

Borden, Mitchell reconsidered for nuclear waste dump site

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — An official with a state agency looking for a low-level nuclear waste site said Tuesday he will contact real estate agents next week in Mitchell and Borden counties to see if property is available for a disposal area.

Speaking at a meeting of the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority, general counsel Lee Mathews said the area referred to as the Red Bed Plains is excellent for such a site because of protective clay deposits.

Currently, Hudspeth and DeSmet counties are finalists for the site, with Baylor County also a possibility.

Mathews said a landowner in Baylor County may drop out of negotiations and the authority would like to have more than two sites to choose from.

The agency is looking for a 300-acre site to dump low-level radioactive material from reactor sites, such as contaminated chemicals, worker clothing and tools. The material must be handled with great care, although it is not as highly radioactive as spent fuel.

Spent reactor fuel is sent to a federal repository. The agency official said he looked for other possible property in the Red Bed Plains area in September but none was available. Saying he hopes that situation has changed, Mathews said he plans to make some calls and may travel to the area next week.

The disposal area is planned to be operational in January, 1988, with an expected life of 30 to 40 years.

Texas currently sends its low-level radioactive waste to a site in Washington state. A federal law passed in 1980 requires that each state handle its own waste or enter into an agreement with other states nearby to handle the waste by 1985.

JFK remembered

Big Springers recall President Kennedy's assassination

Compiled by CAROL BALDWIN Staff Writer

On Nov. 22, 1963, the streets of downtown Dallas were filled with crowds come to catch a glimpse of President John F. Kennedy.

As his motorcade made its way through the city, the young president and his wife waved to people standing in the streets and to others leaning from the windows of buildings.

Within moments, gunshots would turn the scene into a grim memory which lingers two decades later.

Like the rest of the nation, Big Spring residents remember exactly what they were doing and how they felt when they heard Kennedy had been shot and killed in the streets of Dallas.

Johnnie Lou Avery "was on the way to the doctor's office for my final checkup before Joni (her daughter) was born" when she heard the news.

"Here I was, pregnant, bringing a little baby into the world, and the world was turning topsy-turvy," she said. "It was shocking news."

Mrs. Avery was in the car with her husband, Jerry, who had taken time off from work to accompany his wife to the doctor's office. "We got in the car and turned on the radio. The news came on instantly. We pulled over and sat for a few minutes and didn't say a word to each other. It was a horrible thought."

Now, "every year as Joni's birthday approaches, I'm always remembering that moment when I heard the news."

Susan Lewis remembers her morning went from peaceful to hectic once the news of the Kennedy assassination got out.

"My husband (Bob Lewis) was working as news director of a radio station here. He always came home in the morning, after working about four hours, to have breakfast."

He had only been home a short while when "the phones started ringing. My mother started pounding on the door. People were trying to find him (Lewis) because it was such a big story."

"It was pandemonium. Of course, by the time my mother came into the house we already knew (the news)."

Mrs. Lewis remembers her husband flew out the door to return to the news desk and stayed on the story for the rest of the day.

She also remembers "Everybody was kind of numb. It was close to Thanksgiving and people were numb through the whole holiday."

Tommy Hart, former editor of the Herald, "was still writing sports for the Herald at that time. It happened on a Friday, and I was covering the

Yarborough praises Kennedy

By DANA PALMER Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Talk of guilt arising from the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination of President Kennedy doesn't sit well with former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough of Texas.

Now settled in his Austin law practice at the age of 80, Yarborough is quick to deny any blame for Kennedy's tragic trip to Texas — almost as quick as he is in praising the slain president.

And praise is something he finds lacking in recent stories about the anniversary of Kennedy's death.

Most dwell on the assassination and conspiracy theories, he says, and few talk about Kennedy's accomplishments — ending a war in Laos, encouraging good Latin American relations with the Alliance for Progress and forcing the Russians to back down in Berlin and Cuba.

The liberal Yarborough also criticizes any notion that Kennedy came to the state to settle a political feud between the senator and the conservative John Connally, then the Democratic governor of Texas.

Connally was wounded as he and his wife Nellie rode in the same car with the Kennedys, while Yarborough rode two cars behind in the long motorcade.

"I agree with John Connally on that — he tried to talk Kennedy out of the trip," says Yarborough, who is scheduled to speak in Dallas Tuesday during ceremonies on the 20th anniversary of the assassination.

"I didn't invite him to come and he never asked my advice," he says. "Neither of us had requested him to come to Texas."

Yarborough adds that he thought the planned three-day trip was "premature" and should come closer to the 1964 general election.

A more likely reason for the Texas trip, he says, is that only a month before, Kennedy had held such a successful fundraiser in Boston that then-Vice President Lyndon Johnson was somewhat envious.

"At the time, there was a lot of talk about the Boston-Austin Axis," Yarborough says, and Johnson may have given Kennedy the idea he could raise even more money in Texas.

Whatever the reason for the trip, the former senator says Dallas just happened to be the unlucky site picked by Lee Harvey Oswald and any fellow conspirators. "Maybe they thought that Dallas would be a good spot because of the long parade route and good exposure," he says.

For others, a good deal of the blame for Oswald's actions resides somewhere in the so-called right-wing bent of Dallas or the perceived violent nature of Texans.

But as far as Yarborough is concerned that kind of talk and stories about the Yarborough-Connally feud "started with somebody who got him to come to Texas. They didn't want to be blamed."

He acknowledged that Dallas does have its right-wing faction, "but I don't think it represents the majority of the people of Dallas."

Yarborough, however, believes someone pushed Oswald into shooting Kennedy — another point that he and Connally seem to agree on.

Martin County jail unlocks area history

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

STANTON — Martin County residents picked a "fitting day" to commemorate local history with the dedication of their old county jail as a historical monument, U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stanton, said here this morning.

The old jail's dedication as a historical monument on the 20th anniversary of former President John F. Kennedy's assassination was appropriate because "we have always got to remember our history," Stenholm said. The jail has been replaced by a modern underground building.

Stenholm was the keynote speaker for the ceremony which drew a crowd of more than 200 people. Also speaking at the event was Sheriff Don Saunders. Saunders took office in 1955 and was the first peace officer who didn't live in the jailhouse.

Stenholm told the crowd "The jail is a serious reminder of Martin County's history." Stenholm added that the building itself is "a positive part of Martin County."

Stenholm commended the Martin County Chamber of Commerce, which will have its offices in the building, for its aid in restoration efforts.

The history of the Martin County jail stretches back to 1885, when the original cell was built. In 1908, the cellblock was moved from the southeast corner of the courthouse to the northwest corner, and a two-story red sandstone jail was built around it.

The jail was used as a detention facility from 1908 to 1975 for county and later city prisoners.

For years, the facility didn't have a place where prisoners could shower. Jail employees would bring in enamel tubs so prisoners could bathe in cold water.

During the years, the Martin County facility has served as the county library and has housed other facilities.

"I grew up with the jail," said Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport. "But to my 7-year-old grandson, this is all old, old history."

Tours of the jail are available to the public. The facility, in addition to housing the Chamber offices, will serve as a visitor's center and will showcase artwork of Martin County residents.

Tyson feels cheated

NEW YORK — Actress Cicely Tyson has begun legal proceedings against Elizabeth Taylor and others, seeking back wages of $625,000 from her performances in "The Corn is Green."

CICELY TYSON

Ms. Tyson claims she was "improperly terminated" by the management from her starring role in the stage production.

