EVERYBODY WINS — Jamie Scott of Kansas received a second place ribbon for competing in the horseback riding competition at the National Cerebal Palsy Games being held in Fort Worth through Thursday.

Cerebral palsy victims' spirits high in athletics

By CHRISTOPHER EVANS Fort Worth Star Telegram

FORT WORTH - In elementary school, Kim Davis endured taunts from classmates who called her clumsy and "a flunker." Later came leg surgery and arm surgery and therapy and the frustration that goes with fighting a condition with no known cure.

"In P.E., I was always the last one when we'd run the 600," she says. "I don't have many good memories from elementary school and junior high. When people said things it hurt. But by the 10th grade, I could run up and down the stairs. From the 10th grade on, those are the best years, I've had. Now, the only time I really notice it is at school.'

"It" is cerebral palsy, a condition that in Davis' case is congenital. "It" is damage to the left hemisphere of the brain that translates into limited control over her right arm and leg.

AND "IT" belies what Miss Davis is today: a bright 18-year-old Arlington High School senior-to-be with hazel eyes and chestnut hair. A confident woman who talks about prospective boyfriends and plans for college and a career. An athlete.

And when the 1983 National Cerebral Palsy games opened Saturday, she carried the ritual torch to open the six-day event at Amon Carter Stadium on the Texas Christian University campus.

She also is competing in the shot put, the discus, the 100-yard dash and the 800-yard relay. She is, she says, within three inches of the world CP record for the shot put and within about three feet of the world mark for

Davis is among about 800 athletes from 32 states, Denmark and Canada competing this week. They qualified not simply by competing, but by winning and showing that they belong here. Each athlete has cerebral palsy.

Winning in Fort Worth means a chance to go to the International Games for the Disabled in New York.

'This will be the largest scale gathering of individuals with cerebral palsy anywhere," said Carol Adams, sports coordinator for the national meet. "It's much bigger even than the (1984) International (Games for the Disabled) Meet, because in international competition, you've screened out all but the best ones."

Of the games, Adams says, they are not to be confused with Special

"In Special Olympics, they have the philosophy of 'everyone's a winner'," she said, "Our games, while we believe in the recreational benefits, are competitive athletics to the max.

In each event, there's only one first-place winner, only one secondplace winner and one third-place winner. When we talk about the CP games, we're not talking about a big social gathering of people, we're talking about the top CP athletes in the country. They're here with one thing in mind — winning."

The CP Games also differ from Special Olympics in that they don't enjoy the funding benefits afforded Special Olympics by such heavyweight benefactors as New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and the

Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation. THE CP GAMES, at this point, are more of a grassroots project in terms of funding — Miller Lite nationally, and the Junior League of Fort

The national games are sponsored jointly by the Fort Worth Parks and Recreation Department and United Cerebral Palsy of Tarrant

The logistics are not simple with an event that involves more than 2,150 people, including coaches, officials and "team care volunteers."

"The Junior League provided $18,000, plus four placements who've been working with us for several weeks and another 10 people to help us during the week of the games," said Jamy Black McCole, co-director for the National CP Games. "Basically, what they've done is give us that many more staff people we wouldn't ordinarily have. But we've also gotten a lot of help from church groups, scouts and softball teams, that sort of groups.

Water, water everywhere but county's crops still dry

From staff and wire reports

Almost two inches of much-needed rain fell in Big Spring Sunday, but it didn't fall where it was needed most — on the county's cotton fields.

The late afternoon thunderstorm stayed within city limits and caused some minor problems at construction on Birdwell and Goliad.

Red Thomas reported 11/2 inches at his place on 13th and Main and there were unofficial reports of as much as three inches in the central and western parts of town. But the official count at the Big Spring Experiment Station was only

That was more than was recorded out in the county. Larry Shaw in northwest Howard County said he received only a trace.

'We sort of missed it," he said this morning. We got a drizzle, but it wasn't measurable.

Neither was that received in the Knott community, according to Cindy Hopper.

'We had a trace, that was all," she said. "All it did was bring the humidity up. Shaw said farmers in the county could have used an inch or more of steady rain. "It's needed. The underground moisture is pretty good, but we better get some good rain in the next three weeks or so," he said. No measurable rain was reported at Moss Lake, Forsan or the Elbow community and only light rain was reported in Coahoma. O.H. Ivie of the Colorado Municipal Water

District said a half-inch of rain fell at Lake

Thomas in southeast Borden County. No rain was reported at Lake Spence.

But in Big Spring the rain fell hard and fast. Big Spring Public Works Director Tom Decell said debris was washed from ditches where water and gas lines are being placed on Goliad and Birdwell.

City workers barricaded effected areas, but repairs to the construction were completed last night by the contractor, Permian Utilities, and Decell also said the intersection at Owens and First streets was impassable for a time.

Mostly fair skies were the rule across Texas today as a few thundershowers developed over the Gulf of Mexico off southern regions of the state.

'That's hogwash'

Reagan denies action against women, blacks

ATLANTA (AP) - President Reagan, in the face of growing criticism from feminists and minority groups, today defended his efforts for women and said criticism of his firing of half the members of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission was just "hogwash."

Speaking to the annual convention of the American Bar Association, Reagan said, "I reaffirm today our unshakable commitment to eliminate discrimination against blacks, women, the handicapped and other minorities."

In particular, the president responded to criticism of his decision to replace three of the six Civil Rights Commission members with nominees sympathetic to his opposition to racial quotas and school busing to achieve integration.

'My nominating them supposedly compromises the independence of the commission," Reagan said. "Forgive me, but that's hogwash."

president said that the late President Kennedy had tried, through appointments, to liberalize the commission and that former Presidents Johnson and Carter had named individuals who reflected their philosophy of how to achieve the goal of civil rights for all Americans.

