Precious rain...

A RARE SIGHT — Seeing children playing in the rain has become a rare sight in West Texas during a long dry spell, but Big Spring has been hit with several small showers during the past two days, and Randy Richter, 7, took advantage of the rain to play outdoors. In the first photo, he jumps feet first into a puddle, then checks out some items floating on the sidewalk. In photo three, Randy takes off for new adventures.

Drivers who drink target of session

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Drivers who drink were one of the targets of the recent session of the Texas Legislature, says Howard County Attorney Bob Miller.

Mandatory jail time for second driving while intoxicated convictions, tougher fines, easier prosecution and videotaped arrests will become law in January of 1984, Miller said.

The county attorney held a press conference yesterday to discuss legislation he reviewed at a week-long advanced criminal law course in Dallas recently.

The strongest new DWI law is the required jail time for second offenders, Miller said. After the first offense, anyone found guilty of DWI within 10 years faces a mandatory three days in jail even if the judge or jury grants him probation, Miller said.

"They are forcing the judicial system to put repeat offenders in jail," Miller said.

Second-offenders face a maximum of 15 days in jail as well, Miller said. Subsequent offenses are punishable by jail time from 30 days to two years and confinement in state prison, he said.

Prosecuting repeat offenders has been improved by removing deferred adjudication and barriers to evidence, Miller said. Deferred adjudication allowed DWI offenders to plead guilty, serve out their probation and have the offense removed from their records as if it never occurred.

Prosecutors may now introduce evidence stating a DWI defendant refused to take a breathalyzer test, Miller said. In the past, the refusal was often inadmissible, the county attorney said.

Refusal to take the breath test or something similar means an automatic 90-day suspension of drivers' license, he added.

Videotaped arrests of DWI suspects will be required, Miller said. His office recently spent $1,048 from the Hot Check fund to acquire video equipment, he said.

The maximum fine on first-offenders also has been increased from $500 to $2,000, he said.

"I'm going to raise fines, my request for fines," Miller said. "I don't set punishment; the judicial system carries the big stick."

Other DWI law changes include allowing arrests for See DWI, page 2A

does little to ease drought

• Small showers cool city

• Dry spell forces many to seek aid

A summer thundershower cooled Big Spring and temporarily cut electricity near downtown Wednesday afternoon.

Although the rain fell hard in a short period of time, the actual amount recorded was light. Apparently no rain fell on the county's cotton crops.

Lightning struck a Texas Electric Service Co. feeder line at about 4:45 p.m., tripping a circuit breaker and cutting power to as many 2,022 customers.

Hooper Sanders, manager of the local TESCO office, said the power was off for less than two minutes. The circuit breaker was manually closed, he said, and the office received no calls from customers.

Most of the rain was reported See RAIN, page 2A

FORT WORTH (AP) — West Texas ranchers and farmers, many of whom are liquidating their herds because of a sweltering drought unparalleled since the 1950s, are praying for rain and pleading for federal assistance.

While the appeals for precipitation have been directed toward the clouds, the pleas for federal disaster relief have been targeted at U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block.

"If Secretary Block is willing to act now, he can prevent the total devastation of the ranching industry in that area," Texas Secretary of Agriculture Jim Hightower said Wednesday at a Washington news conference.

Board approves $80,000 expenditure on computer

By MIKE DOWNEY

Citing problems with sufficient time on the Howard County computer, the tax appraisal district board decided yesterday to spend nearly $80,000 to buy a computer for the appraisal office.

After almost an hour of heated discussion, the board, by a 4-1 vote, awarded IBM the contract for hardware at $82,429 and Davis, Kiner and Co. the contract for software at $15,889.

The Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District board of directors held their monthly meeting at 1 p.m. in the county courthouse.

Board Member Lila Estes made the motion to purchase a computer, saying the appraisal office has had "nothing but problems." The office currently shares time on the county's computer for $12,000 a year.

"We were told two years ago the county computer would handle the appraisal office," Mrs. Estes said. "You don't know the problems we've had ... there's no way a business can be carried on in that manner."

Mrs. Estes said the appraisal office has never been able to get enough time on the computer to complete its work. Buying software to increase the computer's capability — a suggestion of board member Clay Reid — would not improve the problem, she said.

"This office is a lot more important than the county offices," Mrs. Estes said.

Board Chairman Billy T. Smith said the time difficulty lay with the equipment and not with personnel. "The commissioners were sold a bill of goods on it (the present equipment situation)," Smith said. "It's not going to work as it is ... we've got a four-row tractor job with a one-row tractor."

Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira told the board he understood when hired in 1980 the computer would handle all the appraisal office's material — something that has not worked out, he said.

"They can not print what we want," Pereira said. "When I need it, I need it ... it's not enough for me. You would not believe the struggle we had last year."

However, the board could save taxpayers money by looking at all options other than buying a computer, Reid said.

"Everybody is reaching out their hands to get what they want and I think we should save wherever we can," Reid said.

Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore, whose office is in charge of the computer, was also at the meeting. She said it took her office six months to place the tax roll information on the computer. Pereira said he expected to "start from scratch" and have the new appraisal computer programmed in three months.

In other action, the board agreed to meet Aug. 31 to have a work session on the 1983-1984 budget for the appraisal office.

Texas Municipal League wins skirmish with Texas Electric

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Municipal League Wednesday won a skirmish with Texas Electric Service Co. and may gain access to what the utility argues is insider information normally restricted to a few bond rating officers on Wall Street.

Attorneys for the Fort Worth-based power company made their unsuccessful pitch to keep the information secret during an hour-long hearing Wednesday before the three-member commission.

Commissioners termed the utility's arguments vague and unspecified.

The order upholds a July decision by a PUC hearings officer, rejecting TESCO complaints that public disclosure of the financial information could have an adverse effect on its customers and Texas Utilities' stock prices.

In reaction to the decision, a TESCO official said late Wednesday the company is still considering how to respond to the Public Utility Commission's order to release the information.

He could not say whether an appeal to district court is possible.

A PUC spokeswoman said, however, that as far as she knows, the only time such decisions can be appealed to district court are when a state agency rules outside its jurisdiction or violates someone's constitutional rights.

If the information is turned over, a Texas Municipal League attorney said it may be useful in disputing utility company witnesses during hearings on TESCO's request for a $195 million increase in annual revenues.

Those hearings are scheduled to begin Sept. 5, and TML is representing a number of Texas cities fighting the proposed 16.1 percent systemwide rate increase.

Don Butler, TML's Austin attorney, said that "sometimes one finds different pictures being painted" and the ordered disclosure may show some "inconsistencies" between what Wall Street is told about the profit picture of TESCO and its parent company, Texas Utilities, and what the public and the commission hear.

"To think somebody on Wall Street has some greater right to this information than the people who pay the bills — that's the worst cavalier attitude I've seen," Butler said.

He noted that similar information has been disclosed See TESCO, page 2A

What do Woody Allen, The Black Stallion, Francois Truffaut and All That Jazz have to do with 118th District assistant attorney Don Richard?

He likes those movies and directors, and Richard knows movies.

The New Orleans native said he first became seriously interested in films when a friend began taking him to foreign movies.

"Truffaut launched it for me," Richard said. "Films could have more than just entertainment; they could have a challenge, so to speak."

His interest in foreign movies continued into law school when he See MOVIE BUFF, page 2A

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Pothole trouble

Q. Is the city going to do anything about the potholes on Galveston?
A. Galveston Street is not part of the current capital improvements project, says public works director Tom Decell. Next year the CIP program has assessment paving which will allow homeowners to petition the council to pave their streets and share the costs, he said.

Calendar: Public hearing

TODAY
• The Big Spring school board meets at 5:15 p.m. in the high school boardroom. A public hearing for the 1983-84 budget will be held.

FRIDAY

• The Big Spring Police Association will sponsor a concert by Wally Fowler and the Music City Jubilee at 7:30 p.m. at the Municipal Auditorium. For ticket information call 263-0763.

• Church Women United of Big Spring will host a Get Acquainted Coffee at 10 a.m. at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church.

• The Howard College Speech and Drama Department will hold the second round of scholarship and work study/grant auditions at 7 p.m. in the college auditorium.

• Akio Moriyasu, an exchange student from Japan, will speak at the Lunch and Learn program at noon at the Howard County Library.

• A senior citizens dance will be held at 8 p.m. at Industrial Park building #487.

SATURDAY

• The Howard County NAACP will present a fashion show entitled "Saturday Night Live" at 7:30 p.m. at the Municipal Auditorium. A donation of $2 will be asked.

• The Howard County Scottish Rite Club will meet at 7 a.m. at the Masonic Lodge at 21st and Lancaster streets.

