Man kidnapped, freed unharmed

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

It was not business as usual yesterday for Roy Lee Powell.

The owner of Al's Trading Post at 2607 W. Highway 80 was robbed at knife point yesterday morning at his shop, bound with a shoelace, driven about 180 miles away from Big Spring and dumped near the junction of Interstate Highways 20 and 10.

Powell told police last night, about 14 hours after he had been abducted, that a black male walked into his business at 10 a.m. and flashed a butcher knife at him. The man robbed Powell of $250 cash, five watches, five rings and five knives. Then he tied Powell's hands with a shoelace from a pair of sneakers at the store and took him for a ride in a truck.

Where did they go?

"Good God, all over the country," Powell said this morning. "He got himself lost and me too."

Powell said they went to various spots in Lomax, Midland and Stanton.

"He finally kicked me out on a service road on Interstate 10, about three miles from Interstate 20," Powell said.

Powell said he walked back to Interstate 20 and four miles west before he caught a ride to Pecos. There he filed a report at the sheriff's department and called his wife.

Pecos issued an all points bulletin at 10 p.m. for the kidnapper's arrest. No one has been arrested in connection with the case.

Someone gave Powell a ride to Odessa where his wife and a friend picked him up and brought him back to Big Spring.

"I got to bed at 4:30 this morning, trying to get all this (police reports) done," Powell said.

His experience didn't keep him from work today, though.

"I'm up and going again today," he said.

Judge approves two more liquor licenses

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Judge Bill Carter approved two more liquor store applications Monday but denied a third because of questions about the applicant's character and involvement with a church at his store.

Carter approved a wine and beer permit for Joe E. Davis of Abilene, owner of Skinny's Convenience Food Store at 542 Hickory. J. Martin Bassinger of Slaton was granted a package store permit for B&B Liquor Store at 548 N. Interstate Highway 20.

Those are the third and fourth licenses granted by Carter since Mitchell County Precinct 3 voted in April to allow liquor sales for off-premises consumption.

However, Carter turned down an application from Bob Tammen, owner of Bojo's convenience store at the entrance to Lake Colorado City.

Tammen's hearing was an extended session as Carter heard motions from Tammen's attorney, John W. Smith of Odessa. The court called six witnesses of its own to the stand.

Smith asked Carter to remove himself from the case and requested the local bar association elect a judge to hear the testimony.

Carter denied the motion by quoting from the Texas Criminal Code. "Prejudice of the judge is not grounds for disqualification," he read.

Smith said Tammen's hearing was not a criminal proceeding and Carter was acting as an advocate of the people of Mitchell County, as well as himself. He told Carter, "to get yourself a neutral judge in See LIQUOR, page 2A

Holiday slate listed

Employees of the Big Spring Herald will not work regular hours Monday — Memorial Day — and will be observing early deadlines this week in preparation for the day.

Ads for Monday's and Tuesday's papers should be in, to the Herald by 5 p.m. Thursday. The deadline for Wednesday's paper is 5 p.m. Friday.

The deadline for classified word ads for Tuesday is 11:30 a.m. Monday.

Liquor sales 'great success' in Precinct 3

COLORADO CITY — Liquor sales began Friday in Mitchell County Precinct 3, and the manager of the first store to start selling termed the weekend a "great success."

The Outpost, owned by Gary Harkins of Big Spring and James Beavers of Colorado City, opened at 7 p.m. Friday and had run out of beer by 9 p.m., according to Beavers' wife Sally.

She declined to say how much beer and wine had been sold over the weekend.

"They brought another stock of Coors and other beers Saturday morning, and we were sold out of Coors Sunday night," she said.

Mrs. Beavers said the store experienced no problems with customers.

"We had a lot of people from Snyder and the lake (Lake Colorado City State Park). It was pretty hectic, but there was nothing serious.

Colorado City Police Chief Ed Wheat said this morning that the city experienced no problems resulting from the sales.

A task force composed of city police, Mitchell County sheriff's deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety officers arrested 15 persons for DWI or public intoxication over the weekend.

Breathless

Journalist takes off for Air Force test

Herald Staff Writer Mike Downey recently traveled to Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio for a test to qualify for high altitude flying. His article is presented in two parts.

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

We sat nervously, oxygen masks dangling, waiting for the sudden change from 8,000 feet to 22,000 feet like the Air Force crewman warned. His last words: don't hold your breath or the air will rip right through your chest.

When the change came, air was literally yanked out of the lungs; fog filled the air; everyone grappled to "gangload" oxygen and hastily fasten masks before hypoxia set in.

Luckily, we were on the ground at Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio. At the Harmon Bartley Altitude Laboratory, "we" were nine journalists taking the altitude chamber decompression test.

Passing the test qualifies one to travel on Air Force planes — such as the B-52 or possibly the B-1 someday — on trips to Europe and other far-flung places where American bases are located.

But first, we had to get to San Antonio to take the chamber test — a simple task that became humorously entangled.

THE JOURNEY

Since the invitation to take the chamber test came from Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, everyone assumed we would fly from there to San Antonio. But tactical maneuvers by the Dyess wing took every plane. We left Thursday night for Brooks in a blue Air Force van.

We broke down in Brady about 8:30 p.m. Unable to effect repairs, we waited at a Shamrock station in front of the Motel Plateau for a relief van from Dyess. As the hours crawled by, the group began getting silly, realizing it would be dawn before the Alamo City came into view.

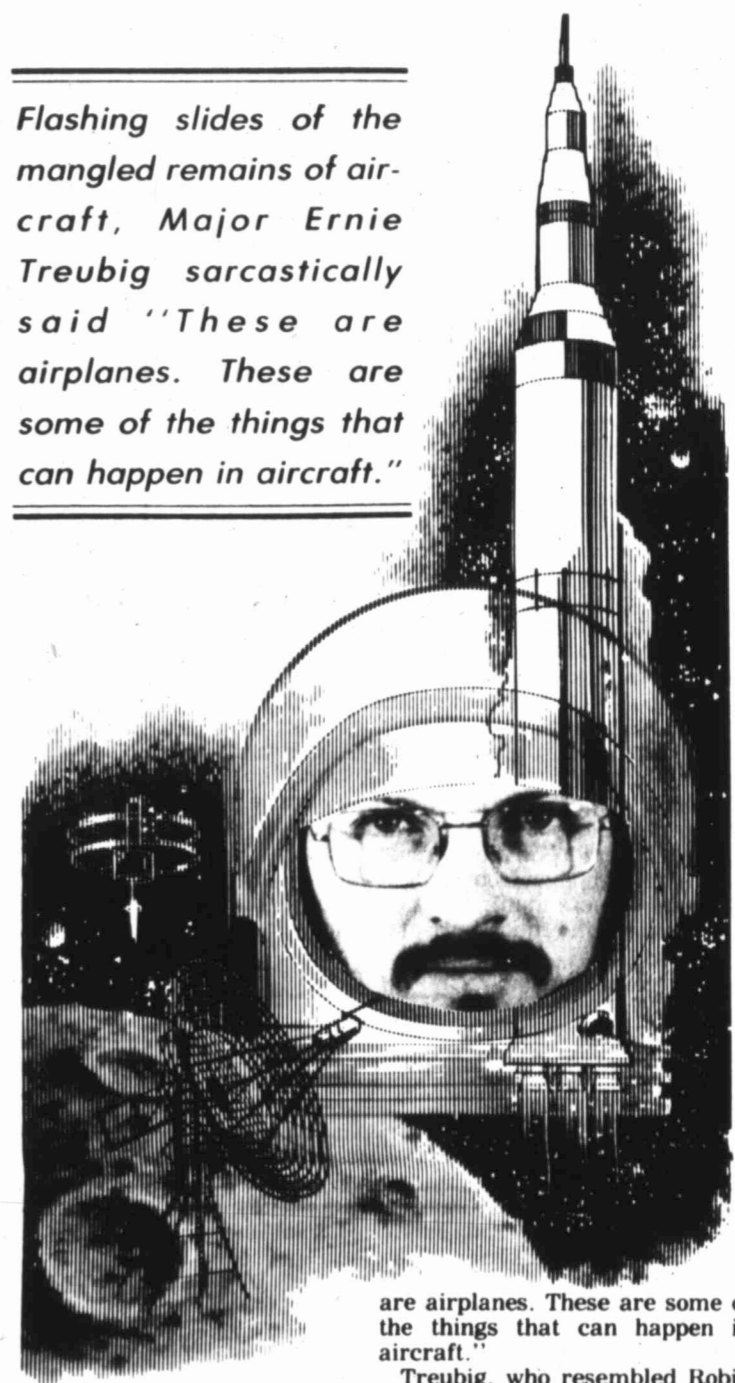

The stories began. Our guide, Sgt. Ralph Hogan of Public Affairs, talked a little about Vietnam. One story was the immediate sobering of a group of drunk airmen in a Saigon bar when a 30-foot king cobra sailed through.

"They call them '2-step Charlies,'" Hogan said. "You get about two steps and you're dead."

The lone female, a globe-trotting aviatrix/writer, regaled us with tales of experiences in Europe and elsewhere.

She recalled being terrified on a train full of punk rockers in are airplanes. These are some of the things that can happen in aircraft."

Traubig, who resembled Robin Williams without hair, said the pictured wreck resulted from the crew's lack of awareness about things the chamber test would reveal.

The primary problem is hypoxia, Traubig said, the impairment of body functions caused by oxygen deficiency in the lungs, brain, blood and feet. Hypoxia renders a person incapable of effectively doing his job — flying the plane in most cases — and can even cause unconsciousness, he said.

England after the Air Force accidentally lost her, broiling on a plane in Turkey after the hostages were taken in Iran, and surrounded in some jungle nation by natives who had not discovered clothing yet.

Finally, our relief arrived at 1:30 a.m. We pulled into Brooks about 5:30 a.m. With a 7:30 a.m. test time, everyone managed a shower and change of clothes, but no sleep or breakfast.

