CARRYING THE DEAD — Fort Worth fire fighters carry one of the victims of this morning's hotel fire to a waiting vehicle. Several guests at the Ramada Inn on the edge of downtown Fort Worth died or were injured in the blaze. Five deaths have been confirmed.

FORT WORTH (AP) — At least five people were Although the wing was the only part of the hotel of killed and 31 injured early today at a hotel fire that sent some guests jumping from their second-floor rooms when alerted by car horns after the main alarm

District Fire Chief Jim Noah said four men and one woman were killed in the five-alarm fire, which started at 3:24 a.m. at the two-story Ramada Inn Central on the city's east side. The blaze burned out of control for about three hours.

An alarm system in the hotel's main building did not go off because its batteries were corroded, said Fire Marshal Don Peacock.

"There was no alarm system in that wing" where the fire broke out, he said, adding that the hotel was not required to contain smoke alarms when it was Asked if there was any indication the fire was set. Noah said, "There's no indication I know of, but there's always that possibility.

The victims were identified as Elison A. Speaks, San Angelo; E. Scott Van Cleve, Skokie, Ill.; Nick Moreno, Wichita, Kan.; Randy Young, Liberal, Kan., and Wesley Loomis, Enid, Okla.

"They guy behind me died and the guy next to me died," said Bob Jozwiak of Washington. "I heard a broken glass and I sat up in bed. But it hit so quick it was unbelievable. Judging from the smoke coming under the door, the only way to get out was through a window. I broke a window and crawled out

Liquor puts county judge in limelight

By RICHARD HORN

COLORADO CITY - Liquor has put Mitchell County Judge Bill Carter in the limelight.

It's a light he says he didn't seek and doesn't enjoy. But after the county's third precinct voted in favor of liquor sales for off premises consumption, Texas law placed the approval of local liquor licenses in his hands. He made his opinions known.

Alcohol sales passed in April under the slogan "Vote Yes, Vote for Progress," — the same slogan used in a previous sewer bond election. Since then, Carter has approved five liquor license applications.

But during the first hearing on May 5, one application was denied and three were withdrawn. At the end of the hearing Carter said, "I am leary of any progress based upon sewage and alcohol. To me they are compatible.

"It's because I see the results of alcohol use," Carter said in an interview last week. "I get mothers in here who have children in jail and they say 'Judge, he's been drinking.'

Carter, 60, has been Mitchell County's judge for 12 years. He came to Colorado City after serving in World War II.

He worked for a sand and gravel ready-mix company for several years and was active in the school district and Little League. In 1971 he won election as county judge and is now serving his fourth term. He and his wife, Doris, have four grown children.

Carter's involvement in youth activities has given him an awareness of the needs of the young, he said. See JUDGE, page 2A

From staff and wire reports A cold front which spawned thunderstorms in Northeast Texas and damaging twisters in the Panhandle dropped Big Spring's temperatures almost 40 degrees after tornadoes roamed the Panhandle, injuring three people and destroying a trailer and house. The front, which brought unseasonably cool temperatures and gray skies to the Big Spring area this morning, extended from North Texas southwestward into the Trans-Pecos region. Rains caused some localized flooding south of Wichita Falls and contributed to traffic mishaps in the Metroplex Local temperatures dropped to 62 degrees this morning after hitting a high of 99 yesterday, the U.S. Agriculture Experiment station said. There were no reports of rain in the area

Thunderstorms caused by the cold front dumped heavy rain in North Central Texas early today

Twisters dipped from the sky southeast of Vernon, injuring two occupants of a trailer home which was disintegrated by the circular winds, said Vernon police officer Allen Metcalf.

He said the twisters struck the trailer near Farm to Market Road 433 at about 10 p.m.

A 39-year-old woman was hit in the back with a stove, while a 65-year-old suffered large cuts to his face and hands. Both were taken to Wilbarger Hospital, Metcalf said.

Early-morning temperatures were mainly in the 60s and 70s with readings in the 50s concentrated over the Plains region. Readings ranged from 52 degrees at Amarillo to 79 degrees at Brownsville and

Bid for Los Ybanez beer sales blocked

By RICHARD HORN Staff Writer

LAMESA - A lawsuit alleging that Israel Ybanez' attempt to establish the 300-population town of Los Ybanez is not "in good faith" was filed Monday in 106th District

Also on Monday, a Dawson County Commissioners Court decision on a petition to hold a beer sales election in Los Ybanez was held up because of a question about addresses on the petition.

The suit names Ybanez and his wife, Mary, as defendants and was filed by Dawson County landowners John Dell Barron and Milton of the alleged town of Los Ybanez." Earnest. It claims that the defendant's only intention is to seek the

The suit claims that under law an area can be incorporated only if it exists as a city, town or village at the time of election.

Barron and Earnest allege that the area has been historically known only as "the Labor Camp" and is not and never has been a city.

Their suit charges that Ybanez and his wife have "unlawfully held and executed and are now intruding into and unlawfully holding or executing the duties of public officials

It also charges that "the defendants and other persons conspired and adopted a scheme and device by which they intended to be able to apply for and obtain a license for the sale of beer.' It calls for the area to be ruled illegal, unlawful, invalid and void. Barron and Earnest own property near the 300-population town. They are being represented by Lamesa attorney Ed Fulbright.

Fulbright told the commissioners Monday that the petition for a local option election in Los Ybanez was invalid because some of the addresses were incorrect.

Ybanez responded by bringing 17 residents of Los Ybanez into the court to sign the petition. Dawson County Judge Glen White said no decision was made because the court adjourned at 5 p.m.

He said commissioners would consult with the Texas Attorney General's office today before ruling on the petition.

Barron and Earnest filed a lawsuit in December 1982 charging that Los Ybanez was illegal because of a surveyor's error. The suit won in district court

FORT WORTH (AP) Sharlean Hobbs sat huddled against her daughter as she watched flames consume one wing of a hotel that held all her possessions

"I'm a walking disaster area," said Mrs. Hobbs, 43. The hotel fire, which killed five people this morning, was just the latest in her long run of hard luck, she said.

"I've been here since April 27," she said. "We had a chemical spill at my house and I can't go home. Everything I own is over there.

