Salaries discussed at meeting

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

After meeting behind closed doors for an hour yesterday, Howard County commissioners acted — once more — on the county judge's secretary receiving fee payments for handling state hospital commitment papers.

This marks the fourth time this year the fee payment has come before the commissioners.

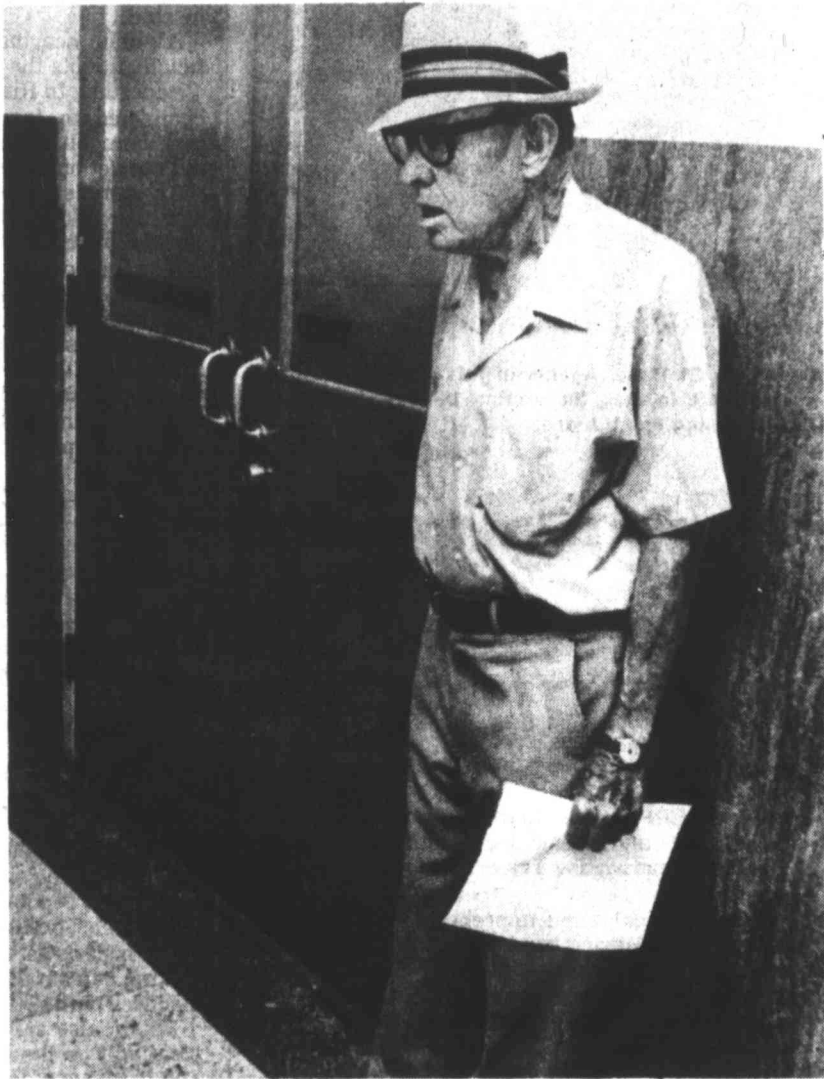

Commissioners created a new job of mental health coordinator at a salary of $250 a month. The county judge/commissioners secretary — Vanessa Cooper — will receive that salary plus her regular salary of $13,380.

Commissioner Bill Crooker pointed out she would be the highest paid non-elected courthouse employee — with the exception of County Engineer Bill Mims and Head Librarian Judith Gray.

In addition to Mims and Mrs. Gray, three other appointed officials — all department heads — do draw more salary.

However, Miss Cooper's salary for both positions of $16,380 tops the highest deputy supervisor's pay scale of $15,000.

Fees formerly paid to Miss Cooper would go into the general See COMMISSIONERS, page 2A

Commissioners hear queries about West

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners were questioned about recent actions by Justice of the Peace Bobby West by four citizens yesterday including the secretary he fired July 12 and the county's Democratic Party chairman.

Mary Sanchez, an admitted friend of former county secretary Linda Arsiaga, asked commissioners why they were paying West's salary if he was not doing his job. She said she knew because she had visited Mrs. Arsiaga several times at the courthouse.

"I saw a lot of people come in," Ms. Sanchez said. "She tried to cover up for him."

Commissioner Bill Crooker told her the commissioners by law cannot lower an elected official's salary.

"You mean if an elected official is not doing his job, you can't do nothing?" Ms. Sanchez said.

Democratic Party chairman "Slick" Boatler asked if the commissioners could not file a complaint with the district judge. Boatler said the district judge has the authority to "do something about it."

According to Vernon's Civil Statutes, the district judge can remove a peace justice from office for incompetency, official misconduct or becoming intoxicated whether on duty or not. The 118th District Judge is James Gregg. Boatler pointed out West's precinct one, place one office costs about $35,000 in salaries.

"Are we getting service from that office?" Boatler said. "I think if we don't need that office, do away with it."

Ms. Sanchez said the situation was not fair to the other peace justices. She asked for the public to be aware of West's duties. Ms. Sanchez also expressed disappointment in the "very unprofessional" dismissal of Mrs. Arsiaga by West.

Mrs. Arsiaga asked for a closed meeting and read a prepared statement to commissioners. A press release of her statement asks for county officials to review the status of her dismissal and protests the unprofessional dismissal.

The inquiry would prove West was not justified in firing her, the statement says. Mrs. Arsiaga's statement says her dismissal resulted from publicity West received July 3 in the Herald concerning not being available to perform his duties.

"By firing me, the strategy then would be focusing on something else — that something being me — his scapegoat," Mrs. Arsiaga's statement reads.

City pool to open Labor Day

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

The Comanche Trail Park swimming pool — originally scheduled to close Aug. 14 — will remain open three additional weekends, the Big Spring Parks and Recreation Board decided Monday.

The pool will be open Aug. 20 and 21, Aug. 27 and 28, and Labor Day weekend, Sept. 3, 4 and 5. Pool hours are noon to 5:30 p.m. Gary Tabor, the city's new parks and recreation director, told board members there was enough money in the parks budget to cover the added service.

"It's still hot in late August, and kids are still used to summer," he said.

Tabor also reported on attempts to find additional funding for repairs and renovation at the pool. The city has budgeted $30,000 to fix pool leaks, the filter system, and plumbing and electrical systems.

He said he is trying to get matching state and federal funds through the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

"Right now we're at the form-filling stage," he said, "but I'm very hopeful we'll get the grant money."

The pool is losing six inches daily due to leaks at expansion joints, Tabor said. He has estimated $60,000 will cover costs of the repairs. He also said there are plans to install showers at the pool.

The board also discussed a proposed "Friends of the Park" program that would allow citizens and civic groups to receive city council recognition for donating money and materials to parks.

Default on bonds triggers repercussions

SEATTLE (P) — The Washington Public Power Supply System's default on $2.25 billion in bonds for two abandoned nuclear plants could jeopardize the state's future bond sales and cut 20,000 jobs out of prime industries, a consultant's report says.

The utility consortium announced Monday that it is unable to meet its obligations under the bonds, bringing on the biggest bond default in U.S. history.

The impact on the state could be substantial, Gov. John Spellman said, relying on data in a consultant's report. But Spellman said he would fight "to assure that none of these things happen."

The report, by the Chicago consulting firm of Knight-Bonniwell this year, concluded that a "WPPSS penalty" of up to 2 percent could be demanded on future bonds sold by the state and other public agencies in the Pacific Northwest.

It also predicted that up to 20,000 jobs could be lost, particularly in construction, high energy-use businesses and the pulp, paper and transportation industries.

Small investors fear they may bear the brunt of the default.

"The little people are paying for this some way or other," said Betty Fuller of Rexburg, Idaho, who along with her husband Theo invested $80,000 in WPPSS bonds in 1976 to ensure a carefree retirement. They may not get back any of the money or any interest.

"When you're our age, you can't start over again," said Mrs. Fuller, 66. Her husband is 70.

She said insurance companies that own bonds will pass the losses on to customers and "rich people ... will use it for a tax writeoff. We're neither."

Chemical Bank of New York, trustee for the bondholders, will soon file suit against the 88 utilities that had contracted with WPPSS for construction of the plants and the governing body of the supply system, according to William Beris, a Chemical vice president.

He said the suit could amount to $7 billion, including the value of bonds and interest.

Two WPPSS plants have been mothballed, and one is scheduled to come on line next year. Construction was started on plants 4 and 5, but they were abandoned after the construction program ran into huge expenses and questions about the need for the energy they would provide.

Most utilities have refused to pay expenses for those plants unless ordered to by the courts.

In response to a demand by Chemical Bank, WPPSS handed over more than $25 million Monday but admitted it did not have the rest of the $32 million it owed.

It was thought WPPSS would have as long as 90 days to try to make up the missed payments, but Beris said WPPSS' written admission of inability to pay "constitutes an immediate event of default," and WPPSS spokesman Gary Petersen said in any case the agency would not have been able to come up with the money.

After a Superior Court judge Friday dissolved an order preventing default, WPPSS admitted its inability to pay its debts as they become due for nuclear power projects 4 and 5.

"We just bit the bullet and got on with it," Don Mazur, WPPSS managing director.

It is unknown exactly how many people or institutions own WPPSS bonds, or who they are, because only 4 percent of the bonds are registered. WPPSS believes 60-70 percent of the bondholders are individual investors, and a study by the A.M. Best Co. indicated insurance companies may own 15 percent of the bonds.

The actual default was merely the coup de grace in a months-long drama, said Steve Hueglin, of Gabriele, Hueglin & Cashman Inc., a Wall Street bond firm. "It just recognizes the end of the road," he said.

Most adverse impacts of the WPPSS situation already were felt by the time formal default came, he said.

Hueglin said more than 50 percent, and perhaps 75 percent, of the WPPSS bonds are owned by individuals who "merely lent money" to build the terminated WPPSS nuclear plants. Those individuals stand to lose, he said.

Legal problems thwart dam plans

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A legal quagmire continues to thwart construction of Stacy Dam in West Texas, and planners believe work on the project may not begin until May 1987 and finish until May 1991.

"It's kind of baffling. There has to be a better way of going about developing reservoirs in Texas," said Owen Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District that wants to construct the dam about 24 miles southeast of Ballinger.

The river authority won a permit for the project from the Texas Water Commission four years ago with the understanding construction would begin by June 1981.

Legal challenges forced the river authority to obtain a two-year extension from the water commission. The Texas Water Commission on Monday set an Oct. 13 hearing to consider the river authority's latest extension request, which could push the start of construction back as far as May 1987.

