TESCO rates may rise 5 percent

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Big Spring area customers of Texas Electric Service Co. will see a 5 percent increase in their monthly bills if a recommendation released Wednesday is approved Dec. 12 by the Public Utility Commission.

That 77-page recommendation is from commission hearings examiner Phil Holder. It pleased Jim Boyle, the state's attorney representing consumers.

But it reportedly shocked some Texas Electric (TESCO) officials by reducing their request by almost 70 percent from $195 million to $60.2 million, one commission staff member said.

George Hedrick, TESCO's manager of public information, commented that company officials "are very disappointed that it all the increase the hearings examiner recommended. We have waited three years since the last increase."

Though Holder did not list the exact rates residential customers should pay, he said his recommendation to cut TESCO's request would increase most monthly bills by about 5 percent.

Texas Electric had asked for an average increase of 16.1 percent, a commission spokesman said.

For a residential customer accustomed to paying $100 a month, the bill would go to about $105 under Holder's recommendation.

Though pleased with the $60.2 million figure, Boyle said he suspects TESCO customers still would be overcharged.

He noted that in January, TESCO and two sister companies (Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light) will be combined to form a more streamlined and efficient power company — Texas Utilities Electric Co.

"They'll be collecting rates based on a company that doesn't exist," he said.

Boyle added that overcharges are likely because one big company should be able to produce cheaper power than three smaller utilities.

He suggested the TESCO rate case and another now pending for Dallas Power & Light Co. should be sent back for more hearings to take the Jan. 1 mergers into account.

A big difference between the company's request and Holder's recommendation involves additional funding TESCO wants for paying interest on its part of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant under construction in Somervell and Hood counties.

The utility wants to collect 100 percent of that interest cost, while Holder recommended 50 percent, the same as suggested by the Texas Municipal League. The league represents a number of Texas cities fighting the rate increase.

Holder added that he believes the 50 percent figure will help the utility maintain an AA bond rating.

That would be down from the perfect AAA bond rating now enjoyed by TESCO's parent company, Texas Utilities, Inc.

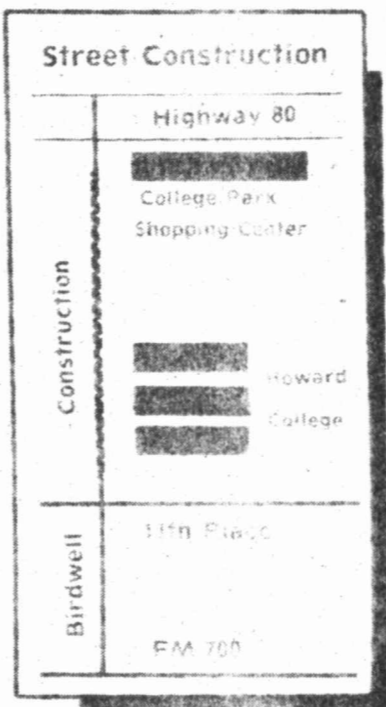

Company officials argue that they can save customers more money in the long-run by keeping a AAA rating than they can with an AA rating.

In most cases, they say, the higher the bond rating the lower the interest cost.

PAVING THE WAY — A Price Construction crew works to repair Birdwell Lane in front of Howard College. Work on Birdwell began this week and should continue for about 2½ months, Price Construction vice president Bob Price said. Meanwhile, another city street, Goliad, should open Friday for motorists' use, Price said.

Goliad to open; Birdwell delayed

One main Big Spring thoroughfare will reopen Friday after a three-month closure, but work begun Monday on another major street will severely limit traffic there for an estimated 2½ months, a construction company official said Wednesday.

Bob Price, vice president of Price Construction Inc., said Wednesday the primer has been set on Goliad Street between 11th and 15th and his company will be able to pave and reopen the street by the end of the week.

Goliad has been the victim of "weather attributed delays" due to rain during the past three months, City Public Works Director Tom Decell said Wednesday. Water drainage from about an eighth of the city flows into Goliad, Decell said.

Work begun Monday on Birdwell Lane between the alley south of the College Park Shopping Center and 11th Place has closed the east side of the street and restricted traffic to its western-most lanes.

Pavement on the east side has been ripped up and will be mixed in to the street's existing base in preparation for a new asphalt surface, Price said. The street is also being widened 6 to 9 feet on the east side, Price said.

The construction company plans to finish paving on the east side between the alley and 11th and then block off the west side for similar work, Price said. The company will then begin the same process on Birdwell between 11th and FM 700, Price said.

Because temperature "highs of 45 degrees will nearly prevent pav-

Hightower lends help

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says his department is providing drought-stricken West Texas ranchers with a list of options to get federal corn to their livestock at the lowest possible cost.

"Our role is simply to put buyers in touch with sellers, trying to grease the skids a bit so the corn can move as quickly as possible, at the lowest market price available," Hightower told a news conference Wednesday.

He said he had been trying for five months to get the U.S. Department of Agriculture to release federally owned corn from storage in the Panhandle so ranchers can save their herds.

On Nov. 1 the state filed a lawsuit to get the corn released, but recently Congress enacted legislation to turn it loose. Hightower said the USDA estimates 10 million bushels are stored in one grain elevator.

Asked if the state would pursue the suit, Hightower said, "No, we're not going to pursue that case on that basis. What we wanted was the corn released, and I think we now have it."

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said, however, he would wait until the surplus grain is actually released before seeking dismissal of the suit.

JIM HIGHTOWER
...aids farmers

"We're talking survival here," said Hightower. "This is not anything that's really going to make it a profitable year or anything like that."

He said if the federal government allows proper discounts for damaged corn, ranchers ought to be able to buy it for 25 cents to $1.80 per bushel, compared with a market price of $3.10. But the rancher would still have to pay for transportation and, in some cases, processing.

"Even at these prices this is expensive," Hightower said. "It's like getting half price off on a Mercedes — you've still got to be able to afford the other half."

"All these ranchers will lose money this year, but what we're talking about is just the availability of feed at the best price that it's going to be available at so that their foundation herds — their breeding stock — can survive the winter, and they can get another run at it next year," he said.

Hightower said his department will offer a referral service for ranchers to arrange low-cost transportation and processing of the corn.

"We have compiled a list of addresses and phone numbers of all truckers in the area who hold a permit to haul this corn, we have a list of the railroad companies that can move it, and we have put together a list of processors the ranchers can use," he said. "We are sending copies of these lists to all newspapers, radio and TV stations in the drought area, as well as to all county agents, county judges" and others.

"In short, here in Texas, we're

Christmas season starts in Big Spring

The Christmas season officially begins this weekend in the Big Spring area as two institutions repeat traditional holiday observances.

Kathy Viccinelli, coordinator of volunteer services at Big Spring State Hospital, said a large tree will be illuminated at 7 p.m. today on the hospital grounds on the southeast corner of the administration building.

Choir members from Hillcrest Baptist, First Presbyterian, First Methodist, College Baptist, First Christian, Mount Bethel and Midway Baptist churches will form a choir directed by Randy Anderson and will present a selection of Christmas music.

Members of Cub Scout Troop 401 will escort Santa Claus to the hospital grounds in a truck. They will circle through the grounds before arriving at the tree at 7 p.m. Superintendent A.K. Smith will give a short welcome. The public is invited to attend.

Tonight's program is only the first of two celebrations planned for the hospital, Mrs. Viccinelli said. Patients will have parties in their wards Dec. 13, hosted by volunteers in the community, and a hospital-wide dance will follow in the gym.

Candles sparking from within 2,000 sacks packed with sand will line the streets of Howard College Friday night as the fourth annual Luminaria celebration unfolds.

Personnel from the Howard County Junior College District will spend most of Friday preparing for the event by assembling luminarias and distributing them around campus.

At 7 p.m. Friday, the public is invited to join the district for the Christmas program. The program will begin in front of the Howard College student union building. Shortly after 7 p.m., lights on four buildings at the campus will be turned on and will remain on throughout the Christmas season.

Patti Hutte of the student life division said a new building has been added to those illuminated each year since the program began. This year's building "is a secret" until the program, she added.

The Howard College New Dimensions and the Nighthawks will perform Christmas music, and the public will be invited to join in.

The program will then move inside for a performance of "A Christmas Carol" by members of the Howard College Reader's Theatre. Santa Claus has also agreed to visit, and refreshments will be served, Mrs. Hutte said.

BUS WRECK — Six passengers were killed Wednesday when this Continental Trailways bus collided with a flat bed truck, lost control and plunged over a bridge railing into a creek embankment along U.S. Highway 59 near Livingston.

Probe continues into bus accident

LIVINGSTON (AP) — Federal investigators today sought to determine why a Trailways bus struck the rear of a truck and careened 40 feet into a muddy creek, killing six passengers and injuring six others.

An eight-member task force from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived late Wednesday from Washington "to try to determine factually what happened and make safety recommendations if appropriate," NTSB spokesman Steve Blackstone said.

Patrick Bursley, head of the NTSB investigating team, said a preliminary investigation indicates the bus driver may have swerved at the last minute to try to avoid hitting the truck.

"There was no indication of any mechanical malfunction on the bus," he said.

Bursley said the NTSB team would spend the next three to four days taking extensive measurements, examining the wreckage and talking with survivors.

"There have been a number of hypotheses, but we have not cross checked," he said.

One of the survivors reportedly

Big Spring native to appear on TV's 'Today' program

Leland Wood, a former Big Spring resident, will appear Friday on the "Today" show in a segment on the Texas Crime Prevention Institute at Southwest Texas State University.

Wood, the son of Nola Wood of 4210 Muir, is the institute's program director and became one of the institute's first full-time instructors in 1975.

The show, which will include taped portions of a 40-hour institute school in Houston during November, is part of a three-day series on successful crime prevention programs that will begin airing Wednesday.

The Texas Crime Prevention Institute is funded by a grant from the Criminal Justice Division of the Texas governor's office. Members of law enforcement agencies throughout the state can receive basic, advanced or specialized training without paying tuition; however, the participating Texas agencies must pay a portion of their personnel's room and board.

The institute also offers training to out-of-state agencies on a space available, client-funded basis. Since the program began in 1974, crime prevention training has been given to officers from 37 states, Canada and Guam.