"So isn't it strange that we never heard in the past this charge about compromising the independence of the commission?" Reagan asked.

He said the nominees are independent of the administration. but that ."they don't worship at the altar of forced busing and mandatory quotas. They don't believe you can remedy past discrimination by mandating new discrimination."

Reagan said that racial violence and civil rights violations are "among the most heinous intrusions upon individual liberty" and said his administration has filed more than 100 cases charging criminal violations of civil rights laws.

He pointed out that he has proposed stiffening enforecement provisions of the Fair Housing Act and signed into law the longest extension of the Voting Right Act.

Reagan said his administration is also committed "to eliminating all traces of discrimination in the law against women" — even though he opposes the Equal Rights Amendment.

In recent years, he said, the socalled income tax "marriage penalty" has been greatly reduced, the maximum child care tax credit for working mothers has been enlarged, the estate tax has been eliminated for surviving spouses and larger contributions for individual retirement accounts for working women have been authorized.

In addition, he said, his adwomen than any other to top policy

$25,000 lost in C-City water leak

COLORADO CITY (SC) About 500,000 gallons of water spilled over a highway in western Colorado City late Saturday after a split developed in a 16-inch water main.

The crack, which was measured at 10 inches, was discovered when instruments at the water filtering plant indicated a massive leak. The split was located about 6 a.m. Sunday, and repaired about 3 p.m., according to City Manager Rick

Director of Public Works Buzz Rich said the water lost was valued at $25,000 and repair expenses would cost more than

The cracked cast-iron water line carried a large amount of Colorado City's water supply. It was purchased from the federal government when Abilene's Camp Barkeley, a military installation, as deactivated.

Water service was disrupted slightly Sunday, but use of the city's water storage tanks kept the problems to a minimum.

Service was back to normal by the evening.

Nation watches as Texas picks textbooks

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is opening a new chapter in the way it selects textbooks for its schools, by hearing from people who favor buying certain titles as well as from book

Texas is the nation's largest single purchaser of textbooks. The books are such big business here that Pulitzer Prize-winning author James Michener, a former textbook editor, observed "as Texas and California go, so goes the nation."

If a publisher must change a book to sell it to Texas, the changes usually will be included in the book wherever it is sold. If a book fails to sell in Texas, the publisher may decide not to publish it at all. The process by which Texas selects the books was to resume today with the first textbook committee hearing of the year. Local school districts may use state funds to buy only those books approved by the Board of Education, which will vote on committee recommendations in November.

Lynn Hise, superintendent of Big Spring schools, is attending the

This year for the first time, the 27-member textbook committee will hear public testimony for - as well

The change, enacted by the Legislature, was proposed by People for the American Way, a national anti-censorship group.

People for the American Way contends that people like textbook critic Norma Gabler want to rid schools of materials that encourage thinking and discussion not consistent with their own orthodox views.

Mrs. Gabler once complained to a textbook committee that a fifthgrade history book devoted 61/2 pages to Marilyn Monroe while mentioning George Washington on-

"Is Texas ready for Marilyn Monroe to become the mother of our country?" she asked.

Texas will be buying nearly $36.3 million worth of new books in such subjects as algebra, world history, French, Latin and construction trades. Replacements for worn-out and lost books, Braille books, freight and other costs will raise the bill to $65.5 million.

Fifty-six groups and individuals, including Mrs. Gabler and her husband Mel, a retired Exxon clerk, have asked to speak to the committee, which scheduled testimony

Coahoma hires dog catcher

The Coahoma city officials are reminding pet owners that animal vaccinations must be done annually to be effective.

The city has hired an animal warden who has been instructed to pick up all dogs running at large without rabies vaccination tags beginning Aug. 1.

All animals not having a tag will be impounded and a $7.50 will be charged for release of the animal. If no one claims the pet in 72 hours, it will be destroyed.

Also upon any written complaint against an animal, the owner will be warned to confine to animal. Failure to obey the warning will result in the animal being impounded at the owner fined.

Reagan was strongly critized last week after he defended his record on women. "I will match our record against any other administration that has ever been here with regard to what we have accomplished for women," Reagan had told a televised news conference

Mary Gray, head of the Women's Equity Action League, a non-profit research and lobbying group, said, 'No matter how hard the president tries, his commitment to women's rights is no more than a public relations fabrication." The women's group said Reagan has been unfairly claiming credit for legislative achievements in regard to taxes, Individual Retirement Accounts and child care.

Reagan's record also was denounced by the National Organization for Women and the National Women's Political Caucus, which disputed the president's assertion that he has appointed more than 1,000 women to federal executive jobs - a record he said was better than that of President Carter.

NEW YORK (AP) - The cost of a year at college will be up an average 10 percent this fall, and the most expensive school will be Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with a tab of more than $15,000, according to a survey by The College Board.

The figures show that average costs at public colleges or universities for students who live on campus will rise 7 percent over the 1982-83 school year, to $4,721. Live-in students at private schools can expect to pay 11 percent more on average, or $8,440.

Those costs, as calculated in the annual survey, include tuition and fees, room and board, books and supplies, transportation and personal expenses.

The College Board study, released Saturday, also found that a year at highly selective M.I.T. will cost more than any other college in the nation — $15,130, up from $13,500 last year.

The remaining schools in the top 10 in terms of anticipated 1983-84 costs were Bennington College, $14,910; Harvard-Radcliffe, $14,700; Yale, $14,500; Princeton, $14,445; Tufts, $14,183; Brown, $14,145; Sarah Lawrence, $14,105; Dartmouth, $14,093, and Stanford, $14,039.

