U.S. sends AWACS, jet cover to Chad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has sent two AWACS electronic surveillance aircraft to monitor, under U.S. fighter cover, future Libyan-backed air and ground attacks in Chad, the State Department said Saturday.

"After consultation with other concerned governments, including the French, we have moved some of our aircraft to where they could be most useful to help in monitoring the situation in Chad," said Anita Stockman, a State Department spokeswoman.

Miss Stockman said the United States is sending two AWACS and a number of support aircraft, "including some protective fighter aircraft and tankers."

She said that the U.S. government would not comment on the overall number and basing plans of the planes for security reasons.

"President Reagan personally approved the decision to deploy the warplanes Saturday morning," Miss Stockman said. Secretary of State George P. Shultz "has been constantly involved," she added.

The decision was made after close consultation with U.S. allies and friendly nations "who share our concern," she said.

The aircraft, which were sent from the United States and from U.S. bases overseas, are not intended to engage in combat, Miss Stockman said.

"The accompanying aircraft (including the fighters) are specifically intended to support AWACS in their monitoring activities," she said.

And she said none of the aircraft is being diverted from operation Bright Star, a joint U.S.-Egyptian air and ground exercise now under way in Egypt.

Other administration sources indicated the planes probably would be based in the Sudan.

One official gave that indication in this form: Asked, Would the planes go to Egypt? he replied, "No." Chad? "No." Sudan? "I would not discourage speculation on the Sudan."

Those sources indicated the fighters would be 12 F-15s, and the tankers would be two KC-10s, a military version of the McDonnell-Douglas DC-10. No one would say where those planes would come from, but several sources said they believed the AWACS planes came from Tinker Air Force Base, Okla.

The AWACS planes will not penetrate Libyan air space, these sources said. Asked if they would See CHAD, page 2A

Old Settlers stake out past

By BOB CARPENTER Staff Writer

The pioneers and old-timers of Howard and Glasscock counties gathered for the 59th reunion yesterday at Comanche Trail Park for their annual reunion.

Braving the August heat, a crowd of several hundred enjoyed a barbecue meal, fiddling and contests of husband calling, horseshoe pitching, washer tossing and tobacco spitting.

But mostly it was a time to visit old friends and talk of absent ones.

Old-timer B.F. Carr, who at 95 years old reigned as the oldest old timer, said "I guess it gives you a chance to see some faces you don't see the rest of the year. It gives some of us a chance to be somebody for a day."

Carr said he had been coming to the reunions for about 65 years, although the official count of reunions is 59. He said he came to Howard County from Anson in 1900.

Mr. and Mrs. Carr also were one of the couples celebrating the most years of matrimony — 64.

"I guess the secret to staying together is just hanging on through the rough times. She couldn't get rid of me, and believe me she tried," Carr said laughing.

Carr, a former city fire marshal, says he spends most of his days at home now.

R.A. WEINKAUF ...remembering past

"There's not much to my story. I'm just a boy that lives at home and my wife takes care of me."

Other scenes at the reunion included old fiddler Tom Cassell who energetically sawed his way through three of the crowd's all-time favorite tunes — judging by the warm rounds of applause he received at the end of each number.

And Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Miller, married for 63 years, who strained to hear congratulations from well-wishers. The ladies who hooted and hollered for their spouses in the husband calling contests. And the old settlers themselves who sat locked in conversations about the old days as they relived their youth.

Special events were won by the following: horseshoe pitching, Jimmy Yanez; washer throwing, Denise McCann; eldest native lady, Jeanie Cauble, 95; eldest native man, John Miller, 88; native coming greatest distance, Eva Nell Dunn, Mississippi; and native couple married longest to same spouse, the John Millers, 64 years.

Other winners included native couple with most children, D.M. Miller; native couple with most grandchildren, Minnie Treadway, 36; most authentic-dressed lady, Bunt Jones; and most authentic-dressed man, Clay Bedwell.

More winners included most authentic-dressed child, Denise McCann; husband-calling winner, Bessie Bigomey; first place in the fiddlers' contest, Tom Castle; and doll winner, Ellen Eady.

Area counties top choices for nuclear waste dump

Harte-Hanks News Service

The state agency looking for a place to store low-level radioactive waste has narrowed its choices to 16 Southwest and West Texas counties, including Howard, Mitchell and Borden counties.

Tom Blackburn, head of special services for the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority, said last week the agency is still securing options on possible tracts in those counties.

The other counties include Knox, Baylor, Haskell, Throckmorton, Scurry, Garza, Maverick, Zavala, Frio, Dimmit, La Salle and Webb.

The authority is looking for a 300-acre site to store low-level radioactive waste, which is generated by industry, universities and medical facilities.

Texas produced 30,000 cubic feet of low-level waste last year. Authority planners estimate that total will rise to 135,000 cubic feet annually by 1990. Most of that increase, they say, will be caused by materials used by workers at the state's four nuclear reactors.

Spent reactor fuel is high level radiation and won't be stored at the authority's site, Blackburn said.

The areas still under consideration have little available water, Blackburn said, and have the right soils and underground geology needed to secure safe storage.

Blackburn said studies on the sites will continue, with planners hoping to have a primary site and an alternate by late October.

John Simek, assistant radiological safety officer at Texas A&M and vice chairman of the authority's six-man board of directors, said the selection process is slightly behind schedule because of the difficulty in obtaining full ownership of the land, including complete mineral rights.

"But overall, the search is going fine," Simek said. The schedule calls for the site to open in early 1988, Blackburn said.

VA seminar: elderly deserve better care

By BOB CARPENTER Staff Writer

Frank just turned 68 years old. He still mourns for his wife who died two years ago and he's worried his Social Security check won't cover his bills. And lately, he's been forgetting things, and arthritis is creeping in to his hands.

Frank, like many older adults, is facing a myriad of "psychosocial" and physical problems when he probably expected to be enjoying a leisurely retirement.

Frank doesn't know where to turn. Society, so tuned into youth, doesn't seem to be aware of his problems. He feels no one cares, and he thinks he's worthless.

Fortunately, for persons like Frank, there is a growing interest in the field of geriatrics. Political pressure plus a swell of grassroots support has moved care of the aging to the forefront of medical issues.

Thursday and Friday the movement touched Big Spring as the Veterans Administration Medical Center sponsored a two-day workshop to alert local health care officials and staff about growing concerns in geriatrics.

According to Mary Louise Traczyk, chief of nursing service at the VA hospital, the workshop was designed to improve the quality of life for older persons and develop a network of resources for the care of their problems.

Principle speakers for the two-day event were Dr. Thomas Yoshikawa, M.D. and professor of medicine at UCLA, and Patricia Lee, assistant clinical professor at the UCLA School of Nursing who present programs to medical professionals requesting more information about geriatrics.

Yoshikawa and Ms. Lee are part of the U.S. government's Geriatric Research Education and Research Center which has eight branches across the country. They work closely with the VA not only to improve the care of aging veterans but also to lend their knowledge to outside health care personnel and the public.

Yoshikawa said the center was created about six years by Congress to "do something for the aging veteran and develop better ways to care for aging vets. The average age of war veterans rises with each year. And soon most of the veteran population will be in the elderly category, and

Lawyer for Skelton seeking new trial

ODESSA (AP) — A lawyer seeking a new trial for John C. Skelton says there was not enough evidence for a capital murder conviction in the bombing death of a former employee and alleges Skelton's attorney was ineffective.

Skelton, 54, was convicted of capital murder July 6 and sentenced two days later to die by injection for the April 1982 slaying of Joe Lee Neal of Odessa. Neal died when a bomb demolished his pickup truck.

Austin attorney Jim Vollers, in a motion filed Friday, alleged the state did not prove Skelton planted the bomb or had someone else do it for him. Vollers also contends other legal errors in the trial "violated this defendant's right to due process of law."

Vollers, a former Texas Court of Criminal Appeals judge, said State District Judge R.L. McKim has 75 days from the time of Skelton's sentencing to rule on the motion.

During the trial, prosecutors linked Skelton to magnets and dynamite believed to have been used in the bomb that killed Neal, and introduced testimony that Skelton several times threatened to kill Neal.

Defense witnesses, however, testified during the trial that Skelton was in Springfield, Mo., when Neal was killed.

Vollers also alleges in the motion that defense counsel "failed to properly prepare for the trial," and "failed ... to adequately enforce the defendant's legal rights during the trial."

"There were various legal issues that should have been raised in the trial that were not raised," Vollers said Friday. Vollers was hired to handle Skelton's appeal shortly after Skelton was sentenced.

Odessa attorney Clifford Hardwick, who defended Skelton during his trial, is no longer handling Skelton's case and would not comment on the motion Friday.

Skelton, Neal's former employer at an Odessa oil field servicing business, also is charged with four counts of solicitation of capital murder.

Chad

fly over Chad, one official noted the United States had no intention of putting a $129 million AWACS into any more jeopardy than necessary but said, "We would not be precluded from flying into a friendly country if we're invited in."

Sudan is the location of a small counter-guerrilla exercise in the Bright Star plans. Four AWACS planes were sent to Egypt last winter when intelligence reports indicated a Libyan threat to Sudan.

U.S. officials who declined to be identified said Congress has been informed of the latest developments in Chad, including the AWACS deployment. President Reagan and Shultz had promised more information after congressional leaders complained they had been kept in the dark about U.S. maneuvers in the Caribbean.

Sen. Howard Baker, the majority leader, found a call from the White House waiting for him shortly after noon in Chattanooga, Tenn., where he had arrived for a speech to a Republican gathering.

Baker declined to tell reporters what was said and advised them to "watch the wires for news on Chad."

He then said he would support "any reasonable measures necessary for surveillance (in Chad)," and when asked if that meant AWACS planes, replied, "You're going to have to assume I'm talking about that. I'm not prepared to say that publicly."

He said the United States should "consider very carefully any requests that are made," but he would not support sending U.S. combat troops to Chad.

Reached at home after the announcement, Baker declined further comment, except to say that the White House call indeed told him of the AWACS deployment.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., was told of the deployments Saturday and had no comment, an aide said.

"Sen. Byrd is not one to react without adequate information," said spokesman Mike Willard. Congress began its August recess on Friday, and no members were in Washington. Several aides, reached in home districts, said they would try to reach their principals for comment.

Joseph Reap, another department press officer, said the United States consulted Belgium, which represents U.S. interests in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, in addition to France, whose colony Chad was until 1958.

that means better ways to care for them must be found." "What we do now will affect how we're cared for when we get old," Ms. Lee said. "It's very important to build resources that extend from the medical profession to the public. We can all help in this."

The topics covered by Ms. Lee and Yoshikawa along with 11 other local speakers included such issues as the aging body, aging and sexuality, nursing care of the elderly, aging parents, nutritional needs and "psychosocial" needs.

Throughout the workshop, speakers stressed that the older person be kept active and productive — not only to keep him productive in society but also to keep his self-image positive.

"It's good to have the medical profession and public getting involved. Elderly persons have a whole slew of problems affecting them, and they deserve answers to their problems and a chance for better care," Yoshikawa said.

"It's the job of health care and the public to stimulate the lives of the elderly by whatever resources are at hand," Ms. Lee said. "We've made a start and now it's up to us to keep the thing flying."

County asked to fund breath test program

Howard County commissioners will discuss funding of the county's alcohol breath test program again with the program's director, Harold Loveless of Midland.

Commissioners meet in regular session at 9 a.m. in the courthouse.

Loveless talked with commissioners in April to seek funding for the program which serves Howard, Ector and Midland counties with the Intoxilyzer. The machine is used by the Department of Public Safety, the Big Spring police and the sheriff's office.

Federal funding for the service was been severed after 12 years, and Loveless is seeking aid from the counties to keep the program going.

Commissioners indicated in April they may not pay the approximately $700 a month to keep the program going. Loveless told commissioners in April Howard County would be paying 19 percent of the costs. The program ends in October unless funding continues.

In other agenda items, commissioners are expected to meet with County Treasurer Bonnie Franklin, County Librarian Judith Gray and County Engineer Bill Mims on separate personnel matters.

Mims is also expected to discuss equipment and repairs to the Heritage Museum.

Fashion show to aid new NAACP chapter

A fashion talent show is planned to aid efforts to form a local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

A NAACP membership drive has been started by several Big Spring citizens who are already meeting twice a month with the new organization.

To help promote the drive, a "Saturday Nite Live" fashion talent show featuring clothing from Sakowitz will be held Aug. 13. Proceeds will go to the Northside Community Center and the Rainbow Project.

Annual membership fees are $10. For more information on membership, contact acting president Dock Voorhies at 263-8265 or Hebrew Jones at 263-4043.

The NAACP group meets every second and fourth Monday at 7 p.m.

The fashion show will be held in the Municipal Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. with donations of $2 for admission.

Chad troops surrounded; French may help

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — President Hissene Habre on Saturday pleaded for the French air force to intervene in Chad's civil war and repel Libyan-backed insurgents, who reportedly have surrounded government troops in the strategic northern city of Faya-Largeau.

"Libya intends to totally destroy Faya-Largeau," Habre said at a news conference. "What is happening there looks like something out of a film — it's a veritable act of genocide."

"Direct French air intervention is needed to counter the Libyan aggression," he said.

There was no immediate response by French officials, but Foreign Minister Charles Hernu and his top aides were meeting in an urgent session in Paris to review the Chad situation. Hernu said he was in constant touch with President Francois Mitterrand.

ONE GOVERNMENT SOURCE in Paris said France "cannot remain indifferent to the aggravation of the military situation in Chad."

Increased French military aid to Chad was under consideration, the Paris sources said. They also reported that the rebels had ringed Faya-Largeau, 500 miles north of N'Djamena, with Soviet-built tanks and were attacking the city of 10,000 people.

France has rejected repeated requests for troops since rebel forces loyal to Chad's former president, Goukouni Oueddi, began an offensive in late June. French officials maintain that a 1976 military cooperation agreement with its former colony provides only for French logistic support.

Habre flew to N'Djamena from Faya-Largeau Friday afternoon. Informal sources in Paris said he left shortly before a column of rebel tanks surrounded the oasis.

IN WASHINGTON, STATE Department spokesman John Hughes said the Reagan administration also believed reports that the insurgents had retaken the strategic towns of Oum Chalouba and Kalat, 200 miles southeast of Faya-Largeau. Habre's government denies it.

It was impossible to confirm the battle accounts independently because the Habre government has banned journalists from the war front.

JANA, the official Libyan news agency, said Goukouni ordered his artillery to stop shelling the Faya-Largeau on Friday and "appealed to Habre to give himself up to the legitimate government if he is still alive. He is also giving Habre's followers a chance to surrender and return to their families."

LIBYA HAS DENIED it is intervening in the rebellion, despite reports from witnesses that Libyan warplanes have bombed Habre's forces.

With the reports of Libyan involvement, the United States last week rushed to Chad 30 Redeye anti-aircraft missiles and three Army instructors, along with shipments of jeeps, radios, machine guns, grenade launchers and other military and medical supplies.

