City council to expand to 7 members

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The city council will expand to seven members and all voters will participate in both single-member district and at-large elections, according to the council's tentative compromise to settle a lawsuit claiming city elections dilute minority voting strength.

The proposal, announced Tuesday by council to satisfy a League of United Latin American Citizens' lawsuit filed in November in Abilene Federal Court, envisions three single-member districts and four at-large positions, including the mayor's seat.

According to City Attorney Doyle Curtis, the current five-member council will be expanded to seven members with the 1984 April elections.

This means three members plus the mayor will be elected in citywide races with the three other councilmen being elected from single-member districts.

In a single-member district, candidates are required to live in a particular geographic area within the city and run against only those candidates who also live in the district. With this plan, voters in the district choose only between candidates within their district.

The proposal terms show that all Big Spring voters will be divided into three districts. District 1, which includes the north and west population, carries a minority population of 62.5 percent. District 2, which is drawn from south of 11th place and bordered by Goliad and the Big Spring State Park, has a minority makeup of 14.5 percent. And District 3, which includes voters east of Goliad, has a minority population of 15.3 percent.

For example, if the District 1 seat was up for election along with an at-

Council redistricting applauded by LULAC

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The proposed city council redistricting that will allow Big Spring minorities to gain a voice in local government was applauded by the local council of the League of United Latin American Citizens at its meeting last night.

The redistricting plan, worked out by attorneys at the Big Spring City Council meeting Tuesday night, is hoped to settle a lawsuit brought against the city by the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project on behalf of the Local LULAC council.

Local LULAC President Pat Deanda and secretary Linda Arsiaga explained the tentative compromise settlement to local members. The settlement alters the city's at-large elections, which the lawsuit claims allows no minority representation.

The proposed settlement, the "3-3-1" plan, will create two new council positions with three single-member districts, three at-large districts and the mayor at-large, according to Mrs. Arsiaga.

TRIPLE SLAYING IN ODESSA — Odessa police investigators look over the home where an Odessa woman and her two teen-aged sons were found dead in their eastside Odessa home Wednesday night.

Police said early today that Ruby Faye Fieseler and her sons, Paul, 17, and Keith, 13, may have been killed with a blood-covered baseball bat discovered at the scene.

Odessa woman, two sons beaten to death

ODESSA (AP) — An Odessa woman and her two teen-age sons apparently were beaten to death Wednesday night in their home, investigators said.

Detective Sgt. Jerry Smith said the bodies of Ruby Faye Fieseler, age unknown, her 17-year-old son Paul and her 13-year-old son Keith were discovered about 9 p.m. after police received an anonymous tip.

"They were in separate rooms; all three of them were in bed," said Odessa police Lt. Rusty Baker.

A bloody baseball bat also was found in the living room of the eastside house, he said.

Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee ordered an inquest and pathologists were conducting autopsies on the bodies at

Midland police study discovery of body parts

MIDLAND (AP) — Pathologists today were examining parts of a man's body that were discovered in a dump Wednesday.

A hand, foot and top portion of a head were found by a sanitation worker Wednesday afternoon, said Midland County sheriff's Capt. W. Patrick Fuller.

"The body parts are with the pathologist's office here in Midland and if we are unable to identify the items here they will be sent to the forensic lab in Dallas," Fuller said today.

Investigators said the body parts could be from a cadaver used in research, but that foul play also was being considered.

Authorities were notified of the existence of the body parts about 2:50 p.m., officials said.

Jury gives Dunbar 15 years for rape charge

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

A Howard County jury took less than 40 minutes yesterday in 118th District Court before giving a Pennsylvania man 15 years in prison for aggravated rape.

The seven-man, five-woman jury returned the verdict at 3:10 p.m. Wednesday. Jurors deliberated approximately three hours Wednesday before finding Clifford Bart Dunbar, 22, guilty of raping a 13-year-old Akron, Ohio, girl east of Big Spring.

However, four jurors said a guilty verdict was apparent early in their deliberation; they said they spent the rest of the time deciding between two charges.

The jury had the option of finding Dunbar guilty of aggravated rape or rape, according to the charge read by District Judge Jim Gregg who presided at the trial.

The jury also assessed a $3,000 fine on Dunbar. Aggravated rape

CLIFFORD BART DUNBAR ...sentenced to prison carries a maximum sentence of life or 99 years, but not less than five years. The maximum fine is $10,000.

One male juror said he probably would have sought a stiffer punishment if he had known the possibilities of parole for Dunbar.

Court-appointed defense attorney Wayne Basden and Hamby waived closing arguments during the punishment phase of the trial. Hamby called the lone witness, Lt. Juan Palacios from the Big Spring Police Department.

Palacios testified to the validity of identification records introduced by Hamby as evidence. Dunbar had been convicted of assault with intent to rape in Oklahoma in September of 1981 and sentenced to two years in prison, Hamby said.

The district attorney said afterwards he was satisfied with the verdict and punishment. He especially complimented the work done on the case by the Howard County Sheriff's office, the Department of Public Safety and Palacios.

Justice of Peace Bobby West fires secretary Linda Arsiaga

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County Justice of the Peace Bobby West, whose office was recently under scrutiny from county officials and citizens, has fired his secretary.

Linda Arsiaga, a county employee since 1975, was dismissed Tuesday afternoon from her position as peace justice secretary in the Precinct one, place one office. She was the office's only employee.

West said yesterday Arsiaga's discharge was not in reference to his closed-session meeting with county commissioners on Monday. Following a complaint from a citizen at Monday's meeting, commissioners summoned West before them. No action was taken in the closed personnel meeting.

"This has nothing to do with what the commissioners talked about," West said.

The peace justice also said the dismissal had "nothing to do" with any newspaper articles about his office.

On July 3, the Herald published a lengthy story about West and possible problems in his office.

West said he expected to have a replacement within two weeks.

Mrs. Arsiaga said today her dismissal was "a surprise to me." She said she had been advised by her attorney not to comment on her dismissal.

Mrs. Arsiaga ran for the precinct one, place two peace justice office in 1982, but lost to incumbent Lewis Heflin. She is currently secretary for the local council of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Police Beat

Woman reports assault

Clydette Martin of 705 Willa (rear residence) told police that a person she knows beat her with his hands and fists at 3:25 a.m. today. Ms. Martin said the beatings have occurred several times.

Police reports show officers later arrested Carrol Trantham, 46, no address given, in connection with the beatings. Police reports also showed the following:

- Tammy Atchley of 1515-A Sycamore reported to police that a subject she knows struck her several times in the face at 10 p.m. last night.

- Betty Clere of Sterling City Route complained to police that between July 1 and July 13 someone entered the residence at 2513 Chanute by prying open the front door lock. Police reports showed nothing was taken, but damaged to doors and locks was estimated at $300.

- Tim Taylor of 2205 Grace told police that while his car was parked at the Parkway Laundry at 2511 Wasson at 5 p.m. yesterday someone stole a wristwatch, eight 8-track tapes and a tape case from the vehicle.

- Ivana Jones, owner of Ivana's Club at 802 W. Interstate 20 told police that at 12:45 a.m. today a subject known to her broke the front door window glass of her business.

- Bertha Payton of 810 N.W. Fourth reported to police that between June 3 and June 16 a tenant she rents a home to at 404 N. Ninth took a chest of drawers and a dresser and mirror from the house without her permission.

- Pam Honea of 3214 Cornell told police that sometime Monday someone stole one water ski from a boat parked in front of her home.

- Melody Choate of 1905 E. 25th told police that between 10:30 p.m. Tuesday and 11:30 a.m. Wednesday someone damaged her car by scratching the left side and rear of the car with a sharp tool.

- According to reports, police received a report at 8:34 a.m. yesterday that four tires and rims had been stolen from a 1966 Mustang parked on the west lot of Big Spring Truck and Trailer at 212 N.E. 12th.

Sheriff's Log

Local man arrested

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Steve Watson, 20, of 1405 E. 15th in connection with a peace bond. Watson was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin and released after posting $1,000 bond.

Two persons were transferred from county jail to Midland for transfer to the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville: Charles Russell Carter, 20, no address available, three years for revocation of probation on forgery conviction and Curtis Dillard Johnston, 28, 1212 E. 6th, five years for revocation of probation.

Cyndi G. Bowman, 24, of Dallas pleaded guilty in 118th District Court to felony theft. Ms. Bowman was assessed a five-year probated sentence and ordered to pay $1,806.93 in restitution.

Ernesto Moreno, 49, of Coahoma remains in county jail without bond after his arrest by sheriff's deputies in connection with a writ of attachment.

Stan Lynn Fraley, 19, of 1506 Stadium posted $15,000 bond to be released after his transfer from police custody to the sheriff's office. Fraley was arraigned before Heflin for suspicion of forgery and theft over $200.

Knott Fun Festival raises $11,000 for local family

The Knott Fun Festival raised more than $11,000 during its festive run July 9th, according to one of its organizers.

Paul Hopper said the first-time event to raise money for a local family's medical bills brought in larger crowds than anticipated. A barbecue planned for 150 drew more than 500 people, but total crowd estimates were unavailable.

The funeral of a longtime Knott resident and a fire in the community dimmed some of the festivities, but Hopper said the day-long festival was accorded a success. He promised another festival next year.

A fund for Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Cypert has been set up at State National Bank to help the couple with medical bills for their daughter, Hopper said.

For the record

The road Howard County commissioners agreed to abandon at their Monday meeting is between land owned by H. D. Cowden and S. D. Gaskins. The land is farmed by R. V. Fryar, erroneously identified in the story as one of the owners.

JUST A BIG HOLE IN THE GROUND — A twelve foot deep meteor depression near Odessa is usually disappointing to tourists who travel to see it. The crater, mostly filled with sand, was made about 20,000 years ago when a meteor survived its trip through the earth's atmosphere, creating a 100-foot deep-hole where it crashed.

Tourists upset by meteor crater in Ector County

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer

METEOR CRATER, Texas (AP) — Those who see what's left of the meteor that gouged West Texas 20,000 years ago often are disappointed.

"Tourists get real upset when they drive all the way out here and see this," said Ector County caretaker Dale Yonkin, who lives in a trailer with his wife and two children on the rim of the block-wide meteor crater.

The only movement near the crater is an oil company pump jack that bobs beside the 12-foot-deep depression. The meteor carved a 100-foot-deep hole in the earth on impact, but since then, winds have nearly filled the crater to ground-level with sand.

"The crater's just a big old hole in the ground. It's best is long past," Yonkin said.

The crater's future, too, may be shaky. Two Californians who drove up in a van looked at the crater hole, shook their heads and left within a minute. "Nothing to see," the driver said. "A waste," his passenger said.

Waste is not how Chamber of Commerce officials in Odessa, nine miles to the east, feel about the crater.

"We have a crater and it is legitimate," spokeswoman Eunice Ramsey said. "It's just not something you go to every weekend."

Few motorists traveling on Interstate 10 through the rich Permian oil basin take the two-mile detour to the meteor site.

"We don't need to keep a crowd counter out there," Ms. Ramsey said.

The meteor site, named a national landmark in 1965, does interest scientists.

NASA studied the crater preceding man's landing on the moon in 1969 because the terrain was so similar to the meteor-impacted moon, Odessa meteor enthusiast Tom Rodman said.

The University of Texas also studied the crater in 1940 for supernatural materials, but found no geologic anomalies, he said.

But Rodman has little interest in those who stop to see the crater and leave disappointed.

"If it's not a body of water you can throw a beer can in, they don't seem to be interested," Rodman said.

Trails explaining the significance of the crater dot the site, and pieces of the meteor are on display at the local library.

And while not as many tourists flock to the site as they had hoped for, local residents want to preserve "our beautiful bowl-shaped depression," Rodman said.

990 tons daily to the Earth after they crash at sea or on land, experts say. Some meteor showers appear yearly at predictable times. For instance, the Leonid meteor swarm appears each mid-November.

Written records indicate the Leonid shower was seen as long ago as 902 A.D. — 981 years ago, meteor expert Frank Drass said.

Some meteors that hit the Earth cause considerable damage. Seventy-five years ago, the Tunguska meteorite scorched a 20-mile-wide swath and flattened Siberian forests like matchsticks, Drass said. They were no reported deaths.

The largest meteor on Earth is near Grootfontein in southwest Africa, and weighs about 66 tons. The largest meteorite in the United States was found in 1902 near Portland in Oregon's Willamette Valley, and weighed 15 tons.

Most meteors completely disintegrate before they reach Earth, but those large enough to reach the ground are called meteorites. An observer without the aid of a telescope each night can see an average of five to 10 meteors per hour, scientists say.

Meteorites that survive the intense heat of atmospheric friction and reach Earth shatter on impact with the ground. Craters from a meteor strike have carved holes in places such as Arizona, northern Quebec, Canada, the Chaco region of Argentina, Siberia and near Odessa.

The Odessa area meteor was made up of 90 percent iron, 7 percent nickel and 3 percent trace minerals, all of which are found on Earth, Rodman said.

When the meteor first hit, it landed in the then-West Texas marshland. West Texas now is dry plains with an average rainfall of 15 inches, and seemingly has more oilwells than trees.

But the crater "has been injured" by road crews, Rodman said. Chunks of the crater rim were used for building roads before locals objected. Odessa's Meteor Crater Task Force also has tried to keep the site clean.

Too often, vandals tossed trash in the crater and broken beer bottles. But with the county caretaker now watching over the crater, enthusiasts hope the site can be kept intact for those interested in meteors.

Trails explaining the significance of the crater dot the site, and pieces of the meteor are on display at the local library.

And while not as many tourists flock to the site as they had hoped for, local residents want to preserve "our beautiful bowl-shaped depression," Rodman said.

Redistricting

The city will be divided into three districts with people living in each district voting for a council member, she said.

"This will give us a better chance to get a minority elected," Mrs. Arsiaga said.

The two LULAC leaders said District 1 of the three districts — composed largely of north and west areas — will be the best hope for minority council representation.

"District one is the only one we're interested in," Mrs. Arsiaga said.

Mrs. Deanda said the new voting arrangement could help improve city-minority relationships with the possibility of minorities serving on the council.

"People are not as free to go to the city council as they would if a minority were on it," Mrs. Deanda said.

The LULAC president said efforts were made by both sides to resolve the representation problem after the suit was filed in November of 1982. The "3-3-1" plan — "a very friendly settlement" — was the suggestion from the city, Mrs. Deanda said.

Although final plans for the district arrangements are still pending, other possible changes include bilingual election judges and opening more precinct boxes during local option elections.

The tentative settlement should save taxpayers money since the city will not have to fight the lawsuit, Mrs. Deanda said. However, the suit is still scheduled for trial in October with the Howard County Junior College District and the Big Spring Independent School District still named as defendants.

