

Tornadoes rip through state; 8 dead

HOUSTON (AP) — Eight people perished, dozens were hurt and damages were "the worst we have seen" as perhaps 15 tornadoes and high winds sliced through southeast Texas in the predawn darkness today.

The National Weather Service confirmed five tornadoes hit the area between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. CDT and said it had reports of three other possible twisters. A Department of Public Safety aerial survey found evidence of as many as 15 tornadoes through the area, said DPS Lt. Larry Snider in Houston.

Utility company officials estimated 100,000 people were without electric power, hundreds of utility poles were down and "two or three" of Houston's huge, high-voltage steel towers were crumpled by the winds.

"This is the worst damage we have seen that was not associated with a hurricane," said Graham Painter, a spokesman for Houston Lighting and Power, which serves a wide area of Houston and beyond.

Waller County sheriff's officers, just northwest of Houston, report two trailer park residents, a 15-year-old boy near Prairie View and an 8-year-old girl near Sunnyside, were killed when a tornado blew away their homes.

"Both bodies were found 50 to 80 feet from their trailers," said a sheriff's dispatcher, who declined to give his name. He also declined to name the victims.

In the Washington County community of Phillipsburg, one person died when a mobile home overturned, Snider said.

Montgomery County Sheriff Joe Corley, surveying the damage from a Department of Public Safety helicopter, said two people died in the New Caney-Porter area, 12 people were hospitalized and damage was extensive.

"I just came down out of the chopper and we've got a lot of work to do," Corley said. "We estimate about 350 homes were damaged. From the air, it looks like there were three tornadoes in a three-mile area around New Caney and Porter, and each one cut a quarter-mile path."

Corley identified the dead as Angela Hawkins Morgan and Bob Wagner, but did not know their ages or the details of how they died. He said an earlier report that three were killed in Montgomery County turned out to be inaccurate.

Several businesses were damaged or destroyed from winds and hail the size of golf balls or larger, Corley said. Trees were uprooted and power lines were felled, flooding was widespread and several bridges were out, he said.

Liberty Police Chief Fred Clements said an elderly man was killed when a tree fell on his mobile home in the South Liberty oilfield. Clements said the man's name could not be released because his wife had not been notified.

A north Houston girl, identified as Kelly Ruth Hand-sborough, 5, was killed when a tree collapsed on the bedroom of her home, said Houston Fire Department spokesman John Valentine.

A Klein girl, Glenda McCoy, 14, died in the wreckage of her trailer house, said her 16-year-old brother, Allen.

"My sister was pinned up under a bed," he said. "I just woke up when the trailer started rolling."

Residents in northwest Houston turned in "12 to 15" tornado reports, sheriff's Corp. Tom Twardowsky said.

"We had a lot of strong heavy winds that took off roofs and knocked down trees, but you can't really say whether they were from a tornado" because of darkness, Twardowsky said.

Public safety officers reported tornadoes or high winds over a 100-mile-wide area surrounding Houston, leaving hundreds homeless.

Homes and businesses were unroofed and power was interrupted throughout the area.

"Telephone service is out in the eastern part of the county" said Montgomery County sheriff's official Ed deForrest. "It's hampering our work on this."

Emergency shelters were set up in New Caney, Klein, Hempstead in Waller County and at a Houston apartment complex where 153 of the 513 apartment units were reported damaged.

Painter said most of the damage was in the northwestern part of Harris County.

"It looks like a war out there and we lost," he said. "There are literally hundreds of lines on the ground," Painter said, "and some of the large high-voltage transmission lines were blown to the ground — those big steel towers, they're down in two or three different locations. It was some kind of wind that blew through."

"There is a serious flooding danger in the area to

Big Spring teen dies in wreck

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

A 15-year-old Big Spring boy was killed Thursday afternoon when an end of school celebration turned to tragedy.

Gregory Turner, son of Vera Turner of 1405 Lincoln in Big Spring and George Turner of Coahoma, died of multiple head injuries when the pickup truck he was riding in collided with a dump truck during an "initiation," Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Jim Lasater said.

No one else was injured in the accident.

According to Lasater and eyewitnesses, Gregory, a student at Coahoma Junior High School, was one of four boys in the back of the truck trying to spray shaving cream on a Coahoma school bus on the north service road of Interstate Highway 20 east of the Moss Lake Road exit.

The pickup truck, driven by Todd Coker, 15, of Sand Springs, was traveling east on the service road and was approaching the westbound bus when a dump truck driven by Roy Lee Pierce of Route 3, Big Spring, exited the interstate and collided with the pickup nearly head-on, Lasater said.

Gregory was thrown from the pickup bed into the front of the dump truck and was then thrown 137 feet from the point of impact, Lasater said.

Lasater said the vehicles were traveling about 40 mph. He said none of the vehicles braked at the time of the impact.

Gregory was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by Shaffer Ambulance personnel and was pronounced dead at 4:10 p.m. by Howard County Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. The accident occurred at 2:50 p.m.

"The boys in the back were rocking the truck, trying to spray the bus as a sort of an initiation the kids do," Mrs. Jim Coker, Todd's mother, said this morning. "Todd turned around to look at what was happening. When he turned back around he saw the truck coming and swerved."

Chris Parker, 13, one of the two other boys in the pickup's cab, said he yelled for the boys in the back to watch out.

PRO-AM GALLERY — The Signal Peak Shriners' Pro-Am golf tournament gallery waits for celebrities Terry Bradshaw and Golden Richards to finish the Watching celebrities play golf makes them seem more human.

Golden Richards and Terry Bradshaw lose their "larger than life" status when they hook a shot into the pasture surrounding the Big Spring Country Club, or miff a chip shot that goes three feet instead of 25 yards.

The average duffer hooks and muffs shots, too, and to watch the big-name stars do it undoubtedly raises the spirits of anyone who has hacked his way around a golf course. Also, Bradshaw's legs — after a long winter — were white, making him seem less imposing.

Although there were better golfers to watch yesterday, Richards and Bradshaw drew the most spectators to their foursome. However, golf fans apparently didn't want to brave the strong West Texas winds yesterday as the two stars' gallery consisted of only 20 people.

But the gallery was huge compared to other foursomes who had to rely on their imaginations to conjure up the roar of the crowd.

Most of the crowd hung close to the clubhouse where many had developed a thirst in the heat and wind of the day. Almost everyone was in color-coordinated clothes with caps advertising one business or another.

Out on the course, Bradshaw and Richards struggled against the wind, apparently frustrated by its ability to wreak havoc with a golf shot. However, Richards' mood didn't sour as he maintained humor throughout

Being Derrick Doll is year-round job

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Being a Houston Oiler cheerleader does not end with the football season. In fact, being a Derrick Doll is year-round work, according to three-year veteran Karen Guss.

The 21-year-old Texas City native is in town with three other Derrick Dolls for the First Annual Shriners Signal Peak Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Since the golf tourney benefits the Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children and Burn Centers, Karen is particularly happy to be participating in the event.

"I really enjoy working with children," Karen said. "It is real rewarding."

Karen has been involved in leading cheers before sports crowds since her days as a high school cheerleader. After a short stay in junior college, she tried out for the Derrick Dolls.

"The competition is always nerve-wracking," Karen said. "I always try to be prepared."

Although she is in her third year, Karen said she still had to try out for one of the forty positions with all of the other applicants. Even with a slight advantage of automatic advancement to the finals, she still has to perform well to keep her position.

"The dances are all choreographed, so you can't prepare for those," Karen said. "I run. I'm a student of aerobics. I try to be prepared."

The Derrick Dolls travel all over Texas and the nation making personal appearances, Karen said.

Forsan phone rate increase okayed by PUC

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A single-city service penalty and an agreement to raise General Telephone Co.'s basic residential rates by about $1 a month immediately and another 20 cents Jan. 1 won Public Utility Commission approval Thursday.
 Business rates for GenTel customers will go up a little more than $2 a month immediately and about 40 cents Jan. 1.
 In Forsan, the basic residential rate for one phone line is going up 12 percent from $7.45 a month to $8.35 and business by 10 percent from $19.75 to $21.80.
 Because of serious service complaints gathered during a first-ever PUC field hearing earlier this month, the commission ordered GenTel not to increase rates in the North Texas city of Plano until new computer switching equipment is installed later this year.
 "This order will tell them (consumers) that the record in any rate case will include service complaints and these complaints will receive great weight," PUC Chairman Al Erwin said in recommending the limited penalty.

