School board rejects boxing team bid

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Facing a crowd of about 25 emotional supporters of the Howard County Boxing Team, the Big Spring school board last night rejected a lone bid of $1,000 for the old Lakeview YMCA property where the team trains its athletes.

The bid came from the Howard County Commissioners on behalf of the team, and it was rejected because of a state law that says the district cannot sell property for less than its appraised value.

The decision was an unpopular one with the crowd as county Commissioner Louis Brown and team coaches Jaime Baldwin and J.A. Martinez took turns before the board arguing the merits of the team and asking for lease terms.

The three men said that when the team had leased the old YMCA over a year ago, it was in a state of disrepair. However, after considerable work on the interior, the building makes a good training facility for boxers, according to the men.

Team supporters say their efforts to repair the building and establish a good program for young persons should entitle them to lease the building for a small amount. Brown suggested $1 a year.

The board said it could not enter into such a deal because of the state law prohibiting selling district property for less than its appraised value. Board President Charles Beil told the crowd the district has a responsibility to obtain the most it can from the sale of the old YMCA to benefit taxpayers.

"We wish you every success," Beil said. "But we can't just say 'you're good people and go use the facility.' We have to operate on what we believe is a prudent business sense and what the law says."

Hise also reminded the crowd that when the team leased the building, it was informed the property would be put up for sale when an appraisal was obtained.

"Judge Bill Tune (former county judge who initially approached Hise about renting the YMCA) said the team would be doing some things to the building, and I said 'fine,' but any improvements the team made would not be compensated," Hise said. "We have laws we have to go by, and that's all we can do."

Board member Al Valdes then made a motion to authorize the administration to develop a more attractive bid.

HIGH FLYING MUSE — Mike Muse, president of Muse Air, relaxes in his office behind a scale model of a DC-9 Super 80, similar to what his company flies. The airline celebrates two years in the sky today.

Flying high

Muse Air launches out after two year struggle

DALLAS (AP) — When 30-year-old Mike Muse said he wanted to start an airline, his father told him he was crazy.

Lamar Muse knew something of airlines himself. As president of Southwest Airlines in the early 1970s, he put its stewardesses in hot pants, painted his planes bright red and orange, promised his passengers "love in the sky," and turned the fledgling commuter carrier into one of the nation's most profitable.

Muse knew something else about the business, too. You have to gamble a little, he told his son: "it takes a crazy person to be an entrepreneur."

Mike Muse's gamble, Muse Air, turned two years old Friday, poised for its widest expansion to date and sure to show its first real profit.

But the future didn't look nearly as promising a year, or even two years, ago, when Mike Muse really did look crazy. But for an ironic twist of fate, his idea might have never worked.

His timing seemed terrible. Fare wars had been gutting airline profits and industry losses were soaring.

The first Muse Air DC-9 Super 80 took off July 15, 1981, and 23 days later the air traffic controllers walked out. The Federal Aviation Administration immediately began rationing landing rights at the nation's major airports, so Muse was left with nowhere but Houston to fly.

And without new routes, and the revenues they would generate, Muse Air was left with too little business for its $22 million, state-of-the-art jets.

But the same airline that had tried for years to put his father out of business unwittingly kept Muse Air in.

Lamar Muse and Southwest had taken on Braniff International head to head back in 1971 for one of the nation's most lucrative routes, Dallas to Houston. Southwest survived, despite Braniff's fare-cutting that produced their Thirteen-Dollar War. But Braniff didn't, succumbing to a $1 billion debt in May 1982.

Braniff's failure was Muse Air's salvation. Muse picked up enough of Braniff's old landing slots to open the new routes.

The FAA will drop all the restrictions this fall, so Muse can fly where it chooses. But had Braniff not failed, admits Muse, "we would have been engaged in litigation with the FAA (over its rationing of landing slots)."

149 new laws to affect Texans in coming months

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Couples will no longer need blood tests for marriage licenses, lay midwives must register at the courthouse and counties may have to shell out millions to re-design election polling places.

These are just three of the 149 new laws that will affect Texans through the county clerk's office.

Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray was given an overview of law changes last month at a meeting of the Texas County and District Clerk's Association.

She said 38 of the new laws are considered serious changes by the association, primarily election rules. Of particular concern is House Bill-86 concerning accessibility of polling places, Mrs. Ray said.

All buildings where persons go to vote will have to meet standards of access for the elderly and the handicapped, Mrs. Ray said.

The cost of renovating current polling places would fall on county taxpayers, she said. Although counties are given until 1988 to comply with the new state statute, Mrs. Ray has already spoken with county commissioners on the issue.

Other new election laws include rules on campaign filings, changes in absentee voting and new distances for electioneering.

Son-in-law arraigned in slayings of Odessa trio

ODESSA (AP) — A 29-year-old man was arraigned on murder charges today in connection with the slayings of a woman and her two teen-age sons who were beaten to death with an aluminum baseball bat, police said.

Kenneth Vennee, 29, identified as the son-in-law of the dead woman, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Virgil Lumpee, who set at $100,000.

Lt. Rusty Baker said the Odessa resident was arrested Thursday in connection with the slayings of Ruby Faye Fieseler, 51, and sons Paul, 17 and Keith, 13.

"They died instantly or very shortly afterwards since (the blows were) enough to knock them unconscious," Lumpee said.

The victims probably were asleep in their home in East Odessa when the attack took place early Wednesday.

P.C. HARBOUR
...outgoing president

John Taylor to head water district board

Election of John Taylor of Big Spring as president of the Colorado River Municipal Water District was announced by the board of directors.

Taylor, a water district board member since 1967 and a former Big Spring city councilman and mayor pro tem, will replace P.C. (Codie) Harbour of Odessa as head of the water district.

Taylor, a native of Ralls, Texas, has chaired the district's personnel committee and served on the water rate committee.

He also was president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, the United Way and the Heritage Museum. In 1981 he directed the Big Spring-Howard County Railroad Centennial.

He has been director of Fiber Glass Systems since its organization.

Taylor will take over as president at the district's August meeting.

Harbour, the last of the original members of the district's board of directors, has served as president for the last 11 years.

Other officers elected include Clyde Yarborough of Odessa, vice president; Rex Fields of Snyder, vice president; and Joe Pickle of Big Spring, secretary-treasurer.

In other business this week, the water district directors approved expenditure of $200,000 to modernize and speed up operations.

Of that total, $100,000 will pay for a microwave replacement for the Big Spring and McWhorter pump stations from Martin County.

Directors also voted to purchase a computer and software.

Another $10,000 was approved for site improvements at the Big Spring pump and central control station.

Board directors received a report that income for the first half of 1983 was $5.9 million, an increase over last year's revenues. Expenditures were said to be about $750,000 under budget, although operating expenses were up $119,000.

Water deliveries through June 30 totaled 8.6 billion gallons, compared to 8.5 billion for the same period last year.

School board will appeal to Supreme Court

The Big Spring school board says it's ready to go all the way to the Supreme Court to make its case.

Trustees went into executive session last night to discuss a pending lawsuit filed in 1977 in Abilene Federal Court by former high school basketball coach James Griffin.

Superintendent Lynn Hise said Griffin's contract was not renewed in 1977. Griffin's suit claims he lost his job because he is black.

Hise said the suit was at one time dismissed in federal court without coming to trial; however, Griffin appealed the case to the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans which recently remanded the case back to the Abilene Federal Court.

Hise said the board authorized school attorneys to appeal the Fifth Circuit Court's decision to the Supreme Court.

In other business, the board:

- Approved a special education budget amendment for $35,000 to purchase a mobile home to teach self-care skills to severely handicapped students in the district.

- The home will satisfy requirements imposed on the district by the Texas Education Agency to train students how to take care of themselves and simple household duties. Hise said the money to buy the mobile home will come from federal funds.

- Hired four teachers and accepted the resignation of five educators.

- Appointed Wade Burroughs textbook custodian for the district.

- Adopted new eligibility requirements for the district's free and reduced-price meals for persons of low income.

- Raised the per diem rate of district employees for travel expenses from $40 per day to a maximum of $60 per day. Also, reimbursement from mileage of personal vehicles was raised from 20 cents to 23 cents a mile.

- Accepted a bid of $60,553 from Parks Oil Co. for fuel and oil bids for the 1983-84 school year. The district will be paying 95.8 cents a gallon for regular gas, 99.8 cents a gallon for unleaded fuel, 82.9 cents a gallon for diesel and $3.03 a gallon for lubrication oils.

- Entered into an agreement with Steve Fraser, representing the Greater Big Spring Rotary, for a "fill the stadium night" at the Big Spring Steer's first home football game Sept. 2.

The agreement will have the city's service clubs sell tickets for a chance of winning a door prize. The agreement is contingent on the participation of four major service clubs and the district furnishing $500 for a door prize.

Assault suspect arrested

Big Spring police say they arrested Carrol Trantham, 46, for suspicion of assault and resisting arrest. Trantham posted bonds totaling $3,000 to be released through the Howard County sheriff's office.

According to police reports, Clydette Martin of 705 Willia said at 3:38 a.m. Thursday a man she knew beat her. As police attempted to make an arrest, the subject resisted, according to reports. Trantham was arraigned before Municipal Judge Melvin Darrat.

- Louis Dunnam of the Ventura Co. on 1200 W. Third told police yesterday afternoon someone pried open the front door of the business to steal a $1,500 airless spray compressor and a $250 welder.

- A Midland man told police his $500 car was stolen by persons he knows between April and July.

FORMATION — These two World War II model aircraft line up for competition Sunday at the Big Spring Fun Fly at the old Howard County Airport.

The planes, which are remote controlled, will fly precision maneuvers and acrobatic stunts for prize money. The public is invited to the all-day event.

All day event

West Texas Championship Fly In slated Sunday

The first Big Spring Model Aircraft Fly In will be all day Sunday at the Big Spring Radio-Controlled Flying Field at the former Howard County Airport. Members of the Big Spring Model Aircraft Association are expecting more than 100 competitors from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma for the July 17 event.

The West Texas Championship Fun Fly is sponsored by the local association. The event is said to be the largest of its kind in West Texas.