"Hopefully, this will set an example for the college and school districts," Mrs. Deanda said.

In other action, LULAC discussed plans for the 16th of September. LULAC District 5 Director Henry Guevarra urged attendance at the District Executive Meeting in San Angelo next month. After adjourning, members went into executive session with Guevarra.

large position, persons in District 1 would vote for candidates vying in that district and in the at-large election. However, voters in the rest of the city would only cast ballots in the at-large race.

Curtis said the April '84 elections probably will place representatives from two of the single-member districts on the council with the third district to elect its councilman the following year.

He said the councilmen will all serve staggered three-year terms. The election of at-large council members will be by plurality vote, with the single-member districts and mayor elected by a majority.

Curtis cautions that the present plan is tentative and details could change. He said the plan will be finalized by himself and LULAC attorney Rolando Rios and then submitted to the city council and the local LULAC chapter for approval.

From there, the plan will have to be okayed by the federal court in Abilene and then the U.S. Justice Department.

City Manager Don Davis said attorneys do not anticipate any problems with having the plan okayed since both sides appear agreeable to the compromise.

When asked if a referendum would have to be called to change the city charter to include two more council seats, Davis said it was his understanding that the issue would not be put to a vote.

"As I understand it, when the petition was filed by LULAC it (referendum) was removed from the hands of the electorate," Davis said.

This means if the Justice Department okayes the plan the charter will be changed without a local vote since federal law has jurisdiction over home rule.

disrupted. But it's hard to tell. If you have teen-age sons, you know how it is," Baker said. "It's possible it was ransacked."

Baker said the woman's 1981 Chevrolet Impala was missing. "If somebody sees it, they should be urged not to touch it or go near it. It could end up anywhere, in Dallas, San Antonio, anywhere," he said. The house had been burglarized earlier this year, Baker said.

Police sealed off the area after the bodies were discovered and called in Texas Rangers to join the investigation.

Rivas burglary trial set to begin today

The burglary trial of Joe Luis Rivas got under way before a Howard County jury today after attorneys argued whether his confession was admissible as evidence.

Rivas, 22, of Lenora is charged with the Sept. 6, 1982 burglary of Pinkie's on the Lamesa Highway in which over $17,000 in goods and funds were taken.

Defense attorney Jack Thompson of Big Spring and District Attorney Rick Hamby called witnesses this morning in a pre-trial hearing before presiding District Judge Jim Gregg to determine if Rivas' 1982 confession could be admitted as evidence.

The six-man, six-woman jury was cloistered during the hearing which lasted nearly two hours.

Texas Ranger Charles Brune, Rivas and his estranged common-law wife, Genice Torres, were called during the hearing. Brune said he and Howard County Sheriff's Deputy Bill Shankles arrested Rivas and took his initial statement.

Rivas challenged the voluntariness of his statement, according to the district attorney's office.

Testimony before the jury began at approximately 11:10 a.m. after Gregg ruled the confession was admissible.

Hot Check Department

collects $11,461 in June

The Hot Check Department of the Howard County attorney's office collected $11,461.25 in hot checks and fees for the month of June.

Department director Melba Soles said the amount was slightly lower than previous months. However, she said the department had already collected $5,000 in bad checks the first week of July.

Mrs. Soles cautioned merchants to continue to request drivers licenses when someone is writing a check.

German jet returned

HOUSTON (AP) — A $4 million jet that was confiscated by the government after a 1981 smuggling attempt will be returned to its West German owners under a judge's order.

The jet, a Boeing 707, owned by Flugzeug Leasing, was the intended carrier craft of $1.2 million of munitions, which two British men were trying to smuggle to South Africa, authorities said.

U.S. District Judge George Cire ruled on Wednesday in a three-page order that the Frankfurt-based company did all that could reasonably "be expected of an aircraft leasing company to prevent illegal use of its aircraft."

A jury in April found that Flugzeug Leasing did not participate in the May 1981 smuggling attempt.

Two British men, Peter Thomas Towers, 52, and John Parks, 44, were arrested at Houston Intercontinental Airport in May 1981 as a shipment of armaments, including 1,146 automatic rifles was being loaded aboard the plane.

Towers and Parks later received probation and a civil jury determined in April that a now-defunct company called Montana-Austria leased the Boeing 707 and was involved in the smuggling plot.

Cire ordered the weapons, 1,505 in all, to be forfeited to the U.S. government, because of the jury decision.

Gregg ruled the confession was admissible.

Defendant in mercy trial explains killing

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Ray Clore testified at his murder trial today that he shot his comatose father because he considered him already dead.

The defendant said he believed his father died on Nov. 19, when he had his second heart attack and lapsed into a coma. He said he visited his father about three times a week while he was in a northeast Houston nursing home and that his father never responded to talk or motions in the room.

Asked by defense attorney Jack Zimmerman what he did March 21, Clore responded: "I shot my father."

"Did you kill him?" Zimmerman asked.

"I stopped him from breathing," Clore said.

"I walked in the room and stood there and looked at my father. I said a prayer, I prayed that I'd be forgiven for what I was about to do, if it was wrong," he said.

Clore collapsed in tears and questioning stopped briefly while he regained his composure.

Prosecutor J.K. Hansen briefly interrogated Clore afterward and told him he joined him in his prayers for forgiveness.

Two doctors testified in the trial Wednesday that the gunshot wound to the head was not the chief cause of Robert Clore's death.

The defendant's two sisters also testified that when their father was shot, he was "brain-dead" and doctors had said he had no prospect for recovery.

Extortion witness called

DALLAS (AP) — An Arlington man says he has been summoned to testify before a grand jury investigating an extortion scheme involving a series of bomb threats against Exxon service stations, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Paul D. Methven, 40, told the newspaper that his original appearance, scheduled for May, had been postponed. He refused further comment.

The grand jury is investigating a series of bombing incidents in which a man called the Dallas offices of Exxon demanding 250 gold kruggerands in exchange for information about the location of bombs placed at service stations in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Methven, who then lived in Arlington, and three others were accused of placing bombs in various gas stations on the East Coast, then demanding money from oil companies in exchange for the locations of the bombs, the Times Herald reported.

Four bombs exploded, causing minor damage to service stations, but no one was injured.

One bomb apparently exploded without igniting the gasoline in an underground storage tank, and another blew up in a trash container. No one was injured in the blasts.

At least two other bombs were discovered by law en-

Showers predicted

By The Associated Press

Scattered shower and thundershowers developed over wide sections of Texas early today, prompting a flash flood watch for portions of South Central and Southeast Texas.

The shower activity extended from the Lower Rio Grande Valley northward throughout most of the eastern half of Texas.

Skies were cloudy to partly cloudy over most of the state before dawn.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. ranged from 61 at Marfa to 78 at McAllen. Winds were mostly from the east and southeast at 5 to 15 mph.

The forecast called for scattered showers and thundershowers, most numerous and heavy in South Texas, through Friday. Locally heavy rains could cause flash flooding in some areas, the National Weather Service said.

Showers and thundershowers lingered early today over the Pacific Northwest and from New Mexico to southeast Colorado and the Texas Panhandle.

Scattered rain also was reported through sections of the Texas Gulf Coast, over central Florida and along the mid-Atlantic Coast.

Rainfall generally was light although nearly a half-inch was recorded at Walla Walla, Wash., and Macon, Ga., officials said.

Thunderstorms were forecast to extend later today from eastern Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley, with rain soaking an area from the Coastal Northwest into the northern Rockies and another band of showers drifting over much of New England.

Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 52 degrees in Tacoma, Wash., to 97 in Phoenix, Ariz.

Defense bill faces final stretch

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Vice President George Bush casting a tie-breaking vote for nerve gas, the Senate's work on a $200 billion defense bill enters the final stretch, but a leading MX-missile opponent vows it won't be a short one.

Several amendments on various aspects of the fiscal 1984 authorization measure awaited action today before the start of a climactic debate on the MX, the most hotly contested element of President Reagan's rearmament drive.

Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said he hoped to finish work on the bill tonight or Friday.

But Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., leader of the anti-MX coalition, rejected such talk, saying: "To think that this issue could be fully debated in one or two days is a failure to accept the gravity of decisions on defense and national security."

In a 13½-hour floor session that ended at 12:30 a.m. today, senators worked through several amendments on controversial subjects.

- With Bush providing the tie-breaking vote as presiding officer, members rejected, 50-49, an attempt to prevent production of a new generation of nerve gas weapons.
- An effort by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and others to kill the B-1 bomber program by deleting all $5.2 billion for it in the bill was crushed easily, 68-30.
- The Senate defeated, 52-46, an effort to establish a new GI Bill education program to replace the one that lapsed in 1977.

- However, it accepted, 67-30, an amendment by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., to remove $50 million earmarked for a plant to build "enhanced radiation" battlefield nuclear warheads and use the money for conventional arms to disrupt enemy rear-echelon forces.
- And it rejected, 53-41, an attempt by Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., to return the bill to the Armed Services Committee for trimming because $1.3 billion in inflation savings claimed by the administration have not been accepted by the Congressional Budget Office.
- Hart said he and 13 colleagues planned to introduce six "debate-framing" amendments, ranging from elimination of all $4.7 billion in the bill for the missile to conditions the president must meet to proceed with deployment.

In a floor speech Wednesday, Hart said the subject deserved several days of discussion because the MX "would reverse years of thinking about nuclear weapons strategy" and "open a dangerous new chapter in the madness of an unrestrained nuclear arms race."

Central to this, he said, was Reagan's decision to place the weapons in silos now occupied by Minuteman 3 missiles — a basing method he said is vulnerable to destruction by the Soviet Union and thus invites a hair-trigger, "launch-on-warning" response.

Reagan insists that the nation's sea- and air-launched nuclear weapons reduce the vulnerability problem of land-based missiles and that the MX "Peacekeeper" is vital to chances for obtaining a strategic arms-control treaty with the Soviets.

Advocates of the new nerve-gas weapons also invoked the negotiations argument, with Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, contending: "We cannot negotiate a ban without having a store of chemical weapons ourselves."

He said existing U.S. chemical weapons, the last of which were produced in 1969, are becoming unserviceable because of age and thus are no deterrent against a much larger, modern Soviet stockpile.

But opponents, led by Sens. David Pryor, D-Ark., called the weapon an unnecessary and inhumane addition to the nation's arsenal that would kill more civilians in a war zone than soldiers.

Tower moved to table, or effectively kill, Pryor's amendment to strip $130 million for nerve gas production from the bill.

Anticipating a close vote, Baker had arranged for Bush to preside in his constitutional role as Senate president, entitling him to cast a tie-breaking vote.

This is precisely what occurred after the vote was announced at 49-49.

Bush's vote was the first by a vice president since Nov. 4, 1977, when Walter F. Mondale cast the deciding ballot on a bill that raised Social Security taxes for workers and employers.

Death threats curtail activities

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The U.S. Embassy says it has ordered American military and diplomatic personnel not to jog in parks or visit popular nightclubs because of death threats from leftist guerrillas.

A U.S. Embassy official said Wednesday that the staff of approximately 100 has been instructed to avoid public places in response to the threats, described as "pretty serious" by other embassy officials.

The Popular Liberation Forces, a leftist rebel group, claimed responsibility for the May 25 assassination of Navy Lt. Cmdr. Albert Schaufelberger III in San Salvador. The latest threat also came from that organization, the U.S. embassy official said.

"We have received information of a direct, specified threat, an attempt to kill along the lines of Al's murder, specifically against military people and conceivably against others," said the official, who requested anonymity for security reasons.

Schaufelberger, 33, was shot in the head three times through an open window of his bulletproof car as he waited at a university campus to pick up a Salvadoran woman friend. He was deputy chief of the U.S. military advisers assisting the Salvadoran armed forces in the war against the insurgents. He also was in charge of security for the group.

The Popular Liberation Forces, considered the most radical of five guerrilla groups fighting the rightist government, warned in a communique after Schaufelberger was killed that it would "harvest" dead Americans.

The embassy decided to tighten security after it received a memorandum last Thursday from Salvadoran army intelligence warning of more threats, the U.S. official said. The new security rules were issued Monday.

Under the rules, embassy staff must no longer jog in public places or stay out for more than 90 minutes at a time. They must also avoid press photographers and night clubs where they would be conspicuous.

Jogging in San Salvador's spacious parks and along its broad avenues has been a favorite pastime of embassy staff.

Embassy employees have canceled or postponed parties and social gatherings since security was tightened, officials said.

"It's the shell game approach. We try to keep them guessing," the U.S. official said. He refused to disclose other security precautions or say exactly how many people work at the embassy.

Embassy personnel already had bodyguards and bulletproof vehicles before the new rules. The embassy is surrounded by a heavy steel fence and concrete wall with pillboxes manned by armed guards.

Leftist and rightist groups have attacked the embassy with rockets and gun fire at least a dozen times since the 45-month civil war began. One Marine guard was slightly injured in the hand in one attack.

The last attack was June 28, when a leftist group fired a rocket at the building, then sprayed it with gunfire. The rocket hit a tree.

In a farewell address to a business group, U.S. Ambassador Deane R. Hinton, said he believed it possible but unlikely that the Reagan administration would dispatch troops to Central America.

Hinton also expressed outrage at what he called "the failure" of the Salvadoran judicial system to bring to justice the slayers of four American churchwomen and two American labor advisers.

The four American churchwomen were killed in December 1980 and the two labor advisers the next month. National guardsmen have been charged in the cases but trials have not begun.

Hinton, 60, leaves El Salvador on Friday. His replacement will be Thomas Pickering, a career diplomat whose last post was Nigeria.

...motorcycle group wins first

Suez Motor Patrol takes tops honors

The Suez Motor Patrol, composed largely of Big Spring Shriners, captured top honors in their division at the recent 109th Imperial Council Session in Denver, Colo.

More than 35,000 Shriners gathered for the session. The motorcycle group took first place in drill competition.

Leader Col. Robert Miller said the first-place trophy was a first for the Suez Temple which encompasses San Angelo, Abilene, Big Spring and other surrounding West Texas towns.

In addition to Miller, the patrol includes Lt. Col. Chuck Reynolds, Gordon Myrick, Howard Walker, Coleman Nalls, Verlin Knous, Charlie Wash, Richard Knous, Arvin Henry, Joe Matthews, Joe Amaral and Chris Christopher.

The group also took second place in similar competition on the state level in El Paso June 10.

Iacocca completes Chrysler comeback

DETROIT (AP) — Five years after being fired by Ford Motor Co., Lee Iacocca can take credit for one of the great comebacks in business history — the rescue of the nearly bankrupt Chrysler Corp., which could post a $700 million profit this year.