The board study also reported that students commuting to two-year public colleges will pay 8 percent more this September, or an average of $3,400. Residents at those schools can expect to pay $3,868. Those who commute to four-year public colleges will also pay about 8 percent more, or $3,797. College costs are rising far faster than inflation. Consumer prices were up 3.9 percent in 1982 and grew at only a 3 percent annual rate for the first five months of this year. The college cost increases this fall follow rises of 11 percent on average in each of the previous two years. Higher education officials, such as Kathleen Brouder, associate director of the board's College Scholarship Service, generally explain that "many colleges are still playing 'catch-up' after a decade of inflation." She argues that college costs over most of the 1970s rose at a slower rate than consumer prices 'Most have earmarked part of their tuition increase

U.S. envoy, Salvador rebel leader meet

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — U.S. special envoy Richard Stone met with a Salvadoran rebel leader the first such high-level contact by the Reagan administration — then shuttled back and forth to El Salvador to try to get peace negotiations started, of-

Stone's meeting Sunday with Ruben Zamora, a director of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, was announced by Colombian President Belisario Betancur, who said he acted as a "go-between" in arranging the encounter at the presidential palace.

Zamora's front is a coalition of five left-wing organizations opposing the U.S.-backed government in El Salvador, wracked by a guerrilla insurgency for "This is a new effort in the process of the search for peace in Central America," Betancur said.

Stone, on his third trip to Latin America in a month, left El Salvador late Sunday, reportedly en route back to Colombia. He planned to travel to Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, this afternoon at the invitation of Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, and it was not known if his contact with Zamora would alter that Colombian sources said the Stone-Zamora meeting was arranged by Guillermo Ungo, president of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, who met with Betancur last week. Betancur disclosed Sunday that Ungo gave him a proposal for peace intended for Salvadoran officials and Latin American nations trying to mediate

Betancur refused to disclose details of the proposal. However, sources said the proposal involved the establishment of a four-member negotiating committee — two from the government and two from the rebel

The meeting with Zamora culminated weeks of diplomatic efforts by Stone, who was stymied in earlier attempts to meet with rebel leaders.

After seeing Zamora, Stone flew to El Salvador, where he met for two hours with President Alvaro Magana and the nine-member Political Commission, El Salvador's highest government body He declined comment upon leaving the meeting at Magana's residence.

"I know there is a great deal of interest but I cannot make anY comment at all," he said on leaving the twohour meeting with the commmission.

The State Department in Washington also said it would have no comment.

A member of the Salvadoran political commission, Francisco Quinones, said the government was "excited" about Stone's talks with the left, but said Stone was not acting as a mediator between the left and the Salvadoran government.

EL PASO (AP) - For the second time in four months, a military fighter jet has crashed and caught fire while making a refueling stop at El Paso International Airport.

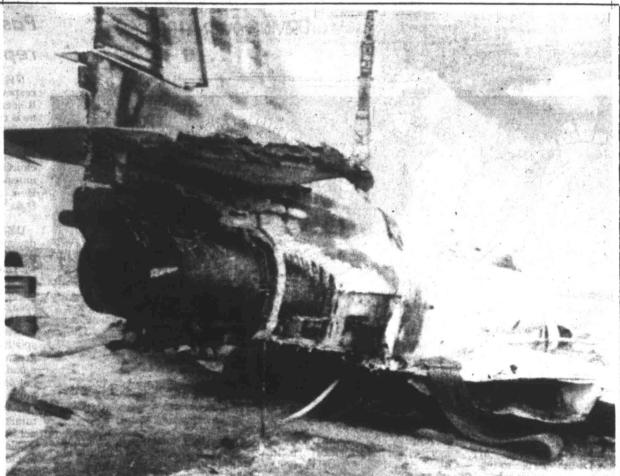

The pilot, Marine Reserve Maj. Tom Turner, of South Weymouth, Mass., ejected shortly after his one-seater A-4M hit the runway and burst into flames Sunday

Turner's only injury was a minor cut to his elbow, but an ambulance whisked him to Beaumont Army Medical Center for a thorough examination, authorities said.

Turner's plane was one of at least four A-4Ms en route from South Weymouth, Mass., to Yuma, Ariz., on a training mission.

A few hours after the crash, Turner returned to the airport's Transient Terminal for a debriefing. He said he was feeling "a little shaken up — but fine."

Later he said the crash apparently occurred because the jet lost power moments before landing.

Maj. Bill Sanvidge, the pilot investigating the crash, said the power loss caused Turner to lose altitude faster than normal.

After he touched down, the landing gear broke off and the plane slid on its belly to the side of the runway, he said. Bob Guidry, airport public relations manager, said the wreckage probably would be moved Mon-

Federal officials chartered the Mid-Cities National Bank on Sunday to take over the Metro Bank that Texas Banking Commissioner Robert E. Stewart ordered closed Friday because of substantial loan

The new owners, three men from Borger and two from Lubbock, agreed to pay the government an $850,000 purchase premium, said FDIC spokesman Alan Whitney in Washington.

Mid-Cities will assume about $29.9 million in deposits and other liabilities and buy the failed bank's securities, installment loans and "certain other assets," Whitney said.

In turn, the FDIC will advance the new bank $17.3 million in cash and retain $20.2 million in assets, he said.

Whitney said the transaction "avoids the necessity of a payoff of the estimated 2,400 accounts in the failed bank."

"It also prevents possible financial loss to the owners of deposits that exceed the insurance limit of $100,000," he said.

