another is prescribed. Several members planned to go to Odessa and attend program "Preserving Grandma's Treasures." The next meeting will be in the home of Jeanette Fauver, May 5.

Dr. Donohue

Nitro medicine

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 58-year-old male under treatment for angina. One of my medicines is nitroglycerine. I have noticed that recently I have been experiencing dizziness, especially when I have to rise suddenly from a seated or lying-down position. I notice it when I get up to switch a TV channel, for example. I never had this as a symptom before. Should I inform my doctor about this, and can it be my medicine? Does nitroglycerine act this way in some people? — L.N.

Yes, you should report this. You may have to have your dosage altered. What you describe sounds like orthostatic hypotension, which is insufficient blood circulation to the brain during sudden changes in the body's position. If you are getting too much of the nitro, that might be a contributing factor. If so, altering the dose should correct the problem.

Dear Dr. Donohue: As daily readers of your column, my husband and I often wonder why you have never once mentioned prunes as an aid to constipation relief. It was suggested to us by our old family doctor many years ago and rarely have elimination problems. — E.K.W.

I did not mean to slight the prune. It is one of the best known of laxative foods. Others of equal potency are rhubarb, figs and dates. I'm happy your prunes have kept you well. I discuss other factors and remedies for constipation in the booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." Other readers may obtain a copy by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How common is uterine prolapse? And is surgery always the answer for this problem? — Mrs. R.C.

Uterine prolapse is rather common, but I'm sorry I cannot tell you how many women have the problem. It is especially common among older women who have had several pregnancies. Also it may occur as a general consequence of aging; muscles that hold pelvic structures in place may lose some of their strength. One of those structures is the uterus, and if it sags (prolapses) slightly it can exert downward pressure on other structures, the bladder for example.

In the past, devices like pessaries have been used. They are inserted to hold the uterus in place. Their popularity has waned somewhat, but there are other approaches that can help — certain exercises, for example. These include the Kegel-type exercises (consciously shutting off urine flow) and others to generally strengthen the pelvic floor muscles.

Low blood sugar is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of "Help for Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Wife refuses to take part in husband's scheme

DEAR ABBY: The present economy (hard times) has hit us to the point where my husband has been voicing some rather bizarre ideas on how to make some money. His most recent scheme still has me reeling.

He suggested that we take out large amounts of life insurance on some of our relatives. We pay the premiums and name ourselves as sole beneficiaries. My husband has in mind insuring relatives who are sick or elderly. In other words, those who probably won't have too many years left to live. One is my father!

I told my husband I would have no part in such a scheme. I also accused him of being insensitive and immoral. He said I was being silly — that his plan was something like "gambling." He assured me that my father would feel good about leaving me $50,000 or so when he died.

Abby, what kind of a man am I worried in?

DEAR WONDERING: He is both naive and those who probably won't have too many years left to live. One is my father!

One visit with an insurance salesman would straighten your husband out. An elderly and sick person who is not long for this world is not so easily insured. And please give your husband this message for me: "The saddest day in the life of a man is when he's sure he's discovered a way to make money without working for it."

DEAR ABBY: While cleaning the basement to day I once again had to move several boxes containing junk for garage sales next summer. Abby, this "junk" is all new!

On every gift-giving occasion, my husband's parents and grandparents give is numerous non-returnable knick-knacks purchased at craft shows.

Although we have dropped hints as to practical things we need and would enjoy, they disregard them and buy instead objects to hang on walls or sit around, none of which goes with our decor.

We regret that they have wasted their money, but what can we do? We live in a small apartment with limited space. We appreciate their thoughts but are...

Fiddlemaker plays own tune

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Oblivious to the noisy buzz of traffic on the street beneath his second-story shop, John Julius Ricker works quietly to a different beat.

Hands moving carefully but confidently over spruce and maple, he seeks out a tiny crack in a violin's face. His repair will restore integrity to the instrument and music to its owner.

For half a century, the silver-haired Ricker has played melodies with tools on wood, allowing customers of Ricker's Violin Shop to play their melodies with flow on string.

"Each job is its own. There are no two jobs exactly alike. I've been in this business for all these years and I'm still seeing instruments I've never seen before. You'd think I'd have seen them all by now," the 73-year-old craftsman said.

Starting in 1926, while still in high school, Ricker worked with his father, who had been making violins in 1896.

Upon graduation from Ohio State University, he tried out his civil engineering degree. After a year, in the midst of the Depression, he joined his father and "never really" considered going back to engineering.

So for 50 years, he has labored in the tiny shop cluttered with instruments and hand tools. Wet towels hang from the ceiling, keeping the air moist so the fragile wood won't dry out and crack.

On the wall above the door is nailed a pivoting stick, one end tied to a horsehair string. The homemade humidity gauge is so sensitive that as the air dries even a little, the string becomes more taut and pulls up on the stick. When it points above the doorframe, Ricker knows the air has become too dry.

The gauge is one measure of a careful man. Care about the work is a benchmark in his shop.

Customers come to the shop from across the state and from other states. Ricker keeps careful records, each entered into ledger books stored in his rolltop desk.

The books date to 1951, and from them he can tell any customer what instrument he sold them, what repair he made, how much he charged. Row upon row of ledger entries — each personal, each different.

"Violins are all different — the density of the wood, everything makes a difference," he said. "It would be a very difficult thing for any violin maker to make two instruments that ended up sounding exactly alike.

"But that's all right. The same thing's true with people. Not everybody likes the same tone, not everybody has the same opinions."

Asked about reputations, about others' opinions, he replied in a quiet voice, "My dad had a pretty good reputation."

Pressed, he finally said, "I have somewhat of a reputation. In this business, if you don't do good work, you don't have a reputation for very long — not the right kind, anyway."

Ricker, who says he plays the violin only well enough to tune it, loves the instrument nonetheless. Shelves cradle old catalogs. Shop walls are papered with violin posters, photos of violin makers, notices of classical music concerts and yellowed newspaper clippings about musicians famous and obscure.

FOR 50 YEARS — John Ricker prepares to change the strings on one of the violins he repairs in his downtown Columbus, Ohio, violin shop.

Senior bookies fined $1,000

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — Nine aged citizens, including one woman too feeble to walk up the stairs to the courtroom, have been fined $1,000 each for moonlighting as bookies.

White-haired Judge Robert S. Prince, peering at a group of 10 defendants in Norfolk Superior Court on Tuesday, said, "It's apparent to me that we have a number of gentlemen who qualify as senior citizens, like myself.

"However, it seems they augment their income by working for a network that enriches organized crime."

Prince fined all but one for bookmaking, allegedly for an organization headed by Gaetano Pica of Plymouth, who is 70 and faces a separate trial in June.

They were indicted after series of raids last December.

