Ranchers to get federal aid

From staff and wire reports
The U.S. Department of Agriculture's decision to approve disaster loans for 20 drought-stricken West Texas counties is "good news" even though it's a case of too little too late, says Gov. Mark White.

Federal emergency relief approved yesterday morning was first believed to include all farmers and ranchers in the drought area, according to Washington press releases.

Steve Kelley, Howard County supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration, said he learned Tuesday afternoon loan eligibility will be limited to range, pasture and other feed crops, he said.

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block has deferred any decision on field crops until after the fall harvest, Kelley said.

Block notified White that the counties getting the disaster declaration are Andrews, Brewster, Coke, Crane, Culberson, Ector, Howard, Jeff Davis, Martin, Midland, Mitchell, Nolan, Pecos, Presidio, Reagan, Sutton, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler.

"It's kind of like getting a sprinkle when you really need a soaking rain — it's not near enough, but it does feel good to be wet," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said at a news conference. "This will not affect farmers."

Kelley said the big distinction between crops for range animals and field crops had not surfaced before. He called the loan split unusual, but not unprecedented.

"I have no doubts row-crop farmers will be pulled into this," Kelley said.

The FHA emergency disaster loan will allow a farmer or rancher to borrow up to 80 percent of his loss at 8 percent interest based on a five-year yield average.

"Secretary of Agriculture John Block's decision to grant relief, though much delayed and not as far-reaching as is necessary, is the first good news we've received in response to the calls we have made to address the emergency," White said Tuesday.

Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, said he hoped the USDA also would offer cattle feed to the 20-county area.

"Now I hope the administration follows through by approving the substantive aid programs that Gov. White and I have been proposing for two months," Hightower said. "At least, USDA should turn loose the 17.5 million bushels of bad, surplus grain that's stored in the Panhandle since the Russian grain embargo. The grain is deteriorating, it's not worth putting on the commercial market, the taxpayers are paying $5 million a year to store it, and our ranchers need it."

Traditionally, disaster loans on crop losses for any group have come after the harvest and farmers determine what they could have produced, Kelley said.

"It's pretty obvious the ranch people need something now," Kelley said.

Cotton and other crop producers will probably not be eligible for the program until around November, the FHA supervisor said. Ranchers are more heavily affected at the present and need help now, Kelley added.

Currently the deadline for emergency disaster loans is Feb. 16, 1984. If other crop producers are included later in the disaster relief, the deadline will be extended, Kelley said.

Eligibility will be determined by lending institutions since only producers who have reached their credit limits with other institutions will be allocated loans, Kelley said.

Thousands flee Alicia

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Thousands of people fled inland today in Texas and Louisiana as Hurricane Alicia bore down on the Gulf Coast with sustained winds of 85 mph, torrential rains and pounding waves.

But thousands more in the Galveston area, which the National Hurricane Center said was most likely to absorb the brunt of the storm later in the day, chose to ride out the hurricane and flocked to supermarkets for food.

"I'm just here out getting their canned food, their candles and their bottled water," Steve Harned, chief meteorologist of the National Weather Service in Galveston, said late Tuesday.

Air Force reconnaissance reports indicated Alicia "continues to strengthen and is moving slowly toward the west northwest," the weather service said. "Increasing probabilities indicate that the greatest threat is along the upper Texas and western Louisiana coasts."

At noon EDT today, Alicia was centered about 90 miles south-southeast of Galveston, near latitude 28.0 north, longitude 94.5 west. The eye was "wobbling and nearly stationary," the weather service said, a common occurrence when a slow-moving hurricane approaches land. The storm was expected to resume a 5 mph drift to the north northwest later today, forecasters said.

Along the Galveston seaway, souvenir shops were closed but not boarded up. A few displayed signs "Closed For Alicia." A trickle of sightseers took pictures of the waves hitting the wall and splashing over the sidewalk.

The wind began howling early in the day. Rain was steady but not heavy immediately.

Mayor Gus Manual said he was not ordering the city evacuated.

"There has been no change in Alicia's intensity or direction that would cause us to alter our plan. We are encouraging those citizens living in the low-lying areas to leave," he said.

The hurricane neared landfall exactly 14 years to the day after Hurricane Camille slammed into the Gulf Coast of Mississippi, killing 255 people and leaving 68 missing. A hurricane which hit Galveston in 1900 with 77-mph winds killed 6,000 people, mostly as the result of storm tides which inundated the city. It was the nation's worst hurricane disaster.

While about 6,000 southwestern Louisiana residents and hundreds of workers on offshore oil rigs heeded warnings to leave, most of the 60,000 residents of Galveston apparently chose to remain.

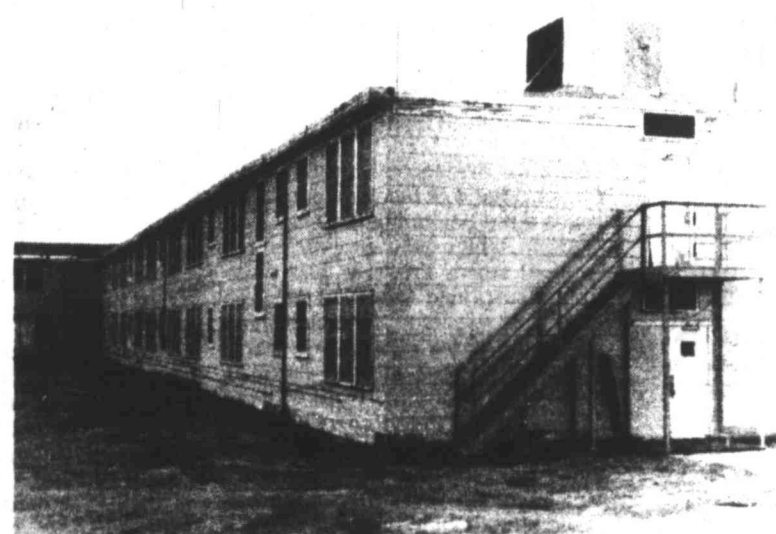

Bill Bloom, at the National Weather Service in Galveston, estimated the evacuation warnings in Texas would affect up to 15,000 people in low-lying areas but there was no way to know how many were leaving.

"Traffic hasn't been abnormally heavy," said Irving Clark, deputy Civil Defense director.

Ron Castle, National Weather Service specialist at Galveston, said some residents of Galveston Island's west end were slow to leave.

"No one there really seems to be taking it seriously," Castle said. "By daybreak, they could find that their escape routes are being cut off. They're just kind of ignoring it and apparently hoping for the best."

Police said some roads on the island's west end were closed today. Department spokesman Andre Gibbs said that a segment between See ALICIA, page 2A

Dorm renovations studied by HC board

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Howard County Junior College District trustees are awaiting plans and cost estimates that may signal the exterior renovation of a dormitory on the campus of the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Yesterday, the trustees heard from Dr. Charles Hays, president of the district, that architectural plans and cost estimates the board requested will soon be available for scrutiny.

Hays estimated the renovation will cost between $100,000 and $125,000 and will involve brickwork, insulated windows and siding. The dormitory picked for renovation is the old bachelor officers quarters building #486, which sits adjacent to Webb Lane.

"Students are just not going to come back and live in that type of situation," Hays said of the dormitory. "We've been promising them for two years that we'd fix up those dorms and we like to show them we're starting something by the time they get there (for the fall semester)."

Hays said funds for the renovation would come state monies budgeted but not used during the previous school year.

Hays did not estimate when the construction would be completed if approved by the board.

Hays said the district would be acting as its own general contractor in the renovation with the district buying the materials and hiring contracted workers to complete the work.

"Normally, a general contractor will try to make 20 percent (profit) on a project, so if we act as our own general contractor we feel we can save 20 percent," Hays said.

Hays said the board probably would be meeting in a special called session before Sept. 1 to act on the renovation.

In other business yesterday the board:

- Officially approved the district's 1983-84 budget of $7.3 million after holding a public hearing. The budget — nearly $1 million more than a year ago — was tentatively approved by the board last month in a regular meeting.
- Set out-of-state tuition at SWCID at a yearly $8,667 as required by the Texas Education Code. The law says the district must charge out-of-state students exactly what it costs to educate a student for one year at SWCID. The figure is $94 less than last year's tuition.
- Approved the hiring of three instructors at SWCID and three instructors at Howard College.

City awards street bid to Price

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

Big Spring city councilmen, who said they are pleased about lower than expected costs, paved the way for street repairs yesterday by awarding a $1.16 million contract to a local construction firm.

The council, meeting in a 1 p.m. special session at City Hall, awarded the contract to Price Construction Co. of Big Spring, whose bid for the projects was some $300,000 below engineers' estimates.

The contract calls for the following work:

- Widening of Birdwell Lane from Fourth Street to FM 700 — $291,000.
- Reconstruction of Goliad from Fourth Street to FM 700 — $268,255.
- Reconstruction of 15th and Main and 11th and Settles intersections — $39,175.
- Repair work on Oak Glenn Drive — $30,207.
- Repairs behind water line improvements — $392,925.

The additional $136,570 is for engineering, testing and related fees.

The consulting firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper Inc. of Lubbock had estimated the work at $1.43 million without the fees. Price's bid represented a savings of some $300,000.

The capital improvements fund for street projects now has surplus of $407,275, according to Public Works Director Tom Decell. That money must be kept in the fund for streets.

Councilmen have not decided which streets would benefit from the surplus. City Manager Don Davis said the council will look into future projects later in the year.

Lee Allison, representing the consulting firm, told the council all the work estimates were in order and recommended the Price bid.

The only change in the original estimate concerned placing traffic buttons on Birdwell instead of yellow stripes.

Councilmen also have the option of substituting Portland Cement Paving for work at the 11th and Settles intersection. The change would add $60,906 to the construction cost. Since that project isn't scheduled to begin until after the first of the year, councilmen said they would make a decision next month.

The other bids received for the projects, minus fees, were $1.17 million from Borsberry Construction of El Paso and $1.14 million from Jones Brothers Co. of Odessa.

Decell said Price may be able to start work on Birdwell Lane next week. The widening is supposed to be finished by Nov. 15.

Holiday Inn site of robbery

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

Big Spring police are investigating an early-morning armed robbery at the Holiday Inn on East Highway 80.

According to police Lt. Alvis Jeffcoat, a "unknown Hispanic" carrying a shotgun entered the motel lobby at 2:56 a.m. and told the desk clerk to turn over all the money.

The employee obeyed and the suspect left with about $360 in currency and coins, police reports said.

Officers Randy Isbell and Curtis Becker responded to the call. Jeffcoat said this morning there were no suspects in the case at this time. Detectives had not determined the gauge of the shotgun, he said.

"It happened real quick — he was in and out," Holiday Inn manager Jill Jones said this morning. "He came in, told her to lay down and give him the money, then left."

There were no injuries or damage to motel, police said.

Mrs. Jones said the motel has an alarm system set up with the police department.

"She didn't have time to use it," she said. "But she called (the police) as soon as she could. They got here quick, but not quick enough, I guess."

26-year-old man subject of search in Christoval

CHRISTOVAL — Tom Green County sheriff's deputies were searching this morning for a 26-year-old Big Spring man believed drowned in the South Concho River here.

Sheriff Ernest Haynes identified the missing man as Terry Glenn McIntire, 26, of Big Spring.

"We received the report from several campers of a possible drowning about 10:15 p.m. last night," Haynes said. A four-hour search of the river late Tuesday and early today was unsuccessful, but he said the search was continuing.

"He was last seen in the river about 8:45 p.m. Tuesday," Haynes said. McIntire and his wife, Patricia, are among several families who have been camping out on the riverbank for several days.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Hays' salary

Q. Why does Howard College Junior College District President Charles Hays make so much money?

A. Dr. Hays said the junior college district trustees arrive at his salary by using the salaries of junior college presidents as a guideline. Incidentally, Hays does not receive a housing allowance, tax sheltered annuities and other fringe benefits as is common with other districts.

County jury finds man guilty of theft

Criminal and civil trials continue in the Howard County courthouse as one person is found guilty of theft.

A four-man, two-woman jury found Lennie D. Smith, 23, guilty of theft yesterday in Howard County court and gave him probation and a $150 fine this morning in the punishment phase of the trial.

Smith of 700 Willia was charged with stealing beer from a 7-11 store June 3, 1983.

The jury deliberated over three hours yesterday before finding Smith guilty of theft over $5 and under $20. The Class B misdemeanor is punishable by imprisonment in county jail up to 180 days and a maximum fine of $1,000.

After less than 30 minutes deliberation this morning, the jury set punishment for Smith at 180 days probation and a $150 fine.

Testimony in the theft trial began at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday with the guilty verdict coming at 6:40 p.m. County Judge Milton Kirby was presiding.

Smith will also be expected to pay restitution, according to a spokesman in the county attorney's office.

Bob Miller prosecuted the case while Elliott Mitchell defended Smith.

Testimony began this morning in a second trial in county court as Travis Edwin Brackeen, 20, is expected to be tried for suspicion of driving while intoxicated. Mitchell will represent Brackeen while Miller will again prosecute. A three-man, three-woman jury will hear the case.

A third trial is set for Thursday morning at 10 a.m. as an alleged accomplice of Smith is expected to be tried for suspicion of theft. Jeffrey Paul Carter is charged with stealing beer from a 7-11 store on June 3, 1983. A four-woman, two-man jury has been selected. Carter is expected to represent himself.

Testimony also began in 118th District Court in the divorce trial of Stacy and Shell Williams. Both parents are seeking the custody of the couple's three children. A six-man, six-woman jury will hear the case with District Judge Jim Gregg presiding.

Lamesa considers police volunteers

LAMESA (SC) — An armed police reserve force could be started in Lamesa as early as November.

The Lamesa City Council Monday night adopted on first reading a measure establishing the reserve force of about 20 volunteer members of the community. The group would be under the direction of Police Chief Gerry Brown.

Brown said there would be a screening process of all applicants and a required 70 hours of police training.

A reserve officer would carry a gun while on duty, would be in full uniform but would always ride with a fulltime officer, Brown said.

The council agreed with Brown that this would be a good public relations project and a help to the police force during summer months and events where extra police help is needed.

In another matter, the council held a public hearing on the filing of an application to the Texas Department of Community Affairs for participation in the 1983 Texas Community Development Jobs Bill Program.

A representative of the department told councilmen that of five projects that would create up to 68 new jobs in Lamesa, as well as helping a target area of east Lamesa that requires redevelopment.

Those projects include water and sewage line repair, street paving, demolition and clearance, housing rehabilitation and housing modernization.

The council passed a resolution authorizing the application.

Police Beat

Stereo equipment stolen

A music-loving thief got away with $2,592 worth of stereo equipment early this morning.

Bobby Joe Cheatham of 1501-A Lexington told police someone forced open the front door of his home and took his turntable, amplifier, speakers, stereo cleaning supplies and several hundred dollars worth of cassette tapes and record albums.

The theft occurred between 10:30 p.m. yesterday and 12:20 a.m. today, police said.

Police reports also showed the following:

- Management of the Apache Bend Apartments at 720 Airbase Road said a person renting an apartment through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development was responsible for $600 damage caused by paint sprayed on a wall and two doors.

- The damage occurred sometime after Feb. 1, reports said.

- Ruby Williams of 1603 Donely told police $80 in currency was taken from her purse while it was left in a car parked at Western Container Corp. at the Big Spring Airpark between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Friday.

- Shots from a BB gun did $150 damage to the residence of Jim Fortune of 2603 Albrook between 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday.

Alicia

16 1/2-Mile Bridge and the San Luis Pass bridge was blocked, and other roads were beginning to flood.

Alicia, which grew quickly from a tropical storm Tuesday, had maximum sustained winds of 85 mph and was expected to reach land sometime today. Hurricane warnings were posted along a 500-mile stretch of coastline from Corpus Christi, Texas to Morgan City, La.

"We'll see an increase in winds and rain and tides will increase," Harned said. "Low-lying areas could be subject to tidal flooding of 4 to 6 feet. Winds are 80 mph with possible gusts to 95. That would keep the hurricane a minimal hurricane but hurricanes are so difficult to predict."

The hurricane was ranked as a 2 on a scale of 5 with 5 the worst, said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

"It looks like the central part of the storm ought to cross the upper Texas coast or at least the central Texas coast sometime later this afternoon or this evening," Frank said this morning in an interview on NBC's "Today" show.

Officials determined there was a 51 percent likelihood that the storm would hit Galveston. That means "if we forecast the storm to move over Galveston, one out of two times we'll be right," Frank said.

"If you ignore the warnings when the odds are one out of two," he said, "do you know what you're risking? You're risking your life. And I don't believe there are many people who would like to play those kind of odds."

Civil Defense authorities in Galveston County and the city of Galveston, about 50 miles south of Houston, recommended people living in low-lying areas leave by daybreak today, when high tides were likely to cover roads. Tides already were rising Tuesday evening.

Despite warnings, youths on surfboards braved high waves and motorists parked along the Galveston seawall.

Galveston Island is accessible to the mainland by two bridges and a ferry. The main six-lane bridge, which carries Interstate 45 over West Galveston Bay and north to Houston, would be impassable in tides over 6 feet, Harned said.