The winner of an Emmy for "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" has filed a demand for arbitration against Miss Taylor, producer Zef Bufman, The Elizabeth Theatre Group and Zef Bufman Entertainment, her manager, Larry Thompson, announced Monday.

The Elizabeth Theatre Group was formed by Miss Taylor and Bufman to stage three productions — "Private Lives," starring Miss Taylor and Richard Burton; "The Corn is Green"; and a third production.

The group was disbanded earlier this month by mutual agreement between Bufman and Miss Taylor.

Ms. Tyson contends she was guaranteed $750,000 to star in both the stage and television productions of "The Corn is Green," which closed after a poor showing at the box office.

Bufman was out of town Monday and could not be reached for comment. A woman who would only identify herself as his assistant said it would be improper for the company to comment on an unresolved legal matter.

Impromptu Minnelli concert

WEST ORANGE — "Hi, everyone. I'm Liza Minnelli," said the casually dressed woman who walked up to a microphone at a restaurant in West Orange. "Mind if I sing for you a little while?" The audience didn't mind a bit.

The 37-year-old Ms. Minnelli was at The Manor on Saturday with a group of friends, including her husband, Mark Gero, and the actor Joe Pecci, who starred in the movie "Raging Bull," when she decided to do some singing.

At first the crowd of about 150 thought it might be a joke, but when Ms. Minnelli launched into "New York, New York," the doubt disappeared — and the impromptu concert went on for more than two hours.

Ms. Minnelli sang many of her own hits, including "Cabaret," but when she was asked to sing "You Made Me Love You," a Judy Garland favorite, she turned the audience down.

"No, that's my mom's song," she said.

Space pioneer writes book

IOWA CITY — James Van Allen, for whom the Van Allen radiation belts are named, describes a book he has written as "a participant's account of how early space exploration all started." In "Origins of Magnetospheric Physics," Van Allen, now 69, tells of the moments after the launching of the Explorer I satellite in 1958.

"The clock ticked away," he says, "and we all drank coffee to allay our collective anxiety." And when a radio signal from Explorer finally was received, the "roomful of people exploded with exultation."

In the weeks that followed, Van Allen and his colleagues collected and analyzed data leading to discovery of the Van Allen radiation belts in space, which surround the Earth and other planets.

Van Allen, head of the University of Iowa's department of physics and astronomy since 1951, says his book is "not sophisticated" and not "grandiose in any sense." It is intended mainly for students, working scientists and historians of science, but may also interest the general reader, he says.

Kennedy tours soup kitchen

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy visited one of this city's poorest neighborhoods — the Hill District, used as a setting for the "Hill Street Blues" television series — and toured a soup kitchen.

Earlier Monday, the Massachusetts Democrat chaired a three-hour hearing on hunger, one of a series he is conducting in five cities.

At the Jubilee Soup Kitchen, Kennedy chatted with Sister Liquori Rossner, a Roman Catholic nun who oversees distribution of hot and cold food for up to 300 poor people a day, and an unemployed steelworker who complained of "really bad" economic conditions.

Human error caused wreck

BAYTOWN — The crew of a Southern Pacific train that smashed into 41 parked freight cars killing four men never tried to stop the train, a spokesman for the railroad says.

"There was no indication the brakes were ever applied," Southern Pacific spokesman Tony Aleman said Monday. "In short, human error."

The Saturday morning wreck on a single track 30 miles east of Houston killed all three men in the engine and one of two men riding in the caboose.

The caboose, which was the second car on the train, was folded almost in half and derailed when a tank car catapulted forward, smashing into the engine's cabin.

Aleman said an examination of the track and train indicated the wreck occurred because of "failure of the head-in crew (in the engine) to take action to stop the train short of cars that were in the track."

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board, the Federal Railroad Administration and the Texas Railroad Commission finished examining the wreckage Monday but were still reviewing the evidence, Aleman said. The tracks were cleared and reopened.

It was the second fatal train wreck in Texas in eight days. On Nov. 12, four people died when an Amtrak train derailed near Marshall.

Missile debate heats up

BONN — Riot police ringed the government district today as Parliament convened for a climactic debate and vote on whether West Germany will proceed with deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles.

Clusters of anti-missile demonstrators gathered behind steel barriers manned by hundreds of police 200 yards from the Parliament building when the debate resumed this morning.

Defense Minister Manfred Woerner opened the session with a strong endorsement of the planned NATO deployment.

"Who wanted these weapons? It was not the Americans. It was the Europeans," he declared.

Riot police fired jets of water laced with tear gas at anti-nuclear activists outside the Parliament building as the debate opened Monday and made at least 180 arrests when protesters tried to block a main avenue. An estimated 4,000 demonstrators were involved in the protests during the day.

The debate was scheduled to end at 7 p.m. tonight (1 p.m. EST), when three resolutions were to be considered by 496 voting members of Parliament.

Two motions by the leftist opposition Social Democrats and the anti-NATO Greens party oppose deployment of Pershing 2 and cruise missiles on German soil.

But Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative-moderate coalition, which has a 58-seat majority, was virtually certain to win approval of a resolution backing the government's defense program, including the missile deployment approved by NATO in 1979.

HELMUT KOHL

The youth's parents, Howard and Marjorie Munson, were to be charged today with child abuse, said St. Louis County Lt. Richard O'Connor. He said it was "the worst case of child abuse we have ever investigated."

Police said they found the teen-ager, Alonso Richard Munson, on Friday, hunched and rocking back and forth inside a wooden crate about 3 feet wide and 4 feet high. He was barefoot and shivering in a basement so cold that officers could see their breath, police said.

The top of the crate was covered with canvas, but the sides were made of wooden slats that allowed the boy to see out, said Detective Michael Williams of the county police's juvenile unit.

The cage was not locked, and for the first three weeks of his confinement the boy had been allowed to leave the cage to attend classes at Hazelwood Junior High School, police said.

For the last week, however, he had been allowed out only to go to the bathroom, and had not been allowed to bathe, police said.

The youth, who was not physically injured, told authorities he expected to spend six weeks in the crate and had been disciplined in a similar way for three months starting in January.

Jackson draws big crowds

AUSTIN — Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson says the nation needs "leadership that will mold opinion and not just follow opinion polls."

Jackson told reporters he took that message to the University of Texas Monday when he spoke to students of former Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and former congresswoman Barbara Jordan, both of whom teach at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

Later, Jackson delayed a speech at UT-Austin in order to bring in students who were locked out by fire safety laws.

As 1,100 students in the campus ballroom urged Jackson to begin his speech, others pressed and banged against the back doors.

"We surely must be concerned about those on the outside who want to come in," Jackson said. "Some get it all and others get none. That's kind of like Reaganomics."

Secret Servicemen and campus police followed Jackson as he went to the rear of the room and arranged for the locked-out students to come in. A rope was set up as a barrier.

At a news conference before the speech, Jackson, considered the first major black contender for the presidency, blasted organized labor. He predicted that "a black will be president of the United States clearly before a black will be president of the AFL-CIO."

Black union members pay $30 million a month in dues to the AFL-CIO, but have little power in selecting labor officials, he said. Jackson called the labor system of picking leaders "bossism."

Highs 38 extreme south, 55 far west and 72 south. Lows 22 north to near 40 south. Highs Wednesday 38 north to 58 south.

Cold front charges into state

A strong cold front charged into West Texas before dawn, dropping temperatures and triggering blowing snow over mountain passes.

