How's that? Tax time blues

Q. Must a husband and wife file a joint income tax report in Texas? My wife and I were married early this year and a friend told me that since Texas is a community property state couples must file together.

A. Husbands and wives in Texas may file separately, Sidney Clark, local accountant, said. However, community income, that is, all money the couple made through salaries, interests and dividends, must be combined and split 50-50 on the income tax report, Clark said. This applies to all income except oil and gas royalties which may be claimed by the person who owns the royalties. Couples who have married during the year must split their income 50-50 from their marriage date to Dec. 31. All income made prior to the marriage may be claimed separately.

Beirut explodes with violence

BOMB SITE — This photo shows an overview of a bomb scene in West Beirut today. Rescue workers and soldiers in the street are standing in front of one of the buildings that was destroyed by a car bomb consisting of 150kg of TNT which killed at least 20 people and wounded 50 others.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A powerful car bomb exploded today in an apartment building garage, killing at least 10 people and injuring 84, and U.S. forces tried to determine the source of shelling that killed eight Marines hours earlier.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the explosion, which partially collapsed the nine-story building in a residential neighborhood of predominantly Moslem west Beirut. Beirut radio said rescuers identified 10 victims as they pulled blood-soaked bodies from the rubble.

U.S. jets flew sorties over the Beirut area at daybreak today, the state radio said, apparently trying to pinpoint the sources of a 4½-hour artillery assault Sunday night on the Marines' airport base.

The Marine commanders said today the eight Marines apparently were killed by a single artillery shell. And Druse leader Walid Jumblatt suggested the deaths resulted by accident during a Druse attempt to strike at Lebanese army forces.

Earlier Sunday, 28 U.S. warplanes staged a retaliatory attack against Syrian anti-aircraft positions that had fired Saturday on two unarmed U.S. Navy reconnaissance planes flying over Lebanon. No bombing raids were reported today.

The Pentagon gave no estimate of damage caused by the 1,000-pound bombs and cluster bombs dropped by American planes, but Syria said two of its troops died and 10 were wounded. It also said it lost an arm. See Bomb page 2-A

Motorcycle wreck hurts local man

A Howard County man Sunday was transferred to the Veterans Administration Hospital from Malone-Hogan Hospital for treatment for injuries he suffered in a collision at 3:45 p.m. Sunday with a pickup truck, a Malone-Hogan spokeswoman said.

James David Felts Jr., 34, of Gail Route was injured when his 1974 black Honda 750 motorcycle collided with a 1980 green-and-white Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Larry Dean Williams, 19, also of Gail Route, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

Felts was northbound on State Highway 350 1.6 miles north of Big Spring and .6 miles north of mile marker 2 on S.H. 350 when the accident occurred, according to the report.

Williams, who was southbound on S.H. 350, was making a left turn into a private parking lot when the accident occurred, DPS reports show. According to the report, Williams was unable to see Felts because the sun was shining directly in his eyes.

'Thoreau' set to spend night in Big Spring

By CAROL BALDWIN Staff Writer

In an attempt to show Henry David Thoreau "marched to the beat of a different drummer," Big Spring High School and Howard College students will put their theatrical talents together in "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail."

The performances will be at Big Spring High School Dec. 8-10 at 8 p.m.

Instructors Tim Haynes of Howard College and Jimmy Smith of Big Spring High School are coordinating the production. Haynes is director and Smith is technical director.

Smith said "this is the first joint venture between the two theater departments. This summer I went to meet Tim. He told me what productions he had planned and we both had what was planned at the same time." The two agreed to combine efforts for a December production.

"This show is without a doubt the best show that's been on this stage in many years," Smith said. "I like it, and the kids are eating it up. This is the most exciting thing to happen in Big Spring in December besides Christmas."

Haynes said he enjoys the rapport between Howard College and Big Spring High School students. "We have a wonderful working relationship," he said.

Differences in the actors' ages, which range from 14 to the early 20s, has posed no problem.

"We were skeptical at first," Smith said. "Now, everyone is working together. It's nice to see young actors playing off older actors. The (high school) freshmen are acting as mature as the 20-year-olds in college."

The production, set in the 1800s, outlines the life of transcendentalist Thoreau as a young man. He was jailed during wartime because he refused to pay taxes.

Smith said "Thoreau didn't believe it was morally right to be in the war, so he said he wasn't going to

Reagan defends air strikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has told the United Nations Security Council that the U.S. air strikes in Lebanon were "a discrete measure taken in self-defense," and requested the return of an American airman captured by Syria, the chief White House spokesman said today.

The spokesman, Larry Speakes, said the U.S. Embassy in Damascus had "made additional diplomatic representations to Syria."

Two U.S. planes were downed Sunday over Lebanon. Two pilots fell in Syrian-held territory. One was said by Syria's defense minister to have died and the other was said to be held by Syrian forces.

The air strikes followed attacks on U.S. reconnaissance planes on Saturday. Speakes said similar planes were in the air again today.

He said the administration had written a letter to the Security Council stating that the U.S. attacks were "a discrete measure taken in self-defense in response to Syrian attacks on unarmed reconnaissance flights."