Opponents to the proposed $50.5 million project have asked the Texas Supreme Court to review a 3rd Court of Appeals decision upholding the Texas Water Commission's authority to issue the construction permit.

The Lower Colorado River Authority contends the Colorado River's water rights already are committed, and that construction of Stacy Dam would take water need-

Testimony includes Arista's statement

Defendant said he struck victim

Testimony in the murder trial of Bobby Arista Jr., 22, started today as the state introduced a statement Arista made to city police saying he struck Kim Alexander, 27, the night she was killed.

Police Sergeant Pat Dunnam testified she took two statements from Arista the day Miss Alexander's body was found at her 1303 Elm trailer home.

One of Arista's statements ready by District Attorney Rick Hamby said Arista and the deceased had been dating prior to the incident. The statement said Arista found Miss Alexander Dec. 10, 1982 with another man and hit both of them several times in a fit of anger.

The statement said Arista chased the man off and then returned to strike Miss Alexander two more times. The statement also said Arista later found that she had stopped breathing.

A six-man, six-woman jury will continue to hear testimony today with District Judge Jim Gregg presiding. Arista is represented by Wayne Basden.

AGENTS SEARCH FOR 'FLOATER' — International boundary commission agents waded into the Rio Grande to search unsuccessfully for the body of a floater — a drowning victim — who surfaced near downtown El Paso. Agents in this April file photo were unable to snag the victim, believed to be an alien crossing from Juarez.

Higher river increases peril for illegal aliens

SOUTH EL PASO (AP) — The Rio Grande is running deeper with the record snowmelt from the Colorado and New Mexico mountains and creating a new peril for illegal aliens crossing the border river usually waist-deep in summer.

Illegal aliens in the summer normally can just wade across the river where it flows between El Paso and Juarez, the most populous U.S.-Mexico border sector.

But this year the snowmelt has made the Rio Grande, the fifth longest river in North America, deeper and more dangerous. And the combination of higher numbers of undocumented workers trying to swim across higher water has some Border Patrol officials worried.

Rio Grande runoff into Elephant Butte Reservoir — 130 miles north of El Paso, and its main reservoir — peaked July 20 at its highest level since 1945. Reservoir outflow peaked July 22. David Overvold of the federal Bureau of Reclamation's Rio Grande Project said.

The day after the peak reservoir outflow, an unidentified Mexican man with a tattoo saying Ramon was pulled from the Rio Grande after being spotted floating face down near the Cordova Island bridge.

Police call the drowning victims floaters, and the man was the seventh floater found in El Paso this year and the fifth in July. Authorities said the bodies of at least three others were spotted but never recovered or counted in the total.

An average of 10 to 15 people a year drown in the river here, including illegal aliens and picnickers who take a dip in the water to escape the heat. This year, police said they believe six of the seven known victims were illegal aliens.

"Because the river is higher than usual, we're worried," Sgt. Al Martinez said. "And this year, nearly all have been Mexican nationals."

No one knows how many Mexicans die during the crossing — El Paso and Juarez officials don't keep such statistics and authorities would not speculate on how many perish down river, away from the two border cities.

But with illegal alien apprehensions along the 1,760-mile U.S.-Mexico border up 46 percent in the first half of 1983, it's easy to see why drownings are occurring more often.

Economically pressed, record numbers of Mexicans are coming to the U.S. in search of farm work and higher wages. Many come from the interior of Mexico, and cannot swim, agents say. Others are Juarez residents who daily cross the river to work in El Paso.

July 14, a Mexican man in his 30s drowned while trying to cross from Juarez. He was the second floater found that week, police said.

Last week, border patrol agents helped pull a dead man from the river canal near the Santa Fe bridge. The man, in his 20s, also carried no identification.

With the recovery of two other bodies this month, authorities became concerned about the possibility of a worse river-crossing situation.

"Every year we find a lot of bodies," deputy El Paso border patrol sector chief Dale Cozart said Monday. "In past instances, our officers at risk to their own lives jump in the canals or river to try to save (river crossers)."

He said some of the bodies of drowning victims are never recovered.

Most drownings occur in the summer, when alien crossings are highest. But even in winter, when an occasional snow hits El Paso, floaters have been found. "It's something that happens all the time," El Paso Sheriff's Lt. Ed Provencio said.

"But every year there's a greater number," Cozart said. "We wish it wasn't (that way), but it seems as if it is."

Commissioners then went into executive session. After an hour, Commissioner David Barr made the motion to create the new title and salary.

Commissioners first dealt with the fee payment issue on Jan. 10 when they learned the secretary was receiving the fee payments while working on county time. Commissioners said it was the first notice they had of the 30-year practice.

On Jan. 24, commissioners moved to end payment of fees to Miss Cooper and have all state hospital commitment fees placed in the general fund. On March 28, County Judge Milton Kirby requested the fee payment be reinstated for Miss Cooper.

Also at the March meeting, County Attorney Bob Miller suggested Miss Cooper's salary be raised to compensate for working on commitment papers, but to do away with the fee payment to avoid "the appearance of a problem."

Kirby accused Miller bringing up this issue solely as a personal attack on the judge's secretary. Commissioners reversed their January decision and allowed Miss Cooper to again collect the fees.

BSISD tentatively approves budget

The Big Spring Independent School District board tentatively approved a $13.6 million dollar budget yesterday after a four-hour workshop. Superintendent Lynn Hise said the new budget carries a 5.15 percent increase over expenditures of the 1982-83 school year.

The actual dollar amount of the increase over last year, exclusive of federal funds, was $667,735, according to Hise. Proposed expenditures total $12.9 million, he said.

A public hearing will be held before the board officially adopts the proposed budget.

According to Hise, 75 percent of the increase will be channeled to teacher salaries. He said the board members felt a boost was needed since the Legislature did not act on educators' salaries in the last session.

An increase of about $450 a year for degreed personnel was okayed for one year by the board, Hise said. This amounts to about a 5 percent raise for teachers.

Also included in the proposed budget are increased benefits for district employees in the area of hospitalization insurance.

Hise also said the board is looking at the possibility of reducing the district's property tax rate from 87½ cents per $100 to 85 cents.

Hise said increased values in mineral and oil-related evaluations probably will allow for the lower tax rate.

State faces budget woes

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative budget makers heard Tuesday that state revenues are lagging behind Comptroller Bob Bullock's estimates, and Texas could suffer a shortfall of up to $500 million by 1987.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, chairman of the Legislative Budget Board, a group of Senate and House members who originate the state's spending plan, said later it was "premature" to predict a special legislative session would be needed to pass new taxes.

"What the report showed this morning was that in some major areas it's likely that total revenue for this year will fall short of the comptroller's estimates, specifically the sales tax and the oil production tax," Hobby told reporters.

"The gas production tax probably will exceed the comptroller's estimate, but there is no question we are looking at a smaller beginning balance (for the 1986-87 business period) than the comptroller contemplated."

Hobby also said, "It's conceivable that if you add what will be the beginning balance (Sept. 1, 1985) ... and if revenue does not rebound as vigorously as the comptroller predicts, you could easily be looking at a shortfall over the three years — this year plus 1986-87 — in the order of half a billion dollars."

Killer heat wave loses some sizzle

By The Associated Press
The heat wave that has claimed 160 lives across the nation lost some of its sizzle today, after thunderstorms soothed thirsty crops and cooled parched cities in the Midwest, East and South.
But the storms turned vicious in Arkansas, damaging buildings, and in South Carolina, where lightning and rain-slicked roads killed two people Monday.
While temperatures still hung in the 90s in the country's midsection, the hot weather was seen as typical for July.
"The heat is pretty much confined to the Gulf Coast states, and it's not terribly above normal for them," said meteorologist Hugh Crowther at the National Weather Service Severe Storms Center in Kansas City.
Crowther said today that the heat will continue over

Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas for the next several days, with highs in the 90s, with some 100-degree readings in Texas.
For the rest of the nation, it was time to recover.
In St. Louis, where 36 people died over the two-week heat wave, Mayor Vincent Schoemehl lifted a heat emergency Monday which had been declared last Wednesday.
Cooler, drier air funneled through Illinois in the wake of Monday rainstorms, relieving the heat that left 33 people dead in that state.
The Illinois Attorney General's newly appointed task force on aging was to hold a meeting on the deaths of two elderly nursing home residents who died in their sweltering Chicago apartments after the home's air conditioning system failed.
Cook County Medical Examiner Robert Stein said he would try to determine "whether the heat hastened their deaths," adding that those who died were already very ill.

In Arkansas, Monday's thunderstorms chased the mercury from 102 degrees down to 66 degrees in a matter of minutes at Springdale, meteorologists said. The thermometer reading bounced back up to 79 degrees after the storm passed.
The storm damaged buildings and knocked down trees in northwestern Arkansas, Springdale police said Monday.
In western Texas, farmers and ranchers in 27 parched counties were seeking federal assistance. Ranchers also were trying to put old windmills back in working order and were tapping water lines serving oilfields to try to save their cattle.

"We're almost a desert," said Bill Boyd, a ranch manager who said this year's rainfall has been one-fourth the normal amount. "The dirt tanks have been dry for months."
Drought was the problem in South Carolina too, even after thunderstorms brought cooler temperatures.
"The state's corn crop has already been hurt by prolonged dry weather and much of the soybean crop is suffering," a Clemson University agricultural disaster committee said in a release Monday.
The committee reported that tobacco and peaches were unharmed by the heat and drought, but said another week or two of hot, dry weather could damage cotton, burn up some tobacco, hurt early-planted soybeans and reduce livestock feed supplies.

BREAKFAST ON THE HILL — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who has just been named the head of a new commission on Central America by President Reagan, and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, right, meet during a breakfast meeting Tuesday on Capitol Hill. Kissinger is meeting on the Hill today with various members of Congress.

