Garnishment gives child support relief

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Parents who don't receive the full amount of child support payments soon will be able to file for garnishment of their ex-spouse's salaries.

The new state constitutional amendment is designed to create an effective way to enforce court-ordered child support payments. National and local figures show that less than one-half of the parents with custody of children receive the full amount of child support payments because the other parent refuses to pay.

Before the amendment passed, the only remedy available was to have the delinquent parent jailed on a contempt order. However, the contempt order often was not successful in collecting the payments, according to 118th District clerk's employees, who keep records of child support payments.

The amendment will take effect after the Texas Secretary of State certifies the election results and forms for the procedure are agreed on, according to an employee in the state attorney general's office.

"I'd expect to see it in effect about January or February," District Clerk Peggy Crittendon said.

Parents with custody of children will be able to file for garnishment of the other parent's salary after child support payments are delinquent for at least two months, according to Stan Clements, the East Texas area manager for the child support enforcement division of the state Attorney General's office.

"The woman (usually the parent with custody of children and entitled to child support) has to initiate the procedure for garnishment," Clements said. "It's an additional remedy to enforce the court's orders."

According to statistics from the 118th District Clerk's office, less than half of the women in Howard County entitled to receive child support payments actually receive the full amount because the children's

Lawyers favor wage law

Most local attorneys said they favor the new amendment allowing Texas courts to garnish wages of a person who fails to pay child support but also said they see some problems with the new law.

Attorneys' comments ranged from total support to reactions of "Let's wait and see."

"I think it's a great idea," said attorney Jack Thompson of Big Spring law firm Hamby, Thompson and Mouton.

In contrast, attorney Wayne Basden said he is not sure of the effects of the new amendment, which allows involuntary garnishment after a person has been delinquent in his payments for two months.

"I believe a man should support his children. No one else should do it. But some people, through their lack of job skill, ability or education, can't get a job. And these people will be punished," Basden said.

Part of his mixed feelings on the new amendment stem from his belief that government should interfere in a person's life as little as possible, he said.

"I love the thought in the (state) constitution against the prohibition of attachment of salary. Child support is the only debt for which a person can go to jail," he said.

Basden said the new law, since it involves garnishment of wages, might not have any effect on persons who have a large homestead, a house and car, but aren't employed.

The self-employed also could be exempt from the law, said Nancy Oseasohn, an attorney with the child support enforcement division of the attorney general's office in Midland.

Basden said some men feel they shouldn't have to pay child support because the wife often moves away with the children, preventing the father from exercising any direction in the children's life or "enjoying the beauty of young children."

Basden's partner, Elliott Mitchell, said he favors the new amendment, but that it had limitations.

'Day After' raises debate

By the Associated Press

The horror of nuclear war, interrupted only by commercials, swept into the homes of an estimated 100 million viewers with "The Day After," raising the tempo of the nuclear arms debate across America today, from schools in New York to town halls in Oregon.

ABC-TV's movie Sunday night was used as a focal point for anti-nuclear groups, while the Reagan administration, led by Secretary of State George P. Shultz, called on Americans to "rally around and support" a policy of deterrence and negotiation with the Soviet Union to reduce nuclear arms.

Many viewers, warned by some psychiatrists not to watch it alone, gathered in churches and neighbor's homes for the 2½-hour movie. Network affiliates said their showboards lit up with hundreds of calls during the show, with most of the calls to ABC's New York headquarters supporting the showing of the film.

The movie was seen by an almost seven out of 10 homes watching TV during its time period in six major cities, ABC said today. Based on that, ABC projected an audience of about 100 million, which would put the film among the most-watched TV shows on record.

"The Day After," a $7 million project, depicted a Soviet nuclear strike on Kansas City, and the grim aftermath for survivors in nearby Lawrence, Kan.

"We saw our community destroyed this evening," Lawrence Mayor David Longhurst told about 500 people at a candlelight vigil near a hilltop war memorial

NEW PILOT — Editha Merrill, 78, who had no previous flying experience took over the controls of a single engine plane from a dying pilot and guided it safely to a runway yesterday at Luke Air Force Base west of Phoenix, Ariz.

Woman, 78, pilots airplane to safety

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A 78-year-old woman with no flight training and "a dead man" beside her followed hand signals from other airplanes and instructions from the back seat to land a small plane safely against "20,000 to 1" odds, officials said.

"I sure had a mouthful of cotton when we got down, and I did an awful lot of praying," Editha Merrill said Sunday after landing the single-engine plane at Luke Air Force Base near Phoenix.

The trip began Sunday morning when Bruce Turner, 57, and his wife, Jane, 59, invited Mrs. Merrill and Dorothy Mathews, 65, to fly with them to breakfast in Sedona about 115 miles to the north.

Mrs. Merrill took the co-pilot's seat because, "I was very interested in looking at all the instruments and finding out what they were all about. I found out."

But Turner lost consciousness while piloting the plane. Mrs. Merrill said she was "panicked all the way through" but realized it was up to her since the plane's cockpit was so small she couldn't change seats in midflight.

"I had a dead man beside me and his wife in back of me with one hand on each shoulder," she said. "It was kind of hairy."

"The odds against successfully carrying out this operation are phenomenal, I'd say 20,000 to 1," said Jack Seeley, a Sedona flight instructor who helped guide the plane in. "I figured the best we'd get away with is that they'd bust it up, and we'd have some broken arms and legs and no one killed."

When her husband collapsed, Mrs. Turner made "a panicked plea for help" over the radio, said Lt. Col. Dalton Smith, chief of staff of the Arizona Wing of the Civil Air Patrol.

"Jane thought he had fallen asleep because he was tired, and she patted his face and tried to wake him up, but he did not wake up," Mrs. Merrill said.

But Turner, who had been taking medication for a heart ailment, was unconscious, and was pronounced dead at Luke base hospital, officials said. An autopsy was planned to determine the cause of death.

Mrs. Turner then leaned over her husband and operated the throttle and propeller control as Mrs. Merrill steered the plane.

Within three minutes, Capt. Forrest Kline of the Civil Air Patrol flew within sight of the women.

First National unveils new motor bank

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

First National Bank's new $1.2 million motor bank opened this morning after 10 months of construction.

"We've been planning this for several years," said bank president Jimmy Taylor. "But the ideal location was not available."

When Jack Lewis Buick and Cadillac moved from its Gregg Street location, the land was purchased and work began early this year.

The new facility has 17 lanes, an increase over the six the bank had for several years. Thirteen of the lanes are for individual patrons, and four are reserved for commercial business.

The added lanes were needed because "on several days of the month, drivers had to back up onto Fifth Street" to wait their turn, Taylor said. "We knew it was inadequate. We appreciate our customers' patience."

Inside the motor bank, large windows face out to the "Tel-air" equipment on the lot. The new equipment features pneumatic tubes which shuttle transactions from motorist to teller on waves of air. The old system had drivers pull up to talk directly to tellers.

Four commercial windows, which deal with larger amounts of money, have "underground tracks" to move money from the tubes inside the bank.

Taylor said it takes 31 seconds to move such transactions from a vehicle to a teller.

Although work is completed on four walk-up windows which face Main Street, construction on a new parking lot is still underway, thus blocking the walk-in windows. Once the lot is completed, people who wish to walk up to glassed-in teller's windows outside the bank "can get the same service here as inside, except loans," Taylor said.

Work on the parking lot began today, and "We will be doing it in stages," Taylor said.

The building was completed by Thompson Construction Co. of Big Spring.

THE CHEMICAL PEOPLE

Questions & Answers Survey results

The Chemical People town meetings sparked many questions from participants. Answers to those questions — provided by seven panelists — appear below. Chemical People Q & A continues tomorrow in the Herald.

Today's answers are by Big Spring school Superintendent Lynn Hise.

Q. Have any surveys been done at Big Spring High School? If so, what were the results?

A. A survey concerning alcohol and drug usage abuse was given to a representative sampling of students at Big Spring High School in the latter part of August 1983. The results of this survey were published in the Sept. 9, 1983 edition of the Big Spring Herald.

Q. How had do you think the drug and alcohol problem at Big Spring High School is?

A. According to the results of the recent survey given to students at Big Spring High School, there is definitely an alcohol/drug use problem among our students. However, detailed analysis of the survey seems to indicate that the large percentage of alcohol and drug use does not occur at school. Seventy-three percent of respondents indicated they have rarely or never seen students under the influence of alcohol on school grounds during the school day, and 79 percent of respondents said the same about marijuana.

Police Beat

Man injured in robbery

Bobby Vaughn, an attendant at the Thurman Oil Fina Service Station at 1604 FM 700, was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital and treated for a gash above his left eye following an aggravated robbery at the station at 6:15 p.m. Saturday, police reports said.

Vaughn told police two men entered the station, cut his head while throwing him on the floor, stole his wallet and contents worth $30 and took an undisclosed amount of cash from the register. The men then left the station on foot, police reports said.