Big Spring's unemployment rate falls for first time in months, figures say

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Big Spring's unemployment rate has declined for the first time in three months, according to Texas Employment Commission figures.

April's statistics showed the city as having an 8.6 percent jobless rate — two-tenths of a percent below March's rate. Previously, the rate had risen 1.8 in January and 1 percent in February.

Local TEC supervisor Joe Wallis said the declining rate may be a trend, but he is remaining cautious in his judgment.

"Hopefully, it's beginning to turn down, but we'll just have to wait and see what happens when the graduating seniors hit the job market," Wallis said.

Wallis said his office had already begun to see an influx of summer job hunters from area schools. Last year's statistics show that the jobless rate climbed 1 percent in May, perhaps due to students entering the job market.

April's statistics show the labor force increased from 17,954 in March to 18,006. The number of persons employed increased from 16,372 to 16,449.

While more persons were in the job market and more were employed over last month, the number of persons out of work decreased from 1,582 to 1,557, according to statistics.

Texas and the nation as a whole experienced a decrease in unemployment as the state rate dropped from 9 percent to 8.1 percent. The national figure fell from 10.8 percent to 10 percent.

Here is the Texas Employment Commission's list of area cities and their unemployment percentages for April, compared with the figures for March, which are in parentheses:

Abilene, (5.6) 5.2; Amarillo, (5.9) 5.3; Lubbock, (5.8) 5.4; Midland, (5.9) 5.6; Odessa (9.6) 9.4; San Angelo, (6.3) 5.1.

Analyst says rise is 'temporary blip'

April consumer prices up .6 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising gasoline and housing costs sent consumer prices up 0.6 percent last month, the biggest jump in nine months, the government said today.

For the first four months of 1983, however, consumer prices rose at an annual rate of just 2.1 percent. Many economists say inflation for all of 1983 could match — or better — last year's 3.9 percent and one analyst called the April increase "a temporary blip."

Largely responsible for the April rise, the Labor Department said in today's report, was a 4 percent rise in gasoline prices, the result of the federal government's nickel-a-gallon tax hike April 1 and a general firming-up of retail prices.

Gasoline prices, down generally for the last two years, had tumbled a full 1 percent in March.

Also responsible for last month's increase in the Consumer Price Index was a 0.5 percent gain in housing prices.

Food prices were up, too, but the 0.5 percent rise was off from March's 0.6 percent hike. Fresh fruit and vegetable costs, reflecting the scarcities brought on by unusually cold and wet conditions in much of the country, rose 1 percent, down from the whopping 4.4 percent increase of the previous month. In the last two months, fresh vegetable prices have risen 17.7 percent.

Medical care costs matched their 0.5 percent increase of March, well below the pace such prices had set in the preceding months. Even so, those costs have soared 9.9 percent in the last 12 months.

Consumer prices overall have risen a modest 3.9 percent in the last year.

If April's 0.6 percent seasonally adjusted increase held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 7.2 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly prices than the figure made public.

Consumer prices rose a tiny 0.1 percent in March after falling 0.2 percent in February and rising 0.2 percent in January. Inflation last rose at a 0.6 percent clip in July.

In advance of today's report, Ted Gibson, an economist at San Francisco's Crocker National Bank, said the anticipated April jump in prices would be "a temporary blip in the index."

"We don't think it's a fundamental upward shift in the rate of inflation," he said.

The bright inflation news has been widely attributed to the serious recession, from which the economy is rebounding, and the worldwide oil glut, which has produced a 14.1 percent drop in the record gasoline prices of two years ago.

Energy prices generally have been firming up in recent months, however, and that showed in last month's increases for gasoline and natural gas, up 1.8 percent. Fuel oil price fell 2.7 percent, almost half the record 5.2 percent drop of March.

The department reported these other, seasonally adjusted, details of last month's price activity:

— Besides the gains posted for fresh fruits and vegetables, prices also rose for beef, up 2.1 percent after declines in the preceding four months. Pork and poultry prices fell, but egg prices were up. Alcoholic beverage prices rose 0.4 percent, as did the costs of meals at restaurants.

— Transportation costs, which include gasoline prices, surged upward 1.1 percent, the first increase in that overall category since October. Automobile finance charges fell 2.8 percent, their ninth monthly drop in a row. New car prices declined 0.1 percent while used car prices rose 0.2 percent.

— Entertainment costs fell 0.1 percent, the first decline since April 1977.

Largely responsible for the 0.5 percent gain in housing costs overall was a sharp 0.8 percent increase in the department's calculation of homeownership costs.

In January, the department changed the way it measures homeownership costs by calculating how much homeowners would charge if they rented their homes.

SWEET SPAN — Sam Morris, a pastry chef at the New York Hilton, poses with a replica of the Brooklyn Bridge in New York Monday. He created the cake to commemorate the bridge which is 100 years old today. The cake, which weighs around 200 pounds, will remain in the lobby of the hotel for the four-month Brooklyn Bridge Centennial Celebration.

Bridge is century old

NEW YORK (AP) — The Brooklyn Bridge, whose soaring granite towers and graceful steel cables inspired painters and poets, filmmakers and flimflam men, passed the century mark today, still recognized as an engineering marvel from a proud, young America.

About 15,000 marchers, many in period costumes, prepared to walk this morning across the suspension bridge that linked the nation's first- and third-largest cities on May 24, 1883.

Its 276-foot towers dwarfed any other buildings; its 5,989-foot span made it the longest in the world. It was the first bridge to use steel wire; it was the first to use electric lighting across a river.

Other plans for the birthday celebration included a flotilla of ships and boats on the East River below, formal rededication ceremonies, and a sound-and-light show and massive fireworks display tonight for tens of thousands of people expected to jam lower Manhattan and the Brooklyn shoreline.

The bridge, originally intended for horse-drawn carriages and now carrying 110,000 cars each weekday, was closed at midnight for the big day. A complement of 3,000 officers was assigned to direct traffic, keeping in mind the structure's first party 100 years ago, when newspaper headlines reported "IMMENSE CROWDS ATTRACTED BY THE CEREMONIES."

The bridge, painstakingly assembled with hand-made rivets and more than 14,000 miles of wire, took 14 years to build at a cost of more than $15 million. It claimed at least 20 lives, and its designer, John A. Roebling, never lived to see it finished; he died of tetanus when his foot was crushed as he surveyed the Brooklyn site.

His son, Washington, directed construction of the bridge, though he became an invalid after suffering the bends from his work in the bridge's underwater caissons. His wife, Emily, relayed his instructions to the builders.

"It is a bridge not only from New York to Brooklyn but also from that era to our own," said David McCullough, author of "The Great Bridge."

"What bridge?" wrote Thomas Wolfe in 1935. "Great God, the only bridge of power, life and joy, the bridge that was a span, a cry, an ecstasy — that was America."

The bridge unified two cities — Brooklyn and Manhattan were joined officially in 1898. Its fame has spread around the world. An Italian chewing gum called Brooklyn has the bridge's picture on the wrapper. A Netherlands man publishes a newsletter called the Brooklyn Bridge Bulletin. The bridge has been used recently to advertise Kentucky Fried Chicken and cowboy boots, and a revival of Arthur Miller's "View From The Bridge" is playing on Broadway. The movies "Annie Hall" and "Sophie's Choice" both included scenes from the bridge.

The story of its builders, the Roeblings, is told in "The Eighth Wonder," the sound-and-light show which debuts tonight. Paul Roebling, an actor and great-grandson of Washington Roebling, plays a part in the drama.

The inspiration for today's festivities was "People's Day," the celebration that marked the bridge's opening. On that day, President Chester Arthur came to New York to listen to speeches, attend grand receptions and witness one of the largest fireworks exhibitions of the time.

Spending bill ready for debate

AUSTIN (AP) — A compromise $30.8 billion state spending bill for 1984-85 has been cleared for debate in the closing days of the 67th Legislature.

House and Senate negotiators reached agreement late Monday, with little, if any, money left for a teachers pay raise.

"I'd guess there is between $40 million and $60 million available that could be used for teachers," said Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, one of the House members of the Appropriations Conference Committee.

"That's not enough. It would take at least $70 million for just a one percent across-the-board raise for teachers."

Rudd said if there is more money in the bill than appears, or if Comptroller Bob Bullock raises his estimate of state revenues the next two years, then the House-Senate negotiators might take another look at the teachers pay situation.

Jim Oliver, director of the Legislative Budget Board, said the remaining money left in the compromise of the House and Senate bills could range from $20 million to $50 million.

"We won't know until we count it up," Oliver said.

The compromise bill will be printed and distributed to House and Senate members for consideration before the end of the regular session next Monday midnight.

The compromise came from a House bill that totaled $30.8 billion from all funds and a Senate bill of $30.9 billion.

Neither bill contained a pay raise for teachers, as demanded by Gov. Mark White, other than the 2 to 9 percent automatic increases already in present law.

The 10-member conference committee gave state employees a pay raise of 4 percent in 1984 and 3 percent in 1985.

The 14 days of settling differences between the two bills ended when both houses finally agreed on a group of appropriations involving medical schools.

Under the agreement the Texas Osteopathic College of Medicine, Fort Worth, would get $10.5 million for a library and the Texas Tech Health Science Center, $12.5 million, to continue construction of a building.

Quarantine to be enforced on cattle

AUSTIN (AP) — The federal government is about to tell Texas it cannot ship cattle out of state, but Washington won't send nuclear waste in, according to U.S. Sen. John Tower.

Tower held the "good news-bad news" press conference after he addressed a joint session of the Legislature on Monday.

Texas faces a federal quarantine because the state's brucellosis control program has been overturned by state court decisions.