GenTel President E.L. "Buddy" Langley said the penalty will cost the company about $25,000 a month, far less than the $400,000 a month the company lost under a service penalty imposed systemwide after its first rate case at the PUC.

The chairman said during the Plano hearing he learned some GenTel customers "had two or three phone lines in their homes in hopes that one will be working when they need it."
 Langley and the commission staff both noted that GenTel is meeting all PUC quality of service standards; including the phones in Plano. But even with that, "telephone service is not perfect," Langley acknowledged.
 However, he expressed concern that the commission's action may become a trend "of justifying service penalties strictly on public opinion."

The second increase in January is scheduled to offset expected revenue losses incurred when GenTel begins offering optional local measured service in the Dallas and Houston areas. Under that plan, local calls are charged on the same basis as long-distance calls — by duration, distance and time of day.

Possible expansion of the service to other areas would require commission permission and is not expected in the near future.

The new rates must be checked by the PUC staff, but in any case, new rates should be in effect no later than Monday.

The agreement reached last month and finally approved Thursday calls for GenTel to receive a $32.5 million annual increase in revenues compared with the company's original request of $85.5 million.

 The gallery became more sparse the farther the foursome ventured. The concession stand near hole No. 4, stocked with beer, soft drinks and sandwiches, became increasingly popular as the afternoon wore on and the winds became worse.
 The group finished up the first half of its round in front of the clubhouse crowd that paused momentarily from socializing to see Bradshaw hit an impressive chip shot from behind a tree and onto the green. Applause greeted the players as they finished.
 Bradshaw and Richards were immediately sought out for interviews and autographs.
 Around the clubhouse, discussions raged about how the winds affected play. Stories were heard that said the wind was worse in the morning, while others explained that the gusts were much more terrible in the afternoon. One could tell who had played in the morning and who had played in the afternoon just by listening.
 Everyone seemed to be in a jovial mood in the clubhouse area. The wind was blocked off by the country club, and trees provided shade from the occasional burst of sunshine. The clubhouse area was the place to see and be seen. It seemed far removed from action on the links.

 "We do a lot of traveling to small towns also," Karen said.
 "What does she like about being a Derrick Doll?"
 "I love dancing," Karen said. "I'm concentrating in the future on opening my own dance studio."
 The immense crowds at football games are something you have to get used to, Karen said. However, the initial exposure to the crowds can be frightening, she said.
 "I'll never forget the first time at the Dome," Karen said laughing. "I concentrate on the dance and usually avoid looking at the audience."
 What about the claim cheerleaders are exploited as sex symbols?
 "Everyone has their different opinion," Karen said. "You'll have situations like that. I enjoy being in the public eye. It's a way of life; it's not exploitive. I'm comfortable with myself."

 day," said Harris County Civil Defense deputy director John Caswell. "There is none now, but more heavy rains are forecast, and with the rain we've had till now, any more would cause problems."
 Classes were cancelled in the Houston suburb of Spring Branch where damage was widespread.
 The National Weather Service said the storm resulted when warm, humid air from the Gulf of Mexico was drawn inland by a high-pressure system and clashed with a drying cold front stretched along the Gulf Coast.
 "It fed off itself once it got started," said NWS forecaster Don Mankin. "It was just a self-perpetuating thing."

Coahoma grads keep tradition

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer
 The seniors trailed in without warning at Coahoma's graduation last night, accompanied by a distant processional theme.
 Boys in red and girls in white, most adhered to standard graduation apparel, although the occasional blue jean and Nike sneakers peeked from under the somber robes.
 As the 52 graduates streamed down both aisles in the high school auditorium, flashes flared like sudden suns as moms, dads and others tried to freeze an early moment on film.
 The usual crying babies accompanied the opening remarks by the superintendent. Their cries punctuated the speeches by the top students and the main speaker.
 A low rumble of voices gently rose and fell during the speeches as people commented on Dr. Bob Riley's points and laughed at his quiet jokes.
 At 8:38 p.m., the presentation of diplomas began by Principal Ronnie Bourland. As the roll was called and another robed figure strode forward, calls of support could be heard from the auditorium.
 Most were just names; others were nicknames; some brought applause. One graduate held his diploma high in exultation as he exited the stage. At 8:48, it was over.
 As the crowd applauded, the graduates turned to the gathering and sang the school song. After a rousing cheer, the 52 followed the Lord's Prayer, then exited quickly.
 Outside in the hall, most waited in their gowns for hugs from proud parents, backslaps from friends and kisses from boyfriends and girlfriends. Laughter dominated the scene.
 In the cool air of the night, more graduates, family and friends momentarily paused before heading to celebrations. A

The speaker at the Coahoma High School Graduation last night exhorted the graduates with the words of Top-40 Radio personality Kasey Kasem: "Keep your feet on the ground and reach for the stars."
 Dr. Bob Riley, vice president of Howard College, told the 52 graduates to avoid being "non-winners" who go through the "motions of life."
 Riley touched on many topics during his speech, including the signers of the Declaration of Independence, Winston Churchill and Rafer Johnson.
 "They met a challenge and were willing to pay the price," Riley said.
 The graduates were warned to not lead lives of "quiet desperation" by the Howard College official. Riley challenged the graduating seniors to set goals they could reach.

 Valedictorian Cheryl McCoy spoke briefly on her class' year and credited it to parents and faculty.

 Prior to her speech, Superintendent Richard Souter said Miss McCoy's 99.03 grade-point-average was the highest he had known in 23 years of educational work.

Syria still refusing pact

Embargo lifted on F-16s

By The Associated Press
U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib shuttled back to Egypt today in his campaign to reverse Syria's opposition to the Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal pact. But sources in Damascus said Syria will mount its own diplomatic counter-offensive.

Habib arrived in Cairo from Saudi Arabia where he was believed to have urged King Fahd to use his financial clout with Syria to get Syrian troops out of Lebanon. A Syrian withdrawal would clear the way for the pullout of Israeli forces from Lebanon.

Habib made a one-hour refueling stop in Cairo Thursday on his way from Lebanon to Saudi Arabia. Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Habib will now brief the Egyptians on the outcome of his talks with Lebanese and Saudi leaders and future American peacemaking moves.

Sources in Damascus, who requested anonymity, said two senior Syrian government envoys will be dispatched on a tour of Arab capitals to explain Syria's opposition to the Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement.

The sources said Information Minister Ahmad Iskandar Ahmad and the minister of state for foreign affairs, Farouk Chareh, would undertake the tour as personal envoys of President Hafez Assad.

Details of the ministers' itinerary were not available.

Syria has refused to receive Habib, and he went instead to Saudi Arabia, whose longtime financial support of Syria gives it considerable leverage over the Damascus government.

Habib conferred with Egyptian and Saudi officials Thursday and plans to visit Jordan as part of an urgent Middle East shuttle to soften Syria's intransigence.

The Israeli-Lebanese accord calls for Israel to withdraw its 25,000 troops from Lebanon when Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization pull out their forces.

While not a formal peace treaty, the agreement ends the state of war between Israel and Lebanon, in effect making Lebanese President Amin Gemayel's government the second in the Arab world to recognize Israel. Egypt and Israel normalized relations in 1979.

Syria and the PLO contend the accord threatens Lebanese sovereignty, endangers Syrian security and damages Arab solidarity. The Syrians have said they will refuse to withdraw their 40,000 troops from Lebanon and have vowed unspecified retaliation against Gemayel's government for signing the pact.

Israel invaded Lebanon last June to smash PLO guerrilla bases.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration today lifted a nearly year-long embargo on the sale of 75 advanced F-16 jet fighters to Israel, imposed after Israel invaded Lebanon.

The action, foreshadowed by Israel's recent agreement to withdraw its troops from Lebanon, was announced in a brief Pentagon memorandum, which said Congress has been formally notified of the proposed sale of the jets along with spare parts and related equipment.

'Lonesome' hijacker arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite a third airplane hijacking this month, this time by a "lonesome" Cuban who commandeered a flight from Miami to New York, federal aviation officials say they have no plans to increase in-flight security.