SUNDAY

• The Western Sportsman's Gun Club will hold a silhouette center fire pistol match at 1: p.m. at the Club's range located nine miles west of Big Spring on the Andrews Highway.

Outside: Rain

Newman to narrate

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Paul Newman, 58, narrates an anti-nuclear television special that sponsors say will be shown in 30 cities by the end of the month.

PAUL NEWMAN

The half-hour program, "War Without Winners," was filmed by cinematographer Haskell Wexler, whose other credits include the movies "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Coming Home."

Viewers are asked to call a toll-free number to pledge donations.

Arthur Kanegis, spokesman for the Center for Defense Information, a Washington anti-nuclear "think-tank," said Tuesday that the money will be used to pay for the television time and present testimony to Congress about nuclear issues.

Astronaut is new mom

HOUSTON (AP) — Anna Fisher went right back to work after she had her first baby, but in her case "work" means preparing for the eighth flight of the space shuttle.

ANNA FISHER

Mrs. Fisher, an astronaut whose husband Bill Fisher also is an astronaut and a physician, gave birth July 29 to Kristin Anne Fisher, NASA officials said Wednesday.

Johnson Space Center spokesman Steve Nesbitt said the child was born on a Friday and Mrs. Fisher was back at work the following Monday. Neither parent has been named to an active flight crew but both are supporting preparations for upcoming missions.

Mrs. Fisher is the second of the space program's eight women astronauts to have a baby. Last year at about this time, Margaret Rhea Seddon Gibson, also married to an astronaut, gave birth to a son.

Words of encouragement

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — First Lady Nancy Reagan had some words of encouragement for residents of a drug and alcohol rehabilitation center: "It's a great big wonderful world out there," she said, "and we need you."

NANCY REAGAN

During a visit to the Cenikor Foundation on Wednesday, Mrs. Reagan, 60, told residents she is sure they will kick their drug habits. "It's difficult, I know it is, but I know you'll all make it," she said.

The first lady also visited a day-care center and met with children of Cenikor residents and others in the community. The youngsters offered their views of what they would do if they were president. "If I were president of the United States, I would make bubble gum," said one child. Another made a poster saying the role of the president is to "help poor people."

Actress bows out

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-time Emmy winner Dorothy Lyman is stepping out of ABC's daytime serial "All My Children" and into movies and other programs for NBC. Her contract with ABC expires in November.

NBC said Wednesday that Ms. Lyman also will be making guest appearances under the new agreement. Terms were not disclosed.

In June, Ms. Lyman won an Emmy as outstanding actress in a daytime drama for her portrayal of Opal Gardner in "All My Children." She also won an Emmy as outstanding supporting actress in the 1981-82 season.

She also has appeared in four other soaps — "Another World," "Search for Tomorrow," "The Edge of Night" and "A World Apart."

Iacocca to be on TV

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Lee Iacocca will come out of the boardroom and back to the tube next month in a televised ad promoting Chrysler's return to financial health.

LEE IACOCCA

The Chrysler chairman, who did TV ads for the automaker during its fiscal dark days and its turnaround, hasn't been in a company TV commercial since February after he decided to cut back on his appearances.

Joseph L. Hickey, corporate advertising manager, said Wednesday that Iacocca will be in a 60-second ad next month timed for the automaker's introduction of its latest models.

Eye problems controlled

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has the go-ahead to launch her annual vacation later this week despite the problems she has been having with her right eye.

Mrs. Thatcher, 57, was told she "can proceed with her holiday plans with every confidence," her office at 10 Downing St. said in a statement Wednesday.

The prime minister underwent surgery last week to repair a torn retina.

The surgeon, Dr. Richard Packard, gave her a clean bill of health, the statement said. And Mrs. Thatcher and husband Denis will set out Friday for a two-week stay in Switzerland.

Vegas strip hit by heavy floods

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Most gamblers kept on playing but some waded out to snap photographs as rolling runoff from mountain rains roared through the Las Vegas Strip, sweeping away dozens of cars and turning some streets into 10-foot-deep rivers.

"I saw three cars floating down the street with no one at the wheel," said Leslie Chamberlain, who was walking home from work at the MGM Grand Hotel when the flood struck Wednesday. "I've never seen anything like it."

The intersection of Flamingo Boulevard and the Strip, where Caesars Palace, the Dunes Hotel and the Flamingo Hotel are located, looked like a lake, and helicopters plucked several people to safety.

"We were lucky we got out alive," said David L. Snipes, a vacationing St. Louis resident. "I had no idea this could happen in Las Vegas."

The floodwaters, which reached widths of 40 feet and depths of 10 feet in some areas before subsiding during the afternoon, carried desert palm fronds, railroad ties and driftwood from the Spring Mountains 10 miles to the west, authorities said. No injuries or deaths were reported, but property damage was estimated at more than $2 million, Clark County officials said.

"It just came all at once, it was just a wall of water," said Ed Hoffman, who lives on the Strip. Hoffman said he watched as a dozen cars were swept about three blocks and dumped in a heap.

"I watched them pull one man out of a car, and a helicopter lifted another guy off the roof of a truck," Hoffman said.

County employee David Grimble scrambled atop his street sweeper as four feet of water engulfed the vehicle. A crowd applauded as rescuers in a sheriff's helicopter lifted him from the roof.

Bee Duquette, manager of the Park Royal Apartments, said a Flight for Life helicopter rescued a couple from the roof of an adjoining apartment when water reached waist-high level.

"It was very bad, like a river," she said.

HELICOPTER RESCUE — David Grimble, who drives a street sweeper for Clark County, Nev., is rescued by a police helicopter after his vehicle became stuck in flash flood water two blocks east of the Las Vegas strip.

Multi-million dollar losses sparked by fire

NEW YORK (AP) — An underground fire that felt like "the gates of hell" to those who fought it blacked out the nation's garment center during one of its busiest weeks, with multi-million-dollar losses expected before all power is restored on Monday.

Emergency crews worked today to relight the 20-block area in midtown that was darkened when a 13-hour inferno cut power Wednesday.

Six hundred police officers guarded the area, deterring looters with street lights run by 62 mobile generators. No arrests were reported.

Consolidated Edison officials, who said electricity may not be restored to the entire area until Monday, hoped to inspect transformers in a subterranean substation that burned Wednesday. The fire was sparked when a 68-year-old water main broke and shorted wires.

The power failure knocked out stoplights, causing massive traffic snarls, and closed Macy's and Gimbels department stores. It also played havoc with the garment district's "market week," when buyers from across the country come to New York to order winter and spring clothing lines. Industry losses were estimated in the millions.

BLACKED OUT — An aerial view of Manhattan, looking north, shows the blacked out garment center at dusk Wednesday with a brightly lit Herald Square running along the affected area at right. At lower left is the round barrel of Madison Square Garden and the lit Empire State Building can be seen at right.

Three hundred firefighters worked in 15-minute shifts to fight the maelstrom that raged 60 feet below the corner of 38th Street and Seventh Avenue.

"It was like the gates of hell down there," said Lt. Paul Revere of Engine Co. 260 in Queens, his face blackened by soot. "We got chased out once or twice. But we got back and beat up the devil."

The heat from the fire, fueled by 50,000 gallons of oil used in the transformers, was so intense that it shot up an air shaft and started a fire on the roof of a 25-story building.

Fire Commissioner Joseph Spinnato said the flames were finally extinguished around 4:30 p.m. Crews spent the night pumping an estimated 300,000 gallons of foam out of the 150-by-50-foot transformer vault so Con Ed workers could enter to assess the damage.

Con Ed spokesman Dan Walden said that if the transformers were wrecked, which appeared likely, it would cost $25 million to $30 million to replace them.

The total cost of the water main break, fire and power outage could not be determined, but it included police and fire overtime, utility repair costs and losses to blacked-out businesses from 30th to 42nd streets between Sixth and Seventh avenues, one of Manhattan's busiest retail districts.

"It's going to cost a lot of people a lot of money," said Irwin Broudy, a garment industry executive. "You can't get into a building, you can't sell. It's big bucks."

"It's a disaster," said Marvin Kahn of Hampshire Designs, whose two Broadway showrooms were shut down by the blackout.

"It was quite a chore just getting here," said Bonnie Michaels, vice president for Maas Bros., a department store based in Tampa, Fla. "I ventured out in a taxi, but the driver told me, 'No way am I going near there, lady,' so he dumped me on a corner."

Hotel employees, some working by candlelight, helped visitors find rooms elsewhere or prepare to leave town.

