Commissioners meet privately with West

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners huddled with Justice of the Peace Bobby West in a closed meeting yesterday after a citizen complaint was lodged against the judge at the commissioners regular meeting.

Bob Noyes of 2402 Cheyenne asked if the peace justice's office is necessary to have open at all. Noyes told commissioners that, as he was addressing the court, no one was in the Precinct 1, Place 1 peace justice's office.

He requested the issue be placed on the agenda for the next commissioner's meeting.

Commissioners contacted West and met with him in executive session. No action was taken.

Following the closed meeting, commissioners discussed sick leave policy with County Treasurer

Bonnie Franklin and decided to change current regulations due to what commissioners called "abuse of sick leave."

The new policy will allow employees three days a year sick leave without a doctor's excuse being necessary, according to commissioners. All sick leave after that will require a doctor's notice.

All department heads will be required to keep record of employees' sick leave.

In other action, commissioners agreed to bid on the building currently used by the Howard County Boxing Club. The Northwest Fourth Street building is owned by the Big Spring school district, which is selling it.

Commissioners met in emergency session to approve the bid. Boxing club personnel had requested the county bid for the building at the June 27 commission meeting. See County, page 2A

Citizens protest Bell's recent rate hike plea

DALLAS (AP) — A parade of witnesses attacked Southwestern Bell's request for a $1.8 billion rate increase, saying the utility spends lavishly on needless advertising while pushing for rates that would make telephone service a luxury item.

During a hearing before Public Utility Commission representatives Monday, Dallas and Tarrant county residents suggested that Bell save on advertising and improve service before getting a rate increase.

But a company representative said Bell could not continue present service levels without a hefty increase.

Witnesses said the full increase, if granted, would leave elderly and needy residents without phones and may lead to a boycott of Bell.

"I feel like I'm being frauded," said Richard L. Dunn of Dallas. "In all cities of Texas, we have poor and elderly who can't even pay the rates now. And if an increase is approved, an increase, I'm going to join a boycott and encourage people to have their phones taken out — because I'm going to be No. 1."

Tracy Curtis, a Dallas city employee, called the request a "guise to gouge Texas consumers" and said that the scheduled divestiture of American Telephone & Telegraph will simply create many local monopolies.

"They want to make us believe that they're just a hometown business, just folks, and all they're asking for is a $1 billion head start against competition that doesn't even exist yet," Curtis said. "Southwestern Bell may consider that healthy business competitiveness. I consider it unjustified, unadulterated greed."

U.S. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, said he will co-sponsor legislation to maintain "universal service," which means low local rates.

Bryant, a member of the House telecommunications subcommittee, did not offer details of his bill. However, similar bills would provide universal service by requiring long-distance carriers to continue subsidizing local companies.

No one spoke in favor of the rate hike request. See Bell, page 2A

Preacher carves with 'God-given' skill

MARSHALL (AP) — It's not art for art's sake, but art for God's sake.

With a block of wood, a simple pocketknife and a 'God-given gift,' the Rev. Phillip Andrews carves himself a niche in this East Texas town.

Phillips, 63 years old but still with the hands of someone half that age, is a wood-carver extraordinaire.

"I've been doing this craft practically all my life," said Andrews. "I started when I was 6, and I made most of the toys we had when we were growing up."

"I take nothing — just some wood — and I make something. I'd say it's a God-given talent."

Andrews turns clothespins into miniature rocking chairs and popsicle sticks into tiny pocketbooks.

And now he's working on what he says is the whittler's greatest challenge — carving a continuous link chain from a single block of wood no more than an inch and one-quarter across.

"This is the last art in carving — making a chain. When you can do that, you can say you've mastered it," he said.

Andrews retired as a pastor a year ago, although he still preaches on occasion. He now spends much of his time in nearby Longview at the Good Shepard Medical Center, where his wife receives kidney dialysis treatment.

"I bring along my work to pass some of the time at the hospital," he said. "I always have several projects going, including the chain."

"But you can't work continuously on a chain because you'll crack up."

Andrews says he carves functional things — a mahogany bed, a white pine magazine rack or a door for his house — for himself. Some of his pieces he donates to schools, or sells.

Some are "for God because he gave me this talent," he said. Andrews is making a pulpit for one local church.

And some are for art — like the chain.

"I don't sell chains," Andrews said. "I made one small one earlier and gave it to my brother. You never let a chain go."

The second chain is the ultimate one, he said. When completed, it will have 42 links the same size as links in steel chain used to bind logs. Sixteen are completed.

"I started it early this year, but I often have to put it down for awhile," he said.

"I guess I can't quit preaching, and I can't quit the wood either," he said. "I'll continue to work with the wood until these hands get too old."

Wood Carver

Rev. Phillip Andrews works on carving a continuous link chain from a single block of wood. Though he retired from preaching a year ago, he continues to preach occasionally, just as he continues to carve.

West Texas infant clings to life as liver search continues

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A 10-month-old West Texas infant was clinging to life today as the search continued for a donor liver — the only thing that could save the child's life, doctors said.

Ashley Bailey remained in critical condition at the University of Minnesota Hospitals, refusing food and being fed through a tube.

The infant, suffering from biliary atresia, an incurable liver disease which hardens the liver, has been hospitalized while a national search for a liver donor is conducted.

Dr. John Najarian, head of the transplant team, met with family members Monday, bringing bad news. "Dr. Najarian said he couldn't give us an exact time limit on her life, but said she could die in two days or in a month," said Annette Bailey Gossett, the infant's mother.

"We've got to get a liver," said Mrs. Gossett. "You can just look at her to know how bad she's feeling. 'We can't even get a smile out of her.'"

Last week, Ashley's condition deteriorated rapidly and doctors feared her lack of energy would diminish chances for a successful liver transplant.

Mrs. Gossett's husband, Gregg, said Narjaian told them Ashley would die within a month without a liver transplant.

Ashley's condition continued to worsen Monday, Mrs. Gossett said.

Testimony begins in local rape trial

A seven-woman, five-man Howard County jury began hearing testimony this morning in the aggravated rape trial of Clifford Bart Dunbar, 22, of Butler, Penn.

The jurors were selected Monday morning.

Dunbar is charged with the aggravated rape of an Ohio teenage girl Jan. 5, 1983 in Howard County. Dunbar was indicted by a Howard County jury for two other charges in connection with the incident involving three Ohio teen-agers.

According to police reports, Dunbar was hitchhiking when he was picked up by the three girls in a vehicle on Interstate Highway 20. The alleged attacks occurred in Mitchell and Howard County.

Dunbar has been in custody under $60,000 bond since his arrest.

District Attorney Rick Hamby will prosecute. Local attorney Wayne Basden was appointed by the court to represent Dunbar. District Judge Jim Gregg will preside.

Skelton faces new counts

ODESSA (AP) — A prosecutor says four new indictments against convicted murderer John D. Skelton could bolster the state's position in an appeal of Skelton's death sentence.

Ector County District Attorney Mike Holmes said Monday that the new indictments, that charge Skelton with four counts of attempting to hire his stepson and another man to kill two other business associates, had been in the works for a couple of months.

The indictments came just hours after Skelton, 54, was sentenced last Friday to die by injection for the See Trial, page 2A

Boot maker gets tanned by judge for tax evasion

FORT WORTH (AP) — Western boot retailer Don Morgan has been sentenced to 18 months in prison for failing to pay income taxes on more than $600,000 in earnings from his Morgan Boots stores.

Morgan also was fined $5,000 Monday by U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr., who ordered him to surrender to U.S. marshals on Sept. 6.

"We all have to pay taxes, but it seems everyone wants to take a chance on getting caught," Belew said before passing sentence. "And the fact that a man like you, who grosses $20 million a year ... if we want this country to stay like it is, we have got to support it."

Morgan, 38, was indicted last December on charges that he filed false tax returns in an attempt to hide $600,000 in income and inflated by $40,000 a damage claim made on a Small Business Administration loan application.

Cattle rustling still problem

BELTON, Texas (AP) — In the early morning hours of Feb. 23, 1982, several men in a rented cattle trailer pulled up to a loading pen on the Claude Hodge ranch near Salado and proceeded to load up 24 head of Charolais heifers.

The scene is familiar enough in Bell County where cattle outnumber people and thousands of ranchers depend on the animals for their livelihood.

But something was wrong. A barbed-wire fence nearby had been cut down. These cattle, weighing between 500 and 550 pounds each and valued at some $8,000, did not belong to the men herding them into the trailer. They were modern day cattle rustlers.

Law enforcement officers says the thieves' task may have been made easier by scattering feed into the loading pen, attracting the cattle which grow more docile as the winter continues. They get used to being fed from the backs of trucks.

The following morning, the same day Hodge reported the theft to Bell County deputy sheriffs, those same cattle were being auctioned in Illinois.

The cattle thieves were eventually apprehended and prosecuted on other charges. Authorities had connected them to the theft of at least 352 head from ranches across Texas.

The scene repeated itself in March of 1983 when three men snatched 12 head from the Bill Southerland ranch off Texas Highway 36.

Ed Foreman, whose job it is to recover missing cattle and track down the thieves for prosecution, said that although cattle has changed drastically from the 1800s, "it's a bigger problem today than it was back then."

Foreman is an investigator for the Texas Cattle Raisers Association. Over the last five years he has investigated more than 100 legitimate cases of cattle theft from Bell, Coryell, Milam, Falls, Lampasas, Hamilton, Bosque and Hill counties. He says at least 50 percent of the cattle theft cases in his area are cleared, but often not before the cattle have been sold or butchered.

