Rain, job conflicts delay street project

By RICK BROWN Staff Writer

Bad weather and job conflicts are to blame for construction delays which have checked traffic for several weeks on two main streets in Big Spring, city officials said Friday.

Widening of Birdwell Lane and reconstruction of Goliad Street between Third and FM 700 has proceeded at a slower pace than anticipated because of the necessity of laying underground utility lines, conflicts with other jobs soon to be completed by Price Construction Inc. (the company holding the construction contract) and recent heavy rains, City Manager Don Davis said.

The city's contract with Price Construction gave priority to finishing Birdwell and anticipated a Nov. 15 completion date for the project. A Dec. 15 completion date was projected for the Goliad project, said City Public Works Director Tom Decell.

Work on laying public utility lines underground on Birdwell was completed Sept. 30, clearing the way for construction on the street after that date, Davis said.

Price Construction took out the old curb on the east side of Birdwell Oct. 5-10. No further work was done on the street until Oct. 27 after a spokesman for Price Construction was called to a working session of the City Council and city manager's office on that date to explain the delay.

The firm's representative said at the session that the company had conflicts with other jobs it was completing and that the company was unsure how long the Birdwell project would be delayed, said Davis.

The spokesman added he felt the contract completion dates were unrealistic, Davis said.

Officials for Price Construction could not be reached by the Herald for comment.

The contract allows the construction company to submit an alternate progress schedule if necessary, Davis said.

Weather delayed the start of work on Goliad until Aug. 29. Three days were lost on the project in September due to rain, Decell said.

Completion for the entire contract — which in addition to the Birdwell and Goliad projects includes work on 11th Place, 15th Street, Oak Glen Drive and reconstruction of 79,000 square yards of street pavement which previously had been cut for water line replacement — is set for June 15, 1984.

Davis said he was concerned about the inconvenience of having two north-south corridors in the city under construction.

"People have been more than tolerant with us," Davis said.

Davis added that because of the delay, construction may be further hampered by cold weather. Temperatures of at least 40 degrees are required for street construction, he said.

According to the contract, the construction company must warranty its work for 365 days after its acceptance by the city, Decell said.

Texas House senior recalls career

FORT WORTH (AP) — Doyle Willis remembers when the Texas Legislature was a "do-it-yourself crowd" of rough-hewn combat veterans who would have told any high-powered lobbyist to take a hike.

Willis, 75, has served 29 years as a lawmaker, longer than anyone in the Legislature. He says he will "be surprised" if he doesn't run again next year.

He was first elected to the House in 1946 after returning from World War II.

"I believe we were a little better decision-making body than sometimes there is now," Willis said. "Back in those days if some lobbyist come along and give you some reason to vote so-and-so, we'd probably have told him, 'Well, go on and tend to your own business. This is my job and if you don't like it, you run against me and then you can have it if you can beat me.' We were a little bit tough."

Willis, who also served 10 years in the Senate, said he narrowly escaped becoming speaker when he ran for his first term.

Conservatives were backing Otis Reed of Dallas for the speakership. Reed's major opponent for the speakership was Saly Hull of Fort Worth, Willis said. A Fort Worth business group backing Reed "wanted someone to run against Saly Hull to keep him busy, because Reed had an opponent."

Willis ended up beating Hull.

"Later on I found out I don't think they ever did intend for me to win," he said. Willis credits his upset to a "stick together" attitude among returning servicemen who were exempt from the then-existing poll tax. He joined many other World War II veterans elected to the House.

The night before the Legislature convened, "a group of veterans met and they wanted me to run for speaker right then," Willis said.

"They thought in as much as I beat the man that was going to be speaker, they wanted me to run. I told them no. Had I known then that the parliamentarian runs

American troops mop up Grenada

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — American troops tightened their grip on this Caribbean island Saturday, hunting down Cuban holdouts in the jungled mountains and capturing a hard-line Marxist who provoked the bloody coup that prompted the invasion.

Sporadic gunfire rattled between Cuban snipers and pursuing U.S. soldiers in the lush green hills northeast of St. George's, the capital.

U.S. Marines, among the first Americans to land in Tuesday's invasion force that has grown to 6,000 U.S. troops, captured Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard, Marine Capt. David Karcher told reporters.

He said the Marines had to protect Coard and his Jamaican-born wife Phyllis from a crowd of hostile Grenadians that quickly gathered.

Coard led a hard-line faction in a power struggle within the Marxist government that led to the house arrest of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop Oct. 12. Bishop, 39, was freed by a mob of his supporters

Oct. 19 but then slain by soldiers hours later.

The Marxist army commander, Gen. Hudson Austin, seized control of the government the next day, establishing a Military Revolutionary Council.

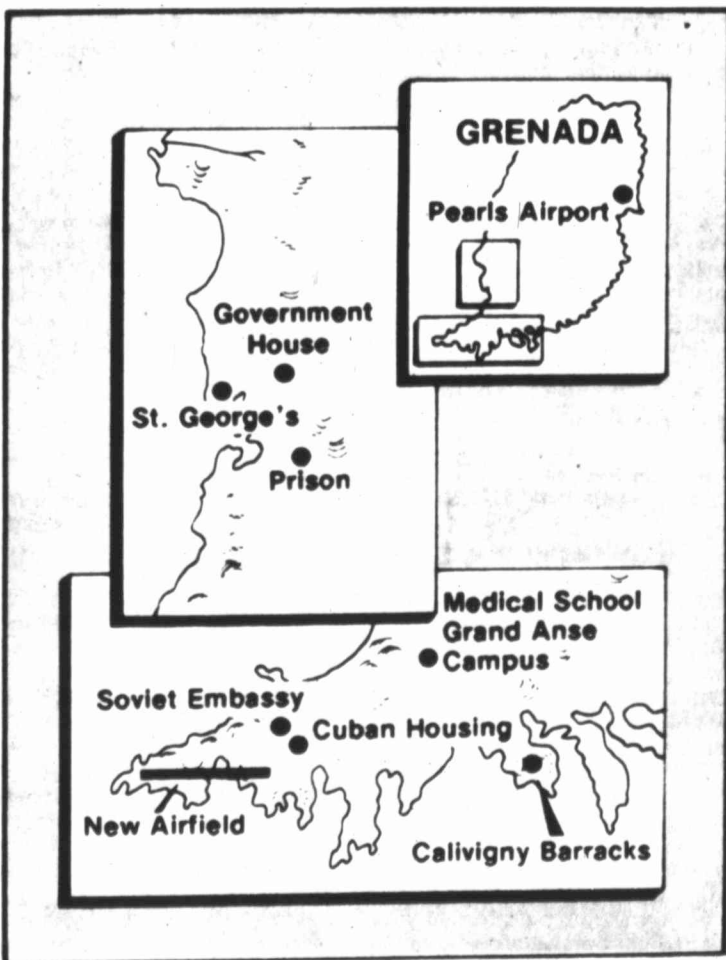

Austin called on all Grenadians to defend the island against the invaders, but U.S. officials said the strongest resistance came from armed Cuban workers building an airport on Grenada's southern tip.

Marines said an informant pointed out the house in suburban St. George's where Coard was hiding and the Americans surrounded the building and ordered him out. One Marine said rifles and pistols were aimed at them from the house and Coard was told, "Come out or we'll blow the place up."

Coard, a 39-year-old economist, his wife, their two children and another former cabinet minister, Selwyn Strachan, then emerged, the Marines said.

The prisoners were taken to near-

Garnishment plan stirs controversy

By JAY ROSSER Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Linda Hays remembers dropping her children off at their grandparents and traveling to Dallas with a girlfriend for a three-day spy mission.

The target was her second husband, the father of two of her three children and the bearer of a substantial child-support debt.

When the support checks failed to appear, Mrs. Hays worked two waitress jobs to make ends meet. Finally she turned to welfare after being stricken by a serious illness.

Her problems, she says, would be solved if Texans approve Proposition 6 and give state courts the authority to direct employers to withhold up to one-third of an employee's paycheck to meet past and future child support obligations.

The 34-year-old Abilene woman tells the story in outlining her reasons for supporting the constitutional amendment — one of 11 voters will act on Nov. 8.

Amendments explained on Page 2A

The spy mission was triggered, Mrs. Hays notes, because of the legal system's inability to secure payment from her ex-husband.

District court records in Abilene indicate state officials thus far have filed 14 motions for contempt against the man because of his failure to pay $170 a month in child support. His past-due account now amounts to more than $14,000. Efforts by law enforcement officials to locate and serve the ex-husband — now a Dallas County resident — with court subpoenas were unsuccessful.

Now the Taylor County (Abilene) District Attorney's Office has filed a complaint charging criminal non-support.

11 proposed amendments

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
Listed below are brief explanations of the 11 amendments in the order they will appear on the ballot.

● AMENDMENT 1 — If this proposal is approved, counties with less than 18,000 residents would be allowed to have as few as one and as many as four constables and justice of the peace precincts. The Texas Constitution now requires a minimum of four and a maximum of eight constables and justice of the peace precincts.

● AMENDMENT 2 — Approval of this proposal would change the maximum urban homestead exemption from $10,000 to one acre.

The constitution authorizes urban homestead exemptions as a means of protecting a person's homestead from forced sales to collect debts for everything except back taxes or loans used to purchase the property or for home improvements.

● AMENDMENT 3 — Texas agricultural commodities groups, if this proposal is passed, would be allowed to deny exemptions for fees used to finance marketing and production efforts.

The amendment would return to a practice begun in 1967 in which the Texas Legislature authorized the producers of most agricultural commodities to elect boards to promote marketing and production. Those efforts were funded by a producer-paid fee payable when their commodities were processed or sold.

No exemptions from the fee were authorized, but producers could file for refunds later. The Texas Supreme Court, in 1975, said the fee was illegal because it was an occupation tax prohibited by the constitution.

The Legislature then voted to allow the exemptions and continued the refund program to show the voluntary nature of the program.

If Amendment 3 is approved, producer boards could again deny assessment exemptions, but would still have to allow refunds.

● AMENDMENT 4 — This amendment would outline procedures used to replace the state's 181 lawmakers in the event they become "unavailable" because of nuclear war or enemy attack.

The constitution currently outlines the procedure to be used in replacing major public officeholders but not legislators.

● AMENDMENT 5 — If this proposal is approved, the state could use its chief education funds — the Permanent and Available School Funds — to back local school district bond issues. Theoretically, at least, that could result in districts obtaining better bond ratings and reduced interest rates on construction projects.

The funds, proceeds and investments on public lands, now total about $3.9 billion. The constitution prohibits spending money from the fund for any purpose other than public schools.

● AMENDMENT 6 — Approval of this proposal would remove a 107-year state prohibition against withholding employee wages, or garnishment, to satisfy creditors' claims. This proposal would authorize garnishment only to satisfy back child support debts in which the non-custodial parent has missed two or more payments.

State courts could order employers to withhold up to one-third of an employee's disposable earnings for later distribution to the custodial parent.

● AMENDMENT 7 — The Legislature will be authorized to issue an additional $300 million in bonds for the Veterans' Land Fund and $500 million in bonds to establish a Veterans' Housing Fund if this proposal wins voter acceptance.

The Veterans' Land Fund was begun in 1949 and has enabled qualified veterans to obtain 40-year, low-interest loans of up to $20,000 to be used towards the purchase of 10 acres or more. The size of the fund has been increased seven times since it was created.

● AMENDMENT 8 — Approval of this proposal would allow veterans' and fraternal groups to be added to the list of those granted property tax exemptions.

Such exemptions, under the constitution, are given to public property used for public purposes: churches, cemeteries not held for private or corporate profit, solar or wind-powered energy devices, buildings used exclusively for school purposes and public charities.

● AMENDMENT 9 — This proposal is designed to help county courts eliminate backlogs of probate cases. It would be accomplished by allowing the judges of statutory county courts to substitute in any county for a judge of a constitutional or statutory county court.

Each of the state's 254 counties are required to have a county court, presided over by the county judge. In addition, the Legislature has established more than 100 statutory county courts to relieve county judges of some or all of their judicial duties.

● AMENDMENT 10 — Approval of this amendment would enable the Legislature to allow cities, with the consent of property owners, to contract for the relocation of the sewer laterals with affected property owners repaying the city within five years. Currently, when cities need to relocate sewer lines, sewer laterals that belong to private property owners also must be relocated.

● AMENDMENT 11 — Approval of this amendment would remove the Board of Pardons and Paroles from the constitution and require the Legislature to establish it by law and to enact laws giving it exclusive power to revoke paroles by removing the governor's ability to veto parole decisions.

The governor would retain the power to grant reprieves, commutations of punishment and pardons.

SPOOK SCHOOL — Bauer Elementary School teachers Shirley Meier, Ann Budke, Gail Beeringer and Sarah Reid took a rather ghoulish attitude toward school Friday when they dressed in Halloween attire.

Amendments

Mrs. Hays, concerned law enforcement officials would again be unable to serve her ex-husband with an arrest warrant, sat outside his home for three days monitoring his comings and goings. A sheriff's deputy she contacted to deliver the warrant, she recalls, gave up when he was told by the woman who answered the door that her husband was not home.

That triggered a cloak-and-dagger scene at a local bar in which the warrant was served only after the husband accepted an offer of a drink from Mrs. Hays' girlfriend.

Mrs. Hays' frustration is doubled because she has also experienced problems collecting $100 a month payments a court ordered her first husband to pay in support of a daughter he fathered. That, she says, is despite the fact she agreed to have the payments reduced to $50 "so he could afford them."

"I think my children deserve that money," Mrs. Hays believes. "They could have had nicer clothes, wear shoes with no holes in them and gone to shows and had a good time like other kids."

State Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, and Rep. Rene Oliveira, D-Brownsville, authored the legislation and head Texans for Child Support, a nonpartisan statewide committee seeking the amendment's approval.

If the amendment is approved, custodial parents — or the Texas Attorney General's Office if the family is on welfare — could seek a garnishment order from district court if the non-custodial parent has fallen two or more months behind in child-support payments.

Employers would then deduct the money from the employee's paycheck and could withhold up to $5 each month to cover administrative expenses. The employers would be subject to civil penalties for not hiring, firing or demoting an employee because of a garnishment order.

Wage garnishments for any purpose have been outlawed in Texas since the Texas Constitution was drafted in 1876. Texans, still troubled by Northern carpetbaggers, feared creditors could garnish an employee's paychecks and send families to state welfare lines.

Texas and South Carolina currently are the only states that prohibit wage garnishments and attempts to eliminate Texas from that short roster are bolstered by the fact no group has surfaced as a vocal opponent of the proposal.

Texas labor, led by the Texas AFL-CIO, has opposed wage garnishments for years but is taking no stand on Proposition 6, says executive director Harry Hubbard.

During legislative debate earlier this year, however, opponents claimed the measure could open the door for creditors seeking wage garnishments for a host of other debts.

In addition, they noted, garnishments would be an intrusion into an individual's private life and result in employers discriminating against employees whose wages are forcibly withheld.

Mrs. Hays believes the threat of garnished wages may be enough to force most non-custodial parents to meet their child support obligations.

"My second husband has always been the kind of guy that will work and make good money," she says.

"With garnishment, he's not going to quit his job and he won't want his boss to know he is not taking care of his responsibilities. He'll pay because he won't want to be embarrassed socially, if nothing else."

According to Texans for Child Support, more than 155,954 children live in one-parent families and are on welfare because the non-custodial parents failed to pay child support.

The Texas Attorney General's Office of Child Support Enforcement estimates that Texas taxpayers would save $11.4 million the first year the garnishment program is in operation because of increased collections and reduced welfare payments.

The Senate State Affairs Committee, chaired by Farabee, uses other statistics to buttress the Proposition 6 case:

● Seventy-one percent of welfare recipients qualify for welfare benefits because one parent is absent and not paying support.

● Texas taxpayers are expected to pay approximately $224.2 million in 1984 on child-related welfare programs.

Currently, Farabee notes, courts have limited choices in non-support cases: reduce the monthly payments or throw the parent in jail.

Jailing the parent, Farabee says "does not benefit anyone involved. The child does not receive any support money, the parent is in danger of losing his or her job, and relations between the parents are further strained."

"Additionally," he continues, "the taxpayers pay twice, once for the child's support and once for jailing the parent."

the Legislature I probably would have taken it," he said.

Willis says the big change in the Legislature over the years is sophistication. Rarely nowadays do lawmakers play practical jokes on each other that he says were common years ago. And now, most carefully weigh the political ramifications back in the district of every vote on the House floor.

"I remember one time, Paul Wilson was a representative from St. Augustine — tall rugged dark-complected Abraham Lincoln type, good speaker," Willis recalls. "Paul was wanting to tax the oil and gas industry. He was making a speech one day on why we should tax the oil industry when the gas bill was up. It so happened that in St. Augustine they were drilling a wildcat well on his grandmother's farm."

"While he was talking, somebody sent him a note in and said 'Paul, they've just struck a gusher on your grandmother's farm, one of the best wells ever to come in in Texas.' Paul looked at the note. He had long black hair and he scratched his head, looked at it, and he turned around and said, 'Well, Mr. Speaker, there are two sides to every story.'"

"We played jokes on each other back in those days that were pretty rough," Willis said. "Had an old judge from West Texas and a boy named Joe Fleming from Henderson. Joe and my brother (also a state representative then) liked to play jokes. This old judge liked to talk. My brother and Joe picked out a real good-looking girl in the gallery and they went over and told the judge that this girl was from his district and came down to hear him make a speech."

"Durwood Manford was the speaker — this really happened. He (the judge) went up and told Durwood he wanted to speak for a certain bill. In those days only three could speak for and three against. Durwood looked at his chart and he said, 'Judge, I already have three to speak for that bill.' The judge looked up at that gal in that yellow dress sittin' up there in the gallery who didn't know him from Adam. He said, 'Well, Mr. Speaker, if you've got three to speak for it, just put me down to speak against it.'"