Warplanes, troops topple Chadian defenders

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — Libyan warplanes, tanks and troops overwhelmed Chadian defenders at Faya-Largeau in a fierce six-hour battle today, informed sources reported, and the government said it might be forced to retreat from the surrounding area due to "the extreme gravity of the situation."

Western military sources first reported the fall of Faya-Largeau, and Chadian Information Minister Soumaila Mahamat acknowledged the defeat. He also claimed government forces continued to resist insurgents in parts of the 100-square-mile palm grove surrounding the town.

"Our forces control the road leading west from a point seven kilometers (4.5 miles) distant and the road leading east from a point 18 kilometers (11 miles) distant," he told a news conference, but added: "In view of the extreme gravity of the situation, it cannot be ruled out that our forces may carry out a tactical withdrawal."

Reporters have been barred from the war zone and there was no independent confirmation of the military situation at Faya-Largeau. At a news conference Wednesday, at a time when Western sources said all government resistance in Faya-Largeau had been "routed," the Libyan-backed onslaught had been "routed."

He declined to comment on government losses in the battle for the oasis and its 7,000 civilian inhabitants. Western military sources said the rebels captured the town after a fierce six-hour battle. Resistance by the 2,500 troops, roughly half the armed forces of President Hissene Habre, ceased at midday today, the sources said.

However, the sources said other government troops recaptured the strongpoint of Oum Chalouba, 200 miles southeast of Faya-Largeau, from rebel forces loyal to former President Goukouni Oueddei.

The sources said a full-scale Libyan attack involving Soviet-built jet bombers, heavy artillery and tanks was launched on Faya-Largeau, 500 miles north of N'Djamena, shortly after dawn.

About 2,000 Libyan regular troops and 3,000 Chadian rebel forces were involved in the attack, outnumbering the government defenders by 2-1.

The sources said American-supplied Redeye missiles, flown to Faya-Largeau last week to help beat back Libyan air attacks, were withdrawn from the oasis and taken to safe government positions farther south because they proved ineffective in the difficult conditions of the Chadian desert.

The Redeye missiles were part of the $25 million emergency military aid package which President Reagan promised Habre to repel the Libyan-backed offensive.

Faya-Largeau, which controls all the desert routes leading from the Libyan border to the capital, N'Djamena, has changed hands three times in six weeks.

It was taken by the rebels at the start of their lightning offensive on June 24, and recaptured by government forces under the personal command of Habre on July 30.

The military sources, insisting on anonymity, said the Libyans and rebel troops were expected to spend some time regrouping in Faya-Largeau before resuming their push southward.

At the same time, the rebels lost an equal number of prisoners in the government capture of Oum Chalouba, the sources said. They stressed that the Libyans were not directly involved in the Oum Chalouba fighting, unlike the battle for the more important Faya-Largeau oasis.

A contingent of some 500 French marine paratroopers which President Francois Mitterrand is sending to Chad to back up the Habre government continued to arrive in N'Djamena today.

Dallas mass transit faces vote

DALLAS (AP) — Texans, involved in a love affair with their automobiles in a state that leads the nation in road and street mileage, have stubbornly opposed mass transit, despite more vehicles congesting their wide-open spaces.

The concept of mass transit failed earlier this year in Houston, but it gets another chance Saturday when residents in Dallas and 20 suburbs vote on a plan proponents say would lighten the load on crowded freeways, make Dallas a world-class city and aid its economic growth.

Voters will decide whether the Dallas Area Rapid Transit will spend $8.75 billion — raised through a 1 percent sales tax — to double bus service and build 160 miles of rail lines in the next 27 years.

Experts say it is hard to predict whether gas-hungry Texans will change their tune this time, but all agree that mass transit is badly needed in the major urban centers of the Lone Star State — and soon.

"For a city to maintain a high quality of life and a high level of growth, it has to have a high level of mobility," said Dennis Christiansen, a program manager with the Texas Transportation Institute at Texas A&M University.

"Historically, we have provided for this in Dallas and Houston with city street and freeway systems," he said. "But in the last 10 years two things have happened: the rate of new freeway construction has slowed considerably, and with the move to the Sunbelt, traffic has increased dramatically."

He said traffic per lane per day on Texas highways has more than doubled since the 1970s, making driving a nightmare across the state.

"What we are saying is that a system that provided for the 1970s no longer does today," he said. "To provide a high quality of life and encourage more economic development, you need techniques to maintain mobility that we didn't need 10 years ago, and mass transit is that technique."

He said Dallas, San Antonio and Fort Worth have exemplary bus systems but more is needed. DART proponents will spend about $900,000 by week's end in a sophisticated campaign to convince Dallasites of that fact. The campaign intensified against charges by at least nine grass-roots organizations that the proposal would snub minorities and would funnel tax dollars into a bottomless boondoggle.

'What we are saying is that a system that provided for the 1970s no longer does today. To provide a high quality of life and encourage more economic development, you need techniques to maintain mobility that we didn't need 10 years ago, and mass transit is that technique.'

"Nobody is assured of anything until the votes are counted, but we feel very good about" the referendum, said Phil Montgomery III, DART campaign chairman. "We are concerned about the turnout, and we are working hard to emphasize that votes on the issue are critical."

Three thousand volunteers have mailed more than a million pieces of mail and manned phone banks, while newspaper, radio and television advertisements emphasized traffic problems in a "final crescendo" of the campaign, he said.

The DART board envisions northside commuters abandoning Central Expressway, the state's most crowded freeway, for a speedy electric train ride downtown. Southside workers would use bus and rail to reach their job centers to the north.

"This board swung into high gear, knowing that it had to solve great problems" raised by another regional mass-transit plan in 1980, said board member John Tatum. "So we answered questions beforehand, doing technical planning and involving citizens in the technical planning process."

Whereas an earlier, unsuccessful plan for the Dallas-Fort Worth area only identified "corridors" where line-haul service was needed, the DART analysis specified precise routing of rail and bus lines and station stops, Tatum said.

The DART study included a 30-year cash flow analysis by consultants to examine proposed fares and levels of tax support required.

"In that way, this was a response to the criticism that voting for (the 1980 plan) was the taxpayers' signing a blank check," he said. With DART, "we did capital and operating cost estimates with our technical planning."

"A very good plan came out of it," Tatum said. "And if a lack of strength of critics' arguments is any indication, the plan is very strong and people are feeling confident about it."

He said DART's foundation will be the present ridership of the Dallas Transit System, which Christiansen called one of the best bus services in Texas.

"About all the systems going into the 60s were privately owned, and when cities bought them out in their last few years of private ownership, they bought out a system in terrible condition," he said. "Houston had that situation. Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio were fortunate that they did not..."

Wayne Cook, general manager of San Antonio's VIA Metropolitan Transit, said "we provide a lot more service than any other city" in Texas because the city has utilized sales tax money since 1977. City planners have looked into high-speed rail service but no immediate plan has been formulated.

Fort Worth city officials hope that a favorable DART vote will help their own transit proposal — an upgrading of bus service — gain momentum for a possible vote in November.

In 1982 a rail passenger system was suggested for the Alamo City that would eventually link Austin with Mexico City. But the idea never progressed past the talking stage, and was not included in appropriation requests to the Texas Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

Another proposal in 1980, to establish a bullet train linking Houston, San Antonio and Dallas-Fort Worth, is on hold at the moment, Christiansen said.

The $2.35 billion proposal to fund a Houston rail system would have been the largest bond issue in Harris County history, officials said. It failed June 11 by a 2-1 margin.

The Metropolitan Transit Authority proposed borrowing against future sales tax revenues to help finance a program worth $5.2 billion. Officials proposed no increase in the 1-cent sales tax the agency now receives.

Opponents said the bond issue would have taken 80 percent of available funds for a project that 3 percent of the city's residents would use.

Chances slim average Texan will contract AIDS

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — Of the 1,922 cases of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome reported in the United States over the past three years, 26 have occurred in Texas — most of them in Houston, Dallas and San Antonio — an infectious disease specialist says.

Although two of the cases have involved Temple men, one of whom died, chances are slight that the average Central Texan will contract the mysterious virus, Dr. Paxton H. Howard Jr. of Temple said Wednesday.

Howard said studies have shown that "active" homosexual men make up the largest risk group.

"These are men that have over 60 sexual partners a year. Fifty percent of their sexual contacts come in the bathhouses in New York. There is a high incidence of sexually transmitted disease common in the homosexual male because of this," he said.

Howard, head of Scott and White Hospital's division of infectious disease, called a news conference Wednesday to discuss AIDS after returning from Seattle, where he attended the 5th International Symposium of Sexually Transmitted Diseases.

"It (AIDS) is primarily found in big cities where there is a large concentration of high-risk groups. Homosexual men are high risk, IV drug users are high risk," Howard said.

