Program may aid buyers

Low-interest home bonds to be issued

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — About $217 million in low-interest housing bonds will be released to a host of state lending institutions later this week and could be available to first-time home buyers in Texas by Monday.

But Big Spring residents will have to do some traveling to have a chance to take advantage of the program.

The Texas Housing Agency approved the issuance of the bonds Wednesday. The program is designed to help low- and moderate-income families purchase homes.

In addition to first-time home buyers, persons who have not owned a home in three years are eligible under the mortgage program, according to Earline Jewett, the agency's executive administrator.

The interest rate on the bonds was set at 10.75 percent, the lowest yet offered in the three-year history of the Texas Housing Agency. The federal government on Monday reduced the maximum interest rate for federally backed conventional mortgages — Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and Veterans Administration (VA) loans — from 13.5 percent to 13 percent.

Prospective home buyers that meet the agency's eligibility requirements without a participating lending institution will be allowed to apply in other cities, some of them hundreds of miles away.

Big Spring-area residents may make mortgage applications at any of four institutions: Mercantile Texas Mortgage Co. and Mortgage & Trust, Inc., both of Midland; Mercantile Texas Mortgage Co. and Ryan Mortgage Co., both of Odessa.

Action/reaction: After hours

Q. Does the Big Spring school district pay Bauer Magnet School teachers extra for staying until 5 p.m. each day?
A. According to Superintendent Lynn Hise, magnet school teachers are not paid extra; however, the teachers do come in an hour later in the mornings to compensate for staying until 5 p.m. Hise said regular teacher hours are 8:15 a.m. to 4 p.m.; magnet school teachers work from 9:15 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Calendar: Fiesta fun

TODAY
• The Big Spring Independent School District trustees will meet at 5:15 p.m. in the high school boardroom.

THE OFFICER'S POOL — This swimming pool, located on the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf campus at the Air Park, was built for officers at Webb Air Force Base. When the base closed in 1978, the land was deeded to the Howard County Junior College District. There are no public plans to renovate this pool.

Public pools in various stages of disrepair, local officials say

By RICHARD HORN, Staff Writer

While city officials prepare to renovate the leaking Comanche Trail Park swimming pool, two other giant swimming holes — built for the United States Air Force — sit dry at the Big Spring Air Park.

Both of the pools are on land deeded to the Howard County Junior College District when Webb Air Force Base closed in 1978. The district plans to restore one of them, the former NCO club pool located between Cactus Jack's club and the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, but funding problems have put the work on temporary hold. There are no plans for the former officer's club pool located next to the SWCID dormitories behind the Senior Citizens Center.

Meanwhile, Big Spring officials are budgeting $30,000 for repairs to the city pool. That facility, built in 1935, loses as much as 80,000 gallons of water a day through leaks in expansion joints, and the situation is worsening.

City Manager Don Davis said a plan to keep the pool open on weekends through Labor Day had to be scrapped because of heavy water loss; it was too costly to fill the pool for a couple of days' business a week, he told the council Tuesday night.

The city has budgeted $30,000 to repair the leaks, the filter system and plumbing and electrical systems. The council Tuesday night approved an application for another $30,000 in matching funds from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

Big Spring's Parks and Recreation Director Gary Tabor said the extra $30,000, if approved, would be available early next year. The renovation could then be completed for next summer's swimmers.

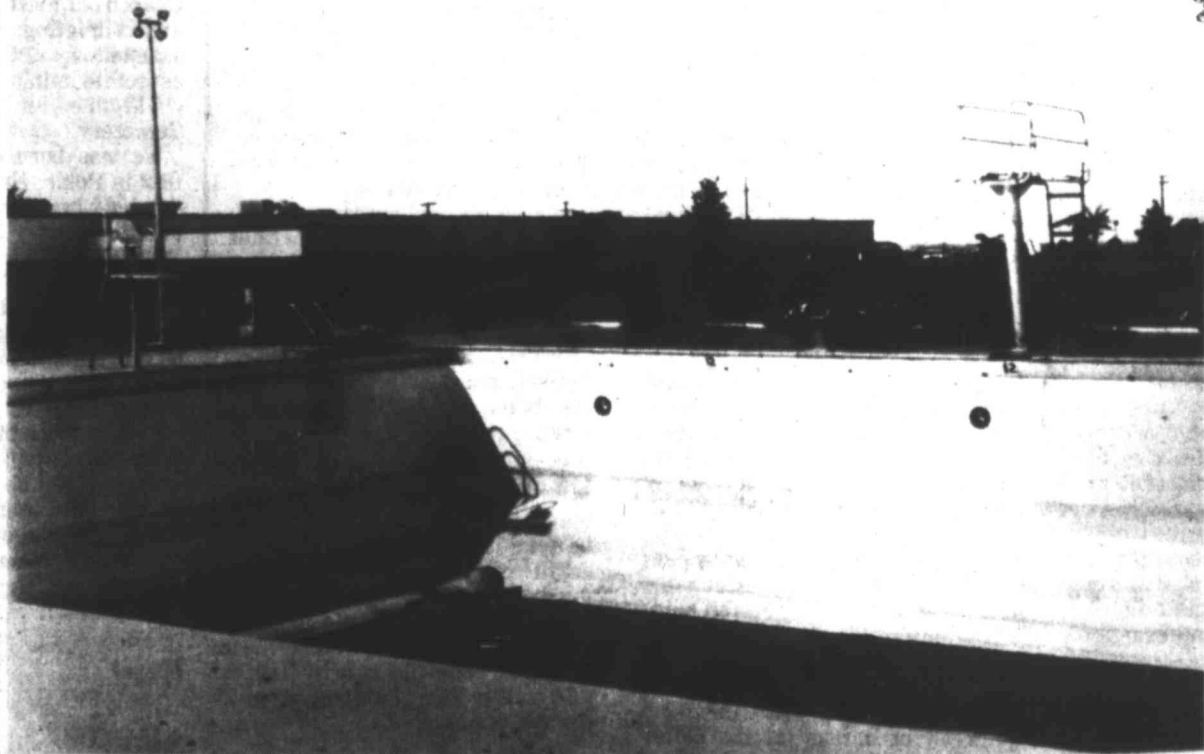

"We've got a beautiful building and a good pool," Tabor said. "I think attendance will be improved when we do get it fixed."

Tabor, who took office in July, said he was aware of the two Air Park pools, but knows of no city plans to use either of them.

"I wondered about that. But then I found out they belonged to Howard College, so I didn't pursue it," he said.

The two pools, built around 1956, are 12 feet at their deepest points and have high diving platforms.

THE NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS' POOL — The Howard County Junior College District has plans to renovate and perhaps enclose this pool, located behind what is now Cactus Jack's club at the Air Park.

Gramm gains endorsements

DALLAS (AP) — The day after Sen. John Tower announced he would not seek re-election, Rep. Phil Gramm picked up key endorsements and emerged as the GOP frontrunner for the seat, party observers said.

PHIL GRAMM

Gramm, who won re-election this year to Congress after switching to the Republican Party, said Wednesday that he would not announce his decision about running until after Labor Day. Nevertheless, he received encouragement and near endorsements across the state and from all factions of the GOP.

Republican officials said they are optimistic despite Tower's status as a lame duck next August, and former Texas Gov. Bill Clements' loss to Mark White last November.

But officials are counting on Gramm to keep the Republicans on track in the shifting political winds since GOP leaders decided to hold their 1984 convention here.

One Republican insider who asked not to be identified told the Dallas Morning News, "Gramm is so new to the party, he hasn't made anybody mad yet." Another political analyst said Gramm, of College Station, could have the nomination "locked up within 10 days."

Ceci Cole, communications director for the national Republican Senatorial Committee, said Gramm appears politically stronger than any other GOP candidate.

"Right now, he doesn't appear to be suffering much from his party switch," she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "He's been a conservative Democrat. He's got a proven record in getting votes of conservative Democrats, which you've got to get as a Republican in Texas."

The number of possible GOP candidates dwindled as Gramm picked up support Wednesday.

Republican congressman Bill Archer of Houston and Tom Loeffler of Hunt both announced they would not be candidates.

Rash of suicides triggers concern

PLANO, Texas (AP) — Authorities are mystified by the recent rash of teen-age suicides here, and although they can find no common thread they believe that with each suicide chances increase for it to happen again.

AP

A youth may opt for suicide because "my friends did it," said Dr. Glenn Weimer, a family therapist spearheading a drive to establish a crisis hotline in Plano.

"When suicides aren't occurring, it's not considered to be an option. But when they start occurring, suicide is considered to be an option," he said.

The suicide of an 18-year-old Scott Difiglia is the sixth such teen-age death this year and the third this week in this fast-growing, mostly white collar suburb of Dallas.

Authorities cannot pinpoint a common thread in the deaths, which began Feb. 23 when Bruce Carrio, 16, killed himself after a friend died in a drag-racing accident.

School officials point out that none of the reasons given in suicide notes have been school-related.

Young romance has played the key part in at least four of the deaths.

Difiglia, the latest suicide victim, died Tuesday night at Presbyterian Hospital, where he had been in critical condition since he shot himself in the head Monday afternoon.

On Aug. 17, the bodies of John Gundlah and Mary Bridget Jacobs, both 17, were found in the garage of a house under construction. The teens, who dated each other, died of carbon monoxide poisoning and a suicide note indicated they could no longer bear living apart, police said.

Also in February, Glenn Currey, 18, was found asphyxiated in his garage. Police theorize it was a breakup with a girl.

Henry Doriot, a middle-school pupil, killed himself April 18 with a .22 caliber rifle in his home. No reason was given.

Weimer said "it is possible" that publicity surrounding the suicides had fueled more deaths, "but at the same time I don't feel the public can avoid dealing with it."

"It's a two-edged sword," he said. Weimer said pinpointing the problem is difficult.

"I think there are a lot of reasons — and I don't think there are a lot of common reasons between the kids ... certainly, feelings of despair and discouragement," Weimer said. Weimer said general causes for teen-age suicides often involves youths' feelings that they are "not being heard by their families or significant adults" in their lives.

Police Beat

Murder suspect arrested

Big Spring police have arrested a second suspect in the July 30 stabbing death of Manuel Lopez. Tony Flores, 21, of 100 Whipkey was arrested Wednesday afternoon at a Glasscock County residence, according to police Lt. Alvin Jeffcoat.

Flores was arrested on warrants for murder, aggravated assault and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and revocation of bond, Jeffcoat said. His bond was set at $50,000 but was later denied by Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

Jeffcoat said Howard County sheriff's Detective John Wolf and Glasscock County Sheriff's Deputy Mike Pinkard assisted in the arrest. Police have a third suspect in the stabbing, Jeffcoat said.

Police reports also showed the following:
 • Carroll Coates said a man walked onto his car sales lot at 1101 W. 4th at 3 p.m. Wednesday and asked to test drive a $3,900 car. The man took the car and didn't return, Coates said.

About three hours later, Police arrested William Rodney Ethridge, 29, of Odessa on a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle near Stanton. He is being held on $10,000 bond set by Daratt.

• Miles Franklin Sherwood told police someone took his stereo from his room at the Thrifty Lodge at 1000 W. Fourth between 3 a.m. and 9:20 a.m. Wednesday. The stereo was valued at $400.

• Janice Salazar of 1101 1/2 Johnson said her purse containing over $100 in jewelry was stolen at Big Spring High School Tuesday morning.

• Police say they arrested three white male juveniles following a report of tire slashings in the 1800 block of Nolan early Sunday morning. The cases were turned over to Howard County juvenile probation officer Margy Thompson.

Sheriff's Log

Woman injured in assault

Sheriff's deputies said they received a report at 9:45 p.m. Wednesday concerning a domestic disturbance at a residence on Route 3.

Deputies discovered a woman at the scene suffering from an apparent broken jaw after reportedly being assaulted by someone she knows. Details of the assault were unknown.

Deputies said the woman was transported by Shaffer Ambulance Service to Malone-Hogan Hospital where she remains in stable condition with a broken jaw, broken cheek bone and abrasions.

No formal complaint has been filed by the woman, according to deputies.

Sheriff's records also contained the following:

• Johnny Ray Hash, 21, of 1524 E. 17th pleaded guilty in 118th District Court to the charge of involuntary manslaughter, receiving a 10-year probation sentence.

Hash was charged in the death of Sabrina Hatfield, 19, who was killed on Sept. 27, 1982 when the pickup truck Hash was driving skidded out of control in the 100 block of Cedar striking a fence, a tree and a house.

• Roy Lee Spivey, 28, of 1305 Madison and Michael T. Shults, 28, of 3718 Hatch were released on $1,500 bond after being arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin on suspicion of unlawfully carrying a weapon.

• Mrs. Juan A. Morales of Lamesa was arrested by the Dawson County Sheriff's Office on a Howard County warrant for the issuance of bad checks. Records show Mrs. Morales paid the checks and a fine totaling $131.55 and was released.

• Martha L. Huffman, 47, of Arrey, N.M., was released on a $1,000 bond after being charged before Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

• Henry C. Schooley, 40, of Robert Lee was arrested at the Veterans Administration Medical Center on a warrant issued by the Coke County Sheriff's Office for probation violations. Records show Schooley was later transferred to Coke County officials.

• Albino Ortega, 51, of 817 N.W. Sixth was released on $2,500 bond after being arraigned before Daratt on suspicion of burglary.

• Stephen M. Ray, 28, of Route 2 was released on bonds totaling $2,700 after being charged before Heflin on suspicion of unlawfully carrying a weapon and DWI.

• Breezie Hernandez, address not available, was arrested in Groesbeck on a Howard County warrant for issuance of bad checks. Records show she paid a fine and checks totaling $73.81 and was released.