The oldest of the defendants was 68, and just out of a coma. The youngest were 58. Two wore hearing aids.

Seven were retired and getting Social Security benefits ranging from $400 to $450 monthly.

Romea Antalone, 68, of Boston, who had just got out of a coma, was released without a fine.

"He just lived there," special prosecutor Robert Sinsheimer explained in a reference to one alleged gaming room raided last December. "His wife took the calls."

His wife, Eugenia, 65, the only woman in the group, was fined after Prince walked down to a first-floor hearing room to deal with her case because she was too infirm to walk up to the courtroom.

"They may have escaped the clutches of the law until late in life," said Prince, referring to their lack of arrest records.

Sinsheimer wanted $2,000 fines each. "These are men who have worked hard all their lives," protested attorney Matthew King, who represented four defendants. "Two thousand dollars is outrageous considering their circumstances."

Steroid drug may cure severe acne

BOSTON (AP) — Low doses of a common steroid drug combined with a synthetic form of vitamin A can control severe cases of acne that sometimes result in ugly facial scars, doctors reported today.

Together, the two medicines "can probably give a person a 70 to 80 percent better response than anything else they've ever done for cystic acne," said Dr. David L. McCaffree of Baylor University Medical Center.

Doctors conducting a study at Baylor also said they believe that severe acne is frequently caused by excessive levels of a chemical that is turned into the male sex hormone androgen by the body.

They tested a form of cortisone called dexamethasone on 91 people with acne that formed cysts — pockets filled with fluid or diseased matter — in the skin.

None of them had been helped by common acne medicines, such as antibiotics or benzoyl peroxide, which causes skin peeling.

After six months of treatment, 97 percent of the women and 81 percent of the men were either free of acne or were greatly improved.

The test subjects did not use the vitamin A compound, isotretinoin, which was introduced to the market last fall and has already proved an effective tool to treat most people with this condition.

The research, directed by Dr. Samuel P. Marynick, was published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

"The clinical response was indeed impressive," wrote Dr. Peter E. Pochi of University Hospital in Boston in an accompanying editorial.

About 85 percent of all American teen-agers have acne, but the blemishes almost always go away as they grow older. For a few, the condition lingers through their 20s and beyond, and produces cysts that scar the skin.

The research has yet been done to determine whether dexamethasone or isotretinoin work better for some patients than for others.

McCaffree said dexamethasone is safe in the low doses used in the study — patients received it for six months, and some needed occasional doses later to keep their acne under control.

The Baylor doctors said higher than normal levels of a chemical called dehydroepiandrosterone sulfate, produced in the adrenal gland, are a major cause of the problem.

"We realize it's probably not the total cause of acne, but it certainly relates to the difficulties people have," McCaffree said in an interview. "If a person goes through the adolescent period and goes beyond the whitehead, blackhead, papule and pustule stage, we feel they should have some type of endocrine evaluation."

The results were not as dramatic for the 32 men who received dexamethasone. Eight of them, or 25 percent, were freed of acne, and it improved enough in 18 others that it could be more easily controlled with ordinary acne medicine.

However, for these men, Marynick said, "It's the difference between someone who is totally disfigured by acne and someone who has a cyst once a month."

Failure's day touted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. If you still flop, call Jack Gilbert and tell him you want to join the celebration.

Gilbert, a businessman and freelance writer, is touting Aug. 15 as National Failure's Day, an observance he says Americans need right now.

"People without jobs might feel like failures — or farmers, or any number of people who haven't done as well as they could. This is a way of telling them to hang in there," Gilbert said.

The observance began at a brainstorming session among Gilbert, 54, and some of his friends. It started to grow when Gilbert obtained a listing in "Chase's Calendar of Annual Events," a directory of occasions serious and silly published nationally out of Flint, Mich.

The Chase's listing says Failure's Day is "to honor all persons who have experienced failure in pursuit of a noble dream, unconventional idea or impossible goal."

Gilbert said he has received mail on his proposal and hopes to drum up enough support to have Aug. 15 — his birthday, incidentally — observed nationally as a day to make the disillusioned, depressed and down-and-out feel better about themselves.

Pint-sized recruiter earns stripes

CEDAR LAKE, Ind. (AP) — At 7 1/2 years of age Adeia Dickinson seems a little young to be an Army recruiter, but she's already put two people in uniform and earned a certificate of thanks from Uncle Sam.

Several months ago, wearing an "Army Brat" T-shirt and matching olive drab pants, Adeia bragged to fellow first-graders that "My daddy can get people jobs."

In economically depressed northwest Indiana, when many of the daddies of first-graders at Jane Ball Grade School were out of work, her sales pitch got quick results.

Billy Yardley went home and told his father, William Yardley, and Nicholas Slager told his father, Richard Slager.

The next day the men called Adeia's home and asked for her father, Sgt. 1st Class Dennis Dickinson, the Army recruiter in nearby Crown Point. In his three years at the job, he had never got any recruiting help from his daughter.

"I'm glad to have the assistance," Dickinson said Tuesday. "At the same time I'm kind of happy. We're getting 28- and 29-year-old men, some with high school and some with college educations. The Army is getting a little security."

Dickinson met the two fathers, and Slager is now a pharmaceutical specialist at Fort Jackson, S.C., while Yardley leaves today for the Army.

Gene Welter, Billy Yardley's uncle, is investigating joining the Army when he graduates from Hanover Central High School this May, and Al Jager, whose daughter is a grade ahead of Adeia, says he will also sign up.

When news of Adeia's recruiting reached Dickinson's superiors, she received a T-shirt that says "Army" from Sgt. Maj. William C. Bussely and a certificate, signed by Capt. Edward Rock, praising Adeia "for exceptional assistance in the field of recruiting."

The framed document also offers Adeia "promotion to Private 2 ... effective upon entry into the regular Army."

That means if Adeia ever signs up, she won't go in as a buck private — she will already have earned a stripe. Dickinson said his daughter will make her own decision on whether to sign up, but said she has been raised with the Army around her.

"By the time she was 2, she could tell by the sound of the rotary blades what type of helicopter was flying by," he said. "She likes the Army. The whole family does."

Adeia may soon be able to try her hand at recruiting overseas. Dickinson, his wife Jo Myers Dickinson, and their children are leaving in July for a tour of duty in West Germany.

Houston lawyer fights death penalty

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorney Will Gray, a tall, gray-bearded man, sits behind the pine drop-leaf table he uses as a desk and talks about the thing that occupies much of his 16-hour workdays — the death penalty.

On some subjects, especially things personal, Gray is laconic, almost non-communicative. But when the talk turns to the death penalty, he livens, somewhat.

Figuratively speaking, Gray holds in his hands the lives of 30 men. They are men convicted of crimes so heinous that even Gray will not argue the wrongness of their deeds. What he does argue is whether those men were treated fairly in their travels through the court system.

