CITY OF
LOS YBANEZ
POPULATION 300

Town legal again; beer sales next?

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

LOS YBANEZ — A group of small white houses make up this 75-acre town a mile southeast of Lamesa. It has an official population of 300 mostly Hispanic residents.

A flag pole stands in front of the town's Church of Our Divine Father, a Pentecostal-type church. Trees surround most of the houses. More than 20 mailboxes stand in the thick sand in front of the office and home of Israel Ybanez, the town's namesake, owner and unofficial (at least until August elections) leader.

Los Ybanez voted in favor of incorporation for the second time on April 2. In August it will have municipal elections and sometime in the future its voters will decide whether to allow beer sales.

The former settlement for Hispanic workers — dubbed the Labor Camp — is starting from scratch. It was first pronounced an official city in August of 1981. On Dec. 4, its residents voted to allow the sale of beer. County Judge Leslie Pratt approved the election and Los Ybanez thought it was to become the only legally wet town between Big Spring and Lubbock.

But days later, the last day of 1982, the town was ruled illegal by Andrews County District Judge James H. Clack. A lawsuit filed by Dawson County residents John Dell Barron and Milton Earnest claimed that the town's boundaries were wrong. Clack agreed. A surveyor's error was blamed.

"So we went back to square one. It was quicker than an appeal," Ybanez said. "This time everything is right."

"IT IS good here," said Mrs. Serapro Barron, who has lived in Los Ybanez with her husband and seven children for three weeks.

Their house, marked #13, is small and is weathered on the outside, but the inside has been painted. It is comfortably furnished and has wood floors in good condition.

"It is quiet here. So far they (the Ybanezes) have been very good to us. There's not anything I can say against them."

She said her children attend Lamesa schools and her husband works in Lamesa.

She and her husband were not in Los Ybanez for the incorporation election, but she said they expect to vote for beer sales.

"He (Ybanez) said it will bring more money into the town. Maybe it will grow into a big town and there will be more jobs." She said Ybanez has not come to her house to discuss the election, but has mentioned it when she has been in the town office.

YBANEZ BOUGHT the Labor Camp from the federal government in 1980 for $85,000 — his own money and money borrowed from his family, he said. His was the highest bid for the settlement that then had six Hispanic families.

"It used to be just shelters. They were wide open and had nothing," he said in his office at Roy Motor Co. in Lamesa, where he sells used cars. "We started fixing it up as low income housing for needy families. We want to make it a nice place where children can run free."

Ybanez, 49, says he charges rent as low as $140 a month. A few people pay as high as $200. Utilities are paid, but renters must provide their own air conditioning. Residents pay no taxes to him, he says.

"We're working on the houses. Most of the work has been underneath and inside, not much on the outside," he said. "We do what we can and what we have money for."

One man killed, one hurt in two shootings

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

One Big Spring man was killed and another injured in two eruptions of violence this weekend. Suspects have been arrested in connection with both shootings.

Edward Eugene Banks, 59, of 808 N.W. Fifth, died early Saturday morning in an intensive care unit 7½ hours after he was shot in the stomach and shoulder outside a north side residence.

Police had arrested 54-year-old Jeff Johnson of 902 N.W. Second about two hours after the 6:07 p.m. shooting outside 408 N.W. Fourth on suspicion of aggravated assault and unlawful carrying of a weapon.

After Banks died at 1:30 a.m. Saturday the aggravated assault charge was changed to suspicion of murder.

Johnson posted $30,000 and $2,500 bonds for his release yesterday morning. Bonds were set by Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

Police were notified of the shooting after the victim was taken by private vehicle to Malone-Hogan Hospital emergency room.

Police said they received information that Johnson was involved in the shooting and arrested him at 7:41 p.m. Friday on the corner of Gregg and West 20th after they spotted Johnson driving a white pickup north on Gregg.

A .22-caliber blue steel revolver was found in the pickup and taken as evidence, police said.

In a separate shooting early Saturday night, Raul Flores, no age or address available, was treated and released from the Malone-Hogan emergency room for two gunshot wounds in the upper right arm and chest.

Juan Marquez, no age or address available, was arrested at the shooting site on suspicion of aggravated assault. Police detective Hank Weibacher said Saturday night that he had no further information about the shooting.

Rally worth struggles

Handicapped man, two Canadians join event

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Road Riders rally Saturday in Comanche Trail Park attracted an astonishingly varied conglomerate of about 600 persons — young, old, healthy, handicapped, wealthy and poor.

Most of them were West Texans gathering to share their enthusiasm for motorized two-wheelers; however, one man overcame physical adversity to attend the rally and three other lighthearted fellows from the Great White North biked thousands of miles here from Canada and Alaska.

John Brown, 63, who has been paralyzed from the shoulders down for 16½ years, drove his custom Honda motorcycle from Winters.

"I like people to see you don't have to stay at home when you're disabled," Brown said. "I try to make as many public appearances as possible. It gives people a little courage."

Brown said that he and a friend who has muscular dystrophy both ride their motorcycles to various organizations to demonstrate that disability doesn't mean inactivity.

Brown also speaks to groups about the dangers of alcohol abuse. His wife, who was an alcoholic, caused his paralysis almost 17 years ago when she fired a bullet into his neck that came to rest in his spinal cord, Brown said. She died five years later in a car wreck.

"My wife drank too much," Brown said. "When my son joined the Marine Corps she got shook up and shot me; she was in a fit of temper. I didn't ever proffer any charges because I loved the woman."

"It (being paralyzed) never did bother me that much," he continued. "I did a lot of living before that. Our family doctor tried to get my wife to go to AA (Alcoholics Anonymous), but she just kept drinking. She just wouldn't believe she was an alcoholic."

Now Brown works with the elderly who live in a rest home at Winters.

"I tease them a little bit," Brown said, a twinkle lighting his eyes. "I try to get them in the sunshine a little bit."

Paul Bierman of Anchorage, Alaska, who says he is 29 years old going on 12, drove his BMW motorcycle over 4,000 miles to attend the Big Spring rally.

Why Big Spring?

"Why not?" he said. "It was 35 degrees and snowing when I left. That's reason enough."

Bierman is on a year-long cross country motorcycle trip. He was an aircraft mechanic in Alaska and decided to use his money, saved to purchase a house, on a will o' the

For the time being, Los Ybanez is governed by its city council made up of Ybanez and his wife Mary (who is city secretary), his stepson Sonny Castillo and his wife Stephanie, and residents Mr. and Mrs. Rick Archer. Anyone eligible can run for city office in August. Ybanez says he will run either for mayor or marshal.

The town has 100 registered voters. The April 2 incorporation vote was 50 for, 1 against.

"We don't know who the 'I' is," Mrs. Ybanez laughed. "He, or she, has been with us since the beginning."

"We have dreams of making a perfect town," Ybanez said. "Like all towns, we have good personality people and bad personality people. But we haven't had any killings, any crimes. Only a few small family disputes. Nothing big. It is a quiet town."

THE PROSPECT of beer sales is at the center of the Los Ybanez controversy. Opponents say that is the only reason Ybanez wants the town.

He and his wife have been heavily involved in registering voters in Lamesa for all elections. He also has been a leader of attempts to bring liquor sales to Dawson County for almost 10 years.

Five elections in precincts have failed. He quit trying after he bought the Labor Camp, but Ybanez (who says he drinks no more than one beer a year) freely admits that beer sales are a big part of his plan for the town.

"Dawson is a dry county, but there is one exception — the (Lamesa) country club," he said. "They have a liquor license there. I have nothing against that. The country club is a fine place of entertainment for city leaders, but my point is that it (liquor sales) is not a new thing I'm trying to bring to the area."

"People are fearful that we would not be able to follow the law," he said. "But we will. We will not sell to minors. We will not sell to people who have already overindulged. We just think people should have the right to buy beer close to home, legally."

"It's like an R- or X-rated movie. You have them, but no one has to go to them. It is the same with beer," he said.

"The attitude Lamesa has now is that it is an inevitable thing," said Jerry Arrington of the First Baptist Church of Lamesa. "The town and liquor sales were pretty heavily fought back when the town first got started. But I don't know what kind of opposition there is now. There will be some."

"I know of Mr. Ybanez fairly well. He really has helped a lot of Mexican-Americans and they look up to him," he said. "But the feeling is that it's an enterprise for him — an 'I'll scratch your back if you scratch mine' thing. He knows what he's doing."

YBANEZ CAME to Lamesa as a pea salesman 30 years ago from South Texas. His grandfather came to America from Chile on a land grant.

Ybanez says when he decided to buy the Labor Camp, his family from South Texas and California helped him with money.

"My whole family pitched in. That's why it's called Los Ybanez," he said. "You might say I've acted like a hobo with them."

"As far as it (the town) being profitable — it is not," he said. "What comes in by way of rent goes back into the town. What I make at selling cars goes into the town. There is much to do. We make sacrifices."

Ybanez says there are 23 two bedroom homes and two apartments with 26 units each. His family does not pay rent.

Mrs. Ybanez, 39, takes care of the city's books. "She is the slave of the city," Ybanez said. "She listens to people's problems — when people are short on money or need more time for rent. She's the one who carries the load."

He said his son Larry, 29, and stepson Sonny, 21, are also deeply involved in the town's operation.

"Many things have taken place in establishing a city," he said, "but nothing that we did not expect. My wife and I have been members of the Texas Municipal League for many years. They give us help."

There are no businesses in the town except for a Coke machine at the office. A small grocery store — La Tiendita El Ranchero — is located across the street from the town outside city limits.

Ybanez said that he intends to meet with Dawson County commissioners Monday to discuss a local option election for beer sales for off-premises consumption. If beer sales are approved he says a package store will be built in town, but not in the center of the community.

"We will want it away from things, cut off from town," he said. "There will be ordinances. We intend to run a tight town — no ghetto or Boy's Town. We want to be proud of this. As long as I live and my family exists it will never be a problem or an embarrassment."

Saturday's square fest swings 'round

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

People from "all walks of life" stepped in time together last night at Big Spring's 14th annual Square and Round Dance Festival.

The centuries-old tradition of swinging your partner is being kept alive each week at festivals and dance clubs across the country by school teachers, businessmen, ranchers and retired persons. Couples like Marvin and Barbara Burcham of the Big Spring Squares Club devote themselves to the folk dance form, often traveling long distances with a camper trailer to attend a special event and learn new steps from dance masters.

The Burchams co-chaired this weekend's festival at the Squares Corral on Chaparral Road and at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. They said 18 squares, or 72 persons, attended Friday night's dance at the Corral and expected many more to attend the dance Saturday night at the coliseum.

Mrs. Burcham said more would be attracted this year to the May Festival because a nationally-known caller, Wade Driver of Houston, would call the square dances Saturday. There also was a larger than usual turn out for the round dances, she said.

The Burchams emphasized that square dancing is pure family fun, no competition or alcoholic drinks are involved. Their 14-year-old son has been dancing since he was 10, Mrs. Burcham said.

"Square dancing is not as easy as it looks, she said. "You have to take lessons to learn," Mrs. Burcham said during an afternoon work shop. "Tonight the caller will call these steps for those who took the lessons."

She and her husband "graduated" into the local club in 1971 after taking lessons.

"We started it just for entertainment," Mrs. Burcham said. "We didn't know we would become so involved in it."

On the blouse of her dress, Mrs. Burcham wears a pin with tiny plaques with the date of every May Festival since 1972. She said she and her husband have attended dances every week since 1972.

BIG SPRING PROMENADE — Marvin and Barbara Burcham, co-chairmen of the Square and Round Dance Festival, demonstrate a promenade at the festival work shop yesterday afternoon. A nationally known caller, Wade Driver of Houston, drew a large crowd of dancers last night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"Even in 1978 when we moved to Albuquerque, we came back for this (Big Spring) festival," she said.

One of the more distinctive characteristics of this dance form is the women's costumes, full-skirted dresses flared out with stiff petticoats. They whirl and swirl on the dance floor, forming colorful patterns.

They all seem tireless and are truly enamored of dancing. The couples looks forward Saturday afternoon, not just to one, but two dances that night.

There was one at 8 p.m. in the coliseum and another, with plenty of food to revive them, at the Corral that lasted from 11 p.m. until the wee hours of the morning.

wisp adventure. "I want to go everywhere," Bierman said. "This is the longest I've ever been out of the state before."

Bierman, with his endless string of one-liners, made many friends at the Big Spring rally. He regaled his audiences with tales of biking through snowstorms and demonic motorists who relish running over motorcyclists.

The Alaskan camped near two men that he called "two crazy Canadians," Wayne Cochrane and Dave Lawrence of Trenton, Ontario. They drove 2,000 miles in three days to arrive here for the rally.

"Hey, let's go for a ride this summer," was the comment that started the two on a month-long trek across the states, Cochrane said.

Their three days on the road here were not accompanied by pleasant weather either. Lawrence said, even though their Honda motorcycles are luxuriously equipped.

"The radio stations were talking about tornados ripping up towns only five miles from us," Lawrence said. "We had tornado warnings, heavy thunderstorms, hail and wind up to 60 miles per hour."

JOHN BROWN overcame disability

It seemed difficult for the three men from the north to put into words why they continue road riding under such conditions.

"It's getting out on the road; it's adventurous," Cochrane said. "We just like doing it on two wheels. Anything that's different that we see along the way we have to stop and find out about it."

Big Spring Road Riders Club President Bill Hunter said 525 persons with just such an adventurous spirit attended the rally this weekend. Twenty percent of the event's proceeds will be donated to the Kentwood Activity Center.

170 compete in Special Olympics

Over 170 enthusiastic athletes from six area cities gathered in Big Spring Saturday some tough track and field competition: the Area 18 Special Olympics meet.

A Midland youth came away with highest honors in the day long event held at Blankenship Field at the high school. Others in teams from Howard County, Andrews, Midland, Monahan, Odessa and Pecos won ribbons in the various track and field events.

"It's wonderful to see how proud the children are, and how much it touches you," one Big Spring woman said.

Competition included the 25 meter dash, 50 meter dash, 100 meter dash, 200 meter dash, 200 meter shuttle relay, 400 meter relay, standing long jump, high jump and softball throw.

The Big Spring Elk's Lodge financed the event, which is hosted nationally by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation for the mentally and physically handicapped.

Athletes were grouped according to age and ability. Coaches for the Howard County squad are Carol Green, Janice Lemaster and Mike Cowley. All are teachers in the Big Spring school district.

The Elks next will send the local team to the state meet in Austin May 24-27.

DANCING FOR THE HEART — Between 25 and 30 of Big Spring's aerobic dancers were on hand at the Highland Mall for a dance-a-thon benefiting the American Heart Association Saturday morning. Hannah Coleman, one of the organizers of the event, said she was pleased with the turnout. "It went really well," she said. "I think they all had a great deal of fun." The participants signed up sponsors, but the amount raised will not be known until Wednesday. Mrs. Coleman said the event probably raised several hundred dollars. Carmen Salazar was in charge of the dance-a-thon. The class pictured above is taught by Teri McIntosh at the First Presbyterian Church.

Suspects in police killing found dead

DALLAS (AP) — A couple wanted in the brutal slaying of a Dallas policeman apparently killed themselves Saturday after officers surrounded an Arkansas farmhouse where they were hiding, authorities said.

The bodies of Vernon E. Morales, 44, and Rosemary Concilio, 38, were taken 5 miles north to Little Rock for autopsies after authorities found them on a bed in the house.

Capital murder warrants were issued Thursday night for the pair in the slaying of officer Ronald Baker, who was shot five times and run over twice by a van. Police believe the 24-year-old patrolman was killed after he stumbled onto a drug deal in an apartment complex parking lot Monday.

Dallas police were en route to Arkansas Saturday to question three other people who were at the farmhouse where Morales and Ms. Concilio were killed.

U.S. marshals, Arkansas state police and FBI agents surrounded the building about 4 a.m. and ordered the suspects to surrender, said Deputy U.S. Marshal Jim Hall.

Two men and a woman emerged from the house, then two shots were heard inside, said Hall. Officers lobbed teargas canisters into the building and entered to find the bodies of the two suspects, he said.

U.S. Marshal Charles Gray said one suspect apparently killed the other and then committed suicide.

Police fired no shots, Hall said. "We did hear the two shots but we didn't fire them," he said.

The woman taken into custody for questioning is Morales' 21-year-old daughter, who was renting the farmhouse, Hall said. The two men also were staying at the residence, he said.

Morales and Ms. Concilio arrived at the farmhouse about 10 a.m. Friday, Hall said.

Dallas police, meanwhile, were continuing to investigate reports that a third person may have been involved in Baker's killing, Lt. Ron Waldrop said Saturday.

He said investigators also were checking the possibility that a theater manager's slaying Friday may have been connected with Baker's death.

The body of Ingrid Phillips was found Friday in a cemetery near her theater and near the apartment complex where Baker was killed. Investigators said witnesses' descriptions and the circumstances of the two killings led them to speculate there might be a connection.

DESTRUCTION SCENE — An unidentified man leans on a shovel and weeps after surveying the wreckage caused by a tornado in the suburban area of southeast

Topeka, Kan. Friday night. The tornado was blamed for at least one death and 16 injuries as well as damage to over 100 homes.

Walesa seized

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Police seized Lech Walesa and at least nine aides Saturday after the Solidarity leader met secretly in Warsaw with top advisers of the outlawed independent labor union, sources said.

They said Walesa was seized while heading to a Warsaw church after meeting with fellow unionists to draft a letter to Parliament. The contents of the letter were not known.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said police grabbed Walesa before dawn, drove him 220 miles back to his home in Gdansk, put extra security around his apartment and refused to let him answer the phone.

"I only know that he (Walesa) was shipped back home at about 4 a.m. under police escort and that police are displaying more than usual care about his apartment," Walesa's secretary, Bozena Rybicka, said by telephone from Gdansk, the Baltic port where Solidarity was born during August 1980 strikes.

Mrs. Rybicka, who could not be reached later Saturday for more information, said she had been warned by a Walesa messenger to stay away from his apartment.

In addition to Walesa, police grabbed the following aides, the sources said: Bronislaw Geremek, Tadeusz Mazowiecki, Wladyslaw Sila-Nowicki, Jan Olszewski, Jacek Merkel, Leszek Koczyński, Arkadiusz Rybicki, Adam Kinaszewski and Mieczyslaw Wachowski. It was not known where they were being held.

Attempt to whitewash image

Hitler diaries faked by Nazis?

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Speculation mounted Saturday that Nazi supporters forged the purported Hitler diaries in an effort to whitewash the image of one of history's bloodiest dictators on the 50th anniversary of his rise to power.

Professor Hans Booms, president of the West German Federal Archives that pronounced the diaries fakes on Friday, said they probably were forged after 1964 and that there were indications they "came from the right corner," a reference to old Nazis or their younger sympathizers.

Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal told The Associated Press in a telephone conversation in Vienna that he strongly believed Nazi "bigshots" living in South America faked the diaries to boost Hitler's reputation in history, and that these Nazis were the same ones who forged British banknotes during World War II.

"I am pretty certain the East Germans, suspected to have had a role in the fakes, have nothing to do with them," Wiesenthal said. "They are not interested in whitewashing Hitler, and West German neo-Nazis are just too primitive even for this kind of job."

Wiesenthal said the fakes probably were done by the same Nazis in South America who were "engaging in disinformation in 1943-44."

He asserted that Gerd Heidemann, the Stern magazine reporter who claimed to have unearthed Hitler's diaries, visited former prominent Nazis in South America two years ago along with former SS Gen. Karl Wolff, personal aide of SS Chief Heinrich Himmler.

"At the time it was said that he (Heidemann) wanted to write Wolff's memoirs, and that, therefore, they went to South America to talk to (Himmler's) subordinates," Wiesenthal said.

He said among prominent Nazi functionaries visited were Klaus Barbie, the "butcher of Lyon" later extradited to France; Josef Mengele, the doctor of the Auschwitz extermination camp; and Walter Rauf, sought in West Germany and elsewhere for the death of 250,000 Jews as inventor of the "gas wagon."

Wiesenthal has dedicated his life to hunting down Nazis responsible for the extermination of 6 million Jews. The purported diaries made no mention of the Nazi death camps.