One of Temple's victims recently visited San Francisco, one of the cities with a high incidence of AIDS, Howard said.

Texas' 26 cases through the first seven months of 1983 compares with 16 cases in 1982 and five in 1981. Most of the state's cases have been reported in Houston, with several in Dallas and San Antonio, Howard said. AIDS destroys the body's immune system, making it easy prey for bacteria and carcinogens. Death is caused not by AIDS itself but by the accompanying illness. Mortality rate of the disease is 80 percent.

Of the 1,922 cases reported in three years of AIDS' known existence, 710 cases were noted in New York City, 180 in San Francisco, 113 in Los Angeles, 61 in Miami and 54 in Newark, N.J. There have been only a handful of cases in European countries, he said.

Dear Abby

A second chance

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a very beautiful and sensitive woman who has been beaten by her father, brothers, ex-husband and boyfriends. She is 42, and I am 38. When we started going out together, (a year ago) she promised that I would be the only man in her life.

Last week she admitted to having had sex with three other men while going with me. I forgave her, then I found out that a fourth man had given her a lobster for Mother's Day. Knowing that a man doesn't give a woman a lobster for nothing, I questioned her and she admitted she had had sex with him, too. I became upset and jealous and unintentionally sprained her wrist and yanked her hair.

She said my actions had hurt her more than all the fractures she had received from all the other men put together, and she never wants to see me again.

Since this was the first time I ever did anything like that, don't you think she should give me another chance so I can prove it will never happen again?

NEEDS HER

DEAR NEEDS: Not necessarily. A woman who has been battered as much as your ladyfriend reaches a point where she finally says, "Enough!"

Any woman who continues going with a man who has physically abused her once can expect a repeat performance unless he gets professional help and learns to control his anger.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl, and my problem is my house. You see, we live in a middle-class neighborhood, but my parents aren't as wealthy as everyone else. Our house is falling apart, but we can't afford to fix it up, and it really is a disgrace.

I'm losing all my friends because I'm too embarrassed to invite anybody over. They keep inviting me to their houses, but I can't ask them back because I don't want them to know I live in a dump.

Please help me before I lose all my good friends. Sometimes I feel so bad I just burst into tears.

BURSTING IN BUFFALO

DEAR BURSTING: Would you drop a good friend because you discovered she lived in a "dump"? True friends judge you on what you are, not the kind of house you live in.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "For Better or for Worse," who discovered after being married for 38 years that her husband was having an affair with a young woman, was right on, Abby. And a belated thanks to you.

Several years ago, my husband had an affair that put me in the deepest depression. I wrote to you and you advised counseling. I took your advice, and because of it and the help and support of my family doctor, I came out of that horrible experience a better, stronger and happier person. We will so celebrate our 30th wedding anniversary.

You are so right. If there's a shred of hope that a marriage can be saved, try to work it out. One has everything to gain and nothing to lose. The real loser was the other woman.

DRESS DOLLS FOR CHRISTMAS — In years past several organizations throughout the area dressed dolls to be given to underprivileged girls at Christmas. The project is starting up again as Mrs. Helen Braun shows a few dolls needing outerwear. Clubs and individuals are urged to dress dolls for the Salvation Army this year. All dolls will be judged and ribbons will be given in various categories. The dolls will be distributed this month to give plenty of time for dressing. Clubs or individuals interested in the project may contact Helen Braun at 267-8239 or 267-8929.

Dr. Donohue

Some ailments named with classical flair

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you please explain erythema multiforme? My 16-month-old son woke up one morning with red spots on his right thigh. He was seen by one of the pediatric doctors, who told me it was not from the antibiotic he had, and that they did not know what caused it or why some people just get it. It's been a week now and it's fading away. Did I somehow inadvertently cause this? — Mrs. L.H.

Dermatologists (skin specialists) have a classical flair to their naming of illnesses. Erythema refers to a red rash, and multiforme to a rash that has many appearances and many possible causes. The rash blebs may be flat, slightly raised, circular, or bullseye-target-like, even blistery. And there can be many causes. Those include infection, drugs, allergies, hormones and a large category of "unknowns."

The legs can be involved but often, other areas are affected, including the upper face, neck, forearms, backs of hands and feet. The inside of the mouth is another place where the rash can appear.

When a specific cause can be found, eliminating that ends the erythema multiforme. Steroids may have to be used in the serious cases. There is, incidentally, a very serious form of the illness, Stevens-Johnson syndrome, where the rash is quite profuse, and the mouth is covered with sores. Fever develops and there may be joint problems, convulsions, even coma.

I cannot make even an educated guess about your son's episode. I'm sure all known causes were investigated. His may be a case that defies explanation. A third of them do. You did not cause it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a question about facial hair. I've been plucking my "moustache" and bleaching the "dark fuzz" on my chin for years (at least 10). Sometimes I wonder if this is harmful or if it will hurt me later on. Please comment. — R.C.

Plucking facial hair is not the best way to handle the problem. There is always a chance it can lead to infection, which in turn may cause scarring. If you've escaped this fate for 10 years, you might consider yourself fortunate. Bleaching is OK, and it won't hurt you in the long run. Shaving is fine, and electrolysis can be considered. But plucking, no.

What else is to be said about facial hair growth in a woman? In nine of 10 cases it's a genetic trait, or a racial one (considered pulchritudinous in many parts of the world). It seldom represents a true problem. There are a few instances where excessive facial hair can indicate something amiss in the adrenal glands. Or it may indicate polycystic ovary disease or other ovarian growths. Those are a few rare examples.

Since I cannot judge your situation sight unseen, I must advise you to be guided by good judgment. If your facial hair seems beyond the ordinary, see your physician. He can take it from there. Other facts about hair and health are included in the booklet "Good Health for Your Hair," which other readers may order by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for printing and handling.

Summer care for violets discussed

The Texas Star African Violet Club met for a barbecue and meeting at the home of Thelma Montgomery, Aug. 4.

The club donated $25 to the Rainbow Project.

Fannie Wilkenson spoke on summer care for African violets. Sometimes summer temperatures are hard on the plants, she said. Good air circulation is recommended.

Since many gardeners are spending time in outdoor gardens this time of the year, many bugs can come indoors on clothing. The old rule "Cleanliness is next to godliness" should be followed when coming in from outdoor work, she said. Many plants can exist with the presence of pests that are lethal to African violets.

Good thorough hand washing is important before working extensively around houseplants. Spraying house plants with a soil drench of insecticide such as Cygon 2E which will give protection up to six weeks. Use ½ tsp. to 1 gallon of water.

When going on a trip, leave plants with other people to care for them. Be sure the person knows the importance of not over watering.

If leaving plants to "fend" for themselves, never completely encase them in plastic. Completely encasing them in plastic will be okay for a few days but not for a week or more. The high humidity will rot the plants. Plants are better left on matting or wick. Some like to remove all blossoms as well as reduce the fertilizer during extreme heat.

Walker birth is announced

Mr. and Mrs. Doby Walker, Rt. 2, announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, Kodi Kai Walker, at Malone and Hogan Hospital. The infant arrived at 4:43 p.m. weighing 7 pounds 7 ounces and measuring 20½ inches long.

Kodi is the granddaughter of Judy Bumgarner, 2609 Wasson, and Jimmy Bumgarner, Baton Rouge, La., and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Walker, Rt. 2.

She is the great-granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwain Leonard, 1517 11th Place, Mr. and Mrs. R.B. Davidson, 705 Tulane, Mr. and Mrs. Neei Bumgarner, 1607 E. 17th, and Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Walker, 4059 Vicky.

New look through surgery publicized

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — A pensive ballerina in pink tights ponders the question, "How would you change the way you look?" The advertisement, running in Texas regional editions of several national women's magazines, goes on to suggest that "Plastic surgery could give you a new beginning."

Garland Community Hospital, a 128-bed facility bought by Humana in 1975, is behind the ad campaign, which publicizes a new plastic surgery information and education program called "Beginnings."

The program is the brainchild of R. Lyle Luman, the hospital's 35-year-old executive director, who says more than 2,600 responses have been received since the ads began running in February.

"We felt there was a void in public awareness for what plastic surgery is," Luman said, adding that a survey backed up that theory.

"We (then) developed an access for the public we feel is informative and educational with a packet of information that is available to any consumer who would ask for it," he said.

The information packet describes common cosmetic surgery procedures and lists the three plastic surgeons on the staff of Garland Community Hospital.

"If a person is interested in plastic surgery, they have an opportunity to make an appointment for a consultation," Luman said.