Travel advisories were posted for motorists in the far western regions of the state as the snow reduced visibilities to near zero. However, the snow was not sticking and roads were expected to remain clear, authorities said.

Low clouds blanketed the eastern half of the state, while fair skies were the rule over the rest of Texas. Strong southerly winds ushered in large amounts of moisture from the Gulf of Mexico, keeping temperatures unseasonably warm in East Texas.

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from the 30s and 40s in the Panhandle and far West Texas to the 60s and 70s in eastern sections of Texas. Brownsville was the state's warm spot before dawn with a 78-degree reading.

The forecast called for much colder temperatures across West Texas, with warm readings and windy conditions over the rest of the state. Rain and snow showers were expected over the South Plains and far West Texas.

Temperatures were expected to cool off over northern sections of the state tonight and Wednesday. Scattered showers and thunderstorms were possible as the front moved southward, the National Weather Service said.

The extended forecast for West Texas calls for clear skies north and partly cloudy weather south on Thursday. Partly cloudy everywhere on Friday and Saturday. Warmer Friday. Highs Thursday in the lower 40s in the Panhandle to the middle 50s southeast and near 60 in the Big Bend.

Lows Thursday in the upper teens in the Panhandle to the middle 30s in extreme south. Lows Saturday ranging from the lower 30s in the Panhandle to the upper 40s in the southeast and extreme south.

Temperatures on left indicate previous day's high and overnight low to 8 a.m. EST. Temperatures on right indicate outlook for tomorrow.

One brief and shining moment

For death takes toll
Of beauty, courage, youth,
Of all, but truth.

—John Masfield,
"Phillip the King"

Would John F. Kennedy have avoided the major war in Vietnam that was without victory and without apparent end that so embittered a generation of Americans and ushered in an era of U.S. decline and appeasement? Could he have averted the struggle between the races, sexes, and generations that ravaged the country during the 1960s? Would another Kennedy term have redeemed us from our time of troubles?

We think so. But, of course, we'll never know. What we do know is that the assassination of President John Kennedy in the noontime of his life and in the noontime of that day in Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963, ushered in a time of travail in this country without equal perhaps since the Civil War. The United States began to come apart at the seams and, it can be argued, did not begin pulling itself together until now.

There were the subsequent assassinations that scarred the national soul: Malcolm X, Martin Luther King Jr., and the president's brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. There were the racial disorders, burning cities, the tragedy of a hopeless land war in Asia, anti-war disorders, public demoralization with a corresponding escalation in drug abuse and immorality of every kind. There was the virtual abdication of President Lyndon B. Johnson, the Watergate scandal and the resignation of President Richard M. Nixon; the brief term of President Gerald Ford, runaway inflation, and the troubled one term of President Jimmy Carter.

All of these interlocked developments flowed in large measure from the murder of John Kennedy 20 years ago.

The judgement of President Kennedy's 1,000 days in office remains suspended and unclear with the passage of time. Many Americans have found solace in making this president greater in death than he was in life. But the failures, the contradictions, and the unfulfilled promise have dimmed the shining hour that has come to be known as "Camelot." Mr. Kennedy at 43 was the youngest president ever elected and the handsomest. He was witty, winsome, brilliant, elegant, a war hero, and rich. His wife, the beautiful Jacqueline, possessed a star quality that bowled over the public both here and abroad. The Kennedys in the White House projected to the world a U.S. image of glamour and a youthful vigor. And few presidents in American history had such an oratorical gift.

Despite these personal gifts, the Kennedy presidency was largely characterized by disastrous decisions and a series of crises. Only three months after taking office, Mr. Kennedy authorized the invasion of Cuba by 1,400 Cuban refugees under CIA direction. The ignominious Bay of Pigs operation was doomed after the president wavered and withdrew necessary air support for it. Against this bleak backdrop and against the advice of his senior counselors, Mr. Kennedy met Nikita Khrushchev in an ill-fated summit in Vienna only eight weeks later. The Soviet leader interpreted him to be a weak, vacillating, and unseasoned antagonist and moved immediately thereafter to take over West Berlin. Sixty days later, the Soviets threw up the Berlin Wall — first barbed wire and then concrete. Mr. Kennedy mobilized U.S. forces and rushed 40,000 additional troops to Europe.

Even when Mr. Kennedy invoked a naval blockade in a breathtaking showdown over removing Soviet nuclear missiles from Cuba in October 1962, he compromised his victory by agreeing never to invade Cuba and to remove NATO missiles in Turkey.

To bolster an image of firmness, Mr. Kennedy made the fateful decision in 1962-63 to resist Communist aggression against South Vietnam. He initiated the tragic war in Vietnam by increasing U.S. "advisers" to more than 16,000 — some of whom were then already engaged in active combat. His administration schemed with South Vietnamese generals in overthrowing South Vietnam President Ngo Dinh Diem, who was killed in the coup.

And Mr. Kennedy could not have been without knowledge of repeated CIA conspiracies to assassinate Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

The long litany of Kennedy failures and misjudgments must include an inability to obtain any major legislation from a generally hostile Congress. But there was one shining success that gave the Kennedy administration drive and direction lacking in subsequent presidencies. He ignited public support for a vastly expanded U.S. space program that led to the landing of Americans on the moon.

Had he lived, President Kennedy would undoubtedly have been re-elected and would have continued the market growth he demonstrated during his brief term. In that event, the following U.S. years would have been altogether different, and, we are convinced, much better than they were. As a French diplomat said of John Kennedy at the time of his assassination. He was a "brilliant maybe."

Briscoe's essay is filled with folly

To the Editor:
I am writing this in regard to the article "Praise of Folly" by Keith Briscoe on page 4-A of the October 23, 1983 issue of the Big Spring Herald. Perhaps our defender of humanism should spend a little time reading the Humanist Manifesto before he states that it does not, and cannot, replace the spiritual side of man. As you will notice in the enclosed article, humanist see their philosophy as a religion, not simply a mode of thinking as Mr. Briscoe refers to it.

not the humanist. They openly declare their beliefs to be a religion, using the word twenty-six times in the Humanist Manifesto I alone. Their document undoubtedly amounts to a declaration against God.

To gladly receive or accept the compliment of being a humanist is to reject God. If this is Mr. Briscoe's position, then so be it. In the future, hopefully the Herald will seek to publish quality articles in which their staff, specifically Mr. Briscoe, has done a complete research and study instead of a lopsided opinion, as we have seen in many of his articles.

Limelight of candidate's husband

As more women go into politics, the public becomes increasingly curious about their spouses. I found Horace Manley, the husband of Agatha Manley, who was running for Congress for the second time, at the home the other day.

He was flustered. "I wish I'd known you were coming," he said. "The house is a mess."

"Don't worry, Mr. Manley, I'm not here to write about your housekeeping. Is the candidate home?"

"No, she's out talking to the United Metalworker's Union. She told me I could have a day off."

"Is it hard to be the husband of a political figure?"

"It has its pluses and minuses. But I've known ever since Agatha completed law school she wanted to go into politics, and as long as she's happy I'm willing to put up with our political life."

"What's the toughest part of it for you?"

"Smiling all the time, and being nice to people because Agatha says they're important to her. I also have to worry about my appearance and wonder if I'm wearing the right suit and if my shoes are shined."

"You mean the voters care what the husband of a candidate looks like?"

"Oh definitely. A husband plays a very important role in a candidate's election. Agatha says even though she does the talking, the electorate is always studying me."

"What do they ask you?"

