

Lawyer leaves $30,000 — to 7 surprised judges

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A lawyer bequeathed $30,000 apiece to seven judges and one retired state justice, some of whom barely knew him and say they "never expected anything like this."

William H. Eckert, 81, former president of the Pennsylvania and Allegheny County bar associations, left the money for the judges from his $7 million estate. He died Christmas Day 1981.

Eckert, an expert on estate law, also left money for members of his immediate family, several attorneys, a former secretary and friends. He left only the family home in Rosslyn Farms to his wife, Josephine, saying he had provided for her during his lifetime.

Eckert's will was filed within weeks of his death but state inheritance tax forms were not filed until last month.

The will gives $30,000 apiece to U.S. District Judges Rabe F. Marsh and Joseph P. Willson; state Superior Court Judges William F. Cercone and Harry M. Montgomery and Allegheny County Judges Hugh Boyle, Loran Lewis and William Rahauser.

Henry X. O'Brien, retired chief justice of the state Supreme Court, also named in the will, said he was considering giving his inheritance to charity.

"He apparently thought some judges should be rewarded," said Willson, of Smethport. "I didn't know him that well and I never expected anything like this."

Marsh, a federal judge in Pittsburgh, said he was surprised by the bequest.

"I don't know why he left me any money," Marsh said. "He was a law professor of mine at Pitt (the University of Pittsburgh). We would go out to lunch about once a month, but he never had a case in my court."

"It was a surprise to me," said Cercone, presiding judge of the Superior Court. "Bill Eckert was unquestionably one of the best trial lawyers in Pennsylvania, although I never presided over one of his cases. ... I can't figure out why he remembered me in his will."

O'Brien, who retired in January, and Eckert were close friends.

"He was a tremendous lawyer, a fine, fine man. His thoughtfulness was a surprise to me," O'Brien said.

O'Brien, Boyle and Lewis said they had never heard of a lawyer remembering a judge in his will. O'Brien said he might discuss his idea of giving the money to charity with other judges.

Houstonians pick ugliest bartender

HOUSTON (AP) — Bartenders are saying "Ugly is as ugly does" this month, as they don strange make-up, fake noses and awful clothing in efforts to win the "Ugliest Bartender Contest."

The Houston chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society has equipped 160 bartenders across the city with "ugly kits" for the contest, set to begin Tuesday and last three weeks.

The kits include T-shirts, posters and buttons that sport the slogans "Let's Get Ugly" and "Think Ugly."

"Everybody has a beauty contest. This is a much more original and unusual idea," said Vicki Uchida, executive director of the chapter, one of about 100 that will be host of the contest this year.

"We once had an outstanding bartender contest," Ms. Uchida said, "and it just did not catch on."

No one's going to get their feelings hurt, she said.

"The bartenders don't necessarily have to be physically ugly," she said. "There are lots of things they can do to make themselves look ugly."

Governors warned of slower economy

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

PORTLAND, Maine — Economist Alan Greenspan warned the nation's governors Monday to expect a dramatic slowdown of the economic recovery in 1984 and called for a domestic summit to draft a bipartisan plan to cut federal budget deficits.

Greenspan said the current recovery is endangered by the budget deficits and high interest rates and predicted there is "no way to resolve this issue without paying political pain."

A former chief economic adviser to President Ford, Greenspan more recently served as chairman of the bipartisan commission that drafted a plan to bail out the Social Security system. He spoke at the 75th annual meeting of the National Governors Association, a conference marked by expressions of concern over the strength and durability of the economic recovery.

Also on the agenda was an appearance by William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Greenspan described the current recovery as "very vigorous" but said it was fueled by demand for goods that are "largely interest insensitive."

"We are getting a dramatic rise in types of consumer goods that do not require financing," he said.

But a sustained recovery would require long-term capital investment, which depends on lower interest rates, said the economist.

Such investment would be required early next year, he said, and "it's at that point we are going to find that the recovery is going to run down rather quickly."

"It is not going to end. It is not going to turn down. But the rate of increase is going to slow in a rather dramatic way."

Greenspan said the economy is hobbled by "a structural budget deficit which in the long run is something over $200 billion a year even with a fairly substantial recovery."

