Veterans groups mark Memorial Day

From staff and wire reports
Shivering under an overcast sky as rain threatened this morning, approximately 50 veterans and spectators gathered at the Howard County courthouse in honor of Memorial Day.

The brief 20-minute ceremony competed with the noise of passing traffic and the playing of the church carillon.

State Commander of the Texas Veterans of World War I Marion Irland served as master of ceremonies. "We thank you for your appearance," Irland said. "We wish there were more, but that's the way it is."

Keynote speaker Jim Baum from Colorado City said Memorial Day was to honor those who are living as well as the dead. He pointed out the task of caring for the welfare of the living was up to everyone.

Baum also issued an appeal to remember those who served in Viet Nam and asked for continued efforts to force the Vietnamese government to return those believed to be missing in action.

The former Big Spring resident repeated an inscription from a Civil War memorial in an effort to explain why so many died in service of their country. "In simple obedience to duty as they understood it ... they sacrificed all," Baum said.

After Baum's brief address, wreaths were placed at the foot of the county war dead memorial. The strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner" played as the handful of veterans held shaky salutes.

After the poignant chords of "Taps" finished, Irland asked for the country to remain prepared "so we won't have so many in the graveyards."

With that plea, the veterans shook hands among themselves, exchanged a few words and quietly left. Within minutes, nothing remained of the Memorial Day ceremony except the mute testimony of the war dead monument and five simple wreaths.

Veterans of the nation's "most unpopular war" were honored this Memorial Day weekend, while a U.S. military adviser slain in El Salvador was mourned in his hometown and two buddies who last met on a World War II battlefield planned a reunion.

The long holiday weekend sent Americans heading for beaches and parks across the country despite flooding from melting snow in the Rocky Mountains and the Sierras and a smog alert in Southern California.

At least 225 people had died in traffic accidents by 3 a.m. today, the final day of the three-day holiday.

Four people were missing in river rafting accidents in California and Colorado, authorities said.

At Arlington National Cemetery outside the nation's capital, 19 members of an honor guard that buried the remains of two unidentified servicemen in 1958 returned Sunday to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier to mark that ceremony.

commemorated dead Vietnam veterans in a memorial at Chicago's Cedar Park Cemetery, where 1,000 veterans are buried.

Vietnam War memorials were dedicated Sunday in Bridgeport, Conn., and Eufaula, Ala., where retired Army Gen. William Westmoreland told a crowd of 800 that the nation is "becoming proud" of its veterans.

"The nation will need stout-hearted men in the future even more," Westmoreland said. "We shall never forget you, we shall never forget you."

In Bridgeport, about 300 people were present at the unveiling of a memorial honoring the 29 area men killed in the conflict.

"The people of Bridgeport will remain forever proud, ever grateful because of the unselfish way our

House sends 'no-tax' budget to governor

No money for teacher pay raises

AUSTIN (AP) — A $30.8 billion budget drawn by lawmakers who defied Gov. Mark White by refusing to raise taxes was on its way to the governor's desk today.

One day before the end of the session, the House on Sunday wrapped up the Legislature's work on the 1984-85 budget by approving, 95-51, the spending plan worked out by a House-Senate conference committee.

The proposed budget's first step is Comptroller Bob Bullock's desk. The Texas Constitution's pay-as-you-go provision requires the comptroller to decide whether the state will have the money appropriated by the budget.

If Bullock clears it — the $30.8 billion is within his latest revenue forecast — it goes to White. The governor has fought for tax hikes to fund a 24 percent pay raise for teachers.

His plan screeched to a halt in the House, where Speaker Gib Lewis and House Ways and Means Chairman Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, stuck to a no-new-taxes stand.

The budget includes the "step"

GOV. MARK WHITE ...receives budget raises — up to 9 percent — required by law for teachers.

Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, on Sunday asked House colleagues to throw out the conference committee budget and start over, even if it meant staying in town beyond tonight's midnight deadline for the session.

"You know and we know it does not go far enough," he told House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bill Presnal, D-Bryan.

"The hue and cry out there in the state is for teacher pay raises" and higher welfare payments for needy children, Garcia said.

Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments increase to an average of $48 per month in the budget approved Sunday. Texas payments now average $42, the nation's lowest. Several House members had pushed for AFDC payments of at least $60.

Garcia said the plan falls short of satisfying "people needs."

"There's nothing that says we can't come back and do the right thing," he said, calling for defeat of the budget, and a special session to re-work it. "Let's stay here as long as is necessary."

Presnal said supporters of teacher pay hikes would fare better in a special session dedicated only to that topic — rather than a session that would include reconsideration of the entire budget.

Israel, Syria reinforce troops in war of nerves

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Guerrillas killed two Israeli soldiers and wounded three others in an ambush 10 miles southeast of Beirut, the Israeli military command said today.

The command said a guerrilla squad in a vehicle attacked two Israeli military vehicles with bazookas and small-arms fire Sunday on a road south of Bhamdoun. It said the guerrillas escaped.

A group called the Lebanese National Resistance Front — believed to be composed of Palestine Liberation Organization allies — later claimed responsibility for the attack in a statement broadcast by leftist Beirut radio stations.

The deaths bring to five the number of Israeli soldiers killed in the last week of stepped-up guerrilla assaults on Israeli troops in Lebanon.

Other Israeli soldiers traded fire with Syrian troops Sunday across the cease-fire line in the Bekaa Valley, and one Lebanese was reported killed and another wounded when a shell fell on their home near the front line.

Both Israel and Syria had been beefing up forces in the area over the weekend, but Israeli officials, Western diplomatic sources and Lebanese news

Foreign exchange rate favors Big Spring High

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

A stranger might think he was visiting a foreign language club when two students from West Germany, one from Ecuador and one from Big Spring gathered in counselor Joe Horton's office at Big Spring High School recently.

It was almost the last day of school, and it was approaching the end of a visit to the United States, Texas and Big Spring for the three foreign exchange students.

Toni Drack of Duisburg, West Germany, Daniella Ostermann of Paderborn, West Germany, and Patricio

"We are used to having an exchange student once every three or four years. It's unusual to have three in one year."

Silva of Guaranda, Ecuador, have been in Big Spring since August and have been taking courses at the high school all year.

TONI, 17, is taking a year away from high school in West Germany. She will graduate next year.

Heidi Brown, a graduating senior at Big Spring, saw in a church bulletin that exchange students needed a place to stay in America. She and her mother, Adelaide Brown of Jonesboro, applied as a host family.

Daniella, 20, came with the Rotary Club International exchange program, whose policy is to have exchange students stay with more than one family during their visit.

She is currently staying with Big Spring school board president Charles Beil and his wife. Her other hosts have included Dr. and Mrs. Jim Backus, Big Spring City Manager Don Davis and his wife, and Veteran's Administration hospital chaplain Clayton Hicks and his wife.

She has already graduated from high school in West Germany and is taking Big Spring High School's courses for fun and experience.

Patricio, 18, came with the International Fellowship Program. He is staying with Mr. and Mrs. John David Hansen. He, too, has already graduated from high school.

IT HAS not always been easy for the students during their time here.

Hood kills man Nazis couldn't

HOUSTON (AP) — Harry Kamin was a survivor. He cheated death as a captain in the Polish underground during World War II and survived torture at the hands of his Nazi captors.

Three times he had wrestled pistols from gunmen bent on robbing his plumbing supply store and sent them running from his store. He was younger then.

Saturday, the 67-year-old Kamin simply pleaded, "Don't shoot me." The gunman answered with three shots to Kamin's chest and one to his wrist. The business man was dead on arrival at Ben Taub Hospital.

"He had survived so much, he was so confident that he'd never get hurt," said his son, Alan.

Detectives said Sunday they had no suspects and were uncertain how much money or property the robber took.

"The war couldn't do it, the Nazis couldn't do it. But here in Houston — far, far away from the terrible past — a simple hoodlum took his life," said Kamin's wife, Evelyn.

Kamin and his wife, who both grew up in Warsaw, moved from New York to Houston in 1961 to start White House Plumbing in one of the city's toughest neighborhoods.

"My dad knew how to handle people no matter how tough they were," said the younger Kamin.

"One time a man came in on a busy Saturday morning and pulled a gun on Dad. My dad was so busy he told the guy to wait a minute and he'd be right with him and he walked away to wait on a customer. The guy waited a time with his gun then just walked out the door," he said.

He kept on display in his store the pistols he took from the three other gunmen.

"He was proud. And he had every reason to be. He was a strong man. He had faced death before and always won. But I guess he was getting older, slower. He didn't make it this time," the younger Kamin said.

Kamin said his father never reported the three men he disarmed because he said those were the rules of the neighborhood.

The elder Kamin's first brush with death was shortly after the German occupation of Poland.

While on a train heading toward a concentration camp, Kamin and a friend used a wedge smuggled aboard to pry open a door. They escaped from the moving train. Kamin was shot in the left leg, and his friend was shot in the head.

Kamin joined the Polish underground and was later captured, Mrs. Kamin said.