Nevertheless, Willis said, "Everybody was honest. We might not have been as polished as they are now."

"We were kind of a 'do-it-yourself' crowd," he said. Willis said when he first took office, the state budget was only about 5 percent of the $30 million pricetag for state programs dealt with during the 1983 session.

But, he said, "back in those days we did our own homework. Back then, if things got bad down at the penitentiary, we got on a bus and went down there and looked at it and saw it firsthand. Now you've got a staff that studies this and they study that. Back in those days if something came up that needed to be taken care of, we took care of it."

"Now when something comes up and everybody's not exactly sure what to do, they either study it or appoint a committee."

Willis, who keeps in shape by riding a bicycle 5 miles every morning, still enjoys the job even if state problems have become bigger and more complex.

"The basics haven't changed very much," he said. "We went off to fight for the flag and the country in World War II, and I think the young people today would do it again."

"The basics haven't changed, just the mechanics."

as hostages. Metcalf toured St. George's and the surrounding countryside and said he found widespread support among Grenadians for the U.S. forces.

He also said he didn't have "the foggiest idea about how long U.S. forces will remain."

The American troops are pushing into the mountainous central and northern zones slowly to avoid ambushes and sniper attacks, he said, and the defenders will eventually run out of food and supplies.

"This is a small island, but it's a

Houston bond rating secure

HOUSTON (AP) — A major New York bond rating agency has indicted Houston's AAA bond rating will not be jeopardized by the handling of the city's debt fund, Mayor Kathy Whitmire said.

Officials with Moodys indicated the amount of money in the city's general debt service fund was not a primary criterion in determining bond rating.

Some of the city's capital construction bonds are paid off out of the fund.

Cool front arrives

Temperatures plunged Saturday in the Panhandle as polar air blew into the state with northerly, 10 to 20 mph winds that dropped readings into the 40s across the region.

Colby warms to N-freeze

CHARLOTTESVILLE — William Colby, who directed the CIA under two presidents, says he's "an old cold warrior" now committed to a nuclear freeze.

Nuclear weapons are "unusable," the arms race is "unwinnable," unilateral restraint is "unworkable" and a world shadowed by the nuclear threat is "unlivable," Colby said at the University of Virginia on Friday night.

People have become frustrated because of the failure of the SALT II discussions, Colby said. "Can't we come up with a simpler statement? Yes, let's just stop building new weapons."

Colby said a nuclear freeze would be easier to monitor than a more-detailed arms limitation agreement.

"We're interested not in a breach of contract suit, but in protecting our country and our future," he said.

Dolly has two views

NASHVILLE — Entertainer Dolly Parton says actors Burt Reynolds and Sylvester Stallone are a lot different.

"Burt is a laid back, good-ol'-boy type," the singer-actress said about her co-star in the movie 'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas.'

"Sly is almost the opposite," she said. "He's a gutsy guy with a lot of drive. Sly is a high-energy person, a ball of fire when it comes to work. He never wants to stop; (he's) always interested in what is going on."

Stallone and Parton are filming the movie "Rhinestone" in the Nashville area.

Hatfield ready for feud

SILVERTON — Oregon Sen. Mark Hatfield laid to rest rumors of his retirement by telling 500 cheering supporters that he will seek a fourth term next year.

The announcement Friday had been eagerly awaited by Republicans, who were worried that Hatfield might retire and give Democrats a chance to win another seat in the Republican-controlled Senate.

"Over the past year, I have struggled with the question of whether I should seek re-election," said Hatfield, 61. "Remember that my occupation is one which involves tremendous egos in which too often there is an automatic presumption of running for re-election, in perpetuity."

But Hatfield said he decided to run because he's gotten a "great deal of satisfaction" from serving there.

Speculation that Hatfield might retire from the Senate had been prompted in part by reports that he had expressed interest in heading a national foundation or accepting a university presidency.

Toothpicky about sitting

STOCKTON — Californian Joseph King is very picky about where he sits — toothpicky, in fact.

King has made for himself an office chair entirely of toothpicks and he says it can hold 1,100 pounds.

The engineering faculty member at the University of the Pacific in Stockton said it took 5,000 toothpicks, 20 tubes of glue and 200 hours of work to make the four-pound chair.

"A key factor in doing this is getting good toothpicks," he said.

"I use the ones that are tapered at the ends and round in the center. They also must always be the same length. Quality control can be a problem, and the brand I use is very good in this area."

King experimented with several adhesives before settling on modeling glue.

"Because of the design, if you were to turn it upside down it would fall apart," King said.

Musing about his next project, King said he was considering a 10- to 15-foot copy of the Eiffel Tower that would be strong enough to climb.

Ship survivors spotted

HONG KONG — Rescuers have sighted two or three possible survivors of the U.S. oil-drilling ship Glomar Java Sea, which vanished with 81 people aboard during a typhoon, the ship's owner said Sunday.

But a U.S. military spokesman said rescue ships in the area have failed so far to find any of the missing crew, which included 42 Americans.

A statement in Hong Kong by Global Marine Inc. said the possible survivors were spotted about 60 miles northwest of the site in the South China Sea where the 5,926-ton rig was drilling before it disappeared four days ago.

The Houston-based ship company said sea conditions were hampering rescue efforts.

U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Jack Gregory, spokesman for the West Pacific Rescue Coordination Center at Kadena Air Base on Okinawa, said no survivors had been found after several hours of intense search.

Lebanese leaders convene

BEIRUT — The most powerful Christian and Moslem leaders in this war-shattered country have pledged to sit down in neutral Switzerland this week in an attempt to end what Lebanese call "our long national nightmare."

The eight men who accepted President Amin Gemayel's invitation to meet at Geneva's Inter-Continental Hotel are mainly leaders of Lebanon's many factions, and antagonists in years of civil war.

From former President Camille Chamoun, an 83-year-old Christian, to Syrian-backed opposition leader Walid Jumblatt, a 36-year-old Druse, it is these men — or their families and gunmen — who have wielded the power through the warfare as well as in times of relative calm in the past half-century.

The talks were scheduled to start Monday. The Reagan administration has made it clear it hopes the Geneva meeting can help bring peace to Lebanon — and allow for the withdrawal of the 1,600-member U.S. contingent in the multinational peacekeeping force.

President Gemayel will preside over the meeting. His 78-year-old father, Pierre, as head of the Christian Phalangist Party is one of the eight participants.

Although Saudi Arabia and Syria are only sending observers, Syria's role is strengthened by its military presence in Lebanon and support for the Jumblatt-led opposition to Gemayel's government.

Quake shakes Idaho

CHALLIS — Wave upon wave of aftershocks shook the hills and plains of Idaho on Saturday following a monstrous earthquake that killed two children and moved a mountain.

The aftershocks rumbled at the rate of about one every three minutes, said Ed Williams of the Ricks College seismographic station in Rexburg, Idaho.

Williams said there had been six to eight large aftershocks, but the tremors were "dying down in intensity and frequency."

Nevertheless, residents of central Idaho continued to be frightened about the aftershocks.

The earthquake Friday morning was the most powerful in the 48 contiguous states since 1959 and the first to take lives anywhere in the United States since 1975. Two schoolchildren, ages 6 and 7, were killed when a storefront crumbled and buried them in the town of Challis, 50 miles north of the quake's center.

The earthquake was felt in eight Northwestern states and in Canada and measured 6.9 on the Richter scale of ground motion, making it a quake of major proportions. It lasted 30 to 60 seconds.

Six to eight of the aftershocks measured a Richter magnitude of 2.5 or greater, and at least four of them were 4.0 or greater, Williams said.

The quake was centered near Mount Borah, Idaho's tallest peak, and literally moved it.

From the air, geologists saw a 12-mile-long hole in the ground along the mountain that was 10 to 15 feet deep, Williams said.

Volunteers, meanwhile, searched the rugged Idaho back country for an undetermined number of deer hunters missing since the quake.

Most hunters reported missing after the quake had been found safe but the whereabouts of several others from out of state was unknown, said Jim Reimann, the assistant fire chief for the town of Mackay, where damage was widespread.

A state emergency team was sent to central Idaho to make damage claims for federal aid applications. Idaho Gov. John Evans estimated damage at $4 million and $5 million in damage.

Nearly every building was damaged in Mackay, population 1,500.

Idaho state police said they were encountering no problems there and would be reducing their forces.

Experts from the state and several universities began setting up portable seismograph stations near the epicenter and at a dam above Mackay to monitor the aftershocks.

Services in central Idaho continued to operate. However, telephone lines were jammed and residents of Custer County were told to boil their drinking water until it could be tested for contamination.

Headless woman found

HOUSTON — A man who told police he accidentally killed his 17-year-old bride during an argument has admitted he shot her to death, then cut off her head and dumped it into the San Jacinto River, police said.

John Brandal Grant, 30, remained in jail Saturday while police divers searched the river for the head of Connie Grant, his wife of three months. Grant was charged with murder and held on $35,000 bond.

Earlier this week, Grant told police he accidentally killed his wife when he pushed her down a stairway outside their north Houston apartment. He said he carried her body to a nearby field and buried her under bushes and tree branches but denied severing the head.

He changed his story Friday, said homicide detective Carl Kent.

"He's not saying it was an accident now," Kent said. "It was a heated argument. He shot his wife several times, cut off her head and dumped it in the river."

Grant said he shot his wife several times in the head during an argument Oct. 19 and carried her body to the field, Kent said. Two days later, he reported his wife missing and began making anonymous calls to police to try to help them find the body.

However, Kent said, he didn't give officers enough information to warrant an investigation.

On Wednesday, five days after his wife was killed, Grant called the apartment manager and said he had seen a dog walking through the field carrying a human head, Kent said.

Episcopal bishop named

DALLAS — More than 3,000 people Saturday witnessed the consecration of the Rev. Donis Dean Patterson as the fifth bishop in the 110-year history of the Episcopal Diocese of Dallas.

The Rt. Rev. John M. Allin, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, was chief consecrator. Ten U.S. bishops, Dallas Mayor Starke Taylor and other civic leaders participated in the ceremonies.

As bishop, Patterson will be the spiritual leader of a 25-county Northeast Texas diocese containing about 33,000 members, as well as a member of the House of Bishops that governs the U.S. Episcopal Church.

The diocese last year was divided into the dioceses of Dallas and Fort Worth, with the former Dallas bishop, the Rt. Rev. A. Donald Davies, becoming bishop of the new Fort Worth Diocese.

The consecration ceremony was held not in an Episcopal church but in the Prestonwood Baptist Church, which has one of the largest sanctuaries in the area. The ceremony included music by a brass ensemble and a 300-voice choir.

Consumers miss cash connection

Soon the food consumers are going to get burned by this year's hot summer sun. But first will come the the farmers, who suffered through one of the worst growing seasons in recent history. They watched the sun dry up their big investments and hard labor in America's heartland.

Consumers have yet to make the farm-wholesaler-grocery store linkage. All fruits and vegetables, avocados to zucchini, they think, grow out of the display case. Yet, the lion's share of the profits (consumer's costs) lie along the delivery chain. And when Mother Nature hammers the farmer, there are many who take advantage of adversity within the price structure and go far beyond the old supply-and-demand scale.

The farmer is in the most vulnerable position. He has the most to lose and the least defenses (against the weather or politicians). He is not visible or expressive. He doesn't have a great deal of voting clout. And that's why some areas are losing food-producing land at an alarming rate. But most of all, that's why food prices are going to go into orbit.

People are going to become angry. They are going to go around blaming President Reagan and the Russians. But very few will care about what happens to the farmer. They simply don't see the cash connection.

Name that tune

Some people are named after great men, others after their parents or ancestors. A few get tagged with the names of months, towns or states.

I was named after my mother's obstetrician, which means my parents either had a very high regard for the doctor who delivered me or a very low regard for the baby he delivered.

My legal nomenclature branded me with a fairly digestible Gaelic first name but inflicted me with a hideous, incongruous middle name, which is the physician's last name.

The good doctor, no doubt, was delighted to sign the birth certificate. I, however, since I first heard all three of my names strung together, have been profoundly disgusted with the use of the middle name.

After my indoctrination to democracy, I launched a private campaign against the inequality of the middle name, and my subsequent political development has led to further attacks on my part against the middle initial, the hyphenized last name; the use of Jr., Sr., II, III; and the positioning of titles before or after a name.

No one for any reason needs more than two names: one to designate the person and a second to provide legal standing in a family. Thus, John Robert Smith III should be pared down to John Smith. If there are more than one Johnny in the family, let the Smiths suffer with the confusion they created.

While John Robert Smith II may have the most sentimental reasons for naming his son, he is knowingly or not participating in an aristocratic heraldry that has no place in a democratic society.

Centuries ago men were called by one name, and if ever two of the same name showed up at the same place, their fathers' names were tacked on to differentiate the two. In those days, John Robert Smith II would have been called John son of John, and his son would have been called John son of John. See how stupid that sounds?

During the Middle Ages, when the landed gentry formed princedom and fiefdoms and realms, the last name appeared, usually conjured up from the name of a capital town or surrounding region. Immediately we had John of Nottingham, Jean de Burgundy and Johann von Konigsberg. When Kings began dispensing knighthoods and protectorates, the silliness was compounded with the individual titles of sir, baron and marquis.

The medieval last name (or the occupational surname which evolved later) became a legal fixture of Western societies, and today in America everyone must bear a second or family name. For the sake of jurisprudence, I'm willing to accept that. But middle names have to go, along with all suffixes and prefixes.

I have noticed that many college presidents, corporate executives and authors use not only three names but three last names: Thorsten Sommer Veblin, Holton Vexter Smith, ad nauseum. These persons, I suspect, wish to create with their names an American peerage. They are presumably one rank above those who curiously employ their first initial and then their middle name, like A. Mitchell Palmer.

Newly-married women have started a gruesome practice of joining their fathers' last name to their husbands' last name, giving us such creatures as Miriam Hadley Taylor-Smith. Mrs. Taylor-Smith apparently is mimicking those charming English who have produced such monstrosities as Reginald Pembroke Worthington-Smythe. Poor Reggie Smythe!

Those who cannot manipulate their names to connote nobility usually pursue a title so they can be called Dr. John Smith, Maj. John Smith or the Rev. John Smith.

Or worse, they insist on inserting their middle initial so John R. Smith will not be confused with that low-life John Smith. The middle initial in this case becomes a juxtaposed title.

We also should drop the use of Mr., Mrs., Miss, Ms., and all the Jrs., Srs., IIs and IIIs that are thrown on to elongate a name.

Our fascination with pompous-sounding names and impressive-looking titles stems from our anachronistic fancy for the European royal families. Monarchies, sad to relate, are useless, feeble relics of a dreadful, bygone age, and emulation of them should not be encouraged in an egalitarian, progressive society such as ours.

I believe people try to achieve with their names what they cannot achieve with their intelligence or talent. Three or more names, the reasoning goes, are better than two; therefore, the person bearing several names can be haughty toward the commoner who has only two.

Through the use of names and titles we try to fashion our own little monarchies. Multiple names and grandiose titles inspire in us a sense of superiority — a not very democratic aspiration.

In this country, John Smith is special because he's John Smith, not because he and his father imagine he's John Robert Smith III.

I'll stick with two names. I do not covet a coat of arms, and in the end, it's my social security card that really counts.

So let's drop the middle name, the titles, the hyphens and all the other trappings and stop the pretense. Aristocracy, either real or imagined, has no place in America.

Does anyone know the middle names of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson?

"I tried to stop the holiday honoring Martin Luther King, but I couldn't get anyone to believe he was behind the plot to fluoridate drinking water."

A long way to go to show lot of care

Editor: This will be kind of a long letter but please allow me the space because I need and must thank some very special people which live in our city. People which made the Northside Community Center Walk-a-thon a success through their participation.

My deepest gratitude goes to the Big Spring Police Department, especially to Chief Turner, Officers Bobby Armstrong, Robert Lester, David Draper, Irwin Ballarta and Oskar Everett and also to the voice I kept hearing over the radio.

Next I like to thank our media, the Big Spring Herald, K.B.S.T., K.B.Y.G. and Johnnie Lou Avery for their publicity of the event. Also a hearty "Thank you" to all the local businesses for letting us put up our posters.

The ALSA club, whose members gave their time and energy and also provided two of the prizes, showed a special effort in Community support. I am glad Arthur Palomino, Billy Yanez, John Peredez, Tony Rubio, Freddy Hernandez, Jimmy Paredez, Henry Gusman and Eddie D. Leon live in our city.

One of the special pleasures I had that day was meeting Lydia Yanez, who walked as representative of L.U.L.A.C.

Other walkers like Cynetha Woodruff, who left her company to walk, Paul Licht, who brightened up our day by being there and of course Jim Thurman, who had to drive home without his shoes because his feet hurt so, will always be remembered.

Then there were the children from Bauer Magnet School: Melonie Molina, Valerie Rios, Sandra Mendez, Christie Thurman, D'Angela Green, Marlo Brown,

To know God, look at Jesus

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I would give anything to know — really know — that there was a God and that there was life after death. But I have almost given up, because it seems like everyone has a different opinion on this subject. — S.L.

DEAR S.L.: How do you suppose we could know beyond doubt that God existed and that there was indeed life after death? If you think about those two questions, I believe you will agree that we could know that God existed only if he revealed himself to us. And we could only know for certain that there was life after death if someone clearly came back from the dead.

And this is exactly what has happened! We are not left to guess or grope around for the truth — because God has shown us the truth. The Bible tells us something that is almost beyond our comprehension: God himself has come down and walked on this planet. He did this by becoming a man, and he did it not only so we could know that God existed, but so we could know him and have a personal relationship with him. You know God right now by committing your life to Jesus Christ. God loves you, and just as surely as you could have known Jesus Christ almost two thousand years ago, you can still know him because he is alive in Heaven and wants to come into your heart.