A gray-haired Spanish-speaking man, wearing a contraption of wires, batteries and what he said was dynamite around his neck, hijacked Eastern Airlines Flight 24 to Cuba on Thursday. The flight arrived safely at its final destination, La Guardia Airport, nearly six hours late, after the hijacker was seized in Havana.

"He explained to me that he was lonesome

... He was sometimes on the verge of tears," said passenger Amy O'Brien, who acted as interpreter for the hijacker. He told her his name was Carlos Arias.

The jet was diverted soon after it took off from Miami International Airport at 2:19 p.m., said Eastern spokesman Jim Ashlock.

The hijacker apparently cleared Eastern's security system, Ashlock said, adding that the company would cooperate with the FBI and the Federal Aviation Administration. But he said there were no immediate plans to tighten security.

All passengers at Miami International Airport must walk through a metal detector and put their belongings through an X-ray machine before boarding a plane.

"The bottom line of the system is to make sure no one is hurt," Ashlock said. "A diversion to Cuba on an occasional basis is a small price to pay for overall safety."

The last hijacking of an Eastern flight was in July 1981.

FAA spokesman Jack Barker said in Atlanta that the agency has no plans to put sky marshals on airlines, as it did after a rash of hijackings in 1980.

"Historically when there's been one (hijacking) there's been two or three," Barker said.

Governess accused of working for CIA

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officials have accused an American governess who worked for a U.S. diplomat of organizing and training a subversive cell of Jehovah's Witnesses "under the pretense" of religious work.

The news agency Tass reported that the woman, Pamela Carne, was allowed to leave the Soviet Union after being arrested Sunday in a raid on a meeting of the group in Kalinin, 90 miles northwest of Moscow.

The U.S. Embassy confirmed Miss Carne had been detained and had left the country. But a spokesman declined to discuss the case, citing the U.S. privacy law.

Miss Carne had worked for diplomats at the U.S. Embassy. Her latest employer, William G. Plunkert of the embassy's political section, said he could not comment on the Tass report, published Thursday.

Another U.S. diplomat said Miss Carne was in her 20s, had been in Moscow about two years and had worked for another embassy diplomat.

Skeleton found near river

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — The body of a Texas man missing for 15 months may have been found 400 miles downstream from where his plane crashed in February 1982, authorities said.

A fisherman here discovered skeletal remains imbedded in a Red River bank that have been tentatively identified as Josh Logan of Leary, Texas; Rapides Parish Deputy Sheriff Bill Robinson said Wednesday.

Logan, 50, and his 15-year-old godson, Richard Anthony Moore, disappeared Feb. 21, 1982 near Texarkana during a Sunday afternoon ride in Logan's airplane. Moore's body was recovered from the river nearly two months later.

A famous schoolmaster was once asked, "Where, in your curriculum, do you teach religion?" "We teach it all day long," answered the schoolmaster. "We teach it in arithmetic by accuracy ... in language by learning to say what we mean ... in history by humanity ... geography by breadth of mind ... handicraft by thoroughness ... astronomy by reverence ... in the playground by fair play. We teach it by kindness to animals, by courtesy to servants, by good manners to one another, and by truthfulness in all things."

The passing of the typewriter

Oh, there was an authority about it, that's for sure. The keys slamming each letter to forever, the carriage — when oiled properly and broken-in — thinking heavily, the roller biting the sheet. Second-guessing was not built into the system. Nope, the typewriter was final.

That was not, of course, always a virtue. It had a way, at the close of business letters, for instance, of committing an irreversible error. It ground up copy paper by the ream, searching for a simple lead. It could stare a writer down at 2 a.m. Such was its authority.

The jig has been up for years, though. And last week they built the last typewriter — last manual typewriter, that is — in the United States. Bundy Typewriter Co. of Philadelphia ordered a few hundred extra Smith-Corona portables, which it expects to last about six months. "Then," said Robert Morris, Bundy's general manager, "they could be gone forever."

A few foreign models will still be available, Brother (Japanese) and Royal (German), but the reign is ended, closed out by its electrified descendants and the video display terminal, a more permissive and compliant instrument (if you promise not to dump coffee on the keyboard or wear electrostatic underwear and if there's a three-prong, grounded plug handy and the memory isn't overloaded and the transient copy doesn't decide — as it does on an occasional whim — to visit Detroit or Alpha Centauri).

VDTs are easy-going, promiscuous machines. You had to marry a typewriter — fight with it, smooth things over, wax jealous, get comfortable, develop a mutual understanding over the long haul. How do you explain something like that to a kid who has grown up with a DELETE button?

Patronage and democracy

Chicago reformers have had news and good news. The bad news is that the Democratic machine, defying the new mayor, has seized control of the City Council. The good news is that a federal judge has probably killed the city's patronage system once and for all. What reformers may overlook is that the machine owes its new vigor to the death of the patronage that once sustained it. The principles of reform are frustrating the purposes of reform.

No one questioned Mayor Harold Washington's commitment to reform during his campaign for mayor — particularly his pledge to dismantle the patronage system. That was a big reason many aldermen and city employees deserted their party to work for his Republican opponent.

But it doesn't matter much what Washington did in mind. The courts had already wounded patronage by forbidding the dismissal of city employees on political grounds. Shortly after Washington's election, U.S. District Court Judge Nicholas Bua administered the coup de grace by ordering the city and other local government bodies to end the use of political considerations in hiring as well.

A mayor who can't hire his own people or fire his enemy's is, at least in Chicago, hardly a mayor at all. Washington recognized that the 250 appointments allowed him by the Shakman decisions (named after the Hyde Park voter who filed the lawsuits) weren't enough to gain genuine control of the city government, which employs some 42,000 people. So he went to court to ask that the number be raised to 1,200. That earned him considerable ridicule for supposedly renegeing on his promise to dismantle patronage.

Of course Washington did no such thing. Under the old regime, at least 10,000 (and, in practice, probably many more) city jobs were reserved for patronage. Under Washington's proposal, 97 percent of all the jobs would be off-limits to patronage. Only one of every 33 city workers would be a political appointee.

BUT PERPETUATING the old system might not be such a bad idea. Patronage does have plenty of disadvantages. Many workers are hired, regardless of competence, simply because of their political connections. Many of them do very little except at election time, when they are called into campaign service by their benefactors.

But patronage has one great virtue: accountability. If your garbage doesn't get picked up, you can call your alderman and demand that he do something about it. If he doesn't, you can vote him out of office.

Compare that with the "merit system" employed by the federal government. If your mail gets lost, who do you call? What satisfaction do you expect? Who do you vote against? As an editorial in The Chicago Tribune put it, "The alternative to patronage is not utopia. It is bureaucracy."

Given the Shakman decisions, the new mayor has the worst of both worlds. He can hire city workers only on the basis of merit. But he has to tolerate thousands of city workers hired on the basis of politics by his predecessors.

Those city workers are mostly connected to the machine. That's why aldermen who once regarded the Shakman rulings with horror now see them as a godsend. Shakman's new allies are the worst of the old guard, who want to use this "reform" to freeze the status quo in place.

WASHINGTON'S OWN supporters also might wonder if reform is all it's cracked up to be. The tradition in Chicago and other big cities was for each ethnic group to use city jobs as a boost up the economic ladder. Irish, Poles and Italians all have followed that route. Now that it's the turn of Chicago's blacks, they find the rules have changed. They won the election, but to the loser belong the spoils.

That is exactly why Washington is faced with the first rebellious City Council in memory. Stripped of control over city jobs, he lacks both carrot and stick.

Jack Anderson

Returning to political protectionism

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department is returning to the bad old days when the politically powerful could escape the kind of rigorous prosecution that is applied to lesser mortals.

Apparently, my exposes have made me somewhat of a pariah in the halls of Justice. John Russell, whose job is to handle press inquiries for the department, went so far as to tell my associate Donald Goldberg not long ago: "Nobody here will talk to you. We don't like Jack Anderson."

He also acknowledged many times to my associate Dale Van Atta that he didn't actually see the senator pull money from envelopes. He witnessed the money being stuffed into the envelopes, he testified. He also saw the envelopes being handed to a middleman and saw the middleman pass what he thought were the same envelopes to Thurmond. But Pearce never could swear that what was passed to Thurmond contained the alleged bribe money. Indeed, this is why he failed a lie detector test when asked a poorly worded question about what he actually saw.