"Today" show producers became interested in the institute through the "Figgie Report Part IV: Reducing Crime in America: Successful Community Efforts," said George Landry, director of Southwest Texas University's Institute of Criminal Justice Studies.

The report, which was sponsored by Figgie International, Inc. of Willoughby, Ohio, said the Texas institute has become "a leading world center for law enforcement and information about crime prevention," and that more than 5,000 Texas police officers have been trained through the institute.

Female soldiers

Fight a constant battle against stereotyping

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The heavy combat was over by the time they arrived, but the more than 100 female soldiers now on duty in Grenada are fighting a different kind of battle, this time against stereotypes.

"There are still a lot of problems. There's a lot of sexual harassment. But also, a lot of the guys refuse to take you seriously, even if you out-rank them. You have to prove yourself — more than once," said Spec. 4 Liz Milliken, a 20-year-old native of Santa Rosa, Calif.

She was perched in a machine gun nest on the outer wall of the Ross Point Inn, being used by U.S. diplomats as their embassy in Grenada. She cradled M-60 and M-203 heavy automatic weapons.

Placement of women in such key positions is a relatively new phenomenon for the U.S. military. The Army's combat exclusion policy prohibits women from serving in any assignment that risks involvement in direct combat.

Women have been used in civil and public affairs, as drivers and as medics in other "hot zones," but in Grenada, some have been given even greater roles.

Pentagon officials say about 110 women soldiers arrived in Grenada on Oct. 30 — five days after the invasion by U.S. Army Rangers and Marines — to serve with administrative, intelligence, transportation, medical, supply and other service and support type units.

Since then, according to Lt. Col. Mike Clark, an Army spokesman at the Pentagon, "We have received no reports of women being in a direct hostile fire situation (in Grenada)."

Four military policewomen had actually arrived earlier — on Oct. 29 — but were returned to Fort Bragg, N.C., because of continuing hostilities. They came back to Grenada Nov. 2.

The expanded and early use of women here surprised many soldiers. Several women interviewed said some men did double-takes the first time they saw them.

Some officers were angered, according to two military sources, who didn't want to be identified. "Some officers look at it that when a woman comes, she's taking a place that would have been held by a man. If she can't perform the same role, then he's lost a man," explained an Army lieutenant.

Another lieutenant, 24-year-old helicopter pilot Kathryn Henderson, said she partially understood such complaints.

"Most of the women, if they were asked to go out on combat patrol, they would do it. But it's a matter of size. I weigh 120 pounds. If they put those packs on me, that would be three-fourths of my weight. That's not an efficient combat troop," said Ms. Henderson, of Winter Springs, Fla.

Pfc. Sheila Gibbons, a 19-year-old Signal Corps messenger from Lincoln Park, Mich., said she had volunteered for duty in Grenada after the invasion. But she admitted she might not have had there been continuing heavy fighting. "I wouldn't want to be in a war situation at all," she said.

The women interviewed agreed that while they were subject to suggestive comments from their fellow soldiers, there were no serious problems in that way.

Ms. Milliken said her worst experiences were her first few days of duty here as military police at a since-dismantled prison camp where hundreds of captured Cubans were held. The Cubans would come to life when she would walk by, she said.

"I only speak a little Spanish, but I understand. There were facial gestures, hand gestures," she said. "You can't overlook that, but you have to ignore it. You're a soldier, and you just keep giving it 110 percent."

Grain

He said, however, it "just boggles the mind" that the USDA says it will probably take 10 more days to get guidelines out to its employees in the Panhandle.

"The time has come for the USDA to stop stalling and shell out the corn," he said.

Meanwhile, Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, sent a letter to Gov. Mark

White, urging that the state provide free transportation to get the grain from storage to the livestock growers who need it.

Under legislation signed by President Reagan, livestock growers would be required to pay for their own transportation.

"Since you and I both agree that time is of the essence, I urge that State Agriculture Commissioner

Hightower, who has been such an active voice in this whole process, move immediately to provide free transportation of the grain from the storage depots to the drought-stricken areas.

Loeffler said the federal government "has done its share, and I believe it is now time for the state to ante up."

Wreck

Texas state police investigating the predawn accident Wednesday speculated that the driver may have been speeding.

"The bus was traveling at, in my opinion, an excessive speed," said Department of Public Safety Trooper David Sandin, who is heading the state probe. "It didn't fall down into the creek like a heavy bus like that would — it flew over the top of it."

The bus clipped the rear of an empty flat-bed trailer-truck, rammed through a guardrail over Milton Creek, then vaulted the creek before slamming into the muddy embankment.

Four people crawled or were thrown from the wreck, said Corky Cochran, fire chief in Livingston, about 75 miles north of Houston, and one of the first emergency workers to arrive on the scene. The accident occurred about five miles north of Livingston.

"There was a lot of confusion, a lot of moaning," he said. "It's understandable. There you are, upside down in the dark."

Troopers said two people — one of them driver Ed Perry of Houston — were pinned in the mangled wreckage for 90 minutes as rescue workers cut the top off the bus.

Perry was "conscious but incoherent," Cochran said. "He was just embedded into the embankment ... begging for us to help him."

Perry and three of the passengers, including a 12-year-old girl, were taken by helicopter to Houston's Hermann Hospital. The girl, Sharon Faircloth of Bossier City, La., remained in serious condition today, said hospital spokeswoman Sarah Sharpless.

Two others were listed in satisfactory condition. Perry's family asked the hospital not to release information about his condition, Ms. Sharpless said.

One other passenger was in good condition at Livingston Memorial Hospital. A 9-year-old boy whose mother was among the fatalities was treated at the hospital and released.

Truck driver Richard Palma Garcia, 43, of Livingston, said he had just pulled out from his home onto U.S. Highway 59 when he was hit in the rear. He was not injured, and said he ran down the embankment to the bus. After learning people were hurt, Garcia said he ran back to the road and tried in vain to hail help from passing motorists.

"You can't see it (the bus) from the road. I just wanted to get someone to help me. It was dark and I was flashing my light and no one would stop," he said.

Garcia said he then ran a half-mile back to his house and called the sheriff's department. Trailways spokeswoman Tricha Barnett in Dallas said company officials were investigating the wreck as well but had no immediate indication on "what happened, on who hit who, or if the driver was speeding or if there was mechanical failure."

Streets

Price Construction has put off until after Christmas work on Birdwell between Fourth and the alley south of the College Park Shopping Center so that patrons of the shopping center may have clear access into its parking lot, Price said.

Delbert Halfmann and Daniel Hirt, both of Garden City, will judge the pecan show. Their wives will judge the food show. Plaques will be awarded to the champions of both shows.

Forgery suspect sentenced

Kenneth Wayne Robinson, 21, of 423 Dallas pleaded guilty Wednesday in 118th District Court to a charge of forgery by passing. District Judge Jim Gregg sentenced Robinson to five years probation.

• Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Jimmy W. Lunsford, 27, of 2206 S. Monticello on a Burnet County warrant for failure to appear in court. Lunsford paid the sheriff's office an $86 fine, which was mailed to Burnet County.

• Kendall Crawford Webb, 38, was transferred from the Wynn Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections to the county jail on a bench warrant.

• Sheriff's deputies also arrested Gary Wiggins, 40, of 2400 Cheyenne on a peace bond. He was released on $1,000 peace bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Rivers drops studio plans

LEVITTOWN, Pa. — A group of developers headed by comedian Joan Rivers has dropped a plan to turn 87 acres of Pennsylvania farmland into a $100 million studio, but the development group will continue its court fight against Northampton Township officials.

Miss Rivers, her husband, Edgar Rosenberg, and developer Tom Pileggi announced the cancellation Wednesday. Rosenberg said the move will not affect a plan to build 300 condominiums on the land or a lawsuit filed in May seeking to have the tract incorporated as a new borough known as Two Ponds.

The suit was filed in Bucks County Court on May 10 to circumvent the township's refusal to rezone the site, located along Almhouse Road in Ivyland.

The land was bought by Pileggi at a 1976 auction for $200,000. Two years later, he was granted permission to subdivide the land and the idea for the studio was born.

Ellerbee out of a job

NEW YORK — Linda Ellerbee, who will be without a television program after "NBC News Overnight" ends its nearly 18-month run early Saturday, says she won't sign on with "First Camera."

"It's not the right thing for me to do right now," Ms. Ellerbee, 39, said Wednesday of her decision not to climb aboard the low-rated newsmagazine show. "I've already turned it down."

However, she said NBC News President Reuven Frank asked her to give the matter more thought, and "I said I would think it over some more."

Her contract with NBC News runs through May. "NBC News Overnight" is being taken off the air with low ratings and heavy losses.

Queen present honor medal

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth II presented the Queen's Gallantry Medal to a British diver who twice entered the sunken wreck of the HMS Coventry, lost in the South Atlantic during the battle for the Falklands, to retrieve Royal Navy secrets.

Petty Officer Michael Harrison, 33, received the medal in a ceremony at Buckingham Palace Wednesday.

The citation told of Harrison's experience as one of 26 divers. He had squeezed through a hole hacked in the side of the wreck under 300 feet of water and searched for hours in the ship's operations room for codebooks. He found two sets but as he was leaving snagged his umbilical line carrying safety rope, breathing mixture, communications and hot water to warm him in the icy Atlantic. It took an hour to get him free, but still he made a second eight-hour dive to recover a TV-sized piece of equipment, the citation said.

"It made the old heart jump a bit," Harrison recalled.

Also honored at the ceremony was British poet Sir Stephen Spender, who received his knighthood.

'Frontline' hires Woodruff

NEW YORK — Judy Woodruff, Washington correspondent for the "MacNeil-Lehrer Newshour," will anchor "Frontline," public television's weekly documentary series.

Jessica Savitch, who died in a car crash earlier this fall, was the anchor on "Frontline" last season.

Ms. Woodruff, 36, will anchor the program through May and then cover the 1984 election campaigns for "MacNeil-Lehrer," according to an announcement Wednesday.

The second season of "Frontline" begins Jan. 16.

Druse leader assassinated

BEIRUT — A gunman with a silencer-equipped pistol assassinated the top legal authority in Lebanon's Druse community today, pumping several bullets into his head in the victim's west Beirut home, police sources said.