Maudine Cole, clerk at the Pronto's Market at 2105 W. Third, told police at 7:50 a.m. Sunday that someone entered the business between 10 p.m. Saturday and 7:45 p.m. Sunday, broke into two video games and stole an undisclosed amount of coins, a microwave oven worth $300, 10 watches worth $99, 15 to 20 cans of beer, 12 bottles of wine, 70 to 80 cartons of cigarettes, $58 dollars in change, and assorted food items, police reports said.

Police received at 4:23 p.m. Saturday a report that two teen-age males were breaking street lights on 11th Place with rocks, reports said. Police found a broken globe and a broken bulb at the scene and arrested Ernest Guzman, 17, of 1401 Mesa in connection with evading arrest and criminal mischief, reports said.

Billy Dean Martin, 46, of El Paso was arrested at 9:22 p.m. Saturday at mile marker 175 on U.S. Interstate 20 for revocation of probation, driving while intoxicated and failure to maintain financial responsibility, police reports said.

Didget Edwards of 904 Ohio told police at 11:35 p.m. Saturday that someone she knows struck her in the face outside the T-Club Tavern at 311 N.W. Fourth, police reports said.

Maria Irma of Petersburg told at 7:15 p.m. Sunday that someone she knows intentionally drug her behind a vehicle causing bodily injury, police reports said. Irma was treated for injuries to her neck, head, knee and left arm and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

FACES FIRING — Grove, Okla. fifth-grade teacher Russell Turley could be fired today unless he signs an oath stating he'll be loyal to Oklahoma and federal constitutions.

Fifth-grade teacher refuses to sign loyalty oath to state

GROVE, Okla. (AP) — A fifth-grade teacher who has lived in Oklahoma all his life and taught in its schools for more than four years may lose his job because he refuses to sign a loyalty oath.

The state law requiring that all public employees sign an oath of loyalty to the state and federal constitutions had been overlooked by school officials until earlier this year, but now it is being enforced.

And Russell Turley, 34, could lose his job tonight at a special session of the Board of Education that was prompted by his refusal to sign by a Friday deadline.

"If he doesn't sign it, we're going to have to do what we're going to do," said school board member Ben Netherton.

"I had no idea it would go this far," Turley said. "I thought they'd let it slide — so what if one (person) didn't sign it."

Officials of the Grove School District, located in the northeastern corner of Oklahoma, believe they'll be breaking state law unless each employee signs the oath. Grove Superintendent Jim Bradford says he can't understand why Turley refused.

"To me it would not be an issue I would want to stake my employment on," Bradford said. "I don't think it inhibits a person from anything that would be of concern."

But Turley said that's not the point.

"It's hard to put it into words," he said. "If the system works, you don't need a loyalty oath. If you sign the loyalty oath you expect it to mean something."

Turley said the actions of some state employees who presumably have taken the oath show it doesn't prevent law-breaking. As an example, he named former House Speaker Dan Draper Jr., who was sentenced last month to three years in prison for his role in a vote-fraud scheme. He is free pending an appeal.

"It's a worthless piece of paper," Turley said of the oath.

Bradford said he required the 165 employees of the school district to sign the oath after he learned about it at a state Education Department meeting several months ago.

"I, like many other school districts, had overlooked the law," he said.

Bradford said he signed and notarized a copy of the oath and then gave his employees 30 days to do the same.

The oath was written in 1968 after a 1953 oath was found unconstitutional. It reads: "I do solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America and the Constitution and laws of the State of Oklahoma, and that I will faithfully discharge, according to the best of my ability, the duties of my office of employment."

Garnish

father refuses to pay. And according to figures from a national survey conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau, the local record mirrors the national trend.

A U.S. Census Bureau study of 17 million divorces in 1981 showed 15 percent of the spouses received alimony or child support, but only 43 percent of that figure were paid the full amount.

However, local statistics may be misleading because Texas district clerks' offices, where child support payments are recorded, keep no records of non-payment.

Mrs. Crittenden said her office is not required to make persons pay court-ordered child support.

"It is up to the ex-wife to initiate any action for non-payment," Mrs. Crittenden said.

Last year, approximately 1,000 men paid $68,118 in child support in the county. The district clerk's office keeps records of who pays and how much, but has no authority to force those who do not pay to do so, Mrs. Crittenden said.

A person seeking to initiate garnishment of wages for failure to pay child support should go through a private attorney, or the local district clerk or district attorney's office, Clements said.

Under the amendment, the court can order as much as one-third of the parent's wages to be taken out and sent directly to the district clerk's office, Clements said.

"Garnishment should have a fairly significant effect," Clements said. "It will be easier for the men to pay. They don't have to worry about going to the district court and paying."

Local lawyers who handle child support proceedings are divided about the effects of the new amendment.

Should an employer decide not to take out the child support payments from an employee's paycheck as required by the court order, the employer would be subject to a contempt order, Clements said.

"It's not a matter of the employer deciding if he wants to (take the money out)," Clements said. "It's a court order that he must comply with."

The census study showed child support was not paid because men often refused to pay and officials were unable to locate fathers. Mrs. Crittenden said location was a big reason for non-payment of child support.

"If the man or woman are in different states, it's real hard to get money," Mrs. Crittenden said.

Employees of the district clerk's office said they thought garnishment of wages for child support payments might help collections, but said there were a certain number of parents who simply refused to pay, thinking they were hurting their ex-spouses. Actually, the children are the persons who suffer because the mothers lack money needed for the child's food, clothing and school, clerk's employees said.

Although the district clerks' offices are not required to seek payment of child support, they often make efforts to contact persons reluctant to pay. Colleen Barton, the district clerk deputy who handles child support, says she makes contact once with each individual.

"I send one letter and then it's up to the woman to start contempt (of court proceedings)," Mrs. Barton said.

Those efforts to get child support often follow a seasonal pattern. Most women make attempts in the months before Christmas, Mrs. Barton said. The extra money is needed for gifts for the children, she said.

Attorneys

"You still have to try and locate the person and his employer. The new procedure could be almost as cumbersome as to file for a contempt order," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said he supported anything that would make it easier to for the custodial parent or managerial conservator to receive child support payments.

County attorney Bob Miller, who handles child support cases in his private practice, said the amendment was "good."

"It's one more way of making a father take responsibility for his children. It (the amendment) should work; we have federal garnishment and garnishment in other states," Miller said.

However, "some people don't have jobs long enough to garnish their wages. The guys that usually aren't paying are the ones that don't have jobs," Miller said.

The new amendment will add to the court's contempt powers, if the papers are successfully served, Oseasohn said. She said a limited number of employers in a community such as Big Spring might stop parents from switching jobs every two weeks to avoid garnishment, because employers would be unwilling to hire someone with that kind of reputation.

"I hope that the threat of going to the employer (for garnishment) will convince parents to pay child support. Although an employer can't legally fire or demote an employee because his wages are being garnished for child support, the employer won't be very happy at having to split up his check," Oseasohn said, who noted many persons have already filed for garnishment.

"Texas has a very bad reputation on following through on reciprocal child support for other states," Oseasohn said. "I'm really hoping this could help change that."

after the show. Several hundred people also gathered for a candlelight ceremony in Kansas City.

"We saw all of the nightmares come true. We got a glimpse at what is really at stake in a nuclear war," said Longhurst, who called a town meeting for today to discuss the nuclear arms race. A nuclear disarmament rally was planned at City Hall in Kansas City.

Even before the movie began, pickets in front of ABC offices in New York City, Los Angeles and Lynchburg, Va., protested what they said was the pro-disarmament theme of the program.

Chamber asks city to boost hotel tax

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce wants to raise the city's hotel tax on visitors so it can have some money to attract more visitors.

The Big Spring City Council Tuesday will hear a request by the Chamber to raise the city's hotel-motel bed occupancy tax from 4 to 7 percent.

The Chamber said it will make the request with the provision that 3.5 percent of the 7 percent total tax be allocated to the Chamber's Convention and Visitor's Bureau to promote tourism to the city.

The request comes following the presentation to the council Thursday of a petition signed by 12 of the 16 hotel and motel operators in the city stating their agreement with the tax increase.

In other business, the council will hear a discussion of traffic and water problems that may result if a proposed new apartment complex is built in the Coronado Hills section of the city.

Several residents of the mostly white, upper-middle class neighborhood have complained the new complex will increase the amount of traffic and lower the water pressure in the area.

In other business, the council is expected to approve the plans and specifications to seal cracks on the runway at Big Spring Air Park. The council is also expected to solicit bids on equipment for 15 new patrol cars.

The council will hear the first reading of an ordinance implementing a water pollution control and abatement program required by a Texas Senate bill.

The ordinance will authorize monitoring and enforcement activities, require reporting of major discharges by city businesses, and provide for inspection and testing of waste discharges.

The council also will hear the first reading of a resolution authorizing Mayor Clyde Angel to sign a one-year lease with the DBA Satellite Antenna Manufacturing Co. for Building No. 1102 at the Big Spring Air Park. Rent on the building will be $610 monthly.

The council also will make an appointment to the Zoning Board of Adjustments to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Daryl Hohertz.

Japanese freighter sinks near Oregon

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — More than 3,000 gallons of diesel fuel leaked from a storm-damaged Japanese freighter, killing birds and polluting Oregon beaches, and officials fear another 75,000 gallons of fuel still in the crippled ship could escape.