Excerpts of the purported journals began appearing two weeks ago in the weekly Stern magazine and other publications, all of which have stopped printing them since the government announcement Friday. Two of Stern's chief editors, Peter Koch and Felix Schmidt, resigned Saturday.

The West German tabloid Bild-Zeitung talked to Wilhelm Hoettl, a former SS officer and comrade of former SS Gen. Wolff. Wolff, who served seven years in prison for his part in the killing of 300,000 Jews, is the colleague of Heidemann, who reportedly got Stern magazine to pay $3.2 million for the documents.

Stern's chief editor, Henri Nannen, said Friday the magazine "will do all it can" to clear up the matter, and that "we must stand ashamed before our readers."

Heidemann has not been available for comment for several days, but The New York Times quoted his wife Gina as saying in an interview in Hamburg. "We will always believe in the diaries."

Swedish sub hunt continues

SUNDSVALL, Sweden (AP) — The Swedish navy, trying to blast a suspected Soviet submarine to the surface, dropped 14 depth charges Saturday into the bay of this northeast coastal town after saying there had been "observations."

Military sources and witnesses said patrol boats dropped 11 depth charges southeast of Alno Island at 1 p.m. and three more rolled into the water 2½ hours later.

"Shock waves came like a big baseball bat banging on the boat from underneath. Then came the explosions," said a reporter, one of a group who ventured into the search area in two small plastic boats.

U.S. ship comes under fire off Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A U.S. Navy ship supporting the Marines came under fire in the Mediterranean Sea off Beirut on Saturday during furious Christian-Druse battles that have left 23 dead and 84 wounded in the past three days, officials said.

A Pentagon spokesman in Washington, Lt. Col. Erik Opgall, said about five artillery or mortar rounds landed within 500 yards of the ship, but "there were no casualties, no damage and no return fire."

There was no indication who fired the rounds toward the ship, the Fairfax County, which provides support for the U.S. Marines in the Beirut peacekeeping force.

Another round landed earlier in the day at Beirut airport, where the 1,200 U.S. Marines are stationed, and ricocheted into the sea without exploding, according to a Marine spokesman. No one was injured, he said.

"A rocket or RPG (rocket-propelled grenade) round landed in the area of operations we are in, skidded across the runway and into the ocean," said Marine Maj. Fred Lash. "We don't know what it was, but we don't consider it was fired intentionally at us. Just something that came into our area."

Report: nursing home should be decertified

AUSTIN (AP) — Twelve deaths at a Greenville nursing home were documented in a Texas Health Department report that concluded the center should lose its state certification to receive Medicaid payments, the Dallas Times Herald reported Saturday.

One woman died at the home after sitting in a whirlpool bath until she began shaking, developed a 105-degree fever and became blistered, the report said. Another patient suffered from a fever, high blood pressure and shortness of breath for four days before a doctor was called.

The report also said patients developed bedsores because of lack of attention and found urine- and feces-soaked sheets, bathrooms and showers.

The report stemmed from an inspection of Greencrest Manor April 11 and 12 by health department workers. Records of 16 patients — 12 who died and four who required hospitalization — also were studied.

The report indicated that nursing home officials failed to keep doctors informed of patients' status and failed to notify relatives when residents became ill.

The report prompted a special health department investigation this month, which resulted in a second report — one that cited 14 deaths in which compliance with health standards were questioned.

Names and ages of patients were deleted from a copy of the April report, which was made available Friday. But the report detailed the deteriorating health of each of the 16 residents.

On March 5, one patient "began to shake and appeared ill while in the whirlpool bath. Temperature elevation at that time was 105.2 degrees," the newspaper quoted the report as saying.

A nurse wrote in the patient's medical report that the woman's skin condition was "fairly good," but a note made later in the same shift said the patient had developed "red-like blisters" and that her "whole bottom area is beef red and hot."

Out To Lunch

By MARGARET BAUM

Sometimes, the deepest feelings we have are the hardest to express. I'm feeling that way about Mother's Day.

I looked at all the greetings — a beautiful display of colored cards which boasted well-written verses inside ... but, though some of them came close, nothing really struck my fancy nor suited my mood.

Is there really any verse that can express the love and appreciation we feel for the one we call "Mother"? Mother, that multi-faceted human being who guided us, taught us, sometimes led us until it was time for us to go our own ways and, hopefully, utilize some of what we'd learned from her.

It was Mother who taught us to keep our elbows off the table, to stand up straight, to close the screen door quietly, always to do a little more than was expected of us and how to make cornbread.

It was Mother who never tired of reading "The Three Billy Goats Gruff," of making school lunches, of listening to our one hundred lines of memory work or of letting down last year's hems.

It was Mother who put aside her household chores and joined us outside on five-foot-high stilts, climbed into our tree house, or, on rainy days, helped us make new paper dolls clothes.

It was Mother who took us to the library every Saturday morning, to Sunday school every Sunday, to piano lessons after school, to the closest park so we could skate.

It was Mother who never lost patience when she was teaching us to drive, when we got into her make-up while playing "dress-up," or whenever we didn't do something right the first time.

It was Mother who shared with us her knowledge of good music, good books and good taste.

It was Mother who cut roses and honeysuckle early in the mornings to fill the house, who showed us the first wild violets and yellow jasmine in the woods, who rescued a baby squirrel who had fallen from his nest.

It was Mother who always laughed, who never needed to raise her voice, who was always there.

Thank you, Mother, on your special day.

Around the Rim

Opera boo-birds

I guess everyone who keeps up with high culture knows about this already, but I was staggered a while back when I read in a letter from a New York friend that heckling is a big thing at the Metropolitan Opera.

In her letter Mardel enclosed a clipping from the New York Daily News when Renata Scott made her entrance one night, the newspaper said, "before she could open her mouth, a volley of boos, catcalls, and obscenities were hurled at her ... Of all the performing arts, opera seems first in encouraging baseball-stadium heckling."

I didn't even know Mardel likes opera. She said she thinks the only connection between opera and sports is that the ideal person for the title role in Otello would be Franco Harris of the Steelers, if he could sing.

Once I sat in a Fort Worth audience for a performance by the New York City Ballet. No boo-birds that night. What I was struck by was the elegance of my fellow patrons' shushes.

You didn't hear them say anything low-rent like "Shaddap." "Sht!" They would go, piercingly. One bejeweled woman turned around and hissed to a heavy-set man (who did look a baseball fan, but not the rowdy type): "Would you have the goodness not to rattle ... and ... wheeze!"

This — including ellipses — she hissed in one breath. A piece of work, that woman. I looked down the row at her and mouthed "Bravissima," but she of course — quite visibly — made no response. To think that anyone in the same audience with that woman would hurl a catcall amazes me.

So how can opera, or any other cultural activity, have come to the verge of pop bottle throwing? I thought the best refined thing you could do at the opera or symphony is lose concentration: to be among that certain number of go-goers who think the costumes and drapes are swell, and who recognize a given high or low note as really something, but who are seldom able to keep up with what is going on.

I keep my mind on the show by resorting to two techniques that, though I feel are not very elevated, are more nearly grand than the raspberry.

The first of these is to imagine what a comedown it must be for these singers or cello players to have to go home after the last act and argue with loved ones or pass the time with agents, trades folk and neighbors.

Surely a person who has just come in from crying "Asta! Asta! Obbligatorio!" to the heavens, with the full support of top of the line hautboys, timpani, double bassoons, flageolets and gongs, and while dressed in a golden robe and crown or a full suit of glistening feathers, finds it intolerable to have to go "Ah right, ah right!" or "So you say," or "Well I don't know, they'll probably nominate Mondale or somebody but ..."

What does such a person do, when he or she is at home? Quote from arias? Improvise in High German? Mutter con agitazione? Thrash about with a sceptre?

These are, of course, bad esthetic questions, and ought to be turned to only if you cannot keep your head by means of the second technique. It has the virtue that it focuses your attention on the action and the music; it just translates them into a recognizable life situation.

Otello, for instance, is waving his arms and hopping and demanding something of Iago, who seems to be putting him off:

Otello: What in the name of God am I doing out here on the stage of the Fox Theatre in this elaborate bath-roobe?

Iago: Oh! Don't worry, it's nothing noth-ing.

O: And these unbelievable shoe-hoos!

I: They're nice! They're nice!

O: The last thing I remember I was in this little bar and grill on Cone Street.

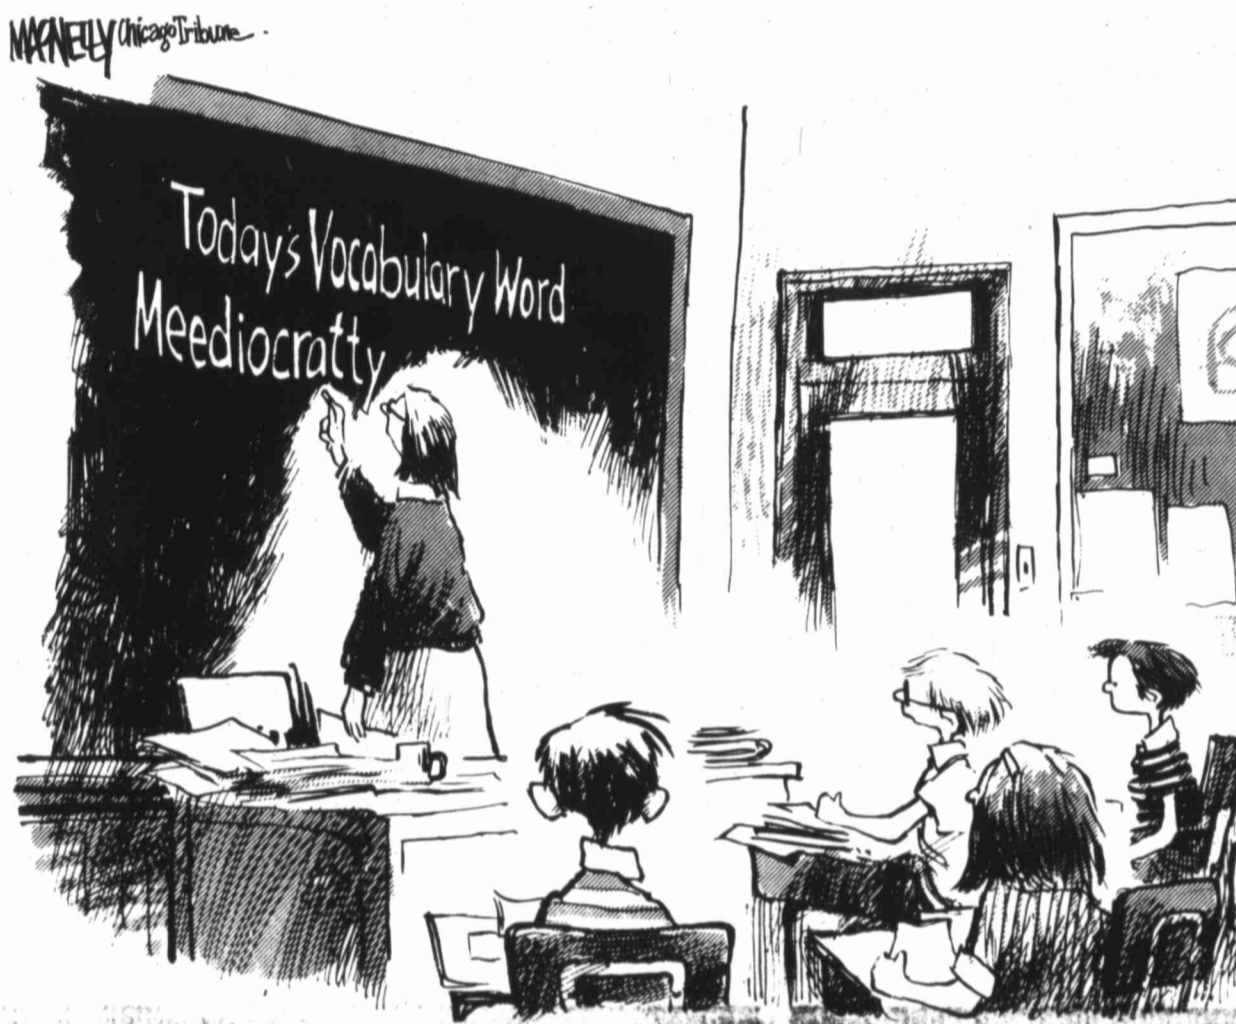

I: Um-hmmmmmm, um-hm-hm-hm!

O: Eating an order of chicken ... chicken ... chick-ken ...

I: Cacciatore!

This procedure is not, it must be borne in mind, an end in itself. But if you stick with it you won't be woolgathering when the Rhine maidens start going over the mountain with a "Yo-ho-to-ho-ho!"

Nor will you be yelling "Choke! Choke!" or "Ya-bum-ya."

Rules on 'Committology'

I've been attending a lot of committee meetings lately, and I was recently reminded of Arthur Bloch's observations on "Committology."

Old and Kahn's Law: The efficiency of a committee meeting is inversely proportional to the number of participants and the time spent on deliberations.

Shanahan's Law: The length of a meeting rises with the square of the number of people present.

Law of Triviality: The time spent on any item of the agenda will be in inverse proportion to the sum involved.

Law of Committo-Dynamics: The less you enjoy serving on committees, the more likely you are to be pressed to do so.

Hendrickson's Law: If a problem causes many meetings, the meetings eventually become more important than the problem.

Lord Falkland's Rule: When it is not necessary to make a decision, it is necessary not to make a decision.

Fairfax's Law: Any facts which, when included in the argument, give the desired result, are fair facts for the argument.

Truman's Law: If you cannot convince them, confuse them.

First Law of Debate: Never argue with a fool — people might not know the difference.

Laws of Procrastination:

1. Procrastination shortens the job and places the responsibility for its termination on someone else (the authority who imposed the deadline).

2. It reduces anxiety by reducing the expected quality of the project from the best of all possible efforts to the best that can be expected given the limited time.

3. Status is gained in the eyes of others, and in one's own eyes, because it is assumed that the importance of the work justifies the stress.

4. Avoidance of interruptions including the assignment of other duties can usually be achieved, so that the obviously stressed worker can concentrate on the single effort.

5. Procrastination avoids boredom; one never has the feeling that there is nothing important to do.

6. It may eliminate the job if the need passes before the job can be done.

An evening at the movies

A darkened movie theater. On the screen, an Australian actor is strolling through Jakarta, smoking a cigarette and fending off beggars. A couple behind me is discussing the actor's film credits and agreeing he should win an Academy Award. I strain to hear, but the sound track is inaudible.

A teen-age boy tries to sneak in through the exit, but an usher stops him and orders him out. The film breaks and the projectionist spends five minutes fixing it. I try to shift my feet but they are stuck to the floor. The usher is gone, the teen-age boy sneaks in the exit.

On the screen it is raining on an actress who is smoking a cigarette and laughing. On my right, a man is munching popcorn noisily. The couple behind me is discussing the actress's film credits and agreeing she doesn't deserve an Academy Award but will probably get one anyway.

I strain to see through a haze of marijuana smoke, but the print is undecipherable. An elderly woman in front of me falls through her seat and shrieks.

On the screen the actor and actress are talking at a party, laughing and sharing a cigarette. I make way for a woman and her 8-year-old son, who have missed the first 15 minutes and six cigarettes of the movie. The man on my right is drinking a Coke and belching.

A couple on the next aisle is discussing the Cubs' history and agreeing they don't deserve to win the pennant. I try to stand up but my pants are stuck to the seat. An usher is paging Myron Bookbinder. The building shakes from a loud noise, but I am told it is only a car backfiring. A small girl is doing cartwheels up and down the aisle.

On the screen the actor and actress are sitting at poolside, laughing and sharing a drink with a dwarf. The couple behind me is discussing the latest United Nations resolution on the status of Namibia. I plug my ears to muffle the deafening sound track but am blindsided by the overhead lights.

On the next aisle two Hell's Angels are sharing a bottle of Jim Beam and putting their feet on the seats in front of them. The projectionist is projecting the film three feet to the left of the screen. I shift my feet and tear off the soles of my shoes, which are stuck to the floor.

On the screen the actor is laughing with his companions while waiting for a speech by an Indonesian man wearing a fez. An usher is paging Meredith Baxter Birney. The couple behind me is reading aloud from "Sonnets from the Portuguese." The building shakes from a loud noise, but I am told it is only thunder.

The man next to me is eating his popcorn box and humming "Camp-town Races." I make way for three couples dressed in formal wear. I try to scratch my head but my elbow is stuck to the armrest. Two girls in the balcony are shooting bottle rockets at the patrons below.

On the screen the dwarf is taking pictures and laughing as a mob stonies the American Embassy. Five Swiss shepherders practice their yodeling in the aisle. The usher is paging Alexander Haig. The couple behind me is exchanging phone numbers with the couple in front of me. One of the Hell's Angels complains that he has run out of Milk Duds and throws his Jim Beam bottle at the screen.

The building shakes from a loud noise, but I am told it is only dynamite from the construction site across the street. The projectionist has dozed off and forgets to change the reel. I make way for a platoon of the Rapid Deployment Force and a Shetland Pony.

On the screen the actor and actress are copulating energetically, laughing all the while. An Episcopalian priest does a headstand in the aisle. The couple behind me is reciting names from the Pittsburgh telephone directory. I reach for an anticid tablet but it is stuck to the insides of my pocket.

The man next to me is spitting tobacco juice into a paper cup and yawning. The projectionist is making hand silhouettes of animals on the screen. The Hell's Angels are racing their Harley-Davidsons down the aisle. The building shakes from a loud noise, but I am told it is only the Salvadoran National Guard shelling a guerrilla stronghold.

I make way for a wagon train carrying 148 pioneers headed for Nebraska. The man next to me is drinking his tobacco juice and pulling the arm rests off his seat. I get up to leave and inform the couple behind me that they talk too much. They are speechless. On the screen, the dwarf is smoking a cigarette, watching people watch a movie and laughing.

Father Birdwell began Canterbury

Dear Editor,

On Tuesday, May 3rd, you printed a wonderful letter about Canterbury from one of our residents, Mary Raley. I feel that Canterbury is very important, not only because it serves the needs of a great number of senior citizens, but also for the fact that a small church like St. Mary's was willing to take on such a large and difficult task in order to minister to people of all faiths.

Because Canterbury is such an important community ministry, I think one correction is in order. Father Bristow did not originate the project as stated. He came to St. Mary's parish in May of 1981, over a year and a half after our official opening.

It was Father Harland Birdwell, now rector of St. Andrew's in Roswell, N.M., who conceived the idea for Canterbury. It is he who deserves the credit. Were it not for him, along with Guilford Jones III, then Board Chairman, and Don Bailey, architect, Canterbury would not exist.

I must say that it is residents like Mary Raley who make this job a pleasant one. Sure, complaints are sometimes necessary, but a pat on the back once in a while sure feels good! Thank you, Mary, for your letter of gratitude. And thank you, Big Spring, for the support you have given.

Trimming the deficit

Even though the Texas Legislature will consider more than 4,000 pieces of legislation during the 68th Session, only one bill must pass.

During the past two months, a group of 29 state lawmakers, along with members of all the House committees, have been working long hours on the House Appropriations bill. They finally balanced the budget without any measures for a tax increase. But the final bill hasn't been approved by the Legislature, and the state's expected revenues may decline even further, so we're not out of the woods yet.

Without becoming too technical, I'll explain how the committee trimmed a $2.4 billion deficit down to size.

At the start of the session, the House Appropriations Committee was presented with House Bill 409 — the state budget bill. Preliminary figures were prepared by the Legislative Budget Board (LBB), based on the State Comptroller's estimates of available state funds. As you may know, the comptroller has cut his original estimate three times since January, due to the state's sagging economy. According to the most recent figures, however, we'll still have $2.3 billion more to spend in 1984-85 than we had during this current biennium. The LBB's proposed budget is almost $2.4 billion "in the red" due to the comptroller's reductions, and the state constitution won't allow this to happen. So the Appropriations Committee has been searching for ways to either save costs, generate new revenues, or cut proposed expenditures. Fortunately for Texas taxpayers, they found them — for the time being, anyway.