About 92 cases were cleared statewide last year, the TCRA reported. Recovered were 649 steers, 893 heifers and 71 horses, about $1.14 million worth of animals.

Texas law has never been easy on cattle thieves. It is defined as a third-degree felony, even if only a $50 calf is stolen. Those convicted face up to 10 years in prison and a fine up to $5,000. If over $10,000 in livestock is stolen, the offense becomes a second-degree felony, punishable by 2 to 20 years in prison and a fine up to $10,000.

Last year district courts handed out 143 years in prison time to cattle thieves and another 146 years in probated prison time.

Still, the thefts continue. According to the Bell County Sheriff's Office Investigator Bruce Stewart, his office investigates about two or three legitimate cattle thefts a month during the winter. At least 50 percent of the thefts reported turn out to be unfounded, he said, and involve cases where cattle simply wandered out of the pastures or were lost in wooded areas.

The chances are good in Bell County that a cattle theft case will be cleared in some fashion; only two have not been in the last eight years. If the animals are branded, Stewart said, the chances are also good a rancher will get his cattle back.

At every cattle auction in the state, a brand inspector is present who records the brands or tags on animals sold. Brands or tag numbers from cattle believed stolen are entered into a TCRA computer system similar to one used by the Department of Public Safety to trace stolen cars, Stewart said.

"If they are branded, the chances are excellent that we will find them," Stewart said. "If not, the chances are slim. It's that simple."

But even better than having cattle recovered is preventing their theft in the first place and Foreman says simple steps can be taken by ranchers to avoid being a cattle theft victim.

Foreman suggested ranchers make an effort to know their neighbors and have them report any suspicious activities in unsupervised pastures, writing down the license plate numbers of any vehicles they don't recognize as belonging to the owner.

Ranchers should avoid building loading pens along easily accessible roadways, Foreman said. Installing strong locks and chains on pasture gates and varying the times and locations cattle are fed and checked also will help, Foreman said.

He also warns against feeding cattle in pens too frequently during the winter months.

"If ranchers herd all their cattle into pens for feeding, they're doing half the thieves work for them."

The Central Texas Council of Government's Criminal Justice Division has applied for a $36,695 state grant for regional rural crime prevention.

The council's Lindell Bishop said the grant monies could go toward a Crime Stoppers-type program to focus on rural cattle rustling.

Regardless of precautions taken, some crimes are unpreventable, Foreman said. Cattle are sometimes shot for no good reason.

Thefts and shootings tend to enrage the average rancher, Foreman said. More than the 60 cents a pound he may get for beef, the rancher loses countless dollars in the care and feeding of a cow to maturity.

"A cow is one of the stupidest animals put on this earth," he said. "It's as if the day it is brought into this world, it starts looking for a place to die. The cattle rancher does everything he can to keep them alive."

"I have never met a single rancher who, if a man came to his home and told him he and his family were hungry, wouldn't offer the man some beef."

Trial

bombing death of John Lee Neal, 43. Neal was killed April 24, 1982, when a bomb wired to his pickup truck exploded.

The indictments allege that, on two days in 1981, Skelton attempted to hire Jerry Don Skelton and Roy Dees to kill former employee Bob Fowler and business associate Glen Danielson.

Holmes said Skelton is scheduled to be arraigned on murder solicitation charges next week. He said difficulties in finding witnesses was part of the reason it took so long to hand up the indictments.

"They're still pretty frightened people," Holmes said, "That's one reason we weren't able to find them."

But Holmes added that Jerry Don Skelton and Dees have both indicated a willingness to testify against Skelton in future court proceedings.

Dees testified during the punishment phase of Skelton's trial that on Sept. 1, 1981, Skelton promised to erase a $30,000 debt if Dees could arrange the killing of Fowler and Danielson. Dees testified he refused the offer.

Other indictments allege Skelton approached his stepson for the same purposes two months later. Last week, jurors deliberated less than three hours before finding Skelton guilty of Neal's death, and about an hour before arriving at Skelton's sentence.

Skelton's attorney, Cliff Hardwick, called the jury's deliberations "surprisingly quick for a case of this magnitude."

Hardwick also claimed that the state failed to prove Skelton was responsible for Neal's death. Hardwick said he was "shocked and outraged" by both the verdict and the sentence.

"I can understand the defense lawyer being upset. He put a lot of work into this case also," Holmes said. "But I believe in the jury process, and that's what they came out with."

Appeals in death penalty cases are automatic.

sioners's meeting.

During a budget workshop Monday afternoon, commissioners approved a 5 percent pay increase for existing county employees for the 1983-84 budget year. In addition, commissioners moved to increase longevity pay from $3 to $8 a month.

County employees are eligible for longevity pay for each year of county employment over three years.

Commissioners approved the abandonment of a

1/2-mile stretch of county road in Precinct 3 near Cauble Road. Commissioners met with attorney Jack Thompson before deciding to abandon the road located between lands owned by John D. Gaskins and R.V. Fryar.

Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore asked commissioners to consider purchasing computer equipment from Howard College, which is replacing its current system. Commissioners took no action.

Bell

Paul Roth, Southwestern Bell vice president, said the attacks on the company were not unusual, but were based on a poor understanding of the situation.

The AT&T divestiture, scheduled for Jan. 1, will cost Bell about $800 million in intrastate long-distance revenue that must be replaced.

"We not anxious to raise rates, either," Roth said. "It's not one of the things we enjoy most. We simply have to. There is no way we can maintain the business or service after Jan. 1 at the current rate level."

The company foresees a $450 million loss because of depreciation changes, expects an increase in expenses and needs to improve its return on investments, Roth said.

Roth also defended Bell's service record and said advertising brings in more dollars than expenses and costs the average consumer less than 17 cents per month.

Patient pulls out gun after dentist pulls out tooth

DALLAS (AP) — An east Dallas dentist says he doesn't have "the slightest idea what got into" a patient who tried to shoot him after having a tooth pulled.

The 24-year-old man came in about noon Monday complaining of a cavity problem and Dr. William Jenrette said he went straight to work trying to get at the root of the problem.

"He was as nice as any human being on earth could be," Jenrette said. "He hadn't said one bad word to me, not one bad word."

However, the situation changed quickly after Jenrette yanked the tooth.

The patient went to the waiting room and told his mother, "I am going to kill him," Jenrette said. The man then passed out near the front door of the office, the dentist said.

Paramedics were summoned from a fire station across the street and concluded the man was faking.

"I didn't think he was faking — until he got up off the floor," Jenrette said. "He ran to his car ... His mother said he was going to get a gun and kill me, but I didn't believe her."

The man, armed with a pistol, then rushed back into the office and opened fire, narrowly missing Jenrette, witnesses said.

Jenrette and others in the waiting room took refuge inside an operating room and a firefighter knocked the pistol out of the gunman's hand before others piled on him.

Police arrived and arrested the man for investigation of aggravated assault.

"I don't have the slightest idea what got into him," Jenrette said. "He thinks I may have pulled the wrong tooth. But I don't just think it was the right tooth. I know it was."

At any rate, the man received free dental work, Jenrette said.

"He got a free extraction," the dentist said. "Even if he brought the money to me, I'd be afraid to take it."

Terrorists bomb meeting in Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Left-wing terrorists machine-gunned and bombed the governing party headquarters while its women's branch was meeting, killing at least two people and wounding 30 in what the government called an attack by "cowardly assassins."

Officials said at least five terrorists, apparently members of the radical leftist Shining Path insurgent group, burst into the Popular Action Party's headquarters Monday night, firing machine guns and lobbing dynamite bombs while 200 people, mostly women, were gathered inside.

The attackers escaped, but Civil Guard commander Gen. Ricardo Rojas said one suspect was arrested later. He did not elaborate.

"The country is at war, and in a grave hour of its republican history," President Fernando Belaunde

Terry said after visiting his party's bloodied headquarters in downtown Lima. He offered sympathy to the victims.

The government said two people were killed, but local press reports said the death toll was at least four. "The terrorists just started shooting their sub-machine guns and people fell bleeding," said Jorge Azana, departmental secretary for Popular Action's Lima section.

The attack capped a day of at least 15 bombings in Lima, which Belaunde put under a state of emergency May 30 when Shining Path guerrillas blacked out the capital with another string of bombings. Under the emergency decree, police have expanded power to search homes and seize suspects without warrants. "The blood today will not deter us," Belaunde said.

The government's 3-year-old war against Shining Path, he said, "is not against brave enemies... but against cowardly assassins who are intent on causing damage to the nation, sowing unrest and death."

At least five bombs exploded in the headquarters, causing extensive damage and shattering hundreds of windows in nearby buildings, officials and witnesses said.

Rojas said the attackers hurled at least four bombs that did not explode and were safely removed by police. He said one consisted of twenty sticks of dynamite "which would have sufficed to blow the building to bits."

Prime Minister Fernando Schwalb told reporters police should act with "severity to find the authors of this attack."

Killings of Iranians called 'political' in nature

UPLAND, Calif. (AP) — The early-morning killings of three members of an Iranian family were political in nature, and a family member has charged that "police know" who broke into the suburban home to commit the slayings.

Authorities investigating the killings of a woman and her two children meanwhile said they are examining the family's finances and political affiliations.

The victims were shot repeatedly Monday by at least two gunmen who broke in through a back door and opened fire with small-caliber semiautomatic weapons.

The killers missed a 14-year-old girl and bypassed two young boys hiding in a bedroom of the two-story Tudor-style home in an affluent neighborhood of Upland, police said. The girl has provided police with a description of one of the men.

A family representative, requesting anonymity, told The San Bernardino Sun the killings were political in nature. "The police know who (the gunmen) are," he said.

