A.G. Mitchell dies in Houston

A.G. Mitchell, former Howard County judge and Big Spring police chief, died Friday in a Houston hospital after an illness. He was 68.

Services are today at 1:30 p.m. in Tomball, Texas. Burial will be Monday in Denton.

Mitchell was police chief from 1944 to 1947. He was elected county judge in 1970 and served a 4-year term during which he was honored by Probate Judges of Texas and awarded lifetime membership.

He ran for county sheriff in 1963 but was defeated in a runoff by present Sheriff A.N. Standard.

"He was a statue of a man in crimefighting," Standard said Saturday morning. "He was an extremely good investigator — tireless in his work and self-motivated. I am very sad to hear of his death."

"He was always so friendly and helpful to the people who came to him," said Billie Barron of Big Spring, who was secretary for Mitchell during his years as deputy sheriff and county judge.

Mitchell came to Big Spring in 1944 when he was hired as police chief. He resigned in 1947 to become chief criminal investigator for the western division of the Texas and Pacific Railroad.

In 1959 he became a Howard County Sheriff's deputy and served under sheriffs Miller Harris and Standard until his election as county judge.

"We always had the greatest help from A.G.," Standard said. "He was able to assist us with a number of very involved murder cases."

Mitchell ran for re-election in 1975, but lost to former County

Judge Bill Tune. He and his wife, Agnes, moved to Houston in 1976 to be near their children and grandchildren.

Mrs. Mitchell taught at Bauer Elementary School for several years.

Mitchell was born in Denton on Aug. 28, 1914. He married Agnes Cook in McKinney on Aug. 5, 1934.

He is survived by his wife of Houston; a son, Robert Mitchell of Houston; two daughters, Robbie Lynn Moore and Judy Love Edwards, both of Houston; two brothers, Marion Mitchell of Frisco, Texas, and Tom Mitchell of Baton Rouge, La.; thirteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

He was preceded in death by a brother, Dr. R.B. Mitchell.

Graveside services Monday are under the direction of Jack Schmidt and Son Funeral Home of Denton.

M.A. Cook and Sam Roberts, both of Howard County, will serve as honorary pallbearers.

The family asks that memorials be made to the American Cancer Society or Thompson Memorial Bible Church in Houston.

Knott Fun Festival Day

Hundreds gather to benefit local family

KNOTT — The people of Knott and "everywhere else" spent all day Saturday pitching horseshoes, playing dominoes, racing 3-wheel bikes, eating homemade ice cream and, most importantly, raising money for a needy family.

"I've never seen so many people out here," shouted one Knott man over the roar of 3-wheel cycles. "I thought I saw a New York license plate awhile back."

Saturday was the biggest and final day of the Firstever East, West and Middle Knott Fun Festival, a weeklong event benefiting Melissa Ann Cypert, 4½-month-old daughter of Donnie and Linda Cypert.

Rainbow Project to host open house today

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

The Rainbow Project is open for viewing and ready for hiring.

Big Spring residents have the opportunity today to see the community's new home for abused children. The renovated building at 2906 W. 13th will hold an open house today from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., and the project's directors say they are looking for skilled help in administering the home.

Less than a year ago, the Rainbow Project was a vacant firehouse. It had peeling paint inside and out and damaged walls, ceilings and floors.

Now, after months of volunteer labor and an estimated $25,000 in locally-raised donations, that building is repaired, brightly painted and comfortably furnished. The state licensing process is under way and the project's board members hope the house can be occupied by mid-September.

Mayor Clyde Angel has proclaimed today "Rainbow Sunday," and many local churches are giving part of their offering to help with the project's operating expenses.

"This is a community project," said Victor Sedinger, a Rainbow Project board member. "Almost all the furnishings and fixtures have See RAINBOW, page 2A

LULAC, city council discuss voting rights

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

Big Spring Mayor Clyde Angel said he is optimistic the Big Spring City Council and the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) can settle voting rights differences following a meeting between the two parties Friday evening.

"Both sides presented various ideas," Angel said. "No one reached any decision, but I think some barriers were broken down."

Councilmen and five officers of the local LULAC chapter discussed a lawsuit filed against the city during a 1½-hour closed executive session at the Howard County Courthouse.

LULAC asked that City Manager Don Davis and attorneys from both sides not attend the meeting.

A notice posted in City Hall Tuesday afternoon said the session would be closed to the public under Section 2, subsection (e) of the Texas Open Meetings Act.

When asked to leave, the Big Spring Herald protested the closing of the meeting, saying that subsection See LULAC, page 2A

Aggravated rape trial set to begin Monday

A Howard County jury will be selected Monday for the trial of a Pennsylvania man charged with aggravated rape. The prosecution will seek conviction on the most serious charge of aggravated rape, according to the district attorney's office. Two of the females involved are expected to testify. Dunbar has been in custody under $60,000 bond since his arrest in January. 118th District Attorney Rick Hamby will prosecute. Dunbar is represented by court-appointed attorney Wayne Basden of Big Spring. District Judge Jim Gregg will preside. MELISSA AND FAMILY — Donnie and Linda Cypert stand with their children Bryan, 6, (front) and Melissa Ann. The Knott Fun Festival Sunday was a benefit for Melissa, who was born three months premature. She is 4½ months old.

Knott

Continued from page one Howard County Judge Milton Kirby and the people of Knott were out to celebrate. Paul Hopper, one of the event's organizers, said he couldn't estimate the number of people who participated in the day's activities, but he said over 500 persons were expected for a Saturday night barbecue originally planned for 150. "That should give you some indication," he said. Melissa was born three months premature in March in Lubbock General Hospital. She weighed two pounds, two ounces and was 15 inches long. She now weighs eight pounds and is 19½ inches long. She has been home with her parents and brother Bryan, 6, for several weeks and Knott residents wanted to do something to help the family pay medical expenses. But the festival has turned into something else, Hopper said. It has brought a community troubled by a poor cotton season closer together. "Farmers here are not making any money," he said. "But they've come out to help. Those people that have a little bit of money are using it here. Those that don't have brought cakes or have done whatever they could to help. "I've been around and I've never seen anything

Living quarters in the building will be provided for the house parents and relief parents. For house parents, Sedinger said the board was looking for a couple with some experience who are "mature, very patient and responsible." He said letters of reference are requested. The relief couple will be needed for two nights a week. Applicants for the social worker position should either be licensed by the state or be in the process of obtaining a license, he said. A nine-member board of directors made up of local ministers and businessmen has contracted Buckner Baptist Benevolences, Inc.

LULAC

Continued from page one of the act only allows a governmental body to discuss pending litigation with its attorney. (The act reads, in Section 2, subsection e: "Private consultations between a governmental body and its attorney are not permitted except in those instances in which the body seeks the attorney's advice with respect to pending or contemplated litigation, settlement of, and matters where the duty of a public body's counsel to its client, pursuant to the Code of Professional Responsibility of the State Bar of Texas, clearly conflicts with this Act.") The council said it would take note of the Herald's protest. At the end of the session, councilmen released a statement saying that the two parties had met on the advice of their attorneys and had discussed "numerous single member district/at large combinations." Both groups said they would consult their legal counsels. The lawsuit filed in November in Abilene Federal Court asks that the city be divided into single member of Dallas to administer the project. Buckner operates several similar homes across the state, Sedinger said. Directors estimate it will cost $61,000 a year to operate the home — money they feel can be raised through donations. A reception was held Saturday for people who have donated time, money and furnishings. Sunday's open house will be for the entire community. A slide show explaining the project's purpose and growth will be available. The Rainbow Project is located near the rodeo grounds. To find the building, turn left off West Highway 80 onto Randolph, the street which leads to the entrance of former Webb Air Force Base. A sign is posted at the corner of Randolph and W. 13th.

Alcohol

Continued from page one Angel and McEwen both said they hoped the lawsuit could be settled out of court. Precinct 4 includes the city of Lorraine and borders Nolan and Scurry counties. Los Ybanez approved its local option election 52-1. It was the second beer vote for citizens of the 300-population northeast of Lamesa. An election last year passed, but the town was declared illegal because of a surveyors error. The city, owned by Lamesa businessman Israel Ybanez, is currently fighting a lawsuit that claims Ybanez only incorporated the town in order to sell beer. Dawson County commissioners will canvass Saturday's election results at their regular meeting Monday.

Reagan aide aware campaign had briefing book

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard V. Allen, a high-level Reagan campaign aide in 1980, said Saturday he was aware that the campaign had Jimmy Carter's debate briefing book and thought it was ethically wrong, but could not recall urging that it be returned.

Allen, however, said he did not regret receiving separate documents during the 1980 campaign from an unidentified source on the National Security Council staff of the Carter White House. Allen later served as President Reagan's national security adviser until he was forced to resign in January 1982.

"Oh, no, not at all," Allen replied, when asked if those materials should have been returned. "What I received was unsolicited, unclassified, innocuous, useless and of no redeeming value at all."

He said he had no idea what happened to the security council documents, and had "no contact" with the person who supplied them, although he knew the source's name.

Allen, now a senior counselor to the Republican National Committee on foreign policy and national security, said he never actually saw the briefing book that was drafted to help President Carter prepare for his crucial, nationally televised debate with Reagan on Oct. 28, 1980, in Cleveland.

White House officials say they have no idea how the briefing material fell into the hands of some of Reagan's highest campaign aides, but the president has ordered the Justice Department to investigate.

Reagan administration sources, who spoke only on the condition that they not be identified, said Saturday that FBI agents had interviewed three of the president's top aides about the briefing book and possible political espionage by Reagan campaign workers. A fourth was to be interviewed soon, but the sources did not say who.

The four are budget director David Stockman, White House communications director David R. Gergen, White House chief of staff James A. Baker III and presidential counselor Edwin Meese.

Allen, interviewed by Cable News Network, said he was "vaguely aware" that the Reagan campaign had the papers, although "I didn't see them."

An Allen campaign associate, William R. Van Cleave, told The Associated Press he remembered seeing what was purported to be the Carter debate briefing book. Van Cleave said it was likely that Allen showed him the book because they shared an office and worked together closely.

Allen resigned under fire after discovery of $1,000 in his safe that came from Japanese journalists who interviewed Nancy Reagan the day after the president was inaugurated. He also had accepted three watches from Japanese friends, and errors were found in his government financial disclosure forms.

Clear skies dominated the Texas weather picture today as a few scattered showers and thunderstorms dotted the coast before dawn.

A high-pressure ridge cut through the heart of the state, bringing the promise of a weekend featuring sunny skies and hot afternoon temperatures.

Pre-dawn temperatures were mostly in the middle and upper 60s over North Texas, while the 70s dominated Central and South Texas. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 62 at Wichita Falls to 82 at Galveston.

Winds were generally light and northerly over the eastern half of the state, while southeasterly winds at 5 to 10 mph dominated the western half.

The forecast called for a few scattered thunderstorms in South Texas, along the coast and in far western regions of the state.

Showers and a few thundershowers stretched today from Arizona to the northern Plains and the northern Rocky Mountain region as rain also fell on the Gulf Coast and the southern Atlantic Coast.

The rest of the nation was under clear skies, largely due to a high pressure system centered over West Virginia.

Skies were mostly cloudy in the northern Atlantic Coast region with scattered light showers.

The National Weather Service forecast a few showers for New England early in the day with sunny skies across the rest of the nation.

High temperatures were expected to be in the 70s over the Northern Rockies, the Pacific Northwest and the northern Atlantic Coast states. Readings into the 90s were forecast from the Gulf Coast states to the Northern Plains with temperatures in the 90s to above 100 in the desert Southwest.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EST ranged from 43 in Redmond, Ore., to 92 in Phoenix, Ariz.

Samantha Smith visits youth camp in Russia

YALTA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Samantha Smith, the 11-year-old girl from Maine who feared the Soviet Union might start a nuclear war, arrived at the Black Sea Saturday for four days of living like a Young Pioneer at a communist youth camp.

She was welcomed to the Artek Pioneer Camp by an estimated 1,000 Soviet youngsters sitting in a light rain on bleachers in an amphitheater by the sea. One group of children held a sign reading in English, "We welcome you to Artek."

Samantha was escorted around the camp by a group of girls and one addressed the crowd while greeting the American guest.

"On behalf of all pioneers at our camp, I would like to welcome you to our tiny grounds. We were looking forward to meeting you and we hope you'll enjoy your visit to our camp," she said, handing Samantha the traditional Russian welcoming symbols of salt and bread.

Samantha will stay in a brick building housing 20 other children. Her parents, Arthur and Jane Smith, accompanied her to Artek and are guests at a small hotel on the camp grounds.

They flew from Moscow on an Aeroflot jetliner to the Crimean city of Simferopol. From there they were driven 100 miles over a mountain highway to the coastal resort of Yalta, where Josef Stalin, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill held their historic conference during World War II.

Artek, a camp reserved primarily for children of Communist Party members and other privileged families, is set in tree groves on the outskirts of Yalta.

Samantha's trip to the Soviet Union was arranged after she wrote a letter to President Yuri V. Andropov expressing concern that the Soviets wanted to conquer the world. In his letter of reply, Andropov said the Soviet people wanted on peace and he invited her to visit and see for herself.

Samantha has said she hopes to meet

Andropov, but there has been no word if that will be arranged during the family's two-week visit paid for by a Soviet organization.

The Smiths arrived in Moscow Friday and spent the night at the Sovietskaya Hotel, which is reserved for honored foreign guests.

Samantha began her first full day in Moscow Saturday with a VIP tour of Red Square and the Kremlin. At precisely 9 a.m. a chauffeur-driven black Chaika limousine arrived with the Smiths at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Samantha's father, an English instructor at the University of Maine, placed a wreath of red gladiolas near the eternal flame.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported that the "American schoolgirl... was pale with emotion as, together with her parents, she was laying flowers to an eternal flame."

Surrounded by Western journalists and television crews, the Smiths and their guides and security escorts then walked 300 yards across the cobble stones to the granite mausoleum of Vladimir I. Lenin. Her father was handed another wreath of gladiolas which he placed at the tomb's entrance.

After viewing Lenin's remains, on display inside the mausoleum, Samantha and her parents walked past the red brick wall of the Kremlin viewing marble plaques marking the burial places of cremated Soviet heroes.

They stopped at the place where the remains of the first Soviet cosmonaut, Yuri Gagarin, are interred, and Samantha's father placed a third wreath on the ground.