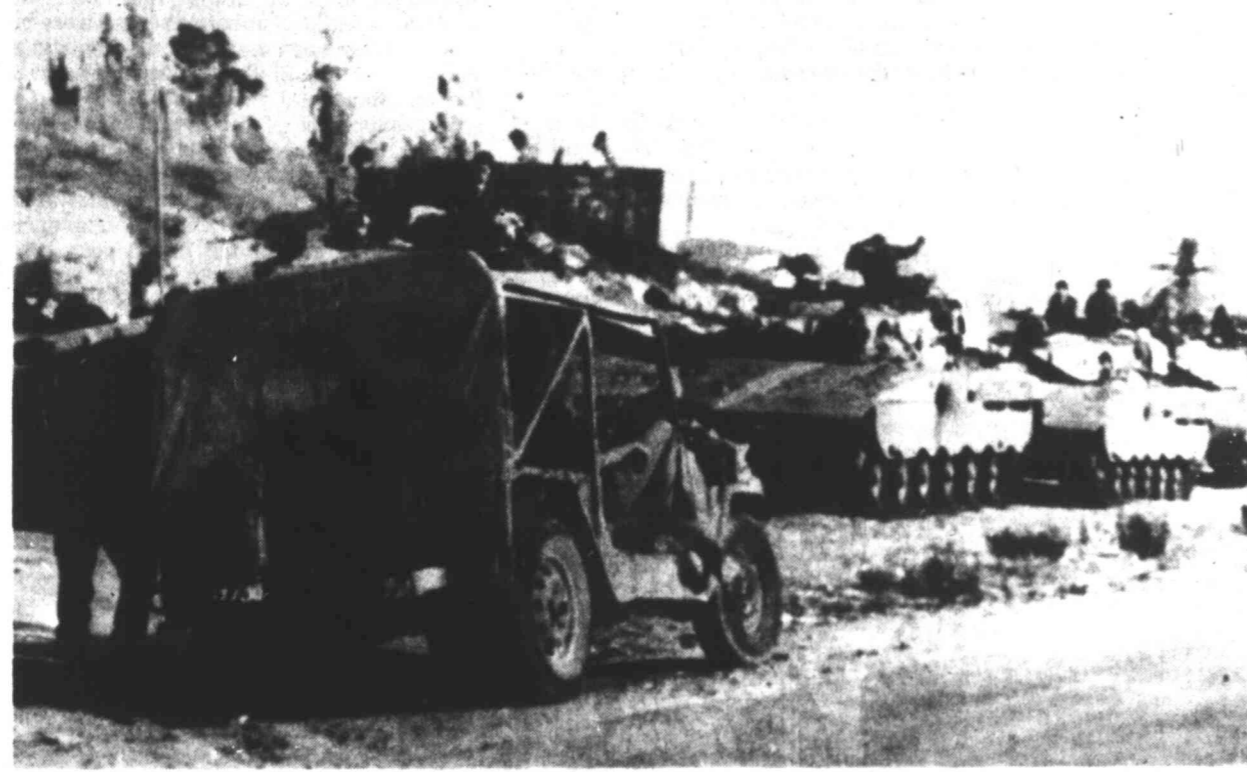

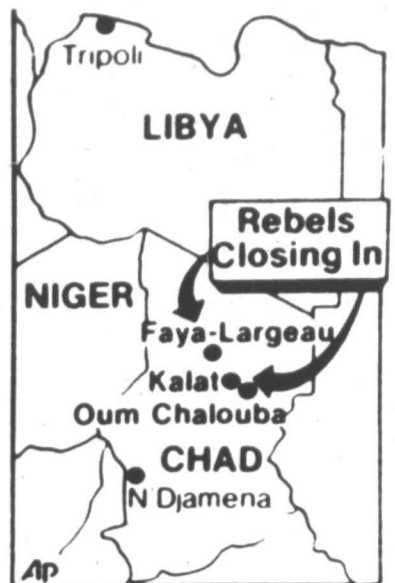

France, Chad's former colonial occupier, has been airlifting aid to Habre's forces since Goukouni launched his offensive in late June. Habre ousted Goukouni in a civil war last year — the latest in a series of rebellions that have plagued the nation since its independence 18 years ago.

Libyan radio said Friday that Khadafy expects a joint U.S.-French "aggression" on Libya because of developments in Chad.

The radio said the arrival of two U.S. AWACS radar jets in Egypt to take part in annual military maneuvers and French arms supplies to the Habre government were a "cover for the plot to attack Libyan territories."

The United States has accused radical Khadafy of backing the Chad insurgents to extend Libyan influence in Africa.

ISRAELI DEFENSE LINE — Israeli Merkava tanks and troops move out from the troubled Chouf Mountains east of Beirut Friday to a new defense line at the Awali River in South Lebanon where engineers have been carving out fortifications.

Israel troops leave mountains, fortify new river defense line

KARKHAH, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli army bulldozers are carving out extensive fortifications and new roads along the Awali River, making this quiet valley the Jewish state's new front line in southern Lebanon.

Karkhah, a small village of about 500 perched on a hill above the river with a commanding view of the narrow Awali Valley, had been untouched by the violence of last year's Israeli invasion and its aftermath.

"The Israelis came here once, looked around, decided that we Christians were no problem and left," said Fawzi Kassab.

Now the Israelis are back, with hundreds more expected soon.

For more than a week, Israeli tanks, armored personnel carriers, bulldozers and dump trucks have ground slowly through the cramped and winding main street.

Huge U.S.-made CH-53 cargo helicopters fly noisily overhead, landing at a nearby hill and taking off again.

At the edge of the village, bulldozers work on a large new compound and a road, protected by barbed wire and machine guns. They are preparing for the Israeli army's pullout from the troubled Chouf mountains about 12 miles to the north.

After repeated outbreaks of fighting between right-wing Christian and Moslem Druse militias in Chouf and Aley provinces, the Israelis have decided to pull back and build a new defensive line along the Awali River.

The river, nowhere more than a few feet deep and perhaps 10 yards wide, runs for about 35 miles from the foothills of Lebanon's central mountain range to the Mediterranean coast.

The river valley is lush with closely planted orange and olive groves. Small villages — almost all Catholic or Maronite Christian — dot the hills on either side.

Most of the people in the valley are supporters of the right-wing Christian militias known as the Lebanese Forces, asserted Kassab. Himself a member of the Phalange Party, which dominates the Lebanese Forces, Kassab said that local farmers were willing to cooperate with the Israelis, but only within limits.

"If they are good, we will be good. We want to cooperate with them," he said. "But we don't want any forces to stay here for a long time."

Karkhah was involved recently in demonstrations to protest Israel's order to militiamen telling them to leave barracks in Kfar Falous, about three miles away, said Kassab.

Spanish tanker explodes off South African coast

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A Spanish supertanker laden with 73 million gallons of crude oil burst into flames and split in half off the South African coast Saturday, threatening massive pollution to beaches and a bird sanctuary.

In Macquarie Bay, Pedro Sancho, president of the state-run company that owns the tanker Castillo de Bellver, said 33 people were rescued, including the wives of two officers, and three people were missing in the Atlantic.

The five-year-old vessel, which had taken on its cargo in the Persian Gulf, was about 80 miles northwest of Cape Town when it erupted in flames before dawn.

The cause of the fire was not known. The value of the oil was reported to be $60 million.

The ship broke apart in choppy seas, some eight hours after the fire broke out. The Benguela Current swept the oil west into the Atlantic. Strong winds slowly pushed the bow and stern sections east toward South Africa's Langebaan Lagoon, a 15-mile-long coastal sanctuary for marine and bird life.

Oil streamed from each section, spreading for about a mile until they joined to form a 3-mile-wide slick.

The trawler Harvest Carina rescued 31 people, a merchant vessel saved another person, and a helicopter hoisted the 33rd survivor from the blazing aft section, according to the shipping company Empresa Nacional Elcano.

"I am very happy to be alive. It was terrible, terrible," said the ship's master, Alfonso Civera, after he stepped ashore from a rescue boat. "We tried everything to douse the flames but could do nothing."

By nightfall, officials called off plans to try to take the halves of the tanker in tow and pull them into deeper water to be scuttled.

The officials said the bow, which had burned itself out, and the still-blazing stern were dangerously close to sinking. If they went down, it was feared they would ooze oil for weeks or even months.

UP IN FLAMES — A loaded Spanish tanker burns off the coast of South Africa Saturday. The tanker broke in half sending a slick of flaming oil into the Atlantic Ocean and threatening one of South Africa's maritime bird sanctuaries. Three crewmen were missing and 33 were rescued.

AT&T workers reject wage offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unions representing American Telephone & Telegraph Co. workers rejected the company's latest wage proposal Saturday, imperiling chances for a contract settlement as a midnight strike deadline approached.

In lengthy, separate bargaining sessions with representatives of the three unions, management offered to give experienced workers a 3.5 percent a year pay raise for each of the next three years.

But all three unions — the Communications Workers of America, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Telecommunications International Union — had turned down the offer by mid-morning.

Company representatives and union negotiators recessed early Saturday and caucused among themselves. There was no indication when the parties would return to the table.

In a statement Saturday to the rank-and-file on the CWA's internal telephone hookup with union locals, President Glenn E. Watts said:

"The likelihood of a strike is now clearly imminent. The company has simply waited too long to act on our proposals that I doubt that we can resolve all the outstanding issues before the contract expires at midnight."

One union official, citing the sensitive nature of the discussions in asking that his name not be used, cautioned against reading too much into the fact that full-scale bargaining was recessed. He noted that in some cases, progress towards labor settlements has been made when the parties remained apart. And, he said, messages were being relayed between the sides.

One principal CWA negotiator, who would discuss the contract talks only on grounds he remain anonymous, said of the company late Saturday afternoon: "They're moving now, but they've got a long way to go."

The union bargainer said CWA's leadership believes management must double the 3.5 percent-a-year pay raise proposal before a new contract would be accepted by the union's negotiating committee.

Among CWA employees, a top-scale assistant technician makes $565 per week. A top-scale operator makes $389.

Q: We've heard that before being put up for sale, every house needs at least a little touching up. We're ready to place our house on the market, and we can't find a thing wrong. Are we missing something?

A: You've got to look at your house as a stranger would. There probably aren't any major problems, but a little cosmetic touchup on minor flaws will probably help the sale. For example, fix or replace old, leaky bathroom and kitchen fixtures. If the faucet looks good, but just drips, replace the washer. Clean or replace the grouting around the tub. Try applying paint or wallpaper to one wall in rooms for an attractive contrasting effect. Outside, manicure the lawn and shrubs. Take a little time to repair screens, storm doors and windows. Then, step back and take another look, through stranger's eyes.

PAYROLL TAXES (Keep Them Paid)

Most holders of stock in a corporation believe that if the corporation fails, they have no further liability beyond their investment in the stock. Wrong! You could have additional exposure.

Creditors of a corporation are ordinarily barred from obtaining recovery from shareholders when the company goes under. In contrast to this, the Internal Revenue Service has a special regulation which imposes a personal liability upon "responsible persons" in their capacity as corporate officers who willfully fail to collect or pay in withholding taxes.

This special provision requires the responsible person to pay a "penalty" equal to 100% of the taxes due, and this obligation cannot be discharged in corporate or personal bankruptcy. The Internal Revenue Service does not have to pro-rate the liability over all shareholders; it can simply collect from the responsible person.

For example, suppose the income tax and FICA withheld from employees, including owner-employees, plus the employer's share of the payroll taxes are $25,000. The IRS can collect a total of $25,000 from a "responsible person" (usually an officer or shareholder of the corporation). This $25,000 is a penalty and is not deductible on your tax return.

When you company develops cash flow problems, using the IRS as a "banker" may not be a good idea. No one likes to see a company fail, but when a cash flow problem develops, consider owing open line creditors instead of the IRS.

To keep your unpaid payroll taxes from becoming uncontrollably high, consider depositing payroll taxes on each payday. It seems that payments in smaller amounts are easier to budget for. You may bypass the temptation to let this temporarily silent creditor grow to a balance that is impossible for the company to handle.

In defense of liberty

At 97, Miss Liberty is not too old to have a face-lift. But America's beloved 151-foot-tall guardian of New York Harbor will need more than a cosmetic operation if she is to be in perfect health for her centennial bash on July 4, 1986.

An estimated $25 million to $30 million repair project is scheduled to begin this fall on the Frederic Aguste Bartholdi-designed gift from the French people. Since cost overruns are as American, as well, Miss Liberty, that will probably make her at least a 40-million-dollar woman.

Miss Liberty's iron ribs which support her now-splotchy copper skin have corroded so much they will be replaced by a stronger copper-based metal framework. Her upraised arm and torch also have deteriorated so badly that they may have to be removed and rebuilt on the ground.

Other operations for Miss Liberty include a new stairwell or elevator to better accommodate the more than 1.5 million people who visit her annually.

The French-American Committee for the Restoration of the Statue of Liberty has donated $5 million to cover the architectural and engineering costs of her rebuilding. The rest is to be raised by the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation, headed by super salesman Lee Iacocca.

If every American were to contribute just one dime, or the price of a get-well card for that matter, Miss Liberty would be ready to stand guard for freedom for another 100 years.

Perhaps a more fitting way to pay for the restoration would be in the form of fund-raising projects from the nation's school children. After all, French school children originally paid for most of Miss Liberty as a symbol of friendship and out of admiration for our form of government. It would not be too much of a sacrifice if every student were to forego just one video arcade game a week for Miss Liberty's sake.

That's something for teachers, students, parents and former students to think about during the second half of the summer. If they don't want to wait until the fall, any contributions can be sent to Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation, Inc., P.O. Box 1986, New York, N.Y. 10018.

Nuke Cuba

I believe we should nuke Cuba. By that I mean it is in the best interest of the United States to deliver thermonuclear warheads with such density and saturation as to remove the island from the map of the Caribbean.

Not only would this measure allow direct sea communications between Florida and Jamaica, it also would wipe the stains from recent American history and eliminate a dangerous enemy at our doorstep.

I SAY THIS after visiting Castro's island for a week. I met government officials, and I met the common man. I visited with students, factory workers, soldiers and priests.

I found the Cubans friendly, warm and bouncing full of life. I also found them intractably and virulently anti-American, waiting impatiently with hungry spirits for our demise. Without hesitation they told me this.

I see no other alternative. I believe we should nuke Cuba.

My stance toward the island has nothing to do with it being communist. The average Cuban, I'm certain, is better off under Castro than he was under Batista.

The population is now clothed, fed, educated and cared for. There no longer are beggars, jobless and teen-age prostitutes walking the streets. And the streets are now clean.

Batista's Cuba, with its wealthy elite and organized crime and drug barons may have been more exciting and colorful and romantic, but Castro's Cuba is more humane and fair and secure.

There is a healthy nationalism about in the land. But in the great shadow of this patriotism is a vicious propaganda dagger aimed at the heart of America. Unfortunately, the former feeds on the latter.

AN ENTIRE GENERATION of Cubans has matured with the hate of America in its soul. Castro has nourished this hate, and the success of his regime is fueled by stoking the fires of anti-Americanism.

Cuba is poor, Castro tells his people, because of the American embargo. Cuba is underdeveloped, Castro tells his people, because of American capitalist imperialism.

Castro also tells his people he is willing to negotiate with the United States, to become friends. Israel and Syria will embrace before that ever comes to pass.

If Cuba and the U.S., by some miraculous diplomatic acrobatics, ever restore relations, Castro will have to produce much and quickly or answer some hard questions from his people.

I'm sorry to say that no amount of American largess can erase two decades of incompetence, bungling and misdirection by the Cuban regime. Russian rubles are poured by the millions into the Cuban economy and yet the Castro government still lacks the wherewithal to keep the electricity on in Havana for 24 continuous hours or paint its crumbling apartment houses.

CASTRO SPENDS HIS money on military adventures in Central America and Africa. He enjoys playing the leader among third world countries through his aggressive foreign policy.

Cubans are proud of their leader. They affectionately call him Fidel. The whole country stops whenever he speaks. He's so dynamic, so macho, so anti-American.

Castro simply could not exist without the United States. He has blinded his people with his hate of America. Cubans do not see the war casualty lists or the increasing number of Russians landing on their shores. They see only the monster America.

If Cuba were but a benign phenomenon, we could afford to ignore it. But Cuba, crowned king of the Caribbean by the Soviet Union, is spreading its cancer to Central America. And in Cuba the USSR has an invaluable launching pad in our part of the world.

Castro officially began his campaign of hate 22 years ago after the Bay of Pigs invasion. This was our inglorious covert attempt to topple the communist revolution by landing 1,500 Cuban refugee mercenaries on an isolated beach in the southern part of the island. It failed miserably.

The Bay of Pigs operation was a mistake. We should have landed two Marine divisions on the beach east of Havana. With the capital secured, the rest of the country would have fallen like a ripe plum.

