Super Dad

For this father, eight's not too many

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

Ask Pete Carrillo what makes a good father and he'll smile and say "that's a good question." But ask his friends and relatives about his qualifications and most of them will tell you that Pete is the symbol of a good father — caring and concerned about his children's welfare.

Pete, 46, and his wife, Elisa, live at 811 E. 14th. They have five sons, Peter Jr., 19, Ismael, 17, Abel, 15, Martin, 13, and Sammy, 12, and three foster children, Rudy Diaz, 11, Narcissia Diaz, 6, and Angie, 4, the couple's goddaughter.

Elisa remembers "We've had Angie since she was a baby. The other two are my cousin's children. When my cousin asked me if we could make a home for them, we didn't even have to think it over."

After having raised five boys, Pete said he didn't hesitate to take three more children in. "Someone had to take care of them, and my wife has always liked kids. And they were relatives. We didn't want them to go anyplace else."

Looking back now, Pete is "glad we took the children. I felt like they needed a place to go. And if Elisa can feed one of us — she'll feed all of us. We may not always eat the best, but we get to eat. The good Lord has been real helpful to us."

Pete expresses pride in all of the children and he says one of the attributes of a good father is a man who "loves his family."

"A good father is also responsible — he supports his family and looks after them," Pete reasons. Pete also believes in sharing his religion with his children. "I want to raise them up as good Christians," he says. "I try to do that with all my children."

Pete takes them to Sunday School classes at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church regularly and sees that the kids are in Mass on a weekly basis. He also takes them to confession, and makes sure they have the opportunity to take part in other church activities.

Pete and his wife are lay ministers for the church. Mrs. Carrillo sings in the choir and is a teacher in the church school classes on Sunday. Pete is a member of the Hospitality Committee.

Pete's dedication to the church came from his own family. He learned much about parenting from "my grandmother, Erculana Carrillo. You won't believe this, but she raised 13 of us (grandchildren), including my younger brother, who was 13 days old when my mother passed away."

Pete himself was a toddler when his mother died. See FATHER, page 2-A

Lawmakers pack for special session

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas lawmakers packed Sunday for a return trip to Austin next Wednesday as Gov. Mark White finished his review of their work in the 140-day regular session that ended May 30.

Quick action on control of the cattle disease brucellosis and extension of the life of the Texas Employment Commission were the two tasks White gave legislators Friday in calling the special session.

"I've been assured we can accomplish these two goals in a rather brief period of time and set to rest the concerns that many ranchers have had over what would become of their cattle industry," White said.

"Also the many people who work for the Texas Employment Commission ... and the people who receive benefits from that commission will be assured of a continuity of service," he said.

Meanwhile, White will be working late Sunday signing — or vetoing — the last of more than 1,100 measures passed by the Legislature. Among the last will be the $30.9 billion state spending bill for 1984-85.

White said the 10 to 15 statewide bills he was considering for vetoes included one to shift water utility regulation from the Public Utility Commission to the Texas Department of Water Resources and a bill that would keep the State Board of Insurance from limiting fees charged by auto dealers in selling credit life insurance with new cars.

Spokesmen for the Texas State Teachers Association were "disappointed" that White did not include teachers pay raises in the session call but said they had his promises that the issue would eventually be addressed by lawmakers.

White said earlier he would call a special session to consider teacher pay raises and other educational improvements if recommended by an 18-member select committee named by him, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis on Thursday.

SCWID funding may be approved tonight

From staff and wire reports
AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White is expected to approve a line-item appropriation of $3.9 million for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring when he acts on the Legislature's budget bill this evening.

White said it would be late Sunday before he considers the $30.9 billion general appropriations bill, and his staff said no more signings or vetoes would be announced until Sunday afternoon.

The Legislature approved the $3.9 million funding measure for SCWID during its spring session. The college had asked for $11 million, but school officials say they can operate during the next biennium with the lower figure.

White said he approves of most of the 1984-85 state spending bills, but is considering vetoes for 10 or 15 of the measures passed by the Legislature.

The governor completed work Friday on more than 500 bills and must complete the rest of his review by midnight Sunday or the bills will become law without his signature.

"I'm concerned about several areas," White told reporters after a two-hour bill-signing ceremony Friday. "I am now reviewing the appropriations bill and will be deciding before midnight Sunday night."

There will be several "line item vetoes" — specific appropriations — in the spending bill, but overall he was impressed with the Legislature's work.

He hinted that he was considering a veto on a bill to transfer supervision of water utilities from the Public Utilities Commission to the Texas Department of Water Resources.

And he said he may veto a bill ending State Board of Insurance regulation of fees charged by auto dealers for credit insurance on new cars.

The governor indicated he would approve most of the 400-page state spending bill for 1984-85.

Action/reaction: Water bed

Q. I leave a glass of water by my bed at night. Is it safe to drink after sitting several hours?

A. Yes, according to Howard County/Big Spring Health officer James Luck. The taste — after the water settles 12 hours at room temperature — is up to personal preference, Luck said. The only thing that might make it unsafe would be a passing bug crashing into the glass, he joked.

Juneteenth: a time for celebration

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

Using the theme "A New Beginning," friends and relatives of participants in the Mr. Ebony pageant gathered Saturday evening to cheer on their favorite contestants.

The event was one of several this weekend in observance of Juneteenth, a holiday which reflects a spectrum of feelings for black Texans remembering the day when Texas slaves were set free.

When Abraham Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation on Sept. 22, 1862, the Confederate States, rebelling against the government, didn't honor the proclamation and kept blacks in bondage until June 19, 1865, when Major General Gordon Granger landed at Galveston to re-establish federal authority. Slaves were officially freed and a group of blacks in Galveston held the first Juneteenth celebration that day.

Because of the almost three years it took to free blacks in Texas, some people feel resentment that the delay ever took place at all. People who take this stance say Juneteenth should be a memorial day, not a day of celebration. But others disagree, saying the day should be celebrated for its significance to Black Texans.

In this spirit, the Mr. Ebony pageant, a barbecue and a parade were scheduled in Big Spring.

Three contestants took to the stage Saturday evening to compete for the title of Mr. Ebony. Winner was Vic Woodruff, one of the founders of the Miss Ebony pageant held the past two years in Big Spring.

Upon winning, Woodruff said "It feels real good, and its nice to be able to win it. I'm proud of myself," he added with a smile. Woodruff was cheered on by his wife, Ruth, daughter Nicole, and sons Dustin and Jason.

First runner-up in the contest was Michael Randle. Second runner-up was Willie Wrightsil.

During a Juneteenth barbecue held earlier Saturday at the Comanche Trail Park, several persons talked about what Juneteenth means to them.

Cleve Forward, vice president of the Webb Spring Lion's Club, sponsor of the barbecue, admits that Juneteenth is "something people have mixed feelings about, but I think it should be remembered. People have a tendency to repeat history. We can't change history. See JUNETEENTH, page 2-A

Ticket to Ride

America puts woman in space on shuttle flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After 22 years and 57 men, the United States put a woman in space Saturday.

Sally Ride, a 32-year-old astrophysicist, went right to work, sending a Canadian satellite spinning out of Challenger's cargo bay.

"It sure is fun," she told Mission Control during her first hour in space.

Neither Ms. Ride nor her four male crewmates aboard Challenger made note of the breakup of a men-only group. But as fire belched from the tail of the shuttle at the beginning of Flight Seven, the voice of launch control exclaimed: "Liftoff, liftoff of STS-7 and America's first woman astronaut!"

On the shuttle's seventh turn around Earth, she conducted critical checkout procedures and then pushed the button that ejected the $24 million Anik-C communications satellite at a precise point over the Pacific Ocean, southwest of Hawaii.

"This makes the orbiter three for three on PAM deploy," said Ms. Ride after the successful release. She referred to the "Payload Assist Module," the small system that had ejected two satellites on a previous flight.

Her fellow mission specialist, John Fabian, said, "As previously advertised, we deliver."

Forty-five minutes later, the satellite's own rocket motor fired, the first of two "burns" that will place Anik-C in a parking orbit over the Pacific. The second firing will be on Sunday.

The Anik-C will bring satellite pay-TV to receiving dishes in millions of American homes.

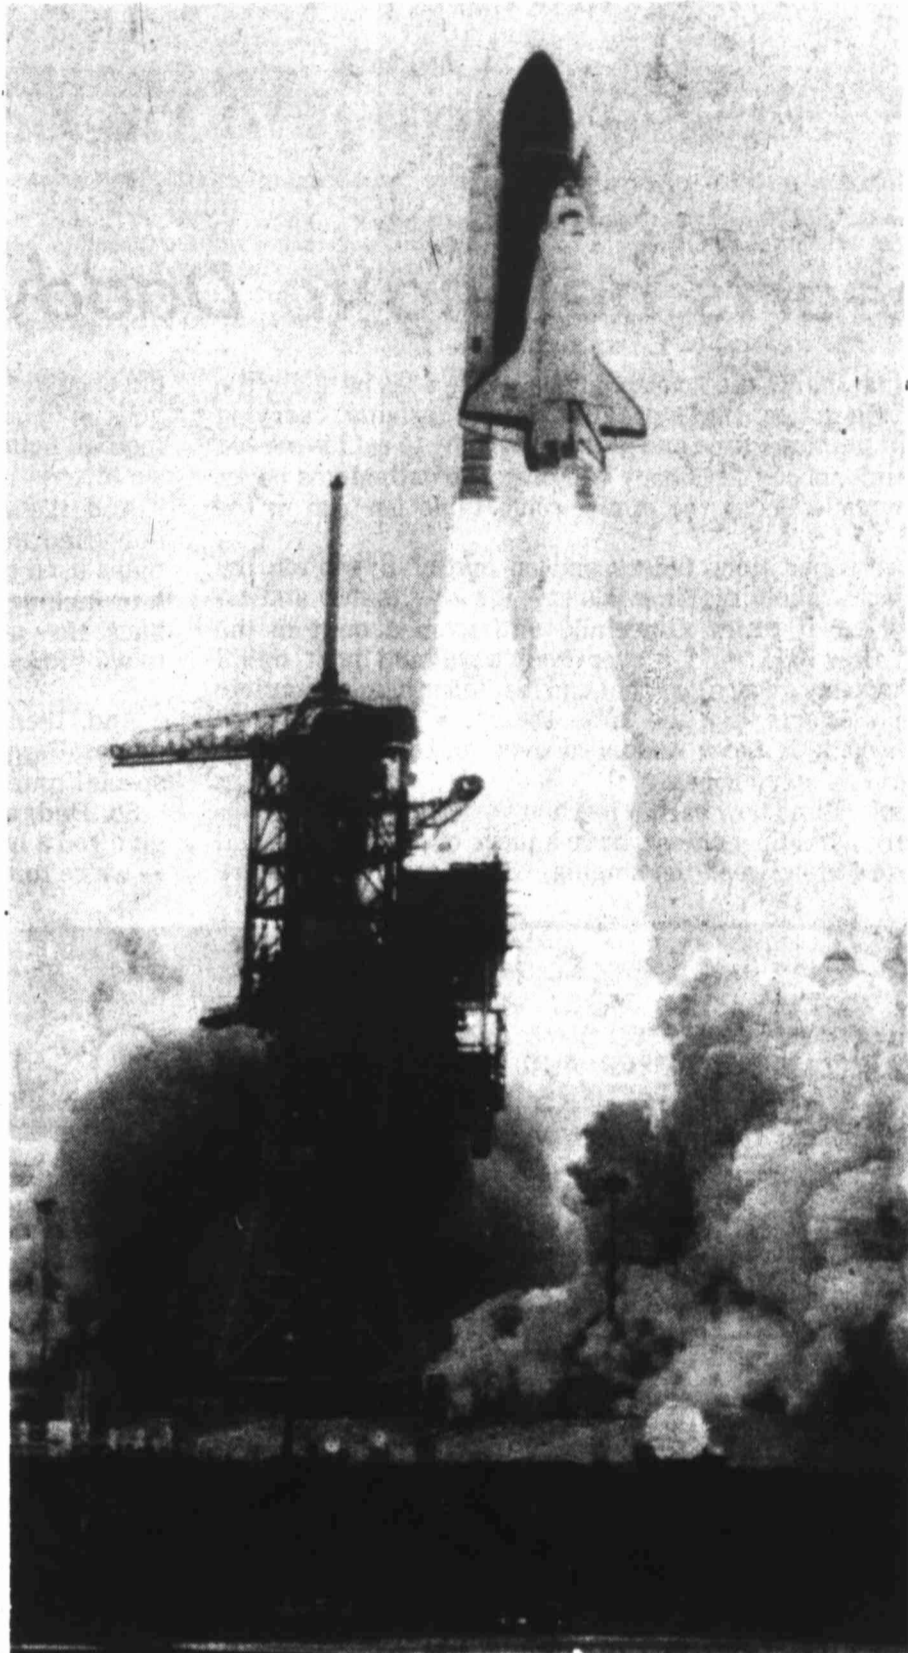

Ms. Ride's husband, Steve Hawley, — an astronaut who is to fly in space for the first time next year — bade her farewell from launch control.

"Sally, have a ball," he said. A crowd estimated at half-a-million urged her upward. Many donned T-shirts with the slogan: "Ride, Sally Ride."

The trip has other significant "firsts." If all goes well, Challenger will make the shuttle program's first round trip, Florida-to-Florida, landing at a concrete Kennedy Space Center strip next Friday at 6:53 a.m. And never before have five people gone into orbit on one ship, prompting this boast from NASA: "Space shuttle Challenger has delivered to space the largest human payload of all time — four men, one woman."

In his weekly radio address, President Reagan called Ms. Ride an example of the great strides women have made. He wished the crew well and added, "Nancy and I look forward to being on hand to greet them when they land next Friday."

Ms. Ride acted as commander Robert Crippen's flight engineer on the spectacular climb from launch pad 39A over the Atlantic.

UP AND AWAY — Space Shuttle Challenger streaks off the launch pad at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida Saturday as its tail of fire reflects in a pool of water.

Still at the Fed

Reagan renominates Volcker

to head Federal Reserve Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan ended months of speculation Saturday by announcing he will renominate Paul A. Volcker to serve another four years as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board when his first term expires in August.

"He's agreed to do so, and I couldn't be more pleased," Reagan said in his weekly radio broadcast from Camp David, Md., where he is spending the weekend.

Volcker, who was first named to the post in 1979 by then-President Carter, said in New York that he was "gratified and honored by the expression of confidence by the president."

In renaming Volcker, Reagan turned aside an opportunity to put his own appointee in that sensitive spot as the nation's central banker.

Volcker has strong backing in business and financial circles for his efforts to bring down the inflation rate. But the Fed's anti-inflation policies also have been blamed by some for contributing to the lengthy and deep recession from which the economy is recovering.

Reagan's announcement was certain to be jubilantly received in the business community, which had been pressing for his reappointment to what is considered by some the second most powerful job in the United States.

Arthur Levitt, chairman of the American Stock Exchange, welcomed the announcement as being "in the best interests of the country's economic future."

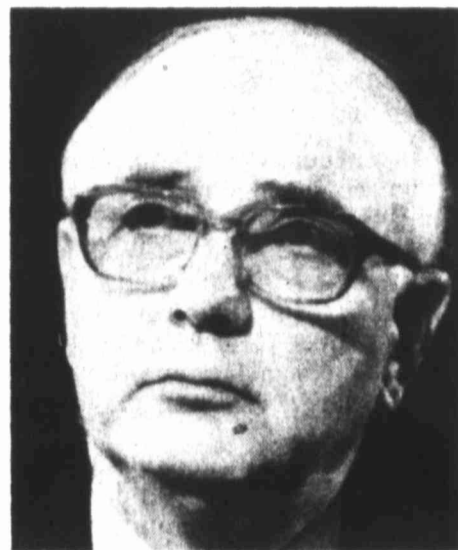

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said the decision "should reassure the financial markets enough, I hope, to lower interest rates."

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., in a Democratic response to the president's radio talk, said, "I vigorously support" the choice.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said the reappointment "could be a disaster for our economy and for the unemployed."

AFL-CIO spokesman Rex Hardesty said the labor federation disagrees with the Fed's monetary policy, adding: "But we had no reason to oppose the reappointment of Volcker because the policy would not have changed if he had been replaced."

Reagan described Volcker, 55, as "a man of unquestioned independence, integrity and ability."

PAUL VOLCKER controversy for Reagan

"He is as dedicated as I am to continuing the fight against inflation, and with him as chairman of the Fed, I know we will win that fight," the president said.