2 district judges named

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White has appointed Michael Schattman and Joe Bruce Cunningham to state district judge posts in Tarrant County.

Schattman will serve as judge of the 348th district court, and Cunningham will preside in the 342nd district court.

UNIVERSITY OF EVANSVILLE, EAST — Harlaxton, a rambling, ornate manor house dating back to the 1830s, is the British campus of the University of Evansville in Indiana. Situated on 675 acres of lush land in the wealthy Lincolnshire farming region, Harlaxton lies 110 miles north of London.

English castle is campus for students from America

GRANTHAM, England (AP) — It looks like a mirage on the rolling green landscape of English farmlands — a castle of towers, turrets and filigree that draws startled gasps from travelers who ask, "Good heavens, what is it?"

Tell them this splendor called Harlaxton is the campus of a midwestern American university, and they gasp again.

"I love to bring people here for the first time just to listen to the 'oohs and aahs' as they drive up," said Isabella Fine, a moving force in the U.S.-based Harlaxton Society that has rallied support for this unique Anglo-American enterprise.

Although other American institutions have launched programs abroad, none has acquired a property as vast or impressive as this rural palace.

Harlaxton, a rambling, ornate manor house dating back to the 1830s is the British campus of the University of Evansville, Indiana. Situated on 675 acres of lush land in the wealthy Lincolnshire farming region, Harlaxton lies 110 miles north of London — a well-kept secret from all but those who happen to be invited or pass by.

The nearest town is Grantham, birthplace of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, famed among Londoners as "the most boring town in England." Its low profile enhances the surprise of Harlaxton.

"When students arrive here, they are absolutely awestruck," said Graddon Rowlands, the British principal who has guided Harlaxton for six years. "They go around for three days saying, 'Wow.' But very soon it becomes home."

Although imbued with English culture, Rowlands noted that American students don't forget their hometown roots. This winter, Harlaxton made international news briefly when two students — one of them Jim Donahue, the son of talk show host Phil Donahue — made a trans-Atlantic overnight run to New York to satisfy the student body's craving for an all-American delicacy, pizza.

"It was their idea and they paid for the trip by selling shares of the pizzas to the students and faculty," Rowlands said. "They brought back 42 pizzas. We heated them in the oven and had a jolly party."

In recent weeks, during the summer break in classes, the campus has entertained the trustees from Evansville who oversee the future of this elegant educational project.

The delegates were entertained in royal style by the lords and ladies who comprise the university's British Advisory Council.

Princess Diana's sister, Lady Sarah McCorquodale, was on hand along with such personages as Sir John Wedgwood (of the famed china family) and his wife, art historian Pamela Tudor-Craig, during festivities which took the trustees to stately homes and castles from England to Ireland and Wales.

The British group will visit Evansville this fall. Leading the American delegation to England was Evansville University President Wallace Graves. It was he who first dreamed that Evansville could have such a home away from home.

Graves, trained in international relations and law, was an educational innovator since his days as head of the University of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif. When he moved to Evansville as president in 1967, his dream of an international learning center took shape.

"I had felt for a long time that any institution which has a mission of preparing the rising generation for life in the 21st century can't succeed unless it finds ways to convince young people of the smallness of the world and the interdependence of its people," Graves said.

Scouring English magazines, Graves spotted an ad for a manor house, Harlaxton, which had been leased by Stanford University in the 1960s, was available. A group of Jesuits who owned it had abandoned plans to make it a seminary.

In 1971, a sign was posted on the ornate front gate: "British Campus of the University of Evansville." The first class of 80 students came from Evansville. "Our original curriculum was English literature and economic sociology," Graves recalled. "But special interests of the students led us into other areas."

Subjects now range from archaeology to nursing. Admission now is open to students from other universities and countries. Enrollment has risen to 160.

In 1978, an Evansville trustee, San Francisco ophthalmologist Dr. William Ridgeway, decided to buy Harlaxton for the university.

Shortly before the purchase, Rowlands was brought in as principal. He had lived in the United States, lecturing at Duke University, and understood both sides of the cultural mix.

"Many of the young people who come here have never been outside their home state," Rowlands said. "It's a magical experience, but they're likely to be apprehensive. In six years that I've been here we have lost only one student to homesickness."

A new class arrives at Harlaxton soon. Students will pay tuition of $6,500 a year with air fare and spending money for the more elaborate field trips not included. A few scholarships are given to applicants among Evansville's 7,000 students.

The extravagant interior of Harlaxton is undergoing refurbishment, and Graves hopes to expand its recreational facilities. But the success of this venture has the president dreaming again.

"I'm keeping my eye out for another campus," he said, "somewhere in the world."

Homes

 A spokesman for the Texas Real Estate Research Center at Texas A&M University said the bond money could fund about 4,340 mortgages, based on an average sales price of $50,000.

Jack Freedman, a research coordinator for the center, said he would not be surprised if eligible families drive more than 100 miles to apply for the loans because of the possible savings.

For example, he said, monthly principal and interest payments on a $50,000 home, financed with a 13 percent interest rate, would be $553. With an 11 percent mortgage, he said, the monthly principal and interest payments would be $476.

To be eligible for the state-backed loan program, single borrowers must have had an adjusted gross income of $33,000 or less during 1982. Family incomes must not have exceeded $42,000 for eligibility.

In all, the agency approved issuing $238.8 million in housing bonds, but $21.8 million is to cover administrative costs and to establish a loan reserve fund, Ms. Jewett said.

Originally, the housing agency staff had recommended issuing $150 million in housing bonds, but that plan was changed when the bond market took a turn for the better last week.

The $238.8 million bond issue is the largest Texas is allowed to sell under existing federal guidelines, Ms. Jewett said, adding agency staff originally feared they could not sell more than $150 million on the bond market because of investor apprehension.

Before the decline in interest rates, staff members had expected the home mortgage interest rates to be set at about 11 or 11 1/2 percent.

"In other words, we hit the market just right," Ms. Jewett said. The housing bond sale is the second largest in the United States this year, exceeded only by a recent $300 million bond sale approved by Ohio, she said.

A 1980 bond sale by the Texas Housing Agency resulted in an 11.2 percent interest rate for home mortgages while a 1982 sale resulted in a 13.93 percent interest rate, Ms. Jewett said.

Pools

 bathhouses, wading pools, sundecks, showers and water treatment units.

Dr. Charles Hays, Howard College president, said the district is looking for funds to renovate and perhaps enclose the open pool for use by SWCID and Howard College students and staff.

"It would cost a lot more to fix up the other one, and it's not as nice a pool anyway," Hays said. "If someone were to want it, we could work that out. But I don't know that the city wants the pool."

"It will take a lot more than just filling them with water," Sam Hill, vice president for SWCID, said of the renovation. "It could require replacement of pumps and pipes."

But Hill said he couldn't estimate when the pool work would begin. "Unless we get money from private sources, the quickest way will be to put in a funding request for the next session of the Legislature."

According to Hill, the pool project was in SWCID's original $11 million budget request for 1983-84. The Legislature approved $3.9 million.

The pool is considered a low, low priority, though our students probably view it as a high priority," Hill said. "It would be nice, but there are other capital outlays with greater need."

There is a third pool at the Air Park, the former enlisted men's pool, located on land deeded to the Federal Bureau of Prisons for the Big Spring Prison Camp. John Allman, the camp's superintendent, said the pool is in good condition, although it was not used this summer.

"We've used it in the past," he said, "but it wasn't used this last year because of lack of government money. But it's a good pool."

Student art fair planned

The Big Spring Parks and Recreation Board is sponsoring an arts and crafts fair for local students. The contest will include young artists in the following divisions:

Freshman through grade 2; grade 3 to grade 5; grade 6; grades 7 and 8; and grades 9 through 12.

Entries must have as a theme some aspect of the Big Spring area. Arts and/or crafts should be taken to the Dora Roberts Community Center on Sept. 15 and 16 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

There is no entry fee. Awards will be given for first, second and third places in each division.

After judging, exhibits will be displayed at Citizens Federal Credit Union on Sept. 17.

Disaster relief sought

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White said Wednesday he had received estimates of a need for $1.2 billion in federal disaster assistance for six counties that suffered severe damage during Hurricane Alicia.

White said disaster officials in the Houston-area counties compiled reports that support estimates of damage to the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

More than $600 million is needed for individual assistance, $100 million is needed for crop damage relief, and $500 million is needed for federal assistance, according to the estimates, White said.

Galveston, Fort Bend, Harris, Brazoria, Chambers and Matagorda counties are covered by an existing disaster declaration. White said damage estimates are being compiled for federal consideration in San Jacinto, Montgomery, Liberty and Jefferson counties.

In addition to the $1.2 billion estimate, White said the U.S. Small Business Administration has been asked to approve $20 million in home loans and $15 million in business loans. The Farmers Home Administration is being asked for $20 million.

The state also is seeking $1.2 million from the U.S. Department of Education disaster aid program.

Jobs act aids history

AUSTIN — Historic preservation efforts in Texas will benefit from $482,000 allocated the state under the federal Emergency Jobs Act, Gov. Mark White said Wednesday.

In addition there will be $245,000 in state funds spent as part of the Historic Preservation Grants Program.

Among the projects receiving the federal Emergency Jobs money were the restoration of Socorro Mission in El Paso, the Shelby County courthouse in Center, the old railroad depot in Brownsville, and the Grand Opera House in Galveston.

State funded projects under the Texas Historic Preservation Grants Program include restoration of the Lundberg Baker Building, the North Evans Chateau and a portion of St. Edward's University, all in Austin; the Bexar County courthouse in San Antonio; the Santa Fe depot in Gainesville; and the Krutcher House in Caldwell.

Pitcher pays dream visit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 6-year-old boy hospitalized with a virulent form of leukemia met the man of his dreams when Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Fernando Valenzuela dropped by for a visit.

The prognosis is guarded for Luis Hermida of San Fernando, say doctors at the UCLA Medical Center, where player and patient were brought together Tuesday.

Luis, wearing a yellow cap and shirt, pinned a button with the word "hero" on Valenzuela's shirt. Despite the pain and weakening effects of treatment for lymphoblastic leukemia, Luis still acts out his dream of becoming a big-league pitcher in the family's backyard, his father said.

"He's the pitcher and he calls himself Fernando," said Hermida, his eyes brimming with tears. "He winds up and raises his eyes to the skies just like Fernando. Then he turns and throws the ball like it's really something. He doesn't throw hard. But he throws it."

When reporters asked the 22-year-old Valenzuela how he felt about the visit, Hermida translated from Spanish. "He feels very pleased to be in such a situation like this and he's very happy to help the child."

As for his son, Hermida said, "This was his dream. He will never forget this as long as he lives."

Governor wants no fuss

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace doesn't like to have a big fuss made over his birthday, says an aide, who added that a small party was planned for the governor's 64th birthday today.

"He never wants a big deal made over his birthday," said Margaret McElroy, Wallace's confidential secretary, on Wednesday, "but sometimes we like to make a big deal out of it." She said his staff and Cabinet would attend.

'King,' 'Queen' in court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Melvin Belli, the "King of Torts," is being sued by the "Queen of Hearts."

Attorney Iris Mitgang, whose law partners call her the "Queen of Hearts" because she handles divorce cases, says she tripped in the courtyard of Belli's Montgomery Street office Aug. 4 because it was cluttered with gardening equipment.

A former president of the National Women's Political Caucus, Ms. Mitgang said she may need surgery on her foot.

She didn't say how much she would want to settle the case. "I'm not looking for $1 million, maybe not even $100,000," Ms. Mitgang said Wednesday of the action filed this month in Superior Court.

The 75-year-old Belli, who has gained fame and riches for handling torts — civil actions — told an interviewer, "Even in the King of Torts' office, there is such a thing as contributory negligence," meaning that a person who trips may not have been careful enough.

He said he has heard Ms. Mitgang wants $5 million, adding, "Now that's getting up in my class."

Actor wants to build wall

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Cliff Robertson says he doesn't want to build a "Berlin Wall," but does want a 12-foot seawall to protect his beachfront property from the elements.

Robertson said he has been trying for five years to get the state Coastal Commission to approve a seawall that would replace one that was destroyed in a 1978 storm. The commission has denied his application until he deeds part of the beach to the public.

However, earlier this year, an appeals court ruled that the commission's access requirement was unconstitutional.

Theory: tapes never existed

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Attorney Robert K. Steinberg made up a graphic story about videotapes showing model Vicki Morgan, Alfred Bloomingdale and government officials in sex acts, then falsely reported the tapes stolen, a prosecutor says.

"The people's theory of the case is that the tapes never existed," Deputy District Attorney Marsha N. Revel said Wednesday when it was revealed that Steinberg had been indicted for filing a false report that the tapes had been stolen.

The charge, announced earlier by District Attorney Robert Philobosian, was the latest twist in a convoluted sidelight to the July 7 beating death of Miss Morgan, mistress of the late department store heir Bloomingdale.

Miss Morgan filed a $10 million palimony suit last summer against Bloomingdale, a member of President Reagan's "kitchen cabinet" and her lover for 12 years. A judge tossed out the bulk of Miss Morgan's suit after Bloomingdale died of cancer in August 1982.

Four days after Miss Morgan's body was found in her Studio City apartment, Steinberg announced he had the so-called "sex tapes" and warned they could embarrass the Reagan administration.

Steinberg said he had been given the tapes by a "mystery woman" and that they depicted a congressman, two high-level Reagan appointees and two prominent businessmen cavorting with women, including Miss Morgan.

Strike to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nationwide strike by the Communications Workers of America against American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will continue because some of the 34 striking CWA locals have not been able to reach local contracts, the union said early Thursday.