EVER SINCE THIS humiliating incident, we have done little to check Castro's adventures or his campaign of hate.

We must act quickly. Cuba is dangerous. It is becoming a very real threat to our national and hemispheric security. The Cubans are our implacable enemies, and they're proud of it.

I'm not suggesting another invasion. That would take too long and cost too many American lives. We must move decisively and with surprise.

I believe we should nuke Cuba.

Death of a salesman

I used to think salesmen were a pain in the neck.

But after spending just four hours selling program ads for the Symphony Guild, I have decided that salespeople deserve a statue carved in their honor and placed with great ceremony on the highest point of the Chamber of Commerce parking lot.

The statue should be of a sweat-soaked soul with holes in his soles. Sweat-soaked from getting in and out of his hot car all day; worn shoes from pounding the pavement. One side of his face should have a positive, patient look, a look that says, "Well, maybe next time." The other side should have him waving his hat for joy, symbolizing the thrill he feels when he has made a sale.

UNTIL THIS week, I never knew so many excuses existed for not buying something. I never knew that some people will make you come back eight times before giving you a definite no. I never knew that men will buy more than women. At least, every one of my sales was to men. Do women only buy from men, and vice-versa? Are their any studies on that?

One frustration is when people say, "Come back next Tuesday at 3." Next Tuesday at 3, having rearranged your schedule to be there, you find the party is not there and for all anyone knows has gone to the North Pole. Two weeks and eight visits later, you catch the person. "Listen, come back tomorrow and we'll work this out." You want this sale; the next day you return.

That's when the prospect says, "Sorry, we've decided to pass this year."

You get into your car and drive on. In your heart, you'd like to get out of your car and kick the daylight out of a Dempsey Dumpster, but you don't have the strength.

FOUR QUICK sales had spoiled me, so I took the next six rejections hard. After driving all over town for days to catch people who were elusive and undecided, I wondered if the gasoline were worth it.

It was in this state of mind that I entered the offices of Radio KBST last Monday and asked to speak with owner Winston Wrinkle. I gave him my pitch. He said, "Well, I'm not a symphony man myself, but — yes, this is good for Big Spring, and yes, we'll support it." Then he turned and hollered at his secretary to type out a check. Within 60 seconds the check was signed and delivered into my hands. I wanted to jump up and hug the man's neck and plant a big kiss on his cheek, but I properly restrained myself, exceedingly difficult as that was.

Businesses would be surprised at the PR they get after buying an ad for a community project. I myself went around all day saying, "That Winston Wrinkle, he sure is a nice man." Other Symphony Guild members likewise were bragging on their customers who had bought ads. The word of mouth alone is worth the price of the ad. Incidentally, Radio KBYG also is a strong supporter of the symphony; co-owner Donna Fields has been one of the hardest workers in selling Symphony Guild ads.

Yes, I have a new respect for salespersons. To all you salespeople who are reading this, who perhaps are saying under your breath, "Welcome to the real world, Linda," I raise my cup of coffee to you in a toast: "Salud."

Living a moral life not good enough for God

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have always tried to live a good respectable life, and I believe that is the important thing to God, don't you? — G.P.A.

DEAR G.P.A.: I respect the fact that you have attempted to live a good, moral life. It may come as a shock to you, however, when I tell you that the Bible teaches we can never be good enough to win God's favor, no matter how respectable we have been or how many good deeds we have performed.

Why is this the case? The Bible teaches us that we can never win God's favor for one very important reason: God is absolutely pure and holy, and he cannot tolerate even the slightest sin in his sight. In fact, the Bible says, "Whoever keeps the whole law and yet stumbles at just one point is guilty of breaking all of it" (James 2:10). Have you ever seen the precautions a surgeon takes before an operation to be sure that the operating room and everything in it are as sterile as possible? Why does he take those precautions? Because he knows that just one germ entering an incision can cause a devastating infection. In the same way, just one sin contaminates us in God's eyes.

What we need, therefore, is God's forgiveness. We cannot forgive our own sins, and we certainly cannot make ourselves pure in his eyes by trying to balance out our bad deeds with our good deeds. Only God can take away our sins and make us pure. But is that possible? Yes! It is possible because Jesus Christ took upon himself our sins and our judgment. On the cross the perfect, sinless Son of God allowed our sins to be placed on himself, and he died in our place.

I cannot help but feel as I write this, however, that you do not really want to accept this fact that you need God's forgiveness. If so, I hope you will recognize that the source of your problem is your pride — and pride is always dangerous, because it will always try to convince you that you do not need God's grace. But you do, and my prayer for you is that you will acknowledge your need of Christ and open your heart to him as your Lord and Savior without delay.

Steve Chapman

(Stephen Chapman is on vacation this week. The following column was written by Ross Mackenzie.)

Paradise lost for a price

Whether the consequence of too much daydreaming or seeing "South Pacific" as a youngster, I don't know. But the Pacific always has held for me a special allure; it always has been just this side of paradise. The contemporary reality falls well short of the seductive travel posters, though it's a reality worth a moment of your time.

In World War II, now said to have been America's last good war, much of the action took place in the vast ocean reaches of what we call Melanesia, Micronesia, and Polynesia. Pacific hostilities — primarily in Micronesia — took 99,000 American and 1.6 million Japanese lives. Precisely 463 warships went down there, 2,444 merchant vessels, and 64,680 warplanes. Only a few hundred thousand people inhabit the several thousand mostly unpopulated islands and atolls with strange names dotting the region. The combined land area amounts to less than is encompassed in Massachusetts.

With the end of the war came American trusteeship — and Americanization. The islanders imported little that is good from America, and much that is bad. Today the region is something less than the idyll of one's romantic imagination. Scenically rich, it is economically bereft — its people as dependent as reservation Indians. Typical of the area are rotten politics, bloated bureaucracy, rampant alcoholism, and — especially among the young — suicide. Thirty-five years of American benevolence have sapped initiative and given the people welfare, food stamps, and high unemployment — with 56 percent of the jobs that do exist provided by government itself.

One major area — the Federated States of Micronesia — consists of four distinct ethnic groups totaling 80,000 people on 607 islands (only 51 of which are inhabited) with a total land mass smaller than New York City — islands sprinkled across 1,500 miles. The islanders used to be self-sufficient in food. Now, having learned what American largess is all about — having learned how nice it is not to work, having collapsed into lives of indolence and easy sex — they import $22 million worth of food per year.

What to do? Given the way things go these days, many in the region seek their independence, but with a catch: They seek continued American handouts, too. And during the past decade, various U.S. administrations have moved toward giving them what they want in this as in everything else. And I suppose it is what the U.S. ought to want for the region as well. So the U.S. is granting much of it semi-autonomy in free association with the U.S. — that is, autonomy except in defense.

Specific arrangements guarantee the U.S. access to designated islands and harbors for possible uses as bases or training areas. The U.S. indefinitely retains exclusive military rights on the islands and in their territorial waters. In exchange for these military rights and long-term security pacts, the U.S. will keep the people on the dole.

By then end of next year, just about all the area will be independent or quasi-independent, with the U.S. in effect paying for the privilege to maintain it — militarily

Report from Austin

By Rep. LARRY DON SHAW

Public education gets top priority

Education, or the lack of it, has prompted a growing alarm throughout the nation, and we can no longer ignore this vital issue. A recent report from the National Commission on Excellence in Education criticized the "rising tide of mediocrity" which "threatens our very future as a nation and a people."

I have become painfully aware through evidence from education experts that serious deficiencies exist in several areas of our education system. Overall scores of achievement tests and entrance exams have declined steadily in recent years. More than 10 percent of all 17-year-olds in the United States are illiterate, and 40 percent of minority 17-year-olds are illiterate.

On the other hand, student counterparts in Russia graduate with five years of algebra, physics and biology, 10 years of geometry, four years of chemistry and two years of calculus. In addition, they are in school more than 200 days each year, as opposed to 175 for Texas students. While Dallas students spend only 25 percent of their classroom time learning, Japanese students spend 85 percent. It is apparent that our nation as well as this state is failing in its responsibility to properly educate our children.

Part of our education problem stems from a severe teacher shortage. We're losing some of our brightest, most competent teachers to better paying jobs in the private sector. Potentially excellent teachers decide against even entering the profession when they learn how low the salaries are. An example of this shortage is the fact that not even one chemistry teacher has graduated from a Texas college for two years while only 20 new math teachers earned a degree in our state last year, 13 of which accepted high-paying jobs in private industry. Despite our state's comparable wealth, we rank shamefully in the bottom third of the teacher pay scale. Our problem is clearly not limited to teacher pay alone; however, no single part of public education can be changed without having an effect on the other areas.

With these problems in mind, I was pleased when a Select Public Education Committee was named to examine the issue of teacher pay as well as the other educational needs in Texas. The committee was formed as a result of Gov. White's failure to garner support from lawmakers this session for a 24 percent teacher pay raise; however, they will be responsible for addressing all our problems in education not just the teacher pay issue. The panel held their first meeting on July 13 and will meet again on Aug. 3.

Declaring a "war on ignorance", the 21-member committee plans to probe several key issues, including higher wages and merit pay for teachers, high-technology education, teacher competency testing, equalization pay for financing public education, and classroom discipline. Longer school days, an extended school year, improved curriculum and more cooperative teaching efforts between businesses and schools will also be studied. Another critical concern will be greater family responsibility and involvement in the public education program.

Under the direction of businessman H. Ross Perot, who led the Texas "War on Drugs" campaign in 1981, the committee has a responsibility that is two-fold: they must define educational needs and make recommendations for a thorough overhaul of the public school system in Texas while at the same time find ways to finance the changes. Unfortunately, you do not get something for nothing these days. Gov. White and Comptroller Bullock have said that a tax increase will be "inevitable" to fund our education programs.

As you know, the tight budget this session did not allow us to grant school teachers anything more than the pre-authorized "step" pay raise and the members of the House stood firm against any tax increase. I have been and will remain committed to improving the level of teacher compensation, and I am seriously considering a tax increase for this purpose. I'm aware that in the past many of you have felt you were paying the bill for mediocre results. Therefore, I must be convinced that the proposed changes will ensure a high quality of education for our children long before I would seek your thoughts on a tax increase.

Public education is obviously not a problem with a short-term solution: The select committee is moving ahead carefully because members realize the future of public education in Texas may well be in their hands. To date, they have approved only one measure—a privately funded pilot program for training school principals and administrators. Since this panel is focusing their efforts on the entire educational system and not just the issue of teacher pay, I don't imagine we will be called back for a special session until the study is complete, which may not be until October or November.

Because the children of Texas have always been a top concern of mine, I am eagerly awaiting the recommendations of this select committee so that we may begin to take some positive action to cure our education ills.

I welcome your thoughts and comments on this important issue, or any issue that concerns you. Please write Larry Don Shaw, P.O. Box 2910, Austin, Texas 78769 or feel free to call my toll-free number, 1-800-592-4731.

White, Bentsen: VP hopefuls?

By JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Supporters of Gov. Mark White and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen are downplaying — albeit with little enthusiasm — political whispering touting both Texans as potential 1984 Democratic vice presidential candidates.

White shuns such talk, recently telling a reporter, "I think I've got a much better job." In addition, he said, "I want to break that terrible precedent that was established in the last administration of serving one term as governor."

White's surprising defeat of incumbent Republican Gov. Bill Clements last November has established his reputation nationally as "a giant killer," said State Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle of Sherman.

Still, he said, talk of White becoming part of a Democratic presidential ticket is just that — talk.

White would be at the midpoint of a four-year term and does not want to break "his contract with the people," Slagle said.

"I don't think it is going to happen in 1984, but I don't mind people talking about it," said Slagle, a close White confidant. "It's good national publicity."

Such talk doesn't surprise one of White's chief critics, State Republican Party Chairman George Strake.

"From my observation,

SEN. LLOYD BENTSEN
...money, power base

GOV. MARK WHITE
...giant killer

from every office he has been in he has begun to make preparations to move up to the next ladder," Strake said. "I think he would jump at it in a New York minute."

A better Democratic vice presidential candidate, Slagle said, would be Bentsen.

"He's probably very high on a very short list," he said.

Aides to Bentsen, who withdrew from a 1976 presidential bid after a dismal showing, also are playing down any vice presidential possibilities.

"You have to be deaf not to have heard some of the speculation," said Jack Devore, Bentsen's Washington, D.C., press spokesman. "He has said all along 'They could do worse, and they probably will.'"

Bentsen, Devore said, "says it is hard for him to develop enthusiasm for that. He recalls Lyndon Johnson serving as vice president and he never knew LBJ to be as unhappy as he was during that period."

Currently, Bentsen isn't listening to the vice presidential chatter, Devore said, and is instead concentrating on his role as chairman of the U.S. Senatorial Campaign Committee, a group charged with regaining Democratic control of the U.S. Senate.

Success in that area could win Bentsen, because of his seniority, the chairmanship of the powerful Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

"When you combine his lack of enthusiasm for the vice presidential job with that fact, that he really would be in a powerful position as chairman of the environmental and public works committee, I think you can see he has a clear preference where his preference would lie," Devore said.

But could White or Bentsen turn down such an opportunity?

"I doubt that very seriously," said Devore. "But that's what Franklin Roosevelt called one of those 'iffy questions.' That's very raw speculation."

Slagle, however, said White probably would give the issue some thought, then turn it down.

Becoming vice president isn't easy. Candidates don't actively campaign for the position. It is, after all, theoretically up to a party's presidential nominee to choose his running mate.

Efforts to share a presidential ticket, Strake said, are easier "if you make it a point to be seen among the right people and he (White) has been doing that. Yes, I think he's going for it."

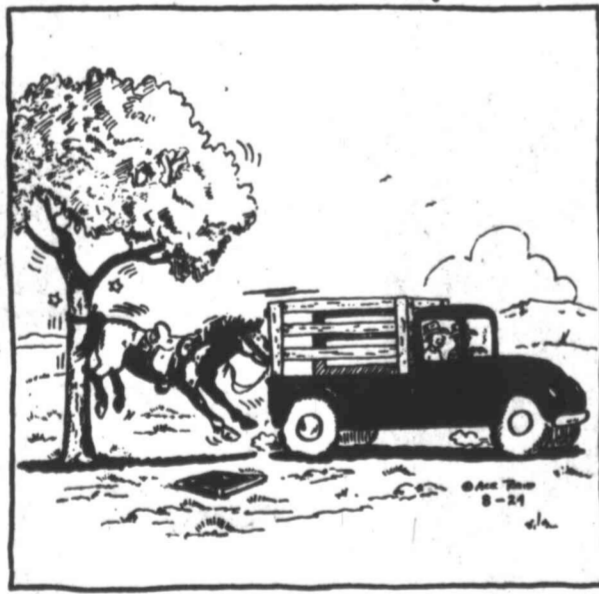

Texas now delivers more electoral votes — 29 — than any state except California and New York. And the Democratic Party has never captured the White House without winning Texas.

Also, notes respected political consultant George Christian of Austin, Texans still generally support President Reagan. The best way to overcome the Republican's advantage in his expected re-election bid, he said, is for the Democrats to field a "favorite son" candidate in Texas.

The Democratic presidential front-runners thus far are northerners: former Vice President Walter Mondale of Minnesota and U.S. Sen. John Glenn of Ohio.

A former member of the Big Spring High School student council, Dawn was elected to the SMU student government body last year when she was elected to one of four freshman seats.

Donations taken for Bible Fund

This school year has been proclaimed "Year of the Bible" by President Ronald Reagan. Big Spring and Howard County residents are being asked to help the community live up to this ideal. This year, the Bible will be taught in Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan schools, according to Dr. Kenneth Patrick, minister of the First Baptist Church of Big Spring and director of the Big Spring Bible Fund. The Bible Fund will help provide for this teaching. It is estimated that $14,000 is needed to support the programs. Contributions should be sent to the First Baptist Church at 705 W. Marcy, or the Big Spring Herald at 710 Scurry. Those contributing will have their names printed in the Herald.