After touring the square, the Smiths were taken through the Spassky Gate into the Kremlin where they visited the office and apartment occupied by Lenin following the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

The family also visited several restored Russian Orthodox churches, which now serve as museums, and the chambers of the Supreme Soviet, the national parliament, before flying to the Crimea.

El Paso jail officials say rioting 'final shot'

EL PASO (AP) — El Paso County jail officials said inmates rioted during a move to a new facility because they were upset over a no-smoking rule in the new jail and wanted to give authorities "a farewell parting shot."

Sheriff Mike Davis said inmates waiting to be moved from the fourth floor of the old jail began fighting with sheriff's officers and setting fire to their mattresses at about 8 p.m. Friday night.

At least eight sheriff's officials, one firefighter and 22 inmates were injured, authorities said. All the injuries were described as minor.

Davis said he had not talked to inmates to learn why they rioted, but that some inmates were upset over a no-smoking rule to be imposed at the new facility.

"It was just something we've been expecting," Davis said. "They wanted to give us a farewell parting shot."

Davis said the move to the new jail was temporarily suspended because of the violence, which he said was under control early Saturday.

He said 80 inmates had been moved to the new facility Friday before the rioting broke out. The violence was confined to the fourth-floor of the eight-story jail, Davis said. Four floors contain cellblocks.

Deputy Fire Chief G.M. Duryee said seven trucks arrived shortly after the fires and rioting broke out. He said firefighters controlled the fires by 9 p.m. but some inmates started the fires again about 10 p.m.

Chief Deputy Clay Collier said many inmates hampered firefighting efforts.

"They actually barricaded themselves in and made it difficult to fight fires. The smoke was very heavy and made it hard to fight the fire," he said.

Collier said firefighters who could not get into the cells aimed fire hoses through the bars.

"The plain and simple fact of having one final riot before they move out may have caused it," Collier said. "It is very difficult to understand the mind of a prisoner in a situation like this. To contemplate reasons is just beyond me."

Jail Capt. Jesus Reyes said the riot involved about 72 inmates on the fourth floor of the old jail. He said the floor was filled to capacity with 218 inmates.

Davis said although relatively few of the inmates were directly involved in the violence, "the smoke got so bad it caused the other inmates to panic."

The injured inmates were sent to Thomas General Hospital. Reyes said two jailers were stabbed. He did not identify the two.

Those injured who were identified by authorities included jailer Luciano Barrios, who was sent to Hotel Dieu Medical Center after being knocked unconscious with a broomstick. Sheriff's Lt. Ralph Mitchell suffered a broken nose in the disturbance and was treated and released from Providence Memorial Hospital.

Deputy Dwight Jefferson, taken to Sierra Medical Center, was hit in the eye with a flashlight battery. Fire Lt. Mike Abeyta was sent to Sierra for smoke inhalation.

Police Lt. Greg Drollinger said inmates had broomsticks broken in half that they used to fight guards.

"I saw some hellacious fights up there," Drollinger said.

Mother buried after 84 days on support system

MARLINTON, W.Va. (AP) — A clinically dead woman who was kept on life-support systems at a Virginia hospital for 84 days until her baby was born was buried Saturday in a Pocahontas County cemetery.

The family had asked that the woman's identity be kept secret, but the Beckley Post Herald identified her in a copyright story Saturday as Sylvia Ann Gary Chisolm, 21, of White Sulphur Springs.

Mrs. Chisolm, a Marlinton native, suffered a brain hemorrhage in April and was hospitalized in West Virginia briefly before being transferred to Roanoke (Va.) Memorial Hospital.

Doctors delivered her 3-pound, 11-ounce baby girl Tuesday by Caesarean section after Mrs. Chisolm's condition began to deteriorate.

The woman died after being removed from life supports 17 hours later. She was buried beside her maternal grandparents.

Friends and relatives said they were besieged by supermarket tabloid reporters eager for an exclusive story.

"She was a sweet person. That's all I'm going to tell you," Mrs. Chisolm's uncle, Sonny Daugherty, said. "No one's going to talk to you. They're not going to give it (their silence) up."

He said his sister got 25 to 30 calls from reporters Friday morning.

Mrs. Chisolm's husband, Joe Chisolm Jr., is in the Army at Fayetteville, N.C. Contacted by telephone Friday, he said only, "Sir,

MOVING EXPENSES (What's Deductible?)

One out of every six American families moves every year. If you're one of those families this year, keep a record of your moving costs; they may be tax deductible.

To be deductible, your move must be related to beginning work in a new location either as an employee or as a self-employed individual, and your new job must be at least 35 miles farther from your old home than your old job was.

If your move qualifies, here's what you can deduct:

1. Up to $1,500 of expenses for house-hunting trips and temporary living costs at your new location.
2. Expenses of selling your old home and purchasing a new one — real estate commissions, attorney fees, title fees, escrow fees, and loan point fees. These expenses, combined with the house-hunting and temporary living expenses, are subject to a $3,000 limit. If you sell your house for less than you paid for it, you may not deduct the loss.
3. Costs of moving your household goods and family to the new location, with no dollar limit but a requirement that the costs be "reasonable."
4. The cost of transportation, meals, and lodging for the family while moving from the old home to the new home, subject again to the "reasonable" limitation. If you use your car in the move, you may deduct actual gas and oil costs or mileage at nine cents a mile.

Moving can be very expensive. It is a good idea to keep track of all costs of your move with cancelled checks, receipts and other verifications so that those expenses that are deductible can be used to reduce your tax liability when your return is filed. Consult your tax advisor for assistance in this area.

Splitting AT&T a costly idea

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — An old friend from Dallas recently visited us and before long was ranting about the current state of affairs involving the telephone company.

If the divestiture of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is going to triple the cost of a telephone, why not leave it alone? she asked.

I repeated some things I had read about the divestiture, about the dangers of centralized power in a vital communications utility, about how long-distance charges for years had subsidized monthly equipment charges and would now be reduced by competition.

"I don't care," our friend said. She doesn't make a lot of long-distance calls and thus faces only higher bills. She's also upset that apparently she's going to have to buy her phone in order to pay two or three times more than the present cost of leasing one. "Why is this a good idea?" she asked again.

I love a good argument, but I also know when my knowledge is based on mushy concepts and flabby facts. "I don't know. Maybe it seemed like a good idea at the time," I replied, and changed the subject.

I've tried to keep up with the details of the current Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. rate case before the Texas Public Utility Commission. I know it's undoubtedly the most important utility story of 1983 (and likely 1984).

I know it will affect most Texans' pocketbooks. If you have General Telephone or another non-Bell company and think you're safe from this one, dream on, teen-age queen. Bell is the industry leader and what happens to Southwestern Bell will affect you ultimately.

But for all their importance, utility issues are too complex for most of us to understand and too dull for us to even try. We don't want our bills to go up, so we cheer for the forces opposing the proposed rate hike. But we also want good service and must realize that this costs money.

The current Southwestern Bell case is so massive that only a handful of people have any grasp of its complexities. Unfortunately, most of them are Southwestern Bell employees.

Last year the company grossed $7.7 billion. Even after divestiture from AT&T it will be one of the country's major corporations.

The company spent $842,995 to obtain a $471.5 million rate hike last year. Now it wants a record $1.7 billion, and we can expect its expenditures for lawyers, witnesses and other support for its case to soar likewise. Consumers ultimately will have to pay these costs.

Leaders in the anti-increase fight are the Texas Municipal League and the Texas Consumer's Union. Their attorneys, Von Butler for the TML and Carol Barger for the ICU, are rate-case veterans but their resources basically are limited to their personal talents.

Butler described the situation to an Austin reporter as being "like a death march."

There's a new wrinkle to the current case, the newly created consumer interest advocate or the utility commission, but it remains to be seen how important it will be. So far, Gov. Mark White hasn't appointed anyone to that post and, because the case is so complex, the chances of the appointee playing an important role lessen with each passing day.

Some of the pressure has been eased by an agreement to extend for 90 days the commission's deadline for a decision in the case to March 25, 1984. That's mostly because Southwestern Bell is blaming $1.2 billion or its request on the AT&T divestiture, and some details on that won't be cleared up for several months.

Rate-hiking opponents say the divestiture argument is a smoke screen, and even the federal judge overseeing the AT&T breakup says it shouldn't be used simply to raise rates.

The stage is set for a first-class fight, and the outcome will affect almost everyone in Texas. Let's hope that we can at least partially understand what is happening to us.

Tech lures Dakota medical department

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Texas Tech University has raided the University of North Dakota School of Medicine for a new obstetrics-gynecology department.

The Lubbock, Texas, school has lured all three professors to jobs at a new university branch opening in Odessa.

"They raided us," said School of Medicine Dean Thomas Johnson. "It happens all the time in academia."

Department Chairman Robert Carter has resigned effective Sept. 1 to be chairman of the department at the Odessa campus. Daniel Braun and Carol Bergquist, the other two professors have also said they are leaving for Odessa, Johnson said.

Texas congressmen get down to business

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Much of Washington's summer business is squeezed between the just-ending July 4 congressional recess and the month-long exodus by Congress for the sweltering month of August.

Though the time is short, the business therein will be important for Texans at home and in Washington.

There may be major actions on immigration, natural gas and ways to help the Texas-Mexico border area. And while Texas Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station might again become a Republican star with the federal budget, Texas James A. Baker III, White House chief of staff, might descend from the galaxy of powerful Washington officialdom.

On immigration, the House should decide before August whether to put into effect a sweeping law that seems to have more momentum this year than when it died in the House last year. A similar bill already has passed the Senate.

By the time the bill reaches the House floor in late July, it will have gained the approval of three other major committees in addition to the House Judiciary Committee and Rules Committee.

The bill seems destined to include employer penalties for the hiring of illegal aliens and some form of identification system for legal residents, both of which Hispanic groups strongly condemn as discriminatory.

Outside Congress, but also of interest to South Texas, will be coming results from President Reagan's highly-touted "border task force." The group's report went to the White House this week, and Reagan should announce soon whether its members came up with worthwhile remedies to the border's economic decline.

While its recommendations will not be "earthshaking," the report should show how to streamline federal funds from existing programs to the area's struggling economy, hard-hit by the peso's devaluation, according to task force chairman Robert G. Dederick, assistant secretary of economic affairs for the U.S. Department of Commerce.

A congressional climax could also come this summer on what has been a persistent question for the oil and gas industry since President Reagan took over the federal helm: Will they or won't they decontrol "old" natural gas production, the kind in Texas that is plentiful and cheap?

The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee finally began work last week on a compromise natural gas bill that would phase out controls on old gas (produced before 1977) and decontrol all natural gas discovered after the bill's date of enactment. Agreements on key provisions of the bill could be worked out this month.

Rep. Phil Gramm could again take center stage in the congressional budget show next week. He's scheduled to present to Reagan his "veto petition" assuring the president that his vetoes of appropriations bills will be upheld by the House.

M.B. Oglesby, chief White House liaison with the House, said after Gramm gained the necessary 146 House signatures that the petition would provide "leverage" for the Reagan camp to hold down domestic spending. He said the veto threat, backed by the petition, would be used in negotiations with House committees.

Reagan's official response to the petition will be interesting to note as a gauge of Gramm's standing among Republicans.

Before many more days of summer pass, there should be a resolution to what might be the hottest of Washington's summer topics. The Great Debate Book Caper may leave in its wake the resignation of White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, one of the most powerful Texans in Washington.

Political observers throughout the press, quoting White House insiders, are saying that Baker or CIA Director William J. Casey probably will be dismissed from the administration because of their sharply conflicting stories on how the briefing book for President Carter found its way to the Reagan campaign. Baker says it came from Casey, and Casey says he never saw it.

Two convicted in bogus TV talent scheme

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury has convicted two men who defrauded young Hollywood hopefuls of at least $650,000 by setting up a fake production company and luring them with false promises of stardom.

James Ray Houston, 37, a former candidate for governor of Nevada, and Dennis William Emmett, 34, were convicted Friday.

Prosecutors said the men used the name Five Star Productions and mailed 200,000 postcards to high school graduates across the country, promising that for $10 the aspiring actors could appear on a national television special, "New Faces."

They claimed the show would be distributed to TV producers, modeling agencies and publicists.

At least 200 postcard recipients mailed Five Star the $10. Then they were hit for other fees, city attorney's spokesman Schuyler Sprowles said.

"All the representations they made were false," he said of the two men.

Houston, who operated Five Star from his Brentwood home, was convicted on 29 of false advertising and one of operating an unlicensed talent agency. Houston — who unsuccessfully ran for Nevada governor in 1974 — masterminded the operation, Sprowles said.

Emmett, Five Star's president, was convicted on the same charges before Municipal Court Judge James Yip. The men could get up to 15 years each in prison and $73,000 in fines. Yip set sentencing for Aug. 5.

A company employee, Gary Yannibilli of Houston, Texas, 31, faced the same charges, but the jury deadlocked 11-1 on the false advertising charges and acquitted him on the license count, prosecutor

Michael Stanley said. Confiscated records indicate the scam, uncovered after complaints by victims, dated from September 1982.

New mystery novels for summer

By ROSE VON HASSELL, Cataloguer

Mystery lovers, we've got some new books for you here at the Howard County Library. Alisa Craig has written "The Terrible Tide." Holly Howe, a New York model, goes to her family home in New Brunswick to rest and recover from an accident she had. But rest is not exactly what she gets. In order to get away from her brother and his nagging wife, Holly takes a job in a mansion helping caring for an invalid woman and the antiques in the house. Annie, the housekeeper, is glad for the companionship because she feels the mansion is haunted. People from the village think old Annie is soft in the head, but Holly isn't so sure that they're right, especially after some of the events that happen. When Holly learns the truth, it's as terrifying as anyone could expect. There are many twists and surprises in this mystery that will keep you guessing right up to the last page. "The Foretelling," by Caroline Crane takes place in a small Catskill Mountain town. Against her better judgement, Angela Dawn is persuaded to tell fortunes at the local fundraising carnival. Since it's for a worthy cause, she tries to do some studying from a book on palmistry. When some of her dire predictions come true, she begins to wonder whether she can really predict the future, or if it is just coincidence. The townspeople believe she really can foresee the future, and nothing Angela says can convince them that the fortune-telling was all in fun.