At the Washington headquarters of the union, which represents 525,000 of the 675,000 workers in three unions who struck AT&T on Aug. 7, spokesman Duayne Trecker said that as of 12:30 a.m. EDT, "We are unable to get satisfactory local agreement at all our local tables."

Trecker said he could not specify in what areas of the country the bargaining for separate contracts had bogged down. But he repeated that no CWA members would work Thursday while the difficulties continued.

Widow pleads for prisoners

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The widow of Benigno Aquino called for President Ferdinand E. Marcos to release all political prisoners after "hundreds of thousands" of mourners swarmed outside a Requiem Mass for the assassinated opposition leader today.

At a brief news conference after the Mass, Corazon Aquino read a Manila newspaper report that the president had sent his condolences, but said the family had received none.

"We would like to tell the president that if he is sincere in condoling with me and my children and the rest of the family, then he can do so by releasing all political prisoners," said Mrs. Aquino, speaking at the family home in suburban Quezon City.

The government acknowledges 1,100 people have been detained under Marcos' sweeping powers of arrest since martial law was lifted in January 1981, but does not call them political prisoners.

In February, the Defense Ministry said there were 539 "public order violators" in custody, but a church organization monitoring political prisoner cases estimated the number was close to 1,000.

The crowd around the Santo Domingo Roman Catholic Church was the biggest and most fervent seen in Manila since Pope John Paul II's February 1981 visit. Aquino's funeral is still five days away, scheduled for Tuesday.

Lewis loses fifth wife

NESBIT, Miss. (AP) — Jerry Lee Lewis, the piano-pounding rock 'n' roll star who has already lost a wife and two sons, went into seclusion as authorities scheduled an autopsy to learn what killed his 25-year-old fifth wife.

Shawn Lewis was found dead Wednesday in her bed at the home she shared with the 47-year-old entertainer in rural Desoto County, Miss., about 25 miles south of Memphis, Tenn., authorities said.

The couple married June 7, almost exactly a year after the drowning of Lewis' fourth wife.

A son of the singer drowned in 1962, and 11 years later another son was killed in a traffic accident. Lewis himself was near death in 1981 before recovering from a stomach infection.

Lewis and his wife spent Tuesday evening at home and went to bed early Wednesday morning, said J.W. Whitten, the singer's manager.

He said Lewis got up Wednesday before his wife and later sent a maid to awaken Mrs. Lewis.

"She apparently had been dead about an hour when the housekeeper tried to wake her up" Wednesday afternoon, Whitten said.

Leaving his house about an hour after his wife's body was removed, Lewis looked straight ahead from the back seat of a black Cadillac as he passed reporters gathered at the entrance to his property.

Whitten said Lewis was in shock and went into seclusion at a friend's house.

Embassy to become school

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Iranian government has decided to convert the former American Embassy in Tehran into a military training school, State Department officials say.

A recent advertisement in a Tehran newspaper invited males 15 years old or over to apply for a four-year course of instruction at the "former location of the spy den," the officials said.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the phone numbers listed in the ad were the same as those used when the United States maintained its embassy there.

The school will train Iranian youths for eventual service in Iran's Revolutionary Guard, which now has official status as a Cabinet level agency and has responsibilities for external and internal security.

Among the subjects to be offered are "military science, warfare and conversational Arabic," one informant said.

Honegger under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Honegger, who quit the Reagan administration because of its record on women's rights, says the White House is trying to get even by putting out a false story that she wore an Easter Bunny outfit to a White House egg roll.

Larry Speakes lead the White House counterattack Wednesday on Ms. Honegger, who resigned her Justice Department position Monday to protest what she called the "sham" of Reagan's project to wipe sex discrimination out of federal laws and regulations.

Talking with reporters in Los Angeles while Reagan is on a western vacation and speaking trip, the chief deputy White House press secretary sarcastically suggested that her greatest importance was to don a bunny costume for the annual egg roll.

"I can't believe this," said Ms. Honegger of Speakes' comments. "Do you think they'd try to do this to a man?"

"The only thing they have to fall back on — because they have found out that I have everything documented — is this trivia. And, as you see, I can even come back at that," she added in an interview. "They know so little they have to make up things."

Jury considers sentence

SEATTLE (AP) — A jury which took less than 2 1/2 hours to convict a 20-year-old Hong Kong immigrant of robbing, binding and executing 13 people in a Chinatown gambling club now must decide whether he should be sentenced to death for his role in the massacre.

In a verdict that brought screams and tears from courtroom spectators, Benjamin Ng was found guilty Wednesday of 13 counts of aggravated first-degree murder.

Skies mostly clear

A high-pressure ridge east of Texas kept skies mostly clear across the Lone Star State today, while widely scattered thunderstorms were expected over southwestern sections of the state later.

Thunderstorms developed along the upper Texas coast between San Antonio Bay and Matagorda, while scattered clouds hovered over eastern and south central sections.

Temperatures ranged from 71 degrees at El Paso to 80 degrees at both Laredo and Brownsville. Winds were light and variable at about 10 mph statewide, except for southerly winds over the plains and a southeasterly flow along the Rio Grande.

Widely scattered thunderstorms should develop over South Texas and southwestern sections of West Texas through Thursday. Afternoon temperatures are expected in the 90s statewide, with readings in the 100s over the Big Bend, Rio Grande and northwestern sections of North Texas.

Thunderstorms struck the southern Atlantic coast states today, with most storms churning over Florida as result of Tropical Storm Barry, which was drifting toward the Florida coast.

The National Weather Service said any relief from the wiling heat waves in the Southeast would be temporary.

Highs in the 90s and 100s were expected again today in the Southwest and in the 90s from the High Plains through the lower and mid-Mississippi valley to Georgia.

Other thunderstorms spread rain from Minnesota to northern Maine, and across parts of Colorado, eastern Arizona, western New Mexico and Southern Texas.

Severe thunderstorms in North Dakota spawned more than a half-dozen tornadoes with high winds and hail Wednesday. Winds were clocked from 60 to 75 mph at places and golf ball-size hail pelted Jamestown. Strong winds damaged buildings and trees near Hurdsville and blew trees down at Thompson.

Meanwhile, record heat continued over much of the Southeast on Wednesday with more than two dozen cities recording afternoon highs at or above 100 across the southern tier of states. The hottest spot Wednesday was Gila Bend, Ariz. with 107 degrees.

Temperatures before dawn today ranged from 46 at Montpelier, Vt., to 84 at both Tulsa and McAlester, Okla.

West Texas: Widely scattered thunderstorms extreme southwest. Otherwise mostly sunny days and fair at night through Friday. No important temperature changes. Highs today and Friday lower 90s mountains and far west to upper 90s south to near 100 Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight mid 60s mountains and Panhandle to mid 70s extreme south.

Teach kids how to think

Computer literacy has become the latest educational panacea — the "fourth R," as the state Assembly Office of Research phrased it in a recent report. Schools expenditures for computers have doubled in the past two years; today, one public school in three has at least one computer for its students. Although the new technology is potentially valuable in schools, the danger of this headlong rush into the computer age is that a genuine need for computer competence may be transformed into an expensive and faddish venture, with less payoff than its advocates promise.

Most schools have yet to figure out how to use their new computers. Many teachers view them with dread, finding it hard to teach the new technology with an "old technology" mind, and much of the educational software thus far developed for them seems to share with Dickens' Mr. Gradgrind the mistaken belief that education is nothing more than the accumulation of facts. The programs waste time and money by emphasizing rote reasoning, but rote drills — which can be presented far more cheaply in an ordinary school book.

COMPUTERS CAN, of course, be harnessed to expand the ways students comprehend the world, but they haven't been yet, and unless the computers can be integrated into the general curriculum, they'll wind up gathering dust on the shelves, just like video projectors and language labs, the high tech of a slightly earlier day. In this light, AB 803 (Katz, D-Los Angeles), a bill now before the Senate that would offer modest state support for developing and evaluating computer software and retraining teachers, is a sensible reform.

THE SCHOOLS SHOULDN'T be driven by a concern for job training to rush into the new technology, for turning out individuals literate in computers won't have much impact on this generation's chances in the job market. The number of high-tech jobs is small, and while the Department of Labor estimates that such positions may double — to 2 million — between now and 1990, there will be far more new jobs created for janitors, sales clerks, fast-food preparers, and the like, in fields where computer skills are irrelevant. Indeed, of the 20 occupations expected to generate the most jobs in the future, not one concerns high tech.

The character of many other jobs will be altered by computers, but the level of computer skill needed for these positions can be learned quickly and on the job. And as computers become more "user-friendly," less and less formal training will be needed to use them. By decade's end, learning how to use a computer should be as easy as learning how to drive a car.

The computer can change the form, scope, speed and accessibility of information, and make possible new ways of organizing facts. Those are significant developments in processing data but they won't replace the primary mission of the school: producing graduates who know the 3 R's — and who have learned how to think.

Agony of 'de feet'

Sometimes that little bit of kid needs to escape the forgotten lost caverns of your soul.

It's amazing how smart kids are. They learn to talk, they learn to walk. They learn to read. With no fear of flying, they plunge headlong into things adults are scared to death to even consider.

The pain of crashing to the pavement from atop two wheels doesn't faze their efforts to ride a bike just like all their friends. Roller-skating is similarly hazardous; fortunately, your falls aren't quite as far.

I remember having a pair of roller skates when I was as tall as a fire hydrant. I preferred to build cities and push around miniature cars. Being a military brat, I spent many hours seeking and destroying all enemies in adjacent fields. And watching Lloyd Bridges in "Seat Hunt."

The roller skates stayed unused in a toybox.

Years have gone by and skating, once something popular with youngsters and teenie-boppers (rolling to Buddy Holly's music), is "in" again. They don't play Holly anymore, opting for Michael Jackson and the Dazz Band instead. But the skating is the same good time it always was.

I was talked into skating last Sunday. Already triumphant in an earlier battle with ice skating last winter, I was sure the roller route would be a snap.

Wrong. Ice skates don't go until you do; roller skates never stop even when you do. First came the practice runs on the carpet. "First time?" a young lady, 10 years my junior, asked. "Uh-huh," I answered, watching her zoom off, pirouette and draw the admiring eyes of two young men in the corner.

I would draw no admiring eyes on this night. Only laughs. After a half hour on the carpet, I was ready for the big time. The air-conditioning wasn't on full blast but that wasn't the excuse for my sweat-drenched clothes. Flailing around in desperate attempts to stay on one's feet has a way of bringing up the perspiration.

A few brave souls offered to guide me around the rink. "But fall on someone else...I can't hold you up," one petite skater warned. I thought the idea was not to fall.

I hugged the wall, my security blanket. With wheels on my feet, I could never stand still. Everyone thought I was having a good time, swaying to the music. I was swaying for my life.

Finally I got going. "No, you're pushing off. Go from side to side like this. You're leaning back too much," I was instructed. That's when I fell the first time.

It was quite an accomplishment when I cruised the rink an entire revolution without stopping, without falling and without causing a five-person accident.

Soon, my feet started hurting, but not being one to abdicate to pain, I rolled on. I was getting pretty close to professional status, even learning to negotiate turns. My euphoria came tumbling down when I joined two females for a song. "C'mon, let's go faster," the blonde on my left urged. "Yeah, Greg," the brunette on the right followed.

Then came our first turn and down I went. The blonde giggled uncontrollably; the brunette lost her balance and crashed into the concession stand. That was my first and last trios roll.

Before long, I could both skate and rock to the music. Slowly. Just when I had the hang of things, the big lights snapped on, signaling closing time.

I pulled off my skate and discovered my white socks were red. During all my fun, I developed blisters, burst them and rubbed them to bleeding. ABC sports calls that "the agony of defeat" or is it "de feet."

Oddly enough, I had a good time. Skating is pretty good exercise for an old man and cheap entertainment, also. Of course, I know the majority of the crowd wasn't there to get in shape; the idea is for the boys to meet girls and girls to meet boys.

But that won't work for me. The cute six-year-old in pigtails gave me the cold shoulder when she saw my limited talents. I guess I'll try to be a football hero...

ACTUALLY, CHATSWORTH, MY LIFE WAS A FINANCIAL WASH-OUT UNTIL I STARTED SELLING AIR CONDITIONERS BACK IN THE SUMMER OF '83.

Cable and the First Amendment

A U.S. district court judge in Denver has thrown out a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the city of Denver's regulation of cable television. But he didn't settle the central issue raised by the suit: whether the prevailing treatment of cable TV can be reconciled with the First Amendment.

The suit was filed by the Mountain States Legal Foundation (MSLF), a conservative public interest group once headed by James Watt. Despite that pedigree, the foundation's effort parallels those of the American Civil Liberties Union, whose Illinois chapter is contesting a Vernon Hills ordinance banning "indecent" TV cable. This is one of those rare cases where Right and Left may find a common cause: protecting freedom of communication.

MSLF agrees with the ACLU that restrictions on the content of cable programs are unconstitutional. It also insists that the First Amendment is violated when a city merely grants a monopoly franchise (whether de jure or de facto) to a cable firm — just as franchising of newspapers would be illegal, even if the government exercised no control over the content of those allowed to publish.

"The First Amendment," says the foundation's complaint, "bars government from creating unlawful barriers or restrictions between willing speakers and willing listeners and from thereby controlling the information that is available to the public." The regulation of cable by Denver (and, by implication, by other cities), it argues, creates just such barriers. The suit was dismissed because the district court found that MSLF had no standing, leaving the constitutional issues unresolved. But its central proposition is hard to dispute.

THE BURDENS imposed on cable firms by city governments — from rate regulation to prohibitions of salacious material to required "public access" channels — exceed even those inflicted on broadcasting, until now the most closely regulated form of communication. Unlike in the case of broadcasting, these governments lack even the flimsy pretext that the scarcity of the airwaves justifies "public" control of them.