"They want to know if Agatha is a good mother, and what she really is like at home. I always say she is a real peachy wife."

"You don't sound like you mean it."

"There are times when I get discouraged. I would like Agatha all to myself and it would be nice if she could spend more time with the children. But I never nag or bother her with family problems because I know she's got too many important things on her mind. When she comes home and we can squeeze in a few hours together, the children and I want her to relax."

"Does Agatha depend on you for political advice?"

"Yes, she's very good about that. She lets me sit in on staff meetings at our house after I've served everyone a buffet dinner. She's told me many times I have a better reading on the public pulse than she does, because they say things to me that they're afraid to say to her."

"Could you give me an example of the kind of advice you give her?"

"Well, Agatha, being a woman, is against nerve gas."

"And you're not?"

"There are a lot worse things than nerve gas. But even if she doesn't agree with me, she's very interested in what the male gender is thinking. I wish I could say the same thing for her staff."

"They don't like you to talk to Agatha about politics?"

"They treat me like a dodo."

"How is that?"

"When I'm out campaigning someone is always afraid I'll make a slip if I extemporize, so they insist I stick with the script they've written for me. It's an awful speech, but every time I want to change it they say I could lose the election."

"Are you jealous of the men around Agatha?"

"Not really. I know they are only attracted to her for her power. I can put up with a lot as long as she doesn't humiliate me or the children in public."

"But at least as a politician's husband you get invited to a lot of parties. That must be fun."

"It would be if someone knew my name. Agatha always introduces me by saying, 'I'd like you to meet my better half.'"

"I notice you're darned your wife's pantyhose."

Horace said bitterly, "Have you ever tried to live on a congresswoman's salary?"

Another go at controlling the fed

WASHINGTON — Congress appears to be bracing for one of its periodic attempts to gain at least some measure of control over the most powerful of the independent government agencies: the Federal Reserve Board.

Ever since its creation in 1913, the Fed has been free of all but the most perfunctory congressional oversight. Yet its power to control the nation's money supply and interest rates affects every American's pocketbook. Decisions made in secret by the Fed dictate whether you'll be able to afford a house or a new car — and can decree prosperity or recession for major industries and their millions of workers.

Historically, efforts to slip a congressional leash over the Fed's neck have failed — most notably the attempts by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and the late Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex. But pressure is growing on Capitol Hill for yet another go at controlling the Fed.

Sources on the congressional Joint Economic Committees say Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., the vice chairman, is planning extensive hearings on the issue aimed at bringing the Fed under the authority of Congress — by controlling its budget.

My associate Lucette Lagnado obtained an internal report prepared by the committee staff that lays out the problem and the possible solution.

"The Federal Reserve is currently one of a few government agencies that is not subject to the annual congressional appropriations process," the report notes. Instead, the Fed sets its own budget, pays for salaries and expenses out of its revenue from services to the nation's banks — and turns what's left over to the Treasury.

The classified report adds that in 1982, the Federal Reserve System earned just over $16.5 billion, and kept more than $1 billion for its expenses. That's par for the course.

"The Fed each year spends over $1 billion of the taxpayers' money with no guidance or direction from any elected body," the report notes, adding: "So the compelling argument for bringing the Fed (and other independent agencies)... under the appropriations process is that they are branches of the government whose spending should be determined by Congress."

One thing that evidently rankles Congress is the fat salaries the Fed's presidents give themselves — more than any senator, representative or Cabinet member is paid. The presidents' salaries are geared to private-sector earnings in the given region, and range from a low of $82,000 in Philadelphia and Dallas to a high of $145,000 in New York.

But there's more to congressional resentment than salaries. The lawmakers are also burned up at the Fed's power to make economic decisions that have important political effects, without consulting Congress. And when members of Congress complain about the secrecy of the Fed's operations, they are essentially brushed off.

"The Fed has cloaked the conduct of monetary policy in mystery and secrecy," the report complains, "giving the impression that this is a subject that should be left only to the experts."

The solution, the Joint Economic Committee report concludes is to make the Fed come to Congress each year hat in hand and ask for its allowance like other federal agencies. "Control over the way in which the Federal Reserve spends money would give Congress a tool to enforce its desires," the report states.

For that very reason, the Fed will fight hard against any attempt to bring it under congressional control.

Footnote: A Fed spokesman says his agency is once again being used as a congressional "scapegoat."

Around the Rim

If you watched the ABC movie The Day After and were thoroughly depressed by it you were in the majority. Ratings figures show that 100 million people tuned in to see the disasters wreaked by a nuclear confrontation between the United States and Russia.

Unlike most television programs or movies which depress us, viewers of The Day After cannot say "Oh, it's just make believe. Things like that don't happen in real life."

Unfortunately for us all, in this case, disasters like The Day After can happen — and the results would be worse than The Day After dared to show. Scientists now are saying the destruction would be complete, and none of us would survive the after-effects if we were lucky enough to survive the bomb itself.

As I talked with people Monday after the Sunday night airing of the movie, I asked "Did it depress you?" The answer was always yes, and some people seemed a little more shaken up than others.

One friend said she felt like crying while watching the movie and decided about half-way through not to stick it out until the end. Another, who was watching the movie alone, said she was very happy that her viewing was interrupted by a phone call. She was ready to talk to another human being after feeling the isolation and helplessness the movie triggered.

A friend who watched the movie at my house agreed that it was depressing, but added "It's necessary to show this movie so people will be aware of what is going on. We need to face the facts about nuclear weapons and begin taking a stand."

When ABC was promoting the movie, I noticed one advertisement said the film was "beyond imagination." I doubt that statement, because I believe, in the backs of our minds, most Americans, I guess most human beings, have an idea of what would happen to us should we find ourselves faced with a nuclear war.

I can't help thinking, everytime I hear a reference about nuclear war, about the atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki during World War II. George McGovern, after viewing the movie, said "We are the only country in the world who's ever used a nuclear weapon."

Throughout the movie, several references were made about the bombs dropped on these two cities, and actors reciting from the script said that those incidents were "nothing" compared to what could happen in a full-scale nuclear war.

I think "nothing" is too weak a statement when referring to Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The people who died were killed just as completely then as they would be in any nuclear situation. And those who suffer and have died from radiation sickness and who have nightmares about the war probably don't think of the incident as "nothing." The world has had a gruesome taste of the devastation a nuclear device can cause.

I appreciate what Einstein said about war. "I don't know how they'll fight the third world war, but I know how they'll fight the fourth world war — with sticks and stones."

The sad thing about about the "specter of nuclear war," as one commentator referred to it, is that we probably won't have a fighting chance at all if it actually happens. That's why we need to make our feelings known now while there is somebody out there who might listen.

Dear Abby

Hotline brings peace of mind

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing your column of Nov. 17, 1981, with a request that you please run it again. It changed our lives.

ALSO GRATEFUL IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ALSO: With pleasure:
DEAR ABBY: Our problem daughter, not quite 17, ran away from home 14 months ago. She had been giving us a rough time for about a year — skipping school, staying out late and lying to us constantly. After a noisy scene, she stormed out of the house with only the clothes on her back. We didn't have a clue as to where she went.

Only a parent who has lived through this kind of nightmare can realize what we went through. After a year of heartaches and sleepless nights, we were told by the police to give up and assume she was dead. But parents never give up. We continued to search and hope and pray that she's return to us one day.

