LOUIS BROWN
...discusses boxers

Boxing club nets new lease

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioner Louis Brown said he would "have to bend way back and accept" a yearly lease offered by the Big Spring school district on the building housing the Howard County Boxing Club.

Council members agreed, 3-0, to pay a $120 monthly rent on the old barracks building on N. Sixth Street which the school district has offered for sale. The rent is to be paid in "in-kind" services, such as paving of school parking lots when enough rent monies accumulate. The lease also provides the boxing club, which has used the abandoned building for several months, with the first right of refusal to purchase the property should the BSISD receive a bona fide bid.

The school district turned down a $100 bid by the commissioners as being too low. No other bids were received.

When Brown asked how much the building was appraised at in an effort to decide whether the county might rebid for the building, BSISD Assistant Superintendent Don Crockett told the commissioners that "it was in the district's best interests not to divulge the appraised value. We want to get the best dollar value possible."

Under the agreement, the county will repair and maintain the building, pay utilities and provide liability insurance for the building. The final agreement also may deduct the cost of the initial painting and repairs to the building from the rent.

Crockett originally offered commissioners a 12-month lease with 60 to 90 days notice if a bona fide buyer appeared, but Brown objected.

"The Boxing Club's going to fix that thing (the building) real nice so that someone will want it, and then they'll say, 'Boxing club, you're out,'" Brown said.

Brown and other commissioners changed the tentative lease agreement to a yearly lease, in which a bona fide buyer would have to wait until the end of the lease to assume

Texas wines toasted

Hightower touts Lone Star grape

By DANA PALMER

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Despite the many skeptics and the jokes about "grapes of Erath" and "Chateau Bubba," state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower is preaching the gospel of Texas wines these days.

Maybe it's a bit easier than convincing someone a 280-pound tackle for the Dallas Cowboys can hold his own as a lead dancer in a ballet company.

But not much.
"When I was in college in Denton, California wine was something of a joke," Hightower said Monday. Students would buy a gallon or two and disappear for a weekend, he noted, but all that has changed for California and "Texas can make similar progress."

Hightower's optimistic comments came as more than 100 of the curious roamed among tables of half-empty wine bottles and platters of cheeses and fruits at a downtown Austin restaurant. It was a wine tasting, the fourth and last such event sponsored in recent weeks by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Among the family vineyards and wineries represented was the state's oldest — the century-old Val Verde Winery of Del Rio.

Others included the Messina-Lof Wine Cellars of Bryan, the Llano Estacado Winery and Pheasant Ridge Winery, both of Lubbock; the Chateau Montgolfier Vineyards, La Buena Vida Winery and the Sanchez Creek Winery, all near Fort Worth; and the Fall Creek Vineyards, Cypress Valley Winery, Moyer Texas Champagne Co. and Guadalupe Valley Winery, all in the Austin-San Antonio area.

Now, Hightower said, several Texas wines are outstanding and can stand "right alongside the very best of California."

Maybe that sounded more like Texas brag than an educated opinion to the many restaurant owners, wine stewards, wine sellers and reporters attending the wine tasting.

But Austin wine connoisseur and merchant Fernando "Woody" de Luna was quick to point out that all of the 11 wineries represented at the tasting "show such professional work in the sense that they are not novelty items."

The wines are "drier and more interesting with more variety and quality" than most people would expect, he said, adding that they have "a cleanliness and brightness and well-defined aroma and body and

SEASON OPENER — B. J. Havlak, manager of the Glasscock County Co-op, and his partner, Henry Chudej, pose proudly with their first bale of cotton of the season. Weighing 462 pounds, the bale is about 18 to 38 pounds under average. Havlak said he believes he will have a good season — despite the drought — because of irrigation.

Glasscock County farmers bring in first bale of cotton

By NICK GREENWALT
Staff Writer

Two Glasscock County farmers yesterday brought in the county's first bale of cotton from a crop which may have weathered the West Texas drought in better shape than predicted.

Garden City's first bale, weighing 462 pounds, was claimed by Henry Chudej and B. J. Havlak of the Glasscock County Co-op.

"Our average bale is from 480 to 500 pounds, but we had a little trouble with the gin this morning," said Havlak, manager of the co-op.

Havlak said he still had a fair season despite the heat.

"Overall, it looks fair, but it looked a lot better until the hot weather hit us," he said.

The co-op had enough irrigational systems to give most plants enough water to withstand the heat, he said.

The heat wave and drought that scorched West Texas this summer still may reduce local cotton production by half, said Jim Melton, assistant plant superintendent of the Rolling Plains Co-op in Sweetwater. The gins around Big Spring and Colorado City are expected to suffer the most, he said.

"I think the high figure that we're expecting is 125,000 bales, which we will receive from the gins we serve," Melton said. "We figure an average crop is anywhere from 200,000 to 250,000 bales."

Melton said the below average crop will have an effect "in the market because the prices will be better, and we will ship more of our cotton this year."

Continental resumes flights, Midland not on schedule

From staff and wire reports
Bankrupt Continental Airlines returned to the skies this morning, but flights into the Midland-Odessa Regional Airport were not among those resumed by the company.

The carrier's first flight left Houston Intercontinental Airport at 7:31 a.m. today for Lafayette and Baton Rouge, La. The DC-9, which had a 90-seat capacity, left the airport with only six passengers aboard.

The airline had operated from eight to 10 flights a week into the Midland-Odessa airport.

Continental grounded all its domestic flights Saturday and filed papers with a federal bankruptcy court in Houston, proposing to reopen today with flights to 25 of the 78 U.S. cities it had served.

"We are very optimistic and very enthusiastic about our future," Continental President Frank Lorenzo said Monday at a news conference. "Now that costs are firmly under control, we can compete and build a Continental Airlines that our founders and everyone associated with us can be proud of."

Lorenzo announced the airline will offer one-way fares of $49 on all non-stop domestic flights until Friday. The fares will then jump to $75 until Oct. 15, he said. No prices were quoted for flights after that.

Lorenzo's statement came two days after he announced the airline had filed for reorganization and temporarily suspended domestic flights after posting losses of $471.9 million since January 1979.

The airline's bankruptcy court papers said three problems made reorganization necessary: low-cost competition, reservations systems controlled by two other carriers and labor costs.

Late Monday afternoon, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Phil Peden granted Continental's request for a temporary restraining order requiring 266 airlines, cities and other companies to continue operational agreements that were in effect before Continental filed for reorganization. According to the motion, the agreements were "vital to their (Continental's) continued existence."

ALL'S QUIET — A fleet of Continental airliners sit quietly at Houston's Intercontinental Airport Sunday. Continental resumed about 25 percent of its flights today. Midland flights were cut from the schedule.

Peden set an Oct. 7 hearing on the airline's motion for an injunction on the matter.

Officials of pilot and flight attendant unions denounced the bankruptcy filing as "union busting" but said they had no plans to picket or strike Continental.