Instead, they offer two rationales. The first is that since cable firms use city streets and rights-of-way, they are properly subject to city control. By that reasoning, local governments could dictate the content of newspapers, because their vending machines sit on city sidewalks. Cable firms ought to be required to reimburse local governments for the costs they impose, but that is no basis for regulating everything they do.

The second pretext is that cable is a natural monopoly and, like other supposed natural monopolies (electric utilities, say), has to be regulated to prevent exploitation of consumers. This argument serves to justify the monopoly franchises granted by cities.

BUT IT ISN'T convincing. My friend Thomas Hazlett of California State University at Fullerton, who is not only the nation's wittiest economist but also an expert on cable TV regulation, points out that if a monopoly is in fact inevitable, there is no reason to grant any firm a monopoly franchise. Given an open market, interested firms would fight it out for the loyalty of consumers. The eventual monopoly would be won by the company best able to please subscribers, not the one with the most political clout.

But though cable operators, like a lot of capitalists, seek to avoid competition whenever possible, they can live with it when they have to. Hazlett notes that some 25 cities in the United States have competing cable firms.

Even those cable firms which enjoy a monopoly franchise don't enjoy a true monopoly. They face growing competition from a variety of sources — traditional broadcasting, a deregulated telephone company, the new low-power broadcast outlets, subscription TV, direct broadcast satellites and potentially many more. Cable's "monopoly" power is highly limited, and shrinking every day.

That leaves no reasonable grounds for denying cable TV the protection of the First Amendment. Existing regulation is merely a device for protecting citizens from themselves. To ensure freedom of opinion, citizens must have the right to communicate their views as they see fit, unconstrained by a meddling government.

The alternative is to let the governors determine what the governed shall be allowed to see and hear — a practice that is as dangerous in the case of cable as it would be in the case of newspapers. To attain true freedom of speech and press, we have to free cable.

Japan gaining high-tech lead

WASHINGTON — The United States, once the colossus of high technology, now finds its pre-eminence threatened on all sides, especially by the Japanese.

As I've already reported, U.S. officials are convinced that a Japanese computer company, Hitachi, is behind a covert effort to wring high-tech secrets out of IBM. These officials also believe that the Japanese are determined to become No. 1 in the vital area of semiconductors.

Some experts predict that semiconductors — the "building blocks" for a variety of sophisticated electronic equipment — will be as important to the world economy over the next few years as crude oil was in the 1970s. The country that takes the lead in semiconductors will have an important advantage in computers, telecommunications, robotics, aerospace and other high-tech fields.

But the United States is losing its lead in this international competition, while Japan is coming on fast. The U.S. share of the world high-tech market has declined by 15 percent in recent years — while Japan's share has increased 25 percent.

An important reason for this slippage can be found in a comparison of expenditures for research and development over the past 20 years. While U.S. R&D investment has declined by one-fifth, Japan's has jumped by one-third.

Another reason for America's increasingly beleaguered position in high-tech competition is the different attitude taken by the U.S. and Japanese governments on antitrust enforcement. Japan encourages its industries to pool their efforts in joint R&D ventures. But American companies risk government prosecution — often instigated by rivals who are left out of a joint venture.

How important is the erosion of U.S. dominance in the high-tech area? Trade Representative Bill Brock told my associate Michael Binstein: "There would be very serious fallout if we lost the computer race, if for no other reason than national security. You bet your life we better be concerned about it and start busting our rear doing something."

Upgrading the quality of U.S. technological education and relaxing antitrust enforcements are two of Brock's highest priorities. He explained that current antitrust laws do not explicitly rule out cooperative research efforts, but the laws are fuzzy, so it's the better part of discretion for U.S. companies to avoid such joint ventures entirely.

Besides computers and semiconductors, the U.S. lead is being challenged in other high-tech areas — again, mainly by the aggressive Japanese. For example:

— Aircraft: Just a few years ago, American manufacturers had 95 percent of commercial aircraft orders. By 1981, Airbus Industries, a European consortium, had claimed 25 percent of the world market for jet aircraft, and half of the new orders for wide-body planes.

— Space: The United States is slipping fast. The Japanese are putting up satellites and developing their own launch vehicles. France, working with other European countries, is rapidly developing a launch capability that will challenge the U.S. monopoly in communications satellites.

— Fiber optics: Japan has moved into this potentially lucrative field and has already taken a clear lead in light-source technology.

Worrywart needs help

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My friends all tell me that I am a worrywart, and I guess it is true. I always seem to worry about everything and imagine all the things that could go wrong — even though they usually don't. How can I overcome this? — Mrs. D.D.I.

DEAR MRS. D.D.I.: Everyone worries, of course, but some people especially seem to be beset with an attitude of constant worrying. You apparently are one of these persons, and I pray that you will deal with this as you should — both for your own sake and the sake of those around you.

The most important thing you can do is to learn to commit the future to God and trust it to him. No one really knows what the future holds — you don't and neither do your friends. Only One knows the future, and he is God. The future never takes God by surprise, and he alone can say, "I am the Alpha and the Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End" (Revelation 22:13).

Therefore you can trust the future to him, if you truly understand that he not only knows the future but he also is in ultimate control. As problems or situations come up that would normally bother you, learn to commit them to God in prayer. Turn them over to him. The Bible commands, "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God." Then the Bible goes on to promise, "And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus (Philippians 4:6-7).

All of this is possible because God loves you, and you can trust his love. He loves you so much that he sent his Son to die on the cross for your sins.

Athletic program helpers thanked

Dear Editor, This letter is to acknowledge how much the Big Spring ISD Athletic Department appreciates the work of the following people for their help in giving physicals for our athletes. A big thank you to Dr. K.R. Reddy, Mr. Wayne Carroll and his assistant Mr. Kim Martin for setting up the physicals and doing a great job of it!

Thank yous are also in order for the following people:

1. The doctors' staff for giving the physicals at Malone-Hogan Hospital.
  2. Mr. Greg Jaklewicz for giving us all the information space in the paper and running the physical information often.
  3. Mr. Walter Alexander and Mr. Grady Nelson for their help in arranging bus transportation to and from Malone-Hogan Hospital for the physicals.
  4. The Coahoma coaches who helped test the Big Spring athletes during the physicals.
  5. All the parents who picked up the physical packets for their children or reminded them to do so.
- Your help has started the beginning of a great year in athletics for Big Spring. We appreciate not only these people mentioned above but all of the support in the athletic program received the past year, and have received to start this school year.

Sixth teen dies in Dallas suburb

PLANO, Texas (AP) — An 18-year-old who was distraught about breaking up with his girlfriend has become the sixth teen-ager from this Dallas suburb to commit suicide this year, authorities said.

Scott Difiglia died Tuesday night at Presbyterian Hospital, where he had been in critical condition since he shot himself in the head Monday afternoon.

The shooting heightened the concern of many Plano residents who have been searching for ways to stem the series of teen-age suicides since the beginning of the year.

"Everyone's concerned," said Larry Guinn, associate principal at Plano Senior High School. "They want to know what they can do to help. It's really kind of frustrating to us because we're trying to deal with it and do everything we can."

The death was the third teen-age suicide in Plano in a week.

On Aug. 17, the bodies of John Gundiah and Mary Bridget Jacobs, both 17, were found in the garage of a house under construction. The teens, who dated each other, died of carbon monoxide poisoning and a suicide note indicated they could no longer bear living apart, police said.

Difiglia's girlfriend found him lying on a bedroom floor at his parents' home Monday afternoon with a gunshot wound to the head. A .22-caliber rifle lay beside him, according to police reports.

The girl went to the residence after Difiglia called her and threatened to kill himself, said police Sgt. J.C. Randall.

Some escort services under fire

By The Associated Press Escort services with names like Angel Delight, Affectionately Yours, Fantasy Isle and Moonlight offer nothing sexier than companionship or an introduction, say proprietors around the country.

But some police say that should be taken "winking." In San Francisco, police charged Monday that a legal escort service was a front for a prostitution ring involving 150 housewives, nurses, secretaries and others.

"It was a highly efficient organization and smooth-running business," said Officer Mike Curran, who worked on the case. He said profits were funneled into 60 bank accounts over the last three years, with some receiving up to $80,000 a month. The operation's alleged mastermind and three other people were taken into custody, police said.

In Philadelphia, Charisma Clay, owner of Charisma-Clay Studios, said prostitution gives escort services a bad name. She said she fires employees who are "hooking" on company time — and for company rates of $100 per hour with a two-hour minimum.

"But it works both ways," Ms. Clay said. "You can rise above it or you can squalor with it." Clients can let their fingers do the walking in Los Angeles, where the Yellow Pages lists 35 entries under "escort."

Los Angeles police vice Lt. L.A. Coil says virtually all of the listings in the City of the Angels deal in prostitution, but play a tongue-in-cheek game with prospective employees and clients.

"If you can picture a guy winking as he tells a lady, 'We don't condone prostitution,' you've got a pretty good picture of it," Coil said.

Nerissa Brainbridge, owner of International Escorts in New York City, said her agency doesn't foster illicit sex.

"The word escort means companion. Period," said Ms. Brainbridge. Escorts are paid $250 for two hours, in which they may help foreign businessmen with their linguistic skills and in business dealings, in addition to accompanying them to dinner, she said.

They are told "You're not sent out for sex. You're sent out as a companion," Ms. Brainbridge said. Sgt. Richard Klev of New York's police. Public

Morals Division concurred, saying "Most (escort services) run a pretty clean, legitimate operation."

"We rarely get any complaints about them," he said. "If the prostitutes are out on the street, we get calls from merchants. If they're in a building, in a brothel, we get calls from residents. We don't get calls about the escort services."

Civil rights activist honored at age 101

NEW YORK (AP) — Union organizing got into Rosina Tucker's blood in the 1920s, when black porters were expected to smile and kowtow to the white railroad establishment. In all her 101 years, Mrs. Tucker has seldom been afraid to speak her mind.

"I'm not one to worship other people," Mrs. Tucker says, recalling her career as an activist for the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. The union's 1937 agreement with the Pullman Co. was the first between a major U.S. company and a union of black workers.

Mrs. Tucker, of Washington, D.C., was named a winner today of a Candace Award for achievement by outstanding black Americans. She hopes to be in New York on Oct. 12 to accept her award.

Other winners include Suzanne de Passe, president of Motown Productions; author-actress Maya Angelou; and 91-year-old Dr. Selma Burke of New Hope, Pa., a sculptor whose profile of President Franklin D. Roosevelt appears on the dime.

Mrs. Tucker narrated "Miles of Smiles, Years of Struggle," a documentary about the Brotherhood which the Smithsonian Institution helped produce and released last year.

She remembers closing her living room shades while holding secret union organizing meetings; traveling around the country giving speeches; standing up to those who got in her way.

"I've been inspired to do things," she said from her home in Washington. "I have surprised myself."

Mrs. Tucker got involved in union organizing after her 1918 marriage to railroad porter B.J. Tucker. She believed black porters were being "treated like slaves" by their white employers and passengers.

"These men worked long hours with no particular time to sleep. The pay they got was very low and they had to depend almost entirely on tips. If there was any breakage, the porter had to pay for it," she said, adding that some porters were fired for union organizing.

Taped toilet roll prompts air scare

BOSTON (AP) — The state police, accompanied by police dogs, boarded a Delta Airlines jet and determined that a mysterious silver cylinder taped to a lavatory wall was just a roll of toilet paper, an airline official said.

"It turned out one of our maintenance people was going to change the roll of toilet paper and taped the cylinder to the wall before takeoff from Fort Lauderdale," Fla., said Dan Malloy, Delta Airlines district marketing manager.

The tower at Logan International Airport on Tuesday sent police to Delta Flight 136 after the pilot reported the unexplained cylinder in a rear lavatory, Malloy said.

The plane was ordered to an isolated runway and the 92 passengers and seven crew members were evacuated onto buses.

The pilot informed the passengers on the intercom "that there was something on board that didn't look right," said John Schwartz, a passenger from Boston.

Mrs. Tucker visited the homes of 300 porters to discuss the union and, later, to secretly collect their dues. "I wasn't afraid. That's the one thing that helped me," she said.

At one point, she was told that a company supervisor had taken her husband off a favored Montreal run as a penalty for her union activities. She stormed into the office of the supervisor's boss.

"I looked him right in the eye and banged on his desk and told him I was not employed by the Pullman company and that my husband had nothing to do with any activity I was engaged in," she remembers.

"I said, 'I want you to take care of this situation or I will be back.' He must have been afraid...because a black woman didn't speak to a white man in this manner. My husband was put back on his run." In 1938, Mrs. Tucker was elected international secretary-treasurer of the union's auxiliary, a post she held for more than 30 years. She also helped organize teachers, laundry workers and red caps in the Washington area.

"I loved giving speeches," she said. "I never use what you'd call bad words. But I have learned how to use words that are biting. When I was a child... my sister had to do all my fighting for me. But I have learned how to defend myself with words."

In 1955, the Brotherhood's E.D. Nixon, a porter-activist from Montgomery, Ala., called a meeting to organize the Montgomery bus boycott that brought the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. his first national notice.

Other winners of this year's Candace awards included Dr. Mattie Cook, a founding member of Malcom King Harlem College Extension in New York City; Patricia Walker Shaw, president of the Universal Life Insurance Co. in Memphis; Mary Hatwood Futrell, president-elect of the National Education Association; Dr. Gloria Jackson Bacon, medical director of Clinical Associates of Chicago.