The uncertain future of Hong Kong

"The Chinese," according to an old proverb, "don't care who owns the cow as long as they are allowed to milk it." Unfortunately, that may not be true when it comes to Hong Kong — which puts the future of one of the modern world's great success stories in grave doubt.

The richest part of mainland China, Hong Kong is also, not coincidentally, the one not ruled by Peking. Under the terms of the 99-year lease signed (under duress) with Great Britain, control of 92 percent of the colony's land area reverts to the Chinese in 1997. The question for its residents, entrepreneurs and investors is what happens then. The current negotiations between China and Great Britain are supposed to provide an answer.

But the talks haven't gone well. It was once assumed that the Chinese would accept a compromise granting them some pretense of sovereignty over Hong Kong while leaving its existing British administration more or less intact.

Peking has a lot to gain from that kind of arrangement, principally money. Hong Kong, with a microscopic fraction of the mainland's land and population, earns a third of China's foreign exchange. Britain and the people of Hong Kong, in turn, would be allowed to preserve an island of prosperity and political freedom.

But lately no one expects the Chinese to bend quite so far for the privilege of milking the cow. The blame is laid partly to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who for some reason felt obliged to raise the dormant issue of sovereignty during a visit to Peking last year. The Chinese, who are quick to take offense on this matter, responded by demanding complete authority over the area. The political implications of a full Chinese takeover are ominous enough, but equally bad are the likely economic consequences. Hong Kong has flourished alongside the stagnant communist monolith because it has upheld directly opposite economic policies. It boasts among the lowest tax rates in the industrialized world, no control over currency exchange and minimal government regulation. John O'Sullivan, editor of the London Daily Telegraph, says the colony's system "is the nearest approach to a laissez-faire regime that the modern world can boast."

The fruits of unrestrained capitalism are plain to see — continuous rapid economic growth and Asia's highest standard of living outside of Japan. Hong Kong's per capita income of $4,210 a year is nearly 15 times that in China. The achievement is all the more impressive when you consider that the colony has almost no natural resources, has gotten very little foreign aid and has seen its population increase ninefold since 1945. Whatever its tangible assets, Hong Kong is most valuable as a living reproach to the schemes of state planners the world over.

It will not take direct interference from Peking to bring this locomotive of material progress to a halt. The mere prospect should suffice.

It may have done so already. In the last few months, as uncertainty over the future has grown, the Hong Kong dollar plunging, a few banks failing, the stock market crashing and periodic waves of panic sweeping over the populace. Emigration has begun to rise. The recession in the West, which has weakened the demand for Hong Kong's export goods, has aggravated these problems, but the biggest source is simple demoralization. If it has such unpleasant effects 14 years before the lease runs out, imagine how much worse things will get later on.

The Chinese may figure this works to their advantage by inducing panic in the British and by getting Hong Kong's people used to the idea of Chinese rule. But they may find that the confidence required for prosperity is easier to demolish than to restore. And the point of no return probably isn't far away, if it hasn't been reached already.

The Chinese, however, must be pondering whether more of this is truly what they want. As the Economist of London put it, "To take over Hong Kong as an empty bag, its wealth and enterprise gone, will do nothing for China." The best thing for both the colony and the mainland is to leave things as close to the status quo as possible. If Peking insists instead on saving political face, it will probably mean sacrificing everything else that makes the colony worth having. That would impoverish not only China and Hong Kong, but the rest of world too.

Washington Watch

By WILLIAM GARLAND

Just leave a message, please

WASHINGTON — The degree of shock in Washington early this week could be registered by the unreturned phone calls.

Ordinarily, whenever political acts of significance occur, it's become a custom for almost all office holders to give comments soon afterwards for constituents back home.

When reporters call, congressmen or their aides usually have remarks at the ready with almost surprising ease, at least within several hours. It was that way for the most part after the Beirut tragedy, with Texas congressmen responding fairly quickly to what obviously was a deplorable event.

But for the second event, following so closely on the first, the major response was one of almost eerie quietness. It was anything but business as usual, and toward the end of the week it looked as though business as usual would have to wait a while.

With avowedly liberal House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., pleading for support from fellow Democrats for President Reagan's decision to keep U.S. Marines in Beirut, it became obvious that the week's climactic events had created an atmosphere of recently unparalleled intensity.

It's true that details of Tuesday's Grenadan invasion came slowly back to many congressmen who were not officially briefed by administration officials until late afternoon. They too had to rely for information primarily from electronic media, which in turn were relying in part on the unusual source of ham radio operators for many of their reports.

And other congressmen, like Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, the third-ranking Republican in the House leadership, were tied up with too many briefings and were unable to break away for phone calls.

For the most part, however, it was apparent that most congressmen wanted the Grenadan event to sift out a little bit before going on the record either for or against the operation.

With Democrats, the issue had such obvious political overtones for 1984 elections that many of them still hesitated near the end of the week to go on the record one way or the other, as illustrated in the Texas delegation by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. It was not until late Thursday that a spokesperson for Bentsen finally said the senator would support Reagan: "You're dealing with some murdering hoodlums who had just shot and killed their own prime minister," he said in a statement.

The 27-member Texas delegation by and large is predominantly conservative on the House side. And whereas a majority of Democrats in other House delegations continued to hold out from giving comments, many Texans began to respond and respond strongly by late Tuesday.

By Wednesday, out of 10 Texas congressmen willing to comment (two Republicans, the rest Democrats), all of them came down forcefully on the side of Reagan. The reasons given were generally those of forgiveness by the administration as reasons for going in to Grenada in the first place, including the possibility of losing U.S. students as hostages and the need to block construction of a lengthy airstrip being built by Cubans.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, set the tone early Tuesday as one of the few prominent senators offering comment. He said "we had no practical alternative."

Most of the congressmen reflected that theme with remarks that varied only slightly in their intensity. "The United States has taken all it needs to take from (Cuban President Fidel) Castro and henchmen in the Central American and Caribbean regions," said Rep. Sam Hall, D-Marshall, in a typical comment.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, seldom at a loss for a colorful response, offered what might have been the most lively observation with his East Texas aphorism: "The time to kill the snake is when you've got the hoe in the hand."

Whereas there appeared to be stunned surprise and hesitation at the beginning of the Grenadan incident, there seemed to be an increasing certainty among a number of congressional Texans that Reagan had taken a necessary and proper step.

Three kidney patient deaths blamed on breakdown in dialysis machines

DALLAS (AP) — An electrical malfunction was repaired Saturday at a kidney dialysis center where three patients died when hot saline solution streamed into their bloodstreams, a spokesman said.

Three dialysis patients died from cardiac arrest Friday after a backup heater switched on while the regular heater was operating, raising the temperature of the saline solution flowing into the patients' bodies, doctors said.

A representative of Extra Corporeal Inc. of King of Prussia, Pa., which makes the system, "did find an electrical malfunction and that's been isolated and corrected," said Morris Moulton, spokesman for the Dallas Kidney Disease Center.

"We're running as normal. All equipment is operating," he said.

Dialysis machines filter wastes from the blood of patients whose kidneys are incapable of removing the impurities. The process usually takes about three hours and is usually done about three times a week.

The malfunction was in one of four central delivery systems the center uses to supply solution — heated to body temperature — to its dialysis machines, said Dr. Tom Parker, medical director of the center.

Moulton said the Extra Corporeal service representative confirmed doctors' speculation that the failure was in circuit boards that monitor both the heater and the temperature, since the temperature monitor failed to detect the change.

If the blood temperature becomes too high, the "red blood cells are broken down," Parker said. "The body's organs, the heart and brain, are without oxygen. The patient goes into cardiac arrest."

Since the system was shut down as soon as the first heart attack occurred, doctors do not know how high the fluid temperature rose, Parker said. He added that it happened so quickly that the patients did not realize they were experiencing hyperthermia.

About 50 patients were hooked up to dialysis machines at the time of the malfunction Friday afternoon, but only nine were on machines that were fed by the bad system, Parker said.

Autopsies were being performed Saturday on Ida Dewitt, 75; Geraldine Thompson, 59; and George Smith, 57, all of Dallas, who died between 4:40 and 4:50 p.m. Friday at Baylor University Medical Center.

Three other patients who were hooked up to machines fed by the system were hospitalized for observation and three others were unharmed, Parker said.

Dr. Martin White, a kidney disease specialist at the clinic, said all three patients who died had been chronically ill and "were in and out of the hospital."

A Closer Look

By JIM DAVIS

Saving the state a little money

AUSTIN — Some brave member of the Texas House of Representatives needs to propose an amendment to the House Rules. It would go well right after the part that says, "The speaker shall preserve order and decorum."

The amendment would read: "The speaker shall be banned totally, completely and absolutely from ever — and we mean ever — thinking up ways to save money for the state."

Let me explain. If you were in Texas in the early 1970s you probably remember something about the Sharpstown scandal. That was a complex deal whereby a Houston banker named Frank Sharp won easy passage of a law to help his bank and several top state officials, including Speaker Gus Mutscher, made money off the bank's stock.

Now, everyone knows that it's cheaper for the Legislature to pass a bill on the consent calendar than on the regular calendar. There's less paperwork and less pay for employees to sit around listening to debates. Mutscher was just aiming to "save the state a little money."

For his efforts he became a convicted felon and the state spent tons of money trying to straighten out the mess.

A decade later Speaker Bill Clayton was indicted in an FBI Brilab investigation. Some people visited Clayton with a campaign contribution in hand and a proposal to "save the state some money" if they could just win a certain state contract.

Clayton said later he took the money to keep from embarrassing one of the persons and meant to give it back later. A jury believed him and he held office for another term, but he and the taxpayers would have been better off if he hadn't been trying so hard to "save the state some money."

Now, we come to Gib Lewis, the quick-to-smile speaker from Fort Worth. He wants to do a good job so badly that even hard-hearted journalists feel sorry for him when they write about his numerous screw ups. Lewis was in trouble right off the bat by failing to report certain business connections with lobbyists when he filled out his legally required personal finance report. He made matters worse by constantly talking about the situation, always with a foot in his mouth.

Finally, aides and friends convinced him to: 1. Plead no contest to a minor reporting law violation and thereby put the matter to rest. 2. Quit saying practically anything within earshot of a reporter.

That strategy had one flaw. Lewis' backers couldn't keep him from thinking of ways to "save the state some money."

Thus, we witnessed — from a distance — the "Speaker's Open" golf tournament at a luxury resort near Houston recently.

Some legislators were "pampered" for a weekend at the expense of contributing lobbyists. It was two days of golf, massages, hot tubs and other nice treats. In return the lobbyists won some extra access to the lawmakers.

And the whole thing was designed to "save the state some money."

You see, Lewis has paid a lot of attention during his 10-month term to renovating the speaker's Capitol apartment. The costs keep escalating and have passed $130,000. About $20,000 was raised during the "Speaker's Open" to help offset those costs. But who knows how much we will pay because some lawmakers feel kindly toward their lobby sponsors?

Now, Lewis and his team have another scheme to "save the state some money." They want to let lobbyists finance interim legislative studies.

That sounds interesting. A chemical industry-bankrolled study of hazardous waste disposal could suggest dumping the stuff in state parks. Lawyers could finance a study of whether the state should require legal representation for anyone seeking to purchase car license plates.

Merchants burned with bad checks

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police say they expect to be flooded with complaints from area merchants who lost $21 every time they mistakenly accepted a $100 Canadian traveler's check they thought was written in U.S. dollars.

Two men — who gave Winnipeg, Canada, addresses — passed more than $35,000 of the checks here over the past six weeks, detective Darrell Hardin said Friday.

The checks are worth 79 cents in U.S. currency for each $1 of face value in Canadian money.

The infant transport ventilator, recently purchased by the Caprock Chapter of the March of Dimes, is shown in use for the first time at the Malone-Hogan Newborn Hospital Unit.

Charity donates infant ventilator

The Board of Directors and Executive Committee of the Caprock Chapter of the March of Dimes recently decided to make a contribution towards the prevention of birth defects in Howard County.

After discussion with their medical advisor, directors purchased an infant transport ventilator, which is kept at Malone-Hogan Hospital but is also available for use by the other medical institutions in the area.

The accompanying picture shows the apparatus in use for the first time at the Malone-Hogan Hospital Newborn Unit. The baby was born prematurely and suffered from hyaline membrane disease. In this condition, there is immaturity of the lungs, and these tend to collapse, resulting in poor delivery of adequately oxygenated blood to the brain and other vital organs. In severe forms of this disease, as in this case, it may become necessary to transfer the baby to highly-specialized newborn intensive care units.

The baby's breathing is being assisted by this apparatus, while nutrition and fluids are administered via a tube which has been inserted into the umbilical artery and passed into the aorta (main artery of the body). This tube also provides a route for acquiring blood samples which are analyzed for oxygen, carbon dioxide, and acid content of the circulating blood. These results then allow for correction of chemical disturbances when needed.

This approach allows for stabilizing the baby's condition and also diminishes the chances of permanent damage to the sensitive newborn brain. The baby can then be transferred in an incubator while the assisted breathing is maintained by this portable apparatus powered by a battery source.

The baby was transferred to the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit at the Lubbock General Hospital, where he arrived in stable condition and subsequently made a complete recovery.

Clinic's doctors attending national medical seminars

"Physicians need to stay current ... see new concepts. Medicine is changing rapidly," said Dr. Bradford Glass, president of the board of directors of Malone and Hogan Clinic.

The long-term program of medical education grants administered by the Big Spring clinic is something Glass says is an important factor in the high level of attendance at national and regional medical conferences by the clinic's 28 doctors.

"If they think something is good on the East Coast or the West Coast, they'll go," said Glass. He said each Malone and Hogan specialist attends at least one large national medical conference annually plus several meetings closer to home.

Continuing medical education credit toward the American Medical Association's Physician Recognition Award is earned by each physician at these post-graduate courses and meetings.

Medical conferences attended by clinic physicians recently include the following: Dr. R. K. Reddy: "Total Joint Replacement," a four-day conference at Harvard University School of Medicine.

Dr. James Mathews and Dr. J.W. Cowan, Texas Surgical Society, Houston.

Dr. Robert Griffin: "Clinical Spectrum of Adult Heart Disease," a three-day conference conducted by the American College of Physicians and Division of Cardiology, Department of Medicine, University of New Mexico School of Medicine.

Judge decides origin of fortune cookie

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Amid shouted insults, an unruly crowd and a possibly prejudicial pastry, the judge at the self-appointed "San Francisco Court of Historical Review" decided the origin of the humble fortune cookie: he ruled it was born in the city by the Bay.

The question before the court Thursday was whether the fortune cookie came from San Francisco or Los Angeles.

But there may be grounds for appeal, since a message tucked into a cookie had advised San Francisco Superior Court Judge Daniel M. Hanlon that "SF Judge who Rule for Los Angeles No Smart Cookie."

Witnesses had suggested the fortune cookie was either Japanese or Chinese in origin, or even a morsel concocted along the lines of Italian tortellini with the help of a computer. The judge thought Marco Polo had something to do with it.

Hearty applause greeted the San Francisco ruling, while counsel for Los Angeles scowled and spoke darkly of possible appeal.

The Court of Historical Review is a group of judges and lawyers who set aside all the rules of legal procedure to solve burning questions of a historical nature. Last summer, they decided that the martini was invented in San Francisco.

San Francisco Supervisor Louise Renne represented San Francisco, while Los Angeles was represented by local attorney Frank D. Winston, who showed up in a silk Mandarin gown, tasseled Chinese hat and tennis shoes.

The judge tried to look stern but failed as a court reporter pecked laughingly away on her stenography machine.

The counselors sat at the same table, behind a fat plastic bag of fortune cookies.

Ms. Renne told the court it would "not find a scintilla of evidence possible to be shown that other than San Francisco is the home and origin of the fortune cookie."

Winston, flipping his tasseled cap, told the court, "The true origin of the fortune cookie should be determined by this court to be April 18, 1907, throughout California ... everyone has a piece of it."

Ms. Renne did not look amused. Former San Francisco Postmaster Lim P. Lee testified that his relatives had left no doubt in his mind the fortune cookie came from San Francisco.

In a flurry of red tassels, Winston leaped up to shout, "He's disqualified. That's hearsay!" The judge looked bored. Winston objected again, accusing Lee of eating the message in his fortune cookie.

Sally Osaki, who works for Ms. Renne, said she had clear evidence that the fortune cookie originated in the Japanese Tea Garden in Golden Gate Park.

Winston got to his feet and insulted most of the courtroom.

Ms. Renne accused Winston of incompetence because he was wearing suede tennis shoes. The judge suggested Winston might want the tennis shoes "for a fast getaway."

Businessman Joseph Quan testified that the Japanese had "invented the fortune cookie" and that neither city could take the credit.

The judge ruled that the ultimate question of the earliest fortune cookie would have to be settled "in the East," but that his judgment on the cookie is that "San Francisco, as the city of the West, will be attributed as the founding city of the fortune cookie."

Mount Everest climbers return to warm welcome

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The newest heroes of Mount Everest, the first Americans to successfully scale the east face of the world's highest peak, returned home Friday to a tumultuous welcome.

They were met at San Francisco International Airport after their flight from Tokyo by some 50 well-wishers, some yelling and waving signs that said, "Welcome Home — You Did It!" Many wore T-shirts bearing an image of the massive mountain and imprinted with the words "Mount Everest ... East Face."

Stockton surgeon James Morrissey, 46, said when the second group of three climbers reached the summit Oct. 9, they found the first three who had arrived the day before weeping for joy.

"It was quite a moment. ... They were the best people I've ever climbed with," Morrissey said of his 12 colleagues.

