Group interprets music with sign language

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Taking music and interpreting it through sign language, mime, elaborate lighting and staging are the keys behind the group "Fantasy," appearing in concert at 8 p.m. Saturday and next Monday at the Big Spring High School auditorium.

The group behind the elaborate audio/visual presentation is composed of Shannon Gilley-Fike, Bob Coltrane and Jim Haslup, who when not appearing as "Fantasy" are full-time interpreters at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

The performances are being sponsored by the Big Spring High School drama department.

"Fantasy" can be traced back to Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., where Haslup began to pick up an appreciation for signing music for the deaf. He began signing songs at the campus bar and expanded to workshops and meetings.

When he moved to East Carolina State University he met Coltrane, who expressed an interest in teaming up to sign songs. And Shannon "had never seen signed music until I saw them. I wanted to join."

To transpose a song from lyrics designed strictly for singing during a concert into a visual experience that the deaf would enjoy, interpreters must use American Sign Language, gestures and mime to get the full impact across, Mrs. Gilley-Fike explained.

"In the beginning, I made every mistake a beginner (in sign language) could make. I found ASL and mime are more appropriate (when sign-signing) than signed English."

Those signing songs must also "pick out something that doesn't have a lot of instrumental, because we have to maintain visual concepts," the group said. "And we need songs that are not repetitious so they don't become too boring."

The trio likens their act to videos that rock performers are making today. "It's sort of like MTV, but instead of video it is live," Mrs. Gilley-Fike said. "We interpret the music as we feel the artist meant for it to be interpreted."

The "Fantasy" act is designed for both deaf and hearing audiences, Haslup said. "Anyone who likes music will like it." The group will be performing songs from artists ranging from Frank Sinatra to the Police, Billy Joel and Dolly Parton.

Coltrane said the group will present "a light show" that hasn't been seen in this area. It will be one of the largest lighting and special effects shows in West Texas.

To keep that promise the group has hired Robert Camp from Oklahoma. Camp recently did the lighting for an Oral Roberts crusade. He will be aided by members of the Big Spring High School drama department and their director, Jimmy Smith.

The group will also use effects such as smoke and fire on stage and "living props," said Mrs. Gilley-Fike. "We will have people acting out scenes" from songs.

Although the group has done very few performances in Big Spring, they have been asked to perform at several events across the country, including National Association of the Deaf conventions in Cincinnati, Ohio, and in St. Louis, Mo., and the Miss Deaf America pageants in Cincinnati and St. Louis. They also performed for three nights on a riverboat on the Ohio River. They've been invited to perform at the 1984 deaf convention in Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Gilley-Fike said the group wanted to do a show in Big Spring because "We want to see the fine arts really take off here." She commended groups such as the SWCID and Howard College drama departments, the BSHS drama department and Spring City Theatre and said "there is a lot of talent in this area. We'd like to work together with all the performing groups in Big Spring."

"Fantasy" will be joined on stage by several other signers, including Theresa Burke, Angela Parks, Catherine Corrigan and Paul Lovell, and a group of dancers.

Putting the show together has taken many hours

Experts agree Bentsen is perfect VP candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas reacts to talk of his becoming the next Democratic vice presidential candidate by observing that the nominee won't be picked until "late one night by an exhausted presidential candidate" in the closing hours of next July's party convention.

But Bentsen's public coyness does nothing to stem suggestions that he would be an ideal partner for almost any of the Democratic presidential candidates.

From liberal House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. to conservative columnist George Will, people are talking about the 61-year-old Bentsen as a logical choice in a presidential election likely to be decided by votes from the south.

And earlier this year, Bentsen himself said half in jest that he hoped he would turn down the nomination, if offered, but added: "They could do worse and they probably will."

O'Neill, who also likes Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina as a possible vice presidential candidate, said of Bentsen, "He's highly regarded and highly respected. And there's no question he'd have appeal, at least in the Southwest."

LLOYD BENTSEN

The speaker noted Bentsen's easy re-election in 1982, and added, "The large victory Bentsen had down there showed him to be a power in that area."

Jack Devore, an aide to Bentsen, said the senator is doing nothing to generate support for a possible candidacy.

But by accident or design, the tall Texan has made a number of moves over the last several months that enhance his status as a possible running mate for the Democratic nominee.

Chief among them was Bentsen's selection as chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Besides giving him high visibility and earning loyalty among key Democrats in and out of the Senate, the job keeps Bentsen, formerly a successful Houston businessman, in close touch with wealthy contributors to Democratic campaigns.

Those contacts would be extremely valuable to a vice presidential candidate for the always cash-poor Democratic Party.

Bentsen's foreign policy credentials also are secure. He is one of

Estes' sentence to end

Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes will end a 12-year prison career tomorrow morning when he is released from the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

Estes will leave the prison about 7:30 a.m., according to John Allman, superintendent of the facility. Estes will spend one more month in a Salvation Army-sponsored halfway house, Allman said.

"That's normal procedure," Allman said.

Estes has been at the Big Spring facility since Aug. 9, 1980, and during his stay "Billie felt it best he not go public," Allman said.

He granted only three interviews during his more than three years in the camp, Allman said.

Estes first gained notoriety when he was charged in a federal fraud case in a scheme involving non-existent fertilizer tanks. He was convicted in 1963 to a 15-year term and was paroled in 1971.

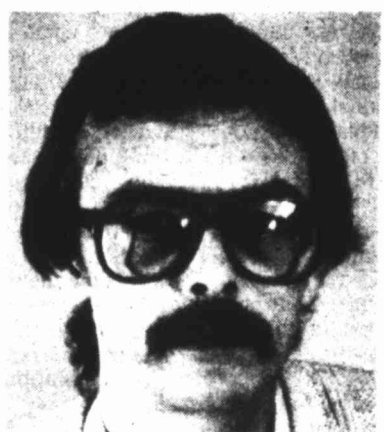

In 1979 he was convicted of mail fraud and concealing his assets from the government and was sentenced to the Big Spring prison.

Estes was found guilty in part for hiding assets from the Internal

Reared in Houston, Rice was graduated with honors from the University of Texas at Austin in 1976 with a bachelor's degree in journalism. He was editor of the Seguin (Texas) Enterprise, a weekly newspaper, before joining the Orange (Texas) Leader staff as courthouse reporter in 1977.

He came to Abilene in 1979 as editor of the editorial page and stayed two years in that position until his promotion to assistant managing editor.

He has won awards for both news and editorial writing.

Rice and his wife, Priscilla, have three children, Lauren, 7; Brian, 4; and Melissa, 2. They will reside at 2313 Lynn.

Greyhound may restore partial service Thursday

From staff and wire reports Greyhound Bus Lines, Inc. officials expect partial service to the West Texas area to resume Thursday with newly hired drivers behind the wheel, according to reports from the company's Phoenix office.

The nation's largest bus system, shut down since Nov. 2 when employees refused to accept cuts in pay and benefits, has set an ultimatum for the Amalgamated Transit Union effective at noon today: Return to work or be replaced. Jim Owens, manager of the Union

Bus Terminal in Big Spring, said he expects to talk with officials in Phoenix this afternoon to learn how local service will be affected.

Striking Greyhound workers threatened to burn official notices and hold rallies at depots in defiance of today's back-to-work deadline as the company geared up to get back on the road with the newly hired replacements.

The Big Spring bus terminal employees are not members of a union, Owens said. "The company has been playing a game of psychological warfare in an attempt to frighten them into returning to work," David J. Butler, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Council of Local Greyhound Unions, said Sunday.

"Very few of our members have returned to work," he added. "The next week is a crucial one."

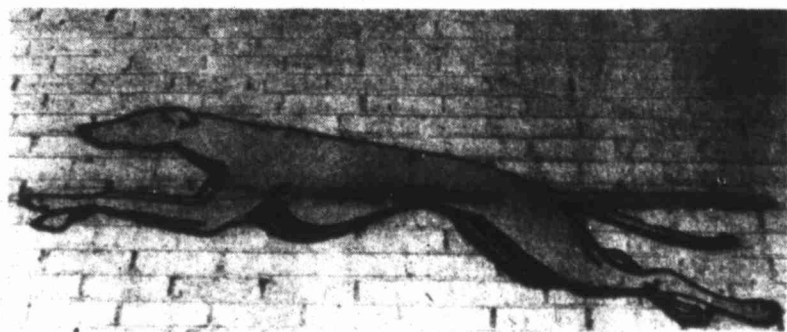

Greyhound announced Sunday that it planned to resume partial service Thursday, hiring replacements for workers who refuse to accept wages at least 9.5 percent below those in the expired contract.

A company spokeswoman, who said Greyhound has taken 50,000 job applications since the strike began, declined to estimate how many employees would return.

"We all know the company will put some buses on the road, even if it means using supervisors to drive them," Butler said. "If we resist Greyhound's latest scare tactic, I believe the company will eventually realize that it must adopt a reasonable bargaining posture."

Today's topic

FRISBEE STUDIES — John Dwork, a student at Hampshire College in Massachusetts, twirls a Frisbee as he studies. Dwork receives his bachelor's degree of arts degree from Hampshire in January in the field of Flying Disc Entertainment and Education.

Student spins Frisbee degree

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Some people may have thought John Dwork was throwing his life away, but it turns out all his Frisbee flinging has paid off — in the form of a college diploma, perhaps the first ever awarded for studying the recreational disc.

Officials at Hampshire College say Dwork completed his course work last month and will get his bachelor's degree in January in "Flying Disc Entertainment and Education."

"People are saying my degree represents the ideal," Dwork said in an interview last week. "It's almost as if I've made legitimate — I wouldn't say the California surfer image — (but) the whole new American alternative lifestyle."

Instead of a traditional course load, students at the 1,100-student experimental college, where classes are optional, progress towards their degree by completing research projects and defending their work before a faculty committee.

For his humanities requirement, Dwork presented a paper arguing that freestyle Frisbee, like dance, was art. For his science requirement he analyzed the physical and mental stresses of performing before a crowd.

"Sure, we spent some time talking about it and wondering, is this basketweaving," said Dr. Stanley Warner, associate professor of economics and a member of faculty committees that reviewed

Dwork's work. "But we decided it was not. He may have used Frisbee as a vehicle, but he actually ended up with a pretty good liberal arts education."