"They tortured him," she said. "They burned his toenails until they were black. ... They hit him. ... They used water torture."

In Beirut, helicopters and amphibious vehicles carried ashore a new unit of 1,200 U.S. Marines on Sunday to replace American troops stationed in Lebanon since Feb. 15. And in southern Lebanon, a 23-year-old private from Fiji serving with a United Nations peacekeeping force was killed in a shootout which U.N. officials said was between U.N. soldiers and Israeli-backed militiamen.

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, a Christian, made a rare public appearance Sunday in predominantly Moslem West Beirut and defended the U.S.-sponsored troop withdrawal accord with Israel.

"I shall abandon not one iota of Lebanon or of Lebanon's dignity," said Gemayel. "The recent agreement that Lebanon has signed was inescapable to achieve liberation."

The president was cheered by a crowd of about 30,000 when he pledged to end Syrian, Palestinian and Israeli control of outlying sections of Lebanon.

Gemayel, who pushed through a shield of bodyguards to shake hands with the crowd, had made other visits to West Beirut but his speech was the first given by a Lebanese president in the Moslem sector since the capital was divided during Lebanon's 1975-76 civil war.

"The students are nice here, but there are so many cliques," Toni said. "It's hard to get into those."

As a result, Toni, Daniella and Heidi have become close friends and have traveled to Austin, San Antonio and New Mexico together.

Patricio has traveled mostly with his host family. "We went to Las Vegas one time," he said. "It was ... different from what I was used to."

English is commonly taught in Toni's and Daniella's West German schools, but Patricio knew only Spanish when he arrived in Big Spring.

"I took the school's Spanish class," he said. "I learned English backwards."

"It's really very hard to set up courses so they will all get the experience they want," Horton said. "We are used to having an exchange student once every three or four years. It's unusual to have three in one year."

Toni, Daniella and Patricio all say that American schools are easier than those in their own countries.

Slain mystery woman baffles Dallas police

DALLAS (AP) — She lies in an unmarked pauper's grave, successfully severed from her past by at least 13 names she used to cloud her still unknown true identity.

The gunman who shot Maranda Sonderson to death six weeks ago apparently also killed Raven Lashbrook, Andrew Jackson Spencer III, Shawnee Star Lashbrook, Shaun Madison, Cherrianne Simmons and seven other aliases.

The 32-year-old woman, whose activities have been found in police records from Texas to California, managed to cut all ties with her past, said Bill Lene, chief field agent of the Dallas County medical examiner's office.

The 5-foot-3, 100-pound woman with jet-black hair and tattoos on her thigh was known to those with whom she came in contact only by the names she gave them.

Police in California knew her by as many as eight different identities, including Karen Miller, Karen Virginia Miller, Karen V. Miller, Shaun Brooks and Peaches, her street name.

On the streets of Dallas, her name was not so important as her reputation as a master at turning raw chemicals into methamphetamine, or speed, said police.

Detectives discovered the tangle of identities after the woman was killed April 9 during an apparent robbery in the fashionable suburb of University Park.

"We have a few cases each year that we never get an identification on," said Lene. "But this is very unusual because here, we have several names and no good identification."

Last fall, when she was arrested for unlawfully carrying a weapon in Ellis County south of Dallas, she was charged as A.J. Spencer. In the nearby suburb of Grand Prairie, police knew her as Cherry Simmons or Maranda Sonderson, the name she used when she was evicted from an apartment there in December.

University Park police thought they had identified the woman when they found papers signed by Raven Lashbrook at the scene of the shooting. But that name led only to more aliases.

"As it stands right now, all we know is that the person in the ground used a lot of different names," said University Park police Sgt. E.L. Holman. "We don't really know who she is."

The one person who may have aided police is James Perry Sewell, the man who rented the University Park duplex and who was shot in the same incident. But Sewell lies critically injured, in a coma at Presbyterian Hospital of Dallas.

Two men were arrested shortly after the shootings and are being held in Dallas County Jail awaiting trial on murder charges, police said.

As newspapers reported the slaying of Raven Lashbrook, police received numerous calls from people who claimed they knew the woman, Holman said. They gave officers the names they had known the woman by.

"A lot of people knew her on the street for her drug connections," Holman said. "She had a reputation as being a great cook of methamphetamines."

Summit okays arms policy; economy next

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Leaders of the industrialized democracies are turning their full attention to the world's economic problems today after resolving a dispute over a statement on arms control in Europe.

Despite the wrangling over the nuclear weapons statement, the leaders spent a good deal of their time Sunday discussing economic issues.

In particular, the foreign heads of government meeting at the annual economic summit expressed their concern to President Reagan over the high U.S. interest rates they fear are delaying their own recovery from the long recession.

They urged Reagan to try to lower the giant U.S. budget deficits, which they contend are keeping the interest rates high.

In addition to interest rates, the leaders discussed high unemployment, trade barriers and the international debt crisis.

Leaving their aides behind, the seven world leaders met alone Sunday in the House of Burgesses, where George Washington, Patrick Henry and other members of Virginia's colonial legislature once sat.

Joining Reagan were British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, French President Francois Mitterrand, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, Italian Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani, Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and Gaston Thorn, president of the European Economic Community.

At the end of their talks today, they were expected to issue a statement that would likely restate their intentions to cooperate on ensuring a strong recovery.

Indeed, a draft statement circulating among foreign officials gave renewed support for achieving "non-inflationary growth of income and employment." It also urged greater stability in the exchange markets. The dollar has recently risen in value in comparison with other major currencies.

Sunday's dispute on arms control occurred when the French and Canadians, with some support from the Italians, objected to a strong statement supporting NATO's planned deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, according to U.S. and European sources who would only discuss the issue if their names weren't used.

The French and Italians, wanting to keep the focus of the conference on economic issues, objected to having arms control be the subject of the summit's first statement, the sources said. The Canadians sought a firm statement that disarmament was the allies' goal.

The statement that was eventually adopted supported the deployment while stressing the importance of pursuing negotiations with the Soviets to make the deployment unnecessary.

"Our nations are united in efforts for arms reductions and will continue to carry out thorough and intensive consultations," said the statement, which was read to reporters by U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

The statement said French and British forces have "no place" in the Geneva negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union on medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

STROLLING TO LUNCH — Seven heads of government and the European Communities who are attending the summit of industrialized nations at Williamsburg, Va., this week stroll down the Duke of Gloucester Street prior to lunch Sunday. President Reagan, at right, points out something of interest.

Meeting delayed while Kohl shops

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — President Reagan and the leaders of Britain, France, Japan, Italy and Canada were set to begin their summit in a spartan 18th-century hall, but German Chancellor Helmut Kohl was nowhere to be found.

Kohl, who has been strolling about this restored colonial village at every opportunity, had decided to walk from the Bruton Parish Church to the House of Burgesses Sunday morning for the opening session of the economic meeting and came upon the shop of a silversmith.

He wandered in, to purchase a souvenir.

But otherwise, with the exception of a midday stroll down rain-dampened Duke of Gloucester Street on Sunday, the seven government leaders have used 18th century Williamsburg as a backdrop for their efforts to solve the economic problems of the late 20th century. They haven't been exploring its nooks and crannies.

They have had little contact with the residents of the town, from which tourists have temporarily been banished, although that hasn't stopped many local citizens from spending time waiting for glimpses of passing black limousines carrying the dignitaries.

Approximately 200 local residents were able to catch sight of Reagan, Margaret Thatcher of Britain, Germany's Kohl, Italy's Amintore Fanfani, and Canada's Pierre Trudeau, when the five, along with Gaston Thorn, president of the European Economic Community, visited the Bruton Parish Church, which has been in use since 1715.

Approximately 200 regular parishioners filled all available pews in the church, which was lit by pale sky light filtering in on a gray day and by the flickering candles in a brass chandelier.

"There's my neighbor," said George Wright. "I live across the street."

"There's the mayor, and there's the president of the college (William and Mary College). The vice mayor is here, and that's her husband who is playing the organ."

President wins N-arms policy

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — President Reagan wound up with an endorsement of his arms control policy from his summit partners, but not without considerable fussing and some bruised feelings.

France and Canada were the chief obstacles, and the statement that finally emerged after hours of wrangling on Sunday was not as strong as the United States would have liked.

In deference to Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, it left open the possibility of eventually including French and British nuclear forces in negotiations with the Soviet Union.

But, for the most part, Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who conducted the tedious bargaining with the other foreign ministers, emerged with a call for both arms control and "sufficient military strength to deter any attack."

According to U.S. officials, the declaration grew out of Reagan's dinner Saturday night with his summit partners.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain was understood to have raised the idea first.

The president, serving as moderator, compiled eight pages of notes on what the leaders had to say on the subject and turned them over to Shultz.

He also briefed the secretary of state for a half-hour.

When the president retired around midnight, the drafting seemed a reasonably easy task.

But Shultz found out otherwise when he sat down Sunday morning with the foreign ministers.

The French took the position that the nuclear arms issue was distracting from the main purpose of the summit — plotting a united program for economic recovery.