Gray admits that, in filing appeals in death penalty cases, some lawyers believe he is trying to bring the wheels of justice to a grinding halt. But he has an apparently heartfelt belief that the state should not kill people — no matter what.

This week, Gray goes to Washington to argue that belief before the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Thomas Barefoot, convicted of killing a Central Texas police officer in 1978.

Gray won a last-minute stay for Barefoot, 37, who was scheduled to die Jan. 25. The stay was won on grounds that the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals should have considered the issue of new evidence at a hearing separate from the one in which it considered Barefoot's request for a stay of execution.

The Supreme Court decided to consider standards for granting stays of executions to prisoners challenging the legality of their convictions and death sentences. The court is expected to issue a decision by July, when its session ends.

There's a lot riding on the outcome, Gray said. "They may eliminate the procedure we're arguing for or approve what the 5th Circuit did," he says. "If they do that, there'll be a ton of executions. But we're hoping that they'll set down more stringent standards."

Gray has long been an anti-death penalty crusader. "You could call it a specialty but there ain't much competition. There's no demand. Nobody is out soliciting capital murder cases once the money runs out," he says.

Row are indigent, Gray does the appeals work for nothing.

Gray traces his specialty back to the time that he got his first appointment to a death penalty case in the 1960s.

A black man had killed his common-law wife by strangling her and pouring lye down her throat and turning the gas on and stabbing her a couple of times.

"She lived for about 10 days in horrible pain with her whole insides burned out from that lye. He finally made parole and he's been a perfect citizen since he's been released on parole."

Gray says he was appointed because "he (the judge) didn't think I could do a good job representing the guy. I had just started handling criminal cases at that time. He got the death penalty but I finally got it set aside after about six or seven years" by challenging the jury selection in the case.

The fact that he was appointed to that case irked Gray, who says he wasn't experienced enough to handle a death penalty case. "It was unfair for him (the judge) to appoint me to that case."

his assessment of judges and others in the criminal justice system, to say the least. His criticism comes easily and often. It is, perhaps, one reason that some lawyers who know him label him arrogant. Gray believes that life imprisonment is severe enough punishment in capital cases. Gray started out in the civil end of the legal business but soon turned to the criminal, which he finds more challenging. "That civil stuff was just boring. I didn't like it. No challenge. Just adjusting claims." See Lawyer, page 11A

Girl 'robbed for stepbrother'

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district court jury was to determine the punishment Wednesday for a 16-year-old girl who confessed she staged gunpoint robberies to get food for an infant stepbrother born to her drug-addicted mother.

Robin Marie Herod, certified to stand trial as an adult on five counts of aggravated robbery, told a Harris County jury she felt remorse for the robberies, but felt she had no choice.

"I felt a responsibility to my little brother because there was no food and my mama needed to take her medicine and if she didn't take her medicine she'd get very sick," said Miss Herod. "And I didn't know what else to do."

Money taken in robberies, said the teenager, was used to buy milk and diapers for her 18-month-old stepbrother.

"I know what I did was wrong," she said. "I know I scared those people very badly. I pray to God they forgive."

Miss Herod pleaded guilty to holding the gun while five people were robbed on Houston streets between Sept. 27 and 30 last year.

Lawyer forsook civil cases for criminal appeals

Criminal law, he says, is a lot of hard work but you can beat the establishment every once in a while. Gray's me-against-them, anti-establishment attitude is apparent in the advice he once gave a protegee, Terrence Gaiser. It was in the early 1970s after Gaiser had spent some time as an intern with Gray and had decided to stay awhile. On the way to the county criminal courthouse, Gray told Gaiser: "I want you to remember one thing if you don't learn anything else. Everybody in the building we're going to is your enemy and don't ever forget it." Although Gray spares few words in talking about his work, he reveals little about his personal life. Gray was born in Palestine, the son of a railroad man. He grew up in Huntsville and wound up at South Texas College of Law, where he was valedictorian of his 1958 class. He made the second highest grade in the state on his bar examinations in October 1958. Gray came to Houston in 1945 after serving in the U.S. Corps of Engineers in World War II. Before he went to law school, he operated an import-export business and worked as an insurance claims adjuster during law school. He lives in Simonton with his wife, Barbara, and a step-daughter and also has a daughter from a previous marriage. He offices in the Montrose area of Houston and in an old two-story school house next to his home. Gaiser says the reason Gray likes to keep personal things personal is because of the nature of his work. "I think when you represent as many people as he does charged with the sorts of things — the more heinous crimes — that you don't want your family and your home invaded by those sorts of things. I think that you have to keep them apart to maintain your sanity, if there's any left." Gaiser says Gray is without peer in his death penalty appellate work but that some people think that that is his only real legal talent. "Down at the courthouse people say that Will Gray is a great appellate lawyer but maybe not such a great trial lawyer and I flatly dispute that statement. I think the people that say that about Will are not intelligent enough to know what Will's doing in a courtroom to make that assessment," he said. Gaiser says Gray is devoted to the appellate work. "He (Gray) says he can't sleep because of all these death penalty cases. I've heard him say myself that he'll go before any one of his clients goes. He's never lost a client to the death penalty. "The man is a real humanitarian. He doesn't like to see people picked on. He doesn't like to see the small man picked on, run over, bulldozed," he said. Famed attorney Percy Foreman says that whenever he thinks of Gray he remembers something Gray is fond of saying — "He boasts of having more clients on death row than all the other lawyers in Texas put together. "I suppose there's a lot of difference in notoriety and fame," Foreman says. If I had one (a client on death row), I'd try to avoid anyone knowing about it," he said. State District Judge M. Love sees Gray as a "very careful attorney who will not abandon his client's rights on any issue. That's the kind of lawyer the trial court wants, someone who's going to protect his client's rights and interests. You certainly don't want to execute anyone without a very careful examination of all the facts and proper application of the laws." Gray's feeling about how other people see him is summed up in a few words: "I don't care."

Academic coaches take the field in Dallas schools

DALLAS (AP) — Borrowing an idea from the football field, a suburban school district is turning this autumn to "academic coaches" — about 128 faculty members who will work more days and teach more hours while earning more money. The program by the Garland School District, believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, was approved by the school board on Feb. 17. School officials said it is intended to improve education and recruit better teachers — particularly in the math and science fields. On Tuesday, National Commission on Excellence in Education issued a scathing report on a "rising tide of mediocrity" in U.S. schools. The report said the United States needs tougher educational standards, more homework and a longer school day and school year. It also recommended 11-month contracts and higher pay for teachers, saying they earn an average of only $17,000 after 12 years. In Garland, academic coaches will still teach regular classes but will have additional duties, said Jill Shugart, assistant superintendent for educational operations in the suburban district east of Dallas. "If the teacher is a fourth-grade teacher, he or she will still teach the class, but would also work with students before and after class, including summer school and developing curriculum activities," Mrs. Shugart said Tuesday. The name "academic coaches" came up because "we should give the same high priorities to academics as we do to athletics," Mrs. Shugart said. She said the added pay could raise teachers' salaries up to $5,000 a year, depending on experience, putting them on the scale of "what an assistant varsity football coach makes." With a $1,500 bonus, a teacher with master's degree could earn about $38,000 a year, Mrs. Shugart said. Garland's program would extend a teacher's 183-day contract to between 202 and 220 days a year, including summer school.