A French soldier was killed by a sniper in a separate shooting near the Green Line dividing Moslem west and Christian east Beirut, and Beirut airport remained closed following a Druse threat to resume heavy shelling unless Lebanon's army cleared out.

The police sources said a preliminary investigation indicated the assassinated Druse official, Sheik Halim Takieddine, a moderate, may have known his assailant and that the sheik's maid was being questioned.

One police official said the maid admitted the man to the house in the Sanayea district of west Beirut "because he was familiar to her. The assailant asked the maid to fix him some coffee, and when she returned to the living room a few minutes later, she found the sheik dead and the man gone."

Takieddine, 60, was the highest legal authority of the secretive Druse faith, an offshoot of Islam. He set the rules for such things as marriages, divorces and wills.

Takieddine was second to the spiritual leader of the Druse, Sheik Mohammed Abu Shakra.

Takieddine was considered a political moderate and had always called for peaceful Moslem-Christian co-existence in this war-torn nation.

He had also asked Druse leaders to show more flexibility when negotiating with Christian President Amin Gemayel's government for an end to the country's almost nine years of civil warfare.

Envoy to met with rebels

PANAMA CITY, Panama — U.S. officials say special envoy Richard Stone may meet today with anti-Sandinista rebels in a new attempt to increase pressure on Nicaragua's leftist government.

Administration officials in Washington said Stone, President Reagan's envoy to Central America since last summer, would serve as mediator in meetings with leaders of at least three anti-Sandinista groups.

When he arrived here Wednesday night, Stone said he met earlier in Miami with Costa Rican President Luis Alberto Monge. He declined to answer questions about a possible meeting with Nicaraguan insurgents.

The State Department's only official comment was that Stone planned to be in Panama today for discussions related to Nicaragua.

Adolfo Calero, head of the anti-Sandinista Nicaraguan Democratic Force based in northern Nicaragua, said in an interview he would try to meet with Stone and with members of the Contadora group, whose meeting starts here today.

The group — Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama — is drawing up a peace plan to be signed Dec. 21 by foreign ministers from Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica and Guatemala.

The 21-point plan's provisions include removal of foreign military advisers from the region and commitments by all countries to not provide bases for rebels attacking other countries.

The officials in Washington said Stone also was expected to meet with Alfonso Robelo, a leader of the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance which operates in southern Nicaragua.

The two rebel groups have been unable to unite because Calero's forces, which receives covert U.S. aid, includes supporters of the late rightist strongman Anastasio Somoza, overthrown by the Sandinistas in July 1979.

Bus union may be softening

WASHINGTON — Representatives of striking Greyhound workers seem poised to soften their bargaining demands in an attempt to revive negotiations to end a nearly month-long walkout.

Although members of the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions remain secluded at a downtown hotel in strategy sessions that began Wednesday, a source close to the Greyhound situation indicated union negotiators were weighing a "compromise contract counterproposal to Greyhound management."

Some 12,700 union bus drivers, mechanics and Greyhound terminal workers struck the company Nov. 2 after refusing to accept pay cuts averaging 9.5 percent a year. Last week, the rank-and-file voted overwhelmingly to reject a modified company proposal for pay cuts in the range of 7.8 percent.

But John W. Teets, Greyhound's chairman, vowed Tuesday that the bus line would step up its hiring of replacements for the strikers, and that Greyhound would seek to increase its service, which has been cut back to about 10 percent of its pre-strike level.

The 31 members of the union bargaining council traveled here from Phoenix, Greyhound's home base, to reassess the union's stand with the help of federal mediators.

The source, who agreed to discuss the bargaining strategy only on the condition he not be identified, said that Kay McMurray, chairman of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, told union negotiators Wednesday that any resumption of negotiations to settle the strike would likely require a new union contract proposal.

Hanukkah celebration begins

TEL AVIV — Jews worldwide have begun celebrating Hanukkah, the Jewish festival of lights, marking a 2000-year-old victory which led to the founding of a Jewish state in the Holy Land.

The eight-day holiday commemorates the victory of the Jews over their Greek and Syrian rulers in the second century B.C., and the rededication of the Temple in Jerusalem after the war.

In Jerusalem, Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi Avraham Shapira lit the first candle at sundown Wednesday at the Western Wall, the only visible remnant of the Temple. Ashkenazi Jews trace their heritage to middle and northern Europe, in contrast to Sephardic Jews whose ancestors settled in Spain and Portugal before the Inquisition.

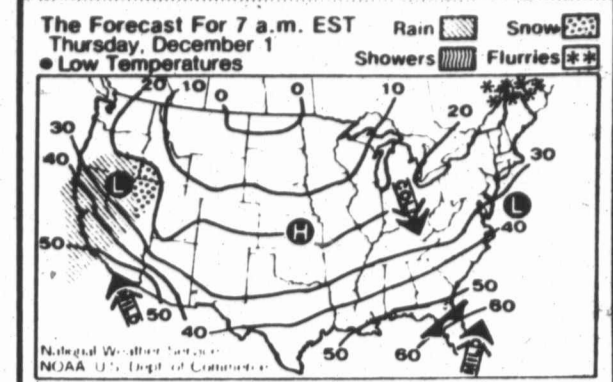

The lighting preceded a swearing-in ceremony for recruits in the army's elite Golani Brigade, one of Israel's modern descendants of Judah the Maccabee's fighters.

According to Jewish tradition, the Jews liberated Jerusalem in 164 B.C. under the leadership of Judah the Maccabee. Their success followed a three-year war to overthrow the Syrians, who tried to convert the country to the Greek religion and put Jews to death for practicing Judaism.

When they had cleaned all the Greek idols out of the Temple, the Jews wanted to relight the eternal flame burning there but found only enough oil to keep it going for one day. Miraculously, the oil lasted for eight days, long enough for more oil to arrive.

Jews have celebrated the liberation and the miracle ever since, in the Festival of Lights — lighting one candle or oil lamp the first night and one more every night until the number reaches eight. The "shamash" (Hebrew for "servant"), a ninth candle, is used to light the others.

Dangerous fallout from nuke politics

The cause of nuclear nonproliferation has always bumped head-on into the feisty nationalism of developing countries. Any nation with the bomb, or at least the recognized capability to make one, automatically counts for that much more in the world's estimation. So too will Argentina, now that its government has announced that it has developed the technology to make enriched uranium — the stuff of nuclear bombs.

To be sure, the Argentines are pledging only "peaceful ends" for their newly acquired capability. Rear Adm. Carlos Castro Madero, president of the Argentine Atomic Energy Commission, has denied any suggestion that Argentina may be developing nuclear weapons.

But these protestations must be taken at something less than face value. Argentina has never signed the Non-Proliferation Treaty that commits nations without nuclear weapons not to develop them. Adm. Castro made clear that Argentina has no intention of submitting to international inspection of its nuclear facilities. Without such inspections, there will be no way to verify Argentine claims that enriched uranium is not being produced for nuclear weapons.

Indeed, some U.S. intelligence analysts believe that the Argentines are already trying to build a nuclear device and, in any case, will likely acquire the capability within a very few years. Adm. Castro only fed that suspicion when he pointedly asserted Argentina's right to develop a "peaceful" nuclear explosive.

In becoming only the tenth nation capable of producing enriched uranium, Argentina joins a very select club. But how will the Argentines use their newly developed capability?

Now that Argentina may soon be capable of producing nuclear weapons, Chile and Brazil could be prompted eventually to follow suit. The cause of global nonproliferation is a good one, widely recognized as such, and certainly worthy of the most vigorous U.S.

Good ag

Everyone, at some time, needs an Aggie weekend. I can see the followers of Bevo gagging now, but the words I speak are true. Just once, even T-shirts should put themselves in Aggie shoes, er, boots just to understand what makes the student or graduate of Texas A&M University tick.

My first experience with Aggies came of course with Aggie jokes. To the west and to the north, these bits of humor are known as Polish jokes. Since my roots take me back to land of Solidarity, I was pleased to find some other group getting picked on.

Updating, Big Spring is crowded with Ags. Winston Wrinkle is said to wear maroon underwear while Don Newsom once considered naming his food store "Gig 'em Grocery."

And then there's Wayne Carroll, head of the therapy department at Malone-Hogan. Wayne is a graduate of what he calls "The University," and asked me to join him on his venture to College Station this past weekend for the annual A&M-Texas brawl.

He was in high spirits, convinced Jackie Sherrill, The Six Million Dollar Coach, would lead the maroon and white to victory. After all, over 76,000 fans were expected to crowd into mighty Kyle Field and Six Million couldn't disappoint that many fans.

Wayne is like many Aggies. He drives a pickup and its colors are maroon and something close to white. Richer Aggies drive maroon Cadillacs with A&M stickers on the back window. Others less conspicuous, drive normal cars with a bumper sticker saying "I'm An Aggie Mother" or "Aggieland: Love or Leave It."

All these types filled the highway as we ventured towards the Aggie capital of Texas Saturday morning. Joining us was Keith Carroll, Wayne's brother. Both were decked out in A&M caps and continually praising their favorite college. Fortunately, I have high intestinal fortitude.

The campus is very nice. American flags waved as we drove through the main entrance and the roar from Kyle Field could be heard blocks away. Fuzzy-headed cadets were everywhere, locked arm and sabre with attractive Lady Aggies. Give the Corps credit...they have good taste. Maroon has never been my favorite color, running a close last place to black. This was a maroon paradise. A Texas fan might say I was "marooned on Gilligan's Island." Indeed, I saw several maroon-clad fans resembling Gilligan.

I was impressed with the school's unique spirit. Throughout the game — when A&M was ahead 13-0 or down 45-13 — the chants, cheers and cannon shots pressed on. Oh boy, the cannon. When that thing went off, I was less than 20 feet away from the muzzle. Sure cleared up my sinuses...now I don't have any.

I stayed clear of those guys with sabres. I didn't want Wayne hauling me home in the bed of his pickup, resting in a pine box. Good thing I wore my burgundy sweater.

A large UT contingent was at the game, evidenced by the number of burnt-orange Mercedes Benzes in the parking lot and the large piece of meat — Bevo I presume — wagging his tail at Aggies from the sidelines. The two sides got along quite well, although it reminded me of the early days of integration.

In the end, the Aggies missed their upset and Six Million had lost again to UT's Freddy "Green" Akers. Their season was over and the Longhorns were off to the Cotton Bowl with an unbeaten record. Were the Aggies crying? No way. There's always next year.