Oil companies began evacuating 1,100 workers from offshore drilling rigs and production platforms Tuesday as Alicia neared.

Galveston markets were packed with people stocking up on canned foods and dry goods. Others bought different "essentials."

Disaster

Loeffler traveled the drought-stricken area last week and said he saw grass-bare pastures and dying mesquite trees.

As a result of the declaration, Loeffler said, those within the 20 counties who have been forced to liquidate their herds of cattle, sheep and goats will qualify for a tax break.

Several other West Texas counties, including Schleicher and Crockett, have applied for disaster relief due to the drought, but paperwork has not been completed, he said.

Sheriff's Log

Suspect pleads guilty to Stuckey's burglary

One of the men arrested in connection with the burglary of Stuckey's the night of the July 29 fire has pleaded guilty to burglary in 118th District Court.

Don Ray Shields, 36, no address given, was sentenced to 10 years in prison and given credit for 18 days in jail.

Shields remains in county jail pending transfer to state prison.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said Shields was also a suspect for arson in connection with the Stuckey's fire. However, a polygraph test had been inconclusive, he said.

A second man, Michael Gaglione III, 30, of Hobbs, N.M., arrested for suspicion of burglary and also suspected of arson, is still in custody in Midland, Standard said. He is expected to take a lie detector test also, he said.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a reported rape earlier this morning at a house in the northwest part of the county.

Standard said the young woman has identified her attacker and was giving a statement to deputies this morning, Standard said.

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested three persons at 2:40 a.m. today for suspicion of criminal mischief at the Big Spring Country Club.

Patricia Sue Pearson, 23, of 4110 Dixon, Jeffrey E. Hart, 19, of 200 Goliad and Robert K. Newell, 18, of 4217 Muir was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin and released after posting $1,000 bond each.

Standard said the country club has had an ongoing problem the last three weeks with criminal mischief. Eight arrests had been made previously at the club, the sheriff said.

In addition to Shields, four other persons pleaded guilty in 118th District Court and were sentenced by District Judge Jim Gregg.

Alvin Dever, 53, of Elida, N.M. received a three-year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections for involuntary manslaughter. He was given credit for 40 days in jail, records show. Dever remains in county jail pending transfer to prison.

- Billy Don Bedwell, 18, of Sterling City Route pleaded guilty to theft over $200 and under $10,000. He received a three-year probated sentence and was released.

- Kim McClure, 25, of Lamesa pleaded guilty to forgery by passing and was assessed a six-year probated sentence. Ms. McClure was transferred to the Dawson County sheriff's office custody today, records show.

- Robert Gene Tone, 19, of Air Base Road received a three-year probated sentence after pleading guilty to theft by appropriation.

- Raymond Chavarria, 27, of 307 San Jacinto is in county jail after his arrest by sheriff's deputies for suspicion of burglary.

- Jose Manuel Chavarria, 29, of 407 Owens remains in county jail after he pleaded guilty in Howard County court before Judge Milton Kirby to driving while intoxicated and driving while license suspended. Chavarria was sentenced to three days in jail and fined $300 each on the two charges.

Records show Chavarria was given credit for two days in jail.

- Marshall B. Lister, 19, of 2911 W. Highway 80 was sentenced to three days in jail after he pleaded guilty in county court to DWI. Also fined $100, Lister was given credit for one day in jail. Sheriff's office records show Lister will serve two days in jail Aug. 20 and 21.

- Lawrence E. McElwee, 29, of Air Base Road posted $1,500 bond to be released after he was transferred from police custody today in connection with suspicion of DWI. Bond was set by Municipal Judge Melvin Darat.

- John Marsh, 21, of 510 State was arrested by sheriff's deputies in connection with a peace bond. Marsh posted $1,000 bond to be released after arraignment before Heflin.

- Debra A. Sisco, 19, of 811 Ayfford posted bonds totaling $3,000 to be released after she was transferred from police custody yesterday. Ms. Sisco is charged with DWI and escape, records show.

Deaths

Longtime policeman Claude Morris dead

Claude I. Morris Jr., 58, died at 2:59 a.m. Tuesday at his home after a 13-month illness. Services will be at 4 p.m. Thursday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Logan Peterson, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

He was born Feb. 24, 1925 in Montague County, Texas. He grew up in Gainesville and graduated from Sautillo High School in Sautillo, Texas. He moved to Big Spring in 1948. He married LaVerne Gross Dec. 16, 1949 in Big Spring. He joined the Big Spring Police Department in 1966, retiring on Dec. 31, 1982 due to ill health. At the time of his retirement he was captain and was over the patrol division. He received the Police Officer of the Year award in 1978 and is the only administrative officer ever to have received the award. He was a charter member of Emmanuel Baptist Church. At the time of the death, he was trustee and organist. He had also taught Sunday school and had been assistant Sunday school director. He was a member of the Big Spring Police Association.

Survivors include his wife; one daughter, Martha Myers of Odessa; one grandson, Jeremy Ray Myers of Odessa; a son-in-law, Bruce Myers of Pallbearers will be Earl Peterson, Fred Pace, George Quintero, Ted Phillips, Curtis Reynolds, Jim Burt, Ross Hill and Ross Callahan.

All member of the Big Spring Police Department are considered honorary pallbearers. The family asks that any memorials be sent to Emmanuel Baptist Church or the American Cancer Society.

Services set for former State National officer

Edith Hatchett, 81, died Tuesday morning in Lubbock. Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

She was born Jan. 17, 1902 in Erath County. She was a lifetime resident of Big Spring. She had worked at State National Bank from 1923 until retiring in 1974. At the time of her retirement she was first vice president of the bank. She was the first woman to be vice president of a bank in Texas who was not an owner of the bank. She moved to Lubbock earlier this year. She was a lifetime member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include 10 nephews and six nieces. Pallbearers will be Clyde Angel, Delbert Donelson, John Eric, Bud Hughes, John Curry, Connie Edwards, and Myrie Stewart.

All officers and directors of State National Bank are considered honorary pallbearers.

Texas housewife faces jurors

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Texas housewife convicted in the 1978 slayings of five people has been depicted by character witnesses as a church-going, compassionate woman who tried to convert fellow prison inmates to Christianity.

Linda May Burnett, 35, cried softly Tuesday when her daughter took the stand in an effort to persuade jurors not to send Mrs. Burnett back to death row.

The 26-year-old housewife has been convicted of capital murder for the death of one of five people abducted, shot at close range and buried in a mass grave. Jurors must decide whether to sentence Mrs. Burnett to death by injection or life imprisonment. She spent almost four years on death row before her first conviction was overturned.

Final arguments in the trial's punishment phase were set for this morning, with the jury then to begin deliberations. The bulk of the defense's testimony in the punishment phase came from Austin psychiatrist Richard Coons, who attacked a prediction made by a prosecution psychiatrist Monday that Mrs. Burnett almost certainly would commit future violent crimes.

Dr. Clay Griffith of Dallas estimated there was a "99 percent probability" Mrs. Burnett would commit future violent acts, which Coons said "just won't hold water."

He said he based his conclusion on Mrs. Burnett's lack of a previous criminal record, "non-aggressive" personality and the absence of a pattern of childhood problems. Both doctors acknowledged they had not personally examined Mrs. Burnett, but instead relied on a hypothetical personality profile.

Mrs. Burnett's 17-year-old daughter, Debra Kay Miller Landry, broke into ragged sobs after telling jurors, "My mother always took care of me."

"She taught me how to color, she taught me my ABCs and she taught me to be kind to people, no matter what they say or what they did," said Ms. Landry, who has been adopted by Mrs. Burnett's sister.

Mrs. Burnett once shot her second husband, Hubert Miller, in the neck, but only because "he had a butcher knife and was threatening me with it," Ms. Landry said.

How sweet he is

MIAMI (AP) — "The Great One," actor-comedian Jackie Gleason, will be sending one of his "great ones," a size 51 bus driver's uniform, to a fan club in New York.

The outfit is one he wore as Ralph Kramden on the 1950s TV show, "The Honeymooners."

JACKIE GLEASON

The fan club, called RALPH, had bid $650 for such a uniform at an auction. Club co-president Peter Crescenti says the owner of the costume refused to part with it, claiming the club hadn't paid the $650 fast enough and that the uniform is worth much more, at least $5,000.

Crescenti says "I can see why they call him the Great One. He really came through." Gleason said he appreciates the support of the Long Island-based club with 200 members.

"I am sending you this absolutely genuine article," the 67-year-old Gleason wrote to the club. "I wish you all the best and thank you for your support. 'How sweet it is!'"

Tillis finds dream model

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The lyrics to country music singer Mel Tillis' newly released single say "She's a cowboy's dream, a vision in jeans." And Tillis figures he's found that dreamy vision in 20-year-old Playboy magazine playmate Kimberly McArthur.

Ms. McArthur posed recently with the 51-year-old Tillis for a promotional poster that MCA records put together to go with the song. And on Monday, Ms. McArthur, the former Miss January 1982, and Tillis wrapped up shooting a music video at a Nashville nightclub to go along with the disc.

Tillis has one concern, though. When the poster for "A Cowboy's Dream" was released, he reports, he ran into a nightmare at home. "My wife got mad at me, my mother-in-law got mad at me, my wife's aunt wasn't none too happy with me, and my dogs are looking at me bad and won't come when I call 'em no more," he recalls with a grin. And he wonders what the impact of the video production will be.

Ms. McArthur is taking voice lessons, and wants to be a country music singer someday.

Divorce case canceled

MIAMI (AP) — It seems to be love all, again, for tennis star Jimmy Connors and wife Patti who have reconciled and are going on tour, accompanied by their 3-year-old son Brett.

The reconciliation was reported by Mrs. Connors' attorney, Daniel Neil Heller, who asked that a hearing in their divorce case set for Tuesday be canceled.

Mrs. Connors had filed for divorce in May.

"I am very optimistic and very hopeful and have every reason to think there will be a permanent reconciliation," said Heller.

The lawyer said he spoke to Mrs. Connors, a former Playboy magazine centerfold model, when she was in Cincinnati on Monday, and that she and Brett are traveling with the 30-year-old Connors to tennis tournaments.

"She said they are on their way to the U.S. Open," said the lawyer. "And then they are coming back to Miami."

France angered by protection of Barbie

PARIS (AP) — France today deplored the way U.S. intelligence officials protected "Butcher of Lyon" Klaus Barbie and spirited him to safety in Bolivia, but said at least he now faces trial for his Nazi war crimes.

Government spokesman Max Gallo's remarks were the first official French reaction to a U.S. Justice Department report issued Tuesday that said the U.S. Army Counter-Intelligence Corps shielded Barbie from French officials who wanted him tried 34 years ago.

"Although frank, the U.S. Justice Department's report on the Klaus Barbie affair leads one to deplore the practices which were outlined in it and which were followed by certain agencies, without the knowledge of their government, that allowed the Nazi criminal to avoid justice for a long time," Gallo said.

"But the thing that is important today is that Klaus Barbie has been arrested and that he will answer for his acts before French justice in the same place of his crimes," he said.

In sending a copy of the 218-page report to the French government, the State Department expressed "our deep regrets over the actions taken to conceal Barbie."

Barbie, 69, is known as the "Butcher of Lyon" because of his role as chief of the Gestapo in that French city from 1942 to 1944. Now held in a Lyon prison cell, he awaits trial on charges of torturing and killing hundreds of Jews, and shipping thousands of others to death camps.

He was brought to France for trial upon his expulsion last Feb. 5 from Bolivia, where he had lived under an assumed name since 1951.

Legal officials have said it would take at least a year to prepare the case against Barbie. He was rushed to a hospital in March for an emergency hernia operation but since then, French officials have said Barbie should be fit to stand trial.

However, his French lawyer, Jacques Verges, has expressed fears that Barbie might be murdered in jail "for fear he would reveal the collaboration of French officials with the Nazis during World War II."

Verges has sought Barbie's release on grounds he was brought to France illegally because no extradition treaty exists between France and Bolivia. But a Lyon judge rejected that petition in June, saying Barbie technically was expelled and not extradited from his South American refuge and that his safety could not be guaranteed if he were released.

The attorney contends Barbie was "kidnapped" by the French government, which he claims paid the Bolivian government more than $125,000 for Barbie's expulsion.

Postwar military courts in France twice sentenced Barbie to death in absentia for his role as Lyon's top Gestapo chief from 1942 to 1944. The statute of limitations on those sentences, however, has expired and France has since abolished capital punishment.

If Barbie is found guilty of crimes against humanity, which is virtually a foregone conclusion in light of his two previous convictions, he faces life in prison in the French city he once terrorized.

France first appealed to the United States for information about Barbie in 1949, two years after he went to work as an intelligence agent for the United States to provide information on communist activities in Europe.

The Justice Department's report said "officers of the (U.S. Army) Counter Intelligence Corps engaged in obstruction of justice by concealing Barbie" in 1949 from the U.S. High Commission for Germany, the U.S. civilian authority in the American occupation zone.

The report said U.S. agents helped Barbie flee to Bolivia in 1951 through an escape organization known as the "rat line," run by a Croatian Roman Catholic priest, Father Krunoslav Dragonovic, attached to a seminary in Rome.

The report, written by Allan A. Ryan Jr., a special assistant to Attorney General William French Smith, said "responsible officials" of the Army Counter Intelligence Corps "interfered with the lawful and proper administration of justice."

Both sides in AT&T strike talking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both sides in a nationwide strike against American Telephone and Telegraph Co. are showing optimism following the first formal bargaining sessions since the walkout began 11 days ago.

The parties met for two sessions Tuesday — their first gathering around a bargaining table since the strike began Aug. 6. Another bargaining session was scheduled today.

"We view it as a happy prospect that the parties are willing to get together," said Duayne Trecker, spokesman for the Communications Workers of America which represents 525,000 of the 675,000 strikers.

"The fact that they're meeting is progress," said Charles Dynes, spokesman for AT&T. But Trecker said none of the issues that led to the strike has been settled. "There has been movement ... I assume that means there have been some modifications" in proposals, he said.

A CWA negotiator, Paul Gray, told reporters following an evening session that "collective bargaining is a matter of you have to reach agreement on everything before you can reach agreement on anything." Aside from that, none of the negotiators would respond to questions or make any comments.

AT&T negotiators met with teams from three unions involved in the strike, with the CWA considered the bellwether since it represents the great bulk of the strikers. Also involved are the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, representing 100,000 strikers, and the Telecommunications International Union, representing 50,000.

"I think we can keep the system working for quite a while," Dynes said when asked if supervisory personnel who have been filling in for the strikers are wearying of their 12-hour days. And he said service is improving as the fill-ins acquire experience at their unaccustomed jobs and are better deployed.

Asked if the court-ordered divestiture of the giant company may be held up by the strike, Dynes said "we're going to make it one way or another" by the Jan. 1 date.

"I'm not sure the system's working as well as it's been characterized," Trecker countered. He said he had talked to many people who said they were having trouble with their telephone service.

With 97 percent of telephone traffic handled by computer, the main reports of service curtailment have been delays in getting operator assistance and installation and repair of equipment.

Major issues in the strike are employment security, wages and working conditions. The two sides are attempting to negotiate a three-year pact — the largest labor agreement under negotiation this year.

Top-scale wages for CWA workers range from $345 to $389 a week for operators and $497 to $565 for technicians.

The CWA is seeking at least double the company's last wage offer, which was a 3.5 percent salary increase in the first year of the contract for senior workers.

Attendant recounts disabled flight

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — A flight attendant said she shouted emergency instructions to passengers in the smoke-filled cabin of a burning Air Canada jet in which 23 people died, but told federal authorities she could only pray that everyone heard.

The DC-9 caught fire while carrying 41 passengers and five crew members from Dallas to Toronto on June 2, and the pilot made an emergency landing at Greater Cincinnati International Airport.

The crew testified Tuesday in hearings on the fire by the National Transportation Safety Board, which continue today. Investigators were to make recommendations to prevent such tragedies in the future.

Judith Davidson, a 10-year flight attendant for Air Canada, said heavy smoke made it impossible to give individual instructions to all passengers.

"I don't know, given the condition we were in, if 100 percent of the people knew," she said. "We just had to pray. We did our best."

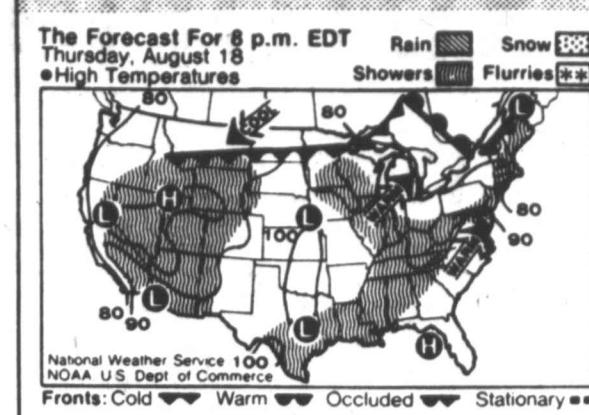

The three flight attendants — Sergio Benetti, Laura Kayama and Ms. Davidson — told investigators they gave individual instructions to only a few passengers as the plane descended, but shouted other commands.