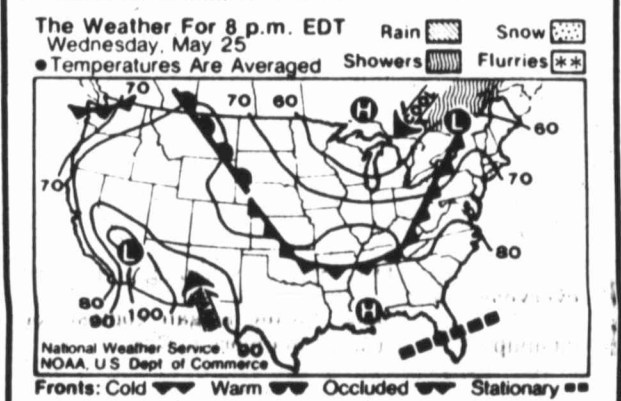

Tower said he talked Monday morning with U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block and that Block told him he felt "obliged to recommend a quarantine" and that "the papers had already gone to the White House."

South Texas rancher R.J. Nunley won a permanent injunction against enforcement of the program, and a lawsuit seeking to overturn that decision backfired when an Austin state district court ruled the whole program unconstitutional.

A measure that would revive Texas' brucellosis program and bring it into compliance with federal regulations has been approved by the House but still lacks a final vote in the Senate.

"If the legislation passed, a quarantine would not be necessary," Tower said.

Nicaragua learns it's a 2-way street

The communist Sandinistas who rule Nicaragua have, from the first day they seized power in 1979, intervened massively against the government of El Salvador by sending huge shipments of arms, ammunition and other equipment to the communist guerrillas in that country.

Furthermore, the U.S. government has documented the fact that the guerrilla war in El Salvador is being directed and coordinated from Managua. The Sandinistas also have provided training and financial support to the guerrillas seeking to topple the Salvadoran government.

BUT NOW THAT THE UNITED STATES is providing aid to Nicaraguan citizens battling the tyrannical Sandinista government, the Sandinistas are howling that they are victims of U.S. aggression. They have requested that the Security Council of the United Nations set up bilateral talks to end what they call "an invasion" of Nicaragua by troops supported by the United States.

U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, in announcing a rejection of the Nicaraguan complaint, said, "Nicaragua has once again come to us demanding of the U.N. international protection while it destabilizes its neighbors."

Kirkpatrick pointed out that the Sandinistas have repeatedly rebuffed peace plans advanced by the United States "based upon the termination of Nicaraguan support of guerrilla groups" in El Salvador.

Nicaragua went to the United Nations rather than the Organization of American States because it knows that members of the OAS are thoroughly familiar with the Sandinistas' all-out intervention in El Salvador and would give no sympathy to these communist dictators.

The Sandinistas also know that the same appeasement forces in the United States who cut off covert aid to Angola and who forced Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza to step down in favor of the communist Sandinistas, will side with them against President Reagan and others supporting the battle for freedom in Central America.

BUT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE have had more than enough of knuckling under to communist conquerors and, judging from reactions to the president's recent address on Central America, are ready to support much tougher policies to prevent the Soviet bloc from communizing all of Central America.

The Nicaraguans are learning that if they intervene in El Salvador it is a two-way street. They can't be taken seriously when they talk about wanting peace while they are making war on their neighbors.

Around the Rim

BY RICHARD HORN

The legend

Years ago, in the dim ages, in the valley of the Mississippi, lived a peaceful tribe of Indians.

YMCA Indian Guides, their name was.

Pals Forever was the motto of this tribe.

Pals they were.

My father and I... we were members. This was back in the dim 1960s, in the valley called Illinois. I was but seven years of age.

My father was Big Horn.

I was Little Horn. And proud of it.

Here is told the legend of our time together, on the shores of Lake Chicangua at Indian Guide camp.

A TALE OF FISHING

Big Horn baited Little Horn's hook after Little Horn did mutilate a multitude of minnows.

"It's not that hard, son," Big Horn said patiently. "Just keep your mind on what you're doing."

Little Horn looked across the wide lake at the deep, sunlit forest. A great bird circled above the far shore. Little Horn liked that.

"I know, Dad," he said. "I'll learn someday."

With hooks baited, the lines went into the water. Big Horn stretched back and lit his pipe. He was glad for rest.

Little Horn looked at his line drifting silently in the lake.

Seconds passed like a swift arrow through the night.

"This is boring," Little Horn said. "Let's go back to camp. I'm hungry."

Big Horn sighed. It was a strong sigh, a sigh forged from many such attempts to fish and relax with his young brave.

Big Horn was truly patient. Little Horn was truly not.

A TALE OF EATING

Big Horn sat with Big Running Lion at a long table with surface of oak. They were talking about computers. Big Horn smoked his pipe.

Little Horn sat with Little Running Lion at a long table with surface of oak, spilt maple syrup and pancake crumbs.

The braves were smearing the spilt maple syrup and pancake crumbs on Little Swift Fish. He was littler even than the other little ones.

Big Swift Fish, who was big indeed, asked Big Horn and Big Running Deer to tend to their braves or there would be big trouble.

The braves were tended to.

"I think you can behave better than that," Big Horn said, banging his pipe on the bottom of his shoe.

"Shall we just go home now?"

"Nooooo," Little Horn whined.

"We were just having fuuuun."

Big Horn sighed. Little Horn stole off into the wild night.

A TALE OF BATTLE

In the bunkhouse, a fat child was sitting on Little Horn's face threatening to beat him up. Little Horn was crying.

This child shall here be known as Little Stupid Jerk, for that is how he is remembered.

"All right twerp, say you're a twerp and I'll let you up!" Little Stupid Jerk yelled.

"Uhhmmnuhmmmm! Uhhmmnuhmmmm!" Little Horn said.

"Say you're a twerp! Say you're a twerp!"

And like a bolt of lightning did Big Horn pull Little Stupid Jerk off Little Horn's face.

"YOU'RE A TWERP!" Little Horn yelled through tears. He ran out of the bunkhouse.

But Big Horn did not speak with harsh voice to Little Stupid Jerk, for it was true Little Horn had run Little Stupid Jerk's underwear up the camp flagpole earlier that day.

Big Horn lit his pipe. He saved the harsh voice for his brave.

THE FINAL TALE

Big Horn and Little Horn stood side by side before a roaring fire. All the other braves and their fathers were there, too.

The stars were many and bright, the trees were majestic. The night was chill but full of wonder, happiness and memories being made.

Big Horn was smoking his pipe. He was dressed for the trip home.

Little Horn was eating a candy bar. He was covered with mud and milk, sticky jam and old food.

He was disgusting.

But together did they stand, and in tune not did they sing the song of their tribe.

Pals Forever.

Pals they are.

How to get a hi-tech job

Apparently the job market for college graduates is still in the hi-tech industries. The trouble is that most graduates don't know how to apply for a hi-tech job.

When Rod Beaver came home from an interview the other day he was very discouraged.

"The personnel director only spent three minutes with me and said I wasn't qualified."

"Of course you weren't qualified," his uncle, who works for IBM, told him. "Look at the way you're dressed. You're wearing a blue suit and a white shirt and a conservative tie. And you shaved. Is that any way to apply for a position in a hi-tech industry?"

Beaver said, "I don't understand. I wanted to make a good impression."

"You don't make a good impression in hi-tech by wearing a shirt and tie."

"I thought everyone at IBM had to wear a dark suit, shirt and tie."

"That was in the old days when it was important to look nice. If you want to be a salesman you can dress like that, but if you're going for the big money in programming and research they don't trust you if you're too well dressed."

"What should he have worn?" Beaver's mother asked.

"A sport shirt, blue jeans and open sandals. You have to look like a crazy genius before they take any interest in you. You kids think you can just walk into a hi-tech company all slicked and dressed up and they'll be impressed with you. But it isn't so. They want people who look like they know something about computers."

"I've got an outfit in my closet I can wear, and I'll go out for an interview this afternoon."

"Don't go out until you grow a beard. Hi-tech executives hate people who are clean shaven. And don't get a haircut for a while. You want to look like a gorilla if you hope to get the personnel director's attention."

"Does he have to grow a beard?" his mother asked.

"It could make the difference between $25,000 and $45,000 a year," his uncle said.

"That's not the correct reply. You say you have no idea, but you're willing to give it a try. Except you don't want to be bugged about how long it takes you to come up with something. And you don't want anyone checking on how many hours you put in."

"Does he have to be that surly?" his mother asked.

"There are hundreds of kids waiting out there for jobs in hi-tech, and all the companies are looking for are surly loners who don't want to be told what to do."

"If Rod is going to look unkempt and be surly how is he going to impress the hi-tech clients?" his mother wanted to know.

"If he gets the job he'll never see a customer. The people they hire for research and development are kept in a separate building in cages and they get a banana once or twice a day."

Rod thanked his uncle for the advice, and came back the next month to announce he got a job with the Apple Corporation. "I did everything you told me, and they were so impressed with the way I looked and how surly I was, they selected me over two guys from the Stanford Business School, and gave me a surfboard so I wouldn't get bored in my office."

"You don't say much. I'll be the personnel man. Now the first question I'll ask you is if you think you would be happy working for the company."

"Yes, sir. It's always been my dream to work for a company like this."

Jack Anderson

Anderson defends himself

WASHINGTON — A few days ago, I reported that nine members and former members of Congress, including Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., had been identified in testimony before a federal grand jury and the House Ethics Committee as persons who "may be using controlled substances purchased" through a Capitol Hill cocaine ring.

The story produced a mad rush to defend Kennedy. Joe Califano, who is running the House investigation, broke his customary silence about his closed-door findings. Nowhere in his files, he said, could he find any evidence against the senator.

I am happy to tell Califano, since he may have been too busy to check the voluminous files personally, where he can find the testimony against Kennedy. Look up Detective Michael Hubbard's sworn statements before an Ethics Committee session on Nov. 30, 1982.

As the undercover cop who broke the Capitol Hill narcotics ring, Hubbard was asked to report the results of his investigation. He named nine members of Congress who had been implicated in the cocaine scandal by three or more informants. Kennedy was one of the nine.