Microfilm program starts

By REBECCA TAYLOR
The National Archives and Records Service has announced the resumption of the census microfilm program. After a budget-imposed hiatus of 19 months, the National Archives has named the DDD Co. as the contractor to carry out the new rental program. As before, the program will operate only through public libraries and other institutions. No individuals will be able to order microfilm directly from the contractor. The following is a series of operating policy statements for the program.

The user may rent the film for a one-week (seven-day) usage. Extensions are permitted if they do not interfere with a subsequent user's schedule.

The basic seven day rental is $2.25. Overdue charges of $2.25 are assessed if the film is more than two days late in being returned. The Howard County Library will receive payment from the individual patron and will charge an additional fee of 50 cents to cover return postage and handling.

Customers may order film to be delivered on a specific date or they may request shipment as soon as possible. In either case, if the film cannot be shipped within 10 days, a written confirmation will be sent notifying the library of arrival date. Strict adherence to the return date is crucial to the success of the program, and all patrons are required to conform to these dates.

The program is designed for prompt shipment when film is available and systematic scheduling when multiple orders accumulate, with no customer having to wait more than 60 days.

At the present time, the 1790 to 1910 census schedules and Soundex are available.

A person wishing to rent census microfilm can place an order through the Howard County Library. The film is then delivered to the library and must be returned by the library, not the patron.

When the film is lost or damaged beyond repair, the charge will be $12. The patrons are expected to use the film at the borrowing institution. Rental film is not designed to circulate outside the library.

The contractor is not able to perform census research for patrons. All research must be performed by the patron after the film is delivered to the library.

Joy to the world

By JOY CULWELL

A word to the wise about opening mouths

Zack Anderson is 2½ years old and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Anderson of Colorado City. It has been fun hearing Zack's developing language ability. He has learned a new salutation lately.

I don't know where he learned it. He attends a real nice day school taught by Sue McGuire and Judy Richey, so he may have learned it there. He may have learned it at Vacation Bible School he recently attended at the First United Methodist Church where Tracy Womack was one of his teachers.

Possibly he picked this salutation up watching his current favorite TV show about the Fonz. Who knows where Zack learned it?

Recently Mrs. Anderson was in Fuller Food with Zack riding "shotgun" in the grocery cart when a very pretty girl came in to buy some fruit. He winked (a new talent taught to him by his father recently) and said to the pretty girl in his clear understandable voice, "Hey Babe! Let's boogie!"

COUNTY JUDGE MILTON Kirby of Howard County, so I've been told, had a very interesting conversation recently with a 4-year-old girl who shall remain nameless. Well, the little girl asked Judge Kirby what church he went to. When he gave her his answer, he returned the question to which she answered with her hand on her hip, "Me and my mother are Blabstists!" You know, little girl, me and my mother are blabstists, too!

FUNNY STORIES REMIND me of two more. Seems Mac Morris, owner of Costin Implement in Colorado City, was fooling around the other day with the company computer. He must not have known what he was doing because the computer typed out, "Stupid, don't you know you can't do that?" Well, it's a good thing Mac sells Ford tractors and leaves the computer work to others in his firm.

A sign in Colorado City sure tells us the world conditions. Jerry Dossey owns a wrecker and those signs are on his storage yard gate. "Beware the Dog" the first sign reads. The second sign hits the nail on the head. It reads "Never mind the dog! Beware the owner!"

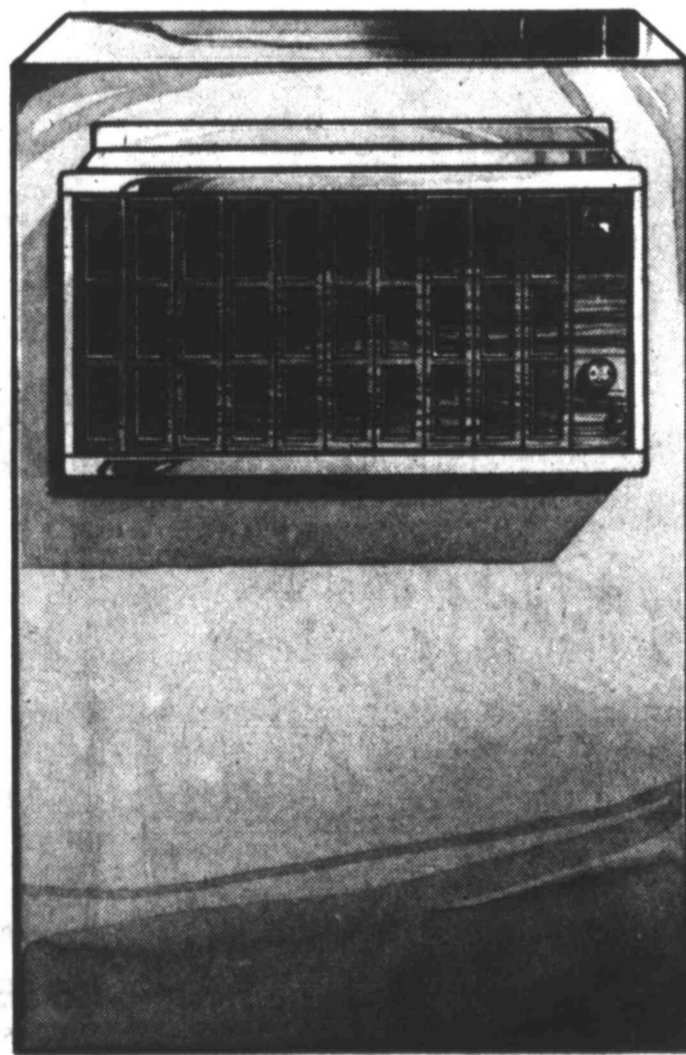

Joy Culwell is the Herald's new Colorado City correspondent. She will write a weekly column for the Sunday edition.

Wal-Mart prepares for opening

Wal-Mart Discount City employees and managers are busily stocking their 70,000 square-foot store at Coronado Plaza for an opening scheduled in the "very near" future, according to company officials.

The store, which will be quartered in the old Thornton's building, will feature nationally advertised merchandise, discount prices and a check-out system which company officials say assures the customer he is "always next in line."

"We are happy to be here and serve the people and customers of Big Spring," said manager David Peters. "If a person has any problems or suggestions, he came come to us and we'll do what we can to get them handled."

Peters began his career with Wal-Mart in 1979 in Jasper, Texas, as an assistant manager. He has also served as assistant manager in Kinder, La., and manager in Edinburg, Texas.

Peters will operate the store with four assistant managers and about 100 employees. The assistant managers are George Robinson, Ted Sledz, Tom Smith and Frank Matta. Each manager averages about six years of retail experience. Three of the managers come to Big Spring from other Wal-Mart stores, according to

GETTING READY — Cars already fill the Wal-Mart Discount City parking lot as employees ready the new store for its opening sometime this month. Located in the former Thornton's store building at Coronado Plaza, Wal-Mart will open its doors to a greatly expanded and completely remodeled facility.

Peters.

The store will have 12 major departments: housewares, electronics, paint, sporting goods, ladies apparel, men's wear, family shoes, fabric, toys, health and beauty aids, stationery, jewelry and automotive goods.

The Big Spring store will be one of the chain's 551 stores in operation. Wal-Mart, Inc. had sales of $3.4 billion last year and employed more than 49,000 persons through 15 states. The chain plans 60 new stores in 1983.

No opening date has yet been set, but Gary Walker, advertising executive in the chain's Bentonville, Ark., headquarters said, "I think it would be fair to say we'll be opening very soon or in the very near future in August."

Walker also said the store plans a sneak preview for the media and business leaders soon.

Tammy Peugh named bureau district queen

Just four days after being crowned 1983 Howard County Farm Bureau Queen, Tammy Peugh of Stanton was named Queen of District 6.

Miss Peugh, 19, daughter of J.E. and JoAnn Peugh Stanton, captured the district crown Thursday night at a pageant at Big Spring Country Club.

In addition to a $500 scholarship to the college of her choice, Miss Peugh won the right to compete in the Miss Texas Farm Bureau contest in November.

Barber hangs 'em up

Jack Barber began his career in Little League as concession stand manager at the American League ballpark in Big Spring. Presently he's completing his 15th season as District III administrator, presiding over the largest area in Texas.

In October — after 21 years of service — he'll retire from Little League baseball.

That is, if the people he works with from Big Spring to Williamsport, Va., will allow that to happen.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed it," he says of his long association with the youth baseball organization. "I have a soft spot in my heart for this age (6-12) of kids. You have your ups and downs but if one kid comes by and says he appreciates you, that kind of thing keeps you going over again."

Barber is retiring for several reasons, one being the increasing demands of his glass and mirror business. Recent expansions have caused him to spend more time in the office and less at the ballparks. "My job has grown such that I don't have the time I did 10 years ago," he offers, adding, "The main reason is I'm just tired. Little League involves 3-3½ months of the summer when you want to take time off and go places and do things with your family."

Under Barber's leadership, District III has grown by numbers and has gained a favorable reputation across the state. Only four local leagues participated in the annual district tournament, but Barber's encouragement in the Midland-Odessa area has added six Permian Basin teams in the tournament bracket.

And since Barber has served a long tenure as administrator, he seldom has to contact the state office in Waco or world headquarters in Williamsport to obtain rulings of points of conflict.

He is one of 30 district administrators in Texas and 574 across the world. Barber has served as state tournament director on four occasions, organizing the largest tournament in all of Little League baseball (the World Series involved only eight teams).

"You won't find a greater group of people to work with the kids," he says of Little League.

Barber first came out to the ballparks when his son, Jackie, began playing. "All I did was stand out there and throw the ball back in," he recalls. Soon he was the league's treasurer and concession boss (two years) and followed with a term as vice president and three as president of American League.

The Big Spring area was without an administrator in the late 1960s, and Barber and John Curry of National League talked Howard College coach Buddy Travis into taking the post. "Two months later, he left Howard and went to Levelland (South Plains College)," Barber says. "He didn't know what to do about his administrator's job, so they appointed me to fill out his three-year term in 1968. I've been there every since."

Through the years, Barber has watched Little League grow worldwide but interest decrease in his district. "I still see the interest in the children," he explains, "but there has been a lack of interest in the parents to register and back the kids in the last six years."

All four local leagues are down "nearly in half" in enrollment each summer. "It's getting harder and harder to get people to work the fields, the concession stands...used to, you could call anyone and they'd be glad to help."

"It's also getting harder and harder to get league presidents and coaches," he continued. "It takes more than 12 people in town to do it. It takes the ones interested two to three hours a day, five to six days a week to do the work."

Like Muhammed Ali, Barber has hinted that he could come out retirement someday. "I'm a firm believer that you do things the best you know how or you quite," he said.

Fortunately, Little League baseball for District III has proceeded along a steady path thanks to Big Spring's Jack Barber.

Runners: A breed apart

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

At that certain time of day, they shed the clothes of their respective professions and pull on T-shirts, headbands, shorts and shoes with funny treading on the bottoms.

It's a Superman-like routine. Minus the phone booth. Student or teacher, chemical engineer or preacher, running has become the ultimate form of escape for eight Big Spring residents. Not yet well-known runners like Steve Stallings of Stanton or Sherill Easterling and Donald Webb of Coahoma, these athletes run for better health, relaxation or competition.

Whatever their motivation, running is their game. In the sketches below, each runner tells why he or she plans time each day to exercise through running. Perhaps their stories will encourage others in this area to consider running as a form of physical fitness.

Keith Wiseman

Age: 48
Occupation: Pastor, First Methodist Church
Favorite Race: 2 mile

Keith Wiseman started running 13 years ago when he balked at the overstuffed body he saw on a video-taped church service in Amarillo. "TV doesn't do justice to you," he explains. "I weighed 205 pounds and TV adds about 20 to you...I started running just to lose some weight."

Now down to a trim 175 pounds he still runs 2-3 miles daily to "keep the ole cardio-vascular system in good shape." Occasional competition spices his running. "I'm not into the 10-k races like (Bob) Fuller and some of those guys...I prefer the short races," Wiseman says.

He doesn't mind the summer heat — "I can sweat a lot of stuff out" — and continues his running wherever duty calls, as far away as Madison, Wis.

Wiseman recently attended Kenneth Cooper's aerobic center in Dallas. "Other than a little high cholesterol, I rated superior in every area," he reported. He ran the 1 1/2 mile course in 9:15 — "that's pretty good for a 48-year-old man" — and stayed on the stress test for 27 minutes.

"I still fight it...there are still times I just soon not do it," he admits. But everyday at 4 p.m., he takes off on a run. "It helps me get away from tensions and pressures," Wiseman points out.

Gay Rusey

Age: 32
Occupation: Mother, student
Favorite race:

Running for Gay Rusey has become a substitute for her favorite activity, soccer.

A goalkeeper for a Houston-based women's soccer team, Rusey has ventured to West Texas where the sport is as scarce as a good thunderstorm.

A resident of Big Spring since June 1, she and her son are also in the Easterling running class at Howard College. When the soccer matches stopped, the inactivity began working against Rusey.

"I was a goal-keeper, so I didn't do much running anyway," she admits. "I thought I couldn't do it. But I needed something to keep me in shape. It didn't take long to get out of shape. I didn't think I'd like it, but after a week I started to enjoy it."

She runs four days in the class and once outside, during the morning preferably over the afternoon battle

BLASTING OUT OF THE SAND — Ben Crenshaw of Austin wedges a shot out of the sand at the No. 9 hole during third round action at the PGA national championship Saturday afternoon. Crenshaw closed the day with a birdie on 18 and trails leader Hal Sutton by two strokes.

Sutton maintains lead but Crenshaw charges

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) — Hal Sutton, the leader all the way, retained the top spot, but Ben Crenshaw chipped in for a birdie on the final hole to cut his advantage to two strokes Saturday in the storm-delayed third round of the 65th PGA national championship.

After shooting a tournament record 131 over the first 36 holes, Sutton, golf's Rookie of the Year last season and currently the leading money-winner appeared to be in position to make a rout of it.

But his 1-over-par 72 on the 6,946-yard Riviera Country Club course — by six strokes his highest score of the week — opened the gates to a variety of potential challenges in Sunday's final round of the chase for the title in this, the last of the year's Big Four events.

Leading the pack is Crenshaw, in second place and grimly seeking the major tournament victory he needs to confirm his stature in the game. After trailing by three at the end of two rounds, and down by four at various times in the third round, he closed up with the dramatic chip-in from about 30 yards on the 18th hole.

And, within striking distance despite less-than-spectacular third-round efforts, was a group headed by the most accomplished player of them all, Jack Nicklaus, along with Larry Nelson, the quiet little man who captured the U.S.

Open title two months ago, Bruce Lietzke and John Fought.

Sutton completed 54 holes in 203, 10 under par.

Crenshaw, with a hard-fought round of par 71, was at 205.

Fought, 29, who won his only two titles in his rookie year, 1979, also had a 71 and was next at 207, 6-under-par and four back.

Nelson, a former winner of this title, put himself in position with a 3-under-par 68 and was tied with Lietzke at 208. Liet-zke, winner of nine tour titles, shot a 70. Nicklaus, who counts five PGA titles among his record collection of 17 major professional victories, struggled to an erratic 71 that left him at 209, six shots behind the 25-year-old Sutton. His back nine included three birdies, four bogeys and two pars.

He was tied with Jay Haas, Scott Simpson and Buddy Whitten, a club pro from Grand Rapids, Mich. Haas had a 69, Simpson 70 and Whitten 73.

Cowboys awaken in time to win

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Rookie halfback Chuck McSwain of Clemson scored two touchdowns in the final 97 seconds Saturday night to carry the Dallas Cowboys to a stirring come-from-behind 20-17 National Football League preseason victory over the Miami Dolphins.