Ms. Davidson said she shouted: "Heads in your laps. Brace for landing." Ms. Kayama, seated several rows away, said she heard the instructions.

The fire apparently started in or near a rear lavatory, said first officer Claude Oumet, who said he assumed the fire was electrical because of the "gray, very nauseating" smoke that poured into the cabin area.

After that, three circuit breakers which controlled toilet flushing in the lavatory popped.

Alicia acts up

By The Associated Press
High tides and rains from feisty Hurricane Alicia, packing sustained winds of 80 mph, began pounding Galveston and the Gulf coast today, with forecasters predicting the storm would make landfall in the area this afternoon.

Thousands of people evacuated low-lying sections of Galveston Island Tuesday and early today, as storm tides were expected to surge 6 feet above normal — possibly preventing access to the mainland, officials said.

The hurricane, the first such Atlantic storm this season, was centered 110 miles south-southeast of Galveston, packing maximum winds of 80 mph, with gusts to 95 mph.

But the National Weather Service said Alicia continued to strengthen as it approached the middle and upper Texas coastline. Hurricane warnings were posted for that area from Corpus Christi to Morgan City, La.

Rainfall was reported in Galveston in the predawn hours, and rain squalls were nearing the coast from the coastal city into the Gulf south of Sabine Pass at about 5 mph. Tides increased to 3 feet above normal along the upper coast by 5 a.m.

Elsewhere in the state, clear skies and seasonal temperatures prevailed. Winds were generally southerly from 5 to 10 mph, except light and variable in East Texas and increasing from the east-northeast and gusting to 30 mph at Galveston.

Temperatures ranged from 82 degrees at Dallas to 61 at Marfa.

Alicia should make landfall on the coast between Galveston and Victoria this afternoon, with greatest effect of tides, rain and winds north of the eye. Rains should be very heavy north of the eye, with storm tides to 6 feet expected.

Southeast Texas should receive increased cloudiness as the remnants of Alicia move ashore, with some very heavy showers and thunderstorms. Isolated thundershowers were expected over North and East Texas due to daytime heating.

In other parts of the nation, tropical storm Ismael unleashed torrents of rain on Southern California while record highs were recorded on the Great Plains.

Ismael triggered flash flooding in the California deserts, inundating homes and washing out dirt roads. The worst flooding was reported in the Yucca Valley where a fire department spokesman, Lenore Figueroa, said, "Virtually every road is washed out."

"We're losing homes and roads," said Steve Dale, a spokesman for the San Bernardino County Fire Department. "It's real bad."

A reading of 110 in Grand Island, Neb., broke the record of 106 set for the date in 1937. Readings of 108 were recorded in Hastings and Fremont, Neb., with a 107 reported in the state capital, Lincoln.

West Texas — Partly cloudy with no important temperature changes. Scattered thundershowers southeast Friday and most sections Saturday and Sunday. Low 60s mountains and north to mid 70s south. Highs 90s most areas except near 102 Big Bend.

So near, yet so far

If economics is the dismal science, then astronomy is the most tantalizing. Astronomers tell us about the most interesting places, but you can't get there from here.

An astronomical satellite has discovered that the star Vega is surrounded by a cloud of material which indicates that a new solar system may be forming. Some objects in orbit around the star may be the size of the planets orbiting our own star, the sun.

Fine, but Vega is 26 light-years away, which means that even if human beings could figure out how to travel at the speed of light, a trip to investigate this potential new solar system would take 26 years — one way.

Astronomers have pointed out that in the vastness of the universe it would not be at all unusual for conditions to exist that would foster the development of some kind of life. In the same breath they tell us that these intriguing worlds would be millions of light-years away.

The spacecraft Pioneer 10 launched more than a decade ago is hurtling through space away from our solar system bearing pictures of human beings and a message of peace for anyone who might happen to see it. If there is a reply, no one alive today is likely to be around to receive it.

In the Greek legend, Tantalus could see the grapes that would satisfy his hunger but could never reach them. Looking at the stars, we know how he felt.

Around the Rim

By MIKE DOWNEY

Lost art

Postage stamps are a popular place to memorialize a famous monument, a long-dead statesman or a once-popular ideal. Ironically, the next subject of a stamp could be the letter itself.

No one writes letters anymore. I remember being in college in the mid-1970's where the sole excitement of the day was checking your mail for letters from home, girls or friends. Those days are gone forever.

Getting mail is still a certain highlight — although for me, and probably for most, it has deteriorated into a lowlight.

Bulk mailings of catalog cheapsters, charity beggars, sweepstakes hustlers and bill panderers have replaced the scrawled notes and friendly manuscripts of the past.

The task of taking pen in hand (actually the fingers) and writing to another individual has gone the way of the Pony Express and the dodo bird.

Why spend 15 or 20 minutes compiling your thoughts and waiting days or weeks for a reply when you can "Reach out and touch somebody" via the phone?

Even those who do write something of a personal or even professional nature depend on the typewriter, the word processor, the secretary to shape jumbled ideas and thoughts into coherence.

Writing is difficult; writing requires time; writing is dying.

With letter writing sliding into oblivion, that skill will cease to be a tool of the masses and will be enjoyed by only the artists and the stolid practitioners.

In other words, the only people who will be able to write will be those who are paid to do so and those who are creatively driven to do so. No one else will be able to construct a simple sentence.

The dearth of letters and the death of writing is only a symptom of our present disposable society. Why preserve your thoughts at a certain period in time by writing? Telephone — immediacy is more important than substance.

What will replace personal letters? Someone else's thoughts, somebody else's ideas, another layer between man and man. In any given week, your mail is littered with demands to buy, to contribute, to join, to enter, to support, to pay.

Only rarely is the mail truly human, a reflection of human communication rather than computerized bulk-mail spew.

So the letter is fading away. For many technological-minded individuals, it has already lost its validity and function. The world will be joined by video phones that will replace even the need for travel and personal contact, they say.

The letter is only a piece of writing, a small scrap of personality immortalized in a moment of communication. But when letters go, so will writing.

All that will remain of you the individual will be one-dimensional photographs, perhaps a video or two. The remainder of your history will be what someone else writes about you in the obituary column.

A short-lived shifting of power

WASHINGTON — A chunk of power has recently passed from the State Department to the National Security Council. But whether the shift in influence can long endure remains doubtful.

For the national security adviser, William Clark, combines with singular political weight a weak grasp of international affairs. While ambitious and bright, his newly reorganized staff is fragmented and lacking in stature.

The Clark takeover came in three parts. Central America, first. Judge Clark organized with Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger the military escalation in the area. He himself went up to the Hill to defend it to the Congress — a rare event for the national security adviser. Though Secretary of State George Shultz accompanied Clark, State has clearly been tagging along, not setting the pace. Thus Clark proposed — and Shultz accepted — the nomination of Henry Kissinger to head a presidential commission on Central America.

ARMS CONTROL is the second area. Clark has established a formal, high-level group on arms control with himself in the chair. The new body replaces an informal discussion panel chaired by Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Dam.

Then there is the Middle East. Clark's deputy Robert McFarlane has been named to replace Philip Habib as the president's special representative in the area. McFarlane was, in effect, ordered to take the post after State proved unable to come up with a replacement for Habib in timely fashion.

Behind each of these developments lies a relationship that makes Judge Clark a uniquely powerful national security adviser. Unlike all his predecessors — unlike especially Bundy, Rostow, Kissinger and Brzezinski — Clark belongs to the president's political family. He worked for Ronald Reagan in his 1966 campaign for governor of California, and served him thereafter as chief of staff in Sacramento.

The California connection points up another quality that distinguishes Clark from his predecessors at the NSC. Far from being driven by a tradition like Bundy, or by a view of the world like Kissinger, Clark counts as his guiding principle the political fortunes of the president. As much as anybody in town, he wants Ronald Reagan to be Ronald Reagan. For example, when Reagan suggested a meeting with Leonid Brezhnev at a United Nations arms control conference in New York last year, most observers, noting the state of Brezhnev's health, saw only a plot. But because Reagan advanced the idea on his own, without benefit of a staff suggestion, Clark regarded it as a sign he was clicking in the NSC job.

OFFSETTING the presidential tie is a striking lack of knowledge about international matters. It is not just that Clark doesn't know the names of the foreign ministers of all the Third World countries. Like a jurist concentrating only on the trial record, Clark works to exclude material not obviously connected with his client. "He is immune to information," another White House staff member once put it. "If he was in the middle of the San Francisco earthquake, he wouldn't know whether he was for or against earthquakes, until he checked out the implications for Ronald Reagan."

A strong staff is obviously important for Clark. While McFarlane served as deputy Clark had at his elbow a tireless former military officer who had worked in the NSC, the State Department, the Pentagon, and for a key Senate committee. McFarlane was particularly adept at dealing with the Scowcroft commission, a bipartisan presidential panel that has more and more come to shape arms control policy.

The tasks once performed by McFarlane are now going to be shared among the whole NSC staff. The staff, numbering some 45 persons, has just been reorganized into regional and functional groups that serve to connect Judge Clark with the Congress, the press, the Pentagon, the Central Intelligence Agency and the major regional bureaus of the State Department. Each group is headed by a special assistant to the president.

An undoubted benefit of the reorganization is that the right-wing ideologues, who came to the NSC with Reagan and who have been indiscriminate leakers, are now made responsible to an immediate boss — the special assistant in charge of each area. But the special assistants tend to be highly specialized in focus.

Thus Jack Matlock, the outgoing ambassador to Czechoslovakia, who is responsible for European affairs in the NSC, is an expert on bilateral relations with Russia. But he doesn't know much about arms control. Ronald Lehman, another special assistant, knows a lot about arms control. But he lacks the stature to deal easily with senior legislators, or members of the Scowcroft commission.

A DRIFT OF authority back to the State Department, in these circumstances, seems inevitable. George Shultz can accelerate matters by taking firmly in hand Big Two relationships during his forthcoming meeting with Andrei Gromyko, and by striking alliances with the presidential commissions now working on arms control and Central America. The question is whether he feels the moment is ripe.

Billy Graham

There really is life after death

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you believe there is really any proof that there is life after death? If so, do you think it is possible for a person to know what life after death is like? — H.W.

DEAR H.W.: Yes, there is life after death, and in fact the experience of death is but a gateway to an eternity of conscious life after death.

I want you to think a moment about how much we might come to know beyond doubt that there is life after death. I believe you will agree with me that the only ultimate proof would be if someone were to die and then come back to life again and tell us if there was a life beyond the grave. To make the test valid, the person would have to really die — not just be on the border of death for a few minutes — and then have his restoration to life witnessed by a large number of people.

Has this ever happened? Yes! It has happened only once, when Jesus Christ died, was placed in the tomb for several days, and then came back to earth. The Bible tells us that over 500 people were witnesses to his resurrection (1 Corinthians 15:6). The resurrection of Jesus Christ is one of the best-attested facts of history, and demonstrates that there is life beyond the grave.

But the resurrection of Christ is important for several other reasons also, and they are all important for your question. For example, the resurrection shows that Jesus Christ was in fact who he claimed to be — the eternal Son of God, come down from Heaven to die as a sacrifice for our sins. The resurrection of Jesus also shows that he has conquered sin and death, and that we need not fear the grave if we belong to him.

I said that there is life after death, but there is one other thing I must stress. The Bible teaches that for some people life beyond the grave will be joyous, because they will be in Heaven with God. For others, however, life beyond the grave will be "darkness," where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth" (Matthew 25:30).

alarm system. Auditors found that the fire alarms weren't working in several barracks and the non-commissioned officers' club.

— At the Naval Training Center in Orlando, Fla., the Navy spent more than $2,700 to re-carpet the living room, dining room and hall of the commanding officer's quarters. For $200 less, an emergency exit could have been installed in the base telephone room. On the same base, meanwhile, the Navy spent $303 to repaint a boathouse and dock that were torn down a few months later.

— At the Naval Construction Battalion Center in Port Hueneme, Calif., the Navy refused to spend $314,200 to repair unusable railroad tracks that the auditors described as vital to the base's mission. Yet it cheerfully laid out $290,000 to repair the officers' club and $35,000 to resurface the tennis courts.

— Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, D.C., spent $72,000 to improve some softball fields and $3,200 to install some doors in the bowling alley. For little more than the same amount, the Air Force could have installed smoke and heat detectors in 22 buildings that were in violation of safety regulations.

— The Army spent more than $128,000 to repair basketball and volleyball courts at the Army Test and Evaluation Command in Aberdeen, Md. But it couldn't find $40,000 to overhaul a chiller unit in a ballistics laboratory that housed more than $4 million in computers and laser equipment. The chiller unit was leaking oil and making noise; engineers told the auditors that a breakdown could put the computers and lasers out of business for as many as six months.

Last month, Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer called upon the services to get their act together. "We must take immediate steps to fund the most critical and highest priority work, and get the most value we can from the resources available," he wrote in an internal memo.

Among the steps to be taken, Thayer ordered, is "holding accountable any individual responsible" for questionable expenditures.

Dear Mr. Deputy Defense Secretary: You might begin with the examples cited above. Please let me know who was held accounttable and what disciplinary action was taken so that I may report it to the American people.

UPDATE: Back in October 1981, I reported "a scandal of extraordinary proportions" involving top Egyptian political figures and former CIA and Pentagon officials. My columns led to a federal grand jury investigation, which is not focusing on two retired Pentagon people, arms sales chief Eric Von Marboed and Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, and a high former CIA official, Thomas Clines. All three have denied any wrongdoing. But a few days ago, an Egyptian businessman, Hussein Salem, pleaded guilty to filing $8 million in false shipping bills with the Defense Department. He's now cooperating with investigators.

Last May, I wrote two columns describing an "orgy of spending" by the U.S. Synfuels Corp., using the taxpayers' billions. This was followed in July by a Senate hearing, which generally confirmed the charges. Last week, the story hit the front pages when three of the seven Synfuels directors called for the dismissal of their president, Victor A. Schroeder.

Open for Business

By JOHNNIE LOU AVERY

Clint Holleman, owner and pharmacist of the Medicine Shoppe at 1001 Gregg has been elected a member of the Medicine Shoppe's "Chairman's Club" of the St. Louis based international company of pharmacy franchise chain. The "Chairman's Club" award is presented to Medicine Shoppe owners who rank in the top 20% of the franchise organization in both sales and community service programs such as free health care tests. Previously Holleman was chosen for the "Director's Club" award and the International Franchise Association's "Distinguished Achievement" award for outstanding business achievements and his contributions to the area's health care system.

Jack Watkins will supply watermelons from his farm for the Democratic Club watermelon feast that will be open to the public, free of charge, at the Shadow Retreat Pavilion in Comanche Trail Park. It will be held at 8:00 p.m., Thursday, August 18. John Montford, State Senator, and Larry Don Shaw, State Representative, will be the special guests. Mac

Around the County

A look at the beginning

Seventy-five years have now elapsed since the Jack County Boy's Corn Club came into existence and thus founded 4-H in Texas. We have come along way from that early beginning of 25 boys to today's program which reaches more than 187,000 boys and girls in every county in Texas. Four-H has a proud heritage and a bright future. As we look ahead, let us not forget the events and people in our past which have made our organization strong. Listed below are some of the more significant events from our history.

1908- Tom Marks, an agent for the United States Department of Agriculture tries to organize an adult corn show and to teach local farmers near Jacksboro improved ways of growing corn. No one is interested. Says Marks, "If I can't teach the old dogs, I'll start with the pups." Thus, Marks organized the Jack County Boy's Corn Club and, beginning with 25 boys, he taught them how to grow corn according to new and improved methods. The boys' corn crops flourished and outproduced those of their fathers. This was the beginning of a rural youth club movement in Texas, a movement which spawned today's 4-H program.

1916- Boy's Corn Club Rally held at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas for the first time. Corn Club members paraded down the main street of the Fair carrying a stalk of corn over their shoulders. This was the first public recognition for the group and it marked the beginning of a long and continuing relationship with the State Fair of Texas. 1910 also saw the first Farmer's Short Course held on the campus of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas (Texas A&M University). This event was the forerunner of today's Texas 4-H Roundup held each

June on the A&M campus.

1912- Mrs. Edna Trigg was appointed to conduct Home Demonstration work among youth and adults in Milam County. She organized Girl's Tomato Clubs in the area near Cameron. The girls grew 110 acre of tomatoes and then canned the tomatoes they harvested. This was the beginning of girls' 4-H work in Texas.

1914- The Smith-Lever Act was passed by the Congress of the United States and this act founded the Cooperative Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H in the nation. Cooperative Extension Service was organized as a part of the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with state and local governments with the purpose of teaching improved practices in agriculture and home economics and related subjects through an informal out-of-school procedure. This act founded the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H in Texas.

1924- The fourth "H" was added to the Boy's and Girl's Farm Club emblem and the 4-H Club was born. The emblem was later adopted and received "trademark" status, the only trademark emblem held by the government of the United States. It is entrusted to the keeping of the Secretary of Agriculture and its use is restricted to official 4-H activities.