The Canadians did not want to include mention of specific details of the U.S. negotiating position, including the U.S. refusal to count the British and French nuclear weapons against Soviet totals.

"The French did not want the first and only piece of news to be focused on arms limits," Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson said afterward.

Cheysson said the French reluctantly went along because it would have been "abnormal" for the leaders to meet without making a statement pledging to work for peace.

Mrs. Thatcher, who basically supports U.S. policy, said before leaving for home Sunday night that Western arms control proposals "have not been pursued as vigorously as they should."

And yet, she said, "it is, I think, a great credit and advantage to President Reagan that he managed to secure such a statement at this summit."

A pleased U.S. official, who played a key role in the drafting, said with a weary smile: "It is surprising we could get such a statement out in 24 hours."

To another U.S. official, the disagreements were no more than "normal give-and-take."

Politburo's oldest dies

MOSCOW (AP) — Arvid Yanovich Pelshe, the oldest member of the Soviet Union's ruling 12-man Politburo and the last active Soviet politician to have known Lenin personally, has died at the age of 84, his office said today.

Pelshe joined the Communist Party in 1915, two years before the Russian revolution, and was handed his first major party position in 1959, when he took control of the Latvian Communist Party.

He did not become a full Central Committee member until 1961, and his most senior position with the Politburo was chairman of the party control committee, which oversees party discipline.

Asked by The Associated Press if there was truth to rumors that Pelshe had died, a spokeswoman at the office said, "Unfortunately, this is true."

However, the woman said details of the official's death would be provided later by the Soviet media.

Pelshe, the Politburo member with the lowest public profile, was last seen in public April 22, when he attended the Kremlin celebrations of the birthday of Vladimir Lenin, founder of the Soviet state.

His portrait was among the Politburo portraits put up for May 1 celebrations. However, he did not attend the Red Square parade that day, suggesting he was already ill.

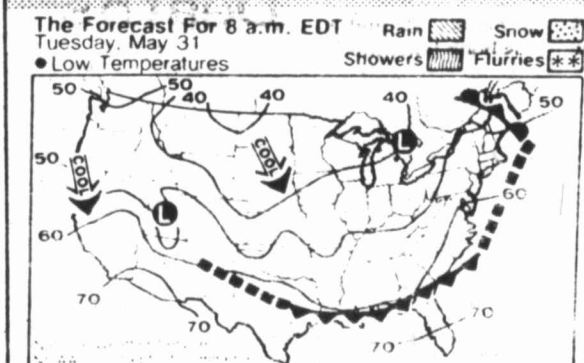

His death reduces to 11 the number of members of the Politburo, which is headed by Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov.

Former senator says arms don't give power

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — J. William Fulbright, the former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, says nuclear weapons alone cannot provide the "key to war and peace."

"The building of more weapons, especially nuclear weapons, is not what we need," the Arkansas Democrat told 1,000 graduates Sunday at the University of Scranton.

Fulbright, 78, received an honorary doctorate of humane letters during the commencement.

In last 14 years, Scranton has received 40 foreign students through the federal scholarship program that bears Fulbright's name.

Some plush Senate jobs

Although it doesn't advertise job openings, Capitol Hill would seem like a good place to work, especially in the Senate.

About 165 Senate employees receive annual salaries above $50,000 and that doesn't include the 100 senators who are paid $60,662 a year.

There's more than just good salaries. Fancy titles are a fringe benefit that come with the fine wage scales. For example, seven staffers called "reporters of debate" record every word that is uttered on the floor during proceedings, debates and speeches. Their annual salary is $57,000 each — a mere $3,662 less than the salaries senators receive.

For some reason or other, the Senate has a total of 6,700 employees. The so-called keeper of stationery gets $50,304 annually and most senators have at least one aide who earns more than $50,000. The bigger spenders can have two or three aides in the above-50-grand bracket.

Nothing in the Senate ever seems to be on a modest level. Two of the 39 Senate employees assigned to Vice President George Bush earn more than $55,000 each. The chief Senate barber earns only $29,993 — of course, that doesn't include tips.

Even the "Senate upholsterer" gets $27,030 to make certain senators enjoy the best of comfort when they're off their feet.

Shaping Israel's future

WASHINGTON — The agreement to withdraw from Lebanon represents a distinctly good deal for Israel. But the Syrians are in strong position to resist, and if they can be brought round at all, it will take time. In the meanwhile, Israel will be in the cockpit for a war of nerves bound to influence the troop withdrawal and also shape the succession to Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Militarily, the withdrawal agreement secures Israel's northern border. A large buffer zone in Southern Lebanon has been blocked out. Lebanese troops friendly to Israel will constitute the main force in the area, and there will be Israeli patrols. Mixed commissions of Israeli, Lebanese and American officials will police the accord.

Politically, the Israelis take another step forward in the long march toward legitimacy. Lebanon has now joined Egypt in formally accepting the existence of the Jewish state. Moreover, after traversing a rough patch, the Israelis maintain good relations with the one outside power vital to their security — the U.S.

THE LEBANESE government conceded nothing in making the deal. The Christian Phalange, headed by Prime Minister Amin Gemayel, retains its stronghold just north of Beirut. The Moslem component of the regime, led by Prime Minister Shafik al-Wazzan, holds on to its base in Beirut. Hence the unanimous vote of the Lebanese parliament for the withdrawal agreement.

Many ethnic communities in Lebanon, of course, remain hostile to the Phalange and the government. Christians and Moslems around Tripoli in the north of the country and leaders of the Druze sect in the mountains back of Beirut have banded together to oppose the withdrawal accord. But they can make serious trouble for the government only insofar as they are backed by the Syrians.

President Hafez Assad of Syria has deep-rooted reasons to fight the withdrawal agreement. He and most of those in power with him in Damascus are members of a tiny Moslem minority — the Alawites. To win favor with the majority, they have identified with the national dream of a Greater Syria embracing parts of what are now Lebanon and Israel.

But the withdrawal accords provide that Syrian troops as well as Israeli forces leave Lebanon. It legitimizes an Israel that has annexed Syrian territory on the Golan Heights. It thus compromises the very concept of a Greater Syria, and jeopardizes Assad's political survival at home.

WITH SO MUCH at stake, the Syrian leader has been busily accumulating assets for the test now at hand. He starts with ties to the dissident elements inside Lebanon. He has added, in a reconciliation with Yasser Arafat, a strong hand in the Palestine Liberation Organization. He also has an alliance with the Iran of the Ayatollah Khomeini. Saudi Arabia pays him large subsidies — in part as insurance against Iran.

On top of all that, Syria has a security arrangement with the Soviet Union. During the Lebanese war, Moscow sat on its hands as the Israelis destroyed big batches of Soviet planes and surface-to-air missiles, which had been given to the Syrians. Since then, the Russians have rebuilt Syrian forces, sent Soviet crews to man the missiles and issued stern warnings to the Israelis.

Exactly what Assad wants to do with these assets is unknown — probably even to him. One theory is that he will continue to play off Russians against Americans, and Saudis against Iranians, and Lebanese against Lebanese, without ever coming to terms. He would then emerge as the most Arab of the Arabs.

Another theory is that he would eventually like to cut a deal. According to this view Assad will sell out the Russians and leave Lebanon in return for some major compensation from the U.S. and Israel.

Whatever the case, a long probing period lies ahead. During that time, internal tensions will wrack Israel. For Prime Minister Begin, aging and dejected, is increasingly unpopular. The opposition Labor Party and those in the Peace Now movement are on the attack, citing the Syrian opposition to the withdrawal accord as proof that the invasion of Lebanon was a disaster.

If the anti-Begin forces assert themselves strongly, Assad will be that much more certain to tough it out in Lebanon. A backlash would probably develop in Israel. When the prime minister eventually goes, the stage would be set for another hard-liner — maybe even former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

If the Israelis stand firm, on the other hand, they can solidify the accord with Lebanon — no matter what Assad does. Begin will be able to go quietly. The succession will be open to the prime architect of the withdrawal accord, the former ambassador to this country, and present minister of defense, Moshe Arens.

I feel so empty

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I just don't understand what is wrong with me. I don't have any problems in my marriage and our children are all grown up and are successful. I have a lot of friends and more than enough money. However, somehow I feel completely empty inside. What is wrong? — Mrs. T.I.A.

DEAR MRS. T.I.A.: I believe that your question could be echoed by many, many people in our society. We are the richest society that has ever lived, and yet we have discovered that it takes more than wealth or leisure or pleasure to satisfy the deepest longings of the human heart.

Why is this? The reason is because God created us for a purpose, but as long as we turn our backs on him and decide to run our own lives without him we will always be unfulfilled. Many centuries ago King Solomon of Israel accumulated great wealth — in fact, he was apparently the wealthiest man of his time. But his heart was empty, so he began to search for ways to fill it. He tried everything — from even greater wealth to pleasure to alcohol. But in the end, he realized that only God could fill the emptiness of his life. (You can read of his search in the Old Testament book of Ecclesiastes.)