Well, our prayers were answered when, out of the blue, we received a telephone call from someone who said he was a volunteer with Runaway Hotline (formerly Operation Peace of Mind) in Houston. (We live in Michigan.) We were told that our daughter had read of the toll-free number in "Dear Abby" and she wanted to let us know that she was well and happy in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The volunteer said our daughter would call him again on the following morning in case we had a message for her.

We told him we would welcome a collect call from her. Sure enough, she called us the next day! She sounded wonderful and said she was working and was going to night school to finish her education. This story has a happy ending. Our daughter is coming for Christmas!

Abby, will you please publish that toll-free number again so other runaway kids can establish communications with their families? Our daughter said that she had seen your column with the number posted near telephones where runaways hang out.

We will never be able to thank you enough for giving us the happiest holiday we've ever had!

GRATEFUL IN MICHIGAN

DEAR GRATEFUL: With pleasure. Runaways, call this toll-free number: 1-800-231-6946. If in Texas, use this number: 1-800-392-3352.

An operator will take your call and telephone your parents anywhere in the United States with a message from you. There will be no lecturing or recriminations. Your call will not be traced. And only one question will be asked: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you will be told where you can get it, free. I repeat, no attempt will be made to contact you or bring you back home — regardless of your age.

If you are a runaway, I beg you to forget the past and send a message to your parents now. They will sleep better tonight and so will you. And you will all have the best holiday season you've had in years. God bless you. — ABBY.

P.S. Runaway Hotline was established 10 years ago by a handful of public-spirited volunteers with the support of the governor of Texas. To date it has placed over 600,000 calls from runaways, assuring their families that they are OK. Beautiful!

Dr. Donohue
Hemolytic anemia

Dear Dr. Donohue: My question is, is hemolytic anemia a permanent condition, and how serious is it? Is there any other treatment for it other than prednisone? Would greatly appreciate an early answer. — S.T.

Hemolytic anemia has to do with the lifespan of red blood cells. A normal cell lasts 120 days, after which it is broken down in the liver and spleen, its parts then recycled to make new red cells. In hemolytic anemia, the cells break down too early, a condition called hemolysis. The result is a deficiency of red cells — the anemia.

I'd like to give you a simple, straightforward answer to your question, but I can't. There are many kinds of hemolytic anemia. In some, it's an hereditary trait. Certain drugs may cause it, even the innocuous drug, penicillin. In others, the problem stems from a concomitant illness, like lupus. Or it can come about because antibodies are present and attacking red cells, causing them to die early. Treatment, thus, depends on cause, and often when the cause has been treated the anemia stops. In some cases, as in your own, steroids like prednisone are used.

Having trouble getting to sleep at night? In his new booklet Dr. Donohue examines the insomnia problem and offers some ways to help you get your needed rest. For a copy of "Why Can't You Sleep?" send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Film focuses on problems with aging

Emily Ward, Malone-Hogan Hospital's public relations director, spoke about aging during a meeting of Permian Basin Medical Society Auxiliary at Big Spring Country Club, Wednesday.

Mrs. Ward explained the hospital's program, "As Parents Grow Older." A film titled "Age Related Vision and Hearing Changes" was shown. Audio-visual effects dramatized the contrast between what children think elderly parents see and hear and what they actually do see and hear.

Malone-Hogan Hospital will offer the series, "As Parents Grow Older" in January. Enrollment is limited. Interested persons may call Mrs. Ward at 263-1211 ext. 107.

The auxiliary's recent three-session cooking school made a profit of $140. A donation will be made to Rainbow Project. The auxiliary will distribute Thanksgiving baskets.

The next meeting will be a Christmas luncheon at Brass Nail, Dec. 21.

Leukemia test a success

DALLAS (AP) — Scientists say a new discovery may lead to a simple blood test that will help doctors detect recurrence of childhood leukemia earlier and less painfully and allow treatment to be started sooner.

The test was the result of a discovery by University of Texas Southwestern Medical School researchers. They found that children with acute leukemia have higher levels of a certain enzyme than other children.

The enzyme is known as terminal deoxynucleotidyl transferase.

Currently, doctors must use the painful procedure of extracting bone marrow through a large syringe to detect when a child is no longer in remission, researchers said last week.

"These (bone marrow tests) are done every two to three months," said Dr. George Buchanan, director of hematology-oncology at Children's Medical Center. "But they are painful and expensive. It's a big deal for the child and his family."

If the new test turns out to be effective, it could be done with a simple blood test taken routinely from leukemia patients, Buchanan said.

The test, he said, could "allow us to give those predicted for relapse larger doses of chemotherapy and those doing well smaller doses."

Jury indicts Jones for injuring child

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A vocational nurse, already charged in a nearby county with murdering one child and harming six others, was named in a one-count indictment Monday alleging she caused "serious injury" to a Bexar County toddler.

The indictment accused nurse Genevieve Jones of injecting the 4-week-old boy with heparin, an anti-coagulant drug that prosecutors said causes "excessive bleeding," on Jan. 9, 1982.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Nick Rothe said additional indictments were "possible" as the 10-month-old investigation continued.

A Bexar County special grand jury has been looking into a string of suspicious infant deaths at the pediatric intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital between 1978 and early 1982.

Prosecutors decided to proceed with Monday's indictment, the first issued by the jurors, because they believed they had enough evidence to win a conviction, Rothe said.

"That's all we decided to go forward with right now," he said. "What can you prove in a courtroom? What can you make stick? That's what counts."

The Kerr County indictments issued against Ms. Jones in May accuse her of murdering a 15-month-old girl and seriously injuring six other children with injections of a powerful muscle relaxant.

Rothe refused to comment on the specific similarities between the two cases, but Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton said, "I can't say that there was not some correlation."

"When you're dealing with one person and one person's actions, those actions don't change much from county to county," Sutton said. "We've (he and Rothe) been working very closely together on these investigations."

Ms. Jones worked at Medical Center's pediatrics unit during the period under investigation, but has denied any wrongdoing.

She currently is being held in the Kerr County jail awaiting her Jan. 9 murder trial.

Rothe said he feels "somewhat frustrated" at not being able to prove what he believes happened in other infant cases, but that the size of the hospital and the time lapse being the children's deaths hampered much of his efforts.

"It comes down to being able to develop hard, admissible evidence," he said. "That's why we're continuing the investigation."

Ex-oil executive sentenced

HOUSTON (AP) — A former oil company executive convicted in a $1.19 million kickback scheme was sentenced Monday to four years in prison and fined $70,000.

U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue also ordered John R. Lennon to serve five years' probation after his release from prison.

Lennon, 59, a former executive vice president with Charter International Oil Co., was convicted by a jury in October of defrauding the company in crude oil purchase.

Lennon's lawyers said they would appeal the conviction and sentence.

Lennon, who left Charter in 1979, could have been sentenced to 80 years in prison and fined up to $80,000 for his conviction on one conspiracy count and seven counts of using interstate commerce to aid in fraud.

Bargain on the block

Haven't all you shrewd businessmen out there heard about the latest commodity on the market.

No, it isn't John Hancock Cash Market, Dean Witter or AT&T. It hasn't been around for a very long time but during its existence it has grown in value and popularity.

What am I talking about? None other than the selling of the Dallas Cowboys. That's right folks, "America's Team" is on the cash market for a considerable amount more than the $600,000 present owner Clint Murchison paid for them in 1960.

Murchison has been having health problems the last few years and has decided that now is the time put the team that he purchased as a National Football League franchise on the market. He took the gamble 24 years ago when he brought the expansion club that was going head on with Lamar Hunt's Dallas Texans.