Mrs. Hobbs and daughter Kelly, 22, held adjoining rooms in the wing of the Ramada Inn-Central, scene of this morning's fivealarm fire that killed five persons and injured 29. Mrs. Hobbs said she escaped through a super-human feat of strength that she still does not comprehend.

Senate seeks to balance pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. is looking for escape from an embarrassing political dilemma in which the Senate has set its pay below the House of Representatives while establishing tight limits on moonlighting.

Baker scheduled the final hours of debate on Senate compensation for today, but said he was pessimistic about bringing pay for the two Houses into balance. "I am not sure we will able to change anything,"

Baker said Monday. The Senate removed the ceiling from speech fees last December, voting to allow unlimited outside income — including speeches to private groups, many with issues pending on Capitol Hill.

In recent required public disclosure forms, some senators stirred a political uproar by reporting earnings of more than $100,000 annually for speeches. Topping the list was Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, at $135,000.

By a vote of 51-41 last Thursday, the Senate gave its approval to an amendment that would place a ceiling on outside income of 30 percent of salary, or about $18,200 annually.

House members earn $69,800 annually in salary; senators, $60,662.

The Senate defeated efforts to equalize its pay with the House last week, and until the weekend, Baker was seeking some way to reverse that decision

There are 18 Republicans and 11 Democrats running for re-election next year, and pay is such a politically touchy issue that Baker has been unable to find a majority of the 100 senators to vote for a straight salary

On Monday, Baker suggested a new formula which would cut senators' pay almost in half, set stringent reporting requirements, but permit unlimited income from outside income and unearned income such as stocks and bonds.

during street battles

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Street battles broke out today between pro-Syrian and anti-Syrian militias in Lebanon's northern port city of Tripoli and police said two Palestinians were killed by machine gun fire in the southern city of

In Beirut, Parliament met for the second straight day to debate the Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement. Newspapers and radio stations predicted the U.S.-sponsored accord would be endorsed by an overwhelming majority.

Parliament's endorsement is required by the constitution to enable President Amin Gemayel's government to exchange ratification documents with Israel, the final step to put the May 17 agreement into effect. However, Israel says it won't withdraw its troops from Lebanon until Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization do likewise.

Police said the clash in Israelioccupied Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut, started at dawn in a Palestinian refugee camp. The statement did not identify the combatants but said the two dead men were Palestinians

An Israeli army spokesman said the clash in the Ein Hilweh camp "seems to have been a private vendetta between camp inhabitants.

Rightist Christian militias periodically have attacked and intimidated Palestinians in south Lebanon since last year's Israeli invasion. The United Nations Relief and Works Agency says about 30 Palestinian refugees have been killed in the region this year.

In Triploi, polce said one man was killed and two wounded in heavy fighting between rival militias.

Mortars, machine guns and bazookas were used by the Syrian-backed "Arab Knights" and the fundamentalist anti-Syrian "Islamic Union Movement," said police in Lebanon's second largest city, 50 miles north of Beirut.

The two groups are traditional rivals for dominance among the city's 500,000 residents.

Beirut radio stations said the fighting. which started at daybreak, was preceded by a wave of gunpoint abductions Monday in which at least 12 supporters of the two sides were kidnapped.

The fighting was in the low-income Kubbeh neighborhood and the streets surrounding the business center. Schools and shops in both areas were closed, police said.

In Beirut, radios and newspapers featured reports of a breakout at Israel's Ansar detention camp in southern Lebanon. The reports said disorder at the camp is the worst since Israel opened it last summer during the invasion to rout Palestinian guerrillas. The camp has about 5,000 Palestinian and Lebanese prisoners

The prisoners have been restless since the anniversary of the invasion on June 6. The fatal shooting of an inmate who tried to escape Sunday set off riots, according to newspaper and radio

Diabetics may soon use insulin spray, not needles

BOSTON (AP) — A new method of administering insulin with a nose spray may allow many diabetics to abandon their needles and take the drug with their meals, when they need it most researchers reported today.

The spray could be on the market within three to four years if further testing is successful, said Dr. Jeffrey S. Flier, who led the team that developed the technique. It has been tested so far on 40 healthy volunteers and six diabetics.

Flier, chief of diabetes and metabolism at Boston's Beth Israel Hospital, was scheduled to describe his research today at a meeting of the American Diabetes Association in San

About 11 million people in the United Str tes have diabetes, and many must take daily injections of insulin because their bodies produce little or none of this essential hormone

In healthy people, insulin levels increase after meals to convert sugar into fuel that can be used by the body. But diabetics usually take a single injection of insulin a day, so their insulin levels do not rise and fall to meet their bodies' needs and they may have too much sugar in their blood at times when the insulin is not needed.

High sugar levels can damage the blood vessels and lead to a variety of disorders, including eye and kidney

Patients can take insulin injections with their meals, but most are reluctant to give themselves several shots a day.

The press must act responsibly

The recent verdict returned in Los Angeles in the jury trial of a slander suit again "60 Minutes" and CBS anchorman Dan Rather was a good one, defending the freedom of the press.

The Rather report was an investigation of insurance fraud. He named a Los Angeles physician as one of those implicated at a clinic. The physician said his name had been forged on the document which Rather showed to the television audience. Rather testified he had complete faith in the authenticity of the document and that due care had been taken to check the facts.

The jury heard all the evidence and arguments and held for CBS in this case.

THAT DOES NOT GET CBS off the hook on other lawsuits, such as the one filed by retired Gen. William Westmoreland. He seeks $120 million in damages, charging that CBS libeled him by reporting that, while commanding U.S. forces in Vietnam in the late 1960s, he conspired to falsify reports on enemy strength and to deceive his superiors in Washington and the American

The power of a news program like "60 Minutes," which is the most-watched program on U.S. television, is awesome. Its very success in attracting a large audience compels its producers to seek sensational subjects, in order not to lose that audience. The pressure is intense.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS (whether printed or electronic) must be used responsibly, with proper concern for individual rights. Responsibility must be recognized voluntarily. Otherwise, the freedom of the press is sure eventually to be limited and regulated by government action, to the detriment of freedom generally.