This attitude was given expression after I embarrassed two of the most sacred of the department's Brahman bulls. The federal dragnets had dredged up accusations against two powerful senators who oversee the Justice Department: Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee when the Republicans are in power, and Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., who takes over when the Democrats come to power.

The charges may be absolutely unfounded and unfair, but high Justice officials didn't want to find out. They resisted efforts to get to the bottom of the accusations, according to sources close to both investigations. Nevertheless, the accusations worked their way through the gossamerlike processes of the Justice Department.

Clearly, the investigations haven't gone far enough to justify legal action against either Thurmond or Kennedy. But the Justice Department's handling of the cases leaves a cloud of suspicion that is unfair to the two senators and ought to be cleared up.

I am in the business of exposing the compromises, equivocations and sellouts that politicians are wont to make. This has put me at odds with prosecutors who mete out justice according to their own interests and prejudices. On Jan. 12, 1983, police detective Michael Hubbard told a federal grand jury how he had infiltrated and broken up a Capitol Hill cocaine ring. He identified nine congressional customers of the ring. One, he said, was Sen. Kennedy.

Of course, sworn testimony before a grand jury does not add up to a conviction, let alone an indictment. Hubbard told the grand jury that Kennedy had been identified as a cocaine customer by three or more informants. But the detective himself never witnessed an illegal drug transaction involving the senator.

The lone witness against Thurmond was unable to swear that the payments he saw passed to Thurmond were illegal. He assumed they had now way of knowing.

Billy Graham

Problems of the human heart

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have studied world problems a lot, and I believe that the solution to our problem eventually must be a single government that rules the entire world. That would avoid competition between nations and then there would be no need for war. What do you think of this idea? — B.E.

DEAR B.E.: The Bible suggests that this might actually happen some day — when the Antichrist comes to deceive people and cause them to turn against God. But even if that were not the case, I believe your solution to the problem of war and strife in our world overlooks something which is very critical.

Yes, war comes because nations often compete against each other. But probe a bit deeper. It is not nations or governments that are the problem — it is men. It is individuals who declare war, and it is individuals who pull the triggers. If we ever have a nuclear war — which I pray will never happen — it will be because a person (or group of persons) has made the decision and pushed the button. What am I getting at? It is this: the basic problem is the human heart, and no matter how much you try to solve the problems of the world, they will never be solved in any lasting way until you solve the problem of the human heart.

This fact is underlined by the Bible. "What causes fights and quarrels among you? Don't they come from your desires that battle within you? You want something but don't get it. You kill and covet, but you cannot have what you want. You quarrel and fight" (James 4:1-2). As long as men are filled with greed and lust for power, there will be no lasting peace on earth.

But Christ can change the human heart. He can come into our lives and replace the greed and hate that infects us with love and peace. What guarantee do you have in your suggestion for one government or ruler that that ruler would be a good man instead of a tyrant? But Christ can change the heart of anyone who turns to him in faith.

We are to work for peace among men and nations, and to some extent there can be hope for peace in limited measure. But lasting peace will not come until Christ returns. Have you ever faced your own need of Christ? Let him come into your life and rule in every area, and then you will understand why there is hope of a better world in Christ.

Around the Rim

G-Day blues

As college seniors across the nation prepare to graduate they are all faced with the same malady — graduation blues.

Graduation, as joyful as it is, is also a time for worrying about the future. Once the graduates get those diplomas in hand, it's up to them to make the next decision.

The first introduction I had to college graduation blues was when my college roommate was afflicted with it. After four difficult years of high school and an equally difficult four years of college, I thought she would be overjoyed at her approaching graduation.

The first inkling I had that something was wrong was in May of her senior year. I was sitting on my bed in the dorm doing my French homework, panicking about an upcoming final and just hoping to get through my junior year. My roommate, who for two long semesters had been steady as a rock whenever trauma rocked our little room, was standing at the mirror, combing her hair when suddenly she said "You know, four years really flew by."

"Huh?" I asked.

"College," she repeated, slamming her hairbrush through her hair. "I can't believe it's over." She just stood there staring into the mirror abusing her hair and repeating that phrase over and over.

Every day, sometimes two or three times a day, I would hear "I can't believe it went by so fast." As finals week crawled by, I was thinking how slow time was passing. I couldn't figure her out.

ONE DAY, her father called, long distance, to inquire as to whether or not she had found a job.

"A job," she shrieked. "No, I haven't found a job." They talked about her options and gradually worked themselves into an argument. Her father said she wasn't trying hard enough. That phone call ended in tears.

But her dad must have realized what was happening, because he called right back and they talked things through. I thought she had gone nuts. I didn't know it was just graduation blues.

THE NEXT YEAR, graduation loomed and I said one day "Four years really flew by." I started screaming at my friends for no good reason, thought seriously about dropping a course I needed to graduate and wouldn't let myself think about those dark days which would follow graduation. I began to wish I could spend another semester or two in college. Two weeks before the blues descended I had been ready to take my diploma and run.

My friends, most of whom had another year left of school, thought surely I had gone nuts. "What's the matter," they would ask. "We'd love to be getting out of here."

I saw my roommate about this time and she seemed to be fully recovered from the trauma of graduation. She had a great job and there was no trace of the graduation blues. I decided not to bring it up. I drifted into a job, something I figured I should be doing, but I couldn't get over not having a class to report to. Gradually the blues subsided.

Then, when my friends approached their graduation, I heard "How could four years have passed so quickly." I could have told them it was coming.

But anyway, good luck, all you seniors. Graduation blues don't last forever.

Doctors turn off respirator sustaining 8-year-old girl

HIX, W.Va. (AP) — Doctors have turned off a respirator that sustained an 8-year-old girl who seemed like most second-graders until one morning three weeks ago "she cried out like she was having a nightmare" and then slipped into a coma.
 That morning, her mother said, "She cried out like she was having a nightmare. She hugged me real tight and said, 'My head, my head.' At first I thought she said her leg and I tried to get her to stretch out. Then she put her hand on the right side of her head."
 Until then, Donna Ward's family didn't know that the girl had long suffered from a brain aneurysm, a sac caused by a weakening in the wall of an artery that could have ruptured at any moment.
 "The doctors said Donna was born with it, and as she grew, it grew with her," said Anna Jane Ward, Donna's 38-year-old mother.
 At about 6:30 a.m. on April 27 the sac finally burst and caused a massive hemorrhage on the right side of her brain, said Dr. Adnan Silk, who operated on Donna for more than four hours at Raleigh County Hospital. He said he removed a blood clot and the sac, but that "there was too much damage from the hemorrhage."
 Donna fell into a coma from which she never awoke, and on Wednesday her family authorized doctors to disconnect the life-support system. She died at 2:30 p.m., shortly after it was turned off.
 The rupture occurred at about the same time Donna would normally have woken for school, said Mrs. Ward, of Hix in Summers County.
 Donna, the youngest of six brothers and sisters, enjoyed school and spent her spare time reading and dancing to records.
 "She was a good girl, always minded. She liked to get hold of books and read," said her 53-year-old father Albert, who had a heart attack that forced him to retire from a railroad job in 1975.
 Mrs. Ward said Donna showed no signs of health problems until the aneurysm burst.
 "It's God's act, I guess. Why, I don't know. She went to school the day before and was out playing until 8 o'clock the night before," Mrs. Ward said. "For some reason it just happened to our little girl and our family."

Council honors 3 volunteers

Rebecca Valencia, Dan Conley and Hosea Young were selected outstanding senior citizens by the Howard County Council on Aging Council's board of directors for their civic and volunteer work. May is Senior Citizens Month.

Mrs. Valencia, a native of Shafter, has taken care of the sanctuary and educational building of the First Presbyterian Church in downtown Big Spring for 25 years.

The Council formerly used the old Presbyterian Church before receiving the Webb Air Force Base building no. 487. Mrs. Valencia assisted the Council.

In 1940, Mrs. Valencia married Jose Valencia in St. Thomas Catholic Church, where they have been active members. They have three daughters, Lupe, Berta and Linda. They have two grandsons.

Conley is "the busiest retired man I know," says his church's minister. Conley has served the congregation at 14th and Main Church of Christ as deacon, song leader, elder, ministerial selection committees, construction and maintenance supervision. He also visited the church's missions in Brazil.

He directed the concert and marching bands at Big Spring High School until his retirement in 1974. He was active in the schools, church, various musical organizations and the Lions Club. Conley enjoys singing and has organized several choruses, choirs and quartets. He is currently involved with the Signal Mountain Singers, a barbershop quartet.