After the game, we visited several Aggie stores. I saw an Aggie bowling ball...a brick with three holes in it...and other such merchandise. You question Aggie intelligence? I don't. They sure knew how to jack up the price on that stuff.

Wayne broke down and bought one of those silk jackets, maroon of course and having "Texas A&M" stitched on the back. He hasn't taken it off yet. Probably never will. I bought Winston some Aggie shoestrings...he said the other ones on his loafers had broken. Huh?

Oh well, it was fun. It was like traveling to a foreign country but I did get to drink the water. After purchasing an A&M T-shirt, the saleslady called me a "Good Ag."

That scares me. That really scares me.

State's seesaw policy tilts toward Iraq

WASHINGTON — Behind closed doors, President Reagan's advisers are bitterly divided over U.S. policy toward the 3-year-old war between Iraq and Iran. Advocates are calling for a "tilt" toward one side or the other.

This would pull the administration away from its declared policy of neutrality in the Persian Gulf conflict — a conflagration that could ignite the oil fields that pump eight million barrels a day.

At this time, the pro-Iraq forces in the State Department and the Pentagon may be winning the secret debate. But there is strong opposition on Capitol Hill and within the administration to any deviation from the official policy of "a plague on both your houses."

Those who favor a tilt toward Iraq have the heat of emotion on their side. Long-standing anti-Iranian sentiment has been fanned to a white heat by the strong suspicion that Ayatollah Khomeini was behind the slaughter of American Marines in Beirut. No less than President Reagan has privately blamed the massacre on the Iranian Shiite Muslims supported by the ayatollah.

The president's more militant advisers, such as Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, for one, favor a pro-Iraq policy as retaliation for the Beirut bombing.

But the neutralists and pragmatists argue that emotion is a poor guide for national policy, and insist that Iran's strategic importance far outweighs revulsion over its revolutionary leadership and the desire for revenge. They also point out that Iraq's President Saddam Hussein is no better than Khomeini.

In a sense, a slight tilt toward Iraq is already in effect. As far back as the spring of 1982, with scant warning, the State Department removed Iraq from the list of nations that support international terrorism. This facilitated sales to Iraq by U.S. suppliers.

Last December, the Iraqis were allowed to buy 60 Hughes helicopters without so much as an export license or a State Department review. Since then, intelligence reports indicate that the choppers may have been modified for military use.

Although the helicopter sale occurred nine months before the Beirut airport bombing, there was no apparent cause-and-effect connection between the two events. It's not that the Iraqis are immune to the virus of revenge, a source explained to my associate Lucette Lagando, but simply that there were plenty of other reasons for Iranian terrorists to strike at the U.S. presence in Lebanon.

One form the pro-Iraq tilt could take, short of open support, is a cutoff of arms and spare parts to Iran. Many spare parts — necessary for Iran's huge stock of U.S. weapons dating back to the shah's regime — are sold to Tehran by such U.S. allies as Britain and West Germany. The Iraqis have also been able to buy parts on the black market, and even some from American companies while the administration looks the other way.

Members of Congress are understandably leery of being considered pro-Iran, but Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., has prepared an amendment to the Export Administration Act that would put Iraq and Iran on the list of terrorist-supporting countries.

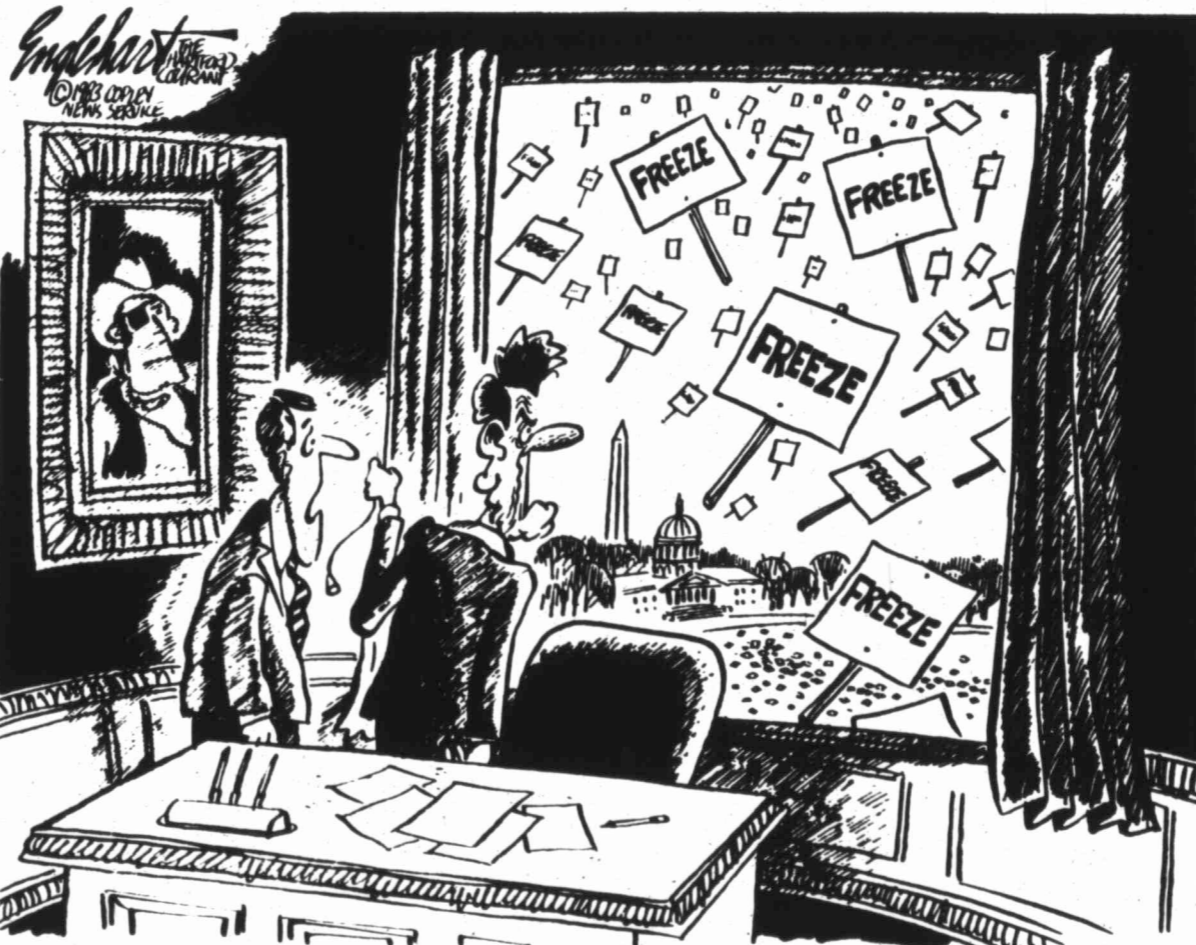

The pro-Iraq tilt in the State Department are so desperate to block Dixon's amendment that they have attempted to clean up Hussein's image. A cable from U.S. diplomats in Baghdad — which surfaced on the Hill — reported an interview in which Hussein claimed to have ended his support for Palestinian terrorists.

But when I checked into it, I found that the cable had omitted Hussein's reason for ending his support: "because of Iraq's financial situation," not from any change of heart.

In fact, the CIA reports that Iraq continues to be heavily involved in terrorist acts.

Increasing reliance on robots is supposed to usher in the "Second Industrial Revolution" — and, like the first one nearly 200 years ago, it will be painful for many human workers. "Large-scale labor dislocations could occur in several geographic areas," a House Small Business Committee working paper notes. "New skills and knowledge requirements would arise, working times could be revised, new relations between work and income could evolve... Such strains would complicate the solutions to the persistent problems... of social and business equity."

"IT'S FALLOUT FROM 'THE DAY AFTER'!"

What is God doing in church?

I was deep into my Sunday worship service nap, sleeping off the effects of the Saturday night church ice cream social and abortion rights rally, when I was startled awake. Could my ears be deceiving me? The queasy expression on the face of the man next to me indicated he had heard it, too. At last, it had come to this: the name of the deity had intruded itself into the sermon.

Now I am not a stranger to the inside of churches. I have heard hundreds of homilies on a wide range of subjects: U.S. policy in Central America, the arms race, gun control, the federal gasoline tax, casino gambling, you name it. But I had to ransack the cobwebbed corners of my memory for the last reference to Providence.

Like our churchgoers, I had long ago assumed that sort of thing to be as obsolete as whalebone corsets. Just as moderns no longer pay attention to people who pretend to forecast the future by examining the entrails of birds, we forward-looking churchgoers have consigned the worship of the Almighty — as He was known in the quaint terminology of our ancestors — to the shelf of nostalgia.

To be reminded that the very church in which I had been happily dozing was built by people obsessed with the bizarre legends of a tribe of ancient Hebrews — well, it was more than surprising. I felt that way William Jennings Bryan must have when he was told that his great-great-grandfather was a chimpanzee.

It wasn't as if we hadn't taken great pains to let the Lord know his attendance was no longer required. The way we saw it, He was like a well-liked but senile old relative who was really better off packed away to a nursing home. We thought He had reconciled himself to the arrangement. Yet on this Sunday, He had come barging in like a door-to-door salesman.

I guess I should have seen it coming. For years, I (and my fellow congregants) had watched with dismay the growing impulse of Bible-thumping zealots to ram God down everyone's throat. There were those TV preachers, those "Honk If You Love Jesus" bumper stickers, those campaigns for prayer in public schools, those presidential invocations of divine blessing. It had gotten so you could barely walk out your front door without somebody browbeating you to come to terms with Jehovah.

But our church had always been a place of quiet refuge from the childish escapism. Here, you could circulate petitions for world federalism, or join in a group sing-along of 1960s-vintage protest songs, or hear a lecture on sexism in American advertising. Good Christian stuff.

I'd always taken great pride that in our church, the truly important matters reigned supreme. The escapism of scripture and theology might pass muster in some primitive congregations in the more backward reaches of Appalachia. We well-mannered Presbyterians, however, had outgrown them.