Bodies of boys found

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 32-year-old bookkeeper suspected in the deaths of five boys found in rural graves should be let loose so the victims' parents can "tear him apart inch by inch," said the grandmother of one of the youths.
The bodies of the boys, who had been missing up to four years, were found Monday after police questioned and arrested Roger W. Downs of Salt Lake City.
"I can't even imagine a person being that perverted," said Lily Davis, grandmother and legal guardian of victim Danny Davis, 4.
Through tears, Mrs. Davis said she feels that Downs should be let "loose and let the parents tear him apart inch by inch. That would be too good for him."
The bodies of the five youths, ages 4 to 13, were found about 65 miles apart, three in shallow graves 35 miles southwest of here in Utah County and two in the stream bed of Big Cottonwood Creek just southeast of Salt Lake City.
John T. Nielsen, deputy Salt Lake County attorney, told a news conference that Downs, who worked at Cook Lumber and was known by several other names, was being held for investigation of homicide.
First-degree murder charges were expected to be filed later this week, he said.
Police said they learned the locations of the bodies Sunday during questioning of Downs in an investigation of the abduction of Graeme Cunningham, 13, an acquaintance of Downs who disappeared July 14 and was one of the five found Monday.
Cunningham's body was found in the stream bed near that of Troy Ward, 6, who vanished June 22, Nielsen said.
The other three victims — found buried in shallow graves in a remote area west of Utah Lake — were identified as Alonzo Daniels, 4, Salt Lake City, who disappeared Oct. 16, 1979; the Davis boy, who was abducted from a Salt Lake store Oct. 25, 1981; and Kim Peterson, 11, South Salt Lake, missing since Nov. 11, 1980.
Tom Johnson, grandfather of the Daniels boy, said

Downs once lived across an apartment building hallway from his daughter, Debbie Fisher, and her son Alonzo.
Nielsen declined to comment on the motive in the case, or to say specifically how the youths died.
Her voice breaking, Troy's mother, Cheryl Ward, said, "I hope they leave him at that prison for life or give him the death penalty."
"All this time, I hoped he was alive," Mrs. Davis said of her grandson Danny. "I just can't face it. He was the most beautiful child — so intelligent, so sensitive."
Her husband, Clarence Davis, said he had no harsh feelings, but predicted: "I feel he will be dealt with. And if he is not dealt with, he will be in the end."
"Now we know what happened to Alonzo," Johnson said of his grandson. "And we don't have to wait for Alonzo to come home."
Downs lived near where some of the victims disappeared, Nielsen said. Police said the Cunningham youth and Downs apparently were planning a trip to California. They said Downs was thought to have made the trip with another young man two days after Cunningham disappeared.
Police warned parents in Utah to continue to watch closely over their children. "We can thank God tonight that this is over with, but our parents just can't relax," said sheriff's Maj. W.M. Stoler.
During the past two years, police have held seminars on kidnap prevention and parents have launched fingerprinting campaigns and organized patrols to escort children to school.
The Legislature in January enacted anti-kidnaping laws that mandate up to 15-year prison terms for first-degree kidnaping or child rape.
Authorities said they had no reason to suspect the five slayings were linked to the unsolved abduction of Tasha Bevan, 4, who was found unharmed in an abandoned Idaho schoolhouse July 16, or to three other unsolved kidnap-slayings.

Officials plan to use up to 4,000 U.S. troops in exercises

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Reagan moves warships into position off both coasts of Central America, administration officials are planning stepped-up ground exercises in Honduras using up to 4,000 U.S. troops.
In a nationally televised news conference tonight at 7 p.m. CDT, Reagan is expected to focus on the military activity, which presidential aide David R. Gergen says has been treated with "an awful lot of hype."
The session with reporters will give the president "an opportunity to put things in perspective," said Gergen, Reagan's communications director.
The latest U.S. military maneuvers in the region include sending the battleship New Jersey to join the growing U.S. fleet off Nicaragua and a Pentagon announcement that 3,000 to 4,000 U.S. troops will be involved in military exercises in Honduras later this year.
Word of the stepped-up military moves came as former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who heads the new presidential commission on Central America, held out the possibility of a trip to Nicaragua.
The ship movements, revealed by Pentagon sources Monday, are tied to the administration's opposition to the Nicaraguan Sandinista government and U.S. support for the Salvadoran government, under attack by leftist insurgents.
The administration says the insurgents in El Salvador are being supplied through Nicaragua.
The battleship, which cut short a Far Eastern cruise, was said to be heading across the Pacific to join the aircraft carrier Ranger and seven other vessels, which took up positions Monday off Central America's western coast.
The aircraft carrier Coral Sea was reported ready to depart for the Caribbean Sea from Naples, Italy, to operate along Central America's eastern coast.
The Pentagon also announced that the planned ground exercises will include the first Marine amphibious landing in Honduras. U.S. Air Force units will be used to air lift troops and material into Honduras.
The exercises were intended, in part, the Pentagon said, as "a clear demonstration of our commitment to the democratic nations of the region."
Meanwhile, reports circulated that the Pentagon was considering doubling the number of U.S. military advisers in El Salvador, but White House officials took pains to stress that no such plan had reached the president. Reagan has allowed no more than 55 advisers to work in El Salvador at any one time.
While Reagan and his aides are focusing on current developments in Central America, Kissinger was following up Monday's visit with Reagan by meeting with Republican and Democratic leaders of the House and Senate.
Kissinger attended a 50-minute breakfast meeting today with Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a close friend of the Reagans. Kissinger left the meeting without comment. He was to meet later with Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.
Baker said he and Kissinger discussed the new military movements, although they are not on the agenda of the commission, because they were in the news. He said he was reserving judgment on them, however, until he had more information.
Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., on the other hand, said he was "somewhat puzzled" by the developments.
"Why does there have to be such a large task force sent for such a long time? Why at this particular point in history and why to this particular site?" he asked.
"Is this just getting the troops and ships in place for something else? One wonders."
Kissinger said at a State Department news conference after meeting with Reagan that the administration had to head off "the bitter debates that characterized the Vietnam period" and avoid any uncertainty about U.S. goals. His 12-member bipartisan commission is intended to draw up long-term policy ideas for Reagan and help build national support for that policy.

He said he anticipates a commission trip to the region and that, "If we visit the area, a visit to Nicaragua is highly probable," so long as the Americans would be welcome.
Kissinger added that he might make a preliminary trip to consult with the leaders of the countries there about the commission's work.
"But under no circumstances will the commission engage in any negotiations or in any of the immediate efforts at direct conciliation," which he said was the role of Richard Stone, Reagan's special envoy to the region.
He said the commission, whose chairmanship he rejected several times before acceding to the Reagan's wishes, would hold its first meeting during the week of Aug. 9.
Reagan ordered the commission to report by Dec. 1, but Kissinger held out the likelihood of not finishing the work, and filing the report, until Feb. 1.
Creation of the commission has raised questions about whether Kissinger will take over a leading role in formulating Central American policy on a more short-term basis as well.
But Kissinger said, "I have no intention, indeed no time, to involve myself in the operational questions that may flow from the commission report, assuming the administration accepts the recommendations."
Later, he added: "I am not taking over Central American policy. I am heading a commission that will make specific recommendations."
Meanwhile, the Nicaraguan government told the Organization of American States that it is ready to negotiate "an absolute end to the arms supply by any country to the forces in conflict in El Salvador." It also said it was willing to sign a non-aggression treaty with neighboring Honduras.

AIDS may be linked to infants' deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The deaths of three Los Angeles County infants who received blood transfusions shortly after birth, a typical incubation period for the disease AIDS, medical officials say.
Joseph Church, a pediatrician who treated two infants who died at Los Angeles Children's Hospital, said he was "95 percent sure" that the infants had AIDS "picked up during transfusions."
"If it's not AIDS, then it's a type of immune deficiency that I've never seen before," Church said. "If it was congenital, it would have appeared sooner."
He noted that neither of the two infants showed signs of contracting AIDS for six to eight months after birth, a typical incubation period for the disease.
Loren Lieb, a public health epidemiologist with the county Department of Health Services, said her department had reported three cases of AIDS — acquired immune deficiency syndrome — to the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.
The health officials didn't specify where the third child died.

Asked about the death of Jeffrey Pardo, who was buried on his first birthday in June, Church said, "I knew what the patient had, but I couldn't do anything about it. That's the scariest thing."
The child's father, Dr. Al Pardo, a resident in internal medicine at Wycoff Hospital in Brooklyn, N.Y., spoke openly about his son's death in hopes of "making people aware that the disease does not just affect homosexuals."
Pardo said at first he was bitter over the "tainted blood" but said eventually he came to accept the fact that whoever donated the blood probably didn't know he was at risk.
"He thought he was doing a good deed," Pardo said.
As of July 11, the CDC reported 108 AIDS cases in Los Angeles, and none of the adult cases were related to blood transfusions, Ms. Lieb said.
Nationwide, the CDC had listed 21 AIDS cases among infants as of last month, but most of those cases were infants born to parents in high-risk groups such as bisexual males or intravenous drug users.

Paintgate

One of our favorite episodes in American literature is Tom Sawyer's plan to whitewash the fence without whitewashing the fence. You know: Tom so captivates a number of playmates with the idea that painting the fence is fun that they wind up not only doing it for him, but paying for the privilege. Peculiarly American, imaginative and pragmatic. No one is exploited, and everyone gets something he wants.

Sawyer's spirit lives on in Carlsbad (Calif.) School Superintendent Philip Grignon. Early this year, Grignon drew up a plan to have students paint both Valley and Jefferson elementary schools. The students had a summer job. And the school district had a fresh coat of paint for $10,000 instead of the $50,000 or more it would have cost to contract the job out. By June, the students were busy at work on the Valley school and were almost ready to move on to Jefferson.

In Twain's day, Grignon's kind of thinking might have earned a medal of honor, or at least a plaque from the local Rotary Club. Instead, Grignon and the Carlsbad board received a visit from Patricia Gates, an attorney for Painters Local Union 1906 in Vista, Calif. She threatened to take the school district to court for failing to contract the work out to union workers through the competition bid process required by the state of California. The project was halted.

Attorney Gates secured no jobs for her union. The school doesn't have the money, $18 to $25 an hour for the work. Nevertheless, she argued, an important principle was involved: "If we don't enforce the laws on the books, the next thing we'll see is City Hall being painted by County Jail Workers."

Imagine that.

Around the Rim

By RICHARD HORN

Threadbare

You are what you wear, they say, so I am a pair of blue jeans and a faded plaid shirt.

The issue of dressing for success is one I have never latched onto. I am not a clothes-horse, I don't wear clothes particularly well and I see no reason to subject people to the sight of a fashionable me.

If wearing the same kind of clothes all the time is dull, then dull I am.

One of my best friends dresses like a gaudy billboard — red pants and a bright green shirt, usually. White shoes, too.

He is very successful and attracts a lot of attention, but you will never see me in that sort of getup.

I enjoy wearing a coat and tie when it is required, but it usually turns out to be a rumpled coat and tie. I'm sure that marks me as a failure. But look at the great rumpled men who spot our history: Abraham Lincoln, Albert Einstein, Clarence Darrow.

If I am denied a job because of the way I dress, then so be it. Why would I want to work for someone who wouldn't hire Lincoln, Einstein or Darrow anyway?