Conley was the first manager of the Education Employees Federal Credit Union where he is currently chairman of the supervisory committee.

One of his regularly scheduled duties is delivering lunches to the elderly with the Mobile Meals service of the Council.

Hosea Young, originally of Anson, attended school in Tinesville, Texas. He has also lived in Rule, Texas, prior to coming to Big Spring in 1946. He has worked cleaning offices and doing various jobs. He is a member and head steward of Bakers Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church. Young enjoys helping people who are in need.

Primarily, the Howard County Council on Aging directs the Mobile Meals program. Approximately 80 meals are served each day by volunteer delivery. To qualify for the meals, a person must be unable to prepare their own or have anyone to see that they have at least one good hot meal. Those qualifying may make a donation, but no fee is charged for the meals. This work is funded primarily by the Dora Roberts Foundation. Some meals are purchased from individuals and clubs help schools.

Dear Abby

Bible reveals all on nudity

DEAR ABBY: A reader who was also a nudist tried to justify nakedness by quoting Scripture (Genesis 2:25): "And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and they were not ashamed."

Had he gone on to read Genesis, Chapter 3, he would have learned that Satan appeared in the Garden of Eden and tempted Adam and Eve to eat of the forbidden fruit that would give them knowledge to discern good from evil. So they ate the forbidden fruit. Then they knew they were naked and became ashamed, so they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves aprons to cover their nakedness.

The Lord then rebuked them with, "Who told thee thou wast naked?" And from that time on, the beauty and innocence of nudity were to be forever a thing of the past.

What sayest thee, fair Abigail?

STUDENT OF THE SCRIPTURES

DEAR STUDENT: I sayest that was the first major coverup known to man.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can give me a confidential reply through your column because I do not want to disclose my name. I sent a check to a mail-order firm for a sex manual — one of those "how to" books that one sees advertised in catalogs. My check was cashed, but I never received the book or a refund.

Is it illegal to order or receive such a book through the mail? Would the post office have confiscated it? Or do you think I was ripped off? I have the name and address of the firm.

I guess it wasn't really pornography, but rather a medical manual. (No pictures were advertised).

Maybe I should explain why I ordered it so you won't think I'm some kind of pervert. I'm an adult married man who is too embarrassed to discuss such things with a doctor and too self-conscious to go into a bookstore and buy such a book off the shelf.

firm from which you ordered the book, advising the firm that the book was not received. If your letter is ignored, notify your postmaster. It is not illegal for an adult to order (or receive) sexually oriented material through the mail.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can help me. I've been married almost 23 years, but haven't seen my husband in 21 years. He walked out on me, and I have no idea where he is.

I want to find out if he has divorced me. And if he hasn't, how can I divorce him without having to pay the kind of money a lawyer wants? Also, isn't there a law that says that after a certain number of years of not hearing from your husband, you can just presume he's either dead or has deserted you, and no divorce is necessary?

I've talked to several lawyers and the lowest fee was $350 to free me to marry again. You see, I met this terrific man who wants to marry me, and he offered to pay for my divorce if I need one.

Answer soon. I don't want to lose this guy.

WHERE DO I STAND?

DEAR WHERE: I am constantly amazed at the number of people who will gladly pay a physician to cure their physical ills but would begrudge a lawyer a reasonable fee for straightening out their legal woes.

The laws differ from state to state, and I am not qualified to practice law in any of them, so please consult a lawyer and pay him (or her) for what he knows.

Dr. Donohue

Bloat is part of premenstrual syndrome

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My biggest problem is abnormal fluid retention, which appears to be worse in my face and around my eyes. It occurs just prior to the onset of my period, but during the whole cycle my face and eyes along with other parts of my body are affected to varying degrees the same way. This puffiness of my face and eyes often grossly changes my complete looks. Thyroid tests and a kidney function test have ruled those out as the cause. I have tried diuretics and low salt consumption, but they do not seem to help. I have been told this may be a hormone imbalance problem, a part of the premenstrual syndrome. Would you please comment on possible causes? — Mrs. B.W.

Premenstrual syndrome comprises an array of symptoms — mood swings, depression, bloating, cramps, fatigue and fluid retention. Many explanations are being studied, including the matter of hormonal imbalance. Let's discuss that first.

One of the hormones being talked about is progesterone. It can be supplied in medicine form, but the use has not been approved yet by the FDA for this use. It is experimental at this point.

Now what about the menstrual cramping? Here, another hormone, prostaglandin, is thought to be involved. Prostaglandin is the hormone that stimulates the uterus muscles. There are many anti-prostaglandin drugs available for controlling cramps — aspirin and indomethacin, for examples.

Now for the fluid retention symptom. Again, another hormone is believed to be responsible — prolactin. However, this has not been proven to be the cause, and it's not clear why an imbalance of that hormone would bring on bloating.

The other part of your question has a more straightforward answer. Fluid shows up in the face and around the eyes because the skin there is so stretchable. It is in other places, but not quite so noticeable because tighter skin keeps it hidden deep in tissue.

You are doing the right things, no matter what the specific cause turns out to be. Even though you have not had great results from your salt limitation keep at it. I am sure it is making a small contribution in keeping your fluid retention at lower levels.

And what your carbohydrate intake, too. In some women a combination of salt and carbohydrate consumption leads to as much as a 6-pound weight gain (fluid retention). Use a low-sugar, low-salt diet divided into six small meals. And don't use caffeine or chocolate. I am referring to such diet modification only at the time or your periods.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I doubt that you have had this question before. What is amyloid? It was recently found in wrist tissue along with my carpal tunnel. I was told it was an uncommon problem. Can you discuss that? — H.L.T.

I answered it before, but not very recently. Amyloidosis is not a common illness. It means that a gooey kind of protein (amyloid) has been deposited in the body. The deposition may be in only a few places, as in tissues of the wrist. At that point, it can press on the median nerve to cause the carpal tunnel syndrome. However, other changes in the wrist area cause the problem, not just amyloid tissue.

The amyloidosis that affects only the wrist is usually not a bad illness, and the outlook is very good. Widespread amyloidosis can be quite devastating, because there is as yet no medicine to treat the illness. Virtually any organ can be affected — liver, kidney, spleen, tongue, etc.

We don't know why amyloid forms. Sometimes it is a part of other illnesses, such as multiple myeloma, bone infections or rheumatoid arthritis. Sometimes it is a part of aging. And sometimes the problem is inherited. It's a puzzling ailment.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Regarding the letter from Mrs. A.S. asking about night sweats. I am anxious to know why you didn't mention menopause as being a primary cause of this symptom. Or am I wrong? — C.A.M.

I didn't mention it because I forgot; thanks for the reminder.

Study of chocolate is popular course

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Finally, a college course so good it melts in your mouth: Botany 20, the study of chocolate.

Eight hundred students signed up for the 35 available places in the class at the University of California-Berkeley. Those who got in found that chocolate was more than just a mouthful of yum.

Botanist John A. West, who devised the course, told about the floral anatomy of cocoa, basic modes of propagation and the effect of surface tilling on a cocoa plantation.

First round filled with windy thrills

EASY DOES IT — Chris Christopher negotiates some tricky footing at yesterday's Signal Peak Shriners' Pro-Am as he prepares to blast a chip shot from the edge of a water hazard. Christopher's foursome shot a 66 for the first round of the tourney.

57 is best score in Pro-Am so far

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

What a day at the Shriners' Pro-Am. First, former U.S. Open champ Orville Moody showed up and turned in one of the best rounds by a professional.

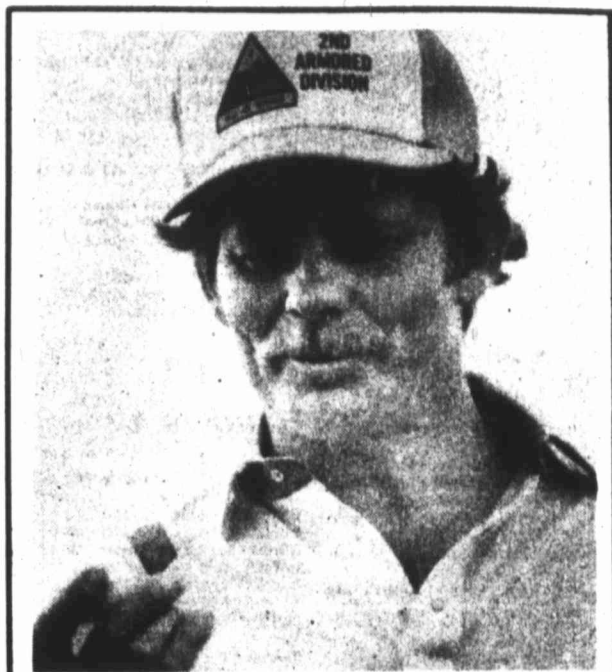

Next came a 57 team score turned in by Ray Hardy, Ronnie Broadrick, Brad Small and Carl Small.