The radio-controlled aircraft will be going through their paces beginning at 9 a.m., with events expected to run until nightfall. Local officials said spectators may attend at any time during the competition. Admission will be free, although an optional donation of $1 per carload for the Big Spring Boys Club is suggested.

The five flying events will be timed, and the six lowest times will receive trophies and prizes. Prizes total $3,000 with a top prize of a $700 Kraft MKIII 7C W-KPS-22 model aircraft.

Persons interested in watching the Fly In should take Texas Highway 350 (the Snyder highway) east and look for signs directing them to the event.

Food and drink will be available at a concession stand.

sale or lease of the property in light of its appraised value. Board members said they may enter into a lease agreement with the team if the district could be compensated for the value of the property.

After the meeting, Brown said the board had not answered his question of "Why the board wants to sell the property?"

Hise said the district is acting on a long-standing motion by a previous board to sell surplus school property and use the proceeds for other projects in the district.

Hise said that through the sale of Parkhill and Cedar Crest school properties two years ago, the district was able to contract Goliad Middle School without having to raise taxes or calling a bond election.

day, Lumpee said. Autopsies performed Thursday showed the three had been beaten several times and dead for about 16 hours when police found their bodies about 9 p.m. Wednesday, Lumpee said.

Baker said all three were wearing nightclothes and were in bed in separate rooms. A bloody baseball bat was found in the living room.

All drawers in one dresser were pulled out. Lumpee said the house appeared to have been ransacked.

Baker said police had been unable to determine if there was forced entry to the house, which had been burglarized earlier in the year.

Mrs. Fieseler's 1981 powder-blue Chevrolet Impala was recovered Thursday, Baker said.

Lumpee said the woman, a widow, apparently was killed first, followed by her youngest son and the oldest youth. The 17-year-old "had a leg out of the bed like he might have started to get up" after hearing noises, Lumpee said.

The bodies were "cold," Lumpee said.

But a neighbor, Frank Beacham, said he was "absolutely positive" he saw Paul Fieseler outside the gray frame house about 30 minutes before police were notified that a relative had discovered the bodies.

Police would not say who the relative was.

Mrs. Fieseler, who had been employed at the Odessa High School cafeteria for the past six years, had lived in the house for 17 years, officials said. Her husband died six years ago.

ding rights) and God only knows what would have happened then."

Muse had worked two years at Southwest — his only full time experience in the industry — when his father was pink-slipped in March 1978 after a reported power play with his board. The son was fired the next day.

An accountant, Mike Muse got a job with Price Waterhouse and Co., but soon grew restless away from the airline business he had known all his life.

He first approached his father with the idea of a new airline in January 1980 over breakfast at an all-night Dallas restaurant.

"I had to drag Lamar in kicking and screaming... I needed his experience," the son recalls. "He knew what a tough row to hoe it was."

He also needed his flamboyant father's name, he freely admits. Together, they raised $30 million in cash. Mike Muse became president; Lamar Muse, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, a title he relinquished to his son on the a year ago.

The father-son team immediately got away from some of the ideas with which the elder Muse had been so successful at Southwest.

Where Southwest is brassy and faddish, Muse Air is chic and sophisticated. Smoking is banned on Muse Air flights; the leather seats, assigned. Drinks are free. The in-flight magazine is Texas' slick, up-scale Ultra.

"It was not a hot-pants market anymore," says Muse, sitting beside a model of his sleek, cream-color jets that rises from a coffee table at one side of his office. "Dallas and Houston are more cosmopolitan now. That image was fine in 1971. We happen to believe that's not the image you want to project today. I don't want to be within 20 feet of that."

Muse Air made money last year, despite an operating loss, because of the sale of some tax credits. But the airline has turned an operating profit for two straight months despite its low fare structure. And its load factor, a measure of how full the flights are, has finally risen above 50 percent.

Muse Air has a $3 million terminal — which Mike Muse promises will be "one of the finest in the country" — under construction at Hobby Airport in Houston and plans were recently disclosed for the airline's new corporate offices in Dallas.

Muse begins flying to its sixth destination, Lubbock, on Aug. 7 six times daily and will inaugurate service this fall or spring to Austin and San Antonio, markets Muse has long coveted.

From there, Muse has his eye on New Orleans, Chicago, New York, Washington — almost as many cities, he says, as he can buy the planes to fly to.

Muse professes no concern over the Hyatt Corp.'s plans to resurrect Braniff in Dallas this fall, predicting that the new airline won't have the public confidence or cash to survive more than three months.

"American will grind them up like sausage and Delta will turn the handle," Muse says. "I don't lose any sleep over Braniff flying again."

But then, you'd have to be crazy to start an airline, anyway.

New laws

On Aug. 29, blood tests will no longer be a requirement for marriage licenses, Mrs. Ray said. The long-time test was believed to have been eliminated for two reasons, Mrs. Ray said.

"It was not serving its purpose in detecting venereal disease," Mrs. Ray said. "Some hospitals in larger cities were charging excessive fees for just the blood test."

Originally the test was to include a complete physical, but only the blood test was required. Many of the new laws increase fees for services in the county clerk's office, Mrs. Ray said.

Probate (wills) filing fees will increase from $49 to $59 Sept. 1. Corrections on birth or death certificates — formerly free — will be $7. Birth certificates go up from $3 to $5 each. A new trustees' sales fee will be $2.

Some of the "users' fees" will go to the state while some will go into the county's general fund, Mrs. Ray said.

"The legislature sets the fees; these new laws are legislation from them," Mrs. Ray said.

Not all of the new laws will affect a large percentage of the population. One new law concerns registration and requirements for lay midwives, she said.

Court costs for criminal cases will increase from $71 to $85 Jan. 1, 1984, Mrs. Ray said. The increase comes from SB-138 which raises fees to the Texas Victims of Crime Fund and an additional clerks' fee.

The 48th county and district clerks spent much of their three-day meeting in round-table discussions on how to implement the new laws, Mrs. Ray said.

Burglary trial to jury

A Howard County jury began deliberating shortly before 11 a.m. today in 118th District Court in the burglary trial of Joe Luis Rivas, 22, of Lenorah.

Rivas is charged in the Sept. 6, 1982 burglary of Pinkie's on the Lamesa Highway. An estimated $17,000 in goods were reportedly taken.

The six-man, six-woman jury returned to the courtroom at 9:30 a.m. today for closing arguments after testimony completed at 6 p.m. Thursday.

District Attorney Rick Hamby called five witnesses yesterday including Deputy Sheriff Bill Shankles and Texas Ranger Charles Brune, who investigated the burglary and arrested Rivas. Cindy Moore, a Pinkie's employee, was also called to the stand.

Pete Jensen, a local oilfield employee, testified he had found nearly $6,000 in checks in the county that had been taken in the burglary.

Defense Attorney Jack Thompson called Rivas' employer, gin operator Merle Mitchell, to testify the defendant was working for him at the time of the alleged burglary. Rivas was also called to the stand to testify.

Brief rain washes city

The brief rainfall that hit Howard County early this morning did not leave behind much moisture.

According to the U.S. Big Spring Experiment Station on Interstate Highway 20, .20 of an inch was recorded. That brings the yearly rainfall total to 4.28 inches — well short of the 9.67 yearly average.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District recorded .25 of inch at the pump station north of Big Spring. Lake Thomas received .10 inch while Moss Lake received .10, according to water district officials.

Sunshine Kids of Big Spring will play host this weekend to a meeting of Sunshine Kids from across West Texas.

Visitors will be greeted at noon Saturday at the Holiday Inn which has donated 7 rooms for the event.

From 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. there will be a splash party at 2511 Rebecca. The kids will have a pizza party at Big Cheese Pizza at 5 p.m. and will have their photographs taken at 6:15 p.m. Later that night at 7 they will attend a gospel music concert at the High School.

On Sunday, the group will breakfast at 9 a.m. at Wayne Henry's Steakhouse and hold a farewell at 10:30 a.m.

Upton deputy shot, killed

McCAMEY (AP) — An Upton County sheriff's deputy was shot to death early today after he apparently interrupted a burglary, police in West Texas said.

The victim was Charles A. "Chuck" Renfro, 45, a 4½-year veteran of the sheriff's department, said an Odessa police officer, who asked that his name not be used.

"An autopsy is being conducted right now," said a spokeswoman for the Richard Box Funeral Home in McCamey, where Renfro's body was taken after the shooting.

The Odessa policeman said Renfro surprised two men in the process of burglarizing the Red Bluff Lumber yard about 12:45 a.m. and was shot three times with a shotgun from close range.

Upton County sheriff's officers refused to release any information on the shooting other than to confirm the deputy had been killed and an investigation was under way. Odessa is 50 miles north of McCamey.

Inmate wants sex change

GALVESTON (AP) — An admitted transsexual serving time in the Texas Department of Corrections has filed a federal court lawsuit, alleging prison officials won't allow him a sex change operation.

Allyn B. Scribner, an inmate at the TDC's Ramsey II Unit, filed the lawsuit Thursday.

Scribner, who calls himself a female, complained he is forced to shower with hundreds of male prisoners. The suit said that hormone treatments have caused Scribner's hips, buttocks and breasts to develop and that showering with men places him in danger.

TDC spokesman Rick Hartley said prison regulations do not provide for sex change operations for prisoners.

Congressmen face sex charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerry Studds, facing House reprimand for gay sex with a 17-year-old page, says he will stay in Congress, but Rep. Daniel B. Crane has left his plans unclear after admitting an affair with a female page.

The two congressmen on Thursday admitted ethics committee charges they had sex with teen-age pages. Formal reprimand, the mildest discipline the full House can mete out, could take only a few minutes once scheduled, since neither is contesting the action.

"Of course," Studds, 46, a Massachusetts Democrat, told reporters when asked if he would serve out his term. He took the House floor, where he proclaimed his homosexuality and admitted "a serious error in judgment" in his relationship with the page 10 years ago.

Studds said, though, that his relationship did not involve improper conduct because it was voluntary and there was no preferential treatment or harassment.

Crane, 47, a Republican from a Bible Belt district in downstate Illinois, first sought advice from his brother, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., the 1980 GOP White House hopeful. Then he flew home to explain his affair with a 17-year-old girl page to his wife, Judy, and six children.