He said the letter requested the return of the downed pilot, Lt. Robert O. Goodman, 27, of Portsmouth, N.H. and a halt to further attacks.

The spokesman said there were no plans for President Reagan to hold special meetings today on Lebanon.

Reagan had said Sunday that the United States will keep hitting back in retaliation for any attack on American forces in Beirut.

Even before Reagan could sound his warning, the U.S. Marine base at the Beirut airport was being shelled by Druse militiamen with mortars, rockets and artillery that killed eight Americans and wounded two others.

Blood test clears man of rape charge

ODESSA (AP) — An Oklahoma man says he is "very disappointed" in a police investigation that almost put him on trial for aggravated sexual abuse before a blood test showed he was not the assailant.

The charge against Joe Robert McDonald was dropped last week after the test showed he had a different blood type than the man who allegedly raped a 19-year-old woman on Oct. 19, 1982.

The woman was assaulted in the same Odessa hotel where McDonald was staying during the Permian Basin Oil Show. A laundry ticket with his name on it was found in the room where the rape allegedly took place, the victim identified him, and he failed a polygraph test.

But the 44-year-old oilfield equipment salesman told the Odessa American from his home in Crescent, Okla., that he is bitter that his case almost went to trial.

"I think the whole thing was investigated very shabbily, by both the police department and the DA (district attorney)," said McDonald, a former police officer. "I've been around law enforcement all my life. I'm very disappointed with the judicial process down there."

McDonald said investigators should have determined from the blood test months ago that he was not the assailant. He said instead, he had to mortgage his house to help pay for his defense.

According to testimony in a July 27 pretrial hearing, the victim and a companion were offered a room at the Holiday Inn by a stranger who wanted to help, citing the typical room shortage during oil shows.

The stranger, the woman and her companion then went to the room, where the woman was left alone with the man.

The woman testified she was dragged from the room, down a hall and into another room, where she was raped. Her assailant released her several hours later, according to pretrial testimony.

Police began looking for McDonald after finding his laundry ticket.

Despite McDonald's inability to explain the laundry ticket, he had no qualms about cooperating with lawmen, he said.

"I was very confident. I knew I had nothing to do with it," McDonald said last week. "I felt that if all the evidence was brought out and people told the truth, that all this would have been rectified."

But the victim identified McDonald as her assailant at Medical Center Hospital the day of the assault.

"What they did was they took him to Medical Center and marched him in front of the girl with uniformed officers on each side and asked her if she recognized him," said McDonald's Odessa attorney, Jim Jordan. "She said, 'That's him.'"

Jordan said McDonald was arrested and charged after failing a polygraph test.

Still, he maintained his innocence and volunteered to "take any and all tests they wanted him to take," Jordan said.

Today's topic

Pencil technology

It's portable! It's simple! It's user friendly!

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In an unabashed bid to combine "yesterday's technology with today's terminology to make tomorrow's money," computer maven Peter McWilliams has written a new word processor manual — for the pencil.

The paperback parody, set for publication Thursday, gives simple, instructions for using the pencil, which McWilliams calls the McWilliams II Word Processor.

In the 144-page, illustrated satire, the tip of the pencil lead becomes a "printer port" and its eraser is a "deprocessor."

To "create a file," simply "place a sheet of paper under the point of the McWilliams II. Create."

To save the file, "put the piece of paper in a safe place."

And if you wish to "delete" part of the text, simply "place eraser ('deprocessor') side of the McWilliams II over the portion of the file to be deleted. Rub and rub. Portions of text under the eraser will magically disappear. Brush away magic dust."

Reached by telephone Tuesday at a computer show in Las Vegas, McWilliams said he expects the book to sell well.

"If millions of people fork over $4.95 for Garfield (the cat cartoon books), then yes, this is worth $3.95," McWilliams said. "I have no pride. I have no shame. I have not much money and I want a lot."

The "McWilliams II Word Processor Instruction Manual" is the seventh computer book published by McWilliams' Prelude Press, which claims that some people have called the McWilliams II "the greatest thing since Pet Rocks."

The West Hollywood company previously published the popular and "only slightly more serious" volumes including "The Personal Computer Book" and "The Word Processing Book."

McWilliams says the McWilliams II was made possible by the "radical discovery" of "wooden microchips," but admitted he lifted the idea from the 1982 April Fools edition of BYTE magazine.

"I actually paid the author of the piece $150 and paid BYTE magazine $50," said McWilliams. "I didn't steal it. I bought it. I now own the idea."

He said he got the idea for the book when, as a promotion for his other books, he distributed pencils with a couple pages of instructions and "everyone loved it and started ordering it."

The new book cites numerous convenient aspects of the McWilliams II: it's portable, prints characters in any language, uses no energy, is easy to learn, has no moving parts and is "user friendly" — meaning that even a computer ignoramus can learn to use it.

The book says that "every McWilliams II comes with an unconditional five-year guarantee. If anything goes wrong with your McWilliams II, simply return it to us (along with $5 for postage and handling), and we'll be happy to repair it or send you a new one absolutely free."

PENCIL MANUAL — Peter McWilliams displays a copy of his new book at the COMDEX computer show in Las Vegas, Nev., recently. The book gives computer buffs instructions on how to use the pencil in today's modern computer world.