Then Big Spring's own Jimmy Welch knocked his tee-shot into the No. 13 hole for an ace, winning his choice of six vehicles parked on the Country Club course.

And finally, rain and hail joined the wind and fell in the first appreciable amount (a trace) in two months just as Welch's foursome — the last to tee-off Thursday afternoon — was completing its 18-hole round.

Tournament play continued this morning with teams logjammed near Hardy's team. The foursome of Charles Bishop, Joe Sharpnack, Jimmy Rogers and Dale Austin carded a 13-under-par 58 to finish a stroke behind, while thanks to the ace, the team of Welch, Gary Hammer, Mike Scarbrough and Bob Bell came in at 60.

The best individual pro scores of the day were turned in by Dick Weston of the Winkler County Country Club in Kermit and Bill Gulley of the Levelland Country Club, both firing three-under-par 68's.

Big Spring golfer sinks hole-in-one

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

The Rivas, Suburbans and other assorted new cars tantalized golfers all day. If you figure 260 golfers tried their luck on the four par-3 holes at the Big Spring Country Club, 1,040 shots were taken at the $15,000 prize. With those odds, one tee-shot was bound to go in; Jimmy Welch was happy his was the perfect try.

Boasting it would award a new car to the first golfer to score a hole-in-one on any par-3 holes, the Shriners' Pro-Am Golf Tournament had to deliver one of their Lloyds of London-insured prizes early Thursday evening.

At 6:46 p.m., Welch lined a two-iron shot onto the 192-yard No. 13 green. The ball rolled towards the pin, paused on the lip of the cup and fell in the hole.

"I can't believe it," Welch said, trying hard to maintain his composure. "I had a feeling I would make a hole-in-one or at least come close today but I still can't believe I did it."

The ace was the first in 20 years of golfing for Welch, a resident of Big Spring. He was a member of the last foursome to play the No. 13 hole as the first day of the Pro-Am was coming to a close.

Tournament hostess Londa Weaver had been sitting in the Suburban parked adjacent to the No. 13 tee-box all afternoon waiting for something to happen. "That makes it all worthwhile," she said. "And they were the last ones to come through, too."

Susie Welch, cheering from a nearby golf cart, was just as excited as her husband.

"He told me yesterday there was a white Suburban with red stripes he had seen out here," she explained. "I asked him how he could get it and he said by making a hole-in-one. I said I'd love that and he said okay, he'd make one. This is great."

No member of the golfing party immediately realized the ball had gone in the hole. Welch, Country Club pro Gary Hammer, Mike Scarbrough and Bob Bell were teeing-off facing the sun in the Western horizon. But when golfers on the surrounding No. 10 green and No. 14 tee-box began jumping up and down, they discovered the shot had been an excellent one.

Welch hit third after Bell and Scarbrough. Hammer had also hit his tee-shot 15 feet to the right side of the green and for a few seconds, the foursome wasn't sure who's shot had gone in. When Hammer's ball was located, that meant Welch had scored an ace.

"I just had this feeling," Welch managed. "I tell you what, I'm retiring this ball right now."

The shot was a fluke for the Big Spring golfer. He continued pin-point drives over the remaining five holes and helped his team to an 11-under-par 60. That score was good for third place after the first 18 holes of tournament play.

The foursome was only two-under-par after nine holes but fired a nine-under 26 on the back nine.

"I putted well," Gulley said of morning round. He was one of several pros who had to play twice and carded a 74 in the afternoon. "I didn't putt well," he explained, smiling. "The wind wasn't that bad. I've been living with it all my life."

With his 68, Gulley's foursome shot a 64 as a team. Would they be able to catch Hardy and his teammates today?

"It's in trouble," he said. "When you get seven shots behind with one day to go, you need to shoot lights out to catch them. If we finish in the top three or four, it'll be all right."

Hardy, a pro from Clovis, N.M. was highest on his teammates. "The main thing I had was a couple of Small's on my team," he grinned. "They seemed to handle the situation real well today. Broadrick is a real good amateur but that father (Carl) son (Brad) team was the big factor."

"Hopefully, I brought along a little cheer," he said. His team's 14-under-par total was due to consistency, Hardy said. "Yes we had a wind factor out there but it was no different for any of the other people. We capitalized when the wind was behind us."

Fort Worth's Rick Pobst, whose team shot a 64, explained his group's chances. "We just can't make any mistakes. We bogeyed four holes today. Now we know which holes to attack and which to play safe." Another pro, Rich Richardson of Mesquite, said, "The guys with the handicaps are going to have to make their pars."

Hardy's foursome recorded birdies on holes 1, 2, 3, 6, 8 and 9 on the front nine in their way to a 29. They birdied 10, 11 and 14 before getting an eagle on Brad Small's handicap on No. 15. They finished with birdies on 16 and 18 to complete a no-bogey round.

Bishop's group was just as good. Sharpnack helped out with an eagle on No. 2 while Rogers used his handicap for an eagle on No. 12. They had nine birdies on the day and also played without a bogey.

Hammer's group was only two under after nine holes but blistered the back nine with a 26 which included Welch's ace — the first of his 20-year golfing career — on No. 13.

Holmes plans aggressive fight tonight against Witherspoon

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — If heavyweight champion Larry Holmes gets Tim Witherspoon in trouble in tonight's World Boxing Council title fight, don't expect him to back off. He won't have to think twice about finishing the job.

"You can't let it slide," said Holmes. "I saw a fight Sunday that could have been stopped. The guy had four cuts, over his eye, under his eye. He took 40 stitches, but they gave him the decision. I don't want to take no chances. I'm going out there fighting."

The Sunday fight Holmes referred to was WBC featherweight champion Bobby Chacon's bloody 12-round decision over Cornelius Boza-Edwards, which started a headline week of boxing along the Vegas Strip.

It continued Wednesday night when Bruce Curry won a unanimous 12-round decision over LeRoy Haley and captured the WBC super lightweight title.

Besides Holmes and Witherspoon, Friday's Crown Affair card has Michael Dokes defending his World

Boxing Association heavyweight title against ex-champ Mike Weaver.

The program is being co-promoted by Don King and RSVP, a pay-per-view cable television venture of the ABC and ESPN networks.

Chacon's fight against Boza-Edwards seemed on the brink of being stopped a number of times when the ringside physician had to examine the sliced-up champion. Each time, however, it was allowed to continue and Chacon survived the cuts and scored a unanimous decision.

Holmes took note of that unexpected development. He also remembered the abrupt, controversial ending of the first Dokes-Weaver bout when the title changed hands as Referee Joey Curtis halted the fight after just 63 seconds. Strange things sometimes happen in boxing. So, he will take no chances.

"Joey Curtis is not qualified to referee," said Holmes. "He should be an amateur referee. But he

Rockets grab Ralph Sampson

HOUSTON (AP) — Knowing their team will draft Virginia center Ralph Sampson next month, Houston Rockets fans flooded the switchboards with orders for about 300 season tickets, a club official estimated.

"Everyone is so excited," Cathy Bartley, the team's assistant general manager, said after Houston won a coin flip with the Indiana Pacers Thursday and gained the right to draft the 7-foot-4 Sampson on June 28.

Ms. Bartley estimated 2,000 people called the Rockets' switchboard after the coin flip, but added, "there's no way of telling. You see six lines that light up, light up, light up." "This is the biggest response we've had since we came to Houston in 1972," she said. She said fans ordered about 300 season tickets, which sell for between $252 and $588.

Michael Griffin, owner of Grif's Shillelagh Inn, which caters to sports fans, said his clientele generally agrees that the chance to draft Sampson and the likelihood the club will hire Tom Heinsohn as head coach gives the Rockets "something positive to start with."