Capt. Merle Arneson said investigators began checking the family's background because there was no apparent motive. Valuables in the fashionable home were untouched and "the motive was apparently not burglary or robbery."

Police would not confirm comments by neighbors that the father of the children, in Iran since April, was a supporter of the Shah of Iran, but did say they found no political literature in the house. The shah was deposed in 1979 and died in 1980.

The family's business dealings are also under investigation, said Detective Tom Garner. "We're just trying to cover all the bases," he said.

The victims were identified as Zahra Hossini, 43; her son, Hamid Gharavi, 23, and Samileh Gharavi, 9, who Capt. Howard Seay said was the daughter of Mrs. Hossini's ex-husband, Saeed Gharavi, from a subsequent marriage.

Hamideh Gharavi, 14, and her brothers Farid Gharavi, 12, and Shahab Gharavi, 11, survived the attack. It was Hamideh's hysterical telephone call at 2:50 a.m. Monday that brought police to the house.

Hamideh and Farid are Mrs. Hossini's children; Shahab is Saeed Gharavi's son from a subsequent marriage.

The slayings came just five weeks after another family and a visiting neighbor boy were found hacked and stabbed to death at a Chino Hills horse ranch about 10 miles away. But authorities said there was no apparent connection between the slayings.

The Iranian family had been "living scared for the last few years," said a man who lives near their home in Upland, a residential community about 35 miles east of Los Angeles, just across the San Bernardino County line.

"I know they've received threats on their lives for at least the last two years," said the man, who spoke to the Ontario Daily Report on condition he remain anonymous.

The two young boys remained in their room throughout the shootings and did not see the attackers, Arneson said.

Fly invasion bugs residents along Mississippi

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP) — Millions of smelly, sticky fish flies are slickening highways, blacking out windows and piling up a foot deep as they die, in an annual invasion of Mississippi River towns that has residents bugged.

Although officials are fighting back by washing insect carcasses from streets and ordering lights off in Burlington and Dubuque, the inch-long, winged pests already have forced the closing of a bridge and contributed to an accident that seriously hurt a motorcyclist.

The flies, also known as mayflies and Mormon flies, infest the river towns annually, as eggs laid a year earlier hatch in the July heat. The insects mate and die in just 24 hours, but they can be as much trouble dead as alive, officials say.

But Art Roth, Dubuque's health director, said the flies pose no immediate health hazard.

"There were millions of them," Roth said of the assault which began Saturday. This year's pestilence was not unusually severe, he said. "I'd probably rate it a seven on a scale of one to ten."

Tammy Kuster, an employee at Lamb's Diner near Burlington's riverfront, said she had to use a shovel to scoop up the flies that she had cleaned from the diner's windows.

"I washed them off Saturday night, and the pile was so big I couldn't spray them away," she said.

But the major problem Monday night was the odor. "They stink," Ms. Kuster said.

Dead flies were piled a foot deep in spots along the Mississippi River, and some steep streets in this town about 160 miles southeast of Des Moines were impassable because of the slippery bodies of the insects.

The east-bound lane of MacArthur Bridge spanning the Mississippi River was closed from 11 p.m. Saturday to 1 a.m. Sunday because it was coated with flies.

A high-pressure water tanker was used to wash the flies from the bridge and to wash city streets.

The insects also coated lighted telephone booths and other outdoor city lights. In an unsuccessful effort to minimize the at-

Monday.

Meanwhile, 150 miles upriver in the northeastern Iowa town of Dubuque, a hilltop became so slippery with dead flies that a young man lost control of his motorcycle and crashed late Saturday. He was listed in serious condition Monday at Mercy Health Center.

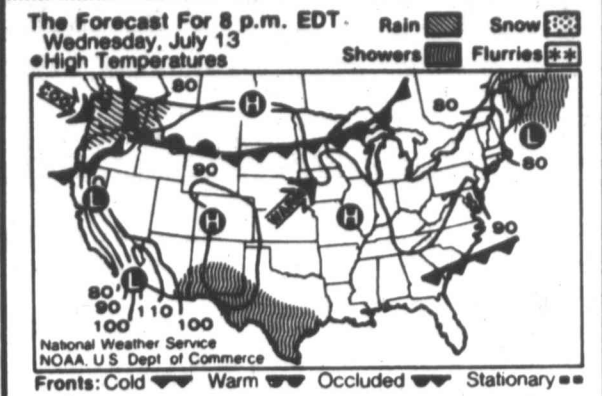

lack of the flies, authorities in both Burlington and Dubuque ordered blackouts Saturday of business and traffic lights.

Many businesses were still keeping their lights off Monday night.

Despite the hazards the bugs create, biologists say their emergence is a good sign. It means the Mississippi is relatively clean, because the flies could not survive in polluted waters.

The flies also provide food for several game fish, including walleye, northern pike and smallmouth bass.

Samantha tours palace, visits camp

YALTA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Samantha Smith and her Young Pioneer friends posed for photographs today in the courtyard of Yalta's Livadia Palace where Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin sat for cameras after their 1945 conference at the end of World War II.

Together with a few Pioneers, 11-year-old Samantha and her parents, Arthur and Jane, toured the palace where the three Allied leaders drew the borders of present-day Europe.

Samantha had a surprise at the palace — she met Jean Schulz, the wife of Charles Schulz, the Peanuts comic strip creator. Mrs. Schulz, of Santa Rosa, Calif., gave Samantha a Snoopy badge and said she was touring with her son and daughter and a friend.

Smith then escorted his daughter and her Pioneer friend, 13-year-old Natasha Kasharina of Leningrad, to begin the tour of the palace. Reporters came upon Samantha by accident, since Smith had requested that her activities this morning be private.

On Monday night, Samantha didn't dance or sing, but she clearly was the star of the show at the Artek Young Pioneer camp carnival. Entering the stadium perched on a hill above the camp, she was greeted with a roar of applause from 2,000 Young Pioneers.

Floodlights illuminated the arena at the precise moment when Samantha and her friend Natasha began to walk around its perimeter.

Samantha waved to the crowd, then greeted a reporter from near her hometown of Manchester, Maine, saying, "You finally got here." Asked how she felt about the tumultuous welcome, Samantha, giggling, said, "Pretty great."

All the while, a woman's voice boomed in Russian over the loudspeakers. "Welcome to our festival tonight, American schoolgirl Samantha Smith. Samantha Smith came to our country at the invitation of General Secretary of the Communist Party... (and President) Yuri Andropov."

That invitation was extended after Samantha wrote to Andropov asking whether he would start a war.

After the introduction, Samantha, dressed in the white blouse and turquoise skirt that all girl campers wore, settled down to enjoy a colorful display of hundreds of costumed children dancing under twinkling lights and framed by a stage decorated with a huge red-and-pink electronically operated puppet.

The 4,500-foot high Great Bear Mountain formed a dark backdrop to the scene.

Samantha's parents said today's tour plans included a private tour of the Crimean coast — the Riviera of the Soviet Union — with lunch at a restaurant overlooking Lake Karagol in the mountains that rise above Yalta and the Artek camp.

After lunch, a visit to the famed Nikitin Botanical Garden, founded in 1812 just east of Yalta, was scheduled.

Mrs. Smith said she did not know how much of the tour Samantha would undertake in between spending time with her fellow campers.

Both parents seem to want Samantha to spend as much time as possible with the Young Pioneers and away from reporters covering her unusual trip.

Samantha dashed away from a swimming contest at the camp Monday to stroll with Soviet children. Foreign Ministry officials overseeing the trip told reporters who went in search of the group that Samantha's father had given "very strict orders" that no press disturb the walk.

Smith explained later, "I don't want her to feel under pressure to perform. I want this to be her experience when you observe her engaged in these activities, there really isn't anything else to say about them."

Mrs. Smith said, "The press has been very nice to her but when so many people point cameras at her and ask questions all at once it is tiring."

The Smiths were scheduled to go to Leningrad on Wednesday, then return to Moscow before leaving for home July 21. It has not been announced whether Samantha will meet Andropov.

Tough tamales

Mexico is trying to stem the influx of Central American refugees into that country, arguing that they take jobs away from Mexicans and add to social pressures.

It's ironic that the Mexican government, which does nothing to discourage its own citizens from illegally entering the United States, now is closing its own southern border to illegal aliens.

In truth, our southern borders are an escape valve for Mexico, relieving social and financial pressure on the government.

Mexico's new measure against Central American refugees include stricter rules of issuing visas and increased patrols along the Mexican-Guatemalan border. Also, Mexico's refugee commission is changing emphasis from coordinating aid to refugees to closer monitoring of their activities.

Mexican Minister Manuel Bartlee Diaz has recommended that visas be granted only to "persons who can prove they bring resources to the Mexican economy." Visas should not be issued, he said, to persons who "might use them as a possible way of resolving the social problems they suffer in their countries."

Mexico, never sympathetic to U.S. immigration problems, now has problems of its own.

Scout it out

When our collection of Houston Boy Scouts attended the brotherly love National Jamboree in 1973, we started a patch-traders' uprising, a small fire and at least one race riot.

Those memories came barreling back to mind last week as I read about the 15th World Scout Jamboree in the mountains of Alberta, Canada.

They are not all happy memories, because a Jamboree is a media event. As such it sounds better in a newspaper than it looks, feels and smells to the souls who are actually there.

But this is a different gig than the one I attended in Pennsylvania. This is a world jamboree. It has Scouts from Libya, India, South Yemen, Africa, Australia and all over Europe.

It also has girls, which I'm sure changes the texture of the event considerably.