The volume also shows numerous other uses for McWilliams IIs — as stays to truss stuffed poultry, as chopsticks for eating Chinese food and even as knitting needles.

McWilliams warns that while the McWilliams II may look like an ordinary pencil: "I spend nights not sleeping when I think there are people out there buying pencils when they really want McWilliams II Word Processors."

Sheriff's Log

Burglaries reported to sheriff

Three Howard County residents reported burglaries during the weekend, sheriff's records show.

Ricky Falkner of Anderson Road told sheriff's deputies at 6:30 p.m. Saturday that someone, between noon and 6:30 p.m. Saturday, kicked in the front door of his residence and broke the lock before taking $3,150 of items.

After gaining entry, the person stole an $850 video recorder, two speakers worth $50, an $800 silver satellite receiver, a $100 .22-caliber Hornet rifle, a $300 stereo receiver with a separate equalizer, a $300 19-inch remote control color television, a $350 microwave oven, a $300 water ski and a $100 clock cassette radio.

● Charles Ray of Route 2 told sheriff's deputies at 7 p.m. Sunday that someone had stolen $355 of items, including a $150 refrigerator, two gas heaters and a $100 electric heater, from a mobile home he owns. Restitution is expected in the case, deputies said, and no arrest was made. The owner decided not to pursue charges if the items were recovered or paid for, according to the report.

● Horace Tubbs of South Highway 87 told sheriff's deputies Saturday that someone Friday parked a pickup truck about 50 yards north of the residence of one of his hired hands and then walked to the barn and removed a bright orange seven-horsepower mower worth $700.

Two of the U.S. planes were downed and one pilot was rescued after Sunday's raid, while another flier was captured by Syrian forces. Syria's defense minister said today a third airman died of injuries.

The two pilots who fell in Syrian-held territory were identified as Lt. Mark A. Lange, 26, of Frasier, Mich., and Lt. Robert O. Goodman, 27, of Portsmouth, N.H.

They were classified by the Navy as missing but Syria's defense minister, Lt. Gen. Mustafa Tlass, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that Lange had died and said the body would be turned over to the U.S. Embassy in Damascus "in the course of the day."

Regarding Goodman, who was captured, Tlass said: "He is in excellent condition, in good health, suffering no injury of any kind."

He said interviews with Goodman would be allowed "as soon as the investigation is finished."

Asked when Goodman would be freed, Tlass said: "Like in all wars, when war is over. That is when the Americans will leave Lebanon."

Two former Israeli air force commanders, in interviews with the Tel Aviv newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth, criticized the performance of the U.S. pilots during Sunday's bombing raid.

"The American pilots yesterday paid for their lack of operational experience," Maj. Gen. Benny Peled. Added Maj. Gen. Mordechai Hod, "On a purely military level, the American operation cannot be called a success."

The car bombing occurred about 8 a.m. today, and Lebanon's state radio said at least 10 people were killed and 84 injured in a blast that set huge fires in several blocks of the residential district.

Police said a 330-pound bomb was believed to have been in a Renault 12 car and that an undetermined number of people were believed trapped in the building.

The blast, which occurred about 200 yards from the Mokassed hospital, shattered windows and sent up huge billows of black smoke that hampered rescue efforts, police said.

The Marine base shelling claimed the heaviest U.S. death toll since the Oct. 23 suicide truck bomb attack that killed 239 servicemen at the base. By unofficial counts, a total of 254 U.S. servicemen have died in hostile action in Lebanon this year.

Marine Brig. Gen. James Joy, commander of the U.S. contingent, said the eight Marines were killed by a single large mortar round, probably a 120 mm round, that struck near the base. He declined to identify the exact location.

"One round hit on top of a position and the ten casualties are the result of that single round."

But Lebanese army soldiers at a site known as Checkpoint 76 said the deaths occurred there. The checkpoint is about 150 yards east of the main base at Beirut International Airport and is close to a Pepsi Cola bottling plant.

The U.S.-Lebanese checkpoint is about 200 yards from a Druse militia checkpoint on the road into the Druse stronghold of Shweifat, southeast of the Marine compound.

The Marines fired back with 155mm artillery, M-60 tanks, heavy machine guns and small arms while U.S. warships also pounded the sources of fire in the hills overlooking the base.

"It got quiet around 11 p.m. and has been quiet since," Marine spokesman Capt. Wayne Jones, said today. He said the 1,600 Marines, who are serving with the multinational peacekeeping force, remained on their highest state of alert. In Washington, a White House official said "it was logical to assume" the artillery attack was in response to the American air strike.

Asked who was firing at the Marine base, the Western diplomatic source said "apparently everybody," indicating the attacks were mounted by both Druse militiamen in the hills and their Shiite Moslem allies in Beirut's southern suburbs.

He said the 1,600 Marines, who are serving with the multinational peacekeeping force, remained on their highest state of alert. In Washington, a White House official said "it was logical to assume" the artillery attack was in response to the American air strike.

Asked who was firing at the Marine base, the Western diplomatic source said "apparently everybody," indicating the attacks were mounted by both Druse militiamen in the hills and their Shiite Moslem allies in Beirut's southern suburbs.

pay taxes to support it."