There's little doubt about Dwork's familiarity with his subject.

The 22-year-old from New York City won the world Frisbee freestyle championship in 1978 and 1979. He has performed in the Rose Bowl and on television shows ranging from ABC's "Wide World of Sports" to public TV's "Sesame Street."

It's taken him more than five years to get his degree. He took 18 months off to tour with the demonstration team he started called the "Washington Square Wizards."

He's also done endorsements and marketing for sporting goods companies and set up and run disc festivals. All of his achievements have found their way into his academic projects.

On his way to a degree from the 13-year-old school, Dwork took a number of business courses at the nearby University of Massachusetts, where he maintained a B average. His senior project included lecturing on unusual entrepreneurial techniques at the Whittemore School in Durham, N.H. His audiences were graduate students in business.

"I'm a businessman, an entrepreneur, an organizer. I don't want to be a Frisbee player all my life. I was just able to get a lot of hands-on experience before I ever left college," Dwork said.

Stenholm speaks at Scout banquet

Initial response to ticket sales for Rep. Charles Stenholm's speech at the annual Scouting district banquet has been good, according to Bill Bradford, general chairman of the event.

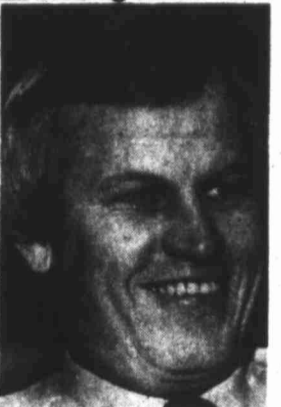

Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce, Big Spring Athletics, Bealls and Hallmark in the Highland Mall.

The banquet is at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Family Life Center at the First Baptist Church. The banquet will be preceded by a reception at 6:30 p.m. in the parlor of the church.

The district's award of merit will be presented during the evening.

A district meeting was held Tuesday. It was announced that a Cub pack had been organized in Sterling City, and a pack and troop are progressing in Garden City. Austin Ferguson said one unit at the Philmont, N.M., camp next summer is filled and that only a few places are left in the second. Boys must be 13 to make the 12-day trip.

Rod McKenzie was named the district's new explorer leader.

Speaker Lewis hints at political strategy

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Minutes after he was sworn-in as the speaker of the Texas House of Representatives last January, Gib Lewis met with reporters and said: "I don't intend serving over two terms at the very most."

Lewis and his allies in the Texas House now claim a stalemate on that second — and supposedly last — term, although the vote won't come until January 1985.

But Lewis is dropping hints that his political plans were etched in something less resilient than stone — no longer is he ruling out the prospect of guiding the House for a third term in 1987, or even a fourth in 1989.

"I'm certainly not in opposition to it," he said in a recent telephone interview. "Some of my colleagues have encouraged me to do so, but I really haven't given it much thought."

Reminded of his self-imposed two-term limit, Lewis countered: "That was my feeling at the time."

Already, he said, several legislators have left unsolicited "pledge cards" with his office vowing support for a third-term bid.

State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, said it is too early to pledge support for a third term. But, he noted, legislators have generally been impressed with Lewis' performance.

"Gib amazes me sometimes," said Shaw, a two-term legislator. "Just when I think he is about to make a mistake in the way he is doing things, he will come around and do what I think is right. You see a big fight coming and then suddenly he has forged a compromise. He's good at that."

Shaw puts credence in the argument that Lewis is contemplating a third term to avoid being a lame duck in 1985.

"That's not such a bad idea," he said. "In one scenario you could have every Tom, Dick and Harry running for speaker and the session becomes an active campaign. Then you end up wasting a whole session."

His chief lieutenant, state Rep. Charles Evans, D-Hurst, claims "several" legislators have voluntarily dropped off third-term pledge cards, including state Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado. Schlueter has been considered a top contender to replace Lewis if he shunned a third term.

Lewis' predecessor, former House Speaker Bill Clayton, served an unprecedented four terms as the chief legislative traffic cop for the 150-member House.

Several House lawmakers are speculating that Lewis is dropping hints he will seek a third term in order to avoid being a lame-duck floor leader during the 1985 Legislature, a charge the Fort Worth legislator denies.

"That is something to think about," he said, "but if I say I'm going to do it, I'll do it. I don't think my decision would have anything to do with that at all."

Chamber hosts neighbor day

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce will host a Good Neighbor Day Tuesday from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at the Cinema II Theater in the College Park Shopping Center.

The purpose of Good Neighbor Day is to meet new and old Chamber members and prospective Chamber members and to exchange business cards and ideas to improve business conditions in Big Spring," said LeRoy Tillery, executive vice president.

four members of Congress named to a commission headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to advise the president on long-range policy in Central America and he has been a highly visible member of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

One Democratic senator who knows Bentsen well said: "He is an automatic front-runner for the veep nomination by doing just what he's doing. Whether he would take it when it comes down to the crunch, I don't know."

The senator, who asked not to be identified, recalled Bentsen's short-lived campaign for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination and suggested that shows he wants a broader national role.

There could be a clue to Bentsen's ambitions — potential or real — in his own 1972 description of why he abandoned a lucrative business career to run for the Senate: "I think people are a little bit like ivy. They ought to be repotted every once in a while."

Bentsen has built a reputation in the Senate as a fiscal conservative who nonetheless supports government intervention in the private sector in instances where the free market doesn't work — as in his support for Texas oil interests.

From his days as a House member in the 1950s, he was a strong civil rights advocate, a difficult political position for any Southerner at the time.

Bentsen was first elected to the House in 1948 at age 27. After three terms, he left politics to make money and ran his own financial holding company for more than 10 years.

Bentsen ran as a conservative challenger to incumbent Sen. Ralph Yarborough in the 1970 primary election then broadened his appeal in the general election to win support among blacks and Mexican Americans.

The man he beat then? George Bush, now the Republican vice president who, to quote Bentsen on the way it's done, was chosen "late one night by an exhausted presidential candidate."

In Louisville, Ky., President J.W. Norman of Local 1315 said strikers planned to burn their back-to-work

Search resumes for ship's missing crew

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A cook who was rescued while clinging for life in an air pocket inside a capsized oil rig crew boat returned home while the Coast Guard continued searching for his five missing shipmates.

Hayes Bonvillian Jr., 47, survived by holding onto a bunk bed and keeping his head in an air pocket that formed when the deck of the Laverne Hebert went under late Wednesday.

Bonvillian was rescued by a diver and was hospitalized in Victoria until Sunday, when he was released for his return trip home to Houma, La.

The Coast Guard used six aircraft and a cutter to search a 115 square-mile area of the Gulf of Mexico for a fourth day Sunday.

Bonvillian, who said he was asleep when the ship sank, told authorities that he saw the five crewmen heading down a ladder to a self-inflating life raft. However, searchers weren't sure if the men were able to use the raft, which is missing from the boat.

The survival vessel has enough provisions to feed 10 men for 11 days, said Robert Schmidt, president of Gulf International Marine of Houma, La., the company that owns the Laverne Hebert. However, the raft has no radio or engine, Schmidt said.

The entire crew had been reported missing after the Laverne Hebert sank Thursday in about 60 feet of water about 10 miles off the coast of Matagorda Island, Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. James Brokenik said.

Carpenter remains bitter

NEW YORK — In his first public comment on his sister's death, Richard Carpenter says he's bitter about the treatment singer Karen Carpenter received in her eight-year battle with anorexia nervosa.

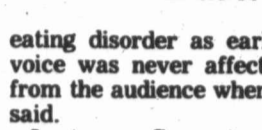

Carpenter, the other half of the singing duo The Carpenters, says that the shock of his sister's death from heart failure Feb. 4 was "tremendous."

"I knew she was ill, but not that ill," he writes in this week's issue of People magazine.

He was aware that his sister suffered from the eating disorder as early as 1975. "Although her voice was never affected, you could hear gasps from the audience when she came on stage..." he said.

Last year, Carpenter became convinced that his sister's therapy was "getting nowhere. She wasn't putting on any weight — if anything she was losing." She was admitted to Lenox Hill Hospital in New York under an assumed name, and force-feeding brought her weight from 80 to 110 pounds.

Carpenter says he was told by doctors that "she put on weight too fast in those six weeks in the hospital and it put an undue strain on her heart."

Clark receives award

ANAHEIM — The widow of the first artificial heart recipient, Barney Clark, has received an award honoring her husband's pioneering role in medicine.

The American Heart Association, at an annual meeting Saturday, presented Una Loy Clark with a special Presidential Award citing her husband's contribution to heart care.

"It's a comfort to me to know you remember and care enough to honor him," Mrs. Clark said.

Clark, a Seattle dentist, died March 23 at the University of Utah Medical Center after 112 days on the polyurethane heart.

Andrew leads busy life

LONDON — Leading the life of both a prince and a pilot amounts to "being a conscious schizophrenic," says Prince Andrew, the member of British royalty whose social life keeps Fleet Street gossip columns buzzing.

Andrew, 23, is a sub-lieutenant learning how to handle Lynx helicopters.

In an interview Sunday with television host David Frost, the prince chuckled when asked if media coverage of his romantic life had spoiled the "candle-lit atmospheres."

"There aren't many candle-lit atmospheres to destroy," replied Andrew, whom his older brother, Prince Charles, calls the "one with the Robert Redford looks."

Bob Hope goes to college

LOS ANGELES — At age 80, comedian Bob Hope certainly qualifies as a senior member of his craft, but to the University of California at Los Angeles, he's just another freshman.

Hope was made an "Honorary Freshman" at UCLA while taping a Thanksgiving television special. And to make him feel right at home with classmates 60 years his younger, Hope was presented with a UCLA cardigan, sweatshirt and cap and the orientation kit and notebook every entering freshman receives.

Hope is visiting seven campuses for the special, "Bob Hope Goes To College," which NBC will telecast on Wednesday, Nov. 23.

Hope never attended college, but he has been awarded 45 honorary doctorates.