This is a story of terror started by an innocent game which had a few winners and many losers. E. X. Ferrars has written close to forty novels. "Death of a Minor Character" is the latest. Virginia Freer and her estranged husband Felix, who have been featured in some of her other books, are in this mystery too. Virginia is very upset when two people she knows are murdered within a short time of each other. Is there a connection between the two or is it just a coincidence? Before long there is another murder and Felix and Virginia become involved in finding out who is doing all the murdering. There are many interesting and surprising facts uncovered before they manage to unravel the whole mystery.

If you're looking for a way to relax and enjoy the rest of the summer, come by the library and check out one of these books. I think you will enjoy them.

Communist teacher fired

HOUSTON (AP) — School board members have voted unanimously to fire a high school math teacher who admitted she was a communist. The Houston Independent School District board voted Thursday to immediately terminate Carolyn Eubanks, a 40-year-old math teacher at Worthing High School, for failing to follow supervisors' orders and for falsifying her employment application.

Ms. Eubanks vowed to appeal the ruling to the Texas Education Agency. Her attorney, Jose Medina, said she was fired for her activities as a member of the Interna-national Committee Against School Racism and the Progressive Labor Party. Medina said charges that his client failed to follow orders and falsified her employment application were trumped up by school officials. "She has a right to express her political opinions outside the school and on her own personal time," Medina said.

Missing boy found alive, good condition

ROAN MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP) — An 8-year-old boy missing for a week atop rugged Roan Mountain was found alive and in good condition Saturday, authorities said.

Searchers found Michael Eugene Reel of Hickory, N.C., about 9:30 a.m. EDT. "We've got him. He's in good health. The rescue squad is checking him right now," Carter County Sheriff's Deputy Joe Valentine said.

Searchers found the boy on Heaton Ridge Road. He was taken briefly to Roan Mountain State Park to talk Sheriff William Crumley, and then to Carter County Memorial Hospital in Elizabethton, Valentine said.

Valentine said other details about the boy's health and rescue weren't available yet.

Reel disappeared from his family's campsite last Saturday, and since then hundreds of searchers with bloodhounds and helicopters have combed the 6,285-foot mountain in Cherokee National Forest near the Tennessee-North Carolina line.

Searchers included sheriff's deputies, state and federal forest rangers, Tennessee and North Carolina Civil Air Patrol members and Army paratroopers from Fort Bragg, N.C.

Jim Carr of the Air Patrol in Asheville, N.C., said ground-search teams from Hendersonville, Fayetteville and Hickory in North Carolina arrived Friday to help.

About 30 soldiers from Fort Bragg, N.C., were called in Thursday and used special "night vision" devices to hunt through the dense undergrowth.

Flak over policies splits residents of Tye

EDITOR'S NOTE — "If this were played upon a stage now, I could condemn it as an improbable fiction." — William Shakespeare.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

TYE, Texas (AP) — The mayor fired the cops, who sued the mayor, who was ousted by the city council, which resigned to protest the cop firing.

Got that?

There's more. Such as the siege of City Hall and the time someone beat a horse and nailed rabbits to a wall.

Welcome to Tye, Texas, population 2,200, home of the Rinky Dink Cafe and Mayor Jim Snowden, whose car displays a sign saying "God is My Co-Pilot."

The car has a flat tire.

This is convoluted and comical, but rarely amusing to the citizenry of this little city on the western fringe of Abilene. A number of residents, including the cops, were unhappy with Snowden for firing the city's three-man police force.

"I fired three policemen and the city judge because I have the state's authority to do it," Snowden said once by way of explanation.

"They were out joining that Citizens for Better Government, and its sole purpose was to make trouble for me."

At 62, Snowden, an automotive shop owner, is a short, tough, stubborn, grizzled, balding, chain-smoking ex-Army sergeant who contends the majority of the Tye residents are on his side, not to mention God and the law and, for a while, one city council member.

The mayor's adversaries, namely Citizens for Better Government, portray him as arrogant and vindictive. They call him Hitler.

"I wish I was a dictator," Snowden told a reporter, chuckling. "It would be the most efficient government we could have."

Reflecting on that a moment, he added: "Nah, really, I believe in democracy."

Whatever the problems began Jan. 4 when Snowden, acting without council approval, fired rookie policeman Terry Hood, who along with Chief Don Parrack and his assistant, John Mauney, were the Tye police force. Snowden dismissed Hood for letting civilians ride in his patrol car.

The debate over Hood's dismissal came to a head Jan. 21 with the resignation of three council members: Ruby Kennedy, Helena Brazell and Ernest Tyler.

"Snowden told me he was the mayor of this town and he'd run it any way he wanted to," said Mrs. Kennedy, 69, a stout, grandmotherly figure.

The dissident trio gathered that evening at the Rinky Dink, unofficial headquarters for anti-Snowden forces, and hit upon a novel idea: Why not fire Snowden?

The next day, a Saturday, the three council members called a meeting at City Hall to withdraw their resignations and set their ouster plan in motion.

Parrack said Snowden learned of the scheme and told him: "If you let those council members in here or allow any kind of meeting, you'll suffer the consequences."

He ignored the threat.

With Parrack and Mauney cradling loaded shotguns in the hallway, and backed up by a quartet of deputies, Mrs. Kennedy and her two colleagues cited Snowden for "official misconduct" and voted to oust him from office. They also reinstated the rookie officer, Hood.

Parrack said later he deputized four Tye residents only after receiving information "that the mayor was deputizing people... to make an armed march on City Hall and prevent the meeting from being held."

"Poppycock!" responded Snowden.

At the time, the only other council member was loyalist Violet Law, who did not attend the session. There was one vacancy on the five-seat council.

Snowden said he got assurances from the Texas Municipal League that the vote to oust him was illegal and then, citing the same violations used to fire Hood, dismissed his two-man police force. Mauney and Parrack have filed a $4.5 million lawsuit against Snowden and the city.

On Feb. 9, Snowden fired Municipal Judge Dennis Hodges and announced: "I have as of now assumed all duties of city judge. I have summarily dismissed all cases pending in Tye City Court."

Hodges was accused of usurping the "authority and power of the mayor" and demonstrating disloyalty to the city and the council by joining Citizens for Better Government. Hodges, 64, refused to be fired and sued Snowden for libel.

"Tye, right now, because of this (turmoil), is the laughingstock of the country," said Hodges.

Adding a minor element of intrigue to the whole mess was the arrival of Terry Woolley, a self-styled undercover narc who refused to discuss his background for fear of "jeopardizing lives."

Identifying him as "an able stranger," Snowden provided Woolley bed and board at his home.

Among the crimes Woolley did not solve, contends Harold Boyd, owner of the Rinky Dink and a force behind the anti-Snowden faction, was the maiming of his daughter's Apalosa colt and the murder of seven angora rabbits.

"Somebody beat the colt in the head and cracked its skull," he said. "Someone also nailed seven of our long-haired rabbits up on the wall."

Meanwhile, to counter the Citizens for Better Government, Snowden formed his own political group and called it "The People's Choice."

His hand-picked slate was designed to win back control of the council in the April 2 election.

On April 2, Snowden's forces swept the three council seats up for grabs, giving him control of the panel. A short time later, CBG holdovers Tyler and Mrs. Kennedy resigned, leaving Snowden without opposition.

"As they say out here in West Texas, it's great to be back in the saddle again," said Snowden, beaming.

In mid-April, the Snowden majority supported his firing of Hodges and the three police officers. The council also hired Woolley.

Once on the payroll, Woolley wasted little time quitting. Complaining of a heavy workload and the reluctance of council members to give him an assistant, he submitted his resignation in June.

"I would have had to be John Wayne or suicidal," he said, "to continue as things are."

White leads search for donors, says state efforts needed

By JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The parents of a 10-month-old West Texas baby in critical need of a liver transplant got help from Gov. Mark White Friday, who urged Texans to aid in the search for a possible donor.

At the same time, White vowed to appoint a task force to develop a coordinated state effort to match those in need of organ transplants with potential donors.

The parents of 10-month-old Ashley Bailey, Annette Bailey Gossett and Greg Gossett of Clyde, were summoned to the hospital Thursday as the child's condition worsened.

Mary Stanik, a hospital spokeswoman, said the child's condition was downgraded to critical Friday.

"She needs a liver soon," she said. "We don't have any particular deadline in mind, but she can't wait much longer."

The youth suffers from an incurable disease that hardens the liver. She was transferred to Minneapolis May 2 from Cook's Children's Hospital in Fort Worth.

"I am urging the public to try and locate someone who is qualified as a donor," White said at a State Capitol news conference, adding that potential donors should be six to 12 months old and weigh 10 to 15 pounds.

"It's very important. She is in very serious condition," he added.

White said his office has contacted pediatricians and pediatric surgeons across Texas to alert them of the need for a liver donor.

Another youth, 8-month-old Courtney Davis of Beaumont, has been sent to Texas Children's Hospital in Houston and is in similar need of a liver transplant, White noted.

"One of the things we discovered as a result of the plight of these two young people is that in Texas we have not done a very good job of recognizing the donor and matching them with the donee or potential donee," he said.

Driver's licenses issued by the Texas Department of Public Safety contain a "Donor's Certification" allowing Texans the opportunity to announce their intentions to donate certain organs.

But, White said, "one of the problems is it doesn't tell who to notify" in the event the person is critically injured or killed.

He said he will announce a special committee in the next several weeks with a goal of coordinating state organ donor efforts "to make certain that we do not have people who are dying for the lack of donating some organ of their body because our failure to coordinate this deprives them of the opportunity of having an improved life."

White made the public plea during a news conference originally called to announce the restructuring of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

"Too often persons with physical disabilities are referred to as the handicapped," he said. "While most discrimination or malice is not intended by most who have used that word in the past, we must seek a more enlightened understanding of the needs and concerns of disabled citizens in our society. It is unacceptable to continue those old ways of thinking."

The committee, under White's executive order, will be renamed the Governor's Committee for Disabled Persons and will consist of 16 members. At least half of those, he said, will be persons with some type of disability.

Authorities won't identify deputies who fired on man

HENDERSON, Texas (AP) — An autopsy showed a 19-year-old man killed during a raid on a marijuana farm died from a single shotgun pellet in the head, a Texas Ranger said.

But authorities refused Friday to identify two sheriff's deputies who fired shotguns at the unarmed, but fleeing man.

Samuel Hendricks, 19, died at a Tyler hospital shortly after noon Thursday.

Texas Ranger Stuart Dowell said an autopsy had determined Hendricks was killed by a single shotgun pellet in the head.

Dowell said the deputies tried to arrest two people in the field Wednesday and shouted repeated warnings at the fleeing Hendricks before they fired.

Michael G. Adams, 33, was arrested at the field and charged with felony possession of marijuana and released on a $15,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace James "Bo" Barrett.

Barrett said Friday another arrest warrant may be issued in connection with the marijuana raid.

Dowell, who was in charge of the shooting investigation, said the results of the investigation will be turned over to District Attorney William Ferguson, who will then routinely present the information to a grand jury.

Neither Dowell or Rusk County Sheriff Michael Strong would identify the deputies who fired on Hendricks. Ferguson said he did not know the identities and was waiting on a written report on the shooting investigation.

Strong said deputies seized 87 marijuana plants, valued at more than $25,000, during the raid on the field nine miles northwest of Henderson.

Rock blasted at Niagara Falls site

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A good-sized chunk of Terrapin Point beside Horseshoe Falls is gone, blown away by a blast of 8,500 pounds of dynamite.

Explosives experts set off the charge Friday to clear 25,000 tons of unstable rock from the point and make it possible for tourists once again to enter the area and get a closeup view of the brink of the Horseshoe Falls.

As several thousand people watched from the U.S. and Canadian sides of the Niagara River gorge, the explosion caused a loud boom, a puff of smoke and shooting rock. Some rock was flung out into the middle of the Niagara River, but most dropped straight down to the foot of the gorge wall.

Among those who showed up to watch was Valerie McCaffery, 25, of Buffalo. "I used to stand on Terrapin Point," she said. "So I decided as long as they're going to blow it up, I might as well come out and see it."

"I don't like it," said Charles Hartman, 26, of New York City. "If it falls, it should fall by its own. Let nature take its course."

Most of Terrapin Point has been closed to tourists for over 10 years because of 6-inch cracks that appeared close to the edge in a large rocky overhang. The section blasted Friday was 100 feet long, 50 feet wide and 130 feet deep.

Health officials call for help in AIDS fight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Officials of big city health departments overburdened by the high cost of caring for victims of AIDS said Friday they urgently need additional federal funds to continue their battle against the disease.

There is an "increasing burden on local governments to provide medical, psychological, housing, and home health care needs for AIDS victims," said Dr. Stuart Shapiro, commissioner of the Philadelphia health department.

He said he recently determined that hospital costs average $45,000 for a victim of the mysterious acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The health officials, meeting at the invitation of Shapiro and Dr. Mervyn Silverman, director of San Francisco's health department, also asked the federal government to help quiet public fears about AIDS.

They said they need educational campaigns stressing that the often fatal disease is not likely to spread throughout the population.

The meeting, which was closed to reporters, was followed by a news conference at which the officials agreed that more federal help was required. AIDS, which began appearing in homosexuals in 1979, attacks the body's immune system, leaving its victims prone to such diseases as Kaposi's sarcoma, a rare cancer, and pneumocystis carinii pneumonia.

AIDS has struck almost 1,700 people and has killed about 650 of them, according to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. For reasons that are unclear, it is most likely to strike homosexuals, Haitians, abusers of injectable drugs and hemophiliacs.

Doctors believe it can be spread only by sexual contact, contaminated needles and blood transfusions. The majority of the victims have been in New York City and San Francisco. Philadelphia has had 22 cases.

Friday's session was the first national meeting to discuss ways to handle public reaction to the often-fatal disease, Shapiro said.

"We need to act as quickly as we can because new cases are being reported weekly, actually daily, throughout this country and people out there are becoming afraid," Shapiro said before the meeting.

Jeffrey Levi, a spokesman for the National Gay Task Force, told the health officials that doctors at the CDC "have absolutely no understanding" of the need for confidentiality in treating people with AIDS.

He said the federal government must involve homosexuals in policy planning and must work with their organizations to assure homosexuals that they are not being discriminated against.

Officials scheduled to attend the meeting were from Washington, Kansas City, New Orleans, Boston, Chicago, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Newark, Miami, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Reagan wants banks, S&Ls to have more power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration wants banks and savings and loans to be on a more equal footing with the financial giants that have been moving into their savings-and-lending territory.