Union officials said the reorganized Continental established a pilot captain's salary at $43,000, less than half the $89,400 paid previously. Flight attendants took a 41 percent cut in pay, with a salary set at $22,500 for top-line workers.

Claudia Lampe, a spokeswoman for the Union of Flight Attendants, said about 300 union members attending a meeting in Denver Monday.

Eastern faces shutdown

By The Associated Press
Only two days after Continental Airlines filed for bankruptcy reorganization and shed its unions, Eastern Airlines chairman Frank Borman said his company will be forced to close or reorganize if workers don't accept 15 percent wage cuts.

In a videotaped message to Eastern's 37,500 employees, Borman said Monday that the Miami-based carrier's dim financial picture required drastic and immediate action.

"He told them we have three choices," said Richard McGraw, Eastern's senior vice president for corporate communications. "One is to shut the airline down, one is to file a Chapter 11 bankruptcy petition and try to operate like Continental Airlines, and the only really viable option is to approve a 15 percent wage cut."

Borman's latest statement to employees — he has repeatedly

Cease-fire catches flak

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Lebanese army today accused anti-government forces of using the newly proclaimed cease-fire to reinforce positions around army strongholds on the hills overlooking Beirut.

Gen. Franco Angioni, commander of Italy's contingent in the multinational peacekeeping force, told The Associated Press that Italy has been asked to send up to 250 troops to the central mountains as part of the observation force.

Reagan addresses critics

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is seeking to disarm critics of a Lebanon War Powers resolution who say the administration may be reneging on an agreement allowing U.S. Marines to remain in Lebanon over the next 18 months.

The president, according to Republican sources, was drafting a letter to congressional leaders to make clear his commitment to the delicately negotiated compromise over invoking the Vietnam War Powers Act.

Last week, Secretary of State George P. Shultz testified that Reagan "has no intention of turning over to Congress his constitutional authority as commander in chief" of U.S. military forces.

Then, in a weekend interview, the secretary said the Marines should remain until there is political stability in Lebanon, which he defined as a withdrawal of all foreign troops, including Syrians.

Both Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. and Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd Jr. expressed fears that the secretary's position seemed to contradict explicit wording in the Lebanon resolution giving Congress a role in deciding how long and for what purpose the troops are assigned to Lebanon.

"I intend to talk to the secretary of state about that," Baker said. "I believe this resolution invokes the full power of the War Powers Act and would be binding on the president."

Computer owners chided

WASHINGTON — Computer owners have failed to take even the most elementary steps to stop snooping by hobbyists who delight in cracking their security systems, says a 17-year-old who has penetrated dozens of computers across the country.

Neal Patrick told a House Science subcommittee Monday that it would have been easy to stop him and his high school friends from most of their exploits by merely making more complex the passwords needed to enter a computer.

While Patrick and the "414s" — a group of young computer buffs named after their area code in Milwaukee — did not maliciously destroy records or alter data, it would have been easy to do so, he told the panel.

"The potential for damage was enormous," said Patrick, who began his computer career with an introductory course at school in the 7th grade.

Almanac forecasts cold

DUBLIN, N.H. — The Old Farmer's Almanac, the little yellow book that claims it predicted Hurricane Alicia — albeit a week early — is back with an updated edition with a new forecast: a white Christmas and a cold, wet winter.

"It's tradition," Hale said of his 192-year-old publication. "It always appears, it doesn't change, and people realize that their grandfathers and great grandfathers and mothers read this."

"That yellow cover with the hole in the lefthand corner (to hang in the outhouse or pantry) is as good a sign of autumn as the changing of the leaves."

Although the old formula is less specific than the modern almanac's 16-region forecasts, "It has never been in conflict with what we've come up with," Hale said.

The predictions are 80 percent accurate, Hale said, but he conceded recently that accuracy is a matter of opinion.

Navy denies reports

TOKYO — Japanese government officials reportedly said today that U.S. Navy search vessels have located the flight data and voice recorders from the downed South Korean airliner, but a Navy spokesman denied the reports.

Reports by the Japan Broadcasting Corp. and the Kyodo News Service, quoting unnamed government sources, followed a statement by the chief government spokesman that set off a wave of speculation the Americans would soon recover the recorders.

The recorders — the so-called "black box" — have tapes of the last 30 minutes of the flight and might tell why the Korean aircraft veered off course into Soviet airspace.

This morning, Chief Cabinet Secretary Masaharu Gotoda, Japan's top government spokesman, said the United States had invited Japanese officials to join U.S. search operations off western Sakhalin where the Korean Air Lines jumbo jet is thought to have gone down after being hit by a Soviet missile Sept. 1 with 269 people aboard.

Gotoda said the officials were to be present when the Americans recovered the two recorders.

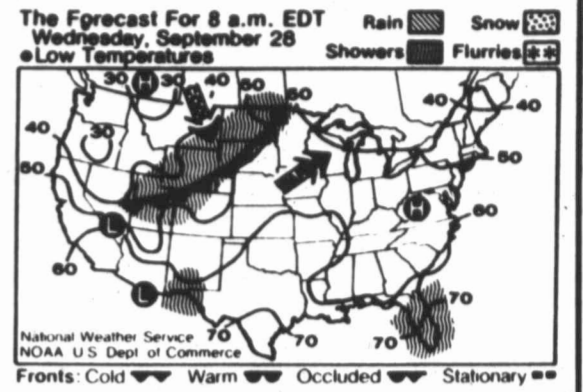

Japan Broadcasting Corp. said the recorders had been located in international waters at a depth of 2,300 feet west of Moneron, a small island off Sakhalin. The recorders continued to give off an electronic "ping" sound which can be picked up by sonar equipment on the U.S. vessels, it said.

LOS ANGELES — For once, it seemed, comedy star Joan Rivers had little to say after she sparked a furor with remarks during television's Emmy awards.

"Thank God the Emmys are over. I lost my voice," she said Monday while guest-hosting "The Tonight Show" for an absent Johnny Carson. "It's the first time in nine years I've been there and it's crazy. Everything is live...."

Dense fog formed over Southeast Texas before dawn today as cloudy to partly cloudy skies covered the state.

The haze reduced visibilities to less than a half mile at College Station, Beaumont-Port Arthur and Houston.

Cloudy skies covered most of South Texas, while partly cloudy conditions were the rule over the rest of the state.

A few showers and thundershowers were scattered across Maine and southern Florida.

Elsewhere, skies were generally fair, except for some cloud cover over the Pacific Northwest.

Thunderstorms in Utah Monday afternoon and evening produced winds up to 68 mph and power lines were snapped at Blanding.

Sharply colder air was developing behind the Northwest cold front, but in front of it temperatures remained above the 70s across large portions of Texas, Oklahoma and central and southern Florida.

The mercury dipped into the 40s in the mid and north Atlantic region. Elsewhere, readings were mostly in the 50s and 60s.