In the Los Angeles trial, CBS was vindicated. But there must be continuing concern that, in all cases and no matter how powerful the press becomes, no individual is ever run over in a reckless manner.

That applies equally to all media.

Bureaucrats haggle at parks

WASHINGTON — As the vacation season opens, our national parks are being hit by an epidemic of muggings, rapes and drug trafficking. It's getting to the point that vacationing families could have as much to fear in the picturesque national parklands as they do in the seamier sections of major U.S.

Especially in the nation's capital, which probably has more law enforcement personnel of various kinds than any place in the free world, visitors are not immune from criminal elements who look on the federal parks as happy hunting grounds: drug pushers, for

U.S. Park Police routinely find dozens of syringes littering a scenic Potomac River outlook in nearby Virginia; it's the first reasoanbly secluded spot where a heroin user can shoot up on his way out of the District of Columbia. On April 21, a Park Police detective and an alleged dope pusher had a shootout at the Washington Monument after a busload of South Carolina high school students had been harassed on their sightseeing tour. The suspect was killed; the officer was wounded. The National Park Service's response to this mounting evidence of crime has been curious. Instead of beefing up the 535-member Park Police, officials have been letting it wither away through attrition and are relying instead on park rangers with little or no crime-fighting experience. According to congressional testimony, no Park Police officers have been hired since 1980, and some 60 vacancies have gone

Rather than admit the need for more professional police officers, Interior Department officials have for years minimized the threat to public safety. They were afraid that reports of crimes in national parks would scare the public away.

To fool the press and public, my sources say, many actual crimes were downgraded to less serious offenses. "The rangers believe if you don't have a reporting system, you don't have a crime problem," one disgusted Park Police officer told my reporters Dale Van Atta and Leslie Adler.

The April 21 incident at the Washington Monument finally convinced the understaffed, overworked Park Police officers that they should take their complaint to Capitol Hill, where they found a receptive audience in Rep. Stan Parris, R-Va. They unloaded one horror story after another.

Parris asked Interior Secretary James Watt to confer with him and Rep. Manuel Lujan Jr. R-N.M., a member of the House Interior Committee. They got together on May 17, and Parris began to read from 100 Park Police officers' reports.

Watt seemed shocked by the accounts. After hearing only a halfdozen of the reports, he said that was enough; he was convinced. "We have a serious problem," he told the congressman. In other words, Interior's top man believed the men in the ranks rather than their supervisors, who had been glossing over the growing narcotics problem in their reports to Watt. The secretary immediately promised to set up a special narcotics task force for the national

The trouble with that response is that the members of the task force will be drawn from the ranks of the understaffed Park Police force. This will leave even fewer officers to patrol the parks.

"Another reason I'm bullish on lawyers," McCugh said, "is that almost every family in America has a relative who is a lawyer, and you don't even have to leave your house anymore to find one. Now when a mother calls up her lawyer son from the hospital and says, 'I fell on brighter."

I print it?"

And it will do nothing to solve what Park Police sources see as the underlying problem: Park Service Director Russell Dickenson and top Interior Department aides are "uncomfortable" having cops in their organization and favor the illtrained rangers over the police.

In fact, Dickenson has reportedly given his regional directors the option of dropping from the offices the Park Police captains assigned to them — the only professional crime fighters who now ride herd on the park rangers' attempts to keep criminals from infesting our national parks.

Footnote: A National Park Service spokesman maintained that the narcotics task force "is sufficient." Nor does his agency prefer rangers over Park Police, he added. "That's absolute bunk. The U.S. Park Police is the law enforcement arm of the National Park Service,'

WATCH ON WASTE: Energy Department employees, possibly fearful that their agency will be abolished and leave them with unused sick leave, are claiming illnesses at a higher rate than they used to - from an average of 7.1 days a year per employee in 1978 to 9.1 days in 1981. An internal audit states that supervisors "frequently granted and advanced sick leave without requiring employees to support the need for the leave."

Dining & eating are not the same

Upon reading Mr. Horn's column, Around the Rim, I was floored. His concept of waitering proves he knows nothing of the work. What he describes is known in the food and beverage business as a hash slinger, one who cares not what he or she serves or how they serve.

There is more than one type of wait person. I'll break the types into two categories: food service and wait persons, not just waiters, as Mr. Horn writes, which defines as a Food servers do just as the name implies, serve food, be it on a catering line, across a counter or between a kitchen and a table. They get the food to the customer. A wait person is service oriented and found in a dining establishment. The wait person is responsible for ALL aspects of service while the guest is dining, not just to get the food to the table.

There is a definite difference between eating and dining. One can eat while fishing, driving a car, plowing a field or watching television. Dining is sitting down and enjoying your meal while being waited on: water glass filled all the time, ash tray kept clean, friendly conversations, assurance that the guest is enjoying the meal.

Mr. Horn says "if the customer complains — who cares?" That we restaurants care not if the customers come back? Well that's ABSURD!

Further he suggests that once in the restaurant you're inclined to spend next month's rent and have a really good time. I wonder when the last time was that Mr. Horn bought groceries at the store, and what he paid? Next month's rent?

Then he suggests the prices must be "outrageously high" or there is no mystique about the food. Which reminded me of a sign in a cafe that saw in 1958. It said, "Paying $6.95 for a steak is tough but a $3.95 steak is a lot tougher.

It's so true. When you want Prime Graded beef, fresh as opposed to canned vegetables, homemade desserts and breads, fresh seafood rather than frozen, you'll pay more because they cost more.

A good wait person will add to the pleasure of DINING, because they treat everyone the same, like a king or queen, not as if you are filled with wealth as Mr. Horn states. For a good wait person knows when they do their work correctly they wil receive an appropriate gratuity, and more important, the satisfaction of having done their job the best they know how.

And Mr. Horn, a bus person is not someone who drives a bus.

Good news is uplifting

Dear Editor,

I don't know if you are a Christian or not, but after reading today's devotional, I felt I should pass it along to you for your consideration and possible admonition.

WHAT'S IN THE NEWS? Satantic activities continually make the headlines.

Bombings, murder, rape, fraud the depressing accounts are endless. You can almost hear the devil's sinister laugh as he sees the pessimism and hopelessness these reports create in the hearts of people everywhere.