The Chrysler chairman announced Wednesday that the nation's No. 3 automaker will pay back — seven years early — the remaining $800 million it owes in federally guaranteed loans.

At a standing-room-only luncheon in Washington, Iacocca told reporters he was just following his father's credo: "When you borrow something, pay the damn stuff back."

"I'd give someone a check right now," he told the National Press Club audience, adding that the actual payment would not come for 60 days because of red tape.

In describing the fiscal turnaround, Iacocca said: "You know as Americans, we seem to have a rather peculiar trait, we run better and faster scared. Adversity brings us together."

In 1975, Chrysler faced bankruptcy. But Iacocca wrung $1.5 billion in loan guarantees from the federal government to give the company an infusion of cash. Chrysler then drew down $1.2 billion of the cash and combined it with worker concessions and a snappy new line of front-wheel-drive cars to return to profitability.

Fire in sugar cane field cause of power failure

HONOLULU (AP) — A fire in a sugar cane field was blamed for a chain-reaction power failure that left the entire island of Oahu without electricity for seven hours, forcing the governor to close state offices and send 25,000 workers home.

Traffic lights went dead and elevators stopped but police reported few problems.

Electrical service went out just after 10 a.m. local time (4 p.m. EDT) Wednesday, according to the Hawaiian Electric Company. Engineers began restoring electricity in phases, and 12 hours after the outage began, power had been restored to virtually the whole island, with the exception of a few pockets.

Oahu is home to 80 percent of Hawaii's 1 million residents.

Traffic was snarled on the city streets and at least one man was trapped in an elevator, but no major accidents were reported.

Gov. George W. Ariyoshi ordered all state offices on Oahu closed and sent the island's 25,000 government workers home on a staggered basis to avoid traffic jams. Honolulu Mayor Eileen Anderson ordered city and county workers home and the Oahu Civil Defense asked businesses to do the same.

Officials said they believed heat from a sugar cane fire ionized the air around a 138,000-volt transmission line from the Kahe Point power plant. Sugar workers use fire to prepare the cane for harvesting.

"Ionized air is a very good conductor of electricity, and it can short out a line just like you put a wire across it," said Dan Williamson, vice president for planning at Hawaiian Electric.

Dear Congressman Hornblower,

I am the person named Resident whom you write to so often. It was just reported in the news that the cost of the "free" congressional mailing privilege has now risen past $100 million a year. Inasmuch as the federal government is running almost $200 billion in the red, I would like you to remove my name from your mailing list so the printing and postage bill can be reduced.

The law says you are only supposed to use your mailing privilege for "official business." I have been reading your newsletters for some years now, and I find it hard to distinguish them from the kind of campaign brochures that are circled at election time.

If you insist on writing again, please include an explanation of why you are able to mail out newsletters about yourself at the expense of the taxpayers, while candidates running against you have to pay for mailing the same kind of publicity material about themselves. Is that fair?

Sincerely,
A Resident

Around the Rim

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

A toast

For some ungodly reason, the topic over iced tea last week was "High School Cafeteria Food."

Remember that stuff? I've been out of high school seven years now but I can almost recall the strange aromas that wafted out of the lunchroom kitchen.

My company at this discussion attended Big Spring High several years ago but we soon discovered that Class A — my high school — to Class 5-A, the meals (and I use that term loosely) were about the same.

What was really odd was that there were parallels to which plates were the best and which were the worst.

Our first conclusion was that the cafeteria was no place for a gourmet lunch. Unfortunately for some of us, the 65 or 70 cent per plate deal was appealing to our parents and thus we had to pull up a knife and fork in the lunchroom.

No food item was safe from ruin. Even the milk, brought in every morning from a dairy, was subject to being sour or warm. Guess it is a long trip from Wisconsin, huh?

The only dependable food on your plate were the rolls. They weren't as good as grandma's but day-in, day-out they were decent. We figured, after some animate discussion, that any item that had to be baked usually turned out the best. Remember, that's usually.

WHEN YOU recall high school cafeteria food, the worst meals come to mind first. At my high school, we had a long list.

The worst, taking the "Gag Me With a Big Spoon" award, was our weekly seaweed. Seaweed, you ask? Well, actually it was called it spinach on the menu but I could have sworn that runny, green stuff plopped on my plate came straight from the Gulf.

It smelled so bad the flies left the room.

Next were the black-eyed peas. Not a natural-born Texan, these brown and black things were foreign to me and I tried my best to adapt to this Southern delicacy. Forget it. When I got to school in the morning, I could smell them simmering and my stomach turned all morning.

Then there was the spaghetti, a dish that no Italian would ever claim. It had those tiny noodles and contained the ground beef that was last Friday's hamburgers. Add a few canned tomatoes and you had a Cafeteria Spaghetti. It wasn't bad but it wasn't spaghetti. Being a connoisseur of spaghetti, I protested each week.

Other memorable items on the all-time worst list were the school bus-yellow potato salad (made from last week's whipped potatoes with mustard and pickles), served hot of course; fish patties, said to be rejects from Charlie the Tuna; rubberized sausage links that bled pure grease when squeezed; and a scrawny piece of chicken, not enough to feed a small family of ants.

Honorable mention? The equally greasy, square piece of pizza and those flat brownies that looked like Too Tall Jones had just sat on. Also the famous toothpick French fries.

OUR MOST distinguishable item were hockey puck peanut butter cookies. They were so hard, local dentists paid for entire vacations from work on our cracked teeth.

The thing to do was hurl these cookies against a brick wall and see how many pitches we could make before they would even chip. Crumble was another thing. One crumble lasted two weeks.

On the bright side was spice cake, cornbread and stew and the really "buttery corn." I ate that corn like a blackbird in Iowa. The cornbread was the best but unfortunately, showed up at least three times a week.

Good for sopping up the greasy sausages.

Notice the list of good items is short. On the honorable mention list is the salad (ruined by that imitation French dressing), hamburgers only because you got to eat more than one and carrot sticks.

The only difference between Big Spring and Wylie was that kids here had a choice. Our cafeteria motto was "What you see is what you get," taken from the Flip Wilson Show.

Both lunchrooms were staffed by elderly women — some very nice and some former drill sergeants — who wore those fishnet things on their heads and white shoes.

AND SO, after laughing about high school cafeteria food, we came to our last conclusion: no one missed that stuff, although all four of us bachelors agreed we couldn't cook any better.

I hate to ruin any summers, but you kiddos out there have to face cafeteria food again in just about a month.

Bon appetit...ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha....

The real battleground in 1984

The economy is roaring back to life, the Democratic presidential candidates are stirring about as much enthusiasm as the United States Football League, and President Reagan looks more and more like a solid bet to be re-elected. But that will be a hollow victory if the Democrats can take advantage of a sterling opportunity to regain control of the U.S. Senate.

The Republican Senate has been Reagan's trump card, particularly in his effort to preserve such cherished programs as the three-year tax cut. The President was nearly unbeatable even on the House side during his inaugural year, but since then he has mostly been trying to hold on to those victories. Control of the Senate has been the key to that strategy.

The numbers spell trouble for the GOP. Nineteen Republican seats are up in 1984, but only 14 Democratic ones. Nearly all of the Democratic incumbents look safe, but as many as 10 Republican seats are vulnerable. And the Democrats need to pick up only five members.

THE REPUBLICANS may be the victims of their own success. Many of those up for re-election next year are the products of one or both of two good GOP years — 1966 and 1978, each of which gained them three seats. (In 1972, despite the Nixon landslide, the GOP contrived to lose two seats.) That's why so many Republicans and so few Democrats are facing the voters next year.

What makes things look even better for the Democrats is that, as political consultant Alan Baron notes, their senators have proven they can win even in those tough years. The Republicans generally haven't. And even if the economy and Reagan's popularity rebound by November of next year, Senate Republicans may have some explaining to do for the pain the country has gone through since 1980.

THE REAL battleground will be the South. To regain control of the Senate, the Democrats have to win there. But there are other opportunities for Democratic gains. The races to watch:

Tennessee: The best bet for the Democrats. Howard Baker's retirement gives Rep. Albert Gore a chance to follow in his father's tracks. Republicans have tried in vain to persuade Gov. Lamar Alexander to run. Unless he changes his mind, count this one for the Democrats.

North Carolina: The Democrats will have to blunder to lose. They'll run the popular Democratic governor, James Hunt, against Jesse Helms, who has gotten where he is thanks to good luck in drawing opponents. His luck has probably run out.

Texas: John Tower's problem is symbolized by his position as the only Republican in statewide office. He barely beat Rep. Robert Krueger in 1978, despite a huge war chest and the luxury of running against Jimmy Carter. His opponent is likely to be Krueger or state Sen. Lloyd Doggett. Tower's best hope: a bloody Democratic primary won by Doggett, a capable but lackluster former Naderite.

Mississippi: Thad Cochran got to the Senate almost by accident in 1978, thanks to a black independent candidate who split the normal Democratic vote. In 1984, he should have only one opponent. If it's Gov. William Winter, bet on Winter.

Outside the South, the GOP's prospects look better. But Illinois' Charles Percy could well lose to Rep. Paul Simon, and Iowa's Roger Jepsen, a darling of the New Right, will probably have a stiff challenge from Rep. Tom Harkin. Colorado's William Armstrong is home free — unless Gov. Richard Lamm gives in to his party's pleas that he run for the Senate. Oregon's Mark Hatfield may retire.

The Republicans do have some safe seats — Nancy Kassebaum in Kansas, Strom Thurmond in South Carolina, James McClure in Idaho, Alan Simpson in Wyoming. But at this point every Democrat except one looks like a shoo-in. Delaware's Joseph Biden will be in trouble if he has to run against Gov. Pierre du Pont IV, who got 71 percent of the vote in his last race.

THE GOP has some advantages, like more money and, most likely, a stronger presidential nominee. And last year, despite the recession, nearly every vulnerable Republican incumbent won — Weicker in Connecticut, Danforth in Missouri, Chafee in Rhode Island, Stafford in Vermont.

Still, duplicating that trick won't be easy. Failing to do so, however, may end the party's hopes of ever regaining control of the entire Congress. And Republicans from Eisenhower to Ford can tell Reagan that he'll enjoy his next four years a lot more if he can keep the Senate on his side.

Mr. Rhoton has been a victim three times in the past year. On one offense, the Big Spring Police Department made two arrests, and Mr. Rhoton refused to prosecute. Mr. Rhoton was contacted twice in reference to his last burglary. Once on March 23, 1983 and again on March 31, 1983. The Big Spring Police Department Detective division, Howard County S.O., Texas Rangers and the D.A.S. offices have spent several days tracking down leads concerning this case. We are currently working the case.

Knott Festival goes thanked

Dear Editor,
The citizens of the Knott community and the Cypert family want to thank all the people and businesses involved in making the Firstever East, West & Middle Knott Fun Festival a success. Without the donations and interest of the local concerns, we could not have undertaken such a task.
We would also like to thank the Herald for its promotion and coverage of the event. Such publicity was an asset in "spreading the word" and increasing local interest.
We are well pleased with the outcome of the festival, and in this way, hope to publicly thank everyone involved.
Sincerely,

Billy Graham

Person never has been happy

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I guess I would have to say I have never been happy at any time in my life. My father was always too busy making money and my mother always nagged me. My marriage has not been happy, and I find myself getting increasingly depressed. Maybe if I tried God it would help — B.W.

DEAR B.W.: I am sorry your life has been filled with so much unhappiness. Some of your feelings, I suspect you know, probably come from your childhood experiences, and parents need to realize how much their behavior affects the lives of their children for years to come.

Yes, God can help you in this situation — and he wants to help you, because he loves you. Throughout your life you have felt that people did not really love you — and whether you realize it or not, you probably have felt down inside that you were not worth loving and that life was hardly worth living.

But I want to tell you good news — God loves you! How do I know that he loves you? I know it because Jesus Christ, God's only Son, was willing to die on the cross to take away your sin so you could become part of his family. If you had been the only person with sin in the whole world, Christ still would have gone to the cross as a sacrifice for your sins. He loves you that much.

That is why one of the most important things you can do is to begin to see yourself the way God sees you. You cannot be the same once you realize God's love is focused on you. "How great is the love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are!" (1 John 3:1).

Yes, God has done everything possible to wash away your sins and bring you into a personal relationship with himself. But you must respond to his love. How can you do that? By accepting Jesus Christ into your heart by faith, asking him to come into your life and become Lord of your life. God is only a prayer away, and he stands ready to receive you. Then get into the Scriptures, and see what they say about God's love for you. God wants to change you and give you an inner peace you have never known — and he will, as you turn in faith to him.

Police chief answers letter

To News Media:
On July 10, 1983, a letter to the editor appeared in the Big Spring Herald from David and Pat Rhoton. Mr. and Mrs. Rhoton made several accusations. I would like to respond to each of these:

1. Keep in mind that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Rhoton was present when traffic stop was made.
2. Mr. Rhoton's son, Kevin Dean Rhoton was observed by Officer Leahey traveling West on 3rd Street. The motorcycle he was operating did not have a taillight that was operable. When the traffic stop was made Officer Leahey advised Mr. Kevin Rhoton that he was stopped due to an inoperable tail light.

When Kevin Rhoton failed to produce a driver's license Officer Leahey submitted a request via computer to Austin D.P.S. on the condition of Mr. Kevin Rhoton's operators license. He found that his license had been suspended. Mr. Kevin Rhoton had twenty five (25) moving violation entries on his driving record.

Officer Leahey advised Mr. Kevin Rhoton that a citation could be issued for transporting a minor without a helmet. Miss Melissa Jo Sink, passenger on the motorcycle, advised she was 19 years of age. When ask for identification she had none. Officer Leahey did not pursue the topic.

Mr. Kevin Rhoton was arrested for Driving While License Suspended, ed, handcuffed and transported to the Big Spring Police Department Jail.

3. Mr. Rhoton stated that Miss Melissa Jo Sink was left standing on the corner of West 4th and Brown Street. Mr. Rhoton failed to mention that Custom Builders, Owner David Rhoton, is located on the corner of West 4th and Brown Street. Miss Sink was given the keys to Custom Builders by Kevin Rhoton and Miss Sink was safely inside the building before the officers left the scene. There were also two other people, friends of Kevin Rhoton, at the scene. The officers would not have left Miss Sink if she had not had safe shelter.

4. Mr. Rhoton stated that the suspension had been lifted on his son's license. At the time of arrest Mr. Kevin Rhoton's license was under suspension. The expiration of the suspension was 8-10-83. D.P.S. personnel in Austin can explain the circumstances.