Canada has model of immigration law

Both the United States and Canada have an illegal alien problem — but that is as far as the similarity goes. The U.S. population of 234 million is nearly 10 times the Canadian population of 24 million. The number of aliens residing in this country is put at 5 million and upward — or at least 100 times greater than the estimated 50,000 illegals in Canada. Surprisingly, it is Canada, not the United States, that is attempting to do something about the problem. In contrast, the United States, with its king-size problem, hasn't changed its immigration laws in more than 30 years. Congress unsuccessfully sought to overhaul the laws last year. Capitol Hill is making a second attempt this year but the outcome remains uncertain. Canada has tightened immigration checks at its largest airports in a test program that requires all foreign visitors on international flights arriving at Toronto and Montreal to make a written declaration to a number of questions, including destination, purpose of the visit and expected departure time. Although the proposed legislation on Capitol Hill seeks to curb the nearly 500,000 immigrants (most of the from Mexico) who illegally come to the United States annually, the House and Senate bills also contain humanitarian concerns. They would grant amnesty and permanent resident status to illegals who have resided in the United States since 1977 and temporary legal residence to people who had arrived here prior to 1980. Only illegal aliens who arrived after 1980 would be subject to deportation.

Capitol Hill has dragged its feet much too long already. The time is long overdue for Congress to take action toward enacting U.S. immigration laws that will get the task done. If the present problem at the U.S.-Mexican border is not resolved, the situation will deteriorate and the matter will become more difficult to solve satisfactorily.

Refreshing new look at capitalism

I never believe government figures when it comes to how the nation's economy is doing. I talk to people. In the past months I discovered, while orders are up in the building business, payments are slowing down. A painter told me, "I can get all the work I want right now. The only problem I have is collecting for it after I do the job." "Why don't you ask for the money up front?" I asked. "If I do that I can't get the job. I have this building contractor I work for and he couldn't sell his condos until he was painted. So he came to me and said, 'I'll give you $25,000 to paint my apartments.' I said, 'When will I get paid?' And he said, 'As soon as you finish the job.' Then I said, 'Where do I get the money now to pay for the paint and my workers?' And he said, 'The same place I get mine, from the bank. Look, just tell me if you don't want the contract. I can always get somebody else.' " "So what did you do?" "A job's a job, so I painted his condos. When I finished I gave him my bill. He said he'd send me a check in the morning. A week later I called to find out where the check was, and his secretary said the contractor was racing in a sailboat to Bermuda.

"Three weeks later I bumped into him coming out of a fancy restaurant with a bunch of friends, and he introduced me as the best painter in Washington. He said it was lucky he ran into me because he was going to call me in the morning to ask me if I could paint a second group of condos he just finished in the same development. "I said, 'I'd love to do it, but I haven't been paid for the other condos yet.' He said he couldn't pay me for the first condos until he sold the second ones. I said, 'Why is that?' And he said because the bank wouldn't lend him any money to finish the new condominiums until he paid back his loan on the one I painted. I said, 'It doesn't solve my problem because the same bank wants me to pay back the $25,000 plus interest I borrowed to paint the first condos.' " "He said I should never borrow more than I can afford to pay back. He wanted to know if I would do the painting job on the new development or not. "I had to say okay. If I didn't paint the second ones I had no chance of getting my money back on the first ones. But I was tough about it. I demanded a deposit before I picked up a paintbrush." "As a down payment for the second job?" "No, as partial payment for the first one. How could I ask him for money for the second job when he still owed me for the other?" "And he agreed to do it?" "He said it was only fair. The next morning he sent over a small check with a nice note saying as soon as I finished the condos of the second development I would be paid in full for both jobs." "So you painted the second condos, and then what happened?" "I didn't hear from him for three months. I was about to turn it over to lawyer when I got a call from him asking me if I was interested in painting an old office building he had just bought in downtown Washington. I said, 'Where's my money for the other two jobs?' "He said he used it as a down payment on the old building he wanted me to paint. Once it was fixed up he planned to sell it at a large profit, and he had me down for a $5,000 bonus. "I said I wasn't born yesterday and if I agreed to do the job it would cost him $90,000 plus a $15,000 bonus." "What did he say to that?" "He said, 'What choice do I have? Workmen always have contractors over a barrel.'"

Getting away with murder in Manila

WASHINGTON — While world attention has been focused on the downing of Flight 007 and the fighting in Lebanon, someone has been getting away with murder in the Philippines. Secret intelligence reports don't say who assassinated Filipino dissident Benigno Aquino in Manila last month. But they suggest cautiously that he may have been murdered on the orders of First Lady Imelda Marcos, without her husband's knowledge. Here's the background: According to the intelligence reports, President Ferdinand Marcos has a serious kidney ailment that could cause him to relinquish the dictatorial power he has held for nearly 20 years. Aware of this, Aquino felt the time had come for him to leave his sanctuary in the United States and return to the Philippines. It's no secret that Marcos would like to see his wife succeed him. Though he used to deny this, pointing out she wasn't even a member of the Cabinet Executive Committee, he appointed her to that committee last year. Marcos also sponsored the rise of her closest military ally, Gen. Fabian Ver, who is now chief of staff of the Philippines armed forces, with 250,000 troops under his command. Ver also directs the Philippines intelligence services and presidential security. Aquino made no secret of his hope to forestall a transfer of power to Imelda and the establishment of a Marcos dynasty. His return to the Philippines, therefore, was the greatest threat to Imelda's ambitions. Sources with access to intelligence reports from the Philippines believe Imelda and Ver may have arranged Aquino's assassination to eliminate their most charismatic rival. One responsible administration source discussed this possibility at length with my associate Dale Van Atta, who also has seen highly sensitive CIA and Defense Intelligence reports on the subject. As the man in charge of presidential security, Gen. Ver had been keeping track of Aquino throughout his exile in the United States. Ver and Imelda also stacked the Philippines Embassy in Washington, as a secret DIA report explained: "The new (military) attaché team was selected by Benjamin Romualdez, ambassador-designate and brother of the First Lady Imelda Marcos, and confirmed by Fabian Ver," the report states. The DIA report continues: "The new team is also expected to monitor Philippine dissident activity in the U.S. The attaches will undoubtedly report on, and possibly operate against, anti-Marcos Philippine activists in the U.S." Their top target in this country was Aquino. The intelligence reports view Imelda Marcos' meetings with Aquino with some cynicism, particularly her warning to him last May that he might be assassinated if he returned to the Philippines.