In his statement following Reagan's announcement, Volcker said, "I do believe we now have a rare opportunity to achieve sustained growth on a firm foundation of stability. I am sure I can speak for the entire Federal Reserve system as to our commitment to work toward that objective."

The president telephoned Volcker in New York City from his mountaintop retreat in western Maryland with the offer of a second term at about 11 a.m. EDT Saturday — just an hour before going on the air with the news, a White House aide said.

Volcker's nomination must be confirmed by the Senate, where few obstacles are expected. His current term as chairman expires Aug. 5. By law the term of the chairman, who is paid $69,800 a year, lasts four years, though Volcker's term as an ordinary board member lasts until 1993.

An administration official denied speculation that there might be a private understanding between Reagan and Volcker under which the Fed chairman would resign at the end of Reagan's first term. "It is for a full four-year term; there are no strings attached," said the official, who spoke only on condition he not be named.

Report: Jobless figures insufficient

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government statistics understate the pain of long-term joblessness suffered by millions of unemployed Americans, a congressional Joint Economic Committee staff report said Saturday.

Although American unemployment has declined from the post-Depression peak of 10.8 percent of the labor force in December to 10.1 percent in May, the report said the average duration of joblessness last month was 20.4 weeks, a record high.

"Traditional measures such as the unemployment rate and the number unemployed fail to consider the length of the period of joblessness," said Rep. Lee H. Hamilton, D-Ind., vice chairman of the committee. "Certainly someone out of work for one year is subject to much greater hardship than someone out of work for one week."

The length-of-unemployment statistic was noted in the May employment report released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, when the government reported that nearly 2.8 million Americans had been out of work for 27 weeks or more.

But the new study, written by Paul Manchester, a staff economist for committee's Democratic membership, said the bureau report did not go far enough in portraying the plight of the long-term unemployed.

Manchester developed a new gauge of long-term joblessness which multiplies the total number of unemployed by the number of weeks these people are out of work.

He came up with a new statistic showing that people who were officially categorized as unemployed in May had been out of work for 228.3 million weeks, the highest since the government began tracking labor market developments in 1948.

"None of the published indicators measures the combined effects of the size of current unemployment and the duration of unemployment," the study said.

"This measure reveals a current labor market picture much worse than that shown by conventional measures, and one much more severe than the situation in the 1973-75 recession," it said. "The current recession, so soon after the 1980 recession, has caused more labor market distress than many have believed."

Some 11.19 million Americans were unemployed in May, 844,000 fewer than the total number on the jobless roll in December. Since the start of the current recession in July 1981, the number of unemployed persons has risen by 43 percent, but total weeks of unemployment have more than doubled, rising by 108 percent, because of a sharp increase in the duration of employment, the study said.

Toxic chemical found near grammar school

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The toxic chemical dioxin was found outside a fragrance plant in a residential neighborhood, less than a tenth of a mile from a grammar school, the governor announced Saturday.

While there was no evidence of contamination outside the Givaudan Corp. plant, Gov. Thomas H. Kean ordered part of the plant closed and the soil covered with tarpaulins to keep the toxic chemical in place.

Eleven sites in New Jersey are being tested for suspected dioxin contamination, and the Clifton plant is the third where the deadly substance has been found.

Results received Friday of preliminary tests at Givaudan last week showed up to 11 parts per billion of dioxin in soil and on top of the ground next to the plant's hexachlorophene manufacturing section.

Out To Lunch

By MARGARET BAUM

I spent considerable time this last week at the library looking for a picture of Whistler's father. I couldn't find one, which I think is a real shame, especially because today is Father's Day.

Having to do without Whistler's father, I settled on a picture of the father of our country and, with it propped up in front of me, took inspiration from it to eulogize all dads, even though I can't picture George Washington coaching Little League, taking kids to Six Flags or sitting through a piano recital involving some thirty children playing "Fur Elise" complete with repeats.

There's no way today's dad can have a cut and dried "job description." His duties don't end at 5 o'clock any more than mom's. He not only may run the car pool at 3:30, but quite possibly will stop by the house to throw a roast in the oven if necessary and never consider his masculinity threatened. At times, you'll even find him wielding a mop on the kitchen floor if mom's busy outside painting lawn furniture.

Our hearts belong to Daddy

And, as he shares the household chores, so does he share the child-rearing duties. Dad's great at mixing formula, carrying two kids at the same time and getting the baby to eat his pureed prunes. And, nobody ... nobody can play like dad. Moms never want to wrestle under the dining room table nor run in the house.

Dads are super story tellers and no matter how often the children hear "about the time you ...", it's always new and exciting to hear it again, especially sitting on a quilt in the backyard after dark. And, if everybody's still and quiet, dad'll tell a real spooky ghost story that can last ten minutes complete with sound effects. By the time the story's over, several neighborhood kids have wandered over and the quilt's full, necessitating a story repeat.

Dads understand how hard it is when you're little not to wriggle in church and they always have a piece of paper and pencil to draw with in between the singing, which isn't bad if you're old enough to read the words, but, sometimes, the talking part goes on too long, so it's great to have dad draw an airplane or a football helmet for you to copy.

And, it's a real treat to go on a hike with dad — even if you don't find any arrowheads. Dad knows all the ravines where Indians used to hide and it just feels good walking along behind him kicking loose rocks with the sun beating down on your back. He's a lot bigger than you are, but he always turns around to wait for you to catch up.

And, then, before you know it, you've caught up and the games, the stories, the hikes are all just memories of some very special times with a very special person.

So, Dad, even though we don't always stop to tell you — to give you a hug — to write you a note, we still want you to know — we're thinking of you today.

Around the Rim

Spare me, please

Once upon a time all the women in television commercials were incredibly boring. Madison Avenue had created droves of women who broke out in hives when their floors were dingy, suffered quietly while husbands complained about coffee and — in a modern-day version of Jacob weeping at the well — wailed when their detergent failed them.

Few women are like that in real life, of course. Yet I loved those fictional portrayals because they made me feel so superior. I knew I'd never be one of those silly nineties who fretted about window streaks for I had more important things to worry about. But I enjoyed giving these doomed women advice on their never-ending parade of household horrors. Does your little boy complain that your chocolate cream pie is not as fluffy as Mrs. Smith's down the street? Fine — don't feed him for a week. Your husband snivels that his shirts don't smell as fresh as they did last week? Great — teach him to do the laundry. Your snoopy neighbor feels it's necessary to remark that your counter tops don't shine? Terrific — tell her to freeload coffee and cake elsewhere.

YES, THOSE were the days and now they're gone. Today, I no longer feel holier-than-thou. Madison Avenue has replaced its army of brainless twits with Women Who Do Everything. In the new commercials, women go directly from a corporate meeting to a nightclub, where they sing and dance all night long — then drive off in a sleek sports car to watch the sun rise over the ocean. By comparison, their jobs — airline pilot, judge, television anchor woman, fashion magnate, head of the Federal Reserve — make mine chopped liver.

I have noticed that this new breed lacks intimate contact with other people. At least the terrified wax build-up hausfrau was connected to her family, neighbors, bridge groups and children. She was never quite alone; she was always preparing for somebody to come home soon. Today's commercial woman, on the other hand, seems to view other people in her life as scenery — easily dismantled and discarded. In one commercial, a sophisticated boutique owner, after giving firm orders to her subordinates, relishes the chance to finally be at her desk alone to call her bank and pay the bills. This, I gather, is the high point of her day.

When will those wonderful folks who brought us ring-around-the-collar and female university presidents who also climb the Alps, discover the obvious, that most of us live somewhere in between? How refreshing it would be to see more reality, and imagination, in commercials. If I were given credit for a little intelligence, I just might be motivated to buy that amazing whipped cream that doubles as a floor cleaner.

The story of a demon lover

I recently ventured home to see a Sweetwater Little Theater production of "The Wind." My hometown is population 13,500. I wasn't expecting much except the nostalgia of being in the place where I grew up. So I was pleasantly surprised when the play turned out to be thoroughly enjoyable and true to the book it was based on.

Dorothy Scarborough wrote the novel, "The Wind," in 1925. It begins:

The wind was the cause of it all. The sand, too, had a share in it, and human beings were involved, but the wind was the primal force ...

The book is the story of Letty, a delicate girl who is forced to move from lush Virginia to desolate West Texas. The numbing blizzards, the howling sandstorms, and the loneliness of the prairie all combine to undo her nerves. But it is the wind itself, a demon personified, that eventually drives her over the brink of madness.

The play was especially adapted by Director Jean Moffitt, whose goal was to retain the special flavor of the dialect, the strength of the pioneer spirit and the realistic harshness of the early days.

And she did. Most effective was the almost constant wind and sand which blew across the stage, collecting on the stage props. I don't know how they did that. But every time someone sat down, he would first have to sweep the sand off his chair, stirring up a realistic cloud of dust.

The sound effects were chilling, wailing across the waste places in the night, calling to Letty like a demon lover.

The star of the show was a young woman I had last seen when she was a little girl playing make-believe with my kid sister.

And the setting? The setting was Sweetwater. That was what had been so interesting to me in reading the book. The girl from Virginia gets to Ford Worth, then begins the last leg of her journey. She passes through Abilene, through Merkel, then at last...Sweetwater. Looking out the train window she wonders at all the abandoned peach orchards, where unkempt trees were growing...not realizing they were mesquite trees.

Naturally the book infuriated West Texas Chambers of Commerce. One of the persons who spoke out strongly against the book was a lawyer by the name of Roy Crane, who later became a judge. (Years later when my mother moved to Sweetwater as a Western Union operator, she rented a room from him.)

The author was a native Texan who spent part of her childhood in Sweetwater. Scarborough's works are now viewed as pioneers of the school of realism and early feminism.

The play and book have other characters besides Letty. The story has one of the most startling conclusions in western literature — so much so that producers chose to substitute a Hollywood ending in the 1928 movie starring Lillian Gish.

Parents upset at discrimination

Dear Editor,

I have just come from a conference with my son's coach and vice president of the Senior League Baseball. I am very disappointed in these adults that are supposed to be running this league.

I was told tonight that the reason my son didn't get to play was because I was unable to work in the concession stand. I work a full 40-hour-a-week job and work at night in my own beauty shop. My husband works in Colorado City and doesn't get home until 6:30 or 7 every night.

We were told that they (coaches) were not required to ever play a kid unless his parents helped out in some way.

He is, also, ineligible for All Steers because of this.

Now, tell me, is this game for the kids or is it for the grown-ups?

I believe there are plenty of parents who don't work 60 or 70 hours a week who can help and make some allowances for these kids whose parents have to work all these hours.

We have a kid who is a fine baseball player but he's being discriminated against because his parents are hard-working people. We don't work for the fun of it — this is a second marriage and we both have a lot of bills. My son's dad also works an extra job umpiring ball games and is unavailable for work in the concession stand.

I think this is very unfair to discriminate against the kid. This is a kid's game, not the grownups' game. If they are going to have rules like this, they should be printed up and handed to the parents as they register their children before the season ever starts. This was not done and we only found out about this rule tonight (Friday, June 19).

Council of Churches answers critics

The National Council of Churches, which has been under well-deserved fire for its leftist bias, has mustered the energy to answer its critics. The result is a television film featuring United Methodist Bishop James Armstrong, the current president. Unfortunately, it not only fails to answer the accusations, but adds credence to them.

The NCC has much to defend. On various occasions it, or agencies it finances, have praised Cuban communism, endorsed Vietnam's "reeducation" camps and criticized those Vietnamese who fled Communist rule, defended the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and characterized the United States as "the hub of a vast network of economic plunder."

The NCC claims it opposes tyranny on both the left and the right, but it reserves its outrage for the latter. Of 120 resolutions of human rights it has approved since 1951, none has criticized Castro's government. The council has, however, condemned U.S. policies toward Cuba.

than left-wing ones. Even James Wall, editor of the liberal Christian Century, says it allows itself "to be too closely related to certain political ideologies — usually those of the left."

ARMSTRONG'S reply to such criticism borders on the fatuous. He begins by soothingly conceding that the "NCC is not perfect. No institution is perfect." No one said it should be — only that it should be less imperfect than it is.

He then changes the subject, defending the ecumenical ideal on which the NCC was founded. But no one has criticized ecumenism. This is akin to a congressman answering charges of corruption by defending the concept of democracy. And Armstrong notes unconviction, but irrelevant, NCC activities — sponsoring the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, publishing Sunday school lessons.

The bishop mentions his travels to "Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina and Chile, in Zimbabwe, Cuba and Korea." Oh, yes, that trip to Cuba. He and six other church leaders published a statement about their visit, which minimized the lack of freedom in Cuba and extolled Castro for "carrying out the gospel demand to feed the hungry, clothe the naked and minister to 'the very least' ... of the human family."

Armstrong proceeds to demolish a straw man: "The National Council of Churches is 'not' part of a worldwide socialist conspiracy." Conspiracy or no, its attitude toward communist governments is, at best, uncritical and, at worst, outright sympathetic.

Moreover, says the bishop, the NCC "does not provide weapons for 'guerrillas' or 'revolutionaries' or 'terrorists.'" He is right about that, contrary to some accusations. But it has given money to the governments of Vietnam and Nicaragua for "humanitarian" programs — which allow those dictatorships to shift funds to less noble purposes.

Bishop Armstrong's reply recalls George Eliot's characterization of "those ridiculous clergymen who help to make the whole clergy ridiculous." Worse still, it tries to mislead the very people he is pledged to serve. And it misses the points of his critics.

The art of leaving loopholes

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — Saying something seemingly exact and precise while leaving an unnoticed loophole for an excuse in case you are wrong is a fine old political art.
 In the present Texas governor and his immediate predecessor, we have skilled practitioners of that art, but with very different methods.
 Former Gov. Bill Clements is one of the most confident persons you could meet. His method of operation as governor was to receive information and advice from sources he trusted and then to make a decision.
 Once that decision was made, it was — to Clements — the gospel. His great frustration as governor was that he never could understand why anyone would question, much less disagree with, his view.

 He would lay out his view to the world, or at least those of us in Texas who paid attention, and say, in effect, "This is the way it is exactly and this is precisely what I think."
 If something went wrong later, he was a master of pointing out certain nuances that the listeners hadn't caught originally. The problem, he would say, was with the interpretation, not what he said.
 Mark White, who last year sent Clements back to counting his money in Dallas, has a different approach.
 His statements are loaded with loopholes and conditions, and each one almost seems to have a red flag attached with the message: "Wait! Don't jump to any conclusions!"
 In releasing the names of a special committee on public education last week, White made it sound as though this group would weigh every tough issue in the education field and make wide-sweeping recommendations.
 How long would this take? He didn't set a timetable but said he hoped everything could be done in six months.
 Does that mean his long-threatened special session to enact a teacher pay raise wouldn't come before 1984? White replied that he wants the Legislature to address that issue "before the beginning of the school year."
 How can the committee study the overall picture for six months and the Legislature use its recommendations on teacher pay within the next few weeks? White says some items might be broken out and given priority, but that is not in

Coastal pollution budget cut rapped

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Carlos Truan says cutting the budget of the marine council in the face of rising evidence of coastal pollution is like an army's cutting back on reconnaissance as an enemy force closes in.
 He criticized the Legislature Friday for cutting the budget of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council by more than $50,000.
 "The Gulf Coast and the coastal plan are being besieged as never before with threats to the public health and environmental damage on all fronts," Truan told a meeting of the council.
 "It is like stripping your armored divisions of their intelligence gathering capability just as the enemy brings the battle closer to home," Truan said. "On the Gulf Coast, the battle to protect the environment including environmental health is now more serious than I have ever seen it before."
 The marine council, an advisory board that plans coastal management and is a liaison with federal agencies, spent $250,000 in the last fiscal year. Its budget was cut to $198,659 for the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, and to $196,006 the next year. It had requested $757,156 for the next two years.

Report from Austin

By REP. LARRY DON SHAW

Good news, bad news from the 68th Session

Spending 140 days as a state legislator can certainly play havoc with your frame of mind. During the 68th Session, I often found myself celebrating the passage of one bill at the same time I was moaning over the passage of another. Should I cheer or groan? Yet when the dust finally settles, I think you'll see some positive results for our district, as well as the state.
 The biggest influence on the outcome of the session has been the drop in oil revenues together with a general economic decline which has triggered a series of reductions in the amount of new money we had to spend. What started out as a $5.1 billion surplus over the 1982-83 budget has dropped to only $2.3 billion new dollars for the 1984-85 biennium. Consequently, most of the bills that passed required little or no funding, but that doesn't mean they lacked importance. On the contrary, drunk driving reforms approved by the 68th Legislature are among the most significant and progressive in the nation.