1968- The Texas 4-H program broadens its emphasis to reach urban boys and girls and the program begins to grow as never before. During the period of the next five years, 4-H in Texas would change forever from a purely rural program to one which has something to offer every boy and girl in Texas.

1983- The Diamond Anniversary of 4-H in Texas.

HAPPY COUPLE — Composer and singer Paul Simon stands with actress Carrie Fisher outside Simon's Manhattan apartment shortly after the couple wed Tuesday. The two tied the knot after a five-year romance. More than 100 people attended the event, including Simon's partner, Art Garfunkel, rock star Billy Joel and actress Teri Garr, as well as Miss Fisher's parents, Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher.

Simon, Fisher wed in traditional rite

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie princess Carrie Fisher and singer-songwriter Paul Simon planned a "working honeymoon" following their star-studded marriage in a ceremony in Simon's Manhattan apartment.

Simon and Miss Fisher, married in a traditional Jewish ceremony Tuesday, were to fly to Houston today, where the singer and his musical partner Art Garfunkel were scheduled to perform.

Lois Smith, a publicist for Miss Fisher, described the trip as a "working honeymoon."

Among the 109 guests at the wedding were actor Robin Williams and his wife, Valerie; singer Billy Joel and model Christie Brinkley; actress Penny Marshall; television producer Lorne Michaels; movie producers and directors George Lucas and Mike Nichols; composer and singer Randy Newman, and Garfunkel.

Miss Fisher's divorced parents, actress Debbie Reynolds and singer Eddie Fisher, also attended the wedding.

Miss Fisher's brother, Todd Fisher, told reporters the couple decided two weeks ago to get married after a five-year romance, but kept it secret to avoid "being hassled."

The two were wed in a double ring ceremony performed by Rabbi David Greenberg. Miss Fisher wore a white gown and a double strand of pearls and a white wreath in her hair. Simon wore a dark suit.

Among the gifts was a juke box loaded with 1950s records, a present from Joel.

Actress Terri Garr, who flew in from Paris for the affair, said "I wouldn't have missed it for the world."

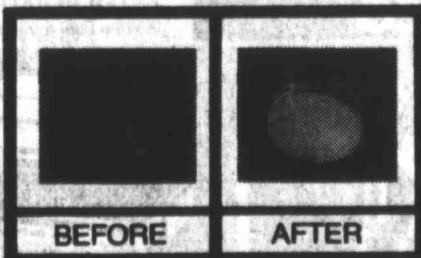

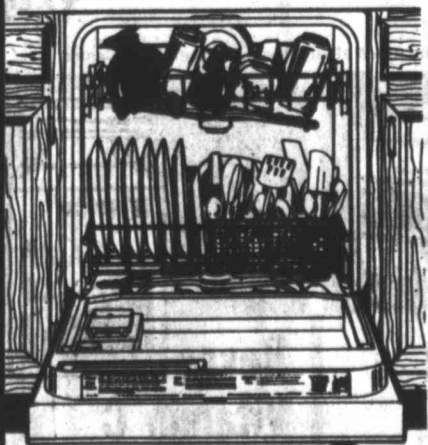

Miss Fisher starred as Princess Leia in the "Star Wars" trilogy. Simon's career began in partnership with Garfunkel some 20 years ago. After they broke up the act about a decade ago, Simon and Garfunkel had moderately successful solo careers, and each did movies, before recently reuniting for a record and a concert tour.

Housing authority ignores pleas of Anthony mayor

ANTHONY, Texas (AP) — The local housing authority has decided to stay next-door in New Mexico, ignoring Anthony, Texas, Mayor Adrian Baca's pleas for the wayfaring group to return home to Texas.

"The board belongs in Anthony, Texas, but it still is in New Mexico," Baca said after the defecting housing board declined to return from its new office in neighboring Anthony, N.M.

Monday, on the final day of Baca's 15-day ultimatum to the board to "come back to town," the housing authority remained in New Mexico. "We're staying put," board chairman August LaVora said. "And there's no need for us to ADRIAN BACA ...embroiled in battle move now." LaVora's board had butted heads for four months with' Baca over his attempts to usurp its powers by setting housing authority policy in this farming town of 5,000 about 20 miles north of El Paso, and regulate the political makeup of the board, which is non-partisan.

Baca had stacked the board with two of his staunch supporters, and has vowed to fill the last three posts next year with those who are "more in harmony with the things we stand for."

Baca, 46, is "a little dictator of the Mesilla Valley," and wants the "ultimate power in his town," LaVora said.

The board now is housed in the offices of John Keithly, who was Anthony mayor from 1979-81. There is no mayor or town office in Anthony, N.M., which is provided police protection by Dona Ana County authorities.

Baca told the housing board in a July 31 letter they had broken Texas law by moving the authority out of his jurisdiction.

In response, the board amended its bylaws Thursday to allow the authority to put its office anywhere within a five-mile radius of the Texas town. Anthony, N.M., where the new board office is located, is three blocks from the Anthony, Texas, town hall where the board used to be housed.

The board's move is not without precedence, LaVora said. The situation is similar to border communities such as Texas, which is in both Texas and Arkansas, he said.

But Baca said the board's decision to ignore his plea to return to Texas is "a blunder." He also said he had promised not to meddle in board affairs.

Baca blamed the U.S. Housing and Urban Development regional of-ice in Dallas, which oversees the board's operations, for meddling in town affairs. HUD "encouraged them to break the law, with no malice certainly, but they nonetheless ... said to them 'you can move to New Mexico,'" he said.

The squabble over the housing board also has spread into Baca's personal affairs. LaVora charges Baca owns many of the prospective rental units in Anthony that could be used for low-income families.

Baca owns 15 apartments in Anthony — the most of any individual — and said, "I could very well ask for and receive the rent supplements from HUD, but I have refused to participate in HUD. Never once have I participated in HUD." The board, however, in an Aug. 12 letter to HUD authorities in Dallas, asked them to look into allegations "certain officials" may have used their political influence in Anthony for personal gain.

Baca denied any wrongdoing, but said, "It's an ugly situation."

Amnesia victim identified by friend

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An amnesia victim who mistakenly thought he was from London was "visibly moved" when a family friend he didn't recognize identified him as a 24-year-old antique dealer from Australia.

Unidentified for two weeks since receiving head injuries in a traffic accident, Mantis Gasiunas now can be sent photographs of family members in a bid to revive his memory, said Marianne Koop, a spokeswoman for Emanuel Hospital where he is being treated.

His mother, with whom he runs an antique shop in Melbourne, planned to send the photos as well as samples of her son's fingerprints to confirm his identity, Ms. Koop said Monday.

Gasiunas, who thought he was from London and answered to the name David Miller, was "in some shock and was visibly moved" when the family friend identified him in his hospital room, Ms. Koop said.

Before Gasiunas was identified, an international search was begun and the hospital received more than 200 phone calls that provided leads but no name.

The first solid clue to Gasiunas' identity came Friday when an uncle living in New York City saw the young man's picture in a newspaper and called the hospital, she said.

Officials were contacted in quick succession Saturday by Gasiunas' brother, Aras Gasiunas of Manchester, England, the family friend from Montreal — who asked that he not be named — and a cousin from Cleveland, Ms. Koop said.

Details they provided about food preferences and habits provided led hospital officials to believe that the amnesia victim was Gasiunas, and the family friend confirmed their suspicions, she said.

Family members said Gasiunas was visiting relatives in England and left there June 9 for Australia via the United States. He had planned to hitchhike across the United States from east to west.

Aras Gasiunas, who was to arrive from England today or Wednesday, described his brother as a "free agent and independent."

Gasiunas was hitchhiking July 30 on Interstate 84 near The Dalles, a town 60 miles east of Portland, when the car in which he was riding collided with another vehicle. The driver was killed while Gasiunas and another hitchhiker were injured.

The young Australian suffered a broken neck and hip socket and head injuries, officials said. He carried no identification and remembered nothing from before the accident.

The other hitchhiker said Gasiunas introduced himself as David Miller.

Hospital officials asked the British consul in Portland, Sir James McDonald, to become involved because Gasiunas had a slight "British" accent and remembered some details about London. McDonald contacted the British Broadcasting Corp., and a radio report led to stories in other news media.

Gasiunas, listed in fair condition, got out of bed for the first time Monday to begin physical therapy, Ms. Koop said.

Gasiunas is a Lithuanian name, she said, but the amnesia victim was born in Australia and traveled on an Australian passport.

His relatives in New York and Cleveland asked not to be identified.

Man commits suicide in jail

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Texas man being held at the Metro Nashville Jail apparently committed suicide by hanging himself from an air conditioner vent, officials said.

Donald Gene Wheeler, 35, of Houston, was discovered at 5:50 a.m. CDT Tuesday and taken to Metro General Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 6:30 a.m., said John Burns, business director for the Criminal Justice Center.

Quick thinking saves woman in accident

CHICAGO (AP) — A quick-thinking woman escaped serious injury Monday by lying across the front seat of her car as a semi-tractor trailer truck rolled over it during a chain-reaction collision, police said.

"I would say she saved her own life. It's amazing," said police traffic investigator John O'Malley. "There was about a foot of (undamaged) space in her car and I can't understand how she got out of it ... She saw the semi coming and laid across the front seat."

Anne England, 66, suffered minor injuries and was reported in fair condition at Hennrotin Hospital, a spokeswoman there said.

From her hospital bed, the mother of five attributed her survival to the fact that "I'm 100 percent Irish."

"I love to drive and I've always thought defensively about what I would do in this or that situation."

BACK TO SCHOOL — Johnnie Marie Randle, left, and Cecille Crenshaw model back to school fashions for the high school and college student during "Saturday Night Live: A Night of Fashions and Talent", Saturday evening at Municipal Auditorium. The plaid look is in this fall as shown in the women's skirts. The show, held as part of a membership drive, was sponsored by National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

'Sew It With Cotton' contest is announced

The Dryland Cotton Promoters will present its second annual "Sew It With Cotton Contest" in conjunction with the Howard County Fair, Sept. 17 and 20. Entry blanks with contest rules are available from T.G. & Y. and Sew What Fabrics. Deadline for contest entries is Sept. 11. Judging will take place at Big Spring Mall, 9 a.m.

Sept. 17. Style Show and awards will be presented Sept. 20 at the Howard County Fair Barns. Prizes will be awarded to 1st, 2nd and 3rd place winners of four categories. Participation in the annual event helps the promotion of cotton products, which aids the agricultural community as well as local merchants.

Bride-elect honored at shower

A miscellaneous shower was held for Shannon Doyle, bride-elect of Charles L. Godfrey, at 2314 Brent Dr., July 16.

Hosting the event was Mrs. Tina Gray. She presented the bride-elect with an ice cream freezer. Corsages were presented to Miss Doyle, her mother Mrs. David Doyle, and Mrs. Charles Godfrey, mother of the prospective bridegroom.

Special guests were Mrs. Kelly McDonald, sister of the bride-elect, and Kim Godfrey, sister of the prospective bridegroom.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with lace and centered with purple flowers and lavender candles.

The couple was married Aug. 6.

Dr. Donohue Gout treatment

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 67 and got the gout for the first time in my life. It got so bad I had to go to the doc for treatment. They took a blood sample and then put me on Butazolidin, which I took for awhile. Then a couple of months later I had a relapse. Then they put me on a medicine called Zylorim, which I am to take for the rest of my life. After starting that I had a relapse. Now what should I do? — T.M.

The diagnosis and treatment of gout, as with many other ailments, follow a predictable pattern, and yours is a classic example. T.M. First, the blood sample alerted the doctor to make the diagnosis of gout. That sample showed you had a high level of uric acid, which is the precursor of the gout crystals that form in joints, giving the pain. That level rises in the blood either because you make too much of it in your body or because your kidney is not able to get rid of it as efficiently as it should.

Second, during an attack (as the one brought you to the doctor) the medicines used are standard ones — phenylbutazone (your Butazolidin), indomethacin, or colchicine. They relieve the pain of the attack.

Third, once the painful attack has ended, the goal is to try to control the uric acid buildup in the future. That is done with the second medicine you mention (Zylorim, or as it's called generically, allopurinol).

Sometimes, when you first start this latter medicine, you may get another acute attack of joint pain. Also, it may make uric acid levels temporarily rise, since the drug dissolves the uric acid crystals. But in time, the problem ends, the uric acid is brought under control, and you are attack-free.

You do have to watch your diet (another part of your letter). Avoid what seems to cause attacks. Alcohol may do so in some people. And rich gravies, organ meats, meat extracts, sardines, anchovies, and herring are often forbidden. Be patient, I am confident your new medicine will lower your uric acid levels. Report your syndromes. The dose may have to be adjusted, but in time, you'll hit the right dosage schedule for your gout.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will propranolol really prevent migraine headaches? I have tried it and have not had any pronounced help. What is the rate of success? — J.J.

The success rate with propranolol is quite good, and you don't have to believe only me. Recent studies have shown about 80 percent success rate in preventing migraine attacks. It's unfortunate that you were not in that lucky group.

Are you sure you gave it a chance? Frequently when the medicine is stopped too quickly its effects are nullified. Why not return to the doctor who prescribed it for you? He may want to try it again with an adjusted dosage or for a longer period.

Disabled given access to world

DEAR READERS: In the United States alone, an estimated 36 million people have some kind of physical disability. The overwhelming majority of them are able to work and lead relatively normal lives. Yet until recently, only a small portion of them has ever attempted international travel — or even extended domestic travel — due to the lack of information.

There is now an excellent book containing a wealth of information for the physically disabled person who wants to travel: "Access to the World" by Louise Weiss.

It's for the wheelchair-bound (either temporarily or permanently); for those whose ability to talk has been impaired by neurological, cardiac or pulmonary disease; for those who have lost their sight, are aging or have any other condition that restricts mobility. This gem of a book covers all types of transportation — airplanes, ships, railroads, buses and automobiles. It lists hotels and motels that offer special accommodations for the handicapped all over the world — Ireland, Israel, Canada, Japan, Australia, Hawaii, Hong Kong, etc.

Whether one is interested in a cruise around the world or a gambling junket to Las Vegas, this book tells how to make travel arrangements, how to find out about special tours, what to take with you, what to do when you get there and provides important health and travel tips as well.

"Access to the World," a travel guide for the handicapped, can be obtained directly from: The Complete Traveller, 199 Madison Ave., New York NY 10016. The cost is $14.95 plus $2 for postage and handling. Every public library and rehabilitation facility should have one.

DEAR ABBY: I had a very close relationship with a friend for years, then she and her husband split up. My husband and I befriended her during her troubled times. Naturally she confided in us, and told us what a louse her husband had been.

Well, she and her husband got back together. We were very happy for her because although he had hurt her badly, she cared a lot for him. We never took sides during their separation because we liked them both.

Now this friend has suddenly dropped my husband and me like a couple of hot potatoes. We can't figure it out. We were her best friends in her time of trouble. Why would she drop us?

DROPPED IN DENVER

DEAR DROPPED: Because she is now embarrassed for having bad-mouthed her husband and your presence will remind her of her loose-lipped foolishness.

DEAR ABBY: "Curious in Fort Myers" wanted to know why lovers close their eyes when they kiss. I was told years ago that a woman closes her eyes because she hates to see a man making a fool of himself.

ANITA IN DALLAS

DEAR ANITA: So why does a man close his eyes?

Singers reveal their feelings about prison tour

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Barbie Holmes, Terri Miller and Mark Warren know more about prisons than most youths. They have performed inside many prisons to convicts whose crimes range from car theft to murder.

They are members of "His Children," a youth choir ensemble from First Baptist Church which performs contemporary gospel music during annual prison tours.

A junior at Big Spring High School, Barbie's first look inside a prison came 2½ weeks ago when the ensemble began its 9th tour.

"I was real scared at first," she said. "I was nervous. I saw some TV shows about prisons, 'Escape from Alcatraz,' and I was surprised." Not all the prisoners she sang to met her expectations in their appearances. Not all prisoners wear solid blues or stripes and look dirty.

"Sometimes I'd feel better having all little Christians up there to watch us," she said, thinking of a protected environment. However, she was glad non-Christian inmates also attended the concerts. "I imagine it's hard to be a Christian in prison. They get teased."

"I've realized not everybody comes from Christian homes," she said. "I appreciate my parents more. If I hadn't been raised in a Christian home, (and) if somebody came up to me and talked about Jesus, I probably wouldn't listen to them."

"WHEN YOU MEET the pressures of alcohol and drugs and stuff in high school, it's a lot easier to handle when you have Jesus with you. If you falter in relationship with Christ, you can depend on your Christian friends to get you back on the right road," she said. "It is much harder for the prisoners."

An inmate she spoke to in Lexington, Okla., seemed nice, she said. "He knew he made a mistake, he joked about it and gave advice about not getting into the wrong crowd."

"I think even though they made a mistake, they are still people," Barbie said. "I feel sorry for those who get no visitors. If a member of my family was in prison, I would do what I could to visit that person and help them," she said.

Howard College co-ed Terri Miller began touring with the ensemble four years ago. "I love to sing," she said. "I've sung all my life and I enjoy singing gospel."