Thoreau "was an oddball in his time," Smith said. "Today we take his philosophies in stride."

Haynes said "I've always admired the work of Thoreau as an educational tool." The play triggers questions and makes one start thinking, Haynes said.

The full-length production "is not a typical theatrical experience," Smith said. During the pre-show which begins at 7:30 p.m., "The set assembles in front of the audience and the actors warm up." This enables "the audience to feel like a part of the show," Smith said.

The multi-level set "is very stylistic," Smith said.

"It was designed by a student, James Puentes. Lighting design was by another student, Shot Smith."

Every corner of the set is built in right angles and "doesn't exactly fit together, but every platform stands together. Tim has used every piece of this stage effectively," Smith said.

Howard College student Matt Warren is Thoreau. More than 20 persons are involved in the production, and several actors play several roles each.

ATU Local 1042 in Columbus, said witnesses told him the man was among about 80 demonstrators gathered along U.S. 40 east of Zanesville, near the site where Greyhound has been training drivers hired to replace union members who went on strike Nov. 2.

Russell and witnesses interviewed by radio-television station WHIZ said the victim was hit at about 8:30 a.m. by a bus traveling east on U.S. 40 from a Holiday Inn to a Howard Johnson's motel.

Russell said a witness told him the victim, a member of Cleveland's Local 1043, was crossing beneath a flashing red light when he was hit.

"He went under the bus and it continued moving, did not stop at all, and he was dead," Russell said.

But Behnke said Phillips "jumped on the bus and apparently grabbed onto one of the front mirrors. He then either jumped or fell off."

As buses in the training exercise began to roll from the Holiday Inn parking lot, one bus was struck by an object, witnesses said. As the buses kept moving, witnesses said one of them hit a man standing just beyond an intersection.

Walker benefit raises $730

A car show held this weekend to benefit the Bruce Walker medical fund raised $730, Howard Walker, Bruce's father, said.

The benefit was the second held since the younger Walker was shot and severely injured Oct. 1. Bruce has been in intensive care at Lubbock General Hospital and area residents have planned several events to help with rising medical bills.

A benefit held two weeks ago at the Highland Shopping Center raised "between $3,800 and $4,000," Walker said. Walker said that coordinators from the benefit told him that money from the benefit was still coming in and that almost $4,600 had been raised. However, organizers must pay several bills from expenses triggered by the event.

Road closed by chemical spill

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A two-mile stretch of Interstate 45 was closed in both directions south of Huntsville today after a tanker truck overturned and spilled 50 gallons of a dangerous chemical.

Walker County Chief Deputy Sheriff Ted Pearce said the highway was closed at about 6 a.m. after ambulance crews discovered the chemical phenol leaking from the truck's ruptured tank. There were no evacuations of nearby residents, but traffic was rerouted onto secondary roads.

Officials predicted the spill cleanup would take several hours to clean up and the road then reopened. Phenol is a strong, corrosive poison used in making synthetic resins and explosives and it can cause severe injuries if inhaled.

Teddy bears bring $1,500

WOOLTON, England — So what happens when Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's teddy bear rubs shoulders with Princess Anne's teddy bear at a fund-raising exhibition?
About $1,500 is raised for the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, that's what. Their two teddies were among the more than 150 on display at what was billed as a "bear necessities" exhibition for charity in nearby Liverpool.
Other teddy bears on display Sunday included the favorites of the Duke of Westminster, the Marquis of Bath, Countess Mountbatten, Social Democratic party leader David Owen and comedian Sir Harry Secombe.

Big homecoming planned

MADISON, Wis. — It won't be truly the Christmas season for the family of Columbia space shuttle pilot Brewster H. Shaw Jr. until he's home and able to enjoy the holiday, too, says his 8-year-old daughter Jessica.
The family won't even be buying a Christmas tree "til Dad gets back," she said in a telephone conversation from Madison, where her grandparents live.
"I saw him on TV last night," said Brewster Shaw III, 13, elder son of the shuttle pilot. "I think that he must be having a good time up there."

BREWSTER SHAW

Brandon Shaw, 7, agreed that his father seems to be having a good time in orbit, but he said as for himself, he's had enough of the attention the family has been getting.
"I'm gettin' a little tired of it," said Brandon. "Would you like to speak to my mom?"
The Shaws spend much time listening to a scanner that picks up communications between Columbia and mission control in Houston.
"I can hear in his voice how happy he is," said the astronaut's wife, Kathy.

Baby meets the press

LEXINGTON — Born just Tuesday, the governor's daughter, Pamela Ashley Brown, has already met the press.
Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. and his wife, Phyllis George Brown, paraded past about 20 photographers and reporters and 50 startled onlookers in the lobby of the University of Kentucky Medical Center as they checked out Sunday.
The governor and Mrs. Brown, a former Miss America and television personality, were all smiles but the newborn, clad in pink and white, kept her eyes squeezed shut in the glare of camera lights.
The Browns plan to spend at least one night at the Governor's Mansion in Frankfort before the governor leaves office Dec. 12.
"I think we're going over Thursday," said Mrs. Brown. "I've got a little crib for her over there."
Pamela left the hospital weighing about the same as she did at birth — 7 pounds, 10 1/2 ounces — and is 19 inches long, her mother said. "She's really been a lady. ... She hasn't cried much at all," she added.
Mrs. Brown rode through the lobby in a wheelchair, cradling the baby in her arms.