Romanian housewives 'go hunting' for household needs

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — It is late summer, time of relative plenty, so Ana S. spends less than half her waking hours shopping for her family. Her mother, with more spare time, buys the meat. Ana (not her real name) typifies Romanian housewives who speak of "going hunting," not "going shopping" when they set out in the morning with string bags to see what they can find.

With some of the richest agricultural land in Europe, Romania is desperately short of food. Authorities export as much as possible to pay the foreign debt. Imported items are rare. Family shelves are stocked by elaborate systems, requiring help from relatives, foreign friends and barter with neighbors. Payment is in Romanian lei and the country's parallel currency:

Kent cigarettes. "On the four days a week I don't work, I spend almost every moment shopping or cooking," Ana told a reporter. "On the other days, my husband takes time off his job to help." She works in a village 20 miles from Bucharest, leaving home at 9 a.m. and coming home 12 hours later. Fuel is also scarce, so she waits up to two hours for her bus.

"I'm so tired when I get home I just eat something I made the day before and fall into bed," she said. "Then the next day, I shop and cook. But I have to sleep late. That is my only luxury." But sleeping late is a problem. Milkmen start deliveries to shops at 5 a.m., leaving bottles on the sidewalks because there is little refrigeration. By 7 a.m., milk is usually sold out.

Greens, eggplant and tomatoes go on sale at dawn to shoppers already in line. When supplies run out, Ana makes the rounds seeking fresh deliveries — or a vendor who will sell under the table for up to double the official price. Meat lines can run to 10 hours, and in Bucharest each buyer is limited to five pounds of meat and four chickens per turn. Cheese is so scarce that offices empty in minutes when word arrives that a nearby store has fresh stock. Ana's particular leverage is her village job. She can sometimes buy food directly from farmers, enabling her to trade for items or services with neighbors whose leverage extends elsewhere. When her daughter was born, she got diapers from a friend in Greece. "I honestly cannot say what I would have done without that," she said. "There were none here." When her daughter needs special medical care, it is obtained the same way the family car gets a mechanic's attention: with a few packs of Kents. Ana works half-time and makes 1,100 lei a month. Her husband, with an above-average salary, brings their monthly earnings to about 4,000 lei. At the official rate of 7.5 U.S.

cents to one lei, that is $300. But the figures are misleading. A carton of Kents costs 800 lei on the black market. Italian spray deodorant is 200 lei, or 20 percent of Ana's monthly wage. Dollar gas coupons, to avoid eight-hour gas lines, cost 140 lei a gallon. Few Romanians have direct access to foreign goods. Unlike other East Europeans, they are not allowed to own hard currency to buy in the special stores for foreigners.

Locally made goods and regulated services cost much less, when available, but they are not cheap. A chicken costs 200 lei, and an egg is four lei, unless short supply adds a black market supplement. Beef averages about 25 lei a pound. A tailored dress costs 1,000 lei, and a shoddy ready-to-wear dress is about half that. A man's suit, at 2,300 lei, equals an average month's wages. Baby clothes are scarce and expensive.

AIDS victims have defect in blood cells

BOSTON (AP) — Victims of AIDS have a defect in the blood cells that make antibodies, a major component of the body's disease defenses that until now seemed to be spared by the devastating disorder, a study shows. Researchers are still not sure of the significance of the discovery, but they say the damage may be caused by a virus, the leading suspect in the search for the origin of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The body's immune defenses are divided into two major branches — the B cells, which make antibodies, and the T cells, which, among other things, regulate the work of the B cells. Soon after the AIDS outbreak began three years ago, scientists discovered that victims' T cells were out of kilter. They had too many suppressor T cells, which turn off the B cells, and not enough helper T cells, which turn them on. Until now, it was thought that the B cells remained normal.

"The evidence in this article is quite convincing that there is a defect in their B-cell function in that the B cells are unable to respond to a variety of stimuli," said Dr. Henry Masur, one of the researchers.

However, it is not clear whether this malfunction is yet another breakdown in the natural course of AIDS or whether it is directly caused by the culprit that touches off the disease.

AIDS has struck more than 2,000 people in the United States, most of them homosexual men, drug addicts or Haitian immigrants.

Their shattered immunity leaves them prey to a variety of microbes that healthy people easily fend off. There is no cure, and the disorder appears to be almost always fatal.

The latest research, conducted at National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

When the body is invaded by germs, the B cells churn out antibodies that help destroy them.

The doctors found that the AIDS patients' B cells did not respond to staph bacteria, even though healthy B cells will do this without prompting from T cells.

Man has urge to doze

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a man in his early 50s, in good health. I do general office work. Occasionally, often in the afternoon, I get a sudden desire to sleep for a minute or so. I will actually doze off for a few seconds. The ballpoint pen in my hand will leave a slight scribble where my hand strayed at such times. This doze-off interlude lasts only a few seconds. Then I'll awaken from it with a sort of a start.

I get enough sleep, usually five or six hours a night. I eat a fairly well-balanced diet.

Are these momentary doze-off spells normal? Is there any preventive? Sometimes I'll try to fight and resist this sudden desire to doze off; other times I'll stop working and sit back in my chair for a minute or two.

Have you any suggestions, comments, opinions, or any general evaluation of this situation? I should add that I'm not taking any medicines. My work can tend to get monotonous and boring. I imagine that this might very well be a factor. But by the same token I love my work. — P.Y.

I can't say whether your doze-off episodes are part of your normal daily body rhythms or not. From 1 to 3 p.m. there is a tendency for one to feel tired, especially in an atmosphere that is not particularly stimulating. That is normal.

But certain medical situations can cause undue tiredness — anemia, low thyroid production, low blood sugar, for example.

And there are sleep disorders. Sleep apnea is a condition of fitful sleep caused by breathing interruptions. The person is usually a loud snorer. You may not even realize your sleep has been interrupted. And there is narcolepsy, the irresistible urge to doze at inopportune times and places.

The best idea I can offer you at this point is to be examined firsthand. You may be interested in the booklet "Why Can't You Sleep?", which offers some hints about sleep loss and its effects. Perhaps you simply are not getting sufficient sleep. The booklet may be ordered by other readers by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Do you often have a "stomach ache"? If so, your stomach may not be the real trouble spot. The booklet, "Stomach and Other Abdominal Pains: A Checklist," tells you why. For a copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

25-year pin given to local Rebekah

A 25-year membership pin was presented to Myrtle Gring during the Aug. 16 meeting of Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284.

Seventeen visits to the sick were reported during the meeting. Annie Bransom celebrated her birthday during the meeting. Gracie Lee Grider of Ohio, and Lucille Thomas were guests at the meeting. Mabel Morrison won the door prize and Joan Garner won the gift.

The next meetings will be held Aug. 23 and Aug. 30. A first day of school party will be held at the Lodge Hall. Members are to dress as the first day of school and bring a sack lunch.

Women tie high scores at Rook Club meeting

Mrs. Della Nobles and Mrs. Gene Duncan tied for high score at the Rook Club meeting in the home of Twila Lomax, Aug. 19.

Roberta Gay and Norma Murdock were visitors at the meeting. Miss Gay won high score for the visitors.

A get-well card was sent to Mrs. Sue Rowe. Mrs. Rowe recently had surgery and is recovering at home.

The Rook Club's next meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Sept. 16 in the home of Mrs. Bill McIlvain, 1425 E. 6th, Apt. 17.

Brain's neuron network works faster than computers

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — If the human brain worked like a modern computer, says a University of Rochester computer scientist, it would take a person an hour — instead of a second — to recognize a familiar face.

The reason: Each individual neuron (nerve cell), which acts as a computing unit, works much more slowly than a silicon chip.

According to Professor Jerome A. Feldman, "The reason we can think so fast with our slow-working neurons is that millions of them work simultaneously on each task. For example, we can see all the elements in a picture at once, whereas current computers must look at them one at a time."

DEAR ABBY: I have four children ranging in age from 5 months to 10 years. With school out, I've had my hands full taking care of them. We are one of the few families who have a swimming pool. How do I deal with all the kids who come over wanting to swim? I don't want to be rude, but I don't want to be life-guard and recreation director, either. Some days I can handle a couple of extra kids, and some days I can't.

Also, they want to help themselves to snacks, and I can't afford to feed the whole neighborhood. Every day I have kids coming to my door or climbing over the fence if we are in the pool. If I let them swim once, they think they have a standing invitation to come every day.

Is there a tactful way to handle this?

SUSAN
DEAR SUSAN: Putting

"tactful" aside for a moment, let's talk "legal." Your pool is what the law would call "an attractive nuisance," and it is your responsibility to have a fence that will keep kids out. (Talk to a lawyer about this, and your insurance agent, too.) Then have a clear understanding with the children and their parents about when they may swim in your pool. Adult neighbors whose children enjoy your pool should be willing to alternate as lifeguards.

Local Red Cross chapter re-organizes at meeting

Re-organization of the local American Red Cross chapter on a voluntary basis was completed at a Howard-Glasscock Chapter meeting, Monday. The meeting was held at Veterans Administration Hospital.

Officers were elected, committee chairpersons appointed, and a regular meeting date was set. Officers elected were Dan Wise, treasurer, and Edith Gay, secretary. Committee chairpersons appointed were Terri McIntosh, safety and health (water safety); Dale Young, safety and health (first aid, CPR and blood pressure); Tina Stefan, public relations; Laurie Webb and co-worker Edwina Reagan, service to military families and veterans; Louise Nuckolls, Dan Wise and Dale Young, disaster; and Diana Jones and Martha Moody, volunteer activities at VA Hospital.

Chairman Hicks urged each chairperson to keep an accurate record of all activities in their groups for future reference.

A silent meditation and prayer in memory of Sharon Nuckolls, late executive director of the chapter, was observed.

Meetings will be held each third Tuesday.

Consumer prices record slow growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices have risen by only 2.4 percent over the past 12 months, the slowest rate of growth in 17 years, the government says.

The Labor Department reported Tuesday that consumer prices rose 0.4 percent in July, about twice as much as they had risen in June.

The July report lifts 1983's inflation rate so far to an annual rate of 3.2 percent, which is lower than 1982's rise of 3.9 percent.

The latest monthly increase came despite a 0.1 percent dip in food prices. But almost everything else rose in July, including gasoline prices, up 0.4 percent; medical care costs rose 0.6 percent; housing costs increased 0.4 percent and clothing prices rose 0.6 percent.

Robert Ortner, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said it was "slightly disappointing" to see the inflation rate rise in July, particularly since the increase came despite an only temporary food-price decline.

New York homeless drift from hotel to motel

NEW YORK (AP) — When the city welfare department told Sydney Brown that he and his family would be placed in a New Jersey motel, he figured it couldn't be worse than the hotel where his family was put up after they lost their home to foreclosure.

But Brown wasn't prepared for what he saw when the taxi pulled up in front of Newark's Lincoln Motel: a clean, bright lobby, vaguely in the style of Las Vegas.

"They must have made a mistake," Brown told his wife and four children.

As the Browns walked past the swimming pool in the courtyard, he said, "We're in the wrong place."

And when they entered their two air-conditioned rooms with telephones, televisions, and room and maid service, he said, "I know this can't last too long."

Brown, an unemployed vocational counselor, was right.

This month, bowing to pressure from New Jersey, New York officials agreed to move the more than 300 homeless families that it had quartered in New Jersey back to the city.

The Browns' experience illustrates the plight of the city's homeless families, whose number has swelled to more than 2,000 this summer, and the dilemma of the city government, which has a policy of providing private temporary accommodations for them.

The number of homeless has increased so fast this year that New York has virtually exhausted the local supply of moderately priced hotel space.

Most of what is left "is not very desirable by middle-class standards."

said Robert Jorgen, director of Crisis Intervention Services.

What's left includes two hotels, the Martinique in Manhattan and the Granada in Brooklyn, where Gov. Mario Cuomo said state investigators found "mind-boggling" health conditions and malnourished children.

The city sent families to New Jersey because that was where the best rooms could be had for what the government pays — $32 a night for a family of three. Now, with hotels like the Martinique under fire and "with New Jersey ruled out, there's only one way to go, and that's up in price," Jorgen said.

That, Jorgen said, explains why several homeless families have occupied $90-a-night rooms in the Hilton Hotel at Kennedy International Airport since Aug. 8.

Hotel fare is split 50-25-25 by the federal, state and local governments. But any amount beyond $32 must be covered by the city, which last July was paying $500,000 to temporarily house the homeless. Today, the figure is $2.1 million a month.

Meanwhile, homeless families' average hotel stay has moved up to 5.7 months. After six months, federal aid ends.

Although city welfare officials know why people are homeless they do not know why homelessness has grown so much this year. Fires and landlord abandonment — major causes of homelessness — have not increased appreciably.

Unemployment, which means evictions for non-payment of rent, has been high for several years.

Similarly, the monthly rent allowance for welfare recipients — a mere $218 in one of the nation's tightest, most expensive housing markets — has not changed since 1975.

One theory is that the homeless have become more aware of what's available because of news reports.

"When you advertise, you get business," Jorgen said. "People have generally become aware that this is an entitlement, a service which is available to them."

For the suddenly displaced, a city-provided room is not always the only alternative to the street. There are neighbors, relatives, friends, private agencies. Social workers encourage homeless families to find such space, but there is no way to know if they can and simply choose not to.

"Sometimes on nights when we're having trouble placing people, people who said they had nowhere to go just disappear, and we don't think they're out on the street," Jorgen said.

As the city is forced to use more expensive hotel space, chances are the demand will increase, Jorgen worries.

"Ninety percent of our people have never had air conditioning in their apartments," he said. Now, "the word is out. People are asking, 'Why should I live under these conditions if I don't have to?'"