In a comprehensive plan, the administration Friday recommended legislative changes that would let bank and savings-and-loan holding companies offer securities, insurance and real estate services to their customers.

"Dramatic changes are taking place in the financial services industry," said a Treasury Department statement. "Distinctions that have previously existed between banking and non-banking services are becoming increasingly outmoded."

Such financial giants as Sears Roebuck and Co., Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc. and American Express Co. "are rapidly approaching the point where they can offer one-stop financial shopping."

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan predicted that the entry of bank- and thrift-holding companies into new financial fields would create more competition.

"Additional competition, as always, will provide consumers with more and better financial products and services at lower cost," he told reporters.

The administration's proposal would permit banks and thrifts to offer the new services as long as they were conducted in an institution's parent company or a subsidiary of the parent company, and kept separate from the traditional banking operations.

"We're trying to insulate the deposits and the activities of the bank or thrift from these new ventures because the bank is protected by deposit insurance as is the thrift," Regan said.

He also said the separation was needed so that banks and S&Ls — which "have a unique way of acquiring funds" through deposits — don't have a competitive advantage over other financial institutions.

Specifically, the proposal would allow the holding companies or their subsidiaries to:

- Deal in and underwrite U.S. government and municipal revenue bonds but generally not industrial development bonds;
- Sponsor, manage, advise and control mutual funds and underwrite their securities;
- Conduct insurance underwriting and brokerage activities;
- Take part in real estate investment, development and brokerage activities. A bank-holding company's investment in real estate development and investment activities would be limited to no more than 5 percent of its capital.

The legislation also would permit additional activities that the Federal Reserve Board decides are of a "financial nature" or closely related to banking. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the chief S&L regulator, would be able to veto such activities for savings and loan-holding companies.

Both Volcker and Regan said they would like Congress to act on the measure — the Financial Institutions Deregulation Act — this year.

Greg Jaklewicz

Hey, Knott a bad idea

The fast-motion sports world paused for a moment Saturday afternoon and turned its attention to Knott, Texas.

KNOTT, TEXAS????

Sure. That ever-growing community of between "22 and 50,000 people" just west of Highway 87, 14 miles north of Big Spring.

What a sportsman's paradise. Smack dab in the middle of downtown Knott is Lake Knott and South Lake Knott. Perch are said to be so friendly they swim up on the shore to sunbathe and chat with fishermen. Hey, that's what they told me.

The scene Saturday was the first-ever Knott Fun Festival, an event guaranteed to have something for everyone. If cake walks, dunking booths or homemade ice cream wasn't your idea of excitement, there was Three Wheel Rodeo along the shores of beautiful South Lake Knott.

Because I had often joked — mistakenly, of course — about the many tourist attractions of Knott, Paul Hopper invited me to participate in a variety of three-wheelin' events. Since I have a high threshold of embarrassment I accepted his invitation although I had never boarded one of these vehicles.

Not wanting to debut on a three-wheeler like Bill "On Parade" Nehls at the Big Spring Christmas parade, I took things rather slowly. To help me out, Hopper gave me a tour of the obstacle course before the pros arrived.

Of course I was too slow and lagged behind on a section of sandy hills. As I tried to wind my way out of a narrow path among tall weeds, I took a sharp turn too fast and ran my three-wheeler into the jungle. Yes, I panicked and jammed on the brakes. Yes, I flew further into the weeds, doing a two-and-a-half flip over the handlebars.

I laughed off my sore knee — and pulled weeds out of my face — to bravely enter the poles, barrels, obstacle course and bloomers competitions. My three-wheeler was not built for speed — thanks, guys — and thus the officials didn't use stopwatches to time me, opting for calendars and sundials instead.

I heard later my nickname was "Marathon." Funny, Hopper, real funny.

The problem was I had been placed in the wrong division. The open class was no place for a rookie; the powderpuff division was more to my liking.

These three-wheelin' people are serious about their sport. One group from Stanton came dressed for the dust in racing attire. Others said they reeled and wheeled every weekend in some hills just east of Big Spring. The kids, complete with their endless energy, are probably still out there.

A three-wheeler of moderate power runs nearly $1,700 and can defeat almost any terrain. A few racers Saturday even challenged the waters of South Lake Knott and managed not to drown. A few perch were run over in the confusion, however.

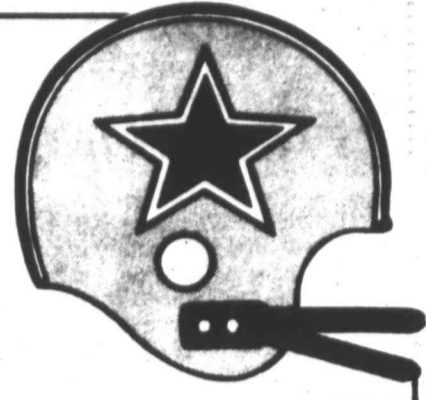

In the end, as people are apt to say, a good time was had by all. I can add a page to my quest to play every and any sport, regardless of how hard people might laugh.

The winners received nothing from their efforts other than hearing their names read over the megaphone. The main thing was having a fun time and the proceeds of the day go to a most worthy cause.

Hopper says they'll be talking about July 9 for a year in Knott. My three-wheelin' adventure won't be taken quickly forgotten either.

Dallas opens training camp

Landry says dedication is key to Cowboys' success

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Rookies and a group of selected veterans report to California Lutheran College here today as the Dallas Cowboys open their 1983 training camp.

Veteran quarterbacks, centers, wide receivers and running backs are set to report voluntarily next Sunday with the remaining veterans arriving Thursday, July 21, as the Cowboys launch their bid for the NFC Championship and a berth in Super Bowl XVIII.

Arriving Sunday with the Cowboys rookies will be second-year veterans Rod Hill, Jeff Rohrer, Monty Hunter, Phil Pozderac, George Peoples, Brian Baldinger and Brad Wright, plus first-year players Jim Eliopoulos and Scot McLean. This group represent all rookies from the strike-shortened 1982 season, including linebackers Eliopoulos and McLean, who spent the year on injured reserved following training camp injuries.

The Cowboys' rookies will scrimmage the Los Angeles Rams' rookies on Wednesday, July 20, at Cal State-Fullerton. The club's annual intra-squad scrimmage will be held Saturday, July 30, at Cal Lutheran.

The following Saturday night, Aug. 6, the Cowboys open their preseason schedule against the AFC champion Miami Dolphins in the annual Salesmanship Club benefit game at Texas Stadium.

Following the game the Cowboys return to Thousand Oaks, located 50 miles northwest of Los Angeles, and prepare to face the Los Angeles Rams at Anaheim Stadium on Monday night, Aug. 15.

The Cowboys break camp Aug. 19 and return to Dallas to host their final two preseason games of the year, both nationally televised against the Pittsburgh Steelers (NBC) Saturday night, Aug. 20,

"The Cowboys possess sufficient talent to go to the Super Bowl. I think it comes down to how much you want to win."

Cowboy's coach
Tom Landry

and against the Houston Oilers (CBS) Saturday night, Aug. 27.

All NFL teams must reduce their rosters to 60 players by 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday, Aug. 16, to 50 by 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday, Aug. 23, and to 45 by 4 p.m. EDT Monday, Aug. 29.

The championship season opens for the Cowboys on Sept. 5 at RFK Stadium in Washington against the Super Bowl champion Redskins in the nationally televised Monday Night Football opener on ABC. In a rematch of last season's NFC finalists, Dallas will be trying to win its 18th league opener in 19 years and 10th road opener without a loss. In last season's Monday night opener, Pittsburgh snapped the Cowboys' NFL record of 17 consecutive season-opening victories.

Other goals the Cowboys will work toward in 1983 include their 18th straight winning season, 17th playoff appearance during that span, 13th division championship, sixth Super Bowl appearance and third Super Bowl championship.

Coach Tom Landry enters his 24th season as head coach of the Cowboys determined to find the missing ingredient that has left the team one game shy of the Super Bowl three years in a row.

"The Cowboys possess sufficient talent to go to the Super Bowl," Landry says. "The thing we discovered the past two years is that teams can go to the Super Bowl without great experience and without exceptional talent. Therefore, I think it comes down to how much you want to win. Your dedication, your effort, your determination to be the best is the bottom line in football now."

Landry says he will be much quicker this year to change starters and play backups more.

"The reason we're doing this is basically because we need to have the ability to overcome what has taken place the last three years," he explains. "We've been in three NFC Championship games and we haven't been in the Super Bowl. That means your team needs a little bit more than it's had, and the thing you need more of is dedication. You need more commitment and you've got to be more competitive. The only way you get that is through competition."

"If you have a player who goes through a tough competing situation on the team, then you're going to have a player who can help you. I may not change starters, but I'll surely play guys more than I have in the past."

Landry does not see the Cowboys needing great improvement in any particular area in order to reach the Super Bowl.

"We have our strong and weak moments, but I don't see any area in which we could not perform at a level that could take us to the Super Bowl," he says. "Obviously, we're not playing well defensively all the time and I think we can improve. Our linebackers need to improve their performance and overall our defense needs to play more consistently well. The same thing can be true of our offense, which has no real weakness except inconsistency."

New Comanche golf pro up to par

20-year veteran begins dressing up city course

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Turning a "picturesque" layout into a golf course that will be recognized as one of the best in the area is top priority for new Comanche Trails pro Al Patterson. The former Fort Myers, Fla., pro joined the city staff June 28 and has already instituted some of his ideas at the course. He replaces Bobby Maxwell who resigned earlier this year.

"This golf course is absolutely one of the most picturesque and sportiest in this part of the country," Patterson says. "All that it needs is food, water and a haircut."

Comanche Trails regulars have already noticed the airtification program Patterson has begun. Organic fertilizer has been hauled to the course and spread over the fairways which have been disced to allow air to reach the roots and water to seep deeper into the soil. "We'll have some turf out there soon," Patterson promises.

Next on the "want list" are cart paths that will further enhance the attractiveness of the course. "Already on the drawing board, too, is an automatic watering system," Patterson said. "What we need is good turf management. I'm getting good cooperation from the city fathers."

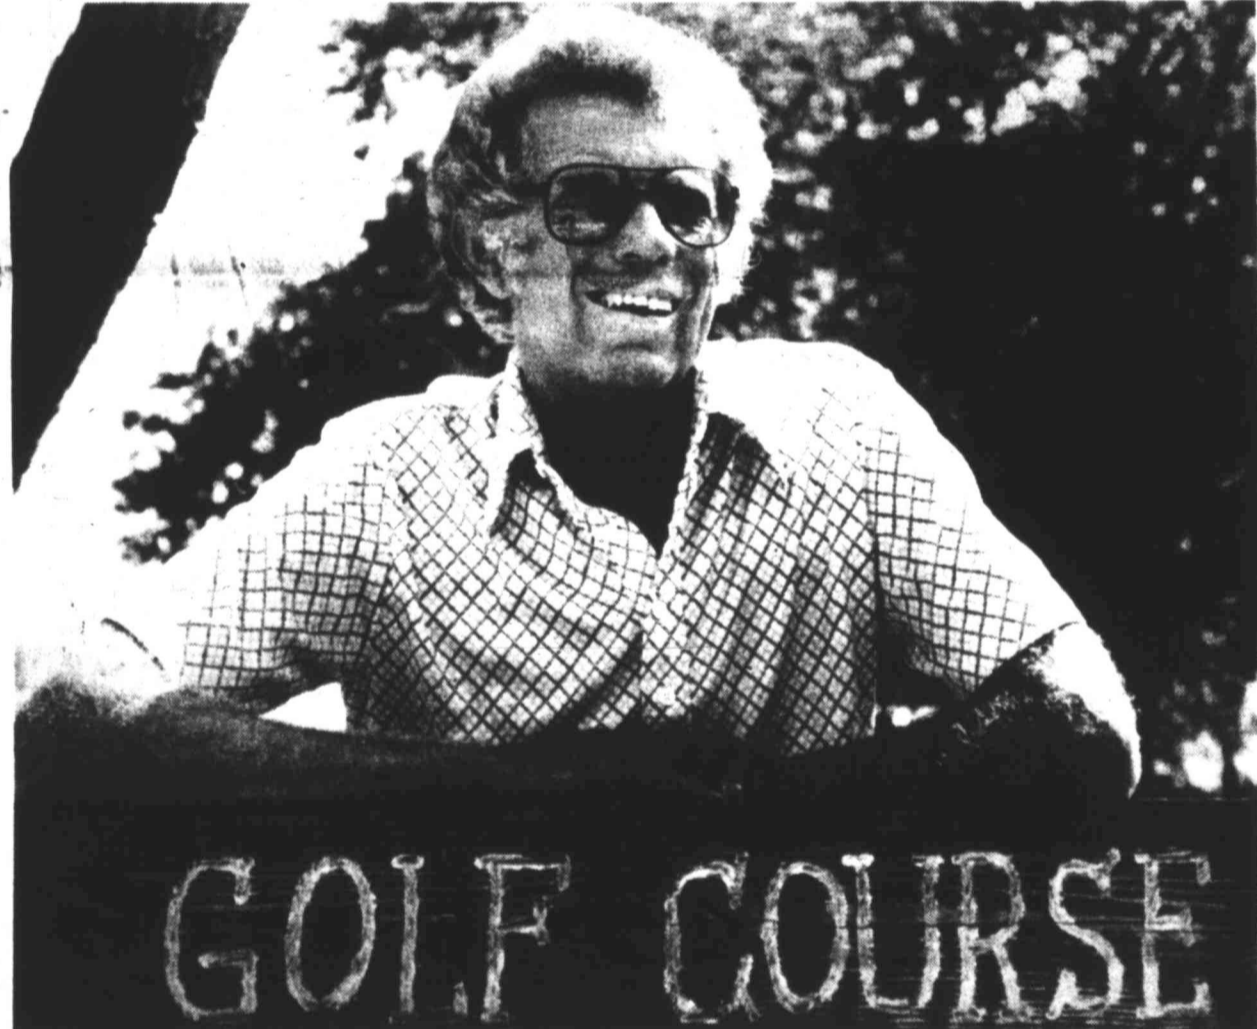

Heavier watering has been instituted over the entire 18-hole layout. The tee boxes and fairways are being watered at night, allowing the daytime city employees to begin on the greens at 6:30 a.m. "We're getting a lot more water on the course, now," Patterson explained. The tee box markers have been moved to prevent the constant wear on the grass and green mowers have been instructed to cut the grass in different patterns to increase even-ness around the pins.