The ship ran aground when its Korean captain tried to enter Yaquina Bay in heavy seas against Coast Guard instructions, Coast Guard spokesman Lou Paris said Sunday.

"This is a major spill and it has the potential to be a really bad spill," Paris said.

The 350-foot Blue Magpie broke into three pieces when it rammed the end of a mile-long manmade rock jetty during a storm Saturday night. A Coast Guard helicopter rescued its 19 Korean crew members.

The nighttime rescue effort "was pretty incredible. They had to get closer than 100 feet to the deck during 50 knot winds," Paris said.

Coast Guard radio logs covering a two-hour period before the wreck showed the Blue Magpie's captain was repeatedly warned of the extreme danger of trying to enter the harbor in 15- to 30-foot seas. The captain replied several times that he wanted to get out of the raging storm.

Chief Officer Kang Tae Jung said in an interview Sunday that the ship had charts warning of the dangers of entering the harbor. But he said the ship rolled as much as 45 degrees, and Capt. Kim Gap Bong feared it might capsize.

"It's a mess," said Dale Snow, marine biologist with the Oregon Department of Fish & Wildlife. "We've had a fair number of birds involved, but many were past saving."

Snow said fish and mammals like harbor seals and sea lions probably wouldn't be affected, but razor clams in the area could be wiped out.

About 75 volunteers had brought in nearly 100 oil-soaked birds and "that's not even enough to be the tip of the iceberg," Snow said.

"Our concern is to hold pollution to a minimum," Paris said. "If everything goes right, we'll try to pump it out. We'll try to get a crew on board, attach a suction pump and pump the oil into what is basically a large plastic bag."

Paris said rough seas were delaying cleanup operations.

"It's still pretty well localized," he said. "We're trying to herd the oil that's still loose."

Paris said federal law requires the owner of the ship, Jinyu Shipping Co. of Ehimecka, Japan, to repay all costs associated with the cleanup.

The Blue Magpie is registered in Panama. It was en route to Vancouver, British Columbia, from Long Beach, Calif., when it tried to put in here.

Oswald's records off limits

NEW YORK — The daughter of Lee Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin of President John F. Kennedy, says crates of information concerning her late father remain unexamined at a Texas university, and not even she has been allowed to look inside.

June Oswald Porter, 21, says the papers were part of her late grandmother's library, which was donated by her uncle to Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. "No one, not even my sister and I," has been allowed to see the collection, she says.

JUNE OSWALD

The library consists of "probably the most complete collection of material concerning my father," she says in a bylined article in the current issue of People magazine.

Ms. Porter, whose mother remarried when June was 3, says the papers were given to TCU after Oswald's mother, Marguerite, died without leaving a will.

"Though we have fought to obtain possession of the library, the matter needs to be pursued through the courts," she says.

She also says she first discovered "the hatred people have for the name Oswald" as a freshman at the University of Texas, when a roommate demanded that she move because "her father would not allow her life to be put in danger by living with me."

Ms. Porter describes herself as an aspiring journalist attending a university in the Northeast.

Black astronaut honored

PHILADELPHIA — Lt. Col. Guion R. Bluford, Jr., the first black American astronaut to go into space, is coming home to a hero's welcome this week as honorary grand marshal of Philadelphia's Thanksgiving Day parade.

Bluford, 41, who blasted off aboard the space shuttle Challenger on Aug. 30, was to kick off a four-day visit today when Gov. Dick Thornburgh and Mayor William Green greet him at City Hall. Other plans for the day include an afternoon reception and an evening testimonial complete with filmed highlights of his space flight.

The mayor proclaimed this week "Guy Bluford Week," and the City Council passed a resolution expressing its "pride in the performance of Philadelphia-born Col. Bluford."

A Philadelphia booster all the way, Bluford took with him into space a city flag and a Liberty Bell lapel pin.

Walker salutes soldiers

SAVANNAH — Football star Herschel Walker was among well-wishers welcoming home a unit of Army Rangers that was in the first wave of the U.S. invasion of Grenada, and true to form, the Heisman trophy winner didn't fumble his words of admiration.

HERSCHEL WALKER

"I'd love you to be on my team because you're the best defense," Walker told the Rangers of the 1st Battalion, 7th Infantry, at a hometown salute on Saturday.

Walker, the University of Georgia great who now plays for the United States Football League's New Jersey Generals, joined Secretary of the Army John Marsh and other elected officials for "Ranger Appreciation Day."

The day featured speeches, food, entertainment and an overflight by two C-130 aircraft — the type of plane from which the Rangers leaped into Grenada. Five men from the battalion, based at Hunter Army Airfield, died in the invasion.

Kennedy tops favorite poll

NEW YORK — Twenty years after his assassination, John F. Kennedy is the favorite of all American presidents, according to a Newsweek poll released Sunday.

Most questioned also think that the United States would not have become involved in full-scale war in Vietnam if KQody had lived and that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone in the assassination.

Telephone interviews with 1,032 adults between Oct. 14 and 30 showed that of all the nation's presidents, 30 percent wished Kennedy were president today.

His nearest contender was Franklin D. Roosevelt with 10 percent, with Harry Truman and Ronald Reagan close behind with 9 and 8 percent respectively.

Winter storms pound U.S.

A "potentially dangerous" storm dropped up to 2 feet of snow today in the mountains of the West and blasted Arizona with 70 mph winds, while the South was reeling from tornadoes and lightning-laced thunderstorms that left at least three people dead.

In Pennsylvania, six other people died when their twin-engine plane lost power and slammed into a hillside during a rainstorm Sunday night, officials said. The cause of the crash had not been determined.

Winter storm warnings were posted today in much of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah Nevada and Arizona as heavy snow fell across the Rockies. It was coming down as fast as an inch and hour in Casper, Wyo.

As the storm pressed eastward into the Midwest, winter storm watches went up in northeast Nebraska, Kansas, northwest Iowa, South Dakota and southwest Minnesota.

In the central mountains of Arizona, the state Department of Public Safety on Sunday reported winds gusting up to 70 mph, ice-slick roads and visibility reduced by blowing snow.

In Southern California, stiff winds Sunday snapped power lines leaving about 5,000 homes and businesses temporarily without power.

The South and Midwest were battered Sunday by twisters, high winds and drenching thunderstorms that demolished homes and knocked out power to thousands of residents.

A 15-year-old Boy Scout was killed near Calhoun, Ga., when he was hit by a truck while trying to clear an interstate highway of construction barriers blown down by high winds.

Winds up to 53 mph, rain and what witnesses called a funnel cloud slashed through a shopping mall in Lafayette, Ind., heavily damaging two stores and several nearby homes and apartment buildings. No serious injuries were reported.

In Michigan, winds up to 80 mph lashed Ottawa County in the western part of the state, leaving behind an estimated $100,000 in property damage and knocking out power to more than 500 residents for more than two hours.

Derailment probe begun

BAYTOWN — Federal investigators have begun examining the wreckage of a Southern Pacific train that ramed a line of idle freight cars, killing four men and injuring a fifth.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board, the Federal Railroad Administration, the Texas Railroad Commission and Southern Pacific took measurements, checked equipment and reviewed operating procedures for clues to the crash, Southern Pacific spokesman Tony Aleman said Sunday.

He said initial evidence indicated that "the train should have been able to stop."

The wreck occurred Saturday in a yard where trains are assembled for cross-country hauling. Aleman said it was traveling at the maximum allowed speed of 20 mph.

Rebels advance on Arafat

BEIRUT — Palestinian rebels using Syrian-supplied tanks advanced toward Yasser Arafat's headquarters in Tripoli today as the port city came under heavy bombardment.

Lebanon's state radio said the rebels seized the northern entrance of the city and pushed to about 1,000 yards of Arafat's headquarters. But an Arafat aide at the headquarters, reached by telephone, said the radio reports were exaggerated.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said fighting continued in Mankoubin, an outlying neighborhood that the radio reports indicated had fallen to the rebel side. He said the Tripoli

Environmentalists wage battle over forest

LUFKIN — Environmentalists say they are making headway in their fight to keep chainsaws out of Texas national forests, but to East Texans who work for the timber industry, they are "fern fondlers" who want to take away jobs.

In Angelina National Forest, hundreds of giant oak and magnolia trees already marked for cutting were granted an unusual stay of execution last month when the U.S. Forest Service decided to delay a scheduled 36-acre timber sale.

The delay was hailed as a major victory by Texas environmentalists who are battling to preserve about 65,000 acres in the state's four national forests as wilderness.

A bill sponsored by U.S. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, that would outlaw logging in the wilderness areas faces stiff opposition from an East Texas congressman labeled "Timber Charlie" for his support of the lumber industry.

U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, has introduced a rival bill, backed by the Forest Service, that would set aside only 9,000 acres of wilderness.

neighborhoods where most of Arafat's loyalists had dug in were not in immediate danger of a ground assault.