(Mr. Vernon Cole
D.P.S.
Driver Improvement
512/465-2000)

5. Mr. Rhoton further states that three of our officers were present at the police station. This is true due to the fact that Mr. David Rhoton was creating a disturbance. Mr. Rhoton told me that if he had access to Officer Leahey at the station he would have assaulted the officer. Mr. Rhoton was using obscene language towards the officers.

6. Mr. Rhoton states that he had been the victim of several crimes in the past. This is true; however, his statement of our inactivity is not true.

South African poet faces deportation

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Dennis Brutus, a man of many countries, has no home. He's unwanted in South Africa, unsafe in Zimbabwe, unwelcome in the United States.

DENNIS BRUTUS ... fights deportation

The South African poet-in-exile has requested asylum in the United States, but after 12 years in this country, that has been denied. England is an uncertain option, and he's not eager to go there.

Until February 1981, the Immigration and Naturalization Service allowed him to stay in the United States. Then it made an issue of his status as an "excludable" alien, ruling he should be told to leave because he intends to remain permanently.

A status hearing will be held Monday before Immigration Judge Irving Schwartz in Chicago.

Brutus was expelled from South Africa in 1966 after bannings and imprisonment because the white minority government considers him a dangerous advocate of violent struggle against its policy of racial segregation known as apartheid.

Born in Rhodesia — now Zimbabwe — of "colored" parents, he grew up and went to school in South Africa, where his mixed-race parentage made him a second-class citizen and his opposition cost him dearly.

After his banishment, Brutus became a non-person: His writings may not be published, his picture may not be shown, he cannot be quoted in the South African press.

After a stay in England, where his wife and a son still live, Brutus came to the United States, believing he must stay in this country to carry on his fight against apartheid. At 58, he is a tenured professor of English and African literature at Northwestern University.

He is perhaps best known to Americans as the stalwart of a 20-year crusade that resulted in South Africa's suspension from the 1964 and 1968 Olympics at Tokyo and Mexico City, and expulsion from all games after 1970.

Supporters, including members of Congress and scholars, believe that success may explain why the United States wants to deport Brutus before the 1984 Summer Games in Los Angeles.

"We have little doubt Mr. Brutus' troubles stem from the Reagan administration and its stated policy of 'constructive engagement' with the government of South Africa," said his attorney, Susan Gzesh.

"There is plenty of talk that South Africa will try and lay the groundwork to return to the Olympics by showing up in Los Angeles for the (1984) Games," she continued. "Dennis would be a giant obstacle on that path, particularly if he organized opposition."

Immigration service spokesman Bob Esbrook responded that, "Mr. Brutus' efforts in that field (the Olympics) and his immigration problems are totally unrelated. Until they brought it up, the issue had never been raised by the government."

Speaking softly through a full beard, Brutus does not seem imposing enough to warrant the hatred of one government and the suspected scorn of another. But from the pages of his poetry and prose, as well as the polite tones of his voice, comes a relentless call to take up arms.

"We must never accede to the sham that the government would promote as equality. Today, 80 percent of South Africans cannot vote. Their homes — such as they are — are constantly being bulldozed and relocated," Brutus said in a recent interview.

"There is no way to organize peaceful resistance, and besides, the government has made peaceful protest illegal."

The images of violence and rebirth that permeate Brutus' books of poetry such as "Salutes and Censures" and "The Sirens, Knuckles, Boots," spring from a consciousness stoked by memories of denial. As a young teacher, he was banned from publishing and later from entering schools because of organizing attempts.

Brutus was imprisoned several times for defying those bans, and beaten by his jailers. He endured more than five years of house arrest. After being shot during an escape attempt, he was ordered to leave.

When he began teaching at a black college in the 1940s, Brutus hit on the idea that would help make South Africa an outcast in world sports. He befriended weightlifter Ron Eland, a black denied a spot on the national team.

"It was a beautiful example because the Olympic charter bars nations from mixing racism with sports and here was something that could be measured in exact terms — poundage," Brutus recalled.

"We had on our hands an undeniable example of discrimination. We put together a fund-raiser and sent him to the 1948 Commonwealth Games."

Eland entered unaffiliated and went on to defeat his countrymen. But Brutus' crusade would not taste victory until he convinced a small group of prominent European sportsmen and the heads of emerging African states in the late 1960s to put pressure on the Olympic Committee and its president, Avery Brundage.

The U.S. State Department, in an advisory opinion on his case, said Brutus has a "well-founded fear of persecution in South Africa."

It did not accept entirely his contention that returning to Zimbabwe would leave him open to assassination by South African "agents," but nevertheless recommended that he not be sent there either.

Freaky frog has extra appendage

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A professor says it's a common toad with an uncommon appendage. To the kids who found the amphibian, which has a four-toed foot growing from its throat, it's "Freaky Frog."

That's the name chosen by Lydia Locke, 11, her brother Robert, 8, and Heath and Keith Edie, both 6, who spotted the toad last week in a backyard in Noble, south of Norman.

The toad, which also has four normal legs, was taken to the Oklahoma City Zoo on Monday.

Dr. Vernon Hutchison, a research biologist at the University of Oklahoma, identified the amphibian as a Woodhouse's toad.

"There are lots of reports of amphibians with extra digits, but I don't recall one from the throat," the professor said.

Hutchison said the spare leg could have formed if there were "some injury during the early development of the egg."

The biologist said he hopes to get the toad from the zoo and study it.

LaVoy Moore feted with bridal shower

LaVoy Moore, bride-elect of David Yarbrough, was honored with a bridal shower at Big Spring Country Club, Saturday.

Hostesses were Mmes. Jimmy Anderson, David Anderson, Earl Archer, Charles Beil, Ellis Britton, C.L. Carlile, James R. Cave, Carl Coleman, J.B. Cushing, Delbert Donelson, David Elrod, Avery Falkner, Wayne Henry, Joe Horton, O.H. Ivey, Don Melton, Don McDonald, K.H. McGibbon, Jimmy Morehead, Doug Morris, Don Newsom, Harold Pearce, Cecil Peurifoy, Harvey Perry, Charles Phillips, Robert Stripling, Glen Welch and Walter Wheat.

The hostesses presented the honoree with a set of cookware.

Corsages were presented to Miss Moore, Mrs. W.A. Moore Jr., mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. L.M. Yarbrough, mother of the prospective bridegroom.

The table was covered with a white hand-embroidered organdy and linen cloth with a pink underlay. An arrangement of pink and aqua flowers in a silver wine cooler centered the table. Pink floral arrangements were placed throughout the room.

Serving at the register and punch table were Nikki Anderson, Dana Anderson, Charlotte Beil, Brenda Beil, Hollie Peurifoy, Carol Morehead, Janie Anderson, Barbie Kothmann and Laura Moore.

Miss Moore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Moore, Jr., 528 Scott. Mr. and Mrs. L.M. Yarbrough of Arlington are the parents of the prospective bridegroom.

The couple will wed August 6 in the 14th and Main Church of Christ.

Health Fair beat

Blood screenings planned

Free screenings for anemia, blood type, and sickle cell anemia will be offered during the day long Health Fair July 23, by laboratory departments of the Veteran's Administration Hospital, the Big Spring State Hospital, and Malone-Hogan Hospital.

The term "anemia" refers to a low red blood cell count, and a below normal hemoglobin or hematocrit level. Symptoms can include paleness, susceptibility to fatigue, shortness of breath, headache, and dizziness.

Blood typing is done to establish a person's blood group as either A, B, AB, or O, and his Rh factor which is either positive or negative. Each participant will be given a card for his wallet documenting his blood type.

A third screening at this booth will be for sickle cell anemia, a type of anemia found almost exclusively in Blacks. It is also occasionally found in persons of Mediterranean extraction. Since sickle cell anemia is a genetically determined, inherited disease, those with family histories of this disease are encouraged to take advantage of this screening.

For those persons fearful of a needle, the three screenings — anemia, blood typing, and sickle cell anemia — will require only one simple "finger prick."

Results of these screenings will be available in a 5 to 15 minute time period. Results will also be recorded on a card the Fair participants will carry with them from booth to booth. Should further screening be required, the results can be related to their family physicians.

Participants of all health screenings will be encouraged to share all abnormal findings with their family physicians who can then assist them in seeking further consultation and diagnostic evaluation.

Mayonnaise's acidity inhibits growth of harmful bacteria

Use mayonnaise on your picnic sandwiches without fear of being foodpoisoned. Recent studies have shown that the acidity in mayonnaise from vinegar and/or lemon actually inhibits the growth of harmful bacteria. Food poisoning bacteria, salmonella and staphylococcus aureus, can't even survive in mayonnaise.

Dr. Donohue

Prostate cancer seriousness varies

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please give us the best way to handle my husband's carcinoma of the prostate. The lab test showed a high acid phosphatase level. Is surgery indicated? My husband is in good health, good spirits, has no pain and no bleeding. He is, at 70, very active, except for arthritis. He is supposed to have another exam in three months. — Mrs. E.C.

can tell you the various options. Which one is selected depends upon your doctor's evaluation of the extent of the carcinoma (cancer) and just what kind of tumor it is. This condition has a wide spectrum of conditions, from benign to malignant. I know those sound like contradictions in terms. Cancer is cancer, so it's difficult to understand how some can be less serious than others. But it's true. Here are some of the options, some ways this kind of cancer is treated. There is surgery; there is radiation with special X-rays; there is a procedure in which tiny radioactive "seeds" are implanted in the tissue; there is use of the female hormone estrogen, and there are some authorities who feel that if a man is older than 70 has a benign form of the carcinoma, then all treatment can be delayed. Your husband's acid phosphatase elevation is expected in prostate cancer. The phosphatase is a substance, an enzyme, produced in the prostate. So when it is elevated cancer there is suspected. Further tests should tell more about that and about the degree of seriousness or progression of the condition. I wish I could be more specific, and I hope I haven't merely added to your confusion. Your husband's doctors will be able to give you the best advice.

The booklet you asked for, "The Pesky Prostate," should answer your additional questions on the subject. Other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Officer defends soldiers' right

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the suggestion from "Chaplain in Okinawa," advising parents who did not hear from their sons and daughters in the military to write to the commanding officer or chaplain: Note he said: "Writing the command chaplain or commanding officer will not result in any trouble for the service member, unless he or she persistently refuses to follow the counsel given." What would you and your readers say if Congress passed a law giving the mayor, the chief of police and the local ministers the right to call you in and "counsel" you to write your parents? And if you persistently refused their advice you would be subject to punishment? I think any person who does not write to his or her parents is a clod. I wish I had parents to write to. But it is still the right of citizens to act like clods if they so desire without fear of punishment. In my 25 years in the service, I never saw one commander who welcomed such letters. You may use my name.

chaplain on Okinawa that any man or woman old enough to be in the service is old enough to decide to whom he wants to write. For a parent to write to the chaplain or commanding officer is outrageous. If a serviceperson is seriously ill, or (God forbid) dead, the parents are notified immediately. OUTRAGED IN INDIANAPOLIS

CHARLES T. CHECK,
RETIRED CHIEF MASTER SERGEANT,
USAF, DALLAS

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if you realize what happens when a person in the military receives involuntary "counseling" as a result of a parent writing to the chaplain or commanding officer? A counseling session involves not only the commanding officer, but the first sergeant, his non-commissioned officer in charge, officer in charge, and his immediate supervisor. Each in turn "counsels" the enlisted person. The official counseling session become a permanent part of the serviceperson's personal military record, and you can be sure that all who see it will not be impressed. Men and women who are old enough to lay their lives on the line to defend their country are old enough to decide on whom they want to write and how often. G.S.S. (EX-GH), SAN MATEO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I served as a chaplain in the military and after "counseling" servicemen whose mothers had written to me or to their commanding officers, I learned that most of those non-writing enlisted men had valid personal reasons for not writing home. Many joined the service in order to grow up and break away from domineering parents. In any case, their personal reasons are their own business. Complaining to a serviceman's superior is an unfair, vindictive way of punishing a son (or daughter) who has left home to join the military, and I for one would like to see that practice abolished. WISCONSIN RABBI

DEAR ABBY: I'm surprised you didn't tell that

by Gayle Murphy

Nothing relieves the stress of everyday living like a vacation. The ability to "get away from it all" is not so much a luxury as it is a necessary part of our lives. A visit to a different climate, a change in life style, interesting geography and a contrasting culture offers the traveler a totally new perspective from which to view life. The visitor is held suspended in time, and circumstances permit delights in the pleasures of life. Such carefree relaxation, however, requires careful planning. In this column, we intend to help by offering a wealth of interesting information on destinations, accommodations and travel plans.

The staff of PLACES AND PLEASURES is pleased to welcome you to its Travel Talk column. During the next weeks we will be bringing you useful travel tips and information. We invite you to visit our conveniently located offices in Coronado Plaza in Big Spring. Our extensive collection of brochures now features honeymoon vacation packages. Let our planning help you make your fantasy a reality. NEW FRIENDSHIP — John Axley, 15, of Pensacola, Fla., is shown with his new friend, Anna Jouvainen, 16, of Espoo, Finland, at the 15th International Scout Jamboree in Alberta, Canada. Puppy love has bloomed with many of the scouts this week, especially with the American youngsters who do not have girls in their troops back home.

Love blooming at Jamboree

KANANASKIS COUNTRY, Alberta (AP) — Teen-age girls came to be World Scout Jamboree for the first time in 1983, and puppy love has bloomed at the foot of the Canadian Rockies.

"We are dreaming of getting together again soon," said John Axley, a 15-year-old scout from Pensacola, Fla., who fell for Anna Jouvainen, 16, of Espoo, Finland.

"When I get home, I'm going to learn Finnish," he added. "That's my No. 1 priority."

International couples, walking hand-in-hand and arm-in-arm, began to appear this week on the campsite of the jamboree, which ends Thursday.

Among the 13,564 scouts here, 984 are girls in an experiment that jamboree officials, scoutmasters and scouts say has worked well.

Many European scout groups, particularly in Scandinavian countries, have mixed boys and girls for years.

But in the United States, Canada and Islamic countries, girls are kept separate from boys in scouting, at least until the age of 18.

Women are involved in scouting in the Boy Scouts of America, but in leadership positions. There are no present plans to include girls in scout troops.

Americans seemed to favor the Swedish and Finnish girls, while several Canadian boys had become friends with German girls. Some Swiss and Swedish boys found romance among the 170 girls in the German contingent.

Both Axley and his new friend were visiting a foreign country for the first time, but Miss Houvainen, who speaks a little English, said the language barrier can be overcome.

"I have a little trouble communicating, but it doesn't matter," she said.

They met during a patrol exchange and have spent a lot of time together, writing letters to home, taking pictures of each other and talking. Soon they will be saying goodbye.