MY MIND seizes up with fear when I think of what wars could have been started if our contingent of 24 Houstonians had made this trip.

Five of the 24 were white, I recall. The rest were blacks from one very close-knit troop in Houston's inner city.

I mention this, not because I'm a racist, but because those numbers had a significant effect on the trip. I realize young people do not or should not notice skin color. Most of us didn't and got along fine.

But there were a few, both black and white, who did notice and deeply resented sharing a big expensive trip with members of another race.

I won't dwell on that, except to say that officials almost called the Pennsylvania National Guard one night when a white joker put a can of Off mosquito repellent into one of the black patrol's campfires.

The can exploded, and so did our troop's tensions.

Those tensions built up throughout a week of living with more than 60,000 Boy Scouts from the 50 states, Canada, Mexico and England. It sounds great to be able to visit with people from other states and countries, but for some reason the troops chose to hang out together instead of mixing.

EXCEPT FOR the patch-traders. These people are single-minded in a way unprecedented in human history. They trade patches all day. All night. At breakfast, lunch and dinner.

We had several of these weirdos in our troop and they were really dull to be around. This jamboree had it all: swimming, fishing, sailing. But all patch-traders wanted to do was...trade.

Those of us not interested in obtaining a ragged patch from Fishneck, Idaho, or Medicine Hat, Alberta, gave up on these people quickly. But the patch-traders had a very superior attitude. What they were doing was important and anyone not interested was brainless.

So being from Houston, a number of our contingent decided to steal someone's patches. They did and threw them in the lake.

Our troop was not popular, but then everybody hates Houston anyway.

I feel sad that I can't remember the good things from that trip. Surely I met some people and made some friends, but all of that is lost in the fog of rising at 4:30 a.m. to stand in line for food, waiting an hour and paying $5 for hamburger, and using little portable toilets (called "portapotties" — I kid you not) in the privacy of a plastic tent.

All in all, a Jamboree is a nice place to say you visited, but you wouldn't want to go there.

Anyone for debate?

Washington is still in shock. It's hard for any of us to believe that someone in the Reagan political camp would have resorted to stealing President Carter's black briefing book during the 1980 campaign — the one which was prepared for the Carter-Reagan debate.

President Reagan first called it, "Much ado about nothing." Then when the briefing book hit the fan he turned it over to his Justice Department to see what the fuss was all about.

We pundits are keeping an open mind on the purloined book. Most American journalists refuse to believe that one of the major political parties in our country would stoop to dirty tricks to win an election.

At the same time we are troubled by what we know so far. The people who seem to have been involved in some way or another are James Baker, the president's chief of staff, David Gergen, his communications chief, David Stockman, and William Casey, the former Reagan campaign manager, who is now director of the CIA.

Baker recalls getting it from Mr. Casey, who was supposed to have gotten it from someone in the Carter camp — a mole, as we say in the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mr. Casey does not recall ever having seen such a book. His memory on it is a complete blank. But if we believe him, this raises a question of national security. If Mr. Casey can't remember being the receiver of filched goods from the opposition party's safe, what is he doing as director of the CIA, where memory is everything? How can he provide the president concise information on Central America, the Middle East and Soviet missiles without forgetting the best details? Do we want someone to head up our intelligence service who knows the names of every company on the Dow Jones Index, but can't recall whether a mole gave him an American president's game plan?

Moving along we now come to the most important part of the effects of the theft, if there was one.

In 1980 we all agreed to await the results of the debate between the two presidential candidates before deciding which man should have his finger on the button.

Then we saw what everyone else did. A Ronald Reagan who was sure of himself and of his answers.

Reagan was a completely different candidate from the one who, up until then, was constantly making misstatements which his staff had to correct a few hours later. But during the debate Reagan was as sure of his lines as he was in any of his motion pictures. It was a convincing performance and the pundits walked away from their TV sets convinced Reagan was a candidate who did his homework. He not only had a game plan, but he also knew the other guy's as well.

To this day we don't know if he used the script his people wrote for him for the debate or the script President Carter's people wrote for their candidate.

That is why Washington is concerned. All of us lived through Watergate and it would be a terrible thing if President Reagan's staff did for him what the "Committee to Re-elect the President" did for Nixon.

Fortunately the president has asked his Justice Department to find out what really happened. Otherwise we may never know.

We'll just have to wait and see. As one pundit said to me the other day, "This would have never happened if John Dean was alive."

Big oil's interest at heart

WASHINGTON — Not long after I reported on the legislative favors Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., had done for oil companies that appeared in his personal stock portfolio, he resigned as chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee.

Wallop says his departure from the Ethics Committee had nothing to do with the apparent conflicts of interest I reported. He adamantly refused to concede that there had been any conflict at all.

But now that he's no longer burdened with the chore of being the Senate's ethical watchdog, the lanky, Yale-educated rancher seems to have redoubled his efforts on behalf of Big Oil's interests — and, coincidentally, his own.

Wallop's 1982 financial disclosure form shows he has between $35,000 and $115,000 invested in Exxon, Standard Oil of California and Standard of Indiana. He received $18,025 in oil royalties from a Getty subsidiary, bringing his total income from that company since 1978 to nearly $100,000.

My associate Jock Hatfield checked the senator's recent legislative record and turned up some flagrant examples of Wallop's penchant for giving the oil industry a helping hand:

— As chairman of a Finance subcommittee, Wallop introduced legislation that would give strip-mining companies an estimated $11 million tax break next year and $21 million more in 1985-88. The bill would allow strip miners to write off the future cost of land reclamation before the improvements are actually made. Getty, Exxon, Standard Oil of California and Standard of Indiana all have extensive strip-mining operations and stand to reap a windfall if their senatorial stockholder's bill passes.

Wallop's Wyoming Wilderness Bill, passed by the Senate in April and now pending in the House, would open up 300,000 acres of proposed wilderness — including the pristine Gros Ventre area near Jackson Hole — to oil and gas drilling.

Getty has been battling in court for the right to develop an estimated $2 billion worth of gas and oil reserves in the Gros Ventre region. Wallop's bill would hand them the drilling rights on a platter.

As chairman of an Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee, Wallop introduced a bill that would have given the interior secretary blanket authority to sell off land administered by the National Park Service — including coal and oil acreage coveted by the senator's preferred oil companies. Wallop denied having tried to slip one by; when the implications of the bill were pointed out by other committee members, Wallop agreed to amend it.

Wallop led the successful floor fight against a proposal to ban coal leasing on certain federal lands. The ban covered more than 1 billion tons of coal that Wallop's four favorite oil companies have shown an interest in leasing the rights to over the next two years. Their hopes are still alive, thanks to Wallop's efforts.

Footnote: Wallop has refused to comment on these apparent conflicts of interest between his financial holdings and his legislative actions.

A REAL BUMMER: Amnesty International, the human rights organization that tries to smooth over bitter political hatreds by appealing to mankind's better nature, may have gone a bit too far in a recent issue of its newsletter, Matchbox. Included in a graphic collage of "the important things in Georgia's history" to mark Amnesty International's annual meeting in Atlanta was a picture of the most hated dandy of them all: Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman.

There was Uncle Billy's grizzled mug staring out in such distinguished company as King George II, for whom Georgia was named, the state bird (brown thrasher), flower (Cherokee rose), fruit (Georgia peach) and, of course, a suggestion of the Confederate Stars and Bars.

"We needed a graphic in a hurry, and the artist wanted a photo of someone who had had a historical impact upon Georgia," a charged editor Marcia Schwen told my reporter Kathy McDonald. The artist tried to find a picture of civil rights leader and Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, but for some reason couldn't.

So they settled in haste on Gen. Sherman, whose impact on Georgia consisted of laying waste to the state "from Atlanta to the sea" — in the words of the old Union veterans' song.

STUDENT GAP: It's not only in Central America and the Caribbean that the Soviets are outpouring the United States in student-exchange programs that could enhance the Kremlin's long-term influence. A secret CIA study cited Soviet efforts in Tunisia and Jordan as "symptomatic of a worldwide phenomenon."

What if I kill myself?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What does the Bible say about suicide? Would I be forgiven if I committed suicide? — Anonymous

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Normally I do not answer anonymous questions, but I have made an exception in your case because I sense that you are a deeply troubled person who is on the verge of doing the most serious and final thing you can do — taking your own life. With all my heart I pray that you will not take that step, for I am convinced it would be wrong.

Yes, God knows our hearts, and he can forgive our sins. But that must never, never be an excuse for doing what is wrong. And if you do not know Christ, I must tell you frankly that death would not end your problems. You would instead have an eternity ahead of you of sorrow and loneliness, separated forever from God and Heaven. In other words, I want to impress upon you the seriousness of the step I sense you are about to take.

But I especially want to impress you with another great truth, and that is that God loves you and wants to come into your life right now to take away your despair and give you hope and peace. Perhaps you think that is not possible — but it is, because God is more powerful than your problems, whatever they may be. Jesus Christ went to the cross to make your salvation possible, and when you come to know him he will enter your life and give you strength to meet whatever situations you face every day.

Listen to what Jesus says to you: "Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light" (Matthew 11:28-30). Countless people throughout the ages have discovered this is true — and you can discover it as well as you cast your burdens on Christ. Don't give in to depression and despair — God has a plan for your life, and the most important thing you can do is to discover him and invite Christ into your heart by faith.

Graduation photo is disappointing

Dear Editor,
At the Big Spring High School graduation ceremonies this past May, a professional photographer was engaged to take individual pictures of the graduates as they accepted their diplomas.