"I know nothing — I'm not talking," the conservative supporter of school prayer and strict morals said when asked about the liaison three years ago that began when the girl lost a six-pack of beer to him on a basketball bet and ended with repeated sessions in the bedroom of his Alexandria, Va., apartment.

The talk among Illinois Republicans was that Crane might resign and that, if not, he would have a hard time getting re-elected after barely squeaking out a third term last fall.

"If Dan Crane came to me and asked me if he should resign," House GOP Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said in reply to a question, "Well, I'd like to be as much of a strength to him as possible. I'd say the Good Lord sometimes moves in mysterious ways."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said the windup of the investigation by the ethics committee, formally the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, yielded findings that were "most disturbing."

GERRY E. STUDDS ...admits homosexuality

DANIEL CRANE ...sexual misconduct

The committee voted 11-1 to recommend to the full House the reprimand of the two lawmakers.

Committee special counsel Joseph A. Califano Jr. also said the panel found that James C. Howarth, majority chief page in the House doorkeeper's office, "engaged in a sexual relationship with a 17-year-old female in 1980 who was at the time under his direct supervision and gave her preferential treatment."

Califano said there was evidence that in 1979 and 1980 Howarth, now chief majority page in the document room, purchased cocaine in the Democratic cloakroom where lawmakers mill during House sessions.

Unlike the two lawmakers, Howarth did not waive his right to a public hearing. Califano said he urged disciplinary proceedings against Howarth.

Co-workers said Howarth was not in his office Thursday and could not say where he could be reached. He also could not be located through calls to a number of Howarth's listed in area telephone directories.

The committee said Studds and the male page both confirmed the details of their relationship. It said Crane and the girl page did the same.

In his floor statement, Studds said, "It is not a simple task for any of us to meet adequately the obligations of either public or private life, let alone both. But these challenges are made substantially more complex when one is, as am I, both an elected public official and gay."

The committee said Studds "acknowledged in writing that he made sexual advances to two other male pages in 1973."

After Crane left Washington, his office issued a statement in which he said: "I'm sorry that I made a mistake."

"It happened three years ago," he said. "I'm human and in no way did I violate my oath of office. I only hope my wife and children will forgive me."

The committee said the girl told investigators she found Crane "as an older man, very attractive." She said she went to his office to pay off the basketball bet at 8 p.m. and that he asked her if she wanted some beer.

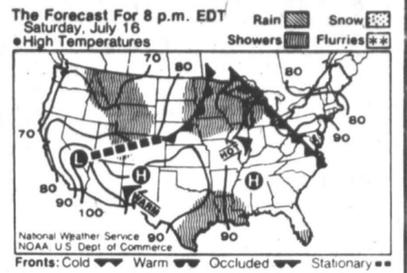

The girl replied that she did not like beer and the two of them then went to a suburban Virginia bar, the committee quoted her as saying. Because she was underage, though, she was not served and they went to Crane's apartment where "we went to bed."

"Now," an investigator asked her, "were there any other occasions after that when you went out with Congressman Crane?"

"Went out with? No," the girl said. But the panel quoted her as saying she went to his apartment "three or four" more times for sex. She said she would meet him on the House floor to make such appointments and later join him in his office or wait for him by his car.

The former page who had a relationship with Studds was quoted by the committee as saying he was "flattered and excited" when the congressman asked him to dinner.

Ex-diplomat's wife returned safely

CLELIA ELEANOR QUINONEZ ...rescued from kidnapers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wife of a former Salvadoran ambassador to the United States is in good condition today after FBI agents whisked her away from kidnapers who had held her for a week demanding $1.5 million ransom.

Clelia Eleanor Quinonez, 53, wife of Roberto Quinonez Meza, was kidnapped in Miami and rescued Thursday at a pay telephone booth outside a Washington hotel. The captors were having her call her husband to verify she was safe so that he would pay the ransom.

About 40 FBI agents had staked out the Pitt Hotel in northwest Washington and were planning the rescue when Mrs. Quinonez appeared at the telephone with her abductors who placed a call.

Mrs. Quinonez' husband said in Miami that the call lasted four or five minutes. He said he heard voices and scuffling over the line as the arrests were made. He said the FBI called him later to say his wife was safe.

Taken into custody in Washington were Mack L. Carr, 18, Robert A. Gerald, 19, Clifford Bibbs, 23, and an unidentified 17-year-old, all of the District of Columbia, according to James W. Vatter, assistant special agent in charge of the FBI's Washington field office.

Arrested in Miami were Salvador Lacaya and his sister, Margarita, said FBI spokesman Dennis Erich.

Vatter said Carr, Gerald and the youth were arrested with Mrs. Quinonez at the telephone booth. Bibbs was taken into custody later.

FBI spokesman Ron Dervish said a woman also was being sought for questioning in the case. No other arrests were expected, he said.

Dervish said that Mrs. Quinonez was "in very good condition. She was not harmed in any way."

"It was hectic," former ambassador Quinonez said at an early-morning news conference in Miami. "We were very, very nervous. We're very happy the way it's turned out."

Agents said no one was injured during the arrests.

Quinonez, a wealthy businessman, said "I have no idea" why his family was targeted for the kidnapping.

But Theodore M. Gardner, special agent in charge of the Washington FBI office, said that following the abduction Quinonez was contacted by phone and that a demand of $1.5 million was made for his wife's release as a "war tax." Gardner said the abductors told Quinonez the money would be sent to leftist rebels in El Salvador.

Gardner said that after the kidnapping Mrs. Quinonez was brought by van to Washington and held at Carr's residence. He said federal agents had the residence under surveillance for several days.

Blast in Paris airport kills three, injures 30

PARIS (AP) — A bomb ripped through the south terminal at Orly Airport today, killing at least three people and injuring about 30, police said.

An anonymous telephone caller claimed responsibility for the attack in the name of the Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia — one of three Armenian nationalist groups that claimed to have assassinated a Turkish diplomat in Belgium on Thursday.

An employee at the Turkish Airlines counter said the blast occurred just in front of that station at the airport, and police speculated it might have been the work of Armenian nationalists seeking retribution for the massacre of hundreds of thousands of Armenians between 1894 and 1915.

The blast occurred just after 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) when the terminal at the airport southwest of Paris was crowded with summertime travelers.

Police said it appeared the bomb had been placed among some baggage in the main hall of the terminal.

Airport police said the main hall was in panic with people fleeing the scene. Airport officials said the departure of all flights has been suspended.

A spokesman for the airport said two people died on the spot and one died later. He said about 30 were injured, 10 of them suffering very serious burns.

The spokesman, who said he got to the scene moments after the blast, said: "The injured had been put on benches and the team of medical workers are caring for them." He added that the terminal building had been closed.

Dozens of ambulances converged on the airport and two helicopters were used to ferry the more seriously injured to local hospitals.

An employee at the Air India counter in the terminal said "several dozen people were covered with blood."

Inside the terminal building hundreds of rescue workers and firemen, many holding plasma bottles, helped the injured. Many victims suffered cuts and were being treated at the scene.

Protectionism rears ugly head

The Reagan administration, under pressure from the steel industry, has raised tariffs and set quotas on imported "specialty" steel products.

These are plates, rods and billets of specially alloyed steel coming from Japan, Europe, Canada and South American countries.

Such imported steel has matched American-made steel in every respect and has undercut domestic steel in price. The steel companies have blamed foreign subsidies and tax advantages for their inability to meet the foreign competition.

Perhaps. But the action, like the recent restriction on the import of Japanese motorcycles, is protectionism, pure and simple. It does not benefit consumers, who will have to pay more for products made from specialty steel. It only benefits the American steel industry and its labor force.

If foreign countries wish to give us their products below the real cost of production, we should accept the gift with gratitude, so long as it does not threaten our own national security. The few industries essential to defense should be protected to the extent that they must be protected. But consumer products are in another category.

We should not subsidize any industry just because foreigners subsidize theirs. Over the long haul, the free market will decide what each country can produce — whatever it produces with greatest efficiency.

Around the Rim

By CAROL HART

Star mystique

Often in the news you read about a celebrity who is complaining that the press and the fans are just too nosy. Too many people want to know too much about their private lives, they say.

However, lately, I've been reading MORE than I want to know about a lot of celebrities. Things I really don't care about seem to be making the entertainment wires more and more these days, and we seem to be getting less and less news about what celebrities do for a living — like movies and plays and television programs — and too much about their troubled love lives, their hay fever and their vacations.

AN ARTICLE on John Travolta called "What I still don't understand about women" just caught my eye. I did read the article but it wasn't because I want to know what John doesn't understand about women. Travolta is becoming one of these celebrities who can't tell us enough about himself and I was curious to see what he was telling now. He was complaining, "I know that some women have perceived me as the macho guy in control, but that's not really the case. I'm as vulnerable in a relationship as the woman is."

That's too bad, but I'll bet John is about as interested in hearing about all my troubles with relationships as I am in hearing about his. The purpose of the news is to keep people informed on issues which are important to their lives. The purpose of entertainment news should, in my opinion, keep us informed on new plays, new movies, legitimate troubles of entertainers which affect what we see, and, of course, some human interest information which we can identify with.

But there's got to be a line drawn somewhere. My complaint about too many articles is that the information dispersed is too well rehearsed or is just plain hype to plug a movie. All those soul-baring statements may not really be so true, and I hate to see things that aren't true passed off to people as truth.

I MISS those good old reclusive stars, like Gretha Garbo, or even Robert Redford. People who keep an air of suspense about themselves. These people seem sincere about their art and don't let their positions as celebrities overshadow what they do as an actor.

News about celebrities does brighten up the newspaper. And an occasional insight into their private lives is fine. After all, a certain status comes with the word celebrity. But just because someone is a celebrity doesn't mean everybody else is interested in what he ate for breakfast this morning.

Secrets of the press

As a newspaperman I am constantly being asked by victims what their rights are when it comes to talking to the media.

I shall try to address the problem in question-and-answer form, though I may lose my journalistic license for doing so.

Q: When a reporter stops me in front of my house, or sticks a microphone in my face, or telephones me in the middle of the night, what is my obligation to talk to this person?