The Justice Department, picking up the cue from Califano, announced that its files also contained nothing that would implicate Kennedy. I can assist the Justice Department, too, since its file clerks seem to have overlooked the relevant grand jury transcripts. Check Hubbard's secret testimony before the grand jury on Jan. 12, 1983.

He repeated under oath the same information he had given the House Ethics Committee. If Justice has been unable to get the sworn corroboration it would like, it's because the reluctant prosecutors published the cocaine allegations against some of the accused congressmen, killed my column naming Kennedy. The newspaper's ombudsman, Robert J. McCloskey, invited me to defend what I had written. Then he produced a full column, justifying the Post's action and ignoring my detailed defense.

McCloskey's article misstated the case, beginning with the headline "The Anderson Allegations." I carefully explained to McCloskey that the allegations came not from me but from a law enforcement officer who had infiltrated the drug ring and had a better knowledge of the facts than anyone else; that he named the possible cocaine users under oath before both the grand jury and the Ethics Committee; that he based his testimony on his 18-month investigation and the statements of three or more informants.

McCloskey also committed an egregious sin by misquoting the article he was criticizing. He said I "admitted" that "there is no supporting evidence against these congressman so far as I know." He neglected to tell the Post's readers that the column they hadn't been allowed to see prefaced this statement with the phrase, "Except for the statements of the informants" — and that the partial disclaimer applied to only three of the accused congressmen.

McCloskey gave the impression that my column was based solely on the testimony of former Congressman Robert Dornan, who, in fact, did back up Hubbard's testimony and divulged the same names to the Ethics Committee. McCloskey was so inattentive to my explanations that he got Dornan's name wrong and called him Michael. Finally, if the Post insists on attributing the allegations to me, it might also attribute the denials to me. For the disputed column carried both.

Footnote: Apparently Califano has pulled back into his shell of silence. I tried to reach him to describe where he can find the testimony he implied did not exist. He failed to return my calls.

Billy Graham

Wife won't believe him

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you have any advice on how I can get my wife back? My drug habit destroyed our marriage, but now I think I have put all of that behind me. Now I would like to restore our marriage again but she refuses to have anything to do with me. — F.D.

DEAR F.D.: First of all, I am thankful you have gotten the upper hand in your battle against drugs. Perhaps your own testimony of the havoc it has brought to your life and your marriage will help someone right now who is struggling with temptation and has been deceived into thinking that drugs can bring real security and happiness.

I have no magic formula to give you which will guarantee that your wife will return to you. Perhaps you have made promises to her in the past that you have later broken, and she is therefore distrustful of what you say now. It may, therefore, take time for her to see that your life is really different. That is one reason why you need to keep on top of your temptations and not get discouraged and fall back into your old patterns of living.

But this is my real concern and I want to be honest with you — I am fearful that you will fall back into your old way of living and end up getting trapped permanently by drugs. The reason I say this is that your letter (which I have not quoted in full here) indicates that your main reason for getting off of drugs was self-preservation — the fear that you were destroying yourself.

But there is also to discover a greater, more glorious reason for living. I want you to come to realize that you can be God's child, and that the greatest purpose we can have on earth is to live for God.

Christ wants to change you — not just to take away a few bad habits you might have, but to turn you into a person who loves God and loves other people. Christ can make the difference — and if you allow him to change your life others — including your former wife — will see the change.

Acid rain found in state Silent Partners

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Tues., May 24, 1981

DALLAS (AP) — Acid rain has been found in Texas and although state officials say there's not enough to be hazardous, some scientists warn that now is the time to protect lakes and forests.

Acid rain, formed when sulfur dioxide mixes with atmospheric moisture to form sulfuric acid, was once thought to be limited to the Northeastern United States. But now acid rain has been found in Tyler, Beaumont, Houston, Galveston and Dallas, according to the Texas Air Control Board.

"There have been no adverse effects documented," Dr. Thomas H. Porter, a TACB environmental quality specialist, told The Dallas Morning News. "We know the lakes are OK ... Obviously, there have been single acid rains, but we are not justified to say that we have an acid rain problem."

Canadian scientists, however, warned at a recent University of Texas seminar in Austin that Texans should take action before the acid rain becomes more prevalent.

Dr. Harold Harvey of the University of Toronto warned Texans not to "wait until we have a large body count of dead lakes."

"East Texas is shown as one of the most sensitive areas of the Southeast" for possible acid rain damage, added Michael Perley of the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain.

Acid rain can cause a decrease in fish reproduction in lakes and damage forests, air pollution experts say. Nitrous oxide pollutants, primarily from automobiles, also are believed to help form acid rain.

So far, the TACB has found no damage to Texas lakes, rivers or forests.

The TACB said East Texas is believed to be most vulnerable to acid rain because its soil is naturally acidic.

Catalysts for acid rain include the state's petrochemical industry, chronic traffic congestion and 34 coal- or lignite-powered generating plants — which are high in sulfur, air pollution experts say. Some of them point to Mexico's petrochemical industry, which is not closely regulated, as a potential source of sulfur dioxide emissions.

San Miguel Electric Cooperative was fined $25,000 last October after the TACB determined that the cooperative's Atascosa County plant was emitting more sulfur dioxide than was allowed by the Texas Clean Air Act.

Tyler's pH has averaged 4.3 since 1980, but the reading has dropped as low as 3.5, which is more acidic, Porter said. He said pH readings have been as low as 3.0 in the Houston-Galveston area. The pH scale ranges from 0 to 14.

"A 4.3 pH is not as low as some places in the Northeast, but it is worthy of more study," he said. "I wouldn't wash it off as non-consequential."

Dallas rain was measured at 4.0 one day in 1981, while the average pH in Fort Worth last year was 5.5. Beaumont averaged 5.3 last year.

At least one lawsuit has been filed contending that sulfur pollutants damaged the health of a Franklin County couple and their cattle. Pete Schneider seeks about $500,000 in damages from Texas Utilities because of what he contends is negligence in operating the company's lignite plant in nearby Titus County.

'Kiss' member

runs from police

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Paul David "Ace" Frehley, a member of the rock group Kiss, led police on a 90 mph chase in a De Lorean sports car that ended after he ran several people off the road, police said.

Frehley "drove several people off the road" as he fled, Watson said, at times driving the wrong way in the northbound lanes.

Dear Abby

Husband adds to trauma

DEAR ABBY: I was raped four months ago in my own home by a "friend" of my husband. Because I wasn't beaten half to death or killed, my husband insists I must have led the guy on.

Now I'm living in hell, and wish to God I'd kept my mouth shut. It did me no good to tell — only harm. Why do men think a woman would lie about such a thing?

I had told my husband years ago to keep this guy away from our home because he had made passes at me, but he wouldn't listen. This "friend" had raped another woman, but he got off because he'd known her for a long time and she was too embarrassed to press charges. My husband knew all this, but he still accuses me of encouraging the guy.

If you had any idea of what I've been through, you'd know why so many rapes go unreported. I know there must be plenty of women who have been through the same thing. Maybe if you print this it will open the eyes of men who claim to love their wives, but blame them if they get raped.

My marriage is hanging by a thread. I've cried until there are no more tears. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest, Abby. I feel better already.

DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: Please call your local rape crisis facility without delay. It offers free counseling to women — even those who were raped years ago but have felt too guilty and ashamed to tell anyone.

Just being able to verbalize the terrifying experience with others who have shared that nightmare can be enormously therapeutic. And from what you have told me about your husband, he needs counseling to understand that you were the victim and deserve support and comfort — not blame.

Joanne Guitar, Howard County 4-H Shooting Sports Leader, was selected to receive Texas 4-H Outstanding Leader Award. Mrs. Guitar is one of 28 leaders in the state to receive this award. She will be honored at a banquet at College Station during the State 4-H Round-Up, June 7-9. Mrs. Guitar and her hus-

***

DEAR ABBY: How can I get my husband to be as romantic and thoughtful as he was before we were married?

Our first anniversary came and went. No flowers. No card. Nothing. That day really meant a lot to me, Abby. A holiday to him is just another day.

I'm a very sentimental person, and it hurts to be forgotten. I enjoy doing special things for him, but he never reciprocates. I know he loves me, but it would be nice to have some tangible evidence once in a while.

FEELING DEPRIVED

DEAR DEPRIVED: Wait for the appropriate time, then without being critical, judgmental or sulky, tell him you feel sad when he forgets those special occasions. And just to make sure he remembers, clip this column and tape it to his bathroom mirror the day before you want to be remembered.

Dr. Donohue

Deep vein clot a serious matter

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please give me some information on deep vein thrombophlebitis. Is it unusual for a patient to still have pain and swelling after three years? — L.L.D.

There are two sets of veins in the legs, one just under the skin, called superficial veins, and the other set deep in the leg muscles, called the deep veins. Thrombophlebitis is development of clots in any vein, but those occurring in deep veins, especially in those about the knee, are never treated lightly. They have the potential for breaking off the inner vein lining and being swept along to the lung. There, they can lodge in smaller lung vessels, occlude them, shutting off blood supply to that part of the lung. It's called pulmonary embolus. This rarely occurs in superficial veins.

I assume that you were treated for your clots. Blood thinners are often continued for months after the deep leg vein clot has disappeared. Then, usually everything is fine. A few people do suffer from post-phlebotic syndrome, a continued problem with blood flow in the deep veins, leading to the swelling and pain. You appear to fit into this syndrome.

Go back to your doctor and report your symptoms. He may want to have you fitted for pressure gradient stockings, the kind that gently squeeze leg tissue to promote blood flow to reduce swelling. Incidentally, the veins that cause the unsightly varicose problems, the veins you can see, are the superficial ones.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband is using one of the new patches for his angina pectoris control.