The Office of Management and Budget last week predicted a deficit of $209.8 billion for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, and said that the expanding economy would help trim the deficit to $179.7 billion in the 1984 fiscal year.

Greenspan added that "there is something terribly corrosive about this gnawing budget deficit."

To reduce it, he said, would require a combination of tax increases and spending cuts, including reductions in payments for entitlement programs in which benefits are set by law.

He acknowledged that action on entitlements is so politically sensitive it is unlikely before the 1984 elections.

But Vice President George Bush told the governors that the president remains opposed to any tax increases.

Gems: a risky business

BY LOUISE COON
Associated Press Writer

Diamonds may be a girl's best friend, but they're not always a consumer's best investment.

The Federal Trade Commission says thousands of people invest in diamonds and other gemstones each year, "lured by promises of immediate profits, with little or no risk." But it warns that the "promises can be misleading" and says amateur buyers can easily lose money.

The agency says anyone who wants to invest in the precious stones must first learn about the different grades, their market value and their potential for appreciation.

"The difference in the grade of gemstone (including size, color, clarity and cut) can make the difference between a good and bad investment," says the FTC.

Once you become familiar with the grades of stones available, you should compare the stones you are being offered with others on the market and find out what they are being sold for. Don't let yourself be pressured by someone who urges you to buy immediately or warns that an offer is good for a brief period only. Take the time to investigate the market. A good stone can be a bad investment if you pay more than you should.

Find out how prices have fluctuated in recent years for the specific grades of stones you are considering. Beware of vague or exaggerated promises like, "Diamonds have appreciated 300 percent in the last five years." The claim may refer to stones of a different grade.

If you get an unsolicited phone call or mail offer from a gemstone seller, contact state and local consumer protection offices, the postal inspector or the Better Business Bureau to find out about the firm. No matter who you deal with, get all the terms of the sale in writing, including information about return privileges or resale arrangements.

When you buy a gemstone, you probably will get a certificate describing its characteristics. The certificates generally are provided by laboratories established specifically to perform this kind of service. But the FTC says the certificate simply reflects the opinion of the lab doing the grading; other labs may have other opinions. Check the reputation of the lab before you buy. If your stone is accompanied by a certificate from a lab with a poor reputation you may have trouble selling it.

7-year-old tosses infant off of roof

NEW YORK (AP) — A 7-year-old boy hurled a 2-year-old neighbor to his death from the roof of a six-story building in New York City or no apparent reason, police said Monday.

"He told conflicting stories," said police Sgt. Joel Ascher, adding that none of the boy's explanations made sense.

The name of the older boy, a third grader, was withheld because of his age.

The 2-year-old, Reggie Clegg, was playing Sunday evening outside the Woodside Houses project in Queens where tenants were having a barbecue.

Three students attend citizenship seminar

Cathy Thurman, Danna Schaefer and Debra Shortes participated in the 21st annual Texas Farm Bureau Citizenship Seminar at Angelo State University in San Angelo, July 18-22.

The seminar's purpose was to help students gain a better understanding of the various forms of government and their responsibilities as citizens. Students were sponsored through county Farm Bureaus.

The students heard patriotic speeches from six individuals on the topics of: "Understanding and Preserving Our American Heritage," "Moral Understanding of Freedom," "Pyramid of Freedom," "The Miracle of America," "Understanding the Middle East," "It Isn't Worth the Price," "Citizenship and Self-Esteem," "Citizenship and the Family" and "The Challenge for Young Leaders."

Dr. Donohue

Restless leg: an old complaint revisited

Dear Dr. Donohue: Three doctors have diagnosed "restless leg" for my complaint, but none has been able to give a reason or cause for it or suggest a remedy. At times the discomfort is maddening enough one wants to bang one's head against the wall, and the attacks seem to be increasing in frequency. Any explanation you can give, or suggestion for something to relieve them would be most deeply appreciated. — Mrs. M.D.

I would give anything to give you a reason for restless legs, the irresistible urge to move your legs about in bed at night. But there is no universal cause, and most often no cause can be found at all. I am glad you have seen your doctors, for at times mild nerve disturbances, iron deficiency anemia, and diabetes can cause restless leg.