 Eliminating deferred adjudication in DWI cases is a big step forward in cracking down on drunk drivers in Texas. No longer will prior DWI convictions be removed from the records simply because a drunk driver can "behave" for a few months of probation.
 As you know, repeat offenders are the biggest problem, and by keeping permanent records of all DWI arrests, the stiffer fines and penalties approved by the Legislature for subsequent offenses will penalize the "problem" people. And although the banning of open containers of alcohol in cars and raising the drinking age were sidestepped this session, I feel certain we'll see them again in future sessions.

 Another money-saving package of reforms addressed the federal court order to ease overcrowding in our state prisons. In November, you'll be asked to decide whether the Governor should be removed from the parole process, and paroling left to a staff of experts and a board appointed by the Governor. Community restitution centers have also been approved in lieu of expensive, maximum security housing.
 Other successes of the 68th

Legislature include utility reforms, ethics legislation for elected officials, and a proposed $100 million-a-year fund for colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems, which is subject to voter approval. I'm also pleased to report that both Houses approved the two-year, $3.9 million funding proposal for Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, which is located in Big Spring.
 Other funding needs were not so generously addressed, however. The initial $4 billion request sought by the State Highway Department was cut in half, and the Governor's call for a teacher pay raise of 24 percent was not resolved. Aid to welfare children was boosted, but only from $43 to $48 — far short of the $60 originally sought by the agency.

 Although the statewide water plan was another loser during the regular session, some predict it could be on the list for a special session. As it now stands, the "when" and "what" of a special session is anybody's guess. Some speculate that the Governor will call a special session only if he's guaranteed he'll get the tax increase to finance a teacher pay raise, but in
 As you can see, we still have work that needs to be done. Although I regret the expense of special sessions, some issues are simply too complex to be decided in 140 days. I firmly believe in thinking ahead and preparing for a good future in Texas... that's why your views and opinions always carry a lot of weight with me.

Couple claims they kidnapped child for 'love'

EL PASO (AP) — A Florida couple who kidnapped a 5-year-old girl after taking her parents on a charity Christmas shopping spree told a federal judge that they thought they were doing the child a favor by snatching her from poverty.
 Lynda Hill Baxley, 37, was sentenced to 20 years in federal prison Friday by U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth. Hudspeth also sented Robert Wayne Baxley, 39, to 10 years in prison as an accessory to the crime.

 Mrs. Baxley admitted kidnapping Monica Aguilar of El Paso on Dec. 23, 1982 after posing as church workers and taking her parents on a $200 shopping spree.
 "It was for the love of the child (that she was taken)," Baxley said, struggling for words moments before he was sentenced.

"We thought we could take care of (Monica) better," he said. "She was poor."
 —After the kidnapping, the couple also wanted to contact Monica's family to have them move out to their Panama City, Fla., home, Baxley said. But the couple never got around to it.
 Mrs. Baxley could have received a life sentence on the kidnapping charge.

Suit says firm cheated Texans

ABILENE (AP) — As many as 100 Texans were cheated when Pacific Overseas Services Inc. failed to produce promised jobs in foreign countries, a suit filed by the Texas attorney general alleges.
 The suit, filed Friday in state district court here, seeks reimbursement and compensation of up to $10,000 for "anybody who the state proves was injured by the firm," which has closed all its Texas offices but Houston, said Dave Allred, spokesman for Attorney General Jim Mattox.
 Allred said the suit was filed in Abilene because a large number of people the state believes were cheated live in the Abilene area.

"However, the attorney general's office has received more than 100 complaints from various parts of the state," Allred said.
 POSI public relations director D. Ray Daines said his company has had been in contact with the attorney general's office, but was unaware of the court action Friday.
 Dennis said the company responded to complaints "on a one-to-one basis."
 "We don't deny that there have been serious complications in our business — in particular, the recession and the tremendous slowdown in the number of available overseas positions," said Daines.

Gives toughest statement yet in Polish visit

Pope hails workers' uprising

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) — To the cheers of a million Poles, Pope John Paul II on Saturday hailed the workers' uprising that gave birth to the Solidarity labor movement, saying it touched the "hearts and consciences" of people around the world.

The pope's remarks, made soon after his arrival at the famed Jasna Gora monastery, were his strongest words of support for the banned Solidarity union since he returned to his native land Thursday.

The pontiff, whose homecoming has touched off pro-Solidarity demonstrations wherever he has gone, was expected to meet here Sunday with Lech Walesa, head of the outlawed union.

"The pictures that went around the world in 1980 touched hearts and consciences," John Paul said, referring to the August 1980 strikes that spanned the Soviet bloc's first independent workers' organization.

He called the commitment of his countrymen "a testimony which amazed the whole world, when the Polish worker stood up for himself with the gospel in his hand and a prayer on his lips."

In his address, to members of the Baltic diocese of Szczecin, the pope also spoke emotionally about the monastery's Black Madonna, a symbol of independence throughout Poland. He said the holy icon's eyes were "tear-filled and sad."

His words boomed out from a giant altar erected outside the monastery, whose name means "mountain of light." The vast throng packed an open field and woods near the shrine to hear the pontiff's address.

Two Solidarity banners waved over the crowd, and workers unfurled a banner reading, "Gdansk shipyard workers with the pope forever." Solidarity was born in strikes that broke out at the Gdansk shipyards.

The pontiff had flown to this southern town from another shrine in the Warsaw area, where he celebrated Mass with 300,000 people in a wheat field, a service that ended with a sea of hands raised in "V-for-Victory" salutes, a symbol adopted by Solidarity.

At that Mass, the pontiff blessed members of Rural Solidarity, another banned group that is the farmers' counterpart of the labor union.

"You wish to restore to your work in the fields its own special dignity, and in this work, you rediscover joy," the pope said of the Rural Solidarity members, whose activities are closely affiliated with the church.

UPRISING COMMEMORATED ... Pope John Paul II in Warsaw

founded by Maximilian Kolbe, a priest who died at the Auschwitz Nazi death camp in 1941 after volunteering to take the place of a fellow Pole condemned to death. Kolbe was canonized by John Paul last October.

On the Czestochowa stop, a highlight of his eight-day visit, he was honoring the Black Madonna icon, a symbol of Polish nationalism and religious fervor during centuries of foreign occupation and partition. According to legend, it was painted by St. Luke on a plank of wood from Christ's table.

John Paul, who first returned to Poland as pope in 1979, was to have made a second homecoming last August to celebrate the 60th year of the icon's presence in Poland. But the visit was postponed in the tumult that followed the declaration of martial law Dec. 13, 1981.

The pope's words Saturday were the latest in a string of blunt statements praising the independent labor movement and criticizing the government that crushed it.

In Warsaw, the papal words of support were accompanied by large demonstrations of Solidarity backers, including a march by 50,000 the night of his arrival, the largest unsanctioned demonstration in Poland since martial law was imposed.

"I could not fail to speak at least briefly about these great problems, which are situated mainly in the consciousness and hearts of the people of this land, tired but full of trust and faith," the pontiff told the throng outside the monastery.

Earlier, a government official noted the pope had also made a special appeal for calm in his speech Friday night to 1 million people at an open-air Mass in Warsaw.

"The pope is a wise man, and we're hoping that he'll say things to calm people down," said the official, who asked to remain anonymous.

The government made one concession to the visiting pontiff, granting his request that Walesa be allowed to meet with him. The Solidarity leader, who lives in Gdansk, was told late Friday the meeting would take place at the Jasna Gora monastery here.

Infant death rate drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Infant mortality in the United States has dropped to its lowest level ever, but a Washington population expert says the figure is still high among several other industrialized nations.

There were 12.5 infant deaths for every 1,000 live births in the United States in 1980, according to government figures.

That rate placed the United States 19th among nations with 50 or more infant deaths, according to a study by demographer Carl Haub published by the independent Population Reference Bureau.

The world's lowest infant death rate, according to Haub's study was recorded by Sweden, with 6.7 deaths per 1,000 in 1980.

Other nations with infant mortality rates under 10 per thousand included Japan, Finland, Norway, Denmark, and France.

The National Center for Health Statistics has reported that the nation's infant mortality rate fell to 11.7 in 1981 and 11.2 last year — the lowest level ever.

But even that low 1982 rate would rank the U.S. only 13th compared to the 1980 international statistics. More recent data for other countries were not immediately available.

"No cold statistic expresses more eloquently the difference between a society of sufficiency and a society of deprivation than the infant mortality rate," wrote researcher Kathleen Newland in a 1981 study for the Worldwatch Institute, another Washington think tank.

Q: If a husband owns a house, and holds sole title to the property, is it necessary for his wife to sign the deed, even though all documents are in his name only?

A: The wife should sign the deed in order to release her community property or dower rights in the property. If the seller's wife refuses to sign the deed, a buyer may, at the discretion of the court, refuse to accept the deed. He may also elect to sue the seller for damages resulting from the buyer's assumption that he had bought the property and that he would receive clear title to it. The buyer may also accept the deed signed by the husband only and request the court to deduct, from the purchase price, the amount equals to the value of the community property or dower rights of the seller's wife.

First Federal honors
Mr. & Mrs. Gilbert Gibbs
for their part in
Howard County's Heritage
Monday, June 20

Meet Mr. & Mrs. Gilbert Gibbs between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

"Everybody always used to ask me where I was going to move when I retired," Gilbert Gibbs recalls. "And I always said I wouldn't live anywhere else but Big Spring."

Gilbert Gibbs is retired now; he was a merchant in downtown Big Spring for more than 40 years. He came here from Denton in 1931 to take a sales clerk's job at Albert M. Fisher & Company. All the merchants in town were clustered downtown then, Gilbert remembers: Prager's Army Store, Swartz, Shine Phillips Drug Stores, Ralph Link Grocery Store, Safeway, Barrow's Furniture Store, Burr's Department Store, The Ford Motor Company, J. & W. Fisher, and Mellinger's Men's & Boy's. It was a time when oilmen made deals at the Crawford Hotel, the red Pecos sandstone courthouse hummed with activity and the Settles Hotel was "at the peak of its glory."

"When Fisher's built an addition on their store, the excavation was done with a team of mules. The water table is high downtown and the mules fell through and we nearly lost them! Since then the grade has been raised on Main Street; you used to walk up quite a few steps from street level to the stores."

Recalling how business was in the early '30's, Gilbert says "Some days we only took in $25."

Gilbert remained with the store when it was purchased by Hemphill Wells, and the stock which he accumulated with the latter enabled him to buy out the Men's Store in 1958. In 1968 he moved that store to the former location of Mellinger's Men's & Boy's Store and went into partnership with George Weeks to form Gibbs & Weeks. Gilbert sold out his interest to George Weeks in 1974 and retired.

Gilbert's fondest dream is that downtown Big Spring be restored and updated, including the Settles Hotel. He admits to a special love for downtown, of course; but more than that, he feels that the empty buildings create an impression of decline not in keeping with the pride that he knows residents feel for their city.

Zoe Gibbs retired in 1975 from a 27-year career with Howard County schools. She taught in Coahoma, in all the Big Spring elementary schools and in high school.

Zoe came to Big Spring in 1939, and they met in the shoe department at Albert M. Fisher's. Some of her students wanted Gilbert to meet their teacher. "Well, when I saw her I said 'I want a date with her for the football game Friday night.' And they said they'd fix me up."

Zoe and Gilbert were married in 1941, and celebrated their 42nd anniversary on June 3. They have two children, Ann Dallas who lives in El Paso and Jim Gibbs Jr., a civil engineer who lives in Albuquerque. There are four granddaughters.

Gilbert was active for many years in the Big Spring Lions Club, at one time serving as president, and the retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to her teaching, Zoe was a member of the American Association of University Women, the 1905 Hyperion Club, and served as president of the former Big Spring Federated Clubs.

She's a volunteer at Malone & Hogan Hospital, and has logged 1,800 hours, the second highest volunteer. Gilbert has 1,000 hours of volunteer work at the hospital in the Gift Shop.

Both are active in the Church of Christ where Zoe has taught Sunday School for 20 years, and Gilbert is a substitute teacher in the Men's Class.

Their favorite pastime is travelling. They go to Mexico a lot, took in a Gourmet Chef's Cookout at Ouray, Colo., go trout fishing at Port Aransas, and visit their children. Zoe also took a trip to the Holy Land.

"Big Spring has been good to us," Gilbert says. Gilbert and Zoe Gibbs would like to see old friends and meet new ones from 10 to 4 p.m. Monday, June 20 in the First Federal's lobby.

JOHN "B" 267-6

Question of insanity defense still unsettled

WASHINGTON (AP) — One year after a federal court jury sparked a national furor by finding John W. Hinckley Jr. not guilty by reason of insanity for shooting President Reagan, there's still no consensus on how to change the insanity defense.

Hinckley, meantime, spends his days at St. Elizabeths Hospital, the federal mental institution in the District of Columbia where he was sent after the jury's verdict last June 21.

The 28-year-old Hinckley will apparently remain there for some time. He is eligible for a court hearing every six months at which he can claim that he is now sane and then seek his release, but his attorney, Vincent J. Fuller, said Friday there are no plans to make such an appeal.

Hinckley was found not guilty by reason of insanity in the March 30, 1981 shooting of Reagan, presidential press secretary James Brady, District policeman Thomas Delahanty, and Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy.

The verdict was widely condemned and there were dozens of calls for a change in one of the most controversial areas of American law. More than 40 bills were introduced in Congress and at least 21 state legislatures have considered proposals to change their laws.

The Senate and House Judiciary Committees have held at least a dozen hearings and are now trying to draft a single piece of legislation that incorporates the varying views.

After the trial, five of the dozen jurors testified before a Senate subcommittee that they were frustrated because they were limited to only two choices — guilty or not guilty by reason of insanity — during 3½ days of deliberations that capped the two-month-long trial.

Under the rules of the trial, it was up to the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Hinckley was not insane and that he knew right from wrong when he opened fire on Reagan with a .22 caliber pistol.

Prosecution psychiatrists testified that Hinckley was sane but defense psychiatrists took the stand to say Hinckley was insane and helplessly driven to shoot by his frustrated obsession with actress Jodie Foster.

"Frankly, I'm outraged at that jury decision. I think it's wrong," said Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, whose jurisdiction includes the Secret Service. "I think that's absolutely atrocious."

Attorney General William French Smith called for "an end to the doctrine that allows so many persons to commit crimes of violence, to use confusing procedures to their own advantage, and then to have the door open to them to return to the society which they victimized."

Actually, the insanity defense is seldom used. The Senate Judiciary Committee released figures showing that fewer than 1

Flexible regulation plan dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, lacking support from Congress and labor unions, has abandoned a plan to grant airlines more flexibility in meeting air safety regulations.

Agency officials said Saturday that a formal withdrawal of the proposal, called "Regulation by Objective," will be submitted for publication in the Federal Register next week.

The proposal, which was offered nearly a year ago by FAA Administrator J. Lynn Helms, would call for the FAA to issue broad objectives and leave it to the airline industry to develop ways to meet them.

For example, instead of requiring a specific number of flight attendants on a plane, or specific number of fire extinguishers, the rule would require only an adequate number for safety.

PUBLIC NOTICE

On Tuesday, June 14, 1983, the City Council of the City of Big Spring, Texas, passed and approved on third and final reading an ordinance which is described as follows:

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF BIG SPRING, TEXAS, DESIGNATING THE INTERSECTION OF 6TH AND STATE AS A FOUR-WAY STOP INTERSECTION; DIRECTING THE ERECTION OF STOP SIGNS (STATE LAW PROVIDES THAT IT IS A MISDEMEANOR OFFENSE TO RUN A STOP SIGN PUNISHABLE BY A FINE OF UP TO $200.00 ON CONVICTION); AND PROVIDING FOR PUBLICATION.

PUBLIC NOTICE

At the request of the Office of the General Counsel of the Public Utility Commission, the Commission has established Docket 5113 to inquire into pressing issues involving the entire telephone industry in Texas. Such Docket will deal with a variety of issues resulting from the impending divestiture of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Some of such issues include the service areas of Southwestern Bell after divestiture and the impact on other telephone companies in Texas, including West-Tex Telephone Cooperative, Inc., of current settlement arrangements between Southwestern Bell and those companies.