Now, however, the contagion had spread even here. Someone — no, not someone, but an ordained minister, for heaven's sake! — had mentioned God. Granted, it was just passing, and the pastor quickly returned to his examination of Norman Lear's place in Western history. But the indiscretion had not gone unnoticed, and a sense of discomfort enveloped the congregation for the rest of the service. We all knew a tasteless precedent had been set. What would be next? Bible readings? Speaking on tongues? Snake handling?

The problem went beyond simple embarrassment. It would also be a general inconvenience. There would naturally be an investigation by the local governing body, which has elaborate safeguards to prevent this sort of thing. If it happened again, we could expect the sanctuary to be placed under round-the-clock surveillance to make sure God didn't sneak in again. The National Council of Churches might even bar us from its upcoming conference on the relevance of the Apostle Paul to the issue of campaign financing.

As you can see, it could get to be a lot of trouble, and if there's one thing my fellow churchgoers and I can do without, it's trouble. If we wanted that, why, there wouldn't have been any reason to banish God in the first place. Once He gets settled in, you can bet He'll have us praying and obeying commandments and worrying about the fate of our immoral souls. Who can be bothered with that stuff when Reagan's hamstringing the Sandinistas? For the future, God, let me make a request: don't call us, we'll call you.

Billy Graham

Sister in a cult makes life difficult

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know you get a lot of questions about cults, and honestly I have never paid much attention to all the publicity about cults because I figured only a few people actually got involved in them. But now my sister has gotten involved in a group I think must be a cult and it worries me. Why do you think people get interested in such groups? — Mrs. E.W.S.

DEAR MRS. E.W.S.: There are many reasons why some people get involved in cults. Some cults, for example, are very clever in the way they befriend a person and may even try to disguise their true nature. Some young people get involved in cults because they are rebelling against their parents or the church.

But the main reason people get involved in cults is that the human heart has within it a spiritual void or vacuum that is crying to be filled. People will try all kinds of ways to fill that emptiness, including sex, drugs, alcohol, possessions, or all kinds of other ways. Some people try to fill their inner emptiness by turning to false religions, hoping that their particular cult or group will somehow satisfy the longing of their heart.

But only God can fill the emptiness of our hearts. We may deceive ourselves into thinking there are other answers, but in the end we arrive at the same conclusion King Solomon did almost 3,000 years ago: "I have seen all the things that are done under the sun; all of them are meaningless, a chasing after the wind" (Ecclesiastes 1:14). Only God can make the difference — and he will, when we open our hearts to Christ.

Pray for your sister — not just that she will not be entrapped by this cult, but that she will come to Christ. Do all you can also to keep your communication with her. The time may come when she realizes that she has not found the peace and happiness she has been seeking, and you can be a source of strength to her in helping her break away and find lasting peace in Christ, come to him now by faith — both for your sake and the sake of your sister.

MIDLAND (AP) — Corp. officials say Midland bank has $634 million since First National Bank.

But the Dallas Morning News said a top official said the Dallas bank will ask for a $100 million loan from federal regulators to purchase the defunct bank.

"We will go to Deposit Insurance and another extension," vice chairman of F.N.B. said. "We have discussions with them as come back."

Economic indicators improve

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported Wednesday that its main economic forecasting gauge rose 0.8 percent in October, the 14th consecutive monthly gain, prompting one analyst to say the economy is "lookin' good" for next year.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the 14-month string of gains in his department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators has been exceeded since World War II only by an unbroken 17 months of advances following the 1973-75 recession.

"With the long upswing... still in progress we can expect the current economic expansion to continue," Baldrige said in a statement.

Robert Ortner, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said "we are still lookin' good."

"Almost all systems are 'go' except for the foreign sector," he said, referring to a record foreign trade deficit of more than $70 billion that the United States is expected to run up this year.

The leading indicators index is a compilation of a dozen forward-looking statistics covering employment, manufacturing, prices and other areas.

The index first rose in September 1982, when the deep recession was nearing its end. Hefty gains of 2 percent and 3 percent in the first quarter of 1983 appear to have forecast accurately the rapid growth that sped the economic recovery in the spring and early summer.

Economists say the smaller gains in the index in the second half of the year — all 1 percent or lower — are a sign that the moderation evident in the third quarter will continue well into next year.

"These lesser gains are consistent with the idea that the rate of increase in the economy will slow down somewhat," Alan P. Murray of Citibank said.

The October report said six of 10 available indicators rose. The biggest gain came from the net increase in formation of new businesses.

"Now that the expansion now has been going on for a while," said Murray, "it has improved the climate for starting new ventures."

Gough said it is a "good indication that the business community is becoming a lot more confident about the stability and foundation of the recovery."

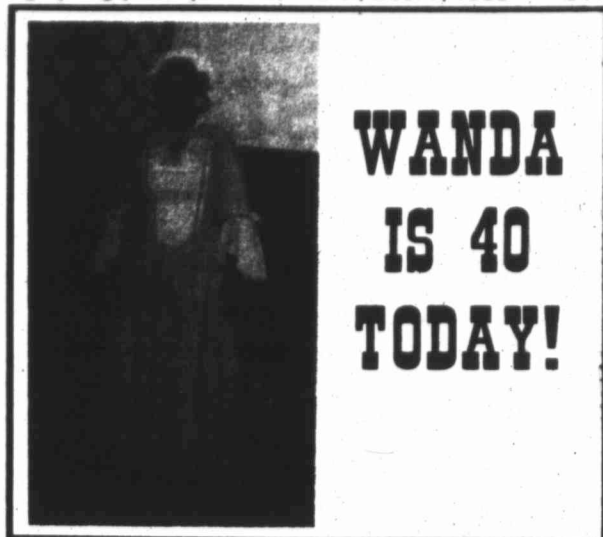

Also contributing to the October increase were gains in building permits for future construction, stock prices, money supply and manufacturers' new orders for consumer goods and materials. In addition, vendors were making deliveries at a slower pace, suggesting they had more work.

He said the economy's forward momentum "is well established, with all major sectors participating in the advance."

Midland bank brags on deposits

MIDLAND (AP) — Republic Bank Corp. officials say deposits at their new Midland bank have risen 12 percent to $634 million since taking over the failed First National Bank of Midland last month.

But the Dallas Morning News reported today that a top official at RepublicBank said the Dallas bank-holding company will ask for a second 30-day extension from federal regulators to decide which loans it will purchase from the portfolio of the defunct bank.

"We will go back to the (Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.) and ask for another extension," Joseph R. Musolino, vice chairman of RepublicBank told the News. "We have had some brief discussions with them and they expect us to come back."

Musolino said RepublicBank has until Dec. 14 "to complete the review process, but we will probably will have to ask for at least 30 more days."

First National was declared insolvent Oct. 14 by the Comptroller of the Currency. It was reopened three days later as a RepublicBank subsidiary, with the name RepublicBank First National of Midland.

Shortly before the bank's failure, it reported $328 million in non-performing loans — more than any other bank in U.S. history.

"We have reason to believe that the inflow of deposits will increase even more as soon as large sums of money that were withdrawn from the bank and put into Treasury bills or CDs mature and return to the bank," Musolino said.

Town plays name games

GRANADA, Minn. (AP) — For residents of the southern Minnesota town of Granada, the invasion of the southern Caribbean island of Grenada was a pronounced improvement, so to speak.

"We always used to have to correct everybody on how to say it (Granada)," said Ken Kabage, owner of Kabage Motors. "But all of a sudden, everybody's heard of it. People are able to pronounce it now."

Granada, correctly pronounced gruh-NAY-duh, used to be pronounced gruh-NAH-duh before the invasion last month of Grenada by U.S.-led forces.

Officials admit, however, that the newfound recognition for their town's name has led to some other problems, such as confusion over the right way to spell it.

"We've never had the problem before, but now we're getting some checks, some mail, like from water tower companies, with the name spelled differently," said Mayor Bryan Schultz. Spelled Grenada, of course.

What does a clean filter have to do with saving money?

There are lots of ways to save money. One is to check the filter in your heating and cooling unit once a month.

The filter is there to collect dust and lint. But when it's dirty, your unit has to work longer and harder to heat and cool your home. And that leads to higher electric bills.

If your filter is permanent, clean it; if it's disposable, replace it. A clean filter can help you save money all year long.

And those other ways to save? You'll find them in "The Unhandy Person's Guide" from Texas Electric. If you need one, call us — or ask for one on the comments portion of your bill.

Dr. Donohue

Ingrown toenail

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Do you have information on ingrown toenails? I have been bothered with one for several years and they are a continuing nuisance. — S.M.

The edges of toenails grow into adjacent skin for any number of reasons. Improper trimming may head the list. Edges should be cut straight across, not in a downward curve. Tight shoes and out-of-line toe bones are other factors. And believe it or not, heredity can play a part.

But once the nail has pierced the toe flesh it has to be freed for healing to occur. First you can soak your foot in warm water twice a day, then apply a foot powder to keep the area dry. Excessive skin moisture can promote ingrowing. When the nail is soft, wedge a little piece of cotton under its corner. Change the cotton daily. You should notice that as the nail grows out it will become free of the skin.

I am asked about the technique of cutting a "V" wedge or notch in the middle of the nail. Many think that will release corner pressure, but it doesn't work. A foot specialist or orthopedist can advise you. Some require removal of all or part of the nail for permanent success.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've read your column a long time now and never have seen you speak about shingles. I got shingles a few months ago from my knee to my thigh, the front side of the leg mostly. Are steroids helpful for this? — Mrs. R.N.

Shingles is herpes zoster (nothing to do with other herpes infections). It's a subject a medical columnist can easily beat into the ground, but it is one of continuing concern for people who get it.

It's the old chickenpox virus come home to roost. After that childhood infection, the virus goes to sleep deep in tissue, only to awaken in later life to migrate up a nerve to cause its irritation, which, as you are aware, can be considerable. The upper body is the most common site of irritation, but it can occur in lower limbs as well. If you're lucky, the episode ends in three to four weeks. In some, even after the rash dries there is residual pain.

Yes, steroids may be given. Or the nerve may be numbed with novocaine-like drugs. Both measures are said to be effective in arresting the long lingering pain a few shingles sufferers report. Other medications include phenytoin, carbamazepine and elavil.

Transcutaneous neural stimulation (TNS) helps some. That's done with a little device that delivers electrical current to the pain area. If your pain does not subside you might want to discuss these drugs and techniques with your physician.