Baker wants name cleared

DALLAS — Recently released from prison, Bob Baker, the once powerful Senate aide described by Lyndon Johnson as "my strong right arm," is out to clear his name.
In October, a federal appeals court ordered a federal judge to consider new evidence unearthed from cartons of old documents at the U.S. Justice Department, and Baker, now 55, insists the evidence will prove he should not have been found guilty.
"It's really getting exciting now," Baker told the Dallas Times Herald in an interview published Sunday. The excitement, he said, concerns his attempt to clear his name 20 years after reports came out of a suspicious portfolio of business deals and nearly 13 years after he went to prison for theft and tax evasion.

Gas prices continue to decline

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline prices have fallen nearly half a cent a gallon in the past two weeks, continuing a five-month trend, and more cuts are expected this week, an oil industry analyst says.
Motorists nationwide were paying an average $1.20.9 on Friday, down 0.49 of a cent from the last survey two weeks ago, and down from $1.23.3 last year at the same time, says Dan Lundberg, publisher of the weekly Lundberg Letter.
Lundberg said Sunday the wholesale price of gasoline had dropped an average 0.63 of a cent in the last two weeks, while the average pump price went down only 0.49 of a cent in his survey of 17,800 stations Friday.

USSR vows missile superiority

MOSCOW — The Soviet military chief of general staff vowed Monday never to allow the United States to gain military superiority and restated Kremlin plans for countering the NATO deployment of medium-range missiles in Western Europe.
"The United States will not have a superiority," said Gen. Nikolai V. Ogarkov, who is also first deputy defense minister.
In a statement at a news conference for Soviet and foreign journalists, Ogarkov said the arrival of U.S. cruise missiles in Britain and Pershing 2 missile components in West Germany had "changed the military balance."
Since the Soviet Union views those weapons as first strike missiles, he said, the Soviet military was being forced to put new nuclear rockets on submarines cruising off U.S. shores.
He said those missiles would match the Pershing 2s and cruises in "range, yield, accuracy and most important in the flight time to their targets."
Ogarkov spoke along with First Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi M. Kornienko and Kremlin spokesman Leonid M. Zamyatin. Behind the three officials was a giant diagram outlining Soviet and U.S. proposals made at arms talks in Geneva and the Soviet count of warheads, missiles and aircraft the two sides have pointed at each other.

Nicaragua nears peace treaty

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Nicaragua said it will welcome back most exiles who fled the country since 1979, including rebels fighting the leftist government. It also promised to announce plans next year for 1985 national elections.
The amnesty decree announced Sunday is the latest in a series of concessions by the government, which says it is trying to clear the way for signing a proposed regional peace treaty Dec. 21.
The treaty is being drafted by the Contadora group — Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama.
Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the ruling Sandinista junta, issued a second decree setting Feb. 21 as the date for announcing the election schedule. It did not say what type of election is planned or what offices would be included.
The amnesty decree, which begins immediately and expires Feb. 21, does it offers safety, voting rights and land to most Nicaraguans who fled after the 1979 revolution or who are now fighting with anti-Sandinista rebels.

Storms lash Great Plains

As the Great Plains swallowed another snowy dose of winter today, more rain and cresting rivers threatened cleanup efforts in the South, where tornadoes and flooding left three people dead, one missing and caused millions of dollars in damage.
A one-day respite from the weekend's storms was expected to end tonight as severe thunderstorms move into the lower Mississippi Valley, and the same weather system was already dropping snow and freezing rain from the Rocky Mountains to the Great Lakes early today, the National Weather Service said.
The latest in a series of snowstorms in the West forced the closing of a major highway in Idaho, caused scores of minor accidents in Utah and left up to 11 inches of new snow in Colorado, officials said Sunday.
"Since Thanksgiving, everyone's saying enough's enough," said Ed Honodel of the National Weather Service in Denver.
In the South, flood warnings remained in effect today for streams in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana despite Sunday's partly sunny skies. While hundreds returned home after fleeing over the weekend as fierce twister-spawning thunderstorms dumped several inches of rain in a few hours, the worst flooding was yet to come in some places.

A Utah police dispatcher said Sunday that about 60 or 70 accidents, most of them minor, occurred in Weber and Davis counties, where roads were slick and visibility low from blowing snow.
Interstate 84 was closed from Tremonton, Utah, to Burley, Idaho, early today because of high winds and drifting snow, officials said.
Up to 2 feet of new snow fell in the mountains of California, and by Sunday morning, 26 inches had fallen at Norden, Nev. A total of 102 inches covered the ground at Powder Mountain, Utah, forecasters said.
Travelers' advisories were in effect today for most of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Nebraska, southern Minnesota, northwest Kansas, Iowa and South Dakota — which had 8 inches of new snow in places.
Snow and sleet were tapering off today in the Northeast, which was frosted by a remnant of an earlier winter storm on Sunday. Up to 14 inches of snow fell in western Massachusetts, starting a snowball war among 2,000 students at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.
Nationwide, the death toll in the series of storms since Nov. 21 climbed to 89 — 48 last week. Violent weather the previous week claimed 41 lives.