Of the hundreds who have responded to the ads, about four percent have gone to consultations — and one-fourth of those have elected to undergo surgery, Luman said.

Most of the hospital's plastic surgery patients — 71 percent — are from the Dallas area, Luman said. But others come from such locations as Midland, Mount Pleasant, Stephenville, Joshua and Kirbyville.

Among the satisfied patients is a 29-year-old Dallas office manager named Carla.

She underwent a breast operation in June and said she was pleased with the results.

"What could have been a potentially frightening experience was extremely pleasant," she said, adding, "They make you feel pampered — very special."

Carla said she decided to have the operation at the hospital after her mother showed her the magazine ad.

"Their advertisements are extremely tasteful; so are the brochures," she said, adding, "it all fell into place."

Although admitting that the only reason for the operation was "pure vanity — plain and simple," Carla said "there's a big difference" about the way she feels about herself.

Luman says that's one of the big reasons people elect to have plastic surgery — and one of the reasons the advertising campaign has gotten a good response.

"We in the health care business have to be looking forward to what the public wants in terms of health care," Luman said.

The plastic surgery ads are to run in three magazines through November — D, Redbook and Ladies' Home Journal. The full-page ad also appeared in Women's Day.

"With Beginnings, you'll enjoy all the reassurance and peace of mind that goes with having your surgery performed in the comfort and safety of a major hospital — with a cost comparable to surgery in a doctor's office," the ad reads.

But whether any of the 88 other Humana hospitals adopt the program will depend on local needs, Luman said.

"They'll have to go about it the same way we did — by researching what the customers want," he said.

However, Luman is a firm believer in innovation.

"I don't think in today's society we can sit back in a hospital or any other kind of health care service in a traditional, 1950-style fashion," he said.

That opinion is shared by Sue Durio, director of public information for the Texas Hospital Association.

"As competition becomes more of way of life in the health care industry, we're going to see more marketing," she said in a telephone interview from Austin.

However, she added, THA rules prohibit inaccurate statements or claims that one hospital is better than another.

Generally, Durio said, "Ethical hospital advertising should be limited to that which informs, notifies and announces in conformance with our professional standards of conduct."

If those standards are met, then the patient will be better off by being better informed, she said.

Sex change operation opens new argument

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Since he was 5 years old, McKinzie Hill has lived with a secret: the desire to be a woman. But it's no secret anymore, mainly because taxpayers' dollars are involved.

In January, the city's Welfare Appeals Committee agreed to pay for Hill's sex change operation. His request spawned legal and bureaucratic battles that have produced legal bills larger than the cost of the surgery itself and a public outcry over the use of taxpayer dollars.

Hill feels the operation is necessary. Life as a male is like "living a disguise. It's like Halloween every day," without a costume, the 35-year-old welfare recipient has said.

So far the city has spent more than $17,000 on legal fees for attorneys for itself and the welfare committee. The amount, Hill claims, already doubles the $8,525 he says the operation would cost at a clinic in Colorado.

On Tuesday, following eight months of legal wrangling in which the city, in essence, sued itself in order to overturn the committee's decision, Dane County Circuit Judge William Eich reversed the committee's decision, but ordered it to hear the case again.

Though Eich did not rule on whether the committee made the right decision, he said that state law does not flatly prohibit the use of welfare funds for transsexual surgery.

The city claimed in its suit that the committee went beyond its legal powers and violated state statutes governing the use of welfare money. State law requires that aid recipients may receive medical services outside Wisconsin only in emergencies.

Hill, who friends say has gone into hiding to avoid public ridicule, has said the operation would be performed outside the state.

The city also contended the committee based its decision on hearsay, rather than testimony from the doctors who had examined Hill, and that mental, emotional and psychological problems should not be handled by general relief programs.

The committee said it did not consider transsexual surgery a psychological treatment, but added that it based its decision on doctors' opinions that cited a high risk for suicide and life-threatening health problems without surgery.

Eich agreed with the city, finding that the committee's decision was based too heavily on hearsay, and that a new hearing was necessary because of "legal errors in the committee's rulings and procedures."

Hill has said his money and health problems began after an adverse reaction to large doses of estrogen in June 1982 in preparation for the eventual surgery. Estrogen suppresses male hormones and allows the emergence of female characteristics.

Hill said he later developed life-threatening blood clots, a side effect of the hormone, which required two weeks of hospitalization.

The costly hospital stint, the inability to continue using the hormone and the closing of the restaurant where he worked tapped all of Hill's savings, he said, forcing him to go on welfare and seek funds for the surgery.

"I still want the surgery, but now I want the outcome will be," Hill told one newspaper. "I've been off hormones for almost a year; it took almost three years of hormone therapy to get me where I was. This is the last chance I'm ever going to have."

Hill described the effects of being off hormone therapy as going through male puberty all over again because his body is beginning to lose its feminine roundness and his facial hair is again thickening.

"I hate these changes in myself," Hill said. "It's emotionally painful when I go to the store for a loaf of bread and the clerk says 'Thank you, sir. I'm not a sir, not inside — I'm a woman!'"

Another delay involved a pending state Court of Appeals decision as to whether Eich could, in making his ruling, reveal confidential information the committee used to arrive at its decision.

Under state law, "no person may use or disclose information concerning applicants and recipients of general relief..."

The city and the committee, whose attorneys are paid for with taxpayer funds, argued that the information should be kept secret.

That request was challenged by a Madison newspaper, the Wisconsin State Journal, which contended the public had a right to know under the state's Open Records law the factors governing the committee's ruling. Eich agreed but the committee appealed the decision in late April.

Hill has said that if the city had paid for the operation in the first place it could have avoided several thousands of dollars more in legal bills; corrected his "hermaphrodite appearance"; and allowed him to more easily find a job and a quick exit from the welfare rolls.

"I don't understand it," he said. "I followed all the rules, all the procedures. I did everything everyone suggested. That was what I understood to be the process, yet now I have no part of it."

Animal cruelty conviction nixed

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Maryland's highest court Wednesday overturned the conviction of a researcher who had been found guilty of cruelty to a monkey used for experiments in his laboratory.

The Court of Appeals said the state's animal cruelty law does not apply to federal research programs such as that carried out by Edward Taub at the Institute for Behavioral Research in Silver Spring, a suburb of Washington.

It returned the case to a lower court with directions that the charges be dismissed.

Taub was away from his office Wednesday and did not return a telephone call for comment on the Court of Appeals ruling.

Seventeen monkeys were seized at the lab on Sept. 11, 1981, after members of an animal rights group complained to Montgomery County police that the monkeys were being mistreated.

Most of the information turned over to police came from Alex Pacheco, founder of People for Ethical Treatment of Animals, who posed as a volunteer to gain access to the lab.

Taub was originally charged with 119 counts of cruelty involving all 17 monkeys, but at a District Court trial he was convicted only on six counts of failing to provide proper veterinary care to six animals.

A new trial at the Circuit Court resulted in Taub being cleared of all charges except one count of failing to provide care for Nero, a monkey with an infected arm. He was fined $500.

A primary purpose of Taub's research, which was funded by the National Institutes of Health, was to gather information which doctors and therapists can use to help people who have suffered strokes regain the use of affected arms and legs.

The research involved cutting nerves leading to a monkey's arm or leg, removing all sensation, including pain, from the limb.

Man bitten by snake gets even by biting back

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — When a rattlesnake bit Arlie Waldron on the forearm, he decided to get even. He bit the snake's head off, but not before the rattler nipped him six more times, including once on the tongue.

A canebrake rattlesnake bit the 42-year-old Waldron as he started to teach his son about handling snakes as they stood in Waldron's backyard in the pine woods of north Florida.

Enraged, Waldron said he set out to bite off the reptile's head, but the fatal chomp didn't come before Waldron had been bitten seven times.

He was rushed from his home near Lake City to a local hospital that night, July 16, and two hours later was transferred to Shands Teaching Hospital in Gainesville. He spent four days there before returning home.

His head and neck "swelled up like a balloon" Waldron recalled in a recent interview with the Lake City Reporter.

Only two days later, Waldron said, a doctor came into the hospital room and began "staring at me for a long time" in disbelief that the swelling was gone.

Hispanic voter sign up under way

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — With visits from political dignitaries over, leaders of the National Hispanic Voter Registration campaign now must begin the arduous task of signing up 1 million Hispanic voters by the 1984 presidential election.

The $2 million door-to-door drive, billed as non-partisan, will blanket more than 300 communities in 28 states.

"This voter registration drive can and should elect the next president of the United States," Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., told a wildly cheering group of about 400 Hispanics on Tuesday night.