Should one be careful about applying these patches? For example, can the patch be covering a cut in the skin? Would more of the nitroglycerine be absorbed this way? — Mrs. P.T.

Such patches, which deliver the medicine by absorption over extended periods should not be placed over a cut in the skin because, as you suggest, the body can absorb more of the medicine than the doctor wishes.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I understand that honey should not be given to babies. Has this been linked to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome? — A.W.

Honey should not be given to young infants because of the danger of infant botulism. Cases have been reported in infants up to nine and one-half months. Usual age is 8-11 weeks. This does not apply to older infants or adults.

Botulism arises from a poison made by the germ, Clostridium botulinum, a germ found everywhere in nature. But the germ has to be able to make its poison in order to cause the illness (botulism). The usual way of getting botulism is through ingestion of foods contaminated with the poison, most often through inadequately preserved home-canned goods. The germ itself does not harm us. So what's the infant connection?

Infants get the illness in a different way. If they swallow food containing the germ, that germ survives in their stomachs and is able to make poison there. Botulinum germs (not the poison, mind you) may be found in honey so if the infant swallowed honey with the germs in it they could make their poison.

The signs would be a weakness and floppiness in the infant, and there would be trouble sucking and swallowing. While a serious illness, it rarely causes death, and has no connection with Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. Outside of the very young infant period, swallowing botulinum germs does not cause illness.

FOR L.F. — Yes, it's entirely possible that if you nicked yourself shaving, the staph germ, often found on the skin, might have entered and gotten into the hair follicles. If your condition isn't improving with your antibacterial soaps, you need to get to the doctor. Don't waste any more time with self-cures if your sores are spreading.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Two queen competitions planned for rodeo

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS E. CUDD
...celebrates 50th anniversary

Mr., Mrs. Thomas Cudd

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Cudd of Longmont, Colo. will celebrate their 50th anniversary with a reception at the 14th and Main Church of Christ, May 29, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The reception will be hosted by their children and grandchildren.

Cudd, formerly of Wilson, Oklahoma, met the former Ellen Faye Ferrill in Oklahoma City, Okla. Miss Ferrill was formerly from Oklahoma City, Okla., in the couple married Oct. 19, 1933 in Oklahoma City, Okla., with the Rev. A. M. McGinnis officiating.

The couple has two children, Thomas M. Cudd of Big Spring, and Mrs.

C.P. (Jane Ellen) McMullin of Longmont, Colo. Both children were married in Big Spring. The Cudds have five grandchildren, all of which were born in Big Spring.

The couple lived in Big Spring from 1957 to 1962, when Cudd was minister of 14th and Main Church of Christ Church. While living in Big Spring, Cudd was on the board of Lubbock Christian College. He worked at Mountain States Children's Home in Longmont, Colo. He is a retired minister.

The couple also celebrated their 25th anniversary in Big Spring.

As part of the 50th annual Big Spring Rodeo, a sanctioned preliminary local Miss Rodeo Texas and Miss Rodeo Texas Teen winner will be chosen.

The two young women will reign over the Rodeo June 22-25 as Miss Rodeo Big Spring and Miss Rodeo Teen Big Spring. Following the rodeo, they will compete in the state competition. The state winners will ultimately compete in the national competition.

The Rodeo Association is looking for well-qualified contestants who will represent the Big Spring Rodeo Association at the state pageant. The winner helps promote rodeo by traveling to all Texas PRCA rodeos and to the local preliminary Miss Rodeo Texas and Miss Rodeo Texas Teen contests.

Appearance, personality and horsemanship are important because contestants may appear before groups, on television and at rodeos. Contestants must be able to wear western clothes with flair and look comfortable in them, be able to ride horses and feel at home in a saddle. They must be able to display knowledge of rodeoing, sportsmanship and horses.

Miss Rodeo America winners travel throughout the world, receive job opportunities with large salaries and other benefits.

Miss Rodeo Texas and Miss Rodeo Texas Teen will travel to more than 80 rodeos and other public appearances with expenses paid.

To enter the local pageant contact: Johnnie Lou Avery, General Chairman, at 210 Permian Bldg., P.O. Box 2271, Big Spring, Texas 79721-2271, telephone 915-263-1451. Or contact Gail Earls, pageant coordinator, at County Extension Office in the Courthouse basement, Big Spring, Texas 79720, telephone 915-267-6671.

CONTEST RULES

Legal age for Miss Rodeo Big Spring contestants is 18-24. They must be 18 by March 1, 1984 and must not be more than 24 by Sept. 1, 1984.

Legal age for Miss Rodeo Big Spring Teen is 13-17. Contestants must be a legal resident of Texas, not married or ever have been married and not bore a child.

An entry fee of $100 must accompany the entry blank, along with a good quality picture. Deadline for entries will be June 1, 1983. Enter as soon as possible. Do not wait until the week of the deadline. Otherwise news coverage for the entrant and sponsor will be scarce.

All contestants must have a sponsor who will pay the entry fee. The sponsor can be a business, organization, friend, relative or any type entity.

Contestants will be judged on appearance, personality, horsemanship. Fitted western shirt with blue denim jeans are worn for horsemanship competition. A jacket may be worn in the arena but must be removed for riding. No chaps permitted. Contestants must furnish their own horses.

Contestants may come from any area of Texas that does not have a local Miss Rodeo Texas or Miss Rodeo Texas Teen Pageant.

Each night of the rodeo, all contestants will ride in the grand entry and be introduced individually. The winners and runners-up will be named at the rodeo performance on June 24. Judging will be done June 20 to 22.

The following winners will be chosen in both the Miss Rodeo Big Spring and Miss Rodeo Teen Big Spring: the winner, first runner-up, second runner-up, Miss Personality, Miss Appearance and Miss Horsemanship.

Awards and prizes, rules and regulations will be detailed upon entrance. The major benefit is entry fees and sponsorship into the state level competition. In addition, there will be scholarships, clothes and other types of prizes awarded.

Out-of-town judges from the Miss Rodeo Texas organization will judge in three categories: appearance and poise in modeling western attire; personality and knowledge of rodeoing in interviews; and horsemanship.

Bessie Love honored at reception

Bessie Love R.N., was honored with a reception today at the Senior Citizens Center.

The reception was hosted by the Council on Aging, the Boys Club and other organizations to which Miss Love belongs to. Zarah Bednar and Bert Andres presented plaques to Miss Love.

Miss Love came to Big Spring in 1950 from Amarillo to be the Chief of Nursing Services, when the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital opened. She retired in January 1966.

Miss Love helped organize the Howard County Council on Aging in 1969 and served as its president for several years. She helped launch the Mobil Meals Program and delivered meals from 1975 to 1983. She also served on the Advisory Council of the Associate Degree Nursing Program at Howard College for four years. Miss Love was on the Board of Directors of the Boys Club for several years. She was the first president of District 24 Nurses Association.

Miss Love is leaving Big Spring for Iowa.

Seminar held by extension clubs

A seminar and luncheon for women was held May 14 at Howard College. Janet Wolfe, mistress of ceremonies, presided.

Mrs. Nancy Granovsky spoke on "Financial Management for Women." Naomi Hunt, county extension agent, moderated a panel, "Surviving as a Single." Nell Brown, Ethlyn McCann, Emily Ward and Sherrie Bordofsky were panel members.

Laverne Gaskins was commentator for a style show of recycled fashions called "Hidden Assets from the Closet." Sixteen models demonstrated the art of checking over discarded clothing. The show stressed the value of making over garments where the over-all cost does not exceed the expense limit.

The yearly seminar was sponsored by the Howard County Family Living Committee of the Texas Extension Service.

Women were urged to join the Howard County Extension Homemakers Clubs, sponsored by the extension service and the Texas A and M University System.

Coahoma Mary Jane Club has annual Friendship Luncheon

The Mary Jane Club of Coahoma met May 12 for their annual Friendship Luncheon at the Brass Nail. Members spoke of childhood friends they remembered.

Places were marked with individual ivy plants and Mrs. Clovis Phinney won a potted geranium as a door prize.

Guests were Mrs. Eldon Appleton, Mrs. Stella Brooks, Mrs. N.M. Hipp, Mrs. Vernon Kent, Mrs. P.F. Sheedy, Mrs. H.G. Starr and Mrs. Phinney.

The next meeting will be Sept. 8.

NARVRE holds memorial services

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees met at Kentwood Older Adult Center, May 19.

Memorial services were held for Mrs. Ben Borroughs, Gilbert Ragsdale, J.E. Hendricks, A.J. Butler, D.W. Rankin and Mrs. Bobby Lassiter.

Members with birthdays were Mrs. D. Boyd, C.A. Smauley, J.D. Henson and George Williams.

The next meeting will be June 16 at KOAC.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — In a dockside factory where the U.S. Navy once built torpedoes to sink German and Japanese warships, Dan Meyer gently fashions rare woods, wire and ivory into harpichords whose only target is the hearts of music lovers.

Symbols of the 65-year-old building's transformation from Alexandria Naval Torpedo Station to the newly renovated Torpedo Factory Art Center, where Meyer and 175 other artists work their craft, lie just a few feet apart.

That is the distance between Meyer's bright, airy studio and a green, 21-foot torpedo, built under the same roof in September 1944, which occupies a place of honor in the center's main concourse.

The freshly painted and polished Mark 14 torpedo, one of nearly 10,000 produced at the factory during World War II, was returned to its home by a squad of Navy Seabees last week. It was mounted in time for festivities last weekend marking the opening of the remodeled art center.

After a year's construction at a cost of $4.3 million, borne entirely by the city of Alexandria, the new Torpedo Factory promises to enhance its reputation as a major tourist attraction in this colonial-era suburb of Washington.

The new Torpedo Factory houses 85 working studios and four cooperative galleries on more than 71,000 square feet of floor space in a three-story building that takes up most of a city block. The architects have preserved the flavor of the original factory, leaving pipes, ductwork and rail-tory, built in 1918, was used to build torpedoes until 1946, and has been renovated to house 85 working studios and four cooperative galleries for nearly 175 artists.

ings exposed in rich blues against the glass and oyster-white walls of the studios.