The Rockets finished the season 14-68, the worst in the National Basketball Association.

"He's supposed to be a real nice guy," Griffin said of Sampson. "He's growing too. Moses (Malone) developed and got better." The 6-11 Malone carried the Rockets for several seasons. He became a free agent after the 1982 season and signed a contract with the Philadelphia 76ers, who will pay him $13.2 million over six years.

Ms. Bartley said Rockets owner Charlie Thomas has said it is "99 percent sure" that the team will hire Heinsohn as head coach. The job came open when Del Harris resigned at the end of this season.

Heinsohn led the Boston Celtics to two world championships before leaving basketball in 1978. He was traveling on a promotional tour for Miller Brewing Co. Thursday and could not be located for comment, a Miller spokeswoman said.

Tigers snap Rangers' streak at 4

DETROIT (AP) — Texas Manager Doug Rader felt he had to do something, even if it was wrong — and, as it turned out, it was.

Rader lifted Rangers starter Mike Smithson with the bases loaded after 9 1-3 innings Thursday night only to have Detroit pinch-hitter John Wockenfuss hit a sacrifice fly off Frank Tanana to give the Tigers a 2-1 victory.

It snapped the Rangers' winning streak at four games and the Tigers' losing streak at three.

"Anything I do there is wrong," Rader said. "I was just dodging bullets, really. Mike wasn't throwing that poorly, but I had to force them into doing something with Lou Whitaker; he already had hit two long balls to left field."

Smithson, 3-2, allowed just seven hits, walking two and striking out four.

However, the Tigers' Milt Wilcox was even better. The veteran right-hander scattered four hits, walking three and striking out five in evening his record at 4-4.

Despite the extra inning, the game — played before 5,868, the smallest Tiger Stadium crowd since September 1977 — was over in two hours and 31 minutes.

Wilson and Rick Leach opened the Detroit 10th with singles off Smithson and Enos Cabell ran for Wilson. The runners were sacrificed along by Tom Brookens and Alan Trammell was given an intentional walk to load the bases.

San Antonio faces LA in must-win situation

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley isn't worried because his Lakers have to travel to San Antonio to beat the Spurs.

Riley just wants his team to pick up one more road victory tonight for the National Basketball Association Western Conference title and a shot at Philadelphia in the best-of-seven NBA championship series.

San Antonio beat the Lakers' 117-112 Wednesday night to cut the Los Angeles lead to 3-2. The Spurs still must win here tonight to stay alive.

If necessary, a seventh game would be played Sunday in Los Angeles.

"We won two in San Antonio this past weekend," Riley said after Wednesday's home loss. "I know we can go down there and win another."

Spurs Coach Stan Albeck couldn't decide if playing at home was an advantage or a handicap.

Despite sellout playoff crowds and rabid fans, San Antonio is winless in Texas in the series. The Lakers have taken only one home game, the series opener.

Los Angeles swept San Antonio 4-0 in last year's Western Conference final.

Chiles now mad about his Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The lofty standing of the Texas Rangers atop the American League West has caused the majority owner of the Texas Rangers to do a turn-about from the way he often feels.

Oilman Eddie Chiles, 72, gained fame in past years by going on the radio to proclaim that "I'm Eddie Chiles, and I'm mad about..." various things, usually liberal Democrats.

Chiles says, he is mad about his Rangers.

"I'm afraid it's just a dream and I'll wake up," Chiles told The Associated Press Friday. "There's no way I could be any more pleased than I am."

The 72-year-old Chiles has caught flak from the local press since he took command of the team in 1980. It reached its thickest after the team lost 98 games last year.

The chief executive officer of The Western Company was criticized for trying to operate the Rangers as if they were an offshore drilling platform. Chiles fired Manager Don Zimmer and General Manager Eddie Robinson last year.

But he has been strictly low-profile since he hired Joe Klein as the new vice president and general manager and Doug Rader as field manager.

Chiles flew back from Venezuela Wednesday night in Tanana relieved Smithson but Wockenfuss lofted a high fly to the warning track in left on a 3-2 pitch and Cabell tagged up and scored easily.

In the Rangers' third, Wayne Tolleson beat out an infield single, moved to second when Mickey Rivers walked, took third on Buddy Bell's grounder and scored on Pete O'Brien's grounder.

Mariners 1, Angels 0

Strong pitching is getting to be old hat for Seattle rookie Matt Young.

The 24-year-old left-hander fired a four-hitter for his first shutout and first complete game in nine major league starts Thursday night as the Mariners nipped the slumping California Angels on Jamie Allen's suicide squeeze bunt in the eighth inning.

Young, 5-3, has won four of his last five starts, allowing only two earned runs in his last 44 innings. He is especially tough on left-handed hitters who are only 5-for-42 against him this season.

"I feel I can go right after people," Young said after his three-walk, seven-strikeout gem. "If they hit it, they hit it. I'm just on one of those rolls right now where things are going my way. If they hit the ball hard, they hit it right at the shortstop. You try to shut them out inning for inning. You just go after each batter. I try to keep the ball away and get ahead on the count. If you get ahead, you don't have to come in."

In other American League action, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Toronto Blue Jays 2-1, the Boston Red Sox downed the Minnesota Twins 4-1 and the Detroit Tigers shaded the Texas Rangers 2-1 in 10 innings. In the only National League game, the San Diego Padres defeated the New York Mets 3-2.

Julio Cruz opened the Seattle eighth with a double off Ken Forsch and moved to third on a pickoff throwing error by the California pitcher. After pinch hitter Ken Phelps walked, Cruz broke for the plate and Allen bunted to Forsch, whose only play was to first.

The Angels had a chance to score in the seventh when they loaded the bases with two out, but Young retired Juan Beniquez on a fly ball.

Orioles 2, Blue Jays 1

Dan Ford's two-out, two-run homer in the eighth inning and the six-hit pitching of Scott McGregor and two relievers led Baltimore to its fourth consecutive victory. Ford's fourth home run of the season came after John Shelby doubled off Toronto starter Mike Morgan. McGregor, who won for the first time since April 29, lost a bid for the Orioles' third straight shutout when Cliff Johnson hit his fifth home run with one out in the bottom of the ninth.

"Traveling on my (31st) birthday and then finding it raining when we got here, I didn't exactly have a chance to do the things I wanted to," said Ford, who has the game-winning RBI in the last three games. "I think I'll go back to the hotel and do something there."

Holmes

won't referee any of my fights."

Holmes won't get any argument on that count from Weaver, who lost his title to Dokes when Curtis halted their fight barely a minute into the first round.

The referee's reasoning was that after Weaver had gone down under Dokes' early barrage, he did not want a repeat of the Duk Koo Kim tragedy. The Korean had been killed in the same ring a month earlier.

Weaver shrugged off that explanation.

"No matter what excuses they use, they shouldn't have stopped it," he said. "No punches were being thrown when they stopped it. The fight game is a very crooked game. Not the game itself, but the people in time to see his Rangers take over undisputed first place in the western division by a game over California.

He saw Texas defeat Cleveland 3-2 in 14 innings and was cautiously optimistic about the rarified first-place air.

"I'm not saying we have arrived but it appears we have," Chiles said. "There are a lot of games left to play and it's too early to judge. I'm not letting myself think we have totally solved our problems."

Texas lost in Detroit, 2-1, in 10 innings Thursday night, but remained in first place because California also lost, by 1-0 to Seattle.

Chiles said Klein and Rader have more than exceeded expectations.

"They are the kind of men I thought they would be," he said. "We looked the country over and they filled the bill. They have outdone themselves."

Klein was director of player procurement and development for the Rangers for three years. He managed 10 years in the minor leagues.

The feisty Rader, a former major league third baseman, managed Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League three years.

Asked about his low-key status this year, Chiles said, "It's really not my style to be visible. I had to do it because there were no other answers to the problems of that time."

"I'm not the type of executive to do everybody else's job. It's been proven that you get much better results by getting good people and letting them do the job."

Chiles said some of the criticism he received was unfair but understood "those kind of things go with the territory in baseball. It's part of the obligation."

He said he had no apologies.

"I made up my mind to do what I thought was right regardless of trying to please anybody," Chiles said. "I was trying to accomplish a purpose."

Chiles has been so removed from the day-to-day operations of the Rangers in Venezuela that he was getting reports a day late.