Additionally, the Docket will deal with the issues arising out of the Federal Communications Commission's Final Order in Docket 78-72 (the Access Charge Docket) as they impact all telephone companies, including West-Tex Telephone Cooperative, Inc. It is anticipated that such Docket 5113 will be evidentiary in nature. Rates for West-Tex Telephone Cooperative, Inc. may be determined by the Commission in this proceeding. Interested parties seeking further information or desiring to further participate in such Docket are advised to contact Rhonda Colbert Ryan, Secretary and Director of Hearings, Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757.

South Texas oil center faces new slump

ALICE (AP) — The energy business rollercoaster once again has plunged this South Texas oil and gas center into economic hard times, but those who've been down before say they've mastered the ride.

The industry's sudden slump early last year has hurt everyone, they say, but especially the amateurs who flocked to Alice to make a quick buck during the boom years of 1980 and 1981.

"I'd say history will show this is the worst time our industry has faced, and a lot of that is the speed at which it happened," said Burt Harkins, president of Harkins and Co. oil and gas drillers and contractors.

But Harkins, who has been in the business 38 years, said, "We know what it takes to survive in this time and we've taken the cost-cutting measures necessary, many of which we learned in the recessions of years ago."

Still, many drilling rigs sit idle as businesses wait for demand for their products to catch up with the oversupply.

Laborers who traveled up to 200 miles from Alice to work in the oil patches also have been left jobless or underemployed, while the rig service and supply businesses centered here are left with little to service or supply.

"Until this hit, if you lived in Alice, Texas, and were physically able to work, you could find a job," said Lowell Hunt, Southwest Energy Exposition board chairman and publisher of the Alice Echo-News.

"You could make $10 to $12 an hour and all the overtime you could handle," he said.

Now, the city's 10.1 percent unemployment rate, up from 4.9 percent in July 1981, "is the highest Alice has ever experienced," said Ralph Gomez, Alice Chamber of Commerce executive vice president.

Meanwhile, the city's share of retail sale tax revenues has slipped by 30 percent, while several businesses in the this town of 21,000 have failed.

Some say the unemployment figure probably would be higher if so many people had not left the area.

"A lot of people just flat moved off," Hunt said.

Commercial business loans at First City Bank are down 11 percent from last year, an indication that all is not well in the city, said Steve Hipes, executive vice president.

The oil business, according to Hunt, "has had a lot of ups and downs over the years but, according to the people in the patch, not this far down."

"Right now it's grim," said Gomez. "It's not something that Alice is used to so there's a tremendous amount of adjusting that has to be done. There's going to be a considerable amount of belt-tightening over the next year."

But, says Gomez, people who say these are the worst times ever for Alice "are comparing it to '80-'81 when (the energy business) had never been so good."

For example, the city's sales tax revenues, "which are tied directly to the oil fields," jumped 111 percent between 1979 and 1981, Gomez said.

"During the time of plenty, there was a lot of spending going on," he said.

Paul Hofmeier, manager of the local TG&Y store, said "big-ticket items" like television sets and stereos used to go to 16-year-olds who were looking for ways to spend the money they made in the oil fields.

That's not the case now, he said.

Experienced oilmen say the fly-by-night businessmen who jumped hastily onto the oil boom bandwagon three years ago are back where they should be.

"The shoe clerks that got into the business have disappeared because they didn't know it was cyclical," Harkins said. "They thought it was only straight up to the golden gates of the energy Fort Knox."

"Those that started late got caught with borrowed capital," said H.S. Shanks Jr., owner of H.S. Shanks and Son natural gas pipeline firm.

In most cases, financially responsible people generally are able to weather this thing because they do not overextend themselves when times are good," Hipes said.

"It's a very risky business, and we're seeing the risks right now," he said.

"I've been up and down quite a few times and I've seen times when it was worse than this," said Shanks, citing slumps in the late 1950s and early 1970s.

He employs 80 to 85 people in the "good times," but now is down to about 45 workers and insists they work a regular 40-hour week instead of the 60 hours they were getting in the past.

"It'll be tough, but we can hang on," Shanks said.

Harkins said his company has reduced overtime hours and is watching labor and trucking costs, but has chopped its labor force by just 25 people, down to 425 full-time workers.

The firm's 14 rigs remain in operation, he said.

"We did not get infatuated with the go-go year of 1981 and our company did not grow uncontrolled," said Harkins, who believes the sudden slump was a "positive display of the free-market place."

"The government started getting out of controlling oil prices after some 30 years and the market came in and made some drastic corrections that started the boom years of '80-'81," he said.

Despite the tough times, Alice energy producers are optimistic about the future.

"Everybody in the field knows it's going to come back, it's just a matter of when," said Gomez.

"Our business continues to require optimism. The industry will recover again," Harkins said.

Exactly when Alice will blossom again, however, is difficult to predict.

"The recovery should not be quick unless there's chaos in the Middle East," Harkins said. "If left to us, it will be a gradual one that should be comfortable by the end of 1984."

Hipes, however, predicts things won't start looking up until mid-1985 to early 1986.

Meanwhile, city and chamber officials are working to attract other types of business to Alice "to help keep this from happening again," Gomez said.

Houston draws new program from NAACP

HOUSTON (AP) — Saying "Economics is the next logical thrust of the civil rights movement," a consultant for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has announced that Houston is a major target of a new NAACP program.

Operation Fair Share seeks to "return the dollars made by corporate America to the black community that supports it," said L.R. Byrd, NAACP consultant to the national program.

The program was begun on the national level in December. Byrd, touring to Texas cities to introduce Fair Share on the local level, met in Houston Thursday with local government and business leaders to discuss the program.

Blacks comprise about $150 billion in annual purchasing power, he said. The NAACP aims to see that the money goes to businesses who treat blacks equitably.

Frank Burns, local NAACP president, said Houston is an important city for the program because it has the most national corporations headquarters of any Texas cities. "Houston has a large black population, which means a lot of buying power," Burns added.

The Fair Share program evaluates corporations based on these criteria: access of blacks to entry-level employment opportunities, placement of blacks in senior management positions, purchase of goods and services from black businesses, representation of blacks on corporate boards and charitable contributions to black organizations.

The NAACP will try to make trade pact agreements with corporations who do not meet Fair Share standards, Byrd said. The pacts include the corporations' moral commitments to improve their economic relationship with blacks.

The Rosenbergs

Questions persist 30 years after execution

NEW YORK (AP) — For 30 years now, the questions have been asked and asked again, passed from one generation to the next, examined by historians and polemicists, argued far into the night.

Were Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, the only Americans ever executed for espionage, innocent victims of Cold War paranoia or willing spies for the Soviet Union?

If they funneled information about the atomic bomb to the Soviets during World War II, did they "alter the course of history" by giving Russia "the nation's most deadly and closely guarded secret," as the trial judge said when he sentenced them?

If they were guilty, did they deserve clemency, as urged by Albert Einstein, Pope Pius XII and Bertrand Russell, or did their execution, in the judge's words, "serve the maximum interest for the preservation of our society against traitors in our midst"?

IN THE three decades since the Rosenbergs were electrocuted at Sing Sing Prison on June 19, 1953, these questions have been revised and rephrased, but never forgotten.

No trial in American history has come close to generating such sustained zeal, anguish, recrimination, second-guessing, soul-searching and research. It has inspired poems, plays, novels, documentaries and films, including the upcoming "Daniel," a fictionalized account of the case, directed by Sidney Lumet.

One thing the case has not produced is consensus. This year Walter and Miriam Schneir have reissued their book, "Invitation to an Inquest," with three new chapters on information obtained from the FBI through freedom of information lawsuits.

"We remain convinced of their innocence," said Walter Schneir.

Another book draws a different conclusion from much of the same information.

"The evidence indicates the Rosenbergs were involved in espionage.

There's no other satisfactory explanation," said Ronald Radish, co-author with Joyce Milton of "The Rosenberg File."

But all four authors agree that the Rosenbergs did not get a fair trial and should not have been executed, positions that in turn are hotly contested by Simon Rifkind, a former federal judge now in private practice.

Nothing turned up since the trial, Rifkind said, has sullied what he calls "the faultless conduct" of Judge Irving Kaufman. "If ever two people received a fair trial, it was the Rosenbergs," Rifkind said.

MEANWHILE, THE Rosenbergs' defenders say public opinion finally is moving in their favor.

They cite freedom of information suits that are eliciting previously classified FBI documents; the Lumet film, due for release this fall; and a House subcommittee's decision to consider whether to recommend appointment of a commission of inquiry.

"The 30th anniversary is special because the truth is emerging," Aaron Katz, director of the National Committee to Reopen the Rosenberg Case, said in an interview last week. "It has changed the climate totally. Five years ago we thought it was far in the future. Now we have every reason to hope."

"When we first went to Washington, we didn't have four Congressmen who would open their doors to us," Katz said. "Now, there isn't one that's not open."

"Things look promising," agreed one of the Rosenbergs' two sons, Michael Meeropol, an associate professor of economics at Western New England College in Springfield, Mass.

But he said the evidence remained inconclusive: "Objectively, I would have to say the files don't prove his (Julius') innocence. But in this country you have to be proven guilty."

"This case was the foundation for the post-World War II consensus on the evil of domestic communism," said Meeropol.

New indictments set in 'Twilight Zone' case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The helicopter pilot and the special effects specialist from the "Twilight Zone" film crew have been indicted by a grand jury investigating the helicopter's fatal crash on the movie set last July, their attorneys said today.

Dorsey Wingo, 35, trained as a helicopter pilot in Vietnam, and special effects coordinator Paul Stewart are the fourth and fifth defendants named in the Los Angeles County grand jury indictments.

The indictments are to be officially unsealed at a Superior Court arraignment June 24 — the same day "Twilight Zone: The Movie" opens nationwide. Specific accusations against the five will not be known until then.

Stewart's lawyer, Howard Swainston, declined today to predict the charges against his client, but lawyers for others named in the indictment have said they believe their clients are accused of involuntary manslaughter.

"I'm told by the district attorney's office that there is an indictment," Swainston said. "I really prefer not to surmise what it is."

Wingo, reached at Western Helicopter Inc. in Orange County, where he is operations supervisor, said today, "I am not free to discuss it at all. I cannot confirm or deny anything."

Eugene Trope, one of the pilot's lawyers, confirmed in an interview with Daily Variety that his client was among those named in the indictments. Trope did not immediately return calls to his office today.

Director John Landis, his assistant, George Folsley Jr., and unit production manager Dan Allingham also are named in indictments, their lawyer, Roger Rosen, said Thursday.

Co-counsel for the three, Joel Behr, said today he expects all of the indictments stemming from the crash to allege involuntary manslaughter.

Swainston said he learned Wednesday from the district attorney's office that his client had been indicted, but he was unable to notify Stewart until Thursday because he was "out of town on location."

"He was shocked, as I was," Swainston said.

Stewart was subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury, but declined to give evidence without a promise of immunity from prosecution, Swainston said. The jury did not accept that offer, he said. The other three men did testify.

Morrow, 53, Renee Chen, 6, and Myca Dinh Le, 7, were killed July 23 when a helicopter crashed on them as they waded across a stream in a mock Vietnamese village near Saugus, 40 miles north of Los Angeles.

- d) ...as often as I do the Polish ping-pong championships.
- e) ...wait, I didn't know there was a United States Football League.

Texans, void of a member team in the USFL until the Houston Gamblers start playing, are having a rough time keeping up with the summer football league. Still, interest appears to be picking up as the playoffs draw near.

Denver Gold linebacker Putt Choate isn't surprised with the ebb and flow of interest in the USFL. Most football fans tuned in the first week or two to check out this Johnny-come-lately in the sports world. When the NCAA playoffs, baseball and weekend golf tournaments began, fans turned the channel out of habit.

"The fans are starting to come back now that the playoffs are near," Choate says. "When you have an 18-game season, at mid-season there is generally a lack of interest. It's like that with the NFL, too."

Some stadiums have been packed from the start; some games could be played at Memorial Stadium in Big Spring. Even New Jersey has plodded through a long season, the Generals have drawn good crowds. Boston, meanwhile is on the road to a wild card berth and can at best get 15-20,000.

"I'm sure they'll go to Florida next season, at least that's what I've heard," Choate reports. "The field (Boston University's Nickerson Field) is too small and real hard to get to. It's a shame because they have a good team."

"I see no reason for it (the USFL) not to go," he continues. "I know the guy here is making money."

The former Coahoma High standout says the Gold is drawing over 40,000 a game. "If we were 500, we'd be getting 75,000. The people here are really supporting us. We just lack a little talent to win every week."

The Gold, of course, is playing in a state where there is little going on professionally in the summer. There is no pro baseball (only minor league teams). Basketball and the Nuggets are through for the summer. That's leaves all media attention for the Gold.

Two former Dallas Cowboys had opinions about the USFL during recent visits to Big Spring. Roger Staubach said, had he been starting his career now, the choice would be difficult between the two leagues. Golden Richards thinks the league won't last with the best teams absorbed by the NFL as a sort of expansion.

The league owners are locked into an agreement to stick it out for three seasons. "These guys have the money. The 12 owners in the USFL have more cumulative wealth than all the owners of the NFL," Choate says.

The Gold linebacker, who played a year at Atlanta before injuries dropped him out of pro football for three years, says the USFL teams are being run as professionally as those in the NFL.

"You have coaches and administrators who are ex-professionals themselves. The owners hired people with football expertise. Our organization is run very professionally," he says.

The only ruffle in the feathers was the firing of Red Miller, a popular coach in the Rocky Mountain reaches. "He and the owner just didn't get along," Choate explains. "It was our first coaching change and we'll probably see another some time. He was pleasure to play for."

Craig Morton, the former Bronco quarterback and just as popular with the fans, has taken over. "He's different...not as hard-line, not the cheerleader type as Red was. His practices are a lot easier."

From a USFL player's standpoint, the new league is working out. Now all that's left is to sell the product to America. And, of course, get a team going good in Texas.

Oakmont duel ends in draw

Watson, Ballesteros take 212 lead into final round

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Defending champion Tom Watson and Seve Ballesteros of Spain, battling not only for the U.S. Open title but the leadership of world golf as well, fought each other to a draw Saturday and finished 54 holes of the 83rd American national championship in a tie for the lead.

U.S. Open

They will take their 212 totals, one stroke below par on the historic Oakmont Country Club course, into Sunday's final round. And, for the second day in a row, they'll be paired together.

Watson, seeking to become the first man to make a successful defense of his title since Ben Hogan in 1951, played his third round in a solid 70, one under par. Ballesteros, who won his second Masters crown two months ago in Augusta, Ga., managed a 69 in the humid, hazy weather.

But they are not alone in the struggle for the title that Watson insists is a necessary credential for golfing greatness and one that Ballesteros places on a slightly lower plane.

Within two strokes is a group that includes veteran Ray Floyd, the current PGA title-holder, Calvin Peete, the man who could become the first black to win any of the game's majors, and Larry Nelson, a former PGA champ who had given no hint he was ready to uncork an 8-birdie round of 65.

Nelson, 92nd on the season's money-winning list, one-putted nine times on the fearsome Oakmont greens, and vaulted past 22 players to within one shot of the lead at 213.

Also at that figure was Peete, the man who has led the PGA Tour in driving accuracy for three seasons. He converted his specialty — and some surprising putting — into a round of 70.

Peete was one of 38 players stranded on the course by darkness Friday. He had to return to the course at 7 a.m. Saturday to play one hole, and bogeyed it. Some 12 hours later, he bogeyed it again, a lapse that kept him out of a share of the lead. Floyd shot a 72 and was only two away at 214. Dr. Gil Morgan, the non-practicing optometrist who won the first two tournaments of the tour season, was next at 215. He had a 70 that was all but overlooked by the Open record gallery of 38,046.

Andy North, a non-winner since he won this title in 1978, and Hal Sutton, the tour sophomore who won the Tournament Players Championship earlier this year, were at 216. North chopped his way out of the intimidating rough to a 72 and Sutton had a 73.

John Mahaffey and Joey Rasset, who shared the 36-hole lead, fell victim to varied disasters and dropped back in the pack. Rasset had a 78-219 and Mahaffey, who has twice before seen the Open slip from his grasp, was a shot higher at 79-220.

Jack Nicklaus, at age 43 still seeking a record fifth U.S. Open title, admitted he'll have to wait until next year after a frustrating and, he said, puzzling round of 77 that left him at 224.

But both he and Arnold Palmer, the man Nicklaus beat in a playoff for the 1962 Open title, received warm, standing ovations from the huge crowd around the 18th green. Palmer shot a 78 and was at 227.

At one time or another Saturday Mahaffey, Rasset, Watson, Ballesteros, Floyd and Peete all led or shared the lead.