A: You have a right to remain silent, you have a right to shove the mike in the reporter's ear, and you have the right to hang up the telephone.

Q: Won't that make me look bad if the correspondent says on TV that night, "Mr. Blue refuses to come out of his house to talk to us"? Or the reporter writes, "Efforts by this newspaper to reach Mr. Blue were unsuccessful"?

A: Not necessarily. The viewer or reader might conclude the reporter has been negligent by failing to get you to comment.

Q: What should I be wary of when dealing with the media?

A: The friendly young male reporter with the hearty handshake, who calls you by your first name, and says he's only here to get your side of the story, and the starry-eyed girl reporter who reminds you of your daughter. They'll murder you in a story, compared to a grizzled snarling old-timer, who has given up making a name for himself, and has no ambition to become another Woodward or Bernstein.

Q: Who are worse to talk to, the print people or TV reporters?

A: It's hard to say. Print reporters have more time on their hands before they write their stories, so they can spend time ingratiating themselves to you. They can lead you from your love of gardening to admitting you know every mob leader in Cleveland. TV reporters, on the other hand, are under pressure to get their tape to the studio, so they ask the tougher questions, and depend more on your facial reactions to them, than the answers. Even if you don't say anything, they'll still show you on the air fighting your way to get into your automobile, while the reporters shout questions at you.

Q: If I talk to the press will they listen to my side of the story?

A: They'll listen to it, but that doesn't necessarily mean it will get in print. You could say a hundred things and because of space limitations only three of them might appear in the newspaper. But it's still better than TV, when rarely more than one of your statements gets on the air. If the TV people give you 15 seconds to defend yourself you're a lucky person.

Q: How can I get more time?

A: By admitting your guilt. Then you'll get the full minute.

Q: Suppose I'm not accused of anything, but the media want to interview me about somebody who is. Should I talk to them?

A: It depends how much you want to get on the evening news or see your name in the paper. Obviously you have a better chance of making it if you have something negative rather than positive to say about the person accused.

Q: What if I'm an anonymous source?

A: You'll be quoted but not seen on TV. As far as newspaper people are concerned, they'd prefer to use your name, but they'll always go with an anonymous source if they have to.

Q: Suppose a TV station or a newspaper or magazine calls me up and says they're doing a story on one of my friends. Is it okay to talk then?

A: It depends how much time you've got. The reporter will spend three hours with you, and then only use one quote, usually a negative one at that. People writing books are even worse because they have no deadlines.

Q: If everything you say is true, why do people still talk to the media?

A: Because of ego, fear, or they mistakenly figure they have nothing to hide. Then there are those who feel they can manipulate the story to their benefit.

Q: Is it true?

A: Not very often. I think it was one of our great vice presidents, Spiro Agnew, who once said, "You can manipulate some of the press all of the time, and all of the press some of the time — but you can't manipulate ALL of the press ALL of the time."

Billy Graham

Hubby smoked for 50 years

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband has terminal cancer with only a few months to live. He smoked for over 50 years and he is dying with lung cancer. Do you think churches should say more about smoking? — Mrs. G.D.

DEAR MRS. G.D.: God is concerned about the way we treat our bodies, and you are right — the church should be concerned about everything (including smoking, overeating, alcohol and drug abuse, and other harmful practices) that dulls our senses or hurts our bodies. The Bible says, "Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your body" (1 Corinthians 6:19:20).

There is, of course, a lot of interest in our society in physical fitness, and much of that is good. People need to be made aware of the dangers of abusing their bodies, and of the benefits of taking care of them. At the same time, however, we must never forget that the Bible places special emphasis on another type of fitness — spiritual fitness. The Bible declares, "Physical training is of some value, but godliness has value for all things holding promise for both the present life and the life to come" (1 Timothy 4:8).

I pray that the next few months will be special months for you and your husband. I pray especially that there will be times when you and your husband sense in a wonderful way the presence of God in your lives. Do you and your husband know beyond doubt that you have committed your lives to Christ, and that no matter what the future holds, you both will go to be with Christ in Heaven when you die? You can make sure, by yielding your lives without reserve, trusting him alone for your salvation.

It is never easy (humanly speaking) for us to face death — either our own, or that of a loved one. But Christ came to take away the sting of death. May you both come to know that in a richer way during these months.

Woman fears pollution problem

Dear Editor,
I wish you would please put this letter in your paper. If there is any charge for it, I'll gladly pay.

To the people of Big Spring and surrounding territory: today's paper states that amine gas treating plant has a construction permit to build 4.5 miles southwest of Big Spring. This plant emits sulfur dioxide and is hazardous to one's health.

I moved here from Houston last year, where I had to live with my windows and doors closed with air-conditioning day and night. Also an oxygen tank in my room. The pollution sent me to the emergency room many times. Also the medics were coming out many times to help me breathe.

I'm sure the people out here, with the clean air to breathe, don't have any idea what they are in for.

I've been enjoying keeping my windows wide open, sleeping in a cool clean breeze. It's the most valuable thing on earth to me. When you give up the clean air, there isn't anything else, because your health goes with it.

Please send letters to the Texas Air Control Board in Austin and hope it isn't too late to stop it. It's the most important thing in your life. I know I can't stay here if it is built, and I had hoped this would be my home until the end. This is sad news to me.

Control of the PLO

WASHINGTON — The violent split in the Palestine Liberation Organization has the Middle East in turmoil. Most upset are the Arab nations, but the Soviet Union also views the PLO civil war with serious misgivings.

Last Nov. 10, I reported that Yasser Arafat was once again in danger of losing his leadership of the Palestinian exiles, and I identified Syrian President Hafez Assad as the moving force against Arafat. Quoting secret intelligence cables, I reported that Assad was trying "to oust Arafat and replace him with a full-blown radical."

Assad sought to take advantage of the PLO's defeat in Lebanon. He wanted to move the exile group's headquarters to Damascus, where he could control it and eventually play his own, extremist puppets in charge. But Arafat was too clever to walk into a trap like that, and moved the PLO's "temporary" headquarters to Tunisia.

Now the implacable rivalry between Arafat and Assad has exploded in the world press. What's not generally appreciated, however, is the alarm that the PLO split has caused among most Arab nations. The last thing they want is to see the Syrians take over the PLO.

The reason is simple: If the Arab world can be described as a ship with several skippers, each trying to steer it in a different direction, Syria is the proverbial loose cannon careening around the deck, scaring everyone aboard.

Syria is irresponsible enough by itself to be a danger to its Arab neighbors; they're afraid Assad would unleash the PLO against their own regimes, which are already in economic and political difficulties without Palestinian subversion.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz flew to Cairo the other day for meetings with Egyptian officials. State Department sources told my associate Lucette Lagnaud he was the highest-ranking Iraqi to visit Egypt in years. The main topic of discussion was Syria's attempt to seize control of the PLO.

The Saudi Arabian government has also tried quietly, but ineffectively, to restrain the Syrian power play, according to intelligence reports. But the Saudis were unwilling to play their trump card: a cutoff of the substantial aid they give the Syrians.

Even the Kremlin is unhappy at the prospect of Syria taking over the PLO. Intelligence reports say the Soviets sent Arafat three telegrams of support within a one-week period. And the Soviet ambassador to Syria has reportedly been shuttling between Syrian officials and various PLO factions, trying to prevent a takeover.

If Moscow is concerned that the Syrian monster it helped create has grown too big to handle, the Arab governments can point to specific incidents to justify their fears of a Syrian-PLO combination: the assassination of PLO moderate leader Assam Sartawi by the extremist faction headed by Abu Nidal and the murder of Lebanese President-elect Bashir Gemayel. The Syrians welcomed these killings, if they didn't plot them.

There is also the matter of prestige. Major Arab governments, like Egypt and Saudi Arabia, resent Assad's attempt to usurp the leadership of the Arab world.

So Egypt may try to form a "consensus" of moderate Arab nations that will be strong enough to put down the Syrian upstart.

NEUTRON-STYLE BOMBS: The Pentagon is secretly producing partial neutron warheads, or "enhanced radiation weapons." More than 300 of these warheads, costing as much as $3 million apiece, are being built for the ground-to-ground Lance missile, according to a secret Pentagon report.

In addition, about 800 eight-inch neutron-type artillery rounds, costing more than $1 million apiece, are in the works. And 1,000 enhanced-radiation 155mm artillery shells are planned for 1986 delivery.

None of these will be true neutron bombs, which would give off only 20 percent of their fission reaction in blast and heat. The remaining 80 percent in "prompt radiation" would have no lasting contamination.

Obese, terminally ill man goes on probation

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A prosecutor said today his office was responsible for a judge placing on probation a terminally ill 650-pound man who pleaded guilty to raping his own small daughter.

"It's unfair to criticize the judge," said Hampden County District Attorney Matthew Ryan. "He followed our recommendation, which was based on our knowledge of the case and our experience. We felt it was in the best interest of all concerned. We feel it was an appropriate disposition."

And despite some public protests, Superior Court Judge George Keady said in an interview Wednesday that he would stick by his probationary sentence for Ralph Ward Rice, 32, of Southwick, unless he received new evidence.

Rice pleaded guilty last Thursday in Hampden Superior Court to rape and incest involving his daughter, who is now 12.

Rice was placed on three years probation, barred from seeing his six children, now in state custody, and was given an eight-to-10-year suspended jail sentence.

Women's groups protested Monday and began collecting signatures on petitions demanding Keady jail Rice.

Susan Campheni, president of the Hotline to End Rape and Abuse in Springfield, said Wednesday that women's groups "are outraged" by the probationary sentence and will continue to try to persuade Keady to jail Rice.

"I am no apologist for Mr. Rice," Keady said Wednesday. "I detest what he did."

"I respect those people who are protesting," he said. "I am not sure if I were in their shoes that I wouldn't protest either."

Keady said he imposed probation after reviewing medical reports that showed the girl would have been damaged psychologically if she had to testify and reports that showed it would be difficult to provide adequate health care for Rice in jail.

Rice suffers from a disease known as obesity hyperventilation syndrome, which causes severe breathing problems and shortens life expectancy.

Medical reports quoted last week in court stated Rice had another five years to live.