Today the club still has the same coach, general manager and personnel director.

The person picked to be salesman is club president Tex Schramm, and this figure to be his toughest assignment. Not even putting together the first network telecast of the Olympics at the 1960 Winter Games in Squaw Valley, Calif. — which it did — was this sticky.

The Cowboys are one — if not THE — most prolific teams in NFL history. They have won 12 division championships, five NFC championships, two Super Bowls and played in a league-record 34 playoffs games and five Super Bowls.

You can see why Schramm is calling the selling of the Dallas Cowboys "hard, my most difficult period."

But somehow I get the feeling that Schramm and Murchison won't sell the Cowboys to just anybody that has some big money. The lucky buyer will have to be someone who is able to continue the mode of consistency the Cowboys have always shown on the field and in the front office.

Some say that's not so hard; just go out and find a Clint Murchison clone.

How on earth do you go out and find someone with $50 million and no ego?

When Murchison first purchased the Cowboys he hired Schramm, personnel director Gil Brandt and, of course, coach Tom Landry, a 35-year-old first year head coach. Just like a fairy tale they have lived in harmony every since.

The early going was rough for the franchise as it suffered through five consecutive losing seasons. But keeping his shrewd business mind Murchison decided not to "rock the boat" and stayed with his personnel as they built for the future.

Proving that a little patience goes a long way, the Cowboys responded in due time. After going 25-53-4 the first five years they currently have a record of 232-131-6.

They have the best overall record since the 70's which includes 18 consecutive winning seasons and reaching the playoffs 16 of the last 17 years.

This season the Cowboys have become the first franchise to reach the playoffs nine consecutive seasons.

Murchison hired good people in Schramm, Brandt and Landry, then got out of the way.

Besides having a nose for a sound investment, Murchison's primary talent was not being a meddler.

Before his health would take a turn for the worst with a disease that would affect both his equilibrium and speech, Murchison would travel with the team.

Tales have it he would sit quietly on the bus or plane and never say much to anyone.

"He is quiet and a helluva of guy," said Schramm in a recent interview. "I never had a disagreement with Clint. You don't find them like that."

In the contract the team's authority is with Schramm in which Schramm says the contract is no better than the people involved in it. "There will be a premium on the people, not the contract," said Schramm.

He makes it quite clear that he doesn't want the team ending up in the hands of some owner who will decide to start calling the shots on draft day and telling Landry how to coach.

Schramm continues his search for the "right" person to buy the most successful team in the NFL.

Who knows? If he can't find that person, perhaps Brandt, Landry and he might buy the team.

Strawberry named NL's top rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — After his first month in the major leagues, Darryl Strawberry of the New York Mets was a lot closer to being back in the minors than becoming the National League's Rookie of the Year.

Yet Strawberry, who spent the first month of the 1983 season in Class AAA, overcame his early problems and on Monday was rewarded when he won the NL Rookie of the Year award by a large margin in voting by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"With all the pressure there was when I came up, I was pleased I could turn it around," Strawberry said. "I never questioned my potential."

The gangly outfielder was the only player named on all 24 ballots — two from each NL city — and collected 18 first-place votes, five seconds and one third for a total of 106 points. That far outdistanced Atlanta pitcher Craig McMurtry, who got the remaining six first-place votes and finished with 49 points, and Chicago outfielder Mel Hall, third with 32 points.

Strawberry's victory broke a four-year Los Angeles stranglehold on the NL rookie award.

Steve Sax won it last season, preceded by Fernando Valenzuela, Steve Howe and Rick Sutcliffe.

Strawberry, 21, finished the season with a .257 batting average, 26 home runs and 74 runs batted in for the Mets, who were last in the NL East. He also struck out 128 times.

The 6-foot-6 Strawberry, who was the No. 1 overall pick in the 1980 amateur free agent draft, began the season with Tidewater of the International League and hit .333 in 16 games. With the Mets struggling and the team's attendance sagging, he was called up to the majors May 4.

But in his first 24 games for the Mets, he batted just .161 with three home runs and nine runs batted in.

Then, Strawberry began working constantly with Jim Frey, the Mets' batting coach and now manager of the Chicago Cubs, and results followed. Strawberry finished the season by hitting .313 in his final 54 games and set team records for most home runs and runs batted in by a rookie and most home runs by a left-handed hitter.

McMurtry was 15-9 for the Braves. The right-hander got off to a fast start and was 12-3 at midseason but later went through a month-long winless streak. Hall hit .283 with 17 homers and 56 RBI.

Others receiving votes for the rookie award were Cincinnati outfielder Gary Redus (8), second baseman Bill Doran of Houston (7), pitcher Frank DiPino of Houston (6), first baseman Greg Brock of Los Angeles and pitcher Jose DeLeon of Pittsburgh (3 each), and pitchers Mark Thurmond of San Diego and Lee Tunnell of Pittsburgh (1 each).

Strawberry broke in with Kingsport of the rookie Appalachian League in 1980 and hit .268 with five home runs and 20 RBI. In 1981, with Lynchburg of the Carolina League, he hit .255 with 13 home runs and 78 runs batted in.

He then won Most Valuable Player honors with Jackson in the Texas League in 1982 when he hit .283 with 34 home runs and 97 RBI, along with 45 stolen bases.

Strawberry is the first Met to win the Rookie of the Year award since pitcher Jon Matlack in 1972. Pitcher Tom Seaver, in 1967, was the only other Met to win the honor.

Nebraska No. 1; Air Force No. 18

By The Associate Press
Led by 11-0 Nebraska, the top nine teams remained the same today for the second week in a row in the Associated Press college football poll, while Air Force made the Top Twenty for the first time in 11 years and East Carolina cracked the rankings for only the second time ever.

With 59 of the 60 sports writers and sportscasters on the AP's nationwide panel voting, Nebraska, which has been No. 1 in every poll this season, received 58 first-place ballots and 1,179 of a possible 1,180 points. The Orange Bowl-bound Cornhuskers were idle last weekend and close out their regular season Saturday at Oklahoma.

Runner-up Texas, No. 2 for the 10th consecutive week, defeated Baylor 24-21 to earn the host spot in the Cotton Bowl. The Longhorns, who wind up their regular season Saturday at Texas A&M, received the other first-place vote and 1,118 points.

Third-place Auburn was idle and received 1,052 points. The Sugar Bowl-bound Tigers meet Alabama in Birmingham on Dec. 3.

Illinois, the No. 4 team, clinched its first Big Ten title in 20 years by defeating Northwestern 56-24. The Illini, headed for the Rose Bowl, received 977 points.

Fifth-place Miami, Nebraska's Orange Bowl opponent, completed a 10-1 regular season a week ago. The Hurricanes got 962 points.

Sun Bowl-bound Southern Methodist held sixth place with a 17-0 victory over Arkansas and totaled 878 points. The Mustangs play Houston Saturday in Tokyo. Seventh-place Georgia was not scheduled last

Dorsett passes 2 milestones against Chiefs

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tony Dorsett keeps passing National Football League milestones like an automobile speeds by highway signs.

Dorsett's 108 yards rushing in Dallas' 41-21 victory over Kansas City Sunday gives him 8,051 yards and makes him only the ninth player to reach 8,000.

He also became the first Cowboy ever to get 10,000 combined rushing-and-receiving yards.

Dorsett has rushed for over 1,000 yards in six of his seven NFL seasons.