"It is not a matter of being dissatisfied with school programs, it is a matter of doing more," said Mrs. Shugart. "As a matter of fact, our trend has been for test scores to be up, not down, in comparison to other districts." The Garland district's 30,000 students are 82 percent white, 7.5 percent black and 7.5 percent Hispanic. It has a $70 million annual budget and the academic coaching program will increase costs by $400,000 to $500,000 a year, Mrs. Shugart said. The plan was conceived by district superintendent Eli Douglas, a former social studies teacher. "What he wants to do is promote educational excellence — broad-enough based to extend not only to the average student, but also to the brightest and remedial students. We want to address the needs of as many people as possible," she said. Douglas said Tuesday that he hoped to recruit about 25 percent of the new teachers from "outstanding young graduates," with the rest hired from the district's 46 schools. In January, U.S. Education Secretary T.H. Bell suggested a pilot program to test the idea of "master teachers" in primary and secondary schools.

How does Herald readership compare with radio listeners? ★

A.

Eighty percent of Big Spring residents read the Big Spring Herald "yesterday" — more than the number of residents who listened to any radio ALL LAST WEEK.

The Big Spring Herald reaches more potential customers in one day than all Big Spring radio stations reach in one week.

Among age groups, 75% of those 26-49 read the Herald "yesterday"; 71% of those 25 or under did so, and 91% of those 50 and over read it.

Radio listenership has declined since 1978.

C-City permits top million

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Eight building permits totaling almost $1½ million have been issued in Colorado City the last month and a half.

The largest was a $850,000 permit for a new motel off Interstate Highway 20.

Other construction in the city includes a $300,000 permit for drive-in bank expansion at City National Bank, an $80,000 permit to Joe Weaver Chevrolet, a $42,000 permit to Gulfport Homes, a $17,400 permit to Charles Ezzell for a business building, a $26,000 permit to Jerry Woods for a duplex project, $28,500 to Nell's Flowers, and $15,000 to John Drummond for a retail building on the Snyder Highway.

The total amount of new construction for Colorado City since March 4 is $1,358,900.

Lamesa carnival continues

LAMESA — Rides, games and food are available at The Jest Amusement Carnival on the Lamesa fairgrounds through Saturday.

The carnival, which began Monday, is sponsored by Dawson County 4-H clubs. All profits from the activity will be used to carry on the 4-H clubs' activities, which include camps, state congress and state roundups.

This Saturday, 4-H members and their parents will sell homemade ice cream and grilled hamburgers at the concession stand from 4 p.m. until 10 p.m.

C-City dials new FM station

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A new radio station is on the air in Mitchell County.

KAUM-FM began operating recently at 106.3 megahertz.

Owner Jim Baum described the musical format as "adult contemporary" interspersed with the latest news, weather and sports. The station is on the air from 6 a.m. to midnight.

Baum purchased Colorado City's KVMC-AM in 1980. He and his family were Big Spring residents for 18 years.

Y offers water safety class

The Big Spring YMCA is offering a Red Cross Life Saving class starting Monday, May 2 at 6:15 p.m. The class is designed to teach individuals about water safety.

Also, on May 21-22, the YMCA is offering a lifeguard workshop. Prerequisite for the seminar is a lifesaving certificate. For further information call 267-8234.

C-City band wins 1st award

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Colorado High School band brought home a sweepstakes award from University Interscholastic League competition in Abilene last week.

The band was awarded Division 1 ratings in concert and sight reading, according to band director Bill Shipp. It had received a Division 1 rating in marching prior to the Abilene contest.

Class of '68 holds reunion

The Big Spring High School graduating class of 1968 will hold a 15 year reunion July 2 at the Dora Roberts Center.

Anyone knowing the location of 1968 graduates is asked to contact Jeanie Johnson Knocke at 263-1757, or Linda Lu Lile Cathey at 267-4900.

Local cyclists plan 1st rally

In conjunction with Motorcycle Safety and Awareness Week, the Big Spring Road Riders Motorcycle Club is planning its 1st Annual Crossroads Rally May 6-7 at Comanche Trail Park.

The purpose of the event is to make Big Springers more aware of the family aspect of motorcycling and to provide motorcyclists with a weekend of activities, Road Riders secretary Judy Hunter said.

Governor Mark White declared the week of May 1-7 Motorcycle Safety and Awareness Week in Texas. The special week was made at the suggestion of the Texas Motorcycle Roadriders Association, a 17,000-member organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dugan, Big Spring Rally pre-registration chairpersons, say registrations should reach between 300-500. Pre-registration ends May 2.

The schedule of events includes the following:
 Friday — 6 p.m. — registration at the Old Settler's Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park. Free bean feed.

Saturday — 70-mile poker run through Howard County places of interest including Moss Lake and Scenic Mountain. Field events and kids' games in the afternoon with catered meals, dancing and prize drawings planned.

Sunday — 8 a.m. church services in the park amphitheater with Christian Motorcyclist Association minister officiating.

Costs for the Cross Roads Rally are $8 a person or $15 a couple. A portion of the profits will be donated to the Kentwood Activity Center in Big Spring.

Rally chairmen are Chuck Condray and Willie Nichols.

When Samantha speaks, news reporters listen

MANCHESTER, Maine (AP) — With two news crews following her — one Soviet, the other American — 10-year-old Samantha Smith had no time Wednesday to choose a dress for her date with Johnny Carson.

Reporters and photographers from around the world began "hanging on her every word" after Samantha exchanged letters with Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov, said her father, Arthur Smith.

"The most exotic call came from a news agency in Bulgaria," he said. "They wanted to talk to her, but she was overwhelmed with photographers at the time. So they just expressed their congratulations."

With NBC handling travel arrangements for her Thursday taping on Carson's "Tonight Show," Samantha had time Wednesday to talk with other members of the media, who seemed to be following one another, her father said.

An NBC news crew followed a Soviet news crew who watched Samantha's every move in her back yard, he said. A photographer from Time magazine had just left the house, Newsweek called to say they were coming and a reporter from Paris-Match magazine had requested a "private" evening interview with the fifth-grader.