"The FDIC approved the deposit assumption under its authority to do so whenever it determines that such a transaction will reduce the potential loss to the corporation," the agency said. "Such Stewart said Sunday that the Mid-Cities was the only one of several bids that the FDIC received that was acceptable.

"I don't know how much the other bids were," he said in a telephone interview from Austin. "I know that they were substantially lower than than what the FDIC needed to accomplish this. They (the Mid-Cities bank owners) didn't real ly have any competitors.'

Stewart had said Metro Bank had lost $6.5 million to $7 million because of poor lending practices.

The banking commission said banks are declared insolvent when their loan losses far exceed equity capital.

Metro Bank, in a published statement of condition as of June 30, listed its total assets at $36.3 million, its equity capital at $1.95 million, its total liabilities at $32.6 million and its allowance for possible loan and investment loss at $1.7 million.

U.S. attempts to open Israeli-Lebanese talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - President Reagan's new Middle East envoy, Robert C. McFarlane, opened talks today on the deadlocked Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement but Syria vowed to keep its forces pitted against Israeli units in Lebanon.

McFarlane met at the presidential palace with Lebanese Foreign Minister Elie Salem and President Amin Gemayel's national security adviser, Wadi Haddad, the state radio reported.

The radio said McFarlane would meet later with Gemayel and Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan in a fresh effort to break the stalemate over foreign troop withdrawals.

Gen. John Vessey, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, met with Gemayel on Sunday night, and was scheduled to confer with Lebanese commanders today. The Beirut newspaper An Nahar said Vessey was discussing ways of strengthening Lebanon's army.

Syrian President Hafez Assad marked his country's Army Day today by vowing to keep his 50,000 troops in Lebanon until the Israeli army pulls out unconditionally.

"As long as the Israeli invasion of Lebanon continues, our armed forces will stay to confront the usurpers over Lebanese soil as part of the wider confrontation of the Arab-Israeli conflict," Assad said.

It was Army Day in Lebanon, too, and the top commander, Gen. Ibrahim Tannous, said in the order of the day to his 32,000 soldiers and officers he was confident they would extend government control beyond Beirut to the rest of Lebanon.

"Your dream is to extend sovereignty over every inch of Lebanese territory," Tannous said. "Today it is Beirut and tomorrow the mountains and the day after it will be the north, the south and the Bekaa.

Beirut newspapers speculated that McFarlane would propose a disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley and urge the Lebanese government to take charge of civil affairs in Israeli-occupied southern Lebanon after the Israeli army implements its redeployment plan.

The Israelis plan to leave the central mountain regions and redeploy south of the Awali River, about 27 miles north of the Israeli border.

McFarlane, 46, was appointed July 22 to replace Philip C. Habib as the top U.S. negotiator for the Middle East and flew to Beirut Sunday on the first stop of a six-nation tour. Details of his schedule were not disclosed, but he is expected to visit Syria, Israel, Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Jordan during his trip.

The Syrians, who have blocked the U.S.-sponsored withdrawal agreement by refusing to remove their troops from Lebanon, had reduced Habib's effectiveness by spurning his last effort to visit Damascus for talks.

Syria has not indicated that it might also reject McFarlane, but the official Syrian news agency quoted Assad as saying his nation "will foil" the withdrawal pact, which he termed a "contract of submission."

Tangled web of tobacco controls

On one hand the tobacco industry continues to belittle research that shows cigarettes are a leading cause of heart disease, lung cancer and emphysema and that smoking during pregnancy results in miscarriages, premature births and underweight babies.

And on the other hand, the tobacco industry fights tooth and nail for a complicated system of federal loans, allotments, quotas and price suports for its growers despite the fact tobacco surpluses increase each year.

The government's efforts to help tobacco farmers is comphicated and counterproductive. While providing tobacco farmers with low-cost loans, the government, since last year, is tharging them to help pay for storage and other costs of surplus tobacco. The aid program is so distorted it is harming farmers rather than helping them.

ONE OF THE WORST mistakes by the government is the tobacco allotment system — requiring licenses to sell all but three of the 20 types of tobacco grown in the United States. These allotments specify the number of acres that can be planted in tobacco and the number of pounds the grower may sell.

Allotments were originally assigned to the land on which farmers were growing tobacco. Now growers without such land grants must purchase the use of these allotments and quotas from the original owners, who hold them as if by royal decree.

In the case of burley and flue-cured tobaccos, there are about 200,000 actual producers who must rent growing and selling privileges from about 500,000 allotment holders.

Some sort of remedial legislation is expected to be taken by Congress this year. While congressmen from the tobacco states are fighting to retain federal support, many other members of Congress would like to see low-cost loans and production controls dropped immediately. Many Americans find it revolting that the government would involve itself at all with a crop that is under such heavy fire by health officials.

Corrective measures are needed and soon, but they must come in stages to keep from bankrupting thousands of small tobacco farmers in North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee.

One of the first steps Congress must take is the abolition of the allotment and quota system, replacing it with a lottery to decide who can continue to grow tobacco.

Then a schedule should be adopted for the gradual phase-out of all tobacco price supports over a 10-year period.

Nixon's ghost

I seriously considered leaving the country in 1968 when Richard Nixon was elected. + Hunter S. Thompson

I was thrown into a scurrilous funk last week watching "Summer Watergate" on public television. the program, a retrospective look at Watergate, brought back the emories of Nixon, John Ehrlichman, Bob Haldeman, John Mitchell and others trying to dodge the fact they had committed some of the most politically heinous drimes in the history of our country. I was driven to pacing my home and muttering dark oaths to the faces of Nixon's sinister henchmen they tesitified before the Senate Select Committee. It was obvious bese men had no limits when it chme to protecting their boss. It was apparent these men would have done anything to see their boss elected and re-elected to the Presidency

A line from the testimony is chough to drive home that fact. Sen. Talmadge: "Now, if the President could authorize a covert Break-in and you do not know exactwhere that power would be limited, you do not think it could inolude murder, do you?'