I'm afraid I can be of only minimal help with regard relief. You might help yourself by trying two non-drug treatments — stopping caffeinated beverages and starting to get more exercise. And you might ask your doctor if he thinks it's safe for you to try diazepam or clonazepam for a short time. These medicines sometimes help.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Our doctor says he can do nothing for shingles except prescribe pain pills and let it run its course. My husband has burning pain. Clothing touching the area makes him wince with pain and sleep is impossible. Please explain treatment for shingles. Are there ways to tell if they are subsiding? Are there ways to get relief without drugs? — Mrs. C.L.S.

There are times when shingles pain becomes so severe and debilitating that narcotic pain relievers have to be used for a brief period. Perhaps the medicine your husband is getting is not quite strong enough.

Since pain is a serious consequence of shingles infection, relief of pain is the goal of treatment in general, and there are many treatments tried. Some feel periods given early will lessen the pain and prevent the kind that lingers after the rash has gone. Others favor levodopa. The drug benserazide, is being investigated for this use. A traditional treatment has been the injection of a numbing agent (like novocaine) into the stellate ganglion, a part of the nerve network involved.

When the pain of shingles lingers despite such efforts, other drugs are tried — carbamazepine, phenytoin, amitriptyline. I am not mentioning all the drugs currently used generally or under investigation — for example, balcofen (in the latter category).

Yes, there are non-drug treatments to try also. One is transcutaneous neural stimulation, in which a little device is used to deliver a small amount of electric current to the painful nerve. This serves to numb it. So there are many options open to your husband. The booklet, "The Facts About Shingles" may offer additional tips. Other readers may order a copy by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Abby

Child's question has no easy answer

DEAR ABBY: Some years back you published a letter from a young boy who asked, "If God is good, why did he let my little brother die?"

Please try to find it. I need it to explain to my grandchildren why God took their baby sister. Thank you.

M.C.H. IN ROANOKE, VA
DEAR M.C.H.: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My Sunday school teacher says that God is everywhere. Please put this letter in the paper and maybe he will see it.

"Dear God: Why did you let my brother die? When he was hit by a car, my mother prayed to you to let him live, but you wouldn't. My little brother was only 2 years old and he couldn't have sinned so bad that you had to punish him that way."

"Everyone says you are good and can do anything you want to do. You could have saved my little brother, but you let him die. You broke my mother's heart. How can I love you? — PETER"

DEAR PETER: Your question is one that has troubled religious men for thousands of years. One great thinker wrote a book about it. It is called "Job" and is part of the Bible.

It says that the suffering of innocent people is something we cannot understand. But this much is sure: Death is not a punishment. It is one of life's mysteries. Speak to your minister, Peter. Communicate with God by praying, and he will help you in your search for wisdom and goodness and help make your mother happy again.

Problems? Everbody has them. What are yours? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

U.S. drops 'escape clause' in Soviet grain pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials, responding to Soviet concerns that America be a reliable grain supplier, dropped the so-called "escape clause" in negotiating the new long-term grain agreement with the Kremlin, the delegation's leader said Monday.

"Clearly, the embargo and the reliability of America as a supplier was the major issue discussed by the Soviet side," Robert Lighthizer of the U.S. Trade Representative's office said, referring to the 16-month grain embargo.

"They thought they couldn't depend on this country for delivery of products," Lighthizer said in briefing Senate Agriculture Committee members on the recently concluded negotiations.

The expiring grain agreement contained a provision allowing the United States to reduce or suspend deliveries to the Soviet Union in the case of a commodity shortage. There was no similar clause allowing the Soviets to abrogate their responsibilities under the agreement.

"They looked upon it as an escape for us when they had no comparable escape," Lighthizer said.

He said the decision to drop the escape clause in the new five-year pact "is consistent with the president's position that we're not going to use short supply as a reason to embargo."

Under Secretary of Agriculture Daniel Amstutz said that current excess supplies of American grain make such a provision unnecessary.