Many people say the clothes you wear determine how far you go in life. This is true, but I don't think it is something we as a nation should be proud of.

Some of the biggest jerks I know dress perfectly, and as far as I am concerned a meticulously dressed person is paying attention to all the wrong details. You can buy clothes — you can't buy a personality. You can, however, cover your rotten psychological defects with fancy outer garments.

I am not being lazy. This is a matter of comfort ... emotional comfort. When people finish work they go home and "slip into something more comfortable." Does this mean when they go to work they slip into something uncomfortable?

I've noticed that all of our recent presidents have been dull dressers. I don't know what that means, but when looking for presidents I would prefer we find a rumpled statesman than a red, white and blue billboard.

I don't want to change anything. But I am not the only one who thinks the invention of fashion has made life a little more difficult.

Some embarrassing setbacks

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has suffered some embarrassing setbacks recently in the Middle East. The president's optimistic "peace initiative" for the region has stalled; Secretary of State George Shultz's shuttle diplomacy hasn't even been able to work out the withdrawal of Israeli and Syrian troops from Lebanon.

Part of the problem is that the president gets conflicting reports from diplomats and intelligence agents in the field. This information is screened by the president's top advisers who tend to pass on only what he wants to hear — information that makes his predetermined policies or campaign promises look good.

Top-level reports are also the product of a committee mentality — a consensus, with no rough edges to irritate a president or nag him with doubts. The president, in turn, is persuaded to approve plans that have little chance of success.

The president's advisers, for example, confidently predicted that Jordan's King Hussein would support the Reagan peace initiative. I disputed that rosy assessment in a column last December. Sure enough, Hussein refused to join in the Reagan plan, effectively killing it.

More recently, the administration pushed through a troop withdrawal agreement with Israel that depended on Syrian cooperation. The White House seemed to think Syrian President Hafez Assad would agree to end his years-long occupation of eastern Lebanon. On April 29, I warned that this was unlikely; Assad has shown no indication that he will pull his troops out soon — or ever.

One reason for the administration's embarrassing misinterpretation of Assad's intentions may be the soothing syrup it was fed by the U.S. Embassy in Damascus. A secret cable to the State Department in early January demonstrates serious misjudgment of the Syrian dictator by our experts on the scene.

The secret cable, examined by my associate Lucette Lagnado, gave Washington advance knowledge of the Syrian-Soviet decision to deploy top-of-the-line Russian missiles in Syria. "U.S. intelligence community believes Syria is preparing at least two sites for surface-to-air missiles of type SA-5," the cable states, "and SA-5 equipment will soon be shipped to Syria from the U.S.S.R."

But the embassy took this ominous development calmly. "We doubt that the installation of SA-5s will make the Assad regime more 'adventurous,'" the cable said.

Yet with super Soviet missiles to back him up, Assad remains at least as "adventurous" as he has always been: He has threatened a new war with Israel. He has ignored pleas from other Arab nations to pull his troops out of Lebanon. He has encouraged Palestine Liberation Organization extremists against Yasir Arafat. And he is suspected of backing major terrorist attacks, including the bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut.

Incredibly, the embassy condoned the presence of Soviet personnel manning the SA-5 missiles, suggesting they would be a restraining influence on Assad. "We believe that the Soviet involvement... would act as a constraint in their possible operational use..." the cable stated, adding: "Soviet control in the operational use of these missiles will act as a firm restraint on any adventurist inclinations by Syria (although President Assad is not in any event adventurist by nature.)"

Children need to pray

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I get very upset every morning when my two children go off to school and I realize that they will have no opportunity to pray anymore in the classroom. Don't you think we ought to do something about that? — Mrs. R.W.

DEAR MRS. R.W.: Yes, I deeply regret that our nation — built on Judeo-Christian principles — has banished prayer from the classroom. I think we are paying a stiff price for this by causing many young people to believe that God is unimportant or irrelevant. It remains to be seen whether or not the nation's courts will reverse this trend in any measure, although we should pray that God will give wisdom to our judges as they deal with difficult church-state issues. I believe we should also encourage those who are seeking to find ways to reverse this trend.

But I want you to remember that no one can keep a person from praying, even when formal, public prayer is not allowed. Do you remember Daniel and his three friends? They were taken captive while still young (perhaps in their early teen years), and taken to the capital of the Babylonian Empire. The palace of the king of Babylon was a hostile place spiritually — and yet they not only survived but grew strong spiritually. "To these four young men God gave knowledge and understanding of all kinds" (Daniel 1:17).

Train your children, then, in your home to love God and serve him, no matter what the temptations might be. Keep the lines of communication open with them — listen to them, and let them know you want to help them. And let them see by your example that Christ is real to you. We can never guarantee that our children will turn out exactly as we wish they would, but we can make it our goal to help them see Christ in our lives.

Remember that God has never promised that we would be a majority in this world. If your children are to stand for Christ, there will be times they will feel lonely — whether there is prayer in school or not. Be honest with them about the cost of the following Christ, but show them that it is worth it because he is worthy of their loyalty.

March of Dimes workers thanked

Dear Editor, All volunteers of the Caprock Chapter of the March of Dimes would like to offer our most sincere appreciation to those who contributed to the success of the first March of Dimes National Telethon Against Birth Defects.

We salute Buford Durst, Telethon chairman, Darlene Gifford, The Southwestern Bell Pioneers, The Community Relations Team, their wives and members of Southwestern Bell Company who manned the "Telethon Pledge Bank" at the Southwestern Bell premises in Big Spring.

Joe Welch, Jay Shaw and Les McMullen organized a highly successful roadblock prior to the Telethon. Coachoma Church of Christ Youth Group under the leadership of Bill Gressett manned the telephones from 12 midnight to 6 a.m. Ted Van Meter and Mrs. Linda Short attended to the general organization. Jim Lancaster of Big Spring Cable T.V. organized the television linkup with KTPX Odessa.

We applaud all our dedicated volunteers for helping in the fight against birth defects. A service of 23 hours is a positive show of genuine concern.

We congratulate television hosts at KTPX Odessa, Carl Rogers and Rick Wells for producing excellent Chapter segments. Big Spring was well represented — Dr. Bernard Zilberg, MOD Professional Medical Advisory Chairman, discussed the Infant Transport Ventilator (donated by the March of Dimes to Big Spring area, at the cost of $3,500) in the Intensive Care Unit at Malone Hogan Hospital.

Becky Jo Walker, Caprock Chapter Poster Child, Johnnie Lou Avery, Buford Durst, Darlene Gifford and Barbara Holdampf, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Caprock Chapter, all appeared on television. The Telethon Pledge Bank was also televised taking pledges.

Our most grateful thanks go to Rufus Jordon of Burger King for donating Whoppers and breakfast costing $900 to the 100 volunteers.

7-Eleven Southland Corporation very kindly donated Coca Cola costing $110.

We are most grateful to KBYG Radio and KWKI-KKIK for their enthusiastic support. KBYG very kindly reported results hourly throughout the telethon.

The Big Spring Herald is to be highly commended for the excellent publicity we received prior to the telethon. We also thank Malone Hogan Clinic who helped with pre-telethon mailings. Public understanding of our goals is of the utmost importance. Our support of research, education and medical services is made possible by our dedicated volunteers and the generous concerned public. Thank you for pledging to our cause — healthy babies, healthy mothers. You have made our goal one step closer to reality.

Spectator has question

Dear Editor, On July 16 I had the pleasure of being a spectator at the Starlight Special Talent Show. Since that time, several things have puzzled me and I believe are deserving of an answer from others.

One, while the young lady who won first place in the Senior Division (which carried a Howard College Scholarship for the winner) is most talented, I do not believe she is a local girl. I believe she is from the Dallas area and question whether or not this is being fair to our own young people.

According to your newspaper report, it was stated specifically twice that this was LOCAL TALENT. Do we really believe in Big Spring? If so, then we must believe in and support our own kids first.

Another question — why were some spectators charged an admission fee and others not charged? I was one of those that was not; others sitting around me were charged.

Comments, anyone? Thanks. MILDRED SEVEY Box 147

Jaklewicz gets lunch invitation

Dear Editor,

Attention Mr. Greg Jaklewicz: In regard to your article on July 14, 1983, I take offense. In fact it made me downright mad to think a grown man would write such a thing. The parents want their children to have a hot balanced meal and they certainly get it, and at a fair price. Check your other towns.

I want you to know I'm one of those elderly women with white shoes, uniform and one of those fish nets on her head. I've been at the same school (Kentwood) for 15 years and proud of it. The 18th of August will find me back there, the Lord willing.

At this time I'd like to invite you to come have lunch with us anytime. I think you will enjoy and may be ready to eat a little. I grant you at times it may not be your favorite food. The same happens at home, or it does at my house.

Kentwood food comes from Gollad. We have all ages working there as well as the other cafeterias. Everyone I know (I know most of them) is a good cook and a caring person. I can't speak for the food at the other cafeterias as I've always been at the one school, but I know they are A1 cooks and do their best and I think they do a great job.

Our rolls, cobblers, brownies, prune cake, etc., can't be beat. Don't knock it till you've tried it.

As for using leftover foods, Mr. Lawies and Mrs. Tidwell won't take a chance on sending most foods back to Gollad. As Kentwood is a carry-out school the disposal gets most of ours.

Again I want to repeat. We are a proud and caring bunch. Proud of our cafeteria and each other. Anything you would like to see for yourself, call 267-5338 and tell Mrs. Kernodie or Mrs. Ware. They will add to our count and tell me to expect you. We eat about 11:20, the children 11:50 — take your choice — my treat.

Yours truly, MRS. J.W. (Nell) COOTS 1016 E. 21st

P.S. If you care to bring your company that was with you it's O.K.

Woman worried about pollution

Dear Editor, This is a copy of my letter to the Texas Air Control Board, Austin, Texas.

I moved from Houston to Big Spring last year. For the last three years I lived in Houston I lived in a closed house under air conditioning — with an oxygen tank close by. Made frequent trips to the emergency rooms. Had medics coming out in a hurry.

My respiratory track was paralyzed many times from the chemicals in the air. The allergy clinics were treating many just like me. I made frequent visits to Big Spring to regain my health, but would be in the same shape again soon after returning to Houston.

Finally I sold my home and moved to Big Spring. Doctors advice. I haven't smothered once since I've been here. I know there are some people here who have problems. There is too much pollution everywhere. But more is creeping in on us.

First the plastics came. And there are enough large plastic companies in Houston to supply the world. And now they will bring in toxic waste and bury it in Howard and surrounding counties. In a few years when they see into the soil. There goes our land and water — and now.