Inflation indicators are playing a key role in the trimming process. The most recent inflation rate is estimated at 4.5 percent, which is somewhat less than the estimate used earlier by the LBB when figuring the original budget. For instance, this fact allowed the Appropriations Committee to adjust the highway cost index downward. Increases in highway construction costs were originally based on an inflation rate that was too high — actual costs from year to year won't increase as drastically as first predicted. Adjusting the index downward puts it more in line with current inflation indicators, and will save almost $130 million in the budget.

The Appropriations Committee also discovered a way to generate an astonishing $500 million in additional revenues. Currently, certain state monies such as insurance payments and sales tax collections are turned in at the end of each month. If the due date is moved forward, this one-time accelerated collection will generate as much as $500 million in additional interest because of the earlier deposit date.

Another proposal you've been hearing about is to increase fees paid by Texans for certain privileges, such as driving and hunting licenses. Many of these fees haven't been increased in more than a decade, and doing so would generate an additional $75 million in revenues if approved by the Legislature.

The Appropriations Committee has made other adjustments as well, proposing minimal salary increases for state employees. Unfortunately, pay raises for teachers were limited to the annual increases required by law. Although these restrictions helped the committee write a budget that can be certified, there's still much work to do in this critical area. I'm supportive of their plan to put any additional money salvaged from the budget in a special "education excellence" fund for larger teacher pay increases as well as to supplement expenses in local school districts.

I should point out that the committee did not cut any state agency below its current spending program. Spending for new programs and construction was severely restricted, however, despite the state's tremendous growth and need for many of these increases. Although the decisions to make these cuts were tough — even brave — they were necessary in order to write a budget that can be certified under Texas' pay-as-you-go spending plan. If the people of Texas are being asked to tighten their belts, so should the state government. The evidence is in a potential $2.4 billion deficit that has been trimmed "down to size".

Hopefully, I can bring you more good news about the budget soon — like approval of a spending plan that doesn't include a tax increase, or an economic recovery that results in an upward turn in state revenue estimates. Meanwhile, feel free to express your feelings on state spending by writing to Rep. Larry Don Shaw, P.O. Box 2910, Austin, Texas 78769, or call my new toll-free number in Big Spring, 1-800-592-4731.

State jobless rate falls to 8.6 percent in April

DALLAS (AP) — Texas posted the third lowest unemployment rate among the 10 largest states in April, falling to 8.6 percent from 9 percent in March, officials announced today.

Nationally, the civilian unemployment rate dipped slightly to 10.2 percent.

"The employment situation has improved for the first time since November," said Bryan Richey, regional commissioner of the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Richey said the seasonally adjusted Texas figure reflected "a slight improvement in employment. More people are employed, the size of the labor force increased very slightly."

Among the 10 largest states, Massachusetts posted the lowest unemployment rate of 7 percent; New Jersey was second lowest at 7.4 percent, and Texas and Florida tied at 8.6 percent, he said.

"We've been looking for a reduction" in the unemployment rate, Richey said. "This is not to say that unemployment couldn't go up again, but quite frankly, I don't anticipate that this will happen."

Richey said the depressed oil industry and economic problems along the Texas-Mexico border continued to pose "potential drags" on Texas' economy.

But "there seems to be more optimism now than pessimism, more signs of improvement," he added.

Judge dismisses Clayton's Brilab suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed a lawsuit against Prudential Insurance Co. of America because former Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton needs to make clarifications that a federal judge requested. Despite repeated requests, U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling said Clayton has refused to state his claims "more clearly."

April water deliveries up

April was the first "plus month" of the year for deliveries from the Colorado River Municipal Water District. Deliveries totaled 1,512,126,766 gallons, an increase of .17 percent over April of 1982. Municipal deliveries, spurred by a late surge of demand in Odessa, rose to 1,313,459,900, or .25 percent.

Oilfield deliveries were 207,666,866 gallons, down by about a million gallons, or .30 percent.

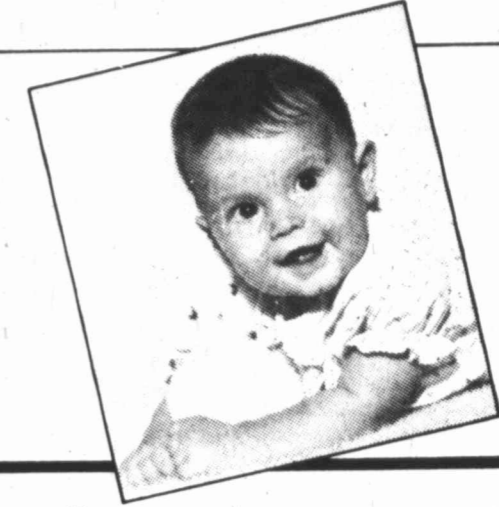

In the last five days of April, Odessa averaged 26.6 million gallons a day. The average for the month is 20.8 million gallons.

Municipal deliveries for the first four months stand at 4,152,425,000 gallons, down 7.20 percent for the same period in 1982. Total deliveries were 4,960,398,896, down 5.72 percent.

April deliveries for the area and their increase over last April were: Big Spring, 232,902,000 gallons, 4.39 percent; Robert Lee, up 2.45 percent; Midland, 9,453,500 (none last year); 341,455,000 gallons, up 6.51 percent; Odessa, 2,930,300 gallons, down 25.16

Bill to speed oil, gas royalties passes panel

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A proposal making long delays in payment of oil and gas royalties less likely has cleared the Senate Natural Resources Committee.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, calls for interest to be paid on any royalty earnings not forwarded within 120 days of the sale of oil and gas from the royalty owner's land.

Committee members approved the measure in a 9-0 vote Wednesday.

"Some peoples' royalty checks have been held up as much as two years without reason," Traeger said, adding that most oil and gas companies are prompt in paying royalties.

Q: I've been looking at a multi-unit rental property to purchase as an investment. The present owner offered a formula I could use to determine the amount of income the property will generate. I am wondering whether formulas will tell the story. There seem to be too many variables to apply to a set formula.

A: True. There are too many variables attached to an income property to try to figure income through a formula. The best way to estimate income as well as value is to obtain an accurate cash flow analysis. This is really the only way in which you can determine, with any accuracy, whether the property will produce the kind of return on investment you're wanting. Future cash flows for several years should be projected by your agent through the anticipation of reasonable changes in rental income and expenses.

U.S. educators welcome critics of public schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The grim reports on the nation's public schools in the news these days — and more are in the pipeline — are getting a warm reception from many educators who view them as a sure sign of better times to come.

Even the two major teachers' unions, which in the past have exhibited a thin skin when the public schools are attacked, say they welcome the critical attention.

One reason may be that a common refrain in all the reports, including the blunderbuss from the Reagan administration's National Commission on Excellence in Education, is that teacher salaries are abysmally low.

The average for veteran teachers has inched past $20,000 this year, but salaries start around $12,000, on a par with secretarial jobs in some cities.

After the National Commission delivered its tale of woe titled "A Nation At Risk" on April 26, a Twentieth Century Fund task force of educators weighed in with a critique of the schools and a group of governors and business executives unveiled a package of reform recommendations in Raleigh, N.C.

On Wednesday, the College Board is releasing a progress report on its "Project Equality," which is designed to bolster the quality of high school curricula while preserving the nation's commitment to equal opportunity for students from minority groups.

Still to come is a major report on American high schools that the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has been working on for two years. Ernest G. Boyer, president of the Princeton, N.J., foundation, said the first findings may be out this fall.

A National Science Foundation blue ribbon panel on secondary schools also will air its recommendations this summer for improving math and science teaching.

John Goodlad, a prominent University of California at Los Angeles education professor, is publishing "A Study of Schooling," a book based on an intensive, minute examination of what goes on in several dozen typical American schools. Among Goodlad's findings, which have already appeared in Phi Delta Kappa magazine, is that schools often differ drastically on the amount of time devoted to instruction.

The National Commission on Excellence in Education's pithy 36-page report contained little news. Its litany of the schools' shortcomings — including high illiteracy rates, the precipitous drop in College Board scores from 1963 to 1980, and the trend toward marginally useful electives — all had been chronicled before. Many states have instituted teacher and student competency requirements and many school boards have accepted a "back-to-basics" philosophy.

World's Fair '84 hovers at mid-leap

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The president of the budding 1984 World's Fair compares his business to staging a high-wire ballet without a safety net.

While critics may feel that the wire is greased, that the ballerina is in midleap and that the dancer meant to catch her is looking the other way, Petr Spurney says everything is in balance. He is unruffled, even smiling.

One year is left before the gates at the 84-acre riverfront site are to open May 12, 1984, allowing the envisioned hordes of tourists, clutching wads of money, to rush in.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., flew in recently to express concern that only Japan and Australia had signed on for pavilions.

Spurney soothed Long. The fair is in "serious negotiations" with 24 other countries and none of them had said no, he reported, adding that there is plenty of time.

"We don't have all the deals together and the natives are getting restless," he said. "If you talk to me in four months and I still don't have them, then I will be a little bit nervous."

One reason Spurney cited for the hangup was that the Knoxville World's Fair, in landing 23 nations, had made a maneuver that caused some international irritation.

"Knoxville gave some nations free space for pavilions and charged money for others," he said. "China, the hit of the fair, did not pay for their space. Now every country is holding back and watching. They're saying, 'If China gets a deal, I want a deal.'"

Another problem an entrepreneur faces nowadays is that world's fairs are getting to be as common as crabgrass.

After Knoxville 1982 comes New Orleans '84; then Tsukuba, Japan, in 1985; Vancouver, Canada, 1986; Queensland, Australia, in 1988; Paris in 1989; and Chicago and Seville, Spain, in 1992.

"The days are past when you could run a World's Fair flag up the pole and have all the nations salute," Spurney said.

In view of Spurney's conception of the World's Fair business, it is perhaps fitting that the "one-year-to-go" celebration on May 12 will feature a high-wire act.

Plans are for Jay Cochrane, a wire walker from Toronto, Canada, to walk a half-mile-long wire stretched high over the Mississippi River at the New Orleans waterfront.

Some of the fair's critics worry that the six-month extravaganza will be seen as too expensive for the average vacationer and thus fall short of its goal of at least 11 million visitors. Its admission is already higher than Knoxville, where adults paid $10. Here it will be $15, or $14 for those under 11 or over 55, and many of the shows will cost extra.

But Spurney said the big-spender tendency of the average family is underrated.

"Per capita spending at Knoxville was much higher than anybody realized," he said.

Chamber completing Pro-Am plans

Prizes and games

Mrs. Bob Crowell looks amazed as she sinks a hole-in-one at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce luncheon Friday. She was in one of the games used to promote the upcoming Signal Peak Shriners' Pro-Am. In the photo directly above, Leroy George was surprised to win the $250 cash prize at the luncheon. Chamber officials were surprised, too. It marked the first time the money has been given away despite years of drawings.

Upcoming events discussed

About 150 Big Springers attended the quarterly chamber of commerce luncheon Friday and learned of upcoming events in the area.

Most eminent is the Signal Peak Shriners' Pro-Am set for May 18, 19 and 20. Celebrities lead by Terry Bradshaw, Golden Richards, Faron Young will be on hand to raise money for the Shriners' hospitals for burned and crippled children.

Another big event coming up in June is the 50th version of the Big Spring Rodeo. Scheduled for June 22 through June 25, rodeo officials are planning several special activities for this year's show.

Set for next week is the VA Hospital's open house on Wednesday, May 11 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

The chamber also handed out several $25 cash prizes and one $250 prize which went to Tilley and George Construction.

IF IT SEEMS LIKE WE'RE EVERYWHERE... IT'S BECAUSE WE ARE.

Bishops demand end to nuclear arms race

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Affirming a position taken by the National Conference of Roman Catholic Bishops, the Council of Bishops of the United Methodist Church has called for a freeze on nuclear weapons.

The Council of Bishops issued a statement Friday in Little Rock, where the bishops have been meeting all week. "The Council of Bishops of the United Methodist Church expresses its profound gratitude to the National Conference of Catholic Bishops for its pastoral letter, 'A Challenge of Peace: God's Promise and Our Response.'

"We stand in solidarity with the Roman Catholic bishops in their moral condemnation of the nuclear arms race and their continuing struggle for peace. We commend the pastoral letter of the Catholic bishops for study in all of our churches and indicate our eagerness to share in ecumenical study and witness with Catholic bishops and congregations.

The statement urges a mutual, verifiable freeze on nuclear weapons research, development, testing and production.

The group Friday appointed a nine-member committee to review the work of the National Council of Churches and the World Council of Churches. Reader's Digest and CBS' "60 Minutes" recently accused the two groups of supporting leftist countries through relief funds.

The committee, which represents 108 active and retired bishops of the church, is to meet for the first time in August.

'Radioactive' computers recovered

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Police recovered $28,000 worth of stolen computer equipment within two days after falsely spreading the word that it was radioactive, authorities say.

"I'd like to take credit for that one, but the uniforms thought that one up," Detective Alvin Correia said Friday.

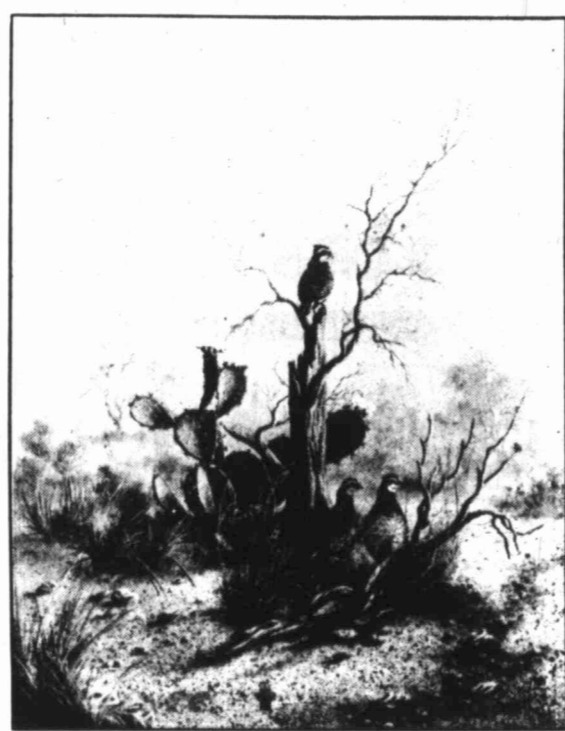

The equipment was reported stolen April 30 from a truck en route to Maryland and Virginia.

Police passed the word in the vicinity of the theft that the stolen video terminals and other equipment "contained a large measure of radioactivity," Correia said. In fact it was not radioactive.

A woman called police two days later and said the equipment was on her front porch, police said.

See Cameo Energy Homes...

...before you decide to build or buy

If you're a land owner considering building, or if you're looking at mobile homes, you need to see Cameo Energy Homes before you decide.

Cameo site-delivered homes have 2" x 6" walls—50% thicker than most residential houses. They're stronger and better insulated with R-19 insulation instead of R-11 used in most conventional construction. In the roof, your Cameo will have an insulation factor of R-30—more than twice as efficient as the R-14 rating in conventional homes.

Ford Sunglas® windows block out 24% of the sun's heat for additional energy efficiency. Air conditioning/heating ducts are energy efficient fiberglass. At the entrance, an insulated steel door with dead bolt security lock.

Strong, energy efficient Cameo Energy Home construction from the floor up.

Your new Cameo Energy Home: built for less under ideal conditions, inside the factory and site-delivered to your location. It's more home for your money. You can save thousands.

See for yourself. Visit the factory or a Cameo retailer.

Texas politics blamed for scrutiny of oil taxes

By WILLIAM GARLAND

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — When a youngish, proper-looking Boston lawyer stood with his followers a year ago near the East Front steps of the U.S. Capitol building, it hardly seemed an event that would symbolize a later problem for the Texas oil and gas industry.

Dressed in a dark suit, like the congressman he wanted to be, he was telling the group that he would attempt what probably is a Bostonian's version of the impossible dream: to unseat House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill in his central Boston congressional district.

A single element, however, looked particularly out of place in what should have been a scene as Boston-oriented as Beacon Hill. Congressional hopeful Frank L. McNamara Jr. was flanked on both sides by two tall cowboys who looked as though they had just answered a meal call on the O6 ranch in West Texas' Brewster County.

They wore cowboy hats that would have contained 10 gallons of anything, and also vests, jeans, boots and belt buckles large enough to put to shame any but the most celebrated of rodeo stars. Behind them a dozen feet or so stood another two guys holding a large sign that read, "YOU MAY NOT KNOW FRANK McNAMARA . . . BUT THEY KNOW HIM IN TEXAS."

It seemed that McNamara had recently strolled out of his northern clime and gone to Dallas for a visit to the Petroleum Club. At the club, Texas independent oilmen were more than happy to offer a few dollars to the man brave enough to seriously challenge O'Neill (seen for years as probably the most distasteful of the Eastern establishment liberals) in his own Massachusetts neighborhood.

The cowboys were planted at McNamara's campaign kickoff in Washington by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee to make certain that no one overlooked McNamara's southward meanderings, or the $15,000 in campaign funds that derived therefrom.

A year later, there is no McNamara in Congress but there is still O'Neill, regularly ruling House sessions from his high-backed speaker's chair. And observers are blaming that election episode in 1982, or at least the fact of Texas gift-giving behind it, as part of the reason for what the oil industry faced in Congress this week.

Congress taking close look at oil tax breaks

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Sunday, May 8, 1983 11-A

The Oversight Subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee took the most extensive look in years at the fairness of tax breaks for producers of oil and gas.

"It's mainly because some Texas and Oklahoma producers gave against Tip (O'Neill)," said a Texas congressional aide who closely monitors the Ways and Means Committee.

A general view for months has been that Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, asked the subcommittee to examine oil tax breaks because the independent sector of the industry gave substantial funding not only to the opponent of O'Neill, but also to Republican opponents of many Democrats who had strongly supported the oil and gas industry. A very high percentage of campaign funding from the independents went to Republicans.

A spokesman for the Independent Petroleum Association of America was as frank as the congressional aide. "There's no question about the fact that these hearings are politically motivated more than issue motivated," said IPAA's Peter Wellish. "They are targeting a few select producers (who funded O'Neill's opponent and other Republicans), and I think that's the big mistake."

Those independents hold few things dearer than complicated federal tax exemptions that go by such names as the "depletion allowance" or the allowance for "intangible drilling costs." They say the tax exemptions sometimes make the difference in whether they drill on a certain property or not.

In the hearing, Rostenkowski and the Democrats raised precisely the storm over taxation they undoubtedly expected. Groups like the liberal Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition and Citizens for Tax Justice explained in detail how they think oil companies large and small are unfairly escaping from hefty income taxes that would diminish the growing federal deficit.

Members of the oil industry, of course, explained the industry view that they pay more than their share with income taxes and the windfall profits tax. And they were not hesitant to point out that the industry is in a rough period with the drop in oil prices and the glut of natural gas.

It was not expected that the tax breaks, which have been seriously challenged in past years, would fall victim this year to a money-hungry Congress. The fact of the industry's downturn has been well-publicized throughout the media, and the oversight subcommittee has a majority of conservative congressmen, such as Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, who were considered unlikely to recommend altering the taxes.

Year's happenings arrives

The annuals have arrived!!! They were distributed on Wednesday, May 4, after school in the high school cafeteria. The book's theme was Western. Extras were available for those who did not get to order one. Tuesday, May 3rd, the Theatre/Forensic Department held a meeting and voted for the 1983-84 officers. They are as follows: For Forensic—Clark Johnson—President; Alex Castello—Vice President; Jennifer Moore—Secretary/Treasurer; and Sami Eyeskins—Reporter. For Theatre—Kim Beckham—Director; Mike Walker—Stage Manager; Sami Eyeskins—Business Manager; and Alex Castello—Critic.

The Steer Baseball Team lost their final game of the season against San Angelo Saturday, April 30, by a score of 5 to 2. Alan Trevino had 2 hits for the Steers. The Baseball Team finished the year with 14 wins and 14 losses and 7 wins and 7 losses in District play.

Selections were made for All-District Baseball. Three of our Steer Baseball players received honors. Tom Cudd was named 1st Team Outfield, and Jinx Valenzuela was named 1st Team Designed Hitter. Alan Trevino received an Honorable Mention. Congratulations to these Steer players!

Monday, May 2, was the night that the lower classmen went under. The upper classmen rubbed the girls into the ground in the process of playing powder puff football. The Juniors and Seniors won by a score of 38-16. The game was held at Blankenship Field at 6:30.