Good news, on the other hand, is uplifting. In March 1900, Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," served as editor-in-chief of The Topeka Daily Capital for one week. His temporary appointment was the result of a challenge to the newspaper. For a clergyman to head up a group of hard-boiled reporters was news in itself. But he did it with great success.

The first thing he did was make some drastic policy changes. No drinking, smoking, or profanity was allowed in the editorial offices. Signed editorials appeared on the front page, while crime stories, theatrical notices, and social events were played down. One story about a famine in India carried an appeal for relief funds. More than a million dollars poured in and was sent to Bombay. Circulation skyrocketed.

It's easy to become infected by the pessimism of our age and forget that as Christians we have the inside story on the best news of all. God came in the flesh; Jesus died for our sins; He rose again; He is coming back to earth. That's really great news! Let's not be silent about it. Satan gets enough publici-

Please don't take offense as none is meant. Just felt like something I should do as a Christian witness. Sincerely in Christ,

"Mindboggling," is how Roger Spencer, an analyst at the Chicago office of Paine Webber Mitchell Hutchins, describes the potential for growth of Haagen-Dazs under Pillsbury's leadership.

Deals like last week's addition of Haagen-Dazs to the Pillsbury corporate menu are a common occurrence in the world of business. More than half of the nation's business mergers involve the acquisition of privately held companies

WORKING ON DIABETES - University of Massachusetts Medical School facility supervisor Paul McGill prepares to inject BB rats with insulin as part of an experiment aimed at finding a means to control

Rat holds clue to diabetes cure

(AP) - Drugs, surgery and radiation all keep rats from getting diabetes. For scientists, this is exciting news, because it may soon mean control of the disease in another species of animal: people

How soon is still in doubt. But some experts believe the solution to human diabetes could be years, not decades, away.

If it happens, a good deal of the credit will probably go to an unfortunate little creature called the BB rat. Nine years ago, researchers discovered that this 'strikes young people, often animal often inherits a remarkably similar to the have this disease, called human variety

Since then, the BB rat has become the chief proving ground for all kinds of theories about how diabetes starts and how it can be stopped. The rat named for the place that tions to stay alive. Their research, along with experiments at other labs, has uncovered the workings and defects of the specialized cells of the pancreas that make insulin, one of the necessary hormones of life.

Homesteader awarded year's stay of execution

EL PASO (AP) — Mary Hinson has battled the federal government to a draw so far, despite U.S. Park Service threats to bulldoze the homestead where she has lived most of her life.

"I've been given a stay of execution," the 68-year-old Pine Springs woman said. "I've been given a year's extension, which is fantastic. Somebody's looking out

In the fall, Mrs. Hinson was told her rickety home and roadside cafe bordering Guadalupe Mountains National Park in West Texas would be condemned Dec. 31 because they were "eyesores."

The Park Service in nearby Carlsbad, N.M., said bulldozers would raze the wood-paneled home and the Pine Springs Cafe where Mrs. Hinson had lived since 1938. The job was to have been done early this year.

But news accounts of the elderly woman's plight caused Secretary of Interior James Watt, at President Reagan's request, to grant her a last-minute reprieve. The government gave her until June 30 - a six-month extension — to leave the home her father built After winning the extension, Mrs. Hinson and her El Paso attorney, Duane Juvrud, struggled to save the home. At first, they tried trading some of the 3,700 acres of Guadalupe Peak land she owns to the Park Service in exchange for being allowed to stay at the house - built 50 years before the park was created. The Park Service declined. When Juvrud asked whether the buildings can be saved because they are more than 50 years old and may have historical significance, he was told 'maybe" by the government, Mrs. Hinson said last week from her daughter's home in El Paso.

Meanwhile, the clock ticked toward June 30. "Sure, I was worried," Mrs. Hinson said.

While Texas officials performed a historical assess ment of the homesite's value — it lies beside the Old Butterfield Overland Trail in an area heavily traveled by settlers during the late 1800s - the end of May

"I'm sure in the end they will put me out.'

"I was getting ready to leave," Mrs. Hinson said. Suddenly, Mrs. Hinson received official confirmation last week from the Park Service that she would be granted an extension until June 30, 1984. "The man upstairs is looking out for me," she said.

The Park Service, however, still may clear the buildings, park Superintendent Bill Dunmeyer said!

'The property is owned by the government (because her home lies within the Guadalupe National Park). What we're really doing is giving her more time to eventually relocate," Dunmeyer said.

And after Mrs. Hinson moves? "There are several possibilities — razing would be one of them and keeping it as an historical object would be another. But the buildings are not of the quality to be on the National Registry" of historic sites, he said.

Dunmeyer said the government gave Mrs. Hinson the extension "to get her things in order. We've tried to bend over backwards for her. We appreciate her

Mrs. Hinson also appreciates her reprieve.

"I think Mr. Watt is a great guy" for granting the extension, she said. "Without him and Mr. Reagan coming to my aid, I'm sure I would have been down the drain a long time ago.

Van Horn lawyer Steve Mitchell, who initiated Mrs Hinson's battle against the condemnation, applauded the government's decision to help her. "The government has gotten quite a bit of heat over this thing. This way, they don't look so bad evicting a 68-year-old lady from her home," he said.

But her victory is only temporary, Mrs. Hinson said. "I'm sure in the end they will put me out."

TRENTON, N.J (AP) — Dioxin often is described as the most toxic substance made by man. But although it can cause severe skin inflammations, it has few other known health effects on humans, toxicologists say. 'The most toxic means that, in the smallest quantity, it causes the most harm of all its chemical relatives," said Dr. James Eason, a clinical toxicologist and pharmacist. 'You could be exposed to less of it to get the same toxicity as more of something else," said Easom, assistant director of the Massachusetts Poison Control System in Boston.

Dioxin has been shown to cause fatal illnesses in laboratory animals. But there has been no proof that dioxin causes cancer or any fatal abnormality in humans, said Dr. Robert Snyder, chairman of Rutgers University's Graduate Program on Toxicology.