Let Christ come into your life and give you meaning and purpose. Let him fill the empty space you sense is there. Let him become the center of your life, instead of all the substitutes you have tried to use to give happiness to you. You need Christ, and you need to discover the amazing truth that God loves you. Jesus said, "I have come that they may have life, and have it to the full" (John 10:10). Invite Christ to come into your life by faith right now — there is no reason to delay.

Then learn to walk with him each day. He is as near as a prayer. He is as near as your Bible — which you should turn to each day to understand more of what God has done for you and what he wants you to do. "Why spend money on ... what does not satisfy? ... Give ear and come to me; hear me, that your soul may live" (Isaiah 55:2,3).

Hooray for SWCID

Dear Editor,
While I was attending Concordia Lutheran College in Austin, an article was published in the Austin-American Statesman that caught my attention. The article pertained to SWCID and how the state "could not" allot enough money for the efficient operation of the institute. SWCID did not receive the amount requested, but at least the state allotted a half decent amount.

SWCID is one of three colleges in the nation that caters to the hearing impaired. That means that the deaf students who wish to go to a college that caters to their disability, they have to leave their home to do so. The hearing disabled — as well as others who have a disability of some sort — are people too. They deserve the right to be educated like the rest of us. After all, we all have a disability of some sort.

I personally want to congratulate the educators at SWCID wanting to educate the disabled. I also want to congratulate the students at SWCID — as well as other disabled people — for realizing that they do not have a handicap. I am proud to say that I will be a special education teacher and I will do my best to educate my students to the extent possible.

Good Luck SWCID, I pray that y'all will have many prosperous years. In closing I want to say "Lift the film of handicap from your eyes and see the person — the person who will thrill to the joy of knowledge and truth."

Smokers' rights

I see where smokers are smoldering about their lack of rights.

An Associated Press story recently reported a tobacco growers' group is launching a campaign to promote the "right to enjoy smoking pleasure."

The other day the mail brought a letter urging smokers to battle against non-smoking special interest groups that are strangling the rights of smokers.

One organization has even begun marketing items ranging from T-shirts to license plates, and decals displaying a round symbol similar to a "no smoking" sign. But, instead of a diagonal line crossing the circle, the symbol shows a lit cigarette with the words "my pleasure, my choice" underneath.

The smokers are arguing that sin taxes on cigarettes, non-smoking sections and no smoking signs are all infringements on their right to smoke.

I CHALK most of this uproar to the tobacco lobby that is scared of losing profits. If fewer people smoke, and reports show they are, then that's less money for the tobacco industry. Money is the issue here, not health or "rights."

However, the question remains, "Is smoking an inalienable right?" I don't think so.

I had a government teacher who said, "Your rights end at the end of your fist and mine start at the tip of my nose." Which means we can do what we want inside the confines of the law as long as it doesn't affect the rights of others. People have the right to smoke as long as it doesn't bother others.

I'm not violently opposed to smoking. I don't fall into a writhing heap upon sniffing a cigarette. However, I don't like cigarette smoke and am a supporter of no smoking signs, non-smoking sections and health.

IT IS HARD for a smoker to realize how he is affecting the rights of a non-smoker by lighting up. He isn't directly abusing another person, but smoke has a way of wafting to infringe on the breathing space of others. I don't think smokers smoke to bother others, it's just a hazard of the habit.

And that takes us back to the technical point of enjoying your rights, but not to the exclusion of others' rights. Although some might argue that point, I feel it's valid.

I'm not trying to paint smokers as insensitive slob who are looking to blow smoke in my face. I don't even notice smokers most of the time except when they do blow smoke my way.

Non-smokers can't really understand why people smoke, but it must be for some reason they hold valid. Lord knows the world is hard enough to survive these days and if smoking brings relaxation or pleasure, then fine, have at it. However, smokers should remember those around them.

I wouldn't argue with a person for smoking because it bothered me. I am less concerned with smokers' rights and more worried about their health. With so much documentation about the destructive effects of smoking, it is beyond me why they continue the habit.

Although many smokers would argue they enjoy smoking and feel it's their "right" to do so, I can't think of many who wouldn't trade places with a non-smoker anytime. It's funny how we humans can argue for so many things we don't really believe in.

Growing fat at the public trough

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Synfuels Corp. is one of the biggest government boondoggles of all time. Created in 1980 to encourage the search for alternatives to fossil fuels, it is funded by the taxpayers but without restrictions that apply to other public agencies.

Synfuels was given $15 billion to spend. The American people will be lucky if they get a nickle's worth of return on their investment.

In a sinfully unrestrained orgy of spending, Synfuels officials have lavished money on themselves in huge salaries, outrageously generous fringe benefits and luxurious quarters that would shame a sheik. My associates John Dillon and Corky Johnson found these examples of the way they've been slurping at the public trough:

— Salaries: A $40,000 consultant's report by the corporation's big shots in 1981 recommended that top salaries be increased to a high of $190,000 a year. Since Synfuels is exempt from federal control of pay scales, the recommendations are being implemented with gusto.

Eight Synfuels officials earn more than Cabinet secretaries. Five others are paid at the $69,000 Cabinet level. Fifty-five of the agency's 177 employees make more than $50,000.

Synfuels President Victor Schroeder is paid $135,000 a year. His wife Kathryn, earns $45,000 a year as a special assistant to the corporation's chairman. One vice president, Leonard Axelrod, makes $108,000. Two others recently got raises that put their salaries above $70,000 a year. One well-paid executive is Ed Cox, who married former President Nixon's daughter Tricia. As general counsel and secretary, he earns $76,000 a year.

— Fringe Benefits: All Synfuels employees are allowed to sock six percent of the salaries away in a savings-retirement plan — with the government contributing 50 percent more. The corporation also pays the full cost of medical and dental insurance — unheard of in other government agencies.

— Luxurious accommodations: Synfuels headquarters is ensconced in four floors of prime office space in downtown Washington. The building is equipped with saunas, squash and racquetball courts and leases space for $30 a square foot — 50 percent higher than less elegant offices leased by the General Services Administration for other agencies. Synfuels officials signed a five-year, $10 million lease.

To achieve the appropriate degree of splendor, the Synfuels sheiks spent $522,919 refurbishing their headquarters. The costs included $14,661 for the services of an interior decorator, $374,739 for furniture and $83,260 for carpeting in the executive suites.

— Consultants: Though clearly top-heavy with well-paid professionals, Synfuels still felt the need of outside help and hired 13 consultants at fees ranging up to $600 a day. Two of these experts were hired at a cost of $35,000 to "develop an organizational framework and interim operating capacity for the Office of Inspector General." They never turned in a report, but were themselves hired to work in the IG's office.

— Conflict of interest: Several Synfuels executives have substantial stock holdings in energy companies of affiliates that have applied for grants from the corporation. And an engineering firm that owns stock in the company of a board member, Milton Masson, has offered to provide advice for those seeking Synfuels money.

Dr. Donohue

Change dosage to avoid effects

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have eosinophilic fasciitis and I am taking prednisone to keep my eosinophils down. My dosage is altered from time to time after tests. I am wondering about the steroids. What did doctors do before steroid drugs? I realize I have quite a rare illness, but might not the steroids be more dangerous, or at least as dangerous as the disease? I'd appreciate an answer. — R.P.G.

Your illness is somewhat rare. Fascia is the binding and separating tissue of the body. When that tissue becomes inflamed and swollen, the condition is called fasciitis. The term, eosinophilia refers to the rise in numbers of certain white blood cells (eosinophils) associated with the problem. Other than for such findings, we don't know why the inflammation occurs. It usually does so between the ages of 30 and 60, causing muscle pain and tenderness. The arms and legs may swell, especially following strenuous physical activity. Sometimes the illness just goes away on its own. Steroids are often used to keep symptoms in check.

I don't know what doctors did for many ailments prior to the discovery of steroid medicines. I don't like to think about it. We can only imagine that there was a great deal more suffering as patients endured the symptoms of many such ailments as yours.

Steroids are not dangerous when their use is justified and carefully monitored. From your letter, it appears that your physician has established the need and is adjusting dosages in relation to the rise and fall of your blood test eosinophil levels. You mention (another part of your letter) that you are now on an every-other-day dosage schedule. This should further reduce any side effects. I sincerely hope your illness disappears. Then you will be able to gradually reduce your steroid dosages and perhaps end the need for the medicine.

NOTE TO READERS — I have been asked from time to time to make known through my column the continuing need for donors of vital organs, and most recently for liver donations. Recently published stories attest to the great difficulty in obtaining that organ for transplants in children. For readers who do not have personal objections generally to organ donation, it can represent a priceless gift to a family of a seriously ill child.

I have been asked from time to time also to seek donors in specific cases through this column space. I cannot do that for many obvious reasons, not the least of which is the time factor involved. I can, however, endorse a general plea for donors of various organs. If you wish to do this and if you have any questions, call any regional donor center or medical school near you.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Peace of mind found in living will

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for mentioning the Living Will in your column again.