"I believe he is in his own jail," Keady said.

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Treated like a young celebrity, Samantha Smith toured Leningrad Thursday, visiting landmarks of the Bolshevik revolution and a cemetery where almost a half million World War II victims are buried.

The 11-year-old schoolgirl from Manchester, Maine, sped through the elegant streets of Russia's former czarist capital in a black limousine heading a 10-car motorcade of reporters and officials.

Outside Leningrad's fancy Hotel Europe, where Samantha is staying with her parents, Arthur and Jane, a group of American tourists yelled "Good for you," and took pictures. Then Samantha and her mother were taken to the Piskarevskoye cemetery, a burial place for 470,000 of Leningrad's war dead.

Funeral music intoned from loud speakers as Samantha walked the quarter mile past mass grass-covered graves marked only with a hammer and sickle and star and the year of the person's death. She placed a wreath at the head of the giant memorial.

Afterward, Samantha briefly toured an exhibition at the site entitled "900 days of the battle of Leningrad."

The photo exhibit showed how the inhabitants of Leningrad suffered famine and cold during the siege of their city by Adolf Hitler's German troops.

Guide Galina Sevayava dwelt on the fate of an 11-year-old girl named Tanya Savicheva who died during the siege and whose portrait is displayed in the exhibit together with tributes from Soviet children.

"It is here that you realize that it is very necessary to remain vigilant against another war," the guide told Samantha, who came to the Soviet Union after she wrote to its leader, Yuri V. Andropov, about her fear of nuclear war.

From the memorial, Samantha went to the Smolny Institute, Vladimir I. Lenin's headquarters during the 1917 revolution that swept the Communists to power.

Reporters were not allowed inside the building, an elegant 18th century structure characteristic of central Leningrad and the captain, Yuri Fyodorov.

In return, Fyodorov received a cloth pennant in the shape of a red lobster with the word "Maine" written in green letters. She also placed a pennant on the shirt of a Soviet militiaman, who abandoned his stern expression and smiled thanks.

Men hunt for hats, shirts, to copy Hayes

WELLSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Eight local men have been hunting for battered felt hats, plaid shirts and suspenders so they can emulate Gabby Hayes, the actor who immortalized such lines as "Yer durn tootin'" while a sidekick to cowboy stars.

Hayes — also known for the line "Yeah, too quiet, Roy" — still has some nephews and cousins nearby, but none of them entered the contest. Hayes died in 1969 at age 83.

Elderly El Paso man flies flags daily without fail

EL PASO (AP) — Rush Riddle Preston, born in 1894, has an unusual vocation: religiously, he flies the American flag each day without fail. He says there's not much else patriotically that he can do.

"Every day my alarm goes off about 6:15. I watch television game shows. I'm supposed to be on a bland diet," said Preston, a retired train engineer. "I raise and lower the flag in my front yard. There's not much else I can do."

Preston, an El Paso resident since 1929, said the flag reminds him of World War I.

"I was on the USS Saffank, a mine-planter. We planted mines from Scotland to Norway across the North Sea to slow up the German subs. We got them bottled up so they couldn't destroy our ships," he said.

Preston likes West Texas, even though he plans to move soon to Colorado to be closer to his daughter. "I like El Paso. It's changed, my yes. This was all sand hills and a sand pit." El Paso, the nation's 28th largest city, has 480,000 residents.

Preston, who has a motorized three wheeled walker, also has seen medical change.

"In the old days, we didn't have so much of this sexual business that goes on," he said.

Politics, too, have changed with the times, he said.

"I'm a Republican now. I wish they'd give Reagan a chance. He'd do us so much good. In the old days I guess I was a Democrat. There wasn't any other ticket in El Paso," Preston said.

Preston's second wife died in May, so he's selling the house and most of his possessions so he can move to Brighton, Colo., "to a sort of old-folks apartment, where my daughter lives. I get meals a day, maid service. That's about the best proposition I've heard."

Preston, a locomotive engineer on the Texas and Pacific Railroad for 37 years, retired in 1964. "My run was 194 miles (east) to Toyah and back, 24 hours. "I was with Santa Fe (railway) before that. Started in as a yard clerk in Roswell (N.M.), $45 a month, worked 13 hours a day, every day in the month.

Preston, interviewed by the El Paso Times, also asked that his picture be taken of him in the walker beneath the large American flag that towers over his home.

GLAUCOMA SCREENING — Dr. J.R. Fish and Dr. J.H. Fish check Silvia Cisneros for glaucoma using a tonometer device. Glaucoma is a condition of the eye in which the pressure within the eyeball is higher than normal. A free glaucoma screening and many other health-type screenings will be held at the Big Spring Health Fair July 23 at Big Spring Mall.

Health Fair beat

Screening checks for glaucoma

A free screening for glaucoma will be conducted by local ophthalmologists using the tonometer device at the Big Spring Health and Safety Fair at the Big Spring Mall, July 23.

Glaucoma is an eye condition in which pressure within the eyeball is higher than normal. It is associated with progressive visual field loss and may require surgery. If glaucoma is allowed to progress uncorrected, the problem may damage the optic nerve and lead to eventual blindness.

Statistically, one million Americans have undiagnosed glaucoma, and the disease causes blindness in one out of ten persons. Those aged 35 or over, and persons with a family history of glaucoma, are more susceptible to this condition than others.

As our population grows older, more families are faced with the problems of caring for aging parents. Often adult children do not know how to cope with the changing physical and mental needs of their parents and may not be sure about what they can or should do to help.

Information will be offered at an exhibit sponsored by Malone-Hogan Hospital. The "As Parents Grow Older" exhibit is designed to provide information for relatives of the aging. Films will be shown on sensory changes that occur during the aging process and on improving communications with aging parents.

Complete physical examinations in persons over 40 years of age should include measurement of eye pressure. Discovery of glaucoma before it is in an advanced stage is important. Fair visitors will be given a screening card on which they can record the findings of each screening offered at the Fair.

Dear Abby

Husband won't let wife belly up to the barre

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for a year to a good, loving man who treats me like a queen. He has a few faults, but nothing serious. He goes out once a week with the boys, comes home drunk and falls into bed. He has never hit me or even called me names.

I always loved to dance, and if I say so myself, I was very good. Before we were married I used to do "belly-grams." When someone had a birthday, I'd go out and do a belly dance. It wasn't vulgar or anything. It was all in fun. I got paid, but I did it mostly for fun.

All of a sudden I was asked to teach a course in belly dancing at the "Y." I really want to but my husband thinks belly dancing is a hootchy-kootchy striptease dance, but it's not. It's really an art.

I'm 29 and my husband is 32, and we have no children yet. I really want to teach this class and have some outlet besides cooking, cleaning and doing the laundry. Do you think I'm wrong?

LOVES TO DANCE

DEAR LOVES: Absolutely not! Teach your husband how to belly dance, too. If he has the stomach for it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my early 20s. My husband is in his early 30s. My problem is our sex life. We've been married for three years and our sex life has been pretty bad for most of it. There is no romance in our lovemaking whatsoever. It lasts maybe three minutes, then I'm left frustrated. I've talked to my husband until I'm blue

Dr. Donohue

Medical terms are Greek

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please send me information on myocardial ischemia. I am 66 and feel well, and I first learned I had that condition six years ago when I had to have routine tests for surgery. The surgery was done anyway and I came out of it OK. I was really stunned to learn of this condition. It was not explained to me.

Then last year I had to have surgery on my hand. An EKG showed an abnormality and I had to go home until it could be compared with the EKG taken six years earlier. It showed no change, so the surgery took place. But just recently I had another EKG taken and it showed the abnormality progressing slightly. Now I am concerned and I need to have my mind put to rest about this situation. — Mrs. F.R.

Medical terms, often originating from Greek or Latin, have a way of confusing what might be easily understood in simple English words. Ischemia is an example, a combination of two Greek words, "ischein" (for suppression, or blockage) and "haima" (for blood). Myocardial is, of course, the combination of two other Greek words for muscle (myo) and heart (cardia). It would be simpler to say that you have a blockage of blood to your heart muscle, which is really what it all means.

You don't mention having any pain from this. That would have prompted use of another term, angina pectoris. And usually, when blood is blocked from nourishing the heart muscle, such pain does result. But it doesn't always. However, ischemia may be suggested by a certain abnormality, as shown in an EKG. Usually, as the blockage progresses, the person will eventually begin showing signs. Chest pain develops.

Now that your recent EKG shows a worsening of your ischemia, my advice to you is to talk it over with your doctor. If the change is minor you may have to do no more than alter your lifestyle to maintain the status quo. Having this warning should also alert you to the need for taking other steps, like reducing your blood cholesterol through diet and keeping a watch over your blood pressure. If the recent EKG change is significant, then perhaps you'll need medicine or even surgery to control or correct your ischemia.

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How To Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

in the face, but it hasn't helped. I've been to a marriage counselor. (He won't go.) I've even threatened to leave him. Nothing works. He says he loves me, but sex is not a very important part of marriage. I think it is.

The rest of our marriage is pretty good, but I'm falling out of love with him awfully fast. What should I do?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Try to persuade him in a loving, non-judgmental way to get therapy. Almost every university medical school offers sex therapy, which could be enormously helpful to your husband. If he really loves you, he'll agree. If he refuses, you can either settle for a sexually frustrating but otherwise "pretty good" marriage, or make good your threat to leave him. Only you can make that choice.

DEAR ABBY: About the question of calling first or just dropping in: Nothing annoys a woman as much as having her friends drop in to find her house looking the way it usually does.

HONOLULU (AP) — Oahu. The image is of verdant valleys rimmed by golden, sun-filled coastlines and the bright lights of Waikiki.

But another vision is approaching, and it is composed of mountains of decaying newspapers, junked cars and beer cans. Here in the Western Pacific, the leftovers of the party are approaching the edges of the good life.

"Our problem is land," said Frank Doyle, refuse director for the city and county of Honolulu, which encompasses the entire island.

Because most of Oahu's potable water is located in the island's higher elevations, disposal sites such as landfills can only be located in lower areas near the ocean where they can't contaminate water supplies.