"If you are 15 or 16 or 17, you are too young for love," Miss Houvainen said. "It may seem like love, but it isn't real love. You still feel much more sad to leave."

The first female participants in the 63-year history of the quadrennial event have had to put up with some whistling, and a few were embarrassed about all the attention.

"Sometimes we have to stand for hours while the boys take pictures of us," said Agneta Romin, 16, of Gavle, Sweden.

PUBLIC NOTICE

At the request of the Office of the General Counsel of the Public Utility Commission, the Commission has established Docket No. 5113 to inquire into pressing issues involving the entire telephone industry in Texas. Docket No. 5113 will deal with many issues resulting from the impending divestiture of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Some of these issues include establishing the service areas of Southwestern Bell after divestiture and assessing the impact on other telephone companies in Texas of current settlement arrangements between Southwestern Bell and those companies. Additionally, Docket No. 5113 will deal with the issues arising from the Federal Communications Commission's Final Order in Docket 78-72 (the Access Charge Docket) as they impact all telephone companies. It is anticipated that Docket No. 5113 will be evidentiary in nature. RATES FOR SOUTHWESTERN BELL MAY BE DETERMINED BY THE COMMISSION IN OR AS A RESULT OF THIS PROCEEDING. Interested parties seeking further information or desiring to participate in Docket No. 5113 are advised to write to Rhonda Colbert Ryan, Secretary and Director of Hearings, Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757 or telephone the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 TTY for the deaf.

AVISO PÚBLICO

A solicitud de la Oficina de Consejo Legal (Office of the General Counsel) de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos (Public Utility Commission), la Comisión ha establecido la Acta No. 5113 con el fin de investigar asuntos de importancia que incumben a todas las compañías de servicio de teléfono en el Estado de Texas. La Acta No. 5113 tratará con muchos asuntos que resulten del desdoblamiento que está pendiente entre American Telephone and Telegraph Company y Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Algunos de éstos asuntos incluyen el de establecer las áreas de servicio de Southwestern Bell después del desdoblamiento y el de tasar los efectos de los arreglos judiciales que están en vigor entre Southwestern Bell y otras compañías de servicio de teléfono en el Estado de Texas. Adicionalmente, la Acta No. 5113 tratará con los asuntos que surjan del Decreto Final (Final Order) de la Comisión Federal de Comunicaciones (Federal Communications Commission) en la Acta No. 78-72 (ó sea la Acta de Cobros por Acceso — Access Charge Docket) en cuanto al efecto que tengan en las actividades de todas otras compañías de servicio de teléfono. Se anticipa que la Acta No. 5113 será probatoria. PUEDE QUE LASTARIFAS QUE COBRE SOUTHWESTERN BELL SEAN DETERMINADAS POR LA COMISIÓN EN Ó COMO RESULTADO DE ÉSTE PROCESO. A las partes interesadas que busquen más información, ó que deseen participar en la Acta No. 5113, se les aconseja comunicarse por escrito con la Sra. Rhonda Colbert Ryan, Secretary and Director of Hearings (Secretaria y Directora de Vistas), Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, ó llamar a la Consumer Affairs Division (División de Asuntos de Consumidores) de la Public Utility Commission al (512) 458-0223, ó 458-0227, ó (512) 458-0221 TTY para aquellos que padecen de la sordera.

Decorated soldier says Agent Orange killing him

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran who won the Medal of Honor in Vietnam says he is dying from the effects of Agent Orange. He went before a congressional panel with a plea that government resolve the mysteries of the herbicide.

"I think it needs looking into a little deeper," Sammy Lee Davis Tuesday in a voice that quaked.

"I am an American, gentlemen, and therefore too proud and too bullheaded to beg you," the ex-sergeant told a congressional hearing, his voice choking. "But I humbly request that you do not break faith with those of us who answered the call that came from this very building."

"Think of the legacy you will leave for the next army you may have to raise to stand under our flag should you turn your backs on us."

Davis told a House Veterans Affairs subcommittee that he long suspected that Agent Orange exposure in Vietnam was the cause for his deteriorating health, but the doctors in Veterans Administration hospitals always found other explanations.

Finally, on the advice of a veterans' group, he consulted a well-known toxicologist, Dr. Bertram Carnow of the University of Illinois School of Public Health. Carnow found that exposure to the herbicide was the root cause of his problem, Davis said.

"What can one doctor in Chicago do that the largest health care delivery system in the world cannot?"

"I may be called away very soon," he said. "I am 36 years old, gentlemen, and that terrifies me. But at the very least the darkness of uncertainty has passed and I can rest with the fact that I know what to expect."

Davis, of West York, Ill., said his health problems started in Vietnam with white blisters on his skin when his unit was sprayed with Agent Orange.

Now, he said, he is often so weak he often cannot work at his job operating heavy equipment for the Central Illinois Public Service Co. of Hudsonville, Ill. He suggested that VA doctors have intimated to him that they know more about Agent Orange-related health problems than the government acknowledges.

"They have told me things they cannot publicly say because someone would come down on them," he said.

Davis supported a bill by Rep. Thomas Daschle, D-S.D. It would offer disability compensation to veterans suffering from three relatively rare disorders on the presumption that they were caused by exposure to the lethal chemical dioxin in Agent Orange.

PUBLIC NOTICE

At the request of the Office of the General Counsel of the Public Utility Commission, the Commission has established Docket No. 5113 to inquire into pressing issues involving the entire telephone industry in Texas. Docket No. 5113 will deal with many issues resulting from the impending divestiture of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Some of those issues include establishing the service areas of Southwestern Bell after divestiture and assessing the impact on other telephone companies in Texas, including General Telephone Of The Southwest, of current settlement arrangements between Southwestern Bell and those companies. Additionally, Docket No. 5113 will deal with the issues arising from the Federal Communications Commission's Final Order in Docket 78-72 (the Access Charge Docket) as they impact all telephone companies, including General Telephone Company Of The Southwest. It is anticipated that Docket No. 5113 will be evidentiary in nature. RATES FOR GENERAL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF THE SOUTHWEST MAY BE DETERMINED BY THE COMMISSION IN OR AS A RESULT OF THIS PROCEEDING. Interested parties seeking further information or desiring to participate in Docket No. 5113 are advised to write to Rhonda Colbert Ryan, Secretary and Director of Hearings, Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757 or telephone the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512)458-0223 or 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 TTY for the deaf.

Scientists may have discovered key to elderly's fainting spells

BOSTON (AP) — Old people's blood pressure drops suddenly after they eat their meals, a discovery that may help explain why some of them have fainting spells that cause bone-shattering falls, researchers say.

Brief blackouts are a major hazard among the elderly and they often result in broken hips, bleeding inside the skull and other injuries. In a majority of cases there is no apparent cause for the fainting.

Now doctors have found that eating significantly lowers blood pressure in the elderly for an hour after meals. The researchers said that the drop in pressure alone is probably not enough to cause fainting, but it could be an important factor when added to other stresses and drugs that depress blood pressure.

The study is the first to discover that food lowers blood pressure, and Dr. Lewis A. Lipsitz, who directed the research, said: "It was quite exciting to find that there are significant changes that may in part explain fainting."

The study, conducted on 20 elderly patients at the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged in Boston, was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

The blood pressure of healthy younger people is not affected by eating, the researchers found.

Many elderly people have high blood pressure and take drugs that relieve this condition. Other things that can lower their blood pressure include becoming dehydrated during an illness, coughing or simply standing up.

"Some of the things that we are suggesting are that people with this problem either lie down or sit for a while after they've eaten and that physicians consider giving medicines after the meal rather than before it," Lipsitz said in an interview.

The doctors decided to undertake the study after noticing that an unusually high number of fainting spells at the rehabilitation center occurred after people had eaten.

They measured the blood pressures of 10 elderly people who had suffered fainting episodes and of 10 others who had not been troubled by them. Normally, their systolic blood pressure ranged from about 140 to 180. A half hour after their meals, it went down to approximately 110 to 140, and it remained at that level for about 30 minutes.

Next space shuttle flight may be good place for diabetes experiment

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The weightless environment of the next space shuttle flight is the perfect setting for an experiment that could lead to a new diabetes treatment, officials say.

The flight, scheduled for Aug. 21, will be the first attempt to isolate insulin-producing beta cells from pancreatic tissue while in space, the Washington University School of Medicine and the McDonnell Douglas Corp. announced Tuesday.

The isolated beta cells may someday normalize blood sugar levels for diabetics and halt complications from the disease, scientists said.

A McDonnell Douglas spokesman said the device that will be used to isolate the beta cells has been tested on other materials on three other shuttle flights and "has shown in the zero gravity of space the ability to separate over 700 times more materials and to achieve purity levels more than four times greater than is possible in similar operations on Earth."

Dr. David Scharp, associate professor of surgery at the university's medical school, said research on transplanting insulin-producing cells into humans has been hampered by a shortage of the cells. The space technique could resolve that problem, he said.

Diabetics occur when the million or so beta cells in the pancreas are damaged or destroyed. Diabetics must either inject insulin or take other drugs to keep their blood sugar levels at a normal range.

Even with the control measures, diabetics can suffer blindness, kidney failure and shortened life spans.

In next month's experiment, the device will isolate the beta cells in a solution by subjecting them to an electrical field, according to James Rose, director of the project for McDonnell Douglas.

"A pair of electrodes on either side of a tube causes different biological elements to take on a different electrical charge," Rose said, adding that the process is called electrophoresis.

"Because of the charge, they separate and take a different exit out of the main tube where they're collected.

Without the pull of gravity, the material flows more freely into the tubes, the scientists said.

A similar process, called static electrophoresis, has been used for years in biology and medical laboratories for separating and analyzing the components of blood and other protein mixtures. However, only a tiny amount of material is produced in the process.

Dr. Paul Lacy, head of the medical school's pathology department, said Tuesday that transplant experiments are "very encouraging."

"We've already done transplants of rats to rats and rats to mice so we know the surgery should work," Lacy said. "It's just matter of having enough separated cells to work with."

According to Lacy, researchers expect that one day a glob of beta cells about the size of the tip of a man's little finger will be transplanted in a fatty area of the abdomen to keep sugar levels normal and halt the development of complications.

"It's going to take at least a couple of years to just separate the beta cells," Lacy said. "But this is a very encouraging development and should speed our research."

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective August 1, 1983, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission (PUC) at Austin, Texas, and with each affected municipality served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell's rate application.

As a result of the settlement of a lawsuit brought by the U.S. Department of Justice against AT&T, Southwestern Bell, on January 1, 1984, (or as otherwise ordered by the United States District Court) will no longer be a part of the Bell System, but will be owned by public shareholders. Under the terms of the settlement, Southwestern Bell has identified 15 areas in the state within which it may provide service, and the federal court with jurisdiction of the settlement has tentatively approved these areas, called LATAs (Local Access and Transport Area). On or about January 1, 1984, Southwestern Bell can not provide service between these LATAs, and in addition, must transfer to AT&T customer premises equipment that it leases to customers.

Southwestern Bell has filed a proposed revised rate schedule with the PUC reflecting these changes. These rates would become effective August 1, 1983, if they are not suspended by the PUC; however, it is expected that they will be suspended and that the rates ultimately set by the PUC will become effective on or about January 1, 1984. If the rates were to become effective as filed, they would produce a 48.2% increase in Southwestern Bell's unadjusted test year revenues (or a 76.36% increase in Southwestern Bell's test year revenues adjusted to reflect the effect of Southwestern Bell's divestiture from AT&T). Any change in the rates for any interLATA services offered by AT&T or a subsidiary after January 1, 1984, could affect customers of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

While Southwestern Bell has proposed no increase in rates for intralATA interexchange toll services, any change in those rates could also affect customers of other telephone companies. Southwestern Bell is proposing changes in the structure of the present private line and foreign exchange services. Changes in these rates may affect customers of other telephone companies. Any change in the rates for any interLATA services offered by AT&T or a subsidiary after January 1, 1984, could affect customers of other telephone companies.

Aviso Público

Southwestern Bell, en conformidad a las reglas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) de Texas, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel de tarifas para servicio de teléfono en Texas, con vigencia a partir del 1o de agosto de 1983, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel de tarifas se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission (PUC, o Comisión de Servicios Públicos) de Texas en Austin, Texas, al igual que en cada municipalidad afectada y que es servida por Southwestern Bell, y dicho arancel está disponible para inspección pública en todas las oficinas de Southwestern Bell en Texas. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa está sujeta a cambios cada vez que Southwestern Bell solicite un cambio en dichas tarifas.

Como resultado del arreglo judicial al cual se llegó tras el proceso legal entablado en contra de AT&T por el U.S. Department of Justice (Departamento de Justicia), Southwestern Bell dejará de formar parte del Bell System (Sistema Bell) a partir del 1o de enero de 1984 (o en la fecha que disponga el United States District Court — Tribunal Federal de Distrito), y llegará a ser posesión de accionistas públicos. Bajo las condiciones de dicho arreglo, Southwestern Bell ha identificado 15 regiones dentro del Estado de Texas en las cuales puede proporcionar servicio, y el Tribunal federal con jurisdicción en el arreglo ha dado su aprobación provisoria a éstas regiones, que se denominan "LATAs" (Local Access and Transport Area, o Regiones Locales de Acceso y Transporte). A partir de fecha de enero de 1984 aproximadamente, Southwestern Bell no podrá proporcionar servicio entre dichas LATAs, y además deberá ceder a AT&T todo equipo ubicado en premisas de clientes y alquilado a los mismos.

Estos cambios se han incluido en el propuesto arancel de tarifas de servicio revisado que Southwestern Bell ha archivado con la PUC. Dichas tarifas tendrían vigencia a partir del 1o de agosto de 1983, a menos que fueran suspendidas por la PUC; sin embargo, se espera que si seran suspendidas, y que las tarifas que en último caso establezca la PUC entrarán en vigor a partir de fecha 1o de enero de 1984 aproximadamente. Si las tarifas entrarán en vigor tal y como se han archivado, aumentarían en un 48.2% los ingresos no-ajustados de Southwestern Bell para año de prueba (unadjusted test year revenues), o sea un aumento de 76.36% en los ingresos de Southwestern Bell para año de prueba, ajustados para reflejar el efecto del despojeamiento entre Southwestern Bell y AT&T. Cualquier cambio en las tarifas para cualquier servicio tipo-interLATA que proporcione AT&T o una compañía subsidiaria después del 1o de enero de 1984 podría afectar a los clientes de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

Aunque Southwestern Bell no ha propuesto un aumento en las tarifas para servicios tipo "intralATA interexchange toll", cualquier cambio en dichas tarifas también podría afectar a los clientes de otras compañías de servicio telefónico. Southwestern Bell está proponiendo cambios en la estructura de los servicios actuales de línea privada (private line) y de intercambio extranjero (foreign exchange). Cambios en las tarifas para dichos servicios podrían afectar a los clientes de otras compañías de servicio telefónico. Cualquier cambio en las tarifas para cualquier servicio tipo-interLATA que proporcione AT&T o una compañía subsidiaria después del 1o de enero de 1984 podría afectar a los clientes de otras compañías de servicio telefónico.