Vatican airs guidelines

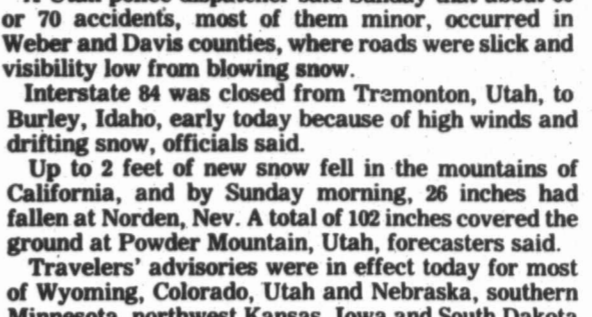

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican's new sex education guidelines, while designed for use worldwide, reflect Pope John Paul II's particular concern about sexual permissiveness in the United States and Europe.
"The document is weighted towards the more developed countries, such as the United States and Western Europe," said one high-ranking Vatican source familiar with the guidelines.
He cited as examples the document's firm condemnation of sexual relations outside marriage and its silence on polygamy, which presents a problem for the church in parts of Africa.
The source, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name, added: "The guidelines will have a considerable influence, but they won't revolutionize things."
The document, released Thursday, was drafted by the Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education at the request of the pope, who has made reinforcement of the church's conservative stands on sex a key point in his five-year pontificate.
"We are aware of vast cultural differences. In some parts of the world, there are tribal customs that take care of many aspects of human love," said another Vatican source close to the congregation.
"The Americans are very concerned about homosexuality, but there are certain parts of Africa where homosexuality doesn't appear," he added.
John Paul repeatedly has criticized permissiveness in industrialized countries. For example, last September he sternly told U.S. bishops in a meeting at his summer residence outside Rome to proclaim traditional church teaching on sex and marriage.
On Friday, the pontiff said today's "climate of permissiveness" often is "carried to excessive extremes by the mass media."
The Vatican's sex education document used some colorful language to get its points across, even though it was restating established doctrines on sex for the world's more than 790 million Roman Catholics.
It proclaimed an "urgent need" for proper sex education of young people and urged court-ordered curbs on "permissiveness and pornography."
Sex outside marriage is a "grave disorder," masturbation is a "deviation," while sexual intercourse for "merely genital" pleasure without love is condemned, the congregation said.
Many of those doctrines, especially the ban on artificial birth control, are widely flouted. U.S. bishops have said statistics show nearly 80 percent of Roman Catholic women in the United States use contraceptives.
The congregation, in releasing the document called "Educational Guidance in Human Love," said local bishops worldwide must adapt the guidelines "to the pastoral necessities of each local church."

Cold front pushes into state

Another cold front moved into the Texas Panhandle early today, bringing the threat of showers and thunderstorms to Southeast Texas and the coast tonight.
A weak Pacific cool front extended before dawn from the Red River in North Central Texas southward through the Hill Country. Mostly clear skies were noted behind the front, while low clouds, fog and scattered drizzle developed ahead of the line.
The cold front was expected to overtake the weaker front later in the day and produce scattered thunderstorms, mostly in Southeast Texas and along the coast.

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from the 30s in the Panhandle and the mountains of Southwest Texas to the 60s and 70s over South Texas.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. ranged from 34 at Marfa to 74 at Brownsville and Corpus Christi. Winds were light and southerly ahead of the front, while westerly breezes were noted elsewhere.
The forecast called for temperatures to drop across most of Texas tonight as the cold front pushed to the south. A few showers and thunderstorms were possible over scattered regions.

Temperatures on left indicate previous day's high and overnight low to 8 a.m. EST. Temperatures on right indicate outlook for tomorrow.

Reagan's Asia trip showed U.S. colors

Sure, President Reagan's trip to Japan and Korea was merely a symbolic event; the trip had no more important purpose than, as it were, to show the flag.

But how many presidential trips abroad have any other purpose? Only a few, and then only to sign a treaty or issue a communique based on lengthy negotiations, which usually have been finished before the trip is scheduled.

This trip was important and it was a success.

It was important because the Pacific Basin is important to America and to the world. As the Atlantic is the ocean of the past, the Pacific is the ocean of the future. The course of history will be determined by the strength of our Pacific alliances.

It was a success because the president said and did all the right things — to cement the relationships of the two northwestern Pacific countries with the United States and to correct the weak points in those relationships.

Ronald Reagan may have looked a little absurd at the welcoming ceremony in front of the Akasaka Detached Palace, in a cutaway coat, standing beside the emperor of Japan, also in morning clothes. But all that formality is the way the Japanese wanted it. The correct impression was made upon the Japanese audience.

And, becoming the first U.S. president to address the Japanese parliament, he assured the Diet that America is willing to compromise in order to make possible an agreement on nuclear bombs dropped in anger, is worried about the prospect of a nuclear war. "The only value in possessing nuclear weapons is to make sure they can't be used — ever," the president said.