I read about it in your column five years ago and obtained two — one for myself and one for my wife. We were both 65 and in good health. We're 70 now and hope to have many good years ahead of us, but one never knows.

I am enclosing a copy of the column I clipped. Please give it another run. I am sure there are thousands of people who will benefit from it as we have.

C&L IN EL PASO

DEAR C&L: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for the most wonderful present I have ever received. Because of an item in your column last year, I sent for the Living Will. Now I have peace of mind, knowing that if my husband or I should ever become terminally ill, our loved ones will never have to watch us die slow and agonizing deaths as some we have witnessed.

I saw my handsome 6-foot, 200-pound father waste away to an 88-pound skeleton after fighting a two-year battle with cancer. The doctors told us it was hopeless, yet they kept that poor dear man alive month after month with transfusions, tubes, needles and drugs, while he prayed to God to take him.

Abby, you would do millions of readers a priceless service by acquainting them with the Living Will as you did me.

GRATEFUL IN JOLIET, ILL.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Thank you for giving me this opportunity to publicize the Living Will again. It reads as follows:

LIVING WILL

"To my family, my physician, my clergyman, my lawyer: If the time comes when I can no longer take part in decisions for my own welfare and if there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from physical or mental disability, I request that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or heroic measures, as I fear the indignity of deterioration, dependence and hopeless pain more than death itself. I ask that drugs be mercifully administered to me for terminal suffering even if they hasten the moment of death. You who care for me will, I hope, feel morally bound to follow this mandate. This statement is made to relieve you of responsibility and to mitigate any feelings of guilt.

Yes, I have signed one. I requested six copies and enclosed my check for $10 to cover cost of documents and mailing. (It is tax-deductible.)

If you send for the Living Will, please be patient. I promise your request will not be overlooked. Be sure to enclose your name and address, clearly written.

The documents are free, but this is a non-profit organization, so all donations are gratefully accepted. One woman requested eight copies and enclosed her check for $500, saying, "This is the most marvelous thing I've ever heard of." I agree.

86-year-old to move into hand-made tepee

HELPER, Utah (AP) — When Elbert Lowdermilk was growing up among the Indians in Oklahoma during the early 1900s, he was fascinated by their traditional tepees, brightly painted with symbolic pictographs.

If only his Indian friends could see him now. Lowdermilk, 86, plans soon to move into his own carefully painted tepee — constructed of steel and complete with bathroom, kitchen, fire escape, loft, paved parking lot and laundry facilities in an adjacent two-car garage.

"I just grew up amongst Indians and I knew a lot about them," Lowdermilk said in a recent interview. He was spattered with mud from overseeing work on a giant mudslide which plugged up Spanish Fork Canyon, creating a lake which flooded the tiny town of Thistle to the northwest.

When his construction crew dismantled a cone-shaped section of a coal washer from a mining operation in 1957, "it looked like a tepee," he said.

'I just grew up amongst Indians and I knew a lot about them.'

Intrigued with the possibility of living in the huge cone, he hauled it up on a hill overlooking his construction firm, H.E. Lowdermilk Co., and anchored it firmly on a concrete foundation.

Slowly and with great care, he has added improvements.

Now the tepee, an Indian on horseback painted on its front, a row of pictographs around its base and steel poles poking out of its top, is almost finished.

"It's just a hobby. It keeps my mind out of mischief," Lowdermilk says. It also kept some of his employees working during slow times.

Lowdermilk and his workers cut holes in the steel for a door and windows and built a spiral staircase leading up to a loft in which he placed a bed and rocking chair.

A tiny back door that also serves as a fire escape opens from the loft onto a steel staircase.

Downstairs, Lowdermilk has installed shiny kitchen appliances, a small oval bathtub and other bathroom fixtures, cupboards, a closet, a couch, chairs, a telephone and a television. A mirror and pictures decorate the wood-paneled and tile walls. A bear rug and rag rugs are scattered on the stone floor.

The tepee is entered through an attached red brick hut Lowdermilk has labeled in metal letters the "Mud Room." The hut, lined with blue tile and wood cabinets, has an elaborate wrought-iron door, door posts topped with tiny tepees and a television antenna on the roof.

Outside, a neat cement path has been laid around the tepee. The paved parking lot in front has a drain so "15 minutes after it rains, it's dry," he said.

Nearby, Lowdermilk has built a garage with a tiny family room, a deck, a loft area "for my grandkids" and a laundry room.

Lowdermilk is putting the finishing touches on the tepee and intends to be living alone in it by next year. In the garage basement he also has built a small apartment.

"If I get old and need someone to take care of me, they can stay here," he said.

LUXURY TEEPEE — Elbert Lowdermilk of Helper, Utah, which is 150 miles southeast of Salt Lake City, stands in front of his steel tepee. He began the project several years ago as a hobby and plans to move in by next year.

Graduate happy but unable to smile

PORTAGE, Pa. (AP) — Robyn Adams, who has had four operations for a rare disorder of the facial muscles that keeps her from smiling, says she's not too upset that she hasn't improved in time for her high school graduation Friday night.

Born with bilateral facial palsy, or Moebius Syndrome, the 18-year-old Portage Area High School graduate lacks four of five major facial muscles. Her lower lip constantly pouts and she can't close her mouth to smile or frown. Her eyes seldom close completely, even when she sleeps.

"I'm not depressed ... I have patience. I like the way I am and I always will," she said in her slow, occasionally slurred speech.

She speaks well except for being unable to clearly pronounce "B's" and "P's," since she cannot purse her lips, said Dr. Dennis Hurwitz, professor of plastic surgery at the University of Pittsburgh.

Only about 200 cases of the disorder have been reported worldwide, Hurwitz said. Miss Adams' 12-year-old brother, Ryan, also suffers from the condition, but doctors don't know whether it is hereditary.

Doctors last year used a new technique to insert small muscles taken from Miss Adams' chest in her face. But despite four painful operations, there have been no encouraging results, although Hurwitz says improvement could come at any time.

"It is disappointing," she said. "I was hoping to smile around this time ... but I've seen nothing at all."

The problems and the disappointment have not kept Miss Adams from excelling, however. An honors student, she was elected the school's homecoming queen last fall. At 5-foot-5 and 125 pounds, she was second leading scorer on the girls' basketball team and captained the volleyball team.

A numb arm following one of last year's operations dashed her chances for an athletic scholarship, but Miss Adams still plans to major in physical education this fall at Slippery Rock State College.

She's hoping her college peers will be as understanding as her high school friends.

"I'll just explain it to them if they ask," she said. "I hope they do because it's a lot easier if they understand why I can't smile at them. I don't want them to have the impression that I'm a grouchy person."

Man sentenced for killing cat

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — A man who admitted shooting a pet cat and running it over with a car to make the death look accidental was sentenced Friday to eight months in jail.

Roanoke General District Judge James Brice imposed the maximum 12-month sentence on Michael R. Stoner, 24, of Broomfield, Colo., but suspended four months of the term on the condition that Stoner make restitution for veterinarian bills.

Brice had earlier offered to disqualify himself from the case because he has a cat with the same name, Samantha, as the dead pet. He said he has owned cats most of his life and could sympathize with the owner, Denise Zak of Roanoke. But Stoner said he had no objection. Assistant Public Defender Cynthia Dodge said Stoner, who pleaded guilty to a charge of maliciously killing a cat, will appeal the sentence.

Stoner did not testify at the hearing, but Ms. Dodge told Brice that Stoner had arrived in Roanoke on a visit May 21, the day of the shooting. She said Stoner had been drinking and shot the cat after one of his hosts told him it was a stray that had caused trouble.

After he shot the cat he was told it was a neighbor's pet, so he decided to make the killing look like an accident by running over it with a car, Ms. Dodge said.

Ms. Zak said she'd lived in the neighborhood for several months and all her neighbors knew the black-and-white cat was her pet. "She was my little baby," Ms. Zak said.

90-year-old inducted into Phi Beta Kappa

GRANVILLE, Ohio (AP) — For 90-year-old Mary McClure Miller of Newark, Ohio, it was a long time coming — 70 years to be exact.

Mrs. McClure was to be inducted today into Phi Beta Kappa, an honorary society of U.S. college students of high scholastic rank.

The honor comes 70 years after she graduated from Denison University.

The Phi Beta Kappa chapter at Denison was established in 1911, a year after Mrs. Miller transferred to the university from Oberlin College, at Oberlin, Ohio.

The chapter's bylaws required that a student have at least 90 hours of "A" grades before membership consideration, but Mrs. Miller's freshman year grades were credited and recorded only as "S" when she transferred to Denison, officials said.

10-year veteran shakes off Unsers, hard luck for title

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There was one lap to go, 2.5 tantalizing miles to the checkered flag that would signal his victory in the Indianapolis 500, when Tom Sneva saw the fuel light on his control panel suddenly stop blinking and stay on permanently.

It might as well have been a siren going off in his crash helmet.

For 10 years, Sneva had been trying to win auto racing's most glamorous event. Each time, though, something seemed to block his way.