W. Germans protest missiles

BONN (AP) — Riot police sprayed water and tear gas at angry protesters outside the Parliament building today as Chancellor Helmut Kohl reaffirmed his government's plans to deploy U.S. nuclear missiles this year.

HELMUT KOHL

"If negotiations remain unsuccessful, the alliance will establish the readiness of the first Pershing 2 missiles and cruise missiles by year's end," Kohl said in a 70-minute speech starting a two-day debate on deployment.

Several thousand police sealed off streets around the Parliament building with steel barriers to prevent thousands of anti-missile demonstrators from approaching closer than 100 yards.

A mixture of water and tear gas from five water cannons was sprayed on about 450 protesters who tried to block traffic on a busy boulevard on the edge of the government district.

Kohl's right-center coalition government has a 58-seat majority in Parliament, so the missile plan is expected to win endorsement in a vote Tuesday.

Referring to U.S.-Soviet arms limitation talks in Geneva, Kohl appealed "anew to the Soviet leadership not to persist in rigid principles but rather to make a result possible."

Kohl accused the Soviets of trying to pressure West Germany into abandoning the North Atlantic Treaty Organization deployment decision, but said he would never bow to threats.

"Whoever knuckles under to the pressure of a dictatorship because he does not stand up to its power always encourages new extortion and use of force. No democratic politician can allow himself to get into the position of not being able to decide freely," Kohl said.

NATO plans to station 572 Pershing 2 and cruise nuclear missiles in Western Europe over the next five years, including 204 in West Germany, and says they will go into place unless Soviet and U.S. negotiators work out an agreement to limit nuclear arms.

Church sprayed by gunfire

DARKLEY — The killers who burst into a Protestant church and sprayed machine gun fire on hymn-singing worshippers today were linked to a guerrilla gang led by Ireland's most wanted gunman, police said.

Three church elders were killed and seven wounded in the Sunday night attack when masked gunmen burst into the Mountain Lodge Pentecostal Church in Darkley, deep in a stronghold of the outlawed Irish Republican Army in County Armagh near the Irish border.

A police spokesman, who declined to be named, said an examination of the spent shell casings scattered around the bullet-riddled church showed they came from a weapon used in three attacks claimed by the Irish National Liberation Army, a Marxist offshoot of the mainly Roman Catholic IRA.

The spokesman linked the weapon to the murder of two police officers in Markethill, near Dalkey, a year ago and two ambushes on police patrols in Dungannon, County Tyrone, in May and August.

Shotgun wedding of law and truth

Myra Bradwell had the temerity to think that, even though she was a woman, she was entitled to practice law. The state of Illinois disagreed and the U.S. Supreme Court affirmed its ruling, opining that it is the "paramount destiny and mission of woman ... to fulfill the noble and benign offices of wife and mother."

It's been more than a century since the Bradwell case, but the other day the Supreme Court took up its contemporary analog: The claim by Elizabeth Hishon that she should be considered for partnership in a law firm on her merits, not her gender.

The legal profession has been unsettled by the suit, not least because the firm in question, Atlanta's King & Spalding, numbers among its partners former President Carter's attorney general, Griffen Bell, and his political confidant, Charles Kirbo. The firm contends that, because it is a partnership, it falls outside the scope of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which bars employment discrimination on the basis of sex, race and religion.

The lower tribunals concurred with this argument, likening the law partnership to a family and refusing, as the trial court phrased it, to aid in "the enforcement of shotgun weddings."

But those decisions misread the law. Although partnerships proliferate in medicine, architecture and engineering as well as law, that label has no legal significance in this context. The Civil Rights Act doesn't care how a business chooses to describe itself. It simply and straightforwardly affirms that individuals, women as well as men, are entitled to equal opportunity on the job.

A Supreme Court decision confirming this principle would assure that women who have entered the professions in rapidly growing numbers during the past decade aren't stalled by prejudice before reaching the pinnacle of their careers. There is some evidence that women have been excluded from partnership. Even as the number of female lawyers has mushroomed from 10,000 to 75,000 during just the last decade, disproportionately few become partners; while over half the male law school graduates of 10 years ago are presently partners, just 23 percent of their female classmates hold the keys to this exclusive club.

Nor would a court ruling that partnerships are covered by the Civil Rights Act undermine the collegiality of those enterprises, as King & Spalding insists. Small businesses are exempt from the statute, partly in acknowledgement of the intensity of relationships that often prevail there, but law firms increasingly look less like families than the corporations they represent, with networks of offices around the nation and upward of 300 attorneys on the payroll. Although attorneys plead that to do their jobs well, they must be free from the long reach of government, there's not good reason why the bar, sworn to uphold the law, should be permitted to evade the law's plain meaning.

The voters are growing benign

WASHINGTON - The present economic recovery departs from the norm in one respect at least. No well-identified group of theorists can legitimately claim parentage.

So more than the usual amount of credit goes to the political leadership. The immediate consequence, evident in many of the off-year elections recently, is a benign electorate, likely to smile on the idea of another term for Ronald Reagan.

The pattern of past recoveries is being replicated in almost all particulars in the present pickup. A big spurt in the second quarter, and slightly lower advances in the third and fourth quarters, look like yielding an annual growth of 6.7 percent - just about average for the first year of all postwar recoveries.

Housing, as often in the past, led the way. There also came, as usual, a stock market boom, followed by a big rise in consumer purchases, notably of autos and other durables. Manufacturing is now beginning to pick up, and investment seems likely to follow. Unemployment has dropped two points in a year - which is much better than average. Inflation has been cut in half in two years, also better than average.

Few of the best-known forecasters, however, can confidently claim to have told us so. On the contrary, the most ebullient spoke in tones softened by past mistakes.

The supply-siders, for example, had claimed that large tax cuts would spur savings and foster hard work. Business activity would flourish to the point where tax revenue would burgeon, and costs would go down to the point of licking inflation.

But savings have, in fact, fallen. Cuts in tax revenues have opened a vista of super-deficits. So the supply-siders are reduced to saying that the benefits of tax incentives took time to come home, especially since the tax reductions were offset by hikes in Social Security levies.

The monetarists, for their part, said inflation could be licked rapidly at little cost. The main requirement was that the federal Reserve abandon discretion in regulating the supply of money and credit. Instead of that chicken approach, the monetarists wanted a cold turkey commitment to tie the supply of money and credit to the ups and downs of the monetary aggregates represented in the M-1 and M-2 figures.

But, as it happened, the cost of beating inflation was a terrible recession. Interest rates went through the roof, driving many firms out of business and crippling whole industries. Unemployment rose to 10.8 percent last December, a postwar record. Recovery set in only after the Fed, worried by a bank collapse and the threat of default in Mexico, expanded the money supply last August. The decision to ease up, far from being ordained cold turkey by the numbers, was an act of pure discretion.

Not only was the monetarist prescription not followed in full, but there are also the big deficits. The red ink scares the monetarists, since they assume the Fed, unshackled from the discipline of monetary aggregates, will keep loosening money supply. So the joy of recovery is shadowed for the monetarists by the threat of new inflation.

The neo-Keynesians came, perhaps, closest to getting it right. They saw that big budget deficits and a looser monetary policy would spur demand. Such forecasters as George Perry of the Brookings Institution have been fearlessly predicting a strong recovery since early in the year.

But many were a mite slow in calling the turn. They didn't think that unemployment would come down as rapidly as it has, given the big drop in inflation. Many, moreover, have been worried that the overhanging deficits would crimp investment and abort the recovery.

The prevalence of doubt set off all the more conspicuously President Reagan's optimistic babble about the economy. No second thoughts for him about the big deficits. Nor about the reduction in the tax base. Where wiser men hedged bets, he plunged. So, without being able to explain the outcome, he gets, while it lasts, the lion's share of the credit.

Nor is that the only political consequence. Because so many of the experts hesitated to pronounce the economy well, a lot of ordinary Americans also nursed doubts. Now that inflation is way down and unemployment falling fast, the sensation of recovery feels all the better. We experience a pleasant surprise. Which also pays off politically. The midterm elections last week marked an end to an era of nasty politics. Philadelphia elected a black mayor without much fuss. Kentucky routinely chose a woman governor. Mississippi picked as governor a man who had been subjected to dramatic charges of homosexual relations with black, male prostitutes.

The winners in each case were not militant minorities. They were well-qualified candidates. The politics of meanness lost. For the mood of the country, no longer prey to the invidious gnaw of rampant inflation, has turned benign. That is good for most of us - and especially, if he seeks re-election, for Ronald Reagan.

Billy Graham

Woman should pray for atheist husband

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I just don't know what to do about my husband, who not only wants nothing to do with religion but constantly makes fun of my faith and even curses God and scorns those who believe. We can't even talk about it or he flies into a rage. Sometimes I wonder if I can take it any longer. — Mrs. K.J.G.

DEAR MRS. K.J.G.: Your husband's problem is that he is running from God. Perhaps his conscience is bothering him, or it may be that the Holy Spirit is convicting him of his sins and his need to repent and turn to Christ. But don't give up, because God has placed you there to help him and God wants to use you.