Morrissey, who was not among those who reached the summit, said some members' feet were still numb and at least two suffered minor cases of frostbite on their hands.

"It was very warm at the top," he said. "I think the temperature was about 20 degrees, and some of us wore T-shirts."

Those who reached top Oct. 8 were Louis Reichardt, 38, of San Francisco; Kim Momb, 25, of Spokane, Wash., and Carlos Buhler, 29, of Bellingham, Wash.

The next day, Dan Reid, 40, of Walnut Creek, Calif.; George Lowe, 38, of Denver, and Jay Cassell, 35, of Greenbrae, Calif., conquered the mountain.

Another four climbers had been scheduled to try for the summit, but were stopped by a blizzard Oct. 11 and forced to retreat to the advance base camp.

The only previous conquerors of the Everest summit from Tibet were two Chinese expeditions, a Japanese team and an Italian climbing alone.

Court Silent Partners

rejects surgery plea

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York's highest court dismissed Friday an effort to force surgery for a seriously ill baby with birth defects, ruling against a right-to-life advocate who had sought the operation.

The seven-member Court of Appeals said the parents of the 17-day-old girl, who is known in court papers as Baby Jane Doe, had acted "responsibly" in making the decision not to allow surgery.

The court noted that the Long Island couple had consulted with neurological experts, counselors in their Roman Catholic faith and a social worker.

But the judges added that they should not have been asked to pass judgment on the decision in the first place, and criticized a lower court judge for failing to throw out the case last week.

"Confronted with the anguish of the birth of a child with severe physical disorders, these parents... have been subjected in the last two weeks to litigation through all three levels of our state's court system," the high court said in an unsigned decision. "There are overtones to this proceeding which we find distressing."

The court said those challenging the parents' decision should have asked the Suffolk County Department of Social Services to investigate whether Baby Jane was being "neglected" because of her parents' refusal to authorize the operation.

Lawrence Washburn, a right-to-life advocate and New York City attorney, had sought an operation for the girl, born Oct. 11 with a number of serious health problems, including spina bifida, a birth defect which prevents the spinal cord from being closed.

The child's parents, identified only as "Mr. and Mrs. A" in court papers, decided not to allow an operation to close the cord and reduce the risk of infection.

In testimony last week, doctors said that without surgery, the baby is not likely to live past age 2. With surgery, they said, she might live into her 20s, but would be epileptic, retarded and bedridden.

Paul Gianelli, an attorney for the baby's parents, said he was "pleased" with the Court of Appeals ruling.

"I hope that this is the end of it," he said. "I hope my clients can turn their attention to dealing with the tragedy at hand, that is caring for their daughter."

Barbara Meara of the New York state Right to Life Committee, who described Washburn as an active member, said her group felt the ruling "is a bad decision as far as the baby is concerned."

FONY is acronym

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Reporters who spend a lot of time covering one person often devise acronyms so they can quickly jot down phrases that pop up often in the subject's conversation.

With politicians it's especially easy, since they often adopt pet phrases. One such was the late Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's BOM-FOG — for "brotherhood of man and fatherhood of God."

Salvadorans face murder charges

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Five former national guardsmen were ordered Friday to stand trial for the 1980 murders of four U.S. churchwomen, Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia announced.

Rauda said all five are charged with homicide in the Dec. 2, 1980, deaths of three Roman Catholic nuns and a churchworker who were stopped and killed as they were driving from the international airport to San Salvador.

It is the second time that Rauda, judge of the first criminal court in Zacatecoluca, 35 miles southeast of San Salvador, has ordered the guardsmen be tried.

He issued his first trial order last November, but an appeals court in San Vicente, 12 miles north of Zacatecoluca, ruled that the record was incomplete and returned the case to Rauda for further investigation. The defense is expected to appeal Friday's decision.

All five defendants also are charged with aggravated damage for burning the van the women were traveling in.

Two of the men — Carlos Joaquin Contreras and Sgt. Luis Antonio Colindres Aleman — are charged with robbing material from the van and Contreras is accused of raping one of the women.

The bodies of Maryknoll Sisters Ita Ford, 40, and Maura Clarke, 49, of New York; and Ursuline Sister Dorothy Kazel, 41, and lay missionary Jean Donovan, 27, both of Cleveland, Ohio, were found in a shallow grave two days after the slayings.

They had been doing social work in El Salvador that angered right-wing extremists.

Q: We have definitely decided to sell our home. What should the first step be in getting it sold?

A: You have already taken the first step by deciding that you are ready to sell. Your second step should be to enter into a listing agreement with your broker. This agreement is essentially an employment arrangement — you're the boss, the broker works for you to sell your home. Among other things, this agreement will state that the broker will work for you on your behalf to find a ready, willing and able buyer at the price and with the terms stated in the agreement... or at a price and terms you later stipulate.

Splashing success

Remember those days when you went swimming as a kid? You spent a summer afternoon splashing about, dunking your best friend, trying to do a somersault off the diving board and having the lifeguard holler "Don't Run" 18 times at you.

Ah, those wonderful days. All that ends, however, when you swim under the direction of Harlan "The Horrible" Smith.

For those of you who don't know much about the Big Spring High swim program, Smith is the coach. Correction. Master, ruler, czar, tyrant...those are the proper labels. He doesn't need a whip to get his swimmers' attention; his thunderous voice is enough.

A modern-day Hitler.

And that's after he's had a cup of coffee. The BSHS swim team works out before school begins. The girls hit the pool at 5:30 a.m. Note the time...A.M., as in before the sun comes out. Most of the swimmers show up in pajamas still carrying a pillow. It's that bad.

Why such early hours? Well, you can't swim during the day and the Y is used in the afternoon and evenings. That leaves only the mornings.

I'd be grumpy too if I was "Harlan the Horrible." So that's why for three weeks, I joined the Y swim team for its morning practices. Just to see what it was like.

Oooooooooohhhhhhh....

I thought I was a good swimmer. During the summers, I cruised my apartment pool for 50 or 100 laps a day. No problem. I got the big head.

But I had never been through one of "Harlan the Horrible"'s workouts. The first thing I learned was that even the Y's short pool is a lot longer than the one at my apartment. I felt like I was swimming the English Channel. "H the H" slipped my a pair of rose-colored goggles so I couldn't see how far it was.

Then he stuck me in the same lane as a freshman swimmer. Great. I thought, a freshman. Boy will I burn him. Little did I know it was Scott Ferguson, The Swimming Machine. You've heard the expression "Eat My Dust?" With Scott, it's "Gargle My Bubbles."

Next came the kick-boards. Hey, I used to do this as a kid. Fun city. I took off, kicking happily away. A half-hour later, I was in the same spot. "What's the deal, coach," I asked. "Why can't I go anywhere?"

"You don't know how to kick," H the H replied. We had to kick for 12 lengths of the pool. I never finished. A baby can crawl faster than I can kick. It's devastating to your ego. Even the girls can outkick me. That really gets me steamed.

After a few days, "Harlan the Horrible" sent me to the starting blocks. Wow, the water sure is a long way down there, I thought. "Go," he yelled. I dove. When my face hit the water, my goggles wrapped around my navel. "Got to keep your head down," H the H laughed as I floundered around.

Not satisfied with my agony, he ordered us to stretch one day. 100 lengths. In 30 minutes. What are doing, coach, taking an airplane. Of course, The Swimming Machine was done in 15 but with all my determination, I could get in only 80.

I was beginning to consider myself not so good a swimmer.

Eventually I hit the sprints. You know, when you get tired, there's no place to go but down. When your arms get tired, they feel like stone columns. I would have drowned by now if it hadn't been for the wall.

And what's worse is seeing that other freshman, Cade Loftin, breeze by doing the butterfly. One length of butterflying and they need a net to fish me out.

What I've come to learn is this. Swimmers go through the most grueling workout of any athlete at Big Spring High. Sorry, footballers. I know two-a-days are rough. But at least you won't drown.

I have to give the swim team credit. They keep on keeping on even with the dingy lighting, the leaking roof, the crack-of-dawn hours, "Harlan the Horrible," semi-heated water, cold showers and the man-eating cockroaches. Initiation into my college fraternity might not have been so hard after all.

If you see a swimmer, give them a pat on the back. Few people do and they deserve it. You can even shake "Harlan the Horrible"'s hand. He's really not such a bad guy. In fact, he might make a swimmer out of me someday.

But, as backstroke Terry Bordofski reminds me, "it's all in your head." Such is life at this water-logged boot camp.

Steers stay in 5A; Greenwood moves up

Big Spring High remained in District 4-5A as University Interscholastic League preliminary realignment groupings for the next two years were announced yesterday in Austin.

Big Spring barely made the 5A enrollment cutoff with a two-year average of 1,309 students. The cutoff for Class 5A is 1,305 and up, according to UIL rules.

Previously, there had been some speculation that Big Spring, one of the smallest 5A schools in the state, might drop to the 4A level.

Big Spring's head football coach, Quinn Eudy, said the grouping made no difference to him.

"We're just looking forward to next year and playing the people in our district to the best of our ability," he said.

Elsewhere in the area, Greenwood moved up from A to AA replacing Miles in District 8-2A. Miles goes to 8A, in a district with Garden City which moved from 7A.

Greenwood coach Joe Longley said the move up would be a "big adjustment" for the school, but he said Greenwood's enrollment was comparable to the school's in the new district.

"The schools we'll be playing won't be that much larger, but anytime you move up it involves some adjustment. We just hope to be competitive," he said. Greenwood captured the 7-A South title Friday night. Here are the area listings from the UIL:

CLASS 5A
District 4
Abilene Cooper, BIG SPRING, Midland Lee, Odessa High, Odessa Permian, San Angelo Central.

CLASS 4A
District 2
Andrews, Fort Stockton, LAMESA, Monahans, Pecos, San Angelo Lakeview, Snyder, Sweetwater.

CLASS 3A
District 7
Ballinger, COAHOMA, COLORADO CITY, Crane, Ozona, Sonora.

CLASS 2A
District 8
Reagan County, Eldorado, McCamey, GREENWOOD, STANTON and Wall.

CLASS A
District 7
SANDS, FORSAN, KLONDIKE, Loraine, Meadow, New Home, O'Donnell, Roby, Ropes, Roscoe, Wilson, Smyer.

District 8
Blanket, Bronte, Cross Plains, Eden, Evant, GARDEN CITY, Goldthwaite, Gorman, Irion County, Miles, Rising Star, Robert Lee, Rochelle, Santa Anna, Sterling City, Water Valley.
(Zones will be determined at district meeting.)
SIX-MAN

District 4
Lueders-Avoca, Borden County, Paint Creek, Hermleigh, Ira, Jayton, GRADY, McCauley, Rochester, Highland, Rule, Weinert.
(Zones will be determined at district meeting.)
CLASS A BASKETBALL

District 10
Borden County, KLONDIKE, New Home, O'Donnell, Southland, Wilson.

District 16
SANDS, FORSAN, GARDEN CITY, GRADY, Sterling City.

Here are the enrollment figures used by the University Interscholastic League in realigning districts for 1984-85 and 1985-86:

Class 5A, 1,305 and up; 4A, 650 to 1,304; 3A, 275 to 649; 2A, 135 to 274; A, 134 and below. A high school with less than 90 pupils may enter a team in 6-man football.

'Horns 'Dodge' a bullet, rally to top Raiders

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—The Texas Longhorns spell relief, T-O-D-D D-O-D-G-E.

Dodge once again came off the bench Saturday to slap life into the No. 2 ranked Longhorns, who rallied for a 20-3 victory over Texas Tech, giving them the Southwest Conference leadership.

It marked the second straight week that Dodge saved the Longhorns.

"You've got to admire Tech," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "They wanted to win more than we did in the first half. They were better prepared."

Akers said "We had to remind them at the half that there was a fight going on out there. We may have been flat. We've had a rugged month. By the second half we were ready to play and we did."

Dodge fooled even his coach on a fourth quarter touchdown run.

"We called a sweep and all of a sudden he was keeping the ball," Akers said. "He threw the ball very well. He had one bad pass in the second half and even it was caught."

Akers added "It is hard getting the conference lead and it will be hard staying there. Today is the day we appreciate winning."

"We gave great effort and the team made me proud," said Tech Coach Jerry Moore. "We came here ready to play well."

The Red Raiders were four touchdown underdogs and that helped inspire them.

"We scattered a little chicken feed and let 'em (the experts) pick at us," Moore said.

The perfect record Longhorns, now 7-0 overall and 4-0 in the SWC, trailed the Red Raiders, 3-4 and 3-1, at halftime on the strength of Ricky Gann's 47-yard field goal.

Dodge, who replaced Rob Moerschell last week and led Texas to a 15-12 victory over SMU, was the perfect reliever once more.

He played the final two minutes of the half then took the Longhorns on a 72-yard scoring drive in the third period in which he hit two vital third down passes.

John Walker leaped across from the two-yard line to give Texas the lead 7-3.

After Jeff Ward had kicked a 47-yard field goal to start the fourth period, Dodge struck again.

He completed a 31-yard pass to Brent Duhon and climaxed an 86-yard drive by scoring himself from 12 yards out on a bootleg which fooled the tiring Red Raider defense.

Ward then kicked a 32-yard field goal in the final minute.

The 30-point underdog Red Raiders, humiliated 59-20 only a week ago by Tulsa, refused to be intimidated in the first half by the powerful Longhorns.

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring High School cross country track team competed Saturday in the District 4-5A meet with 18 runners recording personal bests for the year.

The varsity boys finished seventh in the meet, while the varsity girls claimed fourth place. Big Spring's junior varsities, however, show promise for next year as the girls' team finished in first place, while the boys' team recorded a second place finish.

Winning the meet in the boys division was San Angelo Central with a team total of 28 points. The girls varsity competition was nabbed by Odessa Permian with 43 points.

Recording the best time for the boys varsity was Rolando Montana with a 16:43. The time was a personal best for him, plus it broke the old district meet sophomore record of 16:56. Senior Teddy Hernandez also ran a personal best of 18:20.

SOPHOMORES HAVE MITCHELL'S SQUAD SPINNING

HC basketball takes court

Fast-paced Hawks shouldn't break stride under Mitchell

Howard College has a new look in 1983 but that's mostly because rookie head coach Mike Mitchell has taken over for Harold Wilder who guided the Hawks to 12 winning campaigns in 13 seasons.

Mitchell, who formerly coached at Western Texas College, returns to Western Junior College Athletic Conference wars with ideas of defense, motion-style offense and a challenge to the dominance of Midland College in the WJAC the past two seasons.

His efforts to keep the Hawk basketball program above the 20-win level will be made easier by the return of four sophomores from last year's 23-11 squad. The best of those is smooth-shooting Dwight Harris who scored a high of 40 points in playoff win over Frank Phillips.

Joining him on the Hawks roster again are sophomore forward Joe Johnson and guards Maurice Hoskin and Antoine Morris. All three players occupied back-up roles last season but got in enough playing time to provide Mitchell's first Hawk team with ample experience.

Mitchell is a man of defense. During his six years

Stevens changes game plan for Haskins-less Queens

When Don Stevens looks at his Hawk Queens roster, he has to blink his eyes twice. Where's Nell Haskins? Where's Susan Cordell? Where's Pam Roberson?

When the Hawks Queens open their 1983-84 season Wednesday in Waco, Stevens will suit out an almost entirely new team. Only guards Janene Berry and Kari Robinson remain from last year's Region V semi-finalist squad. It's enough to make a coach cry but Stevens isn't reaching for the tissue yet.

True, his All-American is now playing for the Houston Cougars and his 6-6 post is hanging around the rim for the Baylor Bears. Stevens shrugs away the facts of life and changes his game plan. Simple as that.

"We're going to have a lot more of a movement offense," the seventh year head coach says. "We're going to be more of a transition team. We have the people this year who can the transition game. We'll have to...we can't just throw the ball in to Nell and let her go to work."

Only three of the dozen Queens on Stevens' roster are sophomores. Transfer Terri Moore has been

No. 1 Neb. 51, Kan. St. 25
MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Mike Rozier's three touchdowns staked Nebraska to a 38-5 halftime lead, then plucky Kansas State scored three unanswered touchdowns in the second half Saturday before the No. 1 Cornhuskers subdued the Wildcats 51-25.

Nebraska, 9-0, ran only five plays in the third quarter and the Kansas State offense, ranked No. 100 nationally, dominated the Husker defense. Led by Stan Weber, who was making his first start at quarterback, the Wildcats scored three times in the second half to pull to within 12 points, 38-25, with 8:57 left.

Rozier, who became the Big Eight's No. 2 all-time rushing leader with 227 yards on 23 carries, uncorked a 31-yard run to get the Huskers into scoring position after K-State's third touchdown and quarterback Turner Gill scored on a 3-yard run to make it 44-25.

The victory lifted the Tigers into a first-place deadlock with No. 6 Georgia in the SEC title chase, each with 4-0 records, and knocked Florida into a runner-up position at 3-1 in the first of three consecutive weeks of head-to-head battles involving the trio of nationally ranked powers.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Georgia's David McCluskey scored on a pair of short runs and the 6th-ranked Bulldogs overcame a first half Temple scare to defeat the Owls 31-14 Saturday in a college football game.

Georgia, a 24-point favorite, could manage only a 7-7 tie at the half as the teams traded touchdowns in the second quarter. The Bulldogs scored on McCluskey's 3-yard run and the Owls came back to tie it on an 11-yard scoring pass from quarterback Tim Rioridan to Paul Palmer.

No. 7 Miami 20, No. 12 W. Va. 3

MIAMI (AP) — Bernie Kosar threw for 211 yards and a pair of touchdowns and Jeff Davis booted two field goals Saturday as No. 7 Miami downed 12th-ranked West Virginia 20-3 in the Hurricanes' homecoming college football game.