McSwain, a fifth-round draft pick by the Cowboys, scored off right tackle from a yard out with 2 seconds to play to cap the amazing Dallas rally.

The Cowboys trailed 17-6 when McSwain took a short screen pass from backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom and broke three tackles on the 67-yard

Dallas' Ron Felloos pounced on the ensuing on-sides kickoff at the 50-yard-line.

Miami quarterback David Woodley, hoping to make a big impression on Miami Coach Don Shula with Don Strock holding out, glittered with his scrambling and pinpoint passing.

With the aid of an interference penalty on cornerback Everson Walls, the Dolphins went 83 yards in 13 plays for a touchdown on their first possession for a 7-0 lead.

Woodley contributed a key 10-yard run to the Dallas 23 and Tony Nathan got the touchdown from five-yards out on a handoff from Woodley out of the shotgun formation.

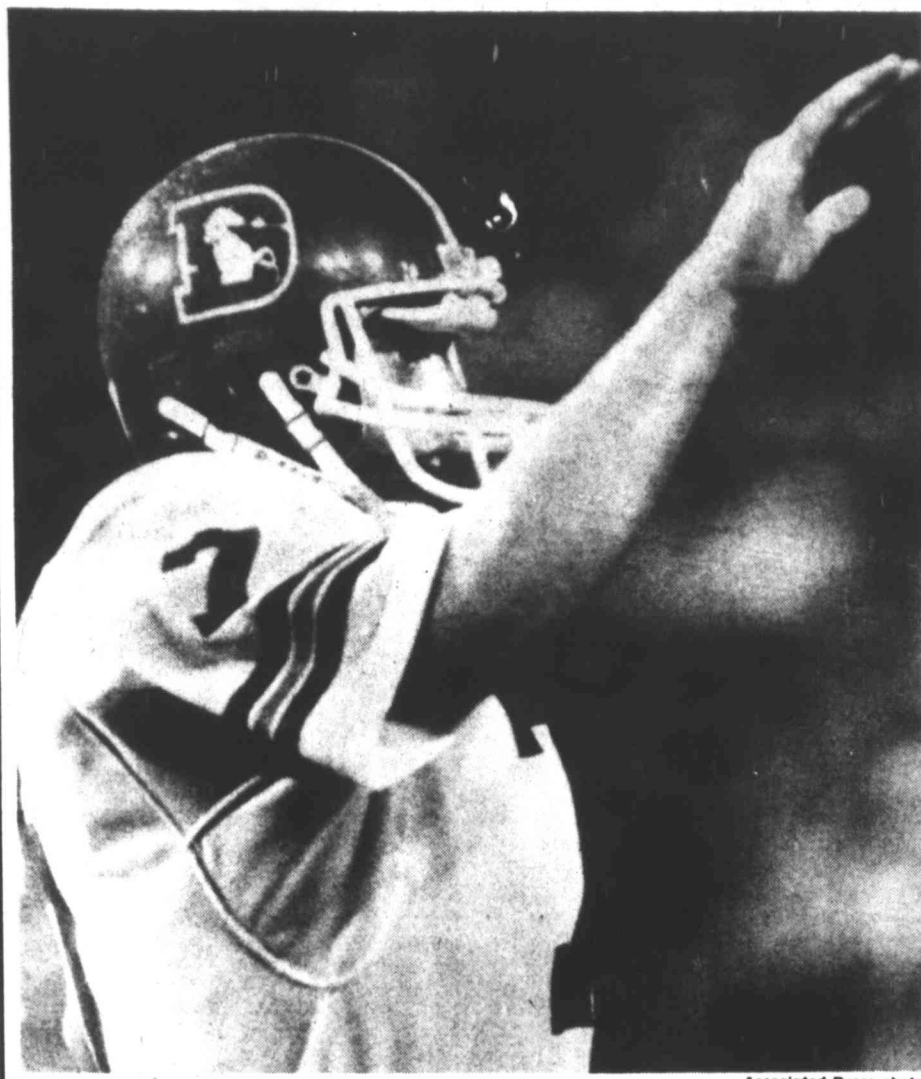

After Rafael Septien's 52-yard field goal cut the deficit to 7-3, Woodley hustled the Dolphins 96 yards in 9 plays in the second quarter. He hit tight end Joe Rose with a 56-yard pass before Eddie Hill covered the final 8-yards on a trap play up the middle of the Dallas defense.

Rookie Raul Allegre of Texas kicked a 51-yard field goal with time running out.

The Cowboys' biggest offensive play of the first half was called back. Tony Dorsett dashed 52 yards for an apparent touchdown but tight end Doug Cosbie was in motion and the play was nullified.

HEY, I'VE GOT SOME FANS — Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway waves to cheering fans as he walks off the field after leading his team to a 10-7 pre-season win over the Seattle Seahawks. The former Stanford all-American engineered the Bronco's lone touchdown drive on his first series as a professional.

Bronc's Elway debuts in style

Vikes win in England, 'Skins drop opener, Steelers win

DENVER (AP) — The hype had been almost unbearable: John Elway, the greatest quarterback prospect since Joe Namath, a young man who could win games solely with his arm, who threw passes that other mortals only dreamed about.

The wraps finally came off Elway Friday night, when the Denver Broncos opened their National Football League pre-season against the Seattle Seahawks. And the rookie quarterback did not disappoint.

He entered the game in the second half to a thunderous ovation from the partisan crowd of 53,887. Elway promptly completed five of six passes, electrifying the crowd with a 38-yard pass to Steve Watson and a 16-yard dart to Rick Upchurch, as the Broncos drove for the go-ahead touchdown en route to a 10-7 victory.

Elway was at the controls on five subsequent series, none of which proved as successful, but the crowd obviously liked what it saw.

"He certainly excited the crowd," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves. "You could see everyone perk up when he came in. He threw the ball extremely well; that was the biggest thing. He has a long way to go, but he has the talent to be a great one."

Elway finished with 10 completions in 15 attempts for 89 yards, with one interception. Two of his throws were dropped by receivers, and the interception came on a ball that was deflected at the line of scrimmage. He also sprinted out of the pocket on one occasion to escape a sack, running for 13 yards and a first down.

Asked to assess his performance, Elway said, "I was really happy with it. I was a lot more loose than I thought I would be. Things went well and that first drive really built my confidence. I was having fun, I tell you."

Elway's first series was capped by Sammy Winder's 2-yard touchdown run with 8:38 left in the third quarter. Seattle threatened three times after that, but a missed field goal thwarted one drive and key sacks killed the others. Seattle quarterbacks Jim Zorn and Dave Krieg were sacked six times in the game.

Denver had taken a 3-0 lead just minutes into the contest after safety Steve Foley intercepted, setting up Rich Karlis' 48-yard field goal. The Seahawks went ahead 7-3 just before the half when Kerry Justin picked off a Steve DeBerg pass and rookie Curt Warner scored four plays later.

Eagles 21, Lions 17
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lineman Ken Clarke picked up a fumble on a sack and rambled 41 yards for a third-period touchdown that lifted the Philadelphia Eagles to a 21-17 victory over the Detroit Lions.

With the score tied 10-10 in the third quarter, Eagles defensive end Carl Hairston sacked the Lions' Gary Danielson, knocking the ball into the air. Clarke picked it off and ran for the score.

The Eagles increased their lead to 19-10 when Jim Asmus kicked a 38-yard 19 field goal with 5:19 remaining in the game.

Detroit trimmed the deficit to 19-17 with 2:06 to go on Vince Thompson's 1-yard run that capped an eight-play, 75-yard drive.

Philadelphia's final score came with 1:25 to go after Max Runager's punt was downed on the Lions' 2-yard line. On second down, Danielson dropped back to pass and stepped out of the end zone for a safety.

Falcons 13, Redskins 10
ATLANTA (AP) — Mick Luckhurst kicked a 29-yard field goal 4:56 into overtime to give the Atlanta Falcons a 13-10 victory over the Washington Redskins in the NFL exhibition season opener for both teams.

Washington had a chance to win with just over 4:30 gone in the overtime, but Mark

Rusty Lisch shared quarterback duties with Hart.

Bears 27, Bills 17
CHICAGO (AP) — Reserve quarterback Vince Evans engineered two third-quarter touchdowns Saturday night as the Chicago Bears rolled to a 27-17 victory over the Buffalo Bills in a National Football League exhibition opener.

Evans, used only in the third quarter, completed five of seven passes for 99 yards to set up touchdown runs of 9 yards by Matt Suhey and 1 yard by Dennis Gentry.

Jim McMahon quarterbacked the Bears to a 13-10 lead in the first half although he was intercepted twice. But the Bears intercepted five passes, with two pickoffs by free safety Gary Fencik.

Bucs 20, Saints 17
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Bill Capece booted a 35-yard field goal as time ran out Saturday night to give the Tampa Bay Buccaneers a 20-17 National Football League preseason victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Capece's second field goal capped a 20-point fourth quarter. The victory gave Tampa Bay a 1-0 preseason record. New Orleans dropped to 0-2 after taking a 10-0 lead on George Rogers' 5-yard run and Morten Andersen's 24-yard field goal.

Steelers 27, Patriots 16
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Walter Abercrombie ran for two touchdowns and Gary Anderson kicked a pair of field goals Saturday night to give the Pittsburgh Steelers a 27-16 victory over the New England Patriots in a National Football League exhibition game.

A crowd of 42,876 at the University of Tennessee's Neyland Stadium watched as Pittsburgh won its second pre-season game. It was the Patriots' first game of the year.

Chiefs 24, Bengals 7
CINCINNATI (AP) — Phil Bruneau and Thomas Howard turned Cincinnati mistakes into touchdowns and Willie Abrams ran 4 yards for another score as the Kansas City Chiefs defeated the Cincinnati Bengals 24-7 Saturday in the National Football League preseason opener for both teams.

Browns 21, Packers 20
GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Matt Bahr kicked his fifth field goal, a 45-yarder with 28 seconds to play, to lift the Cleveland Browns to a 21-20 National Football League preseason victory over the Green Bay Packers Saturday night.

Baker reports 18 days late

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler defensive end Jesse Baker was to find out what he's been missing Saturday when he reported 18 days late to the Oiler training camp at Angelo State University.

JESSE BAKER
...ends contract holdout

Baker, who signed a series of one-year contracts Friday to end his lengthy holdout, will discover a new defensive philosophy from last season when he led the Oilers with 9 1/2 quarterback sacks.

The Oilers retained the 3-4 alignment but new defensive coordinator Chuck Studley has installed new terminology and different line charges.

Baker, counted on to start ahead of veteran Elvin Bethea this season, had refused to report to camp until his agent, Frank Buck, had negotiated the contract. Oilers officials declined to announce terms of the contract.

Baker is a second round draft choice from Jacksonville State in 1979. He starting duties from the 16-year veteran Bethea last season and has led the Oilers in sacks the past four seasons.

Betha started for the Oilers Thursday night when they opened the exhibition season with a 15-0 loss to the Baltimore Colts in the Astrodome.

Baker will have a complete new terminology and defensive charges to learn when he reports to new defensive coordinator Chuck Studley.

Australia's Lock overtakes Rizzo for third round lead

BOSTON (AP) — Australian Jane Lock, bidding for her first LPGA triumph in her second year on the U.S. women's golf tour, moved into a 3-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $175,000 Boston Five Classic.

The 28-year-old former physical education instructor from Victoria fired a 4-under-par 68 for a 54-hole total of 206 on Radisson Ferncroft's 6,008-yard layout.

Starting the day two strokes behind 36-hole leader Patti Rizzo and one stroke behind Sue Ertl, Lock took command quickly.

She birdied the first two holes to pull into a tie with Rizzo, then took the lead with Rizzo, the LPGA's 1982 Rookie of the Year who equalled the course record with a 66 Thursday and took a 70 in the second round, had four bogeys and only two birdies on the back nine, taking a 73 for 209.

Vicki Tabor still chasing her first triumph in six years on the tour put together a third consecutive subpar round to pull into a tie with Rizzo.

Tabor, who had a 139 after two rounds added a 70 for her 209. She got down in regulation for 10 holes before picking up a bogey on the 11th. She got back into contention quickly with birdies on the 13th, 15th and 17th holes.

Ertl, a former Michigan State All-American looking for her first victory on the tour, had two birdies on the back nine and slipped to a 73 for 210, six strokes under par. After a first-round 71, she equalled the course record with a 66 Friday.

Pam Gietzen was alone at 211 after a third-round 72. Donna Caponi, one of golf's all-time greats and the winner here two years ago, remained in contention with a 71 for 212.

Another stroke at 213 were newly crowned U.S. Open champion Jan Stephenson, 1982 Open champ Pat Bradley and Becky Pearson. Stephenson had a third-round 68, Bradley 70 and Pearson 73.

Defending champion Sandra Palmer was next at 215, thanks to a 69. Patty Sheehan, the reigning LPGA champion, faltered with a 73 for 216.

MAYBE IF I BLEW ON IT — Australian golfer Jane Lock encourages her ball to roll in the hole for birdie on the No. 6 Saturday at the LPGA Boston Five golf tournament in Danvers, Mass. Lock fired a 4-under-par 68 to take a three-shot lead.

Okies rout Texas in Oil Bowl

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Shawn Stephenson passed for 115 yards and ran for 54 to lead the Oklahoma high school all-stars to a convincing 27-3 victory over the Texas high school all-stars Saturday night in the 46th Oil Bowl football game.

Stephenson, of Ada, Okla., and bound for Central State University, connected on six of 14 passes, including an 80-yard scoring toss to Clinton's Ray Collins on the first play of the second half that helped Stephenson win the game's most valuable offensive player award.

Oklahoma's win was only its 10th against 29 Texas victories.

The winners scored twice in the final half on halfback passes to Oklahoma University recruit Chris Rainbolt of Cordell. The first came with 10 minutes remaining on a 21-yard pass from Robert Lavender that gave the Okies a 21-3 advantage.

Lavender, a Lawton Eisenhower product, also picked off a pair of Texas passes and was named the game's MVP.

Boston Five

a birdie on the fourth. Rizzo pulled back into a tie with a birdie on the eighth hole, but dropped back with bogeys on the 10th and 11th.

Lock played conservatively the rest of the way and padded her lead on the final hole, picking up a birdie 4 with a five-wood shot to the green and then two-putting from 75 feet.

Lock, who had a double-bogey 6 on the first hole of the 72-hole tournament Thursday, continued her steady game. She has not had a bogey since her sputtering start, finishing the first round with a 71 and carding a 67 in the second.

Duenna wins Hambletonian

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Duenna, driven by Stanley Dancer, won the $1 million Hambletonian at the Meadowlands on Saturday and became the first filly to win the prestigious race for 3-year-old trotters since Kerry Way in 1966.

Duenna, who won the second division of the first heat, won the championship when she took the second heat, finishing two lengths ahead of Winky's Gili.

Timed in 1:57 3-5 in the first heat, Duenna won the final in 1:57 2-5, a Meadowlands track record for 3-year-old filly trotters.

Rangers tip Tribe for third straight

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Tanana tossed a five-hitter and Jim Sundberg drove in three runs to spark the Texas Rangers to a 6-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday night.

Tanana, 5-4, struck out five and walked three while pitching his second complete game. The left-hander allowed only one hit and no walks over the final 6 1-3 innings in lowering his earned run average to 2.72.

Len Barker, 8-12, took the loss, Cleveland's fourth straight. Barker yielded four runs over the first 5 1-3 innings before leaving with tightness in his pitching arm.

Texas, which won its third straight game after losing eight in a row, jumped to a 3-0 lead in the second inning. Larry Parrish led off with a double and Bobby Jones drew a one-out walk. Mickey Rivers doubled home Parrish and Sundberg followed with a two-run single.

Buddy Bell lined a solo home run, his 11th, in the Rangers' third. Cleveland center-fielder Gorman Thomas had the ball in his glove above the fence, but the

It was Milwaukee's second consecutive shutout of Toronto and the second consecutive game in which the Jays did not advance a runner past second. They have scored one run losing the last three games.