Mahaffey and Rasset fell away quickly. Floyd bogeyed two in a row and didn't again get his numbers in the red.

It came down to the last few holes as a battle between three men of enormously different backgrounds.

There was Watson, golf's Player of the Year for five of the past six seasons, four times a British Open champion, a Stanford graduate in psychology.

There was Ballesteros, son of a Spanish peasant, now twice a Masters winner, a former British Open title-holder, winner of three world-wide crowns this season and seeking the second leg of the unaccomplished Grand Slam of Golf.

And there was Peete, one of 19 children, the most successful black player the game has known. He didn't take up golf until his mid-20s, after a career as a peddler to migrant farm workers.

Peete was playing in front of the other two. He grabbed a share of the lead when he pitched to within two feet of the flag on the 17th and made birdie.

AGONY AT OAKMONT — Severiano Ballesteros reacts after missing a birdie putt on the 12th green of the Oakmont Country Club in Oakmont, Calif., Saturday. Ballesteros tied for the lead with Tom Watson.

Women's basketball dynasty fights to survive

SPORTS EDITOR'S NOTE — For 30 years a tiny Texas college ruled women's basketball, beating everyone in sight and once winning 131 consecutive games. It was an unlikely dynasty, torpedoed in recent years by bigger schools and even bigger money. But don't count out the amazing Flying Queens of Wayland Baptist University.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — Four years ago, in an article entitled "God Save the Queens," Texas Monthly suggested that an era was ending for the powerhouse of women's collegiate basketball.

Tiny Wayland Baptist College had just lost for the first time ever to the University of Texas, which was only about 40 times bigger.

"We're going to hold on as long as we can," said Dean Weese, then coach of Wayland's Flying Queens, the winningest team in women's basketball.

"But we know the day is coming when we won't be able to play with the big schools. They have the money, and we don't."

That day has arrived.

Dave Ketterman is grumbling and fumbling with the phone in his office on the campus of Wayland Baptist, a private university of 1,600 students on the southern edge of the Texas Panhandle.

"This is the worst time of year to schedule basketball games," said Ketterman, 30, who arrived last month to coach the Flying Queens, a team with an 845-164 record and a legacy that does not include a single losing season.

He had been summoned from Stephen F. Austin University to guide the Queens into a less glamorous but perhaps more challenging role than ever before.

"Everybody's out fishing or playing golf," explained Ketterman said of his scheduling difficulties.

Actually, scheduling is probably the least of his team's problems. The Queens have a history of flying anywhere to play anybody, big or small, and the exposure has made Wayland Baptist one of the few nationally known schools in women's athletics.

Once the Wayland Harvest Queens, so named for a local grain mill, the team won wide recognition as the Hutcherson Flying Queens. The late Claude Hutcherson, a wealthy rancher, flew the women to out-of-town games in his private fleet of planes.

In the mid-1950s, the Flying Queens won 131 straight games before bowing to a semi-pro team called Nashville Business College in the semifinals of the 1958 Amateur Athletic Union tournament.

"It was a black day," recalled Coach Harley Redin, (See 'Queens' on page 3-B)

Gymnasts roll to prizes in San Marcos

Team takes honors at Y state meet

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Five Big Spring gymnasts won medals and ribbons at the YMCA state gymnastics meet in San Marcos. And that's just the tip of the iceberg for the up-and-coming local gym program.

Competing at the state level for only the second year, Big Spring collected three third place medals and five overall honors at the meet.

The winners were: Ginger Brooks, third in both the vault and beam in the Class III 12-14 age division; Cheri Wyrick, third in the vault in the Class IV 12-14 age bracket; Sherri Marlow, fourth in vault in the Class IV 12-14 age division; Erin Roberts, sixth in bars in the Class IV age eight and under; and Kendra Carey, sixth in the Class IV eight and under vault.

The five beginning gymnasts are part of a team that has grown to 25 members. Coach Russ McEwen says class enrollment is approaching 50 students and scheduling problems are something he'll be happy to face.

Big Spring is competing at the Class III and IV levels which are designed for beginning students. McEwen and Jan Harris have had the Y program going year-round for two years and foresee a climb in skill level when their newcomers get more experience. The Y recently purchased floor mats and more gym equipment.

The team and classes now have all the equipment — vault, uneven bars, etc. — necessary to hold meets of their own. "Our goal is go to a meet once a month," McEwen says, "and try to have four or five meets here now that we have full equipment."

Twins pound Rangers 8-4

ARLINGTON (AP) — Minnesota shortstop Ron Washington took advantage of one of his rare starting opportunities Saturday night in spectacular fashion. Washington drove a Mike Smithson fastball over the rightfield fence with two runners aboard to cap a five-run, fourth inning and give the Twins an 8-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

American League

It was just Washington's second homer of the season and was an opposite field shot away from his power. "I'm feeling real good about things right now, getting a chance to get back in here," Washington said. "I hit the ball hard. I was just trying to make good contact. Usually, when you are out of the lineup for awhile, your depth perception is off but I'm very comfortable." Asked about not being the starter, he said "Anyone would be disappointed about not starting. I'm a competitor. I want to play but I don't make out the lineup card."

A's 3, White Sox 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Carney Lansford, Wayne Gross and Dwayne Murphy each drove in a run to back the four-hit pitching of Chris Codiroli, leading the Oakland A's to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Codiroli, 5-6, gave up a run in the first inning on singles by Julio Cruz and Jerry Hairston and a sacrifice fly by Greg Luzinski, and then blanked the White Sox the rest of the way to post his third complete game of the season.

Codiroli walked two and struck out four in winning his first game since May 17. Floyd Bannister, 2-8, was the losing pitcher.

Angels 7, Blue Jays 6

TORONTO (AP) — Reggie Jackson, who earlier made a spectacular catch, clouted a dramatic three-run homer off rookie relief pitcher Stan Clarke in the top of the ninth on an 0-2 pitch to rally the California Angels to a 7-6 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Saturday.

Red Sox 3, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE (A) — John Tudor tossed a five-hitter and Tony Armas' bases-loaded sacrifice fly capped Boston's two-run rally in the eighth inning as the Red Sox defeated Baltimore 3-2 Saturday night, handing the Orioles their third straight loss.

Royals 6, Mariners 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Cesar Geronimo's two-out single in the ninth inning, his fourth hit of the game, drove in Leon Roberts with the winning run and lifted the Kansas City Royals to a 6-5 victory Saturday night over the Seattle Mariners.

Yankees 5, Brewers 4

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Winfield drove in his third run of the game with a sacrifice fly, capping New York's three-run ninth inning and giving the Yankees their fourth straight victory, a 5-4 triumph Saturday night over the Milwaukee Brewers.

George Frazier, 2-1, pitched two-thirds of an inning in relief of Jay Howell for the victory.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Terry Kennedy lined a two-out single to score Tim Flannery in the 11th inning as the San Diego Padres defeated the Houston Astros 2-1 Saturday night to make left-hander Dave Dravecky the National League's first 10-game winner.

Dravecky, 10-4, recorded his seventh complete game of the year, giving up six hits, striking out four and walking none.

Cubs 10, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Buckner headed a 20-hit attack with a home run, double and two singles and Steve Trout spun a four-hitter, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 10-1 shellacking of the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

Trout, 6-6, pitched his first complete game of the season. Pinch hitter Floyd Rayford's first National League homer broke Trout's shutout in the ninth inning. Rayford hit three homers for Baltimore earlier this season.

Ron Cey also had four hits for Chicago and Mel Hall and Steve Lake had three apiece as the Cubs shelled four St. Louis pitchers.

Buckner victimized Joaquin Andujar, 3-9, with his third homer of the year in the first inning for a 1-0 lead.

Reds 3, Dodgers 2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Price scattered seven hits in 7 2-3 innings and Dann Bilardello, Gary Redus and Dave Concepcion drove in runs in the seventh inning to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

Price, 5-4, was lifted in the eighth inning after surrendering a bloop RBI single to Dusty Baker. Bill Scherrer pitched the final 1 1-3 innings for his fifth save.

Fernando Valenzuela, 8-3, who had won five successive decisions including a 5-1 victory Monday over Price and the Reds, was the loser.

Mets 6, Expos 1

MONTREAL (AP) — George Foster's two-run single highlighted a five-run outburst in the seventh inning that carried the New York Mets to a 6-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday night.

The Mets had been held to one hit by Montreal starter Bill Gullickson, 6-8, before sending 10 batters to the plate in the seventh. They scored all their runs with two outs.

Phillies 6, Pirates 4

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gary Matthews drove in two runs with a home run and a double and Pete Rose returned to the starting lineup to spark two rallies as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 Saturday night.

Rose, who did not start Philadelphia's last eight games, doubled with one out in the first inning and scored on a single by Von Hayes.

The Phillies added three runs in the second off starter Rick Rhoden, 3-7. Ozzie Virgil singled and scored on Ivan DeJesus' double.

Foster sets meet record

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Greg Foster, the world's top-ranked 110-meter hurdler, outclassed a strong field in winning the event Saturday night in the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships in a meet record 13.15 seconds.

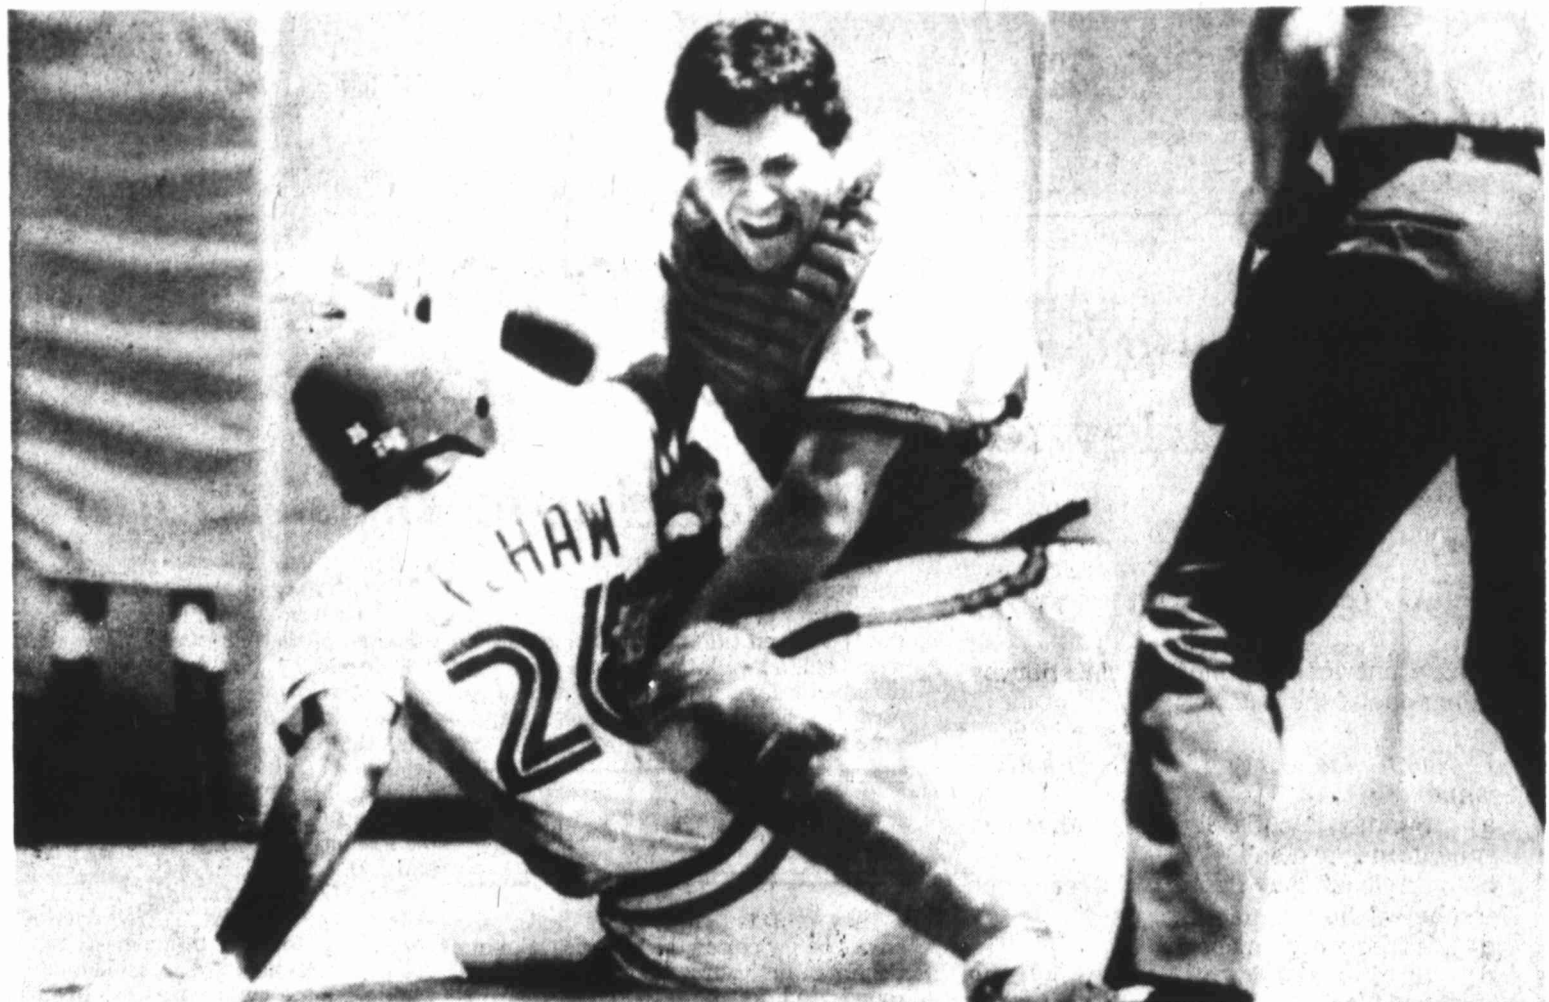

Foster, capturing his second national championship in three years and leading the hurdles qualifiers for the American team that will compete in the World Championships at Helsinki, Finland in August, broke out of the blocks quickly and led all the way. He finished far ahead of runner-up Sam Turner, clocked in 13.48. Willie Gault was third in 13.55. Foster's winning time broke the meet record of 13.19 set by Renaldo Nehemiah in 1979.

Honeycutt can't believe turnaround

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Rick Honeycutt story has all the trappings of a made-for-TV movie.

The scenario would be something like this: Take a down-and-out lefthander for the Texas Rangers and brand him with a 5-17 record with a 5.26 earned run average on a team that lost 98 games.

Then, in true Horatio Alger style, a year later turn him into one of the hottest pitchers in the American League. Give him a 1.49 ERA, best in the American Leagues, and a 9-3 record.

Also, put the Rangers near the top of the AL West, just a game and a half behind California.

Action, camera, cut, print. It's a take. "Yeah, it is kind of hard to believe the turnaround," Honeycutt said after limiting Minnesota to just five hits in a 10-1 victory Friday night. "I have plenty of incentive every time I pitch."

"All I have to do is remember last year."

Honeycutt lost his sinker last year and swings by opposition batters were producing long fly balls instead of grounders.

He worked hard in the Florida Instructional League in the off-season with Ranger pitching instructor Dick Such.

Such and Honeycutt rediscovered the sinker through a few technical errors that Honeycutt was making.

"Sometimes I pick up the paper and see the statistics and can't believe it's happening," Honeycutt said.

Honeycutt becomes a free agent at the end of the season and suddenly the Ranger front office is scrambling to try to sign him, since only Toronto's Dave Stieb (10 wins) has more victories.

"I hope they sign him," said Ranger Manager Doug Rader. "I can't imagine our team without him."

Honeycutt is demanding a contract in the neighborhood of $500,000 per season but added "money is no longer a factor."

Local tennis camp set in July

The annual summer tennis camp is scheduled in two sessions Big Spring High coach Alan Holliday has announced.

The camps are slated July 11-15 and again July 18-22 at the Figure Seven Tennis Center. Fee for the week-long session is $27. Registration begins Monday and runs through July 8.

Instruction will be given in fundamentals, emphasizing forehand and backhand groundstrokes and serving. A round-robin tournament will conclude each session.

To register, call Big Spring High at 263-7461 (ask for Mrs. Mathews) or go by the high school and fill out entry blank.

Y sets afternoon swim

The Big Spring YMCA is hosting a youth open swim daily from 2-3:30 p.m. A lifeguard will be on duty. Cost per child is 75 cents.