"Mrs. Marcos can be expected to become one of the many candidates to succeed her husband, and her maneuvering will add greatly to the political turmoil and instability that will follow his departure," a CIA profile noted, adding that "in the political confusion, she might succeed." Imelda's biggest hurdle, the CIA figures, is the Philippine military brass, whose loyalty to her husband is personal and does not extend to her. That, presumably, is where Gen. Ver comes in. Imelda, whom the CIA calls "the steel butterfly," has chosen her military allies well. Commanders of most military units in the Manila area — crucial to any seizure of power — are, like Gen. Ver, natives of Ilocos Norte province in northwestern Luzon. This is also Marcos' home turf. In fact, Imelda's power play has reached such a point that supporters of her chief rival, Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, are quoted in a highly classified CIA cable as saying: "We must keep our heads down and our mouths shut. Unless we do, we will not survive... (We must) smile and do what is necessary to stay alive." The CIA's conclusion: "In a real power struggle... Ver and his proteges," along with Imelda, may well win. PERILS OF PAINTING: Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., has asked Interpol to check out what he says "appears to be a well-organized operation" aimed at American and foreign artists. He's also asking federal agencies to have a look at the Salon des Nations in Paris. The Salon has circarized artists for $790 apiece to cover costs of exhibiting their work at a November show in Paris. But some U.S. and European art groups are suspicious of the Salon, and have urged artists not to participate in the show. Critics suggest that the Paris show, billed as "an important artistic event," is nothing more than an attempt to get fledgling artists to pay through the nose for a chance to exhibit their work. A lawyer for the Salon des Nations in New York admitted the Paris show is for "essentially unproven artists," but insisted that it is "a clean, honest operation." POOR PROTECTION: Sources close to U.S. Trade Representative William Brock glumly predict that some sort of "domestic content" legislation will pass Congress this year. It will require that cars sold in this country contain a certain percentage — probably 90 percent — of American-made parts. The point of the legislation is to protect American jobs. But the trade officials claim it would have an exactly opposite net effect. Reason: 5 million Americans works in jobs directly related to the nation's $220 billion export industry. If a domestic-content law is passed, foreign nations will likely retaliate and the result could jeopardize more jobs than the legislation would protect. But under pressure from the United Auto Workers, the domestic-content bill is expected to pass.

Around the Rim

Keeping tradition

I was married Saturday. My husband and I together chose Sept. 24 as the perfect day to wed for different reasons. I chose it because summer had turned into fall, and in West Texas, the advent of fall is one of the nicest times of year. The searing summer heat begins backing off and an occasional cool breeze makes everything look better. My parents had married in the fall, and they have been married almost 37 years. My husband told me after we were married that he wanted a September wedding because of a picture he had found of his grandparent's wedding. He pulled the picture out of a drawer and showed me a bright-eyed Italian woman and a smiling Englishman. The picture was made in September more than 60 years ago. Because these people were important to Steve, he had wanted his wedding in the same month. Tradition is what weddings are all about. We preserved a little bit of our families' past by marrying in the fall. And we added a few things of our own to make our wedding unique.

wedding ceremonies and ceremonies in general. "Why bother?" I wondered. People don't need all that ritual to prove they love each other. But ceremony does have its place. Our wedding was very small and had very few frills. But there is something very beautiful and binding about standing in front of a church and taking vows. I'm very proud of our vows. And I'm proud of my husband. The ceremony gave me a chance to express that. Of course, now the hard part of marriage begins. We are moving into a new house, and we haven't eaten any meals at home, so we haven't gotten into any fights over whose turn it is to wash the dishes. We only have one television between us, and I'm sure there will be fights over which program we will watch. And we only have one driveway, so we may be fighting about the position of our cars. But marriages are made of a million different experiences. I think we're ready to work together. Now that the ceremony is over, it is time for the learning to begin. And we're doing that, together.

The slide rule was invented by English mathematician William Outred in the 1600s.

The human body burns alcohol at the rate of about one-half ounce an hour.

2 guns used in Kilgore slaying

KILGORE (AP) — Authorities said at least two guns were used in last weekend's execution-style slaying of five people abducted from a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant and then taken to a remote rural spot to be killed.

Ballistics reports showed two different weapons were used, Texas Ranger Stuart Dowell said Monday, but he declined to identify the makes or models of the weapons.

A preliminary autopsy report indicated the killers fired 11 shots, investigators said.

Three of the victims, David Maxwell, Monty Landers and Joey Johnson, all 20, were students at Kilgore College. Maxwell, an off-duty employee of the restaurant, and Landers had gone to the restaurant to wait for Johnson to finish closing.

The body of the restaurant's assistant manager, 37-year-old Mary Tyler, was found beside those of the fraternity brothers. Investigators believe Opie Ann Hughes, 39, tried to flee as the others were shot. Her body, clad in her restaurant uniform, lay sprawled 50 yards away.

A seven-hour horseback search Sunday of the wooded area, located 18 miles south of Kilgore, where the five bodies were found Saturday morning turned up no clues, authorities said.

The five were executed with point-blank gunshots to their heads as they lay face down beside a dirt road. Their arms were folded and the hands of some covered their eyes, authorities said.

Rewards totaling $50,000 have been offered in the case — half of it by the fast-food restaurant chain and half by Kilgore businessmen.

Investigators checked leads Monday that had been called in from as far away as Kansas. However, concern mounted in this East Texas town that the bandits who stole $2,000 from the restaurant might be local residents.

Jerry Wolverton, a spokesman for the Kilgore Police Department, said police were assuming that the killer or killers were "locals" since they would have to be familiar with the rugged oil country to find the place where the bodies were discovered.

"That naturally is the speculation right now. That's a very good possibility and we're doing everything we can to check it out," Wolverton said. "Everyone is working hard and long hours. We want to see this this resolved as much as anybody."

"We're assuming it was two people. There's no other way the victims would have lined up and let somebody kill them," Rusk County Sheriff Mike Strong said.

Lloyd Bolding, a Kilgore business leader who is helping raise the town's $25,000 share of the reward, said he thought $50,000 would produce some strong leads.

"If these low-lives would do this for $2,000," he said, "imagine what their friends would do for $50,000."

Mattox files 3 suits on oil firms

AUSTIN (AP) — Civil lawsuits filed by the state attorney general's office accuse three oil and gas producers of polluting a lake and a river basin in Jackson County.

The suits were filed Monday in Travis County against Charles F. Haas and Hewitt B. Fox Inc., both of Corpus Christi, and Petro-Lewis Corp. of Houston.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said the two suits against the Corpus Christi defendants were filed in response to alleged pollution of Lake Texana, which is a source of drinking water.

Mattox cited "a number of oil spills and saltwater spills" which he said "are a threat to human health and the environment" around the lake.

The third suit accused Petro-Lewis of failing to clean up a Jan. 14 oil spill which was referred to the railroad commission by the Lavaca-Navidad River Authority. The suit says four inspections after the spill showed the company had failed to clean up the mess and had committed "continued violations."

Mattox said he was "concerned that waters in the Jackson County area may be endangered."

Computers buried at dump

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — Alamogordo City Manager Dan Malone Monday confirmed that truckloads of Atari computer equipment have been buried at the Alamogordo city dump, but the computer company's officials in El Paso declined comment on the activity.