Being a part of "His Children" tours is rewarding, Terri said, because "you give prisoners a hope for something besides what they are living with right now. They may be in a material prison, but there is a spiritual prison that's a lonelier life without Jesus Christ."

"It's not an easy trip," she said. "We have a lot of fun, but it gets hard standing in the heat singing songs over and over if you don't put a meaning behind it and sing a message."

On her first tour, she was both curious about how prisoners would react, and excited.

"I DIDN'T THINK that prisoners were going to open up to us," she said. "But I found some very warm Christians within the prisons. I guess it was called 'scared excitement and anticipation.' You don't know what to expect."

Her first experience at Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlistler, Okla., was an eye-opener. "It made us realize who we were singing to when we got in and actually saw where the men lived night and day."

"The Rotunda (was) a room three stories high with white solid bars," she said. Men with machine guns stood in the corners in cages. "And on the second floor we saw a sign that said 'Death Row' with cells kept by themselves. And you could see markings on the wall where someone had counted the days."

"That made us realize where we were putting ourselves and who we were witnessing to," she said. "There were quite a few men within the cells that had their arms hanging out just like you see in the movies. The guys would make cat calls at us."

Now she believes the tour gives her the opportunity to use her talent to let others know Jesus Christ as she does.

"When you later hear someone has given their lives to Christ — the chaplains write to Joe a lot — you hope that we might have had an influence on him," she said. "If we can make someone think about it. The Holy Spirit can show them the way. It's brought me closer to God. And if I can bring others (closer), then that's what it's all about."

AFTER AN ABSENCE from "His Children," 20-year-old Mark Warren asked Joe Whitten, the ensemble's director, if he could tour with the ensemble again.

"Back in 1979, when I was 16, Jesus was in my heart but (He) wasn't what He should be to me," Mark said. He went on the tours because he enjoyed singing. For the next two years he stayed home due to involvement in baseball and summer jobs.

When touring in 1978 and 1979, "I worried about how we sounded as a group. I wanted us to sing perfect. That's not what matters," he said.

"Now it's not that important. That they understand the words we are saying and what is meant is more important."

The prisoners will "talk to you openly about what they've done. They just want to talk to somebody," he said. "Some are older and may see their kid in you. They have problems too. Sometimes they can't trust another inmate to pray for them. They want someone who really will, and they can trust them to pray for them."

This time, he says he came for the right reasons — to help the prisoners. "If I had it to do all over again, I would have quit my job earlier each year and gone (on tour)."

"It was pretty scary," Mark said about his first tour of the prisons. The experience that had the biggest impact was a concert at the McAlistler penitentiary's rodeo bowl. The guards had their fingers on their guns and the prisoners were chained in an area. It was a hot day and the group sang before maximum security prisoners, he said.

"A hardened criminal who has turned to Christ and knows the Lord, and you can tell it — that's the neat thing. Seeing them and helping them, and you know they aren't fake," he said about his most moving experiences.

Mark plans to tour again next year. "It's just an experience you want to have again. It's a great feeling seeing someone who can receive the Lord through what you are doing," he said.

"It's the feeling of what the prisoners get out of it. You just know in your heart that someone gets something from it. Christ is doing something through us and we are the tools."

Reducing deficit key to economic recovery

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — What a wonderful recovery it would be if there weren't so many killjoys around with their long faces and agitated consciences, nagging us with all their worries about deficits and credit crunches.

Why, even the White House folks are enjoying the party, as you can tell from the cheers that go up from there whenever unemployment falls or industrial production rises or Detroit announces another big week for sales.

And if the White House can forget about about the big budget deficits and all the dangers deficits are supposed to hold, why should others worry and rudely poke their fingers under our noses while we try to partake of the punch?

Lyndon Johnson might have scorned them as Nervous Nellies, because they do have a way of disrupting the festivities, but Ronald Reagan may have an even more effective way of dealing with them: Of late, it seems, he ignores them.

And, it sometimes seems, he may ignore the issue also, the very same deficit issue which he had done much to publicize as perhaps the biggest financial and economic issue of our time.

The issue of budget deficits, it seems, has vanished, for the summer at least.

But not the budget deficit itself, which still lingers in the area of $200 billion a year and the financing of which, the worriers warn us, might just force business and consumers out of financial markets and end the recovery.

"Self-deception may work for a time in Washington," say the jittery folks at the Morgan Guaranty Survey, who just can't get the issue out of mind, maybe because they see each day what the government's borrowing needs are doing.

Such as, they say, reducing the pool of credit for the private sector and putting upward pressure on interest rates.

They maintain that self-deception "will not work — and is not working — in the nation's financial markets," as evidenced by the one-point rise over the past two months in the cost to the government of long-term borrowing.

Edward Yardeni, the Prudential-Bache securities economist, is worried. "In recent weeks we've been increasingly pessimistic about the economic outlook," he wrote on Aug. 10. He insists "the federal deficit must be narrowed."

At Bankers Trust, economists Donald Wooley and Beverly Lowen recently completed a study in which they estimate that in the second half of the year the Treasury will have to raise $125 billion, nearly $25 billion more than was raised in the first six months of the year, and 46 percent of all financing.

They conclude: "Such massive government borrowing not only appears to rule out any significant decline in interest rates, but as private sector demands for credit strengthen, some upward pressure... seems to be unavoidable."

At San Francisco's Wells Fargo Bank, Harold Nathan thinks the country can avoid a deficit-induced credit crunch this year but he isn't sure about 1984. The risks will grow then, he says. "Reducing the deficit remains the key to the outlook for the next year," he asserts.

These are among the long faces at the party — some of the dispeptic folks who just can't seem to have a good time during what many others consider to be one of the nicest economic parties ever.

Comebacks aid economy

By The Associated Press

Automobile and steel production led the recovery in American industry in July, with production in the nation's factories and mines up 7.1 percent from a year ago, and 1.8 percent above June's rate, the government reported today.

July's increase followed gains of 1.1 percent in June and 1.3 percent in May, the Federal Reserve Board said.

July's increase was the eighth monthly gain in a row and second-strongest to April's 1.9 percent increase.

On Monday, U.S. auto companies reported a 40.8 percent gain in early August car sales, and a new survey said Americans are growing more encouraged by the economic recovery.

Of the three biggest automakers reporting sales results Monday for the Aug. 1-10 period, Chrysler Corp.'s 50.7 percent gain was the largest, Ford Motor Co. reported a 46.9 percent increase and General Motors Corp. was up 35.8 percent.

The industry, whose domestic sales last year were the lowest since 1961, has benefited from lower interest rates and a surge in consumer spending.

So far this year, GM's sales are running 15.2 percent ahead of last year's pace, while Ford is 11.9 percent ahead and Chrysler is up 26.8 percent.

Meanwhile, the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research said its index of consumer attitudes for the April-June period rose to the highest level since 1972.

The institute said that for the first time in five years, a greater percentage of the families in its survey reported an improved financial condition than a worsened condition. It also said two-thirds of the families thought conditions were favorable for buying cars, houses and major household goods — a record level.

In other economic developments: —The maximum interest rate that commercial banks and savings institutions may pay on six-month savings certificates dropped today to 9.80 percent from the previous week's 9.95 percent. The rate on three-month certificates fell to 9.43 percent from 9.57 percent. The new rates are tied by federal law to the average yield on three- and six-month Treasury bills auctioned each Monday by the government.

—The stock market started the week on an upbeat note, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gaining 10.67 points, to 1,193.50. The number of stocks gaining in price outnumbered the losers by a 2-1 margin, and analysts said investors appeared heartened by indications that interest rates may stabilize.

—The American Iron and Steel Institute, a trade group, said domestic steel production rose 1 percent last week. The industry's production amounted to 55.2 percent of capacity during the week, compared with 54.7 percent in the previous week.

Housing starts slip in July, reports say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government says construction of new housing slipped 0.6 percent in July. Work on new housing was begun at an annual rate of 1.74 million units in July, down from 1.75 million the previous month, the Commerce Department report said Tuesday.

It said a sharp increase in multiple-family buildings almost made up for a 11.9 percent drop in work started on single-family homes.

Americans pay more this year to stay cool

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans spent $377 million more than normal for air conditioning costs during in the last three weeks of July, the federal weather service said Monday.

The hot humid weather still oppressing many areas first affected the Rocky Mountain region July 5, and spread over the eastern two-thirds of the country by July 11.

For the July 11-30 period, Americans spent $2.055 billion for electricity to run air conditioners, according to the report from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

That is 22 percent above normal for the period, the agency reported.

For the year to date, Americans have spent an estimated $5.17 billion on cooling. That is still 3 percent below normal because of large savings early in the summer.

While the current heat has been costly both in terms of lives and expense, it is not as severe as other heat waves in the past, including one in 1980 that cost an additional $1.5 billion in electrical bills, the weather service said.

The East North Central states were hit hardest in the current heat wave, with residents there spending 66 percent — or $433 million — more than normal, the report estimated. That area includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Widow holds gang at bay

NEW YORK (AP) — An ailing 67-year-old widow held a gang of people she believed were muggers at bay using an empty .32-caliber pistol and a cane, but when police arrived they also arrested the woman — for owning a handgun without a permit.

Charges remained against two young men who were charged with weapons possession. The cases of two juveniles were referred to Family Court.

Then, went the initial story, she pulled her pistol, saying "Get away from me or you'll get some of this." After police arrested the eight, including two 15-year-old girls and a 47-year-old woman, one of the youths pointed at Mrs. Leonard and told police, "That lady has a gun. She threatened us."

released in her own recognition and police found her a place to stay. She said she was robbed of $140 in the same bus terminal in June when she came to visit her sick brother. He died last month and she returned to New York to arrange his affairs.

Cystic fibrosis patient wanted baby

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Jeri DeMille knew that having a baby could hasten her own death from cystic fibrosis, but the 23-year-old woman says she wanted to do something for her husband — and herself. "I didn't want to leave him alone," Mrs. DeMille said of her husband, Mark, after she gave birth to a 6-pound, 11-ounce boy at St. Joseph Hospital in Orange. "Then, when the baby was born, I realized I'd done it for myself, too.... I wanted a reminder that I was here."

DYING MOTHER — Jeri DeMille, a cystic fibrosis patient, is dying and did not want to leave her husband alone. She gave birth last week to a six pound, 11 ounce child. The baby may be the first child born to a cystic fibrosis patient in Southern California. DeMille said "I wanted a reminder that I was here."

Mrs. DeMille, who lives in Palm Desert, gave birth to Cameron Lee DeMille on Aug. 3, one day after her third wedding anniversary. The new mother was released from the hospital Friday. Chances are 1 in 50 that the infant, who appears healthy, will carry the disease, said Dr. Ralph Rucker, chairman of the neonatal department at Children's Hospital of Orange County, adjacent to St. Joseph. Mrs. DeMille, back home Monday in Palm Desert 100 miles east of Los Angeles, said so far she has shown no ill effects from her pregnancy or 13-hour labor. "As far as I know, going by my lung X-rays and everything, there's no changes," she said. "I know the doctors expected a lot worse. Everybody's pretty amazed."

Roberta Leonard of Sylacauga, Ala., told prosecutors in a statement that although she originally said some youths had tried to rob her, she "was never struck by anybody, nor did anyone ever grab her purse."

A gun possession charge also remained against Mrs. Leonard. Her case was to be presented to a grand jury later today. Mrs. Leonard told police she arrived here by bus around 10 p.m. Sunday. She said she went to St. Clare's Hospital to have her blood pressure checked, the returned to the Port Authority Bus Terminal. According to original story, she was carrying her cane, handbag and a tote bag when a gang member started going through her jacket pockets, another grabbed her tote bag, and a third reached for her purse.

"We found her at 41st Street and Eighth Avenue at 5:45 a.m. and arrested eight people — five adults and three juveniles. One of them accused her of pulling a gun, and we frisked her and found the weapon," Lt. Joseph Martella said. "She didn't have a permit for her handgun."

Shark may have attacked girl

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — A 16-year-old girl, possibly attacked by a shark, was hospitalized in good condition after surgery to treat severe cuts on her foot. Jill Redenbaugh, of Virginia Beach, was attacked Monday by something that took "a two-inch chunk out of her instep and another chunk out of her Achilles tendon," said Jack Kownsend of Dahlgren, whose family was staying at a cottage here. "The skin was laid back, and it was horrible."

Delta Commodities wants to open a new BRANCH OFFICE In your town

In keeping with our planned program of growth, we are looking to open a new branch office in your area.

The individuals we seek need not have a background in commodity futures trading, although any such experience would be a definite plus. What we are seeking, are those individuals with a keen business sense to organize and help manage a branch office for Delta. Your agricultural background may qualify you for this position.

In return, we offer a complete training program, unlimited potential with higher than average compensation, full WATTS lines, fully computerized bookkeeping service and a respected research facility.

If you fit the above description, let's talk. Call Melinda Holzhauser Schramm, (312) 620-5688, or send your resume to the below address.

TAKING IT TO THE USA — Israel Andrade of Brazil leads for the basket as Sam Perkins, rear, and Mark Price of the American team come in for the defense during their Pan American basketball game Tuesday night in Caracas, Venezuela. The U.S. won the game, 72-69.

U.S. collects victories in 3 sports, two-day medal total reaches 24

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The U.S. boxing team's dream of a medal for everyone in the Pan American games is still alive.

While Cuban boxers were upset in two of their three bouts, Steve McCrory, the only American in action Tuesday, had to fight off both a hostile Venezuelan crowd and a dogged Jorge Arcia of Panama Tuesday night to win his preliminary-round bout in the 112-pound division.

That put the 19-year-old from Detroit into the quarterfinals on Saturday, one bout away from a medal that would be a start toward fulfilling the coaches' predictions of medals for all 11 of their boxers.

It was a good day overall for Americans, who won six gold and four silver medals in shooting, and three golds in judo.

Michael Jordan led a second half rally that erased a 10-point deficit and gave the U.S. basketball team a 72-69 win over Brazil. The U.S. baseball team won its second straight, downing Canada 10-5.

The United States' nine gold medals gave it 13 golds and 24 medals in all. Cuba, with 12 golds in weightlifting, still had the overall lead with 15 golds and 30 total medals.

More American gold may be on tap today with the start of swimming, in which the United States is heavily favored. Four swimming golds will be decided tonight.

Among the outstanding individual achievements on Tuesday was a no-hitter by Lori Stoll of Chillicothe, Mo., in the U.S. women's softball team's 16-0 victory over Venezuela. And Cuba got the first world record of the games when weightlifter Daniel Nunez snatched 304 pounds on the way to three gold medals.

But there were still problems for the games' organizers. Americans continued to talk about leaving the athletes village, where problems with cramped conditions, low-water pressure and dirty floors have persisted.

High winds blew out the Pan Am flame at Olympic stadium, which had to be relighted, and two banks of lights at Palo Verde Stadium went out for 17 minutes during the U.S.-Canada baseball game.

Pan Am Games

McCrory, the world amateur champion and the brother of newly crowned World Boxing Council welterweight champion Milt McCrory, danced and jabbed through the first two rounds, winning both on the judges' cards. But in the third, the Panamanian started boring in, continually pinning the American to the ropes and staggering him several times before the final bell.

"I couldn't move away from him," McCrory complained after the 4-1 decision that left the overflow crowd of 6,000 at United Nations park hooting and whistling and chanting "Cuba, Cuba, Cuba" and "Pa-na-na, Pa-na-na, Pa-na-na."

"He's a very good fighter. He kept coming and coming at me and I couldn't move my arms or my legs."

McCrory's only support came from his teammates, who clustered on the open cement floor near the ring to cheer him on. As McCrory walked off to the jeers of the Venezuelans, the Americans waved and gestured at the crowd.

"Just let them do all the yelling they want," Coach Pat Nappi told the team in the dressing room. "Don't egg them on."

And super-heavyweight Tyrell Biggs, a veteran of international competition, said, "You just have to close your ears to it."

Both Cuban boxing losses were to Puerto Ricans, who won all three bouts they fought on Tuesday.

Rafael Sainz, one of the favorites in the 106-pound class, lost a controversial decision to Rafael Ramos. Three judges gave the fight to Sainz, the aggressor for much of the bout, and two awarded it to Ramos, the more effective counter-puncher.

But under a new international rule affecting split decisions, the fight went to a three-member jury, which voted unanimously for Ramos, giving the fight to the Puerto Rican. The Cubans said they would appeal the decision.

The second Cuban loss postponed the first meeting between an American and a Cuban. It took place in the 119-pound weight class, where Puerto Rico's Juan Molina outpointed Cuba's Luis Ernesto Delis.

So American Floyd Favors, the world champion in the division and a heavy favorite, now opens Saturday against Molina instead of Delis.

Team rosters expanded to 49

ST. LOUIS (AP) — National Football League club owners have moved to meet the challenge of two other pro football leagues by agreeing to expand team rosters from 45 to 49 players for the upcoming season.

Four of the players, however, will be on an inactive roster and can replace those on the active roster on a week-by-week basis, but only until the day before each game.