Reagan ends Asian tour

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, declaring "it's great to be home," ended his Asian tour today and said it brought stronger partnerships and better prospects for a more secure peace.

Reagan returned to the United States after leaving behind a renewed commitment to South Korea's security and a public reminder by Secretary of State George Shultz that the threat from communist North Korea must be kept in mind when assessing progress in human rights to the south.

Air Force One also carried two ailing Korean youngsters from poor families to the United States for heart surgery in New York. The children roamed about the airplane, giggling at tape recordings of their singing voices, and sitting on Nancy Reagan's lap.

In a statement prepared for delivery at a White House welcoming ceremony upon his return from the 15,650-mile, 6½-day journey, Reagan said that in Japan, an agenda for progress on a variety of economic and security issues was set, with plans made to deal with trade barriers, auto industry problems and investment.

In Seoul, he said, "I reaffirmed to the Korean people America's commitment to their peace and freedom. And I encouraged them to develop further their democracy." This was a reference to the president's comments on human rights issues in several speeches.

During the visit, however, several political dissidents were said by colleagues to have been taken into police custody or placed under house arrest by the regime of President Chun Doo-hwan.

"I know I speak for Nancy and everyone when I say — oh, my, it's great to be home," the president said.

"Working as partners to make tomorrow better and more secure is what this trip was all about," Reagan said, adding "I'm pleased to report some good news: America's partnerships are stronger, and prospects for a more secure peace and prosperity are better today than a week ago."

Reagan said his visit Sunday with "our brave troops" in the demilitarized zone between South and North Korea was "one of the most unforgettable experiences in my life."

"If you could have been with me, you would have been at the church service we had with our soldiers in an open field less than a mile from one of the most tyrannical regimes on Earth," he said.

"I was honored to meet our men, and I promised them I would tell the American people how crucial their jobs are — not just to the people of Korea, but to people everywhere who love freedom," he said.

Beirut shelled by Syria

BEIRUT — Syrian-backed militiamen shelled Beirut's Christian sector today for the first time since a cease-fire took effect seven weeks ago, and U.S. jets resumed reconnaissance flights after Syria was warned not to fire at them.

Formations of F-14 Tomcat interceptors scrambled off the aircraft carrier USS Dwight D. Eisenhower to stage repeated runs over Beirut and the surrounding mountains before midnight and at dawn, according to Lebanese police.

The flights followed a stern warning by the Reagan administration to Syria against firing at U.S. planes over Lebanon. Syrian batteries fired at U.S. planes last week, but police said today's flights drew no ground fire.

The late night sorties by the F-14s coincided with a meeting between President Reagan's new Middle East envoy, Donald Rumsfeld, and Lebanese President Amin Gemayel. A presidential palace statement said they discussed "existing conditions and the latest developments in Lebanon and the Middle East."

Shortly after the meeting ended at midnight, police said Druse gunners in the central mountains fired artillery and Soviet-made Grad rockets into east Beirut.

At least 13 Grads crashed into Christian residential neighborhoods, Christian-controlled radio stations said. No casualties were reported.

One rocket slammed into the parking lot of the city's electric power station, setting a truck and crane ablaze.

There were no new reports of casualties or major battles from northern Lebanon, where Yasser Arafat and his loyalists in the Palestine Liberation Organization are trying to hold off a force of Syrian-backed militiamen. More than 1,000 people have been killed since the PLO fighting began Nov. 3 around the city of Tripoli.

No reason was given for the overnight shelling barrage in Beirut. Druse militiamen of Lebanon's Socialist Progressive Party frequently shelled the Christian sector during civil warfare last September. But since the Sept. 26 ceasefire, they have refrained from hitting the capital.

Junior Samples dead

CUMMINGS — Alvin "Junior" Samples, the slow-talking country comedian whose bib overalls and 300-pound frame were a familiar sight for 14 years on the popular television show "Hee Haw," died Sunday in Georgia at 56 after a long bout with heart disease.

Samples, who was first hospitalized for hardening of the arteries in 1981, died Sunday at Forsyth County Hospital after suffering cardiac arrest at his home, nursing supervisor Gayle Jones said. He had been released from an Atlanta hospital, where he had been treated for a heart-related ailment, on Tuesday.

Samples' rise to stardom began when he severed the head of a red grouper, a salt-water fish, and claimed it was the remains of a world-record largemouth bass he had caught in nearby Lake Lanier. Jim Morrison, then with the Georgia Game and Fish Commission, recorded Samples' account of catching the fish, and the story made the radio before a biologist shot it down.

But it was a good yarn, Morrison said, and eventually he and Samples started appearing at country-and-western nightclubs.

Missiles arrive in England

GREENHAM COMMON — A transport plane landed in England under heavy security today at the U.S. Air Force base here and unloaded what appeared to be the first of NATO's nuclear cruise missiles to be stationed in Europe.

Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine cut short a visit to an army base in southern England to meet with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. He scheduled a statement to Parliament and a news conference.

Heseltine said he would inform Parliament once the U.S.-built, nuclear-tipped missiles arrive in Britain. The cruises are part of 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization intends to start deploying next month to counter Soviet SS-20 nuclear missiles already aimed at Western Europe.

The Soviets have said they will scrap the Geneva arms-control talks with the United States if the NATO deployment proceeds. NATO officials have said that arrival of the missiles in Europe does not constitute deployment.

The C-141 Starlifter was the first such plane to land since equipment for Europe's first shipment of cruise missiles began arriving at Greenham Common Nov. 1. Other flights, on larger C-5A Galaxies, have brought control equipment and missile launchers.

The Defense Ministry refused to comment on whether the latest flight had brought the missiles themselves. But both the ministry and the U.S. Embassy telephoned international news agencies in London to emphasize what they claimed was the importance of Heseltine's imminent Parliament statement.

The plane's arrival came a day after police made 137 arrests during anti-nuclear protests in Britain and Australia.

In Alice Springs, Australia, police reported 111 arrests after hundreds of women protesting swarmed over a fence at a U.S.-Australian intelligence post, demanding that the facility be closed. The protest continued today at the Pine Gap base as the arrested women began appearing in court.

Leftists win Peru elections

LIMA — The moderate left headed for control of Peru's city halls today, handing President Fernando Belaunde Terry's party a major setback in municipal elections that went smoothly despite threats from guerrilla terrorists.

"It is a moment of recognition and I am glad the country had the opportunity to say so," Belaunde said after left-wing and center-left candidates won the majority of Sunday's elections.

Official results in the races for 1,600 mayoral and city government posts were not expected for about 10 days.

The defeat was the first for Belaunde's centrist Popular Action Party, which propelled him to the presidency twice in the past 20 years.

Belaunde, 71, was president from 1963 to 1968, when he was overthrown in a military coup. He restored civilian government to Peru in 1980 after 12 years of military rule.

The elections were held under threats from the Maoist Shining Path guerrilla movement, which had warned Peruvians they might be killed if they voted. Police with machine guns and soldiers with bayonets guarded more than 40,000 polling places.

Busch brewery heir in car crash

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A Busch brewing heir was found dazed and bleeding in his home shortly after a Tucson woman was found dead near his wrecked and abandoned car, authorities said.

The body of Michele C. Frederick, 22, was found by deputies around 8:30 a.m. Sunday a few feet away from a Chevrolet Corvette that had run off the road and turned over on its roof, probably six to seven hours earlier, deputies said.

Cooler temperatures, cloudy skies predicted

By The Associated Press

Low clouds and dense fog covered most of the eastern half of Texas and the coast before dawn today as forecasters watched a cool front move into the state.

Travelers advisories were in effect during the early morning hours for North Central and Northeast Texas and along the upper coast and the coastal plains. Some areas reported visibility reduced to near zero, the National Weather Service said.

Fair skies were the rule across the rest of the state as cooler, dry air pushed into western and central portions.

Pre-dawn temperatures were in the 40s across the Panhandle and Northwest Texas, while readings in the 50s and 60s dominated the rest of the state. Temperatures hovered around the 70-degree mark along the coast.

At 4 a.m., temperatures ranged from 46 at Wichita Falls to 72 at McAllen and Victoria.

Southeasterly winds were reported across the eastern third of Texas, while southwesterly and westerly breezes were the rule across central and western sections. Winds were generally blowing from 5 to 15 mph.

The forecast called for fair to partly cloudy skies statewide through Tuesday. Cooler temperatures were on tap for most of the state tonight and Tuesday.

Heavy snow in the Rockies threatened to dump up to a foot in Utah today and cold front pushed rain and snow over the Rocky Mountain region and into the Plains.

The National Weather Service predicted up to 10 inches of snow in parts of Colorado and travelers advisories were posted for Utah and Colorado and parts of Wyoming.

A winter storm watch was in effect today for Colorado's central and northern mountains, with winds gusting up to 80 mph, the National Weather Service said.

Scattered showers lingered over the Pacific Northwest today. Rain showers also spread out across Minnesota, Iowa and the eastern counties of the Dakotas. A few showers dampened the mid Atlantic coast and the central Gulf coast states. Dense fog settled over the western Gulf region.

Rescue workers fought blizzard conditions while searching for a small plane that vanished from radar over the Rockies Sunday night, and the Coast Guard combed swollen seas off California for a boat that capsized in a Pacific storm fortified by cold Alaskan air.

The death toll from early winter storms in the West and Northeast over the last four days has risen to at least 12, officials said, with seven others were reported missing in boating accidents.

Scattered power outages Sunday in Washington state and Colorado were blamed on winds gusting to about 50 mph.

Temperatures today were expected to be mostly in the 50s and 60s across the southern states with some areas in the 70s. Readings in the 20s were expected for the Great Lakes region and New England.

Temperatures at 2 a.m. EST today ranged from 12 at Houlton, Maine, Massena, N.Y., and Montpelier, Vt., to 73 at Corpus Christi, Texas.

West Texas — Fair through Tuesday. Highs 62 Panhandle to near 80 southeast and 80 Big Bend valleys. Lows 32 Panhandle to 45 southeast and extreme south. Highs Tuesday 65 Panhandle to 75 south, except 85 Big Bend valleys.