The permit to build a gas treating plant that emits sulfur dioxide plus other chemicals that are hazardous to health. Because people are used to good clean air can't imagine what it can be like. Tell me where will people go when they retire who have to work in the city to get away from the chemicals if they have any health left to enjoy? Please tell me Texas Air Control Board, what do you control?

Illinois prisons face overcrowding problem

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A frequent television commercial last fall showed Gov. James R. Thompson standing near state troopers while they practiced marksmanship on a firing range.

With weapons recoiling in the background, Thompson looked into the camera and struck a serious, hands-on-hips stance to talk about crime. In his campaign for a second term, he took credit for putting a lot of criminals behind bars.

"And as long as I'm governor, that's where they're going to stay," said the former federal prosecutor.

But at the time, state Corrections Director Michael Lane — a Thompson appointee — was moving as many as 100 inmates a week out of prison before their sentences were fully served.

That "early-release" program helped avert a prison overcrowding problem, but now the program has been restricted by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The justices, acting on a suit filed by local prosecutors, ruled two weeks ago that corrections officials may lop off no more than 90 days from a prisoner's sentence for good behavior. Lane had been granting two or more 90-day chunks of "meritorious service" time to some inmates to relieve overcrowding.

The decision was a setback for the state, already lagging in the race to build enough cells for swelling numbers of convicts.

The 14,000-bed system is at capacity. Lane predicted last week it will be 2,300 beds short by Jan. 1 if no emergency action is taken. By mid-1986, he said, the system should have room for 22,800 inmates — 4,500 too few.

The crunch prompted officials to adopt a "reservations" policy under which newly sentenced inmates cannot be accepted from county jails until room is available. Thompson and legislative leaders are weighing the possibility of a special General Assembly session to deal with the immediate bed shortage.

Local state's attorneys oppose the principal recommendation of a task force — a revised version of Lane's early-release program. They maintain, as they did in their lawsuit, that such releases undermine judges' sentencing authority and pose a danger to the public.

"Violent offenders are coming into our system and we can't let them out the back door," Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley said.

State officials and prison experts cite many reasons for the crowding crisis, which is not unique to Illinois.

One problem was a sharp increase in reported crime nationwide in the last decade. In Illinois, the crime rate rose 33.5 percent from 1972 to 1979.

But experts say the response by politicians and the criminal justice system to the increase also had

GOING UP — Illinois Governor James Thompson uses a graph to demonstrate the rise of his state's prison population from 1970-82. The state is facing a serious overcrowding problems in its prisons, according to Thompson.

a great effect on prison population, which mushroomed in Illinois from about 6,000 in 1973 to its present level.

More money and effort was poured into crime fighting, so arrests went up 24.4 percent from 1972 to 1979, convictions soared 252.3 percent and imprisonment of felons rose 141 percent.

In addition, growing sentiment for a "get-tough" approach to crime led the General Assembly to lengthen minimum prison terms for many crimes and make sentences mandatory — taking away much of the discretion formerly given judges.

Since January 1982, for instance, 834 people were imprisoned under a new law requiring a four- to seven-year sentence — with no chance for parole or probation — for burglarizing homes.

Earlier, many first-time home burglars got off with probation, and even those sent to prison could get out after a year. The creation of a "guilty but mentally ill" verdict as an alternative to "innocent by reason of insanity" put 85 people behind bars in two years.

A major change endorsed by legislators was Thompson's "Class X" law, which set long, mandatory prison terms for a variety of crimes or certain repeat offenders. With more prisoners staying in jail longer, the crisis compounds.

Norval Morris, a University of Chicago criminology professor, blames mandatory sentencing laws for the bulk of the crowding. He says they were sparked by politicians exploiting the public's fear of crime to get elected.

"The governor's and the Legislature's chickens have come home to roost," said Morris, who recommends revising the law to give judges more discretion in deciding who belongs in prison.

Steinberg takes the Fifth on tapes existence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert K. Steinberg, the lawyer who claimed to have videotapes of government officials engaging in sex with model Vicki Morgan, took the Fifth Amendment today when asked if the tapes existed.

Steinberg, who reported the tapes stolen less than a day after he announced he had them, repeatedly refused to answer all but a few questions about the tapes.

The Beverly Hills attorney told Van Nuys Municipal Court Judge James Coleman that he does not have the tapes and did not have them when he was served a subpoena ordering him to produce them.

He was in court answering the subpoena from prosecutors who want Steinberg to produce the tapes or explain why he cannot.

Deputy District Attorney Stanley Weisberg said the tapes may be relevant to the prosecution of Marvin Pancoast, 33, charged with murder in the July 7 baseball-bat beating death of Miss Morgan, 30.

Four days after the slaying, Steinberg announced he had three videotapes showing Miss Morgan, her former paramour the late millionaire Alfred Bloomington, a congressman, two Reagan administration officials, prominent businessmen and other women engaging in sex.

However, Steinberg never produced evidence that the tapes existed.

On July 12, just hours after prosecutors asked to see the tapes, he reported them stolen from his Beverly Hills law office library.

He was served with the subpoena later that day. The Beverly Hills Police Department, which investigated the theft report, wants District Attorney Robert Philbosian to charge Steinberg with filing a false police report.

Steinberg cited his rights to protection from self-incrimination at least 20 times when asked if the tapes existed, how he acquired them and who saw them.

"As long as there's a possibility of filing (criminal charges), I suppose he has the right to take the Fifth Amendment," Weisberg said following the brief hearing. "The witness says he does not have the tapes and didn't have them when the subpoena was served on him.

"The matters under further consideration ... until we can determine whether the tapes ever existed," Weisberg said. "He's the only one who ever stated that these tapes existed."

Steinberg had said he would destroy the tapes if President Reagan did not want to see them. A White House spokesman said July 12 that Steinberg had been urged to cooperate with local authorities who wanted to see the tapes.

Pancoast pleaded innocent by reason of insanity in Miss Morgan's death and a preliminary hearing was scheduled for Thursday.

'Modern' words often have colorful histories

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The word musical comedy was first used in 1765. Newsman dates back to 1596, clone to 1903 and refrigerator to 1803. The word president actually comes from the 14th century and grit from before the 12th century.

This is some of the information unearthed by editors of "Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary," which shows the date when, as far as could be determined, a word was first used in print or writing.

"The English vocabulary has grown in many ways over the centuries. Words enter it from different countries, from different cultures, from science and even from slang," says Dr. Frederick C. Mish, editor of the just-published volume. "Many words go back hunreds of years, some well over a thousand. even. It's a fascinating study."

A word such as earthing, with the sound of contemporary science fiction, actually goes back to 1593, according to the new dictionary. Electricity is not modern, either. The word dates to 1646. Vaporize dates to 1634, and even American was used as far back as 1578.

Many words, though, are relatively new. The nuclear family was first recorded in 1947. Anchorperson dates from 1973, and one of the newest words in this edition, palimony, from 1979. Watergate, as a general name for a scandal usually involving abuse of office and a cover-up, dates to 1973.

There are some surprises, too. Gunslinger, which sounds like a word from the Old West, actually appeared in print in 1951, though it may have been used a bit earlier in movies, according to Mish. The word television itself goes back to 1907. Pay-as-you-go, popularized here in the 1920s, through the 1940s, dates to around 1840. And gangster was first recorded in 1886.

Where were the dates found? Historical dictionaries containing dated examples of use were of prime importance. But older general dictionaries, particularly all editions of the Merriam-Webster unabridged dictionaries and their supplements, also proved extremely useful, Mish said.

"It was surprising how often a dictionary entry rather than an actual use in running text turned out to be the earliest use of a word that we could find," Mish said. The company's own files on language, stretching back nearly 100 years and containing some 13 million examples of words used in context, were also an invaluable source.

Each word to be researched was put on a slip containing 33 different sources to be checked. The earliest use appearing in one of these basic references then furnished the control date against which to check still other sources — early technical glossaries, concordances of major poets, old cookbooks and others.

Texas firm to acquire Cleveland company

CLEVELAND (AP) — National Gypsum Co. of Dallas plans to acquire the Cleveland-based Austin Co. in a $34 million exchange of common stock, officials say.

Privately owned Austin is one of the nation's largest design, engineering and construction companies. National Gypsum is a major manufacturer of building products.

"This transaction is ideal for the future of the Austin Co.," said Charles A. Shirk, president and chief executive of Austin. "The understanding we have reached with National Gypsum will permit an independent operation and increase our capabilities by being a part of a larger, more diverse organization."

Austin officials said they planned to keep their headquarters in Cleveland.

Shirk and John P. Hayes, chairman and chief executive of National Gypsum, jointly announced the transaction Monday.

The tax-free merger is subject to completion of a definitive agreement, approval by both boards of directors and other usual procedures, officials said.

"The Austin Co. is a unique opportunity," Hayes said. "It is a company with a pre-eminent position in the design, engineering and construction of commercial and industrial structures. We have long expressed our intent to increase the presence of National Gypsum Co. in these markets."

Austin Co. was founded 107 years ago by Samuel Austin. Employee ownership of the firm dates back to 1914, when Austin first sold stock to key employees, partly as a way to keep talented workers.

One of Austin's largest projects was construction of the massive Boeing Co. aircraft factory in Seattle.

Austin employs more than 250 people in the Cleveland area and has more than 2,000 employees at its 50 offices worldwide. It also has more than 8,000 employees at various projects.

Dr. Donohue

Two kinds of Paget's disease

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently I read an article you wrote about Paget's disease. A year or so ago I had a mastectomy due to Paget's disease. They also called it cancer of the breast. Are there two diseases called Paget's? Can you explain? Mrs. E.L.B.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You recently discussed Paget's disease in somewhat casual terms. My concern is that I have Paget's disease and have been refused life insurance because of it. I find this to be somewhat inconsistent with the tenor of your article. I would appreciate your explanation. V.A.J.

First, Mrs. E.L.B.: Paget's disease of the nipple and Paget's disease of the bone are two very different illnesses. The nipple disease is a cancer of the milk ducts and can invade surrounding breast tissue. It appears as a scaling, and eczema-type rash. It may look innocent, but it is not. It is cancer and must be treated.

Mr. V.A.J.: Paget's disease of the bone, which I discussed in an earlier article, is a different story. Most often, it is a benign change in bone and causes no problems. On occasion, however, it can be more serious and require treatment. For example, skull bone may enlarge. Or it may lead to back pain or trouble with hip joints. It may also cause bone fractures. Only very rarely does this turn to cancer.