Porter, 4-5, struck out three and walked two. Loser Doyle Alexander, 0-6, allowed only six hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Yankees 13, Tigers 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Randolph drove in four runs, Dave Winfield knocked in three and Jerry Mumphrey and Don Baylor each had two RBI, leading the New York Yankees to a 13-3 triumph over the Detroit Tigers Saturday night.

The 13 runs were a season high for the Yankees, who shelled four Detroit pitchers for 17 hits, including home runs by Randolph and Winfield in the sixth inning.

Royals 4, Red Sox 0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Eric Rasmussen became the first Kansas City pitcher to record a complete-game shutout since September 1982, when he checked Boston on seven hits Saturday night and hurled the Royals to a 4-0 victory over the Red Sox in his American League debut.

Rasmussen, 31, was purchased from the Louisville Redbirds on Aug. 2 and brought up Friday to replace Vida Blue, who was released. It was the first shutout by a Kansas City right-hander since Oct. 2, 1981.

White Sox 6, Orioles 4

BALTIMORE (AP) — Floyd Bannister allowed five hits in seven innings and posted his sixth consecutive victory as the Chicago White Sox scored a 6-4 decision over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday night.

Harold Baines and Greg Luzinski hit consecutive home runs for three of Chicago's four runs in the fifth inning as the White Sox ended a nine-game losing streak at Memorial Stadium.

A's 6, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Oakland's Tony Phillips hit a two-run homer in the 13th inning to give the A's a 6-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday night.

KNIGHT IN SHINING UNIFORM — The Houston Astros are not known as the National League's best hitting team but third baseman Ray Knight is among the league's top hitters. Staying healthy and having the hits fall are what he says could keep his average above .330.

Good Knight! He may win team a batting title

HOUSTON (AP) — Ray Knight says he doesn't need superstition, as long as Les Moss and Denis Menke are around.

Menke, the Houston Astros' hitting coach, gives technical advice. Moss, the team's pitching coach, adds a personal touch.

"I do have Les Moss touch my bat occasionally," acknowledged Knight, who says he's not superstitious. "In Chicago, he grabbed my bat one day and said, 'Let me put some hits in that bat,' and I went 4-for-4 that day, and he did it again in Cincinnati and I went 4-for-5."

"He gave me eight hits in nine at bats, so now, every once in awhile, I go by and have him grab my bat."

Knight's season-long flirtation with the National League batting lead probably is more the result of his own Midas touch with the bat and the constant vigilance of Menke.

The Astros' third baseman was disappointed last year, when he hit above .300 most of the season and then dropped to a .294 in the final two weeks. This season, Knight started slowly but got on track after the first two weeks of the season.

He went over .300 for the first time on May 24 and has not been below that standard again, reaching a season high of .346 on July 15. As of midweek, he was at .331, just behind George Hendrick of St. Louis in the National League.

"I set a goal to hit .300 this season," Knight said. "But after the All-Star break I set another goal to hit .330 because I was hitting .335. It's within my capabilities to hit .330. I just have to stay healthy and the balls that are hit will have to fall for me."

Menke said Knight's ability to make a quick analysis of his swing has helped his performance this season.

"One reason that he has been successful this year is he doesn't have to wait for a whole game or two or three games to make a different move," Menke said. "I think that's one reason he's going to be up near the top the whole season."

"What he's doing right now, if he's not seeing the ball well, he'll make that adjustment on the next pitch."

Among the problems that Knight has had to overcome is playing 81 games each season in the Astrodome, where he says he has trouble seeing the ball.

"Two weeks ago I was hitting .380 on the road and .255 at home," Knight said. "I don't know what it is but it's not mental because I know that every time I've gotten into a real good streak, I'll come home and the first game I strike out a time or two and have trouble seeing."

"I'm not the type of guy to get psyched out about anything. But this is the worst park I've ever hit in. I don't feel the lighting here is as good or maybe it's just the perception you get of being enclosed. You have the tunnel out there in center field. You don't have that definite backdrop that most parks have."

After his slow start, Knight said he had gone no more than two games without a hit. Late last week, he was in a mini-slump with one hit in 11 at-bats. The following night, however, he hit a home run and a single.

Knight had taken his regular turn in batting practice, huddled with Menke and then went back for another 30 minutes of hitting.

If that hadn't worked, Knight would have headed straight for Moss.

ball popped loose and over the barrier when Thomas hit his wrist against the fence.

Cleveland scored its lone run off Tanana in the third. Alan Bannister doubled with one out and scored when Pat Tabler lined a two-out single.

Texas made it 6-1 in the seventh as Rivers led off with an infield hit and scored on Sundberg's double. Sundberg took third on the play as shortstop Julio Franco's relay throw bounced past the plate for an error, then scored on Wayne Tolleson's sacrifice fly.

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 0

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rookie Chuck Porter fired a six-hitter for his first major league shutout and Paul Molitor homered to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 3-0 win over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Rookie pitchers win for Astros

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rookies Mike Madden and Bill Dawley teamed on a three-hitter Saturday and Alan Ashby drove in two runs as the Houston Astros edged the San Francisco Giants 4-2.

Madden, 5-0, a left-hander making his first appearance against the Giants, worked the first five innings, allowing two hits and one run. Dawley worked the last four innings to earn his ninth save.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the third on Johnnie LeMaster's leadoff double and a one-out single by Chili Davis, but the Astros went ahead to stay with two runs in the fourth off loser Renie Martin, 1-2.

Phil Garner singled with one out and reached third on Martin's balk and a groundout before scoring on Ray Knight's single. Ashby followed with a run-scoring double to put the Astros ahead.

The Astros chased Martin and added a run in the sixth. Knight led off with a single and was forced by Ashby, who advanced to third on a walk and a grounder third and Warren Cromartie homered one out later.

Jason Thompson walked and Dave Parker singled to open the Pirates' third and Mike Easler followed with a two-run double and moved to third on a wild pitch. Smith, 3-4, then retired the next two batters.

The Pirates made it 5-3 in the third, but Expos catcher Gary Carter provided insurance with a two-run single in the eighth.

Padres 11, Reds 4

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bobby Brown scored the go ahead run in the seventh inning and highlighted an eight-run eighth with a grand slam home run to lead the San Diego Padres to an 11-4 trouncing of the Cincinnati Reds in the first game of a two-night doubleheader Saturday.

The Padres had taken a 3-2 lead in the seventh when Brown led off with a walk off loser Charlie Puleo, 4-7, stole second and advanced to third on catcher Johnny Bench's throwing error. He scored on Garry Templeton's single to left.

Bench started at catcher for the Reds for the first time since April 29, 1981. Eric Show, 11-7, scattered five hits over eight innings, with four strikeouts. Luis DeLeon finished up for San Diego.

Phillies 1, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Von Hayes singled home Joe Morgan in the 11th inning to break up a scoreless pitching duel and give the Philadelphia Phillies a 1-0 victory over St. Louis Saturday, extending the Cardinals losing streak to six games.

Al Holland, 6-0, pitched the final two innings in relief of Steve Carlton, who had shut St. Louis down through the first nine. Bruce Sutter, 8-7, took the loss in relief of Danny Cox, who had blanked the Phillies through 10 innings in his major-league debut.

Carlton struck out six, bringing his all-time major-league total to 3,615, nine ahead of Houston's Nolan Ryan.

Morgan opened the 11th with a double to right and went to third on a long fly ball by Mike Schmidt. Sutter intentionally walked Joe Lefebvre to face Hayes, who smacked his game-winning single to right.

Yank's Martin gets second suspension

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin was suspended Friday for the second time this season when the American League announced it was making him sit out two games for calling umpire Dale Ford a liar.

The action marks the third time Martin has been disciplined by the league this season — he already has been fined and suspended in two separate run-ins with umpires.

AL President Lee MacPhail said he suspended Martin "for making public remarks adversely reflecting on the honesty and integrity of an American League umpire" for Sunday's game with the White Sox at Chicago.

The suspension is to begin Aug. 9, when the Yankees play host to Toronto. New York also plays Toronto on Aug. 10.

MacPhail said Martin can appeal the ruling. If he does, the suspension would not take effect until the appeal is heard.

Reached at Yankee Stadium Friday afternoon, Martin said he had no comment on the latest action.

Martin was ejected during Sunday's game, which the Yankees won 12-6 in 11 innings, after arguing about the number of warmup throws catcher Butch Wynegar should get. Wynegar had come into the game to replace Rick Cerone, who had been ejected.

"This is not the first time Martin has made such statements, and he was previously warned that any future remarks of this nature would result in a suspension," MacPhail said.

In April, MacPhail fined Martin a reported $5,000 for remarks directed at umpire Dan Morrison after a game the Yankees lost in Seattle to the Mariners.

Friday's statement further quoted from a letter MacPhail sent to Martin on April 19 following the Seattle dispute: "You were quoted in the press as saying, 'He (Morrison) gave me two lies already. Why should I go for three? You made further statements in which you talked about lying and integrity and said the Mariners' best player was the umpire."

"Instead of taking action against you at that time, I chose to talk to Mr. (Bill) Bergesch (Yankees vice president) and Mr. (George) Steinbrenner (Yankees owner) and asked them to make it clear to you that we could not tolerate careless comments about an umpire's integrity."

KC releases Blue

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — He surged into the major leagues 13 years ago with a catchy name, an infectious grin and a whirlwind fastball.

And let the record show that when he walked away Friday afternoon — possibly at the end of his career — Vida Blue still was smiling.

"I'm glad it's all over," said the veteran lefthander, whistling and smiling after Manager Dick Howser told him he had been given his unconditional release.

Blue has not won since last Sept. 13 when he threw a one-hit shutout at the Seattle Mariners. Since then, his record is 0-8. He was 0-5 this year with an earned run average of 6.01 after shuffling between the starting rotation and the bullpen.

Will he pitch again in the major leagues? Howser says maybe. Hal McRae, one of his teammates on the Royals, feels "there is a chance."

Blue's major league record is 191-143. He gained instant stardom his rookie year with Oakland in 1970 by throwing a no-hitter against Minnesota. He was 24-8 the next year with the A's and was the winning pitcher for the American League in the 1971 All-Star Game.

A key part of Oakland's three straight World Series championships in the early 1970s, Blue was traded to the San Francisco Giants in 1978. The Giants swapped him to Kansas City prior to the 1982 season in what has become one of the most unpopular deals the Royals ever made.

The Royals gave up pitchers Atlee Hammaker, Renie Martin and Craig Chamberlain and second baseman Brad Wellman for Blue and pitcher Bob Tufts, who is back in the minor leagues and no longer with the Royals.

Blue has a year to go on his contract and Manager John Schuerholz, who engineered the trade, admitted that releasing him will cost the Royals "more than a half million dollars."

BILLY MARTIN ...called ump 'a liar'

before scoring on Omar Moreno's bloop single off Gary Lavelle.

The Giants made it 3-2 in the bottom of the sixth on a one-out homer by Jeff Leonard, his 14th, but Houston's Jose Cruz ended an 0-for-20 slump with a triple in the ninth off Greg Minton and scored on a single by Ashby.

Expos 7, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Andre Dawson hit two homers, including a three-run shot in the first inning, and Bryan Smith pitched a six-hitter for his second consecutive complete game as the Montreal Expos beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3 Saturday.

The victory, Montreal's third in a row, moved the Expos within a half game of the Pirates.

Tim Lincecum singled to start the game against loser Lee Tunnell, 5-4, and Bryan Little walked. Dawson then crashed a home run just inside the left-field foul pole to give the Expos a 3-0 lead.

Dawson hit his second homer in the

Palmer to rehabilitate in minors

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three-time Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer "doesn't really relish the idea," but the 17-year veteran will return to the minor leagues in an attempt to rehabilitate his off-injured pitching arm.

"The mounds are bad and the lighting is poor in a lot of minor league parks, which increases the risk of injury," said Palmer, who last pitched in the minors in 1988 when returning from back and shoulder problems.

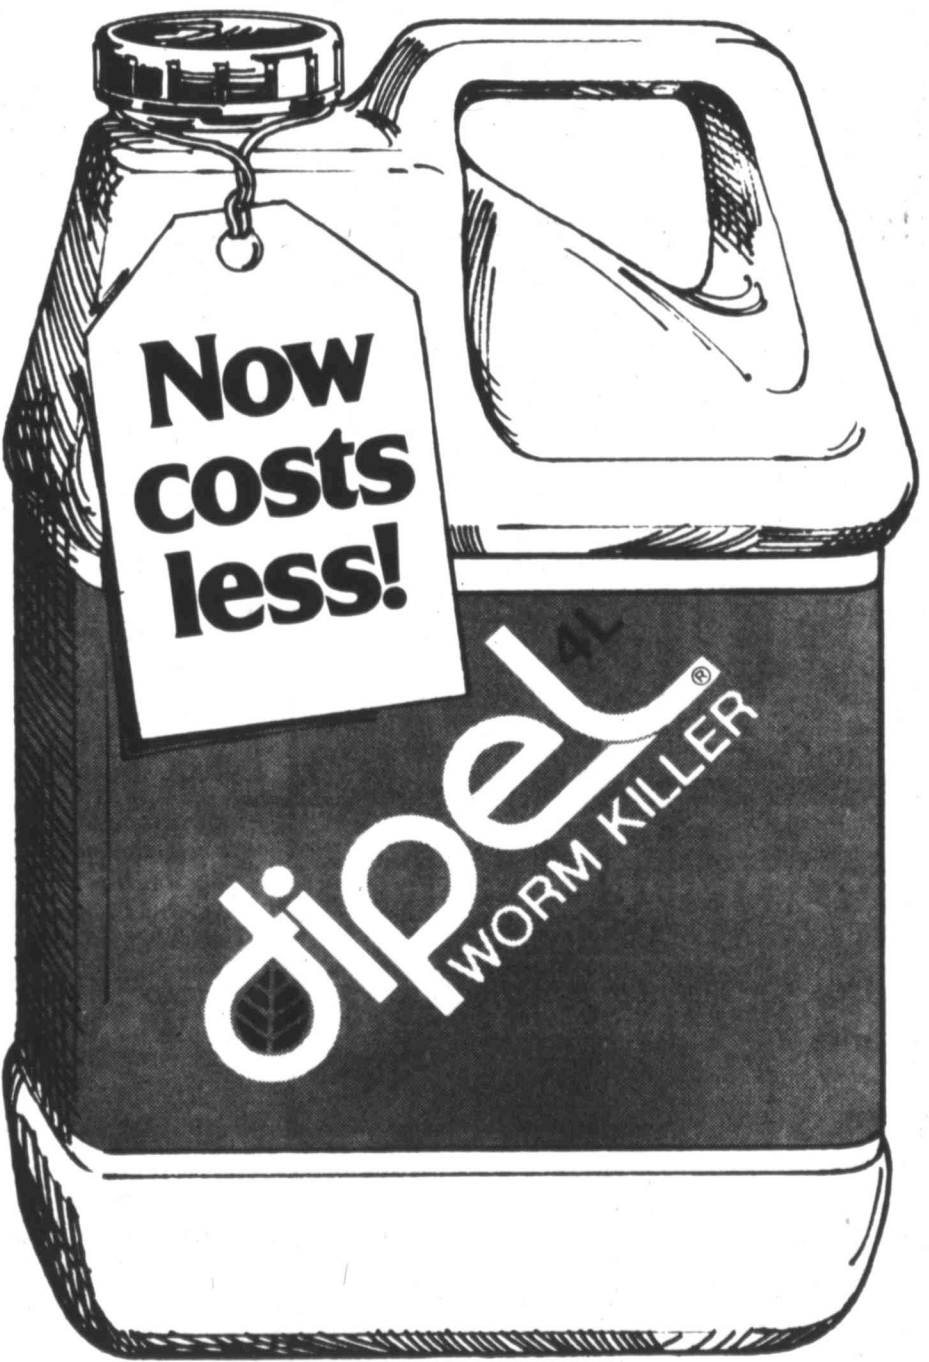

"But I've reached a point where I want to be able to go to Joe (Altobelli, Orioles manager) or Hank (Peters, Orioles general manager) and tell them my arm is fine and that I can go six, seven innings or whatever."