Meyer shares his first-floor studio with a violin bow maker who was lured here from Atlanta by Washington's National Symphony Orchestra for the benefit of its string players.

Elsewhere are painters, sculptors, print makers, potters, jewelers, a stained glass designer, artisans in fibers and glass etching. There are more than 400 applicants a year for space in the building.

The Torpedo Factory has come a long way since it was built in 1918. When the Navy halted torpedo production in 1946, the building became a government warehouse for storage of records, dinosaur bones and mummies from the Smithsonian Institution and documents from the Nuremberg war trials.

The city bought the building and others along the Potomac River for $1.5 million in 1969, and when the federal government vacated the premises five years later, a band of artists moved in.

"We found a vast, ugly green canyon of columns and high ceilings, with paper and pigeons up to the roof," recalls Marge Alderson, director of the factory and a watercolorist who helped clean out the place with brooms and shovels, fire hoses and a bulldozer.

"When we were finished, they had hauled away 42 truckloads of debris," she said.

The Torpedo Factory Art Center opened for business in September 1974. It now attracts a half-million visitors annually, also benefiting Alexandria's historic Old Town district.

Jim Dean, a painter who is president of the Torpedo Factory Artists Association, said the building is a far cry from the original, with its broken windows, balky elevator and leaking water pipes.

Credit card scams 'lucrative'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Credit card fraud is a "very lucrative business," complete with training seminars designed to increase the profits from stolen or counterfeit cards, a criminal contends.

Hidden behind a black hood and cape, with his voice disguised, "Mr. Witness" told a House Banking subcommittee how he had earned a living through credit card scams.

"I wouldn't say I was super, but I existed," the man said Monday. "I went from hot dogs to caviar."

On a good day, he said, he was able to charge $5,000 in cash and merchandise to stolen or counterfeit credit cards.

The witness said schools were set up to educate street workers about the finer art of credit card fraud. Instruction focused on how to speak, how to dress and how to deal with sales clerks.

"You wouldn't expect someone to use a gold American Express card wearing blue jeans and sneakers," said the man, who was arrested 20-25 times and has since become a police informant.

When the course is completed, he said, "the diploma is the green."

'Make no mistake about it. Those losses are borne by consumers as surely as if a gunman put a gun to their head and robbed them.'

Contending that credit card fraud is a quick way to earn "easy money," he added, "If you get caught, what will they do to you? Slap you on the wrist?"

The witness was allowed to testify in disguise before the House Banking consumer affairs and coinage subcommittee because he feared for his life, according to the panel's chairman, Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill.

Security was tight in the hearing room. Observers had to pass through metal detectors before they were allowed to enter, and plainclothes and uniformed law enforcement officials stood guard while the man testified.

The penalty for betraying a fraudulent credit card operation is death, the witness said. He said one person who was in the management level of his organization was killed after he "spun away and made his own deal. ... He cut somebody out of a large sum of money. He like stole from the industry."

The witness said Annunzio's estimate that $1 billion was lost last year to credit card fraud was "very conservative."

The congressman is proposing legislation that would restrict the distribution of credit card numbers and make it a violation of federal law to possess 10 or more stolen or counterfeit credit cards or to use stolen credit cards to obtain $1,000 in cash or merchandise in a one-year period.

"Make no mistake about it," Annunzio added, "those losses are borne by consumers as surely as if a gunman put a gun to their head and robbed them. The losses suffered by financial institutions and credit card users are passed on to consumers in the form of higher fees for cards and increased interest costs."

MR. WITNESS — A man identified only as "Mr. Witness" appears before a House banking subcommittee Monday on Capitol Hill looking into credit card fraud. The man was recently released from jail on credit card fraud charges.

Spring is in the air at DeWees Fashions

Billie DeWees and her husband, owners and managers of DeWees Fashions, have been in business in Big Spring for 19 years.

Their successful businesses have included a beauty salon operated by Billie and an Exxon station that her husband operates on Interstate 20.

Billie heard many women's complaints about the lack of fine fashions in Big Spring, so she opened DeWees Fashions, on 4200 W. Highway 80.

Billie feels there is a need for quality fashions to fit the hard-to-fit. Not everyone can wear a size five. DeWees Fashions specializes in stout sizes. They handle stock in sizes to 42.

Because Billie owns the buildings where the store is located and because she does much of the work herself, she doesn't have to have the mark-up you find in most other stores. Billie has found that many women enjoy shopping at her store, even though it is a small building.

After shopping at DeWees Fashions, you will admit that the prices are lower and that her clothes are of just as good quality.

DeWees Fashions carries such brand names as Perception, Jerrell, Strait Lane, Melisa Petites and Simon Sez.

She also has some beautiful ultra-suede suits for spring, made by Abe Schrader.

Now is a good time to visit DeWees Fashions. Summer will be here soon, and you'll want to step out in style when it gets here.

DeWees Fashions is located at 4200 West Highway 80. Drop in and see Billie today. She has just what you're looking for in clothing and prices.

And remember, at DeWees Fashions, they have the young look for every woman.

Collectors seeking bird egg collection

VERNON (AP) — The telephone calls come regularly, asking if the largest bird egg collection in private hands is at last available for acquisition.

But the answer is always no. The heirs of the late Robert L. More Sr., who gathered 10,000 eggs during six decades, steadfastly refuse to part with it.

"It's part of the local history," said Pat More, the collector's grandson, "and every town should have something special."

Two generations of More heirs faithfully have maintained the amateur zoologist's remarkable collection since his death in 1941.

It includes eggs from 800 species of birds, ranging from common Southwestern varieties to exotic specimens from remote regions of the world obtained by the dedicated hobbyist in trades with other collectors.

The Mores have rebuffed offers by museums around the country seeking to showcase the eggs.

The display rests in glass cases on the second floor of an old service station building, a source of frustration to local civic leaders who want to move the eggs to a museum.

But Pat More still says no.

"Not too many people visit any more," Vernon Chamber of Commerce vice president John Hardin said of the gas station display. "And, truthfully, it hasn't been kept up like it should. We'll be able to give it a whole room if the owners let us have it for the new county museum."

Being the home of the world's largest bird egg collection outside of a museum is clearly Vernon's most unusual distinction. The More collection is listed as a tourist attraction in the Texas Highway Department guidebook for the Red River city of 13,000.

But only a faded, barely readable sign on Business 70 notes its presence, and visiting is by appointment only.

"I'm not saying the museum makes Vernon a wonderful place," said Pat More. "But the museum and my grandfather were part of this town and not some other place."

Moving or donating the eggs "has never crossed our minds," he said.

The elder More began the collection on his family's ranch near Decatur when he was 8 years old, his grandson said. The first egg was a vulture's. "He found a nest with some eggs in it, took it home, cleaned and sucked out the insides and got interested," he said. "I don't know why, but he was fascinated with them. He collected them all his life and only put the last egg up there in the museum a few weeks before he died of heart failure."

More gathered many of his eggs at Texas' largest single-tract ranch, the 510,000-acre Waggoner Estate near Vernon, where he went to work as a surveyor in 1903. He became ranch general manager in the 1920s, and when he built the gas station building, which also served as the ranch's Vernon headquarters, the collection found a permanent home.

More always was alert for new finds while making his inspection rounds at the ranch and at another Waggoner spread in New Mexico, his grandson said. "He had to trade in his cars ever four or five months," he said. "He'd see a bird he wanted land somewhere out in a pasture and go tearing after it cross country in his car. The cars were so dusty, dirty and scratched up you couldn't tell what color they were."

In addition to the Southwestern eggs he gathered himself, Robert More got in trades such exotic egg specimens as the tufted puffin from the Falkland Islands, the loon from Iceland, the emu from Australia and the Larus occidentales from the South Farallone Islands, the grandson said.

Trio pleads guilty in Schlichter case

Charges against another dropped

THE TALL AND SHORT OF IT — Jerry Tucker, the father, and Jeri Lynn Tucker, the daughter, join forces to complete the two-mile run Saturday at the Spring Run. The Westbrook duo, along with brother Tommy, were three participants in the run which benefited the Hillcrest Christian School in Big Spring.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three Maryland men charged in the gambling case involving Baltimore Colts reserve quarterback Art Schlichter changed their pleas to guilty Monday in a plea bargain arrangement.

U.S. Attorney Bill Hunt recommended charges be dismissed against a fourth defendant.

All four initially were charged in a six-count indictment of trying to collect $389,000 in gambling debts run up by the former Ohio State University star. Schlichter did not appear at the hearing. His lawyer earlier said he is undergoing treatment for compulsive gambling at a hospital.

During lengthy proceedings in U.S. District Court, Samuel Richard Alascia, 30, of Catonsville, Md., and Harold E. Brooks Jr. of Baltimore pleaded guilty to one count of the gambling indictment. They admitted collecting $60,000 from Schlichter at the Port Columbus Airport on March 1.

Joseph A. Serio, 24, of Baltimore, pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting in the attempt of another debt collection on March 9, in which Schlichter said he was broke and could not pay.

Other charges against the three were dropped in the plea bargaining.

In addition, Hunt recommended that charges

HAROLD BROOKS ...pleads guilty Monday

JOSEPH SERIO ...part of conspiracy

SAMUEL ALASCIA ...charged with gambling against Charles Thomas Swift, 41, of Baltimore, be dropped. The judge took the prosecutor's recommendation under advisement.

Hunt recommended probation for Serio but gave no recommendation for sentencing Alascia and Brooks.

The three men were ordered to maintain weekly contact with probation officials until they are sentenced at an undetermined date by U.S. District Judge John D. Holschuh after pre-sentence investigations are completed.

All three could be sentenced to up to five years and prison and fined $10,000.