Cheerleaders elected for 1983-84

High school Freshman cheerleader elections were held on Friday. Cheerleaders for the 1983-84 school year will be: Shelly Carmichael, Mary Anita Trevino, Larrie Norman, Christy Malone, Tessa Underwood, and Sheila Cunningham. Congratulations goes to these girls. They will be cheering the Steers to victory.

Freshmen Student Council representatives will be elected Friday, May 13. Six representatives will be elected. Candidates will be required to put up three posters on Tuesday, May 10. Any member of the eighth grade is eligible if he meets these requirements: a student must have an overall average grade of 70; he must have a good behavior record; he must have a good attendance record; and must have the interest and time to be an active representative. Mrs. Kelly is conducting the election.

Calendar Clue had a special game last week. Students had the opportunity to submit an answer each day. First prize was $5 and it went to Brent Ainworth; second prize was $3 and Victoria Logan won second. Third prize went to Amy Burgess, and it was $1.

The Runnels tennis team won the Snyder Tennis Tournament. In eighth grade boys doubles, Jeff Needles, a Runnels student and Perry Prudhomme, a Goliad student won. Jimmy Churchwell and Gary Osborn got to the semi-finals. Jimmy Churchwell won consolation in eighth grade singles.

Busy weeks ahead before the end

Coahoma students are still busy with a mass of activities as the final day of school continues to grow closer.

United Blood Services will be at the high school on Monday. Eligible students who give blood will receive a free t-shirt.

Students who are running for Student Council need to have their recommendations turned in to Ms. Cook by Tuesday. Present Student Council members need to have all their calendar orders and money in by Thursday.

Also on Thursday, the high school will have their awards assembly in the high school auditorium.

The AWAKE students will be presenting their Dinner Theater on Thursday and Friday. The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the performance following at 7:30 p.m. each night.

The Senior Class will be leaving for their Six Flags trip on Friday and will arrive home on Saturday.

Also on Friday, members of the FFA will travel to the FFA Area II Convention in San Angelo where their sweetheart Pam Riddle will be competing for the Area II Sweetheart title. Pam already holds the El Rancho District Sweetheart title.

On Sunday May 15th, the Big Red Band will hold its annual spring banquet. Band King and Queen will be crowned along with the presentation of the John Phillips Sousa Award.

Last Friday, several students participated in the annual rodeo. The Rodeo festivities involved an all-school barbecue and play day.

The Junior Senior Banquet Prom was held last night at the Big Spring Country Club. Students were entertained by a slide show at the banquet and the music of Anechron at the Prom.

Goliad

By Melissa Wilson

Next year's cheerleaders named

The main cause of spirit at Runnels for next year is the cheerleaders. The cheerleaders for the eighth grade are Ginger Brooks, Kenda Madry, Jennifer Spencer, Jessica Milligan, Katrina Thompson, and Michelle Tucker.

Next years sixth graders visited Goliad last Wednesday and the band put on a special program for them. The tour only lasted about an hour, but the fifth graders enjoyed it.

The seventh graders are eager to start eighth grade. Mr. Tucker from Runnels visited each classroom preparing the seventh graders for Runnels.

Calendar Clue winners for the whole year are sixth graders Johnny Martinez, Jay Carr, Lori Park, Beatrice Ramsey, Michael Robertson, Sherman Powers, Quack Khiem, and Dawn Conway. The ones for sixth grade who answered to most times is Mark Settles. He answered seven times. Seventh grade winners are Shamir Caplan, Nic Pherson, Bryan Boyd, Manuel Alvear, Jo Jo Reed, Aaron Vollmer, Rex Tucker, John Sautter, Fred Jones, Buddy Everett, Scott Oliver, Michael Porch, and Robert Moran. The one for the seventh grade who answered the most times is Kirk Piper.

Strange clashes mark battle of Texas' budget

By KEN HERMAN

Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN — It was shoes vs. "fancy dances," statewide celebrations vs. cancer research and bureaucrats vs. a fence.

The fence won. Thanks to a rule requiring House members to delete money from the budget if they wanted to add it elsewhere, this week's budget battle turned into one-on-one wars, agency vs. agency for the big bucks.

The biggest loser was the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council (TENRAC).

Rep. Bill Coody, D-Weatherford, a cigar-chomping carnival-barker type, convinced his colleagues that TENRAC's $1.1 million would be better spent on a high fence around the Gainesville State School in his district.

TENRAC, he said, "couldn't find a quart of oil in an Exxon station."

"We don't need this agency, and these people in Gainesville sure need that million bucks," he said.

Asked how it feels to lose your job to a fence, a TENRAC employee said "Take a guess."

"Morale is low," he said, requesting anonymity because "it would be counter-productive for me to be quoted."

TENRAC workers hope the final budget, to be drawn by a House-Senate conference committee, will keep them on the job.

Another House floor battle pitted the Commission for the Arts against needy children. The arts won, despite Pampa Rep. Foster Whaley's good ol' boyish argument against "fancy dances."

Whaley read aloud a newspaper review of a Commission for the Arts-backed "experimental and contemporary dance." It sounded like the kind of dance the good folks of Pampa might not cotton to. Whaley railed about "bridge-playing" art-lovers who ask the state for money but "cuss us legislators."

He wanted to cut $6 million from the arts commission and shift it to Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments. It would have meant about a dollar a month per needy child. Not much, said supporters of increased AFDC. But to Whaley it meant a pair of shoes a year for a needy kid.

Rep. Billy Clemons, D-Pollock, jumped on the Whaley wagon and said AFDC is needed more than money "to see some people doing pirouettes in a tutu."

Rep. Milton Fox, R-Houston, said his constituents would rather see the arts money spent on sports.

Court upholds Mrs. Harrelson's conviction

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has upheld the conviction of Jo Ann Harrelson, accused of buying a rifle used in the murder of a federal judge in Texas.

Mrs. Harrelson was found guilty on one count of making a false and fictitious statement in connection with the purchase of a firearm for her husband Charles.

The FBI said Mrs. Harrelson bought the Weatherby Model Mark V, .240-caliber rifle from a Dallas sporting goods store and gave a false name, age and address.

In appealing, Mrs. Harrelson said the trial judge erred in his instructions to the jury, and in refusing to reopen a pretrial hearing.

"Finding no error, we affirm," the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Friday.

Officers said the rifle was used in killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. in San Antonio on May 29, 1979.

Texas Baptist Men make dreams reality

FLAT, Texas (AP) — With callous hands and faces cracked and dry from many days of toil under the sun, they come to make dreams reality.

Traveling in trailers and campers, they resurrect the once-extinct barn-raising parties of the 1800s and leave a wake of smiles, good will and fellowship.

The Texas Baptist Men, a group of retired carpenters, furnish free labor to build churches that would be unaffordable to small congregations.

Under the leadership of Olen Miles, 76, the founder of the 5-year-old group, the men are working on two projects in Central Texas — the First Baptist Church of Flat and a dormitory for Christian Farms Inc., a drug and alcohol rehabilitation facility near Killeen.

The Rev. Dave Johnson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Flat, said the men are "a great testimony" to active retirement and to their Lord.

"These are the best years of their lives for most of these men," Johnson said. "All this comes out of the kindness of their hearts. They help little churches like us who couldn't afford to build otherwise."

The materials needed to build the Flat church cost $100,000, Johnson said, but the price of the building would be doubled without the free labor.

Johnson, 23, managed to keep up with the retirees as they lifted support trusses atop the 4,900-square-foot church, scheduled for early May completion.

"I'm no carpenter, but I'm out here to lend a hand," Johnson said. "I'm trying to encourage some of our retired members to go with these fellows when they leave. I would hate to lose them, but this is the way they should spend their retirement years."

The men spend up to three weeks at some jobs. Their only pay is a space to park their trailers, a large noon-time meal provided each day by members of the church, and an opportunity to hold a revival before the completion of the church.

Former Temple soil conservationist Bud Robeson, sporting a multicolored beach cap, said he and the other 16 men constructing the Flat church "all want to keep on going."

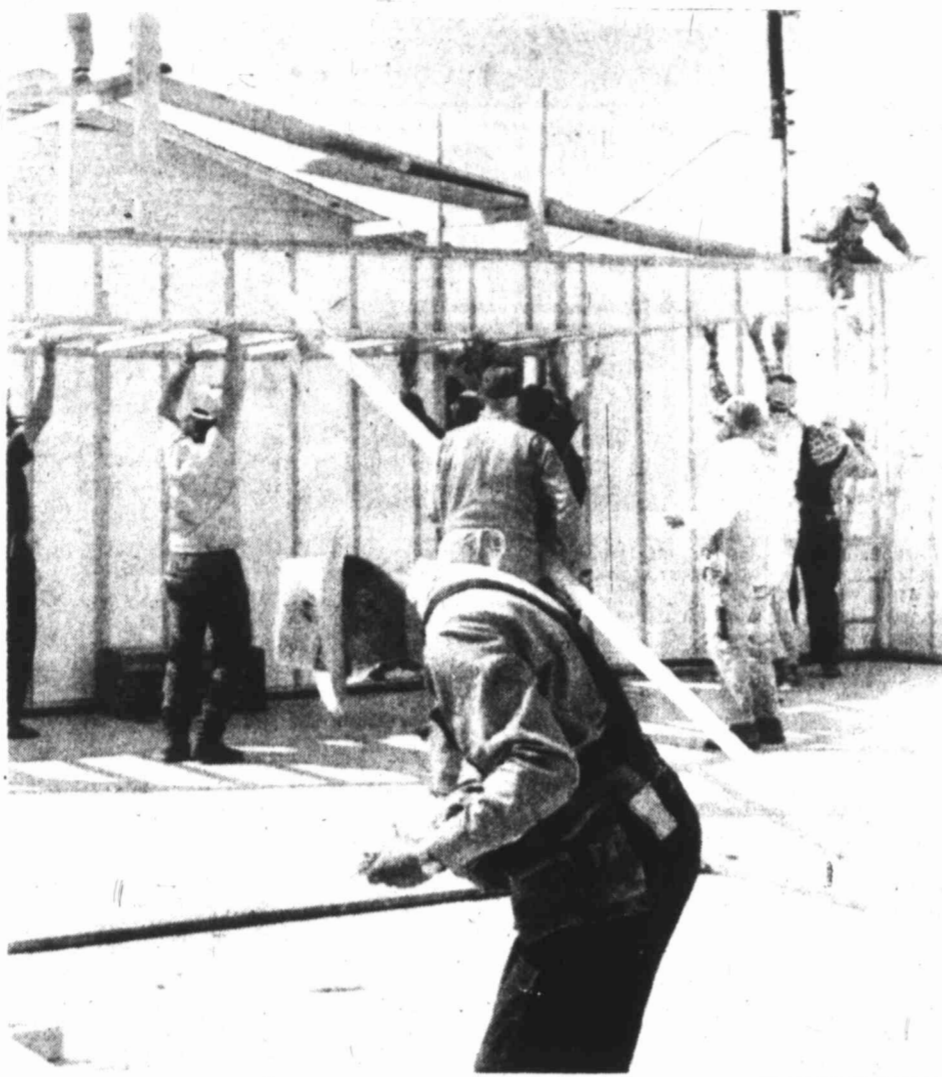

"Our plan is to go from now on, but you never know," Robeson said with a wink. "The good Lord can change all that right quick."

The men's wives, Robeson said, are an "integral part of the job" because they leave their homes for weeks at a time on the long trips.

"We wouldn't go out and do this if it wasn't for them," Robeson said. "Sometimes it's harder on them because they have to stay in the trailers so much."

Robeson said the 85-man group built 10 churches in Texas last year. The Flat church was their sixth of 1983.

"We're such a close-knit unit, we're just like a big happy family," Robeson said. "When we get through with a church, we're all wanting to start a new job."

CHURCH BUILDERS — The Texas Baptist Men, a group of retired carpenters who furnish free labor to build churches that would otherwise be unaffordable to small congregations, work on the First Baptist Church in Flat, Texas.

Miles, who coordinates the construction jobs from his home in Austin, visited the Flat church and — between hand-shaking, backpattin and decision making — explained why he organized the group.

"I felt like there was a group of people who were being neglected — retirees," Miles said. "They suddenly found themselves with nothing to do, and they wanted to get involved but didn't know how."

Miles said he decided to bring back the barn-raising concept and use it to allow retired men to "do things for the Lord and his work."

"You'll never find a group of happier people," Miles said. "We could work every day all the time if we wanted to, but everybody needs some rest sometime."

Robeson said the work "is not all that hard" even though all the lifting is done without machines. The men have never had a serious accident.

"We go up and down these ladders a lot, and most of us know what we're doing," Robeson said. "Some of us never drove a nail in our life, but everything just works together, and everything falls into place."

Earth, Texas, good PIK

Silent Partners

EARTH, Texas (AP) — With a name like Earth, this tiny West Texas town is supposed to be closely tied to the terrain.

And to the dozen farmers lined around two lunch tables in La Tierra Restaurant — the Earth, in Spanish — there is just such talk. "PIK," said one, tipping his hat over an eye, "has been a Godsend. God save our lands."

There is a murmur of agreement — PIK, the federal government's new fangled Payment-In-Kind program that pays farmers not to plant crops this year, has saved many a farmer in Earth, a town of 1,000 between Amarillo and Lubbock.

"We're just a little town, but PIK has meant many farmers here aren't on the brink anymore," said La Tierra employee Judy Templeton.

She lists her husband and most of the town as having been ensured survival "for at least a year" through a government program that has idled more of the nation's cotton and grain acreage than ever before.

An estimated 36 percent of the country's 82 million acres will be cropland in 1983, the Agriculture Department says. About 1.2 million of the nation's 2.3 million farmers are participating in PIK, including 99 percent of Earth, town officials say.

Citizens State Bank of Earth Vice President Donald Clayton describes PIK as "having finally brought a real optimistic outlook to this community."

Last year, hail wiped out 2 million acres of cotton around the area, while record corn and wheat crops crowded storage bins around the country. Former President Carter's grain embargo with the Soviet Union added to farmer's fiscal woes, while others chided Mother Nature.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower also has blamed the federal government for a "Band-aid" solution by initiating PIK for one year to silence farmers upset by a cost-price squeeze that he said gives growers an increasingly smaller share of the consumer food dollar.

"Things did look bleak for farmers before PIK. About five farms were foreclosed around Earth last year, and without PIK, this town could have disappeared," Clayton said. "But now, I can't think of one farmer here who isn't in PIK."

While most farmers this year are elated with a program that pays them in excess crops that can be resold or used as feed grain while their lands are idled, farm equipment suppliers are taking it on the chin.

"Agriculture-related businesses that sell seed and chemicals will lose big because that land isn't being planted," Clayton said.

Many large farm combines now lay idle in some Earth fields where wheat inches skyward. Clayton said sales also are way off at the Earth Agricultural Supply store, which is across the street from a checkerboard field rich in a brown-red soil and offset by spring's green wheat.

Under PIK, about half the field is allowed to be planted. The rest can lay fallow. But the greening of Earth and assurance of fair payment for idling half the town's acreage has restored much of the government's image.

"They came to our rescue. We're in good shape for this year. Now, we've got to wonder what will happen next year, when PIK ends," Clayton said.

Oregon Pharmacist Develops New Wrinkle Cream

By RICHARD MORRELL
Feature Writer

(Special). It's an exciting story of an Oregon pharmacist who developed a wrinkle cream which all of the Northwest has clamored for... and which soon the rest of the country may receive in limited quantities.

Robert Heldfond, a Portland pharmacist, developer of many national products, used knowledge from pharmacy school and years of experience to compound Formula EB5 wrinkle cream, which has produced dramatic results in symptoms of aging skin.

Women started besieging Mr. Heldfond's pharmacy when the word got around about its wonderful results in helping women look younger. The phones never stopped ringing and letters poured in, praising the results with Formula EB5 wrinkle cream.

Users reported... "I wish I had some before and after pictures so I could really show the difference..." "Thank you for helping an older woman look younger..." "My husband says I look years younger, I never want to be without EB5..." "My skin feels soft and velvety, almost shines..." and even, "It made a difference in my life."

Formula EB5 contains natural ingredients, including Li Progen*, collagen and Lipo-protein, plus Vitamins E and B5, and other fine aids to help slow the aging look and help impart a more youthful appearance to the skin. Heldfond's base for the cream penetrates and absorbs quickly, leaving the skin, as the woman says, soft and velvety.

Because of the unique method of compounding it, Pharmacist Heldfond was able to produce Formula EB5 only in small quantities, but now production is allowing limited quantities in other areas. If your skin is aging too fast, try in your area to find Formula EB5.

A really Great Scott

"He's one person I hate to see leave." Jamie Scott is one person many people — baseball coach Frank Ibarra not excluded — will miss when the 1983-84 school year begins next August at Big Spring High School.

"He's been a tremendous asset to our team," Ibarra continued. "Not only has he done a great job keeping the scorebook for me, he keeps track of everything so well."

Jamie is one of those guys you can label a "right-hand man." BSHS trainer Everett Blackburn, a man who works day and night himself, says that he's been able to relax every now and then because he can leave the job to Jamie.

"I tell you what," Blackburn said, "Jamie will be missed by coaches and athletes much more than they realize now. They'll find out just how much next year. He's done the job of an adult."

Who is Jamie Scott? He's a senior at Big Spring High and has served the local school system as athletic manager since he was in seventh grade. Blackburn points out that he's the only four-year varsity letterman at the high school.

No matter what the sport, Jamie is always there, leaving the rest of us to wonder how he makes his grades and participates in choir too. A second tenor, Jamie has won honors in choir and recently starred as Commander William Harbison in the Choral Department's production of South Pacific. He made rehearsals despite helping prepare the Steers for spring football drills and keeping the scorebook for the Ibarra's baseball team.

JAMIE SCOTT
...valuable to BSHS

Jamie is also a softball nut, playing the outfield for Crestview Baptist Church. "Jamie's a real competitor," says Blackburn. "Most people wouldn't think he is but he's one of the few guys who would bloody George Bancroft's nose."

What's that? Mr. Bancroft, District 4-5A's top defensive player?

"He managed to bloody George's nose in a basketball game once. I'd definitely say he's competitive," Blackburn said, laughing.

Jamie is sure to get much-deserved recognition at the spring sports banquet at Big Spring High next week but one person who can't thank him that evening is myself.

I had to cover the Steers-Abilene High basketball game the second night on the job here at the Herald. Jamie was at the game, introduced me to people I needed to know, provided me with stats and a coke at halftime and most of all, made me feel at home.

Last spring, the Herald was without a full-time photographer which meant I had to shoot the Steer baseball games. I have enough trouble dodging foul balls to keep my scorebook and take pictures at the same time. But there was Jamie who, without question, kept my book and the team's. That was invaluable help.

Compliments always make a person feel good and Jamie, a faithful reader of this section, has encouraged me. Besides talking sports, we've discussed the world of rock-n-roll, politics, girls, movies and cold weather during games. He helped me out when I injured my foot trying to be a world-class runner last fall, strapping me up to a machine that jolts away the pain with electricity. He always laughed at me for cringing when he turned up the juice.

You bet people are going to miss this guy in the Florida State Seminoles T-shirt. Not many kids will show up at school at 7:30 a.m. and stay past dark. And not parents would put with his hours, either.

Jamie, I've casually said you've done more than enough for me to deserve a steak dinner. You didn't believe me? You should have. Cut out the coupon below and find me. If you have the time.

Until then, sincere thanks from all of us.

SUNNY SHOWING ON A RAINY DAY — Sunny's Halo dashes to the wire with Eddie Delahoussaye on board to win the 109th running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday in Louisville. Desert Wine was second and Caveat third.

It's Sunny's Halo

Arkansas champ sashes past field

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Sunny's Halo shook off the rain as easily as he shook off the opposition in a late stretch drive to win the $531,000 Kentucky Derby Saturday at Churchill Downs.

With Eddie Delahoussaye, who also rode last year's winner Gato del Sol, whipping and driving, the Arkansas Derby winner charged across the finish line ahead of Desert Wine. Caveat came on to be third.

Delahoussaye sent Sunny's Halo into the lead with about a quarter-mile to go and he stormed home two lengths in front of Desert Wine, who was a neck ahead of Caveat.