Do you remember the background of the apostle Paul? He hated Christ, and even reacted violently against those who were disciples of Jesus. But God touched his heart and changed him. I cannot promise that the same thing will happen to your husband - but almost every day I get letters from wives (and husbands) who have prayed for their spouses for many years and almost given up hope, and yet they have seen them come to Christ.

The most important thing you can do for your husband is to pray for him. You can't change his life - but God can, and he "is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine" (Ephesians 3:20). Pray that God will convince him of his need of Christ, and that the Holy Spirit will help him overcome the pride that makes him turn his back on God.

Then pray that God will help you be a witness to your husband, especially in the way you live before him. Does he see something of Christ's love and peace in you? Does he sense that you have an inner joy and strength that only Christ can give? "Wives, in the same way be submissive to your husbands so that, if any of them do not believe the word, they may be won over without talk by the behavior of their wives, when they see the purity and reverence of your lives. Your beauty ... should be that of your inner self, the unfading beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit" (1 Peter 3:1-4). God wants to use you, and he will if you are willing to be used of him.

Letter perfect

A personal letter is a good thing because you say things you can't say in a crowd and might not even say to the person face to face. If you feel like it, a letter allows you to take yourself and your thoughts more seriously than you dare take them in conversation.

Andy Rooney never writes letters anymore. The art of letter writing has atrophied to the point where we now use only Hallmark cards to convey our feelings. Even worse, is the fact we use the telephone to convey our feelings rather than taking time to sit down and write them out. That's fine and convenient but at the same time it seems cheap and hollow. There's something genuinely human and warm about a letter. There is also something lasting and permanent about a letter.

It's too bad that the thrill of anticipating and actually getting letter from loved ones and friends is vanishing. A letter can be savored and read again and again - a phone call fades almost as soon as one hangs up. I have letters from old friends that I occasionally take out and read and the letters can still stir old emotions and memories - I can't remember a phone call from a week ago.

And in some ways it's comforting to still have those old letters. It's like a piece of my past is preserved. Who I was, who my friends were and what we were doing is all there.

Andy Rooney says there ought to be a five-cent stamp for personal letters to encourage people to write, but I'm not sure that would be enough.

Writing is dying. Why should one preserve thoughts on paper when phoning is so much easier? Saving time is much more important to us than saving something of substance, such as your feelings.

I'm not saying we are insincere over the phone, but making the effort to write just seems more rich and resonant.

One college professor suggests that writing has become an abnormal skill. He says writing should be taught to students as a skill with interests and rewards much like computer programming. He says they will then be taken with the idea of mastering something challenging.

I've always thought of writing as unusual and challenging, but I know many persons consider it to be a grim task. It is something that can be handled much easier by phone, form letter or greeting card rather than with our heads and hearts.

So the letter is fading away. For many of us, it has already lost its validity and function. It looks like things can only get worse as technology improves.

No memories of our thoughts will be saved and treasured by anyone.

As one of my best writing friends offered not long ago: "All that will remain of you the individual will be one-dimensional photographs, perhaps a video or two. The remainder of your history will be what someone else writes about you in the obituary column."

The sad story of two born losers

WASHINGTON - Their romance never had a chance. Richard Bouvia and Elizabeth Castner met by mail. He was shut up in prison; she was confined to a wheelchair, her muscles atrophied, unable even to use her hands except to press buttons. It took her four or five hours to peck out painfully a simple letter to him on a typewriter with one finger.

They were born losers. Richard had been raised in poverty and had never been able to break out of it. He finally tried robbery and failed at that, too.

Elizabeth's handicap had been more than her parents could handle. They had entrusted her to institutions after she was 10. For the next eight years, she saw her mother only twice. Her father, by his own admission, was "cold" to her. She felt unloved, unwanted.

Then Richard was transferred to a prison near her home in San Diego. She made regular visits. Under the stern eyes of prison guards, they reached out to one another. After Richard was released, they saw each other every day for four months. Then on Aug. 25, 1962, she became Elizabeth Bouvia.

For the ex-convict and the paraplegic, marriage was not easy. Richard tried, really tried, to earn a living. But for an unskilled worker in a time of high unemployment, the best he could get were occasional janitorial jobs. So they scraped by on welfare.

Elizabeth was strong-willed. She had fought her way through San Diego State University and, against all odds, had earned a bachelor's degree in social work. Friends say she gave strength to Richard.

But the struggle to survive became wearing, with Elizabeth wracked with pain and Richard boiling with frustration. They moved to Iowa, but she couldn't take the poverty. She fled to her father's home in Oregon, then called Richard and asked him to join her.

Again, they faced life together. But again, they were beaten down. He couldn't find work. They depended on welfare checks from California, which they no longer were entitled to collect. They felt like criminals, fearful that they might be caught and have their sole support cut off.

One day, Richard disappeared. "I just left," he said. "I just walked out. I just had to get out." He didn't tell Elizabeth where he was until he reached Iowa. Then he telephoned her and said he was sorry.

She went back to an institution - the general hospital in Riverside, Calif. Then around last September, as Richard remembers it, Elizabeth called him. "Come and get me," she pleaded. They would find an apartment and try again, she promised.

Richard didn't have a penny, so he started hitchhiking to California. He was stranded near Cedar Rapids, Iowa. For 47 hours, he couldn't get a ride. Hungry and bedraggled, he looked up the Salvation Army.

He tried to telephone Elizabeth, collect, because he had no money. The hospital refused to accept the charges. He had the telephone number of a friend in Riverside but had left it in a pair of pants at his sister's house. She had no telephone, so he had to write for it. That took 10 days.

He learned from the friend that Elizabeth was front-page news. She had lost the will to live. But she was so crippled that she couldn't even commit suicide. So she was suing for the right to die. She wanted to stop eating.

A frantic Richard begged the Salvation Army for the bus fare to rush to Riverside. He went straight from the bus station to the hospital. But Elizabeth wouldn't see him. Finally, he arranged a visit through her American Civil Liberties Union attorney.

"She was cold," said Richard. "She wasn't the same person I married." Richard tried to explain why he hadn't arrived earlier, but she wouldn't listen.

He understands; at least he thinks so. "All through her life, nobody cared, nobody loved her," he said. "When I didn't show up, she thought I didn't love her."

He wants her to know that he does love her, that he wants her to live, that he will do his best to make their marriage work this time. He has stopped by the hospital and left small, intimate gifts. But she won't see him.

So Richard wrote her a letter. But he feared she would never read it. So he sent it to me and asked me to print it. In tomorrow's column, I will publish Richard Bouvia's appeal to his wife to stay alive.

Impulse buying can be avoided

Impulse buying is a common and sometimes costly habit, says Dr. Marjorie Smith, family resource management specialist.

"People who get down to the end of the month and don't know where their money went, or who frequently wonder why they bought certain things, may have been doing some impulse buying."

The first step in reducing impulse buying is to recognize the many temptations. For example, attractive displays at the ends of aisles or near check-out counters may encourage last minute purchases.

Shopping from a list, whether it's for groceries, clothes or gifts, can be helpful in checking the impulse to buy, she said. Even looking through catalogs at home may help prepare a shopper to go to the store with a specific purchase in mind.

Since groceries are a major purchase category, making sure all family members know how to shop for food wisely may reduce impulse spending. With large number of employed women, more husbands and teenagers buy the family groceries, yet they may not have as many shopping skills.

In some cases shoppers can slow down the purchase process to give themselves time to think before taking action. Before buying, Smith suggests asking questions such as "When will I use this?" "Where will I store this?" or "For the same money, would I rather have something else?"

For a major purchase, a consumer can make it a rule to "sleep on it" before buying. A good offer should be just as good the next day.

Consumers should also be aware of their mood when they shop. "If you're tired, hungry or depressed, you may buy things that you don't really need." You might be better off postponing a shopping trip until you have rested or eaten a meal.

Being in a hurry also can lead to poor purchase decisions so try to allot adequate time for shopping.

Shoppers might also try some basic budgeting. For example, by establishing a spending plan for each pay period and sticking with it, they can better control their family finances.

If you budget can accommodate it, a workable spending plan should probably include an amount that can be spent just fun since it is difficult to give up the impulse buying habit.

Dear Abby

Social security issue can be solved

DEAR ABBY: Your readers may be interested in legislation currently pending in Congress to correct the Social Security "notch" problem. Simply stated, the notch problem can cause a person who reaches age 62 after 1978 to receive a much lower benefit than a person with an identical wage history who reaches age 62 in an earlier year. The difference could be as great as $100 a month and could reach a total of $20,000 for some persons over the course of their retirement.

Bills pending in Congress to correct the notch include:
BILL NUMBER — SPONSOR
 H.R. 1483 — Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y.
 H.R. 1964 — Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass.
 H.R. 1965 — Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass.
 H.R. 3013 — Rep. Bernard J. St. Germain, D-R.I.
 H.R. 3859 — Rep. Dan Daniel, D-Va.
 H.R. 3893 — Rep. James H. Quillen, R-Tenn.
 H.R. 3925 — Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky.
 H.R. 3947 — Rep. Don Fuqua, D-Fla.
 H.R. 4093 — Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif.