Drug makers ordered to drop superiority claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decade after charging that advertising for major pain relievers was deceptive, the Federal Trade Commission on Wednesday ordered two major drug makers to drop claims of superiority for Bufferin, Excedrin, Bayer Aspirin, Cope, Vanquish and Midol.

Sterling Drug Inc., and Bristol-Myers Co. may not claim the non-prescription drugs are better or safer than similar products without well-controlled clinical tests to prove it, the commission said.

Commissioner David A. Clanton, who wrote the decision, explained its impact this way: "I think we make it clear you just can't go around touting your product and claiming it works better than your competitor's without having some solid scientific support backing those claims up."

Terry Kelley of Sterling said his firm disagrees with many of the commission's findings and likely will appeal the ruling.

He added that the commission did say that general claims for the superiority of Bayer aspirin had not been disproven, and he said current Bayer advertising is not affected by the ruling.

There was no immediate comment from Bristol-Myers officials.

The ruling also covers Bristol-Myers' Excedrin P.M. and Sterling's Bayer Children's Aspirin. All of the products in question contain aspirin.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe of the Ralph Nader-founded Public Citizen Health Research Group criticized the commission for moving too slowly on the subject.

minds. Such corrective advertising has been imposed in other cases.

While the ruling covers advertising it does not affect labeling of the products, which is regulated separately by the Food and Drug Administration.

Among the requirements imposed by the commission were that future advertising by the firms in which their pain relievers are compared to plain aspirin must disclose that the advertised product also contains aspirin.

Generally the order states that advertising claims must be proven by two well-controlled clinical studies, although other forms of proof may be acceptable on a case-by-case basis.

"What we're saying is you've got to have evidence which the scientific community generally accepts as showing that one product is better," Clanton said.

The cases stem from complaints issued by the commission in 1973. Originally, a third case was involved against American Home Products Corp., but that was decided in 1981 with a similar requirement for clinical substantiation in advertising. American Home Products makes Anacin and Arthritis Pain Formula.

The commission's action Wednesday generally upholds earlier decisions in the case by an administrative law judge. It can be appealed to federal court.

The order also prohibits the Ted Bates and Young & Rubicam advertising agencies from claiming that any pain reliever contains special or unusual ingredients if that is not the case. That expands the earlier decision of an administrative law judge, who had recommended such a requirement but limited it to the firms' claims for Bristol-Myers products.

'I think we make it clear you just can't go around touting your product and claiming it works better than your competitor's without having some solid scientific support backing those claims up.'

Noting Wednesday's ruling is an outgrowth of a 10-year-old FTC action, Wolfe said millions of dollars have been wasted by consumers who have been misled into thinking that one pain reliever is better than or different from another.

In its ruling, the commission said Bristol-Myers had wrongly claimed that doctors recommend Bufferin more than any other non-prescription pain reliever.

"Their claim was false," said Clanton, who reported that commission research showed that there are similar drugs that doctors recommend just as much.

The ruling said Bristol-Myers also falsely asserted that Excedrin contains special or unusual ingredients and that similar misleading claims had been made by Sterling for Midol and Cope.

Sterling took a different approach with its Bayer products, the commission said. Instead of trying to disassociate them from aspirin, it instead claimed greater purity, stability, freshness and disintegration speed for its product. However, the commission said those claims also lack support.

But while it ordered the tight controls on future advertising for the products of the two firms, the commission did not impose a requirement for corrective ads to remedy any false impression in consumers'

Old-timers, religious group clash in town

ANTELOPE, Ore. (AP) — The scarlet-garbed waitresses who dish out high-priced ice cream and vegetarian entrees at Zorba the Buddha cafe raise few eyebrows anymore in this quiet village in the desert ranchland of central Oregon.

But two years after followers of the Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh assumed control of Antelope's town government, relations between the religious group and the handful of longtime residents who remain are anything but friendly.

"There's a lot of culture clash," said John Silvertooth-Stewart, the only non-Rajneesh member of the Antelope City Council. "There's still a lot of conflict. It's not violent, of course. It's political conflict, social conflict."

On one side are the "sannyasins," or disciples of the 51-year-old Rajneesh, who brought his following to Oregon from Poona, India, in 1981. Nearly 1,000 followers of the guru live in a prosperous city-commune known as Rajneeshpuram, a 64,000-acre ranch 10 miles from Antelope. Eighty others live within Antelope's town limits.

On the other side are the independent and largely conservative ranchers and retirees who, until recently, comprised all of Antelope's population, less than 100 people. Only 13 of the original residents stayed in Antelope, which is little more than a grove of trees growing out of a crack in the barren landscape.

Antelope residents contend the Rajneeshes drove out many of the old-timers through political muscle and subtle forms of harassment, and that they now want to force out the few who have lingered.

"They vote as a bloc, and if there is something they want, there is nothing in heaven's sake you can do about it," said Donald Smith.

'Before, I was nice, polite. Now I understand better. Donkeys can only understand a kick, so you kick them.'

Former councilwoman Donna Quick, who faces a $1 million defamation lawsuit filed by the Rajneeshes, said she was followed around by video cameras and laughed at in city council meetings before she finally left town.

"They have tripled our city taxes. Our school is gone... They are trying to regain the old community church. I think those are enough reasons for us to feel threatened," said former Mayor Margaret Hill.

Last month, the city council passed an ordinance permitting nudity in a new city park which will be opened as soon as recreational facilities are established there. "You would certainly be able to tell the maids from the butlers," said Alice Hensley, a non-Rajneesh, after the measure was approved.

Leaders of the religious group say the Rajneeshes are victims of religious prejudice borne of ignorance.

"It's your run-of-the-mill fear of the unknown," said Swami Krishna Deva, mayor of Rajneeshpuram. "It breeds bigotry, it breeds violence, it breeds an atmosphere of distrust."

The Rajneeshes, whose religion requires them to wear the crimson-toned colors of the sunrise and beaded necklaces called "malas" with pendants bearing photographs of Rajneesh, say they came to Oregon with the idea of living in peace and harmony with their neighbors.

But Ma Anand Sheela, president of Rajneesh Foundation International, said that after receiving "piles and piles" of threatening letters and telephone calls, she is not going to take any more abuse.

"Before, I was nice, polite. Now I understand better," she said. "Donkeys can only understand a kick, so you kick them."

Many of the "kicks" have come in the form of legal action. In addition to Ms. Quick, at least one other resident faces a defamation suit and each of the former city council members has been sued at least once for allegedly breaching a peace agreement the council signed a year ago, said Mrs. Hill.

The new aggressiveness of the Rajneeshes surfaced recently when two officials of a land use group that has filed suit to undo the incorporation of Rajneeshpuram visited the city to gather information for one of their lawsuits.

Mark Greenfield, an attorney for 1000 Friends of Oregon, said he and Paul Gerhardt Jr. were heckled, followed by a video crew and subjected to anti-Semitic remarks last month while trying to look at the city's land use permits.

But Krishna Deva, who claims the land use group is filing multiple lawsuits against the commune to win over traditionally hostile central Oregon ranchers, called Greenfield's allegations "total hogwash."

The Rajneeshes' future in central Oregon is clouded by the lawsuits filed by 1000 Friends of Oregon and a move by the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service to deport Rajneesh.

Attorneys for Rajneeshpuram are asking the Oregon Supreme Court to reconsider its refusal to review a decision that held the city was not legally incorporated because it did not comply with statewide land use goals.

Others are fighting immigration officials' contention that Rajneesh gave false statements when he came to the United States and that he does not qualify as a religious leader.

Members of the religious group say they are in Oregon to stay.

"It's natural for them to kill a Jesus or a Socrates. If they don't understand, they'll kill them," said Ma Anand Sheela. "But if somebody tries to physically burn us down, we'll make sure that doesn't happen."

Computer careers eyed by liberal arts majors

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Liberal arts majors are in a position to take advantage of an explosion in computer careers, but many engineering graduates are being passed over by America's slumping basic industries, a survey of recent graduates shows.

"The students who have suffered the most are chemical and civil engineers and mechanical engineers to some degree," said Dennis Ryan, director of placement services and counseling at Carnegie-Mellon University. "Those who seem to have a good, lively job market are electrical engineers and computer science people. It's been very characteristic of certain industries."

"The decline in engineering offers is pretty widespread nationwide. It has focused principally on the basic industries: chemicals, petroleum, automotive and metals. That's been counterbalanced by a pretty strong job market in the high technology fields, especially aerospace and computers," he said Tuesday.

A survey of May Carnegie-Mellon graduates with bachelor's degrees showed job offers rose 20 percent over 1982 for liberal arts majors and plunged 40 percent for engineering majors, Ryan said. The school had more than 300 graduates.

The turnaround has meant the most for students from computer-oriented colleges such as Carnegie-Mellon, where computer science and statistics are required courses for liberal arts majors, he said.

"They may be English majors, but they can still be technical writers. The social science people have very strong computer skills, and economics majors tend to have heavy backgrounds in computer science and management," he said.

Engineering graduates glutted the job market in 1970 and 1971. But by the mid-1970s, a bachelor of engineering degree again was a ticket to a good job, Ryan said.

"This year, we've had probably the largest number of bachelor's degrees in chemical engineering awarded nationwide in history... and a poor job market has made it a very bad situation," he said.

Other engineering disciplines have felt the pinch, "like mechanical engineering, which tends to be very basic, and metallurgical, which is so closely tied to the metals industry and we all know what's happened to the steel industry," Ryan said.

The nation's steel industry reached a post-Depression low in 1983.

"The best students are still getting several offers, but the average and even above-average students aren't," he said.

The recession has aggravated the situation, Ryan said.

"A few years ago, we had 100 to 200 employers on a waiting list wanting to be on campus. This past year this didn't happen," he said.

But engineering students who do land jobs still tend to earn more than liberal arts majors, Ryan said.

Carnegie-Mellon's survey found the average starting salary for a chemical engineer with a bachelor's degree was $27,500, electrical engineer $26,200, computer science major $25,000, English major $21,600, and economics major $21,400.

Ryan said educators are worried high school students will change their college plans because of the current job market.

Man sentenced to jail in earthworm scheme

CHICAGO (AP) — A 60-year-old man was sentenced to prison terms by two federal judges and was ordered to repay $428,000 to dozens of victims of a get-rich-quick scheme based on breeding earthworms.

Loyie Sims of Wauconda was sentenced Tuesday morning to three years in prison, ordered to repay 70 people $243,000, fined $2,000 and placed on five years probation.

In the afternoon in another court, he was sentenced to four years in prison and ordered to repay $185,000 to people who invested in his Vermiculture Laboratories, a company described as a type of marketing agent for his defunct World Wide Worms Inc., in Des Plaines.

The prison terms are to be served concurrently.

The charges were based on two separate indictments, and the two cases were assigned to different federal judges.

The fraud occurred between December 1977 and April 1979. Sims' sons, Michael and David, and a third man, James R. Wolfe, also have been charged in the sales scheme and are awaiting trial.

The company advertised in the Chicago area for customers to invest a minimum of $845 for a four-tub unit of earthworms to raise at home and sell back to the company.

Thursday Notes

And now for 1,001 Notes...

Leading off is some golf news...

Comanche Trails pro Al Patterson is sponsoring a one-day clinic for junior golfers Wednesday. Big Spring High coach Howard Stewart will be helping out also.

Beginning youngsters will be given free lessons from 9-10 a.m. with more advanced players getting instruction from 10-11 a.m.

Both men are donating their time and ask local golfers to donate extra or old woods and irons to the program. Patterson started one of these programs in Fort Myers, Fla. and four years later, the local high school won the state golf title.

Patterson also announces an earlybird golf fee for you dawn-risers out in golfland. Golfers teeing off from 7-8 a.m. Mondays-Fridays get a cart and 18 holes of golf for two people for just $12. Best golf deal in town, Patterson says.

The Big Spring Golf Association is hosting a Louisiana Draw Sunday at Comanche. Entry fee is $5 and due by 12:30 p.m. Play begins at 1 p.m.

And finally, another addition to the Herald "Hole-in-One Scrapbook."

Dr. Wayne Kuykendall knocked in an ace July 4 at Cree Meadows Golf Course at Ruidoso. His first hole-in-one came on a 193-yard hole and was part of his 82 round.

Watching were son, Jeff, Greg Drow and Barry Morgan.

Onward to the fishing report...

By now you've heard of the 468-pound sturgeon caught last Saturday by Joe Pallotta of Crockett, Calif. It took him five hours to land the fish which, believed to be a state record, went directly to a museum.

Locally, 11-year-old Jason Prichard landed a 30-1/2 pound yellow cat last Friday at Lake Thomas. Helping the youngster pull in his big catch were his dad, Robert, and grandfather, Wilford "Monk" Prichard.

Softball's up next...

A tournament for church league teams only is scheduled in Coahoma July 22-23. Teams are limited to 18 players and must be signed by the pastor of that church. Entry fee is $90 and limited to the first 16 teams to enter.

Contact Noel Hull at 263-3108 or Rocky Vierra at 267-7773.

In Big Spring, the District VII qualifying tournament (sanctioned by the ASA) for both men's and women's teams is slated for Johnny Stone park July 22-24.

Entry deadline is July 20 at 9 p.m. with entry fee set at $95. Any team from Howard, Scurry, Reagan, Martin, Scurry and Mitchell counties may enter.

The top three finishers advance to the state tournaments, men in Waco or Killeen and women in Abilene or Midland.

Contact John Weeks at 915-267-8283 after 7 p.m. or Big Spring Athletics at 915-267-1649.

Down, set, hut...football news...

Physicals for students participating in all sports in the Big Spring ISD will be held Saturday, Aug. 6, at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

The physicals, courtesy of Physical Therapy chief Wayne Carroll and his crew, are scheduled to start between 9-11:45 a.m. and will cost just $3.

According to Everett Blackburn, trainer deluxe at BSHS, all physical forms, trip travel permits and insurance forms are available at the athletic director's office located in the administration office (708 11th Place) from 8-11:45 a.m. and 1:30-3:45 p.m. Monday-Friday beginning July 20.