The unanimous vote by the 28 NFL owners, viewed as a compromise solution, came during a special meeting Tuesday attended by Commissioner Pete Rozelle. Previously the owners had rejected any roster increases during meetings in March at Tampa and in May at Palm Springs.

"Because of the six-team expansion by the United States Football League and because of the plans by the International Football League to field 12 teams next year, the rosters will stand at 49 for the 1983 season," Rozelle said following Tuesday's two-hour meeting.

"That's 30 teams. Our teams were concerned with finishing the season with quality players," the commissioner said. "If they get players hurt, there will be less of a (talent) pool."

In another move, the NFL club owners altered the pre-season roster-cutting deadlines. The teams were to have been down to 60 players by Tuesday, but that deadline was extended for one week, and clubs can remain at 70 players until then. On August 29, teams must be down to 49 players.

The regular-season arrangement is the same as the one in effect when last season started. After the strike, however, the teams, with the approval of the NFL Players Association, went to 49 active players. The NFL has asked the union for a similar arrangement this year, a source at the meeting said.

Ladd K. Herzog, the general manager of the Houston Oilers, had expressed fear that the larger roster would enable stronger teams to stockpile players. Other owners or their representatives wanted a different formula for replenishing rosters and still others opposed the 49-player complements on economic grounds, Rozelle said.

"Some wanted to get a chance at the players on (injured) reserve. This was the basic objection, but we talked it out and got approval," said the commissioner. "I was gratified about it. They wanted to show unanimity and they wanted to show harmony." players each week.

Rozelle said other items discussed at the meetings by owners included drug abuse, said in a report published last weekend to affect as many as half of the NFL's players, but that the roster issue was "the only item that they made a decision on."

"They realized that there isn't going to be the player pool of free agents out there," said Rozelle in respect to the owners. "The other point that was made was that last year was an abbreviated season. Last year's rookies really didn't really go through a whole year."

Gunslingers laying new turf

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The grass has already been scraped off the turf, but the San Antonio City Council is still battling to prevent the San Antonio Gunslingers from renovating Alamo Stadium in preparation for a United States Football League season.

South Texas Sports has signed a lease with the San Antonio Independent School District for the stadium in next year's season, but the land on which the stadium is being used for profit-making sports events.

However, the organization is proceeding with installation of artificial turf for the stadium, despite City Council disapproval.

Marynell Maloney, an attorney for South Texas Sports and its principal owner, Clinton Manges, said front-end loaders and graders were leased to cut away 18 inches of turf in preparation for laying the artificial surface.

Ms. Maloney said a council decision to seek a temporary restraining order would be "politically non-astute" because the council "should be responsive to the will of the people and the people want pro football."

She estimated that more than 20,000 residents have signed "Citizens for Pro Ball" petitions.

By the time members of the City Council met Tuesday night in an emergency closed-door session to discuss their dispute with Manges' group, the grass had already been stripped off.

Officials emerged from the meeting to say that although there was extensive discussion, no decisions were reached. A public hearing will be held Thursday night, and Mayor Henry Cisneros said "We'll take some definitive action at that time."

City council member Helen Dutmer said earlier Tuesday that she had collected signatures from a majority of the council members instructing the city manager to seek a court order to stop installation of the new field.

"At this point the situation is rather fuzzy," said Craig Austin, an attorney representing a neighborhood association opposing the use of the stadium by the franchise.

"The prohibition is very clear and when they try to play it will be enforced," he said. "But what to do between now and then is the question."

Austin said he expects the city to try to take both long and short-term action to enforce the restriction. Short-term solutions might include obtaining a temporary restraining order to halt work, he said.

Cisneros said there was "some ambiguity as to when the city should step in," but he added that he did not think beginning work on the stadium turf constituted a violation of a 1939 deed restriction.

Council members Dutmer, Van Archer, Joe Alderete, Maria Berriozabal, Ed Harrington and James Hasslocher signed a memo circulated by councilwoman Dutmer which said: "We are about to lose a schoolboy stadium to political powers who could care less about San Antonio, the schools and/or its people."

Sampson could sign $20 million pact

HOUSTON (AP) — It may be "just a matter of days" before Ralph Sampson, the No. 1 pick in the 1983 National Basketball Association draft, signs a long-term contract with the Houston Rockets that could pay him nearly $20 million, the Houston Chronicle said today.

The newspaper said Sampson's agent, Tom Collins of Los Angeles, is expected to meet with Rockets officials in California later in the week to discuss details of a contract that would bind the 7-4 center to the Houston franchise for 10 years.

Rockets owner Charlie Thomas, president and general manager Ray Patterson and coach Bill Fitch will be at the meeting, the Chronicle said.

Collins, who also represents Los Angeles Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, telephoned Rockets officials Monday to inform them that Sampson had selected him as his agent.

But Collins, who is not an attorney, may not be Sampson's sole representative in the discussions, the newspaper added, quoting unnamed sources.

Collins said his main role will be as a negotiator. He also reportedly is set to act as Sampson's agent on outside business, such as product endorsements, the newspaper said.

Sampson and Collins were introduced by Abdul-Jabbar, who has frequently acted as an adviser to the University of Virginia superstar, college basketball's player of the year.

Collins has almost finalized an endorsement deal that will net Sampson $1 million for wearing Puma basketball shoes, the newspaper said.

Contract talks between the Rockets and Sampson had been delayed in the two months since the draft while Sampson tried to decide on an agent. But Sampson and Fitch have communicated frequently, leading to speculation that preliminary contract talks have been going on for weeks.

Crow returns to A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — John David Crow, who earned the Heisman Trophy at Texas A&M in 1967, has returned to his alma mater as associate athletic director.

Crow, 48, will replace Charlie Thornton, who resigned last month to become general manager of the new Memphis franchise in the United States Football League.

Hogs need more receivers for Taylor

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas' best passer in years is primed and ready with no one to throw to except the object of a Lou Holtz one-liner.

The name is Mark Mistler, the Razorbacks' most experienced receiver with 16 catches for 236 yards.

"People say Mark Mistler really catches the ball well in a crowd," said Holtz, the Arkansas coach. "With his speed, he's always in a crowd."

"I don't consider myself slow, but I'm not a speed burner," Mistler said. "I run about 4.6 in the 40. I try not to worry about my speed. The main thing is getting open and catching the ball."

He is adept at that. His brother, John, does the same thing for the New York Giants of the National Football League.

They worked out together a couple of times during the summer. "He just tells me little things on how to get open against different coverages," Mistler said.

Mistler was asked if Arkansas would throw more since the top six rushers from last year's 9-3-1 team are gone and whip-arm Brad Taylor is at quarterback.

"We'll probably throw like we have in the past. We've got some good young running backs who haven't gotten a chance to prove themselves."

The candidates at tailback — Billy Warren, Terry Tatum, Carl Miller and Nathan Jones — totaled 21 carries for 46 yards last year. Warren was redshirted and Jones was on defense. Freshmen Gregg McKinney and Marshall Foreman could play. Eddie White, the No. 1 fullback, was a tight end last year.

"What we were hoping for was somebody would come to the forefront in spring and us not go into fall with as many question marks," Holtz said. "We think we have some people in the backfield who can do the job but you don't want to single them out and lift them up out of the crowd... you hope they rise out of the crowd."

Playing in the USFL are the two top receivers — Derek Holloway, who averaged 25.2 yards per catch, and Gary Anderson, who averaged 18.7. For two years, Taylor backed up now departed Tom Jones.

"I don't know how to compare them," Mistler said.

"They've both got different tangible things. Brad's got a great arm and a good quarterback personality. That's one of the things Tom had, too."

"With Brad, you know when you come out of your break, the ball is going to be there. You can be 30 yards downfield on a deep pattern, but not as deep as the safety and he'll throw it on a line."

The other wide receivers include Keith Kidd, who caught passes of 75 yards and 72 yards in the spring game, Bobby Joe Edmonds and Rodney Forte. All are around 4.4 in the 40.

A good year by Taylor is a must, Holtz says. "I've got to quit saying that Brad is the best I've ever seen, but he is. We just can't keep putting undue pressure on him. If he can just play his own game, that will be enough."

"We're starting the season with a lot of unknowns. That doesn't bother me. I just hope they're not unknowns at the end of the season."

Seventh in a series; coming next, a look at the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

Texas' Butcher fires 1-hitter

ARLINGTON (AP) — Even though he was cruising along, John Butcher clearly heard Texas' relievers warming up in the final four innings — and he figures he'll be back among them soon enough despite pitching a one-hitter against Baltimore.

Butcher, normally a middle-inning reliever for the Rangers, was making only his second start of the season Tuesday night, a stand-in for Danny Darwin, sidelined by a blister on his pitching hand.

In the third inning, he walked Len Sakata and gave up a two-out single to Al Bumby. Then he got Dan Ford on a fly ball to center field — and that was it as far as Baltimore's offense was concerned. Butcher retired the remaining batters in succession as beat the Orioles 2-0.

Some pitchers might try to use this kind of performance as a wedge to force their way into the starting rotation. Not Butcher. "I'm not trying to make waves," he said. "When Danny comes back, he deserves to start and I'll go back to the bullpen."

He was surprised, he said, that Doug Rader didn't pull him out after the fifth inning or so. "We were prepared to take him out," Rader said — and Butcher observed: "I heard the pop of leather in the bullpen." But he just kept mowing the Orioles down.

"I really didn't know whether I could go that far," he said afterward. "I thought I might last six or seven innings and I really got tired in the eighth."

The victory, coupled with Chicago's 5-3 triumph in New York, kept the third-place Rangers within seven games of the front-

American League

White Sox 5, Yankees 3
 Chicago's Floyd Bannister stuck around just long enough to post his eighth victory in eight starts since the All-Star break. He pitched five innings, ruptured a blood vessel in his left thumb while making a bare-handed catch on a play at first, then got the win when Harold Baines hit a tie-breaking single in the top of the sixth.

Chicago padded its lead to 5-2 when Ron Kittle tagged Rich Gossage for a two-run single.

Royals 18, Tigers 7
 Mark Huisman, with an assist of sorts from his folks, got to Royals Stadium just in time to become a winner in his major-league debut.

He was called up from Omaha, his minor league team in the American Association, and Huisman's parents insisted he leave his 17-year-old car at home and use theirs. It overhated three times and he didn't get to the park until 45 minutes before game time.

A couple of hours later, after 11-3 innings of relief, he was a winner.

Astros gain on Braves again

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Houston Astros, who were practically outed out in the National League West after their 0-9 start, are making believers with a mid-August surge.

The Astros got a four-RBI performance from rookie catcher John Mizerock Tuesday night to defeat the Cincinnati Reds 8-5 and climb to 7 1/2 games behind the first-place Atlanta Braves.

The Astros have won eight of their last 10 games and have gained four games on the Braves in the last week.

"You have to think of them as contenders now," said Cincinnati's Johnny Bench. "They're 7 1/2 games out. They've got (Nolan) Ryan throwing well and (Joe) Niekro throwing well. Bob Knepper has been kind of a Jekyll and Hyde, but he's still pitched pretty good ball."

"They've got four or five guys hitting close to .300. And they've got good speed. They don't take themselves out of innings with double plays."

Mizerock, who has been called up from the minors three times this season, isn't one of the 300 hitters Bench referred to. The rookie was hitting .195 going into the Tuesday night game, in which he belted a two-run double, a solo homer and a sacrifice fly.

The Reds gave starter Charlie Puleo, 4-9, a two-run lead in the first on Gary Redus' RBI double and Dan Driessen's sacrifice fly. Mizerock got the Astros going with his first major-league homer leading off the third. Houston starter Mike Scott kept the rally going with a single, Bill Doran doubled and Terry Puhl drove both home with a single for a 3-2 lead.

Ray Knight homered to trigger a two-run fourth inning that included an RBI single by Doran. Mizerock added a two-run double in the sixth off reliever Rich Gale for a 7-2 lead, and Mizerock's sacrifice fly in the eighth put the Astros up 8-2.

National League

Pirates 3, Mets 1
 Young Doug Frobel reminded Chuck Tanner of a young Reggie Jackson.

Frobel, called up from the minors last week, belted his second home run in two games, a fourth-inning shot that produced the final run in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 3-1 victory over the New York Mets.

Cubs 10-2, Phillies 1-6
 At Chicago, Garry Maddox homered one out after Tony Pérez's tie-breaking home run off Mike Proly and Bo Diaz rapped a two-run double in the eighth inning to help the Phillies gain a split.

Jody Davis had three singles and three RBIs for the Cubs in the opener, while Dick Amos Otis drove in five runs, Pat Sheridan three and Willie Wilson, Hal McRae and John Wathan two apiece as the Royals pounded out 19 hits.

A's 4, Angels 0
 Chris Codrillo and Dave Beard stretched the Oakland pitchers' shutout string to 32 innings, a club record.

"Right now, we've got a tremendous amount of confidence," said Codrillo, who pitched 7 2/3 innings against the Angels despite a bad cold.

Brewers 4, Red Sox 3
 Jim Slaton pitched 7 1/3 innings of three-hit shutout relief and was rewarded with a victory when Ted Simmons broke up the marathon with his 14th-inning sacrifice fly.

Simmons also had a first-inning sacrifice fly and sent the game into extra innings with an eighth-inning single that tied it 3-3. The game was supposed to be the first of two, but the second was rained out.

Twins 5, Mariners 1
 Minnesota's Tom Brunansky drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and his 18th and 19th homers and Ken Schrom pitched 7 1/3 innings of five-hit ball, one of the his Pat Putnam's 17th homer.

Indians 3-6, Blue Jays 2-6
 Cleveland won the opener when Toby Harrah, off and running at the swing, raced home from second base on Mike Hargrove's two-out, eighth-inning infield single. The Blue Jays earned a split by erupting for four runs in the eighth inning of the nightcap, two scoring on Barry Bonnell's tie-breaking, two-run single.

Ruthven pitched a five-hitter. Ruthven gave up a run in the second inning, but the Cubs came back with three in their half on Ron Cey's 18th homer and a two-run double by Thad Bosley. Davis singled a run home in the third and singled two more runs across in the eighth.

Dodgers 5, Giants 1
 At Los Angeles, Jerry Reuss scattered seven hits in seven innings to snap a personal seven-game losing streak. Bill Russell drove in two runs with a pair of doubles and Greg Brock homered as the Dodgers beat the Giants for only the fourth time in 12 meetings this season and moved within 4 1/2 games of Atlanta in the NL West. Reuss, who had started 12 games without a victory, struck out six and did not walk a batter before Tom Niedenfuer hurled the final two innings.

Padres 3, Braves 2
 At Atlanta, Garry Templeton's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning drove in the winning run as the Braves suffered their third consecutive loss.

Cardinals 4, Expos 3
 At St. Louis, the Cardinals scored two runs off Montreal relief ace Jeff Reardon in the bottom of the ninth on pinch hitter George Hendrick's triple, David Green's double and Floyd Rayford's pinch single for their third victory in the last 15 games.

Bowlers meet tonight

A workshop is scheduled at 7 p.m. this evening for officers and directors of the Big Spring Women's Bowling Association and Big Spring Bowling Association.

The workshop will be held in the hospitality room of the Coors building. League officers from both organizations are urged to attend. Rules changes will be discussed at the meeting.

FHS scrimmage set

FORSAN — Forsan High School will scrimmage Sterling City here at 6 p.m. Thursday. The Buffaloes open their season Sept. 2 at Bronte.

Steer tickets on sale

Representatives of 11 Big Spring civic clubs are selling special tickets to the Steers season and home football opener Sept. 2 against Snyder.

In an effort to put fans in the stands, club members are selling 44 tickets that can be redeemed for reserved seats at the gate on game night or at the BSISD administration offices Aug. 22-Sept. 2.

Civic clubs participating in the "Fill the Stadium" project are the Big Spring Rotary, Greater Big Spring Rotary, the Downtown Lions, Evening Lions, Morning Optimists, Noon Optimists, ABC, Civitans, Kiwanis, Ambassadors and Jaycees.

Classic begins Friday

The Big Spring Fall Classic softball tournament is scheduled Aug. 19-20 at Johnny Stone Park.

The tournament is for Class B and under teams. Trophies go to the top six teams, with first through fourth taking home individual awards. An all-tournament, MVP and team sportsmanship trophy will be awarded.

Entry fee is $100 per team and limited to first 20 entrants. Contact Rocky Vierra at 267-7773 or Noel Hull at 263-3108 to enter.

Steers in two-a-days

Two-a-day workouts are scheduled from 6:30-8 a.m. and from 4-6:30 p.m. today and Thursday for the Big Spring High Steers varsity football team.

Junior varsity, sophomore and ninth grade teams practice 4-6:30 p.m. each day. All four teams work out from 7-9 a.m. Friday.

BSHS stickers on sale

Big Spring High cheerleaders are selling schedule stickers for the 1983 football season in conjunction with Thursday's community-wide pep rally at the Comanche Trails amphitheater.

The pep rally for all sports at BSHS for 1983-84 begins at 8 p.m. Among the attractions will be a spirit talk by head football coach Quinn Eudy.