On July 6, 1983, the Postal Service left a notice in my mailbox that I had a package to be picked up, COD, $11.32 due. I went to the Post Office to see what this could be as I had not ordered anything. The man at the Post Office told me it was a graduation picture. I had either the option of paying for it or refusing it, so assuming I would be pleased with the photo, I accepted it.

I was not pleased. It certainly is not a very good picture. It looks like a snapshot that has been blown up. I cannot believe that a so-called professional took it. And to have paid $11.32 for one 5x7 picture, sight unseen, is outrageous.

We (although many others did not) respected the wishes of the school that no pictures be taken at the ceremony because a professional was taking pictures and they would be made available to us. Had I known then what I now know, I certainly would have taken my own picture and it would be every bit as good as the one for which I paid $11.32.

High school graduation is a once-in-a-lifetime event and I feel that we were taken unfair advantage of, not only by the photographer but also by the school board. It does not take a great mathematician to come to the conclusion that somebody "cleaned house" for a few hours work on this occasion.

First runner-up was Julie Hayek, 22, of the United States, a green-eyed blonde who is a senior at UCLA. Second runner-up was Miss Ireland, 20-year-old Roberta Brown of Derry, who is a world-class runner.

Rounding out the 12 finalists were Lolita Morena of Switzerland, Karen Moore of England, Nina Rekola of Finland, Loana Rabecki of Germany, Federica Moro of Italy, Karen Dobloug of Norway, Lee Lee Bang of Singapore, Ana Garcia of Spain, and Paola Ruggeri of Venezuela.

They were among 80 beauties who stayed in St. Louis for two weeks, taping and rehearsing for the two-hour pageant broadcast to a worldwide audience estimated at 600 million viewers.

As the pageant got underway, more than 100 people picketed the auditorium, protesting the expenditure of an estimated $1 million in tax dollars to host the event while hundreds of homeless people must sleep in parks, underground garages or vacant houses.

John Walsh, director of the city's Convention and Visitors Bureau, had predicted the city could break even if the pageant was sold out, but several seats were available Monday night.

But Walsh insisted that the television exposure would be worth whatever the cost to the city and county governments of St. Louis.

Pageant officials said the victory would be worth at least $90,000 in cash and $60,000 in prizes to Miss New Zealand. But her predecessor, Miss Baldwin, branded the estimate as conservative, noting that she had traveled to 19 countries during her reign.

"It's impossible to put a price tag on it," Miss Baldwin said in an interview Monday. "But I'd guess it was easily worth over $500,000 to me. I haven't paid for anything in over a year.

Miss Baldwin recommended that her successor, a Gemini with a high school education, relax and enjoy the job, which she said will keep her busy at least six days a week.

House may pay for itself

BLAIR, Neb. (AP) — If the Treasury Department cooperates, Junior A. Porter's new house could end up paying for itself.

Porter decided to move a house he'd bought from the city for $500, and in the process he stumbled onto some filthy lucre — wads of $50 and $100 bills stuffed in a pickle jar and jammed between the wall and the foundation sill.

The jar fell to the ground when the house was put up on jacks to be moved six blocks.

The money, possibly squirreled away by a Depression-era farmer who feared failing banks, had seriously deteriorated, most of it crumbling into dust, Porter said.

Carter won't comment on debate controversy

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Despite hundreds of requests for comment, former President Carter is not saying anything about reports that papers from his administration found their way to Ronald's Reagan campaign in 1980.

"The telephone has been ringing off the hook ever since this thing came up," Carter aide Faye Dill said Monday. "Everybody wants a comment, but nobody's getting one. I'm sure he'll comment when he's ready, but right now there's just no chance."

The hundreds of interview requests fielded by Ms. Dill followed recent disclosures that Reagan campaign aides had access to secret briefing books written at the White House to help Carter prepare to debate then-candidate Reagan.

Ms. Dill said Carter has turned down every interview request, even those from reporters "he considers personal friends." Since leaving office, Carter has granted exclusive interviews only on the advice of former White House press secretary Jody Powell, she said.

Reporters who have gone to Plains have been denied access to the Carter compound, where the former president spends most of his working hours.

When confronted by reporters outside the compound, Carter has offered only restrained comment. While leaving church Sunday, he told Cable News Network: "You know our nation is being measured by God, and its commitment to Him and to the principles of openness and honesty, compassion, decency, peace, human rights. There are concerns that we have about environmental quality. "And I think anyone in public office who has a position of responsibility, as the Bible teaches very clearly in ancient times, ought to pattern his life or her life after the teachings of Christ."

A longtime Carter associate said he believes the former president is enjoying the controversy.

"Knowing him the way I do, I think he's loving every minute of it," said the Carter associate, who spoke on condition he not be identified. "I think he's enjoyed watching them stew, especially since Reagan had to back off his earlier statement that it was much ado about nothing."

The associate said he doubts Carter will comment publicly about the briefing books as long as Congress and the Justice Department are investigating.

Ms. Dill said Carter plans to leave Thursday on a two-week trip to Japan as a guest of several Japanese businessmen who are interested in donating funds for construction of the library and policy center he plans to build in Atlanta.

She said several news conferences are planned during the trip, but the questions will be limited to the library and policy center.

Carter also is spending many hours organizing a November conference for Middle East leaders in Atlanta, she added.

"He's also doing some fishing," she said. "But it's pretty obvious he's not getting involved in the briefing book controversy."

FINGER PULL — Two young Bavarians in special costumes try to pull each other over the wooden table by using only one finger. The contest, in which the competitors use a leather ring wrapped around their fingers, is called "Finger-Hakin." The referee, center, looks on while standing in front of a painted alpine panorama picture. The action took place recently in Inzell, West Germany.

Goldwater calls briefinggate a joke

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential nominee, on Monday dismissed the controversy over political espionage and the 1980 political campaign as "a laughable joke."

"It has been going on since the day of George Washington," Goldwater said, referring to incidents such as those in which material from former President Jimmy Carter's re-election campaign found its way into the President Reagan's campaign organization.

The conservative Arizona Republican said if people were to believe the newspaper stories on the briefing papers, "You would think there was nothing around here but a bunch of crooks."

Recalling his campaign as the Republican nominee against President Lyndon B. Johnson, Goldwater said the late president "knew more about my speeches than

I knew myself before I gave them."

Asked by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., if he was saying there was a Johnson spy inside the Goldwater campaign, Goldwater recalled an incident in which a woman working for political prankster Dick Tuck was fired from the Goldwater campaign train.

"That was common knowledge at the time," replied Goldwater. "She was stealing material out of my mimeograph room."

He called on newspapers to move off the briefing papers story and report on more serious issues, such as cuts in federal taxes.

"It's a laughable joke what's going on in this town in the name of news," Goldwater said in a speech on the Senate floor.

Filmmakers lured to New Jersey

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — To get people to bring their cameras to New Jersey, Joseph Friedman says he'll see to it they are granted permission to drive a car off a bridge or fly an airplane through a house — whatever it takes.

Friedman is not a desperate man, but he has been charged with the significant task of rejuvenating the motion picture industry in the state where it all began but which lost out to the West Coast more than 60 years ago.

When the state Legislature created the New Jersey Motion Picture & Television Commission in 1977, Friedman was hired as its executive director to sell producers on the state.

"We've got mountains, the seashore, the urban centers, the great farmlands of southern New Jersey. It's a nation (in) microcosm. Whatever you want you can find here," —Matthew Feldman

Thus far, the return on the commission's annual operating budget of $250,000 has made it one of the state's better investments.

Hundreds of film companies have spent more than $43 million on production costs in the state in the past six years. And the commission estimates film crews generated an additional $150 million in the communities where they shot commercials, television programs and all or part of such movies as "Annie," "The Amityville Horror," "Ragtime" "Atlantic City" and "Tootsie."

"People come in, work here, leave money and go back," Friedman said. "It helps to give New Jersey a better image. It helps to overcome jokes about New Jersey and the turnpike."

Last year, the commission reported hosting a record 157 productions, including 20 motion pictures, 36 television projects, 18 documentaries, 77 television commercials and six special photography projects.

"This was the site of the start of filmmaking," said Friedman, who worked for 15 years at Warner Bros. Inc. and Paramount Pictures Corp. "The goal of the commission is to re-establish an industry here. Now, we are a popular spot. We're on the threshold of a golden era."

Thomas Edison helped launch the filmmaking industry here in 1893 when he patented a coin-operated viewing machine. Edison's studios in West Orange produced such early classics as "The Great Train Robbery."

Other spots in New Jersey provided locations for most of the early silent film production in the United States. But, within 25 years, the industry had migrated to the sun-splashed hills of Hollywood.

"On the West Coast, days were longer and it was cheaper out there. But the industry is coming back. Directors want realism. It used to be cheaper to build sets. Now, it's cheaper to rent," said Friedman, a resident of Upper Montclair.

"We don't hide the ghettos. If people want to film in the ghetto, we'll help them," he said.

Sen. Matthew Feldman, D-Bergen, who sponsored the bill that established the commission, said filmmakers again are finding what they need in New Jersey.

"We've got mountains, the seashore, the urban centers, the great farmlands of southern New Jersey. It's a nation (in) microcosm. Whatever you want you can find here," he said.

The commission has a 24-hour hotline for filmmakers who want an immediate answer to a production problem, and it has contacts with more than 350 county and municipal officials.

Man and wife psychologists leap to deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — A husband-and-wife team of psychologists who had written books on psychic phenomena leaped from a Queens apartment building 15 floors to their deaths, police reported Monday.

Police said the couple, Paul Molow, 69, and his wife, Doree, 60, left a note asking that their two dogs and cat be taken care of. A second note found in their apartment indicated they felt unable to cope with certain problems, The New York Post reported.