The men and their attorneys refused to comment after the proceedings and left immediately to fly back to Baltimore. Bond was continued at $25,000 each for Brooks and Alascia, $15,000 for Serio and $2,500 for Swift.

Schlichter, 23, who saw little action as a Colts rookie last season after being the fourth player drafted in 1982, was suspended indefinitely Friday by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle because of his wagering.

Schlichter had acknowledged gambling away $389,000 on various sporting events in the first 2½ months of this year, and Rozelle said he also admitted placing bets on at least 10 NFL games, none involving the Colts.

His attorney, Jack Chester, said most of Schlichter's betting was on basketball games. He said Schlichter is now undergoing "intensive therapy" at an undisclosed hospital "outside the state of Ohio."

Chester said Schlichter's care was being supervised by Dr. Robert Custer of Washington, who specializes in treating compulsive gamblers.

In suspending the Colts' quarterback, Rozelle said Schlichter could apply for reinstatement after the 1983 season. Chester expressed confidence that his client would be rehabilitated by then.

Queens sign 2 more standouts

A pair of teammates from Jersey Village High School in Houston have signed scholarship agreements with the Howard College Hawk Queens.

Molly Early and Velva Dalfrey are the sixth and seventh recruits inked by HC coach Don Stevens this spring. The two players combined for an average 30 points a game.

"Some insist she is the best point guard in the state," Stevens says of Early. As a senior she scored 17.5 points a game, hitting almost 50 per cent (193 of 392) of her shots from the floor.

Early added 8 assists, 8 steals and 6 rebounds a game while turning the ball over only 1.8 times.

"Molly is very quick, agile and aggressive," Stevens says. "Her best feature among many is her deadly outside shooting. She's a great ball-handler and will be a great college player."

"I was very proud to get this one," he added. Early was named the school's most valuable player her junior and senior years and won the Falcon Award twice. Her free throw average for two seasons was 76 per cent.

She was named to the South Texas All-Star team and was an all-district choice for three seasons. In six tournaments, she was an all-tournament selection each time.

Dalfrey scored 12.4 points a game and averaged 6 assists and steals a contest. She was also a good outside shooter, hitting 43 per cent (129 of 300 shots).

"She's a tenacious defensive player," her new coach

MOLLY EARLY ...highly-recruited guard

VELVA DALFREY ...high-scoring teammate reports. "She's a good, steady performer with the ability to score. She's got a great attitude and is eager for action."

Dalfrey was a second team all-district choice as a junior, was the school's outstanding defensive player for two years and was also a Falcon Award winner. She was all-district this past year.

Nets, Clippers eye Albeck as coach

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — San Antonio Spurs coach Stan Albeck, whose team lost in this year's National Basketball Association semifinals, is being considered as head coach by San Diego and New Jersey, two newspapers reported today.

"The job is Albeck's if he wants it," unidentified sources in San Diego told the San Antonio Express. "(San Diego general manager) Paul Phipps is telling people Albeck is the man they want," the source said.

In New Jersey, another source told the Express: "If Stan says he'll come, they'll even pay him to get him over here. The Nets want him badly and they are willing to go to court to get him. All Stan has to say is that 'I want to go.'"

Albeck said Monday that the rumors are just that — rumors.

The coach negotiated a three-year contract with the Spurs last season, which pays him $175,000 a year. This season, Albeck's third with the team, San Antonio recorded a franchise-record 53 wins.

"There is nothing to write and there is nothing to report because there is nothing to any of it," Albeck said. "At the present time, I am in San Antonio and I'm not interested in any of those other jobs at this point."

The Dallas Times Herald today quoted an NBA source as saying of Albeck: "He still wants out. He's tired of Angelo (Drossos, Spurs' owner). He's going to San Diego or New Jersey if he can."

San Diego head coach Paul Silas

was fired by the Clippers this year, and Nets coach Larry Brown left New Jersey late in the season to take the head coaching job at the University of Kansas.

Chicago Bulls General Manager Rod Thorn tried to lure Albeck out of San Antonio last spring, but told the Express his team probably couldn't meet the asking price.

"I like him as a coach," Thorn said. "but Angelo will probably want four players."

Last week, Drossos told the New York Times he would refuse the Nets permission to talk to Albeck.

"The Nets have not sought my permission to talk to Stan and I would not grant it," Drossos said. "If they pay me a million, I might let them talk to Stan."

Connors says he's still quick enough

PARIS (AP) — Jimmy Connors, who turns 31 in September, says he is still young enough to win the French Open tennis title on the slow clay courts of Roland Garros stadium.

"I'm in good shape," Connors said after his first-round victory Monday, the opening day of the two-week tournament. "I don't think I'm too old for clay. I just have to be in the right frame of mind."

He needed only 97 minutes to shatter Australian Craig Miller 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

French Open

Connors, the top seed at the $1.3 million grand slam event, has never won a major clay court tournament and has not played on clay since his last appearance in Paris a year ago when he was eliminated in the quarterfinals.

Connors is attempting to become the oldest player to win the French title since Spain's Andres Gimeno took it in 1972 at age 34 years and 10 months.

The first grand slam event of the year continued today when top seed Martina Navratilova, the defending woman's champion, played fellow American Mary Lou Piatek.

In the men's division, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, seeded third, met qualifier Pedro Rebolledo of Chile, while No. 4 seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina plays Florin Segarceanu of Romania.

In other matches Monday, defending champion Mats Wilander, the 18-year-old Swede who last year became the youngest player to win a grand slam event, was leading 4-6, 6-2, 6-0, 2-1 when Spain's Juan Avendano withdrew because of a shoulder injury.

There was one upset among the men Monday while two seeded women fell.

Bernard Fritz, a 29-year-old Frenchman, topped No. 13 seed Wojtek Fibak of Poland, 7-5, 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

The women's upsets — all involving American players — were more impressive. Pam Casale ousted her compatriot Zina Garrison, seeded 11th, 6-0, 6-0. Organizers here said it was the first time they recalled a seeded player being eliminated without winning a single game.

American Kathy Jordan also completed her upset in straight sets, defeating No. 14 seed Ann Smith 6-2, 6-3.

Leonard leashes Texas, 5-2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If American League batters ever had any doubts, it appears Dennis Leonard has regained his old effectiveness — even if he's become a different kind of pitcher.

The right-handed Leonard, holding Texas to five hits in 7 1-3 innings, won his third consecutive game as the Kansas City Royals defeated the Rangers 5-2 Monday night.

There was some question last season after Leonard missed nine weeks with two broken fingers on his pitching hand about whether he was the same hard thrower as before.

He may not be, but the 32-year-old pitcher is still off to the best start of his career with a 6-3 record and a 3.92 ERA.

Leonard spotted the Rangers two first-inning runs but allowed only two more hits before leaving the game with a sore knee in the eighth. Reliever Dan Quisenberry pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his ninth save.

"Leonard looked pretty good. He kept the ball down and his velocity picked up after the first inning," said Texas Manager Doug Rader. "A rule of thumb with good pitchers is if you don't get them early, you're going to have a hard time. Leonard's a good pitcher."

Leonard spotted the Rangers two first-inning runs on three hits but allowed only two more hits until leaving the game.

Charlie Hough, 24, held the Royals hitless until Hal McRae hit his third homer of season with two out in the fourth to cut the Texas lead to 2-1.

The Royals, who managed just four hits off Hough and reliever Dave Schmidt, took the lead in the sixth when Hough walked three

American League

Twins 12, Orioles 4
The Minnesota Twins expect home runs and have been getting them. They want complete games and finally got one.

Tom Brunansky and Gary Ward each homered twice and Dave Engle added a solo shot while Frank Viola became the first Minnesota pitcher to go the distance this season as the Twins routed the Baltimore Orioles 12-4 Monday night.

Blue Jays 4, Tigers 0
Luis Leal and Randy Moffitt combined on a three-hitter for Toronto's third straight shutout, setting a team record of 27 consecutive scoreless innings.

Leal, 4-3, pitched eight strong innings — allowing Detroit's hits — before running into trouble in the ninth. Moffitt recorded his fifth save.

Red Sox 6, White Sox 4

Tony Armas homered twice and rookie Mike Brown, 4-3, pitched a seven-hitter.

Armas, who now has seven homers, put Boston ahead 1-0 in the second inning with a home run and added a two-run shot in the third.

Mariners 3, Indians 2
Bob Stoddard and Bill Caudill combined on a seven-hitter for Seattle.

Stoddard left in the eighth inning, leading 3-1, after yielding Julio Franco's one-out triple. Caudill allowed Rick Manning's RBI single before recording his ninth save.

Angels 3, Yankees 0
Geoff Zahn tossed a six-hitter and Rod Carew raised his major league-leading average to .450.

Zahn, 4-3, escaped a first-inning jam when Dave Winfield singled and Don Baylor doubled him to third. But Zahn retired Steve Kemp to stay out of trouble. Zahn did not allow a New York hit after Baylor doubled in the fourth inning.

A's 5, Brewers 4
Rickey Henderson's two-out single in the bottom of the 17th inning drove in Dan Meyer from second base to end the longest game in the majors this season.

Meyer singled off Jim Slaton, 5-1, to open the 17th and went to second on a sacrifice by Dave Lopes, who had homered twice in the game. Daryl Cias grounded out, Tony Phillips walked and Henderson singled in the winning run, ending the five-hour, 17-minute marathon.

Knight bats Astros by Cubs

HOUSTON (AP) — Every time Houston first baseman Ray Knight looks above his locker in the Astros' clubhouse, he's reminded of his slow start this season.

"I'm a spray hitter," said Knight, who drove in two runs with a sixth-inning double to lead the Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday night. "That's the only way I'll be able to hit .300."

As a prank, Knight's teammates placed a San Diego cap above his dressing room cubicle when speculation had the struggling Knight headed in a trade to the Padres last month.

Since then, Knight's average has flirted with the .300 mark.