Gault picks Bears over '84 Olympics

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — As he was flying into Chicago on the last leg of a long journey, trackstar Willie Gault saw an omen that he had made the right decision to play professional football instead of pursuing an Olympic dream.

"We were still a mile or two above the clouds... and I saw a rainbow with all the colors. I thought of it as an indication of God telling me I made the right decision," Gault said Tuesday after his first practice with the Chicago Bears.

Only hours earlier, he found the pot of gold at the end of that rainbow, signing a four-year contract reportedly worth $1.3 million with a $500,000 signing bonus. It made him the highest-paid rookie receiver in National Football League history.

But the 22-year-old speedster, who starred in track and football at the University of Tennessee, explained that he agonized over the decision to pass up a chance run in the Olympics next summer in Los Angeles.

"A lot of tears and a lot of emotion went into this decision," Gault said. "It was like losing part of my family."

Last week, he ran the third leg of a world-record breaking 400-meter U.S. relay team at the World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland. And on Saturday, he ran his last race, the 110-meter high hurdles.

"As I stepped into the blocks, I said to myself that this could be my last race ever," Gault recalled. He finished third.

During practice Tuesday, he appeared to make a smooth transition from the starting blocks to the line of scrimmage.

"He looked good today. I was impressed," said Bears' Coach Mike Ditka, who at noon Tuesday predicted Gault would not sign a pro football contract this season.

Ditka said Gault may see action as soon as Saturday, when the Bears travel to Los Angeles to play the Raiders in the third of four NFL exhibition contests.

In the meantime, the young wide receiver will catch about 100 balls a day and try to learn the Bears' pass patterns.

"He's got to get his feel back," Ditka said. "It's a little different than jumping over hurdles."

Gault was married in June, and he said his decision was based in large part on how his wife, Dainesse, felt about having to spend a full year training and touring the track circuit en route to the Olympics.

"I have no regrets," he said. "I'll never look back."

Soft pretzels make tasty treats at parties

By RHONDA WITT
Lifestyle Writer

Tina Steffen's recipe request for Soft Pretzels has been answered by Polly Lancaster. That just goes to show the effectiveness of the Recipe Exchange in finding recipes. Tina thanks you Mrs. Lancaster.

Mrs. Charles Warren's son, Matt, shared her Cinnamon Stick recipe with Tina while she accompanied "His Children," an ensemble from First Baptist Church, on a prison tour recently. Mrs. Warren made the candy for the group's trip.

Also in today's Recipe Exchange are some more of Tina Parker's cake decorating recipes. Tina is a cake decorator who teaches the classes at J.C. Penney. She was featured in the Herald Recipe Exchange recently.

Judy Griffin of Ingram is looking for a German Chocolate Pie recipe. If you have the recipe and would like to share it, send it to the Herald Recipe Exchange.

If you would like to request the recipes of a particular cook or dish, let us know by writing to Herald Recipe Exchange, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. We also would encourage you to share your recipes with the readers.

SOFT PRETZELS

Polly Lancaster

1 1/2 cup (110 degrees) water
1 tsp. sugar
1 package of dry yeast
1 tsp. salt
3/4 cup gluten flour
3 cups all-purpose flour, or as needed
Water bath:
1 quart water
3 Tbsps. baking soda
1 Tbsp. sugar

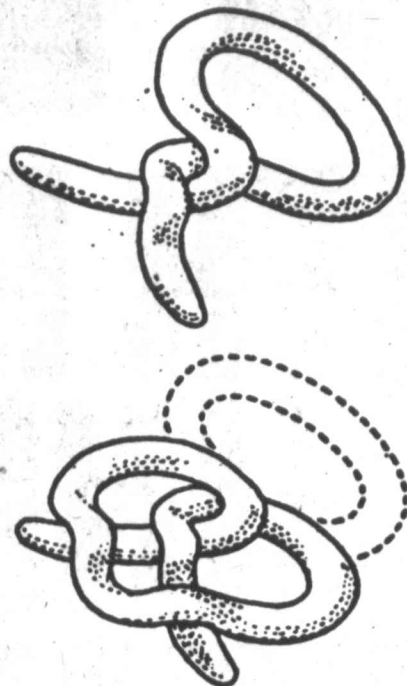

Topping:
1 Tbsp. coarse sea salt
In a small bowl, combine 1/2 cup of warm water with the sugar and yeast. Let proof, until fluffy about 10 minutes.

Combine the remaining water, salt, gluten flour and 1 cup all-purpose flour in the large bowl of an electric mixer, beat until well-blended. Add the yeast mixture and beat on medium-low speed for four or five minutes. Stir in 1 1/2 cups more flour.

Turn the dough onto a floured working surface and knead until very smooth and shiny, adding remaining flour or amount needed, as you knead.

Form the dough into a ball and place in an ungreased bowl. Cover the bowl with plastic and let the dough rise until doubled in bulk, for an hour or more.

Punch down the dough, cut into 12 equal pieces, and cover with a sheet of plastic. Roll each piece to form a long rope about 16 to 18 inches long with tapered ends. Form into pretzel. Lay each shaped pretzel on a lightly floured board. Let the pretzels rise until not quite doubled (about 30 minutes). While pretzels are rising, preheat oven to 425 degrees.

MAKING PRETZELS — Before putting pretzels in a water bath and baking it, roll dough for each pretzel into the form of a long rope with tapered ends. Next, shape the dough into a pretzel as illustrated.

Make water bath. In a 9-inch enameled or stainless-steel skillet, combine the water, baking soda, and sugar. Bring to a simmer. Slide three pretzels at a time into bath; keep it at a bare simmer and cook the pretzels for 20 seconds on each side, flipping them gently with a skimmer. Remove them with the skimmer, draining them over the pan and holding a towel underneath as you flip them onto a large parchment-covered baking sheet, with their original topsides up. Sprinkle sparingly with the coarse salt. Repeat with the remaining pretzels.

Bake pretzels in the center of the oven for 15 minutes, or until nicely browned. Cool the pretzels to lukewarm and eat them fresh; or wrap and freeze them after they have cooled completely.

CINNAMON STICK

Mrs. Charles Warren

3 cups sugar
2 cups clear Karo syrup
1/4 cup water
1 tsp. of food coloring (red)
1 tsp. of cinnamon oil (may be bought at Professional Pharmacy)
Powder Sugar
Boil sugar, syrup and water to soft crack with candy thermometer. Add food coloring and cinnamon oil. Stir up and pour into cake pan. Let stand and cool. Break by beating it with big spoon. Put powder sugar and pieces of candy in paper sack and shake it.

Empty candy and sugar in sifter or colander. Have wax paper underneath to catch sugar. Repeat until all candy is coated.

CHOCOLATE SHEET CAKE

Tina Parker

2 cups sugar
2 cups flour
1/2 cup cocoa
1 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup butter
1 cup water
1/2 cup butter milk
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
Combine sugar, flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt in large mixing bowl. Mix well. Heat butter and water in saucepan until boiling. Pour over dry ingredients and mix. Beat in butter milk, eggs and vanilla. Batter will be thin. Pour into 15 x 10 pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Makes 18 servings.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

(for sheet cake)
Tina Parker

1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup cocoa
6 Tbsps. milk
1 lb. powder sugar
1 cup chopped pecans
Combine butter, cocoa and milk. Heat to boil. Pour over sugar and nuts. Mix well. Spread on hot cake.

CLASSROOM BUTTER CREAM

1 tsp. vanilla
3 Tbsps. water
3/4 cup Crisco vegetable shortening
1 lb. powder sugar
Mix Crisco, water and vanilla on low speed until creamy. Add powder sugar and beat on medium speed about 2 minutes. Add small amounts of water as needed.

Enjoy HONEY BOY SALMON today!

When going on a trip, don't pack your diet

Pound-conscious Americans should leave their diets at home, advises a nationally known nutritionist.

Judith Stern, Sc.D., associate professor of nutrition at University of California, Davis, says diets on trips are "doomed to failure. At best, all a person can hope for is not to gain weight—just to maintain."

Instead of attempting to diet and ruining your trip by worrying about food constantly, Stern recommends "banking calories," that is, dieting before leaving on trip, and then eating in moderation during trip.

The success to which a person can maintain weight while on trip may depend on the type of trip, Stern points out. For example, she says, "One of the main attractions of cruise ship is the food. Persons who want to keep their weight down would be more realistic in setting their sights on a different type of trip."

Travelers who frequent restaurants along America's highways and roads, Stern advises that they become aware of the content of commonly eaten foods.

Travelers can eat creatively and enjoyably and still maintain their weight, says Stern. The prudent dieter can select foods from each of the four basic food groups (milk, meat, vegetable-fruit, and bread-cereal) for a balance, calorically moderate diet, at fast food restaurants, amusement parks and hotels "if they plan," she emphasizes.

Stern says a plain hamburger offered at many chains may range from a modest 250 to 300 calories, but a double patty burger with cheese can range from 500 to 1000 calories. Just a tablespoon of mayonnaise on a burger or butter on a roll can add 100 calories to a meal. Tartar sauce on fish sandwich can add 150 calories.

On the other hand, there are some calorie bargains to be found, too. A taco adds 200 to 300 calories to a day's menu, but also contributes a large percentage of the day's nutritional requirements. A small soft ice cream cone adds just 110 calories, and ordering a vanilla shake instead of chocolate will save a person 100 calories. Both are good sources of calcium.

Although Stern believes it's important to have a realistic estimate of the calorie content of different foods, she cautions that over concern with calories can spoil the enjoyment of eating and of the trip.

"You can't be concerned with eating the perfect food every minute of the day," she said. A meal at an amusement park may not be especially balanced but "it's what you eat the rest of the day," she explains that matters in terms of balancing calories and nutritional needs.

Stern advises putting a limit on sweets, but cautions against eliminating them from menus on trips entirely. She points, "Food is one of the delights of going on a trip. Eating should be enjoyable."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to decide what sort of a course of action you would like to place in motion and then to get into the practical organizational requirements.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Taking that plan to one who can put it through efficiently is wise, but be sure later that accepted procedure is used.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Complete that responsibility you are working on, and then look for another project. Watch your temper.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can come to a fine understanding with a partner and then you can handle your side of a new agreement.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Everything at work can be smooth during the day and then you reach a better understanding with a partner.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan just how you want to get your best talent working nicely and then do the work needed on it. Watch expenses.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Early handle home affairs and then you can go out for recreation you like. Be careful in the expenditure of money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put those ideas to work that will be helpful in the days ahead. The best answer to an annoying letter is silence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your monetary needs and know how best to meet them via a new plan, then discuss with your allies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You now understand how you can advance in your career and also gain some personal wishes.

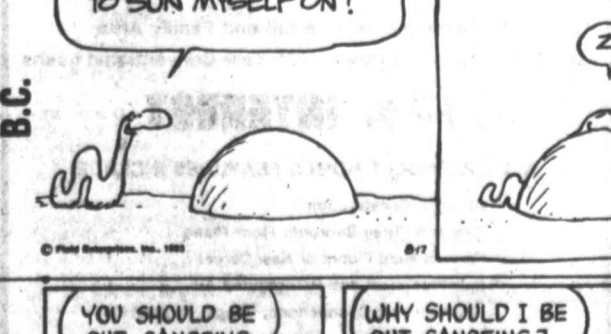

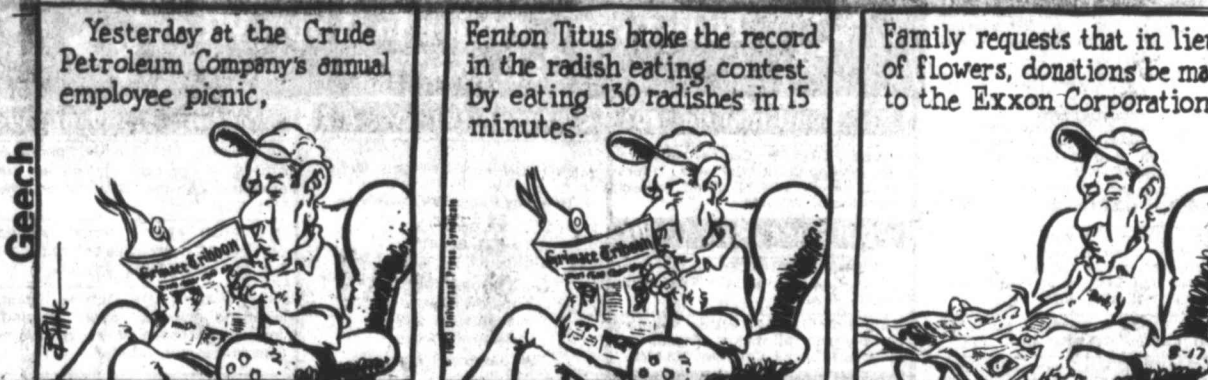

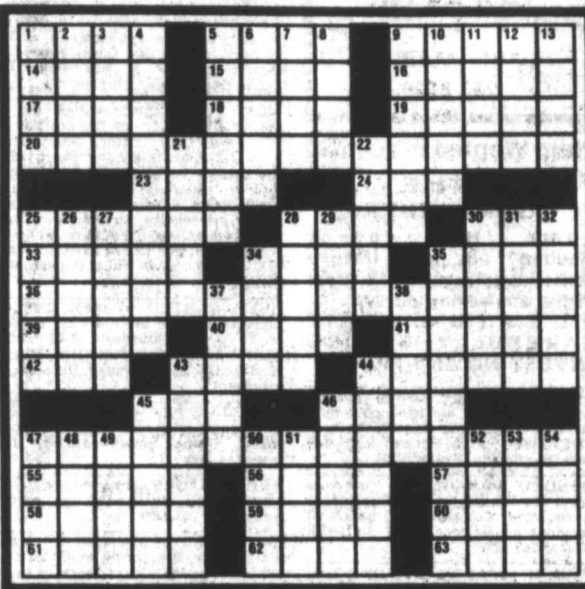

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A secret matter takes your time but handle it well. You find yourself restricted in the afternoon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Look to a good pal to assist you in gaining some aim of real importance to you. Don't irritate a new acquaintance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle that career matter wisely and friends will assist you, but avoid an argument with a bigwig in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to absorb much knowledge speedily and go after what is desired in the same manner, and also be able to put plans to work wisely. Give spiritual training early. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

SAD ANNIVERSARY — Fans of the late Elvis Presley file past his grave at Graceland Mansion on the sixth anniversary of his death Tuesday. Officials at Graceland, Presley's former residence, said between 3,600 and 4,000 fans a day visited the house during the four-day observance of the anniversary.

'Newhart' takes ratings lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A rerun of "Newhart," comedian Bob Newhart's second venture into situation comedy, was the highest-rated television show for the week ended Aug. 14 and helped keep CBS at the top.

It was the second time "Newhart," which made its bow last fall, had been at the top of the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings. The show was No. 1 for the first time for the week ended June 19.

The show helped lead CBS to another ratings victory for the week — its second straight after regaining the lead from NBC — although the network had only four shows in the Top 10. NBC and ABC had three each.

CBS won the week with a network average of 13.3. NBC was second with 12.8

and ABC was third with 11.4. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 13.3 percent of the country's TV homes were tuned to CBS.

The CBS comedy-drama "Trapper John, M.D." was second and the NBC movie "Wait Till Your Mother Gets Home" was third. Paul Michael Glaser and Dee Wallace starred in the film, about a macho football coach who becomes a house-husband during the summer.

Others in the Top 10: CBS' "The Jeffersons," 4th; NBC's "Hill Street Blues," "CBS' "Simon & Simon," and ABC's "9 to 5," a three-way tie for 5th place; NBC's "Cheers," 8th; ABC's "Hart to Hart" and "Three's Company," tied for 9th.

The highest-rated summer show was CBS' "On the Road with Charles Kuralt," which was tied for 19th. NBC's "Buffalo Bill" was No. 20, and ABC's "Eye on Hollywood" was 44th, "Reggie" 55th and "The Hampsons" 60th.

The lowest-rated show was "Kudzu," a CBS pilot based on the comic strip about a boy growing up in the rural South. The five bottom shows in descending order were ABC's NFL Pre-Season Football, New York Giants vs. Pittsburgh Steelers, NBC Reports "Bataan, the Forgotten Hell," the CBS special "Faeries," NBC's "Monitor" and CBS' "Kudzu."

Here are the week's Top 20 programs:

1. "Newhart," CBS, a rating of 19.6 or 16.3 million households.
2. "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, 19.1 or 15.9

3. Movie: "Wait Till Your Mother Gets Home," NBC, 18.5 or 15.4 million.
4. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 18.0 or 14.9 million.
5. "Hill Street Blues," NBC, 16.9 or 14.0 million.
5. Tie: "Simon & Simon," CBS, 16.9 or 14.0 million.
5. Tie: "9 to 5," ABC, 16.9 or 14.0 million.
8. "Cheers," NBC, 16.5 or 13.7 million.
9. "Hart to Hart," ABC, 16.4 or 13.6 million.
9. Tie: "Three's Company," ABC, 16.4 or 13.6 million.
11. "Facts of Life," NBC, 16.3 or 15.5 million.
12. Movie: "A Matter of Life and Death," CBS, 16.1 or 13.4 million.
13. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, 15.9 or 13.2 million.
14. "60 Minutes," CBS, 15.3 or 12.7 million.
14. Tie: "Knight Rider,"

NBC, 15.3 or 12.7 million.