Sunny's Halo reached the end of the 1 1/4 miles on a fast but wet track in 2:02 1-5 to win the first rained-out Derby since Proud Clarion won in 1967.

The victory by the chestnut colt, who was rehabilitated over the winter by swimming at Hollywood Park, marked the first time an Arkansas Derby winner had won the Kentucky Derby, and it was done in impressive fashion.

Slew O' Gold, the son of 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew, was fourth, another length back.

Marfa, another of Lukas' entries and the colt who had made a lot of pre-Derby news because of his sometimes bad manners during a race, never was a factor.

Completing the order of finish were Play Fellow, Pax In Bello, Country Pine, Balboa Native, Paris Prince, Current Hope, Chumming, Freezing Rain, My Mac, Explosive Wagon, Parfaitement, Highland Park, Luv A Libra, Law Talk and Total Departure.

The victory was only the fourth for a 3-year-old foaled out of the United States, and Sunny's Halo became only the second Canadian-bred to win the Derby. The other was Northern Dancer in 1964.

Kentucky Derby

The colt, owned by Toronto stockbroker David J. Foster, paid $7, $4.80 and $4. Desert Wine, owned by Dan J. Agner and Fred Sahadi and ridden by Chris McCarron, paid $12.20 and $9.80. Caveat, owned by August Belmont IV and Mr. and Mrs. James J. Ryan, was $5.20 to show.

Each starter carried 126 pounds. The victory was worth $426,000, and boosted Sunny Halo's earnings to $907,019. The victory was his third in three starts this year. He was the least raced 3-year-old to start in the Derby since Jet Pilot in 1947.

Sunny's Halo was second at the clubhouse turn, then began to move on the final turn.

Total Departure, one of three Derby starters saddled by Wayne Lukas, had taken the lead passing the finish line the first time, and he still had it going into the final turn.

Caveat, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., was trying to match the Derby winning feat of his sire, Cannonade, in 1974.

It last rained on Derby Day in 1970 when Dust Commander won, but that year it didn't rain during the race.

Talking about Sunny Halo's jogg-ing and swimming treatments to heal a wrenched left front ankle and shin splints suffered late last year, trainer David Cross said, "Without the pool at Hollywood Park, we wouldn't be here. It helped him develop stamina and wind."

Two other sons of Derby winners were trying to do it like daddy did.

They were Marfa, whose sire, Foolish Pleasure, won in 1975, and Slew O' Gold. Marfa finished behind Slew O' Gold.

Last year, the son of Halo—Mostly Sunny, won five of 11 starts, with all of the wins coming in Canada. He was badly beaten in the Laurel Futurity in October and the Young American in November, then stopped for the year because of injuries.

Most of the day at Churchill Downs was overcast and windy, with the sun occasionally peeking through. But from 42 minutes to post time, right on through the race, the only thing sunny about the Derby was the winner.

Delahoussaye, who became the fourth rider to win consecutive Derbies, said last Sunday night he had told some other jockeys it was the dream of his life to win two straight Derbies.

The other jockeys to win consecutive Derbies were Isaac Murphy in 1890-91, Jimmy Winfield in 1901-1902 and Ron Turcotte in 1972-73.

Pads go a-poppin' in Steer workout

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Starting quarterback candidate Tommy Gartman scored on a pair of touchdown runs and directed his team to two others as the "Gold" team shut out the Black 26-0 in a scrimmage Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

Up and coming running back Mike McKinley scored on a 20-yard run while senior-to-be Eric Sherman scored on a 16-yard cutback run for the Gold (actually white-jerseyed Steers) team.

"That's the way to hit people, men," Big Spring High head football coach Quinn Eudy said after the practice session. "That's the way to get after them. Go home this weekend and make up your minds to get better."

Eudy and his coaching staff watched the Gold team dominate the Black. The Gold kept the Black team away from the goal line with aggressive play along the line of scrimmage and a good rush on quarterback Mark Johnson.

The Steer varsity was split for the scrimmage but it appeared the Gold team had more talent, at least Friday night.

The Gold marched the length of the field to score on its first possession as McKinley broke loose on a 20-yard scamper. The senior-to-be dashed 40 yards on his team's next possession and Gartman passed 35 yards to Robert Porras to set up the Gold inside the Black 10.

After a motion penalty, Gartman kept on an option play around right end for his team's second touchdown.

The Black team was stopped on three plays and the Gold seized the opportunity to score for a third time. A 26-yard run by Gartman highlighted the drive that ended when Sherman started left and cut back against the flow to score on 16 yards away.

The Black team got rolling when Johnson passed to Jay Pirkle for 12 yards and a first down. A sack of Johnson, however, stopped the potential drive.

The Gold marched downfield as Gartman ran for 11 and 25 yard gains and passed 14 yards to Dale Crenshaw. The junior quarterback was stopped on a fourth and eight run inside the Black 30 to end the drive.

Before a water break, the Black moved the football with some consistency as Pirkle ran for 11 yards and caught a 10-yard pass from Johnson.

The Black squad got nowhere on its first drive after the cool-off and the Gold drove to its fourth touchdown. McKinley and Sherman ran the ball well but its Gartman who got the touchdown when he escaped several tackles and ran 35

AUSTIN — Klondike senior Dawna West collected two medals at the state girl's track meet Saturday, highlighting a strong showing by Big Spring area contestants.

West's post-district duel with Renvy Evans of Greenwood High in the Class A 100 low hurdles continued in Memorial Stadium. The two battled it out again for first place with West clocking a 14.3 for first and Evans a 14.8 for second.

The Klondike sprinter added a silver medal to her collection when she ran a 57.8 in the 400 meters, her fastest time ever. She finished behind Angela Polk of Whitharral who beat her at the Region I-A meet in Levelland two weeks before.

Big Spring High's Shell Rutledge ran a 24.4 to finish fourth in the Class 5-A 200 meters Saturday. Pat Lowe of Richardson also was timed in 24.4 but was awarded the bronze medal. Terri Smejstrela of Pearland won with a 23.8. Complete state meet results can be found in Scorecard.

Evans got a measure of revenge in the triple jump, going 36-0 for fourth place. West did not place in the event after winning the regional gold by less than two inches over her district rival.

Greenwood also got points in the 800 relay with a sixth place finish. The Rangerettes ran a 1:47.7, their best time of the year.

Also in the Class A meet, Garden City freshman Gena Schaefer ran a 2:24.6 for fifth place in the 800 meters. Daria Graham, winner of the Region I-A meet, ran a 2:17.3 for first. Forsan senior Teresa White cleared 5-2 to finish sixth in the high jump. Old rival LeAnn Runion of Robert Lee made 5-3 and finished with the bronze medal.

In the Class AA division, Stanton's Mary Beth Tollison ran to a pair of fourth place finishes. The SHS junior ran a 12:21.8 in the 3,200 meters and came back with a 5:42.7 in the 1,600.

Sandra Williams of Colorado City dashed to an 11.8 clocking to take third place in the Class AAA 100 meters. The C-City freshman was the Region I-AAA champion in the event.

Coahoma picked up two places in the same division. Senior Vickie Buchanan tossed the discus 120-2 for fifth place while junior Tobie Henry took sixth in the 400 meters.

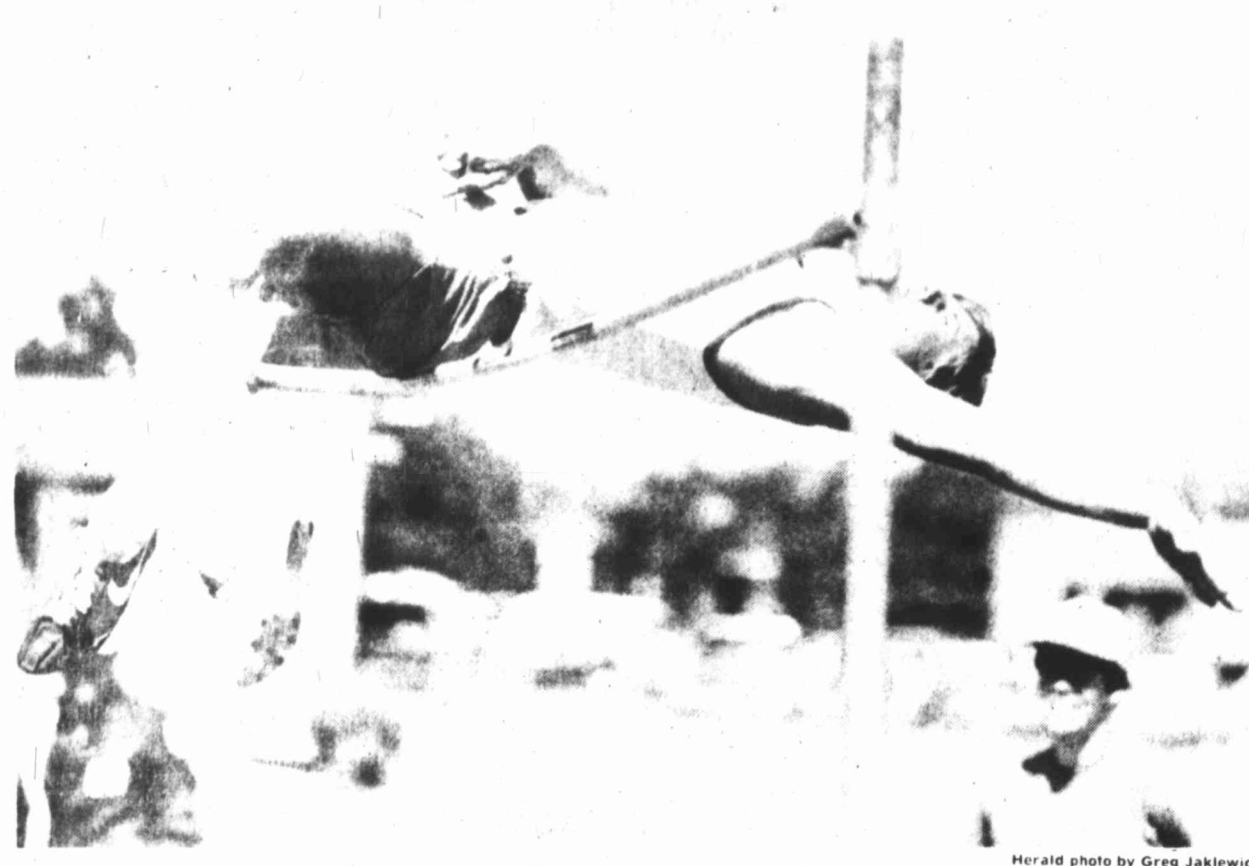

Senior Julie Nairn did not place among the top six in the 200 meters.

RENVY EVANS
...a second, a fourth

JUST AS LONG AS HE STAYS ON — Greenwood High School's Stuart Burleson lets his shorts brush the bar but he still clears 6'8 Saturday at the Region I-AA meet in Levelland. The jump was good for first place, sending the Ranger senior back to state to defend his title.

Burleson gets high jump title

Otherwise, Greenwood has rough day in Levelland

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

LEVELLAND — It was a day that Stuart Burleson could both laugh and cry about. You might say, Saturday's Region I-AA boy's track meet had its high and its lows.

Burleson, who stands only 6-1, soared 6'8 to win the high jump late in the morning. In the afternoon, however, he got too low on his first hurdle, costing him a precious second and finished third in the 110 high hurdles.

He became the second Big Spring area trackster to qualify for the state meet. Sands High weightman Perry Wigginton tossed the shot put 50-2 1/2 Friday to take second and gain a state berth.

Wigginton was involved in a tight finish in the shot. Wink's Roger Bell won the event with a 50-4 1/2 throw while Wade Wills of Wheeler failed to make state with a 50-2, just an inch and a half behind Wigginton.

Wigginton was only second in the District 6 A meet.

The ups and downs experienced by Burleson Saturday compared nothing to Greenwood's finish in the sprint relay. Blazing to their fastest time of the season, the Rangers had second place and a trip to Austin wrapped up only to lose on a lean at the tape by Rankin's Dennis Black.

Anchor leg Marc Colburn took the baton from Burleson with a five-yard lead on Black in the battle for second place behind runaway winner Sudan. With only steps to go, his lead had dwindled to a yard but it appeared the Greenwood senior would hold on.

Other area teams fail at regionals

• Forsan and Garden City did not place a regional qualifier in the top three at the Region II-A meet at McMurry College in Abilene.

• Coahoma and Colorado City did not place a regional qualifier in the top three at the Region I-AAA meet at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa.

As he reached the finish line, Colburn raised his hand into the air in triumph. The motion pulled his body back and Black, closing fast, lunged at the line. It wasn't clear who had won but a check of the ac-tract photo of the finish and a meeting of coaches involved brought a unanimous decision: Black's last-second lean had lifted his team to second place.

"He said he never saw the guy," Burleson said. "He got us. Coach (Joe Longley) looked at it and he was there."

No one felt worse than Colburn who at first thought he had held on for second place. "At the finish line," he said, "I raised up and did like this (showing his raised hand). I thought he got me. Man, that was stupid."

The excitement of the Ranger sprinter died in one sentence when a meet official walked over to the foursome and said, "They looked at the photo and you were third."

Black took the good news calmly, just glad to have luck go his way. At last year's state meet, the Rankin athlete appeared to have the 400 meters won but stopped at what he thought was the finish line. The real finish line was still four meters away and two runners passed him before he could restart and get there.

"This time, he never quit running. I had about five or six yards to (See 'G'wood' on page 12-B)

Lady Luck didn't favor Stanton

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — Stanton, had luck shined on the West Texas town at all, could have finished second in the team standings at the Region I-AA meet here Saturday. Instead, the Buffaloes finished tied with Stratford for 11th place.

It seemed as if luck would be with the Bulls Friday when Timmy Bryant cleared 12-6 to win the pole vault. But just like the sun disappearing behind a cloud, luck suddenly hid from coach Dale Ruth's team.

First of all, two of the Buffaloes might have been better off in a hospital than on Texas Tech University track. Sprinter Mark Helms was in total misery with a back problem while Maurizio Iaquaniello was just getting over a bout with tonsillitis.

Still, the pair of seniors were ready to give it the old high school try in the 1,600 relay. Unfortunately, apologized. He didn't need to.

IT'S OK, ROBBY — Stanton High coach Dale Ruth consoles Robby Barnes after he jumped the gun in the 1,600 relay Saturday in Lubbock.

"It could of happen to anyone," coach Ruth said. "We've been struggling all year. I'll say this. These guys never quit. They still set the school record (3:24.2) in the relay."

The Buffaloes had saved up for the race, watching potential points evaporate when Helms pulled out of the 100, Rocky Barnes out of the 400 and Robby Barnes out of the 800.

"It just didn't work out," Ruth said.

After Bryant's pole vault — which scored 10 points for the Buffaloes, Stanton could score only five more points. Four came in a fifth place finish by the sprint relay which turned in a 43.62. Panhandle, the overwhelming meet champions with 72 points, won the event with a 42.69.

The other point came in the 3,200 run where Tony Ramos clocked a 10:49.64 for sixth place.

Express bounces Boston behind Rae

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Rae connected with Kris Haines for a 66-yard touchdown with 18 seconds left to give the Los Angeles Express a 23-20 United States Football League win over the Boston Breakers on Saturday.

The six play, 30-yard drive led to Haines' second touchdown of the game.

Rae, recovering an injured Tom Ramsey, completed nine of 15 passes for 104 yards, including the winning touchdown. Haines caught six passes for 86 yards.

Boston's Tim Mazzetti had kicked two field goals for a 20-16 lead at 7:54 of the fourth quarter.

Tony Davis and Richard Crump each added touchdown runs for Boston.

The Breakers' John Walton, the league's top passer, completed 19 of 33 attempts for 196 yards and three interceptions.

Ramsey, who was making his first start at quarterback for the Express, completed 10 of 18 attempts for 117 yards and one touchdown.

But the former UCLA quarterback left the game with 9:53 left in the third quarter when he was sacked by Daryl Wilkerson. Ramsey left the game with an achilles tendon bruise.

Sixers gear up for Bucks series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A stationary bike in the tunnel leading to the court may be a factor in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference final starting today between the Milwaukee Bucks and Philadelphia 76ers.

A stationary bike?

The bike, borrowed from hockey's Philadelphia Flyers, will be ridden by Andrew Toney when he isn't playing to keep a deep thigh bruise from stiffening.

The 76ers disclosed Friday that Toney will play Sunday with a special wrapping that provides heat to keep the injured area loose while he is on the court.

When he comes out he'll head straight for the tunnel and start pedaling.

Toney, the 76ers' best outside shooter and a superior driver and playmaker, is vital to the Philadelphia offense. He keeps defenses honest, and opens the inside for huge Moses Malone to perform his specialties, scoring and rebounding.

"It's like pedaling down hill," said 76ers' trainer Al Domenico. "It extends the leg and makes sure it won't stiffen."

Domenico admitted he never heard of this before the doctors suggested the bike.

The trainer said Toney, who averaged 19.7 points per game as the 76ers compiled a 65-17 record and won the Atlantic Division, is making moves and jumping.

The 76ers reached the best-of-seven Eastern final with a four-game second-round sweep of the New York Knicks, and will be trying to eliminate the Bucks from the playoffs for the third straight season.

Central Division champion Milwaukee moved into the round of four, with a surprising four-game sweep of the Boston Celtics.

Spurs eye reverse of 1982 outcome

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs will have an opportunity to settle a year-old score with the Los Angeles Lakers beginning today.

On their way to the National Basketball Association title last spring, the Lakers embarrassed the Spurs by eliminating them in four straight games in the best-of-seven Western Conference championship series.

Los Angeles then went on to beat the Philadelphia 76ers in six games to win its second league championship in a three-year period.

Now the are attempting to become the first NBA team to win consecutive championships since the Boston Celtics in the 1968 and 1969 seasons.

Los Angeles doesn't figure to have as easy a time with San Antonio in this year's conference championship series as it had last year. In fact, even though the Lakers are favored, the Spurs would seem to have a solid chance in the series.

Before this season, the Spurs took a big step toward making sure the Lakers wouldn't be able to dominate them by acquiring center Artis Gilmore in a trade with the Chicago Bulls.

Gilmore, who has always played tough against Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the six-time NBA most valuable player, appears to have made the Spurs a serious contender for the NBA title.

During the regular season, the Spurs defeated the Lakers in four of the five meetings.

The Lakers, who won the Pacific Division title, advanced to the conference championship series by eliminating Portland in five games.

Meanwhile, the Spurs performed brilliantly in knocking out Denver in the same number of games in the other conference semifinal series.

A problem for Los Angeles would seem to be lack of depth, something that exists only because of injuries.

Forward-center Bob McAdoo, a key member of the Lakers' championship team of last year, hasn't played since the middle of February because of an injured toe that required surgery.

One player the Lakers will definitely be without no matter how far they go in the playoffs is stand-out rookie forward James Worthy, who suffered a broken bone in his left leg late in the regular season.

Late homer lifts Angels

DETROIT (AP) — Doug DeCinces' one-out home run in the 12th inning Saturday gave the California Angels a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Fred Lynn led off the 12th with a single but was thrown out trying to steal second. Then DeCinces sent a 2-0 pitch from reliever Aurelio Lopez, 1-1, into the upper deck in left field. Luis Sanchez, 3-1, was the winner in relief.

Daryl Sconiers' pinch-homer leading off the ninth off Lopez tied it 5-5. The Tigers had gone ahead 5-4 in the seventh on Larry Herndon's triple and Glenn Wilson's single.

Red Sox 8, Seattle 0

BOSTON (AP) — Dwight Evans and Jim Rice belted consecutive homers in the third inning and Tony Armas hit a grand-slam to cap a five-run seventh Saturday as the Boston Red Sox routed Seattle 8-0 behind the five-hit pitching of rookie Mike Brown.

With their fifth consecutive victory and 10th in 12 games, the Red Sox improved their record to 15-9 and retained their lead in the American League East.

Brown, 2-2, walked three and struck out two en route to Boston's first shutout of the season.

Evans lined a tremendous shot high off the light tower in left for his fifth homer and Rice followed with his sixth homer, high into the screen in left-center field. Both homers were off Bob Stoddard, 2-4.