Improvements have also begun on the pro shop, including the addition of two Indian figures on the clubhouse. "They're Hoppi's, not Comanches," Patterson laughs, "but I guess they'll do."

The snack bar and grill have been re-opened, lounge area cleaned up and new equipment, belonging to Patterson, stocked in the golf shop. "I've been working from 6:30 to 9 every day," the new pro says, "but I've loved every minute of it."

With the facelift on the course, Patterson expects more golfers on the course. A recent study shows that 200 golfers play each weekend day while 150 play during the week. "As we get better conditions, more people are going to play it," he says.

He doesn't expect the $3 green fee ($4 on holidays) to rise but admits he has no control over price increases.

VIEWING A BRIGHTER FUTURE — Al Patterson, recently hired golf pro at the Comanche Trails Golf Course, sees long-awaited improvements becoming realities at the municipal golf course. Patterson brings 20 years of golf course management to Big Spring.

Programs for junior golfers and women will also bring more Big Springers to the municipal course. In 1956, Patterson began a junior program at Fort Myers with eight youngsters. Four years later, the local high school won the state team title.

The annual city championship has been moved to October for three reasons, Patterson added. Playing the tournament in the fall will avoid the hot weather, not conflict with other area tournaments and give the course time "to get back in shape."

Patterson has 20 years experience as a club pro, serving the duration at the Fort Myers Golf Club. The graduate of the University of Miami won National Golf Shop of the Year honors in 1973.

He came to Big Spring from Hobbs, N.M., where he was in private business. His only previous connection with the city had been when he was a tennis court representative.

Friends in Lubbock had informed him of the opening for a pro in Big Spring this past spring. "When you're in the golf business for 20 years, you want to get back in it. I really had missed it," Patterson said. Working with him at the course will be his son, Scott.

Bryant's dive in OT lifts Stars past Blitz

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kelvin Brant dove into the end zone from 1 yard out 7:02 into overtime, sending the Philadelphia Stars past the Chicago Blitz 44-38 Saturday in a United States Football League semifinal playoff game.

The Stars will meet the winner of Sunday's Michigan-Oakland game next Sunday in Denver for the first USFL championship.

After winning the coin toss to start the overtime, the Stars marched from their own 27 to the winning score, using up 14 plays.

Bryant, named the USFL Player of the Year this week, finished 142 yards rushing on 24 carries.

Quarterback Chuck Fusina passed 11 yards to Tom Donovan with 50 seconds remaining and David Trout kicked the extra point to conclude Philadelphia's stirring rally to tie the game.

The Stars trailed 38-17 before mounting the fourth-quarter spurt, capped by Fusina's short pass over the middle, which Donovan carried into the end zone. It was Fusina's third touchdown pass of the game.

Philadelphia's other fourth quarter points came on TD passes by Fusina of 17 yards to Scott Fitzkee and 2 yards to Jeff Rodenberger, plus a 42-yard field goal by Trout.

After a 42-yard Chicago punt, the Stars steadily moved the ball downfield from their own 30 with 2:46 left before Fusina hit Donovan.

In their last meeting, the Stars stormed back for a 31-24 victory over the Blitz, using three Chicago turnovers for the decisive scores.

Chicago quarterback Bobby Scott passed for two touchdowns as the Blitz intercepted four passes and recovered three fumbles by the Stars, turning six of those plays into points.

A crowd of 15,684 attended the USFL's first postseason game.

Fusina completed 22 of 33 passes for 254 yards, three touchdowns and four interceptions. He rushed for 66 yards.

Scott hit eight of 14 passes for 80 yards and two scores. Kevin Long led the Blitz with 76 yards rushing.

The Blitz opened the fourth quarter with a 21-point lead, scoring after fumble recoveries by Ed Smith and Stan White and an interception by Carl Allen.

Scott passed 12 yards to Mack Boatner, Tim Spencer scored on a 1-yard run, and Frank Corral kicked a 32-yard field goal to make it 38-17.

Chicago led 21-14 at halftime, with its touchdowns set up on interceptions and a fumble by Fusina.

Cornerback Virgil Livers hauled in a Fusina pass with nine minutes left in the first quarter and Long dove over from the 1 for the Blitz's first touchdown eight minutes later.

Safety Luther Bradley recorded his 13th interception of the year, grabbing another Fusina pass and returning it to the Stars 19 less than a minute into the second quarter. Scott capped a drive with a three-yard run with 13:21 to go.

Philadelphia came within 14-7 with 5½ minutes left in the half on Bryant's 10-yard run. But the Blitz came back with another touchdown after linebacker Jim Fahnhorst fell on a Fusina fumble on the Blitz 41.

Scott passed 12 yards to Trumaine Johnson with two minutes left in the half.

Michigan-Oakland game features 2 top passers

DETROIT — Philadelphia's opponent in the first-ever USFL championship game will be decided today when Michigan, 12-6, takes on 9-9 Oakland.

Passing could be the key to this match-up of Central and Western Division winners. The Panthers, whose late rush earned them the Central Division crown, have the top-rated passer in Bobby Hebert. The rookie from Northwestern Louisiana hit on 257 of 451 passes for 3,568 yards and 27 touchdowns.

Oakland's Fred Besana led the invaders to the Pacific Division title by completing 345 of 550 passes for 3,980 yards and 21 TDs, ranking just behind Hebert.

"Hebert is a fine young quarterback who has developed rapidly," said Invaders Coach John Ralston. "That's another good thing about this league. If he had gone to the National Football League, he would have sat."

Panthers Coach Jim Stanley was just as lavish in his praise of Besana.

"I think Besana is one of the top quarterbacks in our league," said Stanley.

January regains Syracuse lead

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Don January's birdie barrage Saturday — including six in the first nine holes — and his second 6-under-par 65 in three days, gave him a two-stroke lead going into the final round of the $150,000 Greater Syracuse Seniors Pro Golf Classic.

En route to a nine-hole course record 29, January recovered from a disastrous 75 on Friday and set the stage for his third straight Professional Golf Association Seniors tour championship and fourth in seven events.

His 54-hole total of 205 was two strokes better than second-round leader Jim Ferree.

January set records Thursday for the Bellevue Country Club and the second-year tournament with a seven-birdie, one-bogey round of 65.

His round Saturday was identical in the number of birdies and a bogey on his finishing hole, but he was even more on target — with a 20-footer his longest birdie putt.

Seniors

Ferree double-bogeyed the 18th hole of the par-71, 6,604-yard course to finish at 207, while Billy Casper shot even-par 71 and Gene Littler a 70 to share third place three shots behind January.

Rod Funseth and Paul Harney — at 210 each — stayed in the chase, while Peter Thomson slipped in at 211.

No degree, no job

Former NBA star fails at coaching position

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (P) — Rick Mount, one of the most celebrated players in Indiana basketball history, has been turned down for a high school coaching position because he never received a college degree.

"I'm kind of disappointed, but at the same time, rules are rules," Mount said of the decision by Commissioner Gene Cato of the Indiana High School Athletic Association.

The former All-American at Purdue University and five-year veteran of professional basketball is 26 hours short of completing his undergraduate work at Purdue. The rejection of his application to become coach at Lafayette Central Catholic High School was announced Friday by Supt. Paul LaRocca.

"You've got to respect the IHSAA's rules, and I have nobody to blame but myself," Mount said. "I was looking forward to the opportunity to coach, and at the same time complete my degree at Purdue."

"But now I've got to start over," Mount, 36, said he will send resumes to the Converse, Wilson and McGregor sporting goods companies in hopes of landing a job as a sales representative.

Mount had run a sporting goods store in his hometown of Lebanon since retiring from pro ball in 1976. He recently sold the store and said he wanted to return to basketball as a coach.

He inquired about an assistant basketball coaching position at Iowa State University under Coach Johnny Orr, but Mount said Friday that job had been filled.

"I wish things had worked out at Central Catholic," Mount said. "However, I would not try and do anything to hurt the IHSAA, and I will live with their decision."

According to the IHSAA Handbook, only certified teachers can coach varsity basketball or football in Indiana. Emergency status for coaches who do not have college degrees may be granted for other sports.

Mount was Indiana's "Mr. Basketball" in 1966 and was the first high school athlete on the cover of Sports Illustrated. The 6-foot-5 shooting guard was a two-time All-American at Purdue, where many of his Big Ten Conference records still stand, including a 34.8-point career average.

Mount dropped out of Purdue before graduation in 1970 and signed with the Indiana Pacers. He played with Indiana and three other teams during a five-year stint in the old American Basketball Association, retiring in 1975. He made a brief comeback attempt the next year, but he said he lost interest in playing and returned to Lebanon where he opened the store.

Cato, a longtime friend of Mount, said, "Emotionally, I wish the decision could have gone the other way, but in this issue, I could not allow myself to become emotionally involved."

"I'd like to help Rick Mount in any way I can, but there are 400 basketball coaches in this state who have paid their dues by completing their degrees, and we just couldn't make an exception."

"Had Rick been able to finish his degree during a summer school session, we could have possibly granted Central Catholic's request," Cato said.

Pooley storms into GTO lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Don Pooley shot a 4-under-par 68 Saturday for a one-stroke lead over Wally Armstrong after three rounds of the $250,000 Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Pooley, 31, birdied two of his first three holes and finished with only one bogey as he established a 54-hole total of 205, 11 under par over the 7,010-yard, par 72 Tuckaway Country Club course.

Pooley started the third round tied for the lead with Mark O'Meara, at 137. O'Meara slipped to a 75 Saturday and was seven strokes back at 212.

Tied at 207 were Mark Calcavecchia, who shot a 66 Saturday, along with Dan Pohl and Ronnie Black, both of whom shot 67s.

Pooley, who has made the cut in 16 of the 18 tournaments he has entered this year, birdied his second and third holes to begin his break from the pack.

He bogeyed his last hole, but retained the lead when Armstrong played his 18th in par.

Milwaukee Open

Armstrong, 38, plans to quit the tour after this season in order to spend more time with his family. But before that, he wants to cushion his bank account.

"That was the hardest decision of my life," Armstrong said. "I thought, 'Why do I have to spend $60,000 and break my head just to break even?' I just don't feel that at this point in my life that I want to pay that price."

Calcavecchia, 23, credited his hot round to a set of irons borrowed from fellow tour member Ken Green. But he said tee shots are the key here.

"The key to success here is four tee shots — the four par-5 holes," Calcavecchia said. "I've played them two-under in three days, which isn't too bad."

Black said he would try to play his normal game in the final round and ignore the leader board.

"If you execute your shots, and just concentrate, the pressure is not that big a deal," Black said. "It's who handles the pressure best who wins."

Five contestants were tied at 208: Richard Zokol, Larry Mize, Lonnie Nielsen, Mick Soli and Bill Murchison. Mize and Zokol matched Calcavecchia's 66 for the day's best round as hot, dry and relatively windless conditions invited low scoring.

Tied at 209 were Tze-Chung Chen, Payne Stewart, Roger Maltbie and Morris Hatalsky. Defending champion Calvin Peete shot a third round 73 and was at 215 with four others.

4 Cowboys cooperating in federal cocaine case

DALLAS (AP) — Four members of the Dallas Cowboys — Tony Dorsett, Harvey Martin, Larry Bethea and Ron Springs — volunteered to cooperate with federal authorities after their names were mentioned in a cocaine investigation, team president Tex Schramm said.

"I have no indication that they are suspected of any illegalities," he said. "We've been aware of this. It's not a new situation. We're aware of it."

"I was told about it by our National Football League security people in New York, and that four players, through their attorneys, had talked to authorities on the basis of 'tell us what you want to know,'" Schramm told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Friday night.

The New York Times said Saturday that, according to federal law enforcement officials, the four players had been mentioned on an FBI wiretap as users of small amounts of cocaine and that their lawyers had been negotiating, and perhaps plea-bargaining, with authorities.

"I have no direct knowledge of the story," said Schramm. "I do know that the four players have been in touch with the authorities because their names were mentioned in some case."

Coach Tom Landry told the Dallas Morning News that he had talked with the players about allegations of drug use, but that "I don't know what was done as far as plea-bargaining." The Times said it was not clear whether the players were named or heard on the wiretap. But U.S. Attorney James Rolfe of Dallas said that none of the four Cowboys was mentioned on the recording.

"There was a Title III electronic surveillance authorized by a federal court, but to my knowledge the (four Dallas Cowboys) were not involved in it," Rolfe told the News. "No member of any professional sports team has turned up on any electronic surveillance."

Schramm said he had not talked with the four players. "I don't intend to, because I hadn't heard anything I didn't know."

Dorsett, a running back, told the Times by telephone from Shreveport, La., that he knew nothing about an investigation but said, "I'm sure if I'm questioned I'll cooperate."

He declined to comment on the report that he had been identified on the wiretap as a cocaine user.

Bethea, a defensive tackle, could not be reached for comment. But his agent, Spencer Kopf, told the News that he was unaware of any drug investigation.

Springs, a running back, could not be reached at his Dallas home.

Martin could not be reached for comment, but his attorney, Dan Guthrie, declined to confirm or deny that the defensive end was talking to authorities.

Martin's name has been linked to another drug matter.

He and Cowboys wide receiver Tony Hill were subpoenaed Wednesday to appear as defense witnesses at the Dallas trial of Lauriberto Ignacio, who was indicted by a federal grand jury in April for allegedly conspiring to smuggle cocaine from Brazil to Texas.

Ignacio, 39, is scheduled for trial Aug. 1. Referring to the Ignacio case, Schramm said he had "no idea of what the purpose behind having them (Hill and Martin) testify is."

Guthrie said lawyers for Ignacio want Martin to testify because, according to Guthrie, he is implicated in a Drug Enforcement Administration report that will be presented as prosecution evidence at the trial.

"It will basically be to refute certain allegations contained in the DEA report," Guthrie told the Times, "and show the unworthiness of certain witnesses."

Bonnell jumped on the Charlie Hough offering and launched it into the bleachers for a two-run home run that helped lead Toronto Blue Jays to a 5-1 victory over Texas Rangers Saturday. It was the Rangers' third straight loss.

"It didn't move like he wanted it to," said Bonnell, whose homer capped a three-run inning. "The thing is that with knuckleball pitcher, 10 percent of the time it doesn't work real good."