But after dispensing with this year's obstacle — rookie Al Unser Jr., who was trying to give his father, three-time Indy champ Al Sr., a birthday present by running interference for him — Sneva wasn't about to let a fuel warning deter him.

"I thought we had enough (fuel) to go the distance," said Sneva. "That's what the guys in the pits kept telling me. Until it goes on solid, you're OK. It was on (solid) the last lap, but you have to go with it."

So he simply ignored the light, floored the accelerator and cruised to his first Indy title after three frustrating second-place finishes.

Sneva's average speed of 162.117 mph in his March-Cosworth was the second fastest time in Indy history and pushed him past the finish line 11.1 seconds ahead of Al Unser Sr., who was celebrating his 44th birthday and searching for a record-tying fourth Indy crown.

The Unsers, father and son, made it exceedingly difficult for Sneva, a former junior high school principal. For 16 frustrating laps, Sneva battled both of them, challenging the elder for the lead in a duel that was complicated by the younger Unser, who tried to play buffer for his dad.

Sneva used every ounce of his last supply of fuel, which he took on with 30 laps to go when Mike Mosley's crash — the last of only four all day — put the race under its final yellow flag. Actually, Sneva was lucky to stay in the chase at that point, barely avoiding Mosley's spinout.

But he made it and headed for his final pit stop, spending 27.9 seconds in there, loading up, while the senior Unser was in more briefly, using just 11.4 seconds.

That gap in pit time was caused by Unser's decision not to change tires, a choice the veteran later regretted. The strategy looked good at the time though because his quick exit from the pits enabled Unser to move into the lead with less than 75 miles to go.

It was then that the younger Unser entered the picture. He was running about five laps behind the leaders but found himself racing with the leaders, his dad and Sneva. The 21-year-old, one of six rookies in the race, became a blocking back for his father, positioning himself in front of Sneva and refusing to yield position.

For 16 laps they raced that way — Unser Sr. leading the way, Unser Jr. behind him and Sneva looking for room to move. Every time Sneva tried to step in front of "Little Al," there was no place to go.

Unser Jr. made no secret of his motives.

"I was trying to help Dad win the race," he said. "That's what I was trying to do. If I could help Dad with the race, I was going to."

He went a bit too far, illegally passing two cars under the yellow, a violation that cost him a two-lap penalty.

For his part, Sneva was annoyed at the tactics. "I know this is racing and a driver must take what he can," he said. "But the rule states specifically that a driver should not pass under the yellow. I could understand it if Al was competing for the victory. But he was well behind and had no chance."

The duel stirred memories of last year's wheel-to-wheel final lap battle for victory between Gordon Johncock and Rick Mears. Johncock, the defending champion, was out of the race by the time of Sneva's battle with the Unsers, and Mears was running third, where he would finish.

COLLISION AT SUNDAY'S INDY 500 — Mario Andretti, in car 3, crashes into the wall in turn one after Johnny Parsons in car 66 spun in front of him. The accident occurred in lap 82 of the 500 mile race Sunday afternoon in Indianapolis.

Two other former winners also were gone. Four-time champion A.J. Foyt had made it through just 24 laps before being forced out by a broken U-joint. He finished 31st, his poorest finish in 26 races at Indy. Also sidelined was Mario Andretti, who could not avoid Johnny Parsons' spinout and crashed on the 82nd lap.

Finally on the 191st lap, Sneva sneaked by the Unser family.

"I think we ran up on some traffic and I think I saw it before they did," he said. "It's part of the game. You have to see what's coming up a half or lap or so ahead. I knew I had to get a run at them, and I got a good shot coming off turn one. I knew I wasn't going to mosey around them. It's a timing deal. Obviously, I timed it right."

Sneva looked like he'd been launched by a slingshot once he shed the Unsers. He steadily increased his lead over the final nine laps and, with his tank all but drained, he zoomed home, waving happily as he crossed the finish line.

Behind him came the older Unser, Mears, Geoff Brabham, Kevin Cogan, Howdy Holmes, Pancho Carter, Chip Ganassi, Scott Brayton, and the younger Unser.

The race had produced its peaks and valleys. At the start, record-setting rookie pole sitter Teo Fabi had opened brilliantly, leading for the first 23 laps. But a fuel filter malfunction put him out of the race early.

By 30 laps, Unser Sr. had shot in front. Nine times, he and Sneva would trade the lead. In the end, Sneva, the underdog, prevailed.

"It feels a lot better than being a bridesmaid," he said. "I want to do this some more. I can't understand why we didn't do this before — it feels that good."

Late Sixer rush rips LA

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers don't seem satisfied with the prospect of merely erasing their image as a team that can't win a championship. They want to stamp themselves as the most dominant playoff team in National Basketball Association history.

The powerful 76ers, taking command in the final quarter, rolled to a 111-94 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Sunday to build their NBA championship series advantage to 3-0.

And the 76ers seem intent on burying the defending league champion Lakers in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series.

"We want Los Angeles in four," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham after the victory at the Forum. "We want people to remember this team."

Philadelphia, which last won an NBA title 16 years ago and lost to the Lakers in the finals last year and in 1980, has breezed through this year's playoffs with 11 victories and just one loss.

Another win over the Lakers in Tuesday night's Game 4 at the Forum would make the 76ers the first team in the league's 37-year history to go through the playoffs with just one defeat. Only the 1982 Lakers and the 1971 Milwaukee Bucks made it through the playoffs with as few as two losses.

Philadelphia's Julius Erving, whose otherwise outstanding NBA career has been blemished by the lack of a championship, said, "We're more determined than ever and more capable of winning our next game, and that's what I think we're going to do."

Moses Malone scored 28 points and pulled down 19 rebounds and Erving had 21 points and 12 rebounds for the 76ers, who rattled off a 14-0 string to take command after trailing 76-72 early in the final quarter.

Andrew Toney also scored 21 points in the victory and Bobby Jones came off the bench to add 17.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 23 points and 15 rebounds. Jamaal Wilkes added 20 points and Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 18 points and 13 assists. Malone said: "Their backs are against the wall and we want to keep them there. We want to fly back to Philly and have the fans waiting for us at the airport."

Lakers Coach Pat Riley said his players have to forget about their three losses.

"Even though we are down 3-0, this is not our death bed," he said. "We can't look back ... we have to play for the next game."

"You have a dream and you never give it up. We have to continue to believe in ourselves," the Laker coach added. "I'll never, ever concede anything, especially a championship."

The Lakers, who beat the 76ers 4-2 in last year's finals, are just one loss away from becoming the 14th straight league champion that has failed to successfully defend its title. The last club to repeat as champion was the 1969 Boston Celtics.

The odds are heavily stacked against the Lakers. No team in NBA history has ever come back to win a best-of-seven series after losing the first three games.

"I don't have to tell you it's an uphill climb," said the Lakers' Johnson. "I just don't want it to end 4-0."

Irwin outflights storms, tough field

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Chip shots on the 16th hole — one successful and the other not so lucky — turned Hale Irwin into a winner and David Graham into a loser Sunday in Jack Nicklaus' $380,445 Memorial Golf Tournament.

Irwin sank his 25-foot approach shot for a birdie 2. Graham plunked him into a bunker, took a double-bogey 5 and lost the lead. Irwin shot 3-under-par 69 for a total of 281, nipping Ben Crenshaw and Graham by a single shot at Muirfield Village.

"In match play, it would have been devastating. The other fellows would have seen it," Irwin said of his perfect approach that moved him within one shot of Graham's lead at the time.

Minutes later, Graham lost the lead because of what he called a poor club selection on the tee of the 204-yard No. 16.

"I had hit 5-and 6-irons in practice all week. For some unexplained reason today, I pulled out a 4-iron. It was a very, very bad mistake. I hit the shot 15 yards over the green. I felt I lost the tournament there," the 1980 Memorial champion said.

Graham said of his difficult lie for his approach at 16, "It was a swing and hope situation. I couldn't predict what the ball would do."

Memorial Golf

His double-bogey dropped the native Australian out of the lead for the first time during the final round, halted twice for more than 3½ hours because of thunderstorms.

Graham shot 74 and settled for a second-place check of $35,200 with Crenshaw. They were at 282, 6 strokes below par on this difficult 7,116-yard layout.

A bogey on the 17th hole cost Crenshaw a shot at a playoff. He had 71.

After picking up his check for $72,000, Irwin said of his 15th career victory: "My immediate reaction is one of relief. It was nerve-wracking to sit around for 30 minutes. I was thinking playoff."

Irwin, however, said he did not think about his 1976 playoff loss here when Roger Maltbie won as his ball hit a half-inch wide stake near the 17th green and saved par in the playoff.

"I was dodging too many bullets to think about that," said Irwin, the winner of $145,387 this year and $2.4 million in his career.

Jim Thorpe took fourth place with a closing 70 for 283. Scott Hoch and midway leader Andy Bean tied for fifth at 284 with Calvin Peete and Jay Haas next at 285.