The strike-shortened 1982 campaign kept him from making 1,000 yards for the first time in his career which dates all the way back to Hopewell High School in Alliquippa, Pa. In nine games, he had 745 yards.

Starting in 1971, Dorsett has rushed for 1,000 or more yards 12 times in 13 years. His lifetime rushing total is 18,100 yards.

"This is the stretch drive, the dash for cash," said Dorsett. "We have to run as well as we pass if we expect to accomplish the things we set out to do in July."

Dorsett ran 28 and 32 yards for touchdowns against Kansas City as Dallas extended its record to 10-2.

"I guess 1,000 yards is still the criterion for a great back in the NFL, but I think for me it's just a mediocre season," said Dorsett. "I'll have to get 1,600 before I can say I had

ROGERS ON A RUMBLE — New Orleans Saints running back George Rogers scores a first quarter touchdown against the New York Jets Monday night. Rogers scored again in the third quarter but the Jets rallied for 17 fourth quarter points to nip the Saints, 31-18.

Late punt return gets Jets by Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Punt return specialist Kirk Springs dashed 76 yards for a touchdown with 2:11 remaining to give the New York Jets a 31-28 National Football League victory over the New Orleans Saints Monday night.

The return capped a 17-point fourth-quarter explosion that erased a 28-14 deficit and deprived the Saints of their first ever Monday night victory. New Orleans' last hope faded when place-kicker Morten Andersen was wide left with a 51-yard field goal attempt with 19 seconds remaining.

Richard Todd hit wide receiver Jerome Barkum with an 11-yard touchdown pass just two minutes before Springs' touchdown. Pat Leahy kicked a 38-yard field goal just 15 seconds into the final period.

The Jets got seven points in each of the first two quarters — the first on a 34-yard interception return by linebacker Lance Mehl and the other on a one-yard plunge by Marion Barber.

New Orleans got two touchdowns in the first quarter and two touchdowns in the third to lead 28-14 going into the fourth period.

George Rogers rushed for 84 yards and two touchdowns for New Orleans, one on a 14-yard run three minutes into the game and the other on a two-yard run in the third quarter. Hokie Gajan gained another 113 yards for Saints. The Jets had not allowed any running back more than 50 yards in their last seven games.

Kenny Stabler hit tight end Hobie Brenner with a 38-yard scoring pass in the opening quarter and fullback Wayne Wilson dove one yard for a third-quarter score.

Stabler, the most successful Monday Night quarterback in NFL history coming into the game, fell to 11-3-1 in the nationally televised showcase as New Orleans slipped to 0-6 on Monday night. The Saints are 6-6 this season.

Freeman McNeil, the league's leading rusher last season expected to see only limited duty because of a seven-week layoff with of a shoulder separation, carried 20 times for 86 yards for the Jets before leaving with a twisted ankle in the fourth quarter as New York improved to 5-7 for the season.

wekend. The Bulldogs, who meet Texas in the Cotton Bowl, wind up against Georgia Tech on Saturday. They received 776 points.

Eighth-place Michigan and Auburn's Sugar Bowl foe, edged Ohio State 24-21 and received 761 points, while the losers dropped from 10th to 14th.

Brigham Young remained No. 9 with a 55-7 rout of Utah. The Cougars, who face Missouri in the Holiday Bowl, got 686 points.

Outing the Top Ten, Gator Bowl-bound Iowa moved up from 11th to 10th by crushing Minnesota 61-10 and receiving 647 points.

The Second Ten consists of Florida, Clemson, Alabama, Ohio State, Boston College, Pittsburgh, Maryland, Air Force, West Virginia and East Carolina.

Last week, it was Iowa, Florida, Clemson, West Virginia, Washington, Alabama, Pitt, B.C., Missouri and Maryland.

But Washington was upset by Washington State 17-6 and Missouri lost to Kansas 37-27. That made room for 8-2 Air Force, a 23-2 winner over Notre Dame, and 8-3 East Carolina, which took Southern Mississippi 10-6. Air Force last appeared in the ratings in 1972. East Carolina's only previous appearance was a tie for 20th at midseason in 1976. The Pirates' three losses have been by a combined 13 points to Miami, Florida and Florida State.

"It's my intention to play 10 years and after that I will reassess my desire to play."

He then joked, "Jim Brown's mark just might be in reach, I guess, but haven't you heard, Jim Brown is coming back."

Dorsett has had to live with criticism that he's a fumbler and gets hurt easily.

Actually, Dorsett fumbles only once every 34 carries and has missed only three games in seven years with the Cowboys.

"My whole career has been one of making people eat their words," Dorsett said. "When I came out of high school I remember Ara Parsegian's No. 1 assistant saying I was too skinny to play."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who has lengthened Dorsett's career with a relatively light work load, said, "Tony was the difference. He made the two big runs for touchdowns."

Dorsett called the Dallas running game "disgraceful" earlier in the week after a loss to the San Diego

TONY DORSETT...sixth 1,000 yard

Landry joked, "I asked him (Dorsett) if he ever heard of the 'Bootsie' play where the gates open and don't block anybody."

Dorsett said he wished he had kept his mouth shut.

"I've been in the league for seven years now and you'd think I'd know better," Dorsett said. "I wish I hadn't said those things."

BASKETBALL

Steers open against a 4-5A foe right out of the blocks. Both teams finished in the middle of the league race last year and were hit hard by graduation. Both squads lost entire starting lineups but each is rebuilding successfully.

Bullocks, 16-14 overall last season, have discovered a gem in senior guard Chris Rooker. Rooker fired in 36 points against highly-regarded Hobbs, N.M., and added 32 more against Snyder in pre-season scrimmages.

Other top newcomers are 6-2 sophomore Darrel Davis who had 29 rebounds in two scrimmages and 18 points against Snyder and a pair of 6-4 postmen Kenneth Johnson and Eric Brunson.

Willie Ratliff, a 6-5 newcomer, is tallest player on squad but has no varsity experience.

Steers return only part-time starters Jimmy Brown and Jerry Wrightall to varsity lineup. Top newcomers include 6-3 junior Mike Lueschner and transfers Fred and Billy Cole of Houston.

Big Spring recorded 17-12 mark last year, the first winning season in 10 years. Mike Randle has moved from the junior varsity to take over for Archie Myers as head coach. Myers is now the assistant at Odessa College.

Game time is 8 p.m.; junior varsities play at 6:15 p.m.

Big Spring is among favorites to capture a playoff berth from 4-5A this year, along with San Angelo and Permian.

The Lady Steers return healthy portion of experience in senior forward Paula Spears and guards Debra Rubio and Monette Wise. Wise was an all-district choice last year as a junior, scoring over 10 points a game.

BSSH, under first-year coach Annette Fowler, was 15-11 and finished third in the district standings. The winning season was the first in six years for the BSSH varsity.

Game time is 8 p.m. in Steer Gym; junior varsities play at 6:15 p.m.

Boy Scouts' ad campaign tries hard-sell approach

DALLAS (AP) — A new advertising campaign by The Boy Scouts of America, decidedly hard-hitting and downbeat, has been rejected by the CBS television network who think it is too controversial, a scouting official says.

The Boy Scouts program is graphically presented in some of the new ads as an alternative to drug abuse and crime. The Dallas Morning News reported today. One of the magazine ads is dominated by a picture of a freckle-faced, teen-age boy. The clean-cut youngster clenches one fist as he uses the other hand to stick a hypodermic needle into his arm.

"Last year, there were over 82,000 cases of drug abuse by teenage boys," says the headline. The ad ends with the campaign's slogan: "Boy, do we need Scouting."