Officials recently added an abandoned herbicide plant in Newark to the list of dioxin-contaminated sites nationwide. Samples taken by federal Environmental Protection Agency investigators found levels of dioxin ranging from 58 parts per billion to 1,200 parts per billion. The EPA considers 1 part per billion to be hazardous to human health.

"I think what makes people frightened about it is the extremely low doses with which it affects some species of animals," Snyder said in a recent interview

He added that researchers may discover long-term effects on humans, including cancer, "but we just haven't picked them up yet.

Dioxin, a generic word referring to several chemical compounds, is a white powdery substance produced as an unwanted byproduct of the manufacture of pesticides and weed killers. Dioxin itself has no useful purpose and appears only as a contaminant during chemical reactions. Among the substances contaminated by dioxin was

Agent Orange, the chemical used during the Vietnam War to destroy jungle vegetation that veterans' groups claim caused numerous illnesses Dioxin's potency in small amounts is the reason scientists testing for it wear protective clothing, including hoods and oxygen masks. Easom said it is not known whether dioxin enters the body through breathing, eating or skin contact In Newark, the state Department of Environmental Protection earlier this month sealed off the former Diamond Alkali Co. plant, which produced Agent Orange during the 1960s. Traces of dioxin also have been found at a neighboring plant and a nearby home.

The substance also has been found at several sites in Missouri - leading to the federal offer to buy out the town of Times Beach. And scientists are testing for the substance at various locations in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia

The New Jersey Health Department, in a questionand-answer brochure for residents, says experiments have shown dioxin can cause cancer, birth defects, miscarriages and death at low doses in animals. Easom and Snyder said that when humans have been accidentally exposed to dioxin, they suffered temporary liver impairment, temporary reduction in the white blood cells that fight infection, unwanted hair growth and chloracne, a serious skin inflammation.

Chloracne results in blackheads and cysts like normal acne, but an affected area is covered totally, with no normal skin visible, Easom said. It usually appears on the victim's face and neck, he said.

Doctors have reported that such ailments afflicted workers at the Diamond Alkali plant.

Researchers say Herpes cure may be found soon

PORTON DOWN, England (AP) - British researchers say they may have found a way to prevent recurrences of genital herpes, the incurable disease that has stricken millions of victims worldwide. The treatment was developed at the University of

Birmingham, England, and is being tested at the government Center for Applied Microbiology and Research in this southwest England village, officials "The results are very encouraging," said center director Dr. Peter Sutton, who described the treatment as a vaccine. He did not disclose the exact nature of the substance pending application for a patent. 'We have links with British drug firms and obviously, they are keenly interested in this herpes vaccine,

"Vaccines are mainly given to prevent disease," he said in a British Broadcasting Corp. radio interview. "But in this case it can be described as a cure because genital herpes is a recurrent disease and there is evidence that this vaccine prevents recurrences.

Sutton said the vaccine has been tested on about 100 herpes sufferers and had success in preventing recurrences, but did not say if the vaccine had worked in each case. He did not elaborate on how long the testing

DENVER (AP) - Sapphires, especially engagement rings bearing that royal blue stone, are becoming increasingly popular, the nation's jewelers report, a fact possibly linked to Prince Charles' presentation of a nine-carat sapphire engagement ring to Lady Diana.

Consumers should be awareofthe characteristics that set sapphires apart from other gems, says Steven M. Droullard, an industry expert.

Drug may cause Parkinson-like tremor

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Just what is drug-induced Parkinson's disease? And how is it treated? An elderly relative got this .-- B.Q.

We're learning a great deal about illnesses in older people these days. A reason, of course, is that we are treating many more of them as people live longer. One of the things we are learning is that older people frequently respond to certain medicines differently than

Dear Abby

Unwelcomed visitors

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my brother, his wife and their three children, ages 6, 5 and 3. They live 1,000 miles away, and have announced that they are coming to visit us this summer. (We are looking forward to it about as much as we would welcome a tornado.)

Their children have never been disciplined and are used to doing just as they please, with no respect for authority or property. They run wild, climb furniture, get into everything, leave the table during mealtime and chase each other all over the house. The parents make no attempt to set limits, and we do not enjoy getting tough with other people's children.

Abby, we have two children (ages 7 and 10) who are never a problem. We also have a nice home that we have worked hard to furnish nicely, and I'm afraid these kids will do real damage.

I hate to be rude, but we are trying to find a way to avoid having these people. Do we: Leave town? Weather it out? Meet them elsewhere?

Please advise us. And remember, we will hold you responsible for any broken lamps.

NO NAMES IN THE NORTHWEST DEAR NO NAMES: I vote for the third choice. If it's not possible to meet them halfway, why not be brutally frank? It won't help family relations, but the parents of children who "run wild" and have no regard for authority or property should not be surprised to learn

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Knows Nobody," the third-grade student who asked if you knew any famous people, you replied, "Tell me who you think is famous enough, and I'll see what I can do for you.'

Abby, at the risk of being pedantic, I wish to apprise you that your grammar is incorrect.

You should have said, "Tell me whom" (objective case), "you" (understood) being the subject, and in A CORRECTION FROM TEXAS

DEAR CORRECTION: My grammar expert informs me that I was correct to use "who" in this instance, because the object of the verb "think" is a clause ("who is famous enough"), the subject of which

DEAR ABBY: I am over 35 and am expecting my first baby, a boy. The baby's sex was revealed by my obstetrician following an amniocentesis test to determine whether the baby had any chromosomal abnormalities - of which Down's syndnrome is the most prevalent.

Thank God, the baby is normal, but had the results shown otherwise, we would have had a choice between abortion or raising an abnormal child. My husband and I decided not to mention the test or the sex of the child to anyone because my mother is very religious and would probably feel that we should take whatever God gives us, and I'm sure she would disapprove of my taking that test.

I can't help feeling that we are cheating by not revealing the sex of the child.

Friends are giving me baby showers, and I know that I'll have a boy, but unless I disclose that fact, someone is sure to bring a pink dress with ruffles! What do you advise?

UNDISCLOSED DEAR UNDISCLOSED: It is your right to keep "undisclosed" the fact that you had amniocentesis. Stop worrying about the possibility of receiving inap-propriate shower gifts and start counting your blessings.