Malone said trucks started unloading their cargo last week. Three loads from El Paso's Atari plant were dumped Monday, he said.

Malone said Jack Keating, Alamogordo's garbage contractor, told him that Atari didn't want to dump the computer equipment in Texas because they feared they would be scavenged there.

"We have a contract with (Atari) to bury a bunch of stuff," said Keating of Browning Ferris Industries in Alamogordo. He said the contract was closed last week.

Asked to describe the computer equipment, Keating said only that it was outmoded.

Atari officials in El Paso refused to comment.

"It's all hearsay at this point," Sig Toth, Atari's production manager, said late Monday after the dumpings had been confirmed. Toth said all questions must be answered by the firm's California headquarters.

El Paso's Atari office laid off 380 of the firm's 660 workers Sept. 16 and restructured its operation.

Spokesman Bruce Entin said more than 3,000 employees in California have lost their jobs due to recent sales losses.

Woman jailed in 1981 murder

BROWNWOOD (AP) — A woman sought by authorities for questioning in the 1981 slaying of a Brownwood businesswoman was jailed today following her arrest in Northeast Texas.

Betty Jo Glendinning, who had been sought for 18 months, is charged with aggravated perjury concerning her testimony before a Brown County grand jury that investigated the slaying of Donna Mae Inlow, 63.

Ms. Inlow, 63, was found to be stabbed to death in her downtown Brownwood shoe store on April 27, 1981, authorities said.

Texas Ranger Norman Autry and Brown County Deputy Sheriff Hays Beam were alerted by police in Paris that a woman matching Ms. Glendinning's description was being held at the Paris City Jail.

Texaco, Standard hit European deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. has agreed tentatively to buy Standard Oil Co. of California's refining and marketing operations in Western Europe to strengthen its retail presence in Europe. Terms of the agreement, which was announced Friday, were not announced. Texaco said the deal was still being negotiated. Texaco, the nation's third largest oil company, said it agreed to buy Social's marketing interests in West Germany, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Denmark. It also will buy Social's 68 percent interest in the Pernis refinery in the Netherlands. Texaco already owns 32 percent of the refinery, which has an output of 280,000 barrels a day. The purchase would increase the number of Texaco stations in those six countries from 3,400 to 6,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan decided not to ask the Supreme Court to review a major ruling that upheld a disputed method of calculating state taxes on multinational corporations. The issue involves more than $750 million a year in state taxes obtained under the unitary method of taxation, by which states consider the worldwide operations of a company, including its subsidiaries, in determining what portion of the firm's business activities were conducted within that state. The Supreme Court held last June that the unitary system was a "proper and fair method of taxation" when applied to U.S.-based corporations. The ruling came in a case involving California's use of the unitary method in calculating the state tax liability of the Container Corporation of America. Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Friday that instead of asking for a new hearing in the case, the president was forming a special panel of federal, state and business representatives to consider the issue.

NEW YORK (AP) — Economic growth in the Communist nations is being restricted by inflation, indebtedness and military spending, a research group said. "Civilian economic development will continue to be stymied by massive military spending in the Communist countries," the Conference Board said Sunday. The study by the business-sponsored research organization includes country-by-country analyses of 26 Communist nations ranging from the Soviet Union and China to North Korea and Cuba. "More than 40 percent of the world's military spending comes from the centrally planned economies, averaging 13 percent of their gross domestic product," the report said. The study said Communist countries owed Western nations $110 billion in 1982. "While these countries have 40 percent of the world's population,

Dear Abby

Affair going nowhere fast

DEAR ABBY: Last year I attended a class reunion and met a former classmate I'll call "Ben." After the dinner Ben walked me to my hotel room and I invited him in to talk. We were very much attracted to each other in more ways than one, and before I realized what was happening, we were making love passionately. (I'm divorced and he is married.)

I have never enjoyed better sex, and he said it was the same for him. He told me he will never leave his wife and children because he has too much to lose. (He is very successful in his own business.) When we said goodbye he told me he would call me so we could meet again to make love in one of the many cities he travels to for business. So far, we've met three times. He sends me plane tickets and we spend a thrilling night together.

The problem: Ben is the only man I have really enjoyed sex with. I believe I am in love with him, but after not hearing from him for two months I have decided to write to him and break off our relationship, but I don't know what to say to him.

NO FUTURE WITH BEN
DEAR NO FUTURE: A letter from you "breaking it off" would be incriminating should it fall into the wrong hands, so wait until he calls, then tell him. "I see no future with you, and I need to get on with my life, so if you really care about me, don't call me again." And if he calls again, repeat the above message. It may be necessary to repeat it two or three times to emphasize your sincerity.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old single female who seems to attract gay men. Wherever I am, if there's a gay man around he will strike up a conversation with me. I find gay men attractive and a lot of fun to be around, and I would like more gay men friends, but I'm afraid of being labeled a lesbian. What should I do?

GAY ATTRACTION
DEAR ATTRACTION: Where did you get the idea that the only females who socialize with gay men are lesbians? It's absurd. Attractive people attract attractive people — straight or gay.

DEAR ABBY: We work in an office consisting of 11 women and one man. The lone man, "Troy" (not his real name), is in his early 20s.

The problem: One of the women in the office is getting married and we want to give her a bridal shower. Should we include Troy? (It might be a lingerie shower.)

Some of us feel that Troy should not be included and some feel he should. Those of us who feel he shouldn't be included are afraid he might show up — lingerie in hand. Help!

THE OFFICE GANG
DEAR GANG: If the "office gang" is giving a co-worker a bridal shower, and since Troy is a member of the "gang," he should be included. Whether he participates or not is up to him. And to those of you who are "afraid" he might show up with lingerie in hand: Grow up!

Dr. Donohue

Nasal dryness a matter of degree

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is causing the excessive dryness and crusting on the inside of my nose? I am a 60-year-old woman, in good health, who has had this problem for a year now. Could this be the "ozena" I have read about? A while back you mentioned ozena and it seemed to match my symptoms, except that I have not experienced any odor, nor have I lost my sense of smell. But it is unpleasant and I feel there must be something that can be done about it, other than irrigation of my nose, which is what I am told to do. — Mrs. D.B.

Many times an illness is defined by how severe the symptoms are. Nasal dryness is a good example. It sometimes is a clue to the illness, nasal atrophy. In that, the lining of the nose is first affected, initially with a few thin dry areas, which may form crusts. That could be all there is to the process. Or it may progress to greater drying, with a loss of the mucous glands. Only rarely does it progress to the Nth degree of dryness — ozena. In that the crusting is extensive and the lining itself is damaged. With this there is the foul odor. You do not have ozena, which, as I mentioned is very rare. I'm sure your doctors would have recognized that readily.