Organizers of the drive said adding 1 million Hispanics could build up crucial voting blocs in Texas, California, New York and Florida — four states which together have almost half the 270 electoral votes needed to elect the next president.

Hispanic leaders from across the country spent most of Monday and Tuesday's conference blasting President Reagan's policies toward minorities.

Vice President George Bush traveled to San Antonio on Tuesday to offset the criticism, and was received with restrained applause from the mixed crowd of Democrats and Republicans.

But people stood on their chairs, whistled, stomped their feet and cried "Viva!" when Kennedy addressed the group Tuesday night. The senator's 30-minute speech was interrupted at least 30 times by sustained applause.

Kennedy reeled off a litany of Reagan's sins against Hispanics and asked them to deliver the votes of the new Hispanic voters to an old friend, the Democratic party.

"The White House strategists think that somehow or other they can hoodwink Mexican-Americans into voting for the Republicans — and against themselves," he said. "You know what can be done and how far we have come already."

The San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, which already has run hundreds of smaller voter drives, is organizing the grassroots sign-up campaign.

The group's executive director, Willie Velasquez, said research has shown Hispanics now are expanding their concentrated interest in local campaigns to the national level.

Economic issues, particularly unemployment, have joined the focus of Hispanics' interest in city elected officials who can fix unpaved streets in their sections of town and set school board policy that will affect their children, Velasquez said.

"History is repeating itself," he said. "The working class immigrants are beginning to exert themselves, are beginning to make a contribution to this country."

If the registration campaign is successful, 4.4 million Hispanics — 70 percent of those eligible to vote — would be registered.

Repair man accused of drumming up business

TRENT, Texas (AP) — A automotive repair shop located just off Interstate 20 in this West Texas community got a run of business lately when several vehicles drove onto old car and truck parts that were lying on the highway.

But it was more than just blind luck for Wesley Beard, the owner of Beard's Auto & Truck Repairs, according to Texas Rangers and investigators for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Beard was arrested this week and charged with four counts of felony criminal mischief, authorities said. He was released Monday on $3,500 bond set by Justice of the Peace Clarence Collins.

Authorities charge that Beard was responsible for putting the car and truck parts on the highway. Beard allegedly dumped the large, heavy parts onto the eastbound lane of I-20 shortly before 10:30 p.m. on July 28, investigators said.

Within minutes, the drivers of four automobiles that suffered damage from the debris nursed their crippled vehicles to the nearest exit and into Beard's shop, investigators said.

Investigators said they have learned of a number of other similar incidents in the same area over a period of about three months.

Several other motorists also hit the parts — including a motor head, transmission parts and gears — but left after discovering their cars were not disabled. Other vehicles blew out tires and suffered undercarriage damage, according to investigators.

A DPS officer said Tuesday that investigators believe the same heavy car parts were used time after time to waylay motorists.

"We know there's been a lot of instances of where someone ran over something on the road out there," said Bob Richardson, criminal investigator for the motor vehicle theft service.

"We feel that he is putting stuff out there so people will blow out a tire or ruin a transmission, and he then is Johnny-on-the-spot with his wrecker."

DPS Capt. G.J. Matthews said that the investigation began after a Lakewood, Colo. woman wrote the department to inquire about the roadway debris.

According to the charges, four cars sustained damages ranging from about $200 to $1,500.

Authorities said no injuries were reported, and some motorists drove back up the freeway to alert other travelers to the danger and to drag the parts off the highway.

Trent is about 20 miles west of Abilene in Taylor County.

California wine industry hung over from surplus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Still weeks away from the 1983 grape harvest, California's $5 billion wine industry is hung over from a surplus of wine in storage, a sharp drop in expected sales and prices, and a flood of European competition.

"We're being clobbered," said Phil Haring Jr., executive editor and publisher of Wines & Vines, an industry publication.

Haring says "10 percent of the American people drink 80 percent of the wine" sold in the United States. About 70 percent of the wine consumed in the United States comes from California.

Other wine authorities, including veteran wine business analyst and consultant Lou Gombert, say only "4 to 5 percent" of Americans drink wine regularly. "Something," declared Gombert, "has to be done about that."

The troubles developed as growers, vintners, distributors and retail outlets began facing the fact that California has almost 554 million gallons of wine in storage — about 90 million gallons more than was being stored at the same time last year.

Vintners concede that if this year's grape crop comes close to 1982's huge harvest, there won't be enough room to store the 1983 vintage. Current indications are that the crop will be at least 10 percent under last year's.

Europe's major wine producers — Italy, France, Spain and Portugal — also have a storage problem. Wineries in those countries are reported to have some 400 million gallons in storage this year over what was being held last year, although the total figure was not available.

And much of that wine is heading to the United States, in what some industry sources call a "Eurowine offensive."

According to the industry-supported Wine Institute, California's 1982 grape crop was an enormous 5.9 million tons — 49.2 percent over the previous year. That record crop came as California wine shipments climbed only one-tenth of 1 percent over 1981 shipments.

Ed Everett, publisher of "The Wine Trade" newsletter, said the result will be grapes hitting the ground rather than the crusher, and "a depression" in prices offered for grapes and charged for bottled wine.

Prices for wines rated from jug to good or very good quality are dropping, although the cost of the finest wines is not expected to decline.

In June, premium wine producer Robert Mondavi dropped the price of his $11 fume blanc at the winery to between $5 and $6. The retail price at discount stores dropped to the $4 range, said Gombert.

And recently, some jug wines bearing the Carlo Rossi label fell to near 1982 prices in some stores, with eight liters of jug wine going for $7, a cut of more than 50 percent, Gombert added.

But with a strong dollar, prices have also fallen for foreign wines, making them cheaper here and American wines expensive in other countries.

In June, Clare L. Berryhill, director of the California Department of Food and Agriculture predicted that Italy and France would gain a larger share of the American wine market: if the dollar remained strong.

Industry statistics indicate California's share of the total U.S. wine market after World War II was 90.6 percent. Last year, the figure was 68.2 percent. And between 1970 and 1981, wine imports to America rose from 10 percent to 22.6 percent.

Last week in the House of Representatives, two California congressmen introduced a bill which threatens restrictions on wine imports. The measure, sponsored by Reps. Tony Coelho, a Democrat, and William M. Thomas, a Republican, would give countries that export wine to the United States 180 days from the enactment of the proposed law to make their own import rules conform to those in this country.

If they didn't, the president would be required to limit imports just as drastically as other countries limit theirs. Gombert concedes a serious oversupply of domestic California wine, but shrugs at the fuss. "It goes on periodically, unpredictably. Nature makes it unpredictable over and beyond the power of human beings."

CBS regains lead in Nielsen ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS regained the lead in the Nielsen ratings last week on the strength of its popular "60 Minutes" newsmagazine, a tear-jerker movie and the regular menu of situation comedies, hospital and detective shows.

The network's "60 Minutes," the highest-rated show last season, was in its old spot at the head of the Top 10 for the week ending Aug. 7 after dropping during the summer rerun season.

CBS had nine shows in the Top 10, which was expanded to 12 because of a four-way tie for ninth place. NBC had two shows and ABC had one.

ABC's newsmagazine, "20-20," finished fifth, but NBC's similar program, "Monitor," was in its customary place in the bottom five of the program standings.

CBS, which took second place to NBC the week before, was the highest-rated network with an average of 12.4, according to the A. C. Nielsen Co. NBC was second with 11.3 and ABC was third with 10.7. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute, 12.4 percent of the nation's TV homes were tuned to CBS.

Two popular CBS comedy series, "The Jeffersons" and "Newhart," were in second and third place, and the CBS comedy-drama "Trapper John, M.D.," took fourth.

The CBS movie "The Promise," a 1979 film about a young couple whose hopes for the future are dashed by an accident, took sixth place. It starred Kathleen Quinlan, Stephen Collins and Beatrice Straight.

NBC's "Hill Street Blues," the offbeat police drama that once again snared the most Emmy nominations, was seventh. Eighth place went to the canceled CBS drama about two policewomen, "Cagney & Lacey."

The four-way tie for ninth place was between CBS' "Magnum, P.I.," "One Day at a Time," and "Simon & Simon," and the NBC movie "Mirror, Mirror," a made-for-TV drama about three women (Janet Leigh, Loretta Swit and Lee Meriwether) who try to rebuild their lives through cosmetic surgery.

The special premiere of the ABC summer series "Reggie," starring Richard Mulligan, tied for 17th place and was the only summer show in the Top 20. The show made its regular debut later in the week and that episode finished 38th.

"Eye on Hollywood," another ABC summer show, made its debut in 45th place. It is a newsmagazine-style show about the lifestyles of Southern California.