"I felt I should have hit .300 last year," Knight said. "Right now, I feel I'm swinging the bat well."

Knight, who batted .294 last year, has hit safely in 12 of his last 14 games to boost his average to .298. He recently returned to the lineup after sitting out a week with sore ribs.

Knight's double in the sixth followed a triple by Dickie Thon and walks to Phil Garner and Jose Cruz and gave the Astros a 3-0 lead.

Houston had taken a 1-0 edge in the first inning against losing pitcher Steve Trout, 3-6, on singles by Omar Moreno and Tony Scott, Thon's double-play grounder and a balk by Trout.

Joe Niekro, 2-4, allowed only three hits over the first seven innings to earn his fifth victory

National League

Reds 2, Cardinals 1
For the Cincinnati Reds, the Price is right — again.

Cincinnati left-hander Joe Price, thrust into the starting rotation by early-season injuries, then sidelined May 1 with an elbow injury, returned to action for the first time in three weeks Monday night and went right at the St. Louis batters, throwing hard for six innings to help the Reds edge the sagging Cardinals 2-1.

The Cards, dropping their fourth in a row, got only one run on three hits off Price when George Hendrick walked and came around on second-inning singles by Lonnie Smith and Ozzie Smith.

Mets 4, Giants 3
New York Manager George Bamberger, who used to count on Neil Allen as his stopper before Allen fell apart and wound up in the starting rotation, has a new saver in Jesse Orosco.

The Mets' reliever put two men aboard with nobody out in the ninth inning, then got the next three batters to preserve the Mets' victory, built on George Foster's fourth-inning homer and decisive eighth-inning sacrifice fly.

Expos 3, Padres 1
With the score tied in the eighth inning, Gary Carter beat out a one-out infield single off Dave Dravecky. It was Montreal's eighth hit and it prompted San Diego Manager Dick Williams to summon Luis DeLeon from the bullpen.

Tim Wallach looked at DeLeon's first pitch, then sent the second one into the left-field seats for his fifth home run of the season. Carter singled home the Expos' other run.

Braves 6, Pirates 3
Bob Horner and Claudell Washington each drove in two runs and Pete Falcone, with six innings of six-hit pitching, was Atlanta's winner in his first start of the season. He allowed solo home runs by Steve Nicosia and Bill Madlock.

Dodgers 2, Phillies 0
Fernando Valenzuela checked the Phillies on four hits and Steve Sax provided the Dodgers with some punch, scoring one run and driving in the other one.

Valenzuela, who struck out seven batters, now has beaten every NL team in his brief career in the majors.

Sax tripled and scored on Ken Landreaux's grounder in the first inning and hit an RBI single in the ninth.

Norwood's kick boots Michigan 23-20 in OT

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — You can't blame the Birmingham Stallions for feeling slightly cheated despite a five-game winning streak.

Scott Norwood's 46-yard field goal at 4:32 of overtime Monday night boosted the Stallions to a 23-20 victory over Michigan and left both teams tied with 7-5 records in the United States Football League's Central Division, one game behind the Chicago Blitz.

The problem is, the Stallions had to be right back out on the practice field today, getting ready for a game Friday night with the Denver Gold.

"We've got to wake up tomorrow and think about Denver right away," said quarterback Bobby Lane, who tossed a pair of second-quarter touchdown passes to stake the Stallions to a 17-7 halftime lead. "But I think we've laid down a solid base for Denver with this game. This is the chance you wait for and we made the most of it."

Birmingham Coach Rollie Dotsch said the dramatic victory seemed to bring his team together.

"Our players believe now," Dotsch said. "We may or may not get to the playoffs this year, but we're laying down an awfully good foundation."

The Panthers' John Williams' second 1-yard fourth-quarter touchdown, with 2:52 remaining, could have given Michigan the game, but Birmingham's Herb Spencer got a hand on Novo Bojovic's extra-point kick and knocked it wide.

The defeat snapped the Panther victory string at six.

Average Billing can help smooth out high summer electric bills.

In the summer, intense Texas heat can make your air conditioner work longer and drive your electric bill up in a hurry.

Our Average Billing Plan can help by "averaging out" your payments. You still pay for all the electricity you use, and your payments will still vary from month to month. However, in high-use months you pay for less electricity than you use, and in low-use months you pay for more.

Average Billing can help smooth out high summer electric bills. It's available to both residential customers and churches.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 25, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can expect delays so tackle duties of a career nature early in the day. Study a civic matter carefully before making any judgment on its faults. Be logical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure you don't vent your ire on a higher-up or you could soon regret it. Don't quibble over a pressing bill.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some new enterprises may seem to be profitable, but they will need further study before making definite plans.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have promised to keep your end of a bargain, and now want to get out of it, but it's to your best interest to carry through.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) An old friend could be annoying now, but you could have brought this on yourself. Strive for increased harmony.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It is wise to handle regular duties instead of seeking pleasure. Work diligently to gain your goals. Use care in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to engage in creative work. Show others that you have much talent. Sidestep a well-known troublemaker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your environment and make plans to make it more comfortable for you. Arrive on time for appointments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Much care in motion is advised to avoid possible accident. Express happiness with close ties in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to improve your financial position, so take time to study the situation before investing. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may think you're not getting ahead as fast as you should, but doing anything rash at this time would be foolhardy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact those involved in mutual plans you have and put them in operation in a most intelligent fashion. Use common sense.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't rely so much on friends now and get busy on own duties. Make sure you don't lose your temper with anyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to solve difficult problems and will do remarkably well provided the right education is accorded your intelligent progeny. Teach to be more businesslike. Working with hands is important early in life.

'Taxi' out with dignity

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sunshine Cab Co. was an ironic shingle for the misfits in "Taxi." There wasn't a success story in the bunch. In five years, none of the drivers found a road paved with anything more than harsh reality and hard knocks.

grams that were funny and touching. Precisely because life was a series of fender-benders for the oddballs in "Taxi," our lives became, by comparison, a bit brighter.

CELEBRATION — Anna Strasberg, wife of the late actor Lee Strasberg, puts make-up on actress Drew Barrymore Monday at Avery Fisher Hall in New York. The two were rehearsing for a tribute to Lee Strasberg called "Celebration," to benefit the Children of the World program at Deborah hospital in New Jersey. The make-up kit was a present from Miss Barrymore.

Yet, together, the characters forged a friendship and camaraderie that hadn't been seen in network comedies since "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." They were the kind of cabbies who would pick you up in a rainstorm.

Conaway left the series midway but made a return visit to the garage — this time Bobby was a struggling Hollywood actor. "Anything else would have seemed phony," says Weinberger. After all, this was a show about potholes, not paved superhighways.

Math wiz says he's 'a normal kid'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — John Steinke says his high school classmates don't call him "Mr. Math" or "The Brain." But they could.

The San Antonio senior outscored 400,000 other students to win this year's USA Mathematical Olympiad and a No. 1 ranking on the six-student U.S. team that will compete in the International Mathematics Olympiad in Paris this July.

The 18-year-old math whiz has more than 50 trophies, ribbons and medals won in local, state and national math competitions.

But he insists he's just a normal kid. The math awards share space in his room with his rock 'n' roll records and he doesn't wear wire-rimmed glasses or worship Albert Einstein.

"I guess I've always loved math," Steinke said, "but I've done fairly well in all of my school work. The last time I got a B was in ninth grade in a band class, I think."

Steinke finished his Madison High School career with a better-than-perfect grade point average — made possible by "enriched" classes — was voted "most intellectual" and will graduate summa cum laude.

He plans to head to Houston next fall to major in engineering at Rice University.

Steinke said his first-place finish in the USA Mathematical Olympiad was a goal he set for himself when he first entered the school-sponsored University Interscholastic League mathematics events.

He was informed of the top ranking this week, but said he does not yet know his overall score.

And Steinke doesn't even have any math secrets, other than "not giving up," he said.

"I really enjoy attacking a neat problem I want the solution to," he said. "You have to look at all ways of attacking a problem and I guess it doesn't hurt to strive for perfection."

He got to take most of last week off while his fellow students slaved over final exams. His straight As granted him special exemptions from five of his six courses.

"The only reason I took the one," he said, "is because school policy allows a maximum of five class exemptions."

Hair spray chemical studied

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Some aerosol hair sprays and a leading feminine deodorant spray contain a chemical suspected of causing cancer in laboratory animals, according to a copyright story in the San Antonio Light.

A draft report by the National Toxicology Program said cancer was found in rats and mice who were force-fed large amounts of methylene chloride — a chemical used as a solvent and propellant in some aerosol products, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Revlon, Vidal Sassoon, Chesebrough Ponds, Faberge, La Maur, Wella and Alberto-Culver, which also includes methylene chloride in a feminine deodorant spray, list it as an ingredient in some hair sprays, the newspaper reported.

Spokesmen for the firms said they consider it safe. They say nothing definitive has yet been determined about the chemical's cancer-causing potential.

A spokesman for the Washington-based Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association agreed.

"At this low level, there is no problem as it is used here," said Victor Hirsh, vice president of the association. He said the effects on the animals may not be the same in humans.

The study was initiated by the National Cancer Institute's Carcinogenesis Testing Program.

Methylene chloride, a solvent frequently used as a paint remover and industrial degreaser, is also used in some coffee decaffeinating processes.

Reagan asks for halt of executions

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The world headquarters of the Bahai religion today welcomed President Reagan's appeal to halt the planned execution of 22 Bahais in Iran.

"We are pleasantly surprised at the president's statement. We welcome it as evidence of the awakening of the consciences of world leaders against the persecution of Bahais in Iran," said a statement issued by the Bahai World Center in Haifa.

The Bahai faith is persecuted by the Islamic revolutionary government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Reagan Sunday urged other world leaders to join him in appealing to Khomeini to spare the lives of 22 prominent Bahais. The Bahais believe that 139 adherents of the faith have been killed since the Khomeini took power in Iran in 1979.