But he also made it clear that the United States feels Japan should pick up more of the burden of its own defense and not continue to rely so heavily on the U.S. shield. Clearly, Japan should devote more than 1 percent of its gross national product to defense when the United States is devoting 5 or 6 percent.

And, as Mr. Reagan said, continuing and expanding free trade, much to Japan's commercial advantage, will only be possible if the American people perceive that Japan is moving steadily to open their home market to us as freely as our home market is open to them.

In Korea, the Reagan visit of the demilitarized zone was unprecedented for an American president. It brought our attention to a barrier as brutal as the Berlin Wall, and an armed presence in North Korea that is just as menacing now as it was 30 years ago when the Korean War ended.

Quietly, Mr. Reagan also made the point that we are dissatisfied with the lack of freedom in South Korea. We know that the world is not all black and white. We know that shades of gray divide the bad guys from the good guys. We cannot reject the friendship of every government that fails to follow our own democratic model. But we cannot be untrue to our faith in the human rights asserted in our own Declaration of Independence. They are universal and deserve respect in all countries. The general who presides over the government in Seoul seized power after a military coup and has failed to hold meaningful elections. By meeting privately with South Korean dissidents, our president expressed our support for the principles of democracy in a dramatic way.

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

Power play

In 1980, Ronald Reagan asked the voters if they were better off after four years of Jimmy Carter. It was a question Reagan voiced repeatedly in an attempt to discredit Carter's economic policies. And regardless of the real answer, the bottom line is that the play worked.

Now, with an election year looming, a form of Reagan's "question" campaign tactic has come back to haunt him. Only the question being asked is: "Do you feel safer than you were in 1980?"

The answer is apparent: Nuclear "die-ins" are being staged at the White House, Marines are dying in Lebanon, and even those not speaking out about the world's instability must be less comfortable than in 1980.

Also, let us remember that large trucks filled with sand are parked around the White House to thwart possible attacks by terrorists. If Reagan were asked the safety question, he would have to admit that things are dangerous out there.

However, Reagan promised us things would calm down after the U.S. got tough. He said more defense spending, missile deployment and a ready strike force would keep the Russians and any assorted terrorists in check.

But a quick look at world affairs shows things are escalating rather than calming down. We've got Lebanon, Grenada, Nicaragua and El Salvador problems. Our tough guy stance seems only to spur terrorists and rebels to challenge our hand.

And what about Reagan's decision to deploy missiles in allied European countries. He thought it would send the Russians scurrying to the arms talks. But surprise, the talks have broken off and Andropov has threatened to boost the number of missiles in the Russian arsenal.

Reagan says a strong defense gives us bargaining power, but it appears that an arms build-up only serves to make the Russians more paranoid and panicky. Of course, the Russians are a special case. Almost anything we do will be thought of as some kind of strategic ploy to undermine their power; however, Reagan has done little to stabilize relations with the Soviet Union.

Not all fears can be resolved by talking, but if communication lines are open, then hope for peace is still there. With no communication, the fear of the unknown, for both Americans and Russians, can only grow into paranoia and perhaps hysteria.

Do I feel safer? No.

Pastora: a Nicaraguan without a country

WASHINGTON — Eden Pastora, the Nicaraguan guerrilla leader, visited Washington recently. He stopped by my office for a visit. Though it was the first time we had actually met, we knew of each other.

I've reported the legendary exploits of the revolutionary "Commander Zero" since the days when he first took up arms against the U.S.-backed dictatorship of Anastasio Somoza. In 1978 and 1979 my former associate Bob Sherman spent some time with Pastora at his jungle hide-out. Not long afterward, Pastora and his Sandinista fighters captured the presidential palace in Managua. Somoza had already fled.

Now Pastora is fighting the Sandinista regime he helped to bring to power. Several months ago I sent my roving reporter, Jon Lee Anderson, to travel with Pastora in the Nicaraguan bush, where he commands approximately 2,000 guerrillas.

The charismatic rebel leader was in Washington soliciting support from the Reagan administration for his financially strapped troops. He didn't have much luck.

The reason is simple: For all his rugged charm and the glamour of his past adventures, Pastora is a political maverick whom the CIA doesn't trust. He is an outspoken revolutionary; the CIA suspects him of leaning too far to the left.

So Pastora has received only a token offering of CIA money and guns — nothing like the support enjoyed by the CIA's anti-Sandinista creation, the Nicaraguan Democratic Force (FDN). The CIA is trying to coerce Pastora to join the FDN, which he says he will never do as long as its military leadership includes former officers of Somoza's National Guard.

Instead of encouraging him, Pastora said, the CIA is actively trying to sabotage his efforts to raise funds. "They are afraid I will eclipse their Somocista army," Pastora said. "But they want me around to legitimize the FDN, which has no popular appeal in Nicaragua."

Pastora is right about the last point: The FDN's civilian leaders are conservative businessmen and politicians, and its top military officers are almost all former National Guard members. This taints the whole group as far as most Nicaraguans are concerned.

Pastora's group, on the other hand, is led mainly by former Sandinistas. Their quarrel with the Managua junta is simply that it betrayed the revolution. They are anti-communist, but they favor more socialism than the Reagan administration wants.