16. Movie: "Mark, I Love You," CBS, 15.2 or 12.6 million.
17. Movie: "A Bridge Too Far," NBC, 14.8 or 12.3 million.
17. Tie: "20-20," ABC, 14.8 or 12.3 million.
19. "On the Road with Charles Kuralt," CBS, 14.6 or 12.1 million.
19. Tie: "Fantasy Island," ABC, 14.6 or 12.1 million.

Coalition wants to ban 'game'

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — The National Coalition on Television Violence wants to ban TV ads for an adult, life-size war game that features simulated "declarations of war and duels to the death."

The game, being promoted by National Survival Game, Inc., of New London, N.H., is played by adults who stalk one another over wooded terrain, trying to shoot the "enemy" with paint pellets shot from .68-caliber handguns.

"The Survival Game," already operating at scattered locations around the country, is expected to be established in 200 private parks in the United States and Canada by the end of the year. Similar parks are planned in Western Europe and Australia, the company says.

"The commercialized promotion and spread of this war game is very dangerous," said Dr. Thomas Radecki, chairman of the coalition and professor of psychiatry at the University of Illinois School of Medicine.

"It sanctions paramilitary groups and action for the normal American," Radecki said. "At the very moment that U.S. soldiers are getting more deeply involved in wars in El Salvador, Nicaragua, Lebanon and Chad, college fraternities and normal American businessmen are rehearsing declarations of war and duels to the death."

The coalition is asking its members to seek response time on any television station running advertisements for the game, and has also called for congressional hearings on the game and asked the Federal Communications Commission to bar the firm from advertising the game.

Company officials at National Survival Game Inc., headquarters in New London could not be reached by telephone after the close of business hours Monday. Attempts to reach one company official at home also proved unsuccessful.

The coalition said it polled 12 nationally recognized experts on aggression and violence, and said all agreed the game was dangerous.

"The comments by players were very scary," said Dr. Arnold Goldstein, director of the Center for Research on Aggression at Syracuse University. "They were getting off on it with an enhanced sense of power. This game makes it easier to pick up a gun, to view others as enemies and to kill them."

'Infertile' couple awaiting birth of twins in November

EL ORO, Calif. (AP) — Pat and John Tyler long ago accepted that they could not have children of their own. Both in their early 40s, they planned to put their four adopted children through college, then travel and retire.

That was before Mrs. Tyler discovered she was pregnant — with twins.

The sudden switch from anticipating an empty nest to getting ready for a double dose of diapers came as a "total shock," said Tyler, 40, who like his wife pursues a busy real estate career.

"It really hit us hard," said Mrs. Tyler, 43. "It was a combination of panic, fear, excitement and happiness all rolled up together."

The Tylers, both previously married and divorced, had each adopted two children when they could not have their own and by the time they married six years ago, they were sure their days of raising children were ending.

Her son Brett, 18, already is in college; her daughter Wendy, 14, will soon be gone from their home in this town 60 miles south of Los Angeles; and his children, Mike, 13, and Missy, 10, live with their mother.

Statistics tell their doubly improbable story: only one in a thousand women giving birth for the first time is over 40, and just one in 90 births is twins.

They were looking forward to travel and retirement when Mrs. Tyler inexplicably started gaining weight. Her doctor ordered a sonogram, which creates a kind of X-ray with sound waves, allowing patients and physicians a glimpse inside the body.

On the small dark screen in a laboratory, the couple saw something move inside

Mrs. Tyler. As they peered more closely, they saw a second moving object — twins.

Then came "the most major decision in our lives," Pat said.

They had always dreamed of natural parenthood, but they worried about disrupting their plans and that the adopted children might feel threatened by the twins. They also feared Down's syndrome, a congenital disease that occurs more frequently in children born to women Mrs. Tyler's age.

But after amniocentesis determined that Down's syndrome was not present in either fetus, they decided not to have an abortion. While waiting for the test results, Mrs. Tyler went to church every day. "I always lit two candles," she said.

They decided to travel "up the positive and happy road," Tyler said. Now Mrs. Tyler is staying off her feet to guard against a premature delivery before the expected arrival in November.

Meanwhile, the whole family is readjusting.

Tyler, embarrassed to be the oldest man in the obstetrician's office, warns: "The first time I get mistaken for their grandfather, it'll be trouble city."

Brett, a freshman at Saddleback College, wonders what it will be like attending his sisters' high school graduation when he is 36.

Wendy, always the youngest child around the house, says she's trying to get used to the idea of soon being the oldest; Missy says she'd look forward to having little sisters to pick on.

And the couple say they'll still manage to put all the children through college. "We're successful at our work, so we'll just figure out how to do it," she says.

The expectant couple admits being a little frightened, but, Tyler says, "We just take it one day at a time."

"They're really going to be special children," she adds. "Because I know I'll never be pregnant again."

City repairs ruptured water line on Johnson

City workers were repairing a ruptured water line early this morning on Johnson between Third and Fourth streets.

The break was reported at 1:10 a.m. today, according to Public Works Director Tom Decell. Water was temporarily cut off along Johnson from 2nd to 10th streets, but service was restored about 10:30 this morning, Decell said.

The section of Johnson where the rupture occurred was closed this morning because of damage to the street. Decell said he was not yet certain how much water was lost or how long the block would be barricaded.

He said the rupture may have been caused by a water hammer, created when surging water meets standing water, or air, during the opening and closing of valves. Water lines in the downtown area were being worked on Saturday, but Decell said he had not yet determined if the work contributed to this morning's break.

Absentee balloting continues

Absentee balloting continues for the Aug. 27 citywide election on the sale of 25 1/2 acres of park land. City Secretary Tom Ferguson said four absentee votes have been received. The balloting will continue through Aug. 23 at the city secretary's office.

Jury selection begins

Jury selection is expected to begin today in 118th District Court in a child custody case in the divorce of Stacy and Shell Williams of Big Spring. The couple have two girls and one boy, according to court records.

Council to award street contracts

The Big Spring City Council will meet tomorrow at 1 p.m. to award contracts for street improvements. The projects — part of Phase II of the city's capital improvements program — includes the widening of Birdwell Lane and the reconstruction of Goliad Street.

Three companies — Price Construction Co. of Big Spring, Borsberry Construction of El Paso and Jones Brothers Paving and Dirt of Odessa, have bid on the work.

Parkhill, Smith and Cooper of Lubbock, the city's consulting engineers, have estimated the total cost of the construction at $1,369,241.

The councilmen will meet in the city council chambers at City Hall at Fourth and Nolan.

Bible Fund grows to $2,330

Money for the Big Spring Bible Fund continues to be donated, according to Dr. Kenneth Patrick, director of the fund.

Money from the fund is used toward Bible classes at Big Spring High School, Coahoma and Forsan schools. It is estimated that about $14,000 is needed to fund the classes for the 1983-84 school years.

Those wishing to donate to the Bible fund may send money in care of the First Baptist Church or the Big Spring Herald.

The total, as of today, is $2,330.25.

Pallbearers will be Jimmie D. Jones, Hack Wright, Jimmie Dee Jones, Joe Whitaker, Reggie Shaw, and Frank Arner.

The family will be at 1105 Runnels.

3 transferred to Huntsville

Howard County sheriff deputies transferred three persons from county jail to the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville this weekend.

Transferred were Daniel Culverson, 34, of Georgia; Ruben Juarez, 23, of 1507 Wood and Bobby Arista, 23, of Coahoma. All begin prison sentences at TDC.

• Sheriff's deputies arrested Sandra Woods, 31, of 511 N. Lancaster in connection with a peace bond. Ms. Woods posted $1,000 bond to be released after her arraignment before Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin.

• Chris Wooten, 22, of Chaparral Drive posted $500 bond to be released after his arrest by police for suspicion of driving while license suspended. Wooten was arraigned before Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

• Freddie Garcia, 36, of 811 N. Goliad was released from county jail after serving one day in connection with a county court conviction for driving while intoxicated.

Accents, kissing were adjustments for Cecile

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The most difficult thing for Cecile Michellier while in Texas for four weeks was to not greet everyone with her native French kiss-on-both-cheeks.

The 16-year-old returns tomorrow to Aix-les-Bains, her hometown in southeast France, but not without some minor struggles in America and some bigger regrets at leaving.

Cecile is in Big Spring as part of the Tuesday Rotary Club's Exchange Program. After Big Spring High School student Stacy Jackson spent June in France with Cecile, the teenagers came to Stacy's home in Big Spring for four weeks.

"I was really embarrassed in the beginning to say hello or goodbye because in France, we kiss people," Cecile said. "I don't know what to do with my hands."

Stacy, the daughter of Howard County Children's Librarian Donna Jackson, said the traditional French greeting — a light kiss on both cheeks — was a surprise to her as well.

"I thought they just did that with people getting awards," Stacy said.

"Stacy told me 'Don't do it, don't do it,'" Cecile said, laughing.

Cecile also had some difficulty deciphering the infamous Texas accent — a little different from the British language tapes she learned English from. "You have a funny accent in Texas," Cecile said. "It's very hard for me to understand people; it's very funny."

CECILE MICHELLIER
...enjoys U.S. visit

The French teenager said Big Spring and the United States had some surprises for her in addition to the salutation and accent problems.

"I've never seen such big and rich cars," she said.

Meals were different from her own experience, Cecile said. At her home, meals were special occasions everyone prepared for to eat together, she said. Here everyone ate when they wanted, sometimes just taking food from the refrigerator.

Supermarkets had one unique difference: the shopping bags are bigger, Cecile said.

Stacy said Cecile was less inhibited about things like dancing in public.

"When she hears something on the radio, she'll just get up and dance like they do in France," Stacy said.

Her hometown is an old village in the Alps near Switzerland and Italy with some famous hot springs once visited by kings and queens. The springs continue to draw visitors, Cecile says. Although she says she doesn't like the mountains, Cecile loves to ski and can be on the slopes in an hour.

Cecile also visited Dallas, Austin, San Antonio and San Marcos while staying in Big Spring. The French student says she regrets having to leave the United States after such a short visit.

"I'd like to stay. The people are friendly; they are neat," Cecile said. "They are more cool than in France."

Freshwater wells suffer from waste

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — More than a century of dumping oil field saltwater and wastes in large open pits has helped to contaminate many of West Texas' freshwater wells beyond recovery, a state official said.

Bill Lockey, regional supervisor for the Texas Department of Water Resources in Odessa, said the practice compounded a problem already caused by the natural underground salt formations in many areas of the Permian Basin.

The unregulated dumping of oil field brines and wastes was common from the 1860s until 1969 when it was prohibited by the Texas Railroad Commission, said Archie Farr, supervisor of the Midland's oil and gas division office of the Texas Railroad Commission.

The RRC regulates the oil and gas industry and has authority to impose fines and severances against companies that violate pollution control standards. But some companies have continued their illegal dumping, anyway, Farr told the Odessa American.

For more than two weeks recently, a West Texas oil company was barred by the Commission from selling crude oil that had been produced in a Mitchell County oilfield because the commission said it violated the prohibition.

Saltwater tanks near the company's well operation had overflowed into a nearby drilling pit, said a spokesman for the company, who described the incident as an accident that was cleaned up as quickly as possible.

Through the years, the Railroad Commission office in Midland, one of 10 regional offices statewide, has investigated "hundreds" of pollution complaints, most attributable to past dumping of oil field brine into open pits, Farr said.

His office is actively investigating 11 complaints of oil field-related pollution in the Permian Basin, Farr said.

In Midland County, William Adams complained that his trees were being killed by the water from his underground water well.

"It's been about two years since we first noticed it," said Adams' wife, Melba. "That's when we began to get a little salt."

Mrs. Adams said the well water this spring killed several grape vines, two peach trees, "an apple tree or two," and cannabis, a flowering plant "that grows anywhere."

Wayne McClung, one of the Railroad Commission's nine field investigators from Midland, said none of his tests indicated a nearby pumpjack is contaminating the water. But tests on the Adams' water showed the water contained 1,775 parts of chlorides per million molecules, seven times the "comfortable" chloride level, he added.

"It's those old pits from back in the '70s," McClung said.

Dwight Hoenig, former chief of the Environmental Protection Agency's groundwater protection section in Dallas, said abandoned drilling pits can be a major source of water contamination in the Permian Basin.

"We're seeing the upshot of the laws of physics," he said. "For a long time in Texas, oil companies utilized the evaporation laws for disposal of saltwater and production brines. In hindsight, it turned out to be a poor practice from the standpoint of water quality."

Hoenig said water quality in the vicinity of those pits may be impacted for years to come.

Altrusas hold tea

The Altrusa Club of Big Spring held a membership tea in the home of Mary Lynn Welch, Aug. 6.

Special guests were Mary Alice Tidwell, Myrtlene Bearden and Tup Ferguson, all members of the Altrusa Club of Midland. Miss Tidwell, former District Nine 1st governor-elect, presented the program.

Miss Tidwell spoke on the needs of women, such as the need to belong, to be able to communicate with others, and the need of feeling of accomplishment among others.

Officers for 1983-84 year are: Deloris Albert, president; Pat Highley, vice president; Neva Green, recording secretary; Frances Hendrick, treasurer; Audrey Wilson, corresponding secretary; Mary Lynn Welch and Ruby Billings, directors; and Debra Alexander, immediate past president.

Midland's crime rate plummets

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — City leaders have long said that as the oil economy goes, so goes Midland. But they didn't know that meant their crime statistics.

Midland experienced records in all crime categories a year ago — a trend that local law enforcement officers attributed to a proliferation of drifters seeking their fortunes in the oil patch or elsewhere in the Sun Belt.

But oil production has plummeted in recent months, coinciding with a glut worldwide. Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon said his city's crime problem decreased at the same time.

The first two months of 1983, crime statistics continued at or above the record pace of 1982. But things have been on a downturn ever since.

Through the first six months of 1983, Midland had 14 murders. For the same January-June period of 1982, only three have been committed. The city had 2,114 burglaries reported the first half of 1983, compared with 1,150 halfway through 1982.

The change may be the result of fewer drifters arriving in the area, Gideon said. The Midland police department is called on from time to time to help people cross the country, "and those requests are down considerably," he said.

"I wouldn't at all be surprised if some of the problems who came here during the boom-time atmosphere perhaps have left," Gideon said. "Maybe they moved on, maybe back to the Dallas-Fort Worth area where the business is good and the pickings are easy," Gideon told the Dallas Morning News.

At Odessa, about 20 miles to the west on Interstate 20, police Lt. Rusty Baker said the number of aggravated assaults, burglaries and auto thefts has dropped in recent months, but the number of murders, robberies and larcenies has risen.

Odessa, like Midland, has been seeing a whole lot fewer drifters "but you can't say that the drifters were committing all the offenses — just some thefts and burglaries," Baker said.

Civic clubs selling Steers opener tickets

Representatives of 11 Big Spring civic clubs are selling special tickets to the Steers season and home football opener Sept. 2 against Snyder.

In an effort to put fans in the stands, club members are selling $4 tickets that can be redeemed for reserved seats at the gate on game night or at the BSISD administration offices Aug. 22-Sept. 2.

Civic clubs participating in the "Fill the Stadium" project are the Big Spring Rotary, Greater Big Spring Rotary, the Downtown Lions, Evening Lions, Morning Optimists, Noon Optimists, ABC, Civitans, Kiwanis, Ambassadors and Jaycees. A total of 5,000 tickets will try to be sold.

Also that night, the Evening Lions are sponsoring a barbecue dinner at the high school cafeteria. More information will be released at a later date.

CHS tickets on sale

COAHOMA — Season tickets went on sale for Bulldog football games today at the superintendent's office.

Reserved tickets, priced at $12.50 for five home games, will be sold from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 15-Sept. 2. General admission seats are $3 each at the gate. No reserved seats will be sold at game time.

Fall Classic event scheduled Aug. 19-21

The Big Spring Fall Classic softball tournament is scheduled Aug. 19-20 at Johnny Stone Park.

The tournament is for Class B and under teams. Trophies go to the top six teams, with first through fourth taking home individual awards. An all-tournament, MVP and team sportsmanship trophy will be awarded.

Entry fee is $100 per team and limited to first 20 entrants. Contact Rocky Vierra at 267-7773 or Noel Hull at 263-3108 to enter.

Two teams tie for first

Two teams tied for championship honors Sunday at the Big Spring Golf Association Louisiana Draw.

The fivesome of Tom Mills, John Stanley, Steve Barker, Quinn Eudy and Dr. B.H. Lee fired a 9-under-par 62 for top honors. The foursome of Royce Cox, Mike Pruitt, Lynn Wigginton and Greg Jaklewicz matched their 62 effort.

Third place went to the team of Mike Scarbrough, Lloyd Duncan, Pat Boatler, E.L. Terry and Bryon Harris with a 63, eight-under-par.

The next BSGA event is scheduled Sept. 11, also at the Comanche Trails Golf Course.