Luis Leal, who was relieved by Roy Lee Jackson in the eighth, scattered eight hits and boosted his record to 9-6. It was the third straight loss for Texas.

Toronto erased a 1-0 deficit in the fourth against Hough, 7-7, with the help of a throwing error by Texas shortstop Bucky Dent. With one out, Lloyd Moseby and Ernie Whitt walked and Dave Collins followed with a grounder to second. Dent got the force at second but his hurried relay to first bounced up the line, allowing Moseby to score.

After Collins stole second, Bonnell drilled his fifth homer of the season.

The Jays added two runs in the seventh. Collins led off with a single and moved to third on Bonnell's double. Alfredo Griffin drove in Collins with a sacrifice fly and Damaso Garcia added an RBI single.

George Wright put the Rangers ahead 1-0 in the top of the fourth with his eighth home run of the season.

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie Ron Kittle hit a two-run homer and Greg Luzinski had three hits and drove in two runs Saturday to lead the Chicago White Sox to an 8-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Kittle's 19th homer, a 425-foot blast after Luzinski doubled in the fourth inning, erased a 2-1 Milwaukee lead.

Davey Lopes led off the Oakland sixth with an in-field single and scored when Lansford slammed a 1-1 pitch from Detroit starter Jack Morris, 8-8, into the lower deck in left field for his fifth home run of the season.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pinch-hitter Rick Sweet snapped an 0-for-21 slump with a run-scoring single in the 10th inning, giving the Seattle Mariners a 3-2 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday night.

The loser was Sammy Stewart, 2-3, the fourth Baltimore pitcher. Bill Caudill, 2-5, pitched the final two innings to notch the victory.

Thon's blasts rip Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston's Dickie Thon, who weighs 150 pounds, doesn't look like a power hitter. And up until this season, he wasn't.

Thon had hit three career home runs — all last year — in parts of four major-league seasons.

On Saturday night, however, he drilled his 11th and 12th homers of the season as the Astros roughed up Tom Seaver and the New York Mets 7-3. Thon has now homered twice in a game three times this season, a feat he had never accomplished once in the past.

Thon, who also had a single in going 3-for-4, raised his batting average to .319 and his run batted in total to 46. Last year, he drove in 36 runs.

"I'm not surprised that I'm hitting this well," said the 25-year-old infielder.

"I learned quite a bit playing with (Philadelphia's) Ivan DeJesus and (New York's) Jose Oquendo in Puerto Rico during the winter," said Thon. "I'm really not a power hitter. Tonight Seaver threw two hanging sliders and I was just trying to make contact."

"I've learned to step back on the pitch when it's anything but a fastball."

Joe Niekro and Frank DiPino combined to stifle the Mets on six hits: Tom Seaver, 5-9, took the loss before a crowd of 49,598.

Houston's Terry Puhl hit a one-out homer in the first inning, his third of the season, and Thon followed with a home run. One out later, Jose Cruz walked, stole second and scored on Ray Knight's single for a 3-0 lead.

The Mets scored twice in the bottom of the fourth on a two-run homer by Keith Hernandez, his sixth of the season.

Thon opened the fifth with a home run into the left-field bullpen, marking the third time this season he has homered twice in a game. Houston made it 7-2 in the seventh on Pujols' suicide squeeze.

Junior Ortiz had a run-scoring single in the seventh inning that chased Niekro, 6-7. DiPino allowed one hit the rest of the way to pick up his eighth save.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench's one-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning scored Dave Concepcion from second base with the winning run, lifting the Cincinnati Reds to a come-from-behind 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night.

Concepcion scored when Bench singled on a 0-1 pitch from reliever Willie Hernandez, 3-1, who took over in the ninth for Steve Carlton, who had earlier moved ahead of Houston's Nolan Ryan in their neck-and-neck race for the all-time strikeout leader.

Carlton had failed to hold a 1-0 lead in the eighth, when Ron Oester's RBI single tied the game.

Tom Hume, the third Cincinnati pitcher, picked up his first victory against three losses.

Carlton struck out six to jump ahead of Houston's Nolan Ryan as the all-time strikeout leader. Carlton's 3,575 career strikeouts put him two ahead of Ryan, who fanned 12 batters on Friday night to grab the lead for a day.

MONTREAL (AP) — Pinch hitter Randy Johnson's two-out single snapped a 10th-inning tie and Rafael Ramirez added a two-run single as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Montreal Expos 8-5 Saturday night.

A two-out error by Expos third baseman Tim Wallach opened the door for the go-ahead run. Biff Pocoreba followed with a single off reliever Bryn Smith, 1-4. Johnson then drove in Glenn Hubbard with a single to left.

Rainey scored as Bill Buckner's grounder forced Sandberg at second and Woods came home when shortstop John LeMaster threw wildly to first trying to double up Buckner. U.S. wins women's basketball

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Carol Menken-Schaudt's basket with 13 seconds left wrapped up the United States women's 86-85 victory over Yugoslavia Saturday and lifted the Americans into the gold medal game of the XII World University Games.

Meanwhile, Cecelia Fernandez pushed the U.S. gold medal total to four on the ninth of 11 competition days. The 20-year-old from the University of Southern California won the women's singles tennis championship by defeating Soviet Olga Zaytseva 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

The only other U.S. gold medal winners had been swimmer Bruce Hayes, diver Greg Louganis and shot putter Michael Carter in the poorest U.S. showing ever in these games.

Fernandez's victory marked the first American gold medal since Louganis and Carter won their titles Wednesday.

The Americans' basketball triumph pushed their record to 5-1 and earned them another shot against Romania, 4-0, in the championship game at 11 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Romania handed the U.S. women their only defeat in this round-robin tournament 87-71 Thursday.

The victory also helped ease the sting of Canada's 85-77 upset of the heavily favored U.S. men's squad Friday night. The U.S. men took on Cuba in the bronze medal game Saturday night.

Menken-Schaudt, a 6-foot-5 center

Jasmina Perazic paced the Europeans with 21 points while Deklava added 18. It was the first defeat in five games for the Yugoslavians.

Mary Ostrowski, a forward from Tennessee, scored 16 points, while her schoolmate, Lea Henry scored 10 of her 12 points in the first half, helping keep the Americans within three points of Yugoslavia.

Two free throws by Menken-Schaudt gave the Americans the lead for the first time, 67-65, with 9:11 left in the second half.

Menken-Schaudt was unaware of the importance of her basket that provided the three-point cushion.

"I didn't know the score or how much time was left," she said. "But I knew we were in trouble and I had to get open. I made sure I checked the scoreboard after I made it."

Jill Hutchison, the American coach, knows what her team must do to avenge its earlier loss to the Romanians. "All of their players are good perimeter shooters so we've got to play tougher perimeter defense," said the Illinois State mentor.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"WHEN YOU WERE YOUNG, DID YOUR CAR HAVE A GRUMBLE SEAT?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Medium... medium... medium..."
"LARGE please, Daddy."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY 7-10-83
GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is excellent for introducing yourself with the finest mental and spiritual tenets and principles that are available but the afternoon and evening finds delays and obstacles.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do whatever will require that some condition at home but later do not be fearful. Be sure to safeguard books.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Meditation is wise in the morning. It may not be easy to get together with a good friend as you had planned to do.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can figure out the best way to handle a financial problem tomorrow, so make notes in order to remember every detail.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Self-improvement is on your mind early but later the situation at home makes this a bit difficult for you to do.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) Meditating very early in the morning will find it hard to extricate yourself from worries. Figure out how to get rid of them.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Morning is the best time to meet with friends and coming to a fine agreement for later. It would be too difficult to do so.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) The morning is best for being out in public since later little could be accomplished. Put practical affairs aside for awhile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Listen to the advice of a wise person today and then later do nothing that can jeopardize your good name.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use only your good judgment if anything important comes up, since your hunches are not very reliable today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to understand persons around you are very sensitive and don't criticize them, don't be annoyed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You find it hard to plan for the coming week in activity, so just let it unfold as it will be ingenious.

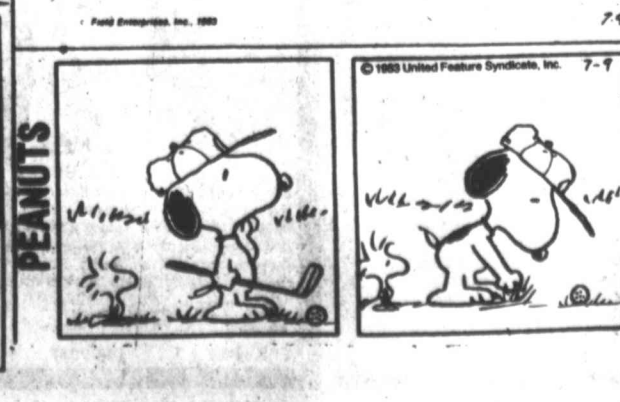

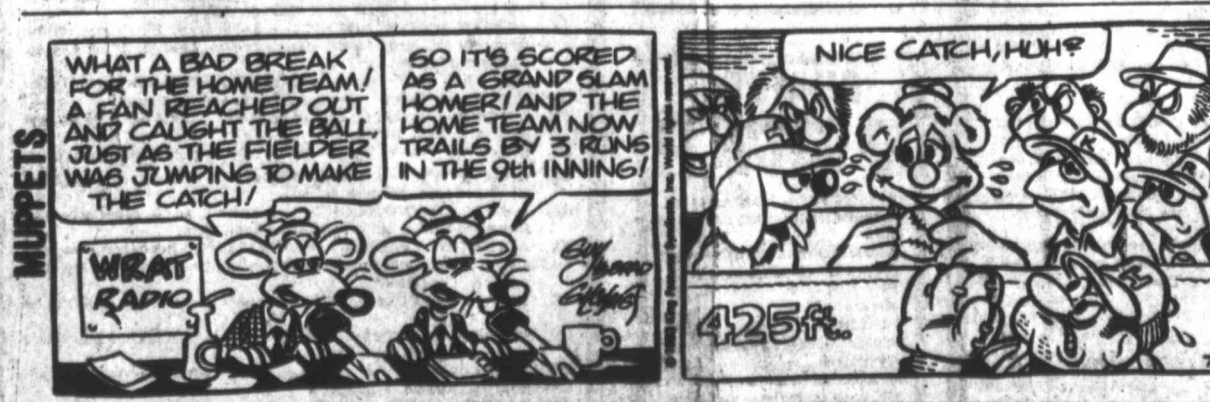

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Early make that appointment of a pleasurable nature for next week, then get busy and please the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...
...he or she will be one of those charming young persons to whom study comes very easy and will absorb a great deal of information which can be valuable upon reaching maturity when many a problem has to be faced and solved.
"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Film pirate thefts underscore lure of video market

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two thefts by gun-wielding film pirates of prints of "Return of the Jedi" last week underscore how the lucrative lure of the home video market is increasing the stakes for movie bootleggers.

"It's not uncommon to have a burglary, but this is the first time we've had two thefts by gunpoint," said Richard Bloeser, director of the Motion Picture Association of America's Film Security Office.

At least three other burglaries of the blockbuster "Star Wars" sequel also have been reported since its release, Bloeser said, "probably a record for such a short period."

In the past, pirates worked mainly by bribery or stealth to obtain 35mm studio prints and copy them on to 16mm film. Their clients were mostly wealthy residents of the Mideast, Africa and other areas where American films were scarce and popular.

"There weren't that many homes with 16mm projectors," Bloeser said, estimating reported thefts at 30 to 40 a year.

But with 30 million video players in homes worldwide, and 10 million expected in the United States by 1984-85, the potential for profit is skyrocketing.

"Every one of those homes is a potential customer for the pirate," Bloeser said. "We're talking about estimated losses as high as $700 million a year."

Consumers are not sympathetic to the problem, he added.

"All they can think about is, 'The motion picture industry makes millions of dollars a year, so why should I worry?' It's like cheating on your income tax and making false insurance claims."

First-run, smash hits like "Jedi" — which has grossed more than $155 million since it opened six weeks ago — are particularly attractive because legal tapes are unavailable. FBI Special Agent Larry Dick, who heads a white-collar crime squad investigating film piracy, said a good-quality video of "Jedi" can fetch up to $200.

With those numbers in mind, the makers of "Jedi" arranged extremely tight security for its distribution.

Most pirates simply "borrow" a studio print by bribing someone involved in distributing the film — a lab or warehouse employee, a truck driver, a projectionist. The pirate keeps the film only long enough to run it through the film chain and then returns it, often without anyone ever discovering it was gone.

But "Jedi" was sent to theaters at the last minute in boxes bearing stickers saying the prints were secretly coded so unauthorized copies could be traced, said Carole Alt, print department manager for 20th Century-Fox.

There was no actual coding, but Ms. Alt said she believes the warning may have led thieves to return one "Jedi" print — apparently unscreened — the day after it was stolen in Columbia, S.C.

Children take vacation from violence

CHICAGO (AP) — A group of 160 Irish Catholic and Protestant children are on a summer vacation in America under a program designed to give them a respite from sectarian violence and show them that people of different faiths "can live in harmony without fighting."

The 80 Catholic and 80 Protestant children from Northern Ireland arrived Friday for their six-week stay — some of them moist-eyed and overwhelmed, some calm and collected, some ecstatic at what Bob O'Connor, head of the sponsoring Irish Children's Fund, called "the opportunity of a lifetime."

The children, ages 11 to 13, trooped off a chartered jet at O'Hare International Airport and wound their way into the open arms of their host families.

"We've been waiting for this day the last six months because it means so much to us," said Bill Daley, 42, of suburban Naperville, whose family will host Janet Cooke, 12, of Belfast. "Sharing the peace we have here in this family is important. It's an emotional experience for us."

Janet "happens to be Protestant, we happen to be Catholic, and it doesn't make any difference at all," said Daley. "In fact, it's important that she realizes in this country that Catholics and Protestants can live in harmony without fighting."

Philip and Paul Shepherd, 11-year-old twins, bubbled over about getting a crack at American sports.

"I'd like to play basketball and football," said Philip, as his brother nodded vigorously.

The non-profit, non-sectarian agency placed the children with northeastern Illinois families of all ethnic backgrounds, and will sponsor a summer camp, soccer games with local youths and outings to ball games, amusement parks, and the state Capitol.

The organization was formed last year to give Catholic and Protestant children from Northern Ireland a rare opportunity to become friends through yearly vacations, or at least realize the potential of peaceful co-existence.