The Molows were the authors of "Beyond the Visible" and "Your Fantastic Mind," and several other works on parapsychology, according to the Post.

The couple were found dead about 5:30 p.m. Sunday in the courtyard of a 23-story building in the Forest Hills section of Queens, five blocks from their own basement apartment.

Police said the Molows took an elevator to the 15th floor, climbed over a balcony railing and leaped to a rear courtyard.

The note told authorities of the pets and urged them to "take care" of them.

"They apparently didn't want the animals to be left in their apartment to die," Officer Thomas Garvey said.

The pets were taken to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Woman offers tips on rooting an African Violet's blossoms

Mrs. Allie Moore gave a program, "Rooting African Violet Blossoms", during a picnic and business meeting of the Texas Star African Violet Club in the home of Mrs. Vina Lee Wilson, July 7.

Rooting from a violet blossom matures much quicker than rooting a leaf, Mrs. Moore says.

A blossom can only be rooted when it has two wing leaves growing just below the blossoms. Cut the blossom above the wing leaves and trim the stem below the wing leaves to 1 1/2 inches.

Select the smallest container possible with holes in the bottom. The container should be approximately 1 1/4 inches in diameter at the top and 1 1/2 inches deep.

Lower the entire stem so the wing leaves are level with the mix. Gently, firm the mixture around the stem.

Use a mixture of vermiculite, perlite, and a small amount of potting soil. Roots will form just below the level of the mix and nourish the plants. Roots also will form at the end of the stalk.

Warm water should be applied two or three days. A couple of drops at a time in order to keep the mixture damp.

In a month to seven weeks, repot into a container 2 inches at the top and two inches in depth. After twenty weeks from the beginning of the project, the first flower should open. Repot in 3 1/2 inches diameter pot. The plant should now be in full bloom.

Mrs. Moore also reported the downtown flower boxes are painted and the plants sat out.

The next meeting will be August 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Thelma Montgomery, 1414 Sycamore.

Dear Abby

Public smoking fires woman up

DEAR ABBY: We have a "No Smoking" law here in Michigan. It's against the law to smoke in movie theaters and grocery stores. This law was a godsend to me because I am allergic to tobacco smoke.

Recently a man sitting a few rows ahead of me in a theater lit a cigarette, so I reported him to the usher. The usher said, "You can get your money back and go elsewhere." (His attitude was: You are a troublemaker.)

At a supermarket, a woman came down the aisle puffing away on a cigarette. I politely asked her if she knew that smoking in the store was prohibited by law. Her answer: "Get lost!" I got ahold of a store employee and said, "That woman over there is smoking." His answer: "Really? Well, that's her problem." Then I located the store manager and told him. He said, "Sorry, we don't interfere." I said, "But it's the law!" His answer: "We don't interfere."

I then phoned the police department to report that the "No Smoking" law was being violated in the grocery store. I was told, "That's the business of the fire department."

I called the fire department and was told, "It's the job of the police department to enforce the law — not ours."

So tell me, Dear Abby, what good is this "law" if nobody enforces it?

DISGUSTED IN MICHIGAN
DEAR DISGUSTED:
Obviously, it's no good at all. And I welcome any and all solutions offered by readers.

DEAR ABBY: About that woman who feels forgotten and hurt when her husband does not remember anniversaries: Your advice, "Clip this column and tape it to his bathroom mirror before the day you want to be remembered," is both illogical and crude.

To remind somebody to remember you makes the remembrance worthless.

M.K.
DEAR M.K.: I'm sure there are a lot of good people with bad memories out there who would appreciate a good-humored reminder.

Furthermore, it's instinctive to protect one's self against possible hurt, so don't knock it. No

Dr. Donohue

Guillain-Barre follows infection

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently my sister, who is 60, has taken what has been diagnosed as Guillain-Barre syndrome. The previous week she had diarrhea. She has been in intensive care on a respirator and is beginning to breathe a little on her own and can move her fingers and toes a little. Any information would be appreciated. — Mrs. C.O.A.

Your sister's story is quite typical of Landry-Guillain-Barre syndrome, which is also known as acute idiopathic polyneuritis. About 10 to 12 days after a viral infection the person begins to notice pains and tingling sensations of numbness in the feet or legs. Those feelings are not always present and are usually short-lived. Soon, however, a profound muscle weakness sets in, beginning in the legs and marching up the body, even to the point of the lungs, resulting in paralysis of breathing muscles. So people who have Landry-Guillain-Barre syndrome have to be helped with a respirator until normal breathing returns.

We're not sure why this nerve-muscle disorder occurs only in some people who have had minor respiratory or gastrointestinal infection, which most people get over without trouble. Efforts to isolate a virus involved have to date been unsuccessful, but research continues. Until the cause is known the illness will continue to be called "idiopathic," which means of unknown cause.

Up to 75 percent of patients with this will have a complete recovery from paralysis, with recovery time varying widely up to as long as 18 months in some instances. A small number will have traces of weakness longer, even for life, and a very small number may have severe muscle weakness that persists indefinitely. From your description, it seems your sister is making good progress from this mysterious ailment. Fortunately, advances in ways to treat patients with it have reduced mortality greatly.

Dear Dr. Donohue: About acne scars on the face: Isn't there some kind of sanding procedure? Can you discuss it? How is it done? — K.F.

Sanding is one method for removing or alleviating scars left by acne. In it the skin surfaces are planed with a rotating motor-driving steel wire or a diamond-studded brush. This removes the scarred tissue. Crusts form and eventually fall off, with the skin left smoother.

Another treatment recently developed is injection of collagen under the depressed scar sites. Collagen, which is kind of like the body's Styrofoam packing material, elevates the scar so that it becomes flush with the skin surface and less pitted-looking, less visible. I don't know which procedure is best in your case. I recommend you talk with a dermatologist.

FOR H.O. — Lithium is used to help in the phase of manic-depressive illness in which there is a spate of great activity, flights of ideas and poor judgment.

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped, envelope and 50 cents.

Pitchers toss American, National to first wins

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

The pitchers of the hour? American's Brent Hartsfield and National's Timmy Gutterez, of course. Hartsfield fired a three-hitter and struck out 14 as American crunched Midland Western 8-0, while Gutterez limited Lamesa to a lone basehit in a 2-1 victory as the District III Little League All-Star Tournament began Monday night in Big Spring.

Little League

The wins push both local teams a game further into the winner's bracket: American battles highly-regarded Texas at 8 p.m. Wednesday at National's ballpark, with Midland North Central meeting National, also at 8 p.m. Wednesday at American's field.

The tournament continues tonight with a pair of first round games. Coahoma gets its first playoff test when it tries Odessa West at American's ballpark. In the second game, two Midland teams — Eastern and Tower — fight it out at National's diamond. Both games start at 8 p.m.

Hartsfield, a year older in tournament experience, put his new skills to work against Western. Not only was he tough on the mound but his RBI single in the first inning drove in the game's first run, the only run American would need on this particular Monday evening.

Doubles by Mike King in the third and Robert Hinojos in the fourth were the only balls hit out of the infield by Western; Dusty Buita legged out an infield hit in the sixth.

American opened the game with fireworks, sending all nine men to the plate in the first inning. Jimmy Miller ripped Western starter Wayne Hollingshead's first pitch down the left-field line and American was rolling. John Covington reached on an error and Hartsfield put his team ahead for good with a run-scoring single. Mike Calvio and Jason Phillips added RBI basehits.

American struck for three runs in the fourth inning, using two walks and an error to load the bases for Hartsfield. Hollingshead was relieved in favor of Steve Marlow and the American pitcher greeted his new left-handed rival with a 2-RBI double. Calvio's bouncer drove in the seventh run. The final American run came in the fifth as Brad Roberts walked and advanced across home plate on two errors. Western committed five mistakes for the game.

Hartsfield finished 3-for-4 with three RBI for American. It was a pitcher's war across town as Gutterez needed every inch of his one-hitter to outduel Cedric Mason. Mason, whose brother starred on Lamesa's district championship basketball team, surrendered just two hits in a losing effort.

The difference in the game was National's run in the fourth inning. It was Gutterez himself who scored the decisive run, getting on a base by way of a fielder's choice, moving around on two wild pitches and scoring on passed ball.

Lamesa held its only lead in the top of the second. Santos Porras reached base on the lone error of the night by National and scored when Clint Hamilton boomed an RBI double. Hamilton's hit was the first and last given up by Gutterez who fanned 13 batters.

National tied things up immediately. Ricky Swafford was hit by a Mason pitch and scored on John Salvato's run-scoring single.

The only other hit off Mason was a single by Thomas Moore. The Lamesa hurler struck out 11.

GETTING READY — Dallas Cowboys' head coach Tom Landry instructs rookie members of the Cowboys during their opening day of training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

90 rookies in Cowboy camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A former rugby star from South Africa, trying to earn a spot as a punter on the Dallas Cowboys roster, wasted little time on Monday's first day of rookie camp in getting the attention of coaches.

Naas Botha, a free agent, had the fastest time in the traditional 1 1/2-mile run that annually signals the opening of the Cowboys' camp here. He breezed through the distance in 8 minutes 25 seconds.

Free-agent quarterback Scott Ruiz of St. Mary's had the second-fastest time, finishing in 8:33.

Following physical exams, there were 90 rookies and nine veterans in the cowboys camp. Three players — wide receiver Charles Doolittle of Howard Payne, guard Darryl Moore of Southern Cal and Dan Pepock of Waynesburg College failed the pre-workout physicals and were released.