Hoch shot 74, Bean 74, Peete 73 and Haas 72.

HALE IRWIN ... earns big paycheck

Sheehan sinks course mark

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Twice before, Patty Sheehan played in the Corning Classic, and both times were disasters. So she felt compelled to return, in order to master the place that had given her her worst experiences on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

The third time was the charm for the 26-year-old Middlebury, Vt., native Sunday as she put together a nearly flawless, 9-under-par 63 to win the $150,000 Corning Classic by eight strokes over Cindy Hill.

"Patty's round was absolutely fabulous," said Hill, who turned on the pressure with a 68 on the final round and a 72-hole total of 280 — good enough to match the previous tournament record set last year by Sheehan and Sandra Spuzich, but hardly in sight of Sheehan's four-day total of 272, 16-under-par.

LPGA Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie, who finished third at 281, also fired a 68, while Kathy Young and Kathy Hite, who tied for fourth with cumulative scores of 282, shot 1-under 71 and par 72, respectively.

Australian second-year performer Jane Lock made her best showing with a sixth-place finish at 284, while JoAnne Carner and Valerie Skinner, who started the day in a deadlock, ended that way after 71s which left each at 286 after four days on the 6,286-yard Corning Country Club layout.

Corning Classic

Sheehan, the 1981 LPGA rookie of the year, had been snakebit at Corning since the start, losing two years ago to Hite because of a bogey on the 17th hole on the final round and then losing to Spuzich last year after a double-bogey 6 on No. 17 and a bogey 5 on No. 18.

But she made sure of the $22,500 first prize this year.

The victory vaulted Sheehan from 11th on the money list to fourth with $84,692 and put her in line for the richest bonanza ever offered in women's golf — the $1.35 million promised the winner of the Corning, West Virginia and McDonald's classics.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 31, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning can bring some problems you do not need, but the afternoon finds you able to overcome obstacles easily. Listen closely to suggestions made by close ties.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid calling on a difficult person early in the day. Be alert to carelessness on the part of others. Use good judgment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A financial matter needs more study before making a definite decision. Make this a most worthwhile day.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show others that you have poise if some unusual situation comes up today. Be sure not to lose your temper with anyone.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A private matter could be upsetting early in the day, but later everything works out to your advantage.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get rid of whatever is not practical in the morning and later you can be happy with your friends. Relax at home tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can take care of an important home matter early in the day and later expand where your career is concerned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid changing present arrangement at work until you have first studied it well. Plan how to gain your finest aims.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find a much better way of carrying through with agreements you have made with others. Strive to be more successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Steer clear of an irate associate in the morning and later all will straighten out. Safeguard your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use extreme care in handling all work ahead of you and avoid possible trouble. Plan how to gain your finest aims.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Doing something special for persons you really like brings excellent results at this time. Express happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Avoid arguments at home early in the day and later there will be real harmony. Make long-range plans for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those capable young persons who can get at the core of a situation and then know how best to handle it. Be sure to give chores early in life that could pave the way to success later. Give fine spiritual training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Durie upsets No. 4 Austin; Connors in quarters

PARIS (AP) — Jo Durie of Britain upset fourth-seeded Tracy Austin 6-1, 4-6, 6-0 today and reached the semifinals of the French Open Tennis Championships as form continued to turn upside down.

The tall 22-year-old Englishwoman was one of four unseeded players in the quarterfinals.

On the slow clay of the center court at Roland Garros, Durie played steadily and hit powerful forehands while Austin was inconsistent most of the match.

"I didn't move well and I couldn't keep the ball in," the American said. "That third set was one of the worst of my career. But she played well and kept going."

Durie looked like winning in two sets. Serving at 4-3 in the second, she twice had a point for a 5-3 lead. On the second of these a forehand from Austin was called out but the umpire overruled the linesman and gave the point to the American.

Durie's confidence crumbled and Austin took three games in a row to even the match at one set all.

In the final set Durie resumed her forward march and Austin managed only seven points.

Austin frequently missed the lines in the baseline rallies, and her service came so slowly off the red clay that Durie sometimes had time to run around it and thump winning forehand returns.

Durie said her confidence was high after she and her British partner Anne Hobbs won their first major doubles title in Berlin last week.

"When you play someone who is ranked high, like Tracy, you tend to think you must do something extra," Durie said. "This is what has happened to me in the past."

French Open

"This time I just told myself to play my normal game and keep going."

"When you fall behind to a top player there is always a danger of panic. The important part of my performance in this match was that I controlled the panic."

In previous rounds Durie had beaten two other seeds, Pam Shriver and Kathy Rinaldi. In the first of those matches Shriver twisted her ankle and retired after losing the first set.

Jimmy Connors, who turns 31 in September, Sunday became the first man to reach the quarterfinals of the $1.3 million tournament and next plays on the slow clay courts against unseeded Frenchman Christophe Roger-Vasselin, either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Connors advanced with a 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 victory over Eric Fromm, a 25-year-old New Yorker ranked 57th, while Roger-Vasselin moved into the quarterfinals with 6-2, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1 win over Fernando Luma of Spain.

Other players who made it to the quarterfinals Sunday were No. 3 seeded Czech Ivan Lendl, who beat No. 12 seed Brian Gottfried 7-6, 6-4, 6-3. Lendl next plays No. 6 seed Yannick Noah of France, who ousted Australian John Alexander on Sunday 6-2, 7-6, 6-1.

Among the women, No. 2 seed Chris Evert Lloyd reached the quarterfinals Sunday by defeating Czech Helena Sukova 6-2, 3-6, 6-3; Andrea Jaeger, seeded third, beat Britain's Anne Hobbs 6-2, 6-4; Gretchen Rush outstroked Argentine Ivanna Madruga Osses 6-3, 6-2, and No. 8 seed Czech Hana Mandlikova eliminated No. 10 seed Andrea Temesvari of Hungary 6-2, 6-1.

McEnroe, the 24-year-old No. 2 seed, played again today against Eliot Teltscher, seeded 10th, in the last of the men's fourth-round matches.

Not fond of clay courts, Connors earlier this year had said he would never play the French Open again. But at the last minute he changed his mind and entered the tournament on a wild card.

Besides the McEnroe-Teltscher encounter, the remaining men's fourth-round matches today pit defending champion Mats Wilander (No. 5) against fellow Swede Henrik Sundstrom (No. 14), Argentine Guillermo Vilas (No. 4) against New York teen-ager Jimmy Arias (No. 11) and Spain's Jose Higueras (No. 8) against Andres Gomez of Ecuador (No. 16).

'Bama knocks Hurricanes out

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Alabama's Ted McClendon and Frank Velleggia combined for six RBI and two home runs as Alabama won the NCAA South regional baseball championship with an 11-9 victory over Miami Sunday night.

'Horns top Miss. St., take NCAA Central

AUSTIN (AP) — Mississippi State was the only roadblock left in the Texas Longhorns' drive to their 22nd College World Series appearance, and needed to win one of the last two games in the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament.

Pitcher Steve Labay hurled the Longhorns over the first obstacle, allowing Mississippi State just four hits in Texas' 7-0 win in the first game Sunday. Mike Brumley and Jose Tolentino then led a Longhorn scoring barrage in the title game that crumbled Bulldog hopes under the weight of Texas' 12-3 victory.

Texas lost to Mississippi State earlier in the double-elimination tournament, and that loss meant the Longhorns had to win both games Sunday to earn the right to play James Madison in the opening round of the College World Series later this week in Omaha, Neb.

Labay struck out four, walked none and fed just four batters over the minimum in the first game.

Texas collected two runs in the third on a sacrifice fly by Bill Bates and a double by Brumley. The Longhorns then added two runs in the fourth on bloop single by tournament MVP Johnny Sutton and three in the fifth on RBI doubles by Doug Hodo and Tolentino and a single by Sutton.

Brumley and Tolentino drove in three runs apiece in the second game to pace the 16-hit, 12-run Texas barrage.

Roger Clemens, 12-5, got the win and Mississippi State starter Hans Herzog, 12-3, took the loss.

WE'RE GOING TO THE SERIES — Texas catcher Jeff Hearron and Bryan Burrows are jubilant after the Longhorns knocked off Mississippi State twice Sunday. The 'Horns won the NCAA Central title and are in the College World Series for the 22nd time.

Last play surprises Stars

By The Associated Press

Because Boston wide receiver Frank Lockett stayed put, the Philadelphia Stars will have to wait at least another week before clinching a United States Football League playoff spot.

The Stars, 11-2, saw their eight-game winning streak snapped when Lockett caught a tipped pass on the game's final play Sunday, lifting the Breakers to a 21-17 victory. Boston, 8-5, is second to Philadelphia in the Atlantic Division.

"It was a great catch, wasn't it?" said Lockett, a substitute who grabbed quarterback Johnnie Walton's 14-yard pass after it was deflected by teammate Charlie Smith, the intended receiver. "One of their defensive backs pushed me over there, and I just stayed there because I thought the play was dead."