The new agreement, announced last Thursday, calls for the Soviet Union to purchase at least 9 million metric tons of U.S. wheat, corn and possibly soybeans each year.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A heavy and frustrating influence is hanging over you and it is necessary that you keep as cheerful as you can and don't force issues. You would be wise not to rely on others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Business matters can be hard to handle until lunchtime and then you can avoid one who is unreliable.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Rise above that feeling of depression and later be sure to handle that business matter well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Forget that worrying in and be more practical and use good judgment later, so that you do not make a mistake.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Avoid that angry and forceful friend and conditions later are rather restricting, but rise above them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle business matters well in the morning and later be very diplomatic with your friends. Pay that pressing bill.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid that new contact who has an eye on your assets. Study the actions of one in power.

LIFRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sure the promises you make in business are those you can keep, and later do not go off on any tangents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't permit a partner to do something that you do not approve of. Keep a promise you made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be determined and you get that work done well. Make a new partner explain agreements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are angry with your loved one, but remain calm. Make sure you are not extravagant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take a walk and avoid an argument at home, and soon it will be over. Also sidestep one who gossips too much.

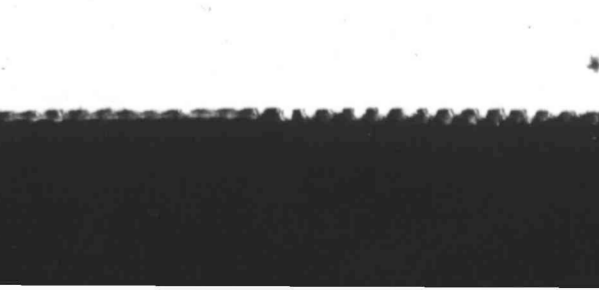

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A day to remain calm, cool and collected, both in business and at home since the situation is rather tense.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will early show much ability at getting into the core of money matters, repairing property, building, etc. so slant the education along such lines. Later in life your progeny will develop selling ability.

Cattlemen urged to cut costs

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Cattlemen must slash their production costs if they are to make a profit, the president of the National Cattlemen's Association says, adding that current tough economic times will make innovations desirable, if not necessary.

W.J. "Dub" Waldrip of Lubbock, who is also vice president of the Spade Ranch, delivered his warning during the opening session of the 3rd annual International Ranchers Roundup.

Other speakers Monday included Arthur Hansen, chancellor of Texas A&M University; U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, a Republican from Hunt; Dr. Cas Maree, head of the animal science department, University of Pretoria, South Africa; and Dr. Fee Busby, range science department head, University of Wyoming.

Loeffler promised the more than 750 ranchers in the crowd that he would do all he can to get federal aid to help them overcome the devastating drought that has afflicted 22 West Texas counties.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block denied the aid earlier, following a request by Gov. Mark White, because he didn't have enough data on the situation, Loeffler said. But the congressman said additional information has been forwarded to Block now, and Block now has the "necessary tools" to provide "adequate, appropriate and expeditious relief."

Waldrip said reducing the supply of beef is not the total answer to raising the price. The total supply can be kept constant, while producers cut costs, he said.

Consumption of beef is not going to rise dramatically, Waldrip said. In fact, recent trends have been toward lower beef sales, he added. He blamed the declining popularity of beef on the economy, not on the diet-health controversy.

"We've got to realize we're in a business," and make better use of recent innovations in communications, marketing, and market demand, he said. Producers will also have to market and produce more lean beef, he said.

"We're going to have to change our grading system will become obsolete," he said. But cattlemen have reason to feel hopeful about the future, Waldrip said. Competing meat industries have already achieved most of their potential improvement and efficiency, he explained.

In addition, competing breeders can't run their business on waste materials as cattlemen can. Grain is used to finish only about 20 percent of the final product, Waldrip said.

"Beef remains the most strongly preferred meat by far," he added. "Our competition is going to be tougher," but cattlemen already have a big jump over the other meats, Waldrip said.

The IRR continues through Friday with concurrent sessions on range, wildlife, sheep and goats and marketing.

FORT HILL CASUALTY — Pvt. Edward Collins of Columbus, Ohio, a member of the Fourth Kentucky Infantry, played the part of a casualty as Union and Confederate federate skirmishers re-enacted a battle at Fort Hill in Frankfort recently. It was the first Civil War weekend to be held in the capital city.