Veterans on hand with the rookies include quarterback Brad Wright, center Bryan Baldinger, cornerback Rod Hill, linebacker Jim Eliopoulos, defensive back Monte Hunter, running back George Peoples, defensive lineman Phil Pozderac, linebacker Jeff Rohrer and injured reserve player Scott McLean, a linebacker.

Two-a-day drills begin Tuesday.

U.S. ends games on upbeat

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — High-profile Willi Gault and unheralded Randy Givens salvaged what otherwise was a dismal United States track and field performance at the XII World University Games.

On a Monday night as the 11-day games ended, Gault and Givens anchored America's winning men's and women's 400-meter relay teams.

Meanwhile, Soviet diver Sergei Shlibashvili, 21, who suffered multiple head injuries and underwent brain surgery following an accident in the men's 10-meter platform dive Saturday, remained in critical condition. He's on a life support system.

While Gault, a football star at the University of Tennessee and first-round draft pick of the National Football League's Chicago Bears, was easily the best-known U.S. track and field athlete here, the 21-year-old Givens, from Amityville, N.Y., was the Americans' biggest track and field medal winner in the games.

She finished with two gold medals and a silver, winning the 200-meter dash and finishing second in the 100.

Gault came from behind to lead the team of Terry Scott and Sam Graddy, also from Tennessee, and Ken Robinson of Arizona State to victory in 38.50 seconds.

Givens paced her teammates, Houston standouts Michele Glover and Jackie Washington and Brenda Cliette of Florida State, to a clocking of 42.82, one of three meet records on the last day of the games.

In track and field, the U.S. won only five gold medals.

At the 1983 games, the Soviets more than doubled the total U.S. output, 115-54. The Soviets collected 59 golds while the Americans had to settle for just 12 golds.

It was the lowest gold medal production for the U.S. since the Americans joined this biennial meet in 1965.

The Soviets' haul included 29 silvers and 27 golds while the U.S. total included 22 silvers and 20 bronze.

Greg Louganis and Givens were the only double gold medal winners for the United States. American Bruce Hayes had the highest medal total of any athlete here — one gold, four silvers and one bronze.

On Monday, the American water polo team came away with a silver medal. The United States edged Romania 11-10 but the Soviets clinched the gold with a 10-7 decision over Cuba, the bronze medalist.

San Antonio finally gets USFL franchise

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After two months of hemming, hawing and backpedaling, it's official. San Antonio has been awarded the fifth United States Football League expansion franchise team, which will start play in 1984.

South Texas rancher Clinton Manges put up $6 million to become the principal owner of the as-yet unnamed team, which will play its games in an as-yet unmodified Alamo Stadium under an as-yet unnamed coach.

USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons flew into town to make the official announcement Monday night to a cheering crowd that included a marching band, three state senators, some authentic mariachi players and Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox.

Manges and his investment group, South Texas Sports Inc., had prematurely announced the awarding of the franchise two months ago.

Simmons said the official word was slowed by "the paperwork and all the financial stuff that has to be done."

"We have to do checks on the people putting up the money and get a two-thirds vote from the rest of the league," he said. "That all takes time."

South Texas Sports will conduct a contest to name the football team, and a coach and staff should be selected within 30 days.

Many of the club's players are expected to be culled from the San Antonio Bulls, a member of the minor-league American Football Association.

The success of San Antonio's other pro team, the Spurs of the National Basketball Association, made the city an attractive spot for a USFL franchise, Simmons said.

"We looked at what was done here with the Spurs," he said. "We were told, 'Don't turn your back on what you might consider the smaller cities.'"

"The San Diego, San Antonio, Jacksonville and (Tulsa) Oklahoma franchises will end up being very significant franchises because we own the market," he said.

South Texas Sports has leased Alamo Stadium from the San Antonio Independent School District and agreed to make more than $2 million in improvements — including increasing the seating capacity from 23,700 to 32,029, installing artificial turf, and putting in a new scoreboard and lighting system.

The group also will pick up the tab for parking improvements, including the purchase of land for additional parking.

Former Texas A&I football coach Gil Steinke was named executive vice president of the San Antonio team, and could be head coach, Manges said.

McAllen attorney Morris Atlas is president of South Texas Sports, and Roger Gill of San Antonio serves as named general manager.

The USFL, which recently finished its first regular season, started with 12 teams.

More arrests may be made in Cannon case

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — More arrests in the counterfeiting conspiracy case involving former football great Billy Cannon are imminent, according to a Secret Service spokesman who said two more suspects have been brought into custody.

The Secret Service in New Orleans confirmed Monday night the arrests of William Glascock in Pensacola, Fla., and Eric Kraler in Brownsville, Texas, as conspirators. They are the fourth and fifth suspects to be charged in the case.

Dennis Shaw, agent in charge of the Secret Service office in New Orleans, said bond was set at $2.5 million for Glascock, president of Mangun Oil Co. of Pensacola. Shaw said Glascock, unlike Cannon, was refusing to cooperate with investigators.

Shaw said Kramer also was accused of smuggling gold from Mexico.

Sources close to the investigation said the man who purportedly printed more than $5 million in counterfeit money, identified by a federal prosecutor as John Stiglets, would soon surrender voluntarily. Meanwhile, Cannon's induction into the college football Hall of Fame next December could be in jeopardy.

Jimmie McDowell, executive director of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, said in New York, "The foundation position now is Billy is innocent until proven guilty and the foundation is waiting to get all the facts before making a decision."

One of the foundation's rules for election is that a man is judged not only on his playing ability but also on citizenship.

Earlier Monday, court records showed Cannon, former Heisman Trophy winner and now a Baton Rouge dentist, had lost a $122,000 condominium because he couldn't keep up the payments and was under court orders to pay $246,000 in promissory notes when arrested last weekend.

The records revealed that the American Football League and Louisiana State University football star had paid only $60,000 on the Jefferson Parish condominium when it was seized for a sheriff's sale.

Records in the East Baton Rouge clerk of court's office also showed that Cannon was ordered March 25 to pay about $246,925 on four promissory notes to First Progressive Bank in Jefferson Parish.

The bank held 23 such notes, the records showed.

A woman who answered Cannon's home telephone Monday said Cannon would not comment. She refused to call him to the telephone.

Cannon, the 1959 Heisman Trophy winner and pro football's first rested Saturday and arraigned on a charge that he conspired to possess and deal in counterfeit $100 bills.

He tried to plead guilty, but U.S. District Judge Frank Polozola refused to accept the plea and gave him until Friday to reconsider.

U.S. Attorney Stanford O. Bardwell said more than $5 million in bills has been seized — including $2 million last Friday night, when agents arrested two co-defendants, and $3 million more after Cannon was arrested and told agents where to dig it up.

The investigation started in September and Cannon's name first came up in the case three months later, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Rand Miller.

He said the probe has spread into many other areas and more arrests and indictments are expected.

"There will be a series of indictments" and they will "go beyond counterfeiting and drugs," he said.

Officials don't know when the bills were printed, but most of the counterfeit cash is believed to have been recovered, Miller said.

Blue Jays keep on winning

By the Associated Press
The Toronto Blue Jays, who surprised the baseball world by leading the American League East at the All-Star break, are doing even better in the second half of the season. They are unbeaten since returning to action — and no other team in the majors can make that claim.

The Blue Jays made it four in a row Monday night and maintained their three-game lead over Baltimore and Detroit by defeating the Kansas City Royals 7-4 on run-scoring singles by Lloyd Moseby, Dave Collins and Alfredo Griffin in the 11th inning.

Willie Upshaw tripled to start the Toronto 11th off Keith Creel and Jorge Orta walked. Moseby singled Upshaw home and, after Orta was out at third on Ernie Whitt's bunt, Collins' fourth single made it 6-4. Whitt went to third on a fly ball and Griffin followed with an RBI single. The winner in relief was relief ace Randy Moffitt, who gave up two runs in the ninth as the Royals tied it at 4-4.

Gaylord Perry, the 44-year-old right-hander who was signed last week after Seattle released him, went six innings in his first start for the Royals, surrendering eight hits and two runs.

Rangers 5, Brewers 4
At Arlington, Bobby Johnson hit a solo homer with two out in the bottom of the 15th inning as Texas ended a four-game losing streak and took sole possession of first place in the AL West, one game ahead of California. Johnson connected on an 0-1 pitch from Jerry Augustine and hit a shot that just cleared the center field fence for his fourth homer of the season.

Phillies 11, Reds 7
Mike Schmidt, benched the previous two games, drilled a grand slam home run in the top of the 11th inning off Tom Hume to lift Philadelphia.

Schmidt's sixth career grand slam — which was his 17th homer of the season — gave him six runs batted in for the game. He had earlier belted a solo homer and had an RBI single.

His first homer and Cincinnati's fourth error helped the Phillies take a 6-0 lead in the third inning. But the Reds battled back, helped by Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer in the sixth.

Braves 6, Expos 4
Rafael Ramirez, not known for his power on longball-happy Atlanta, cracked a three-run homer to highlight a four-run inning and rally the Braves.

Montreal reliever Woodie Fryman had faced his only batter of the season April 10 before going on the disabled list the next day with arm problems. He came off the disabled list Monday and was the victim of Atlanta's big inning. Ramirez's homer was his third of the season.

Tim Wallach had a two-run homer for the Expos and Al Oliver delivered an RBI double and a run-scoring single.

Dave Tobik earned the victory with three innings of one-hit relief after the Rangers tied the game in the bottom of the ninth when Billy Sample led off with a single, stole second, went to third on a grounder and scored on Pete Ladd's wild pitch.