"If we don't reduce the volume of garbage we are putting out, we may be faced with dumps placed right next to residential areas," said Honolulu Public Works Director Michael Chun. "And if you have to put a landfill right next to a residential area, you're looking for trouble."

Hazardous waste, generated largely by the Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard, is transported by ship to the U.S. mainland for disposal. Hawaii has no sites for disposal of hazardous materials.

The island presently has three county-run landfills, which are to be closed in mid to late 1984. The city and county of Honolulu are negotiating for four more sites.

"When they fill up, we'll have to search for four more sites, then four more, then four more," Chun said.

Chun said a proposed trash-to-energy plant is being discussed. If it is built, he said it could reduce the volume of waste on the island by 90 percent while generating electricity, he said.

The project is still in the planning process and faces months — maybe years — of hearings and approvals, Chun said.

Honolulu Mayor Eileen Anderson has questioned whether the proposed project will be able to meet federal clean air standards. And a skeptical public needs to be convinced the project is worth it, contractors and other non-residential users of the municipal disposal facilities. The city also collects about $250,000 yearly in fees from small businesses.

About 40 percent of the county's refuse is collected by private refuse haulers. At present, there are about 20 licensed haulers in Honolulu.

Another big headache for the island is junked cars. "It's almost an insoluble problem," said Honolulu Finance Director Peter Leong. About 470,000 cars are registered on Oahu, slightly more than one car for every two people, Leong said. Close to 20,000 cars are discarded each year on the island.

"The market was taking care of the problem for a long time," said Leong. "But that's not so anymore."

A steel company on Oahu was buying the cars and melting them for scrap. That was when Oahu had a building boom, which has slowed — and the demand has decreased. One proposal has been to tow the cars to sea and dump them to create artificial reefs. That is an expensive solution at $20,000 a bargeload, said Leong.

Another suggestion has been for the city of Honolulu to go into the scrap metal business, paid for at least in part by taxes levied on automobiles.

"If there is any way private industry can take care of the problem, we would prefer it that way," Leong said.

'If we don't reduce the volume of garbage we are putting out, we may be faced with dumps placed right next to residential areas. And if you have to put a landfill right next to a residential area, you're looking for trouble.'

Oahu's population has grown quickly over the last two decades, from 632,772 in 1960 to 964,691 twenty years later. And that has created more garbage, enough to cover one football field 12 feet deep each day, said Doyle.

During the fiscal year 1982-83, that meant 700,000 tons of garbage, he said, up from 550,000 tons of material in 1975-76.

About 70 percent of the waste on the island, where more than two-thirds of the state's residents live, is from households. Doyle says commercial and retail operations put out about 25 percent. The remainder comes from industrial sources.

Oahu's 592 square-mile land area is slightly more than half the size of Rhode Island, while its population density of 1,379 people per square mile is close to one and a half times New Jersey's.

The city and county of Honolulu pays approximately $16 million annually for its refuse collection and disposal efforts, said Doyle. The military spends about $2.3 million to collect its refuse.

Military and residential wastes are mixed together, said Doyle. The city and county realizes about $2 million yearly in disposal fees from private haulers,

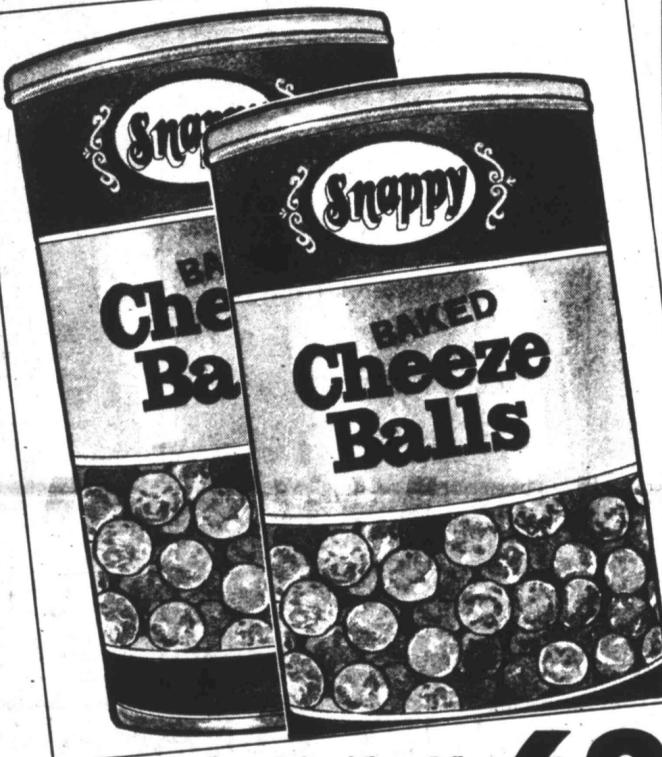

3 ceremonies hard to plan

MARION, Ind. (AP) — If planning one marriage seems complicated, how about organizing three weddings involving brides living in three states?

"Our phone bills have increased," said Beatrice Ankenbruck, who has two daughters planning a double wedding on Aug. 20 and a third daughter with an Oct. 15 date at the altar.

Plans call for Ankenbruck to walk down the aisle next month with a daughter on each arm.

Controversy begun 80 years ago over salt still raging

CHICAGO (AP) — Most people probably don't risk getting high blood pressure from salt, even if they eat a lot of it, Yale University doctors say. But new research from the Netherlands says just the opposite.

High blood pressure has been shown to greatly increase a person's risk of heart attack, stroke and kidney damage. The controversy over whether the sodium in salt might boost blood pressure began at least 80 years ago, and it still has not been resolved.

Doctors at the Yale University School of Medicine in New Haven, Conn., say they believe about one-fifth of the population may be prone to high blood pressure and especially sensitive to salt intake.

But the blood pressure of everyone else may be largely unaffected by the amount of dietary salt, the doctors say.

The Yale researchers surveyed more than 4,600 adults in Connecticut and excluded all those previously diagnosed as hypertensive — 22 percent of the group — because most already had lowered salt intake in an effort to control their blood pressure. Among the remaining 3,500 people, those who ate the largest amounts of salt daily did not have significantly higher blood pressure than those who consumed very small amounts, the Yale doctors said.

The findings held true even among highly overweight people, the doctors reported in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Meanwhile, doctors at Erasmus University Medical School in Rotterdam, Netherlands, reported in the same issue that among 486 newborns studied during the first six months of life, there was a direct relationship between increased amounts of dietary salt and increased blood pressure.

About half the infants received a normal-sodium diet, while the others were given a low-sodium diet.

"The main finding in this study is that sodium intake is associated with systolic (peak) blood pressure early in life," the doctors said. "The difference between the two study groups, albeit small, increased with months of life, thereby suggesting a dose-response relation."

In an editorial accompanying the Yale study, Dr. Belding H. Scribner of the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle wrote: "The current national trend to raise danger signals about the amount of salt we eat is, in my view, a mistake, since it is unnecessary and can cause guilt feelings among the 70 percent to 80 percent of us who do not have to worry about salt intake."

He said a more realistic approach would be to try to identify salt-sensitive people who will develop high blood pressure unless they limit their intake.

Stadler clings to early lead

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Craig Stadler shot a one-under-par 70 and managed to hold off Lee Trevino's challenge today early in the second round of the 112th British Open Golf Championship.

Stadler, three shots clear of the field after the first round, finished two trips over the 6,968 yard Royal Birkdale Golf Club links in 134, eight shots under par.

Trevino, who got most of his birdies before the freshening wind began to blow over the dunes and sandhills along England's northwest coast, came in with a 5-under-par 66 and reached the halfway point of the tournament at 135, a single stroke off the early pace.

British Open

"I played the first nine with no wind at all. It started to kick up on the back and was blowing pretty good when I finished, so it's going to be harder to shoot a good number this afternoon," said Trevino, one of the first men off the tee.

"Maybe I got a break there." And he took full advantage of it. He chipped in once for birdie and played the front in 30, four under par on the course that presents an unusual par of 34-37.

"I'm putting as well as I have at any time in my whole life," Trevino said. "I guess that's the secret. I'm driving well, hitting the wedge good and I'm putting."

"Over the last two or three years, that's been my problem, putting. About three weeks ago it came around again. All of a sudden I've got great confidence in my putting. I just know I'm gonna make it."

AMERICAN CRAIG STADLER ...holds lead after second round

Well over half the international field of 154 still were out — or awaiting their late starting times — when Trevino and Stadler finished play.

Among them were Tom Watson and Bill Rogers, who shared second place after shooting 67s in Thursday's opening aton.

Among the early finishers, Terry Gale of Australia held third place at 138 after a 66 in the mild, hazy weather.

Some others with late starting times, and their first round scores, were:

Hubert Green 69, Nick Faldo 68, Larry Nelson 70, Seve Ballesteros 71, Tom Kite 71, Arnold Palmer 72, Hale Irwin 69, Sam Torrance 68, Andy Bean 70, Ray Floyd 72.

Hal Sutton, the leading money-winner on the American Tour this year, matched par 71 in the second round and was tied at 139 with Bernard Langer of West Germany and Denis Durnian, an English club pro. Langer shot a 72 and Durnian had a 66 that included a record 28 on the front side.

Mike Ferguson of Australia, among the leaders after the first round, slipped to a 76 and was at 144.

Jack Nicklaus, who had an opening 71, made double bogey on the sixth hole today and was two over par for the tournament after 12 holes of play in the second round.

Trevino, 43, troubled by back ailments most of last season, broke a 2-year victory drought last week with a triumph in the Canadian PGA.

"I said on Tuesday that somebody would play — but I sure didn't know it was going to be me."

"I think I still have a major championship left in me," said Trevino, who acquired the last of his five majors in the 1974 PGA. He also owns two British Open crowns — the first won on this course in 1971 — and two U.S. Opens.

"I think that if I win another major, it's going to have to be here, because here you have to play a bump and run, and I can do that. In the States, you have to hit the high shot over water and bunkers and things and that's harder for me to do."

Trevino birdied the second hole from 15 feet, then ran off three in a row beginning with a 35-foot putt on the fifth. He chipped in from about 70 feet on the sixth and scored from 25 feet on the seventh.