"I don't know the affiliation of the Russian crew," Smith said. "But they apparently knew Andropov's letter was on its way because they called for an interview before it got here," on Monday, he said.

"This whole thing has become self-generating," he said. "The press keeps it alive because of their interest in each other. It's beginning to seem never ending."

"Here's to quieter days," her father said wistfully.

Thursday Notes

Thursday Notes brings its loyal readers a special treat today.

Pictured below, at the ripe old age of two and half years, is legendary Alabama football coach Bear Bryant. How the editors of Thursday Notes find this collector's item photo?

Billy Adams, former Herald photographer, was a second cousin to the Bear. After the coach's death earlier this year, managing editor Linda Adams vowed to find the keepsake photo and succeeded last week.

Pictured below with the Bear are his three sisters. Beside him to his right is Bessie Bryant; directly behind him is Cary Bryant; and the tallest girl in the group is Owedie Bryant.

Billy's mother, Abilenian Iva Sue Adams, said the Bear's "dress" was typical for the day and age which is 1916 in Fordyce, Ark. I guess it goes to show that even men of big stature start off as little boys.

The first-ever Lone Star Conference women's track and field meet is this weekend in San Marcos and former Big Spring High standout Carla Jackson is ready to collect more gold medals.

Jackson has top time in 100 meters (11.65), 200 meters (24.36) and long jump (20-5) for the Wildcats. The long jump, by the way, is an ACU record.

She has also run on the 400 (46.7) and 1,600 (3:52.3) relays, anchoring both teams.

In a recent meet at the University of Oklahoma, Jackson leaped 20-3 to win the long jump.

Way to go, Mizz Jackson.

Several local runners participated in the Andrews Invitational last weekend.

Sherill Easterling won both the women's two-mile and 10-K while Donald Webb won the 50 and over divisions of both races.

Billy Braxdale was second in the 30-39 group of the 2-mile and then finished third in the 10-K behind Vic Keyes. Bill Davey was fourth in the 20-29 division of the 2-mile.

If at all possible, I do not fall back on my word.

I attended the Coahoma High sports banquet Tuesday and having heard about luckless attempts at eating at such events, was ushered to the front of the line.

The Texas-style dinner was great and so, sticking to what I said in last week's Rim column, my compliments go out to the cook, CHS ag teacher Stanley Blackwell, for my dinner.

Also, I can't figure out why Jana Griffin and Dana Souter didn't have dates to the banquet. C'mon guys, what's wrong? They were the life of the party at my table. I enjoyed their company — and watching Warren Jeter break not one but TWO plastic forks.

And finally, coach Larry Hudson received a "plaque" and not a "plague" from his fellow coaches. Although the "q" and "g" are four keys and a level apart on my computer keyboard, it's an easy mistake.

Sorry coach. But all Bulldog boosters will admit that your enthusiasm for sports in Coahoma is contagious. — GREG JAKLEWICZ.

Nolan Ryan: Strikeout king

Astros' fastballer bypasses Johnson

Season strikeouts mark meant more

MONTREAL (AP) — Nolan Ryan of the Houston Astros erased one of baseball's most durable records Wednesday, fanning the 3,509th batter of his career to pass Walter Johnson as the game's all-time strikeout king.

The record, which had stood for 55 years, fell in the eighth inning when Ryan caught Brad Mills of the Montreal Expos looking on a 1-2 curveball in the eighth inning.

The 36-year-old Ryan, who pitched for the New York Mets and the California Angels before joining the Astros, eclipsed Johnson in only his 16th full season. Johnson, the consummate fastballer known as the "Big Train," finished his 21 seasons with the Washington Senators in 1927 with 3,508 strikeouts.

Ryan tied the record by striking out Tim Blackwell swinging on a 3-2 fastball to start the eighth inning, then passed Johnson when he slipped a breaking pitch past the next batter, Mills.

The crowd of 19,309 at Olympic Stadium, which had given little or no acknowledgement of Ryan's record pursuit for the first seven innings, gave him a polite standing ovation when he tied it by striking out Blackwell for the second time of the game and then cheered loudly when Mills wrote his name into baseball's trivia books.

The big right-hander from Alvin, Texas, started slowly, allowing a run on one hit and a walk without a strikeout in the first inning, but then things warmed up, briefly. He fanned two batters, Tim Wallach and Tim Blackwell, in the second inning, both swinging. Still, there was no reaction from the crowd, no recognition of history in the making.

Although he was pitching well, Ryan did not strike out another batter until he fanned Bryan Little with one out in the sixth. And he was one strikeout away from the record.

When the season opened Ryan had 3,494 strikeouts, but an infection of his prostate gland pushed back the timetable for his assault on Johnson's mark. He was placed on the 21-day disabled list and did not make his first start until April 17, when he struck out seven batters in six innings in a 6-3 victory over the Expos.

In his second start, against Philadelphia last Friday night, he fanned only three in a 6-3 loss, bringing him into Wednesday's game with 3,504 strikeouts, four short of what had been considered one of baseball's unassailable records.

"I'm not record oriented. I had the opportunity to break the record and I feel fortunate to be in that position."

Nolan Ryan

MONTREAL (AP) — The record book said Walter Johnson, 3,508 strikeouts. Best ever. The old newspaper clips said it was unmatchable.

But in Nolan Ryan's mind, the measure of a fastball was the one Sandy Koufax threw.

"It's been so long since Walter Johnson pitched, I really know very little about him," Ryan said.

Ryan was resting comfortably in front of a bank of television cameras and a large group of newsmen. On a clear Wednesday afternoon in Montreal, the Houston Astros right-hander had broken Johnson's 55-year-old lifetime strikeout record. It was only natural to ask what this strikeout king thought of the old one.

"The only thing I know about Johnson is what I have read in the newspapers," Ryan said. "I looked him up once in the Baseball Encyclopedia, but all that gave me was his stats. It didn't say too much about the man."

What that revered book of baseball statistics said about that original Hall of Famer was that he had struck out 3,508 batters in a 21-year career with the Washington Senators, ending in 1927. That was tops, until Wednesday, when the 36-year-old Ryan struck out five Expos for 3,509 in a career, which has just entered its 16th full season.

"When I broke (Sandy) Koufax's single season record, that meant more to me," Ryan said. "I was a fan of Koufax's when I was growing up. I watched him when I was in high school."

Among Ryan's major league records are five career no-hitters and 383 strikeouts in the 1973 season, when he was with the California Angels. Both records broke old Koufax marks.

Ryan, who grew up and now lives in Alvin, Texas, some 10 miles from Houston, is a simple man. A cattle breeder and farmer, Ryan never was impressed with records. They were numbers, not nearly so important as heads of cattle. He said he became aware that Johnson's record was within reach only when he notched his 3,000th strikeout on July 4, 1980, and he didn't begin counting until he reached 3,500 on April 17 against the Expos.