Miami's defense delighted an Orange Bowl crowd estimated at 62,500 by holding the visitors to only 4 yards on 27 rushing plays.

Seven bowl committee representatives watched with interest as the Hurricanes rolled to their eighth straight victory after an opening loss. The Mountaineers drop to 6-2, presumably out of the picture for a major bowl with their second straight loss.

No. 9 Illinois 16, No. 8 Mich. 6

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Jack Trudeau atoned for two costly fumbles by throwing a pair of touchdowns and ninth-ranked Illinois, seeking its first Rose Bowl trip in 20 years, took over undisputed possession of the Big Ten lead Saturday with a 16-6 victory over No. 8 Michigan.

The victory was Illinois' seventh in a row since an opening-game non-league loss to Missouri and its longest winning streak since 1953. It gave the Illini a 6-0 Big Ten record for the first time in 69 years and a one-game lead over Michigan, which is 5-1 in league play and 6-2 over-all.

UCLA 27, No. 11 Wash. 24

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Rick Neuheisel completed his last 17 passes and Frank Cephus ran for a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns Saturday as UCLA took over first place in the Pacific-10 Conference football race with a 27-24 upset victory over 11th-ranked Washington.

Cephus scored the winning touchdown on a 5-yard run with 1:55 remaining as the defending Rose Bowl champion Bruins raised their Pac-10 record to 4-0-1 and their overall mark to 4-3-1 with their fourth straight victory. Washington fell to 3-1 in league play and 6-2 overall.

No. 13 Maryland 28, No. 3 N.C. 26

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Boomer Esiason threw two touchdown passes in the third quarter as 13th-ranked Maryland upended unbeaten and third-ranked North Carolina 28-26 Saturday after a two-point conversion attempt by the Tar Heels failed with 22 seconds left.

North Carolina, 7-1, drove 90 yards for the final score on a one-yard dive by Tyrone Anthony. But a pass from Scott Stankavage, under heavy pressure from J.D. Gross, went off the hands of Anthony.

No. 14 Okla. 45, Kan. 14

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Specer Tillman and Earl Johnson each logged a cross-country touchdown run and more than 100 yards rushing Saturday, and 14th-ranked Oklahoma cruised to a 45-14 college football victory over Kansas.

The Sooners amassed 375 yards rushing and limited the Jayhawks to 29 as they improved to 6-2 overall and 4-0 in the Big Eight Conference. Kansas fell to 3-4-1 and 1-3.

No. 15 B. Young 38, Utah St. 34

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Quarterback Steve Young scrambled for a 1-yard touchdown with 11 seconds left Saturday to lift 15th ranked Brigham Young to a 38-34 nonconference football victory over upstate rival Utah State.

Young also set an NCAA record for most consecutive games throwing a touchdown pass with 19.

No. 16 Ohio St. 45, Wis. 27

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Keith Byars' running, Mike Tomczak's passing and Kelvin Bell's defense led 16th-ranked Ohio State to a 45-27 Big Ten Conference college football victory Saturday over Wisconsin.

No. 17 Iowa 49, Ind. 3

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Wide receiver Dave Moritz scored two touchdowns and caught 11 passes for 192 yards to break two school records as No. 17 Iowa thrashed Indiana 49-3 in college football Saturday.

No. 18 Alabama 35, Miss. St. 18

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Ricky Moore ran for 104 yards and two touchdowns to lead 18th-ranked Alabama to a 35-18 Southeastern Conference football victory over Mississippi State Saturday.

No. 19 Notre Dame 28, Navy 12

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Sophomore flanker Milt Jackson grabbed a pair of touchdown passes, including one for 29 yards from Joe Howard on fake reverse, and Allen Pinkett scored twice Saturday to lead 19th-ranked Notre Dame to a 28-12 victory over Notre Dame.

No. 19 B.C. 27, Penn St. 17

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Doug Flutie threw for 380 yards and two touchdowns and Kevin Snow iced the victory with his second field goal Saturday as Boston College downed Penn State 27-17 in a battle of Eastern football powers.

BIG HIT — Penn State fullback Tony Mumford fumbles the ball as he is hit by Rob Swanke and Steve DeOssie of Boston College during first quarter action in Foxboro, Mass. Saturday. BC won 27-17.

ACU rolls to win over Stephen Austin, 24-10

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Loyal Proffitt threw for 466 yards and three touchdowns Saturday to lead Abilene Christian to a 24-10 Lone Star Conference football victory over Stephen F. Austin University.

Abilene Christian rolled up a school record 616 total yards and Proffitt broke school and conference records with 35 pass completions out of 49 attempts. His touchdown passes were 23 yards to Boo Jones and 11 and 13 to Robert Daffron.

Bob Shipley of ACU led all runners with 101 yards. The Wildcats are now 5-2 for the season and 2-2 in LSC play. Stephen F. Austin, which came into the game as conference co-leader at 3-0, is now 5-3 for the season.

The Lumberjacks' only TD came on a 62-yard pass from quarterback Tod Weder to Floyd Dixon.

Sam Houston St. 20, H.P. 10

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Jon Meyer threw a 44-yard touchdown pass to Sam Moore and ran 19 yards for another as the Sam Houston State Bearkats breezed past Howard Payne 20-10 in a Lone Star Conference game Saturday.

Meyers was 10 of 15 for 179 yards. Kicker Pat Delaney added field goals of 39 and 42 yards for Sam Houston.

Mike Jones kicked a 19-yard field goal for Howard Payne in the third quarter, and the Yellow Jackets got a touchdown on Garry Lee's 14-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Sam Houston improved its record to 4-4 and 1-3 in LSC play. Howard Payne, playing before a Homecoming crowd, fell to 1-6 and 0-4.

Drake 36, WTSU 26

DES MONIES, Iowa (AP) — A 67-yard desperation pass with 49 seconds remaining from Ray Gronowski to Carter Covington gave Drake a 36-26 Missouri Valley Conference football victory over West Texas State Saturday.

Then, with three seconds left, Drake's Shawn Johnson intercepted a West Texas State pass at the Bulldogs' 16 and returned it 84 yards for a touchdown for the final margin.

Giants brace for Cowboys

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The last time the New York Giants played the Dallas Cowboys they lost the game and one of the National Football League's premier inside linebackers.

Harry Carson, who suffered an injury to his left knee that required arthroscopic surgery in the Giants' 28-13 loss to the Cowboys Sept. 18, is expected to return to action Sunday when the teams meet at Giants Stadium.

"He's coming along," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said Friday.

Parcells indicated he was likely to take Carson off the injured reserve roster today. The eight-year veteran, who has missed five games, began practicing Wednesday.

The Giants already have used two of the three moves the league allows to activate players off the injured reserve roster when they brought back kick returner Leon Bright and wide receiver Floyd Eddings.

Parcells also said Sunday's game at Giants Stadium may mark the return to action of cornerback Terry Jackson, who has missed four games because of a sprained knee.

The Cowboys, 7-1, lost 40-38 to the Los Angeles Raiders last week, breaking their seven-game winning streak. The

SW Texas St. 44, ETSU 21

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Ricky Sanders ran for 105 yards and scored twice, including a 56-yard bolt on Southwest Texas State's second play of the second half, to lead the Bobcats past East Texas State 44-21 Saturday in a Lone Star Conference game.

Southwest Texas, ranked fifth nationally in the NCAA's Division II, rolled up 550 yards total offense in the victory over East Texas State, the nation's No. 10 team.

ETSU's Ricky Dirks, the nation's leading rusher in Division II with 147 yards a game coming into the contest, was held to 49 yards in 11 carries.

ETSU backup quarterback Bruno Briones threw touchdown passes of 40 yards to Wardell Allen and 9 yards to Felix McDowell in the second half.

Both teams now share the league lead with 3-1 records.

Sul Ross St. 27, McMurry 15

ALPINE, Texas (AP) — Sul Ross State took advantage of four McMurry turnovers in the fourth quarter and scored on Bennie Beal's three-yard run and David Creek's 27-yard field goal for a 27-15 victory over McMurry Saturday.

A 37-yard field goal by Creek, Marcel Clay's three yard run and a 24-yard TD pass from Gilbert Morales to Mike Hawley gave Sul Ross a 17-3 halftime lead.

McMurry got two points when a snap went over the head of Sul Ross's punter. Willie Joe returned a punt 53 yards for a McMurry TD midway through the third quarter, and Tony quitta kicked a 47-yard field goal to cut the score to 17-15.

Both teams have 3-2 records at the top of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association with one game remaining.

Giants, 2-5-1, tied St. Louis 20-20 in overtime last Monday. It was their fourth straight game without a victory.

The loss of Carson had a dramatic impact on the defense. Parcells made what he considered the right move when he switched two-time NFL Defensive Player of the Year Lawrence Taylor from outside to inside linebacker to fill the gap left by Carson's absence.

But the move has reduced the firepower of Taylor, the Giants' most devastating defensive weapon.

Since he was a rookie in 1981 Taylor has been one of the league's most feared blitzing linebackers, but the switch inside has limited his role as a pass rusher. Taylor had to concentrate more heavily on running plays and over the past few weeks has indicated he's anxious for Carson's return so he can once again terrorize quarterbacks from the outside.

Carson, who spent several weeks in a cast after surgery, said he was injured early in the Dallas game when he was hit by two of the Cowboys' offensive linemen. Carson claimed one of them intentionally rammed his helmet into his left knee. Carson said he was later informed by one of the Cowboys that they are told to go for a player's knees.

SMU edges A&M, 10-7; Frogs clipped by Cougs

SMU 10, A&M 7

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Southern Methodist's players and coaches disagreed over whether the 10th-ranked Mustangs were flat in beating Texas A&M 10-7 Saturday, but Coach Bobby Collins said one thing is certain — "It's good to be back on the winning track."

Quarterback Lance McIlhenny threw a 38-yard touchdown pass to freshman Marquis Pleasant and SMU's defense stopped three running plays from its 1-yard line in edging A&M.

SMU had its 21-game unbeaten streak broken by No. 2 ranked Texas last week. "This was not the most emotional game we've ever had," Collins said after the game. "I guess it's taken us longer to get over the Texas loss than we thought it would."

A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill claimed that one official said A&M quarterback Kevin Murray, on fourth down from the 1-yard line, "broke the plane (of the goal line), and the other said he didn't."

SMU defensive tackle Mitch Willis said, "They were so close to the goal line, that you could place half a burnt cigarette between the nose of the ball and the end zone."

SMU moved to 3-1 while A&M dropped to 2-2-1 in SWC play.

A&M linebacker Jeff Fuller intercepted McIlhenny, who is among the nation's passing leaders, for the first time this season to set up a 2-yard scoring run by Murray. The second-quarter touchdown was the first rushing score given up by SMU this season.

Since the 1982 season, McIlhenny had thrown 120 passes without an interception.

Pleasant used his 7-inch height advantage to outjump 5-foot-7 cornerback Billy Brown in the end zone for SMU's only touchdown with 2:40 remaining in the third quarter.

A&M took the ensuing kickoff and drove 79 yards, where the Aggies had second-and-goal from the 1. SMU defenders stopped two goalline leaps by Jimmie Hawkins and on fourth down held Murray just inches from the end zone.

The Aggie's began their final possession from their own 1 with 2:24 left to play, and they couldn't make the distance against a Mustang defense that ranks 6th in the nation.

Overall, SMU is 6-1 and A&M is 3-4-1. After a scoreless first quarter, SMU tallied first with a Jeff Harrell 45-yard field goal with 11:08 left in the second period. The field goal was set up by a recovery of A&M tight end Rich Siler's fumble at the Mustang 40.

Houston 28, TCU 21

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Houston quarterback Gerald Landry ran for two touchdowns and passed for another Saturday as the Cougars ended a four-game losing streak with a shaky 28-21 Southwest Conference victory over Texas Christian.

Landry bolted 33 and 7 yards for two scores and winged a 5-yard strike to running back Donald Jordan as Houston rolled to a 21-7 halftime cushion en route to only its second winning SWC verdict against three losses.

Landry also rifled a 41-yard pass to Kevin Johnson in the final quarter to set up the winning touchdown from the TCU 3. Raymond Tate took it into the end zone with 7:33 remaining.

Arkansas 35, Rice 0

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz had a down-the-road situation in mind when he called for a fake punt while leading Rice 28-0 Saturday night.

Backup fullback Bill Rudasill made 7 yards on the play and a first down at the 46 and Arkansas went on to its final touchdown in a 35-0 Southwest Conference victory.

"I felt bad about the fake punt but we want people to think twice before they rush Greg Horne," Holtz said, referring to his punter. "I have too much respect for Ray Albom and Rice's players to try to run up the score. In fact, I kinda wish we hadn't scored that last touchdown."

Prior to Saturday night, the Razorbacks' most productive rushing effort was 74 yards by Bobby Joe Edmonds in the season opener. Against Rice, Carl Miller, making his first start at tailback, netted 92 yards on 19 carries.

"Our search for a tailback is not over but I was pleased with the way our tailbacks ran tonight," Holtz said. "Now we'll look at the fullback spot."

Holtz said Miller was moved from fullback to tailback because of the development of John Ed Goodman, who suffered a torn ligament while covering a kick and will likely undergo surgery Monday.

Quarterback Brad Taylor, who completed 11 of 17 passes for 202 yards, tied a school record by throwing four touchdown passes. "Brad did the little things right tonight. When we can establish a running game, Brad can do a lot of things."

Baylor 24, Tulane 18

WACO, Texas (AP) — Cody Carlson and Tom Muecke, the Baylor quarterback tandem, tossed three first-half touchdowns passes and the Bear defense beat back a ferocious second-half Tulane rally for a 24-18 intercollegiate college football victory Saturday.

Carlson rifled touchdown strikes of 11 yards to Bruce Davis and 8 yards to Gerald McNeil while Muecke found McNeil for an 11-yard score. Carlson and Muecke quarterbacked alternating series for the Bears, 5-2-1. Twice in the third quarter, the Green Wave marched for first downs inside the Baylor 10-yard-line, but could get only a field goal in each case.

However, Tulane so dominated the third quarter that Baylor ran only nine offensive plays in the period. Cody Wood kicked three field goals for Tulane, 4-5, setting a school record of 13 field goals in a season.

The only Green Wave touchdown came on a 22-yard first quarter pass from Wade Elmore to Wayne Smith, who made a circus catch, wrestling the ball from two Baylor defenders who had surrounded him in the end zone.

Marty Jimmerson added a 47-yard Baylor field goal midway through the fourth period.

Tulane's final points came when Baylor punter Buzzy Sawyer took an intentional safety with two seconds to play.

Hawks

of coaching junior college basketball, his teams have led the nation three times in fewest points allowed. "Some teams hold the ball and do that. We don't. We'll apply a lot of pressure," he says.

Defense has been the order in Hawk practice session in past two months. "We've spent probably 75 per cent of our workouts on defense. Over a 31-game schedule, defense is the real constants in basketball. You can't hustle the ball in the hole. Defense is something you can depend on every game. Even on those nights when you're not hitting, you're still all right if you know your team is ready to play defense."

And so workouts have gone like an indoor track meet. Full-court drills have emphasized defending the ball-handler and making things as difficult as possible for the opposition.

"We're going to use lots of man pressure," Mitchell explains his strategy. "Our biggest asset is our overall quickness. I wish we had a little more size. If we play a team with size, we're going to have some matchup problems. But I've looked around the league, and there's not that much size this year."

"Quickness is what we've been stressing in workouts. Assuming we keep a workman-like attitude, we should be able to play good defense," he says.

The Hawks' offense has taken a secondary role to this point. Wilder initiated the "Run, Gun and Have Fun" style to Howard and the Hawks will stay within the neighborhood of that game plan. Again, HC will try to start its offense with its defense. But when the team sets up, the movement offense will contrast to last year's plan of getting the ball into the big man, namely all-conference choice Nate Givens.

"It's a five-man passing game," Mitchell explains. "We'll have a lot of motion although it won't be quite like Indiana's motion offense under Bobby Knight. That was mostly all free-lancing and options. Our is similar except we have assigned screens and cuts to give it some predictability."

Howard opens his season Tuesday at 8 p.m. against Ranger in Dorothy Garrett and Mitchell is far from selecting a starting lineup. "We have seven or eight guys that I honestly think can play. I don't know how important starting is...I think those guys will all play 28 to 31 minutes," he said.

In his early season games, Mitchell wants to see defense and his offensive plans start to gel. By Nov. 10, when the teams begin play in Midland College's annual tournament, he would like to see his squad "have things ironed out."

The Hawks have lost 6-11 sophomore Willie James. James, a native of Michigan, returned to his home state this past week. Mitchell said his player apparently had tired of the game and the work required to make the team.

Here is a coach's look at the Hawks, player-by-player, prior to Tuesday night's opener:

Maurice Hoskin, 5-11 sophomore point guard (South Bend, Ind.) — "He's coming off knee surgery this summer but has look good in scrimmages."

Nicholas Jones, 6-1 freshman point guard (Washington, D.C.) — "He'll be a very good player in time. His best physical attribute is his quickness. He's a hard worker and will be very solid at that position."

Dwight Harris, 6-3 sophomore wing (Americus, Ga.) — "A good offensive player last year. He had minor knee surgery three weeks ago but is back. In two weeks, I expect him to be full blast. He has improved in other area such as his ball-handling and defense."

Jerry Stroman, 6-6 sophomore wing (Columbia, S.C.) — "He's looked good. He's a very good athlete, runs and jumps well. He's a transfer and in his other program, they must of run and run. He's still learning our structure."

Michael Porter, 6-4 freshman wing (Hattiesburg, Miss.) — "He was our leading scorer in our last scrimmage against Panola. I think he had 30 points. He's looked good too. He's going to be a good player."

Antoine Morris, 6-3 sophomore wing (Arverne, NY) — "He's a hard worker and plays good defense. He also has good offensive skills."