John Ehrlichman: "I do not know where the line is, Senator.

All through the show the image of Nixon hovered obscenely in the air. The man who wanted to be president so bad he stopped at nothing. The man who became so drunk with power he thought he could rise above the law.

The sad fact is that he just about did. He now has a California tan, a pension, Secret Service protection, a secretarial staff, an expense account - all courtesy of the taxpayer. And don't forget the $2 million he got for his memoirs. There's no denying we let him get away before the thumbscrews could be applied.

The opening of a wound as serious as Nixon naturally hurled me into the aforementioned funk. The only way I could scale my depression was to pore over the mad ravings of gonzo journalist Hunter S. Thompson, who is one of the all-time Nixon

I share with you several of Thompson's perceptions of Nixon.

 "Richard Nixon has never been one of my favorite people, anyway. For years I've regarded his very existence as a monument to all the rancid genes and broken chromosomes that corrupt the possibilities of the American Dream; he was a foul caricature of himself, a man with no soul, no inner convictions, with the integrity of a hyena and the style of a poison toad.

· "He speaks for the werewolf in us...At the stroke of midnight in Washington, a drooling, red-eyed beast with the legs of a man and a head of a giant hyena crawls out of its bedroom window in the south wing of the White House and leaps 50 feet down to the lawn...pauses briefly to strangle the Chow watchdog and then races off into the darkness...towards the Watergate snarling with lust, loping through the alley behind Pennsylvania Ave.

 "McGovern is one of the few men who've run for president of the U.S. in this century who really understands what a fantastic monument to all the best instincts of the human race this country might have been, if we could have kept it out of the hands of greedy little hustlers like Richard Nixon. McGovern made some stupid mistakes, but in context they seem almost frivolous compared to the things Richard Nixon does every day of his life, on purpose, as a matter of policy and a perfect expression of everything he stands for. Where will it end? How low do you have to stoop in this country to be president? • "The Nixon I remembered was absolutely humorless; I wouldn't imagine him laughing at anything except maybe a paraplegic who wanted to vote Democratic, but couldn't quite reach the lever on the voting machine.

...the name Nixon will seem to give off a strange odor every time it is mentioned for the next 300 years, and in every history book written from now on 'Nixon' will be synonymous with shame, corruption and failure."

Amen and let's hope so.

Pushing high-tech to China

WASHINGTON - Arthur Hummel Jr., the U.S. ambassador in Peking, played a major role in the secret campaign to let American firms sell high-technology equipment with military usefulness to the Chinese mainland

Hummel was born in China to American missionary parents and fought with the National Chinese in World War II. But now, in his dispatches to Washington, he portrays the Chinese Communist regime as an irreplaceable friend to be cultivated at all costs.

One highly-sensitive cable from Hummel was among more than 20 secret CIA and White House documents shown to my associate Dale Van Atta. A few of them were even classified with such exotic extra codewords as "HOMER."

Referring the the sale of high-tech items to China, Hummel compained that the existing restriction were too stringent, and claimed that Peking could circumvent them by purchasing technology for high-priority projects from other countries. So rather than lose contracts to U.S. competitors, the restrictions should be either relaxed or eliminated entirely, Hummel argued.

Hummel urged that China be put in the same category for high-tech exports as India — a suggestion that ignores the fact that India is a noncommunist democracy historically friendly to the United States. The ambassador strongly advocated the removal of nearly all national security controls on exports to China, even though he acknowledged that there is "some" risk in this.

That's putting it mildly. For the fact is that, with the kind of computers the Chinese can get under relaxed export controls, Peking could aim its nuclear missiles at U.S. targets instead of those inside the Soviet Union. Assuming eternal Sino-American friendship overlooks the dangerous possibility of eventual rapprochement between the two communist superpowers.

In fact, according to one topsecret intelligence estimate, the Chinese have already developed CSS-4 intercontinental missiles with 'an expanded nuclear targeting capability to include the continental United States." They will have 15 of these deployed by the end of the 1980s, the estimate states. Sophisticated American computers would make it easier for Peking to lob its nuclear warheads accurately on American targets

None of this even takes into consideration the dozens of nuclear missiles China already has that can rain destruction on our Pacific allies. Perhaps for this reason, U.S. officials have not consulted with our allies over lifting the export restrictions, according to my sources. Even an improvement in Chinese conventional military strength poses a threat to our Pacific friends, the Pentagon warns in a report that includes a geography lesson on proximity of China to our allies: 100 kilometers to Taiwan, 450 kilometers to Japan, 400 kilometers to the Philippines, etc.

But Ambassador Hummel, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and presidential science adviser George Keyworth have succeeded in having mainland China placed in the status of a "friendly non-allied" country. An inter-agency task force is now deciding exactly what hightech products the Chinese will be able to buy.

When the group's work is done early this month, its guidelines will be quietly placed in the Federal Register for public comment, as required by law. No press releases are planned.