"I'm really not record oriented," he said. "I had the opportunity to break the record, and I feel fortunate to be in that position."

Ryan tied the record by striking out catcher Tim Blackwell, playing in place of injured Gary Carter, to lead off the eighth inning. He got Blackwell swinging wildly at a 3-2 fastball. The next batter was Brad Mills, who was pinch hitting for second baseman Doug Flynn.

Former Astro GM sues team owner McMullen

HOUSTON (AP) — Tal Smith, former general manager of the Houston Astros, has sued team owner John J. McMullen, claiming remarks his former boss made to a newspaper sports writer were slanderous and defamatory.

Smith, whose firing in 1980 caused a revolt of Houston Astros limited partners and led to formation of a new organizational structure, filed the suit in state court Wednesday, seeking unspecified damages.

McMullen fired Smith as general manager in October 1980 shortly after the Astros won the National League's Western Division title and came within six outs of advancing to the World Series.

McMullen has been sensitive to suggestions that Smith engineered the Astros' rise to prominence and reacted strongly following recent criticism of the last-place team, the Houston Chronicle said in a story published Sunday.

"Tal Smith is a despicable human being," McMullen told a reporter. "It's unfair and wrong for people to keep giving him credit."

McMullen, who said later he had not meant for his comments to be published, could not be reached for comment about the suit.

Smith declined to comment directly on the suit but said, "When I read the comments by John McMullen in Sunday's Houston Chronicle, I sought legal counsel because I felt the situation had gone far enough and I had to draw the line."

The suit said McMullen's remarks have and will cost Smith loss of income, undermine the relationship with his clients, injured his reputation and damaged his ability "to attract new clients and his potential to secure additional positions of trust in professional baseball."

In his comments to the Chronicle, McMullen said the Astros franchise was the "worst in baseball when I bought it in 1979. The 25 men on the field today are better than the Astros' 25-man team when I bought the club."

FULLBACK DIVES — Big Spring High senior-to-be Mike McKinley (44) takes a hand-off from teammate and fellow junior Mark Johnson (12) during Wednesday afternoon football workouts at Big Spring High. The workouts were devoted to offensive drills with defense the No. 1 item on the agenda today.

Mancini fight off

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)

The World Boxing Association lightweight championship fight between Ray Mancini and Ken Rogner next month was called off today after Mancini broke his collarbone in a sparring session. Promoters were holding a news conference on the status of the other title bout on the May 27 twin-fight extravaganza, which also featured a 30-minute concert by Frank Sinatra.

Jays jolt Rangers, 3-2

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — It seems, at least to the Toronto Blue Jays, that relief pitcher Randy Moffitt is the designated winner.

In the last 5 2-3 innings he's pitched, Moffitt has collected three wins for a 3-0 record. The third came Wednesday night when Toronto scored in the ninth inning to beat Texas 3-2.

"They started calling me the vulture," Moffitt said of his Toronto teammates. "I told them I earned this one, though."

Moffitt replaced reliever Joey McLaughlin in the eighth inning with runners on first and second and one out. He escaped by getting pinch hitter Larry Bittner to fly out and Wayne Tolleson to ground out. Moffitt then struck out two batters in the ninth inning in setting the Rangers down in order.

Rance Mulliniks, Toronto's third baseman, collected his fifth and sixth runs batted in of the season with three hits, including a ninth-inning double off reliever Dave Tobik to score the winning run.

Ernie Whitt led off the ninth with a single off Texas starter Danny Darwin 1-2. Garth Iorg came in to run for Whitt and moved to second on Lloyd Moseby's sacrifice. Tobik came in and walked Cliff Johnson before Mulliniks lined a shot to left field to drive in the winning run.

Toronto scored its first run in the sixth when Damaso Garcia slapped a two-out single and stole second. Darwin intentionally walked Willie Upshaw and Whitt singled in Garcia.

Texas evened the score in the sixth on singles by Pete O'Brien, Billy Sample and Buddy Bell.

The Blue Jays jumped ahead 2-1 in the seventh when Jorge Orta and Mulliniks hit consecutive doubles.

Larry Parrish tied the score in the bottom of the eighth with a one-out home run off reliever Joey McLaughlin.

American League

Red Sox 2, Mariners 1

Wade Boggs and the Boston Red Sox won with a slide at the plate. The Seattle Mariners and pinch runner John Moses lost the same way. "Don't ever stop at third base," Boggs said simply.

He had given Boston the lead when he dashed home from second on a throwing error. Then Red Sox right fielder Reid Nichols preserved the 2-1 victory by throwing out Moses at the plate on final play of the game.

Moses was pinch running for Ken Phelps, who led off the Seattle ninth by singling off Boston reliever Bob Stanley. After a fly out, Moses moved to second on a grounder.

Rick Sweet then singled to right, where Nichols uncorked his game-saving peg while catcher Jeff Newman blocked the plate.

Angels 13, Tigers 3

Daryl Sconiers and Fred Lynn belted grand slams and Doug DeCinces and Bob Boone also homered to lead the rout. Sconiers added a double and two singles as California finished with 16 hits.

Lynn's slam, his sixth homer of the season, came in third inning as the Angels roughed up Milt Wilcox, who had pitched shutouts in his last two starts.

Orioles 6, A's 0

Mike Flanagan ran his record at Oakland Coliseum to 9-0 by pitching the first five innings. Flanagan, who left the game with a pulled muscle, allowed four hits and reliever Sammy Stewart pitched two-hit ball the rest of the way.

Baltimore scored five runs in the sixth inning, aided by three Oakland errors. Gary Roenicke knocked in two of the runs with a bases-loaded single and drove in a ninth-inning run by drawing a bases-loaded walk.

Yankees 6, Royals 0

Bob Shirley scattered eight hits for his first American League victory while Roy Smalley cracked a three-run homer and Steve Kemp added a two-run single.

Shirley, signed by the Yankees during the off-season as a free agent after six years in the National League, had pitched just 32-3 innings this season before the start.

It was only the second shutout in 125 major-league starts for Shirley, now 1-1 this season.

Twins 5, Indians 3

John Castino hit a two-run homer and Randy Bush singled in two runs as the Twins scored four times in the eighth inning against Cleveland starter Bert Blyleven and relievers Ed Glynn and Dan Spillner.

Brewers 6, White Sox 2

Rookie Tom Tellmann, taking over for injured starter Jerry Augustine, twirled 51-3 innings for four-hit relief to get the victory. Augustine was forced to leave in the second when he was hit in the left forearm by a Carlton Fisk line drive. X-rays on Augustine's arm were negative.

Another rookie reliever, Bob Gibson, bailed Tellmann out of bases-loaded threat in the seventh inning for his first save.