Brown said that when he is told to leave the Lincoln, he will not return to the "flea-bag, rat-trap" where his family stayed in Brooklyn, a hotel with no room keys and unlighted hallways.

He and other residents of the Lincoln Motel have formed the Penny Coalition and compiled a list of hotels at which homeless families should refuse to stay.

Although they do not like to live in a hotel, the Browns have only praise for the Lincoln, which Brown said "is comparable with a Holiday Inn." "This is all one big crazy family," said Lynne Bratton of the Lincoln and its temporary residents.

"This is something you wouldn't have in New York," Brown added.

Lemonade stand crack-down may be headed for revision

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — An ordinance that cracked down on lemonade stands, but left some officials with a bad taste appears headed for revision.

The ordinance requires the operators of lemonade stands to pay a $250 fee or post a $1,000 surety bond before opening for business.

The ordinance left it to police to arrest every youngster that opened a lemonade stand or to ignore the law. But Danbury police have chosen to ignore the law where it applies to youthful offenders.

"What does any other town do?" Lt. William Spuehler asked Tuesday. "A little discretion is called for, don't you think?"

Apparently a Common Council committee agrees, because Monday night the panel agreed to modify the ordinance. If approved by the Common Council and city residents, the revise ordnance would exempt any entrepreneur with a retail and stock value of less than $25.

The council in February passed the tougher law to keep track of itinerant vendors and peddlers. But problems developed with hotels, which said the law would scare off trade shows, and with the young operators of lemonade stands and nightcrawlers for sale.

"We've had problems with it we couldn't have foreseen," council president Constance A. McManus said.

"There have been no arrests, but the police, I believe, have received calls about stands along the road. It's ridiculous. We couldn't ask a kid to take out a $250 permit."

Economists expect sustained recovery

By ROBERT FURLOW
AP Business Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though federal deficits are still a worry, the economic recovery should continue "in a remarkably serene way" through all of next year, a national group of business economists said Monday in a forecast full of good news for President Reagan and others eyeing re-election.

Economists from industry, trade and finance "see no outbreak of inflation, no upsurge in interest rates and no new recession" through the 1984 election year, said Edgar R. Fiedler, president of the National Association of Business Economists.

On a more somber note, he said the prospect of federal deficits of $200 billion or more a year could be a threat to continuing economic good health over the longer term. But for the next 18 months, he said, "what stands out in this forecast is the absence of any trouble."

Reagan hasn't said whether he will seek a second term in 1984, but Fiedler said incumbents in general won't be facing the kinds of hard economic questions that harried office-holders in the past few election years.

Asked to compare the likely political impact of next year's economic conditions with those in recent presidential-election years, Fiedler said there should be "less political discomfort for the incumbents in this case."

In 1980, then-President Carter had to defend his administration against allegations that it was to blame for that year's recession and for the high inflation and interest rates that followed. Carter himself had won the presidency at least partly by campaigning against economic conditions — including a long recession — during the Nixon-Ford years.

Now, said Fiedler in a briefing for reporters, "the economists' projections are so free of anxiety that we appear to be entering an interlude of cyclical tranquility."

Specifically, he said, a survey earlier this month of 250 forecasters among the association's 4,000 members showed them expecting:

—A 5.4 percent annual rate of increase in the overall economy, as measured by inflation-adjusted gross national product, in the second half of this year, up from the 4.6 percent rate shown in a May survey. The economy has grown even faster than that during the past few months, but no one expects that to last for long. The new survey calls for 4.6 percent growth next year.

—A drop in the national unemployment rate to 9.2 percent by the final quarter of this year, down from last month's 9.5 percent and considerably better than the 9.9 percent the economists were expecting in the earlier survey. By election time 1984, the economists said: 8.5 percent.

—An increase of 4.2 percent in prices at an annual rate, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, in the second half of this year compared with the 4.9 percent expected earlier. The CPI rose at a rate of 2.9 percent in the first half of this year, but, again, no one expects that very low rate to last. The forecast for next year: 5.1 percent.

—Little change in interest rates after the increases of the past few months. Banks' prime lending rates, now at 11 percent, should be less than one-half point higher, if that, by December and below 11 percent again by mid-1984.

On the negative side, Fiedler said, "despite the tranquility in the 1984 outlook, the nation should not be tranquilized."

Economists remain worried that huge federal deficits will continue pushing up government borrowing needs, eventually clashing with credit needs of private business and pushing up interest rates.

BBB warns of scams

The Better Business Bureau of Midland is warning area residents of misleading information involving giveaway items and a Texas recreational development.

Linda Truitt of the BBB said for several years now, a place called Fort Clark Springs in Bracketville has been mailing promotional enticements claiming free gifts for persons who make the trip to view the resort.

"Although the gifts sound valuable, it has been the experience of the BBB that the gift one receives often turns out to be of less value than imagined," Ms. Truitt said.

She said one of last year's letters claimed that persons were eligible to receive a Ford Escort, a 25-inch color TV, a giant screen projection TV system or $500 in cash.

She said most people received the TV projection system which turned out to be a box which attached to the front of a television set (not included) and projected an image onto a screen provided with the kit.

"Instructions for the system state you must take you TV to a technician and have the polarity of Yoke reversed or otherwise the picture in projected upside down," Ms. Truitt said. "In checking with local TV repair service shops, the minimum charge for doing this is $50."

And since 90 percent of the light is lost by projecting the picture on a screen, the room must be very dark in order to see the picture."

The latest letter from Fort Clark Springs claims one is eligible to receive a brand new Chevrolet Camaro, a motor-boat or a $1,000 savings bond.

The prize most often given away is the motor-boat which is actually a vinyl dinghy, 8 feet by 4 feet, that must be blown up. The motor is only a small propeller operated by a 12-volt rechargeable battery (not included) that fits through a hole in the back of the boat.

Ms. Truitt said if a persons wants to by the 12-volt battery, a battery charger, air pump and oars directly from the distributor in order to use the boat, it will cost an additional $79.60.

"Giveaways are frequently used in real estate development promotions to lure people to a site as an enticement to sell them land," she said. "Gift incentives of this type are used to try to lead you to believe you are getting something for nothing when, in fact, you are trading you time and travel expense for a gift of unknown value."

Ms. Truitt said that consumers should consider such offers on the basis of their interest in the property offered for sale, and not on the basis of receiving a gift of unknown quality and value.

Howard ballplayer severely injured

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

A Howard College baseball player was severely injured in an unofficial workout Tuesday afternoon at the school's ballpark.

Randy Mobley, a freshman from Stockton, Calif., was pitching batting practice when he was struck in the right eye by a line drive off the bat of teammate Bobby Behnsch. Mobley was taken immediately to Malone Hogan Hospital and underwent surgery that evening.

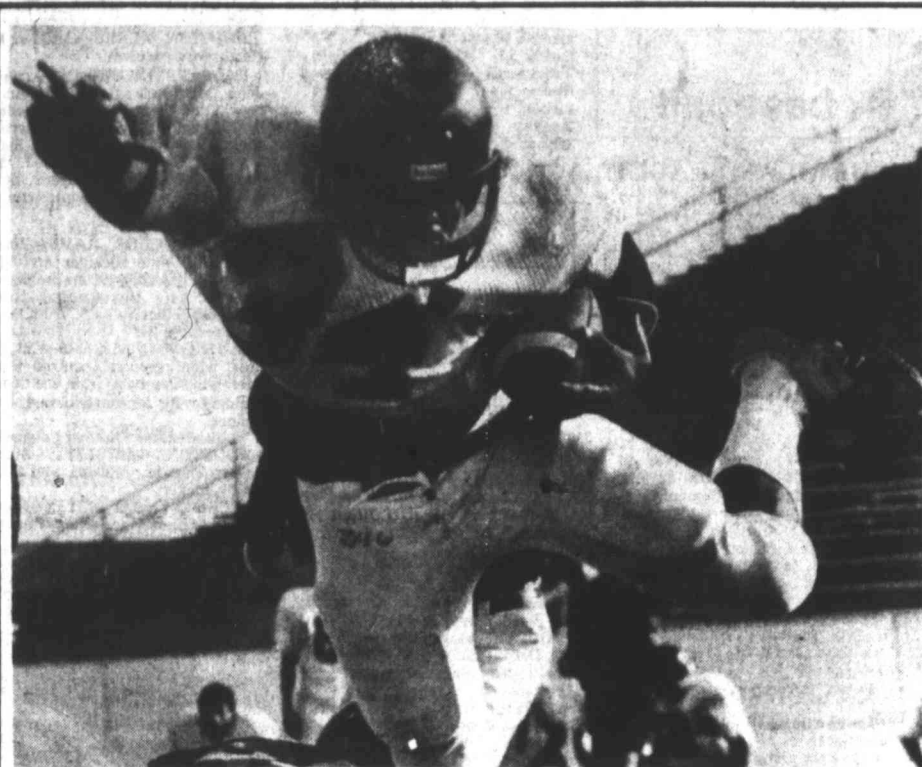

Coach Bill Griffin, who was not on the field at the time of the accident, said that Mobley must have the damaged eye removed within two weeks. His parents have flown to Big Spring and will accompany their son back to California where he will undergo surgery, Griffin said. Additional surgery is needed on his nose and nasal passages.

Regular Hawk baseball workouts begin Monday in conjunction with the start of fall classes. Several players arrived on campus early, however, and were working out on their own at the time of the accident.

"This is a tragedy for us," Griffin said. "I told him I want him back on the field by January. I don't know he'll be able to play for us again, but I want him on my team for the next two years. I'm going to see to it he gets two years of college education."

Griffin said Mobley was pitching with a protective screen on the mound but "he wasn't all the way behind it" when ball was hit back through the box. The ball struck the player before his follow-through could carry him totally behind the screen.

The right-handed Mobley, an infielder, was one of two highly-touted players from Stockton signed by Griffin to play for the Hawks next spring. The Los Angeles Dodgers organization had expressed interest in both Mobley and his roommate, Gregg Marsh, a pitcher.

Steers, Mustangs battle in pre-season workout

SWEETWATER — Itching to tackle someone else besides their own teammates, the Big Spring High Steers travel to Sweetwater tonight to scrimmage the Mustangs.

"We're ready for a scrimmage," head coach Quinn Eudy said this morning. "The kids have worked hard and hit hard but their attention span has been short. I think they're ready to play someone besides themselves."

On schedule is a 4 p.m. workout for the freshmen, a 5 p.m. practice session for sophomores and junior varsity team members and a 7 p.m. scrimmage between Steer and Mustang varsities.

Eudy and his staff were happy with last Friday's intrasquad workout; now they want to see how much improvement the team has made over the second week of organized workouts. "The main thing we want to know,"

Eudy said, "is if they've improved over last week. We want to see them run, see them hit and have a good workout. And we want to see if they stay excited over an extended period of time."

The coaches are also using tonight's practice as for conditioning; last year's scrimmage in Memorial Stadium went close to three hours before the lights went off.

Eudy says that junior Tommy Gartman will start at quarterback tonight. The team enters the scrimmage with no serious injuries and no major changes in the starting lineup. Mark Johnson, the senior back-up quarterback, will see action although he is still recovering from a knee injury.

NEW LOOK FOR LITTLE LEAGUERS — Marc Pisciotta of Marietta, Ga., bats with the new helmet face protection mask in the Little League World Series in

U.S. fighters lose in semis

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The cockiness of a U.S. boxing team that had predicted a gold-medal sweep in the IX Pan American Games is gone and so is its perfect record, vanquished by a Dominican's furious fists, the partisan chants of a Venezuelan crowd and a referee's discipline.

Wednesday was a bad day generally for the U.S. athletes in the drug-marred games, with the boxing team at the top of the list of disappointment.

After Paul Gonzalez of Los Angeles ran the U.S. boxing record to 12-0 with an easy victory that put him in the finals of the 106-pound division, three U.S. boxers — two of them world champions in their weight classes — came crashing down.

One world champ, Steve McCrory of Detroit, lost 3-2 in the 112-pound class because he could not counter the inside flurries of Dominican Laureano Ramirez, and another champion, 119-pounder Floyd Favors of Capitol Heights, Md., was beaten 4-1 as he tried to knock out Manuel Vilchez of Venezuela because he feared the partisan crowd would influence the judges against him.

The third American, 125-pounder Bernard Gray of Boynton, Beach, Fla., actually won with the judges 3-2,

Pan Am Games

but was defeated by Santos Cardona of Puerto Rico when a jury voted 4-1 against him after the referee penalized him two points in the third round.

Overall, the United States won six gold medals Wednesday, three in yachting by Jeff Lenhart of Costa Mesa, Calif., who medalled in his third straight Pan Am games; Dave Curtis of Marblehead, Mass. and Peter Wright of Melrose Park, Ill.

The others were in tennis, where Gretchen Rush of Pittsburgh won the women's singles, 1-6, 6-3, 7-5 over Gigi Fernandez of Puerto Rico; in cycling, where David Grylls of San Diego won the 4,000-meter pursuit; and in the women's 400-meter hurdles, where Judi Brown of East Lansing, Mich., won in 56.08 seconds, a personal best.

But that was about it, outside of an 81-68 victory over Mexico that ran the U.S. men's basketball record to 5-0, 2-0 in the final round. Leon Wood of Cal State-Fullerton sparked a spurt that put the game out of reach in the first 10 minutes.

Overall, the United States maintained its big lead in the medals race with 95 golds and 201 total. Cuba was second with 80 golds and 125 total and Canada third with 11 gold and 96 total.

Thursday Notes

Thoughts and best wishes from this corner are extended to Howard College baseball player Randy Mobley who was injured Tuesday.