So what of the common dryness? I have seen it in patients who work in hot dry, dusty surroundings. And I have seen it in women after menopause. We don't know why this happens. In any event, the treatment is aimed at relieving the symptoms. Irrigating the nose and cleansing it of crusting is part of the program. You are doing that. Lubricating ointments may help. Keeping your home well-humidified is a must. As always, if you are not satisfied with your current doctor's opinion make sure you get a second one.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a foot problem, which I am told is a case of fungus infection. I have been using one of the over-the-counter fungal sprays, but to no avail. My feet burn and itch terribly. Is there some other means of getting at this problem. — T.K.

OK, let's give this its name — athlete's foot, of which you seem to have a severe case. What to do? There are, as you may know, a variety of fungi that can cause skin eruptions. The sprays should take care of the more common kinds, but since sprays you buy are not helping, you now must take the next step, to learn just which fungus is involved.

It may be one that will respond to the oral medicines. Some will, some won't. This involves letting your doctor get a scraping from the irritation area for examination under a microscope.

I assume you have been giving the sprays a sufficient time to work. Such medicines should be used for a period after the obvious signs disappear. For more tips, see the booklet "Relief and Care of Your Feet," which other readers can obtain by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Donohue's booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL

60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BEDWETTER

LET THEM HAVE A DRY BED

The greatest gift you can give a bedwetter and the rest of the family, too, is an end to this serious problem, and make no mistake, bedwetting is serious. It can cause complicated psychological problems that last a lifetime. It's so needless because bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended. Send for our free brochure, "Bedwetting — What It's All About and How To End It," a report by two medical doctors. No obligation.

Birthdays celebrated by NARVRE members

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees met at the Kentwood Older Adult Center, Sept. 15, for a pot luck supper and business meeting. W.C. Cole, president, presided.

Several NARVRE members present had September birthdays. They are Mrs. J.T. Anderson, W.C. Cole, Mrs. G.P. Morrison, Mrs. S.J. Jackson, H.L. Ross, Earl Hollis and Mrs. C.L. Kirkland.

One minute of silence was observed for Mrs. H.T. Sefton, who passed away on Aug. 22, 1983.

John I. Knox was accepted as a new member.

The next meeting will be a salad supper at 6:30 p.m., followed by a business meeting at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 20.

Keep hands clean with shampoo

To get grime and grease off hands without using harsh, abrasive cleaners, take a tip. Keep a bottle of shampoo for oily hair handy. Use the liquid to wash your hands clean. It's gentle to the skin as well as being an effective grease cutter.

Bounty hunters: agents or licensed kidnappers?

By The Associated Press
Fast cars have replaced fast horses, and .357 Magnums have supplanted Colt .45s, but the bounty hunter's mission remains the same: bring 'em back, dead or alive.

Bounty hunters in the Wild West went after bank robbers whose pictures were on wanted posters. The modern-day bounty hunter goes after bail jumpers.

Bounty hunting is permitted under an 1873 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that dealt with the capture in New York state of a man who had jumped bail in Connecticut.

The key passage in the court decision says that if a suspect misses a court appearance, a bail bondsman or his agent — i.e. the bounty hunter — has the authority to seize and imprison the suspect while waiting to turn him in to authorities.

"They may pursue him to another state; may arrest him on the Sabbath, and, if necessary, may break and enter his house for that purpose," reads the ruling. "The seizure ... is likened to the rearrest by the sheriff of an escaping prisoner."

Thus, bounty hunters carry the same rights and responsibilities of law officers, including the right to use force, even deadly force, when justified.

That is all well and good within the borders of the United States. Problems arise, however, when zealous bounty hunters cross this country's borders in pursuit of their quarry.

Two recent cases — one to the north and one to the south — have caused diplomatic disputes.

The Canadian case began two years ago — businessman Sidney Jaffe was winding down from a morning jog along Toronto's fancy-dancy Bloor Street when a "policeman" approached to ask a few questions.

Seconds later, Jaffe was thrown into the back of a Datsun — its rear door handles removed. He was driven to the United States to stand trial in Florida on charges of unlawful land sales practices.

Canadian officials were furious, contending in U.S. federal court that their nation's sovereignty had been violated.

Even U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz has gotten involved, asking Florida officials to free Jaffe. An appeals court has thrown out most of the charges against Jaffe, but Florida officials refuse to budge.

Florida Attorney General Jim Smith defends the state's position. He says almost all contracts between bonding companies and crime suspects, including the one signed by Jaffe for his $137,000 bail, clearly give bondsmen the right to fetch their errand charges.

"If they jump that bond they have essentially contracted with the bonding company that they are authorized to come get them wherever they might be," Smith said. "That does not involve the action of any governmental authority."

But Canadian authorities have extradited the two American bounty hunters on charges of kidnapping. They are free on $100,000 bail each pending trial.

READY FOR THE HUNT — Two bounty hunters check their pistols before making a foray into Mexico to bring back a fugitive from justice.

Voting notifications sent in Spanish

AUSTIN (AP) — Secretary of State John Fainter said Monday he has mailed notifications in Spanish of the Nov. 8 election to every voter in the state with an Hispanic surname.

Fainter said otherwise, the federal Voting Rights Act would require the state to post notices in Spanish in newspapers. By using the mails instead, he said "we'll save the state approximately $250,000."

The English language notices will be published in newspapers as usual, Fainter said.

A spokesman in the secretary of state's elections division said the 517,000 pieces of mail targeted at the state's Hispanic voters were posted over several days beginning Sept. 15. The mail went to each household in the state in which records show a registered voter with a Spanish surname lives.

Texas, Mexico grain pact plans growing

DALLAS (AP) — Agriculture leaders from Texas and Mexico are hoping to lay the groundwork for what could become $1 billion a year in sales of grain and livestock by Texas to Mexico, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

With farmers on both sides of the border reeling from drought and economic slowdown, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, agriculture department trade specialist Gil Moody and Texas Farmers Union President Jim Moeller visited Mexico City last month seeking markets for Texas grain.

"We need any help we can get right now," Moody said.

Moeller said they found Mexican farmers eager to work with their Texas counterparts to set up long-term arrangements bypassing large international grain brokers. Mexican officials also are interested in purchasing Texas cattle, sheep and goats, the three said.

'Yankee' Texans gather

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — In the 1830s, John Quincy Adams argued for Massachusetts in Congress against admitting Texas to the Union. But the 150 "Texas Exes" who gathered here for their annual Lone Star style barbecue didn't seem to mind.

Ranging in age from 2 to 75, members of the Boston Texas Exes Club, which is open to University of Texas graduates or people with ties to Texas, gathered in a pine grove deep in the heart of New England on Sunday for their annual fete in honor of the University of Texas' 100th birthday.

"We'll do just about anything to pretend we're in Texas," bragged Exes Club Vice President Will Bowen.

The group feasted on 67 pounds of beef brisket that sizzled over a hickory wood fire.

"Mesquite wood is the best, but I'm waiting for a shipment from my boy in Texas," apologized club cook Earl Koester, a Raytheon engineer from Seguin, Texas, now living in Bedford.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

It's true. Episcopalians base a large share of every worship service on "The Book of Common Prayer," a very UNcommon piece of literature.