Dear Abby

Listen up, Mom; here's your chance to be great

DEAR ABBY: The younger generation was asked to submit 10 tips on how to be a good kid, right? Well, I'm a 15-year-old girl who put together 10 tips on how to be a great mom. Here they are:

1. Don't yell at your kids in front of everyone. (Wait until you get home.)

2. Don't compare your kids to other siblings. ("Joe never did that at your age" and "Karen always got A's in math.")

3. If your teen-agers are at a party, roller rink or the movies, and the curfew is 11 p.m., don't run in screaming at 11:05 to tell them they're late.

4. Don't take things away for the wrong reason. Example: If your son didn't mow the lawn, don't take away his concert ticket; make him mow the lawn.

5. Don't make your kids wear clothes they hate. It's embarrassing to be different from their friends.

6. If you don't like your kids' friends, don't try to keep them apart. It will just make them more determined to get together.

7. Don't snoop around in your kids' rooms, reading diaries or personal letters. (How would you like them to do that to you?)

8. If your children have messy rooms, don't tidy them up — let them do it, and if they don't, they will have to live in them — not you.

9. Don't say "yes" to something one day and "no" the next. It's embarrassing for us to tell our friends that Mom has changed her mind.

10. Tell your children that you love them. They need to hear those words. TERRI ON LONG ISLAND

DEAR ABBY: The holidays are closing in. Please ask your readers not to send magazine subscriptions as gifts without first checking to see if they are desired or perhaps duplicates.

My mailbox is cluttered with such. Later come the follow-ups asking me to re-subscribe to magazines. I didn't want in the first place.

A subscription to the daily newspaper or one's home-town weekly is a welcome gift.

It bothers me to know that a well-meaning friend has spent money on a gift that is unread, then tossed out.

L. IN SEATTLE

DEAR L.: I read you. And I hope my readers read you (and me), too.

DEAR ABBY: Is it characteristic of all old men to talk back to the TV? It is most upsetting because when my husband watches TV, it sounds like there are three people in the living room — when it's only him.

When I am talking on the phone, the party I'm talking to always asks, "Do you have company?" I'm ashamed to admit it's just my husband talking to the TV.

Abby, is my husband senile, or is this a form of insanity? Don't use our name. He is retired and everybody thinks he's normal.

TALKER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: He may be perfectly all right, so unless you have other reasons to question your husband's mental well-being, don't worry about it. Thank your lucky stars you have a man who's alive, occupied and entertained. But it might be good for him to get out of the house and talk to some "real" people occasionally.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Federal panel predicts Comanche Peak delay

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Comanche Peak nuclear power plant will not begin operation before early 1985, more than a year later than previously projected, according to a federal panel's revised estimate.

The estimate, prepared by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission forecast group and released Tuesday, predicts that fuel loading at the electric generating plant's Unit I reactor will begin between July and September 1984, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

A six-month testing period normally follows fuel loading, federal officials say.

In July 1982, the NRC forecast panel said fuel loading would begin in December 1983. The revised projection assumes no significant delays during preoperational testing, federal officials said.

The NRC team did not scrutinize Unit 2 of the twin-reactor facility, but predicted that fuel loading at the second reactor would begin 18 to 24 months later.

George Hedrick, spokesman for Texas Electric Service Co., one of the utilities involved in the project, said the government's revised estimate should not be considered a "magic date." The projection is not binding but simply an internal NRC estimate, he said.

Hedrick said the utilities would meet their goal of starting commercial operation in 1984, but he warned that further delays might increase customers' bills. TESCO is one of six utilities sharing ownership of the plant located near Glen Rose, about 45 miles southwest of Fort Worth.

Hedrick said the forecast was "not unexpected." He said the utilities had announced two months ago that painting work in the main reactor containment building was six weeks behind schedule.

"Again, we will continue to proceed with construction to be able to load fuel at the earliest possible date," Hedrick said.

The federal panel's estimate is almost four years behind its earlier projections, said Juanita Ellis, an opponent of the plant who is president of the Dallas-based Citizens Association for Sound Energy.

An earlier NRC projection estimated that fuel loading would begin in December 1981. Dallas Power & Light Co. officials initially estimated that plant operation would begin in the summer of 1980, Ms. Ellis said.

"I don't believe the plant has any possibility of going into operation in 1985, if then," Ms. Ellis said. "The utility has historically not allowed any time in their calculations for things to go wrong. And things usually do go wrong."

NRC officials at the agency's regional office in Arlington could not be reached for comment.

Expert has plan to thwart drunken drivers

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Since license suspensions don't keep drunken drivers off the road, a traffic safety expert has proposed electronically preventing the offenders from starting their cars.

The goal, Pennsylvania State University professor Frank Haight said Tuesday, "is to devise a system whereby a person legally prohibited from driving could not operate any vehicle, not even to move it in his or her driveway."

Haight, professor of statistics and transportation, is director of the university's Transportation Institute.

He presented his proposal earlier this month to traffic safety experts from around the world at the International Conference on Alcohol, Drugs and Traffic Safety in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Under the plan, drivers would be issued magnetic cards that would be the only way to unlock and start their vehicles. The cards would be coded to prevent people whose licenses had been revoked or suspended from operating their cars.

From the wide world of Notes sports...

Fun in the sun. That's what Sherill Easterling and Donald Webb are planning this weekend in Phoenix, Ariz.

The long distance runners from Coahoma are tackling a marathon in conjunction with Fiesta Bowl activities in the state. The two have been heavy on the training over the past few weeks and Wednesday night, stopped at a local cafeteria for carbohydrate-loading.

The menu? Macaroni and cheese, mashed potatoes and gravy and all the pie the two could eat. The diet continues today and Friday as both stock up on calories for Saturday. After 26.2 miles, all the added weight from the three previous days will disappear.

Temperature for the 7:30 a.m. race time is expected to be between 55-60 degrees. With the low desert humidity and flat course, Easterling and Webb are planning on a fast race.

The Big Spring High volleyball team is all wet. Literally.

Coach Susan Sharp is taking her returning players to the YMCA these days for swimming. The girls are using kickboards to build leg strength and swimming to tone muscles. The workout will continue through the basketball season, Sharp says.

How are the girls taking it? "Can't we do something with our arms," they begged after 10 lengths of kickboarding. One volleyballer was overheard telling a swimmer, "Gosh this is hard...I have a lot more respect for swimmers now."

How 'bout that... Speaking of swimming, BSHS freshman Cade Loftin has some lofty goals.

A news release from Texas Tech this week bragged on freshman Todd Allison, the first Red Raider swimmer from Lubbock (Coronado). Allison does the butterfly and has a best time of 54.1 across 100 yards. Loftin, four years his junior, has a best time of 1:02. That's just eight seconds difference. Coach Harlan Smith doesn't think Loftin will go 54.1 by his senior year, however.

CADE LOFTIN
...BSHS butterfly

"Cade wants to go a 52 at least," Smith said. "In fact, he's going for the state record of 48...by the time he's a junior."

How's that for setting goals, all you potential standout athletes out there?

FISHERMAN RAY BLUHM
...lands 68-pound catfish last weekend

Finally, news involving water but from above the surface.

Ray Bluhm recently hauled in a 68-pound catfish at Lake Livingston, located north of Houston. Something special? Not really. Bluhm has caught the same size fish twice before. His plans were to eat his catch, probably not all in one sitting.

The Big Spring Bass Club held its November tournament at Oak Creek Lake near Sweetwater. Vic Keyes took first place with a four-pound stringer while Jerry Dudley was second with a two-pounder. Nine club members participated in the event.

The organization's next meeting is tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Kentwood Activity Center. New members are invited... dues are $12 a year. — GREG JAKLEWICZ

Howard tests Amarillo

AMARILLO — It's the first day of December and that signals the start of play in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference for Howard College. The Queens, a surprising 11-4 on the season, take on the Lady Badgers in the 6 p.m. while the Hawks, 8-1 overall, battle the Amarillo men at 8 p.m. to complete the WJCAC doubleheader.

Howard (11-4) vs. Amarillo (8-4)

Coach Don Stevens smiles broadly when he inspects his team's pre-conference record. With only two lettermen returning and 6-1 post Terri Moore not eligible until mid-semester, Stevens was hoping only to break even in the early going. The Queens, however, have won a pair of tournament championships and finished second in their own Hawk Queen Classic to undefeated Odessa.

"We're looking good," Stevens said during his team's final practice Wednesday. "We're beginning to polish a lot of the things we've been doing...smoothing things out. They're really a lot further along than I thought they'd be at this time."

While all-American Nell Haskins was consistently scoring 30 points a game last season, the 1983-84 Queens are relying on a balanced point-producing attack. Four players are averaging in double figures and seven players on the squad have finished as top scorer in the first 15 games.

"Someone is always stepping forward and having the big game when we need it," Stevens reports. "We haven't had the consistency in scoring from any one player...if we can get everyone going at the same time, we'll be tough."

Debbie Hall, the freshman from Houston Cypress-Fairbanks, tops the team in scoring with 14.1 points a game while freshman Alex Provencio (El Paso Eastwood) is scoring 12.6 and freshman Molly Early (Houston Jersey Village) is right with a 12.4 average.

Sophomore floor leader Janene Berry is contributing both experience, defense and 10 points a game while freshman Pat Carter (Houston Cypress-Fairbanks) is averaging 9.4 points off the bench.

As a team, Howard is scoring 74 points and giving up 64 points a contest.

Stevens expects the Lady Badgers to play their traditional 1-2-2 zone defense. Amarillo is loaded with height but the Howard College thinks his team can shoot over the Lady Badgers and gain an advantage with its speed.

"The key to game is two things," he said. "One is our ability to run and two is our ability to get the rebound. We can't run if we don't get any rebounds."

Inside, AC has 6-5 Donna Conder who is averaging four rebounds a game and 6-2 Machel Whitehead, 25 points and 8 rebounds. There's also 6-2 Sharon Marion, leading Stevens to say "if they every put all three of them in there, they'll dominate the boards on us."

Whitehead is hitting 65 per cent of her shots, by far the best in the conference while Mandy Funk's .733 free throw percentage is third. Whitehead scored a conference record 46 points Nov. 17 against Henderson.