Michael Whittaker, advertising director for the national Boy Scouts organization, based in Irving, called the new ads "controversial, but effective."

The ads "say America is in a lot of trouble and that Scouting can help. You don't find Eagle Scouts shooting up," he said.

But CBS found the ads "too tough" and potentially "too upsetting" for young viewers and turned down the ads, Whittaker said.

Contacted Monday night in New York, a CBS News assignments editor told The Associated Press he did not know of the decision by the network, and said spokesmen were not available.

The NBC and ABC television networks have agreed to run the ads, Whittaker said.

Broadcasting and publishing companies that have donated space and air time for past Scouting ads are resisting the new campaign, Whittaker said.

You can start with Christmas cards. Hester's has cards for every taste — frolics Santas, religious themes, snow scenes, kittens, gold and silver metallic designs, and striking abstracts. There are even Christmas postcards for a short note, and Yule stationery if you're moved to write a letter.

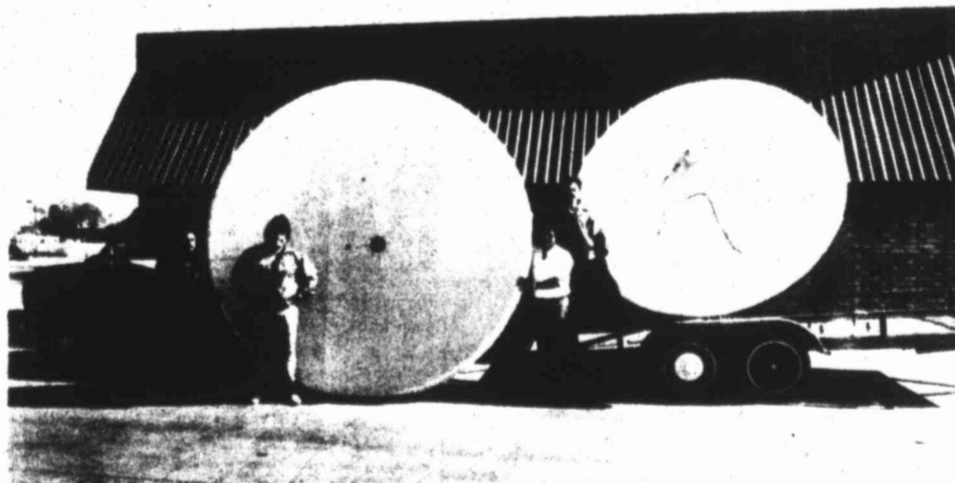

Stationery is always a welcome gift, and Hester's has one of the largest stocks in town. You can choose from many designs and colors. Examples are Eaton's open stock stationery in such shades as lavender, mauve, and pale green; Lasercraft's lacy designs actually created by a laser; boxed paper with a pen and several points plus a booklet of calligraphy instructions; stationery in a decorative, reusable chest; and designs for everyone from a small child to the ultimate sophisticated on your list.

Why not surprise someone with your photo or a snapshot, framed from the selection at Hester's. Pick wood, old-timey tin look, lucite, beveled glass. There are single, double, triple and college frames.

Another popular gift is theme calendars — and Hester's has a big selection on hand now. Puppies, kittens, nature scenes, religious themes, Murphy's Law, gourmet calendars and more: one will fit every personality you know. There are handy pocket calendars for stocking stuffers.

Hester's has pen-and-pencil sets in many styles and colors — from Parker at $5.98 to Cross at $20. and up.

And every gift you buy at Hester's is gift-wrapped free of charge. A trip to Hester's at 209 Runnels will surely make your Christmas shopping a little merrier.

T. Marquez & Sons is a family-owned and operated business.

T. Marquez & Sons Is Family-Owned Business

T. Marquez & Sons is one of those home-grown family businesses of which the community can be justly proud.

It was founded in 1956 as a parttime TV repair service by the late T. Marquez Jr. He gradually expanded and developed the business, and taught his trade to his six sons. The firm moved to its present location at 1010 Lamesa Highway in 1977, and the building underwent a handsome renovation earlier this year.

Today T. Marquez & Sons, operated by the six sons, offers total sales and service for TV's, stereos, radios, auto radios and 8-tracks, appliances (refrigerators, stoves, washers, dryers), and dish satellites.

Their service area includes Vealmoor, Ackerly, Knott, Lenorah, Vincent, Garden City, St. Lawrence, Lomax and other communities in the area.

While they sell Quasar TV's exclusively, they service all brands of televisions from A to Z. They specialize in antenna work, service all makes and models of satellite dishes, and install the dishes in town or in the country.

In an era of declining customer services, T. Marquez & Sons still make house service calls and they still offer free delivery on appliances purchased from them. They have three trained technicians to service what they sell.

The Marquez sons — Bobby, Manuel, Raul, Jesse, Tony and Larry — still operate the company with their father's philosophy that "The customer is your friend — not just a customer." Keep their phone number 263-3033 handy for prompt, courteous TV and appliance service.

Cue-card man makes stars look good

NEW YORK (AP) — Barney McNulty, cue-card man to the stars, saves Bob Hope's hide every time the comedian walks on stage. But there was one time in the Vietnam War that he really might have saved Hope's life.

In 1962, Hope's road show had just entertained American troops at an airfield in Vietnam. Heading back to their hotel in Saigon, the performer and his entourage were delayed for some time while McNulty put 4,000 pounds of cue cards in order.

Ten minutes before Hope's motorcade arrived in Saigon, a bomb went off near his hotel, killing and injuring more than 100 people.

It wasn't until 1974, when Gen. William C. Westmoreland cornered McNulty at a show, that McNulty learned that the Army had found documents in an enemy bunker detailing plans to kill Hope and his troupe. A truck loaded with explosives was supposed to blow up his hotel.

The terrorists knew Hope's itinerary, said McNulty, but when they couldn't find him at the appointed time, they parked in a different hotel and triggered the bombs. "The document the army found said that the excuse for not getting our group was that our timing was off," he said.

When the story was related to Hope, McNulty said the comic told him, "Saved by the idiot cards again."

Tonight, when the legendary comedian is getting laughs on NBC's special, "Bob Hope Goes to College," remember that McNulty is feeding him the lines on macroscopic crib sheets. Since Hope has been having eye problems, McNulty's lettering has had to grow — by as much as 10 times for one show last year. It took three days to prepare those cards.

"I had to make 2,200 (cue-card) slips, and let me tell you that's a lot," said McNulty. "My thumb was awfully red."

Jimmy Durante was another near-sighted comedian who needed large jacks, said McNulty, who has been plying his oversized pieces of cardboard for more than 30 years, working for such stars as Lucille Ball, Jack Benny, Orson Welles, Frank Sinatra, Milton Berle and Carol Burnett.

McNulty said Miss Burnett adds little squiggles to his letters. Berle used to underline key words. Improvisational and fast-talking comedians, like Robin Williams, pose different problems. "He'll use you, then he won't use you," McNulty said. "You try to stay with him as best you can."

CUES THE STARS — Barney McNulty stands in front of more than 2,000 cue cards that he used for a Bob Hope television special that was filmed recently in Burbank, Calif. McNulty has saved stars from the embarrassment of forgetting their lines for more than 30 years.

McNulty is from the old school: cardboard sheets and fast-drying ink, disdaining the electronic age's computerized scrolls. "If I thought we could do better with the modern stuff, I'd use it. But we've never blown a fuse."