The word "common," in this instance, means "together." Most churches use a hymnal because they want to sing together. Episcopalians use a prayer book, too, because they like to pray together. No one is ever asked to "lead in prayer," but each finds ample opportunity during the service to frame his own private prayers.

To those who decry written prayers, Episcopalians point out that The Lord's Prayer is just that ... and yet its meaning to every Christian is undimmed by its being reproduced in print.

They believe there's good reason for following a carefully-planned schedule and form of services throughout the Christian year. For one thing, an individual church is thus spared from becoming mired in its minister's "hang ups." Pretty good point, these days?

The biblical background, the history, and the simple form of the Episcopal prayer book make a fascinating story. Your nearest Episcopal minister would be delighted to cover them in detail with you. Don't be afraid he'll "twist your arm." He won't.

Forsch tosses no-hitter

For five years, Bob Forsch lived with the knowledge that some people thought he didn't deserve his first no-hit game.

On Monday night, he left no doubts as he pitched the second no-hit gem of his career and the first in the National League in exactly two years as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Montreal Expos 3-0.

"A lot of people said that it (the first no-hitter) was tainted," Forsch said. "This one I don't think there was any question about."

Only a hit batsman and an error by second baseman Ken Oberkfell, both in the second inning, kept the no-hitter from being a perfect game. Forsch, 33, retired the last 22 Expos.

Meanwhile, division leaders Philadelphia and Los Angeles both won their games to pull closer to clinching spots in the playoffs. The Dodgers rallied to beat Cincinnati 12-9 in 10 innings and the Phillies beat Chicago 5-2, while Atlanta defeated San Francisco 6-2 and Houston tripped San Diego 5-3.

Forsch, the 20th player to pitch two no-hitters in this century, got his first on April 16, 1978 against Philadelphia.

In that one-a drive that went under the glove of Ken Reitz was called an error in the eighth inning. On Monday night, Oberkfell let a grounder by Chris Speier go through his legs.

BOB FORSCH...tosses 2nd no-hitter

"It had a fouled-up spin on it," said Oberkfell, who assisted on the final out in the ninth on a ground ball by Manny Trillo.

Forsch, 9-12, said his second no-hitter was a better pitching performance than his first.

"I felt like I had a better fastball tonight," he said. "Against Philadelphia, the ball was just sinking real good."

Forsch, who threw 96 pitches to beat the Expos, who had been mathematically eliminated earlier in the day, said he groups his memory of his first no-hitter with the one thrown by his brother, Ken, a year later, making them the only brother combination to throw no-hitters.

"The first one set up the second one for Kenny," he said. "There can be no greater feeling than when he got his the next season."

Monday's night's performance came two years after the last previous no-hitter in the NL. Nolan Ryan pitched his record fifth no-hitter, against Los Angeles, on Sept. 26, 1981.

Forsch also alluded to the fact that he is having one of the worst seasons in his 10-year career with St. Louis, which failed to defend its 1982 world championship.

"I don't think I've lost faith in my ability," he said. "It's just that things haven't worked out."

The only ball close to a Montreal hit came in the second inning when Tim Raines slugged a long drive to left-center that Cards' center fielder Willie McGee caught after a long run.

AUSTRALIA II

JUBILATION — Australia II skipper John Bertrand, left, waves as others aboard react after defeating the U.S. yacht Liberty to take the 25th America's Cup in Newport, R.I., Monday.

America's Cup

Australia II breezes past Liberty for victory

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It's over. The 132-year winning streak, the longest in sports, is over. The seven-race struggle, the first in history, is over. The secrecy of the winged keel is over. Australia's 21-year wait is over.

And a new America's Cup era — the Australian era — has just begun.

"This is the greatest day of my life," said Australia II skipper John Bertrand, the winner of the greatest Cup series.

He captured Monday's final race the way he captured the best-of-seven competition, by turning the tide that was flowing in favor of Liberty, the 25th U.S. defender of the Cup and the first loser.

Bertrand rallied from a 3-1 deficit to tie the series with two decisive wins after trailing at the starts, then surged from behind on the fifth leg to win the unprecedented seventh race by 41 seconds, the fourth smallest margin in Cup history.

The gun that signalled the end of the race was the cue for the start of far-flung celebrations. From this seacoast resort to a newly important place 12,500 miles away called Perth, Western Australia, horns blared, crowds cheered and tears of joy and sorrow were shed.

And, while the New York Yacht Club won't honor the legend that the head of the first losing skipper be placed in the showcase now displaying the Cup, that notoriety won't enhance his credentials.

Something else is over, now that the Australians have succeeded for the first time since launching their pursuit of the Cup in 1962. It's the mystery of the radical winged keel that made Australia II more maneuverable and carried her to victory.

As the new champion of the sailing world maneuvered through dozens of welcoming boats and settled into her berth, the chant went up from some of the thousands in the crowd: "Let's see the keel. Let's see the keel."

The jubilant Aussies obliged. Their conquest completed, they no longer felt the need to hide the once-secret breakthrough beneath her familiar green and blue plastic skirt. Spectators felt the keel, clung to it and fell in the water from it.

Dorsett, Hill questionable for Viking tilt

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas linebacker Bob Breung, who sprained his right knee in Sunday's 21-20 victory over New Orleans, is questionable for next week's game in Minnesota, a spokesman for the Cowboys said.

Tony Hill, who missed Sunday's game with a sprained left foot, also is questionable against the Vikings, the Cowboys said.

Dorsett suffered a small chipped fracture at the end of one of the bones in his right wrist, said Greg Aiello, the Cowboys' assistant public relations director.

The Cowboys signed Bruce Huther, a linebacker who played for Dallas from 1977 through 1980, on Monday to replace rookie backup linebacker Scott McLean, who suffered a knee injury against the Saints and was operated on Sunday night. McLean is out for the year.

Huther, originally a free agent from New Hampshire, was traded to Cleveland before the 1981 season and then went to the Chicago Bears in 1982.

KNOCK DOWN SCORE — A referee ends up on the turf as New York Giants Rob Carpenter of the New York Giants pushes through the Green Bay Packers' defense to score the first touchdown of Monday night's NFL game at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. The Packers' Mike Mc Coy (29) and Mark Lee (22) try to stop Carpenter. The Giants won, 27-3.

Giants thrash Packers, 27-3

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Green Bay's big-play offense succumbed Monday night to New York's big-play defense as the Giants turned a goal-line stand of their own and a flurry of third-period turnovers by the Packers into a 27-3 National Football League victory.

"We did just about everything we could do to cost ourselves a ballgame," said Green Bay Coach Bart Starr. "The Giants are a good team but they are not supermen. We made them look like supermen."