Unfortunately, correcting this inequity will be very costly. Nevertheless, your readers who are affected by the notch may want to contact their members of Congress.

Laurie A. Fiori, Legislative Assistant, American Association of Retired Persons, 1909 K. St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20049.

DEAR LAURIE: Thanks for the update. Granted, it will be very costly to correct this inequity, but as I said in an earlier column, that money will be pumped back into the economy because our senior citizens must spend their Social Security checks immediately in order to survive — unlike younger folks who would save it for a rainy day. For our elderly, it's already raining!

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I were married secretly. We have not told my parents because they disapprove of him. My love for him is stronger than it has ever been, but I also love my family and want them to accept us as one.

I am presently attending college away from home and it is about to kill me to keep my marriage a secret. I want to shout it to the world, but I'm afraid my parents will not continue to pay for my education if they know I married this guy.

DEAR WORRIED: Tell your parents that you are married, and if they discontinue paying for your education, find a way to pay for it yourself. (Many students work and go to college.) To lie about your marital status in order to continue getting financial help from your parents is both dishonest and immature.

Dr. Donohue

Lung problem treatable

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there no cure for bronchiectasis? Is there no medicine for it? I am a very outgoing lady who attends many social affairs. I have lots of mucus production, but no trouble breathing. I've had pneumonia several times. I'd go anywhere for a cure. — C.C.

I can't give you a cure for bronchiectasis. There is none. There are many illnesses that we cannot get rid of, but which we can control. This is one.

In bronchiectasis, the bronchi are affected. Those are the breathing tubes that branch off from the main airways to the lungs. "Ectasis" means dilation, or expansion. So bronchiectasis means expansion of some of the bronchi, resulting from a loss of elasticity of the walls.

If only a few are bulging then the disease is not so bad. If a great many are affected breathing becomes difficult. From your letter, this doesn't seem to be your problem.

Cheese, fruit platter great for guests

Cheese, fruit and crackers make easy platters for entertaining. Surround a red-jacketed Gouda cheese, cut in wedges, with parsley, then rows of wheat thins. Serve with green grapes, pears and apples.

Cough is a prominent symptom and sputum produced may be blood-streaked. Lung infection was once the common cause of the problem until antibiotics made fast and effective arrest of such infections possible. Certain families have a tendency to develop breathing-tube weakness, leading to the bulging. Because cure is not possible for this permanent condition, treatments are used to lessen the distressing symptoms.

Learning good postural drainage techniques (see your physician) helps rid the breathing tubes of secretions that accumulate. Getting plenty of fluids helps keep those secretions thin and loose so they are more easily expectorated. Medicines help, especially when normal airways narrow, which they can do from irritation caused by secretions spilling over into them from the bulging ones.

Respiratory infections have to be treated promptly. Occasionally, when the affected airways are grouped in a small section of the lung that section can be removed surgically. Bronchiectasis is no piece of cake, but it doesn't have to be the end of the world for you.

Dear Dr. Donohue: One doctor told me I had auricular fibrillation.

Another told me I had atrial fibrillation. A third told me I had arterial sclerotic heart disease! If possible will you explain in plain English that I can understand about the three diggerent kinds of heart disease, or is it all one and the same? — Mrs. C.B.

Atrial fibrillation and auricular fibrillation are the same thing. Arteriosclerotic heart disease is the commonest cause of the problem. It means the heart arteries are hardened with fat deposits so badly that the heart muscle isn't getting sufficient blood supply. That is what causes your heart to get out of kilter, producing irregular beating rhythm (fibrillation).

The atria (or auricles) are the two top heart chambers. The normal heartbeat starts there and travels down to the lower chambers, the ventricles, from where blood is pumped out to the body. If the heart isn't getting enough blood, the regular rhythm of the heart may be disrupted.

So the next question is what to do about all this. There are different ways to slow the heartbeat and try to restore a normal rhythm. The two medicines you mention (in another part of your letter) are often used. I hope that by the time you read this they have worked for you.

There's no evidence that such a method would be effective. You may be referring to plasmapheresis. That is a technique for removing the plasma portion of the blood (in a centrifuge) and replacing it. The idea is to clear the blood of joint-damaging antibodies. There was some interest in this as a possible help several years back, but controlled studies since have not shown improvement. It has been tried among a group of RA patients.

Barbara Kennedy tells about chapter's aims

Alpha Kappa Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi had a banana split rush party in the home of Susan Hester, recently.

Barbara Kennedy gave a program on the aims and purposes of Beta Sigma Phi and explained the functions of each officer and committee.

Plans were made for the Thanksgiving basket which is given to a Big Spring family each year by the chapter. Members will bring items to fill the basket and will deliver it Nov. 22.

The next meeting will be Nov. 22 with Susan Hester giving the program.

Principal bugs teacher lounge

TROY N.C. (AP) — Several teachers at an elementary school have asked for transfers after learning that the school's principal bugged the faculty lounge two years ago, a newspaper reports.

A teacher who asked not to be identified said the microphone was installed in 1981 and was found by four Troy Elementary School teachers on Nov. 1, The Charlotte Observer reported Sunday.

The teacher said she found out about the discovery at a Nov. 8 faculty meeting at which Principal Charles E. Russell apologized.

Harriet Caligan, district representative of the state Association of Educators, said several teachers have asked for transfers since the incident.

"I would hate to try to justify the legality of it," Ms. Caligan said. "If it is not illegal, it is certainly despicable."

The teachers took the bug to Superintendent Larry Ivey on Nov. 2, Ms. Caligan said. A closed session of the county Board of Education was held Nov. 7, and an undisclosed disciplinary action was taken against Russell, she said.

Ivey confirmed Sunday that Russell, principal of the 700-student school for about 15 years, was disciplined. But he would give no details.

Ivey said he had called a special meeting for today to "talk with the teachers."

"At this point in time, there's nothing I can say," Russell said Sunday.

The teacher, one of the 30 at the school, said her colleagues have not asked that Russell be fired or resign.

Kraft recalls cheese

GLENVIEW, Ill. (AP) — Kraft Inc. announced on Sunday a voluntary nationwide recall of some eight-ounce packages of Cracker Barrel sharp cheddar cheese spread, citing evidence of salmonella bacteria.

The food items marked with the "best-when-purchased-by date of MAR-84 C-1" are being recalled, Kraft said. No other dates or flavors of the product are involved, the company said.

Salmonella bacteria was discovered in some samples of the cheese, a company statement said, but it did not say how many or where the samples were located. Telephone calls to a company spokesman at the Kraft offices here went unanswered Sunday night.

The company said 4,367 cases of the product were distributed in 24 states and one territory.

Salmonella bacteria can cause food poisoning.

The sharp cheddar cold pack cheese is packaged in red, clover-shaped, rigid plastic containers sealed with gold foil and a reclosable lid. The purchase date is printed on the label on the bottom of the container.

Dallas destroys Chiefs

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

DALLAS — With "Air Coryell" apparently grounded in San Diego, the Kansas City Chiefs have gained supremacy in the NFL skyways through "Air Mackovic." But for all their passing wizardry, the Chiefs were no match for the Dallas Cowboys Sunday afternoon in Texas stadium.

Tony Dorsett broke for scoring runs of 28 and 32 yards and the Cowboys defense held the Chiefs to 43 yards rushing as Dallas outscored Kansas City 41-21 in an inter-conference battle before a sellout crowd of 64,103.

The win boosted the Cowboys' record to 10-2 and allowed Dallas to keep pace with Washington, which destroyed the Los Angeles Rams 42-20 in Anaheim.

The Chiefs put the football in the air a record 59 times Sunday as starting quarterback Bill Kenney threw for 337 yards and a pair of touchdowns to speedy wide receiver Carlos Carson. The previous record for Cowboy opponent's attempted passes in a game was 50 by Philadelphia in 1975. Rookie Todd Blackledge, who was leading Penn State to a national championship at this time last year, completed 10 of 19 fourth quarter throws for another 95 yards and a touchdown to Stephon Paige.

Impressive as the Chiefs' passing stats were, the yardage and scoring plays came much too late to make a difference in the game. Dallas held Kansas City to 147 total yards in the first half and built a 27-0 lead in the second half before the Chiefs' air attack went to work. And like Dallas a week ago in San Diego, KC was unable to make up the huge deficit.

"I don't know if they are that much better," said

Kenney. "We never really got motivated to do anything until it was too late. Everytime we started to do something we'd hurt ourselves. I don't know why we didn't play well early."

Dorsett recorded a memorable afternoon, gaining 108 yards and scoring twice. His 28-yard TD run in the second quarter pushed him over the 8,000-yard mark in his career, putting him in elite company with eight other NFL backs including Jim Brown, Franco Harris and O.J. Simpson.

The seventh-year back edged over the 1,000-yard mark in the third quarter giving him six such years in 7 seasons as a pro. Only the strike-shortened 1982 season blemishes his record.

"A thousand yards is still the criteria by which a running back is measured," Dorsett said. "But for me a thousand yards is mediocre. I'd like to get 1600 yards. I'm looking forward to the next four to five weeks."