Connors, Navratilova top seedings at '83 Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The All-England Tennis Club kept its independence Monday and went outside the top computer rankings for its seedings in next week's Wimbledon tournament.

The club did the obvious thing and made Jimmy Connors nd Martina Navratilova, the defending champions, No. 1 seeds in the men's and wsomen's singles, respectively.

But it pushed American Tim Mayotte in at No. 16 in the men's tournament, and several players above him in the rankings were omitted.

And Jo Durie, the British player who upset Tracy Austin and reached the semifinals in the French Open, was rewarded with the 13th place in the women's seedings. She is 17th on the Mayotte has done consistently well on the grass courts at Wimbledon since he first played there two years ago. He reached the semifinals in 1982.

While other tournaments faithfully follow the computer rankings when deciding the seedings, Wimbledon traditionally does its own thinking and uses the rankings only as a guide. The club looks for players who do well oin the fast grass surface.

the computer. But Connors beat him in straight sets in the final of the Stella Artois tournament at London's Queen's Club Sunday. That is the last big grass court tournament in which the top stars compete before Wimbledon.

Two stars who excel on slower courts - Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and Mats Wilander of Sweden - were given high seeding places although neither has achieved much on grass. Lendl is third and Wilander fifth.

The top five women's seeds are Americans. Navratilova is followed by Chris Evert Lloyd, Andrea Jaeger, Austin and Pam Shriver.

The rest of the top 16 men include No., 6 Gene Mayer, No. 7 Jose Luis Clere, No. 3 Vitas Gerulaitis, No. 9 Steve Denton, No. 10 Jimmy Arias, No. 11 Johan Kriek, No. 12 Kevin Curren, No. 13 Brian Gottfried, No. 14 Bill Scanlon, No. 15 Hank Pfister and Mayotte.

After Shriver, the women's seeds are No. 6 Bettina Bunge of West Germany, No. 7 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, No. 8 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, No. 9, Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, No. 10 Billie Jean King of the United States, No. 11 Barbara Potter of the United States, No.1 2 Virginia Ruzici of Romania, No. 13 Durie, No. 14 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary, No. 15 Kathy Rinaldi of the United States and No. 16 Claudia Kohde of West Germany

Olympics tickets hottest sale item

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Should President Reagan want to purchase tickets to the 1984 Olympic Games through the organizing committee, he would have to go through the same procedure as ordinary Don Q. Citizen.

For practical purposes, the president and Mrs. Reagan will be taking part in the Opening Ceremonies as accredited participants and the International Olympic Committee will have credentials for heads of state for them to attend other

But when it comes to buying tickets, the president and his family would have to follow the buy-by-mail procedures outlined by the Los Angeles Olympic Organization which start today.

"That's true," said G. Edward Smith. LAOOC Vice President in charge of the ticket operations.

Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of staff at the White House and liaison man with the LAOOC, had a copy of the Olympic ticket brochure for the president.

Millions of other copies were set for distribution today at all outlets of Sears, Roebuck and Co. nationwide plus branches of First Interstate Bank in 10 Southern California counties and by Manufacturers Hanover Trust in the five counties making up the metropolitan area of New York city.

'The Olympics will be the largest ticketed event in the history of sports,' said LAOOC President Peter V. Ueberroth

Ticket sales, however, are expected to bring in about $90 million in revenue and Ueberroth stressed that none would be the team an 8-7 record and the lead free. The LAOOC is not government sponsored but is an independent, non-profit corporation depending on ticket sales, televison rights fees, and sponsorships for time in three games under Coach its operating money

Each free brochure included a ticket order form. Payment for orders must be enclosed when they are mailed. There will be no telephone orders, and except for events where demand exceeds ticket availability by Aug. 15, the best tickets will go to the applicants who return their orders and money first

Season tickets for individual sports will be available

Prices range from $3 for some seats to preliminary events to $200 for the opening and closing ceremonies. The average will be $17 with more than half of all tickets available being priced at $10 or less.

LAOOC Chairman Paul Ziffren introduced the plan for distributing 5.6 million tickets in the United States by telling a media conference Monday:

"Of difficult and sensitive problems we have faced, none exceeds the difficulty, sensitivity and importance of the distribution of Olympic tickets

"We wanted the fairest system and one financially responsible and realistic. We developed a system never developed before. I don't believe King Solomon in all his wisdom could have made everybody happy. I don't think we will make everybody happy with our system. But we believe it is the fairest under all circumstances ... the best system human judgment and a computerized society could develop.

Ueberroth said the committee was aware that scalpers would get some of the tickets "but we wanted to make it as difficult for them as possible.

He added: "We are using a consumeroriented system designed to ensure fairness and accessibility. We're selling tickets directly to people who want to see the Olympic Games

General Manager Harry Usher added. 'We made no allowance for special interest groups. We cannot give preference. From the man who pumps gas to the chairman of the board, everyone will have an equal chance to buy tickets.

There will be eight million tickets available overall with 70 percent available for purchase by people in the United States. Ticket allotments are made to other nations to be handled by their respective national Olympic committees

Ueberroth said it was doubtful there would be a sellout because historically that does not happen.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Coach John Ralston told his Oakland Raiders' defensive unit at the twominute warning break that victory was just one more big effort away.

"On the sidelines, he told some of us, 'We need a big play now. Everybody was geared up,' linebacker David Shaw said.

Just following orders, Shaw tackled Denver running back Harry Sydney and forced a fumble. Defensive tackle Dupre Marshall fell on the loose ball at the Oakland 6-yard line with 1:54 remaining and the Invaders pulled out an important 16-10 United States Football League victory Monday night.

The Oakland offense produced an 80-yard touchdown play, on Fred Besana's pass to running back Jerry Aldridge, and Kevin Shea kicked three field goals. But the defense carried most of the load, with plays including a blocked punt and a pass interception.

On the last big play, Marshall fell on the fumbled ball as it rolled toward the right sideline. Sydney insisted, "He didn't have hold of the ball until he was about a foot out of

Marshall said, "All the Denver players were saying that. What do you expect them to say? They lost. "I just dove for the ball and heard whistles blow. I didn't see where the hoping to brighten up some disappointing home attendance figures, want their fans to know they're not through winning.