The extended forecast for West Texas calls for mostly fair skies, becoming warmer Thursday most sections, otherwise no important temperature changes. Lows near 30 north to near 40 south Wednesday rising to low 40s north to low 50s south Thursday and Friday. Highs low 60s north to mid 70s south Wednesday warming to near 70 north to near 80 south Thursday and Friday.

Celestial tea recall issued

DENVER (AP) — The nationwide recall of Celestial Seasonings Herb Tea Inc.'s "Comfrey" herb tea, used in an unusually strong mixture by a woman who suffered an adverse reaction, forced the cancellation of the company's first public stock offering, officials said.

The recall was issued last week after traces of atropine, a potentially toxic herb, were found in the tea used by the unidentified Mississippi woman, who has since recovered, the company said.

She had brewed a concentrated cup equivalent to 18 cups of the recommended strength as a home remedy to mend a broken hip, company Chairman Mo Siegel said.

Lawmakers tap natural gas issue

If you think you're confused about the pricing and distribution of natural gas, talk to somebody in Congress. More than 40 bills have been introduced this year either to slow down or speed up the deregulation of the natural gas industry.

Those who would slow down the timetable say they want to protect consumers from price increases. Those who would speed it up say they want to protect consumers from price increases.

Maybe this explains why the federal government's natural gas policy is like a camel — a horse designed by a committee. Since the 1930s, Congress has been trying to regulate the transportation and marketing of natural gas for the benefit of consumers, and it is a miracle that this accumulation of legislation has done no more damage to the consumer's welfare than it has.

The Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 was the most recent congressional blunder. It was inspired by the gas shortages that occurred during the winter of 1976-77. They drove home the lesson that controls on natural gas prices designed to benefit the consumer actually were inhibiting production and distorting the market. We cannot expect to have adequate supplies of gas if the government forces producers to sell it for less than what it is worth.

Back to basics in N. Asia

WASHINGTON — East Asia still trembles from the aftershock of three grisly events. So President Reagan's visit to the area last week, instead of celebrating success as originally planned, now focuses attention on problems of political stability and military security.

Fortunately the U.S. is well placed to address those problems. For by mastering their innermost instincts, the last two administrations, in an inadvertent burst of bipartisan continuity, have both done well across the Pacific.

Originally Reagan had been scheduled to begin the Asian trip with brief stops in Indonesia, Thailand and the Philippines. Those calls would have provided occasion for blessing the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, which was established by those countries and Singapore and Malaysia after the Vietnam war. Despite continued huffing and puffing from Vietnam, ASEAN has fostered security and prosperity for its member countries.

But a first shock hit the Philippines on Aug. 21 with the murder of the opposition leader Benigno Aquino. The White House cancelled out Manila, and to save face for President Ferdinand Marcos, the scheduled trips to Jakarta and Bangkok as well. Wisely so.

For the Philippines faces a genuine succession crisis. Unrest has continued and spread, as Marcos bobs and weaves without meeting the basic demand that he exclude his wife, Imelda, as a possible successor. Had Reagan gone through with the trip, it would have been the occasion for demonstrations dangerous to the regime, and perhaps the whole area. For, despite ASEAN, unresolved questions of political legitimacy fester all over East Asia.

The two other grisly events came hard on the heels of the Aquino assassination. On Sept. 1, the Russians shot down a Korean airliner which had intruded over Soviet airspace. On Oct. 17, in Burma, a terrorist bomb killed four cabinet officials visiting from South Korea with President Chun Doo Hwan, who only narrowly escaped death himself.

The Burmese, normally neutral to a fault, have accused North Koreans of the dirty work, and broken relations with Pyongyang. Tokyo, as well as Seoul, was shaken. So President Reagan, instead of being able to wax poetic on the great vistas of growing trade in a Pacific Basin Community, will now have to go back to basics in North Asia.

South Korea needs to be reassured. The high point of the whole trip will probably be Reagan's visit to the border with North Korea. For once the president will be right to subordinate human rights to security. For once, he cannot go too far in blasting the treacherous brutality of a Communist regime. The world, in fact, needs to condemn North Korea far more rudely than it has so far.

Japan, too, rates a friendly pat on the back. The government of Yasuhiro Nakasone has been openly asserting a determination to assume more of the defense burden in North Asia. It has also moved to reduce outlandish trade surpluses by action to stimulate the domestic economy. The theory is that greater demand in Japan will promote imports from the U.S. and Europe.

But the airliner incident and the bombing in Burma make Japanese feel the backs of their necks. Uneasiness in Tokyo causes capital to flee the yen for the safer haven of the dollar. In consequence, the yen remains way undervalued. Japanese exports soar, and U.S. goods lose out to Japanese competition all around the world.

By renewing this country's commitment to Japanese security, the president achieves far more for U.S. exports than he can by bashing away at Japanese restrictions on fruits and baseball bats. He also helps a regime that is probably the best this country can hope for in Tokyo.

For Prime Minister Nakasone is moving toward elections next month. His hope is that embarrassing ties to Kakuei Tanaka, the former prime minister who has been found guilty of receiving bribes, will be outweighed by a show of friendship and respect from President Reagan.

Nothing on this new Asian agenda should have come hard. Not to Reagan. While high hopes may have been dashed for now, the last two administrations have continued the tradition of build solid ties across the Pacific. The Carter administration conquered its initial impulse to withdraw troops from Korea. The Reagan administration has overcome its ideological itch to ditch China in favor of Taiwan.

By some strange alchemy, Asia has been the part of the world most helped by bipartisanship, and least damaged by the ravages of the Vietnam complex in the U.S. So, when weird events chill the blood, this country is in strong position to shoulder its Asian responsibilities.

Billy Graham

Peace on earth is only temporary

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I read a lot in the newspapers about trying to control nuclear weapons and the arms race, and I know you have said that you think we should try to do something about the arms race. But do you really think there is any hope of eliminating war? — S.L.

DEAR S.L.: No, I do not believe that war will be completely eliminated from the earth until Jesus Christ returns to establish his kingdom. At that time he will rule with complete justice and authority, and the ancient prophecy of Isaiah will be fulfilled: "He will judge between the nations and will settle disputes for many peoples. They will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation will not take up sword against nation, nor will they train for war anymore" (Isaiah 2:4).

This does not mean we should be cynical about efforts for peace, because nations can from time to time come to agreements that give a temporary measure of peace. The catastrophic consequences of a possible nuclear war must also cause us to be alarmed, because in a nuclear holocaust hundreds of millions of people could die. If we suddenly discovered a hundred million people were going to die of starvation in some distant country, I suspect we would do all we could to help them. I am not a pacifist nor do I believe in unilateral disarmament, but we should encourage the leaders of the world's great nations to work for peace and avoid a disaster.

War comes from the human heart, which Christ alone can change, but as long as there are sinful men on this earth there will be war. But God can restrain evil and we should be more diligent in praying that he will guide our leaders. The Bible declares, "I urge, then, first of all, that requests, prayers, intercession and thanksgiving be made for everyone — for kings and all those in authority, that we may live peaceful and quiet lives in all godliness and holiness. This is good, and pleases God our Savior" (1 Timothy 2:1-3). This gives us a clear command which we should obey every day. At times, we may feel like we can do very little to influence world events. But God is at work, and the most important thing we can do is pray for our world and its leaders.

It takes 32,000 flowers to make one pound of saffron.

White's blue

Poor Danny White.

Someday I expect to see headlines proclaim his death by suicide. And the note he leaves will say "He was Roger Staubach and I wasn't."

I'll tell you why I say that. Have you ever seen White's eyes when the camera focuses on him after an incompletion or mistake? He carries the look of pure anguish, so much so, I wince when I see it. What pain and demons must lurk behind that distraught expression. He looks like a man who has been unjustly tried and sentenced to die before a firing squad.

Actually, that's not too far from the truth. White, who spent five years on the bench watching Roger Staubach evolve into a folk hero, had the biggest cleats to fill since Mickey Mantle replaced Joe Dimaggio in centerfield for the New York Yankees.

Roger the dodger: All-American, family man, God-fearing, a winner. How would you like to succeed a paragon like him. White must have spent many nights staring at the ceiling. And he probably still does.

White was never given the chance to forge his own style, his own place. Fans, spoiled by winning and Roger's abundant talent, expected White to ooze right into Staubach's mold and jell overnight. Because of that unreal expectation, any mistake White makes or game he fails to win, is usually met with comparison to the old days when Roger played. "Well, he's no Roger Staubach." "He's just not the winner Roger was," echo again and again.

That's not Danny's only problem. While it's not enough that he has been constantly haunted by Roger's ghost, White also has been pressured to keep Dallas a winning team. However, that's not a easy task when fans consider anything less than a Superbowl victory a failure.

The Cowboys' fans, known for their love of fair weather, still rain boos down on White on every minuscule error in spite of the fact Dallas is at 9-2 for the season. Cowboy fans have forgotten the lean years; they have become overindulged and greedy with continued success. And Danny White must bear this awful burden.

Fans forget that teams, even the Dallas Cowboys, face an inevitable cycle of ups and downs. Rebuilding must be a part of that cycle. White is playing with virtually a different team that the one Roger led to all those wins. It takes time to be a success, but White has never been afforded that luxury.

Fans also forget that if the Cowboy organization wasn't pleased with White, it could just about get any quarterback it wanted with a little deal-making.

I hope Dallas wins the Superbowl this year, but not because the team or the fans deserve it. No, I want to see that haunted look wiped off Danny White's face. I want that man's pain to end. I want it to happen before these unreal expectations to shove him over the brink. He's suffered long enough.

At a time when we ought to be praying for and supporting the president's wise decision to oust Communists from yet another Western Hemisphere country this editorial will be read and believed by many ignorant people who will believe her dribble because it is in your paper.

Oil rustlers stealing from economy

WASHINGTON — The cattle rustlers who plagued the Old West have been succeeded by a new breed of range thieves: oil rustlers.

They can be big oil companies who commit the larceny in their bookkeeping departments or individual operators who simply steal the oil outright. The one thing they have in common is the source of their ill-gotten wealth: federal and Indian lands which hold billions of dollars' worth of oil.