He made another long putt, about 40 feet, for birdie on the 10th, but missed the green and bogeyed the 11th. He got it to seven under par for the tournament with a little chip to three feet for birdie-4 on the 17th.

Stadler, admittedly troubled by the wind, matched three birdies with as many bogeys over the first 16 holes, was tied for the lead at that point, and then chipped to four feet for a birdie on the 17th.

Big inning carries Coahoma

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

The old saying goes "one bad apple doesn't spoil the whole bunch." But in baseball, one bad inning can spoil the whole game.

Just ask International pitcher Tyrone Foster.

Coahoma exploded for five runs in the third inning, scoring three times after two outs were recorded, and downed their Big Spring rivals 5-2 in District III tournament action Thursday night.

In the second game, Eastern choked off a Mid-City rally in the bottom of the sixth inning to win a battle of Midland teams 3-2.

Two elimination games are on schedule tonight, weather permitting. At the American ballpark, Big Spring National fights for survival against Odessa West; at National, Texas League of Big Spring squares off against Midland Tower. Both games are slated for 8 p.m. Radio station KBST will broadcast the National-Odessa game beginning at 7:50 p.m.

In the end, Foster was the losing pitcher although for five innings he handcuffed Coahoma. Excluding the third inning, the International right-hander gave up just two hits — one of those an infield pop-up that dropped in for a hit — and allowed just four baserunners.

But the third inning decided the game. Down 1-0, Coahoma began its rally when Greg Moore walked. One out later, Rudy Hernandez ripped a hot shot to third baseman Eric Meldahl who made a great stop only to throw off-target to second baseman Michael Hilario. Mistake 1, all runners safe.

In all due credit to Foster, the inning should have been over. Instead Curtis Hudson whacked a two-run single one after the second out had been made and Darrel Hunt doubled to the left-field fence to make it 5-1.

Little League

When Foster finally got the third out, Hunt getting caught in a rundown between third and home, the fatal damage had been done.

International scored in the second inning when Robert Evans, 3-for-3 on the night, doubled and scored on two consecutive wild pitches by Cervantes.

After that, Coahoma kept International in check with another night of sparkling defense. Hudson, the shortstop, snagged a sinking line drive by Ben Torres in the fourth to save two runs from scoring and Jeter, playing first, robbed Clay Atkinson of a hit and doubled up baserunner Hilario for a fifth inning doubleplay.

International's last chance came in the sixth. With one out, Nick Gauer and Evans singled and Arturo Trevino walked to load the bases. Gauer raced home on a wild pitch to make it 5-2 and International sent the tying run to the plate.

Cervantes, who had struck out just three batters to this point, fanned both Torres and pinch-hitter Scott Oliver to end the game.

Things were just as exciting at National as Eastern won its second straight one-run game.

Down 3-0, Andy Aleman and Kris Doan reached on errors and Steve Criswell loaded the bags on a catcher's interference call. Brassard singled in two runs but Criswell was out trying to advance to third.

Taylor Bradley fled out for the second out and Vince Henderson, running for Brassard, was caught in a rundown between third and home for the final out of the game.

Eastern had only one hit in the game compared to six for Mid-City.

Eastern and Coahoma meet in a winner's bracket semifinal game next Tuesday. International play defending champion Lamesa while Midland Western and Mid-City battle in elimination games Saturday night.

No-name Byrum tops 'other' tourney

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — One of the top contenders in the Quad Cities Open says low scores similar to those of opening day are on tap again if the weather doesn't change.

Payne Stewart, defending champion of the $200,000 Professional Golfers Association tournament, shot a 5-under-par 65 for a six-way tie for second place in action Thursday. Curt Byrum shot a 63 to take a two-shot edge.

An ailing back that almost forced

Stewart to withdraw from play, didn't keep the Springfield, Mo., golfer from saying his goal for the week was to shoot for "20 under par" in the 72-hole tournament.

Quad Cities

Stewart played in a threesome with 1979 winner D.A. Weibring and Danny Edwards. Weibring, suffering from a wrist injury, carded a 65 and Edwards had a 66 along with seven other golfers.

Also on Byrum's heels over the 6,500-yard, par-70 Oakwood Country Club course were Allen Miller, Greg Powers, Pat Lindsey and Dennis Hepler, each with 65. Also shooting 66 were Bob Boyd, John McComish, Bob Eastwood, Roger Maltbie, George Cadle, Russ Cochran and Ron Streck.

World champs open practice

By The Associated Press
The Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins opened their training camp with eight veterans joining 51 rookies at Carlisle, Pa.

The only regulars to report Thursday were safety Greg Williams and punter Jeff Hayes. Also on hand were reserve quarterback Bob Holly, tight end Mike Williams and linebacker Stuart Anderson, both of whom were on the disabled list for much of last year's strike-shortened season.

Safety Ken Coffey (formerly of Big Spring), receiver Kris Crispy and running back Reggie Evans — all of whom missed the Skins' National Football League championship season — also reported.

Washington signed free agents Stan Holloway, a linebacker from California, guard Norm Hopely of West Chester State and defensive tackle Bruce Radford of Grambling.

The Los Angeles Rams signed Chuck Nelson, the most accurate placekicker in NCAA history, to a series of one-year pacts. Nelson, a fourth-round draft pick from the University of Washington, made 81.9 percent of his field goal tries (59 of 72) and set an NCAA record by kicking 30 consecutive field goals.

NFL Camps

The Rams also traded tackle Doug France to Houston. France had retired last summer after a series of injuries.

The Atlanta Falcons reached agreement on a contract with Mike Pitts, their first-round pick. Pitts, a defensive end from Alabama, will report to the Falcons camp a day late.

Miami Dolphins quarterback David Woodley withdrew from a 12-minute run after doubling over in pain from cramps in his ribs. But Woodley returned for a 1½-hour practice.

"That was the worst thing that ever happened to me," he said. "I just couldn't get any air."

Bryan Caldwell, the Dallas Cowboys' third-round pick, returned from Thousand Oaks, Calif., to Dallas to have his injured left knee examined. Caldwell, a defensive lineman from Arizona State, suffered sprained — and possibly torn — knee ligaments.

Muhammad flunks today's weigh-in WASHINGTON (AP) — Eddie Mustafa Muhammad failed to make the 175-pound limit today, making it unlikely that his fight with Michael Spinks tonight will be sanctioned as a title fight.

Muhammad weighed in at 177½ pounds this morning, 2¼ pounds over the 175-pound limit, and was given two hours to drop the weight. If he couldn't, the fight will not be for the light heavyweight title.

Spinks weighed in at 175.

Muhammad, the former champion, lost his title to Spinks two years ago.

Spinks won the World Boxing Association version of the championship with a 15-round unanimous decision over Muhammad in 1981. He unified the title in March beating World Boxing Council champion Dwight Braxton in 175 rounds.

Battling a constant weight problem, Muhammad has spent the last three months trying to work his way down to the 175-pound weight limit.

"Three months ago Eddie weighed 195 pounds. We have kept him on a diet of fresh vegetables, salad and raw fish," Wali Muhammad said.

The 15-round bout, the first championship fight here since Joe Louis stopped Buddy Baer in 1941, will be telecast live by Home Box Office. It has not moved well at the box office.

Promoter Butch Lewis said only 4,000 tickets, less than half the capacity, had been sold by Thursday.

Rangers whip NY

NEW YORK (AP) When Charlie Hough's knuckleball is moving, the Texas Ranger righthander is nearly unhittable. The New York Yankees learned that lesson for the fifth time.

Throwing his knuckler at two different speeds and from varying positions, Hough raised his record to 5-0 against New York with a five-hit 11-2 victory Thursday night.

"It seems like I always have my good stuff against them," said the 35-year-old righthander, who was Texas' ace starter in 1982.

Hough, 8-7, walked three and struck out seven in completing his fifth game of 18 starts this season.

In his last nine starts, Hough, who underwent knee surgery in the spring, has given up just 16 earned runs in 77 2-3 innings.

After retiring New York in order in the first inning, Hough, with a 1-0 lead, pitched himself into trouble by walking Oscar Gamble and Butch Wynegar to start the second. One out later, Don Mattingly blooped a two-run double to center, putting New York ahead 2-1.

Hough retired 16 consecutive batters before Steve Kemp's two-out infield single in the seventh.

Larry Parrish powered the Rangers' attack by smashing two homers that travelled a total of almost 870 feet. After singling and scoring in the second, Parrish capped a four-run third with his 14th homer of the season, a two-run blast that landed over the Texas bullpen fence in deep leftfield at Yankee Stadium. He singled and scored again in the eighth and homered into the upper deck in left in the ninth.

Niekro zips Expos

HOUSTON (AP) — The fortunes of the Houston Astros have changed indeed since the Montreal Expos last visited April 15.

But the results are still the same. The Astros capped a sweep of the Expos with a 3-0 triumph in the Astrodome Thursday night.

When the Expos made their first trip to Houston this year, the Astros had lost nine straight games, one of the worst starts in major league history.

Houston won two of three games there to start on the long comeback trail.

The Expos entered this series leading the National League East, but three straight Houston victories have relegated Montreal to second place.

The Astros have won eight of the last nine and 23 of the last 34 to raise their record to 45-41. Montreal has lost 11 of the last 14.

Puhl rapped two doubles and Niekro, 7-7, allowed three singles, struck out three and walked none en route to his first shutout and complete game this season. The Astro knuckleball specialist faced only 29 hitters, retiring the last 14 batters.

Niekro and loser Steve Rogers, 12-4, dueled for three innings before Chris Speier's single broke the double no-hitter in the fourth.

Rogers lost both his no-hitter and his shutout in the bottom of the inning when Omar Moreno tripled and Terry Puhl doubled.

Phil Garner drove in Puhl from third base with a groundout, just as he did two innings later after a Puhl double.

Talk about when it rains it pours... seems like everyone is having troubles, we've had a few lately too... not only have we not had rain on some places, but the cottonseed hasn't even sprouted on about 500 acres, the hot water heater went out, the thermostat quit on the air conditioner, the fuel pump went out on the car, our three-wheeler got stolen, my new tire blew out, the transmission in the pickup went on the fritz, and the oven door fell off!