*****
First in Notes this week is a report from Big Spring's gypsy band of runners, last reported in Fredericksburg for a 10-kilometer. The band this time was comprised of Don and Linda Davis, Bob Fuller, Donald Webb and Sherril Easterling.

Webb won the 50 and over division with a 39:07.0 clocking while Easterling took the women's 30-39 with a 42:36.0

Fuller was fourth in the men's 40-49 with a 39:55.0, one of his best times to date, while Linda Davis was fifth her (30-39) division. Davis ran a 44.30 in the men's 30-39.

The next big event for those runners and others around the Big Spring area is the 3rd Annual Bill Easterling Memorial Run Sept. 10 in Coahoma.

The two and nine mile event has been designated the West Texas Running Club's official September run. Entry fee is $1 for members and $2 non-members. Easterling says T-shirts will be available for all contestants while trophies will be awarded.

Starting time is 8 a.m. at Coahoma High School.

*****
In bowling, the Men's Major Bowling League meets tonight at 7 p.m. in the Bowl-a-Rama conference room. All members are invited to attend says spokesman W.L. Osborne.

*****
Big Spring Youth Football spokesman Leo Williams reports that sign-ups for the 1983 fall season are still going on. The season will start Sept. 10 with games played every Saturday afternoon at Blankenship Field.

To join the league, contact: Billy Hinkle for the Forsan team; Howard Kloss for the Coahoma team; Williams or Danny Clark for teams working out at Goliad Middle School; or James Bristo for teams practicing at Washington Elementary.

*****
The Howard County Boxing team is hosting a tournament Friday and Saturday at the county fairbarn to raise money for an upcoming boxing trip.

Bouts begin at 7 p.m. nightly; admission is $3. The money will be used to send team members to Albuquerque, N.M., for a Police Athletic League tournament.

Golf news.
The Big Spring Golf Association Grand Tournament has been moved back to Oct. Spokesman Bob Rogers said the juggling in the schedule was made for two reasons. First, work on the greens at the Comanche Trails Golf Course is planned for late-September when the tournament was originally scheduled. Secondly, the LaJet-Coors Classic will be played Sept. 25-28 in Abilene, the same weekend of the tournament. — GREG JAKLEWICZ

Steelers, Eagles vie for brag rights

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles fullback Hubie Oliver remembers the Pittsburgh Steelers, and the memories aren't too good.

It will be somewhat the same scene for Oliver when the Eagles meet the Steelers tonight in the final National Football League exhibition game for both teams.

Last year, Oliver, a 10th-round draft pick in 1981, had won the starting fullback job. But against Pittsburgh in the last exhibition game he went down for the season with knee ligament damage.

Oliver says he's not going to let the memory affect his play.

"I'm just going out and play my game," said the 212-pound fullback, after a final workout Wednesday. "I'm not thinking about what happened to me. I've just got to go out and do my job."

Oliver appears to have recovered from his injury, and has shown the form that enabled him to start 10 games as a rookie two seasons ago. He's gained 70 yards on 13 carries for a 5.4 average in limited duty as the Eagles won three previous exhibitions.

Coach Marion Campbell says Oliver had an excellent training camp.

"He's met the challenge of developing himself as a front-line fullback. His blocking is crisp. He's won the No. 1 fullback job. He looks as if he's hitting the hole quick, and has shown a lot of confidence."

Oliver agrees with his coach.

"I'm a good blocker, so I don't have to work on that to be good," he said. "I have to concentrate on picking the hole, reading my blockers."

Oliver refuses to discount winning preseason games.

"It's good to win all four. If we can win all four it will give us a lot of momentum going into our first game," Oliver observed.

"I'm kind of tickled because we're picked to be last in our league. But we're going to play our game and fool a lot of those people."

Oliver said he wasn't concerned about competition from this year's No. 1 draft pick, Michael Haddix.

"I've had competition every year. That's the name of this game, competition. So, you have to buckle down."

Haddix has been switched to halfback because of an injury to Wilbert Montgomery, who is out from three to six weeks.

The Eagles will have some changes in the defensive lineup due to injuries to linebackers Frank LeMaster and Reggie Wilkes. Jody Schulz replaces Wilkes, and newly acquired Joel Williams starts in place of LeMaster.

Campbell said he planned to play his veterans most of this final tuneup. Quarterback Ron Jaworski should go at least three quarters.

The Steelers, 3-1, will be without nose tackle Edmund Nelson and defensive end John Goodman.

Cowboys trade Spradlin away

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys traded backup linebacker Danny Spradlin and rookie running back Lawrence Ricks for undisclosed draft choices Wednesday, cutting the team's roster to 58.

Spradlin, a two-year veteran out of Tennessee, was sent to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and Ricks, an eighth-round draft choice from Michigan, was traded to Kansas City.

The trade of Spradlin means that Scott McLean, a free agent from Florida State who spent last year on the injured reserve list, has won the job of backing up middle linebacker Bob Breunig, said team spokesman Greg Aiello.

Spradlin, 6-foot-1 and 241 pounds, will be used as a inside linebacker at Tampa Bay, Aiello said.

Tigers tip Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Lou Whitaker figured the ball he hit to right field would settle in the glove of Larry Parrish. The big surprise was that he hit a home run instead of an out.

Whitaker's three-run inside-the-park home run in the top of the ninth inning carried the Detroit Tigers to a 5-2 victory over the Texas Rangers Wednesday night.

Whitaker hit a long fly off Ranger reliever Victor Cruz. Parrish caught the ball at the warning track, slammed into the wall and the ball fell free, allowing Whitaker to chase two teammates who were on base around home plate where he was safe by inches on a relay throw.

"I hit it so high I didn't think it would carry, and I figured it was just going to be a long out," said Whitaker. "I decided to just hustle around the bases and going in to third, I looked at (coach) Alex Gramms and he waved me all the way."

Whitaker had performed the rare feat before.

American League

He hit an inside-the-park home run against Chicago on Aug. 13, 1978.

Whitaker's big hit helped Jack Morris tie his sixteenth victory against eight defeats.

Morris tied the major league high for victories this season and his nine strikeouts put him well ahead in the department in the American League.

Morris scattered seven hits and made only one mistake, serving up a pinch hit two-run home run to Bill Stein in the bottom of the seventh inning to give the Rangers a 2-1 lead.

However, the Tigers tied the game 2-2 in the eighth on Lance Parrish's RBI single.

Tiger manager Sparky Anderson said Whitaker's game-winning hit was typical of the second baseman.

"There is not a better second baseman in baseball," Anderson said. "He will get 300 hits this year, and nobody has done that in I don't know how long."

"He's always been a premier fielder and he always gets the big hit for you," he said.

Morris has completed 11 of his last 15 starts after beginning the season with a 2-5 record through May 11.

Astros bop Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates are losing games, but not ground, in the National League East race.

The Pirates were crushed by the Houston Astros 10-4 Wednesday night, their sixth loss in their last seven games, but remained a half-game behind the Philadelphia Phillies in the NL East. The Phils lost their sixth in a row, and third in succession to the San Francisco Giants, by 5-3.

"Everybody in the East is just playing awful," said Pirates' third baseman Bill Madlock.

"You could say we're lucky to be in the race," said reliever Kent Tekulve.

The Astros, who have had less success in Pittsburgh than any other National League city in their 21 seasons of existence, suddenly are enjoying the best of times at what couldn't be a worse time for the Pirates.

National League

The Pirates figured to pick up ground by playing at home when NL East contenders Philadelphia and Montreal were playing on the West Coast, but lost three of four to the Reds last weekend and now have lost the first three games of the four-game series with Houston — which has won only 38 times in 148 lifetime games in Pittsburgh.

Cubs 3, Reds 0

Eddie Milner's two-out, ninth-inning single ruined Chuck Rainey no-hitter, but not his goal.

"My primary concern was the CG," his first complete game of the season, Rainey said. But the no-hitter was on his mind. "As I got closer to the end, I got more and more conscious of it. But the only time it

Cubs' Rainey just misses no-hitter

CHICAGO (AP) — When Eddie Milner's single torpedoed Chuck Rainey's run at a no-hitter with two out in the bottom of the ninth Wednesday, the Chicago Cub right-hander just flashed "a nice soft grin" and nailed down what he set out to do.

"My primary concern was the CG (complete game) his first this year," an exhilarated Rainey said after his 3-0 gem over the Cincinnati Reds.

"As I got closer to the end, I got more and more conscious of it. But the only time it got to me was at the start of the ninth when I felt kind of unnerved," said Rainey, 13-10. "So I took a step off the mound and told myself to calm down."

Rainey quickly retired pinch hitters Tom Foley and Alan Knicely on grounders — the 15th and 16th of the game off his befuddling assortment of sliders and sinkers. That brought up Milner, who had become Cincinnati's first runner when he coaxed a walk leading off the

Yankees 6, Mariners 3

Omar Moreno's three-run homer, his first home run in 443 at-bats this season, capped a four-run sixth inning and Ron Kittle scattered nine hits in pitching his 15th complete game — one short of his career high — and eighth in a row.

White Sox 4, Royals 3

Ron Kittle's grounder scored Rudy Law from third base with one out in the 10th as Chicago opened a nine-game lead over Kansas City in the West. Law opened the inning with a single off Royals relief ace Dan Quisenberry, stole his 59th base and was sacrificed to third. Harold Baines was intentionally walked and Kittle beat out a grounder to shortstop U.L. Washington deep in the hole as Law scored.

Twins 8, Red Sox 7

John Castino's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning drove in the winning run as Len Whitehouse boosted his record to 7-1 and Ron Davis picked up his 25th save.

Jim Rice and Tony Armas homered for Boston, while Minnesota's Mickey Hatcher rapped a two-run double and Castino added an RBI single.

Indians 1-4, A's 0-2

Neal Heaton hurled a five-hitter in the opener and fellow rookie Julio Franco doubled and scored in the fourth inning. Heaton struck out four and walked one while pitching his third complete game and second shutout. The left-hander has won his last four starts, compiling a 1.29 earned run average in 35 innings.

In the second game, Larry Sorensen and Jamie Easterly combined on a seven-hitter and Ron Hassey doubled home the lead run in the fifth inning.

Brewers 1, Angels 0

Robin Yount singled with the bases loaded and none out in the 14th after Don Sutton and Jim Slaton held the Angels to 10 hits. Andy Hassler relieved to start the 14th and gave up a leadoff double to Jim Gantner. After a wild pitch, Paul Molitor and Charlie Moore were walked intentionally and Yount lined a 1-2 pitch into center field.

Orioles 7, Blue Jays 4

With infielder Lenn Sakata behind the plate and outfielders John Lowenstein and Gary Roenicke playing second base and third, respectively, after a series of pinch hitters, the Baltimore Orioles appeared to have their defenses out of sync. Instead, it was the Toronto Blue Jays who got caught with their guard down.

In the bottom of the 10th, Cal Ripken Jr. led off with a solo homer and Sakata slammed a three-run shot with two out, giving the Orioles a 7-4 victory.

got to me was at the start of the ninth when I felt kind of unnerved. So I took a step off the mound and told myself to calm down."

Rainey got the first two batters on grounders before Milner, who had become Cincinnati's first runner with a seventh-inning walk, singled up the middle.

Keith Moreland's sacrifice fly in the sixth and Mel Hall's two-run double in the seventh accounted for the scoring off Mario Soto.

Giants 5, Phillies 3

Steve Carlton of the Phillies struck out 10 batters in six innings. But he finished with 10 strikeouts — and Joel Youngblood finished him with a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth, boosting the Giants to victory and handing Philadelphia its sixth consecutive loss.

Carlton, who raised his all-time strikeout total to 3,653, walked Johnnie LeMaster on four pitches with one out in the ninth and Youngblood hit the next pitch over the right-center field fence.

Dodgers 3, Expos 2

Ken Landreaux's tie-breaking homer in the bottom of the eighth inning against visiting Montreal stretched the Dodgers' winning streak to eight games and kept them within two games of first-place Atlanta in the West.

Braves 11, Cardinals 3

In St. Louis, Phil Niekro scattered seven hits in seven innings and doubled to spark a four-run third inning that enabled Atlanta to snap the Cardinals' six-game winning streak. Glenn Hubbard and Rafael Ramirez each homered and Terry Harper and Randy Johnson had three hits apiece.

Padres 3, Mets 2

Tim Lollar scattered eight hits in 8 2-3 innings and tripled home a run as the Padres beat New York and their old nemesis, Tom Seaver, who entered the game with a 33-9 career record against San Diego.

Vitamin may damage nerves

BOSTON (AP) — The health fad of taking big doses of vitamin B-6, thought by some to promote muscle growth and relieve premenstrual swelling, can damage the nerves and leave victims barely able to walk, researchers have found.

Users may lose feeling in their arms and legs. The symptoms are so dramatic that some have been mistakenly diagnosed as having multiple sclerosis.

Victims slowly regain most of their sensations and walking ability after they give up the vitamin. But recovery takes a year or two, and doctors are not sure whether they ever fully get back all their nerve functions.

Many people routinely take large amounts of a form of vitamin B-6 called pyridoxine. Until now, it was thought to be harmless.

"It is clear that long-term megavitamin pyridoxine therapy is not safe," researchers concluded in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine. "Limits should be put on its use and safe levels established through further experiments in animals or in vitro (test tubes)."

Vitamin B-6 is an essential nutrient that helps the body burn protein food. Weight lifters use it in the belief that it helps build muscle. Some gynecologists recommend it to women as a possible way of relieving ankle swelling around the time of their periods. And some people take it simply because they feel run down. However, there is no clear evidence that it works for any of these uses.

In their journal article, doctors from four institutions described seven cases of vitamin B-6 poisoning. Dr. Herbert Schaumburg of Albert Einstein College of Medicine, the principal author, said 13 additional cases have come to his attention, and he expected to hear of many more once the warning is publicized.