Peters announced Friday that Palmer will pitch Sunday for the Hagerstown Suns of the Class A Carolina League. He is also scheduled to start for the minor league club next Friday.

"After that, we'll evaluate his condition and make a judgement about reactivating him," said Peters, who initially indicated Palmer would spend 20 days with the farm team, the maximum allowed under a rehabilitative assignment.

Cotton growers: save bucks and beneficients.

DIPEL® helps protect the high-yielding bottom crop from bollworms. And, because DIPEL leaves beneficients in the field, you reduce the chances of getting locked into a regular-interval spray program. Net result: your overall insecticide costs are likely to be reduced.

Since DIPEL costs less per acre than most conventional insecticides...and beneficients continue working your fields...bottom-line profits should be greater!

DIPEL is a natural, biological worm killer. One bite of treated foliage and worms stop feeding almost immediately...then die within a few days. DIPEL has not shown worm resistance build-up, won't affect boll maturity, and has not shown harmful effects on man or his environment.

DIPEL 4L is the only microbial insecticide which is registered for use with cotton seed oil. DIPEL may also be tank mixed with ovicides such as chlordimeform or methomyl if significant eggs are present at time of treatment.

Apply DIPEL when the majority of worms are less than 3/8" long, and scouting reports show light to moderate (up to 15,000 worms per acre) populations.

This is the year you need to save bucks and beneficients while controlling bollworms. DIPEL does it all!

Preachers to teachers, they're running

Rusey has learned to run at a pace and to think about what she's doing. "I concentrate on my breathing and sometimes plan menus for the week," she said.

"This is the easiest thing for a woman my age to get into," she adds. "It's something you can do individually, at your own pace. I don't worry if anyone else is around...I just concentrate on what I'm doing."

In a 10-kilometer run last April and he hasn't slowed down since. Running in the 40-49 age division, he's advanced down to a 38:46 (Midland) and has begun to collect first place awards. "I had no intentions of getting this fired-up," he smiles, now even supplementing his 10-k's with 5-k's to build speed.

Fuller runs twice daily, at noon and in the evenings with Easterling and Webb. Has he gotten back in shape yet? "I've lost 20 pounds in the last 4 1/2 months," he answers.

Some runners hit that streets for health reasons or escape from the rigors of the day, Davis uses his daily runs in preparation for competition.

"The competition is really why I run," admits Davis, a former collegiate swimmer. He and wife, Linda, travel as far as Lubbock, San Angelo and Abilene for big events.

Unlike some of fellow runners, Davis thrives on the heat and runs during his lunch hour. "Maybe I'm a little unique in that respect," he understates, "but the hotter, the better."

Like other runners, he uses his run time to put his mind to work. "I do my best thinking when I'm running. You're undisturbed and can really concentrate." When he misses a day, his total person suffers. "You become mentally addicted to it," he confesses. "When I miss a day, I get sluggish. Aside from the competition, that's the second reason why I run. I feel better, more alert. It's a cheap high."

provides Linda Davis the perfect release from the hub-bub of school life.

During the summer, she has been running in the mornings to avoid the heat; come the school year, she shifts to the late afternoon. A four-mile course around the Davis' home in the Kentwood addition provides Linda with convenient running.

She got started in running by way of her husband in Palestine. "We started running together and then I got hooked," she remembers.

Thanks to Sherril Easterling, Tammy Williamson has put running ahead of racquetball.

Williamson is a member of Easterling's afternoon running class at Howard College and is another reclamation project. Not able to run "even a mile" several weeks ago, she's upped her distance to three miles.

"I love it better than racquetball now," she laughs. "It's a great time to think. You can always build on it. At first, I was saying 'Just get me back to where I started from. Now I really enjoy it.'"

Williamson is going to school this summer at HC and working at the Big Spring State Hospital. She took up running to get in shape and improve her racquetball game. "After the first day, I thought that if I have to do this kind of thing to get in shape, I'll do something else."

She hasn't competed yet, but she'll debut in a month at the Easterling run in Coahoma. The afternoon runs are getting her prepared. Once her body adjusts to the temperature, she says she "can run forever."

West Texas 4-Hers extend welcome to Japanese youths

Five Japanese youths are spending a month with 4-Hers in Big Spring to learn about American culture and language, July 23 to Aug. 21.

Mayumi Karita, 15, Namiko Kimura, 13, Akio Moriyasu, 18, Wakako Saito, 13, and Satomi Suzuki, 17, are members of Labo, an organization similar to 4-H. Labo encourages students to visit other countries. Last year, 1,069 Labo delegates visited the United States and Canada, while 226 4-H students visited Japan.

Hosting the foreign visitors are Vicky Moore, Ken Hunt, Paula Allen, Tanya and Tasha Rock and Denette Dick.

Peggy Kalina, Howard County Extension agent, said Japanese have a different way of figuring a person's age. "At birth, the Japanese consider themselves a year old," she said.

"EVERYTHING IS EXCITING and new to them," Ms. Kalina said. Through simple sentences and a Japanese/English dictionary, the 4-H hosts are able to convey messages to the Japanese youths.

Akio speaks the most English and sometimes acts as an interpreter for the others. Akio was impressed by the big houses in America. In Japan, Akio's family has three generations living in one house.

Denette said Mayumi family doesn't even have a car, they ride bicycles. They also like the wide roads here.

The Japanese students said in Japan things are small, while things are big here.

"I like America," Satomi said. "But I miss the food." McDonald's and 7-11 are common in Japan, the 4-H members said. The Japanese youths like McDonald's and hamburgers. They also like music. Satomi likes the group and singers Journey, Olivia Newton John, and Diana Ross. Upon hearing the word, Journey, Satomi became very excited and started jumping up and down.

Satomi also gets excited when she see a Toyota car or Kaswaki motorcycle, because her boyfriend works at Toyota in Japan, Miss Allen said. One day, Satomi took pictures of every Toyota and Kaswaki she saw.

The youths play all sports, including handball and tennis.

The only bad thing about their 13-hour flight to United States was the food on the plane, the Japanese youths said. "They aren't use to the time yet," Miss Dick said. There is a time difference of 14 hours between here and Japan.

Labo's goal is to promote understanding of different cultures through learning languages and to teach how to cooperate with and appreciate one another.

THE YOUTHS KNOW many years in advance that they will come to America, the 4-H hosts said. They have been writing letters to their host family for months.

Wakako brought a picture album she had made showing her examples of her culture. It contained some paper art animals, called origami, a popular art in Japan. She also had pictures of herself growing up, of her house, and of her lifestyle. Wakako had included

Three young girls are summer entrepreneurs

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

When school adjourned last summer, three enterprising young girls began an odd job business to keep busy and earn money. These young entrepreneurs are at it again this year and plan to continue working during school and next summer.

Kaci McCormick and Ingrid Hamilton, both 6th graders at Goliad Middle School, and Traci McCormick, an 8th grader at Runnels

"I've had two women who called me and said they had them work, and said they were great. They've worked like Trojans from the things I've heard."

Junior High School, have been a hit in their business world. They acquired several regular weekly housecleaning jobs in addition to occasional jobs.

"We were sitting outside trying to think of something to do and one of us thought about doing this," Kaci said. Babysitting, housework, yardwork and washing cars seemed like things they could do, so the girls presented the idea to their parents for approval. "They think it's good we are earning our own money," Traci said.

THE GIRLS MADE their own little calling cards and passed them out to neighborhood families to advertise their services. At first the girls set their rates, but soon discovered their prices got rather high when the work was added up. "We usually have them make the price," Kaci said.

Johnnie Lou Avery learned about the girls' summer plans when Ingrid was one of her students in a leadership development class. Excited by their ambition, Mrs. Avery mentioned their work in her column, "Open for Business."

"Mrs. Avery did something about us in the paper," Traci said. "And Mrs. (Mamie Lee) Dodds called and asked us to clean her house." Mrs. Dodds was Kaci and Traci's fifth-grade teacher.

"We cleaned Mrs. Dodds' mother's house. She lives in Sand Springs. And we've cleaned (Ingrid's) grandmother's house. She lives on Navajo," Traci said.

"I've had two women who called me and said they had them work, and said they were great," Mrs. Avery said. "They've worked like Trojans from the things I've heard."

The best thing Ingrid enjoys about working is "getting the money." Vacuuming is her least favorite chore. "Well, that depends on the house. Sometimes they are too big."

Kaci likes babysitting because she likes little children — "except when they cry." Traci enjoys washing cars because, "I like to get wet," she said.

THE GIRLS FOUND OUT working is not always rewarding. Their most disappointing job was cleaning 16 storm windows. The girls told their contractor they would clean the windows for 25 cents each for each girl. Although they expected $4 each, they received $4 total, a $1.33 for each girl. "It was disappointing, but it was all right," the girls said. They added that they didn't think they did a very good cleaning job on the windows anyway.

The girls have made about $90 this summer. "We saved it up and bought something big," Kaci said. Traci and Cacy bought themselves a telephone and clock radio. Ingrid bought a pair of skates.

In the future, Traci wants to buy a disc camera, and Kaci wants skates. Ingrid would like so many things that she hasn't decided what to do with her share.

The summer business has taught the trio responsibility, how to accomplish goals and manage money.

Kaci and Traci are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McCormick, 3619 Dixon. Ingrid is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hamilton, 3618 Dixon.

several Japanese stamps, Japanese money and pictures of holidays.

Wakako presented her hostesses a necklace made from Japanese coins equivalent to 42 cents. Each day she gives some gift to her hostess from Japan.

The girls said the Japanese students were only allowed to bring one suitcase. They didn't bring many clothes with them, because they brought their school books and gifts for their hosts, the 4-H hosts said. While here the students must work on summer homework.

The Rocks and Wakako went swimming last week, and Wakako ended up with a sunburn. They also took her to the cemetery, a wedding, and to play putt-putt golf.

This week they went to Houston, where they planned to visit the zoo, and Astro World. They also plan to visit San Antonio.

Satomi will attend Miss Allen's family reunion, and visit with Miss Allen at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Akio attended a wedding and will attend Big Spring High School with Hunt for two days. Akio attends college in Japan, and is studying ocean science.

The Japanese girls went to Brownwood and Six Flags last week. At Brownwood they were honored at the Texas 4-H Center. The Japanese girls sang their national anthem and Labo songs in the 4-H center's talent show.

The youths visited the Tubbs Vegetable Farm, Friday. They will attend the county-wide 4-H cookout at the Allen's home, Thursday, and the district 4-H party at the Sand Hills in Mohanans, Friday.

NAMIKO BROUGHT A letter from her mayor to Big Spring's mayor, Clyde Angel. Angel presented Namiko with a plaque for her mayor, making him an honorary citizen of Big Spring, July 29.

The youth had brought him some trinkets, Angel said. The Japanese visitors each received a key to Big Spring.

The Japanese youths each have a diary. "It's interesting to watch them write," Hunt said as the other 4-H hosts agreed.

To be host families, 4-H members had to apply with the Howard County extension service. We had our choice of age, Miss Dick said. "Japanese children mature slower socially than we do," Hunt said.

Next year, other 4-Hers from Texas will visit Japan and stay with Big Spring's Japanese guests. Some of the 4-H hosts expressed their interest in visiting Japan.

The Labo International Exchange Foundation is a non-profit organization authorized by the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Its main purpose is to foster friendships and cultural exchange by sponsoring homestay programs in several countries.

LABO'S GOAL IS to promote understanding of different cultures through learning the languages and to teach how to cooperate with and appreciate one another.

The Labo party, an important educational organization throughout Japan, consists of young people (3 year olds to college students) from all backgrounds who meet together after school and on weekends. Between the ages of 12 and 18, Labo members are eligible to participate in the Labo International Exchange, a homestay program.

Through their homestay experience the youths learn cultural differences and similarities, as well as a new language. Almost 16,000 people have participated in international exchanges — making friends, learning foreign cultures and languages, and expanding their horizons.

In order to allow all children to participate, regardless of their economic background, a saving program for Labo members was established with the approval of the Japanese Ministry of Finance in 1972. The program encourages members to save money for their overseas trips, and eventually Labo hopes to be able to offer financial assistance to qualified children.

During the summer of 1983, approximately 1,100 Labo members will visit the United States, and 300 American 4-Hers are expected to visit Japan.

Drying fruits, vegetables at home

Drying is one of the oldest methods of food preservation known to mankind. It is one of the simplest methods. It requires only basic equipment. Any special equipment that is needed usually can be made at home at little to moderate cost.

Successful drying depends upon the removal of enough moisture from the food to prevent spoilage. This must be done as fast as possible at a temperature that does not seriously affect the flavor, texture and color of the food. If the temperature is too low at the beginning, the food may undergo undesirable microbiological changes before it dries adequately. If the temperature is much too high and the humidity too low, the water-filled cells of the food may expand and burst or the food may harden on the surface. This makes it more difficult for the moisture to escape and the foods to dry properly.

Fruits and vegetables contain certain enzymes that are responsible for their maturation, or their becoming ripe. These enzymes cause color and flavor changes, some of which may become more extensive when food surfaces are cut and exposed to air. The changes continue during drying and storage unless the enzyme activity is retarded or stopped. Therefore, pretreatment such as antioxidant coating, blanching, and/or sulfuring may be recommended.

Home drying, if done properly, can work well for many fruits and vegetables. There are, however, many variations in recommendations for treatment before drying, for temperatures and length of drying and for conditioning prior to storage. You may have to use the "trial and error" approach in finding out which drying technique works best for your situation. (Canning and freezing are surer methods of food preservation because uniform procedures, based on research and widespread use, are recommended for these methods.)

Whatever method you use, keep these facts in mind:

- Cleanliness and safety are important throughout the process.
- The quality of the finished product can be no better than that of the raw material from which it is made.

- The flavor of dried fruits and vegetables will be different from their fresh, canned or frozen counterparts.

Foods selected for drying should be of the highest quality possible — fresh, sound, and the "right" stage of maturity. Prepare the food immediately after gathering and begin the drying at once, continuing until the food has dried adequately.

Wilted or inferior material will not make a satisfactory dried product. Immature produce lacks flavor and color. Over-mature produce may be tough and fibrous, or may have become soft and/or mushy.

Wash or clean all fresh produce thoroughly to remove any dirt or spray Sort and discard any defective food. Decay, bruises or mold on any piece may affect an entire batch of food being dried. Peel, pit and/or cut the food into uniform pieces. A stainless steel knife helps prevent foods from discoloring. Before drying, remove any excess moisture from a pretreated food by spreading the food on paper toweling or clean cloths.

Fruits and vegetables, with few exceptions, should be treated before drying to stop the enzymatic action that allows these foods to undergo undesirable changes. Steam blanching is the preferred method for treating vegetables. Fruits generally make a better produce if they are treated by one or more methods before being dried: sulfuring, blanching, cracking of skins, syrup blanching or treating with ascorbic acid.

Specific directions for drying fruits and vegetables are contained in Drying Fruits and Vegetables at Home. Contact the Extension Office for a copy.

Harvesting home grown vegetables

The summer drought has made gardening difficult this season, but some dedicated gardeners have managed to grow quite successful gardens in spite of it. To insure high quality vegetables and to prevent waste, proper harvesting is essential. This week I have listed some tips on when to harvest some of the more popular garden vegetables in Howard County.

Beans, Snap — When pods are almost full size and when seeds are the size of pin heads.

Beets — Greens: when leaves are 4 to 6 inches long; Tops and small beets: when beets are 1 and 1 1/2 inches in diameter; Roots: when beets are 1 1/2 to 3 inches in diameter.

Carrots — When small and succulent about 3/4 to 1 inch or more in diameter.