Then the ball came fluttering off Smith's hand and into Lockett's arms.

Monday's games feature Tampa Bay at Michigan and Arizona at Chicago.

Boston began its winning 65-yard march trailing 17-13 with 1:50 to play. Walton threw on all 12 plays, completing seven passes. On fourth-and-10 at the Philadelphia 14 with four seconds to go, he and Lockett — by way of Smith — connected for the decisive TD.

The Breakers held Kelvin Bryant to 47 yards, his lowest output of the season, on 21 carries.

Generals 32, Federals 29

While Bryant was stymied, New Jersey's Herschel Walker had an 83-yard run on the first play from scrimmage — the longest touchdown run in the USFL's brief history — and 194 yards rushing, another league mark, while quarterback Jeff Knapple of the Generals passed for his first two touchdowns as a pro. But it took a 50-yard field goal by Dave Betz as time ran out to win the game.

Mike Hohensee passed for two TDs for the Federals, 1-12 and losers of nine straight.

Invaders 20, Express 10

Oakland's Raymond Chester fell on his own fumble in the end zone for a touchdown. Fred Besana threw a pass from the LA 38 that Chester caught at the 5. He fell and fumbled on the 2, but recovered the ball in the end zone to give Oakland a 14-7 lead in the third quarter. The teams are 6-7 and tied for first in the Pacific Division.

Homer attack rolls Chisox by Rangers

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Kittle is starting to draw standing ovations whenever he homers at Comiskey Park. And at the pace he's going, the Chicago White Sox rookie from Gary, Ind., could set a club record.

Talk like that makes Manager Tony LaRussa grimace. And projections don't mean much to Kittle, who hit his 10th homer Sunday as the White Sox pounded the Texas Rangers 8-3.

"They projected 70 at one time at Edmonton last year," said Kittle, who finished with 50 at Edmonton and hit 40 with Glen Falls the previous season.

The White Sox record of 37 home runs in one season was set by Richie Allen in 1972. At the rate Kittle is going, he could finish with 42.

Kittle was joined by Vance Law and Carlton Fisk in Sunday's home run parade as the White Sox won their third straight game. Texas slipped under .500 for the first time this season.

Jerry Koonsman, getting only his second start, boosted his record to 3-0. In his two starts, the Sox have scored 20 runs and hit 8 homers. Koonsman lasted through two of the three rain delays Sunday but departed after six innings.

"I felt good and the delays didn't affect me that much," said the 40-year-old southpaw. "I could have gone on, but counting all the extra warmup pitches I must have thrown the ball 250 times and that's enough."

The Rangers, who opened the season by shipping the Sox three straight, finally fell below the .500 mark at 22-23. The loss was their seventh in the last eight games.

"Nothing that 20 out of the next 26 won't cure," said rookie Texas Manager Doug Rader. "I said at the beginning of the season that if we were at .500 by the end of May, we'd be in fine shape."

So far this month the Rangers have had only seven games at home and 17 of the 19 scheduled on the road.

American League

Angels 6, Indians 4

Contrary to the way it's supposed to be, the days have been growing longer and longer for Mr. October.

But with one swing Sunday, Reggie Jackson may have started to hit his way out of a horrendous slump.

Jackson was hitless in 21 at-bats and 8-for-83, sporting an embarrassing .176 average when he stepped to the plate in the ninth inning of a tie game in Cleveland Stadium with one out and a runner on first. As usual, he relished the spotlight and slammed his seventh home run of the season to give the California Angels a 6-4 triumph over the Indians.

Jackson's homer boosted his average to .182. Despite his snail-like start, the Angels have been rolling merrily along, and Sunday's victory was their seventh in a row.

Blue Jays 6, Red Sox 1

At Toronto, Lloyd Moseby hit a solo homer in the second inning and a two-run shot in the fifth and Jim Gott held Boston to three singles as the Blue Jays climbed into a tie with the Red Sox atop the American League East.

Royals 4, Orioles 0

At Kansas City, rookie Pat Sheridan smacked his second home run of the season in support of the seven-hit pitching of Paul Splittorff and Dan Quisenberry as the Royals handed Dennis Martinez his ninth setback in 12 decisions this season.

Yankees 5, A's 0

At New York, Jay Howell and Rudy May combined on a four-hitter, Don Baylor raced home on a wild pitch to break a scoreless tie in the sixth inning and Oscar Gamble hit a three-run homer.

Mariners 6, Brewers 4

Ricky Nelson's tie-breaking homer off Don Sutton triggered a five-run Seattle sixth inning and fellow rookie Matt Young scattered six hits through 7-3 innings for his fourth consecutive triumph and the Mariners' third in a row in Milwaukee.

Tigers 7, Twins 6

At Detroit, Kirk Gibson, batting only .196, belted his second home run of the season with one out in the eighth inning to give the Tigers a four-game sweep of the Twins.

Cardinals, Quirk's big bat drop Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Enter the unlikely hero, a reserve catcher with a reserved batting average belted a three-run homer and a run-scoring single to win a game and some respect from his world champion teammates.

Jamie Quirk, acquired by St. Louis in the off-season, called the Cardinals 7-3 win over the Houston Astros Sunday his biggest game in the majors.

"I've had four RBIs once before in the majors, but this is my biggest game because of the respect factor," Quirk said. "I'm new over here and these guys haven't see me play much. I'm the only new guy on a world championship team and these guys wonder what I can do to help them."

The Cardinals trailed 3-1 when Quirk, a .182 hitter with one RBI in 22 at bats, came to the plate in the fifth inning with George Hendrick and Willie McGee on base. With the count 2-1, Quirk hit a fastball from Astro starter Mike Scott over the right field wall.

The homer was just the second in three years for Quirk and his 13th in six seasons.

Dave LaPoint pitched seven innings and allowed three runs on six hits before yielding to ace reliever Bruce Sutter in the eighth. Scott, 0-3, was the loser.

LaPoint is now 9-0 in road games and 6-0 in daytime decisions since he came to the Cardinals two years ago.

Houston took a 3-0 lead in the fourth when Phil Garner hit his sixth home run of the season, a blast that followed back-to-back singles by Kevin Bass and Dickie Thon.

The Cardinals took the lead in the fifth when Keith Hernandez and Hendrick led off with singles. McGee signed to score Hernandez and Quirk then cleared the bases.

St. Louis added a run in the sixth after Lonnie Smith reached on a fielders choice, moved to third on a two-base throwing error by Mike Scott and scored on a single by McGee.

Hernandez led off the eighth with a walk, stole second and, after McGee walked, scored the Cardinal's sixth run when Quirk singled. McGee then finished the scoring on Ozzie Smith's single.

National League

Giants 6, Dodgers 4

They are a weary band of vagabonds returning home, finally.

Winding up their longest road trip in 15 years, the San Francisco Giants can take a great deal of satisfaction in exceeding even the expectations of their very demanding manager, Frank Robinson.

At the outset of this 16-game, five-city junket, Robinson said he would be satisfied to win between seven and 10 games. By winning three of four in Los Angeles, including a 6-4 decision Sunday, the Giants came home with 11 victories.

The losing series dropped the Dodgers to within 1½ games of the Atlanta Braves, who beat Chicago 6-2 on Sunday.

On top of the loss, the Dodgers learned that relief ace Steve Howe, who had not given up an earned run this season, would have to re-enter a drug and alcohol treatment program. He was placed on the 21-day disabled list.

Braves 6, Cubs 2

Bob Horner hit a two-run double to spark a four-run first inning as Atlanta won for the seventh time in 10 games, all without a homer.

In fact, the power-hitting Braves have gone homerless for 13 games.

Rick Camp, 4-4, scattered six hits before leaving with two out in the seventh to beat Dick Ruthven, 2-3.

Bill Buckner homered for the Cubs, who have lost two in a row and three of their past five.

Phillies 5, Expos 2

Bo Diaz and Mike Schmidt each homered, and right-hander Larry Christenson pitched Philadelphia to its second straight victory after losing six in a row. Diaz's homer, No. 5, was a two-run shot in Philadelphia's three-run sixth inning, and Schmidt hit No. 9 in the seventh.

Christenson, 2-4, pitched 6 2-3 innings, giving up eight hits after waiting out a one hour 22 minute rain delay at the game's start. Bill Gullickson, 4-6, was the loser as the Expos dropped their second straight after winning five in a row.

Mets 3, Padres 2

The Mets averted a three-game sweep in San Diego with some unexpected power hitting from Mookie Wilson and a tiebreaking single by Hubie Brooks in the sixth inning. Wilson's two-run homer, his second of the year, forged a 2-2 tie, and Brooks' single scored Bob Bailor, who had singled, stolen second and taken third on catcher Terry Kennedy's throwing error.

Pirates 8, Reds 5

Pittsburgh erased a 5-4 Cincinnati lead with two runs in the seventh inning, then scored three more in the eighth to give Chuck Tanner the 1,000th victory of his major league managerial career. Bill Madlock singled home the tying run and later scored the go-ahead run on a bunt by Richie Hebner.