Dallas scored four rushing touchdowns and a fifth TD in the fourth quarter when Gary Allen recently acquired from Houston, broke a 68-yard punt return through the heart of the Chiefs' defense. The return for a touchdown not only was the first of the year for the

Cincy downs Oilers again

CINCINNATI (AP) — Wide receiver Cris Collinsworth can't explain the Cincinnati Bengals' recent mastery over the Houston Oilers.

Collinsworth caught one of three touchdown passes by quarterback Ken Anderson as the Bengals blitzed the hapless Oilers 38-10 Sunday for the second time in three weeks. Cincinnati dealt Houston a 55-14 drubbing in the Astrodome Nov. 6.

"Some teams just have another team's number a little bit," Collinsworth said. "I don't know why. Anytime you get beat 55-14 it has to have a little bit of a psychological effect."

The 1-11 Oilers appeared to be in shock Sunday as the 5-7 Bengals rolled off 38 first-half points and coasted to their fourth victory in five games.

Cincinnati scored the first six times it got the ball, behind Anderson's clutch passing and fullback Pete Johnson's surges. Johnson would end up with 137 yards rushing, the second-best single-game total of his career.

Anderson threw first-quarter touchdown passes of 16 yards to Dan Ross — the tight end's first TD reception of the season — and 45 yards to Collinsworth for a 17-3 lead.

Johnson burst through the middle of the Houston defensive line for scoring runs of 12 and 10 yards in the second quarter, and Anderson linked up on a 1-yard scoring toss to Ross to effectively put the game out of reach before the half, 38-3.

"I felt they would play us tough," Bengals Head Coach Forrest Gregg said. "We got off to a good start, and we got to jump on them early."

Cincinnati's first-half offensive explosion brought back a painful sense of deja vu for interim Houston Head Coach Chuck Studley.

"It appears that what happens to our team early in the game is almost instrumental in how we play the rest of the game," Studley said. "If we get a decent start, we play decent. If we have adversity early, we just seem to be incapable of overcoming that adversity.

"I think this is probably because we've suffered so many losses, victimized ourselves in many cases. And when it starts again, we seem to lose our confidence — what little confidence we might have had going into the ballgame. And then things begin to snowball — again, just one horrible mistake after another."

The Oilers made plenty of mistakes in the first half, getting penalized 8 times for 93 yards while managing just 137 total net yards. Meanwhile, Johnson had 69 yards on 14 carries, Ross had five catches for 76 yards, and Collinsworth had two catches for 57 yards at the half.

The Bengals eased up in the second half, with Johnson carrying 16 more times to reach his total of 137. His 160-yard performance against Cleveland in 1978 is Johnson's only higher yardage total.

Also, it was Johnson's second 100-yard game of the season since returning from a four-game suspension for admitted cocaine purchases.

"He had a good day," Gregg said. "Some people had thought that Pete was through for the year. He's not through for the year." Johnson said he's finally back in form, and he felt good going into the game Sunday.

"When I came back (after the suspension), I got kind of banged up in the first two or three games," Johnson said. "Playing with soreness and stretched muscles makes it tough. Now I feel great."

Backup quarterback Turk Schonert replaced Anderson with 9:49 left in the game. Anderson completed 10 of 15 tosses for 177 yards without an interception.

After beating Detroit one week earlier for their first victory, Studley said he hoped the Oilers would be able to string together several victories.

"I would say that our performance today was certainly not an emotional performance at all," Studley said. "It wasn't a team that looked like they wanted to have a new beginning."

Gregg said he kept his first-string quarterback in the game for more than three quarters because he feared Houston could come back.

Houston quarterback Oliver Luck, making his second straight National Football League start, completed 15 of 30 passes for 181 yards with three interceptions. He tossed a 14-yard touchdown pass to tight end Walt Arnold in the fourth quarter.

HPU player's death not caused by injury

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — A football injury did not cause the death of a Howard Payne University offensive guard who died after collapsing on the sidelines during his team's final game of the season, according to the pathologist who performed an autopsy on 19-year-old Paul Cunningham. Cunningham, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Earl Cunningham of Dallas, fainted during the third quarter of the Saturday game with Abilene Christian, but appeared to recover.

He later collapsed, and team physician Dr. Allan Spence performed cardiopulmonary resuscitation on him. Cunningham was taken to Brownwood Regional Hospital where Spence pronounced him dead at 5:05 p.m.

Gardner said he had not finished the autopsy and that the completed report would be given to Cunningham's parents and released by Spence.

Cunningham, who had started the previous three games after the original starter injured an ankle, came off the field late in the third quarter when the punting unit went in.

He then fainted, but quickly recovered. "As far as we know," coach Bill Hicks said, "there was no precipitating injury on the field."

Howard Payne lost the game, 35-6. Team trainer Mike Chandler said Cun-

ingham had no history of injury or illness. Cunningham spoke with Spence, who had come down from the stands.

"He did not complain of a headache or any injuries," Spence said.

Then, while sitting on the bench, Cunningham collapsed. His football jersey was ripped off and Spence began administering cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Cunningham was taken by ambulance to the hospital but never regained consciousness.

Hicks, who described Cunningham as "what I'd like my son to be," said Cunningham's parents were supportive.

"They're great Christian people," Hicks said. "His dad was very comforting to me. He said, 'We don't want the kids on the team blaming themselves.'"

The football players did not learn of Cunningham's death until a team meeting held after the game.

Howard Payne President Ralph A. Phelps Jr. on Sunday called Cunningham's death a "tragedy."

"Of course it is a tragedy to lose such a fine young man in such a way as this," Phelps said. "This is a tragic thing, but it is not an indictment of football."

A memorial service was scheduled for 10 a.m. today at Howard Payne's Mims Auditorium. Funeral services were tentatively set for Wednesday in Dallas.

"Hail Mary" defeats 49'ers

Redskins clobber Rams, 42-20

Atlanta won a 28-24 National Football League thriller Sunday on the last play of the game with San Francisco on a so-called "Big Ben" desperation pass by Steve Bartkowski.

It came on a 47-yard touchdown pass thrown up for grabs. Billy "White Shoes" Johnson came down with it. Bartkowski lofted a high, long pass down the left sideline into a crowd of players at the 5-yard line. The ball was tipped twice before Johnson, who had slipped down, grabbed it on the 7 and barely reached the goal line for the winning touchdown.

The Miami Dolphins, meanwhile, opened some daylight for themselves in the tight American Conference East race with a 37-0 thrashing of the Baltimore Colts in one of four shutouts Sunday.

Along with the whitewashing of the Colts, the Cleveland Browns whipped the New England Patriots 30-0, the Chicago Bears beat the Tampa Bay Bucs 27-0 and the New York Giants blanked the Philadelphia Eagles 23-0.

In other games, the Washington Redskins clobbered the Los Angeles Rams 42-20; the Dallas Cowboys whipped the Kansas City Chiefs 42-21; the Minnesota Vikings upset the Pittsburgh Steelers 17-14; the Los Angeles Raiders edged the Buffalo Bills 27-24; the Detroit Lions defeated the Green Bay Packers 23-20 in overtime; the St. Louis Cardinals bombed the San Diego Chargers 44-14, the Cincinnati Bengals crushed the Houston Oilers 38-10 and the Denver Broncos outscored the Seattle Seahawks 38-27.

The game-winning play for the Falcons capped a 73-yard drive that started with only 1:04 remaining, six seconds after San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana had given the 49ers a 24-21 lead by scrambling 11 yards for a touchdown.

Roundup

Browns 30, Patriots 0
Cleveland exploded for 17 points in less than four minutes, starting with linebacker Chip Banks' 65-yard interception return for a touchdown, and the Browns rolled to their second consecutive shutout. The second-quarter eruption gave the Browns a 20-0 halftime lead. New England was blanked for the first time in 125 regular-season games.

Bears 27, Bucs 0
Chicago's Walter Payton ran for 106 yards and two touchdowns in the rain and moved into third place on the NFL's all-time rushing list as the Bears remained in the thick of the Central Division title chase by crushing Tampa Bay.

Payton went over the 1,000-yard mark in a season for the seventh time in nine years on an 8-yard touchdown burst in the second quarter, and zoomed past the retired O.J. Simpson in the career standings with a 3-yard pickup in the third period.

Giants 23, Eagles 0

Butch Woolfolk's first 100-yard plus game and a defense that allowed Philadelphia only 79 yards in total offense carried the Giants past the Eagles. Woolfolk gained 159 yards on 43 carries, an NFL record, and scored a touchdown as New York ended a streak of seven games without a victory.

Redskins 42, Rams 20
John Riggins smashed into the end zone on three short touchdown runs as the Redskins overpowered the Rams. The win kept the Redskins in a first-place tie with Dallas in the NFC East with a 10-2 record. The Rams, now 7-5, remain tied for first place in the NFC West with San Francisco.

Vikings 17, Steelers 14
Steve Dils rifled two TD touchdown passes and Benny Ricardo kicked a 39-yard field goal as Minnesota beat Pittsburgh and ended the Steelers' seven-game winning streak.