Ben Oglivie homered and singled to drive in two Milwaukee runs as Floyd Bannister, 1-3, absorbed the loss.

Astros drop Expos, 4-2

By The Associated Press
Ryan's Express has overtaken the Big Train. But someone else is on the right track, too.

Nolan Ryan, the fastball pitcher for the Houston Astros, passed Walter Johnson's 55-year-old record for the most strikeouts in a career when he chalked up the 3,509th of his 16-season major league career in the eighth inning of Houston's 4-2 victory over Montreal.

"I'm really not record oriented," said the big right-hander. "I had the opportunity to break the record, and I feel fortunate to be in that position."

That's only 29 ahead of Steve Carlton, Philadelphia's silent southpaw. Lefty might well catch Ryan before the season ends. "I can't worry about that," Ryan said. "My main goal is to be effective in as many games as I can for the Astros."

Dickie Thon and Phil Garner drove in two runs apiece for Houston, but the big attraction was, of course, Ryan, who had come into the season 14 strikeouts shy of the record and hoped to break the mark at home against Philadelphia last Friday night. But he managed only three of the eight strikeouts he still needed.

"It's been such a buildup," said Ryan. "I never realized 15 strikeouts would be so hard to come by. I'm relieved and very satisfied. I wasn't sharp with my fastball and my curve wasn't as sharp as I would have liked it to be. I was getting two strikes on batters and not putting them away, just like I was doing the last game."

Ryan is never particularly emotional. It was more relief than exaltation he displayed when he finally broke the record. "I don't get too excited about anything," he said. "Now, I can sit back and relax and get more satisfaction out of it."

But in the stands, his wife, Ruth, was exhausted. "I was a lot more emotional than Nolan was," she said. "Didn't you hear me screaming?"

National League

It wasn't Johnson, who spent 21 years with the Washington Senators, who fascinated Ryan when he was a youngster. It was Sandy Koufax, who held the record for career no-hitters and single-season strikeouts before Ryan arrived.

"It's been so long since Walter Johnson pitched, I really know very little about him," Ryan said. "I looked him up once in the Baseball Encyclopedia, but all that gave me was his stats. It didn't say too much about the man."

"When I broke Koufax's single-season record, that meant more to me. I was a fan of Koufax's when I was growing up. I watched him when I was in high school."

Mets 2, Reds 1

The Mets finally found a home away from home, in Cincinnati. For the first time in 10 games, they won on the road, thanks to pinch-hitter Danny Heep's ninth-inning sacrifice fly.

"Everybody was kind of kidding around before, saying, 'Let's win one on the road before April is over,'" Heep said.

Mike Torrez pitched eight innings of three-hit ball for his first victory in the NL since Sept. 27, 1974. And he got it partly because he got his first hit in the NL since that date, an RBI-single in the fifth inning. It was a dramatic turnaround for Torrez, shelved in his previous starts.

"I've finally got my feet on the ground," he said. "Now I'm thinking about going out and pitching like I'm capable of pitching."

Phillies 6, Braves 2

While the Mets were winning on the road for the first time in 10 games, the Braves were losing at home for the first time in 11.

Dick Ruthven checked the Braves on three singles through five innings, then gave way to relievers Porfi Altamirano and Ron Reed for the Phils. Garry Maddox drove in one run and scored one and Pete Rose had a two-run single for Philly.

Giants 3, Pirates 2

Bill Laskey of the Giants won for the first time in 1983, snapping a personal six-game losing streak which dated back to last season.

"It was a big win for me, because I was going nuts," he said. "This is the first time I've pitched with a lead and that helps."

Milt May's single in the second inning and Tom O'Malley's hit in the fourth gave the Giants a pair of runs, then Darrell Evans' homer in the sixth produced the winner off winless Rick Rhoden.

Cardinals 7, Dodgers 6

Mike Ramsey ripped an eighth-inning triple off Alejandro Pena, then Darrell Porter greeted Steve Howe, the Dodgers' ace reliever with a single that propelled the Cardinals past LA. Bruce Sutter, St. Louis' fireman, was the winner.

Jose Morales hit a two-run homer for the Dodgers and George Hendrick had a three-run homer and an RBI-single for St. Louis.

Cubs 5, Padres 4

Larry Bowa drove in two runs with a fourth-inning sacrifice fly and a 10th-inning double to give the Cubs their victory over San Diego. The extra-inning hit followed Steve Lake's his fifth consecutive hit over the past two games. Ruppert Jones had a home run for the Padres.

Big Lake hires Forsan's Taylor

RON TAYLOR ...leaving Buffalo Queens

FORSAN — Forsan High Buffalo Queens coach Ronnie Taylor resigned his position this week to accept the head girl's basketball coaching job at Reagan County High School.

Taylor leaves Forsan after eight years, four as head coach of the Queens. He guided his teams to the Region I-A tournament all four years, compiling an overall record of 103-19. He also coached girl's track and was head coach of the Buffalo football team two years.

"They've talked to me for the past two years," he said Wednesday, "and we finally made a deal. I'm really looking forward to it...it will be a challenge. The people and administration want to get a winning program going and I'm looking forward to doing that."

Forsan graduated from Sands High School in Ackerly. His first Queens team went 25-7, losing the New Deal in the first round of regionals; the 1980-81 team went 26-4 and lost to New Deal in the regional finals; the 1981-82 team was 27-5, losing in overtime to Seymour in regionals; and this past season, Forsan went 25-3 before falling to Greenwood in regional action.

"Forsan's been awful good to me," Taylor said. "Mainly because there has been good talent."

Reagan Co. High is a Class AA school located in Big Lake.

Blues personnel packs up, city still fighting for team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Office employees of the St. Louis Blues were given layoff notices, but Mayor Vincent C. Schoemehl had not given up in his attempt to keep the National Hockey League franchise from moving to Canada.

Emile Francis, general manager of the team, told 16 employees Wednesday that their last official day of work would be May 15.

"He thanked everyone and said he was sorry it had to be this way," said Robert O. Harper, assistant controller. "It was small talk, really."

Schoemehl, who admitted that he missed a self-imposed 5 p.m. deadline Wednesday to have a local offer before team owner Ralston Purina Co., said he now has more leeway because the NHL is not scheduled to consider the Blues' sale to a Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, organization for "several weeks." He said it would give him more time to come up with a firm offer.

"It's a step sideways, really," said Schoemehl. "It's not a step forward, it's not a step backward. We have just been advised that we would be better off putting the whole package on the table at the same time, and we now have some time to do that."

Schoemehl said he has a meeting planned Sunday in Chicago with NHL President John A. Ziegler Jr. and William Wirtz, president of the Chicago Black Hawks and chairman of the NHL Board of Governors.