Al Holland, 6-9 sophomore post (Roanoke, Va.) — "Very good fundamental ballplayer. He was well-coached by someone along the way. He has a very nice shooting touch for big guy and handle the ball. In our offensive system, that's a plus. You don't have to worry about throwing it to him 15 feet from the basket."

Joe Johnson, 6-6 sophomore post (Trenton, NJ) — "Of all our players, he improved the most since since day one until now. He has really worked hard."

Anthony Snooks, 6-8 sophomore post (Columbia, SC) — "He'll be eligible at mid-semester and will have a real impact on this team. He gives us an extra dimension when he's in with Holland because we'll have two big guys on the offensive boards. They'll get some trash and make points."

Mike Fulkerson, 6-6 freshman post (Rockport, Ind.) — "He'll be a swing post and post. He's a very good shooter. He laid out a year since his high school graduation so he was kind of rusty. But now he's starting to come around."

James Johnson, 6-4 sophomore wing (Columbus, Ga.) — "He has a lot of flair and feel for the game. He's played in a loose style also and has had to get used to a structured style of play."

Reggie Marvin, 6-0 freshman point guard (Buffalo, NY) — "He'll get some playing time. His main problem is having to play behind Hoskin and Jones. But he's a good little player and I'll get him in the game."

RALPH ON THE MOVE — Houston Rockets' rookie center Ralph Sampson looks to the basket as he is guarded tightly by San Antonio Spur Artis Gilmore during third quarter action Saturday of their NBA opener in Houston. The Rockets won the game.

Ralph debuts with NBA win

HOUSTON (AP) — While Ralph Sampson did not have the kind of game that will send him directly to the Hall of Fame, he did what he set out to do — help the Houston Rockets beat the San Antonio Spurs in his National Basketball Association debut.

"I didn't stand out. The win stands out," Sampson said after scoring 18 points and pulling down 12 rebounds to help the Rockets defeat San Antonio 106-100 Saturday. "We got one. We're just going to go on to the next one now."

Lewis Lloyd, a castoff from the Golden State Warriors, was the real hero for the Rockets, scoring 28 points, including six in the last 2:20, and collecting a rare "triple double" by also contributing 11 rebounds and 10 assists.

The Rockets, who won only 14 of 82 games last season and lost their first 10 games, ushered in the Sampson era before a Summit crowd of 14,116, almost 2,000 less than capacity but nonetheless the largest opening-game attendance in the franchise's 17-year history.

"I just played hard and tried to do the easy things to win," said Sampson, the No. 1 pick in the 1983 NBA draft after the Rockets suffered through their woeful 1982-83 season in the wake of trading superstar center Moses Malone to Philadelphia.

"I think I did some of the things I wanted to do and there were some things I didn't do. I mishandled the ball sometimes."

The Rockets got off to a quick start against strong opposition in the Spurs, who have won the NBA Midwest Division championship five of the last seven years, and 7-2, 260-pound Artis Gilmore, one of the league's strongest centers. The 7-foot-4 Sampson, a three-time collegiate player of the year at Virginia who signed a four-year, $5 million contract, won his matchup against Gilmore, who finished with 16 points and 10 rebounds.

Lloyd, acquired from the Warriors in the offseason for a 1985 second-round draft pick, gave the Rockets the lead for good at 99-98 on a basket with 2:20 remaining. He then had the next two field goals, the second with a minute to go for a 103-98 margin.

In addition to his points and rebounds, Sampson had four blocked shots and three assists.

Mike Mitchell led San Antonio scorers with 23 points and George Gervin added 19.

The largest lead by either team was seven points — 76-69 by the Spurs in the third quarter. But the Rockets rallied for nine points in a row to keep the see-saw game close to the end. There were 29 lead changes and 13 ties in the game.

While Gilmore scored all of his points within a couple of feet of the basket, Sampson maneuvered outside for all but six of his points.

He finished by hitting 9 of 21 field goal attempts for 43 percent, including 4 for 11 in the first half, which finished with San Antonio ahead 54-53.

Sampson, who hit only 40 percent of his shots as the Rockets won only one of eight exhibition games, missed his first three field goal attempts. He finally hit from the corner two minutes into the game after blocking a shot and then filling the lane on a fast break.

Sampson was three for nine from the field, all on outside shots, when he ignited the crowd for the first time by slam-dunking a one-handed rebound with 1:48 left in the first quarter.

Houston afraid of winless season

CLEVELAND (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Chuck Studley says his team hopes to break its fear of being winless for the entire National Football League season when it meets the Cleveland Browns on Sunday.

"Right now, the possibility of going 0-16 exists," Studley said. "You say, 'Oh my God, the possibility exists that we may not win a game.' As long as you don't win one, it is a possibility. It's a terrible, nauseous thing that haunts you."

That fear, he said, contributes to poor performance.

The last time the 0-8 Oilers won on the road was when they defeated the Browns at Cleveland on Sept. 13, 1981. The Oilers have lost 15 straight games in all and are desperate for a victory.

Studley said he hopes the Browns take the Oilers lightly, which is just what Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano is guarding against.

The Browns, who lost 28-21 to the Cincinnati Bengals, then 1-6, last Sunday, cannot afford to underestimate the Oilers, Rutigliano said.

"The only thing that we're interested in is being 5-4," he said. "We're not pleased to be 4-4, especially after getting off to a 4-2 start. But a lot of things are going to happen in this league in the next eight weeks. Our No. 1 goal is to get to the playoffs and we believe we can do that."

Gifford Nielsen, in his sixth NFL season, will but as a professional, you owe it to yourself and your teammates to prepare yourself each week, and that is exactly what we're trying to do. We're close," Nielsen said.

Studley said one of his biggest challenges is to make his players believe in themselves.

"After a team has lost as many games as we have, each loss becomes a greater burden, particularly with the young players. We have guys who have never played on a winning professional football team."

Hawk Queens

sensational in workouts and scrimmages but won't be eligible until the semester break.

Until then, or 20 games into the season, the Queens will have to win with freshmen.

The fun begins Wednesday when the Queens begin defense of their McLennan Classic championship in Waco. Howard meets host McLennan in game one and Stevens chuckles when he thinks about sending his youngsters against coach Charlotte Mason's veterans.

"Sweet Charlotte can hardly wait for us to get down there," he laughs. The Queens have held the upper hand on the High Lassies for the past two seasons but now the tables are turned. "They're the best in the state. It's tough sending a bunch of freshmen against a team like that. We're going to have to react to that in a positive way."

The tournament continues through Friday with the Queens playing Navarro and Panola. Stevens isn't calling this trip a vacation by any means but is glad to get the season started.

"We've done about as much improving as we can without playing anyone," he says. "Our improvement has been very gradual. We've got a lot of good talent but I've been surprised on our lack of fundamental skills. We're farther behind at this time than we've ever been."

With that in mind, Stevens has had his team concentrating on defense. The offense is far from being "polished," he says. "We have good morale but we've had so far to go in such a short period of time."

Shooting-wise, the Queens coach reports his team "should be much better than last year." The Queens hit 43 per cent from the field last year and although strong shooting hasn't been a trademark of even the good HC teams, it is a necessity this season.

"We've got to improve on our rebounding," says Stevens, giving one reason why the shots have to fall. "That's been one of our weak spots. But we're getting better. We won't be as strong inside but I think we'll be better outside."

The Queens had trouble with free throws last year and Stevens hopes those days are in the past. "It's hard to tell right now. I feel like we'll be better but I learned a long time ago you can't go on workout percentages. You just have to find out in battle."

If the Queens had to pick a year to rebuild, this may be a good one. "I think the conference is little weaker quality-wise than in the past. Not that the teams will be weak but we won't have the super teams like we've had. There will be much more balance than we've ever had."

Stevens predicts Odessa College and Clarendon to be the teams to beat in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference. Amarillo and Western Texas, two tradition powers along with Howard, won't be quite as strong Stevens says. And then there's New Mexico Junior College, fielding a team for the first time. "You're going to have to play to beat them," Stevens warns.

Howard College has never had a losing season since Stevens, the former head girl's coach in Foran, took over in 1977. The Queens are 173-56 under Stevens and have won 20 or more games the past six years.

With that, here's Stevens' a player-by-player look at the Queens for the 1983-84 season:

Janene Berry, 5-4 sophomore point guard (Farwell) — "She's really improved her shooting over last year. She's also done a great job of providing leadership for our team, something we've desperately needed. She'll stir the interest of the scouts. With her skills, she'll get lots of looks."

Shelly Kay, 5-4 freshman guard (Whitharral) — "She's a very exciting type of player, a playmaker, a good ballhandler/very quick. She's a 100 per cent-type player. She's in the process of discriminating in what will work and what won't and what she got away with in high school. She was a great driver in high school but at 5-4, she can't get away with that all the time in college."

Alex Provincio, 5-11 freshman forward (EP Eastwood) — "She's our best newcomer. She's a good jumper and scorer and an excellent ball-handler. An all-around ballplayer. She'd play the perimeter at a major college but she'll play a post for us. When Terri becomes eligible, we'll be able to play her at the perimeter some."

Patricia Carter, 5-8 freshman forward (Houston Cypress-Fairbanks) — "Another post in high school, she's adjusting to play the perimeter in college. We'll play at the post some this year because she is very deceptive and a good leader."

Velva Dalfrey, 5-5 freshman guard (Houston Jersey Village) — "She's an outside player, very quick and aggressive. She has a unique ability of stealing the ball. She's has great anticipation. She'll definitely be one of our better defensive players."

Debi Young, 6-2 freshman post (Pampa) — "She's one of our post people. She's in the process of developing into a college-caliber player. She has a soft touch on her shot and she's strong around the basket."

Karl Robinson, 5-8 sophomore forward (Coahoma) — "She made tremendous improvement over last year. It's obvious she spent the time during the summer to develop her skills. She is by far our best defensive players. She has really quick feet and plays extremely hard."

Molly Early, 5-6 freshman guard (Houston Jersey Village) — "She's an excellent ball-handler and passer. But her best asset is her outside shooting ability. She ought to be able to bust the zones for us this year."

Debbie Hall, 5-9 freshman forward (Houston Cypress-Fairbanks) — "She should develop into a strong rebounder for us from the wing position. She's a good outside shooter, also."

Terri Moore, 6-1 sophomore post (Waco Jefferson) — "She was a tremendous recruit. She started a year at guard for Baylor and will be eligible for us at mid-semester. She'll probably be as good as anyone in our conference. She can jump, rebound, score and is quick. She'll play post for us but can play anywhere on the court. We'll be a lot better team after she joins us."

Allison Dickson, 6-4 freshman post (Gregory-Portland) — "She's also in the process of developing her skills as a college player. She's strong and aggressive and will help us."

Diane Dickson, 6-4 freshman post (Gregory-Portland) — "She's carbon copy of her sister. She's progressing nicely as a college-type ballplayer."

Cross country

Anita Flores paced the girls' varsity with a 13:47, followed closely with Christian Gribble with a 13:53.

The Steers' JV saw Larry Rodriguez come away with the top time of 17:14 for the meet. The time was a personal best for Rodriguez, according to Coach Randy Brittain.

Rodriguez's teammate Jesse Bridges finished in seventh place with 18:25, also a personal best for him.

Here are the Big Spring results from Saturday's meet, with the individual's place and time with personal bests marked by an asterisk:

Band auxiliary takes honors

On Saturday, Oct. 22, the Southwest Auxiliary Championship was held in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Flag, rifle, twirling and drum lines from the surrounding area participated in this event.

The Big Spring rifle line placed first with a score of 85.5. The twirling line placed third, and the flag line placed first with a score of 83.48. The drum line placed with a score of 82.

In the individual competition the following people earned a division one rating on their flag solos: Tina Hillyer, Janice Duncan, Michelle Deanda and Donna Bryant. Those making division one ratings on rifle solo were: Glenn Mellinger, George Crawford, Tim Marshall, Todd Badgett, and Alfonso Morales. On twirling, Allison White and Robin Butler made division ones. Chris Williams made a rating of one on a percussion solo.

The outstanding percussion soloist was Jimmy Olague. Outstanding rifle soloist was Robby Roten. Connie Fritzer was named outstanding flag soloist.

There will be a yearbook assembly held on Monday, Oct. 31. This year's yearbook will cost $20, and orders will be taken during the lunch periods on Wednesday, Nov. 2, only.

For just 10 cents a vote, you can vote in the annual ugly man contest sponsored by FCA. The nominations for the "ugly man" will be posted in the cafeteria.

Members of Tri-Hi-Y will hold a turkey raffle on Nov. 7 and a turkey drawing on Nov. 21. They will also have a party for the teenagers ward at the State Hospital on Dec. 15.

Those seniors who were given the University of Texas Ex-Students' Association envelope containing the Texas Excellence Award Scholarship application are reminded that these applications must be postmarked no later than Nov. 1.

In the Snyder Tournament the freshmen volleyball team won first place. They beat Lamesa 15-2 and 15-5 with Sonya Evans serving 11 points. In the second round they beat Pecos 15-9 and 15-11. Sonya Evans was once again high point server with 11 points. In the championship game Seminole won the first match 11-15, but the Lady Steers came back to win 15-5 and 15-8.

The freshmen volleyball team then defeated Lamesa on Oct. 26. Sonya Evans and Shellia Chapman served 10 total game points. The freshmen finished the season with a record of 16-2.

The junior varsity volleyball team was defeated by Permian on Oct. 25 by scores of 6-15, 15-3 and 11-15. Tonya Gilstrap was the high point server in the second game with 9 points and Lisa Phillips was the high point server in the third game with 5 points.

With a loss to San Angelo, the junior varsity volleyball team finished their season with a district record of 6-8. The scores in the game were 15-13, 12-15 and 12-15.

In the last home volleyball game of the season held on Oct. 25, the varsity Lady Steers defeated Permian by scores of 15-11 and 15-11, but in their last game on Oct. 27, they lost to San Angelo with scores of 15-9 and 15-6. The Lady Steers finished the season with a 6-8 district record.

On Oct. 27 the Big Spring Girl Swimmers defeated Midland Lee by a score of 36 to 29. Hartley Newell, Rita Fleckenstein, Kelly Williamson, Carol Davey and Lisa Salazar placed first. The relay team of Hartley Newell, Rita Fleckenstein, Carol Davey and Kelly Williamson won first place in the 400 yard freestyle.

The boy swimmers were narrowly defeated by a score of 42 to 36. Placing first for the boys were Cade Loftin, Scott Ferguson and Terry Bordofake.

In the varsity football game against Midland Lee, the top Steer award went out to Jay Pirkle and Danny Arista. Jim Cearley received the conan award, Jay Pirkle received the bullet award, the golden spike award went out to Dale Crenshaw, and Richard Hilaro received the hawk award.

The Steers will take on San Angelo this Friday for the last game of the '83 football season. Go get 'em Steers!

Coahoma

By JENNA BROWN

Student of the month chosen

Janna Griffin was selected to be the October student of the month. Janna is active in the Big Red Band, The Bulldog varsity basketball and track teams, the National Honor Society, and the One Act Play as well as Student Council.

"The Blood of Dracula", a movie shown by the Student Council, will be presented on Monday, Oct. 31, to the students. Also beginning on Monday, the Student Council will start selling M & M candies as one of their fund raisers.

Clem Moron was named the top salesman of the O.E.A. candy sales. He was awarded with $35. Receiving $25 for being the second place salesman was Vanessa Kyle. The third place salesman, Leslie Martin, received a $15 prize.

The Big Red Band will travel to Abilene on Tuesday, Nov. 1, to compete in a marching contest. Good luck band!

The members of F.H.A. have elected their 83-84 Beau, Shawn Justiss. Shawn is a junior at Coahoma High, participates in Bulldog athletics and is a member of F.F.A.

The Coahoma High School student body has unanimously voted to change the format for the Mr.

and Miss CHS contest. The new format will include students from all grade levels.

This action has been taken because of the lack of student and community interest which in turn, causes a loss of class funds to the senior class. The seniors also feel that by changing this event, it will be more worthwhile and more fun to everyone involved.

In the new show, which will be called the Annual Senior Variety Show, there will be three divisions. These divisions will include kindergarten through fifth grade, sixth grade through eighth grade, and ninth grade through twelfth grade.

Acts may be single or groups. Each act will be responsible for its own accompaniment or backup and will have to audition before a screening committee which will select the acts that will perform in the show.

The show will not take place until early 1984; however, everyone should be aware of this change.

The Junior High football teams will take on C-City in Coahoma on Thursday, Nov. 3.

Freshman and junior varsity football teams will play the Wolves in C-City on Thursday.

The varsity Bulldog football team will play its last game in Coahoma against Ballinger on Friday, Nov. 4.

Mr. Buffalo, Gal selected

Friday night, during the half-time activities of the Forsan-Roby game, Mr. Buffalo, Buffalo Gal, Band Favorites, and Football Sweetheart were named. These students are Brad Jenkins, Mr. Buffalo; Debra Holguin, Buffalo Gal; Todd East and Kristi Evans, Band Favorites; and Kristi Evans, Football Sweetheart. The band also played a tribute to the Marines who were killed this past week.

Next week is spirit week at Forsan. During the week, the students are asked to participate in the following activities: Monday-fire up day; Tuesday-Buffs band together (wear bandanas); Wednesday, sock it to 'em (wild socks); Thursday-lookout Lorraine-You're no sweat (glasses and sweat shirts); and Friday-color my Friday black and white (everyone wear black and white).

Picture money and proofs need to be turned in by

Nov. 3. Students should go by room 15 before school or at lunch.

Yearbooks will be on sale again November 2, 3, and 4. The price is $17.85 without names and $19.95 with names.

Band contest will be Saturday, Nov. 5 at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa. The band is scheduled to perform at 12:48.