Lions 23, Packers 20
Eddie Murray kicked a 37-yard field goal with 6:30 left in overtime to lift Detroit over Green Bay. Lynn Dickey, who didn't play in the second half after suffering a mild concussion, completed touchdown passes of six yards to John Jefferson and one to Paul Coffman.

Broncos 38, Seahawks 27
Rookie quarterback Gary Kubiak, who had never before taken a snap in an NFL game, passed for one touchdown and ran for another, and Rich Karlis booted five field goals as Denver beat Seattle. Kubiak was forced into a starting role when rookie John Elway came down with the flu Sunday morning.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There can be a considerable amount of nervous tension today. Remain cheerful. Rise above whatever may test your patience. Sit back and think objectively about that troubling situation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be careful and avoid possible accidents. Don't make any undue comments to others. Home is your best bet in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Postpone any possibly poor investments. Study your property, and see how it can be improved. Rest up tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take control of yourself so that you can achieve all you set out to do. Remain calm, cool, and collected. Don't argue.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be objective about upsetting worries you may have. Improve your relationship. Help a devoted one.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't get upset or discouraged if a friend breaks a promise. Don't be forceful at gaining your aims. Tact turns the trick.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Follow the lead of one in power, or you may lose out. Solve problems at work wisely. Relax tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be open minded, but don't commit yourself to anything as yet. Don't follow hunches; they may get you into trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be kind to the one you love. Carry through with a job he or she likes. Don't argue over a large bill.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Pay little attention to fickle partners. Remain stable. Take in stride a distressing matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You will gain from showing gratitude for big favors. Avoid fellow workers who like to ridicule you. Keep busy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Amuse yourself, but don't spend too much money. Concentrate on pleasing a loved one. Take no risks on credit.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Bring harmony into your home where conditions are difficult. Put off entertaining there. Do your work precisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can easily understand problems of others and how best to solve them. A lawyer, doctor, psychologist or social worker is in the making. Religion is important. Permit to participate in sports.

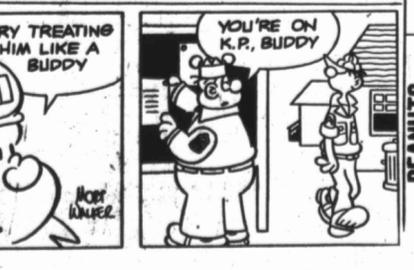

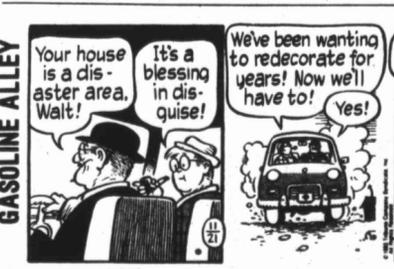

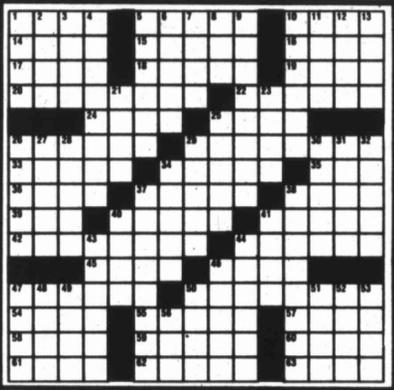

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

BIG BEN FOR WHITE SHOES — A "Big Ben" desperation pass caught by Billy "White Shoes" Johnson gave the Atlanta Falcons a victory over the San Francisco 49ers Sunday and a ride atop team-

Cowboys

Cowboys but the first since Golden Richards ran a punt back 43-yard against Philadelphia in 1975.

For the first time this season Dallas did not trail in a game. In all 11 previous contests, the Cowboys had fallen behind but rallied to win on nine occasions. A 1-yard dive by Ron Springs with 11:58 left in the first quarter put Dallas on top for good Sunday.

A 45-yard pass completion from Danny White to Tony Hill, who caught six passes for 92 yards, set up the score.

The Cowboys upped the count to 10-0 with 10 seconds left in the quarter when Rafael Septien kicked a 25-yard field goal to cap a 66-yard drive.

The Cowboys pulled a little razzle-dazzle on the way to their next score. Faced with a fourth down and 3 from their own 39, White faked a punt and dashed 27 yards for a first down in Kansas City territory. Four plays later, Dorsett carried to the right side, got blocks from Springs and guard Howard Richards, cut back to his left and sped 28 yard s for his first TD.

Septien's kick made it 17-0 with 7:11 to go.

"I was watching the safety men," White said, "And they weren't paying attention. They turned and ran and then it was just a matter of getting by the guy over center. I watched for it in the other games but they were checking it all the time, so I couldn't really pull it off."

Cornerback Ron Fellows picked off a Kenney pass intended for Carson with 1:51 to go in the half. Beginning at his own 34, White directed Dallas to another field goal as Septien booted a 40-yarder with 15 seconds left in the half to give the Cowboys a 20-0 lead.

Dallas put the game away early in the third quarter when rookie Bill Bates popped Kenney on a blitz, causing a fumble recovered by teammate Dexter Clinkscale at the Kansas City 32. White tried a pass that sailed incomplete before Dorsett burst through the middle for a 32-yard scoring run that made it 27-0.

That's when Kansas City finally went to work.

Kenney quickly marched his team 80 yards in 8 plays, although there was one pause along the way. Faced with a fourth day at the Dallas 18, Nick Lowery entered the game for a 36-yard field goal attempt. His kick was wide to the right but Michael Downs fell into the Chiefs' kicker, attempting to block the kick.

The penalty and resulting first down brought Kenney and Co. back onto the field and the leagues' most prolific passer fired a 13-yard scoring pass to Carson in the right corner of the endzone for the TD.

Kansas City scored the next time it had the ball. Kenney found Carson ended again, this time against Everson Walls and lofted a 49-yard scoring bomb to his favorite receiver. Suddenly it was 27-14 with 2:03 left in the quarter and fans in the stadium become restless. They become more so when Dallas failed to move on its next possession and the chiefs zipped the ball downfield to the Cowboys 27.

Kenney was sacked for a six-day yard loss by Jim Jeffcoat and misfired on two passes to bring Lowery out for a 51-dash yard field goal try.

The kick had a distance but again was wide to the right.

His miss turned the momentum around. White passed 28-yards to Billy Joe Dupree and 17 to Springs to take the Cowboys down to the KC 10. Timmy Newsome got the touchdown on a 7-yard run to make it 34-14 with 7:02 to play.

Kansas City went no where on its next offensive try and alien iced the game, if any doubts remained, with his long punt return.

Martina whips Chrissie in Ladies Cup tourney

By The Associated Press

Martina Navratilova is making doubly sure that nobody disputes her claim to the title of women's tennis world.

Navratilova beat Chris Evert Lloyd on for the sixth time in six starts this year, outclassing her 6-2, 6-2 in Tokyo on Sunday to capture the $200,000 Lion Ladies Cup tournament.

"Playing her and winning gives me more satisfaction than beating anyone in the world," Navratilova said afterwards.

John McEnroe and Pam Shriver also won overseas tournaments Sunday.</

Glasscock County 4-H names top performers

STEPHANIE FRERICH
...Gold Star

Stephanie Frerich of Garden City and Richard Batla of St. Lawrence were named the Glasscock County 4-H Gold Star Winners at the County Achievement and Adult Recognition Banquet.

Miss Frerich, 16, the daughter of Hubert and Annette Frerich, is the Glasscock County council president. She has twice competed at State 4-H round-up at Texas A&M University, attended state 4-H Congress in Austin during the summer and participated in method demonstrations.

Miss Frerich's breads record book has been entered in state competition for two years. Other 4-H projects she has participated in include food and nutrition, clothing, breads, family life, gardening, photography, swine and leadership.

She is a junior at Garden City High School where she is a varsity cheerleader, and participates in the student council, Beta club, UIL one-act play competition, basketball and track.

Batla, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Batla of St. Lawrence, is a senior at Garden City High School. He has participated in the swine project for the last nine years. For eight years until 1981, Batla was on the livestock judging team.

In 1981, he won third in high individual and his team won third place at the state roundup. The team went to the National Western Livestock Show in Denver, Colo., where he was named second place in the high individual awards in the livestock judging contest.

Batla's other 4-H projects include horses and roping, veterinarian science, photography, commodity marketing and beef. He is a junior leader in swine, livestock judging and swine showmanship; his record book has gone to state for four years.

He belongs to the High School Rodeo Association, and has participated in band, journalism, UIL events, track and basketball. He has been the varsity quarterback for his high school football team his sophomore, junior and senior. He plans to attend Texas A&M University next year.

George and Doris Schwartz were named "Friends of 4-H," and Annette Frerich and Eugene Hirt were named Adult Leaders.

Project pins were given to:

WHAT IS CPR?

CPR, or cardiopulmonary resuscitation, is an emergency lifesaving technique used by one or two people to artificially maintain another person's breathing and heartbeat in the event the functions suddenly stop. CPR combines mouth-to-mouth breathing and chest compressions to keep oxygen-rich blood flowing to the victim's brain until an emergency service with advanced life support is available. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.