Blue Jays 7, Royals 4

TORONTO (AP) — Willie Ushaw drove in four runs, three with a homer, to highlight Toronto's six-run second inning that carried the Blue Jays to a 7-4 victory Saturday over the Kansas City Royals.

One-out singles by Ernie Whitt and Rance Mulliniks off Dennis

Leonard, 3-3, started the big burst. Jesse Barfield's double, Alfredo Griffin's single and Dave Collins' single each drove in one run before Upshaw hit his sixth homer of the season, over the right-center field fence.

American League

Upshaw added a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning. Reliever Roy Lee Jackson, 2-1, was the winner and Randy Moffitt earned his second save.

George Brett, who hit a solo homer in the first inning, went 3-for-5 with four RBI to extend his hitting streak to 18 games and rise his batting average to .466.

Orioles 8, A's 6

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ken Singleton drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Rick Dempsey added a solo home run as the Baltimore Orioles rallied to beat the Oakland A's 8-6 Saturday.

Singleton hit a two-run homer in the second and put Baltimore ahead 5-4 with a single in the third off Chris Codiroli, 3-2.

Oakland scored three runs in the first off Mike Flanagan, 5-0, when Jeff Burroughs hit an RBI double and Kelvin Moore rapped a two-run single. The A's made it 4-0 in the second when Baltimore missed an inning-ending double play. Baltimore tied it 4-4 in the bottom of the inning.

Dempsey's homer launched a two-run rally in the fourth off Tom Underwood and Tom Burgeimer yielded an RBI-single to John Shelby in the fifth to make it 8-4.

Flanagan left in the sixth after an RBI-single by Ricky Henderson. Moore drove in his third run with a single in the seventh.

White Sox 4, Indians 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Dybzinski's two-run triple in the second inning and right fielder Harold Baines' spectacular catch Saturday led Chicago to a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians, the fourth consecutive victory for the White Sox.

Dybzinski's triple followed a single by Mark Hill and a double by Lorenzo Gray. The former Cleveland shortstop scored the third run of the inning on a single by Rudy Law to give Chicago a 4-0 lead. Juan Eichelberger, 0-1, was the loser in his first start for Cleveland.

The Indians got a run in the third on a double by Ron Hassey and a single by Mike Fischlin. They then collected five hits in the fourth off LaMarr Hoyt, 2-4, but were held to two runs by Baines' play.

Yankees 8, Twins 7

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rick Cerone's three-run homer capped a five-run eighth inning as the New York Yankees came from behind to gain an 8-7 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday night.

Reliever George Frazier, 1-1, earned the victory after taking over for Dave Righetti in the sixth. Goose Gosage put down a Minnesota rally in the ninth after the Twins scored runs on Darrell Brown's RBI double and Gary Ward's run-scoring grounder to gain his second save.

Al Williams, 2-3, who relieved Minnesota starter Frank Viola in the eighth, took the loss.

FEELING CHIPPER AGAIN — Pro golfer Lee Trevino chips up to the No. 9 green Saturday at the Houston Open. Trevino faltered out of the lead but is still playing tough golf after a rash of back problems.

Tewell shoots way by Trevino

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Doug Tewell, who started the day tied for 10th place, fired a six-under-par 65 Saturday to overtake crowd favorite Lee Trevino and move into a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the $400,000 Houston Coca Cola Open.

Tewell, winless on the PGA tour for three years, was five shots behind Trevino at the start of the third round but played an almost flawless round, speckled with seven birdies and only one bogey for the lowest 18-hole score of the tournament.

Trevino, easily drawing the biggest gallery, lost the lead for good with his second bogey of the day at No. 15 just as Tewell was beginning a charge with birdie putts on 15, 16 and 17 to go seven under par for the tournament with a 206 three-round total. He shot 69 and 72 in the first two rounds.

Houston Open

Trevino, trying to win his first tournament in two years, finished with an even-par 71 for a 207 total and second place.

John Cook, who started the day at two under par 140, shot a third round 68 for a 208 and third place.

Tewell missed a chance for another birdie with his only bad drive of the day on 18, where he eventually two-putted to save par.

The only other blemish on his round came at No. 8 when Tewell hit into a bunker, pitched up 10 feet short and two-putted for a bogey.

Trevino, who started the day with a two-stroke lead, was locked in a battle with Jim Nelford after nine holes, each shooting six under par for the tournament.

Trevino bogeyed the par 4, 426-yard No. 6 hole to drop to five under while Nelford birdied the hold to take a one shot lead in the tournament.

Nelford shot a bogey on No. 8 and both golfers birdied to No. 9 hole to make the turn at six under.

Nelford fell off the pace with a bogey on No. 13 and finished the round with an even-par 71 for a 209 total three shots off the pace in fourth place.

David Graham, who started the day in a four-way tie for second place, shot a horrendous 9, four over par, on the par 5 No. 1 hole.

Graham's tee shot went into woods on the left side of the fairway and he took two more shots trying to get out off the trees.

His fourth shot sailed across the fairway and into the rough; his fifth shot went into a sand trap, the sixth shot came out into the rough; the seventh shot went on to the green where Graham two-putted.

Despite his rugged start, Graham played the rest of the front nine in even par and he played sub-par golf on the backside for a 73 and a two-under par 211 for the tournament.

The third-round leader has won the Houston Open in three of the last four years. The exception was last year, when Bob Shearer led after three rounds by five strokes but eventually lost to Ed Sneed in a sudden-death playoff.

Braves rip Astros, 10-1

ATLANTA (AP) — Pitcher Pascual Perez believes he's going to improve a great deal. Neither Atlanta Manager Joe Torre nor the Houston Astros found much to criticize on Saturday.

"My last couple of wins against Philadelphia, before I had the operation, I felt real bad and couldn't see out of one eye," he said after going seven innings in a 10-1 victory, his first start since being sidelined April 26 with a staph infection of the forehead.

"I still pitched better than I do now, I think," Perez said. "I felt 100 percent today and my control was still good."

"Actually he rushed things a little bit some today," said catcher Bruce Benedict who led the winning attack with three hits and three RBI, raising his average to .338. "He'll be right back where he was with another day or two of work."

Torre, who felt Bob Horner's home run which put the Braves ahead early, was the key to a comeback a day after the Astros shut them out 6-0. "Perez wasn't quite as aggressive today as he needs to be, but he's such a battler he got by fine. The big lead helped though."

Perez, 5-0, gave up six hits, walked two and struck out four in seven innings before Terry Forster finished up.

The Braves, who had 12 hits off three Houston pitchers, scored all their runs in the first five innings. Horner hit his seventh homer in the second inning and the Braves chased Joe Niekro, 1-3, with a four-run third inning, two of the runs scoring on Benedict's bases-loaded single.

Houston scored in the fourth on an RBI single by Bill Doran. Atlanta added a run in the fourth on a triple by Ramirez and catcher Alan Ashby's error. The Braves added four runs in the fifth on RBI singles by Benedict and Brett Butler, a run-scoring grounder by Perez and an error by left fielder Jose Cruz.

Expos 3, Phillies 2

MONTREAL (AP) — Tim Raines singled home Montreal's winning run with two out in the ninth inning and Bill Gullickson tossed a four-hitter as the Expos battled back for a 3-2 victory Saturday over the Philadelphia Phillies.

National League

Bobby Ramos, playing for injured catcher Gary Carter, was hit by a pitch by Porfi Altamirano, 1-1, with one out in the ninth. Ramos went to second when Brian Little beat out a bunt single. Doug Flynn ran for Ramos, went to third on a grounder by Jim Wohlford and scored on Raines' single to center off Sid Monge.

Gullickson, 3-3, struck out six and walked two.

The Phillies got two runs in the first inning on Bo Diaz' bases-loaded single. Tim Wallach homered for Montreal in the third inning and the Expos tied it in the sixth when Raines singled, went to third when Warren Cromartie's single to left was bobbled by Gary Matthews and scored on Andre Dawson's sacrifice fly.

Reds 7, Mets 5

NEW YORK (AP) — Sizzling Johnny Bench cracked a triple and two singles and drove in a pair of runs and the Cincinnati Reds survived late flurries by New York to beat the Mets 7-5 Saturday night.

Bench, who has collected 15 hits in his last 27 at-bats for a .556 average over seven games, supported winner Bruce Berenyi, 3-2, with his latest solid hitting performance. Berenyi shut out the Mets for seven innings before leaving in the midst of a three-run rally in the eighth.

Mets starter Mike Torrez, 1-4, yielded five runs on eight hits and four walks before being lifted after 4 1-3 innings for Craig Swan.

The game was held up for several minutes in both the eighth and ninth innings when fans tossed seat cushions on the field that had been given out during a promotional "seat cushion" night at Shea Stadium.

The public address announcer pleaded for the crowd of 18,372 "to stop throwing the seat cushions on the field ... We ask for your continued cooperation ... for the concentration of the ballplayers."

Almost 80 of the sponge-filled cushions cascaded from the upper rows in the eighth inning when the Mets scored three times. About 50 more of the cushions were flung on to the field in the ninth after pinch hitter Mike Jorgensen slammed a two-run homer to cut the Reds' lead to 7-5, the final score.

Giants 5, Pirates 1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Darrell Evans belted three hits, including his fourth homer of the season, and Fred Breining pitched a five-hitter, leading the San Francisco Giants past the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 Saturday.

The victory was the fourth in a row for the Giants, while the Pirates lost for the fourth straight time. Breining, 3-3, struck out six and walked one.

The Giants scored four runs in the third inning off Rick Rhoden, 1-3, with the help of errors by shortstop Dale Berra and center fielder Lee Mazzilli.

Coles takes 2-shot lead at Michelob

ROSWELL, Ga. (AP) — Janet Coles shot a 2-under-par 70 and surged into a 3-shot lead in the $150,000 Lady Michelob golf tournament in swirling winds Saturday.

Coles, whose only LPGA tour victory came in this event in 1978, trailed her first round co-leader, Jane Lock of Australia, by three shots after the first four holes. But she moved into the lead at No. 9 when she birdied and Lock took a bogey 5.

A former UCLA basketball player, Coles had a deft touch on the greens, sinking putts of 20, 25 and 40 feet, the first two to save par and the last for a birdie.

Lock, a three-time Australian Amateur champion, then struggled home with three more bogeys to finish at 75-142, falling into a tie for fourth place.

Sandra Post, the 1979 winner, scored a steady 69 and moved into second place alone at 140, four under par on the 6,123-yard Brookfield West Golf and Country Club course.

Coles, who ranks 13th on this season's money list, had three bogeys and four birdies on the front side and retained her lead at the turn by playing solid golf on the back, recording one birdie and eight pars.

"I played very steady," said Post, who has been in a slump before beginning to come back four weeks ago and finally claiming a top ten finish when she tied for eighth at the CPC International last week.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAY 9, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to figure out any problems that have interfered with your progress in the past. Also, a good time to make plans and important decisions for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A time to contact persons who can help you put across new ideas more efficiently. Relax at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Financial affairs need your undivided attention now. You can get good results because of the position of the stars.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Ideal day to contact friends whose loyalty and interest in your venture is unquestioned. Show your appreciation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Spend time with your children. An important business activity should be attended now without fail. Seek the support of a higher up at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) Get together with good friends for business and social reasons. Try to help one who is having a difficult time.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) An important business activity should be attended now without fail. Seek the support of a higher up at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) You want to engage in new ventures, but you must study them carefully first to be successful. New contacts can be helpful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Career better, relations with associates and strive for more harmony in the future. Civic work can be satisfying now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handful new duties well and be sure to exercise now. Find the right accessories for your wardrobe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can excel perform better ahead of you with precision. Find the right accessories for your wardrobe.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make this a constructive day by making good use of your talents. Engage in a new interest that appeals to you.

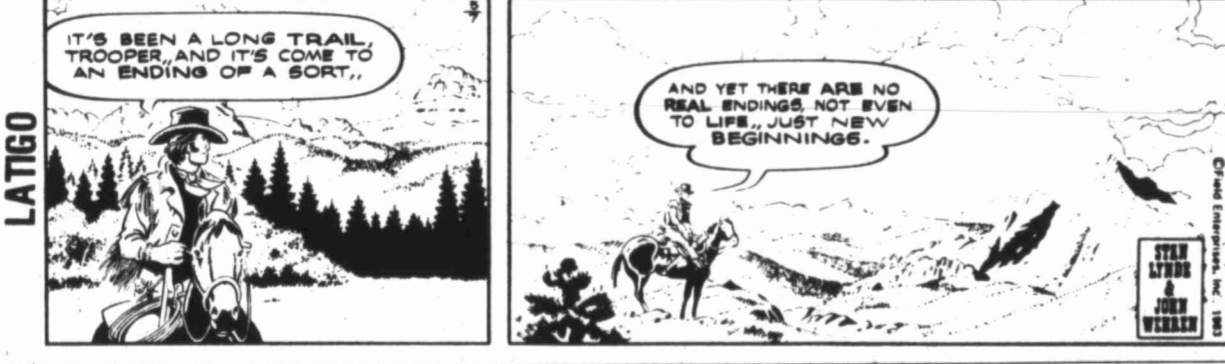

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have many interesting ideas to express, plus the ability to combine mental and manual chores wisely. Direct education along lines of troubleshooting for best results. Give good spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars Impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

yards into the endzone. Clark Dunnan scored the two-point conversion.

"The people the Black team had to tackle," Eudy explained, "were some good people. But they did a good job. Even the white (Gold) team had trouble tackling Pirkle and (Jay) Gonzales."

What else did you like, coach?

"Our execution was a lot better. What we wanted was a bunch of people running to the football. We played a bunch of people to give them a lot of playing time to see how they would hold up. And they did a good job."

Eudy was pleased with the play of noseguard Danny Arista who made of his first scrimmage appearance after missing last Friday because of baseball. "I noticed Robert Porras quite a bit in the defensive secondary," he continued, "and Doug Walker was his usual steady self."

The second-year head coach also liked what he saw of Pirkle at the defensive end position. "Jay didn't look bad there considering we just put him there," Eudy said. Pirkle played in both the offensive and defensive backfields last fall but had worked out at the end last spring. The emergence of seniors Carl Green and Scott Griffin, Eudy said, allowed him to move the junior-to-be to his other positions.

The Steers are losing linebackers George Bancroft, the District 45A Most Valuable Defensive Player, and Danny Stephen to graduation. At this point, Pete Crabtree and McKinley are the leading replacements.

"We've got to have some linebackers step forward," Eudy emphasized. "We try to keep those people free so they can help us run to the football."

With the improvement in size of Ted Gillis, Eudy and his staff are looking at the senior-to-be at an end position. Gillis has been a quarterback but saw no action there Friday. That may leave the battle to Gartman and Johnson. "We'll probably make a decision the week before the Snyder game after we scrimmage someone else," said Eudy.

The Steers of next year square off against the exes next Friday, also at 4 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

Pecos upsets Lamesa, 5-3

LAMESA — Gary Garcia's two-run single keyed a three-run first inning and sparked Pecos to a 5-3 victory over Lamesa here Friday afternoon.

The loss was the first in second half action for the Tornados and forces Lee Alamaguer's team into a must-win situation Tuesday in Andrews. Overall, Lamesa is 12-13 and 5-4 in District 2-AAAA play.

Leon Mosby led off with a single and Elias Payon drew a walk from Tor pitcher Gilbert Arrendondo, 2-2. On out later, Tim Windham singled in a run and Garcia followed with his two-RBI hit.

Lamesa scored once in the fourth when winning pitcher Dennis Mosely walked three batters and another reached on error. With the bags full, John Joe Hernandez drew the third walk, forcing in Steve Teague from third.

Pecos increased its lead to 5-1 with two runs in the fifth. Payon singled to right field to drive in one run and another scored when the ball got by right-fielder David Lee Smith for an error.

The Tors rallied in the bottom of the seventh. Richard Diaz led off with a single and Tim Thompson walked with one out. Arrendondo singled in one run and another came around on Alfred Morales' fielder's choice grounder.

catch him," he said. "I kind of thought he had it. I'm glad in a way that he did it (raising his hand)."

Colburn ran the 100 meters minutes later but the impact of his mistake had not worn off. He finished a distant third.

Burleson almost ran through the pack to gain a berth in the hurdles. "I hit a hurdle. I never hit a hurdle," he said, shaking his head. "I've never hit a hurdle in my life."

Despite the afternoon's disappointments, Burleson at least won a return trip to Austin in the high jump although he didn't get a regional record.

The Ranger senior didn't miss until 6-8. By then it was a two-man race between him and Anton's Ronny Cox. Both missed their first tries at 6-8 but the 6-5 Anton jumper flopped over on his second effort. Burleson calmly stepped to the left side of the bar and cleared the height with ease.

The two jumpers missed all three attempts at 6-10, both coming closest to making the height on their second jumps.

"I wanted to get the record but it's all right," Burleson said. "I can go four inches higher in Austin...you always jump better down there."

He should know. He went 7-0 last year as a junior to win and has already signed a scholarship agreement with Kansas University to high jump.

Another reason why Burleson might go higher in Austin is that he'll be more rested. Friday, the Ranger senior won his second Region 1-A tennis singles championship and the four matches left him tired Saturday. "Down there I'll only have to play two," he said with a smile.

Saturday's win was extra special because it was Cox who keyed Anton's victory over Greenwood in the state basketball playoffs.

McEnroe downs Vilas; gains Mercedes finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Solving the strong, gusty winds and the clay court tactics of his foe, John McEnroe breezed past Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-1, 6-1 Saturday to advance into the final of the $500,000 Mercedes Tournament of Champions at the West Side Tennis Club.

McEnroe will face fellow New Yorker Vilas Gerulaitis in the final at Forest Hills for the second time in four years. Gerulaitis defeated McEnroe to win this World Championship Tennis event in 1980.

Gerulaitis, who was seeded fifth this year, reached the final by stopping No. 8 Johan Kriek 6-2, 7-5.

Sunday's title match will be televised live by ABC-TV, beginning at 12:30 p.m. EDT. The winner will receive $100,000 with the loser pocketing $40,000.

McEnroe downs Vilas; gains Mercedes finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Solving the strong, gusty winds and the clay court tactics of his foe, John McEnroe breezed past Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-1, 6-1 Saturday to advance into the final of the $500,000 Mercedes Tournament of Champions at the West Side Tennis Club.

McEnroe will face fellow New Yorker Vilas Gerulaitis in the final at Forest Hills for the second time in four years. Gerulaitis defeated McEnroe to win this World Championship Tennis event in 1980.

Gerulaitis, who was seeded fifth this year, reached the final by stopping No. 8 Johan Kriek 6-2, 7-5.

Sunday's title match will be televised live by ABC-TV, beginning at 12:30 p.m. EDT. The winner will receive $100,000 with the loser pocketing $40,000.

PREPARING FOR BROADCAST — China Long, news director at radio station KBST, prepares for a newscast by studying taped cartridges and gathering up local, state and national news stories. China gets up most morning at 4:45 a.m. and often works until after 6 p.m. each night.

'Super mom' discovers that her job is something for herself

By CAROL HART
Lifestyle Writer

"You want to interview ME?" China Long, news director at radio station KBST, asks with a laugh. "I'm the one who's supposed to be asking the questions." Asking questions is a small part of China's job at the station. Her day begins with the jolt of her alarm at 4:45 a.m. Shortly after 5 a.m., clad in blue jeans, sweatshirt and tennis shoes, China is at the Big Spring Police Department, scanning the police log "to find out what happened overnight" and jotting down notes for her 6 a.m. newscast.

Then she hurries to the KBST newsroom to sort through stories on the Associated Press and weather wire machines. She writes up her police beat and checks news from the day before, determining what should be repeated to early morning listeners. By 6 a.m., she signs on for her first newscast of the day.

She then updates her information and rewrites material for her 6:30 a.m., 7 a.m. and 7:45 a.m. newscasts so "it doesn't sound like the same thing over and over."

"IN A TOWN THE SIZE of Big Spring, you really only have so much news," China explains. "I supplement the information and rewrite it so there is a variety to every newscast." Between newscasts she also records newsbriefs which run during the morning.

About 8:30 a.m., China leaves the station, heads home and switches her jeans and tennis shoes for more professional attire. She then "makes the public rounds," which means stopping into the police station again, City Hall, offices in the county courthouse and area meetings.