The most disgraceful aspect of this multibillion-dollar rip-off of the American taxpayers is that the government lets the crooks get away with it. Unlike Wyatt Earp or Marshall Dillon, today's government inspectors have actually been discouraged by higher-ups to enforce the law and collect what rightfully should be paid for the public's oil.

No one knows for sure how much is lost to the oil rustlers each year — accounting procedures are too sloppy and the Interior Department's enforcement measures hopelessly lax. But knowledgeable sources told my associate Dale Van Atta the government will come up more than $1 billion short in oil royalty collections this year alone. They estimated that the losses could double or even triple in the next seven or eight years. Significantly, the General Accounting Office has found that in almost every case examined over the last 35 years, the royalty payments have been inaccurate — usually in the oil companies' favor.

A year-long investigation by a House Interior subcommittee headed by Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., found that the department hadn't even bothered to verify the volume of oil and gas being pumped out of federal and Indian lands — estimated in 1980 at a total value of almost $20 billion.

The Interior Department, supposedly in charge of the oil-leasing program, was found to have such an unstructured and unsupervised accounting system that changes in royalty accounts were frequently made without authorization of senior officials. The amended reports filed by oil and gas companies to reduce their payments were routinely approved at all levels.

One field investigator testified that after he proved that a company was pumping more oil than it was paying for, officials at headquarters helped the miscreant work out a way to get out without paying. Critical reports filed by government auditors in 1972 and again in 1979 failed to bring changes. Last year, the congressional watchdogs reported that the situation had grown worse.

Interior's inspector general has also exposed the problem of royalty cheating in several major audits. One company was found to be paying 70 percent less than it should have. And the biggest underpayments were by 25 major oil and gas companies, which account for 85 percent of all royalties. For example, one large oil company paid $10 million in royalties on some offshore gas leases — but should have paid $17 million.

As for the less sophisticated rustlers who simply move in their rigs and steal the crude, one estimate is that as much as 6 percent of onshore oil production is being stolen that way.

Because of the government's hohum attitude toward the oil rustlers' depredations, inspectors are seriously frustrated. They have been threatened in the field and transferred by headquarters when they try to do their job conscientiously. Many have quit in disgust.

So the Interior Department bumbles along and the oil thieves go their merry way. POOR OL' BOY: Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is known as probably the most successful fundraiser in the annals of Congress. So a recent mailing is somewhat surprising: It is an almost pitiable plea for $15 or $25 donations to match $10,000 conditionally pledged by 10

Helms supporters (unidentified). They insisted, the letter said, that Helms match the amount before they'd hand over the $10,000.

A Helms campaign spokesman said he wasn't familiar with the particular fund-raising letter, but said he was "sure that the senator really did have 10 friends who put up $1,000 each."

The letter explains Helms' recourse to such a gimmick with a poor-mouth complaint about "the massive war chest the liberals are amassing to defeat me." The last official report showed that Helms had already raised $1.7 million to the $90,000 amassed by his opponent, Gov. James Hunt. North Carolina political insiders are betting Helms will raise $15 million for his re-election bid.

PANAMANIAN RECRUIT: Panama's strong man, Gen. Antonio Noriega, may join the revived Condesa anti-communist alliance of El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras. The mutual defense group's announced aim is to protect each other from the "Marxist-Leninist threat in Central America" — Spelled Nicaragua.

Noriega is an old buddy of Eden Pastora, the former Sandinista hero who is now trying to overthrow the Managua regime from his base in Costa Rica, Panama's northern neighbor.

Dear Abby

Notch-year babies raise a cry

DEAR READERS: It all started when I received a letter that read in part: "If you are drawing Social Security and were born in 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920 or 1921 (called 'the notch years'), you are being unjustly penalized by receiving lower benefits than those born prior to and after the above-mentioned years. For example, if you worked until you were 65 before starting to draw Social Security, you are receiving about $100 less in your monthly check than those born before 1917 or after 1921." — NOTCH-YEAR BABY.

I checked with a spokesperson at Social Security who informed me that the facts in that letter were correct, so I ran in on Sept. 5 (1983), adding: "Your congressman is your elected representative. Let him know that you want this inequity corrected."

On Sept. 13, Rep. J.J. Pickle, chairman of the Social Security subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, made the following comments, which were inserted in the Congressional Record: "My colleagues, and especially 'Dear Abby' readers, one thing we have learned in the past week is that something written in 'Dear Abby' is faster than a telegram and more powerful than the evening news. When 'Dear Abby' says write to your congressman, people do not just listen, they act. Unfortunately, the letter on the Social Security notch in a recent 'Dear Abby' column was partially wrong and somewhat misleading."

Readers, for the record, I was correct in stating that those born from 1917 through 1921 — the "notch years" — are being unjustly penalized by receiving lower retirement benefits than those born prior to the above-mentioned years. But Mr. Pickle was right, I was incorrect in stating that those born in the notch years would receive lower benefits than those born after 1921. The fact is, everyone born after 1921 will be unjustly penalized by receiving lower benefits than those born before 1917.

In a column dated for release Sept. 26, I ran a detailed explanation of my original item. I have since received a blizzard of letters from legislators and their constituents concerning this issue. Some samples:

I receive a copy of a letter written by the late Sen. Henry M. Jackson to a constituent, dated Oct. 14, 1981. It read in part:

"In order to control potential 'runaway' benefits that would overcompensate Social Security beneficiaries for inflation, the Congress altered the manner in which initial benefits are computed. Unfortunately, the new benefit formula blatantly discriminates against Social Security recipients born after 1916, since they will receive substantially lower benefits." (The italics are mine.)

After my column of Sept. 5 appeared, I heard from Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md.:

"Dear Abby: I was delighted to read your column bringing the Social Security problem to the public's attention. Don't back down. You were right. I have been pressing for years to correct this inequity. In fact, I was the first member of Congress to introduce a measure to resolve that problem."

Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., wrote:

"Dear Abby: Nothing since the controversy over gun control has prompted more mail and telephone calls. Our office has been inundated! I am aware of this inequity, and as a member of Congress, I have sponsored two or more bills to rectify this inequity."

From Edward R. Roybal, congressman from California and chairman of the Select Committee on Aging, came this message:

"As the chairman of the Select Committee on Aging, I must agree with the letter writer who is upset by the considerable differences in benefits paid to persons simply because one reached age 65 in 1981 while the other reached 65 in 1982.

"I am convinced that although we needed to correct a problem in the old benefit formula, it was not necessary to reduce benefit levels for people born after 1916. Consequently, I have introduced HR 4093, which guarantees that persons born in or after 1917 will receive a benefit which is equal to the benefits paid to those who were born in 1916."

I asked for a copy of Roybal's bill, which he promptly sent. After reading it, I telephoned him and asked, "Won't your bill be costly to the taxpayers?" He replied, "Yes, but money paid to our senior citizens will be pumped right back into the economy because they have to spend their Social Security checks in order to survive — unlike the younger generation who are saving for a rainy day."

I agree with Rep. Roybal. Our senior citizens should be treated at least fairly, if not generously, in their retirement years. For them it is already raining!

If you agree with me, let your elected representative know that Abby was right when she said there is an inequity, and you want it corrected.

Dr. Donohue

High protein not always danger sign

Dear Dr. Donohue: Doctors found protein in my urine and after the usual tests I was told it was "postural proteinuria." I now take a 24-hour urine culture every six months to see if it is staying the same. I have no swelling. Am I in danger? Is this fatal? I am 26 years old, married, with no children. What should I do? — Mrs. M.T.

Everything that should be done has been done and is being done. Postural proteinuria is not dangerous or fatal. Normally, only a very small amount of protein is filtered into the urine from the blood by the kidneys. When levels rise, the doctor looks for serious kidney disorders, because proteinuria can be a sign of such ailments. When true kidney disease has been excluded, then a very plausible explanation is postural proteinuria, not uncommon among adolescents and young adults.

It's not clear just why, but some people spill more protein into their urine during the day while they are up and about. At night, when they are lying down, this doesn't happen. The doctor confirms this phenomenon by examining two separate urine specimens, one taken immediately upon rising. That should be protein free. A second specimen, taken after the person has been on his feet for awhile, will show protein.

It is a benign condition, but one that warrants the periodic checks you are getting. It usually disappears in six months or so without anything being done. But you should continue to have the periodic checks. The booklet you ask for, "Your Kidneys: Facts You Need to Know About Them," is on the way. Other readers may order a copy by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 17-year-old girl wondering how many calories, approximately, does one burn off doing normal everyday activities, breathing and other bodily functions. — S.B.

I can give you an approximation. These numbers of calories are burned every minute for every pound of body weight: Lying down, .01 calories; standing, .014, walking at normal pace, .036. That should give you some idea. If you want to figure how many calories are burned, for example, when you are lying down, multiply the .01 by your weight. That gives you calories burned every minute. Multiply that by 60 and you get your hourly calorie burning total.

For efficient weight loss I'd opt for walking over lying down every time. I'll bet you're using your home computer to program your weight-loss program. Am I right?

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Bad track may be cause of derailment

A CLOSER LOOK — Officials from federal and local authorities spent Sunday taking a close look at the Amtrak Eagle at a Missouri Pacific train yard in Marshall. The train derailed Saturday, killing four. The cause of the accident is still under investigation.

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — A shattered section of rail may tell investigators why five cars on the Amtrak train Eagle derailed deep in the East Texas woods, killing four women and injuring scores of people.

National Transportation Safety Board member Donald Engen said Sunday that the broken section of rail will be sent to a Union Pacific laboratory in Omaha, Neb. But he said a final report on the accident may not be ready for four months. The Saturday morning accident was the worst for Amtrak since June 10, 1971, when 11 people were killed in Salem, Ill., said Cliff Black, an Amtrak spokesman in Washington. Amtrak was formed May 1, 1971.

Buses carried 101 of the 145 passengers on board to Dallas and San Antonio. Workers unloaded baggage into a truck Sunday morning, and the train was righted, placed on repaired track and moved to a Marshall railyard where federal investigators sealed it off and began their examination. Officials said 24 people were admitted to three area hospitals after the accident. Scores of others were treated for minor injuries and released.