He thinks his offense will give the Lady Badgers trouble. "I don't think it'll be effective against us. We've got the outside shooters so it's to our advantage for them to play that defense. We'll have to win it with our shooting and our press."

Howard has defeated Cisco twice on the season — 91-64 in Hawk Queen Classic — while the Lady Wranglers tripped Amarillo 67-63 in overtime last weekend in the Western Texas Classic. "They did it with their outside shooting," Stevens pointed out.

Howard (8-1) vs. Amarillo (8-2)

Hawks' coach Mike Mitchell would like nothing more than a win in this game. However, the Badgers are 3-3 at home over the past three seasons and Howard arrives as a decided underdog. The Badgers possess great height, starting 6-6, 6-7, 6-7 and 6-8 players around the hoop. Point guard Mike Sanders of Farmington, N.M., is the player that makes the team go, Mitchell said. "He's just a very good player with a keen understanding of the game. His father is the head basketball coach at Farmington. He shoots well and passes well...he's just what they need at point guard."

To neutralize Sanders, the Hawks have come up with a new variation on their zone defense. HC will set up in a 1-3-1 defense with point guard Maurice Hoskin playing under the hoop. When Sanders goes to a corner, Haskins and either Jerry Stroman or James Johnson will trap him.

Mitchell also worked extra rebound practice. "We haven't gotten the rebounding we need...our players are trying but we just don't have good rebounding personnel." 6-8 sophomore Anthony Snooks is expected to join the team at mid-term to help solve that problem.

Sophomore guard Dwight Harris is leading the team in scoring with 27.2 points a game, tops in the conference. Stroman, who missed half of one game and all of another, is scoring 19.6 points. As a team, Howard is scoring 87 points a game, going over 90 four times, and giving up just 64.4.

Les Bolden is the top Badger scorer with 15.2 points while Ignatius Lott is scoring 13.6 and Sanders 13.0. Amarillo is the top field goal shooting team, hitting 58 per cent of its shots.

"This game is tremendously important for us if we win," Mitchell said. "This a game we're not expected to win...the other teams in the conference would vote 8-0 that we will lose. If we lose, it won't be a disaster."

The Hawks go on to Borger Saturday to test Frank Phillips. "What we want to do is split. Then we'd be where we were expected. If we sweep, you'll know it's close to Christmas."

Carano signs contract with USFL's Maulers

DALLAS (AP) — Glenn Carano, the Dallas Cowboys third-string quarterback, has agreed on a two-year contract with the expansion Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League.

The contract, estimated at $250,000 a year, was worked out between Carano's agent, Jack Mills, Maulers General Manager George Heddeleston and Maulers Coach Loe Pendry, the News reported.

Carano reportedly is making $165,000 this season, his option year. He will join the Maulers for training camp in Florida in February, the News reported.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said he gave Carano his blessing and assured him he was making the right move. "When a player has been a backup that long, it's best to take an opportunity like this," Landry said. "Whether the league is successful or not, this will be an excellent experience for Glenn. We will have a chance to see what he can do as the No. 1 quarterback."

...headed for USFL

Carano said his career was at a dead end with the Cowboys. He is listed behind starting quarterback Danny White and backup Gary Hogeboom.

Mavs remain in first place

DALLAS (AP) — Mark Aguirre got hot early, hitting eight of his first nine shots, and stayed that way as he scored 39 points against the Houston Rockets to help Dallas keep its perfect record at home.

Aguirre finished by hitting 14 of 29 shots and all 11 of his free throws as the Mavericks won a team-record sixth straight game and their eighth in the last 10 tries.

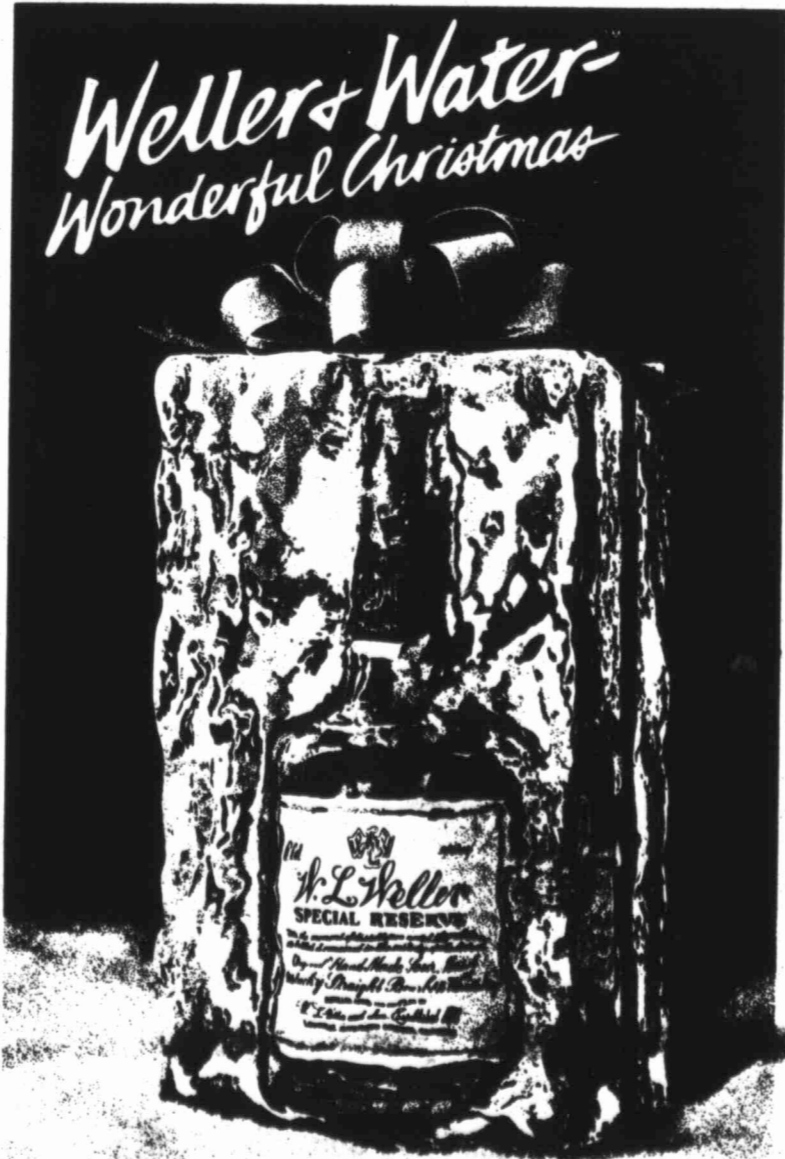

The victory raised the Maverick's Midwest Division-leading record to 11-4 and kept their home record perfect at 10-0.

The Rockets, who fell to 6-10 and 1-6 on the road, got 22 points from rookie Ralph Sampson, but only six of those came in the first quarter when Dallas led by as many as 17.

The Mavericks got 26 points and 11 rebounds from Rolando Blackman and 18 points and 10 rebounds from Pat Cummings to fight off a second-half rally by Houston.

"When Pat and Mark are playing as well as they did tonight, we're a hard team to beat," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta, who privately and correctly predicted to Aguirre two weeks ago that Dallas could finish their six-game home stand with six wins.

Chargers thinking upset of LA Raiders

KELLEN WINSLOW
...Chargers' tight end

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Anytime, anywhere, under any circumstances, the San Diego Chargers just love beating the Los Angeles Raiders. And the Raiders feel the same way about the Chargers.

"Every time we play them, it seems like the divisional championship is on the line," said Raiders Coach Tom Flores.

Only one of the teams is chasing a title, but that won't diminish the enthusiasm on either side for tonight's nationally televised National Football League showdown. Kickoff is scheduled for 6 p.m. PST for the 47th meeting between the clubs in a series the Raiders lead 27-17-2.

Los Angeles, 10-3 and riding a four-game winning streak, can clinch the American Football Conference's Western Division title with a victory or a tie.

"We've got some momentum going and we want to keep winning," Flores said after a 27-12 thumping of the New York Giants on Sunday. "The first thing is to win the division championship. Next is the home field (advantage for the playoffs). We're not going to pull in our horns."

The Chargers are only 5-8 after a 31-7 shellacking of Denver last Sunday, so there will be no Super Bowl rings for San Diego this season.

Chargers Coach Don Coryell admitted that "we are embarrassed about our season. We can make excuses, but excuses only last one day. All people remember is the score."

"The fact is we have a losing season (but) . . . it doesn't mean we can't come out of the season with a good feeling," Coryell added.

A couple of weeks ago, the Chargers had every reason to dread a faceoff with the Raiders. But the return of quarterback Dan Fouts after five weeks on the sidelines with a shoulder injury proved a balm for the team. San Diego's systematic dismantling of a Denver team that was trying to clinch a playoff spot gave the Chargers hope for a fast finish.

Los Angeles' standout cornerback, Lester Hayes, sees the game as "our mini-Super Bowl. I've been watching films of (Chargers receivers) Wes Chandler and Charlie Joiner for six or seven months."

Tech stops 'Huskers, No. 8 Houston survives

By The Associated Press
Michael Young hit 19 points and Alvin Franklin added 16 to lead the eighth-ranked Houston Cougars to a 68-62 victory over Mississippi State in an inter-sectional basketball game.

In other games Wednesday night involving Southwest Conference teams, Southern Methodist downed Centenary College 86-76 in Shreveport, La., while Texas fell to the University of New Orleans 64-58 before a home crowd in Austin.

Mississippi State took the early lead in the game, played in Starkville, Miss. But Houston went ahead for good at 6:46 of the first half on a basket by Franklin that made the score 22-21. The Cougars went into intermission with a 32-25 lead after Derek Giles swished a 30-footer at the buzzer.

The Cougars, now 2-1, put together a 17-6 run early in the second half and led by as many as 18. Center Kelvin Hildreth led Mississippi State, 1-1, with 14 points. Guard Ken Harvey added 13 for the Bulldogs.

SMU's Larry Davis hit 11 of 14 shots from the field and scored 23 points to lead the Mustangs, now 3-0. The Mustangs took a 40-34 halftime lead on the strength of its fast-breaking offense, but Centenary stayed in sight until 13 minutes remained in the game.

SMU then hit five unanswered field goals to make it 59-50, a lead that was never again challenged although Centenary switched to a half-court, then full-court press.