Pee-wees plan city tourney

A pee-wee baseball city championship tournament is in the works after the regular season ends June 11.

League champions from Big Spring will play in the tournament. Contact Zeke Munoz at 267-7124 or Joe Martinez at 263-8778 for more information.

Semi-pro teams play today

The Big Spring Cardinals and Oilers are in town this afternoon for a pair of doubleheaders.

The Cards battle the Odessa Astros at 1:30 p.m. at the Roy Anderson Complex. At the same time, the Oilers host the Seminole Indians, also at Anderson.

The Red Sox are on the road for two games against the Abilene Cardinals.

BSGA sets Louisiana Draw

The Big Spring Golf Association is hosting a Father's Day Louisiana Draw Sunday at the Comanche Trails Golf Course.

Entry is $5 plus BSGA membership. Entry deadline is 12:30 p.m. with play beginning at 1 p.m.

Cox, Hicks win golf tourney

Michelle Cox and Bryan Hicks were winners in a putting tournament held Friday at the Big Spring Country Club.

Michelle fired a 48 for first in the girl's division. Second place went to Tessa Underwood with a 59 while Jenny Watson was third with a 61.

Hicks had the low total of the day with a 44. He edged out Bobby Chrane (45) for second and Eric Atkins (46) for third.

The tournament wound up a week-long clinic conducted by pro Gary Hammer. A total of 13 youngsters, ages 8-13, learned the fundamentals of golf Hammer said.

who had inherited the Queens and a 55-game winning streak in 1955.

"If it had come in the middle of the season it might have been a relief. But we had won four national titles in a row and were going for a fifth.

"It was pretty hard to take." Redin retired in 1973 with a 431-66 record that included six national titles. He was succeeded by Dean Weese, who left after six years to coach the Dallas Diamonds in the professional ranks.

Next, in 1979, came the team's first female coach, Cathy Wilson, a successful Texas high school coach and a former Flying Queen herself. She stepped down this year with an 80-50 career record.

The one constant, besides winning, was the Hutcherson family sponsorship of air transportation. That remains unchanged today.

What has changed in recent years is the upgraded level of competition, traceable largely to a federal law known as Title IX. In effect, Title IX requires colleges and universities to spend equally on men's and women's sports.

"No longer," said Ketterman, "are we the only game in town."

Major schools which once spurned women's sports are now out recruiting female athletes not only for basketball but sports such as volleyball and gymnastics as well.

"The major universities run their athletic programs like businesses," said Ketterman. "If they're going to put money in them, they want them to be competitive, to be the best. That is the trend today."

With limited funds for scholarships, let alone scouting and recruiting, such schools as Wayland can not compete at the highest national level, now the NCAA.

The Queens' roster routinely is loaded with West Texans, including the current star, Gay Hemhill of Plainview. But reputation and Christian camaraderie go only so far, and more and more prospects are being lured off by larger schools.

"Our budget is miniscule compared to the University of Texas, for instance," said sports information director Eddie Owens. "Theirs is probably in excess of $1 million and ours is about $30,000 to $35,000."

Texas beat the Flying Queens twice last year but UT is still the only Southwest Conference team to have a winning record against the Plainview school.

The Queens are 3-0 against SMU, 3-1 against Houston, 18-3 against Texas Tech, 11-4 against Baylor and 1-0 against Arkansas.

For more than 20 years they dominated the Amateur Athletic Union, winning 10 national AAU titles and 10 trophies as runners-up. The AAU consisted mostly of semipro teams with a sprinkling of colleges and universities.

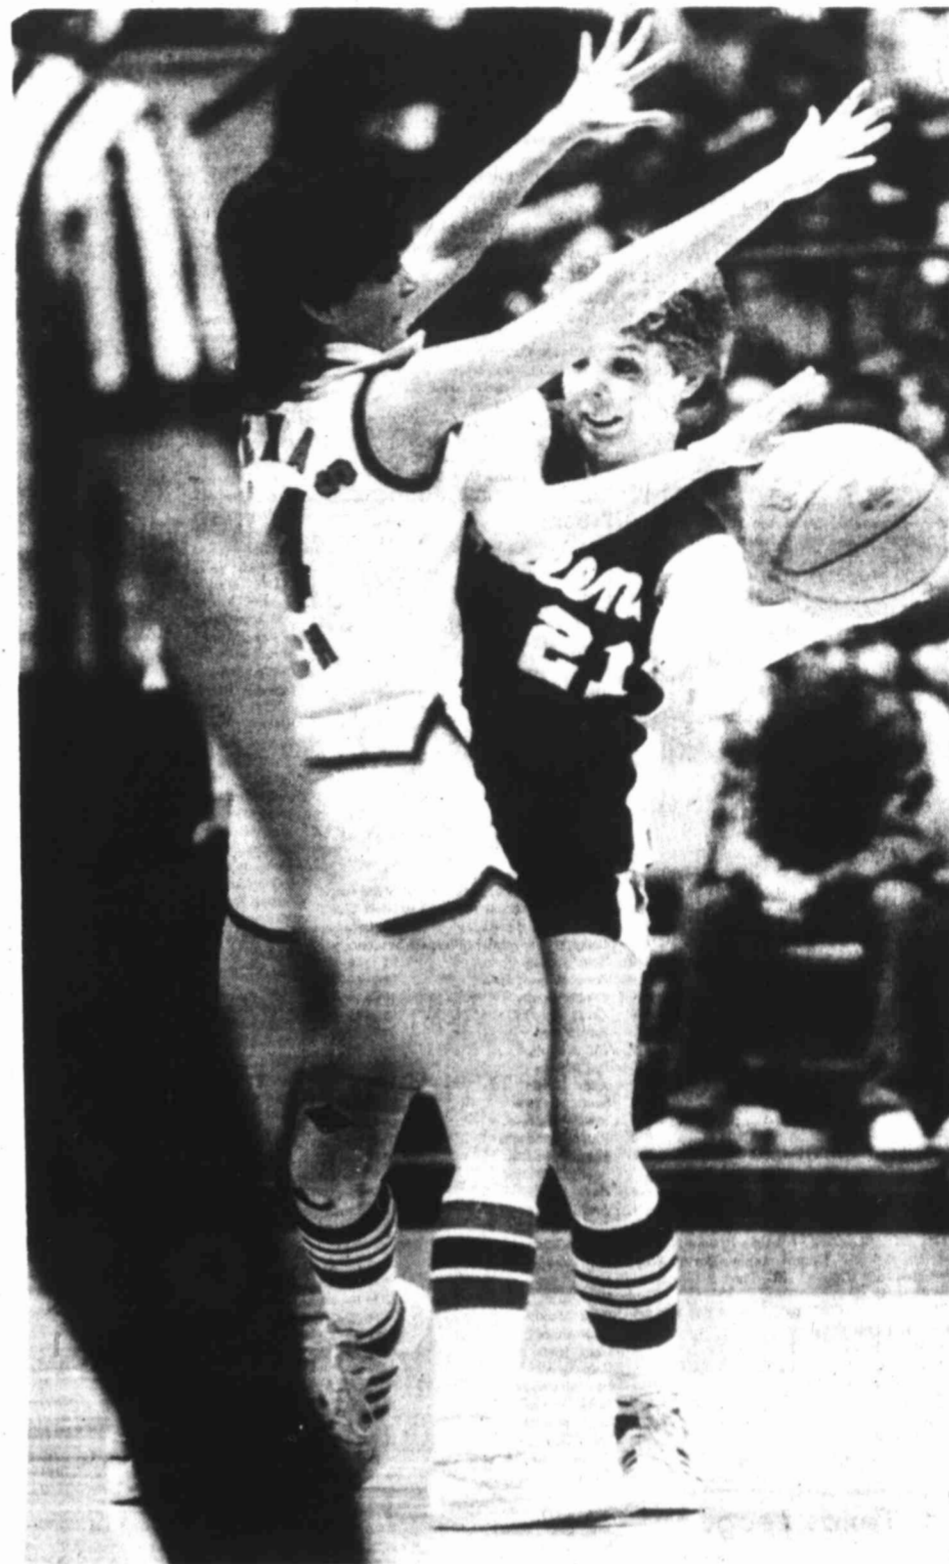

Six times in nine years of competition, the Queens also won a place among the top eight teams in the AIAW, a now defunct association strictly for female athletes.

During that era, tiny Immaculata (Pa.) and Delta State of Mississippi each won three national titles in a row.

When the AIAW disbanded last year, most of the major schools joined the NCAA and the others the NAIA, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Aside from pride and tradition, Wayland had precious few incentives to join the NCAA. Its finances and sports program were hardly major league and the Queens would be little more than minnows in a pond full of sharks.

Finally, and painfully, the school chose membership in the NAIA, composed of the smaller, less prestigious colleges and universities.

Queen in action

Said Owens:

"Now we've got to face the fact that while we pioneered women's basketball into a major college sport, something we can take great pride in... there are a whole lot of women's basketball teams at the major schools that are better than we are.

"We have to be content with retaining our powerhouse status on a smaller college level. And I think we can do that, though it's going to be a lot harder than in the past.

"I think we won a lot of games the last four or five years we shouldn't have won, simply because we were the Flying Queens."

Both he and Ketterman seem convinced that tradition will continue for years to come.

"Our girls realize they're part of something that has been very special, and they want to keep it that way," said Owens.

"A lot of people feel we might have made a step down, but we look at it as a realistic step forward."

Will Martin be fired?

Incident with reporter sparks rumors

NEW YORK (AP) — The thread by which Billy Martin hung to his job as manager of the New York Yankees Saturday was stretched even thinner when club owner George Steinbrenner issued an angry statement about the latest in a succession of controversial incidents involving the Yankee skipper.

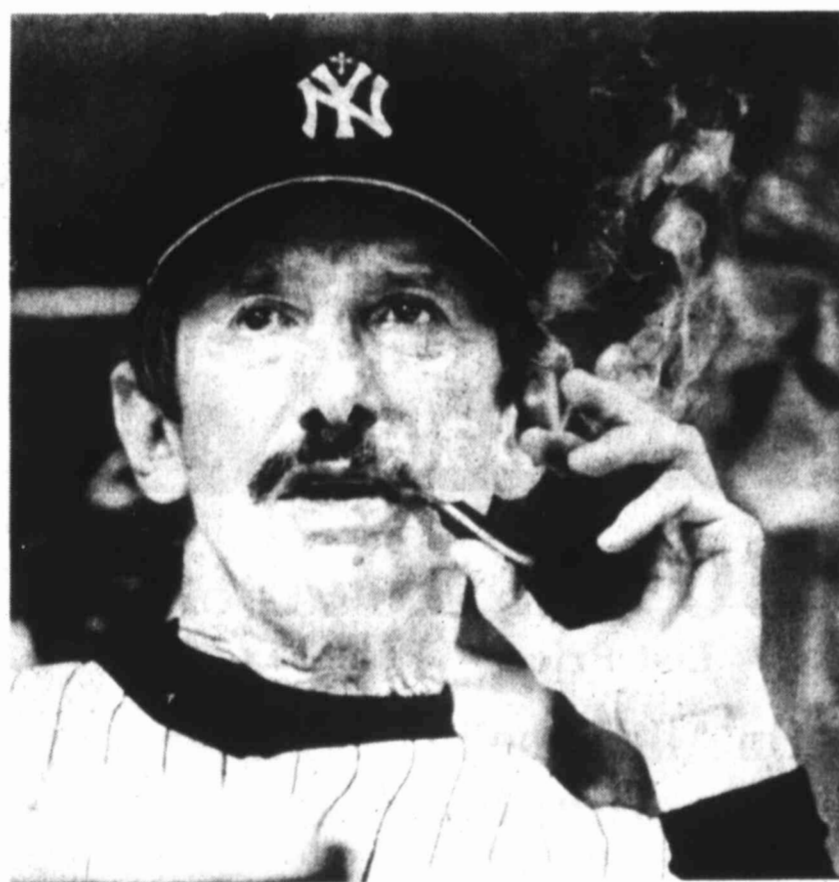

Steinbrenner, through Yankee publicist Ken Nigro, told reporters that Martin had talked to him, "but by no means is everything OK. It's not going to be OK until we get to the bottom of it."

On Friday, a source close to the club told the Associated Press that Martin's third tenure as Yankee manager was coming to a close. On Saturday, a club insider, who asked not to be identified, said it was a good bet that Martin would lose his job by Monday.

The latest ruckus involving Martin started Friday afternoon when Steinbrenner demoted pitching coach and long-time Martin friend, Art Fowler, to the team's Triple A club in Columbus. By several accounts, Martin was angered by the decision and later blew up at a New York Times reporter, Deborah Henschel, who was doing a survey on the All-Star game.

While sentiment in the front office had turned against Martin, the fans who came to Yankee Stadium for Saturday night's game against Milwaukee remained behind the Yankee skipper.

Martin trotted onto the field in the first inning to help trainer Gene Monohan assess a minor injury to rightfielder Steve Kemp, who remained in the game. When Martin left the field, he returned to the dugout to a standing ovation, acknowledging the show of support by touching the brim of his cap.

Although Martin denied that he shouted obscenities at the woman, Steinbrenner said he had been contacted by the American League and that its president, Lee MacPhail, was investigating the charge. "Billy denied the obscenities," Steinbrenner said. "The front office is concerned. The American League is investigating, and we also are looking into it. The charges are serious if true.

"We will continue to cooperate with the league in this investigation.

Martin denied the report of his verbal abuse of the reporter and gave his own version of the incident.

"She came in the clubhouse, she walked in uninvited and not dressed very nicely," Martin said. "She sprawled out over a chair and said she was doing a survey. I said you don't do a survey until I give you permission."

Martin said he told her to leave the clubhouse. "She was sprawled out there like a hussy," Martin said. "She didn't look very professional, I'll tell you that. I know I didn't say those things. I could take a lie detector test and prove I didn't say those things. I don't think she could."

Martin also dismissed rumors that he would be relieved as manager by Fowler's replacement, Jeff Torborg.

Howard Cosell reported on ABC Saturday that Torborg would replace Martin. "I can dismiss it (the report) because it is someone trying to get the first shot on everybody else," Martin said.

Torborg said he had heard the report that he would succeed Martin "but it has no credence in my way of thinking because we've had no conversations at all.

RETAINS TITLE - Defending champion Martina Navratilova keeps her eyes on the ball as she returns a shot from Australia's Wendy Turnbull during the final of the $150,000 BMW Grass Court Tennis Championships at Eastbourne Saturday. She defeated Turnbull 6-1, 6-1.

Bandits close to playoff berth

By The Associated Press
The Tampa Bandits can assure themselves of a playoff berth this weekend despite being going into Sunday's United States Football League game at Boston with their third-string quarterback, Mike Kelley, in a starting role.

Lauren Howe takes 2-stroke lead

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) - Lauren Howe fired a 4-under-par 68 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead into the final round of the LPGA $200,000 Lady Keystone Open.

Lady Keystone

set the tournament record for 54 holes at 13 under par in 1961. Howe scored six birdies but had trouble with two par-3 holes, picking up bogeys at 5 and 17.

Center Court again

McEnroe, Connors are Wimbledon favorites

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Jimmy Connors is 30, and John McEnroe's serving shoulder is suspect. But who's going to challenge them for a place in the men's singles final at Wimbledon?

When Connors begins the defense of his title on the Center Court of the All-England Club Monday, against Eddie Edwards, he will be a 5-to-4 favorite to win the championship for a third time.

The British bookies make McEnroe 6-4 to regain the title he won in 1981, before losing to Connors in the final a year ago.

Then there is a big gap before Ivan Lendl at 7-1, and nobody else is shorter than 25-1.

A repeat of last year's women's final is also predicted. The bookies make Martina Navratilova 4-6 odds-on favorite to retain her title, with Chris Evert Lloyd at 5-2.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be only with closest friends for amusement in the evening and don't spend too heavily. Your finances need shaping up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Plan how best to handle career duties and then go full speed ahead on your ideas. Apply yourself seriously.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Get more information on a newcomer before giving complete acceptance. This could save you a good deal of trouble later on.