Stars hope record draws more fans PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Stars,

The Stars became the first United States Football League team to clinch a division title and a postseason playoff spot, with a 23-9 victory over the New Jersey Generals on Sunday. But Carl Peterson, Stars president and general manager, said Monday the team could set other another mark before the season ends "In the Miami Dolphins' greatest season, they had 14 regular-season wins," said Peterson. "We can match that, possibly even surpass it. "This is a goal I know our players know about, and we are going to line up in the next three weeks and try to win each of those games.

The Dolphins of the National Football League played only 14 games in 1972 and won them all. They also won three postseason games that year, including the Super Bowl, for a total of 17. The USFL has an 18-game regular-season schedule.

USFL, are averaging 20,057 fans at home. Earlier in the season, when only 10,000 fans were attending games, they blamed the low turnout on rainy weather

But two weeks ago, in a game not televised locally against the Michigan Panthers, the Stars drew only 19,000 on a sunny, mild day when they expected 25,000 to 30,000. In contrast, more than 32,000 football fans showed up in New Jersey Sunday to watch the Stars whip the Generals, whose record is 4-11, and clinch the Atlantic Division crown.

Now, the Stars want to use their record, and the possibility of winning more games than any other pro football team, to lure fans to their next two home games. They host Oakland next Monday night-their only night game of the season -and Birmingham the following Sunday, then close the season on the road against the Washington Federals July 3.

Watson mired in long 'slump'

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) - Tom Watson offers no excuses for his relatively poor performance this season

"It's simple. I just haven't played well," said Watson, who will defend his title in the 83rd U.S. Open Championship which begins Thursday on the historic, 6,971-yard, par 71 Oakmont Country Club course.

By most standards, Watson's record this year would be considered very acceptable. He has won $106,776 in 12 starts and finished in the top 10 in half his appearances.

By Watson's standards, however, "it's been a lousy year.

He has not won in the United States since his dramatic chip-in birdie on the 71st hole snatched the American national championship from Jack Nicklaus a year ago. It is the longest victory drought Watson has suffered since 1977.

He has not yet qualified for the World Series of Golf. With only three weeks remaining in the qualifying period, he ranks a distant 20th on the list from which the 12-man American Ryder Cup team will be chosen. He has not finished higher than fourth at any time this

"It's been frustrating," said Watson, golf's Player of the Year five of the last six seasons and the dominant figure in the game since the late '70s.

"I've gone through spells like this before," he said. "It's part of the game. You just have to endure it." Part of it is technical. He's been working on adjustments to his swing, which, he said, is a continuing process. Part of it is mental.

Ralston-Purina sends Blues to NHL

CHICAGO (AP) — Hours before Ralston Purina Co. was to "pound the final nail in the coffin for hockey in St. Louis," the National Hockey League's Board of Governors took control of the franchise and put it up for sale.

League President John Ziegler said Monday's action, which included assuming control of player contracts, was taken in an effort to

A Ralston Purina spokesman said

Acting under powers granted by the league constitution, the board voted to take over the club on the grounds that Ralston Purina, which earlier had offered to hand over the team with certain conditions, had failed to meet its obligations in maintaining the franchise in good

Ziegler said he could not assure there would be NHL hockey in St. Louis next season, but pledged the league would do everything possible to find "suitable ownership. The league last month refused to permit the company to sell the franchise to a group of Canadian businessmen who would have moved it to Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

"There was no choice if we were to save hockey for St. Louis because Ralston Purina has made it very clear that as of 5 p.m. (EDT) today, they were going to start liquidating the team," Ziegler said on Monday.

"And once it was in liquidation, there would have been no chance to keep a team in St. Louis as it is presently known.

Italians debate sending paintings to foreigners

ROME (AP) — The Italian artistic world is embroiled in a highly charged debate: Should Italy "rent" its poorly kept artistic masterpieces to wealthy foreign museums in return for restoration and money

The mayor of a tiny central Italian town kicked up a storm recently by proposing to lend its best known artwork - a 15th century fresco of the Virgin Mary - to New York's Metropolitan Museum for three months.

The Metropolitan, in return, would restore the work, the "Madonna del Parto" by Piero Della Francesca, and provide an unspecified amount of money to the town of 1,900 people.

The mayor said he got the idea from the Vatican which sent to the United States 237 priceless masterpieces for a 13-month, three-city U.S. tour. To obtain the Vatican permission for the exhibition, the U.S. museums and their sponsors restored the art works and provided funds and technical help in establishing a modern art restoration center at Vatican City.

The town council of Monterchi enthusiastically approved Mayor Marcello Minozzi's proposal, but it was later turned down in Rome by Culture Minister Nicola Vernola, whose authorization is needed for export of any artwork.

'The proposal was subject to criticism because it had been conceived not as part of a cultural exchange but for minor economic reasons which the central government could have taken care of," Vernola said. The town authorities claimed, however, that the government had ignored their repeated pleas for help.

Vernola's aides said the approval of Minozzi's request might have opened a "floodgate" of similar suggestions from financially hard-pressed small communities and museums.

The ensuing debate has divided Italian art and museum experts over how Italy should take care of tens of thousands of artworks in disrepair or stored in safe deposit boxes and never seen by the public for lack of space and money.

Birute Vileisis, a top European art expert at the National Museum of American Art at the Smithsonian Institute, said after a recent tour of Europe that some of the important paintings and frescoes in Italy were in "miserable" condition.

"I saw water running down an 8th century fresco in Rome. Another fresco in Todi was ruined because of water dripping from the window," Miss Vileisis said.

"At another place, a poor, uneducated monk who was guiding us poked a finger at a fresco, causing a chunk to fall off. In Naples, I was absolutely appalled at the way some paintings were being handled. Workmen were moving pictures without wearing gloves, and I could see dozens of fresh fingerprints appearing on the paintings.'

She said art officials in Milan, Naples and other places told her they did not have any money to hire competent art handlers.