A data recorder on board the train, which was headed for San Antonio, Texas from Chicago, showed it was traveling at 73 mph when it derailed, said Missouri Pacific vice president Richard Davidson. The speed limit for passenger trains on that stretch of rail is 75 mph.

"It's clear to see that the second wheel on the right-hand side of (the fourth car) has a very pronounced gouge that indicates that could be the first wheel to hit a separation in the track," said Engen. Engen said the shattered rail "did come apart subsequent to derailment," and added that it was the same section of rail that Missouri Pacific Railroad crews had been working on within two hours of the derailment.

William Grimmer, Amtrak's general superintendent for its Midwest division, said no defects had been found on the two-engine, nine-car Eagle that was carrying 162 people, including 145 passengers and 17 railroad workers.

Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells identified the dead as Sybil Fisher, 59, of Mineola, Texas; and Dorothy M. Blask, 77, of Milwaukee; Alma Zahn, 69, of La Crosse, Wis.; and Carol McDonald, 74, of Richardson, Texas.

Marshall Memorial Hospital administrator James Pears said 21 patients remained hospitalized, two of them critically injured. A total of 58 injured people were treated in Marshall.

Missing airplane found; two dead

CLINES CORNERS, N.M. (AP) — A twin-engine airplane that crashed into a wooded area near here apparently went down at a high rate of speed, says a state policeman who was at the crash site.

Federal Aviation Administration officials and state police Sunday were at the site where the Aero Commander airplane crashed, killing two California residents.

Killed in the crash were the pilot, R. Marshall Tolles, of Ontario, Calif., and his passenger, Kathleen Ellis, 24, of Cucamonga, Calif.

The bodies of the two victims were found Saturday by the Civil Air Patrol. The aircraft crashed while on a flight from Oklahoma to California, according to a CAP spokesman.

State police officer Wayne Mahana said Sunday the plane went down in a heavily wooded area dotted with rolling hills.

"From the way he cut the trees, it looked like he went in at about a 45-degree angle," Mahana said. "It totally destroyed the plane. It looked like it went in at a high rate of speed."

"It was a twisted mass of metal," said CAP mission coordinator Dwight Jennison of Albuquerque. "The wreckage just exploded over a wide area." There was no fire, he said.

The crash was spotted late Saturday about 17 miles east of Clines Corners near New Mexico 3. Jennison said the airplane went down on "fairly level terrain with a lot of pinon pine forest."

The pilot, on a business trip, picked up the plane in Tulsa, Okla., and was ferrying it back to California when he stopped in Tucumcari to refuel, said CAP 2nd Lt. Madge Harrah.

"His last known position was Tucumcari, where he refueled the evening of Nov. 8. He took off headed for Tucson, (Ariz.) where he was going to spend the night. He did not arrive in Tucson," she said.

Job switching grows common

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
What do you want to do when you grow up?

That question isn't only for kids any more. Labor Department analysts say a growing number of adults are changing not only jobs, but careers. In some cases, the change is involuntary; old industries are dying and new ones, requiring new skills, are being born. In other cases, however, the switch is an intentional one.

"Long regarded as a static, one-time event, career choice is now seen as an ongoing process, a periodic re-evaluation of oneself," says a Labor Department guide, "Help Yourself to a Midlife Career Change." The guide is available from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 236L, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. It costs $2.25.

"Frequently," the guide says, "the catalyst for a radical career change is a shift in an individual's values... Sometimes our values (early in life) are inconsistent or unclear. And sometimes our values change. What we value at 20... we don't always hold in such high esteem as 40."

The Labor Department experts say there are several questions to ask yourself before you plunge into a new work environment. Among them:

—Am I really dissatisfied with my career or only with my job?
—Am I unhappy with my working conditions and is there some way I could improve my environment and increase my job satisfaction?
—Does my job conflict with my basic values? Do I have values that I can't express in my current career?

—Have I taken an inventory of my skills and do I know which ones are marketable? Do I have skills that I can't use where I am? Are there skills I will need to learn for a new career and how difficult — and expensive — will it be?

—Is there any way of trying out a new career without giving up my old one?

—What will I give up and what will I gain? How important are things like seniority, pension fund and other benefits to the welfare of me and my family? Can I afford to make the switch?

—Am I willing to start out again in an entry-level job? Am I willing to take a risk?

—What are my goals — short, intermediate and long-term?

One way to help answer these questions is with a career autobiography, listing past jobs and what you liked and disliked and what you did. The autobiography should be more than a simple listing or resume; it should be an analysis of your feeling and experiences, and should cover spare-time activities as well as paid employment.

Be honest with yourself about your temperament as well as your skills. The Labor Department says many people are unrealistic. Someone who loves books, for example, might think it would be a lot of fun to be a librarian. But the same person could be impatient with details and paperwork and would be temperamentally unsuited to library work.

If you have analyzed your values, goals, skills and temperament and still want a new career, consider a gradual changeover. You may be able to get a part-time job in the field you are considering. Or work on weekends to see what kind of opportunities are available and how they suit you.

Investigate your new field thoroughly. You might start by reading one trade magazine a month to familiarize yourself with what's going on in the industry. Not only will you get a better idea of what you are faced with, you also will be more valuable to a potential employer. Consider community organizations as a source of contacts and information; you may be able to meet people who know about or are directly involved in the field you want to pursue.

Man smashes circuit

AUSTIN (AP) — A club-wielding man smashed a circuit breaker at a power substation in south Austin, injuring himself and darkening the homes of several hundred electrical customers.

Utility spokesman Sam Jones said the man, who was not identified, scaled a 6-foot fence at the substation at Sunday evening and opened several 12,500-volt circuit breaker boxes but damaged only one.

From 400 to 600 customers in southwest Austin were affected by the blackout, Jones said. Power was restored within 40 minutes.

The man, who police said lives in the neighborhood, suffered flash burns to the chest. He was treated at Brackenridge Hospital.

Police are investigating the incident for possible charges.

Heart Answers

WHAT IS A HEART ATTACK?

A heart attack is the death of a portion of heart muscle that may result in disability or death, depending on how much of the heart is damaged. It occurs when an obstruction in one of the coronary arteries prevents the blood from supplying oxygen to the heart muscle. Heart attack symptoms may include chest pain, nausea and shortness of breath. The risk of heart attack can be reduced by treating high blood pressure, avoiding cigarette smoking, observing a low cholesterol diet and maintaining normal body weight.

Examination of ride completed

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys, engineers and State Fair of Texas officials have completed their initial examinations of the amusement ride Enterprise and will determine if they need more tests.

One car from the Enterprise hurtled to the midway, Oct. 17 at the State Fair of Texas, killing one youth and injuring 16 others.

Dismantling of the ride was completed Sunday, officials said, and it could be two weeks before experts determine if they need to conduct more tests.

"We're just going to evaluate what we've got," said Paul Gold, an attorney for the family of Wade Phillips, 19, who was killed in the accident.

Satellite Receivers... are they for you? Before we approach that question it might be a good idea to look at another question. Would the existence of a satellite receiver in your yard make the quality of your life any better? The answer to that question might encompass more than your present frame of reference. "Quality of life" is the key phrase here and that is where we will look for the answer. If entertainment is what you are seeking then you have found the perfect source. Twenty-four hours a day, movies and sports are available for your viewing... but after having satiated your hedonistic tendencies, then what? Will you turn to the religious satellites for spiritual enlightenment... and once you've reached your spiritual plateau, then what? On to cultural programs available at all hours of the day or night? Perhaps even you will even become a news freak and watch the twenty-four news channels, learning more than you ever wanted to learn about what is going on in the world. After that depressing experience it may be back to the entertainment channels for awhile. If your existence on this planet will be more worthwhile with what is described above, then a satellite receiver is definitely what you need!

Oilers use Luck to win first game...

HOUSTON (AP) — The grocery sack masks started coming off the heads of several embarrassed Houston Oiler fans in the third quarter.

Suddenly, it was okay to be an Oiler fan again.

A sign that read "I'm Mad Too Bum" was removed.

The Houston Oilers had finally won a game, beating Detroit 27-17 Sunday to end a 17-game losing streak, and all was right with the world — at least for one week.

"What can I say? Welcome back to the NFL," Oiler interim Coach Chuck Studley said. "If we play like we played today, we'd be rough on anyone. We literally rose from the dead after the way we were beaten last week."

Studley was commenting in a cheerful Oiler dressing room after second year quarterback Oliver Luck, in his first pro start, threw two touchdown passes and the Oilers won their first game of the season for a 1-10 record.

A sign that read, "Houston Oilers, the best 0-10 team in NFL," no longer applied.

Victories have been a scarce commodity since former Coach Bum Phillips departed after the 1980 season. The Oilers had lost three overtime games this season and were flattened 55-14 by Cincinnati Nov. 6.

But on Sunday, the victory was sweet.

"They didn't give it to us, we took it," said Studley, who got his first victory as head coach since replacing Ed Biles on Oct. 10. "The team will never forget the game. They gave me the game ball but I told them they would all get a game ball to remember this victory by."

The embarrassment of losing shifted from Houston to Detroit, 5-6 after winning four of five games.

"You know it's going to happen but you don't want to be the team they beat (to end the streak)," said Detroit quarterback Eric Hipple. "It's like everyone will point at you and say 'Oh, you're the fools who lost to Houston.'"

Luck, showing poise beyond his experience, completed 18 of 26 passes for 189 yards, including a pair of 13-yard touchdowns to rookie tight ends Mike McCloskey and Chris Dressel.

Florian Kempf kicked field goals of 47 and 21 yards and rookie fullback Larry Moriarty catapulted three yards for a touchdown after he appeared to be stopped at the two.

Billy Sims leaped one yard for a Detroit touchdown and Ed Murray's 35-yard field goal netted the Lions a 10-10 halftime tie. Quarterback Gary Danielson hit James Jones with a three-yard touchdown pass for a 17-10 Lion lead in the third quarter.

Then it was Oiler time. Moriarty's touchdown put Houston ahead 24-17 and after Bill Kay intercepted a Danielson pass, Luck completed a string of 10 consecutive pass completions leading to Kempf's 21-yarder.

Sims, showing his frustration after the interception, smashed his helmet to the ground on the sidelines.