The band will go to the Big Spring State Hospital to participate in the Halloween parade on Monday, Oct. 31 at 10:00 a.m.

Juniors will be taking ASVAB test Tuesday, Nov. 1.

Three members of FHA attended the convention that was held in Dallas. These people were Lanna Nichols, Danielle Clere, and Cheri Grover. Sponsor for the trip was Mrs. Willene Bott.

Report cards handed out

Report cards were handed out to students to take home to their parents Wednesday, Oct. 26. The cards report the students progress for one-fourth of the school year.

To be eligible for the National Junior Honor Society, students must have no grade below 85, an over-all average of 90, and an "A" in conduct. Eligible students picked up applications for membership Thursday. Sponsor for the society in James McFarland.

Calendar clue winners for the week are J.J. Hester, Rosalyn McCalister, and Brenda Roberts. Winning teacher was Mrs. Conley, and the category was Clipper Ship.

The A and B football teams played in Snyder on Thursday. The A team was defeated by a score of 26 to 0. The B team won with a score of 16 to 58. The Yearlings play their last football game Nov. 3.

Goliad

KATHRYN BURROW

Annuals go on sale this week

Goliad annuals will be on sale Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 2-3, for the final time. The price is $7.50.

The girls volleyball team ended its season last week against Andrews. The A team lost 2-15 and 11-15. The B team won 15-13. High point servers for Goliad were Tracy Schaffer, Karen Tubb and Adella Ramirez.

All three football teams saw action this week against Snyder. Gold C team won 6-0. Tony Lewis scored the touchdown and good defense play was shown by Jerry Baldock and Mark Settles. The B team won 8-0, with coaches' praise going to Chris Mason, Ben Gonzales, Jose Tovar, John Sotelo and Nell Stallings. The A team won 14-0.

Director warns against abuse of standard test

NEW YORK (AP) - Warning that standardized tests aren't a "quick fix" for education, the president of the Educational Testing Service vowed Saturday his organization will speak up more actively to make sure exams won't be abused in the drive for better schools.

Gregory R. Anrig told several hundred educators gathered for the organization's annual invitational conference that he planned to "get beyond the rhetoric" and make sure the service's views are increasingly felt at the state and local level.

"We must and will be more assertive in this area," Anrig said in an interview following his remarks.

In pledging to make the service a more activist body in curbing test abuse, he expressed particular concern that some states and local school districts have proposed using teacher exams to measure competence after a teacher's career is well under way.

Anrig insisted in the interview that teacher competency exams should be used only to determine who enter the profession.

He also questioned the wisdom of some states, particularly Florida, which have in recent years begun heavily using standardized tests for a host of educational purposes. In Florida, high school seniors must pass tests to get academic diplomas.

"Tests are not a quick fix for all the problems in education," said Anrig.

The service, based in Princeton, N.J., administers the Scholastic Aptitude Test, a widely used college entrance exam. It also administers achievement tests in many scholastic subjects, the National Teacher Exam to measure teacher competency before entering the profession, as well as a variety of other professional and educational exams.

Children's Librarian

The costumes children wear for Halloween are just as important to them as the candy they collect while trick-or-treating. They love being astronauts, cowgirls and pirates for a little while.

For the third year the Howard County Library will be offering face decorating to add to Halloween fun for our young patrons. We won't be able to create elaborate movie characters but will be able to do clowns, Raggedy Anns, pirates, princesses and other basic designs.

The makeup we use will be removable with soap and water and alcohol. Because of the warnings on makeup about possible allergic reactions, we will be requesting that the following form be filled out and signed by parents whose children would like to participate.

The face decorating program will begin at 3 p.m. and continue until 5 p.m. on Monday.

My child.....has my permission to have his/her face decorated for Halloween at the Howard County Library Monday, Oct. 31. I understand the Howard County Library does not assume any responsibility for allergic reactions which might result.

State leads in cattle

Texas cattle feeders led the nation in the number of cattle and calves on feed with 1.83 million head, up 14 percent from last year and 430,000 head above Nebraska, the state's nearest competitor.

Almost 1.3 million head were placed on feed during the July-September quarter, an increase of 12 percent from last year, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Marketings during the third quarter were unchanged from last year at 1.1 million head, according to the service.

State statistician Dennis Findley reported that the Northern High Plains, with 1.3 million head on feed, accounted for 73 percent of the state's total. This year's figure is 22 percent above last year and represents the highest total for the region since January.

New stores open at mall

Four new stores have opened during October in the Big Spring Mall, adding variety to merchandise offered mall shoppers, mall Manager Jane Meldahl said.

The new stores are: The Book Inn & Yarn Shop, owned by Nancy and Roe Fulgham; K's Deli & Unlimited Gifts, owned by Katherine and Guy Prater; P&P Stereo, owned by Sonny Peach; and Sport Stop, owned by Rick and Paula Ferguson.

The Fulghams moved their store to the mall to add space for the yarn and fabric shop, which includes classes, instructional books and accessories for needlepoint, knitting, crochet and cross-stitch projects.

Mrs. Fulgham, a former English teacher, also sells books, magazines and educational children's books in the 1,955 square-foot store.

Sonny Peach, the former owner of Peach Electronics in Big Spring, said he moved his new 2,212 square-foot store to the mall to increase the amount of traffic at his store.

Peach's merchandise includes stereo equipment, telephones, answering machines, video cassette recorders, tape recorders, personal stereos, televisions, CB radios and radar detectors.

The Praters' general country store carries Christmas decorations, candy, eight to 10 flavors of homemade fudge and gifts such as brass, figurines, candy jars, jewelry and wind chimes.

The 900 square-foot store also has a deli that serves sandwiches and soft drinks in a dining area.

Sport Stop features family sportswear for men, women and children starting at toddler size 2. Designer brands, T-shirts, trophies and sports equipment also are available at the 2,227 square-foot store.

Witches reflect on Halloween

BOSTON (AP) — By day, Andras Corban and Deirdre Pulgram dress normally. But in the dim light of the moon, they don caftans and retire to skull-adorned altars in their attics.

Corban and Ms. Pulgram say they are witches, and their special holiday is coming up.

Halloween is "a very ancient celebration of death," says Corban. "Witches work with various symbols to confront their own mortality. I've seen people go through their own death experiences."

"With our coven, which is a group of witches that work together, we perform a ritual centered on death symbolism, remembering our friends and relatives that are dead."

"It's not so much mumbo-jumbo chanted over a steaming caldron as a way of opening ourselves to the changing energy cycles of nature," he added. "Just as spring is a time of birth, fall is a time of dying."

Witches "don't see death as an end. We celebrate the solstices and the points in between, of which Halloween is one. It's a time of turning inward," adds Ms. Pulgram, 27, a graduate student in psychology. She and Corban have been married for four years.

Corban, 34, and Ms. Pulgram teach classes in witchcraft at the Boston Adult Education Center. Their classes usually have about 20 "apprentice" witches, he said.

Scholars of contemporary religion estimate that there are more than 40,000 active "neo-paganists" in the United States, and that the number is growing constantly, he said. "There's a whole culture developing. It's an exciting time to be a witch," Corban said.

But witches are still a subject of discrimination, as they have been since the days of the Roman Empire, when they were branded with a bad image that persists to this day, Corban said.

Although witches are no longer hanged as 19 were in 1692 in nearby Salem, Corban said they face other punishments for their beliefs.

"We've had friends lose their jobs and apartments, even lose custody of their children," he said.

Joy to the World

Mirror, mirror on the wall

I looked in my mirror today and saw a lady who is now down to one double chin. I use to have double chins on my double chins.

I also saw a gray-headed lady who has some wrinkles. I said, "Listen lady, where did you come from?" She didn't answer me and she should have because she owes me some explanation for taking the place of the black-haired girl I once was. It can't really have been 53 years!

It was just yesterday that I got to quit taking naps in the afternoon and sitting on the catalog at the dining table to be taller. Just recently, it seems, I got my first bicycle and rode off to junior high. Just yesterday I was in high school and trying to decide what to wear.

I remember the bride who took her vows seriously about "till death do us part," hoping she could be a good wife. I think about the baby son we brought home from the hospital and thinking, "Man! We are fixed for a great life! Our own baby!"

As the years jet by I see myself rushing to church, the grocery store and to the school where I was on the committee to serve refreshments for the Halloween party. I hardly turned around twice when I saw our son leaving home for college and we were wondering why we were so short on money for his expenses.

I remember the celebration of our 25th anniversary and our son's ordination as a pastor. Now we have observed our 35th anniversary and there is that gray-headed lady in my mirror.

Now I know what my Daddy meant on his 75th birthday when I asked him what it was like being 75-years-young. He replied, "Well Joy, I remember being 12 real well!"

One thing I know for sure is Billy and I are in the prime of our lives today because we both have jobs we love, so it is still fun to go to work. It is still fun to be together and we have a lot to laugh about.

Coming home from Baton Rouge together we talked over our years together and laughed about the mistakes we had made. The music on radio added to the atmosphere.

Although we know for sure now we will never be wealthy, we are so rich. The lights of Colorado City have never looked better because the city is our home.

Next time I look in the mirror and I see that old lady, I'll say, "Your gray hair softens the wrinkles in your face." Now let's see what surprises today brings. Now if I can only lose some more weight!

This winter, get your diesel off to a good start.

Gulf Auto Diesel fuel is specially formulated to meet the cold weather starting needs of diesel engines. A cold flow improver makes the fuel flow to your engine as easily in January as it does in June. And, because Gulf adds the cold flow improver before you pump fuel into your car, you don't need to add anything later on.

So, if you want to beat the cold weather starting grind, look for our red and yellow 'D'. And get off to a good start this winter with Gulf Auto Diesel.

REPORTING THE NEWS — Bill Hughes, managing editor for KBYG and K105, and news director for KBYG, read a news article to the radio listening audience. Hughes who refers to himself as a "news freak", loves to talk and make things make sense to listeners. He begins his work day at 4:30 a.m., Monday through Saturday.

Bill Hughes

Newsman reports on what's happening for radio listeners

By RHONDA WITT
Lifestyle Writer

Bill Hughes uses his teaching skills in his job as managing editor of KBYG and K105, and news director of KBYG. He taught drama, speech, journalism and English in the Spring Branch Independent School District in Houston.

When the news about Grenada being invaded came over the wire, he went to find Grenada on a map. He thought people would have a better perspective on the situation if they knew where it was.

"Newspeople get criticized for reporting the bad news," Hughes said. "This is where my experience as a teacher comes in. The best thing bad news does is to teach people not to do it again."

He won't stop reporting a story just because it causes embarrassment to a person, Hughes said. "Embarrassment is a learning experience which makes them not do it again."

"I'm a teacher at heart, but I have no plans to go back to the classroom," he said.

"The news sometimes does hit home and it hurts your heart. When hurricane Alicia hit 20 miles Northwest of Houston, I had to tell people that." Hughes' parents live 20 miles Northwest of Houston, and he hadn't been able to reach them on the phone at the time.

"You can't report the news and not get emotionally involved. It would tear me up to get on the air and tell people that the draft had been reinstated."

HUGHES UNDERSTANDS WHY "the police are very careful not to tell the media a (victim's) name before they tell the next of kin. I have a horrible feeling of one day telling someone their son is dead before the police do."

There is a cheery side to the news, however. Hughes loves the weather—rain, snow and sandstorms. He said he likes it when "it is different, but also when it is beautiful. A good thing about this job is because I'm on top of the weather," he said. Hughes enjoys seeing the sunrise each morning from his office.

'I've always loved talking and I'm a news freak, so it wasn't any shock for me to go into news broadcasting.'

"The weather is exciting. So many people here are interested in the weather." When the weather is threatening he works until it passes.

"I've always loved talking and I'm a news freak, so it wasn't any shock for me to go into news broadcasting. I enjoy it thoroughly except when the news gets bad," he said.

When he first came to town, people said there was no news in a small town. "That's wrong. I won five UPI (United Press International) awards this year (for last year's stories), which shows something has to be going on in Big Spring," Hughes said.

"People don't know how often we send news stories to other places. People don't listen to out-of-town radio stations or read out-of-town newspapers, so they don't realize how much Big Spring is in the mainstream of the news," he said.

Hughes works six days a week. "On Sunday, my one day off, I woke up at 4:30 a.m., knowing something had happened. That's when I knew I was a newscaster." Sunday morning was when more than 200 U.S. Marines were killed in an explosion in Beirut, Lebanon.

"Two radio stations come from this desk, one AM and one FM," Hughes said. He finds it challenging to do newscasts for two stations. He describes the AM news as being "short, local and hardhitting." The FM news allows "a little bit more for lifestyle stories with a bit more appeal."

HE BEGINS HIS DAY at 4:30 a.m. by going to the police station. At 5:15 a.m., he is in his office where he speed reads all the news from the night before to see what has happened. At 6 a.m., he gives his first newscast of the day over both the AM and FM stations. Hughes also gives a newscast on the AM station at 6:30 a.m., 7 a.m., 7:30 a.m., 8:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m., and 5:05 p.m. On the FM station, he gives a newscast at 7 a.m., 8 a.m., noon and at 5 p.m. An abbreviated newscast is given every hour.

The average day depends on the news volume for the day. He receives an averages 50 phone calls a day, but on a bad weather day for school he may answer as many as 200 calls.

Hughes and Paul Ossman of Lamesa do five two-man broadcasts on the FM station each day from the two towns. The broadcast is blended together by microwaves. Although he is on the radio with Ossman each day, Hughes hasn't seen him in two months.

Ossman is Lamesa Bureau chief for K105. "Two heads are better than one, and he is always getting stories for me," Hughes said of Ossman.

Lisa Brooks is Hughes assistant in Big Spring. "There are times when I have to be in two places at one time," Mrs. Brooks helps him do the extra stories.

Before stepping into his radio career, he made commercials for radio and television in Houston. "In order to do a good commercial, you have to know how radio works."

For a time, he was the voice for a time service, and the voice for a hotel's bubble elevator. He likes to read, cook and travel.

Grigsby shares memory of Anthony's career

SHARING MEMORIES — Cuin Grigsby, 72, holds a pin, the Scrapper Award from Anthony's, for holding downtown together when Highland Mall was first built. Only eight Scrapper award have ever been given. He also displays a plaque Johnnie Lou Avery gave him during the Centennial for selling advertisement for the centennial booklet. Grigsby made the two boof bouquets also pictured. He makes these for his friends.

Cuin Grigsby, 72, makes a business of helping people, whether its helping a person find a job, start a business or just brighten their day.

Grigsby came to Big Spring in 1941 as manager of Anthony's. The nearest Anthony's stores were Hobbs, N.M. and Amarillo. Although retired, Grigsby continues doing special assignments for Anthony's. Special assignments can mean anything from leasing to finding a location and people.

Right before the store moved to College Park, Grigsby planned "a real big merchandising promotion downtown" like a crazy day sale during the bicentennial in 1976, Johnnie Lou Avery said.

In 1980 during Big Spring Centennial he "single-handedly sold the whole city" advertisement for the centennial book.

"In a day and half, I sold 21 pages of advertising for the centennial," Grigsby said. He has a plaque from Mrs. Avery for his work during the event.

Grigsby helped start the driver's education program in Big Spring. "I've always believed in it," Grigsby said.

One award Grigsby is proud of is the Scrapper Award, he received from Anthony's. The Scrapper award, which only eight exist, is a boxing glove-shaped pin given to someone when he does something outstanding. His outstanding contribution was holding downtown together after Highland Mall opened.

"He did some neat things and he was one of the leading merchandisers in Big Spring," Mrs. Avery said. "He and Adolf Schwartz kept downtown together."

"When Highland Mall came in, everyone immediately said, Downtown would die. But he said, 'It will only strengthen downtown, because more people would come here to shop.' People said he was wrong, but his prediction held true," Mrs. Avery said.

"He has been one of the biggest components of free enterprise," she said. "He has done more to help other merchants than anyone I know."

Grigsby developed Blantex lady moccasins. Blantex was an ex-convict who would treat the leather of the moccasins, which sold for a dollar.

"He has done a lot for this community that it doesn't even know about," Mrs. Avery said.

He also is proud of a plaque he received from Anthony's in 1975 for having a million dollar store.

GRIGSBY BEGAN HIS CAREER with C.R. Anthony in Stillwater, Okla. in 1929 under the store's founder Charles Ross Anthony. He had come to Stillwater from Snyder, Okla., and decided to go downtown to get him a shirt for 49 cents at Anthony's.

"This little gal in high heels came and asked me to write up something for her. The manager was upstairs, saw me and thought I had sold something to her," Grigsby said.

With his first bonus check from Anthony's he purchased his first share of stock with the company. The business arrangement left him with $23.

When he came to Big Spring as store manager for Anthony's, Grigsby didn't have any business. People said one thing that couldn't sell in West Texas was ladies hats because the wind would blow them away, Grigsby said. No store in town carried them. Grigsby decided he would sell ladies hats.

'He has done more to help other merchants than anyone I know.'

"We turned out to be one of the biggest hat sellers in the company," he said. Mrs. P.F. Sheedy of Coahoma sold the women's hats.

"He understands how to please customers," Mrs. Avery said.

"I've always been a great believer of being on the floor. You never caught me in the office," Grigsby said. "People love to be treated right."

"People remember what you do for them," he said. He remembers wanting to hunt on some land one time. The man said he would have to see. The man asked a woman, and she said, "if he wants to hunt here, he sure can. During the war, my mother was sick, and he

"I've just lived in the company so long. I worked hard and things paid off," he said. Grigsby produced 37 managers while in the company and started about 30 stores.

Focus on the family

Talking with teens

The ways adults talk to teenagers affects the way teens feel about themselves. It also affects the way they feel about other people. Learning to talk with teenagers in a helpful way can be difficult, but it is worth the effort.