My remarks were intended to convey this idea — that it is not a problem most of the time. But there are the exceptions. I cannot say why V.A.J. has been denied insurance. If Paget's disease is located in only one or two areas of bone, he should make the company aware of that fact. It may prompt a reconsideration. I hope I didn't infer that Paget's disease of the bone is a complete nothing — a non-disease.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is renin? How is it involved in high blood pressure? — Mrs. J.K.

The kidneys make renin, which is an enzyme. They store it and secrete it into the blood. In normal circumstances the amount of release is keyed to the level of blood pressure. For example, when blood pressure gets too low, renin is released to bring it up to normal. Renin activates a blood substance to accomplish this.

Disruption of this mechanism of control is one way kidney disease is involved in high blood pressure. Your other blood pressure questions are answered in the booklet "Practical Tips on Blood Pressure Control," which other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.25.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You had an item recently from a woman who said she was on a 1000-calorie diet and still couldn't lose weight after she reached her plateau. I think I know why. My doctor explained it this way: He said when you get fewer calories your body metabolism rate is lowered correspondingly. You actually need fewer calories so your diet tends to lead to the plateau of weight loss. Pass this on to Mrs. R.R. — A.R.

I cannot argue with your doctor's logic. It sounds like a sensible answer to a question asked here frequently. My advice is still the same, however. I told Mrs. R.R. that she could get herself off her weight loss plateau by adding some exercise to her program. She would start losing calories again independent of her low caloric intake.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Nickname habits

DEAR ABBY: You touched a nerve with that letter from "Barbara," who hated to be called "Barb," "Barbie," "Babs" or anything but Barbara. I'm sure she was speaking for all the Victorias, Catherines, Suzannes and Patricias who are called "Vicki," "Cathy," "Suzie" and "Patty" by people they hardly know.

Americans are the worst offenders. At first meeting, Robert becomes "Bob," and William is "Bill," and Richard becomes "Rich" or worse yet, "Dick!" However, there is a sure cure for such rudeness. The offender should be stopped cold with a direct and simple, "My name is Barbara, Catherine, Robert or William," or whatever the person's name is. If the offender "forgets," a second reminder, or even a third, is in order.

By the way, I prefer Abigail to Abby, and please don't tell me that which we call a rose by any other names would smell as sweet. I am no rose.

CALL ME DOROTHY (NOT DOTTY OR DOT)

DEAR DOROTHY: Offensiveness lies in the ear of the hearer. Many appreciate a friendly nickname, providing it's not a put-down such as "Fatso," "Skinny," "Motor Mouth," "Schnoz" or "Busty."

DEAR ABBY: I'm a newlywed with my own home. I told my mother that I always put out pretty little guest towels for guests to use, but nobody ever used them, and she said you ran a cute poem in your column about the problem a few years ago. If you run it again, I'll cut it out, frame it and hang it in my powder room.

Thanks.

SHIRLEY
DEAR SHIRLEY: It was written over 30 years ago by Mabel Craddock of Ventura, Calif. who said she had grown weary of having her guests dry their hands on toilet paper, bath mats and even curtains, leaving her guest towels untouched. She framed it and hung it over her guest towels.

A GUEST TOWEL SPEAKS
Please use me, Guest;
Don't hesitate.
Don't turn your back on
Or vacillate.
Don't dry your hands
On petticoat,
On handkerchief,
Or redingote.
I'm here to use;
I'm made for drying
Just hanging here
Gets very tiring.

DEAR ABBY: I know you might consider this a weird question, but if it is published, I will have the written proof that I am right. Anyway, I would simply like to confirm my belief that South America and North America are two separate continents even though they are connected. My boyfriend insists that they are one continent called "America." I disagree, and there is no way of convincing him unless he sees it in print.

KNOW IT ALL IN NORTH AMERICA
DEAR KNOW IT: You win. North America and South America are separate continents. Occasionally they have been referred to as "The Americas," but each is a continent unto itself.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Individuals are sought to operate Rainbow Project

From the placement of an abused, neglected child to the time of that child's release from the Rainbow Project, he or she will be under the simultaneous care of a few individuals.

The first person the child will encounter is the social worker. The social worker is responsible for overseeing the placement of the child and the paperwork that accompanies placement and release.

However the social worker's job does not stop at the door of the Rainbow Project. He or she must also work with the Department of Human Resources, or other placing agency. While the child is under the social worker's supervision, a long term plan of care is developed.

Houseparents are responsible for working with the children while they are placed at the Rainbow Project. Their duties include supervising children in daily chores, and carrying out the program devised by the Social Worker. The houseparents are also responsible for the day to day operation of the household.

The houseparents ongoing contact with the children is important during the time they are placed at the Rainbow Project. The houseparents task is a demanding one and so they are off duty for two days a week, during which relief houseparents take over the responsibilities of overseeing the facility. Like the houseparents, the relief houseparents live on the premises.

ICE PICK ISLAND LEVELLED — Mexican authorities have leveled the so-called "Ice Pick Island" after a 15-year-old girl was found dead from dozens of ice-pick stab wounds. The island was in the middle of the Rio Grande between Juarez and El Paso. Authorities said too many criminal types were hiding on the jungled island.

Ice Pick Island leveled by authorities

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Ice Pick Island has been leveled. Earlier this month, before Mexican border authorities bulldozed the island into nothingness, Fernando Perales threaded his way carefully from the Juarez river bank to the brush-covered isle in the middle of the Rio Grande.

Perales knows the risk of crossing, he said as he wiped water from his toes with a newspaper. Two weeks earlier, a teen-age Mexican girl had been found dead on the island from dozens of ice-pick stab wounds and a sliced throat.

For three weeks, Perales has been crossing illegally into Texas to work at an El Paso belt factory. But Perales knows he needn't fear the U.S. Border Patrol. They made their first sweep of the river an hour earlier and were busy returning the undocumented aliens to Mexico.

Out of fear, Perales carries a knife to protect himself from other Mexicans who live at the river and sniff glue or paint. Some rob or maim border crossers, he said.

With illegal alien crossings in the El Paso sector up 80 percent over the same time last year, Border Patrol Chief Agent Alan Eliason said border robberies and assaults also have risen.

Border Patrol agent John Tiltti, who has worked the river area for 14 years, said most Mexicans cross into Texas where the river bed is smoother. It's also easier for Mexican nationals to spot border agents in an open area where the river is sandier, he said.

Five young maids who crossed the river about 20 yards from the island ignored the rotting carcass of what appeared to be a dead dog. They also avoided the island because some Mexicans try to take their lunch or steal their pay, they said.

Few border incidents ever are reported. Mexicans risk missing a day's work if they're returned to Mexico. Others who wait up to a half-hour for Mexican police often end up with nothing because the culprit runs away, Tiltti said.

The area is dangerous 24 hours a day, but action picks up in the afternoon after "river rats" — members of the Puente Negro or Juarito gangs — awaken from sleeping places under the bridge girders.

"They live there for months at a time. Their parents don't care about them," Tiltti said. The most hazardous hours are at night, when most of the glue-sniffers have had a chance to get high, he said.

Perales generally avoided the small island thicket about 500 yards from the Paso del Norte Bridge. The thicket used to hide Mexicans armed with ice picks, machetes and sharpened butter knives, Tiltti said.

Two paths that crossed the 25-foot by 12-foot island cut through dense brush. Ratholes, discarded shoes and underwear lined the pathways. Excrement also was abundant.

On the path that Perales used to cross, Mexican children last month found the mutilated body of the 15-year-old girl, who police said was killed in retaliation for a gang fight in Juarez. Police stopped counting the puncture wounds on her chest when they reached 50.

Mexican police issued murder warrants for a 17-year-old and a 19-year-old and are searching for a 22-year-old Juarez Penitentiary escapee convicted of killing a taxi driver. No one is in custody.

El Paso police investigated the girl's slaying because no one could determine on which side of the international boundary the island fell.

"That place is a mess," police spokesman Lt. John Lanahan said. The International Boundary Treaty of 1970 places the boundary at the middle of the channel with the greatest flow. Both channels are about the same size, Lanahan said.

But U.S. boundary commission authorities take no responsibility for combating the crime problem near the river, although the area is under the commission's ownership.

Their counterparts, the Mexican division of the International Water and Boundary Commission, finally decided to bulldoze the island without notice because they feared further violence. They also cut brush away from both sides of the riverbank closest to the island.

Bullock meets Congress for gas tax discussion

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock told Texas senators and representatives in Washington Monday that passage of the Reagan Administration's natural gas decontrol measure could cost Texas $100 million in taxes.

"Efforts to eliminate some natural gas pricing problems are to be commended but no one wants to cut off an arm to cure a hangnail," Bullock said in a special report to congressmen on gas decontrol.

He said the administration measure could cost the state $56 million in lost gas production taxes during the next two years and about $42 million the year after that.

Furthermore, Bullock said, his report indicated Texas gas customers would not benefit significantly from the Reagan proposal.

Teams support NFL drug suspensions

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League is getting tough with players who use drugs, and he's got support even from teams affected by four suspensions.

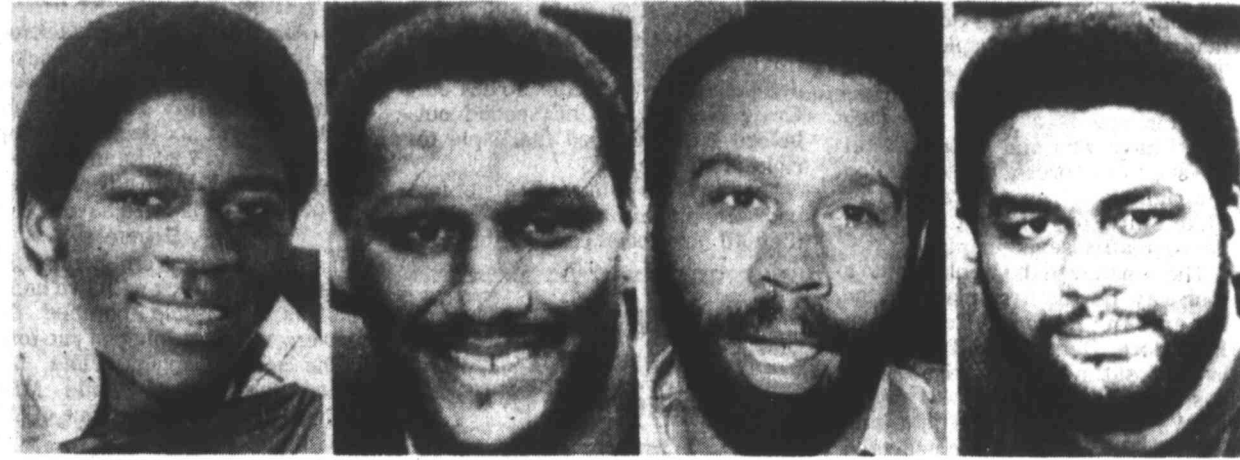

Pete Johnson and Ross Browner of the Cincinnati Bengals, E.J. Junior of the St. Louis Cardinals and Greg Stenrick of the New Orleans Saints were suspended without pay by Rozelle Monday. The suspensions carry through the fourth game of the 1983 season, at which time the players can petition for reinstatement.