American League

Tigers 12, Angels 6
At Detroit, Larry Herndon celebrated the birth of his fourth child by collecting five hits, including two doubles and a home run, driving in three runs and scoring four times. Herndon, whose wife gave birth to a son early Monday, collected hits and scored his first four times at bat, capped by a two-run homer in the fifth that gave the Tigers a 10-3 lead.

The Tigers jumped on Geoff Zahn, who hadn't pitched since June 2 because of a sore shoulder, for five runs in the first inning, triggered by Lou Whitaker's leadoff homer.

Orioles 7, A's 6
At Baltimore, Ken Singleton drove in three runs with a single and a homer and Eddie Murray added a two-run homer for the Orioles. Trailing 7-0 after two innings, the A's pulled within 7-6 on an RBI grounder by Dwayne Murphy in the fourth, a two-run homer by Carney Lansford in the sixth, a two-run single by Rick Peters in the seventh and Davey Lopes' homer to lead off the eighth. Dennis Martinez, 5-11, the losingest pitcher in the AL, allowed nine hits before being relieved in the seventh. Baltimore has scored 48 runs in the five games Martinez has won, but only 38 in his other 14 starts.

White Sox 7, Indians 2
At Chicago, Carlton Fisk and Greg Luzinski homered to pace a 14-hit attack and back the five-hit pitching of Britt Burns. Fisk's two-run homer and Luzinski's solo shot came in the fourth inning and gave the White Sox a 6-1 lead. Gorman Thomas homered for Cleveland.

Twins 4, Yanks 2
At Minneapolis, Gary Gaetti tied the game with a two-run homer in the second inning and John Castino and Gary Ward slammed consecutive two-out triples in the third for the go-ahead run. Bobby Castillo scattered seven hits, including a two-run homer to Steve Balboni in the top of the second. Loser Jay Howell gave up eight hits, six for extra bases, and Minnesota scored an insurance run in the sixth on two-out doubles by Gaetti and Tom Brunansky.

Red Sox 6, Mariners 5
At Boston, Dave Stapleton beat first baseman Jim Maler's throw to the plate on Jerry Remy's hard grounder in the 10th inning, completing the Red Sox' comeback from a 5-1 deficit. Stapleton drew a leadoff walk from Mike Stanton, was sacrificed to second and went to third on Glenn Hoffman's single. Remy then hit his hard grounder to Maler, who fumbled the ball momentarily and then fired late to the plate. Boston tied the game in the bottom of the ninth off Seattle relief ace Bill Caudill on consecutive doubles by Remy and Wade Boggs.

Baker blasts Dodgers by Cardinals

By the Associated Press
The Los Angeles Dodgers overcame a bizarre wild pitch and some more sloppy fielding and when it was over, hero Dusty Baker had little to say.

Baker, still fighting his way out of a season-long slump, belted a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning off St. Louis reliever Bruce Sutter for a 7-6 victory over the Cardinals Monday night.

That blast capped a three-run rally for the Dodgers and a big night for Baker, who finished with four hits, including a two-run homer earlier in the game.

"I've still got some work to do," said Baker, who hit only .231 — 50 points below his career average — during the first half of the season. Since then, he's gone 7-for-14 to raise his average to .244.

"I'll start talking again when my bat starts talking," he said politely.

Schmidt's sixth career grand slam — which was his 17th homer of the season — gave him six runs batted in for the game. He had earlier belated a solo homer and had an RBI single.

His first homer and Cincinnati's fourth error helped the Phillies take a 6-0 lead in the third inning. But the Reds battled back, helped by Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer in the sixth.

Benitez tries for 4th title

By the Associated Press
He probably won't get a chance until next year, but Wilfred Benitez could be the first fighter to win world championships in four weight divisions.

On Sept. 9 Alexis Arguello will get a second crack at winning a fourth title when he challenges for the World Boxing Association junior welterweight middleweight championship against Aaron Pryor, who knocked out Arguello in the 14th round last Nov. 12.

In November, Roberto Duran, the born-again fighter who won the WBA junior middleweight title from Davey Moore for his third championship, will challenge Marvelous Marvin Hagler, the undisputed king of the middleweights.

It upsets Benitez that Duran is getting a shot at Hagler before he does. But, from this view, it looks like Benitez will be able to make boxing history when he gets a shot at the middleweight title.

In terms of age and the wear-and-tear of long careers, the odds seem heavily stacked against the 31-year-old Arguello and 32-year-old Duran.

But Benitez, the best defensive fighter in the world, still could be short of his peak despite having been a pro since 1973. On Sept. 12, he will be 25, several years younger on the calendar than he is in experience. Also, his style has kept him from getting into too many wars as he has compiled a 44-2-1 record in winning three titles — junior welterweight at 17, World Boxing Council welterweight and WBC super welterweight, which he lost on a decision to Thomas Hearns last Dec. 3.

Benitez made his debut as a middleweight with a 10-round decision over tough Tony Cerda May 17. And on Saturday he can earn a shot at the middleweight title when he fights Mustafa Hamsho in what the WBC has sanctioned as a 12-round title elimination bout at Las Vegas, Nev.

As far as Benitez is concerned, that title shot should come in November, when he — not Duran — should be fighting Hagler.

"I've beaten Roberto Duran already and given him a lesson," said Benitez.

Reds' Wagner not surprised by dismissal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dick Wagner, assistant general manager of the Cincinnati Reds during the "Big Red Machine" days of the early 1970s and president during the National League baseball team's decline since 1978, said his firing took him by surprise. But Wagner said he accepted his dismissal Monday because "one thing my parents taught me was to have respect for my superiors," in this case James Williams and William Williams, Reds chairmen and general partners.

"The Williamses are really fine gentlemen," Wagner said, hours after being removed as president and chief executive officer. "They're interested in Cincinnati or they wouldn't take on the ballclub. They don't need the hassle."

Wagner will be replaced by Bob Howsam, his mentor and the man who preceded him as president of the Reds. Howsam is in New York on business and will take over the club later this week, the Reds said. Until then, assistant GM Woody Woodward will be in charge. "We feel it is necessary to make a change at this time. These have been difficult times for Dick and for all of us," the Williams brothers said in a statement released by the Reds. "We want to thank Dick for his loyalty and dedicated service to the company and to the owners over the years."

Wagner, who has been reviled by fans during the Reds' skid to 61-101 in 1982 and 36-48 this season, said he went into a scheduled meeting Monday with the Williamses expecting to talk about routine team business.

He declined to discuss the conversation, but said he felt the club's owners were "trying to do the best thing for the community in providing a winner."

The Reds won Western Division titles six times in the 1970s, and won consecutive World Series in 1975-76. But when player salaries skyrocketed, the Reds under Wagner chose to develop prospects within a farm system rather than enter the expensive free agent market.

Contracts of superstars such as Pete Rose and Joe Morgan were allowed to expire, and high-salaried players George Foster and Tom Seaver were traded to the New York Mets.

"He took a great team and got rid of (first baseman Tony) Perez and fired (Manager) Sparky (Anderson)," Morgan said Monday. "Then he took a good team in 1981 and traded Foster and (Ken) Griffey. Since then, they've been in last place."

Fans also held Wagner responsible for several trades which didn't seem to pay off, such as last year's deal that sent Ray Knight — currently the second-leading batter in the National League with a .337 average — to the Houston Astros for Cesar Cedeno, who is batting .228.

"When you come into this job, you expect to get the heat," Wagner said Monday. "Most of the decisions were made after consultation with the (staff) baseball people, and most of them I'll accept responsibility for. You have to when you run the show."

"Wagner is an owner's kind of man," Rose said. "Everytime a contract negotiation came around, he was trying to save some money. If he saved $5,000 on each player, it became a lot of money."

Wagner, 55, said his Reds contract ran through 1985, and that he was offered another unspecified job in the organization but chose not to stay. He would not speculate about his future.

"I'm not a victim of anything," Wagner said. "When you start in baseball, you find out that someday, like in any show business ... you may lose your job."

AL players receive awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Whitaker and Charlie Hough were named as American League Player and Pitcher of the Month for June.

Whitaker batted .388 for the month with 45 hits in 116 at-bats. He had 10 doubles, and two home runs and hit safely in 18 straight games during June. Hough was 5-1 with three complete games and a 1.33 earned run average for the month. In 54 innings pitched, he allowed 36 hits, struck out 41 batters and walked 17.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 13, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite a number of unexpected conditions to thwart some of your progress, you have the opportunity now through your own perseverance to succeed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) It is rather slow going in the morning but later you can work at double speed and accurately, get good results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You find it hard to decide how best to proceed but confusion soon lifts and your special aptitudes work famously for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The home situation is rather muddled but soon everything straightens out and harmony is reached.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You get a puzzling letter or communicate in the morning, but you figure the matter out to your satisfaction.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Doublecheck any expenditures and then you can do very nicely where other monetary matters are concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can only make progress if you are sure what it is you want from others and then you can proceed in a positive fashion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan just how to gain some cherished wish and then you can proceed but with caution. Be patient with a loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A higher-up may want to change your modus operandi, so go along with it without complaint. This gains you more prestige.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some new venture could be the means through which you can advance more quickly provided you are well prepared.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a better way of handling your obligations and put into practice immediately. Show more devotion to kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may find it hard to gain the co-operation of an associate in the morning but later can do so easily. Put that plan to work.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The work you do today can be greatly appreciated by higher-ups. Be very cooperative with fellow workers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand the behind-the-scenes working of any project. Give educational subjects that will further this valuable capability. Then your progeny will know how to make it workable and whether or not it is worthwhile.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