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEA INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 16, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are anxious to get a person to go along with you in some project that you have but you would be wasting your time, unless you can see this individual early in the morning.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not a good day to try to convince a partner to agree to some plan you have in mind, since he is too busy to listen to you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get busy at your work and don't try to delegate it to others or there will be resentment on their part. Be more efficient.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have fine practical ideas that should be put in motion early in the day and then tonight you can analyze the results.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do something thoughtful for those who dwell with you and have more harmony at home.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day for self-analysis and figuring out better ways of operating in the future so that you can become more successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to study your home and make any repairs that are needed and get utilities working nicely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A little extra touch of efficiency and art to whatever you expend your efforts can bring you greater returns.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to ferret out the truth about whatever has been confusing to you in the past and get right answers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be very outgoing today since others are most receptive and you can discuss mutual undertakings with others very well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get into those civic tasks you like and also get your shopping done early. The evening is best spent alone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Some new project has you fascinated so delve into it further and get fine results. Make new acquaintances with worth.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your hunches are reliable during the day but tonight use only your mature judgment. Avoid conflicts with a loved one.

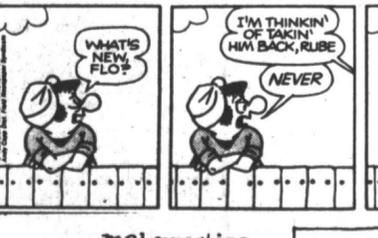

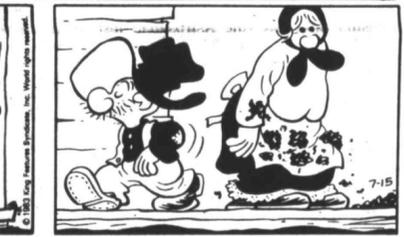

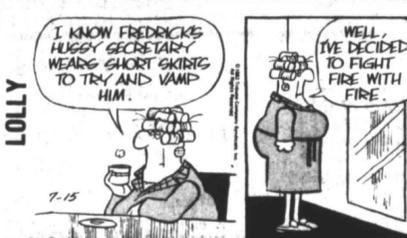

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will get along famously with almost everyone he, or she comes in contact. Give as fine an education as possible since there is a wonderful mind here and your progeny will do very well in any technological profession.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Minister interested in people

By RHONDA WITT
Church Editor

Senior citizens and children have a special place in the life of the Rev. Keith Gibbons, pastor of Christian Church of Big Spring.

Before coming to Big Spring, Gibbons worked with a senior citizens program and attended courses concerned with the needs of the elderly. "They are still productive and have a lot to offer if we just tap their resources," Gibbons said. "We have a lot to learn from them."

Gibbons' interest in children has evolved from his work with the Rainbow Project and child abuse. But these interests are only a part of what Gibbons is as a minister, human, husband and friend.

Gibbons has goals for himself and his church, which include continuing his education, expanding and building on the church, and enlarging the church's membership. The most important goal is spiritual growth, Gibbons said.

Gibbons' church has goals set for five years in advance. The members have an attendance goal of 50 people they plan to meet by Christmas. In addition, they want to increase attendance by 25 each year.

There may be some obstacles "if I get impatient and try to do things on my own rather than letting God do things," he said. "God knows what is best for us."

To be a minister, "you've got to love the Lord first of all, and love

THE REV. KEITH GIBBONS
...pastor of Christian Church

his people, and be totally committed in working for him in every way possible," he said.

Being a minister was what Gibbons wanted to do after high school. In college, he thought about his future and believed God wanted him to be in the ministry, he said.

Gibbons' grandmother also was an influence to him. "She made a point in taking my brothers and me to church," he said. "My parents also had an active part."

The ministry gives Gibbons the opportunity to meet people, to teach God's word, and to see people growing together spiritually.

"I feel like the past three or four years, God has been preparing us for this (church). It just seems like it has been leading us here to this congregation and town," Gibbons said. "I don't know why or how but God has a plan and it was included in his plan for us to come here."

"I really like Big Spring and the people," he said. "I like the church I'm serving. We have some fantastic people here, and as long as we keep God first, things are going to happen."

The Christian Church is Gibbons' first full-time congregation. He has been at the non-denominational church for 1 year. Previously, he worked part-time at a church in Cedarcrest, N.M.

Gibbons was born in Clovis, N.M. He was active in music, during high school and college. In college, he met his wife, Sharna.

He earned his bachelors degree from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, N.M., and has worked on his masters. His future plans include finishing his master's degree and earning a doctorate.

Gibbons spends most of his time doing church work. When he has sparetime he enjoys reading and spending time with his wife. He also enjoys working with the community when he can.

Students attend workshop

Chris Williams and Lisa Salazar of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church recently attend a music workshop in Belleville, Ill. with 30 other youths representing 21 cities and 11 states.

The workshop, entitled Youth Sing Praise, was under the joint sponsorship of the National Association of Pastoral Musicians and the Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows in Belleville, Ill.

The purpose of the week's workshop was to give talented musicians, singers and dancers from around the nation a special experience. The workshop was directed toward the presentation of a new youth musical, "Growing", which was commissioned by the Shrine.

"Growing" was written by Kathleen Bosworth, Mike Buckley, Nanette Currie, Robin Gordon, Paul Maley, Brian Payne, Gordon Preston, Tim Robbins, John Sparks, and Gary Gardner. Direction and original music was done by Dr. Gary Gardner, professor of Fine Arts at UCLA.

The musical was filmed and is presently being prepared for a television documentary to be released in October. Plans also are being made for the performance pilgrimage of Youth Sing Praise members to Mexico City, Mexico in early December.

Church has festival

The St. Thomas Annual Summer Festival will be held at the church, 605 N. Main, today and Saturday.

Sermon given on rock music

Hillcrest Baptist Church will present the sermon, "Turn That Stereo Down!", at 8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. services, Sunday. The church is located at 2000 FM 700.

The sermon will explore rock-n-roll music and its influence on youth.

Activities began before noon today with tamales being served all day. Booths and other activities will open at 6 p.m.

On Saturday, St. Thomas' Mexican dinner will be served from 11:30 a.m. until they are gone. Booths and other activities will open at 6 p.m.

Booths include darts, fish pond, dime pitch, bingo, baseball throw, cake walk, and sponge throw. Food booths also will be available.

Youths receive honors

Three students from St. Mary's Episcopal Church have been accepted for membership in the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

The students awarded membership are George Ben Bancroft, Mary McCutcheon and Ernest Crawford. The society, founded in 1968, has honored some of the most outstanding high school students in the nation.

To qualify for society membership, a nominee must excel in academics, extracurricular, or civic activities and be nominated by a local sponsor. Once accepted, members become eligible to compete for college scholarships through the Society's National Awards Program. This year, 118 colleges and universities have scholarship funds for society members.

The Society also presented a National Appreciation Award to the Rev. Robert Bonnington, pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal Church and the students' sponsor. This award was made "in acknowledgement of untiring efforts and steadfast dedication on behalf of the students from St. Mary's Church."

To preserve the honor, these members' names and their biographical accomplishments will be listed in the Society's 1983 Membership Registry.

Youths have meeting

June Wiggins and Greg Jaklewicz were guests of the youth group of Immaculate Heart of Mary during its meeting, Sunday.

Ms. Wiggins spoke about the St. Vincent de Paul Society, and asked the group to help raise money for winter expenses. The society is a catholic organization that helps welfare cases for anyone.

Projects to planned to raise money for the society. A car wash was planned to be the first project. A Back to School Fashion Show in August also was discussed. The youth group volunteered to help build scenery and participate as models. The group will begin making letters and the schoolhouse for the scenery, July 17.

Jaklewicz announced he wanted to become part of the group and help sponsor the group as an adult leader.

The group will be travelling to Water Wonderland, Monday. Jaklewicz and Barry McLean will accompany the group as sponsors. Plans also were made to visit the Rev. Bernard Gully in Sonora in the future.

The youth group is for anyone in the 8th grade and above. They meet each Sunday evening in the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church Chapel at 6 p.m.

Program given at club

Hettie Minix, unit president, presented the program, "We Need Each Other," during a meeting of the Women of First Church of God at the church, July 5.

The program was written by the Rev. Lois Saltsman of Toledo, Ohio. It stresses the two objectives: to help women realize the value of true friendship with other women and to recognize the importance of women supporting one another and encouraging each other.

Mrs. Minix spoke on the reality of human loneliness, even when surrounded by other people. Virginia Chappell discussed the difference of other women, even of the same faith.

Vera Blackburn spoke on the "Sense of Touch", which emphasize women needing to express appreciation and supportive attitude toward other women.

The next meeting will be a Prayer Retreat led by Jean McCray, the spiritual life chairman, August 8.

Cost of transplant could cause attack

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A heart transplant patient said the bill for his operation "was enough to give me a heart attack" when he and some other transplant patients went to the University of Minnesota Hospitals for their regular checkups.

The patients joked about the cost Thursday after Dr. R. Morton Bolman told them the university now requires that patients produce $100,000 in up-front money.

"My bill was enough to give me a heart attack," said Ted Nowakowski, 34, an art teacher and football coach at Murray, Iowa, 60 miles southwest of Des Moines. He has insurance coverage.

"Mine passed $100,000 when I last looked," said Phil Little, 51, of Waco, Texas, who works for an insurance company.

Tom Rose, 29, a cereal chemist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Superior, Wis., said his insurance was fine, he has new vigor and, "I got an autographed picture from Ronald Reagan — it's kind of nice knowing your boss is interested."

Nasty tempered snake slithers away from home

SAYLORVILLE, Iowa (AP) — Victor, a 6-foot python with a "nasty temper," apparently is slithering around this community north of Des Moines after a recent escape.

His owner, Craig Welborn, 23, reported Thursday that someone left the cover off the hole in Victor's cage. The snake made the most of his opportunity, crawling to an open window and plopping to the ground outside. He hasn't been seen since.

"He has a nasty temper," Welborn said of Victor. "He bites. I was never able to get him hand-trained."

The most Victor could do to humans would be scare them to death, since pythons are non-venomous constrictors. And at 6 feet, Victor's squeezing ability poses a threat only to creatures about groundhog size and smaller.

"I got a good deal on him