"None of the four is permitted to attend training camp, practice sessions, meetings or otherwise use club facilities," Rozelle said. He said he had thoroughly reviewed the cases of the four with the players and their representatives before reaching his decision.

Only one of the four players — Junior — was available for comment and neither he nor the three teams affected by the suspensions protested the ruling.

"The commissioner made a decision in the best interest of the fans and the NFL," said Junior, en route from Charleston, Ill., to St. Louis. "I accept the decision and look forward to returning to the football Cardinals."

Junior, a third-year linebacker from the University of Alabama, was arrested on April 6, 1982 at his apartment in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and charged with possession of cocaine and marijuana. He entered a plea of guilty to the cocaine charge and was placed on probation.

"We still continue to be supportive of E.J. Junior in his (rehabilitation) program and look forward to his return to fulltime duty," Cardinals owner Bill Bidwell said.

Stenrick also was arrested on cocaine felony charges, pleaded no contest, was convicted and released ed on probation.

The Saints cornerback played at Colorado State before moving into the NFL with Houston in 1975. He was released by the Oilers following his drug problems and claimed on waivers by the Saints.

Phillips said team rules would have dealt harshly with Stenrick if he had been caught with cocaine while a member of the Saints.

"If it had been on our team, it wouldn't have been up to the commissioner. He would have been gone before it got that far," Phillips said. "We're not going to tolerate it, and the players know it."

Phillips said it was time that Rozelle cracked down on drug abusers.

"Sooner or later, we have to put a stop to it," he said. "That's what the commissioner considered best for the league and I'm not going to argue about it."

Browner and Johnson acknowledged in federal criminal court testimony that they purchased cocaine from a Cincinnati plumber. Browner admitted making from 12-15 purchases and Johnson approximately 15.

The players were given immunity in return for their testimony, and the plumber was convicted of drug dealing.

Bengals Assistant General Manager Mike Brown said that although two of his own players were involved, he was pleased with the suspensions.

30-foot birdie wins for Casper

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Billy Casper was taken to the line and more.

And then still once more Monday, before he birdied the first hole in sudden-death overtime to defeat Rod Funseth and claim the $30,566 top prize in the fourth U.S. Senior Open Championship at Hazeltine National Golf Club.

Funseth took away $17,500 for his second-place finish.

Casper's 30-foot putt for a birdie ran out of gas just a nudge short of the cup on the 18th hole, leaving him tied with Funseth at 4-over-par 75 for the day and 8-over 363 to send the match into sudden death.

Funseth, a rookie on the senior tour at minimum-age 50, had fired 1-under 70 Sunday despite back and shoulder stiffness that had plagued him throughout the tournament, to pull into a tie with Casper at 288 after the regulation 72 holes and force the extra day of play.

Casper, 52, and Funseth, a three-time winner on the PGA Tour between 1965 and 1978, sent an impressive international list packing, including defending champion Miller Barber, 1981 winner Arnold Palmer and 1980 inaugural winner Roberto DeVicenzo.

But it was Casper — the avowed, born-again golfer, wearing knickers, argyle socks and a smile all week long — whose fist was triumphantly punching air while his winning putt was edging toward the 19th cup.

"I saved my two best shots for the last hole," Casper said of his drive and his eight-iron approach shot. And, he said of the winning 8-footer, "as soon as I hit it, I knew it was in."

Casper ranked Monday's 91-hole victory alongside his U.S. Open titles in 1959 and in 1965, when he out-duelled Palmer in 18 holes in San Francisco.

"You could hear a pin drop on most of the greens," he added in praise of the nearly 2,000 at the playoff and the just-under 50,000 golf fans who attended throughout the week.

Funseth took a quick edge in Monday's playoff, with a birdie on the first playoff hole, which Casper bogeyed. When Casper missed a 4-foot putt on No. 4 for another bogey, Funseth had a three-stroke lead and Casper had some catching up to do.

But as the temperature began to heat up, so did Casper. He chipped in from the fringe on No. 6 for a birdie after Funseth bogeyed No. 5.

Playing with Texas' best

Greenwood's Burleson ready for tonight's hoop all-stars

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Sports Editor

FORT WORTH — It's been workout, eat, workout, sleep for members of the North Team as they prepare for tonight's All-Star basketball game at the 51st Annual Coaching School this week.

Greenwood High's Stuart Burleson is having a great time, however, as he gets a chance to play with the state's best ballplayers.

"We've got some good players," he understated Monday at a luncheon with media representatives. "Everyone here is so much quicker ... I've had a lot of adjusting to do. But I can play with them."

Burleson, a four-time all-district and two-time Class A all-state choice is one of two players selected for the North Team from his conference. The other is Roscoe's Craig Raughton.

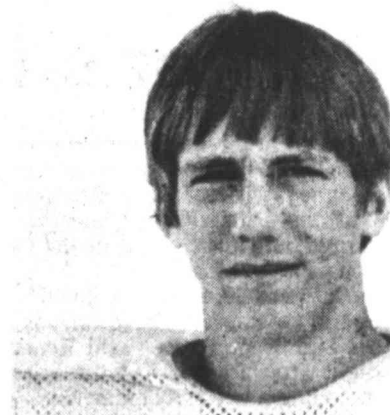

The team is coached by Andrews head coach Frank Bice. His strategy, controversial in some circles, will be to run, play a zone defense and try to utilize the team's quickness against the taller South squad.

The zone defense part is what has been raising a few eyebrows. Although there are no set laws against the zone defense, coaches tend to stay away from it to keep the all-star game fast-paced and exciting for the fans.

Bice will be going with a zone, but says that won't slow the game down much.

"It's easier to teach a zone to these kids in this short a time than a decent man defense. Some of them may not have played a man defense."

Burleson will be the point guard on the North second team. Bice will also try him at a wing position, giving him the opportunity to test his quickness and great leaping abilities.

STUART BURLESON ...in tonight's all-star game

The Greenwood graduate has gone 7-0 in the high jump.

"He's been looking real good," Bice said of the former Ranger. "He's probably one of the better all around athletes that West Texas has ever produced. I'm not just saying this because we're supposed to, but his character and attitude are also real solid."

The starting five for the North team will be Billy Chambers of Bryan at point guard, Marcus Bolden of Killeen at a wing, Mike Nelson of Pampa as a forward, Dewayne Brown of Dallas Kimbell at the high post and Jerry Holmes of Longview at the low post.

According to a plan Bice and South coach

Bobby Murphey of San Antonio Churchill have devised, the starters will play six minutes and the second team four minutes of each of the first three quarters. The number two team will then go the first three minutes of the last quarter and starters will go the rest of the way.

"We're going to try real hard to win, but we realize its not if you win or lose that's important," Bice said. "We want to let the people of Texas see the cream of the crop."

Burleson said the hour and a half practice sessions have had no ill effects on his right knee. The 6'1" player had minor surgery following football and didn't have full jumping ability in basketball or track during the spring.

At an earlier all-star game in Waco, the knee became swollen and he didn't have a good game. But in practices in TCU's Daniel Myer Coliseum, the knee has held up fine even under added pressure from his more fleet teammates.

"We've been running all the time. I haven't been shooting well, but I think that's because I haven't been playing," Burleson said.

That will change soon; in less than four week he's off to Kansas University to which he's won a track scholarship in the high jump for the Jayhawks. Head basketball coach Larry Brown — a former UCLA and NBA Nets and Nuggets coach — has also encouraged him to try out for the basketball team.

"He said he'd give me every chance in the world," Burleson said. "If I play basketball, it wouldn't interfere with track. I just won't do the indoor season."

But Kansas track, and possibly basketball, are last on his list of priorities today. Tonight's contest against the South is taking up all his concentration.

Walls reports to Cowboys' camp

THOUSAND OKS, Calif. (AP) — Everson Walls is gambling on being a bigger star in two years than he is now.

In a stunning reversal, the holdout Dallas Cowboys' All-Pro cornerback reported to training camp Monday night only three days after he had announced his retirement.

Walls, his contract renegotiations bogging down with team Vice President Gil Brandt, decided to play out the final two years of his contract. He makes only $60,000 this year versus the $175,000 the Cowboys offered in a five-year pact.

He took out a $1 million policy against a career-ending injury with Lloyds of London and announced he was willing to pay a $5,000 fine for being late.

"I have returned, no big deal," Walls said. "Everybody knows what I want, either a three year contract (for $920,000) or a five-year for $1.6 million."

Borg may consider comeback, friend reports

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Bjorn Borg is reportedly considering a comeback, but his would-be Swedish practice partner said today that he had no idea when and where Borg planned to start training seriously again.

"I haven't talked to him for a while. But we played two weeks ago and I can tell you he looked good considering the long layoff," Rolf Norberg said.

"But I really don't know if he is thinking about a serious comeback — if he's willing to practice four hours daily again," said Norberg, who teamed with Borg on the Swedish Davis Cup champion team in 1975.

Borg told reporters Monday in Munich, West Germany, that he will play some minor tournaments next year, according to press reports here. Several Swedish newspaper front-paged Borg's comeback plans.

"I'm missing tennis a lot," Borg was quoted as saying. "But I have no plans to play the majors, like Wimbledon or the U.S. Open, next year."

The U.S. Open is the only major championship that Borg failed to win in his amazing career. He reached the finals four times — 1976, 1978, 1980 and 1981.

Borg, who won the Wimbledon title five straight times 1976-1980 and captured the French Open an unprecedented six times, retired from the game at age 27 last spring.

He played his last Grand Prix tournament in his Monte Carlo residence and was eliminated by Henri Leconte of France in the quarterfinals.

Local all-stars win

ABILENE — Big Spring American sneaked by Lubbock Dixie 6-5 in a 13-year-old all-stars sectional game Monday night.

Big Spring had a 3-1 lead until the top of the fourth when Lubbock tied the game. Lubbock went ahead in the top of the sixth 5-3.

In the bottom of the seventh, Big Spring's Brant Nichols led off with a single to center field. The next batter, Felix Rodriguez, took one strike as Nichols stole second.

Rodriguez then singled to center, scoring Nichols. Jay Fryar's sacrifice moved Rodriguez to third.