Taiwan promotes penal isle to tourists

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — In the battle for a larger slice of the tourist dollar, Taiwan is promoting a penal island famed for its submarine hot springs, spotted deer and hardcore criminals.

The move to encourage tourists to visit Green Island, 22 miles southwest of the main Nationalist island of Taiwan, is seen also as a step by the government to improve its international image on human rights.

Green Island, 6.1 square miles of primitive but attractive landscape populated by 3,900 fishermen and small-crop farmers, has long been shrouded in mystery. Tales have floated back about the treatment of the 600 inmates there, some said to be political prisoners, held in three maximum security prisons.

The government has denied charges of ill treating the inmates, and rejected claims by the London-based human rights organization Amnesty International that several hundred political prisoners are detained there. It says there are no political prisoners in Taiwan, and the inmates on Green Island are common criminals.

At present, tourists are free to visit Green Island, and inmates are restricted to an area away from visitors. But few tourists go there because of the inconvenience of travel and inadequate accommodations.

Yu Wei, director general of Taiwan's Tourism Bureau, is determined to change this and, in an initial step, the government is helping build a 36-room hotel at a cost of $1.05 million U.S.

The hotel is scheduled to open later this year, when passenger flights by small domestic airlines and an existing twice-a-week ferry service will be increased. Aside from its natural beauty, Yu said in an interview, Green Island has other attractions: it is not polluted, unlike many industrial areas of Taiwan, and its submarine hot springs are considered therapeutic for rheumatism and a variety of skin diseases.

WORRIED PARENTS — Penny Jo and Andrew Kennedy nervously awaited word about their missing 7-week old child kidnapped from John Peter Smith Hospital by a woman posing as a nurse in early May of this year. The baby had not been returned as of today.

Parents distraught over missing baby

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Andrew and Penny Kennedy have put away their baby daughter's bassinet and bathtub since she was kidnapped last spring, and seldom enter her room.

On May 10, a woman dressed as a nurse kidnapped the couple's only child, Cherie Ann, from John Peter Smith Hospital in Fort Worth. The kidnapper left no trace of the baby, and the one FBI agent left on the case says the chances of finding her grow slimmer every day.

"I think about her every day," Mrs. Kennedy said in a recent interview. "I think about her at least in the morning, every day, and mainly at nighttime, when I'm in bed."

The Kennedys were waiting to see a doctor at the hospital when the woman approached them to admire the baby. She left but later returned and asked to show Cherie Ann to her friends. The couple never saw their child again. Investigators say that the case is very rare — and puzzling.

"The longer this goes on, the less chance of success we have," said FBI agent Darrell Shaver. "However, that does not preclude success, because if we get the right telephone call, the right information gets to us, we're positive we can still identify the child."

The Kennedys say they believe the baby will be found, but they have put away her swing set, bathtub and bassinet.

"Every now and then, I'll sweep it," said Mrs. Kennedy, 21. "Ain't nothing to do in here."

Kennedy, 23, works as a machinist at a furniture store. His wife does not work, so most of the day she stays home.

Mean Joe named to NTSU regents

AUSTIN (AP) — Charles Edward Greene — better known to football fans as "Mean Joe" — has been named to the board of regents of North Texas State University, his alma mater.

Gov. Mark White announced the appointment on Monday.

Greene, 36, retired from pro football in 1982 after 14 years as a Pittsburgh Steeler defensive lineman.

He is now chief executive officer of Dallas Partners, a restaurant management firm.

White picked Greene for the non-paying job as a replacement for former Sen. Bill Meier of Egless. Meier was appointed by then-Gov. Bill Clements, but White persuaded senators to return the nomination to the governor's office.

Also Monday, White picked Wayne Stockseth of Corpus Christi for the NTSU board. Stockseth, 52, is chief executive officer of Show Financial Corp.

Greene and Stockseth will serve until May 22, 1987.

White selected Ramon Garcia, 45, an Edinburg attorney, for a seat on the Pan American University board.

New York won't send more homeless to NJ without warning

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — New York City officials promised Monday not to send any more homeless families to hotels in northern New Jersey without first consulting the state Department of Human Services.