Every day, China tries to visit places on her beat in person. "You can't stay somewhere and call," she says. She prefers the "personal rapport" she has with her sources and says while covering a beat "I find out about other things. I keep my ears open all day long."

Back in the station at 11:30 a.m., China spends the rest of the morning writing copy for her 12:15 newscast. She follows up on stories, goes through the mail and makes a few phone calls, trying to get the information "that the local people are interested in."

After the conclusion of the 12:15 newscast, "there are a lot of lunch hour meetings" she must attend. Because of that, most days she takes her own lunch from between 1:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. She spends her afternoons in a variety of ways, sometimes preparing interviews for her Sunday morning "Focus" program, attending press conferences or visiting with "sources" of information.

"ABOUT 3:30 P.M., I start preparing for the 5 p.m. newscast. I go out to the courthouse and police station again." She returns, begins the routine of compiling and checking the wires, then goes on the air.

The conclusion of the 5 p.m. newscast doesn't signify the end of her working day. She spends many nights covering meetings or special events. And spot news stories, such as a recent oil field explosion, mean she may be called out at anytime.

It's a grueling schedule. How does she cope with the hours?

"You've got to get out of the mold of thinking that you've got an 8-5 job, five days a week," she says. "If I thought that way, I'd constantly be angry about all the overtime. The news goes on 24 hours a day, and I work my schedule in between the news."

"I like the work. You really have to like what you're doing" to maintain the schedule, she says.

China says she wants to do the best because "I'm not content to do it half-way. Doing my best equals long hours. I try to incorporate my job into my whole day. I have time during the day to do personal business. I have that freedom. I'm not confined."

For 17 years, China was confined to an office at Webb Air Force Base. "I had to tell someone when I went to get a drink of water."

When the base closed, she was faced with transferring or losing her job. Her husband, Frank, had deep roots in Big Spring and a job of his own, and didn't want to move. "He said, 'If you move, you have to go alone,'" China says. "I decided that I'd been married for longer than I'd worked for the government, so I quit my job and went back to school."

School was the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa. She had completed her Associate of Arts degree at Howard College by attending night classes. When she applied at UTPB, she was 51 hours short of a bachelor's degree.

"I DROVE BACK AND FORTH for a year, and took massive hours. I got 51 hours in one year. I had to drive almost every day."

She accomplished that task by "taking one day at a time. I was determined to get my degree. The time passed quickly."

She enrolled at UTPB as a business major. Because of a problem with scheduling her courses, she signed up for a course in radio broadcasting, taught by Bob Lewis, known professionally as Tumbleweed Smith.

"I didn't know anything about broadcasting, but I was fascinated with it. I changed my major."

China needed an internship during the summer of 1978 as one of her course requirements and she applied with KBST owner Winston Wrinkle. "I asked Winston if I could help with the news. He wasn't excited about putting a woman on the air, because he'd never had a woman doing the news. But he agreed to let me work."

Female newscasters in 1978 were a rare breed. But China completed the internship, returned to school, graduated, then came back to Big Spring and accepted a news director job with radio station KHEM. She worked there for a little over a year before being offered the news director's job at KBST.

She has been with KBST since July of 1980. Working at the station has turned her life upside down but she adapted to the strange hours.

"I USED TO BE LATE for work all the time. I never used to get up at an early hour. I hate it. I don't find any great joy in seeing the sun come up. But I enjoy everything else."

China has always wanted a job outside her home. "I felt like I needed to work. I've never taken a great deal of satisfaction in housework."

She is the mother of two daughters, Lisa, 21, a junior advertising major at the University of Texas, Austin, and Leslie Greer, 25, a Texas Tech graduate working in Midland.

Because she worked while her daughters were growing up, China says she went through a period when she felt she had to be "a supermom." She wanted to do all the housework, cooking, cleaning and stay active in her children's affair and "the job was just tacked on."

"That was a trying experience. That was probably worse than doing the news, because of the long hours. I finally realized that I could let a lot of that go and still be successful. I began to set my priorities and do something for myself. This job is something I do for myself, because I enjoy it. I'm constantly amazed that everything fell into place."

China is 45 years old and not afraid to tell people her age. She says she likes to encourage people "not to use age as an excuse. I lost a job at 40. I could have stopped and not done anything else. But I wouldn't mind trying a third career."

China is a 1956 graduate of Big Spring High School and her husband, Frank, is a 1954 graduate. They married in 1957. She is the daughter of the late Mickey Carroll, who for many years worked for Duncan Drilling Co., and Erna Gunning of Cisco.

Virginia Whitten transforms prisoners into beautiful women

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Local art teacher and color analyzer, Virginia Whitten, is a woman who knows what it's like to have a low self-image. And knowing that creating beauty helps people get through the day, helps them learn to love themselves and improve their self-image, she shared her color analysis with women prisoners.

Before the book "Color Me Beautiful" was written, Mrs. Whitten was looking for some type of personal color analysis for clothing and make-up based on the Prang system of color, the system she learned as an artist. Once she found this, she began a business in it eight months ago called "Color Illusion."

Mrs. Whitten also travels each year with her husband, Joe Whitten, and the ensemble "His Children" from First Baptist Church in on the group's prison ministry tour.

"I always noticed that some of the inmates never came to the chapel for the program," she said. About 400 would attend the program, but Mrs. Whitten wanted to find a way to reach out to the women prisoners who never heard them perform to "show those girls that somebody cared about them."

She decided to give personal color analyses to several women prisoners in hopes that they would develop better self-images. At first, her analysis would cover the clothing aspect only because she couldn't afford to purchase make-up. Later, she decided to give the total analysis to the prisoners.

Whitten was known and trusted by the prison wardens. Permission was granted for Mrs. Whitten to analyze the prisoners, but the wardens had to consider the make-up gift before approving.

"YOU CANNOT GIVE a gift to any prisoner at any time," Mrs. Whitten said. "Not even from a family. They have to be searched. So this was a very unusual undertaking. Joe called them back, and they said it was fine."

Financial help for the make-up, hotel and gas expenses was provided by prison ministry supporters and some of Mrs. Whitten's art students. Mrs. Whitten presented the analyses as gifts. She never asked for donations. People took it upon themselves to help with her ministry, she said.

Mrs. Whitten worked with Warden Lucile G. Plane of Mountain View Unit and Warden Linda Woodman of Gatesville Unit. "The wardens made the decision and chose the girls that I would do," Mrs. Whitten said.

"They (the wardens) had to think about it (the project) and study it," Mrs. Whitten said. And the main thing was how they were going to give it to them, because there was no way they could give it to all the girls. And they have to be very careful about showing favoritism."

At one prison unit, upcoming parolees were chosen. At the other unit, trustees were chosen, some of whom are there for life sentences. The decisions were based on merit.

"One girl was very tough and had tattoos all over her arms and told me she had never worn make up," Mrs. Whitten said, adding that the girl was belligerent.

"I said 'Honey, you're beautiful.' And she kept saying, 'I still have never worn make up,'" Mrs. Whitten said.

The girl watched out of the corner of her eye to see if her group of friends were watching or making fun of her. Mrs. Whitten suspected this girl was the leader of the group.

"When she looked at herself in that mirror and I said, 'See how beautiful you are,' great big tears came in her eyes," she said.

"Several of those black girls were saying 'Right on baby. You're beautiful.' They were supportive. They were bragging on her."

"There was more love in that room. They were tough women. They don't cry very often."

"WHAT I'VE TRIED to tell them was 'What we've done today will help your self-image. Mine was zero and I know... your self-images are rather low right now in this prison. Take the things I've given you today and use them for yourself so you can hold your heads up high."

"Then take what I've taught you and share it with some of the other girls. Always look around and find someone else you can help." Mrs. Whitten ended her stay by telling the women, "A lady (in Big Spring) asked me

'Why are you doing this?' and I told her 'Don't you know why?' and I never answered her."

By this time all the women were bawling, and Mrs. Whitten said, "Because we love you."

Mrs. Whitten also told the women prisoners she knew what it was like being behind bars. She described her experiences in a mental hospital where she too was behind bars and a prisoner to herself. Mrs. Whitten was at the Psychiatric Pavilion in Amarillo where she received shock treatments.

"In the sanatorium we had to get up and comb our hair and make up your face no matter what. I resented it cause all I wanted to do was sit in the room and stare off in space."

"But Dr. (Hugh) Pennal, my psychiatrist, and the staff were trying to make us see that we needed to love ourselves. Then he taught me that even when I couldn't paint to go on and try. That the act of creation of a painting or anything would always raise your self-image. So I slowly began to paint again... Even a tube of lipstick can help you get through the day.

'There was more love in that room. They were tough women. They don't cry very often.'

"I TOLD THE GIRLS, you can do the same thing even here in the prison. They were saying 'Oh yeah.' I was getting through to them. Then after that some of the hostility from them was gone. I think what I said there made them understand my purpose and why we wanted to do this."

COLOR ANALYZER — Virginia Whitten, artist, has a side business of personal color analysis for clothing and make-up. She recently shared her service with two women's prisons and analyzed several prisoners as her way of reaching out to them. Using the color wheel above, she explains the Prang system of color used in her analysis. Mrs. Whitten travels with her husband Joe, director of First Baptist Church's "His Children" — a choral ensemble of high school students which performs concerts at prisons.

Prison women

"The minute you show flaws and are trying to show them you aren't perfect, they will warm up to you," Mrs. Whitten said. "They say 'You are human like we are.'"

Mrs. Whitten mentioned a Biblical passage where Hiram the artist carved lilywork on a temple's pillars. She told how God made the builders add two pillars of bronze to the temple — one for strength and one for beauty. She said it is God's will to create beauty, and that God approves of inner and outer beauty.

"That was the only thing I mentioned about Christianity. I wanted to show it not preach it. A lot of them were Muslims," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitten have received several letters this past week from the wardens and prisoners they met with. The letters all thank them for sharing the analyses with them and for caring about them as no others would.

ONE OF THE PRISONERS wrote, "I not only learned about color illusion but received a special message from the love and kindness others have to offer. I only hope some way I will be able to offer myself to those who need it in the future, maybe not with make-up, but with something I could share with others. Please thank all the others who made your visit possible."

"I am up for parole in August. Maybe I'll make it and can help others not to make the mistakes I made or help them live with the ones they do make. I received a special message that I pray all the others heard too. That someone else has been through worse time than these and pulled herself together and made something of her life — I know I can too."

Another prisoner, 19 years old, wrote, "I learned a great deal from your presentation about daring to be different as well as how to go about it. I can honestly say that it was the only (thing) I've learned since I've been here other than how to roll cigs by hand."

While she was there, one prisoner remembered Mrs. Whitten from "His Children" and described everything she wore at her last visit. "We have been there going on nine years for 'His Children,'" Mrs. Whitten said.

Many prisoners remember group members from year to year. Most of the women in the analysis group of prisoners had never seen the concerts. But since Mrs. Whitten's visit, they promised her they would see them the next time "His Children" came.

For some prisoners who have no family or receive no letters, "His Children" is like their family, Mrs. Whitten said. If some members do not make the tour one year, the prisoners ask why they are not with the group.

"His Children" will go on its largest tour this summer. The group will travel to six states and perform in 17 prison concerts. Some of the places they'll visit are the Tucker unit in Arkansas, Behind the Wall in McAllister, Okla., and the federal prison at Leavenworth.

Woodmen hold a work camp at their Lake Brownwood site

Woodmen of the World, Camp No. 312, heard a report on a work party held at the Woodmen of the World Youth Camp on Lake Brownwood.

Forty members from 11 lodges built a new barrack, floated a crappie house, laid underground wiring, laid new pipe for the water system, installed six travel trailer hookups and started a new restroom. The next work weekend will be May 13, 14 and 15.

Candy Andrews reported on the "Gutenberg Bible — The Beginning of the Printed Word."

She explained that legal documents indicate that Johann Gutenberg probably began printing the Bible in 1449 or 1450. The first dated notice of a Gutenberg Bible appears in a copy of the Bible now in the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris.

The notation states that Heinrich Cremer, vicar of St. Stephen's at Mainz, completed rubrication and binding of the copy on Aug. 24, 1456.

It is the first book known to have been printed on a press using movable type, the invention of which is attributed to Johann Gutenberg.

There is a copy of a Gutenberg Bible in the University of Texas, Austin, Humanities Research Center. This is one of five complete specimens in the United States. The other four are at the Pierpont Morgan Library in New York City, the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., and Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

The Texas copy, given in memory of Harry Hunt Ransom, was purchased in June 1978 from the Carl H. and Lily Pforzheimer Foundation of New York City by the Chancellor's Council and the Board of Regents.

Special guests at the meeting included Marg Beaver and Cid Hillman from Bellevue, Alberta, Canada.

The next meeting of the Woodmen of the World will be June 2 at 7 p.m. at La Posada Restaurant.

Ninety-nine percent of all forms of life that have existed on Earth are now extinct.

Sorority members tour radio station

Members of Xi Pi Epsilon, Beta Sigma Phi met at the KBYG radio station recently for a tour. Bob Taylor presented a program. A business meeting followed in the home of Mackie Hays.

Final plans were discussed for the Founder's Day Banquet held recently at the Big Spring Country Club. Margaret Lloyd was honored as "Howard County Woman of the Year."

Members brought items for the Rainbow Project and thanked Dr. David Rickey for donating several toothbrushes.

The next meeting is May 11 in the home of Linda Coskey.

Patti Swindell feted with bridal shower

Patricia Carrie (Patti) Swindell, bride-elect of Ricky Van Adams, was honored with a bridal shower April 30 in the home of Ima Dell Williams, 902 E. 15th.

Co-hostesses included Melva Cooper, Letha Duke, Ann Fitts, Geneva Dunagan, Wanda Jones and Vivian Jones.

Others were Ruth Majors, Ruth Manual, Lucille Petty, Eloise Watkins, Marceline Yeats, Rachel Shaffer and Neva Shaffer. Corsages were presented to the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Bill Swindell, the bridegroom-elect's mother, Mrs. Joe E. Adams; and the bride-elects two grandmothers, Mrs. J.L. Swindell and Mrs. W.O. Washington.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a navy floor length cloth with a lace overlay with milk glass and silver appointments. The centerpiece was arranged in a tall fluted milk-glass container in the bride's colors of navy blue, dusty rose and white.

The hostesses presented the bride-elect a mixer and the silk flower arrangement used as the centerpiece.

Etiquette Notes
PLANNING THE SMALL WEDDING

For every big wedding, there's a little one that offers lower expense and a sense of intimacy. However, even the small wedding can run into problems of its own.

Whom to invite? If your wedding is small, keep it to family. If you include friends, make them the "like family" kind — those neighbors you've always called "Aunt Jane" and "Uncle Bill," etc. That way, no one else's feelings will be hurt.

Where to have the reception? If you're lucky and have the space — or a generous relative — you may choose to have your reception at home. Otherwise, look into nice restaurants with private dining rooms.

If you're marrying in a church or other place of worship, the main area may be too large. You may prefer to use the chapel or other small area. Some have choir stalls, which may be used to seat your guests. If the church area is much larger than your wedding will be, you can separate the area you intend to use by concentrating the lighting, and by marking the last row of seating with candles or flowers.

Large or small, your wedding is important to us. Contact us at Blum's for all your Bridal Registry & Wedding Ring needs.

Newcomers

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Sunday, May 8, 1983 5 C

Joy Fortenberry, Newcomer Greeting Service hostess, welcomed four families from outside of the state and nine families from Texas to the Big Spring last week.

Among new families are RAYMOND and RUTH REED, from Pasadena, and their sons Michael, 16, and Lee, 15. Reed is a self-employed truck driver. The couple's hobbies are ceramics, hunting and swimming.

From Abilene is DON A. SHAW, a branch manager for Big Spring Beverages. He enjoys radio controlled airplanes, home computers and golf.

From La Feria is TEELA WEATHERMAN, an Avon representative and employee of Montgomery Wards. Mrs. Weatherman is joined here by sons Mica, 6, and Jerod, 3. The Weathermans' hobbies are ceramics, fishing and bowling.

From Oswego, Kansas, comes SAN BRANNEN, who is self-employed in home improvement. Brannen is joined here by wife Mary, and sons Jimmy, 5, and Jacob, 2. Fishing is the family's hobby.

FRANCES HODGES is from Oswego, Kan., and is also self-employed in home improvement. He is joined here by wife Gloria. Hobbies are fishing and sewing.

Another family from Oswego, Kan., includes THOMAS and JEANNIE HODGES, daughters Holly, 7, Frances, 3, Gloria, 2, and Thomas III, 5 months. Thomas also is self-employed in home improvement. Sewing is listed as a hobby.

JIM EASTERDAY is from Lufkin and is working for Cameo Energy Homes. He is joined by wife Martha, and daughters Debbie, 6, and Shelia, 14. Their hobbies are fishing, swimming and water skiing.

From Coynosa is JODY BRITTAIN, an employee of Valero Transmissions Co. His wife, Pamela, is also new to the Spring City. The couple enjoys guitar, music and singing.

From Timberon, N.M. is R.C. and LILLIAN ALEXANDER, both retired. Their hobbies are fishing and sports.

From Lamesa is ALTON AND SHIRLEY POUNDS. Alton is employed by Gardine Survey out of Houston. The Pounds enjoy bowling and motorcycles.

LINDA ANDERTON is from Rock Port and is self-employed. Her hobbies are animals, jogging and swimming.

LAURA LOCKWOOD is from Dallas and is employed in a sales position. Her hobbies are drawing, sewing and cooking.

Kellie Hudson pleases grandparents

I can tell MR. AND MRS. J.B. HARRISON, 1104 E. 4th, are as pleased as pie about their granddaughter KELLIE HUDSON. For one reason, Miss Hudson, a Sul Ross University pre-law major, will compete in the Miss Texas U.S.A. Pageant in San Antonio in July.

She was crowned Miss Big Bend Country recently making her the area's representative to the pageant. In the upcoming pageant, she will compete against 100 other girls. The winner will compete in the Miss U.S.A. Pageant.

For a second reason, Kellie will graduate July 1 with her bachelor's degree. Kellie is the daughter of MR. AND MRS. HERMAN (MARJOHN) HUDSON of Clint. Marjohn Hudson is formerly of Big Spring and the daughter of the Harrisons.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY DIRKS JR. visited with their daughter, BARBARA, in Artesia, N.M., last weekend. They watched Barbara perform in "Oklahoma" in the role of Ado Annie, and were delighted to see her receive a standing ovation for her performance. Dad said "She did a real good job."

Barbara was active in the Big Spring High School Choir, and she majored in music therapy and elementary education at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, N.M.

Do you remember a former newspaper carrier at The Herald named EVE WHITE STOVALL? She started in 1943. We received a letter from her recently that brought us up to date on her life.

Eve had the route in the Edward Heights area. She said she built her legs up in this job, which made her nursing career easier for her — lots of walking. She retired April 27 after 30 years of nursing service in the Air Force. She was working at the Goodfellow Base Clinic.

At her retirement ceremony, more than 100 friends watched as she received the following: a 30-year gold pen for Federal Service, a Department of the Air Force Certificate of Service, a Special Achievement Award of $700 for sustained superior performance from April 1982 to April 1983, a Department of Air Force Certificate of Service for 30 years of faithful and devoted Federal service and of retirement from civilian employment, a diamond necklace from friends and fellow workers, and many flowers and gifts from patients and friends.

But that is not all. A Certificate of Appreciation was presented to her husband, GLEN STOVALL, for his support and grateful acknowledgement of devotion and support to his wife's career and service to the Air Force and the nation.

Eve plans to spend more time playing with her granddaughter, MELANIE JORDAN STOVALL, getting enough sleep and raising Schnauzer dogs. "Being a grandmother has been one of the greatest things to happen to me," she said. Melanie is the daughter of CHARLES AND NANCY STOVALL.

Here is something to be proud of. THE BIG SPRING HIGH SCHOOL BAND traveled to Carlsbad this weekend for a parade and concert in Carlsbad. They left Thursday and will return today.

Until next week...

Dr. Donohue

X-rays don't always show all

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: For the past several months I have had a problem with my right knee. It is swollen and feels warm to the touch. Also, when I bend it it makes a grinding noise. When I jog or play tennis it hurts to the point of making me limp. Yet X-rays show nothing wrong. How can I overcome this problem? — V.S.F.