Corn — When filled out well in the milk stage. Avoid high temperatures when gathering.

Cowpea or Black-eyed Pea — When seeds are near full size, but still bright green; as mature or dry seeds, when seeds are full size and dry.

Cucumber — For sweet pickles, when fruits are 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 inches long; for dills, when fruits are 3 to 4 inches long; for slicing, when fruits are near full size (generally 6 to 9 inches).

Eggplant — When fruits are near full size (about 4 to 6 inches in diameter) but still firm and bright in color.

Garlic — When foliage loses color and tops begin to fall over.

Muskmelon — When base of fruit stem starts to separate from fruit.

Okra — Before pods reach the hollow and puffy stage. Continue harvesting or they will quit producing.

Onion — For green onions, harvest when 6 to 8 inches tall. Harvest any round hollow seed stalks as soon as they appear. For bulbs, harvest when tops fall over. Pull with tops on and dry in a protected place.

Pea — When pods are fully developed but still bright green. Harvest when pods reach near full size (about 3 inches) and before seeds enlarge. If seeds are to be eaten, harvest when seeds are fully developed and pods are still fresh and bright green.

Peppers — When fruits are firm. In 2 to 3 weeks ripe peppers will be fully colored.

Potatoes — When tubers are full size and the skin is firm. New potatoes may be harvested at any size.

Pumpkins — When the fruits are full size, rind is firm and glossy and fruit bottom is cream to orange color.

Squash — When seeds and fruit are small. Continue harvesting or flowering ceases. Winter squash is harvested when fruits are full sized. Light frost will not damage fruits of winter-type squash.

Sweet Potatoes — Before the first early frost. Lift to avoid cuts, bruises and broken roots. Cure in a warm, well ventilated place for 2 or 3 weeks.

Tomatoes — When fruits are fully colored. Pick only fully ripe tomatoes for juice or canning.

Turnips — When roots are 2 to 2 1/2 inches in diameter but before heavy fall frost.

Watermelon — When fruits are full size, dull in color and the bottom (portion touching the soil) turns from greenish white to cream color.

Additional Harvesting and Storage Tips

- Harvest all leafy vegetables, including herbs, in early morning while they still glisten with dew.

- Harvest the following vegetables as close to preparation and meal time as possible: asparagus, beans, all root vegetables, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, eggplant, kohrabi, leeks, okra, peas, peppers, summer squash, sweet corn, tomatoes and cowpeas.
- If you plan to freeze or can your garden produce, harvest it just before preparing it for preservation.
- A monthly horticultural newsletter is available free of charge by calling 267-6671.

Inability to save money may be financial trouble

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The inability to set aside even a small amount of money on a regular basis may be the first sign a person is headed for financial trouble.

Without savings, unexpected occurrences may require borrowing money, which can compound financial difficulties, says Julia Martin, credit union manager at R.J. Reynolds Industries.

If a person borrows money to pay routine bills or can pay only the minimum amount on monthly charges, Martin recommends professional financial counseling.

Jewels & Gems
by Ralph and Lynette Brooks

Wedding anniversaries have traditionally been occasions for giving your marriage partner a gift of jewelry as a token of appreciation for love and devotion. The later anniversaries, especially, are represented by the finest of jewels and precious metals. The twenty-fifth anniversary is marked with silver; the fortieth with a ruby; the fiftieth with gold and the sixtieth with a diamond. However, there is certainly no reason why a break with tradition cannot be made so as to give the gift of a diamond sooner than a sixtieth anniversary. Were you struggling as young newlyweds? Why not give an engagement ring now? It is never too late.

For all your fine Diamonds, jewelry and gifts for all occasions we cordially invite you to enjoy a friendly and relaxing visit with us at BLUM'S JEWELERS, 222 Main, 267-6335. Dr. Donohue

Calorie loss continues after exercise

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a question about loss of calories and exercise. Maybe there's no answer, but it's this: When you exercise you obviously lose calories, I mean during actual exercise. It seems to me I read or heard a fact that you continue to lose calories in the period after you exercise. While I find this hard to believe, much less understand, I wonder if there is some degree of truth in the idea. How about this? — Mrs. D.E.

You can believe it. There is such a thing as residual calorie loss in the post exercise period. In fact, after any vigorous exercise you can have as much as 450 calories left to burn. Part of the residual calorie burning goes into replenishing stores of muscle sugar and rebuilding your muscle protein.

Now there's another kind of calorie burning that goes on continuously, even when you are at rest without having exercised. That burning represents your basal metabolic rate — the calories you burn just to keep your body alive. Sitting quietly, you burn about 84 calories an hour. You even burn some while you're sleeping. Now the next question I can hear you asking is: Do the calorie-exercise tables take the residual caloric loss into account? I am not sure about that, but if I find that answer I'll pass it along in a future column.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I guess about a million softball pitchers will be hanging for this answer. I am a pitcher with tight muscles in my arms. I throw swift, but I feel that I just cannot stretch my arm as much as I should to be most effective. And I get sore shoulders. Is there a connection, and have you any tips for a tight-muscled swift softball pitcher? — G.J.

Tight muscles can lead to soreness. For one, you should warm up slowly before each outing. Use every pitch in your repertoire, but do so at half speed. Second, you need specific muscle-stretching exercises. There are many, but here's a good one. You need a standard-size bath towel to do it.

Hold onto one end of the towel with your right hand and let it fall behind your back, grabbing the other end with your left hand. Now go through the motion you would use to dry your back after a shower. Raise your right hand, pulling your left arm up behind your back. Then pull down with your left hand to stretch your right arm and shoulder over and down your back. You may have to find the right size towel to give you maximum results.

You should reverse the procedure with top of the towel in your left hand, etc. That way all sets of arm muscles get equal stretching. You can also try this exercise prior to games.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Child may suffer injury due to sports

BOSTON (AP) — Children who participate in sports before they are physically capable could be risking long-term injury, says a sports medicine specialist at a Boston hospital.

Children between the ages of 5-14 account for 31 percent of all sports injuries, he said, often because of stress placed on still-growing bones. The "stress fractures" that can result may cause bones to grow crooked or, in some cases, stop growing at all.

Sink-Rhoton

Melisa Jo (Misty) Sink and Kevin Dean Rhoton were united in marriage during a Saturday afternoon ceremony in the First Baptist Church Chapel. The Rev. Bob Webb, pastor of First Baptist Church of Sterling City, performed the 4 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Andre Sink, 2609 Wasson Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Rhoton, 12 Village Rd.

The couple was wed before an altar flanked on each side with arrangements of gladiolus, carnations and daisies.

Leslie Newton, vocalist, accompanied by Jerry Oliphant, organist, and Beverly Norman, pianist, provided music for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by Sidney T. Clark, a friend of the bride. She wore a formal-length gown of chiffon and silk tulle. The round neckline accentuated the natural waistline bodice which was covered with silk tulle lace and accented with pearls and sequins. The A-line skirt accented with lace motifs fell into a chapel-length train. The chapel-length veil of imported illusion was held by a wreath of silk flowers.

Following tradition, the bride wore a pearl lavalier worn by the bridegroom's mother, sister and sister-in-law in their weddings. A garter of blue satin and lace, belonging to her great-grandmother, was fashioned and made by her grandmother, Onetta Sledge. She borrowed pearl earrings from her sister, Jamie Sink.

Jamie Sink served her sister as maid of honor. Cynthia Weeks was matron of honor. Rhonda Pollard, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Breanne Rhoton, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Linda Rhoton, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was special assistant to the bridal party. Tanya Sink, sister-in-law of the bride, registered guests.

Jimmie Jones was best man. Groomsman were Cecil Bynum and Keith Smith. Ushers were David Sink, brother of the bride, and Craig Rhoton, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church's parlor. A three-tiered, petal-shaped cake was bordered with clusters of peach roses. The table was covered with a peach cloth and an ivory cutwork ruffled lace overlay.

The bridegroom's table held a german chocolate cake topped with giant-sized gold wedding rings.

Serving at the tables were Dacia Loudamy, Elise Wheat, Veronda Vassar, Melody Holmes, Michelle Bowers, Kathy Boy, Sissy Doss and Shauni Woodbridge. Ila Smith assisted the servers. Joni Avery distributed rice bags.

After the wedding rehearsal, the couple was honored with an outdoor bar-be-cue dinner at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

A bridesmaids' brunch was held at Wayne Henry's Restaurant, Saturday. The brunch was hosted by Onetta Sledge, grandmother of the bride. Special guests were bridesmaids Jamie Sink, Cynthia Weeks and Rhonda Pollard.

The bride graduated from Big Spring High School. She is employed by Gibbs and Weeks Men's Store. The bridegroom also graduated from Big Spring High School. He is employed by Custom Builders Woodworkers.

Trim-Allen

The Thistle Hill, an historic house in Fort Worth, was the setting for a Friday evening wedding of Susan Elayne Trim and Wright Allen. The Rev. Floyd Thrash, retired pastor of Westcliff Methodist Church in Fort Worth, officiated the 7:30 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Trim, 1508 Tucson. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Walter S. Allen of Cary, N.C., and the late Walter Allen.

The couple was wed at the foot of the grand staircase in the vestibule of Thistle Hill. The banisters were covered with springer. The first landing of the stairs was decorated with a white gladiola arrangement. Palms were on either side of the stairs.

The bride wore a formal-length gown of white slipper satin. The center front of the bodice was laced with a narrow blue ribbon that formed a bow at the sweet-heart neckline. The alencon lace sleeves was held at the wrist by satin cuffs. The skirts fell into a chapel-length train. The dress was made by the bride and designed by the bride and the bridegroom. The fingertip-length illusion veil trimmed with lace and tiny pearls, also made by the bride, was held by a Juliet headpiece covered with alencon lace.

The bride wore a diamond and pearl lavalier borrowed from her grandmother, who received it as a wedding gift from her husband. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of blue carnations, white daisies and English ivy.

Water can cause skin to wrinkle

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Why does bathing wrinkle your skin? Water pressure on the tissue around your capillaries, says Dr. Albert B. Craig, professor of physiology at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Capillaries are tiny vessels that connect arteries and veins. Their walls are semipermeable, allowing certain fluids to flow between capillary and surrounding tissue, Craig explains. As blood flows through a capillary, its pressure on the capillary walls decreases, because some of the blood's water seeps through capillary walls.

When you bathe, water presses against the tissue around the capillaries, forcing water from the tissue into the capillaries. The temporary result is dry, wrinkly skin.

MRS. WRIGHT ALLEN
...formerly Susan Elayne Trim

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Thistle Hill.

The couple was honored with a rehearsal dinner, Thursday evening, at Vance Godbey's Restaurant in Fort Worth.

The couple was given a bridal luncheon in the Metropolitan Room of the Hyatt-Regency Hotel in Fort Worth, Friday. The luncheon was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Trim of Dallas, uncle and aunt of the bride.

On Turning Heads

Dandruff shampoos fall into one of two categories depending upon their ingredients.

Be sure to check the active ingredients of your medicated dandruff shampoo to better understand how it works on your condition. Cytostatic shampoos have ingredients such as tar, selenium sulfide and zinc pyrithione that slow down cell turnover on the scalp. Although they are effective, these shampoos can cause oil rebound and are not always best for oily scalps. Keratolytic shampoos have ingredients such as sulfur and salicylic acid that dissolve dead skin cells. Their drawbacks include the facts that sulfur has objectionable odor and salicylic acid can be drying. If you have chemically relaxed hair, avoid shampoos containing sulfur.

Quality hair care awaits your visit to LA CONTESSA. Our staff represents a calibre of professionalism second to none. We are your hair quarters for all the latest styles, methods and trends. We look forward to being of assistance to you soon. You will find us conveniently located at 1508 Marcy. We are open Tues.-Sat. Tel. 267-2187.

Do you have processed hair? We suggest the use of a dandruff shampoo with either zinc of pyrithione or selenium sulfide.

Anniversary

MR. and MRS. CLYDE ANGEL celebrates 50th anniversary

Mr., Mrs. Clyde Angel

Clyde and Annie Matt Angel, 706 Hillside, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary today with a reception at First Baptist Church Chapel and Parlor from 2-5 p.m. Dr. and Mrs. Robert Tate Angel, and their children Bobby and Robin Angel will host the occasion.

A musical program will be presented in the Chapel by Mrs. W.W. Grimes, church organist, Mrs. Bill McRee, church pianist, and Robin Angel of Waco, pianist and granddaughter of the honorees.

Angel, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Angel of Rising Star, graduated from Draughn's Business College and attended Hardin-Simmons University and Abilene Christian College, now known as Abilene Christian University, in Abilene. He came to Big Spring in 1929 for his first banking job. In 1932, he was the First National Bank's head bookkeeper.

Mrs. Angel was the former Annie Matt Tate and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Walton Tate of Lubbock and formerly of Alabama. She graduated from the College of Industrial Arts, now known as Texas Women's University in Denton, with a degree in elementary education. She was a teacher in Stanton during the 1932-33 school year.

The couple met the summer of 1932 on a Greyhound bus bound for Abilene. A few months later they began dating. The Angels were married Aug. 5, 1933 in a Baptist church parsonage. The Rev. R.E. Day, then pastor of First Baptist Church, officiated the rite.

The Angels have one son Dr. Robert Tate Angel of Waco. They also have two grandchildren Bobby, and Robin.

The Angels have lived in Big Spring throughout their marriage. Angel is retired as senior vice president of First National Bank in 1976. He is serving his second term as mayor of Big Spring, and has been a deacon at First Baptist Church for 28 years.

He also has been president of the Big Spring School board and the Y.M.C.A. Angel enjoys walking Scenic Mountain, yardwork, hunting and fishing.

Mrs. Angel taught elementary school 7 years. She has been involved in many church, civic and hobby organizations and boards. She enjoys reading, presenting book reviews to organizations throughout Texas, gardening, playing Bridge and 42, cooking and visiting with friends.

"We have been blessed to have been a part of our wonderful city. We love Big Spring and her people," Mrs. Angel said. "Our 50 years together have been typical of life. Shadows of darkness—shadows of joy, but God has blended the colors together so we can always see a rainbow."

Dear Abby

She may be wasting time on affair

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a married man. So what else is new, right? He's 43, has two grown children and has been married for 21 years. We've been seeing each other for almost two years. I'm 34 and single.

He and his wife still live together, but he says they haven't slept together for two years. He hasn't filed for divorce yet because his wife has mental problems and she was told by a psychologist that she would be incapable of facing life without him. Meanwhile, he is waiting until she's strong enough to live without him, then he will divorce her and marry me.

Abby, he seems to be doing more and more to build a permanent relationship with his wife. He recently put a new roof on their house. And now he's spending a lot of money on a new kitchen and new furniture. It sure doesn't look like he's waiting for their marriage to come to an end.

I even moved into a bigger apartment in anticipation of his leaving her and moving in with me. I know he loves me, but I don't honestly know if there's any future in my waiting around for him. What do you think?

WASTING MY TIME
DEAR WASTING: You figured it out yourself. Your signature is what I think.

DEAR ABBY: I need help with a problem that has come between me and the man I am planning to marry.

I am 26 and "L" is 36. I've had one bad marriage and no children. "L" has had two bad marriages and two children with each wife. He supports his four children, who live with their mothers most of the time.

I want children of my own, but "L" has had a vasectomy, so I suggested artificial insemination. He is absolutely against it, saying he couldn't handle the thought of my carrying another man's child. I don't look at it that way. I won't even know who the man is. "L" is also against adoption, because "the children could have 'bad genes' and you never know what you're getting."

I love children and desperately want to bear my own. (I used to teach kindergarten.) I also love

"L" and don't know what to do.

LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES: "L" should return to the doctor who performed his vasectomy and find out if his can be reversed. (Some can.) If his can, congratulations. If not, before you marry "L," insist that he get some counseling to determine if his objections to artificial insemination and adoption are valid, or merely an excuse to justify his reluctance to being a father to any more children.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.