"That's a great sports country but there is a time lag," Chiles said.

Chiles concluded, "I can take no credit in the job being done (by Klein and Rader). They did it. I don't get involved."

Then he laughed.

"Oh, I will take credit for hiring those guys if you want to give it to me."

Schlichter suspended from NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Schlichter, the Baltimore Colts' reserve quarterback who admitted earlier this year that he ran up $389,000 in gambling debts, was suspended indefinitely today by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle for betting on NFL games and other sports events.

Under league bylaws, Rozelle had the option of fining the 23-year-old Schlichter, suspending him or ending his NFL career if he knowingly associated with gamblers or was involved in gambling activity.

Schlichter is definitely out for the 1983 season. Rozelle said his status would be reviewed prior to the 1984 campaign.

The former Ohio State star is the first NFL player to be suspended for gambling violations since Rozelle benched Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers and Alex Karras of the Detroit Lions before the 1963 season for betting on league games.

In a lengthy statement issued by the league, Rozelle said Schlichter had admitted placing "sizeable bets on at least 10 NFL games during the 1982 season and postseason," but that he never bet on or against the Colts and that he never attempted to influence the outcome of a game. Schlichter also admitted to betting on other pro team sports.

"After a thorough review of an investigation conducted by our security department and a private four-hour hearing with Art Schlichter and his attorneys and advisers, I have today notified Schlichter that he is suspended indefinitely from the National Football League for violations of long-standing NFL rules regarding gambling on league games and association with illegal gambling activities," Rozelle's statement said.

He also said he told Schlichter that "prior to the 1984 season, his status will be reviewed and an application for reinstatement will be considered based upon all evidence available at that time."

The commissioner said several psychiatrists had diagnosed Schlichter as a compulsive gambler. "While I have compassion for him and his illness," Rozelle said, "an NFL player with his record of gambling, whether prompted by uncontrollable

The Colts issued a brief statement saying: "We accept the commissioner's judgment on the Art Schlichter matter. We only hope that Arthur's rehabilitation from his problem is successful. We look forward to having him back with the Baltimore Colts when the National

Church observes anniversary

By RHONDA WITT
 Church Editor
 The First United Methodist Church of Big Spring is celebrating its 100th anniversary. According to most history books, the church began July 16, 1883, Keith Wiseman, pastor of the church, said. In 1883, there was neither a church nor school in Howard County.

ORIGINAL BUILDING — The First United Methodist Church at Fourth and Scurry as it appeared in 1884. It was the first church in Howard County.

The Methodist Church was the first church in Howard County to be organized. In Nov. 1882, eight people met in the home of Dr. D. W. McIntyre. Names on the roll were McIntyre, Rossiter, J.C. Smith, Weymen, Painter, Sutton, Zinn and Miss Maggie Black. Their slogan was "Do all to the glory of God."

Rev. J. B. Thomas was the first preacher. He held services in the District Court Room until the church was built in 1884.

The first Sunday School Superintendent was Mr. R.B. Zinn.

John A. Wallace, first presiding elder, helped organize the first Ladies Aid Society. The society bought the corner lot at Fourth and Scurry for $350 and "felt they had been robbed."

In 1884, the first building was erected. A revival led by Rev. R.A. Green was held. Mrs. R.B. (Mary) Zinn, fondly called "Mother Zinn," and "Auntie Weymen" built the first pulpit for the church with their hands. In November 1952, the new sanctuary was opened. It was erected at a cost of $317,695.75. In a ten day period, the church managed to raise $303,000 for the cause.

Pastors who have served the church are the Reverends Thomas, T.H. Wallace, J.T.L. Annis, Z.A. Green, Vardell, L.M. Moody, Nat Reed, C.L. Browning, W.H. Crawford, W.L. Harris, C.D. West, B.H. Bennett, C.W. Irwin, C.A. Evans, W.S.P. McCullough, J.T. Nix, C.W. Herron, C.A. Moore, D.B.

Doak, M. Phelan, W.C. Hinds, W.G. Bailey, J. Richard Spann, C.A. Binkley, Will C. House, J.O. Haymes, Clyde Smith, C.A. Long and Alsie H. Carleton. Since 1952, pastors have been Jordan Grooms, D. Seago, H. Clyde Smith, Leo Gee, J.B. Sharp, Bill Fleming, Weldon Bulter, Edwin Chappell, and Keith Wiseman.

The church is celebrating its anniversary in three different stages. Alsie Carleton, pastor from 1948-52, was here for a special service on April 10. Following services, there was an open house at the parsonage, 101 Washington. Carleton was here when the sanctuary and parsonage was built.

On July 24, Dr. Grooms of Amarillo will be guest speaker. All former preachers and youth directors are invited. Following Sunday morning services, there will be a luncheon.

Sometime in November, Bishop Louis W. Schwengerdt will be guest speaker.

Rev. Wiseman said these were the activities the committee decided on. "We're a busy church and the ordinary things keep us busy," he said.

Sunshine kids help children

The "Stars of Gospel Music" sponsored by the Sunshine Kids will be in the Big Spring High School Auditorium, July 16 at 7 p.m.

The Sunshine Kids Foundation, a non-profit volunteer organization, is dedicated to provide activities for children with life-threatening disease, especially cancer and leukemia.

The foundation's objectives are that through the process of giving love and support to children who are seriously ill, a degree of quality is added to their lives. The goal is to strive to provide positive activities designed to meet special medical needs of hospital patients. This provides them with an opportunity to become involved in the process of living.

A child due to the seriousness of his illness is often required to spend much of his time in a hospital receiving medical treatment.

The Sunshine Kids also sponsor local activities for children from hospitals, the National Sunshine Kids Hotline which provides free telephone communication for young cancer patients, the Sunshine Kids House which plans to establish a retreat house for the use of children and families, and Sunshine Flyers, a network of corporate and privately owned aircraft to assist in transporting Sunshine Kids. National Sunshine Kids Winter Games, a rehabilitation ski activity designed to meet the special needs of hospital cancer patients is also an activity of the Sunshine Kids. Unhappy elephant relocated REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Tina was like a lot of New Yorkers. Living in a space that was too small, she became unhappy, lost weight and lashed out at the people who cared for her.

Now she's moved to sunny California, gained 500 pounds and has a new outlook on life.

Tina, the 26-year-old elephant who got a bad reputation in New York's Central Park Zoo after she attacked two trainers, now leads the good life at Marife World-Africa U.S.A.

A few months ago, Tina went on the auction block because remodeling plans at the Central Park Zoo didn't include replacing her little compound. But she attracted few buyers, partly because the crabby behemoth had crushed the arm of one trainer, stomped on another's foot and had an unpleasant habit of flailing her trunk at humans.

She reportedly spoiled one sale by charging the visiting director of the Syracuse Zoo. A few circus and Marine World were the only places that expressed an interest in buying Tina, according to David Blasko, Tina's trainer in Redwood City.

"We can always use another elephant," said Blasko, 28. Marine World won the bidding, spending a bargain $5,000 on Tina. She was shipped west in February.

The California sun seems to agree with her. She lumbers around with other elephants at the park south of San Francisco. She gets a stroll around the park every few days to teach her the grass is good to eat.

As a veteran of a concrete urban zoo, "She never knew grass before," Blasko said. He also has an explanation for Tina's bad reputation.

"She was probably pretty bored (in New York) ... and got attention by being bad, just like spoiled kids," he said. "I don't think they mistreated her, but she was neglected from lack of knowledge."

He also suspects that some of her devility may have been magnified as "Tina the Elephant" stories cropped up in newspapers and on television.

When Tina arrived, she was weak from lack of exercise and weight loss. That made her easier to approach, said Blasko, who said getting her used to people was half the battle.

Tina's hip bones still show, but a diet of a dozen loaves of sourdough bread every day, along with oranges and vegetables, is fattening her up. She still has about a ton to go to bring her up to a normal 10,500 pounds on a nine-foot frame.

And although she's calmed down considerably since her arrival, Tina still needs to be treated with a bit of caution.

"Respect her and she'll respect you ... but all elephants have the potential for violence," Blasko said. "They have unbelievable strength."

Meanwhile, New Yorkers have not forgotten Tina. Blasko — who was quoted in some New York news articles about Tina's new life — says he gets mail each week from her East Coast fans.