Willie Jackson led the Gentlemen, 1-2, with 34 points on the night.
New Orleans used John Harris' 19 points and a tight defense to hold off a late Texas push.

This winter, get your diesel off to a good start.
Gulf Auto Diesel fuel is specially formulated to meet the cold weather starting needs of diesel engines. A cold flow improver makes the fuel flow to your engine as easily in January as it does in June. And, because Gulf adds the cold flow improver before you pump fuel into your car, you don't need to add anything later on. So, if you want to beat the cold weather starting grind, look for our red and yellow 'D'. And get off to a good start this winter with Gulf Auto Diesel.

Braniff gets new flying colors

NEW PAINT JOB — A Braniff Airways employee paints a plane at the company's Dallas Love Field facility recently. The airline unveiled its newly repainted planes Tuesday.

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International, grounded for more than 18 months because of financial problems, has rolled out a new set of flying colors and a new route schedule with the hope of returning to the skies March 1.

As several hundred people watched Tuesday at the airline's headquarters at Love Field, Braniff rolled out a repainted Boeing 727-200 jet featuring navy blue, burgundy, silver and white colors.

The carrier plans to fly 30 jets and service Dallas-Fort Worth, Austin, Houston, Midland-Odessa, San Antonio, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, New York City, Washington, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, Denver, St. Louis, Kansas City, Las Vegas, New Orleans, Miami, Orlando and Tampa-St. Petersburg-Clearwater, officials said.

William D. Slattery, who is slated to become president and chief operating officer of the new airline, said the new route schedule is tentative and will be set in a more definite form in the next six weeks.

Braniff, which filed for bankruptcy protection and ceased operations in May 1982, plans to rehire 2,000 former employees under a $70 million reorganization sponsored by the Chicago-based Hyatt Corp. The returning employees are taking significant pay cuts to help the carrier compete against low-cost carriers.

Slattery, who will officially take office when the Hyatt agreement is finalized and signed next month, said he and his colleagues are "going to build on the basics of Braniff — good people, good service and good management. We have a realistic outlook on who we are and where we can fit successfully in the airline business."

Louis Marcensano, airline analyst with Janney Montgomery Scott in Philadelphia, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that it seems as if Braniff is "getting back into the business in a major way, spanning the U.S. to most major cities from Dallas-Fort Worth. With their cost advantage under the new reorganized wage structure, they have a fighting chance of making a go of it."

Braniff officials have said they will offer fares that are "competitive" and will not seek to undercut the market.

Marcensano said Braniff's start-up date would enable the carrier to take advantage of the traditionally strong spring and summer market.

Fame

Show auditions attract thousands of hopefuls

NEW YORK (AP) — In a cold, blustery wind outside the Minskoff Theater, thousands of aspiring stars lined up for hours for their chance to audition for the television show "Fame."

Inside, producer Bill Blinn scanned about two dozen brightly smiling hopefuls. From them and others who waited outside Wednesday for the open "cattle call" audition, he hoped to find two dozen principal actors and dancers to play the incoming class at the mythical academy based on Manhattan's High School of the Performing Arts.

"So above all, they have to be young looking," Blinn said. "Next, they've got to be able to dance. Their looks won't help them a bit if they can't move right."

"Fame" ran for two years on NBC but was canceled last April. Down, but not out, with strong backing from critics and fans, the show was picked up for syndication this fall and is currently carried by 125 stations nationwide.

Rosanna Magarelli, a 24-year-old trained ballerina and apprentice actress, showed the same persistence Wednesday.

Shunning the line that snaked down West 45th Street, through Shubert Alley and onto West 46th Street, she sneaked into the third-floor studio, scribbled a fake number on a card to make it seem she had been in the line outside and began the screening process.

She was quickly rejected on the basis of appearance — the first hurdle in the audition — but the undaunted Jersey City, N.J., native pulled her shoulder-length brown hair into a bun, replaced her turquoise striped jeans with a ballerina's leotard and went right back for the dance audition.

Across the room, Blinn huddled with production coordinator Frank Fischer and choreographer Otis Sallid.

"OK. You, you, you, and you," said assistant Michael McAssey, finally pointing his pen at Miss Magarelli. "Would you please stay. The rest of you, thank you for coming."

"I figured I had nothing to lose, so why not try again?" said Miss Magarelli, who believes a part in "Fame" would let her combine her talents. "I wouldn't have to choose between acting and dancing. I could do both," she said.

Miss Magarelli obviously could, since she and two others in her group of a dozen at the dancing audition were asked to come back later in the day for a singing and acting audition.

"Two down, two to go," she said, heaving a hefty sigh.

"I knew I could do it. There was no doubt in my mind," said Terrence Hunt, a roly-poly but ebullient 25-year-old from St. Louis. "Especially since I remembered to wear my super special glasses," he said, poking a finger through the lensless frames.

"Me too," chimed Tom Perna, 21, a dancer and college student from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "I knew my tan would work."

But that was only after round one. Perna, a handsome blond with an Adidas-like build, was cut after the dance audition while Hunt was tapped for a callback.

"It's an artificial, arbitrary and awkward process," Blinn told one group, "but unfortunately it's the only one we've got."

"I truly hope they don't get discouraged," he said later. "I'm sure I'll pass up more than one who five years from now will turn out to be another Bette Midler."

Fishermen snag sunken plane

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Fishermen have snagged plane believed to be a California Air National Guard jet trainer missing since September but authorities are afraid they can't raise it 1,200 feet from the ocean floor.

The Cape Sebastian, a 70-foot fishing boat, snagged the plane in its net about 8 a.m. Monday about 17 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Cape Hedge identified the craft as a military plane from parts of a wing and engine protruding from the water.

Dying cadets kept log during blizzard

COLORADO SPRINGS (AP) — As a blizzard howled around their snowbound pickup truck, an Air Force Academy football player and his cadet girlfriend chronicled their final hours on scraps of paper before succumbing to carbon monoxide fumes.

"They sensed something was wrong," Sheriff Jack Armstrong of Sherman County, Kan., said Tuesday. "There was six feet of snow around the pickup. You could see where he had tried to clear away the snow."

Cadet 3rd Class Brian Bullard of Colorado Springs and Cadet 3rd Class Diane L. Williams of Cameron, Mo., may have bypassed roadblocks to get their Ford Bronco onto Interstate 70, which had been closed west of Salina, Kan., Armstrong said.

They apparently sought refuge Sunday night under an I-70 overpass four miles east of Goodland, Kan. The northwest Kansas town received 19 inches of snow during the weekend blizzard.

"Smelling something" and "clearing the exhaust" were among the log's entries, which noted that their pickup became stuck about 9 p.m. Sunday. Strong winds continued to whip the blinding snow during the night and dropped the wind chill factor to 30 degrees below zero.

The final entry was timed at 3:20 a.m., and a coroner ruled that the cadets died less than half an hour later. The bodies were discovered about 10 a.m. Monday by a snow plow operator.

Miss Williams was a member of the academy women's golf team. The cadets, both 19, had spent Thanksgiving at the home of her grandparents in New Cambria, Kan., near Salina.

Armstrong said travelers who believe they can keep on driving often try to proceed even after the interstate has been closed. The Bronco had four-wheel-drive.

Miss Williams' father, Air Force Reserve Col. Ronald K. Williams, said today they left Saturday night and had a deadline at 7:30 p.m. Sunday to sign in at the academy.

"It was just a little rainy and overcast. We weren't aware of bad weather" when they left, Williams said. The National Weather Service said blizzard warnings had been issued early Saturday for northwest Kansas and the storm was raging through the area by midnight.

"My daughter called Sunday from Colby. They couldn't find a room ... I told them to call their commanding officer and let him know where they were. I don't know if they ever did call," Williams said.

Mrs. Carl Bice of Beloit, Kan., said her son, Greg, also a cadet at the Air Force Academy, called the academy Sunday morning to seek an extension of the sign-in time because of the winter storm. He was told "to start and go as far as he could" and to call when he reached Colby, where he was to pick up another cadet, she said.

"They are told there is no excuse for not making it back in time — none ... I know the two who died were trying to get back in time," Mrs. Bice said.

Williams, noting his experience as an Air Force officer, said "usually it is not that difficult to just go ahead and put a person on leave status in case of inclement weather ... I would like to know what was told as far as sign-in time, but I don't know if they talked to the commander or not."

Jock Ewing scholarship given

DALLAS (AP) — The character Jock Ewing on the "Dallas" television series is fictional, but a real scholarship prompted by his name has been awarded to a paralyzed Vietnam veteran.

Southern Methodist University announced Tuesday that the $2,500 scholarship would go to Rick Amber, 39. He was paralyzed in March 1971, when his F-8 fighter crashed on an aircraft carrier and he ejected, hitting the superstructure.

The scholarship was set up in January after a character in a "Dallas" episode mentioned a "Jock Ewing Memorial Scholarship" to be established at the SMU.

Amber said he has seen "Dallas" once.

University of California profs okay sex ban

BERKELEY, Calif.
 (AP) — Faculty representatives of the University of California have formally banned sex between teachers and students, but not all faculty members are pleased with the resolution.
 Some, like Raymond
 Redheffer, a math professor at the Los Angeles campus, were insulted by the resolution approved
 Wednesday by the faculty's legislative body.

 "The message that comes across is that we need to be told that we shouldn't have sex with students," he said, adding that some rules are so obvious they don't need to be formally established.
 "Look here, we're not supposed to come to our classes drunk," he said.
 "We're not supposed to come naked."

Representatives of the nine-campus university approved the resolution on a 20-14 vote during a daylong meeting at the Berkeley campus. It states that teacher-student sex is a "serious breach of professional ethics" that can damage the educational environment.
 The policy says that a faculty member cannot initiate or "acquiesce" in

"certain kinds of behavior of an implied or explicit romantic or sexual nature." It does not apply to teacher-student relationships that began before or after a class shared by the two parties.
 The resolution contains no provision for discipline against violators, but does ask a faculty committee to consider amending the university's conduct code to give force to the resolution.

 John Greenspan, an oral pathology professor at the San Francisco campus, criticized the resolution because it would be based on gossip or other
 "intangibles."
 On another issue, a mail

vote by the entire faculty rejected a call for a university role in the shaping of America's nuclear weapons policy. The result was announced Wednesday at the Berkeley meeting.