NEXT TO GODLINESS: Except in situations of combat necessity, neatness counts in the armed services. And the Pentagon wants to make sure everyone gets the message, however, elementary. Consider a recent two-page memo spelling out neatness rules designed to create "the respect of visitors and guests and a sense of pride on the part of the employees." Here are some of the 15 tips:

- "Aisles should be kept clear to permit circulation between work areas to eliminate tripping hazards

The rules stop short of ordering Pentagon people to wash behind

Billy Graham

Pastor is repeating himself

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We respect our pastor a great deal, but it seems like Sunday after Sunday he is repeating essentially the same evangelistic message and has very little to say that will help us spiritually. Frankly, I'm afraid our church is going to wither away unless he begins to teach us more. How can we encourage him? -

DEAR D.A.: Your pastor undoubtedly feels a deep concern for people who may come to church but who have little idea about the meaning of the Gospel, and he is concerned to meet their spiritual need by speaking simply about the great truths of the Christian faith. However, he should not neglect the spiritual growth of others in the congregation, and if he does it will have a bad effect, not only on the church but on individual lives as well. The guide of any pastor should be the statement of Paul at the end of his ministry in Ephesus: "For I have not hesitated to proclaim to you the whole will of God" (Acts 20:27). His preaching included many appeals to those who did not know Christ, but he also was careful to instruct others so that when he left there would be a group of people who were spiritually mature.

You should bring your concern to the pastor, either directly or through those who are leaders in the congregation (such as the elders or deacons). He should know that you appreciate his concern for evangelism, although it might be good to have special services from time to time that are especially directed toward outsiders. He may be unaware of your concern, and if he is a godly and spiritually-mature man I believe he will listen to you. If there has been some lack in his education, perhaps the church will encourage him to take several weeks a year for further training common practice in many

But I don't want you to feel that everything is in the hands of your minister. After all, he alone can't do everything. What about other aspects of your church's activities, such as the Sunday schools or youth work? Every church needs dedicated people who will help in such areas and bring Bible teaching to others. And don't neglect your own personal study of the Bible and your times of prayer - including prayer for your pastor.

Don't rule out religious freedom

Dear Editor.

Mr. Briscoe, of the Herald staff, raises several interesting points regarding the U.S. Constitution in the Rim dated July 28, 1983. Several points mentioned therein are valid with respect to interpretation of the Constitution as intended by the authors. There is, however, a difference of opinion concerning many of the issues surfaced in the column.

If First Amendment rights are being violated as claimed, they are not being violated in the manner stated. Varying interpretations of the tenant respecting an establishment of relgion all contain the ideas of separation of church and state. Mr. Briscoe touches on of the most misunderstood provisions of this concept. Most people regard this to mean that the government is to remain outside the realm of a (or the) church. The same people, however, refuse to separate religious matters from matters of the state. This is at best a one-sided view, and from a purely Constitutional aspect, is not the spirit for which it was intended.

Deviation from this concept has been "ex more" for the 200-plus years since its adoption, and will continue perhaps for the entirety of the Republic. Concerned members of the "established religion" will take issue with any treatise which is contrary to their own, which has led to the misuse of the doctrine of separation of church and state.

There is one error regarding the "free exercise thereof" tenant of Mr. Briscoe's presentation. The Constitution is specific in its listing of basic freedoms. Freedom of religion has always been strongly adhered to in this country, as guaranteed in the First Admendment. It does not, however, guarantee freedom from religion.

The two areas are not identical. Nowhere is mentioned that anyone's right to freedom of religion had been breached, only that someone was present during the practice of a religion contrary to his own

To advocate the abstination of any religious practice simply because it is of an adverse nature, would truly be an example of a breach of the freedom of religion tenant expounded in the First Amendment. To voice displeasure at such a practice is one man's right; to claim violation of Constitutional right is without basis. There is a disparity of objective here in that while attempting to hide behind the First Amendment, Mr. Briscoe seeks to suppress the rights of others to the basic freedoms contained therein.

The reactions and comments contained in the Rim are not new, nor original in their origin. Whenever any entity has felt oppressed or deprived in matters such as these, there is always reference to the First Amendment.

Justice Felix Frankfurter has described the condition and his view of the situation thusly, "One who belongs to...persecuted minority in history is not likely to be insensible to the freedoms guaranteed by our Constitution. But as judges we are neither Jew nor Gentiles, neither Catholic nor agnostic."

It seems that it is not Constitutional rights that are in question, but that Mr. Briscoe's ideas toward the rights of others that are in need of review. Violation of First Amendment freedoms? Hardly. There is not mention of denial of his right to worship or not to worship, only his displeasure of the practice of another's freedoms. It is as fundamental as freedom of speech.

Would Mr. Briscoe claim violation of Constitutional freedom if someone spoke in a language different to his own? Should the Supreme Court muzzle a columnist from a rival newspaper only because his opinion was different from Mr. Briscoe's, under the guise of freedom of th press? These are fundamental and self-evident rights; freedoms that are inherent to all, not privileges to be taken from another. Sincerely,

T. PAUL HOPPER Knott, Texas

Editorial was 'right on'

Dar Editor, I was glad for that informative

editorial on Andropov's using little Samantha for propaganda purposes

I was also glad for the editorial on

"Shameful Conduct." At first, I did not agree with you that both should have been removed from office since Crane was evidently truly sorry and asked for the forgiveness of Congress.

But then I realized that if a crime had been against my sister, I could forgive him but that would not change the law's responsibility to punish for the crime.

Since Crane was not accused of rape, I wonder how much responsibility or blame lies with the girl, young though she was. I wonder if this was a planned incident meant to tarnish the Crahe name and thus limit Philip Crane's (the brother's) effectivenes

Anyway, thanks for taking a stand for right on these issues. Sincerely,

For you to equate tickling with sadism and torture makes it sound like something evil. Torture causes pain and damage to the body; tickling does not.

That kind of tickling goes beyond mutual agreement. When brute force is used, it is clearly sadistic and can hardly be compared with tickling a child who begs to be tickled. (You wouldn't pin the child down and continue to tickle her while she begged you to stop would you?)