Remember, this is for all students — junior and senior highs included — boys and girls. Bus service is available to and from the hospital...schedules will be announced later.

And last, but certainly not least, more youth baseball...

Big Spring Senior League all-stars are in San Angelo Friday to battle the winner of the San Angelo West-South game in the District IV tournament at Mathis Field. The game is scheduled for 9 p.m.

WHOA THERE, MR. JOHNSON — Texas League baserunner Stanley Johnson is out by an inch at first base during third inning action of Wednesday night's game with American. Taking the throw at first is Mike Covington of American. Texas scored its only run of the game on the play as American claimed an 8-1 victory.

Two-out scoring sparks American

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

It was billed as an early tournament shoot-out but thanks to a trio of two-out rallies, the American all-stars won instead in a blow-out.

John Covington knocked in three runs with two singles and the bottom of the order accounted for four runs scored as American thumped Texas League 8-1 in a second round game in the District III Little League All-Star tournament Wednesday night.

In the other game played at American's ballpark, Midland North Central took advantage of six National errors to blank the Big Spring team 7-0.

In games tonight, Big Spring International makes its tournament debut against Coahoma at the American field. In a second game, Midland Mid-City plays for the first time against Midland Eastern. Coahoma downed Odessa West 15-3 while Eastern edged Tower of Midland 4-3 in Tuesday night games. Both games start at 8 p.m. with radio station KBST broadcasting the International-Coahoma contest beginning at 7:50 p.m.

A missed opportunity in the first inning set the tone for American's big win over Texas. The visitors put two men in scoring position in the first inning but couldn't get them home. After that, it was all American which won for the second time in three days.

The first seven runs were scored by way of two-out rallies by American.

In the first, Brent Hartfield rapped his fourth tourney hit with two gone, later scoring on a wild pitch, and pitcher Mike Calvio singled and dashed home on the first of two Texas errors.

American made it 4-0 in the second, again with two-out scoring. Leslie Robinson walked and Junior Lopez singled after two had been retired and Covington followed with his first RBI hit. Lopez scored the fourth run when Texas first baseman Stanley Johnson and pitcher Lupe Rodriguez misplayed Brad Robert's potential inning-ending pop-up.

A three-run third inning put the game away for the Americans. A two-out single by Lopez and Covington's two-run basehit drove in the runs that gave American a 7-1 lead.

A final run scored in the fourth as Calvio singled in the infield, moved up two bases on wild pitches and scored on Kurt Henry's ringing single to left.

For a second straight game, American got tough starting pitching. Calvio, although not as sharp as Hartfield on Monday, mowed down the Texas lineup with a two-hitter and struck out 14. He walked four and hit three batters but benefited from another night of perfect defense from his teammates.

The only Texas run came in the third when shortstop Bill Grigg walked, moved to second on a wild pitch and scored by way of smart base-running on Stanley Johnson's ground-out to third.

Kyle Ware's single through the box and Kiley Jones' basehit to right in the fifth were the only hits off Calvio who pitched his first complete game of the season.

Mistakes hurt the National Little League all-stars.

Four of those errors came in the first inning as North Central scored three teams to grab the lead for good. Ty Chambers doubled in the third and scored on a passed ball to make it 4-0.

The last three runs came in the fifth. Scott Melzer singled and scored on a wild pitch and Kyle Greeley lined a two-run double to produce the final score.

Pitcher Bobby Hopkins allowed only two hits — singles to Mike Sharp and Juan Samora — to hold National under control for six innings.

North Central meets American Tuesday night in the third round while National battles Odessa West in a loser's bracket game Friday night. Texas and Tower square off in another elimination game also that night.

Cowboys' linebacker avoids risks by retiring

COWBOYS' GUY BROWN...injury forces retirement

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys linebacker Guy Brown, who suffered a neck injury during last season's game against Minnesota, says he is ending his six-year career in the National Football League.

Brown, a starting outside linebacker last season, announced Wednesday he is retiring because of the risks associated with the injury.

"I have decided to retire from football because I believe it is not in my best interests physically to play," said Brown. "I enjoyed my career with the Cowboys, but I wholeheartedly accept this new direction in my life. I have tremendous peace of mind about it because I believe this is the way the Lord wants me to go."

Brown said he would devote full attention to his business, Guy Brown Fire and Safety, Inc., a Dallas company that sells commercial and industrial fire equipment and programs. Brown, a University of Houston standout, was picked by the Cowboys in the fourth round of the National Football League draft in 1977. He moved in to the starting position last season after D.D. Lewis retired.

"You always regret the loss of a player and person of Guy's quality," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said at the Cowboys' training camp at Thousand Oaks.

Calif. "The risk factor involved, however, was something that couldn't be ignored. I feel Guy made a wise decision."

Team officials also announced Wednesday that rookie free agent center Mark Mostek of Northern Colorado left camp voluntarily before Wednesday morning's workout.

Hot weather welcomes golfers

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — As usual, the weather was a major topic at the start of the British Open.

This time, however, the 150 golfers were talking about the heat — the hottest weather in this part of England for more than a 100 years — rather than the cold, wind and rain which often provides the setting for this midsummer tournament.

"If the wind stays quiet like this, the tournament is going to be won with a score of 12 or 13 under par," said defending champion Tom Watson, who was trying to win the title for the fifth time.

"If there is a wind, then pick a number. Think of all that rough around the greens and the tricks it is going to play with form."

The deep rough beside the narrow fairways of the 6,968-yard, par 71 Royal Birkdale course was the most controversial factor of the 112th British Open which began today.

"Some people complained about the rough at the U.S. Open at Oakmont," Watson said. "But you should see the rough in parts of this course. It's far worse than Oakmont."

British Open

Watson said some of the rough is two feet deep, and some of it is close to the greens.

"If you get into the rough at the left of the 15th, you're cold turkey," he said. "You just can't move it."

"The grass wraps around the shaft when you try to hit out of the tall stuff and the ball doesn't go straight."

Watson and Seve Ballesteros were joint favorites for the $465,000 tournament. The pot of gold for the winner is $60,000.

The bookies offered odds of 11 to 2 against Watson and Ballesteros. Ray Floyd and three-time winner Jack Nicklaus were at 16 to 1, Ben Crenshaw 30 to 1, Craig Stadler 22 to 1 and Larry Nelson and Nick Faldo 25 to 1.

But Watson said Royal Birkdale is a different golf course from the last time he played it in 1976.

"They have equalized it," Watson said. "The greens are more spongy. The fairways are narrow, as they always were, but the rough is so much deeper, and there's going to be a lot of trouble for those who hit off line.

"This tournament is really wide open."

Players who pitch a little wide of some of the greens will find themselves in deep rough.

"I think it's too severe around the greens," Watson said.

Lee Trevino, who won the title at Birkdale in 1971, took the same view.

"The rough is very deep beside some of the fairways," Trevino said. "Those who hit three feet off line are going to be just as badly penalized as those who are 50 feet off line. I don't think it's fair."

The last time the British Open was played at Birkdale, Johnny Miller won with a four-round total of 279, 5-under-par.

Trevino won in 1971 with 278. Peter Thomson, the 1965 champion, took 285 strokes. In 1961 Arnold Palmer won the title here and was right on par with 284.

Palmer, 53, was trying once more and was certain to attract one of the biggest galleries.

But he said the same as Watson.

Taste is all it takes to switch to Jim Beam.

Brews trip Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — As the Milwaukee Brewers go, so too does pitcher Bob McClure.

When the Brewers didn't hit, McClure lost. Now that the Brewers are scoring runs, McClure has won five straight — the fifth a 6-2 decision over the slumping Texas Rangers Wednesday night.

"Bobby has pitched excellent baseball. Early in the year, we just didn't score many runs," said Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn. "They've (the Brewers) played excellent baseball (the last 15 to 20 ballgames).

The Rangers, on the other hand, haven't played well in more than a week. Texas has lost six out of their last seven games, but still hold first place in the American League Western Division.

American League

"We've got to get it going again," said Texas starter Danny Darwin, who gave up six runs on 12 hits in 6 2-3 innings Wednesday for his eighth loss in 15 decisions.

Ted Simmons drove in two runs — his 52nd and 53rd RBIs of the season — and Cecil Cooper had three hits for the Brewers, but it was a bunch of no-names who stole the show.

With Robin Yount, Ben Oglivie, Roy Howell and Charlie Moore resting on the bench, substitutes Marshall Edwards, Bill Schroeder, Rob Picciolo and Ed Romero paced the Brewers to their 13th win in their last 16 games.

White Sox 5, Indians 1

Chicago's LaMarr Hoyt has become a thinking man's pitcher.

"I had very good concentration, something that was not there all the time earlier in the year," Hoyt said after hurling a seven-hitter with no walks and eight strikeouts as the White Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-1 in Chicago for their 15th triumph in the last 21 games.

Ryan trims Expos

HOUSTON (AP) — Even when he isn't at his flame-throwing best, Nolan Ryan continues to burn up the National League.

Pitching what he called a sub-par game, the streaking Ryan won for the eighth straight time Wednesday night as the Houston Astros whipped the Montreal Expos 9-4.

"It was fortunate that I had nine runs to work with," said Ryan after improving his record to 9-1, the best start of his career. "I had good stuff, but I did nothing with it. My fastballs were in bad areas and they are a good fastball-hitting team."

National League

Ryan pitched eight innings and struck out five to boost his career strikeout mark to 3,578. It kept him four behind Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, who struck out seven Wednesday night in a 5-2 loss to Atlanta.

Braves 5, Phillies 2

In Philadelphia, rookie Craig McMurtry pitched a six-hitter and Bob Horner's bases-loaded double sparked a four-run eighth inning as Atlanta defeated the Phillies.

McMurtry, 10-5, who has more victories than any other rookie pitcher in the majors, struck out five and walked three.

Carlton, 9-10, improved his career-leading total to 3,582 with his seven strikeouts. The left-hander also walked one.

Pirates 7, Giants 6

In San Francisco, consecutive two-out home runs in the ninth inning by Johnny Ray and Mike Easler lifted Pittsburgh

President honors Delaney

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has awarded the Presidential Citizens Medal posthumously to Kansas City Chiefs football player Joe Delaney, who died trying to save three children from drowning last month.

Delaney, 24, drowned June 29 at Monroe, La. The citation praises him for making "the ultimate sacrifice by placing the lives of three children above regard for his own safety."

Delaney plunged into a public park pond to save three boys who were floundering. One of the children, a 6-year-old, scrambled to safety but Delaney and two 11-year-old boys died.

On Wednesday, the White House said the medal will be presented on Reagan's behalf by Vice President George Bush in ceremonies at the Haughton High School gymnasium at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Gov. Dave Treen also will attend the ceremonies

Tigers 7, Angels 1

At Detroit, California's Bruce Kison had retired nine batters in a row when Kirk Gibson walked and Larry Herndon singled to start a six-run Detroit sixth. John Grubb followed with a tie-breaking single, Chet Lemon doubled home the inning's second run and a bases-loaded walk, Alan Trammell's sacrifice fly and two California throwing errors chased home three more runs before pinch hitter John Wockenfluss capped the uprising with an RBI single.

Royals 5, Blue Jays 4

At Kansas City, George Brett had a single, double and triple and rookie Pat Sheridan collected three hits as the Royals handed the Blue Jays their first loss in six games since the All-Star break. Winner Larry Gura went six innings to hike his career record against Toronto to 11-2. Dan Quisenberry pitched the final three innings for his 21st save, tops in the majors.

Orioles 6, A's 2

At Baltimore, Cal Ripken Jr. blasted a grand slam home run in the fourth inning and Benny Ayala hit a solo homer in the eighth. It was the fourth victory in a row for Baltimore and the fourth straight setback for the A's. Ripken belted his second career grand slam and his 14th home run of the season off loser Tim Conroy. Storm Davis, who worked the first six innings and allowed eight hits and two runs, was the winner.

Twins 6, Yankees 1

At Minnesota, Ken Schrom scattered 10 hits in 8 2-3 innings and outdueled Ron Guidry, who had been sidelined since June 22 with back spasms and suffered his third loss in 16 career decisions against Minnesota. Tom Brunansky, hitting .199 before the game, had a double and three singles for the Twins.

Mariners 6, Red Sox 4

At Boston, Jim Beattie worked out of bases-loaded jams in the fourth and fifth innings en route to his fourth consecutive victory. Beattie surrendered a two-run homer to Carl Yastrzemski in the second inning and was hurt by poor defense when the Red Sox scored single runs in the fourth and fifth.

over the Giants. The homers came off reliever Greg Minton, 2-6, with the Giants leading 6-5 and the Pirates down to their last out.

Manny Sarmiento, 3-3, got off the hook to gain the victory with Kent Tekulve pitching the ninth inning to get his eighth save.

National League home run leader Darrell Evans had blasted his 21st and Jack Clark hit his 14th to help the Giants wipe out a 5-0 deficit.

Reds 3, Mets 1

In New York, Joe Price pitched a three-hitter and Eddie Milner drove in two runs and scored the other as Cincinnati defeated the Mets.

Price, 8-5, struck out six and walked one. Price lost a bid for the first shutout of his four-year career when George Foster connected for his 15th homer in the fifth inning.

Padres 5, Cubs 4

In San Diego, Steve Garvey singled in two runs in the third and victory-starved Tim Lollar won for the first time in more than three weeks with late relief help as the Padres defeated Chicago.

Lollar, 4-6, scattered nine hits before leaving in the ninth, when the Cubs scored on an RBI double by Jerry Morales and run-scoring single by Ron Cey. Relievers Luis DeLeone and Gary Lucas finished up, with Lucas gaining his 10th save.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 5

In Los Angeles, David Green singled home Andy Van Slyke from second base with the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning to lead St. Louis over the Dodgers.

Van Slyke started the Cardinals' winning rally with a bunt single along the first-base line. Loser Steve Howe, 2-4, wild-pitched Van Slyke to second and with one out, Green lined a single to center.

Reliever Dave Rucker, 1-0, earned his first victory in the NL. Bruce Sutter got the last out to record his ninth save.

Romers 4, Angels 1

At Detroit, California's Bruce Kison had retired nine batters in a row when Kirk Gibson walked and Larry Herndon singled to start a six-run Detroit sixth. John Grubb followed with a tie-breaking single, Chet Lemon doubled home the inning's second run and a bases-loaded walk, Alan Trammell's sacrifice fly and two California throwing errors chased home three more runs before pinch hitter John Wockenfluss capped the uprising with an RBI single.

At Kansas City, George Brett had a single, double and triple and rookie Pat Sheridan collected three hits as the Royals handed the Blue Jays their first loss in six games since the All-Star break. Winner Larry Gura went six innings to hike his career record against Toronto to 11-2. Dan Quisenberry pitched the final three innings for his 21st save, tops in the majors.