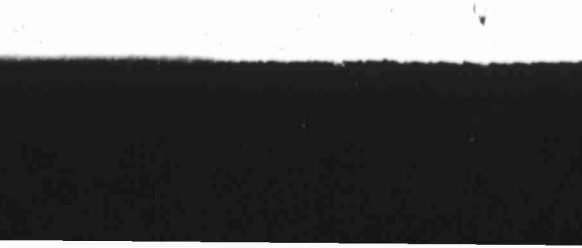

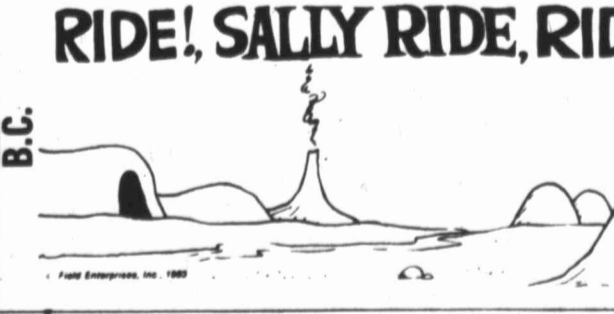

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will quickly discern the truth from the false in anything, so be sure to give a fine education that will help your progeny to make the most of this. Early teach not to acquire any prejudices. Make the home life harmonious.

See Cameo Energy Homes...

...before you decide to build or buy
 If you're a land owner considering building, or if you're looking at mobile homes, you need to see Cameo Energy Homes before you decide.
 Cameo site-delivered homes have 2" x 6" walls—50% thicker than most residential homes. They're stronger and better insulated with R-19 insulation instead of R-11 used in most conventional construction. In the roof, your Cameo will have an insulation factor of R-30—more than twice as efficient as the R-14 rating in conventional homes.
 Ford Sunglas® windows block out 24% of the sun's heat for additional energy efficiency. Air conditioning/heating ducts are energy efficient fiberglass. At the entrance, an insulated steel door with dead bolt security lock.
 Strong, energy efficient Cameo Energy Home construction from the floor up.
 See for yourself. Visit the factory or a Cameo retailer.

Baptist women still face tough battle for ordination

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When Bety McGary Pearce entered a Southern Baptist seminary more than two decades ago, she never considered studying to be a pastor. It was simply "unheard of" for women.

Ms. Pearce, 47, who studied education, now says she would have studied theology, which women have been able to do since the mid-1960s. But access to pastoral training has not enabled women to make much headway in seeking ordination in the Southern Baptist Convention.

"The conservative heritage of Baptist churches makes it hard for the local churches to ordain women," said Gene Puckett, editor of the Biblical Recorder, a church publication in North Carolina, where the first Southern Baptist woman was ordained in 1964.

Since then, 200 women have followed and comprise about 0.5 percent of the ordained ministers in the denomination, though 18 percent of Southern Baptist seminarians are female.

And when women are ordained, it is "in most instances with opposition from other Baptist organizations," said Puckett, one of some 14,000 Southern Baptists in Pittsburgh last week for the denomination's 126th annual meeting.

During the week, 75 Southern Baptist women formed Women in Ministry to encourage and support women seeking ordination. Ms. Pearce and Reba Sloan Cobb, who both have lay ministries in Louisville, Ky., presented the first edition of Folio, a quarterly publication they are editing for women ministers.

"We have a calling and we intend to live out our calling," said Ms. Cobb, 40. "There are no barriers from birth through the seminary. You get extra strong affirmation."

"Until you seek a position in the ministry," added Ms. Pearce.

Ms. Cobb said 50 percent of the women trained as ministers do not find jobs with congregations. "To me that's sad. We have lost gifted women to other denominations," she said.

Debra Griffiths Woodberry, a lay minister for youth in Raleigh, N.C., told a meeting of women they lack role models and must change the image of ministers as men.

Her job, she said, "is OK for right now, but I have sermons I want to preach and pastoral skills I want to develop." She has a "nightmare of playing kickball with the grandchildren of those with whom I am now playing."

Among the obstacles women face is the autonomy of local churches, which can ordain anyone they choose. That is a power they guard closely, and some fear a convention statement on ordination of women would jeopardize that authority.

While there is no organized opposition to the ordination of women, conservative SBC leaders oppose it. "I believe women should teach, but I do not believe the Bible provides for ordination of women," said Charles Stanley, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Atlanta, and president of the SBC Pastors Conference.

"In the long run, it's not going to be good for women to be ordained, exercising power over men," he said. "Women have held virtually every position of responsibility except pastor. It's just that there is no biblical example of any according to my interpretation," said the Rev. James Draper, president of the SBC and a conservative minister from Eules, Texas.

March of Dimes telethon to have local phone bank

"Let Freedom Ring for America's Babies" is the theme of the 25th Anniversary of the March of Dimes fight against birth defects.

A national telethon, scheduled to air during Independence Day celebrations July 3-4, will raise funds for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation whose research has produced significant results in the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of birth defects, America's No. 1 child health problem.

The March of Dimes telethon's national chairman, Hal Linden, star of "Barney Miller," will host this first national telethon which will originate in Hollywood. Appearing with Linden will be co-hosts Gary Collins, Mary Ann Mobley and Sarah Purcell.

The telethon will feature Beverly Sills, March of Dimes National Mothers March Chairman, George Burns and Gregory Peck, both past recipients of the March of Dimes Jack Benny Memorial Award, and Arnold Palmer, honorary national chairman of the March of Dimes. Fifteen minutes of each of the telethon's 21 hours will be broadcast live from the local participating stations in each market throughout the country.

In Big Spring, the telethon will be carried by KTPX-KWAB TV and hosted by TV personalities Carl Rogers and Rick Wells. The 21-hour telethon will be aired July 3 from 8 p.m. to 5 p.m. July 4.

Darlene Gifford, a Southwestern Bell community relations manager in Big Spring and the local drive's publicity director, said the local drive will take place at the Southwestern Bell building at 200 East

Let Freedom Ring for America's Babies!

8th. She said 10 telephone lines will be installed to handle the pledge calls.

The local telethon will be manned entirely by Southwestern Bell active and retired employees and family members as a part of that company's community relations program. Buford Durst, a local Southwestern Bell supervisor, will serve as the city's drive chairman. Dorene Zilberg is the executive director of the March of Dimes Caprock Chapter.

The participating stations are working closely with each local chapter of the March of Dimes. Individual chapters across the country are developing ties with community, civic, youth and patriotic organizations as well as business and industry groups to ensure that the community has access to the telethon. The telethon has been hailed by March of Dimes President Charles L. Massey as a "dramatic new effort to deliver our message to the American people who have supported our efforts so generously throughout our history."

Food stamp fraud queen arrested by FBI after search

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 35-year-old female fugitive identified as the "Queen Bee" of a $250,000 Florida food stamp fraud ring was arrested by the FBI while being held by local police on a forgery charge.

Dorothy Parrish had been a fugitive since September 1981, when she disappeared after a sympathetic Miami judge released her from jail on her own recognizance. She was nine months pregnant at the time.

She failed to appear for a Sept. 17, 1981 trial in Miami on charges stemming from the food stamp fraud scheme, FBI spokesman Cliff Anderson said. Ms. Parrish was arrested Friday.

A co-defendant, Joseph Henry Brown, also failed to appear for trial but was subsequently arrested in Texas, Anderson said.

"They got her. They finally got her," said Ira Loewy, the Dade County, Fla., assistant state attorney who was prosecuting her when she disappeared.

Ms. Parrish, under the name of Connie Adams, was arrested by St. Tammany Parish, La., sheriff's deputies for forgery in an alleged scam involving government checks late last month. She was later identified as Ms. Parrish through fingerprints.

Anderson said "an abundance" of false identity documents were also seized at the time of her arrest.

Ms. Parrish was accused in 1979 of fraudulently receiving at least $22,000 in food stamps through an elaborate scheme using the names of non-existent people.

Masquerading as a nurse, she would go to local food stamp offices and pick up stamps for fictitious poor people she claimed were homebound, authorities said.

It's standing-room-only for Hollywood's big flop

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Heaven's Gate," the biggest flop in motion picture history, is a box-office smash at the Library of Congress.

Not that there's much consolation in that for the film's backers. Admission is free at the library's tiny theater. But it was still SRO for the first public showings of the movie in more than two years, and many were turned away in their attempt to see just how bad a $45 million failure could be.

They came to see a picture that led to the sale of the studio that produced it and virtually stopped director Michael Cimino's career in its tracks, just a year after he won an Academy Award.

"I didn't think there would be nearly this reaction," said library film programmer Scott Simmon after he was barraged with phone calls and by scores of people who awaited his arrival at the office Thursday morning, the first day of the two-day run.

"I think they should re-release the thing," he said. United Artists pulled the picture in 1981 after it first tried cutting the 3-hour, 45-minute bomb by an hour.

The story of range wars in Wyoming in the 1890s, "Heaven's Gate" was derided by The New York Times as "an unqualified disaster" after its first showing in 1980.

That opinion was almost universally shared by other critics, one of whom said the movie might be more understandable to American audiences if it was dubbed into Russian and shown without subtitles.

It was originally supposed to cost $11.8 million, but Cimino's penchant for detail and perfection shot the costs up to $36 million, and advertising and other costs added as much as $10 million to that.

United Artists chairman and chief executive officer Andy Albeck took and early retirement in the wake of the debacle. Then filmgoers stayed away from the two-hour version, too, and Transamerica Corp. sold UA to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer soon after that.

The longer version, the one the Library showed Thursday and Friday, passed into film lore as Hollywood's biggest failure, an oddity that brought down a studio and iced the career of the hot, young director of "The Deer Hunter." He was recently fired from the only picture he had worked on since "Heaven's Gate."

The Library's film theater, devoted to the obscure and little seen classics of movie history, seats just 64 people, so most of the curiosity buffs were turned away.

"It's so infamous I guess everybody wants it for their cocktail chatter," said Simmon.

The audiences at the Library screenings watched in respectful silence, but many said the picture really is, well, awful.

"I wanted to see the whole thing," said Kim Weston, who came from Baltimore. "But the whole thing is pretty bad."

"I can't imagine what he was trying to do," said Elliott Caldwell, of Alexandria, Va.

Hoyle Nix's fiddlin' spans decades

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Hoyle Nix never dreamed he'd be a well-known musician. As a child, he learned to play the fiddle when he was six and says he was accomplished on the instrument at age 12 as he is now.

"I picked it up from my Daddy. He was a great-fiddle player," Nix said. "Of course, I didn't know as many tunes then." Most songs he learned while entertaining at dances. People requested them.

Before Nix entered the music business, he farmed. Rodeoing was his favorite sport, and as a young man he roped calves. "My idol in the rodeo business was the finest fellow I ever knew — Toots Mansfield, as a man and a calf roper," he said.

Cotton prices dropped and times became difficult for farmers in the 1940s. Nix needed a second income.

He decided to form a western swing band known as "Hoyle Nix and his West Texas Cowboys." The band's

The people is what made me, because if they haven't followed me like they did, I never could have made it.

first performance was at Yell's Inn, a club owned by Elliott Yell, Nov. 11, 1946. Six men formed the original group and since then Nix has kept the number at five or six members.

Today Nix lists his occupation as "farmer and musician combined." He farms six miles northeast of Big Spring and has grassland in Baird where he runs cattle. His band plays an average of 4 nights a week in Big Spring and on the road.

Nix and his members play by ear. "The boys in the band don't read (music), but they can sure play," he said. Nix is unable to read music too. However, he composed "Big Ball In Cowtown," as well as many other tunes. "It just came to me," he said.

Some of his other songs are "Coming Down From Denver," "River Bottom," "Coming Down the Pecos," "Lady in Red," "Nix's Fox Trot," "She's Really Gone," "Heifer In the New Ground."

Unlike most bands, the Cowboys play two to three hours before taking a break. They play more songs in three hours time than most bands because most bands take frequent breaks, he said.

Nix and his Cowboys played at American Legion Halls, Veterans of Foreign Wars Halls and Coliseums at engagements throughout Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and New Mexico. They also play at their home club, The Stampede, built in 1954.

WESTERN SWING IS NIX'S favorite music. Beginning in 1928, he grew up listening to Bob Wills "like others grew up on Elvis Presley or Willie Nelson," he said. "We only play western swing music. Rock and Roll was too deep for me. I couldn't understand it."

Wills influenced Nix's life greatly and Nix patterned his music after the renown performer. "I met Bob Wills in 1952," he said. Wills' band and Nix's band were performing at the same dance. "We saw him play."

After Wills performance, Nix asked him if he would like to be booked at the Stampede. Wills agreed and asked to tour with the West Texas Cowboys on their circuit.

Since then, a long friendship existed between the two men and their bands. Some of the Bob Wills' Texas Playboys worked with the West Texas Cowboys for a few years in the late-50s and early 60s.

Nix worked with Wills on Wills' last album in Dec. 1973 entitled "Bob Wills and the Texas Playboys — For the Last Time." Nix performed four numbers on the album, singing and playing the fiddle. His youngest son, Jody, performed three numbers, singing and playing the drums. Nix also did Wills' hollering on the album due to Wills' paralysis.

The Cowboys play annually at the Bob Wills Memorial Day dance at Turkey, Texas, held the last Saturday in April. Some members of the Texas Playboys join the band on these occasions.

"My son Jody and I have the fiddle that Bob Wills started his career on with the "Light Crust Dough Boys" in 1928," he said. "We got the fiddle in 1965 from Bob himself."

For 15 years, Nix kept after Wills to let him have his fiddle. Finally Wills decided to give it to him. Nix plays it occasionally. He doesn't play it too often at night clubs because he is afraid it will get broken. "Those are good places to get something busted," he said with a chuckle. Jody will ultimately inherit the instrument. Nix also owns Wills' last touring bus.

THE COWBOYS HAVE WORKED with many of the country-western and western swing greats during their 37 years of existence. In addition to Wills, they've performed with Johnnie Lee Wills, Wills' brother; Earnest Tubbs; Marty Robbins; Charlie Walker; Barbara Mandrell; Barbara Fairchild and many more.

Nix's band would play before and/or after the entertainer's band. When they worked with Barbara Fairchild, her band didn't show up and the Cowboys enlisted to back her during the show.

Many members of Nix's family have joined him in his band.

His oldest son, Larry Nix, got started in the band when he was 17 years old. Now he's 43. Larry plays the fiddle, bass, drums and sings.

Jody is lead singer, drummer and left-handed fiddle player. He was named after another left-handed fiddle player, Joe Holley, a member of Wills' band. Nix was tickled when he discovered his son also was a left-handed fiddle player. "There's not many left-handed fiddle players in the world," Nix said.

Jody has been in the band 23 years. He started out on the drums when he was eight.

Ben Nix was with the band 31 years, playing the rhythm guitar and singing. He has his own band now.

Nix's two daughters, Hoylene and Robin, also are musically inclined. Hoylene has worked with the band occasionally. Robin never has.

"Joy Marie (his wife) has been a great help to me," Nix said. "She keeps up with all the dates, when I'm supposed to be out on time, makes sure I don't miss them. She helps me on the farm...and besides that she's a pretty good cook." Joy occasionally travels with the band to its major engagements.

Others who have been a part of the West Texas Cowboys include Gene Thomas of Tulsa, Okla. He has been with the band about 10 years, playing the standard guitar.

Tommy Harvell has been with the band most of the 37 years the band has been in business. He plays the steel guitar.

Ireland McCormick substitutes for band members when they can't be at a performance. He has helped for 15 years. Others who have played with the band are John Minnick for nine years, Lance Walker for about five years, both bass players, Charlie Shiffitt for about seven years as a substitute bass player, and Dr. Loran

Warren for 16 years as pianist.

IF NIX HAD HIS LIFE to live over again, he said, "I'd of played more instead of working so hard on the farm. I would have started earlier in life in the band business."

His club, The Stampede, is a family place. Being the moralistic person that he is, Nix did not want a club where alcohol was served. "We never have, don't intend to and never will (serve alcohol)," he said. "We do this so the younger folks can come." The Stampede serves set ups, soft drinks and chips.

He doesn't believe in drinking and strongly discourages his band members from alcohol or drug usage. As he sits back in his chair with his eyes closed and thinking about the band and other performers, he recounts how many other performers' careers were cut short due to alcohol and drug involvement.

Recently Nix was excited because his business served five generations at one time when some children came to dance with their family. Nix begins charging admission at 10 years old. Many parents enjoy going to The Stampede because they can bring their children to the club and not need to hire a sitter.

When Nix steps down from his band and business, Jody will take over. "If he pleases the people like I did, he'll make his way. I'm going to play as long as I'm physically able to play and keep the band," he said. Nix doesn't have as easy a time walking around now due to arthritis in his hips.

"I want to thank all the people who have followed me all these years at my dances. And as long as they keep coming, I'll keep playing for them," he said.

"I've never had a booking agent and never wanted for work," Nix said, owing his success to his followers. "The people is what made me, because if they haven't followed me like they did, I never could have made it. They're the ones that keeps you going."