Slim the abdomen

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have for some time been doing situps to try to tighten the muscles up in my stomach. I used to be 34 in the waist and have gone to 27 inches. I would like to know if doing situps will help get rid of my bulk stomach. No matter what I eat or how long I do the situps, I still can't seem to get rid fo the bulk stomach. Is there anything you could suggest to get rid of a bulk stomach? - R.E.M.

I am not too clear about what you mean by the term "bulk stomach," but you certainly have been successful in slimming your waistline. Now you have the problem of a slim waistline that doesn't match your bulky stomach; is that it? Continue your situps. They are good front-muscle strengtheners, and they will pay off ultimately. But don't neglect the side abdominal muscles. You have to do twisting manuevers at the hip to get those muscles toned up.

And you have to watch your posture. No amount of muscle toning will cancel out the effects of standing properly with your back pushing your stomach out. Posture training has improved many abdomen

You can make a check. Stand with your back against a wall and pass your hand through the gap made by the wall and the inward slope of your spine (the little hollow there). If there is a wide hollow, you probably can use some posture training. That requires more complex exercises than situps. Finally, you can help by doing your situps with your knees flexed instead of with the legs straight.

Terri Moore, a first-year starter at Baylor University, has transferred to Howard College where she will be eligible to play the second semester of the 1983-84 season

"She is a great player," says Hawk Queens coach Don Stevens of the 6-1 Waco Jefferson-Moore High School graduate. "She can do it all...handle the ball, jump, rebound, shoot...she is truly a complete player. She will be as good as the best in our conference.'

Because she is transferring, Moore will miss the Queens' first three Western Junior College Athletic Conference games during the fall semester. She started at guard for Baylor, averaging 8 points and five rebounds a game before sitting out last season.

He was the staff's stopper this past season as BSHS finished 14-14.

In addition to baseball, Rodriquez quarterbacked the Steer football team. Kolodzie both pitched and played in the outfield at Lee, gaining all-city notice and making the 27-AAAAA alldistrict team twice. He played in the 1982 high school all-star game in

The 6-1, 190-pound left-hander was 7-2 and recorded 103 strikeouts in 97 innings. At the plate, he batted .289 and hit four home runs.

The Miami Dolphins suffered a couple of losses in a Saturday scrimmage when cornerback Don McNeal ruptured his Achilles tendon and linebacker Steve Shull ruptured a ligament in his right knee. McNeal will be out for at least two months while Shull is out indefinitely.

McNeal led the Dolphins in interceptions last season while Shull, a reserve, was having a strong preseason.
"This is the difficulty you're in," said Miami Coach

Stephenson outlasts Carner's bid

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Jan Stephenson, to whom the U.S. Women's Open golf championship means

'everything," had her wish come true. The victory wagon shook, rattled and rolled, and in the end the wheels almost came off at the 31st U.S.

Women's Open golf championship. But the 32-year-old Australian managed to right herself Sunday and came away with what she described as the biggest victory of her celebrated career.

"I was choking. I was nervous. It would have been the most devastating thing to have lost it," she said after her final round 74 gave her a 290 total - 6-overpar — and a one shot victory over hard-charging JoAnne Carner and Patty Sheehan, the LPGA Classic champion who led after the first two rounds. Carner, the Hall of Famer who nearly missed the cut after a disastrous 10-over-par 81 on opening day, fired a 3-under 68 on Sunday — the lowest round recorded on the unforgiving Cedar Ridge Country Club course and came within a stroke of winning her third Open But the championship, the $32,780 first prize and a call from President Ronald Reagan ultimately went to the nerve-wracked Stephenson, who said she has dreamed of winning the Open ever since she was a schoolgirl in Australia.

U.S. Women's Open

"I haven't really made a secret of how much it means to me ... and all that was probably an understatement," she said. "It means everything."

The prestigious title nearly slipped through Stephenson's fingers, the champion taking a double-bogey on the par-4 third hole, a wicked dogleg that requires near-perfect placement of the tee shot, and another on the 520-yard, par-5 fifth.

"I hooked the ball in the water on both holes," she said. "I got flustered because I was hooking, and I've been hitting so well all week.

The bogey on No. 5 put her just two shots ahead of Carner, but the 43-year-old tour veteran, who has won nearly $170,000 this year, never came closer.

"I just couldn't keep it going," said Carner, a cool weather player who struggled in Tulsa's 100-degree temperatures and stifling humidity. "That's the hardest tournament I ever played.'

Stephenson redeemed herself with a birdie on the 12th hole and played defensive golf the rest of the way, accepting bogeys on the 17th and 18th holes when it was obvious her lead was secure.

"I was putting well in the pressure situations. That boosted my confidence. When I'm putting badly, I get worried," she said.

While Stephenson held her game together, two of her chief challengers could not.

Debbie Meisterlin, who had shot herself into contention with steady 72-73-73 rounds, blew to an 83 Sunday and finished at 301, 17 strokes over par.

Cook's putting silences Miller

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) - In the end, it was steady John Cook dropping a 10-foot birdie putt on the sixth hole of a sudden-death playoff to subdue Johnny Miller for the title in the Canadian Open Golf

But that was just one of the stories that unfolded Sunamatic wind-up of this national championship.

There was the drama of Miller himself, on the mend from gall bladder surgery and under doctor's orders "I wasn't supposed to play this week. The doctors said not to, said it's too soon," Miller said. There was Jack Nicklaus, who has won almost everything the game can offer — except this one. A five-time runner-up, he still hasn't won the Canadian Open. He came close again, missing the playoff by the margin of an 8-foot birdie putt that failed to fall on the

"How many times have I missed by one shot?" he asked, then answered his own question: "Too many."