Among other summer shows, NBC's "Buffalo Bill," a comedy starring Dabney Coleman, was No. 37 and ABC's prime-time soap opera "The Hampdens" was No. 54.

At the bottom for the week was the ABC News Closeup "Water: Present Danger." The five lowest-rated shows in descending order were the ABC pilot "Feel the Heat," NBC's "Monitor," ABC's Dr. Seuss special "Cat in the Hat," the ABC special "Just a Little More Love," and the ABC News Closeup.

Here are the week's 5 top programs:

1. "60 Minutes," CBS, a rating of 17.8 or 14.8 million households.
2. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 17.1 or 14.2 million.
3. "Newhart," CBS, 16.9 or 14.1 million.
4. "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, 16.7 or 13.9 million.
5. "20-20," ABC, 15.9 or 13.2 million.

Bowling news...
Phil Ringener ought to coach Little League more often.

After taking a leave of absence from the Professional Bowlers Association to coach the Astros to the American Little League title, Ringener returned to PBA competition and did quite well, thank you.

First stop was at the Showboat in Las Vegas for a doubles tournament. He teamed with first-timer Chuck Pierce of Dallas for sixth place, missing a spot in the finals by one step. The pair split $5,000 in prize money.

Ringener returned to Texas to bowl in the $110,000 Aqua Fest-Mr. Gatti's Open in Austin. He finished 17th there, picking up a paycheck totaling $1,800. For the year — he needs to hire an accountant, Ringener has earned between $15,000 and $20,000 from the tour.

Not a bad part-time job for a guy who yelled at his pitchers, "Roll, er, throw strikes!"

Lenny Prudhomme likes for the Figure 7 Tennis Center to get as much publicity as possible. However, he's quiet when it comes to his own accomplishments.

Recently, Prudhomme teamed with Harry Jordan to win the men's division of the a doubles tournament in Lamesa. Next on their agenda is an exhibition match in Dallas against John McEnroe and Peter Fleming.

Or would you settle for Gibson-Jaklewicz?

U.S.A. sprints to world mark

400 relay nabs one of 3 gold

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — The United States has thrust itself back on top as the world power in sprinting, mainly because of Carl Lewis.

The swift and powerful Lewis, who runs with the speed of a runaway locomotive, anchored the American 400-meter relay team to a world record Wednesday night in the inaugural World Track and Field Championships.

Churning down the final 100 meters to the cheers of 50,000 fans in Olympic Stadium, Lewis swept across the finish line well ahead of his closest pursuers.

As he did, he glanced at the clock.

"When I first looked at it, I thought it said 38.8 (seconds)," said Lewis.

"I did a double-take. Then, I looked again... and I realized it was 37.8."

Actually, it was 37.86 seconds.

The old record was 38.03 by a United States team in the 1977 World Cup at Dusseldorf, West Germany.

Preceding Lewis on the relay were Emmitt King, Willie Gault and Calvin Smith.

Lewis, Smith and King also had finished 1-2-3 in the men's 100-meter final Monday night, and Lewis led a 1-2-3 finish in the long jump Wednesday night.

The multi-talented 22-year-old from Willingboro, N.J., won with a leap of 8.55 meters (28 feet, three-quarters inch), and was followed by Jason Grimes at 8.29 (27-3/4) and Mike Conley at 8.12 (26-7/8).

Despite the impressive long jump finish, it was the WORLD MARK FOR LEWIS, USA — Carl Lewis raises his arms in jubilation as he passes the finish line of the 400-meter relay Wednesday in Helsinki. Lewis won his third gold medal of the World Track and Field Championships by anchoring the USA to a world record 37.86 clocking in the event.

relay team that commanded the most attention.

The Americans, once the world power in the sprints, had slipped in recent years, failing to win a gold medal in the 100- and 200-meter dashes in the 1972 and 1976 Olympic Games.

And in 1980, the United States boycotted the Summer Games, further diminishing the American sprinters' credibility.

But led by Lewis, who has been ranked No. 1 in the world in the 100 each of the past two years, they are solidly on top again.

It took some devastating performances in the World Championships, however, to make that authoritative.

"We have such confident sprinters in the United States that we can win in any World Championship," said Lewis.

He also said that the depth of the American sprint team was one reason he decided to bypass the 200 in this prestigious meet.

World Games

Smith, the world record holder in the 100, is running the 200, along with Larry Myricks and Elliott Quow.

Smith is hoping for the same crowd reaction from the appreciative fans in Olympic Stadium for the 200 that the Americans received in the 400 relay.

"The crowd was really behind us," he said. "They (the fans) kept saying, 'Go, go, USA.'"

The U.S. went — at a sizzling pace.

King got off to a good start, Gault turned in a brilliant second leg and Smith followed with a fast 100 meters, before turning over the baton to Lewis.

At that point, though, the American team still was in second place, behind the Soviet Union. But once Lewis starting rolling, there was no doubt that he would win.

The question was whether the Americans would break the world record.

They did — by .17 of a second.

"I didn't see the clock right at first," said Lewis.

"Then, when I did, I couldn't believe it." Jarmila Kratochvilova of Czechoslovakia shattered the mark in the women's 400 meters, clocking 47.99.

In erasing the mark of 48.16 set last year by Marita Koch of East Germany, the Czech earned her second gold medal of the meet. She also won the 800 Tuesday night.

In spite of Kratochvilova's dazzling double, the woman who most captivated the fans was Mary Decker of the United States.

Decker shattered the myth that the Europeans, led by the Soviet Union, are the world's most dominant distance runners on the track by winning the 3,000-meter race in 8:34.62.

UT inks Polinsky to assistant's job

GREGG POLINSKY named UT assistant

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Longhorn basketball coach Bob Weltlich has added Gregg Polinsky, 25, to his staff as a part-time coach.

For the past two years Polinsky has been on the staff at Howard College in Big Spring, working under former Hawk coach Harold Wilder. He served as assistant coach, intramurals director and physical education instructor.

He is a native of St. Louis and played basketball at the University of New Mexico and Northern Arizona.

In addition to coaching at Texas, Polinsky will coordinate recruiting.

Bucs grant Selmon big money

By The Associated Press

After letting quarterback Doug Williams get away to the United States Football League, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers came up with the big bucks to keep Lee Roy Selmon.

Although terms were not disclosed, the Bucs announced that Selmon will be the highest paid player at his position in the National Football League. The 6-foot-3, 250-pound defensive end, a three-time All-Pro selection, was the first draft choice ever of the expansion Bucs in 1976.

Williams, a five-year veteran, signed Tuesday with the USFL expansion Oklahoma Outlaws after contract negotiations for a five-year pact failed with the Bucs.

Meanwhile, the Washington Redskins announced that Coach Joe Gibbs had signed a new five-year contract. Terms of the contract were not released.

"I can think of no one man more deserving of this confidence than Joe Gibbs," team owner Jack Kent Cooke said in a statement. "He has been a patriarch of the great Redskins family, molding it into a potent force in professional sports."

The assistant coaches of the Super Bowl champions also were rewarded with new three-year contracts, retroactive to March 1 of this year.

Eisehwere in NFL training camps, the New England Patriots waived place-kicker Dean Dorsey of Toronto and nose tackle Joe Ver-ria of Bridgewater State.

The Patriots were also involved in a trade with the San Francisco 49ers, sending quarterback Matt Cavanaugh for a middle-round draft pick.

Right tackle Tootie Robbins of the St. Louis Cardinals suffered a bruise to his left knee during contact drills Tuesday night and will miss between two and three weeks of practice, the team announced.

The Houston Oilers claimed former University of Houston defensive lineman Wilson Whitley off waivers.

Tight end Mike Barber ended his holdout by signing with the Los Angeles Rams. Terms of the contract were not released.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 12, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning has a very adverse influence which requires that you use care and caution with other persons to avoid a harsh and unforgiving condition which is brewing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you get too emotional you cannot straighten out a matter between a family tie and an outsider, so compose yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may find it hard to communicate with a friend early in the day, but later can do so very well. Stress harmony.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Forget that expensive entertainment you have in mind and get your talents working constructively instead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be very careful and cautious with those at home and prevent any trouble from erupting.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't get so involved with a private worry that you fail to gain the outside benefits that could be yours.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan your time so that you can soothe a worried friend and also help another a short distance away. Use patience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you are too demanding now, you can have a serious setback where some aim is concerned, so tread lightly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You feel like making some very radical changes, but don't do it. Make quiet plans for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A friend could keep you from meeting an important obligation if you go out with him, or her, so stay put.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A partner and a person in power could be having an argument so don't interfere and it will soon be over.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) First get some new method organized and then you can do a better job of your work. Seek advice from an expert.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to control your temper when a pal and a person in business come into an argument, otherwise you become the scapegoat.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have a very hot temper and can get in trouble early because of it so teach to be more reasonable and listen to what others have to say, even though he, or she may not agree with views of others.