Obviously your knee is not OK even though the X-rays show nothing wrong. Many knee problems are not evident on an ordinary X-ray. An X-ray may not show obvious changes if an internal cartilage is damaged. Nor does ligament injury have to show up.

You may have to have special X-rays, those in which dye is injected beforehand. Or you may have to have an arthroscopy examination, in which a viewing instrument gives a firsthand view of the joint's internal structure.

The grinding noise you report is called "crepitus," and that often means degeneration of the cartilage, which can occur with overuse of a weight-bearing joint, like the knee. You have to be examined. That's the way to overcome the problem. Call an orthopedist and ask for an appointment.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I strained my neck very badly by doing the following exercise — lying down raising my knees to my chest while at the same time raising my head to touch the knees. It was one of the most painful things I have ever done. This happened four months ago and my neck is still sore. Also, I get almost constant crackling noises in my neck. What causes the noise? I am 59. Do you think the soreness will eventually go away? — B.M.

That can be a very strenuous maneuver. I don't have to tell you after the fact that it's the kind of exercise one should build up to gradually. The important thing now is your continuing neck pain. No neck pain should last such a long time without the person being examined. Muscle strains usually heal themselves in a few weeks. If muscles are torn apart they require longer healing periods.

But you shouldn't dismiss your neck pain as simple muscle strain. There are too many other reasons for such prolonged symptoms for me to venture a guess as to which one is involved here.

The snapping noise is a common neck phenomenon. Usually it's not a serious sign, but it does cause alarm. Most often the noise originated from a sliding of a tendon over a bone. For example, a muscle spasm will tend to bow out an attaching tendon, misaligning it. The next time that muscle is used, the bowed-out tendon snaps against adjacent bone and you hear the noise. You can develop muscle spasm after any serious muscle injury.

But other conditions can cause that kind of noise — irregularities of neck joints or inflammation of tendons, for examples. If the noise occurs without attendant pain, then it usually is not serious. With your pain of four-months duration, you have to find out what's going on. Simple strains don't last this long.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Alpha Tau Rho honors its sorority's founder

The Alpha Tau Rho chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently at the Signal Mountain Room of Coahoma State Bank and observed Founder's Day with a lasagna supper.

Arlene White presented the program. A letter was read from International Board President Bill Ross. Cynthia Anderson recounted the past year's highlights and Elisha Curry and Jayne Mitchell provided music.

A pledge ritual was held for new member Linda Berry. A Ritual of Jewels was held for Kaye Bunn, Martha Specht, Jayne Mitchell, and Elisha Curry.

Officers were installed. Kathy Nichols is president; Elisha Curry is vice-president, Judy West is recording secretary, Jayne Mitchell is corresponding secretary and Martha Specht is treasurer.

Members were reminded of a bake sale April 30. A Mother's Day luncheon is planned May 7 at La Posada Restaurant.

The next meeting is Monday in the home of JoAnne Ezell, Coahoma.

Home canning safety changes noted

The United States Department of Agriculture this week released new processing recommendations for tomatoes, tomato juice, applesauce, fruit purees and pumpkin.

To prevent food borne illness and the loss of valuable home canned foods, specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are urging home canners to follow the new USDA guidelines.

The USDA now recommends the following:

- The one-step, cold pack method for canning tomatoes should no longer be used.

- The hot pack processing time for canning tomatoes should be increased to 35 minutes for pint jars and No. 2 cans, and to 45 minutes for quart jars and No. 2½ cans.

- The hot-pack processing time for canning tomato juice should be increased to 35 minutes for pint and quart jars, and for No. 2 and 2½ cans.

- Strained (pureed) pumpkin and winter squash should not be canned at home. Instead, cubed pumpkin and squash may be canned using a processing time of 55 minutes for pint jars and 90 minutes for quart jars.

- The processing times for applesauce and fruit puree should be increased to 20 minutes for pints, quarts, No. 2 and 2½ cans.

According to Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Extension Service, the changes in canning recommendations are based on research conducted at land-grant universities and the Eastern Regional Research Center of the USDA.

"The recommendation to more than triple hot-pack processing times for tomato was based on research which indicated that shorter times could be insufficient under certain conditions," says Haggard. Insufficient processing could allow botulism organisms to survive the heat treatment, grow and produce harmful toxin she explains.

"We consider this especially important since tomatoes are the most popular type of produce for home canning grown by Texas gardeners," states Haggard.

Poor heat penetration through dense foods and the high heat resistance of a particular mold led the USDA to recommend increased processing times for applesauce and fruit purees. They also recommend that strained (pureed) pumpkin and winter squash no longer be canned at home for the same reason.

"Those wishing to have strained (pureed) pumpkin or winter squash ready for making pies or casseroles should consider freezing the puree instead," says Haggard.

"Now is the time to correct Extension bulletin, B-194, "Home Canning — Fruits and Vegetables," or other instructions before the canning season begins, she adds.

MAYPOLE DANCERS — Students from Dance Gallery will perform the Maypole Dance during the Altrusa Club's Spring Fling Luncheon and Book Review, Saturday at Garrett Hall in First United Methodist Church. Students above are: Jill Beall, Kim Shryack, Laurel McDowell, Melissa Bedell, Melynda Grifford and Melani Wilson. The luncheon will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased from Altrusa Club members.

'Spring Fling Luncheon' planned

The Altrusa Club of Big Spring is holding its third annual Spring Fling luncheon and book review May 14 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Garrett Hall, Fifth and Scurry.

The Big Spring Woman of the Year, Jane Thomas, will review the book written by her mother-in-law, entitled "Memories of My Life."

Students from the Dance Gallery will perform the Maypole dance led by their instructor, Lori Churchwell.

Tickets may be purchased from any Altrusa member or at the Big Spring Herald, First Federal Savings and Loan or by calling 263-7331, ext. 55, for delivery of tickets.

Admission is $3.50 and it includes the dance, book reviews and lunch.

Maypoles have a long history. Romans celebrated May by staging flower-decked parades. The English also observed many beautiful May Day customs. Maypoles were erected in village parks and the youths went to the woods to gather "Mayflowers" to trim the Maypole.

Girls wore their prettiest dresses in the hopes that they would be named "May Queen." The queen and her subjects danced around the Maypole. Villagers would dance around the Maypole holding ribbons that streamed from its top. They wove the ribbons back and forth until the Maypole was covered with bright colors.

In Switzerland a May pine tree was placed under a girl's window. German boys planted May trees in front of the windows of their sweethearts. In Czechoslovakia, boys at night placed Maypoles before their sweethearts' windows.

In France, May Day had religious importance. The French considered May sacred to the Virgin Mary. They enshrined young girls as May queens in their churches. The May queens led processions in honor of the Virgin Mary.

Mother-in-law's photo angers

DEAR ABBY: I just received the worst present I have ever received — an 11x14 framed picture of my mother-in-law, in living color yet! I've been married to her son for nearly 24 years and she has never liked me.

Her son and I have given her several beautifully framed pictures of our only child — a lovely daughter — but she never displayed any of them. I assume they are stuck in a drawer, which is where I would like to stick hers, but out of respect for my husband, I have it hanging. (I would like to use it as a dartboard!)

Her daughter is her favorite child, so in turn her daughter's child is her favorite grandchild, as she has shown in a thousand ways. This lady really has gall!

I was afraid if I didn't hang her picture it might cause trouble between my husband and me, which I know would delight her. I prefer to have peace in the family so I'm not about to tell her how I feel.

Gee, I'm glad I can unload this on you, Abby. Have you ever had a letter like this before?

DISGUSTED IN N.J.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Yes. Because my column is a trouble dump, more people write to complain, sound off and vent their hostilities than to share their joy.

To balance the scale, I offer the following day-brightener from a mother-in-law who wrote from Cape Coral, Fla. And what more appropriate time to run it than on Mother's Day:

DEAR ABBY: When I read about the woman who had been treated for herpes, and all that was wrong with her was an allergy to colored, scented toilet paper, I had to write.

I have been married for many years, but the first year of my marriage I was in and out of doctors' office all the time. The itching and burning were unbearable! I thought maybe I was allergic to sex. I was told I had "some kind of infection," but nobody told me what kind. The pain was so sad at times I could hardly walk.

Finally, a nurse asked me if I ever used colored toilet paper, and I told her yes. She told me to stop using it and see if that helped.

In less than one week after I switch to plain white, unscented toilet paper, I was 100 percent well again! Now, whenever I see colored toilet paper in the home of a friend, I warn her. Many have thanked me and admitted that they also had that kind of trouble too, but never knew what caused it. Thanks, Abby. You did a lot of good with one letter.

Texas Gardener tips

Spider mites: garden's enemy

Spider mites are a problem in almost every part of Texas. These tiny, usually red mites attack both vegetables and landscape plants. Be on the lookout, for early detection and prompt treatment are your best weapons against them.

Spider mites, often called red spiders, most frequently attack vegetables like beans, corn, eggplants, and tomatoes, and ornamentals like boxwood and roses. They also damage cole crops, cucurbits, and onions. One of their favorite host plants is the marigold. Texans who interplant marigolds in their gardens may live to regret it, since spider mites often build up on marigolds and then spread throughout the garden.

Spider mites reproduce very rapidly. They prefer hot, dry weather, and under these conditions can multiply to unbelievable proportions. Mites are generally found on the underside of leaves. On heavily-infested plants, you will see very fine webs, with eggs and immature mites underneath them.

Mite damage first appears as small, white or gray stippling on the leaves. As damage increases, entire leaves become stippled and lose color, and eventually turn yellow and fall off. Eventually, the plant loses many leaves and dies.

To prevent infestations, inspect your plants weekly for spider mites. Examine the bottoms of leaves, especially on plants with a dull or off color. You can also shake leaves vigorously over a piece of white paper to dislodge and see the mites better.

If you find only a few mites, but see no damage as yet, reexamine the plants every 2 days. You need not immediately resort to miticides, because if beneficial insects are feeding on the mites, or if the weather conditions are not favorable for mite buildup, the mite population may stay below damaging levels and even decrease. Light infestations can at times be controlled by spraying plants with water from a hose. Be careful not to damage tender foliage, however. If your infestation is confined to a few plants, you can try removing them, while keeping a watchful eye on the adjacent plants left in the garden.

If you have an infestation that is causing damage, you will probably need to use a miticide, like Kelthane. In choosing a pesticide, read the label carefully to ensure you are using the right chemical for your particular plants.

Flowers highlight excursion through Concho Valley history

Wildflowers were the main attraction as the GFWC Forsan Study Club traveled to San Angelo, April 30. The members recalled the memories of a bygone era in Concho Valley history.
 Each member was given the pamphlet "Flowers of Texas," published by the Texas Highway Department, to help identify the numerous species along the way.
 Lunch was served at Gideon's Kitchen and Officer's Retreat, named for a fictional Buffalo soldier created by Elmer Kelton in his historical novel, "The Wolf and the Buffalo."
 Joan Nobles, co-owners of the restaurant, gave the history of the 100-year-old buildings which make up the large complex. The restaurant includes the old Nazworthy Bar built in 1882 and the first San Angelo National Bank building built in 1884. Many antique furnishings, including an organ out of the 1890 Sears catalogue, were pointed out.
 The next stop was Miss Hattie's, a prosperous brothel of the old West, that has been restored to just the way it looked around the turn of the century.
 Fort Concho was next. It is located on the banks of the Concho River and served as an Indian Wars Army Post from 1867-1889. A guide, dressed in a costume similar to the uniforms worn by the 16th Regiment of Infantry from 1882 to 1887, told the history of the buildings and pointed out the artifacts on display.
 The women finished their tour by visiting the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Munn of Water Valley.

Anniversaries 4-H families to host The W.H. McMullans 5 Japanese students

Mr. and Mrs. William H. McMullan, 4116 Bilger, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a family party today at 4 p.m. at Rock Front Restaurant.

McMullan and the former Ola Lee Cauble were both children of pioneer ranching families in Snyder, where they grew up and became acquainted. They married May 4, 1933, in Portales, N.M.

Sons and daughters-in-law include W.L. (Buck) and Sammie McMullan, Ackerly, the late Charles Lynn McMullan, and his wife, Darlene McMullan of Big Spring. The couple has four grandchildren.

The couple moved to Big Spring in 1963. McMullan brought Southwestern Billiard and Supply to Big Spring in 1963. He started the business in 1937.

McMullan enjoys organic gardening.

Five Howard County 4-H families will host Japanese students this summer through the LABO — Texas 4-H program.

LABO originated in Japan in 1966 as an English teaching program, developing into a language laboratory — hence the name LABO.

Japanese children enroll in this program to learn English. Language is taught through stories and drama in group situations.

In 1972, LABO and the 4-H clubs of America joined to foster friendship and cultural exchange by sponsoring one month home-stay programs.

The host families and LABO students are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene and daughter Vikki, hosting Namiko Kimura; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Allen and daughter Paula hosting Satomi Suzuki; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Dick and children Denette and Dellamy, hosting Mayumi Karita; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rock, daughters Tonya and Tasha, hosting Wakako Saito; and Mrs. Naomi Hunt and son Ken, hosting Akio Moriyasu.

The Japanese exchange students will arrive July 22 and leave Aug. 22.

The Walter Graves Scott Underwood awarded extension club scholarship

Walter and Pauline Graves, Stanton, observed their 49th wedding anniversary Thursday with a supper party in the home of the honorees.

Among guests attending were Granville and Robbie Graves, Leigh Ann Graves, and Craig and Laurabeth Graves.

Scott Underwood was awarded the District 6 Texas Extension Homemakers Association Scholarship recently for his 4-H achievements.

Underwood had 4-H projects in citizenship, leadership, swine, lambs, photography and gardening. He received the Gold Star award in 1981. In 1982, he won a trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago when his Citizenship Record Book received first place in state. He also is active in school and church activities.

Underwood plans to attend the University of Texas and major in accounting. He later hopes to attend law school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Underwood, Gail Rt.

Lacey Knight's birth announced by parents

Alan and Mitzi Knight, Gail Rt., announce the birth of their first daughter, Lacey Marie, April 29, at Root Memorial Hospital in Colorado City. The infant arrived at 6:40 p.m. weighing 8 pounds 2 ounces and measuring 19 inches long.

The infant's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Pete Sanderson, 1305 Barnes, and Mr. and Mrs. Orvel Knight of I-20.

Lacey has a half sister, Desiree Knight Jarrett of Monahans.

Parents announce birth

Sgt. and Mrs. Ray Rodriguez, El Paso, announce the birth of their daughter, Veronica Renee, at 7:55 a.m. April 27 at William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso. She weighed 6 pounds, 12 1/2 ounces and was 19 1/2 inches long.

She was welcomed home by brothers, Gabriel, 9, Abram, 8, and Adrian, 4. Veronica's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Fermin Garza Sr., Ozona, and Mr. and Mrs. Gabino Rodriguez Sr., 1504 Robin.

People once believed that if their palms itched they would receive money.

Norman-Newton

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Milton Newton are on a honeymoon trip to South Texas following their wedding Saturday evening at First Baptist Church Chapel in Big Spring. The Rev. Darvy Curry, pastor of First Baptist Church in Coahoma, officiated the 7 p.m. rite and was assisted by the Rev. Guy White, pastor of East Fourth Street Baptist Church in Big Spring.

The new Mrs. Newton is the former Leslie Susan Norman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Norman, Gail Rt. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. David L. Newton of Coahoma.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar flanked by an archway covered in gypsophelia and peach and brown carnations. The archway was flanked by two colonnades holding baskets of peach and brown gladioli with white carnations. Two 15-branch spiral candelabra held peach tapers and centered the altar setting.

Mrs. Dianne Oliphant, pianist, and Mr. Jerry Oliphant, organist, Cleve Kirkland, Lubbock and Leslie Norman Newton, the bride, both vocalists, provided music.

The bride was given in marriage by father. She wore sheer organza gown with silk Venice bodice and stand-up collar. The skirt had an apron effect in the front with ruffles down the back forming a chapel-length train. The bride also wore a fingertip-length two-tiered veil of silk illusion made by her mother. The veil was edged in lace and held by a floral

Arismendez-Rodriguez

Elva Arismendez became the bride of Victor Rodriguez Jr. during a ceremony Saturday morning in the St. Margaret Mary's Catholic Church in Lamesa with the Rev. Jim O'Connor officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Arismendez, Ackerly. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Rodriguez Sr., also of Ackerly.

The altar was decorated in peach. The decorations included a combination of silk flowers, an archway and columns with baskets of peach flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown styled in sheer knit Venice lace, sequins and Chantilly lace adorned the modified Princess bodice. The high collar, edged in lace, topped the scalloped illusion yoke. The Bishop sleeves were adorned with lace medallions, sequins and seed pearls.

The full skirt was appliqued with lace medallions and had a wide hemline flounce, circled by lace and centered with lace bands. The flounce merged into a semi-cathedral length train edged with lace.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was gathered onto a Venice lace-covered bonnet with each flower design outlined with seed pearls. The three-tiered scalloped veil had matching lace medallions scattered over each tier. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, peach roses, yellow roses and peach daisies.

Yolanda Franco, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Aurora Rodriguez, Susie Ramirez, Irene Calvio, sister of the bridegroom, Jean Briseno, Emily Rodriguez and Conchita Rodriguez were bridesmaids. Flower girl was Laura Trevino.

Best man was Ray Franco. Groomsmen included Nicholas Rodriguez, brother of the bridegroom, Roman Ramirez, John Calvio, Ricky Arismendez, brother of the bride, Felix Rodriguez, and Cruz Rodriguez, both brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception followed in the Women's Building at the Lamesa Park. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and featured a three-tiered white wedding cake accented with peach bows, white roses, and topped with white satin bells.

The bride is a graduate of Sands High School and is employed in Big Spring's First National Bank as a secretary. The bridegroom is a Sands High School graduate who is employed with Baker Construction in Stanton as a roustabout.

Following a wedding trip into New Mexico, the couple will reside in Ackerly.

Skelton-Hall

Linda Skelton and Charles R. Hall exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening in the Wilshire Park Baptist Church in Midland with John Snider, minister of Melrose Church of Christ, Melrose, N.M., officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James E. Skelton Jr., Midland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Hall, Coahoma.

The couple was wed before an altar decorated with a 15-branch candelabrum centered with two seven-branched candelabra.

Doyleene Raney, was organist. Curt Hamlin was vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Don R. Skelton, wore a floor-length gown of taffeta overlaid with silk organza with lace appliques on the fitted bodice. The gown had a Victorian neckline and a cathedral-length train. The fingertip length veil included a blusher of tulle attached to the headband of lace and was encrusted with pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of silk lavender and white carnations, white roses and baby's breath tied with streamers of lavender ribbon.

Maid of honor was Lynne Kramer, Odessa. Bridesmaids were Sandy Ballard, Midland, and Sarah Shellenberger, Lubbock.

Jay Hall, brother of the bridegroom, Coahoma, was best man. John Metcalf, Coahoma, and Mike Patterson, Levelland, were groomsmen.

Ushers were Dale Skelton, brother of the bride, Corpus Christi, and Tommy Scott.

Wedding cake was originally a symbol of fertility. The Romans would break some cake over the bride's head at the end of the ceremony to ensure a life of plenty — and then the guests would gather up the crumbs as good luck tokens. Here at THE ACCENT SHOPPE, we especially like the tradition in medieval England, where each guest brought a small cake and put it on a table — thus making a huge edible tower the bride and groom were supposed to lean over to kiss. And so today we wish cake & kisses to you all!

Wedding policy

Weddings are published in the Sunday Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. A wedding form, available at the Herald, should be filled out, signed by either the bride, bridegroom or a member of either family and in our office no later than noon the Wednesday before the wedding.

The information may be accompanied by a photograph either of the bride or the couple. A black and white glossy 5 x 7 inch print is preferred. The picture must be of sufficient quality to reproduce in the newspaper. Pictures may be picked up following publication.

If a wedding writeup is turned in after the wedding the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

Forms for wedding stories may be picked up at the Lifestyle Department of the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry. Writeups may be brought in to the department or mailed to Big Spring Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Please call our office if you have problems or questions. Our number is (915) 263-7331.