The seven victims, mostly in their 20s and 30s, took between two and six grams of vitamin B-6 each day.

This is 1,000 to 2,700 times the recommended daily allowance.

Two of the victims used it on their gynecologists' recommendations to relieve premenstrual swelling. However, these doctors ordinarily do not prescribe such big doses.

"Most of these women started taking 50 to 100 milligrams and then just began taking more when it didn't work," Schaumburg said in an interview.

Patients may ignore the symptoms at first. One patient knew she was in trouble, Schaumburg said, when a waiter ran over her foot with a dessert cart, and she didn't feel it.

In one typical case, a 27-year-old woman took the pills to get rid of body water and had worked her way up to five grams a day. At first, she noticed a tingling sensation in her neck, legs and the soles of her feet. Then she became unsteady on her feet.

By the time doctors saw her, she could walk only with a cane. "Her gait was broad-based and stamping, and she was unable to walk at all with her eyes closed," the doctors reported.

"The sensation of touch, temperature, pinprick, vibration and joint position were severely impaired in both the upper and lower limbs," they wrote.

Two months after she stopped taking the vitamin, she began to feel a bit better. Within seven months, she could walk without a cane and stand with her eyes closed.

"This kind of recovery is typical. 'After that, it is very slow,'" Schaumburg said. "They often will feel they are 100 percent better, but if you test them carefully, you find there is something wrong with them," and there may be permanent damage "that doesn't show up on casual examination."

Two patients who had been followed for two and three years after giving up the vitamin still had some signs of nerve damage.

Police chief hears fatal shooting

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP) — Police Chief Bob Watkins was on the phone with a friend who had called to report a suspicious van cruising outside the service station where he worked. Suddenly, a shot rang out over the line.

Watkins dropped his telephone and rushed to the station, where he found the body of Robert Payne, 23, shot five times.

"Whoever did this murdered the boy before they robbed him," Watkins said. "They murdered the boy."

Watkins said Tuesday that Payne called him at home and was describing a van cruising slowly past the station Monday night.

"Whoever shot that boy, as many times as they shot the boy, wanted him dead," Watkins said.

Firefighter convicted on arson charge

CHICAGO (AP) — A firefighter, burned as a child in a fire that killed his brother, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for hiring a man to set fire to a building occupied by a family of seven.

Robert Russell, 47, of Chicago, was sentenced in federal court Tuesday for arson.

U.S. District Judge Susan Getzendanner imposed the maximum penalty on Russell, who prosecutors said had tried to have the two-story building destroyed for insurance money.

Russell, a 17-year veteran of the fire department, was convicted of hiring Ralph Branch to burn a South Side building Russell owned. Branch testified that Russell ordered the building burned although he knew it was occupied by a family of seven.

Branch said that when he told Russell the occupants might not escape, Russell said, "If they do, they do and if they don't, they don't."

After two attempts to ignite the building failed, Branch went to the FBI, testimony showed.

Noting that Russell had been burned at age 6 in a fire that killed a brother, the judge said: "It is a puzzle that a fireman who lost a sibling in a fire and was himself burned in a fire could engage in this conduct. The defendant is an arsonist... He is a violent man."

Ms. Getzendanner also criticized the fire department for continuing to employ Russell since his conviction last June.

"I find it hard to believe that the Chicago Fire Department will allow a convicted arsonist to remain on the force," she said.

Julius Echeles, Russell's attorney, said administrative proceedings brought by the department were put on hold pending Russell's appeal of the conviction.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: All sorts of interest and brilliant new ideas for greater advancement and progress in the future should now motivate you so be alert to whatever arises of an advanced nature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan just how to gain your personal wishes and then go after them quickly, but be sure they are what you really want.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Think over just how you can gain personal wishes and then go after them wisely. Try to please your closest tie.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Decide what you want from friends and then tell them and gain their favors. Put the effort needed into achieving aims.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen carefully to comprehend what is expected of you by higher-ups and follow instructions wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Fine day for looking into new outlets that can make the future brighter for you. Go to see individuals who are influential.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find the right way of handling responsibilities you have assumed and they are soon behind you. Take no credit risks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your partners and understand how much you can rely on them in the future. They have helpful abilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Concentrate on new methods for use in your daily routines and other interests so that you can get better results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have excellent talents and can commercialize on them very satisfactorily now. Drive carefully today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan just how to make home conditions more harmonious and more to your liking as well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are thinking cleverly and can accomplish a good deal today that has not been possible of late.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The opportunity is yours now to hit on the right plan for adding to your worldly goods. Attend to business matters.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those interesting young persons who can quickly fit into the Jet Age in which born and can get into the activities of a modern nature that appeal to him, or her, so send to the right schools.

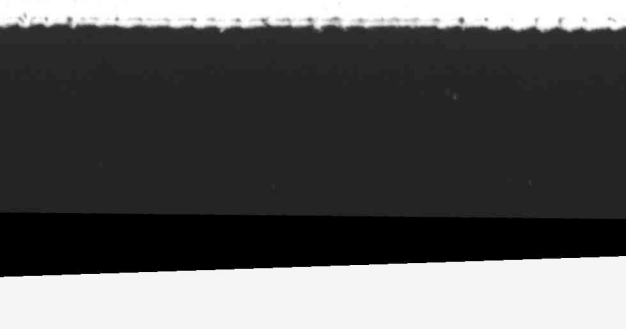

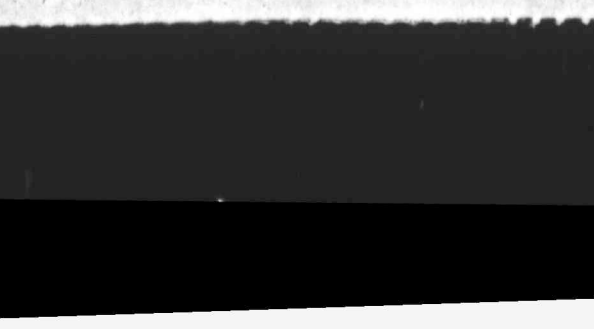

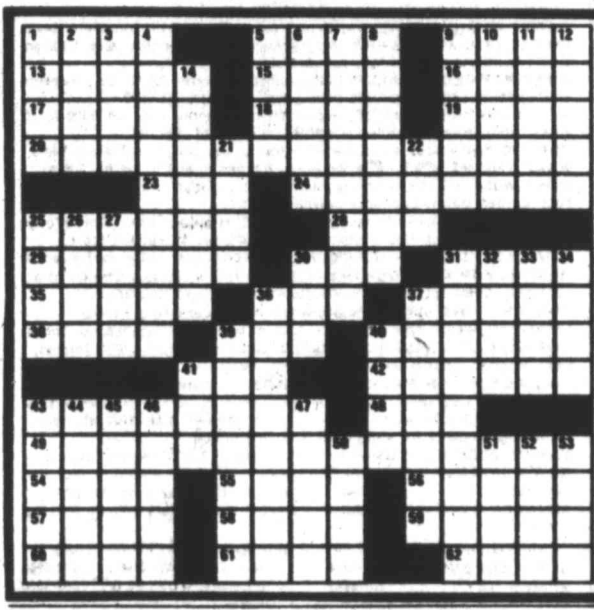

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Zoo keepers say animal abuse rare

By The Associated Press
Abuse of zoo animals by workers hired to care for them, as was charged in Brooklyn this week, is extremely rare, zoo keepers say. But the Humane Society says poor conditions in some zoos can add up to passive mistreatment.

A zoo worker injuring an animal is "practically an unheard of thing," said Robert Hoage, spokesman at the National Zoo in Washington, D.C. "Zoo people are incredibly dedicated folks."

Most zoo keepers "would let themselves get hurt before they'd let one of the animals" get hurt, said Jane Hartline, a spokeswoman for the Washington Park Zoo in Portland, Ore.

Horace L. Canty, 26, a worker at the Prospect Park Zoo in Brooklyn, was charged Tuesday with fatally scalding a monkey, allegedly because the animal pulled a braid in his hair. The incident occurred July 23 and the monkey died Aug. 2.

"Trying to get even with a monkey is ludicrous," said Sue Pressman, director of captive wildlife for the Humane Society of the United States.

"There are certain things any professional zoo person knows — and one is you don't wear bangles, beads or braids if you're working in the primate house."

Although such incidents are rare, there are some small zoos which lack the money and management to protect animals in their care.

"We find that most of the cruelty in zoos is caused by ignorance and indifference," she said. "It's not active cruelty. It's passive cruelty."

"And it's very hard to bring charges against a person who has been cruel to a tiger by, in our opinion, keeping it in too small a cage and feeding it too little."

"We've got all kinds of strange people on this planet, and they should certainly be kept away from a place where animals are totally at the mercy of the people who are responsible for them," said Dr. Warren Thomas, director of the Los Angeles Zoo.

At that zoo, prospective employees must complete a 15-week training course, then work an apprenticeship and score high on a civil-service exam.

The quality of zoo employees has improved as more municipalities have turned over management to zoological societies, Ms. Pressman said. Management of the Prospect Park Zoo, for example, will soon pass from the city to the New York Zoological Society, which operates the famous Bronx Zoo.

"Having an unqualified employee in the zoo is not only dangerous to animals, but dangerous to people because animals might get out of their cages," Ms. Pressman said. "Keeping animals in captivity is a highly delicate, professional job. It can't be taken lightly."

Federal inspectors have recently begun cracking down on zoos that mistreat animals by allowing poor conditions to persist.

"Our fuse has shortened, and our punch has stiffened," said Max Heppner, spokesman for the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, the U.S. Department of Agriculture agency which licenses and inspects animal exhibitors.

Actor doesn't mind insults on the job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Franklin Cover gets insulted at work every week and he doesn't mind it a bit.

The fact is, that's the reason he goes to work.

Cover plays Tom Willis, who is sort of a verbal punching bag for George Jefferson (Sherman Hemsley) on the long-running CBS hit comedy series, "The Jeffersons."

"People stop me on the street and tell me, 'He shouldn't insult you so much,'" says Cover. "But that's comedy. It doesn't hurt my feelings."

"The Jeffersons," entering its 10th season, was a spin-off by producer Norman Lear from another highly successful comedy, "All in the Family." The Jeffersons were Archie Bunker's neighbors, and George Jefferson was the black equivalent of the bigoted Archie.

As the series began, Jefferson had just struck it rich in the dry cleaning business and he and his wife, Louise (Isabel Sanford), moved to an expensive apartment building on Manhattan's East Side.

One of their neighbors was Tom Willis, a white man married to a black woman. He quickly became Jefferson's foil for many racial jokes and needling about his portliness. Adding to Jefferson's ire was the fact that his son married Willis' daughter.

"Tom is much nicer than I am," Cover says during a break at the rehearsal hall where "The Jeffersons" cast is gathered.

That may be just a bit of modesty, because Cover is a gracious and pleasant man. In fact, it's hard to picture him as the nasty lawyer he once played on the soap opera, "All My Children."

"He's a publisher who's done well," he says of his character. "He's a bit naive. That's when he gets into trouble with George Jefferson. George can usually talk him into something against his will. Then they both get into trouble. It becomes like Laurel and Hardy."

Willis is also henpecked by his wife, Helen, played by Roxie Roker.

"We taped a show last night and after Helen bawled me out I threw in the line, 'Yes, my happiness,'" he says. "I modeled that after something Peter Sellers did in a movie. It adds to the comedy. The bossy wife goes all the way back to Greek drama."

Cover said that in the years the show has been on the air, Tom Willis has changed and is now less of a straight man than he was.

"When you talk about a character on a situation comedy, it's not just the actor," he says. "It's the writers, too. I've seen a lot of writers come and go. Some come in and say the Willises are boring. Some say they're interesting. We need the stimulation of new blood, new ideas."

In his own life, Cover is married to former ballet dancer Mary Stone, and they have two children. But he's never wanted to move his family from New York.

"Everything I've done until 'The Jeffersons' — the plays, the movies, the soap operas — were all in New York," he says. "My family lives in New York and I live here while the show's in production. We have a house on Cape Cod and we spend part of the summer there. My family comes to visit me. I never thought the show would last this long."

"I don't like to put all my eggs in one basket. I'm glad I didn't put all my eggs in the Los Angeles basket. I have the best of both worlds."

Priest bites demonstrator

SEATTLE (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest let his feelings be known after President Reagan's address to the American Legion, and even put some teeth into it — his own.

The Rev. Charlie Thorpe of Montreal, a 6-1, 225-pound ex-Marine who served in World War II and Korea, bit a demonstrator's hand when their discussion of Central America policy heated up Tuesday.

Outside the hall where Reagan had just addressed the American Legion convention, the demonstrator called the priest a "fascist" and put his hand in front of Thorpe's face when the priest tried to respond.

Thorpe, in Roman collar and Legionnaire cap, glowered at the young man, then chomped down on the fleshy part of his hand. The demonstrator's eyes bugged like saucers. After a couple of seconds, Thorpe loosened his clamp and the demonstrator melted into the crowd.

The priest gave the fleeing demonstrator an obscene gesture and shouted, "I want to get hold of that punk!" Friends calmed the priest down and walked away with him.

"I was all right until he shoved his hand in my face," said Thorpe, an American citizen who has been a priest for eight years. He is past commander of the Canadian branch of the American Legion.

"He stuck his hand in my face and that constitutes assault," added Thorpe, who walks with a cane because shrapnel broke his back during the Korean conflict.

Police separated the two and said no charges would be filed.

The demonstrator could not be identified or located after the incident. "I can identify him," Thorpe said. "He has my teeth marks in his hand."