Yoko goes to court to fight over nude photos

NEW YORK (AP) — Yoko Ono, widow of slain ex-Beatle John Lennon, is suing Swank magazine for $6 million and has asked a judge to block publication of "intimate" nude photographs she says were stolen from the couple's apartment.

Miss Ono was joined in the suit by photographer Allen Tannenbaum, who said in an affidavit that the photographs were "unique" and his reputation would be "irreparably damaged" by their publication in "the tawdry magazine Swank."

The photographs of Miss Ono and Lennon in nude or semi-nude "intimate husband and wife postures" were originally to have been used to promote the couple's "Double Fantasy" album.

But, according to an affidavit filed by Miss Ono, the photographs were never used as intended because Lennon was assassinated by Mark David Chapman before the album was released.

Miss Ono alleges that the pictures were stolen from her apartment in The Dakota on Central Park West, but Swank editor Richard Barraclough said recently the man who offered him the photographs said he found them in a trash can.

Justice Stanley Parkness granted Miss Ono and Tannenbaum an order Tuesday requiring representatives of Swank to show cause why a permanent injunction against publication of the photographs should not be issued.

Barraclough could not be reached for comment on the suit. A woman who answered the phone at Swank's offices said Barraclough had left for the day and that no one else could comment. Allan Levensfeld, lawyer for the magazine, said he was "not free to comment."

Last month Barraclough told The Associated Press that "the pictures are boring. It's much milder than most of our stuff."

Tannenbaum said in court papers that he was invited to photograph the Lennons on Nov. 26, 1980 and agreed that the shots would be his property but the Lennons

"would have to authorize any publication or use."

He said he gave Miss Ono copies of the photographs and negatives and kept the originals in a safe deposit box, and said he believed the photographs were stolen from the Lennons' apartment.

Barraclough told the AP the magazine had not paid for the pictures.

BINGO BULLETIN PUBLISHERS - Harry George and Marie Worth display some copies of their "Bingo Bulletin" recently. Their new publication carries information and schedules for bingo players in the Pittsburgh area.

New bingo pamphlet helps hit the jackpot

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Bingo - once the domain of elderly ladies who played in church basements - has gone uptown, say two aficionados who hope to hit the jackpot with a monthly newsletter aimed at the new, younger breed of bingo player.

The first issue of the "Bingo Bulletin" was such a success that publishers Harry George and Marie Wirth are planning to expand the next one.

"It used to be little old ladies whose fathers and sons dropped them off and picked them up. No more. Bingo is big business," said George, 39, who played his first game eight months ago.

"More men are playing, working women, too," said Ms. Wirth, 32, a corporate secretary who's sat through more than 3,000 bingo games.

Ms. Wirth introduced George, an insurance salesman and Presbyterian minister, to the land of B-10s and I-19s in December.

The first time he played, he took home the $50 jackpot. And although he wasn't quite hooked, he recognized the potential.

"I became intrigued by the bingo player, the whole mentality," George said.

Despite the skepticism of family and friends, George and Ms. Wirth began contacting more than 600 licensed bingo operators in Allegheny County, asking them to buy advertisements in the new publication. Before long, they had earned enough to finance the $2,000 cost of the first issue, a 16-page pamphlet which includes listings of game locations and discount coupons.

Nearly all 12,000 copies, distributed free at convenience stores and bingo halls in the Pittsburgh area at the end of July, were gone within two weeks.

"Several priests told us when we gave them some copies that women will kill to get hold of these," George said.

Despite bad times and fancy pastimes, Ms. Wirth and George say much of their success stems from the fact that the bingo market has remained untapped for years.

Although Pennsylvania legalized the game in July 1981 -

'Kudzu' is inoffensive little comedy

NEW YORK (AP) — "Kudzu" on CBS Saturday night is an inoffensive little comedy that probably says all there is to say on the subject.

That's important, because the story — of a young man's search for his good-for-nuthin' father — presumably once was considered material for a series.

Tony Becker plays Odell "Kudzu" Venable Dubose, whose desire to be a writer like some others he can think of with roots in the South — "William Faulkner, Margaret Mitchell ... Rod McKuen" — leads to the true story of his long-gone daddy's departure.

The TV program was based on characters created by Doug Marlette for a comic strip of the same name.

The show's producers did all they could to appeal to the network, and they didn't miss the mark by a lot. The title is amusing — kudzu is a vine that often grows wild in the South — the introductory footage is inviting, the music appealing. And, the humor is mostly gentle:

"Boy, would I like to get my hands on that," Kudzu, thumbing through a magazine for aspiring writers, tells his mother.

"Son," Mavis Venable Dubose replies, "I think it's about time you and your Uncle Dub had a modern, scientific talk about all the technicalities of ... begettin'."

Kudzu is talking, of course, about an electric typewriter.

In any case, he decides to try for the $3,500 that Reader's Digest offers for stories on "my most unforgettable character."

CITY OF BIG SPRING TEXAS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The City of Big Spring is planning to file an application with the Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA) for a Texas Community Development Program (TCDP) grant. The city's application will be submitted to TDCA on or before September 1, 1983.

A public hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, August 17, 1983 in the Council Chambers of City Hall, corner of 4th & Nolan Streets, Big Spring, Texas. The purpose of this public hearing is to discuss the city's community development needs and assess the past community development efforts.

All citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and present their views to the city. Written comments will be accepted by the city up until the application is submitted to TDCA.

A second public hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, August 23, 1983 in the Council Chambers of City Hall, corner of 4th & Nolan Streets, Big Spring, Texas. This meeting will be held in conjunction with a regular meeting of the City Council. This meeting will be to discuss specific details of the application which the city will be submitting to TDCA.

The basic intent of the TCDP program is to eliminate slums and deteriorated neighborhoods by providing improved streets, parks and community facilities; improved utility systems; better drainage; and other public facilities. TCDP funds may also be used to support economic development activities and public services including manpower training, crime prevention, health care, drug abuse and child care programs.

For further information on the TCDP program, contact Bill Hall, at City Hall, 915-263-8311.

Fossil may have twin

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — One researcher says that a fossil pelvis found in South Africa identically matches that of Lucy, a human ancestor who lived at least 3 million years ago, but Lucy's discoverer challenged those claims.

Ivan Suzman said the South African discovery may help fix the date of a large number of fossils and raises questions about what kind of creature Lucy was.

Tobias of South Africa, a leading authority on South African fossils.

Johanson, from the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, Calif., discovered Lucy in 1974. Johanson and his colleagues decided, after considerable study, that Lucy represented a previously unknown species, which they named Australopithecus afarensis.

The designation of Lucy as a new species is not accepted by everyone. Suzman said the identical match between Lucy's pelvis and the South African pelvis suggests that Lucy belongs to the same species as the South African skeleton, Australopithecus africanus.

Suzman also said his finding means that Lucy and the South African specimen, Sts 14, lived at approximately the same time.

Lucy is believed to have lived between 3 million and 3 1/2 million years ago, based on measurements of radioactive decay in the soil layers in which she was found.

Those estimates of age are believed to be fairly accurate. On the other hand, the South African fossils, including Sts 14, are not as accurately dated, Suzman said.

His discovery establishes that Sts 14 is from an animal living at about the same time as Lucy, he said.

But Johanson disagreed. In a telephone interview, he said animal skeletons found with Sts 14 put its date at something like 2 1/2 million years ago.

He believes that Lucy and her kind were ancestors of Sts 14 and other fossils of that species.

It is not surprising for fossil pelvises to be identical, Johanson said, explaining that the pelvises of all human ancestors who walked upright on two feet are quite similar.

Johanson said he and his colleagues had noted a similarity between Lucy and Sts 14 in a paper published in 1981.

Lucy was found in Ethiopia, thousands of miles to the north, and Lucy's discoverer, Donald Johanson, argued that the South African find is not as old as Lucy and that the similarities between the two fossils are not significant.

Suzman, speaking at a press conference Wednesday at the Jackson Laboratory, said he discovered the similarity between the South African pelvis and Lucy during six years of study in the 1970s.

He said he was fascinated that Lucy, one of the most complete skeletons of a human ancestor ever found, and the other fossil skeleton, less complete, came from creatures that lived 4,000 miles apart.

The specimen whose pelvis matches Lucy's is called Sts 14. It was found at an area called Sterkfontein, near Johannesburg.

Suzman said his discovery will be described in his doctoral thesis, which he is writing under the direction of Phillip