At Baltimore, Cal Ripken Jr. blasted a grand slam home run in the fourth inning and Benny Ayala hit a solo homer in the eighth. It was the fourth victory in a row for Baltimore and the fourth straight setback for the A's. Ripken belted his second career grand slam and his 14th home run of the season off loser Tim Conroy. Storm Davis, who worked the first six innings and allowed eight hits and two runs, was the winner.

At Minnesota, Ken Schrom scattered 10 hits in 8 2-3 innings and outdueled Ron Guidry, who had been sidelined since June 22 with back spasms and suffered his third loss in 16 career decisions against Minnesota. Tom Brunansky, hitting .199 before the game, had a double and three singles for the Twins.

At Boston, Jim Beattie worked out of bases-loaded jams in the fourth and fifth innings en route to his fourth consecutive victory. Beattie surrendered a two-run homer to Carl Yastrzemski in the second inning and was hurt by poor defense when the Red Sox scored single runs in the fourth and fifth.

In New York, Joe Price pitched a three-hitter and Eddie Milner drove in two runs and scored the other as Cincinnati defeated the Mets.

Price, 8-5, struck out six and walked one. Price lost a bid for the first shutout of his four-year career when George Foster connected for his 15th homer in the fifth inning.

In San Diego, Steve Garvey singled in two runs in the third and victory-starved Tim Lollar won for the first time in more than three weeks with late relief help as the Padres defeated Chicago.

Lollar, 4-6, scattered nine hits before leaving in the ninth, when the Cubs scored on an RBI double by Jerry Morales and run-scoring single by Ron Cey. Relievers Luis DeLeone and Gary Lucas finished up, with Lucas gaining his 10th save.

In Los Angeles, David Green singled home Andy Van Slyke from second base with the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning to lead St. Louis over the Dodgers.

Van Slyke started the Cardinals' winning rally with a bunt single along the first-base line. Loser Steve Howe, 2-4, wild-pitched Van Slyke to second and with one out, Green lined a single to center.

Reliever Dave Rucker, 1-0, earned his first victory in the NL. Bruce Sutter got the last out to record his ninth save.

At Toronto, California's Bruce Kison had retired nine batters in a row when Kirk Gibson walked and Larry Herndon singled to start a six-run Detroit sixth. John Grubb followed with a tie-breaking single, Chet Lemon doubled home the inning's second run and a bases-loaded walk, Alan Trammell's sacrifice fly and two California throwing errors chased home three more runs before pinch hitter John Wockenfluss capped the uprising with an RBI single.

Paralyzed women may have normal pregnancy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women paralyzed below the waist by spinal cord injuries can go through normal pregnancy and deliver healthy babies if their chronic health problems are continuously monitored, say medical researchers.

Scientists at New York University Medical School, in a report to be published today, say paralysis from spinal cord injury does not affect fertility or menstruation in women.

The condition also does not affect their ability to have a normal, vaginal delivery unless the injury also caused a deformity in the pelvis, said the report. In this case, surgical delivery may be required.

Because of advances in medicine and emergency care, increasing numbers of people are surviving accidents in which their spinal cords have been injured or severed — resulting in paralysis.

"Pregnancy in patients with spinal cord transection is no longer rare," says the report in the July issue of the journal Obstetrics and Gynecology. "The increasing number of young survivors of spinal cord injury emphasizes the special problems of pregnancy in these women."

Drs. Bruce K. Young, Miriam Katz and Steven A. Klein reported on the cases of three women who went through a total of four pregnancies.

The report said all those studied experienced chronic urinary infections and anemia which were aggravated by pregnancy. The doctors advised long-term use of urinary antiseptics and iron supplements to combat these problems.

The most serious complication for these patients during pregnancy, and particularly during labor, was a condition called autonomic hyperreflexia. This condition stemming from the spinal cord injury causes increased blood pressure, irregular heartbeats, extreme anxiety, sweating and chills.

Doctors were able to use a variety of drugs during labor to relieve these symptoms with no apparent adverse effects to the mother or baby, the report said.

Labor came a couple of weeks prematurely for all of the paraplegic women, but it was rapid and painless in each case, the report said. However, labor contractions were stronger, more prolonged and more frequent than with normal women, it continued.

All the mothers suffered hyperreflexia and uncontrollable leg spasms during delivery, but these symptoms subsided 30 to 60 minutes after birth and none of the patients suffered complications, said the researchers.

Although the mothers and the fetuses suffered higher-than-normal stress and heartbeats during delivery, all came through the experience with no apparent adverse effects, the report said.

"Patients with spinal cord transection may be expected to have a reasonably normal pregnancy outcome," concluded the report, "provided that specific complications, particularly autonomic hyperreflexia, are anticipated and that the physician is familiar with their management."

Bruizer right at home cruising on motorcycle

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — In his helmet, T-shirt, bib overalls and sunglasses, Bruizer looks a lot more like a biker than a boxer.

In fact, the dog has covered more than 35,000 miles with his owner, Glenn Baker, while riding on the back of a Honda.

Baker, 39, said Bruizer started perching on the gas tank when he was a pup. Now age 6 and all decked out in a riding outfit, the dog looks right at home.

"At first he was a little scared," said Baker. "He fell off the second time I ever rode him but he hasn't fallen off since. I guess he's ridden 35,000 to 40,000 miles."

It's all a matter of equilibrium, Baker said. "I've had him up to 115 mph and he just balances himself on the tank. No straps whatsoever."

Baker said Bruizer jumps at the chance to ride. "When he hears me bringing the motorcycle around in front of the house he gets excited," Baker said.

Researcher says FDA erred in research

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading researcher charged the Food and Drug Administration on Wednesday with committing "a series of systematic errors" in approving use of the Today Contraceptive Sponge.

Nathan Mantel of the American University, who formulated the first statistical method of assessing cancer risks, said FDA officials weren't as careful in calculating a safe dose of the drug as they would have required outside researchers to be.

"(They) have not been exercising the same scrupulous care that they expect in reports from outside organizations — and even scrupulous care is frequently not effective in getting a favorable decision from the FDA," Mantel told a House subcommittee.

But Dr. Arthur Hull Hayes, commissioner of the FDA, defended the decision. "The safety of the Today Contraceptive Sponge was evaluated and considered extensively by FDA reviewers prior to approval," he said.

Dr. Hayes said FDA estimates of exposure to contaminants that are known to cause cancer in animals are well under one-millionth of the doses that cause cancer in animals.

Mantel, who teaches mathematics and computer science, said data may not permit calculation of any safe level for 2,4-Toluenediamine. This substance is used in the sponge and some researchers believe it to be a possible cause of cancer.

He said use of the contraceptive sponge "would allow direct contact with highly sensitive tissues like the cervix and the vagina, extremely important sites of cancer in women."

Dr. Hayes cautioned, "It is important not to overestimate the precision or superiority of so-called qualitative expressions of risk."

He said that all risk assessments made for the sponge tend to overstate the risk. "The assessments are based on estimates of the amounts of contaminants in the product that are almost certainly highly excessive," Dr. Hayes said.

He also said that women do not need contraception throughout their lives and do not need it daily even when they do need it.

Another critic of the FDA was Susan Seidler of the National Women's Health Network, which she said is the only national consumer group concerned solely with women's health.

"Additional tests should be conducted on the safety of material used in the contraceptive sponge," Ms. Seidler said.

She said the sponge's label tells of a risk of Toxic Shock Syndrome for users for more than six hours during menstruation. This warning "may not be adequate warning for the thousands of young women across this country who are at highest risk for Toxic Shock Syndrome and will potentially be a large segment of the user population for this product," she said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 15, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until sundown you have very good aspects for working conditions out with other persons so try to see and go along with them in a cooperative manner as well as you possibly can.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Co-ordinating your energies with those of partners can bring about much accomplishment today. Be charming with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make arrangements early for any amusements with friends that will get rid of tensions of the busy work week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The condition at home can now be much improved, but do not start an argument there in the evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Let regular allies know that you are willing to be more co-operative in the future and gain their good will.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you put enough money in the bank so that you need not worry if any emergency may arise in the days ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are dynamic now and can charm others into doing your bidding, but take it easy in the evening and don't try to force anything.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day for doing research so that you can clear up perplexing matters and tonight analyze results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) During daytime you can contact friends who can give you the assistance you need, but avoid being social later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you are more cooperative with higher-ups you can easily gain that promotion you seek. Take care of credit matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you desire to expand, seek new associates, new outlets and learn about the latest trends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you are more cooperative with higher-ups you can easily gain that promotion you seek. Pay bills today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day for getting your surroundings beautified so that you and others can be happier in them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those attractive young people who likes to be precise and has fine ideas about improving surroundings, so be sure to give a good education and slant it along lines of interior decorating, beauty shop work etc.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

ALL TOGETHER — Room was scarce inside the open-air wave-producing swimming in suburban St. Quentin in Yvelines, southwest of Paris, last weekend as thousands of area residents went in for a cool dip while temperatures reached 32 degrees centigrade, or 90 degree Fahrenheit.

Author surprised at reaction to book

NEW YORK (AP) — Laurence Barrett, whose new book launched this summer's political scandal in Washington, was autographing copies at 10 seconds per signature when he wondered aloud if it was all necessary.

"Does this do any good?" he asked the staff at a Doubleday book store. "Will people who wouldn't have bought my book really buy a copy if I have signed it?"

"Oh, of course," said the woman restacking the signed books. "Some people will buy anything that's autographed."

Autographed or not, Barrett's book, "Gambling With History: Reagan in the White House," Doubleday, $19.95, has become required reading for politics junkies since it was published June 22. And Barrett has become the hottest guest on the radio-TV talk show circuit.

The book is 511 pages about the inner workings of the White House during Reagan's first two years in office. All the fuss, however, is about only two paragraphs. Those few sentences revealed that Reagan campaign aides used briefing papers somehow obtained from the White House of Jimmy Carter to help prepare Reagan for the October 1980 televised debate.

Rep. Donald Albosta, D-Mich., who heads a House subcommittee looking into campaign ethics, subsequently began an investigation into possible unethical or illegal actions by Reagan aides.

Barrett, senior White House correspondent for Time magazine, has been stressing two things in recent interviews. First, he did not learn of the "filched" briefing papers or hear anything about a rumored "mole" in the Carter campaign who might have leaked the papers to the Reagan staff until after Reagan was inaugurated in January 1981.

Second, he did write a story about the briefing papers for Time. It was scheduled to run in February 1981. "But it was shoved out for space considerations," Barrett said. At the time, he said, there was more interest in the new administration's emerging programs than in footnotes to the past campaign.

"If I have any regrets now, it's that I didn't more fully develop the story 2 1/2 years ago," Barrett said Tuesday. Time would have run the story if he had put "more meat on the bones," particularly the names of the people involved in moving the briefing papers from Carter's to Reagan's camp, he said.

While conceding that the furor over the briefing papers is helping sales of his book, Barrett said he does not foresee a Watergate-type scandal.

"My hunch, my instinct, is that the story will fade away," he said.

Barrett, whose only previous book was a novel published in 1965, said he is uncomfortable at being interviewed instead of doing the interviewing, and at being asked the same questions over and over. "But it would be churlish to complain," he said.

Right now, Barrett said, he is eager to get off the promotion trail and back to work for Time in the White House. Does he have any plans for another book?

"No," he said. "I feel like the woman who's just had triplets, and someone asks her when she's going to get pregnant again."

Talking elephant baffles zookeepers

NEW YORK (AP) — First there was Francis, the talking mule. Then came Mr. Ed, the talking horse; followed by Cleo, the talking dog; and Morris, the talking cat. Now, direct from the Karaganda Zoo in Soviet Kazakhstan: Batir, the talking elephant.

But hold on to your trunks. Officials at several American zoos said "nyet" Wednesday when asked about the possibility of a prattling pachyderm.

"I think it's a crock," said Sandy Friedman, chairman of the mammal department of the Brookfield Zoo outside Chicago, when asked about the Tass news agency report that 13-year-old Batir can speak 20 phrases, including the local equivalent of "Have you watered the elephant?"

"Given the way that an elephant's mouth and tongue are arranged, I don't see how it can make words," Friedman said. "There've been other cases of animals supposedly speaking, like dolphins and some apes. But when you hear the tapes, most people quickly realize it's more in the mind of the listener."

"For example, they'll say 'Oh, there he's saying: 'How are you?' but when an observer who has nothing to do with it hears the noises, he can't make heads or tails of it," Friedman added.

The night watchman at the Karaganda Zoo, located 1,500 miles southeast of Moscow, had no such problem, though. He discovered during his rounds that Batir talks during the night and reported his discovery to superiors.

"Originally, no one believed the watchman's story," Tass reported Wednesday. "Nevertheless, zoologists decided to check the truth of the watchman's claims. Armed with tape recorders, they went off for a night watch at the zoo."

"And they were rewarded. Batir spoke nearly 20 phrases into the tape

Judge Ok's remaining MGM fire settlements

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A federal judge has approved settlements totaling $138 million for the remaining plaintiffs in a 1980 fire at the MGM Grand Hotel that killed 84 people and injured hundreds more.

U.S. District Judge Louis C. Bechtle of Philadelphia, who was appointed to handle lawsuits by the 1,357 remaining plaintiffs, on Tuesday approved the division of the total paid by 40 defendants, including $75 million from the hotel itself.

The smallest award under the plan approved by Bechtle was for $5,000, while the largest was $9 million.

Twenty death cases and approximately 2,000 personal injury and property damage claims were previously settled for $30 million, according to court records.

A total of 118 defendants were originally named in the complex flood of lawsuits stemming from the Nov. 21, 1980, fire. Sixty defendants have now settled, 21 have been dismissed and 37 have not settled.

About 3,400 guests were in the hotel at the time of the blaze, which broke out in a delicatessen and swept through the hotel's huge casino. Many of the victims died of smoke inhalation.

The plaintiffs will share in any additional settlements or judgments that may be obtained from the 37 remaining defendants. A federal court trial against several of those defendants, scheduled to begin last Monday in Las Vegas, has been delayed until the fall.

Tuesday's settlement includes $92.4 million for 67 death claims, $40.5 million for 1,021 personal injury claims and $2 million for property damage and business loss claims.

The 1,357 plaintiffs were represented by an umbrella group known as the Plaintiffs Legal Committee, which will receive 5 percent of the settlement in fees and 1.5 percent in expenses.

In his ruling, Bechtle also refused to disqualify himself from any pending lawsuits against remaining defendants. Some of those defendants had asked that the judge step aside, saying he would be prejudiced because he had helped arrange the settlement order.