When the children return home, they are encouraged to keep in touch through reunions. O'Connor feels the agency's effort eventually may help end some of the religious segregation and violence that long has plagued Ulster.

Schools and neighborhoods in Northern Ireland are "totally segregated, so the children have no opportunity to mix at all, which breeds misunderstanding and fear," he said.

"The whole purpose is to get them away from the violence, show them what a normal childhood is, a society where people mix very well, and to get them together," said O'Connor, a marketing executive who immigrated to the United States from Dublin, Ireland, 20 years ago.

Man accused of murder describes night of beating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The man accused of killing Alfred Bloomingdale's former mistress says it was her stream of worried chatter about her finances that drove him to repeatedly strike her with a baseball bat in their rented North Hollywood condominium.

Vicki Morgan, the former model and longtime mistress of the late millionaire, was "going on and on and on about everything," said Marvin Pancoast.

"I didn't want to kill her. I just wanted her to go to sleep. I just wanted her to be quiet for a while. I was tired," Pancoast, 33, said in an interview Friday night with The Associated Press in the hospital ward of Los Angeles County Jail.

"God acts in many strange ways. Maybe he had me do it," said a gaunt Pancoast, who broke down in tears several times during the one-hour interview.

"If so, I can dig my own grave, too."

Pancoast was booked for investigation of murder Thursday after he turned himself in to police, who said he confessed to killing Miss Morgan, 30. For 12 years she was mistress to Bloomingdale, a member of President Reagan's "kitchen cabinet," who died of cancer in August 1982.

The coroner's office said that her skull had been fractured by repeated blows to the head. Her bloody body, dressed in a nightgown, was found on the bed of the $1,000-a-month condominium.

Miss Morgan had filed a $10 million lawsuit against Bloomingdale a year ago, saying she had been his mistress, therapist, confidante and sex partner. The bulk of the suit recently was dismissed by a judge.

Despite monthly payments of $10,000 to $18,000 from Bloomingdale to Miss Morgan during the course of their relationship, Pancoast said, the former model was broke at the time of her death.

She had planned to move Thursday to a less expensive Burbank apartment and Pancoast said he intended to support her and her son until a book she was writing about Bloomingdale was completed.

Miss Morgan's son, Todd, 14, was away the night of her death. It was his bat Pancoast said he used to bludgeon her.

BOOKED — Marvin Pancoast has been booked for investigation of murder in connection with the death of Vicki Morgan, reported to be his live-in girlfriend.

'Little People' to gather in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Managers of the Marriott Long Wharf Hotel are making special preparations so this week's convention guests will feel at home, with mini-stairs and platforms for reaching keyholes and registration desks.

About 500 members of the Little People of America — dwarfs who average about 4 feet in height — are expected at the hotel for seminars on medical problems and family planning, a fashion show, an outing at Fenway Park and a pickup softball game in Boston Common.

At the hotel, five portable 32-inch flights of stairs and mounted platforms on 25 boxes borrowed from the catering department will make keyholes, doorknobs, toilets and wash basins more accessible. Extra chairs will be provided so convention members can stack two or three to sit comfortably in the dining rooms.

Actor Billy Barty, who founded the organization nearly 30 years ago, said 21 members attended the first convention in Reno, Nev., in 1957. "Now we have 2,500 members across the country and chapters have also been formed in the British Commonwealth, Germany, Japan, Israel, India and the Netherlands."

However, he said there are still thousands of potential members the organization has yet to reach.

Ruth Ricker, 24, a Northeastern University senior who is this year's convention chairwoman, said there are some "physical problems associated with being a little person because of our bone structure."

"But there are also many myths that have developed over the years — that we're mentally inferior, that we live in dollhouses, or that by nature we're mean little people," she said.

"Some people tend to shut themselves off from the world," said Albert Staples of Somerville, who with his wife, Celeste, is on the convention committee, "and those are the people we hope hear about us and join our group."

"Little people have their own medical and social issues to deal with," said Dr. Charles I. Scott, chairman of a medical advisory board that works with the organization. "But in the final analysis, they're people. Their self-determination — and their national organization — has helped them realize that."

Howard College picks 8 coeds

1983 Presidential Classics named

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Eight young women have been selected as this year's Howard College Presidential Classics. The women are Vicky Lee Baggett, Amy Lyn Ragan, Felecia Lee Ford, Tammy Jan Peugh, Jana Michelle Higgins, Pam Riddle, Kathi M. Wallis and Julie Elizabeth Dudley.

The Presidential Classics are the official hostesses for the junior college district, says Mary Dudley, coordinator. They are sponsored by Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard County Junior College District.

Members of the Classics work in college public relations and help with community functions as representatives of Dr. Hays and the college district. SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf also will be having a group of five Classics similar to the Howard College group this year.

The girls are recommended by their high school counselor or principals. Some girls also apply on their own. The selection process is determined by the girls' high school leadership, academic achievement, public relations-type personality and attractiveness.

If they have been in college prior to applying for the Classics, their selection also depends upon their college records, college activities and achievements. The girls must maintain a 3.0 grade point average to continue in the group.

Last year the Classics participated in activities from helping with the Science Fair and community events to helping at company award banquets. In addition many have modeled for fashion shows. The members also participate in the college's high school visitation programs for student recruitment.

"We had been and have been in an image building program for the last nine years and wanted a group of young ladies to serve as our official college hostesses," said Dr. Hays. "(They) represent me and the district to any kind of visiting group of students or dignitaries as our public relations students to the community."

MISS BAGGETT, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Derrill Baggett, is a graduate of Forsan High School where she participated in basketball, track, band, twirling, student council, FHA and National Honor Society. "I think that being a Classic would help me to get involved in college life and to make new friends," she said.

MISS RAGAN, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Ragan, is a graduate of Big Spring High School. While attending BSHS, she was active as a varsity cheerleader. She also participated in student council, honor society, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, varsity volleyball and basketball and Meistersingers. "I want to be involved in Howard College activities and I feel that being a Presidential Classic would be the best way to achieve this," she says. "I am proud to be able to attend Howard College."

MISS FORD, 18, is a voice major who recently graduated from Big Spring High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Dunbar and Roy Ford. At BSHS, Felicia participated in student council, varsity cheerleading, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Future Homemakers of America, theater arts, Meistersingers and was a bat girl. She also is the current America's Perfect Teen 1982 and Miss San Angelo 1983. She lists her hobbies as weightlifting, canoeing, meeting people, traveling, singing and watching sports. She says being a Classic will give her the opportunity to contribute to Howard College, meet many exciting people and travel.

MISS PEUGH is the only returning Classic and sophomore. She is 19, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Peugh of Stanton, and a graduate of Sands High School in Ackerly. During her first year at Howard College, she participated in Phi Beta Kappa, intramural basketball and the Miss Howard College pageant. She also was an honor student. Miss Peugh's hobbies include sewing, racquetball, swimming and clothes. When asked why she wanted to become a Classic, she said, "It fills a need in college activities. I enjoy meeting new friends. It is a part of college life and I like the opportunity to represent HCJC."

MISS HIGGINS, 18, is one of three Coahoma High School graduates to be named as Classics. She is the daughter of William H. Higgins. At CHS, she participated in cheerleading, basketball, track, speech, theater, Future Homemakers of America, Fellowship of Christian Athletes and Hero Chapter. Miss Higgins lists acting, being with friends and family, playing and being around children, meeting and talking to people as her hobbies. She plans to major in either communications or elementary education. "I would like to be a Classic because I have heard very good things about the program and I feel it would get me involved in Howard College," she said.

MISS RIDDLE is another 18-year-old graduate of Coahoma High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip E. Riddle. She was involved in Future Homemakers of America, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, student council, 4-H, UIL, drama, speech, one-act play, Office Education Association, basketball, track and cheerleading while at CHS. Her hobbies include acting, singing, running, swimming, reading and ceramics. She plans to major in mass communications during her college career. "I would like to be a Classic because it is the quality group of Howard College," she said, "and I feel that being involved with this group will give me an opportunity to work with the community and grow and learn with other people."

"I feel that my being a Classic will help me to get to know people and will give me the opportunity to be an active part of HCJCD," says MISS WALLIS. She is the 17-year-old daughter of Joe and Kay Wallis. Miss Wallis graduated from Coahoma High School. She participated in band and was a drum major. She was active in speech, one-act play, National Honor Society and was Student Council president. Miss Wallis enjoys watching old movies, playing the saxophone and decorating cakes. She lists social studies as her college major.

MISS DUDLEY, 17, graduated from Big Spring High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry L. Dudley. She was a cheerleader in 7th, 8th and 9th grades. She also was a member of Tri-H-Y, Future Homemakers of America representative, DECA vice president, and a member of the French Club. Her hobbies include racquetball, skiing, reading, swimming and listening to music. She will be a business major at Howard College. "I want to get involved in all of the college activities and meet new people," she says. "Being a Classic will be the best way to do this."

Rx for your gardens

by DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Follow a gardening check list for July

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of gardening and horticulture columns by Don Richardson, Howard County extension agent — agriculture.

The following is a garden check list for July.

1. If pyracantha, sycamore and elm leaves are taking on a light tan appearance, look for lace bugs on the underside of the leaf. If control is needed, Diazinon or Malthion should do the job.
2. Spider mites can cause trouble on most any plant. Kelthane is still the best control once populations build up to the point the plant is endangered.
3. Check the mulch in flower beds and shrub borders. If wind, rain or decomposition has reduced it to less than two inches you had better apply additional material. It conserves moisture, prevents compaction, reduced weed growth, and makes those weeds that do grow much easier to pull.
4. After seeing so many excellent landscape plants killed or severely damaged last summer through the misuse of herbicides, Dr. Robert Berry, Ext. Plant Pathologist at Lubbock recommends the Santa Claus method of Weed Control. It's Hoe! Hoe! Hoe!
5. Continue to apply black spot control to roses at least every week to ten days. Either Funginex or Benlate give excellent control.
6. Review the overall landscape and note any additions or changes needed that can be incorporated into the landscape this fall or winter. Keep it simple.
7. If mulch is not used in a flower bed or garden, the soil should be lightly cultivated to prevent compaction and excessive moisture loss by evaporation through the soil crust.
8. Don't forget to water large leafed plants like hydrangea, coleus, caladiums, and chrysanthemums. Even in shade the hot dry wind can soon deplete the soil of moisture where these plants are grown.
9. Still time to plant such summer annuals as periwinkle, salvia, zinnia, marigold and portulaca. Best results can be obtained from transplants if available, however, direct seeding is also successful if soil is kept damp until seed germinates.
10. Removal of spent flowers, trimming back excessive growth and applying fertilizer to an established annual bed can do wonders towards the rejuvenation of the bed.
11. If your spring flowering bulbs produced small flowers that are few in number it was probably due to overcrowding. Now that the foliage has died down, it would be a good time to dig them up, thin out and throw away diseased, damaged or small bulbs. Work in organic matter and a complete fertilizer high in phosphorous and replant the best bulbs.

12. If leaving on vacation, arrange with a reliable neighbor's son or daughter to pick up newspapers, mow the lawn and to water flower beds, vegetable gardens and lawn area. The yard won't look so vacant and will be less inviting to unwanted prowlers.
13. Have you checked your air conditioning unit? Refrigeration experts tell us the unit will be much more efficient if the condensing coils can be shaded from the afternoon sun. A small tree or a lath structure would be very helpful.
14. Iris can be thinned and replanted this month or in August.
15. Are you mowing your lawn too low for hot weather? You may need to raise the mower slightly this month.
16. Chrysanthemums should receive their last pinch in mid to late July.
17. Gladiolus corms can be dug, cured, and stored in a dry, well ventilated area as soon as the foliage has turned brown.
18. Evergreen euonymus turning white and leaves dropping? Could be scale or powdery mildew. Best control is to eradicate the euonymus and plant Yaupon, Pittosporum or Elaeagnus in its place.
19. When was the last time you sharpened the blades on your lawn mower? Have you changed oil or cleaned the air filter on your powder garden tools? Regular maintenance pays dividends!
20. Check leaves of marigolds, tomato plants and many other plants for spider mites. If the leaves loose color, turn dry, with a fine webby appearance on leaves and stems, it is a good sign of spider mites. Check underside of leaf with hand lens as they are small. Kelthane used according to label directions gives good control.
21. Fall webworms are showing up on many trees including pecan, mulberry, ash, persimmon and others. These unsightly caterpillars eat leaves within the web area where they are protected from predators. Spraying with Sevin, or one of the biological controls as Dipel or Thuricide according to label instructions will give control but pressure must be great enough to penetrate the web.
22. Plant enthusiasts have developed many home methods of cleaning plant leaves. Probably the safest one to use is warm water to which has been added some mild liquid dish detergent and wipe the leaf surfaces using a soft cloth or sponge. Before using any new method or material, try it first on one or two inconspicuous leaves and allow about 12 to 18 hours before observing the results.
23. Repair any storm damage to trees and shrubs immediately.

Remove any broken limbs or branches by making the cut flush with the branch or limb from which it originated or by cutting back to a side branch. Don't leave stubs.

24. During periods of low or no rainfall, water plants when they need it, not by the calendar. When you do water do a thorough job so water penetrates the soil six to eight inches. Then wait until soil becomes dry in the upper inch or so before watering again.

25. Excellent time to set out small mum plants either from cuttings you made in May and June or by using small garden mums available in your favorite nursery or garden center. Place 15 to 18 inches apart. Pinch tips of stems several times to keep compact and bushy.

26. The adult form of the white grub commonly called May or June Beetle emerges sometimes in June. It will be about 45 days from the date of the peak of the emergence before you need to check the lawn area for young grubs. If more than four grubs are found in a one foot square area, treat with granular Diazinon or Dursban used according to label instructions.

27. Now that hot weather has arrived, many trees and shrubs will have some of the lower leaves in the interior of the plant crown that will turn yellow and drop. This is due to shading by the leaves in the outer canopy and should cause no concern unless it becomes excessive.

28. To make summer flowers cut from the flower beds last longer, try these suggestions: Always cut blooms in late afternoon, after they have had a full day of sun. Place flowers in a deep container filled with lukewarm water. Place container in refrigerator until water has chilled. Then remove and keep in a cool place until ready to arrange flowers.

29. Bare spots in the lawn under the trees? Try working up the soil and planting English Ivy, lirope, ajuga, vinca or other shade tolerant groundcovers.