Rodriguez tied the game on Heath Wear's squeeze play. Wear went to second when no one was covering the bag, then moved to third on Aron Allen's single.

Lee Morris' shot to shortstop scored Wear to win the game 6-5.

Big Spring's pitchers were Jay Fryar, Felix Rodriguez and Brant Nichols. Nichols is credited with the save.

Top batters for Big Spring were Brant Nichols with a double and a single, Aron Allen with two singles, and Rodriguez, Fryar and Teddy Molina with singles each.

ARLINGTON (AP) — With three runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to move ahead 5-4, the struggling Texas Rangers thought they had the game won.

But they hadn't heard from Dave Winfield yet.

With two outs in the ninth and a 3-2 count, the highly paid Yankee left-fielder smashed an Odell Jones fastball for a two-run triple, beating Texas 6-5 Monday night and bruising the struggling Rangers' spirits.

"This one is a tough loss. We could have won and gotten off (at the start of a three-game series) on the right foot," said Texas starter Mike Smithson, who left without a decision after seven innings.

The win moved the Yankees into a four-way tie for first place in the American League East with Baltimore, Detroit and Toronto. It is the first time this year New York has been in first.

"We know we have come a long way," said Winfield, who collected his 14th game-winning run batted in to lead the league. "But we have a long way to go. We played poor to mediocre baseball the first couple of months."

"Our division — I think it is the best in baseball," Winfield said. On June 15, New York was 6 1-2 games behind, but the Yankees have since won 10 of 11.

"We're a tough ballclub from the seventh inning on," manager Billy Martin said after the nationally televised game.

"They (the Yankees) are playing good. They're playing like they did in spring training. We played good in spring training and then we started the season and we didn't get the pitching or the hitting," Martin said. The pitching Monday night came from Dave Righetti, who allowed only two hits and two unearned runs through seven innings, and reliever Goose Gossage, 8-3.

The hitting came from Winfield and Don Baylor, who had three hits and two RBIs.

Trailing 5-4 in the ninth, New York's Rick Cerone and Don Mattingly singled, chasing reliever John Butcher, 2-3. Jones struck out Graig Nettles for the second out before Winfield lined his triple to right-center field.

"He's gotten a lot of big hits for us," Martin said of Winfield. "But they all have been coming through runs and Rich Dotson allowed just three hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Richard Dotson, 10-6, allowed but three hits, struck out two and walked three in 6 2-3 innings. Salome Barojas, Kevin Hickey and Dennis Lamp finished up, with the latter gaining his fourth save.

Angels 5, Orioles 2
 In Anaheim, Reggie Jackson, Mike Brown and Bob Boone socked home runs to power California over Baltimore. Tommy John, 8-7, who had lost five of six decisions, gave up seven hits in 7 2-3 innings before being relieved by Andy Hassler, who picked up his third save.

Twins 17, Brewers 3
 In Minneapolis, Tom Brunansky keyed a 15-hit attack with two home runs as Minnesota bombed the Brewers with their biggest run total of the season. Frank Viola, 5-7, gained the victory while Mike Caldwell, 7-8, never got out of the third inning.

Royals 6, Indians 1
 In Kansas City, Amos Otis greeted reliever Bud Anderson with a two-run single, highlighting a three-run seventh inning that carried Kansas City over Cleveland.

Paul Splittorff gave up four hits through six innings and improved his 9-3 while Dan Quisenberry pitched the final three innings to earn his 24th save, tops in the majors.

Red Sox 3, A's 0
 In Oakland, Boston left-hander Bruce Hurst pitched a five-hitter and Dwight Evans hit his 19th homer of the season to lead the Red Sox over Oakland.

White Sox 7, Blue Jays 4
 In Toronto, Chicago beat the Blue Jays as Harold Baines drove in four home runs and two more runs in the eighth seemed to have put the game away for Atlanta.

But singles by Junior Ortiz, Dave Kingman, Hubie Brooks and Keith Hernandez brought up Foster with two outs, two on and the score 4-3. He ripped Steve Bedrosian's 2-2

Mel Hall almost didn't play for the Cubs after injuring his ankle crashing into a wall Sunday.

But the Chicago center fielder tapped and iced it and ended up with "my biggest hit of the year" — a bases loaded triple that was the key hit in the Cubs' seven-run fifth inning that cancelled a 2-0 Dodger lead.

Cards 9, Giants 4
 St. Louis got five runs in the first, stormed out to a 9-0 lead and was never in trouble as Hendrick broke a one-for-27 slump with three hits, including a two-run homer.

for us."

The Rangers, 5-14 since the All-Star break, have now lost 18 games this season by one run.

"I guess if there is any encouraging sign it is that we are losing one- and two-run games," said Texas left-fielder Billy Sample, sitting in a solemn Texas clubhouse. "We are not that far off all eight cylinders. We are by no means out of it and we just have to keep battling."

The Rangers had moved in front 5-4 with a three-run rally in the eighth capped by Buddy Bell's two-run single.

In Toronto, Chicago beat the Blue Jays as Harold Baines drove in four

Parker's hits pummel Padres

Dave Parker, cobra turned garter snake, is poison again for National League pitchers. It's no coincidence that the Pittsburgh Pirates have surged into first place in the National League East.

"It looks like Dave's found the coil in the cobra," Steve Garvey of the San Diego Padres said Monday night after Parker had three hits, including a two-run homer, and two RBIs as the Pirates downed the Padres 6-3.

"He's swinging the bat well. He's more aggressive than he was in the early part of the year and he has good timing, bat speed, and is hitting the ball in the alleys. It's very timely for the Pirates to have him hitting like that."

Mets 5, Braves 4
 Mike Jorgensen broke a 1-1 tie with a seventh-inning pinch-hit home run and two more runs in the eighth seemed to have put the game away for Atlanta.

But singles by Junior Ortiz, Dave Kingman, Hubie Brooks and Keith Hernandez brought up Foster with two outs, two on and the score 4-3. He ripped Steve Bedrosian's 2-2 pitch off the left-field wall and the tying and winning runs scampered home.

Expos 2-8, Reds 4-1
 Dawson had homers in each game, his 20th and 21st of the season to go with 75 RBIs.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"BUT WILL IT HELP ME KEEP TRACK OF DENNIS?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Mommy! Billy's bein' Mr. T!"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: One is too apt to have a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude today without really knowing the reason why and it is important that one keep cheerful and not become grumpy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although you may feel hemmed in, maintain your equilibrium and get as much done as you possibly can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't rely so much on your friends today since they have many worries of their own to contend with.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not a day to go to bigwigs for favors, since they are not in the right mood. Keep busy at your career work.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care you do not go off on a tangent that could prove very costly in more ways than one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make collections and pay bills that are pressing and don't argue with a creditor, or a debtor, as you are tempted to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't have a long conversation with a partner. Moot points of the past can be brought up, so stick to the present.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to make changes in your surroundings, but this is not the right day for that. Avoid arguments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your plans for a good time seem to have gone awry so take it easy and enjoy inexpensive fun later. Watch your money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not make any comments that could jeopardize your foundational interests. Double check everything you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Others are apt to drive quite erratically today, so be on the lookout for the other fellow and drive carefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your financial status may not be so good today but study some way of improving it. Avoid feelings of depression.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get into something that will perk up your spirits since you feel discontented. Try to help one in dire straits.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand the troubles and needs of mankind. Slant the education along lines of social service, medicine, government agencies, etc. Teach to be optimistic. There is a tendency to take suffering to heart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Summer home bounces to rock beat

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — Roll over Beethoven. The Boston Symphony's summer home at Tanglewood was bouncing to the beat of blaring tape decks and guitars as fans lined up for rock concert tickets.

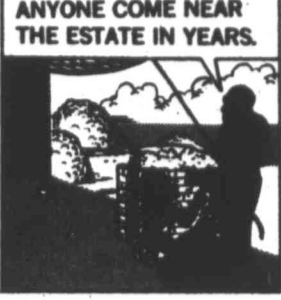

"We've got about 200 out there now strumming guitars and listening to tapes and the box office doesn't open until 10," said music festival employee Paul Fitzgerald shortly after 8 a.m. Monday. "They are having a great time."

Young people turned out as early as 6 a.m. for the start of ticket sales for a series of Labor Day weekend concerts featuring Willie Nelson and rock artists Bette Midler and Neil Young.

"It's a madhouse. We've never had anything like this," said ticket seller Fred Bredice from the box office.

SIGN OF THE DAY

27-year-old woman is full-fledged captain

MIAMI (AP) — In a corner of a cabin on the bridge of the cruise ship Sunward II is a bottle of clear nail polish and an emery board, the only clues that the first officer is a woman.

Ingerid Bjercke is fourth in command on the 492-foot, 14,110-ton Norwegian Caribbean Lines ship. As such, she is responsible for the 300-member crew and up to 850 passengers who take three- and four-day cruises from the Port of Miami to the Bahamas.

Miss Bjercke is also a full-fledged captain who spends part of her summers skippering the Skiblandner, a 206-ton, sight-seeing, steam-powered paddle-wheeler, across Lake Mjosa, the largest lake in her native Norway.

This veteran mariner is only 27.

"I have a slogan," she said. "You always regret the most what you don't do." Going to sea, she explains, was her dream since she began as a ticket collector on the Skiblandner when she was 16.

Still, the dream fulfilled, she wonders about her future.

"I'm so happy now, but in my private thoughts I sometimes think about being married and having children," she mused in a recent interview. "I'm scared of the thought of spending the last 30 years of my life alone."

"And yet, there are days when I go crazy being at home. It's difficult to explain this kind of life. I couldn't tell other women to go out and do the same."

"She's a fine worker," said Capt. Gunnar Oien. "She's probably the only woman deck officer on a cruise ship in the Free World today. Conceivably, she could become the first woman to captain a cruise ship."

Her road to the bridge on the gleaming tour ship was a tough one. After high school, she went to sea as an apprentice seaman on cargo vessels, chipping paint and doing all the other menial chores required of rookie mariners.

She was the only woman on long voyages to the Far East, the Indian Ocean, the Red Sea and across the Atlantic. One seven-month trip took her around the world.

"The personal side of my life was difficult," she said with a grin, "but I learned to make the crew respect me."

In June 1981, she finished navigation school. After three more months at sea, she enrolled in master's school and graduated the following June with captain's papers for limited tonnage ships.

As was her practice each summer, she returned to the Skiblandner. This time she signed on as chief officer. One month later, she was made relief captain.

Her white uniform with two full gold stripes on the epaulettes includes a skirt — "I know I look better in one," she said. Around her neck she wears a thin gold chain and anchor, a gift from her father.