Start by expressing acceptance of your teenager in words and actions. You can accept teenagers just as they are, as persons of value, even though you may not approve of certain behavior.

Talk to teens like you talk to your friends. Few adults would not think of shaming, lecturing or threatening their friends. Yet they think nothing of doing it to their teenagers. Threats don't help the situation.

Learn to listen to teenagers. Listening is more important than talking. Listening takes effort and concentration. Sit down with the young person face-to-face and give your full attention. Listening is especially important when teens are upset, angry, hurt or sad. Teens have problems too.

Talking out a problem helps shrink it down to size. When teenagers or adults tell a friend what is troubling them, the troubles seem to grow lighter. So create opportunities to be alone and talk with your teenagers. It gives them a chance to talk and you a chance to listen. How can you know what is on their minds when you never have a chance to talk together?

Use suggestions rather than orders with your teenager. Adults are good at giving orders. But teenagers don't like being ordered around anymore than you or I do. Try suggestions instead; "ask" rather than order. Also, show appreciation when they respond to your suggestions.

Use kind words to build up your teenager and avoid unkind words which put them down. Kind words make teenagers feel good about themselves. They make it possible to discuss problems openly and to come to an understanding.

Sometimes adults expect young people to know how good they feel about them even though they never tell them. They are not mind-readers.

Unkind words don't help any situation; they only make it worse. Avoid criticism, ridicule, shame and name-calling.

Good communication helps teenagers develop self-thony's general offices in Oklahoma City, Okla. He decided to stay in Big Spring and help develop stores in West Texas for Anthony's.

"The company is now in its third generation, but I have a knack for staying young. I like young people," Grigsby said. He used to work side by side with C.R. Anthony, whom he knew well.

confidence, feelings of self-worth, and good relationships with others. When teenagers feel good about themselves and get along well with their parents, they are not as likely to choose friends their parents don't like or go along with the group in illegal activities. Teens who feel good about themselves are more likely to make wise career and dating choices than teens with poor concepts.

Here are some things that parents can do to help teenagers feel good about themselves.

- Accept teenagers' feelings. Teenagers are at times worried, afraid, sad, hurt, angry and disappointed — just like adults. They need to be able to share unhappy feelings with parents.

- Give much encouragement. Be sure they know that you care. Show interest in their friends, school, and activities. Stand by them, not over them.

- Encourage teens to learn as many skills as possible. Teens who have specific skills, such as dancing, singing, or playing basketball, are more likely to be accepted by other teenagers. Being accepted gives feelings of personal worth.

- Begin to "let go." Parents have to learn to "let go" in order to keep their teens. Separation from the family is a task which teenagers must accomplish to become adults. Parents can help by "letting go" gradually as the child matures.

- Only battle over important matters. As long as teenagers don't hurt themselves or others, ignore little things that irritate you such as hair styles and strange looking clothes. Save your influence for important matters.

- Don't treat teens like children. Teenagers resent being treated like children. If you treat them like children, they will set out to prove they are not children, sometimes with anti-social behavior.

- Give reasons for orders. Teens accept authority more readily when they think it is reasonable and for their own good.

- Don't push teenagers to grow-up too fast. Some parents push teens to use make-up or begin boy-girl relationships. "Hurried" teens are anxious teens. Let teens grow at their own pace.

Linda Adams goes to Dallas paper

A call from LINDA ADAMS was music to my ears Thursday afternoon. Linda has just accepted a position at Dallas Times Herald as copy editor.

She will start Nov. 7. She's excited about working with the many award winning writers the Times Herald has employed with it. "It's just out of this world. It's a really nice place," she said about her new work environment. Linda, as I'm sure you know, was the former managing editor of the Big Spring Herald.

Twelve semifinalists were chosen last Sunday in a preliminary competition to compete for the title of Miss Lubbock and our FELECIA FORD was among the chosen few. Felecia will compete in the Miss Lubbock Pageant Dec. 3. Should she win the pageant she will compete for Miss Texas this summer. Should she win the Miss Texas pageant she will compete for Miss America 1984.

Proud mother JERRY DUNBAR shared an Dallas Morning News article with me that tells the behind the scenes of the Miss America Pageant.

Did you realize that the contestants for Miss America have several coaches, trainers and strategists preparing them for months for the competition?

Former Miss America Donna Axum of Little Rock, Ark., gives courses in how to win in Atlantic City. Ada Duckett of Beaumont tears apart swimsuits and remakes them to hide contestants body flaws. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Geddis of Lubbock devote months to teaching a contestant how to interpret "Time" and "Newsweek" so the contestant is up on current events. David Westerfield of Dallas begins training contestants as early as age 3.

"Becoming Miss America is definitely not for amateurs," says Donna Axum, who won the title in 1963," the article says. "You prepare for Miss America the way you would prepare to apply for any other $100,000-a-year job."

Winners of the Miss Lubbock Pageant move into the Geddis' home immediately after winning the contest. There she is put through intense training until the Miss Texas Pageant.

Miss Lubbock's regimen consists of: exercises; watching the morning news and reading the newspaper; a diet dictated by recommendations of a nutritional consultant; hair and makeup decided by beauty consultants; a diction drills for the three-line speech she makes to introduce herself on stage; and learning to interpret the news so she can convince the judges she is an expert on current events.

For the past five years, Miss Lubbock has placed in the top five of the Miss Texas America Pageant. In the 1980 pageant, Miss Lubbock won the title and went on to Miss America.

So if Felecia wins Miss Lubbock she stands a pretty good chance for Miss Texas America.

WITCHES — Canterbury Retirement Home residents will host the annual Halloween party for all Big Spring children from 6:30-8:30 p.m., Monday. Canterbury Retirement Home is located at 1700 Lancaster. Wit-

Dear Abby

Teeth are nothing to smile about

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 22-year-old waitress. My friends tell me I'm pretty, but a lot of strangers have said, "You are such a beautiful girl, why don't you do something about your teeth?"

You see, when I was 13, I fell down the cellar steps and broke off my front teeth clear to the gum. A dentist put some caps on them, and they look terrible. They stick way out, and you can tell they're false because they're yellow, and my own teeth are white. Not only that, but my teeth are horribly crooked. They grow every which way — practically on top of each other.

I feel so ugly I try not to smile, and when I talk I always cover my mouth with my hand. (My mother tells me I even cover my mouth when I'm sleeping.)

I've been to three dentists, and they all said I need a lot of work. First, braces, then new caps. They all want money in advance. I'm supporting myself and my mother, and lots of things come before my teeth.

Would it be cheaper to have them all pulled and get dentures?

Also, if there's a dental school near you, go there and ask if the work can be done there at a reduced price. The school may take your case as a challenge. It's worth a try. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think manners are important in today's society? And are manners changing?

JUDY IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR JUDY: Manners are certainly important in today's society, and they are indeed changing. To quote the late Amy Vanderbilt:

"Manners are changing. But the essential need for manners of some kind remains the same. Good manners are the traffic rules for society in general. Without good manners, living would be chaotic, human beings unbearable to each other. Reduced to a phrase, good manners is consideration of other people in respect to their feelings, their safety, their privacy and their full social rights and privileges."

UGLY AND SAD

DEAR SAD: Please don't consider pulling healthy teeth. Call your county dental association and ask if a dentist in your area would agree to take your case and accept small payments over an extended period.

Dr. Donohue

Writer clears record on 'forced reps'

Dear Dr. Donohue: With regard forced reps in weight training, I disagree with the statement you made, that forced reps are exercises of eccentric contraction, i.e. a lengthening as opposed to a shortening of the muscle involved.

There are essentially three levels of muscle failure that one can reach in weight training. The first level occurs when the muscle tires to the point where the individual can no longer complete another full repetition of the lift. The trainee then reaches the next level of muscle failure by continuing to raise the weight with the slight assistance of the training partner. This is referred to as a "forced rep" and is an exercise of concentric contraction (a shortening of the muscle used).

The final level of muscle failure occurs when the trainee can no longer contract or shorten the muscle used even with considerable assistance. At this point, the training partner lifts the weight completely and the trainee then slowly lowers it himself. This lowering of the weight is referred to in the literature as a negative repetition. These "negative reps" are exercises of eccentric contraction and are believed to stimulate the maximum possible muscle growth. — R.A.R.

You are right, R.R. I was wrong. Thanks for setting us straight. I was also impressed with the flawless way your word processor spit out those bits of information. My next mistake like that, my editors tell me, and they're going to tap you for this duty. You've done a nice job in correcting and explaining. Thanks.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Weddings

MRS. JIMMY MARQUEZ
...formerly Melinda Porras

Porras-Marquez

Melinda Porras and Jimmy Marquez were united in marriage during a wedding ceremony, Oct. 22, at Wesley Methodist Church. The Rev. Johnny Robertson, pastor, officiated the 10 a.m. rite before an archway decorated with baby's breath and white carnations with two baskets of white carnations on each side.

The bride is the daughter of Alicia Porras, 1113 Mulberry, and Pedro Porras Sr., of Odessa. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benito Marquez of Sweetwater.

Martha Porras, cousin of the bride, and Dora Valenzuela, both of Odessa and vocalists, were accompanied by Mary Weeks, pianist.

The bride was given in marriage by Pedro Porras Jr., her brother. She wore a formal-length gown of white organza accented with a sweetheart neckline inset. The mutton sleeves and bodice were overlaid with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. The skirt fell from an empire waistline into a chapel-length train edged in Chantilly lace. To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a fingertip-length veil held by a band of crystalline pearls and petals.

The bride carried a bouquet of cranberry and white roses accented with baby's breath and lace.

Cynthia Porras served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Melissa Sanchez of Midland, cousin of the bride, Lisa Phillips, Viola Juarez, cousin of the bridegroom, and Esther Marquez of Garland, cousin of the bridegroom. Rosemary Marquez, sister of the bridegroom, and Melinda Machado, niece of the bridegroom, were flower girls.

Benito Marquez Jr. served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Robert Porras, brother of the bride, Jay Gonzales, Harry Marquez of Sweetwater, brother of the bridegroom, and Ernest Marquez of Garland, cousin of the bridegroom. Ring bearers were Michael Renteria and Leticia Renteria, cousins of the bride. Ushers were Danny Arista and Tom Arista III, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. A three-tiered cake, made by Connie Marquez, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was accented by two heart-shaped cakes decorated with cranberry roses. The bridegroom's cake, made by Shirley Lister, was decorated with the bridegroom's initials.

The bride graduated from Big Spring High School and attended Howard College. She is presently working at Malone-Hogan Clinic. The bridegroom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is manager of Marquez and Fence Company.

The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Hamilton-Bradbury

Rice Temple Baptist Church of Houston was the setting of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Joy Corinne Hamilton and Robert Edward Bradbury. Dr. Bob Overton, pastor, officiated the 3 p.m. rite before an altar decorated with a centerpiece of mixed flowers.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Todd Hamilton of Baquiao City, Philippines. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Warnell Avants, Big Spring, and the late Bob Bradbury.

Mrs. Jim McGinnis of Houston, vocalist, provided music for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a white dress accented with blue embroidery flowers. She carried a bouquet of small mixed bouquet.

Gaye Tynes of the Philippines was maid of honor. Greg Vicksell of San Francisco, Calif., was best man. Wally Ford of Houston was usher.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church's fellowship hall. A cake-size chocolate chip cookie was decorated with a standing cross and rings made of pearl beads and "old thread."

The bride is a graduate of Brent High School in Baquiao City, Philippines and Rice University in Houston. She was employed by Blazer Building Inc., of Houston. The bridegroom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and Rice University. He is employed with TRW Inc., at NASA (Johnson Space Center) in Houston.

Following wedding trip to Cozumel, Mexico, the couple will make their home in Clear Lake City.

MR. AND MRS. FLOYD KENNEDY
...honored with reception

The Floyd Kennedys

The children of Floyd and Minnie Kennedy helped their parents celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception at Lindale Community Center in Lindale Saturday afternoon.

Memories for the reception theme as friends and relatives were asked to write a memory they shared with couple during their 50 years of marriage. The people sent the notes to the couple to compile a memory book.

The Kennedys met in Lindale where they both were raised. They were married Nov. 2, 1933 and moved to West Texas in 1943 where Kennedy worked as a farm hand. Kennedy later farmed in and around Knott, Luther, Lenora and Lomax. He also worked as ginner at various gins and retired from the Co-op Gin at Knott in 1976.

Following Kennedy's retirement, the couple moved to Big Spring until 1981 when they decided to return to Lindale.

The couple raised seven children: Laverne Savell and Sharon Underwood of Big Spring; Joyce Kennedy of Lindale; Gayla Denton of Tyler; Harry Kennedy of Post; Arlis Kennedy of Moffitt Naval Air Station in San Francisco, Calif.; and Mitchell Kennedy of Mayport Naval Station in Mayport, Fla. The couple has 19 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The R.X. McNews

R.X. "Jack" and Ruth McNew, Vealmore Rt., celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary with a dinner at La Posada Restaurant, Oct. 23.

McNew, originally of Howard County, met the former Lilly Ruth McGuire of Burnett at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Kate and Ira Dement of Knott. The couple was wed Oct. 17, 1932 in Humble City, N.M.

The McNews have nine children: Joy Lee Howland and Carylon Kay Rogers of Big Spring; Billy Doran McNew of Athens; James Ray McNew of Wharton; Rexie Ray McNew of Gonzales; Bobby Dale McNew of Navasota; Valda Jean Crowder of La Grange, Ky.; Sharon Rose Husson of Garland; and Barbara Clark of Coahoma. The couple has 25 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

The McNews have lived in Howard County throughout their marriage. McNew is a retired farmer. The couple are members of Trinity Baptist Church, the Odd Fellows, Cantons and Rebekah Lodge.

The couple enjoys raising chianina cattle, parlor games and following their grandchildren's ball games.

Splash method aids in burping baby

To determine if a baby has burped after a meal place one hand on the baby's stomach and one on his back. Gently jiggle the tot and see if a gurgling splash can be felt — like the splashing in a half-empty jug of milk that is shaken. The splash should completely disappear after the baby burps.

The technique was discovered by Dr. Walley J. Temple of University of Miami School of Medicine and his wife Doreen while they were trying to rock their first baby to sleep after a 2 a.m. feeding. Three more children born to the Temples proved the validity of the splash-burp method.

R for your gardens

by DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Planting spring bulbs in the fall is as natural as falling leaves and football games. It is a grand opportunity often neglected by the home gardener if he does not include some of the hardy, easy-to-grow spring beauties in the garden this fall.

Tulips, Hyacinths, daffodils, crocus, Dutch iris and all the spring-flowering bulbs are truly some of the simplest of flowers to grow. All they ask is a fall planting and they will reward you with weeks of early spring color, fragrance and beauty.

One's success with spring bulbs will depend to a large extent on the selection of healthy, top-quality bulbs. Second-rate bulbs, or bargain bulbs, produce second-rate flowers and often first-rate disappointment. To be assured of top quality bulbs of the best varieties, take time soon to make your selections at your local nursery or garden center.

If you purchase bulbs now, store them in a cool, dry place until planting time arrives in late November. Excessively warm temperatures will cause the bulbs to dry out and result in injury to the flower bud inside the bulb.

PLANNING

Know what colors and types of bulbs you'll be using where and how many you'll be needing.

Choose varieties that will give an extended blooming season. Some flowers will pop out at the first promise of spring, while others hold back weeks longer. By selecting your varieties carefully, you can have blooms for as long as five or six weeks.

For the most effective display, mass colors together in the beds. Try all red, all pink, or all yellow in a single bed. Mixed colors just don't show up as dramatically.

PLANTING

Special attention should be given to the location of the bulb bed itself. Most bulbs prefer a sunny site. The growth is more vigorous and the colors sharper.

Prepare the soil carefully. Drainage is of utmost importance. Spade the soil thoroughly to provide the loose texture and good drainage necessary. Use coarse sand, peat moss or other organic material to loosen heavy, tight soil.

Lay the bulbs out on the soil according to your plan. Most large bulbs should be spaced from 6 to 8 inches apart, while the smaller ones should be at 3 to 6 inch spacings.

Check a bulb planting chart so that proper depth is observed. A rule of thumb is to plant the bulb about three times the width of the bulb.

Jewels & Gems
by Ralph and Lynette Brooks

Not only do diamonds possess an inherent aesthetic value as jewelry, but their industrial value was underscored during World War II. It soon became evident to both sides that only diamonds were hard enough to stamp out precision parts for military vehicles and many weapons of war. They were also needed to draw the fine wire needed for radar and other electronic equipment. Diamonds provided the jeweled bearings necessary for stabilizers, gyroscopes and guidance systems. They also provided abrasives necessary to industry. Hence, one of the untold stories of the war was the battle to control the world's supply of industrial diamonds.

This fall, women's hair styles are trending toward a more controlled look. They will also be a bit shorter, ranging from chin-length to just above the shoulder, with slight layering. Also, much in style, is the use of setting lotions and gels to sweep the hair back, add a curve at the sides and give the hair lift on top. As an accent to the forehead, look for smooth bangs which form a wave, starting at the crown and brought forward in a new direction. The new, controlled look can best be seen in the classic blunt cut or the look of layered hair smoothed back.

Quality hair care awaits your visit to LA CONTESA. Our staff represents a calibre of professionalism second to none. We are your headquarters for all the latest styles, methods and techniques available to keep you looking your best. Come in and see us soon. We are located at 1508 Marcy. We're open Tues-Sat. TONI CHOATE
KATHRYN PERRY

Legend says that the first Bridal Shower took place in Holland when a young maiden fell in love with a poor miller. Her father forbade the marriage, but friends "showered" the bride with gifts so she could marry without a dowry. Here at the ACCENT SHOPPE our BRIDAL GIFT REGISTRY continues the tradition of shower gifts for the bride!