Focus on the Family

Develop a home storage plan

Today's trend toward smaller living areas means less space for storage.

The purpose of storage is to provide a place for items not in use or until they are needed. But most of us have more items to be stored than space in which to store them.

A family storage plan can help utilize limited storage space more effectively. Start by assessing your storage needs. Take a close look at your family's size, composition and lifestyle.

Family composition makes a difference since storage needs change as family members grow and change. In planning for storage space anticipate changes that will take place during the next five years. You may need space to store games and toys right now, for example, but five years from now you will need space to store teenagers' records and stereo equipment.

Lifestyle also must be considered when planning for storage. Consider storage for hobbies and recreational equipment, whether you live formally or informally and how often you entertain. All of these things will affect the amount and type of storage needed by the family. If you hate to dust and dislike clutter, for instance, adding open shelving for storage wouldn't make much sense.

Examine your home's existing storage space next. Take note of the type, size and flexibility of the present storage facilities. Categorize facilities into built-in or portable storage. Now you are ready to make objects within available storage space.

Take an inventory of items to be stored. Solve part of your storage problem by cleaning out closets and discarding unused items. As you take your inventory note the area where the item is normally used, how often it is used, its approximate height, depth and length and the number of items of this type to be stored.

Now you are ready to develop a storage plan. In deciding where to store an item, keep in mind these simple principles:

- Store items near their place of first or last use.
- Place items within easy reach.
- Keep items that will be used together in the same place.
- Store things where they will be protected from damage or adverse conditions.

When you are satisfied with your plan, move items to their new location. As your family changes and your storage needs change, reconsider your storage plan to be sure it still meets your needs.

Dear Abby

Trucking couple needs lighter load

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a long-distance truck driver. When he's home he eats constantly. He doesn't like to eat alone, so I have to eat with him. In addition to the meals I make, he brings home treats like fried chicken, ribs, pizza, etc. He loves ice cream and puts away a quart at one sitting. (I can imagine what he eats when he's on the road!)
 In the five years we've been married, he's gained 80 pounds and I've gained 70. I never say anything about his belly, but he says plenty about mine. When he's watching TV he snacks on potato chips and drinks beer. His eating drives me to drink. (Wine. More calories.)
 I love to dance, but he doesn't take me anywhere anymore because he's ashamed of the way I look. Now he's threatening to dump me. I'm so far gone (fat), dieting is out of the question. I dream about being thin again.
 What should I do?

BEING DUMPED IN IOWA

DEAR BEING DUMPED: Begin by seeing your physician for a thorough checkup. Then locate the nearest Overeaters Anonymous chapter and attend a meeting. (I've attended some, and have found the group to be incredibly loving, caring and understanding.) You need support and encouragement from people who have been where you are now. Please go. Get yourself in shape, then go to work on your husband. And if he doesn't follow suit and shape up, you might want to dump him!

DEAR ABBY: Recently I met an interesting professional man at a party. (I'm a woman in the same profession.) We hit it off rather well and he asked for my phone number. A few days later he called and asked me to have "a drink" with him that evening. I declined, saying I had an invitation for cocktails and dinner. Abby, it's been years since I accepted a date for "a drink only," but I still remember how humiliated I felt, sitting in a cocktail lounge, nursing a drink, and hoping the guy would decide I was worth a dinner too.
 Please give me a snappy reply to let a man know that I think "a drink only" invitation is tacky and insulting and I'd rather not hear from him again.

NOT THAT NEEDY

DEAR NOT: Why bother with a snappy reply? Just tell the man how you feel about "a drink only" invitation, and you won't have to worry about hearing from him again.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to give your readers (if you print this) some information I paid a psychiatrist

Rebekahs to install officers

The Big Spring Rebekah Lodge #284 met Tuesday with Annie Branson, noble grand, presiding. Eleven visits to the sick was reported.
 New officers will be install on July 19. The next meeting will be July 12.

Tidbits

By TINA STEFFEN Lifestyle Editor

Shirley Shroyer gets a surprise

SHIRLEY SHROYER got a nice surprise at Highland South's Annual 4th of July Parade. She won a stained glass hanging decoration of a fruit basket in a raffle. The piece of art was made by MRS. JIMMY MOREHEAD.
 JANET SCHULTE has become a part of the Herald team for the summer. She is an advertising intern from University of Texas at Austin.
 Janet will complete her work on a master's of business administration degree at UT this December. She came to the Herald June 27 and will complete her internship the last of August.
 Janet's interests are jogging, backpacking, traveling and "anything outdoors."
 MR. AND MRS. TOMMY HART went to Fort Worth recently. They picked up daughter PHYLLIS and visited Galveston.
 TOMMY AND LAURIE CHURCHWELL went to Dallas, June 30-July 4. They took two of Laurie's dancing students with them and attended a dance convention called "Dance Caravan." The students were CHARLENE RODRIGUEZ and MARCI WEAVER.
 Lauri, Charlene and Marci participated in several dance workshops taught by many famous dancers. The instructors were GUS GIORDONO, LOUIS MCKAY, CASEY COLE (who is currently featured in "Sophisticated Ladies"), BLAIR FARRINGTON (choreographer for the "Merv Griffin Show" and featured in "Octopussy"), and JOEY SHECK (who choreographed Michael Jackson's videotape to "Beat It").

 PATRICK DUFFY, Joey's best friend, accompanied Sheck and observed the workshops Joey taught. Patrick plays Bobby Ewing on the TV show "Dallas." While the girls were working out with the dancing stars, Tommy was in heaven himself by getting to sleep until noon and lying out at the hotel pool from 1-5 p.m. every day. "He took it real easy," says Laurie.
 KAREN WOODALL and CANDY JOINER flew to Dallas recently and spent time at Six Flags Over Texas. Candy's favorite ride at Six Flags was the log ride. While in the metroplex area they visited with NORMAN AND LINDA ARNOLD of Irving and formerly of Big Spring. The Arnolds are Karen's aunt and uncle.
 MR. AND MRS. ARCHIE ADKINS had guests recently. Their daughter and son-in-law, LOUISE AND BILL TEMTE, and granddaughter, RACHEL, were here from La Crosse, Wis.
 The Adkins held an open house for their relatives June 26. The Temtes also spent some time in the Fort Davis area.
 Bill is a resource director for West Wisconsin Technical Institute. Louise works for an air conditioning company.
 Well that is the latest. Until next week...

Dr. Donohue

Exercise reduces adrenalin tensions

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband is not one of your fitness nuts, but someone at work has sold him on the idea of "running off his frustrations." Does this work? He is in a hectic office situation all day and he says he feels "all wound up" when he comes home. He has taken this advice and has started jogging immediately after getting home. It's only for a couple of miles around the neighborhood. He says it relaxes him. And wonder of wonders, he says it's even better than his home-from-work martini. No matter what you say, I don't think I'd ever discourage this but I am curious about whether this relaxation theory holds up. — H.P.

Your husband is correct. Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper, who is a leading authority on exercise physiology, agrees with him. In his book "The Aerobics Program for Total Well-Being," Dr. Cooper says that increasing the body's metabolism can eliminate some of the accumulated adrenal fluids built up during a hectic day and produce more relaxed state. And, quite to the point in your husband's instance is that he state clearly that it's a great way to unwind at the end of a tension-filled day, and it certainly beats double martinis, which end up being mental depressants.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will wearing sunglasses help or hinder me when playing sports? — M.H.

They'll help. But you have to select your glasses carefully. Cheap ones will only darken your world. You should get the kind that filter out ultraviolet light and minimize vision distortion. The best colors, according to the experts, are neutral gray, greenish gray or brown. Those colors offer best protection and alter your natural color perception least. Sunglasses help also by reducing the need to squint. But it's important to be sure the frame fits you well so that it remains snugly in position.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am confused over the question of what is the best energy source — sugar or fats. Which is it? You've said fats once and sugar another time. Which is it? — D.D.

The answer is that both are good energy sources. Now I've really got you confused. I guess I should say they're best compared to protein.

Let's look at our three energy sources — fat, carbohydrates (sugars) and protein. They are all present in our bodies. Fat is a high-energy source. Why? Because for every gram of it, you get nine potential calories to use. A 150-pound man has between 63,000 and 126,000 calories stored as fat, so you can see what a huge energy tank that constitutes.

Carbohydrates, however, are not such a great energy source, but they will give four calories for every gram. That same 150-pound man would have 8,500 calories stored as carbohydrates. So you can see that's definitely a secondary source.

Now we come to protein. It makes up most of our body weight, chiefly muscle. But it is poor energy source. Give this set of statistics, why do we say fat is the prime energy source? Because when you exercise at very high intensity for a short period, you get your early energy from carbohydrates, but it's a source that is pretty quickly depleted.

Then your body starts using your stored fat for energy. This is why marathoners load up on carbohydrates the day before the run. They want to build up their carbohydrate energy tank, so to speak.

But once that is gone, they have to call on their fat sources. The last tank, so to speak.

But once that is gone, they have to call on their fat sources. The last tank you want to drain is the protein store. I hope this makes things clearer for you.

FOR L.A. — Resumption of athletic activity following mono depends on a lot of things, how well the youngster feels, his appetite, and whether or not his spleen is still enlarged. If there is any question about spleen enlargement, then he should not play contact sports.

The method of hair removal known as waxing will last 4 to 6 times longer than other hair removal techniques if done properly. Unlike shaving or the use of depilatories, hot wax penetrates the skin's surface to remove each hair at the follicle. Each time the hair is removed in this manner, it progressively weakens until it may stop coming out altogether. Defuzzing techniques, on the other hand, remove hair only at the skin's surface. Waxing is an idea which has gained acceptance with a large percentage of today's women who dislike repeatedly removing hair by other methods. The day may soon come when men face up to their hair removal method as well. Use red shades of lipstick to accentuate the whiteness of teeth.

Farm Bureau plans its queen contest

The Howard County Farm Bureau has announced plans for the annual Queen Contest. The contest is open to girls 16 to 21 who are daughters of Farm Bureau members or are Farm Bureau members themselves.

The winners will represent Howard County in the district contest, with the district winner representing this part of the state. Winners of the contest at district will receive prizes, and the chance to compete for college scholarships at the state competition.

The most recent winners of the Howard County queen contest, Miss Robin Ethridge and Miss Kelli Bearden, both represented District 6 at the Texas Farm Bureau Contest, with Miss Ethridge winning the title of Texas Farm Bureau Queen in 1980.

President Paul T. Hopper said, "We are looking for good participation. We invite many of the girls as possible to enter." The contest will be held July 30 in Big Spring.

Hopper added that, in conjunction with this contest, a Talent Find competition will be held. "The talent contest is open to both boys and girls, and has many of the same awards as the Queen contest," he said.

Both in Howard County and at the state level, Farm Bureau has many programs that aid in the development of the local youth.

Steve, Lori Johnson

honored at parties

A bridesmaids luncheon honoring Lori Broughton, bride of Steve Johnson, and her bridal attendants, Brenda Campbell and Sherri Rogers, was held July 1, at the home of Virginia and Paula Allen of Coahoma, hostesses.

Special guests were Mrs. Harold Broughton, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Ralph Skidmore, mother of the bridegroom, Myrlene Rogers, 1616 E. 17th, the bride's grandmother, and Theda Broughton of Rt. 1, the bride's aunt. Miss Broughton is the great-granddaughter of Mrs. Pearl Rogers, 806 W. 15th.

Friday evening after the rehearsal, a country-style barbecue at Al's BBQ honored the bride and bridegroom. It was co-hosted by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Broughton, and Bill and Wanda Kuykendall.

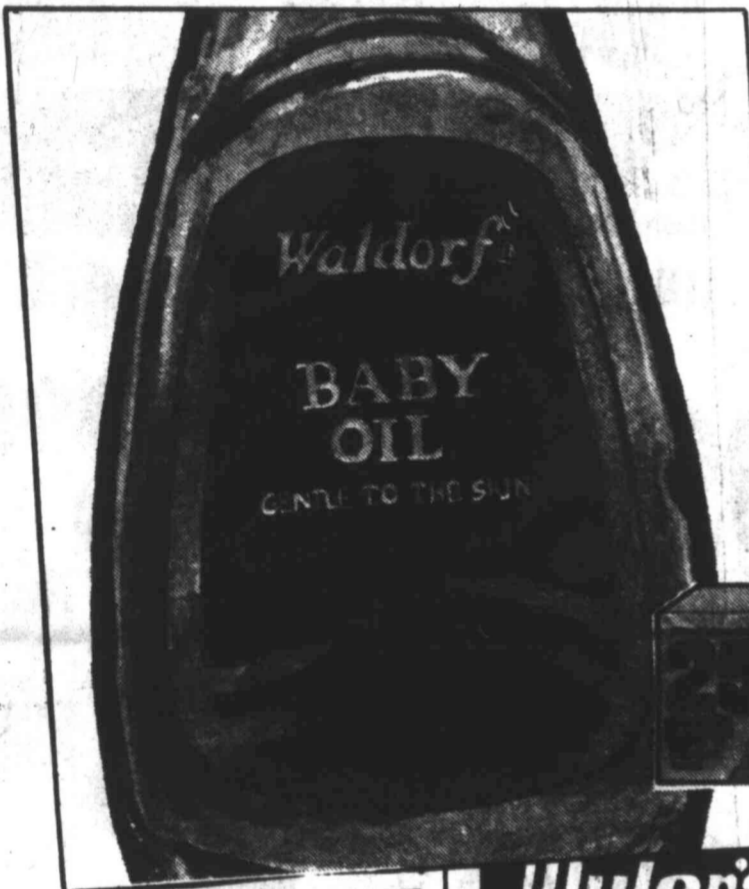

Quartet tables were trimmed with burlap and centered with red candles in soup cans and wooden candle holders. These were trimmed with red yarn and dried flowers.

Special guests were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Myrlene Rogers, and aunt, Mrs. Jewell Forrest.

The couple was married July 2 at Prairie View Baptist Church. Dr. Don Claybrook, pastor of Georgetown Southern Baptist Church in Georgetown, Ind., officiated.

Never will your church aisle seem longer than on your wedding day! Here at THE ACCENT SHOPPE we suggest that you walk up the aisle on your father's right arm as it has the advantage of leaving him in the most convenient position to reach his seat in the left pew afterward. It also leaves your right arm free to be given to the groom, who will join you from the right. And—don't forget to smile!