Professor Federico Zeri, a leading art historian, calls the idea of renting artworks "ridiculous and scandalous. "The fact is that most of these art pieces, like a delicate bottle of wine, do not travel," he said. "This art for money idea is dangerous. He says irreplaceable artworks should not be exposed to danger inherent in any long-distance travel. Florence art expert Luigi Bellini disagrees.

"Just think of the benefits," he said. "We can restore these objects, show them to admirers in safe, selected places, and make some money as well."

Government officials say Italy spends about $2; million on museums every year. By contrast, New York's Metropolitan Museum brings in about $4 million every year in admissions alone.

In an effort to provide financial incentives for private initiatives in arts, Italy recently enacted a law that exempts important historial and artistic works from inheritance tax. It also allows expenditure and maintenance and restoration as a tax deduction.

Taking advantage of the law, which brings Italy into line with the United States and other European countries, fashion designer Gianfranco Ferre has contributed 200 million lire ($140,000) to restore Guericino's ceiling fresco inside the dome in the Piacenza Cathedral in northern Italy.

How to market by human behavior

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — James McManus goes nowhere in the marketplace without his numbers, without the data his researchers compile and his computers analyze, and from which he distills wisdom about human behavior.

"We are the most expert people in the world at quantifying human behavior," he says. He claims his business record demonstrates it. "We have the best track record in terms of compound growth," he says. Marketing Corporation of America, which produced revenue of $25,000 when McManus founded it in 1971, brought in $83 million in 1982, a figure he expects to reach $125 million this year and $200 million in 1985. Early revenue came largely from market research and sales promotion, and from advising clients on how to build consumer lines, advice that led to the success of Pillsbury's Pipin' Hot Loaf and Frito-Lay's GrandMa's Foods

More recently they've been coming also from MCA subsidiaries that emerged from its knowledge of markets, including Westport Resturants, Inc., operator of two expanding chains called The Bakers Garden and Tanglewoods.

DALLAS (AP) - Residents of 12 counties and

"I definitely would characterize the situation in big Texas cities as oversupply or near oversupply," Dr. George J. Race, former chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Higher Education, told The Dallas Morning News.

"The available job situations are not many — even in group practices," Race said.

The surplus of physicians in Texas reflects a national trend, but medical association officials told the newspaper there are safeguards against exorbitant fees and unnecessary treatment and that the abundance of doctors will not harm the quality of care.

According to figures made available to the newspaper by the Texas Medical Association, there are 26,304 physicians in Texas, which has a population of more than 14 million. That is a ratio of one doctor

Based on patient demand and need, the optimum doctor-to-population ratio is one to every 850, or even higher, to one for 1,100, according to medical officials. In 1980, the federal Graduate Medical Education Advisory Committee predicted that by 1990 there would be about 536,000 doctors nationwide, 70,000 more physicians than is considered necessary. The biggest problem in Texas may be the distribution and not the number of doctors. There are too many doctors in the larger cities, say experts, and not enough in smaller, rural towns.

South Africa (AP) - Vow- Union of Mineworkers ing that its members must begins pay negotiations be treated "as men, not servants," the country's first union for black gold miners on Monday demanded a 30 percent pay raise and an end to privileges for whites.

Union leader Cyril Ramaphosa said the union's demands were delivered to the Chamber of Mines, which negotiates wages for the mining companies employing more than 400,000 black gold

"We demand a 30 percent increase across the board. We believe that this is a reasonable demand which the chamber can easily afford, particularly ment as a vehicle for gainif they are committed to ing political rights, such as the principle of closing the the vote, now denied to the wage gap between white and black," Ramaphosa an average of $240 a month, a sixth of what white miners earn. The union wants the company to say in writing it supports equal rights and equal pay for whites and blacks in the mines. The union is also demanding an end to the job reservation system, which excludes blacks from the highest-paid jobs.

Barbara Byrd-Lawyer, director of education and research for TMA, told the News the association is studying physician distribution patterns in Texas.

"It isn't a black-and-white issue," she said, "there isn't a point where you can say that ... we're at oversupply.' "They're crowded up in Houston, Dallas, Austin, San Antonio, El Paso," said Race. He added that in the past, doctors were hesitant to move to small towns because they feared a lack of "intellectual companionship." He said the pattern is shifting now, with groups of two or three doctors moving into towns with fewer than 25,000 people.

Nevertheless, in 1982 the TMA listed 12 Texas counties that did not have a physician.

"It's our experience in rural medical care that people will travel far to receive medical care thay they have confidence in," said Dr. Marion R. Zetsman, chairman of the division of community medicine at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in

"If you look at certain areas like North Dallas, they may be oversupplied," he said, "but you have to look at people who are served — people from as far as Texarkana and Wichita Falls."

Dr. William F. Ross, former president of the TMA, said the he didn't think there is a general surplus of doctors because "there are still some voids to fill." He added many doctors were moving to smaller

Ross said one reason for the oversupply of doctors is

Race also questioned the need for so many medical schools in Texas.

"We've expanded the medical schools and added new schools that are marginal," said Race, "I don't think they were necessary, in retrospect."

Open since 1972, the Texas Tech Medical School has graduated 335 doctors, in addition to the 77 who graduated on Sunday.

Aaron still only applicant for Kuhn's job

ATLANTA (AP) -Bowie Kuhn's contract as commissioner of baseball expires Aug. 12, and Hank Aaron is the only applicant so far for the job. But the home run king and Hall of Famer feels he's being snubbed by baseball's hierarchy

"I waited for someone else to step forward. When nobody else did, I decided I would," said the 49-yearold Aaron, who has been a vice president and director of player development for the Atlanta Braves since his retirement seven years

Baseball owners voted in November not to retain Kuhn after the end of his term in August. But there has been a movement lately among some owners to renominate Kuhn, who has been commissioner since

Aaron, who hit 755 home runs in 23 major league seasons, said he spoke to Bud Selig, owner of the Milwaukee Brewers and head of the owners' commission selection committee. That was a month ago.

"To be very honest with you, I've been kind of disappointed in Bud Selig. I have not heard from him since I talked with him, and I do know they are officially interviewing people for the job," Aaron said in his office at Atlanta Stadium

"I talked with Selig to let him know I was serious and wanted to be considered, and to give me the same consideration as the other candidates," Aaron said.