"I was just frustrated because of the interception and the way the game was going," said Sims, who rushed 105 yards on 20 carries and caught nine passes for 90 yards.

Earl Campbell showed no after-effects of his trade demands last week, rushing 107 yards on 28 carries. But he said he still wants to be traded.

NOT SO 'LUCK'-Y THIS TIME — Houston Oilers quarterback Oliver Luck (10) gets wrapped up on a sack by Detroit Lion Doug English (78) during Sunday's NFL game in Houston. Luck was in the Oilers' favor the rest of the way, however, as Houston snapped a 10-game losing streak with a 27-17 victory over the Lions.

...Cowboys' luck disappears in late rally against Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The gloom is gone from the San Diego Chargers' clubhouse, replaced by a feeling that the worst is over.

"It was turnaround time," Coach Don Coryell said after San Diego snapped a four-game losing streak Sunday with a shocking 24-23 National Football League victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

"It's a great feeling. Seems like it's been ages since everyone has been happy," said quarterback Ed Luthur, who shook off a nightmarish season and produced his best pro effort.

Ignited by their first return of a blocked punt for a touchdown in 21 years, the Chargers got a Dan Fouts-like effort from Luthur, who completed 26 of 43 passes for 340 yards and one touchdown.

The loss knocked the Cowboys, now 9-2, into a first-place tie with the Washington Redskins for the lead in the NFL Eastern Division. San Diego, still last in the AFC West, is 4-7.

Rookie Derrie Nelson helped the Chargers roll up a 24-6 lead with his 21-yard first-quarter return of a blocked Danny White punt for San Diego's first touchdown.

"They came out to play and we were ripe for the picking," said Cowboys' running back Tony Dorsett, the main target of San Diego's inspired and swarming defense. He was held to 58 yards in 17 carries.

"We knew if we could stop him we could shut down a lot of what they do," said defensive end Richard Ackersman.

White saw it from a different standpoint.

"We lost this one in the first half," said White, who nearly pulled off another patented Cowboy comeback. "It was a lack of execution, not a lack of emotion. It was a lousy, stinking rotten game." White fired three touchdown passes, two in the fourth quarter, but San Diego's defense held when it had to.

The margin of victory for the Chargers was Rafael Septien's missed extra point late in the second quarter.

"It was the first time I was wearing long cleats and they got caught in the ground. It was freaky," he said.

With Fouts out almost a month with an injured shoulder, Luthur and San Diego's offense has struggled, scoring only two touchdowns in the last three games.

"We had a great game plan and we shot the works," said Luthur, a four-year pro making his fourth start.

Chuck Muncie's 2-yard touchdown run gave San Diego a 14-0 lead before White hit Drew Pearson on a 16-yard scoring pass play with 1:45 left in the first half.

Instead of playing it safe and sitting on the lead, San Diego went to the air on four consecutive plays, reaching the Dallas 17, where Rolf Benirschke booted a 37-yard field goal with eight seconds remaining for a 17-6 halftime lead.

At halftime, Coryell said he reminded the Chargers of a bitter loss to the Cowboys' in 1980 after leading 24-14. "We reminded ourselves that they are a great comeback team. The game was not over."

Luthur's 18-yard TD pass to backup tight end Pete Holohan made it 24-6 less than four minutes into the second half.

Then it was the Cowboys' turn. After Septien booted a 37-yard field goal, White fired fourth quarter TD passes to Tony Hill on a 35-yard scoring play and to tight end Billy Joe DuPre, from four yards out with eight minutes to go.

But the Chargers let the Cowboys have the ball for only one more series after that.

'Skins tie Dallas for lead; Patriots surprise Dolphins

By The Associated Press
John Riggins and Washington continued to roll while New York endured another dismal day at home as the Redskins drummed the Giants 33-17 in East Rutherford, N.J.

Riggins scored on a pair of 2-yard runs, and now has rushed for a touchdown in 11 straight regular season games, tying the NFL mark set by Lenny Moore in 1963-64.

Who would have thought San Diego would beat Dallas today? asked Washington quarterback Joe Theismann. "We had to stay with them."
The Giants, 2-8-1, are winless in their last seven games.
"It was our worst performance of the season in certain phases," said New York

Cowboys' running back Tony Dorsett, the main target of San Diego's inspired and swarming defense. He was held to 58 yards in 17 carries.

Packers 29, Vikings 21
Lynn Dickey threw two touchdown passes as the Packers tied Minnesota for the NFC Central lead.

The visiting Packers, 6-5, recorded their first safety in seven seasons when reserve defensive end Greg Boyd sacked Minnesota quarterback Steve Dils in the end zone for a 19-0 halftime lead.

"This is the most important game for us," said Green Bay's Jan Stenerud, who kicked two field goals. "But so is next week and the next week."

Minnesota running back Darrin Nelson accounted for 278 total yards, 119 of them rushing, to break the Vikings' team record of 265 set by Chuck Foreman in 1976.

Patriots 17, Dolphins 6
Quarterback Steve Grogan sparked New England over Miami and rookie Dan Marino, who began the game as the NFL's top-ranked passer.

Big 10 runner-up gets invite to Cotton Bowl

The bowl picture, which was one big mess at the start of the weekend, apparently has taken shape ... as it usually does.

Although only two teams officially nailed down bowl berths — fifth-ranked Illinois in the Rose, No. 8 Brigham Young in the Holiday — and the selection date is still almost a week away, numerous other teams were going ahead with their postseason plans and only the Bluebonnet, Aloha and Independence Bowls still had openings.

Illinois won the right to represent the Big Ten in Pasadena for the first time in 20 years by defeating Indiana 49-21. BYU, the only host team the Holiday Bowl has ever known, made it for the sixth time and captured its eighth straight Western Athletic Conference title with a 24-6 victory over Colorado State.

Illinois will face either No. 18 Washington, 5-1 in the Pac-10, or 5-1-1 UCLA. The latter is involved in one of the stranger bowl rumors — namely, that the Bruins will go to the Aloha Bowl even if they lose to Southern Cal and finish 5-5-1.

Meanwhile, the Orange Bowl locked up a match between top-rated Nebraska, which crushed Kansas 67-13, and No. 6 Miami, which needed Jeff Davis' last-second 19-yard field goal to nip Florida State 17-16.

Browns shut out Bucs

Grogan sneaked in for a 1-yard touchdown and set up the host Patriots' other TD with a 44-yard pass to Stanley Morgan.

Marino completed just 14 of 37 passes for 141 yards. The Dolphins, 7-4, are tied with Buffalo for the AFC East lead. New England is 6-5.

"We shut down the rush and made it a one-dimensional game," said New England Coach Ron Meyer. "We thought we could deal with Marino."

Raiders 22, Broncos 22

In Los Angeles, a nervous but steady Chris Bahr kicked a 39-yard field goal with four seconds remaining to give the Raiders a wild victory.

The Broncos had taken a 20-19 lead on a 4-yard touchdown run by quarterback John Elway with 58 seconds left to play. But the AFC West-leading Raiders, 8-3, drove 48 yards in five plays before Bahr's kick.

Steelers 24, Colts 13

Cliff Stoudt threw two touchdown passes as the Steelers stayed atop the AFC Central.

Stoudt threw short TD passes to Calvin Sweeney and Bennie Cunningham as Pittsburgh, 9-2, won its seventh straight game.

"I'm having a whole lot more fun than when I watched," said Stoudt, who was a backup to Terry Bradshaw for six seasons. The Colts are 6-5.

Bills 24, Jets 17

Joe Cribbs, making up for several dropped passes, caught a 33-yard touchdown toss from Joe Ferguson with 22 seconds left for visiting Buffalo.

Ferguson left the game in third quarter with an injured elbow, but guided the Bills 75 yards in five plays in the game's final minute.

The Bills, 7-4, overcame 15 penalties. The Jets fell to 4-7.

Browns 20, Bucs 0

Cleveland recorded its first shutout since 1974 and Mike Pruitt ran for two short touchdowns at home.

Tampa Bay, 1-10, lost running back James Wilder with two cracked ribs in the fourth quarter. The Browns are 6-5.

49ers 27, Saints 0

Defensive end Fred Dean sacked New Orleans quarterback Dave Wilson six times in leading a spirited San Francisco defense.

The 49ers recorded nine sacks and held the visiting Saints to 100 total yards.

Joe Montana threw three TD passes in the matchup of 6-4 teams.

Chiefs 20, Bengals 15

Bill Kenney passed for one touchdown and ran for another and Nick Lowrey kicked two field goals as Kansas City led all the way.

The Chiefs' defense sacked Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson seven times in Kansas City.

Cardinals 33, Seahawks 28

In St. Louis, Neil Lomax fired four touchdown passes to Roy Green as the Cardinals won a shootout.

Lomax completed 21 of 27 passes for 253 yards and Ottis Anderson ran for 130 yards. Neil O'Donoghue's 33-yard field goal with 7:50 left broke a 28-28 tie.

Seahawks quarterback Dave Krieg threw three touchdown passes to Steve Largent and Zachary Dixon returned a kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown, the first score on a kickoff in Seattle's history.

Bears 17, Eagles 14

Bob Thomas booted a 22-yard field goal with 12:24 left in the game to snap a 14-14 tie in Chicago.

Walter Payton gained 131 yards for the Bears.

The Bruins meet Dickinson in a second-round playoff bout at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Astrodome.

In 5A action Friday, top-ranked Highland Park blitzed Dallas Samuel 27-14, sixth-ranked Converse Judson whipped San Antonio Clark 24-21, eighth-rated Stafford Dulles blasted Austin Reagan 15-9 and 10th-place El Paso Irvin squeezed by El Paso Bel Air 22-20.

College football bowl picture quickly clears

Third-ranked Auburn earned the right to represent the Southeastern Conference in the Sugar Bowl by defeating No. 4 Georgia 13-7. The visiting team will be the winner of next Saturday's game between ninth-ranked Michigan and No. 10 Ohio State, with the loser going to the Fiesta Bowl to meet No. 20 Pitt.