The goal-line stand in the second period preserved New York's 7-3 lead built on Rob Carpenter's tackle-busting 14-yard run. Ali Haji-Sheikh's booming kick made it 10-3 just before the half, then three fumbles and an interception on Green Bay's first four possessions of the third period wrought havoc with the Pack attack and helped New York roll up 17 more points.

Terry Jackson picked up Eddie Lee Ivery's fumble on one bounce and sprinted 35 yards for a touchdown 1:49 into the decisive third period. Haji-Sheikh's 32-yard field goal followed quarterback Lynn Dickey's fumble and Giants' quarterback Scott Brunner passed 27 yards to Earnest Gray for the score that capped the Giants' biggest quarter of the season.

Green Bay, stonewalled when Gary Lewis failed to sweep in on a fourth-and-1 with 5½ minutes to go in the second quarter, was limited to Jan Stenerud's 20-yard field goal that opened the scoring in the first period.

Dickey, throwing often and long but only occasionally finding his speedy receivers, James Lofton and John Jefferson, hit 16 of 28 passes for 283 yards but was sacked three times. He could move Green Bay close to — but not into — the end zone.

The closest the Packers came was a fourth-and-one. But when he faked a handoff to a leaping Ivery, then gave the ball to Lewis, cornerback Mark Haynes didn't bite. He pursued Lewis to the left edge of the goal line and tackled him inches shy of the score.

That roused the Giants' offense, which steadily pounded the ball out to the Green Bay 36-yard line. Brunner was sacked for 3 yards and with nine seconds to go in the half, it appeared New York was out of field-goal range.

But Haji-Sheikh, a rookie from Michigan who had ousted veteran Joe Danelo in training camp, boomed his 56-yard field goal, the second longest in the NFL this year and 1-yard longer than Danelo's two-year-old team record kick.

The Packers then gave away any chance they had of catching New York in the third period.

On the fourth play of the third period, Ivery ran a reverse to the left, was pounded by defensive end Dee Hardison and coughed up the ball. Jackson picked it up on one bounce and was gone, making it 17-3.

On Green Bay's next possession, nose tackle Jerome Sally recovered Dickey's fumble and Haji-Sheikh made it 20-3 with his 32-yarder.

Another fumble, this one by Tim Lewis on the ensuing kickoff, and an interception by Beasley Reece on a Dickey bomb, stalled the next two Green Bay possessions. And when Dave Jennings' punt was downed by New York on the Green Bay 1-yard line, it helped put in motion what turned out to be the game's final touchdown.

Green Bay failed to get a first down, the Giants took over on the Packer 38 following a punt and on the third play, Brunner whipped a bullet to Gray at the Green Bay 1. He caught the ball between two defenders, tore away from safety Maurice Harvey and stepped into the end zone with 2:03 to go in the third quarter, completing the scoring.

The judge macrames

A JUDGE AND HIS YARN — State District Court Judge Jim Gregg, a practitioner of macrame, proudly displays his latest creation, a cradle for his daughter's first child who is due this week. Gregg has been doing macrame for a decade and started by making planters.

The judge and the cradle

Story of hobby is no yarn

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

In his spare time, 118th State District Court Judge Jim Gregg ties knots — literally. Gregg practices the dying art of macrame. He started about 10 years ago with a simple hanging plant holder made out of bailing twine that hangs by his front door.

His latest project is much more elaborate — a white macramé hanging cradle for his daughter's first child, which was due this week. The cradle, modeled after one Gregg saw in Gatlinburg, has more than 3,000 square knots and half-hitches in the bottom, and used 2,545 feet of braided polyester, he said.

"That's almost half a mile of material," Gregg said. "Macrame's about gone out. We had to go to a warehouse in Fort Worth to get it (the string)."

His wife, Catherine, said she had a nightmare about the cradle during the week.

"I dreamed the baby was born 12 pounds and 25 inches long, and that it was sitting up and waving to us from the window of our daughter's home in Kansas. He'd already outgrown the cradle," she said. "And Jim told me he hoped I wouldn't have any more of those dreams."

"I already told my daughter this was the only cradle I was going to make," Gregg said. He has a grandchild and step-grandchildren by other children.

The judge said he uses macramé projects, such as the cradle, to relieve his tension. He worked six months on the cradle, off and on.

"It's a lot of fun. But you have to stand up all the time while you're working, so you can't work on it all the time," Gregg said.

Gregg became interested in macrame when he was looking for a well with a metal detector on someone else's property. He didn't find the well, but the woman who owned the property had lots of macramé on her patio.

"She taught him in about 10 minutes," Mrs. Gregg said. Gregg said the woman showed him a few knots; learning macramé was easy, he said, because he had tied a lot of knots on ship rails in the Navy.

In addition to the cradle, he has made a hanging glass table with a lamp and various plant holders. He plans to make a hammock next, and then a throw net for fishing.

Gregg and his wife spend a good portion of his vacations fishing at various lakes throughout the state.

The judge and his wife also work on their place north of Big Spring. But perhaps Gregg's most unusual hobby for a judge is playing Atari. He plays Pac-Man avidly, he says.

"I've got a Pac-Man trophy in my office at the courthouse. I'll have to show it to you if you haven't seen it," Gregg said.

Texaco, Standard hit European deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. has agreed tentatively to buy Standard Oil Co. of California's refining and marketing operations in Western Europe to strengthen its retail presence in Europe.

Terms of the agreement, which was announced Friday, were not announced. Texaco said the deal was still being negotiated.

Texaco, the nation's third largest oil company, said it agreed to buy Standard's marketing interests in West Germany, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Denmark. It also will buy Standard's 68 percent interest in the Pernis refinery in the Netherlands. Texaco already owns 32 percent of the refinery, which has an output of 280,000 barrels a day.

The purchase would increase the number of Texaco stations in those six countries from 3,400 to 6,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan decided not to ask the Supreme Court to review a major ruling that upheld a disputed method of calculating state taxes on multinational corporations.

The issue involves more than $750 million a year in state taxes obtained under the unitary method of taxation, by which states consider the worldwide operations of a company, including its subsidiaries, in determining what portion of the firm's business activities were conducted within that state.

The Supreme Court held last June that the unitary system was a "proper and fair method of taxation" when applied to U.S.-based corporations. The ruling came in a case involving California's use of the unitary method in calculating the state tax liability of the Container Corporation of America.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Friday that instead of asking for a new hearing in the case, the president was forming a special panel of federal, state and business representatives to consider the issue.

NEW YORK (AP) — Economic growth in the Communist nations is being restricted by inflation, indebtedness and military spending, a research group said.

development will continue to be stymied by massive military spending in the Communist countries," the Conference Board said Sunday.

The study by the business-sponsored research organization includes country-by-country analyses of 26 Communist nations ranging from the Soviet Union and China to North Korea and Cuba.

"More than 40 percent of the world's military spending comes from the centrally planned economies, averaging 13 percent of their gross domestic product," the report said.

The study said Communist countries owed Western nations $110 billion in 1982.