There was Ralph Landrum, a club pro from Florence, Ky., the third-round leader, playing in his first tournament as a full-fledged member of the PGA Tour. Under pressure from some of the greatest names in the game, he refused to crack, shooting a closing round of 72 and finishing in a tie for fifth.

Canadian Open

And, too, there was Andy Bean, who missed the playoff by the margin of a frivolous little tap-in putt with the wrong end of the putter. That occurred on Saturday. It cost him a 2-stroke penalty. Bean, grimly determined to atone for that lapse, matched the best round on the tour this year with a 9-under-par 62 in the final round.

That left him two shots out of the playoff — the precise margin of the Saturday penalty.
"I didn't know the rule," Bean said. "Now I do. It was a mistake. I paid for it.' Miller, who won the Inverrary Classic and lost a playoff in Phoenix earlier this season, and Cook each birdied the final hole of regulation play to beat Nicklaus by a stroke with 277 totals, seven under par on the 7,060-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club course. Miller, who has played only seven rounds since May, had a closing 67. Cook shot 68, and got up and down from bunkers on the last three holes, the final time for

In the playoff, the first five holes were halved with pars, Cook twice lipping out 15-foot putts that would have ended it and Miller twice prolonging it with scrambling, one-putt efforts.

It ended on the 18th, the sixth extra hole, when Miller went for the green in two and pulled his second shot into the gallery. Cook, now a two-time winner in four years on the tour, hit his drive in a bunker, played out and put his third 10 feet below the cup on the waterguarded par-5.

Miller, with a difficult chip from a hillside, dumped his third in a bunker, then played out. "There was no way I was going to miss that putt," Cook said. He didn't. And it was the winner.

"Give him all the credit," Miller said. "He didn't crack one time. He looked like a machine out there." Nicklaus had a closing 67.

"I played the round I had to play to win—except I missed the putt on 18," he said. "Still, that's the best I've played since the Florida swing, and that's Bean finished in a tie with David Graham and Landrum at 279. Graham shot a final-round 69.

BALTIMORE (AP) - It's hard to imagine a starting pitcher with 7-5 record and three shutouts being relegated to the bullpen but that's just what may be in store Baltimore Oriole rookie Mike Boddicker.

With unbeaten Mike Flannigan slated to return to the roster this weekend, it is highly probable that Boddicker, who tossed a four-hitter at the Texas Rangers Sunday may be moved to the bullpen to make room for Flannigan in the starting

"I don't know if I'll stay in the (starting) rotation," said Boddicker after Baltimore won its fifth straight game with a 6-0 victory. "Chances are I might go to the bullpen because I can pitch out of there too

Baltimore Joe Altobelli remained noncommital as to where he might place the 25-year-old Boddicker when Flannigan returns. "I've been thinking about it, but I really don't know," said Altobelli. "When the time comes, I'll have the answer."

Yankees 12, White Sox 6

Ever since the ruling in the George Brett"Pine-Tar Incident" went against the New York Yankees, Manager Billy Martin feared a letdown by his team.

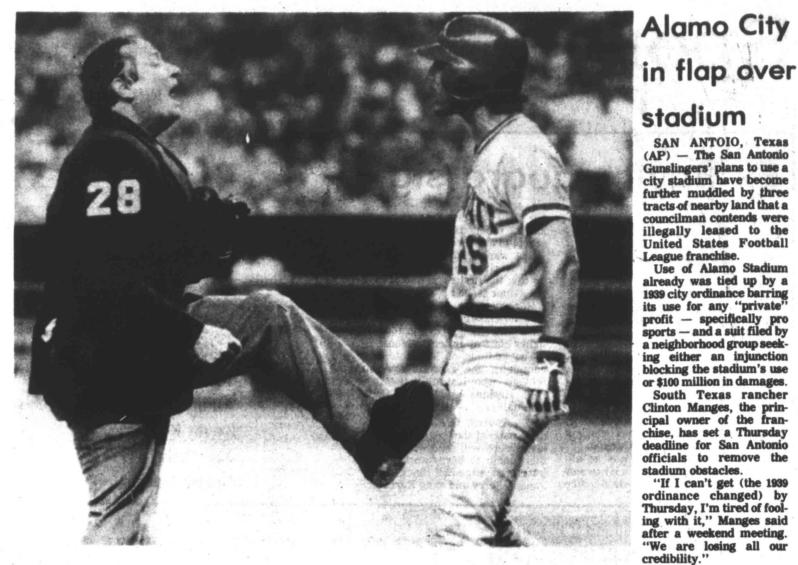

So he held a closed-door clubhouse meeting before Sunday's game with the Chicago White Sox.

"Billy told us we can come back and win if we're aggressive," said Don Baylor

No one was more aggressive than Baylor, whose grand-slam homer keyed a six-run 11th inning that carried the Yankees to a 12-6 victory.

Tigers 8-6, Royals 5-7

In Detroit, Alan Trammell hit a threerun double in the second inning and the Tigers went on to beat Kansas City in the first game of their doubleheader. Winner Dave Rozema, 8-1, worked the first five innings, giving up five runs on eight hits, before giving way to Aurelio Lopez who went the rest of the way and notched his

DeLeon went 8 1-3 innings without giving up a hit Sunday, but Mets starter Mike Torrez, who allowed eight hits in 11 innings, also blanked the Pirates long enough for the Mets to win the game 1-0 in the 12th and give them a sweep of a doubleheader

In these inflationary days, money is precious. Everybody yearns to find that pot of gold, but seems to overlook a source of money most families have. Yes, look in your attic, cellar or garage and you are sure to find remnants of childhood, things of yesterday not being used today. These items can be your pot of gold by