The Cotton Bowl had been fighting the Sugar for the Michigan-Ohio State winner. But the Big Ten chose the Sugar Bowl so the loser of Saturday's game could go to the Fiesta Bowl, which will be televised opposite the Cotton Bowl.

The Cotton, which has never had a Big Ten team, will settle for Georgia, which probably will have a better record than either Michigan or Ohio State but might be below the winner of that game in the Associated Press poll.

The Cotton Bowl, which has the Southwest Conference champion as its host team, had a huge scare Saturday when second-ranked Texas fell behind Texas Christian 14-3 at halftime before pulling out a 20-14 triumph.

Other reports have the Liberty Bowl striving for a game between No. 13 Boston College and Notre Dame — it is doubtful the Irish will go anywhere if they lose to Air Force and wind up 6-5 — and Oklahoma possibly passing up a bowl trip even if it beats Nebraska since the Sooners have an attractive regular-season trip to Hawaii on Dec. 3.

The rest of the bowl picture looks like this:
Gator — No. 12 Iowa vs. No. 14 Florida; Citrus — No. 11 Maryland vs. Tennessee; Sun — No. 7 Southern Methodist (the Mustangs are being jobbed out of a New Year's bowl although they probably will have a 10-1 record) vs. No. 16 Alabama; Bluebonnet — Baylor vs. Air Force, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State or Penn State; Aloha — UCLA vs. possibly Penn State; Holiday — BYU vs. Missouri; Hall of Fame — Kentucky vs. No. 15 West Virginia; Peach — Florida State vs. No. 19 North Carolina. The Independence Bowl is still undecided on its teams.

THE LITTLE RAMP THAT TAKES YOU FROM ONE FREEWAY TO ANOTHER.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning finds you apt to have poor judgment and you would be unwise to borrow or to lend or to take risks and chances. Later in the day, you find influential persons receptive to requests.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Carry through with what you have agreed to do and don't get into new interests yet. You meet obligations nicely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't get into an argument with one in business. A good friend comes to your assistance and gives you backing.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't step into an argument that may be going on between an associate and a higher-up. Outside tasks gain you more prestige.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Listen to directives of a higher-up and handle your work efficiently. Study into new interests that appeal to you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You had better keep the promises made to business persons and don't run out for fun and disappoint them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get into the outside world early and study into new interests that appeal to you. Come to a fine agreement with partners.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A letter could prove distressing, but forget it and concentrate on problems at hand to solve them quickly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get your entertainments organized and later delve into financial and worldly matters of importance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listen to the advice of family, since your judgment is not up to par today. Plans could go awry.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get right into the outside work that needs to be done and forget that private worry that is depressing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A friend does not really understand you, so avoid and get busy on important practical affairs to be handled.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Avoid higher-ups who may be having troubles and take their discontent out on you. Keep busy at your regular work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young persons showing very strong intuitive perception and will utilize it to advantage in dealing with others. A good college education is necessary here and success can be great.

'Main Street' competition mounts

AUSTIN (AP) — People in Dallas and Houston probably don't appreciate parking problems downtown, but when the folks in Hillsboro started having trouble finding a place to park on Main Street, they knew they had it made.

"That's a sign of a healthy downtown," said Anice Reed, who manages Project Main Street for the Texas Historical Commission.

For her, Hillsboro is one of more than a dozen success stories of the project begun four years ago, aimed at preserving historic buildings and making downtown the busy hub it was in the old days.

In fact, because of the success of the Main Street program, her biggest problem has become breaking the news to the growing number of cities that did not get chosen. Only five a year are picked, and the latest list came out Friday.

"Competition was so stiff year. It's amazing. I have to call 18 cities this afternoon that are going to be just sick," she said after Gov. Mark White released the list of 1984 Main Street Cities in Texas.

The winners were Belton, Ennis, Brownwood, Goliad and Paris. They will get professional assistance from experts in tourism, corporate management, historical preservation and architecture.

Cities that applied but were not chosen this year were Athens, Clarksville, Conroe, Denton, Edinburg, Electra, Giddings, Grapevine, Ingleside, Lampassas, Mineola, Mineral Wells, San Marcos, Sherman, Sweetwater, Taylor, Tomball and Uvalde.

Cities apply by Sept. 1, and a nine-member state committee reviews the applications, visits the cities, and recommends the five winners to the governor in November.

"We look at the historic fabric in the downtown," said Mrs. Reed. "We look at private sector support, the support pledged by city government, and the geographical distribution of cities. We can't pick them all in Central Texas."

That was the main reason, for example, that Taylor

MAIN STREET PROJECTS — These 20 cities have been designated for Main Street Projects in Texas, a program aimed at revitalizing downtowns and preserving historic buildings.

was not chosen this year, she said. The city has community support, government support, historic buildings, restorations under way, and has launched its own Main Street project without any outside help. But it is located only 20 miles from Georgetown, and Georgetown is already a Main Street city, Mrs. Reed said. She said she told Taylor officials the truth when she phoned the bad news to them Friday.

Lawyers learn DWI defense tactics

HOUSTON (AP) — Seventy Texas lawyers were told at a seminar on defending people accused of drunken driving to challenge every law, police officer and chemical test presented by prosecutors.

The seminar, held in Houston last week, is given by a traveling group of six legal experts who contend drunken driving defendants often do not receive a fair trial.

The experts recommended that defense lawyers use tactics ranging from showing jurors the college grades of breath-test operators to filing "a half pound" of pre-trial briefs in hopes the prosecutor will agree to a plea bargain.

Drunken-driving cases "offer very fertile grounds for attacking the state's case," said Lawrence Taylor, a law school professor in Washington state and the author of the book, "Drunk Driving Defense."

The Texas lawyers paid $160 to attend the seminar. "I have no apologies for coming to something like this," Dallas lawyer Peter Lesser told the Dallas Times Herald. "The defense lawyer's job is to represent his client and make sure that the state proves its case beyond a reasonable doubt. If I pick up a tip, I'm doing my job."

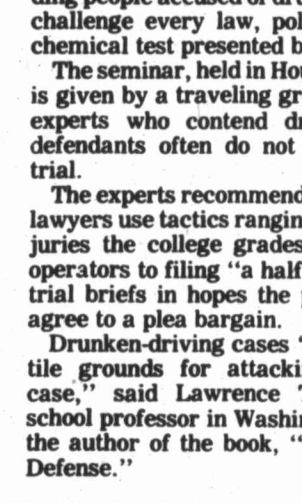

Lesser said groups such as Mothers Against Drunk Drivers "tend to go overboard by saying: 'If we accuse you, you're guilty.'" He was not the only lawyer to criticize MADD.

Speaker Tommy Sheffield said he was a member of "DAMM — drunks against mad mothers."

"I'm not in favor of drunk drivers," said Richard E. Erwin, a California lawyer and author of the three-volume work, "Defense of Drunk Driving Cases."

Cross reference files

Q. "Does the Big Spring Police Department maintain a cross reference index file (fingerprints, any other information) on repeat suspects? And if they don't, how are they able to clear burglaries, etc., when the suspect is not known in advance. Don't most departments have these files, and if we don't, why don't we have it?"

A. The Big Spring Police Department maintains a multitude of files. These files are maintained for several reasons, but one of the most important reasons is that they are used as an investigative tool to assist in the apprehension of criminals. This department has records on all persons arrested and housed in this facility, records on all traffic violations, records of all accidents, records of all crimes reported, and records on evidence, found property and stolen property. It takes three full-time clerks to maintain this record system. There are record clerks at the police station seven days per week from 7:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. From Jan. 1, 1983 to Nov. 11, 1983 this department handled 2,342 arrests and 5,764 reports taken by officers.

As part of the arrest process an arrest sheet is completed, and the arrested person is issued a file number.

Each arrest sheet and its related documents are filed in a folder under the file number, and the arrested person's name is placed in the Master Name

Index on a card indicating the file number.

Each person arrested is fingerprinted and photographed. If a person has been arrested for a misdemeanor, two fingerprint cards are made. One card is maintained in the files of this department, and the second is sent to the Department of Public Safety in Austin for their files. When a person is arrested for a felony, a third set of fingerprints is taken and sent to the FBI for its files. All pictures ( mug shots) are filed in this department.

All of the records of this department are kept in a secure area, and only those employees with "a need to know" have access to them.

This department maintains files on over 28,000 persons who have been arrested and housed in this department. The folders or jackets contain from one arrest to many and in one case 387 arrests from as far back as 1961.

Each and every record of this department is an investigative tool used by investigators to solve crimes. Currently this department is in the process of obtaining a computer to store records and data so that investigative material will be much more readily available for the investigator. No longer will it be necessary to search each individual file for offenders meeting a specific description. With the push of a few buttons this same process will take only minutes rather than days.

"I was very honest with them. Taylor is a natural, but so are many of them. Lampassas didn't get it and they are a natural. Electra is a wonderful little city. There were just too many."

Nevertheless, Ennis, a 1984 winner, is located in the same county as Waxahachie and not that far from Hillsboro.

"It happens sometimes," Mrs. Reed said. "We try as we can to spread them out over the state, but that has not always been possible." She said Hillsboro was in its third and final year of assistance in the program.

Towns were not required to apply the first year of the program; 14 applied the second year and 13 the third year. This year, with interest heightened by success stories in places like Hillsboro, Navasota and Georgetown, 23 cities wanted in on the program.

"We had no idea this would happen," said Mrs. Reed.

In Hillsboro, where a downtown that was once a decaying cluster of abandoned buildings has come back to life, sale tax receipts have jumped by 20 percent with no increase in population.

"They have so many new businesses downtown it's phenomenal," said Mrs. Reed.

She said experts usually advise downtown shops to be unified hours, like shopping centers, and stay open in the evenings for people who work and cannot shop during the day.

You wouldn't think owners of shopping centers built on the fringes of the cities, contributing to the flight from downtown, would be enthusiastic about revitalizing the downtown marketplace, but Mrs. Reed said it is not always the case.

"It varies from city to city," she said. If fringe-area shopping center interests balk at Main Street restoration, "I tell them, 'You've been running water and sewer lines out to your shopping center at the city's expense. You have turned your thoughts outward for so many years and totally neglected your economic base, your downtown,'" Mrs. Reed said.