The mayor had earlier promised that if he did not have $3.75 million in financial commitments to deliver to Ralston by the end of the work day Wednesday, he would admit failure.

The Canadian group, Coliseum Holdings Ltd., earlier said it had completed its deal with the Blues ownership and that all that remained to be done to move the team was to gain approval from the governors.

Susie Mathieu, public relations director for the Blues and one of those notified that she would be laid off, said she never thought it would come to that.

"I don't think there was anyone who thought the day would really come when we had to get everything in order and leave," she said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APR. 29, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today you find that those in positions of influence are in an amiable mood and are willing to go out of their way to be helpful. A good time to make plans for the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can easily express your creative talents and can take small risks with good success following. Relax at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve the conditions in and around your home. A new interest can bring greater success and happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Proper communications with others can bring the cooperation you need at this time. Make appointments with key persons.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try new ways to increase your income so that you can keep up with the rising cost of living. Be alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Making plans for the weeks ahead is wise now. Enjoy romance quietly with the one you love. Happiness is within your reach.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be yourself today and you can accomplish a great deal. Eliminate a bad habit and success will bang on your door.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to gain personal aims easily today, so be sure you know exactly what it is you want. Strive for happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can easily gain the support you desire from a higher-up. Handling a civic matter wisely brings fine results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There are many ways to advance now, so waste little time. New associates can be most helpful. Show appreciation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to the right decisions where monetary matters are concerned. If in doubt, consult an expert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Making new arrangements with an associate will lead to greater benefits and happiness in the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you improve your immediate surroundings, you can then tackle your job with new vigor and get far better results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will require a good education to bring out the wonderful talents in this chart. There could be a great genius here. Make sure to encourage your progeny and to compliment for good work accomplished.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Burt Reynolds

Bandit is happy and rich at 48

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Burt Reynolds stared vainly at his reflection in the mirror, then pulled on his elevator boots ...

No. Not really. But that's the kind of interview the actor says doesn't give one an even break.

Reynolds talked about press relations and a myriad of other matters in his movie set motor home — a leather-lined cocoon where he spends more of his life than in his own residence. He was in the middle of another movie, "The Man Who Loved Women," a Blake Edwards comedy with Julie Andrews.

Reynolds was once the most accessible of film stars, a high-spirited charmer who rattled off self-deprecating quotes to the delight of interviewers. But lately the profile has been lower, the tone more somber.

"When I first started riding high, I realized that the darlings of the press were the real quiet types," he said. "They were the ones who were very polite and told reporters, 'I'd love to talk to you, but I'm going over to Jimmy Stewart's house to play in the garden.'"

"I realized that, but I liked to skate on thin ice. It was crazy to be on the edge of disaster, but I liked it out there."

His attitude has changed, and so has the nature of entertainment reporting, he says.

"Recently I came across a bunch of old movie magazines," he said. "They were silly and sweet and they don't exist anymore. Then I was reminded of the old Confidential magazine."

"Remember the massive law suit that put Confidential out of business? The major reason was a story that claimed Maureen O'Hara had had a tryst in Grauman's Chinese theater. That story wouldn't make page four of one of today's scandal magazines."

Reynolds' disillusion stemmed from interviews with "people I thought I could trust but who sold me out — not once but twice."

"You know you're in trouble when you read in the story that says you 'looked in the mirror and smiled vainly' and 'put on elevator shoes,'" he says. "There's no way you're going to get an even break."

Reynolds sometimes makes jokes about himself and later finds them used against him. "I told a reporter that I had a fish tank in my bedroom and at the end of a weekend I found two of the fish dead, their eyes popped out," he said. "I said that they died of boredom, but he didn't print the last part."

The film star also talked about the current popularity of Tom Selleck, "who's got my old face. He's so nice and so cooperative and working so hard that he's bound to trip soon. They won't allow him to be nice."

Reynolds noted a TV review of Selleck's film, "High Road to China," which was described as "an old script filled with tired TV faces."

"Don't they realize that we all came from TV — Steve McQueen, Jim Garner, Clint Eastwood, Goldie Hawn, myself? Why, I was the only actor in history who was canceled by all three networks!"

Does all this talk mean that Burt Reynolds is unhappy with stardom, unhappy with earning $5 million a movie?

"Now is the best time in my life," he says happily. "The reason it's the best is because I'm smart enough to enjoy. Before, it was also the best time but I didn't know it."

"Dustin Hoffman is that way now," Reynolds said. "He's got every reason to be happy: He has the No. 1 movie ('Tootsie'), he's making millions. Yet he's trying to stamp anybody who says he's a leading man. He doesn't want to believe it."

Reynolds recalled a recent evening when he and comedian Richard Pryor spent with Miss Andrews and her husband, Edwards. They talked about Hoffman's refusal to accept his status.

"I can't lie about my age," Reynolds sighs. "I did a TV series in 1958 when I was 22. Who lies about being 22? If I had it to do over, I could have said I was 13."

BURT REYNOLDS ... still macho at 48

Modern English speaks music fluently

"AFTER THE SNOW" — MODERN ENGLISH. Sire Records.

Modern English has successfully assimilated all the positive elements of current New Wave/Romantic rock into their first album: the snappy drum sound, the synthesizers, eerie vocals.

The only problem is the lyrics seem to have come from a dreamy six-grader's poetry collection or at least the Moody Blues.

Snatches of every currently-significant British group can be heard: Psychedelic Furs, New Order, Orchestral Manoeuvres in the Dark, Bow Wow Wow, U2, the defunct Joy Division, even the old King Crimson.

The album's best cut is "I Melt with You," a song seemingly about a love so strong that "I'll stop the world and melt with you." Lines like the chant "The future's open wide" or "I made a pilgrimage to save the human race" are just dumb.

But the music is so glorious that the lyrics do not matter. Superb use of synthesizers, a fine guitar line and rhythmic drums make the tune an aural delight.

"Tables Turning," the album closer, boasts Robbie Grey's blurred vocals, a tolling guitar, sweeping synthesizers and a violin. Tambourine, maracas and piano are also thrown into this urgent rocker. A strong tune, it is unclear exactly what the urgency is about except "The bells are tolling for me and my life."

"Life in the Gladhouse" is straight from Bow Wow Wow or Adam Ant with its insistent jungle drums and percussion. "Face of Wood" sounds like an OMD outtake or even Joy Division with its King Crimson vocals. An electric banjo comes in from somewhere in this very-listenable song.

"Someone's Calling" and "Dawn Chorus" are strong synth-rockers in the image of A Flock of Seagulls, but with more musical imagination. Not lyrically, however — I thought drug dreams went out in the early Seventies.

If lyrics are extremely important, one might avoid this short (under 30 minutes) eight-song album. If the sound is important, "After the Snow" has captured all of the best.