Ms. Nobles owns the Giddings 4-F Restaurant in San Angelo, a historical landmark. She is on the pageant's board of directors, is a renown horsewoman from a prominent ranching background, and is active in promoting rodeo activities in the West Texas area.

CONTESTANTS are judged on appearance, personality, and horsemanship. They will be put through modeling, interviews and horsemanship judging, Monday through Wednesday. The winners will represent Big Spring and help promote the rodeo sport.

The contestants also will be presented each night during the rodeo. A coronation will be held prior to Friday's rodeo performance at the rodeo bowl. Miss Rodeo Texas and Miss Rodeo Texas Teen will crown the pageant winners.

The winner of Miss Rodeo Big Spring Pageant will go on to compete in the Miss Rodeo Texas pageant, to be held in March at San Antonio. The winner of the Miss Rodeo Texas pageant will compete in the Miss Rodeo America pageant.

Songwriter gives kids positive views on life

By JOY STILLLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "What I'm trying to do is give kids a positive outlook on life through music," says Stephen Star, whose records deal with such subjects as prejudice, drug abuse and peer pressure. "But I'm not lecturing at all. They're really fun albums," he adds of the two — one rock and one country — he has already produced in the Rainbows and Stars series, with a third album in the works.

The songs, aimed at youngsters from 4 to 14, are sung by professionals with band backup. The kids enjoy humming along with the music and absorb the message without realizing it, he explains, pointing out, for example, that the word "prejudice" is never even mentioned in a song which says, in part: "I know I'm different by myself; I don't need to hear it from somebody else; I spend my time all alone; Why do those people need to throw stones?"

Among the themes of the 20 songs already recorded, for which Star has written the music and the lyrics, are friendship, feelings, discovery, patriotism, respect, happiness, studying and self-esteem. The music, he says, is "the kind children want to hear, and the lyrics are the kind they need to hear and their parents want them to hear."

"No one is really addressing kids," the bearded, 30-year-old resident of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., said in an interview. "They need to know about their own worth, to feel good about themselves. I want kids to know there's reality in life but that they can also follow their dreams."

"I've found music is a universal language," says Star, who has been playing drums and singing since he was 12. "When I was in the Air Force stationed in Spain, I was in a band with three Spaniards who spoke no English. I sang and they played and we got along great."

It was while he was in the military that Star, who majored in sociology and psychology at Shenandoah College and Conservatory of Music in Winchester, Va., served as a drug and alcohol counselor and human relations mediator.

Flying can cause earache

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — You may have heard it's dangerous to fly with a head cold because of the risk of injury to your ears. But Dr. Arthur Hengerer says the risk of any permanent damage is rare.

Hengerer is chairman of the Otolaryngology (ear, nose, throat) Division at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

When you have a cold or ear infection, the eustachian tubes — from the back of the throat to behind the eardrums — work ineffectively to equalize pressure. To avoid the pain this can cause, Hengerer recommends taking a decongestant tablet before flight.

Older people don't depend on children

Since one in nine Americans is now over 65, and that number is growing, it's about time that we do away with some of the myths about aging.

percent of older men and 38 percent of older women are married and live with their spouses in independent households.

Most of those remaining are widowed, with about 10 percent divorced or never married.

Research shows most older adults do not want to move in with adult children, although they do want emotional involvement with their families.

Texas Gardener tips

How to water lawns during summer months

Watering is one of the most basic practices in maintaining a home lawn, especially here in Texas where the summers are hot and dry. But there is a right way and wrong way to water a lawn.

Ideally, an established lawn should be watered just before it begins to wilt. Most grasses take on a dull purplish cast and leaf blades begin to fold or roll. Grass under drought stress also shows evidence of tracks after someone walks across the lawn. These are the first signs of wilt.

With some careful observation and experience, it shouldn't be too hard to determine just how many days a lawn can go between waterings. Common bermudagrass lawns should be able to go five, six, seven days or even longer between waterings without loss of quality.

When is the best time of day to water? Many people come home from work and go out to the yard to water the lawn in the cool of the evening. This is actually the worst time to water because the lawn tends to stay wet all night, making it more susceptible to disease.

Early morning is considered the best time to water. The wind is usually calm and the temperature is low, so less water is lost to evaporation.

When an established lawn needs to be watered, apply enough water so that the soil is wetted to a depth of 4 to 6 inches. The type of soil has a great deal to do with how much water is needed to wet the soil to this depth. For soils high in clay, an inch of water is usually necessary to wet the soil to the desired depth.

One good soaking is better than several light sprinklings. If waterings are too light or too frequent, the lawn may tend to become weak and shallow-rooted which, in turn, makes it more susceptible to stress injury.

There is a great variation in the relative need for water between the turf-grasses, so keep this factor in mind when selecting a grass for your yard.

In general, avoid using soluble nitrogen fertilizers, since they tend to promote high growth rates which, in turn, increase the water requirements of the plant.

Classic garments project professional image

Classically styled garments help the professional woman project an appropriate image for business.

"With the competitiveness of today's job market, projecting this image is important," says Nancy Brown, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

According to Brown, a recent survey shows working women believe their manner of dress is important in creating a successful image, and most said that purchasing garments which project competence is vital to their careers. Of these women, 86 percent preferred classically styled clothing and were generally less influenced by current fashion.

Because classical garments are an investment that will last for several years, less money must be allocated to the clothing budget each year, adds Brown.

Classical designs, unlike fads, are seasonless. In women's clothing they are similar to men's tailored suits: simple, clean, yet elegant. There is no clutter and no direct focus, but rather a style that reflects a hint of authority.

To achieve a classic look, Brown recommends emphasis on suits, skirts, soft blouses, blazers and jacket dresses to develop a slim and natural silhouette.

For a businesslike appearance use straight lines, restrained curves and vertical movement. Brown advises. Avoid soft curves, small detail and pasatel colors because they project a weaker, feminine image.

People who dress and look successful tend to receive preferential treatment in business encounters. So the proper wardrobe can be a practical aid for success in the business world, says Brown.

Women sewing more due to economics

Until recently, only 20 percent of American women used their sewing machines twice a month or more. But economics has created a new interest in home sewing.

"When women can make a quality dress for 30 percent of what it would cost in the stores, they are bound to be interested," said Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist.

Even employed women are returning to home sewing as the pattern companies and fabric makers make their products more compatible with the working woman's lifestyle.

"They are aiming for the customer who wants to make something simple and fast," she said. Home sewing has also gotten a boost from the recent interest in crafts.

Wedding

MRS. DENNIS GAIL WARRINGTON
...formerly Teresa Janelle Moore

Moore-Warrington

Teresa Janelle Moore and Dennis Gail Warrington, both of Big Spring, were united in marriage during a morning ceremony, June 6, in the Dallas Civic Garden Center at Fair Park in Dallas. The Rev. John Winham of the Dallas Pastoral Counseling Center performed the ceremony.

The couple were wed before a garden background complemented by a water fountain and goldfish pond to one side. The altar area was decorated with green potted ferns and a kneeling bench.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Moore of Anson. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest V. Warrington of Palestine are the parents of the bridegroom.

Kevin Harris, vocalist, accompanied by The Sound of Strings, a string quartet from Dallas, provided music for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of silk organza accented with Chantilly lace. The bodice, accented by Venice lace and seed pearls, featured a Queen Anne neckline. Bishop sleeves ended in cuffs of Chantilly lace. The skirt of Venice and Chantilly lace fell into a chapel-length train. To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a fingertip-length veil edged in Venice lace and held by a garland of silk rainbow-colored phlox and white roses. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and tea roses surrounded by stephanotis, baby's breath and fern.

Matron of honor was Lucretia Bomar, sister of the bride. Susan Warrington, daughter of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. Flower girls were Andrea Bomar, niece of the bride, and Cathy Warrington, daughter of the bridegroom.

Forrest Warrington, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were William Moore Jr., brother of the bride, and Darayld Bomar, brother-in-law of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Dallas Civic Garden Center. A three-tiered cake decorated with rainbow-colored flowers was topped with a porcelain wedding couple under an archway of silk flowers.

The bride is a graduate of Robert E. Lee High School in Tyler and Texas Tech University in Lubbock. She is employed as chief dietitian at Big Spring State Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Palestine High School in Palestine, Texas A&M University at College Station and Texas Tech University at Lubbock. He is director of personnel at BSSH.

Following a wedding trip to the Caribbean Islands, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Arthritis may cause children to suffer pain

Many people think of arthritis as an old person's disease, but it affects children as well. The Arthritis Foundation says over 250,000 children have

Colors are important in decorating

A vital element in decorating small rooms is the use of color. Light colors, especially off-white and beige generally give rooms a spacious appearance.

Furniture, floors and walls should be in neutral colors which blend together. Use strong colors and large prints only for accessories and accents.

WINNERS & LOSERS

Big winners when it comes to population gains in recent years are the sunbelt states. The country with the biggest population, however, is China. The latest UN estimate on the population of that country was 958,050,000!

Many people in the sunbelt states feel like big winners because of their year-long tan, but exposure over many years to the sun may lead to a condition called solar keratosis. In some cases it may become malignant. Symptoms include irregular red, scaly patches, usually on the hands and face. If you've got them, see a doctor.

On Turning Heads

by Gary Don

The new hair sprays are formulated to hold hair without stickiness. To style short to medium length hair, spray hair damp and finger style into place. Allow to air dry. For longer lasting curl from electric rollers, spray hair before using rollers. When the rollers curl, unroll hair and brush gently. For longer length hair, give it a windblown look by bending over and brushing hair forward from the nape. Spray the underside of hair and let dry. Toss hair back and finger-comb it. Varying degrees of hold can be obtained with aerosol sprays, but pump sprays can provide maximum hold.

Calm static hair by spraying hair brush with hair spray before using. A hairstyle that is created "expressively" for you requires skill, knowledge and experience. It also takes a great deal of time. All of us at LA CONTESSA want you to be able to keep your hair looking its best between visits. For this reason, we will answer any questions that you might have concerning the care and techniques necessary to keep your hair's appearance at its best. We look forward to being of service to you soon. You will find us located at 1508 Marcy. We are available to serve you Tues.-Sat. Tel. 267-2187.

Dr. Donohue

Running can be used for testing oxygen intake

Dear Dr. Donohue: Where can go to have a good physiological testing? I mean to determine one's maximum oxygen uptake? Also percentage of fat by body immersion. And, of course, an exercise stress test? — A.A.

I don't have your address, but you can call the physical education department of any college near you and they can direct you to where those tests can be done. Of course you can get the exercise stress test done in many physician's offices. You might want to seek a doctor who specializes in sports medicines or cardiology.

And while you're there you can also get the percentage of body fat estimated pretty closely with calipers, using skin folds for measurement. Immersion testing is quite accurate, but it's really not necessary for most of us. That is the test that measures the specific gravity of the body.

Now you can estimate your maximum oxygen uptake (the greatest amount of oxygen you're able to circulate through your body) indirectly yourself. Please don't do this if you're over 35, have any suspicion of heart disease, or are not in great shape. OK?

If a person can run a mile in less than 5 minutes, the maximum oxygen uptake is 75 milliliters per minute (sometimes expressed as 75 ml./min.) for every kilogram of body weight. That means for every minute of running you are taking in 75 ml. of oxygen for every 2.2 pounds of body weight. It's an elite score.

If you can run the mile in 10 minutes, it's 52 ml./min. — a very good score. If it takes 12 minutes, the score is 41 ml./min — average. If you run the mile in 16 minutes, your score is 28 ml./min. — not so good. The complete chart for this is in the Wilmore Fitness Program by Dr. Jack Wilmore. You can find the equivalent tests in many other books, such as the one by Dr. Kenneth Cooper.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dads have strong influence on children's lives

Every June since 1910, we have celebrated Father's Day. Over those 73 years the role of fathers in parenting has changed in significant ways. Fortunately, we now recognize more than ever how fathers influence children, beginning at birth. Gender identity begins to develop when a child is about three. So it is important for fathers to relate closely with their children during these formative years. While family tasks are being shared, children observe what the father does, the chores he does around the house, how he talks to his wife and to other brothers and sisters. For boys, fathers provide a model for being a man in all aspects of life. For girls, fathers provide a bridge and a basis for building a trusting, comfortable, and loving relationship with men in the adult years. So fatherhood should be recognized and accepted as essential to the well being and growth of children and essential to the family. Happy Fathers Day!

With teenagers out of school for the summer, many are looking for ways to keep busy — but not by doing more household chores! While most teenagers contribute some time to household work per day as compared to about 6½ hours for mothers and two hours for fathers.

Teenagers' contributions seem to increase when mothers work full-time, but decrease when mothers work only part-time. Also, adolescent girls tend to spend more time doing household work than boys.

But for teenagers there is more to doing household chores than just getting the job done. Household responsibilities also teach basic life skills.

Parents who give teenagers experience with home responsibilities set a direction for their future. Youngsters who have no responsibilities set a direction for their future. Youngsters who have no responsibilities are headed for difficulty when they leave home for camp, college or a place of their own.

Oddly enough, many teens agree that they should have household duties — although they don't necessarily fulfill them. Heading their list of reasonable chores are "keeping their room clean" and "taking out the trash." Further down the list are tasks such as doing the dishes, yard work, household cleaning, car washing and baby-sitting.

As teen get older, a gender difference emerges in the chores they are willing to do. But accepting (or rejecting) tasks because they are "women's work" or "a man's job" makes it difficult for teenagers when they have to depend on themselves or when the situation requires a balance of tasks regardless of sex.

No one way to handle household responsibilities works for every family with teenagers. But here are some ideas a family can try.

● As a family, review the major chores to be done, their frequency, and how much time each takes. That will help in making a fair distribution of jobs.

Dear Abby

Switch to boxer shorts bears fruitful results

DEAR ABBY: A doctor told me that a couple of years ago he read some letters in your column stating that a man's fertility could be related to the kind of shorts he wore. This doctor also said that this theory was scientifically valid. Will you please run those letters again?

INTERESTED MALE

DEAR INTERESTED: Glad to accommodate you. And how appropriate for Father's Day:
DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from "Childless Couple," who were considering artificial insemination. This may help.

For four years my wife and I tried without success to have a child. We were both tested. She was fine, but the doctor said that because my sperm count was so low, my chances of fathering a child were slim. That's when we considered artificial insemination.

I saw a fertility specialist. He asked me what kind of shorts I wore. I told him I had worn jockey shorts for years. He suggested that I switch to boxer shorts — the loose-fitting kind, instead of the snugly fitting jockey type. When he explained why, I thought he was crazy, but I took his suggestion, and four months later my wife conceived! Our baby is due in March. I'm signing my real name, but please don't use it. Just sign me...

FUTURE FATHER

DEAR FUTURE: When I read your letter, I laughed and threw it into my wastebasket. But I quit laughing (and quickly retrieved your letter) after reading several more bearing the same incredible message!

Read on for a short story that may help some for whom pregnancy is inconceivable:
DEAR ABBY: I am glad you printed that letter about jockey shorts. My husband and I had already started adoption proceedings when a neighbor, bless her heart, told me about the big difference my husband's shorts could make. We laughed at first, but two months after he started wearing loose boxer shorts, I got pregnant. We couldn't believe it!

We have three beautiful children now, and our family is completed, so my husband went back to wearing jockey shorts. (I also had my tubes tied when the last one was born.)

Thanks for educating the public, Abby. You can reach more people in one day than we could in a lifetime.

PAT IN HOUSTON
DEAR PAT: And to make the theory of jockey shorts more binding, try this on for size:

Joni is the daughter of MR. AND MRS. JERRY AVERY.

Another college student home for the summer is BRAD CAVNAR, son of MR. AND MRS. GORDON CAVNAR.

AL VALDEZ, long-time employee of Cosden and member of the school board, was sworn in Monday night as president of the Evening Lions Club. He outlined an ambitious program of work for the coming year for that organization.

TOM HAYES, another employee of Cosden, introduced his new bride, Claire, to his Sunday-School class of First Christian Church at a little ice cream social in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sedinger.

TINY CLAWSON has just returned from a 10-day trip to Hawaii with her daughter, KAY LYNN WALTERS, and grandsons, DAVID, 16, and STEVE, 12, of Arlington.

They stayed in a condominium and visited the islands of Maui and Kauai. She informed us that the Hawaiian alphabet has 11 letters in it, seven of which are consonants. I didn't know that.

"I had one lesson on how to do the hula-hula," she said. "But you know, it didn't take."
Until next week...