But the pledge by Robert Jorgen, director of crisis intervention services for New York City, failed to meet demands of New Jersey officials who want a timetable indicating when nearly 300 families will be removed from hotels in Newark, East Orange and Jersey City.

"We cannot say we are never going to send any more people to New Jersey," said Jorgen, adding it was impossible to say when the families will be returned to New York.

"However, I can tell you we will not place any more people in New Jersey without further conversation with Mr. (George) Albanese," he said, referring to New Jersey's human services commissioner.

"Now all I have to do is not answer the phone," Albanese said after a public hearing here by U.S. Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of a House subcommittee on oversight and investigations, and Rep. Frank Guarini, D-N.J.

The two congressmen called the hearing, attended by local, county and state officials, to air complaints and discuss solutions to New York's decision in February to place almost 1,000 homeless people in the four New Jersey hotels because it lacks facilities for them.

Officials for the northern New Jersey cities — the state's poorest, where social services are already hard-pressed — along with officials from Essex and Hudson counties and the state, have been fuming over the practice since they recently learned of it. The officials say they fear the transplanted residents would become a drain on social services, including educational, medical food, and transportation programs.

New York, its shelters for the homeless full, has been paying Berger Hotels Corp. of Newark — owner of all four hotels — $33 a night for each room used to house the homeless families.

The New York Legislature set a $218 monthly allowance for permanent housing for a family of four, but New York City has been paying the higher rate for emergency shelter because it lacks enough low-income apartments or cheap hotel rooms to accommodate the families, many of whom were displaced after losing their homes and apartments.

Sydney Brown, a father of four, said he willingly went to the Lincoln Motel in Newark 2½ months ago after he lost his job and his home and New York officials promised that his family would be able to stay together.

"I would have went to Chicago if they said we'll keep your family together," Brown said.

A report by New York officials said they were making "every effort" to avoid placing more families in New Jersey. The number of homeless families housed in New Jersey has declined from 307 on July 12 to 282 on Friday, the report said.

Grads find jobs scarce survey finds

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — The improvement in the nation's economy has not helped 1983 college graduates, who found a sharp decrease in the number of job offers from the previous year, according to a survey by the College Placement Council Inc.

About 33,600 offers went to students graduating with four-year degrees in 1983, compared to 51,290 a year ago, the council said.

But the council found that the job market improved for humanities majors, who found slightly more opportunities awaiting them this year and a 7.6 percent increase in starting salaries, to $16,560.

Petroleum engineers continued to command the highest starting salaries, at $30,816, but the number of offers dropped, the council said.

The survey was based on data submitted by 185 placement offices and 160 colleges and universities.

The council said that while many employers had fewer job openings, the decrease in offerings might have happened because graduates accepted offers more quickly.

The council found that the number of job offers to engineers continued to decline for the second year, dipping to 50 percent of the total positions available, the lowest level since 1976.

Women continued to receive offers for lower starting salaries in all fields except economics, in which women averaged $19,116 a year compared to an average starting pay for men of $19,056, the council said.

Academia

SAN MARCOS — Scott A. Barnes of 1014 Baylor was among the 1,259 students whose 1983 spring semester grades earned them places on the Dean's List at Southwest Texas State University.

To qualify for the Dean's List, an undergraduate must have earned a grade point average of at least 3.5 during the semester while taking at least 12 semester hours of course work.

LUBBOCK — More than 1,000 students at Texas Tech University qualified for the Dean's honor rolls at the school's six colleges during the 1983 first summer term.

Students named to the honor roll included the following from Big Spring: Tracy Frazier of Route 3, Mary Griffin of 1605 Kiowa, Judith Johnston of 1200 Johnson, Brent Rhoton of Gail Route, and Tiffany Whiteside of 4113 Parkway.

Mary Boeker of Forsan also was named to the honor roll.

Jane D. Armistead of Big Spring recently received her bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Houston.

Sophie Gomez, daughter of Mary Gomez of Austin and Dr. Fabian Gomez Jr. of Los Angeles, Calif., received a Doctor of Medicine degree from the School of Medicine in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic on June 16, 1983.

She is the niece of David Gomez Sr. and Lola Gomez of Big Spring.