When we spoke the other day, Pastora told me his conditions for joining ranks with the FDN: "They must get rid of all the ex-National Guardsmen. They must also agree that what comes to Nicaragua after victory must be revolutionary as well as democratic."

It's that kind that scares the Reagan administration, and causes it to sling mud at him. "Pastora is no different from his ex-buddies now in power," said one administration source. "He just wants the power for himself."

The administration has spread the rumor that Pastora has a Castro connection. Though he denies it, he does admit that one of his top aides has talked recently to the Cuban dictator. Pastora evidently feels it's a good tactic to make the Reagan people worry about his opening to Cuba's Fidel Castro — a warning that he can get help elsewhere if Washington turns him down.

HUMMER UPDATE: I recently reported serious safety problems with the Army's dream vehicle, the Hummer, which is supposed to replace the jeep as the all-purpose workhorse. Apparently my report stirred up a furor at the Pentagon. The Army set about trying to rebut my charges — which were taken from its own internal reports.

I've obtained a copy of the rebuttal document, and can now report that the Army is working on many of the Hummer's safety problems. Some of them may actually be fixed some day, though my sources doubt it.

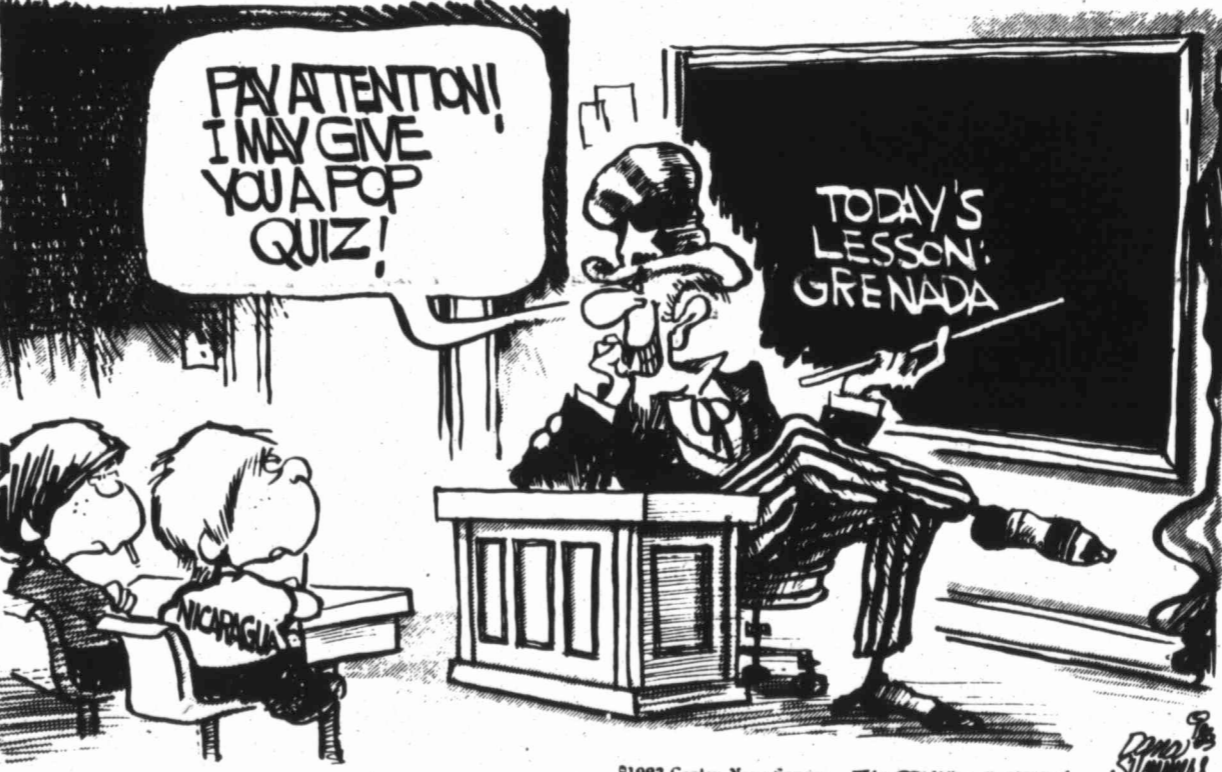

But one response to a very serious problem I disclosed was disturbing.

The Hummer's missile gunners face the possibility of permanent hearing loss from firing the vehicle's TOW missile weapon. Even with double hearing protection, the gunners could be deafened if they fired more than one round apiece per day — hardly the kind of firing that wins battles.

The Army's response can only be described as weird. It said that this situation is not unique to the Hummer. Other TOW missile hunners face the same risk, so double hearing protection and the one-round-per-day limit is standard. The Army's argument seems to be: Since everyone's in the same boat, there's no problem.

GAMESMANSHIP: President Reagan had a few kind words to say the other day about the video games that obsess many American youngsters. "Many young people have developed incredible hand, eye and brain coordination in playing these games," he told a group of math and science students. "The Air Force believes these kids will be outstanding pilots when they fly our jets."

But the president hastened to add that he didn't want the kids telling their parents he thought it was OK to play video games all the time. "Homework, sports and friends come first," he said.

A mugging contest among cripples

WASHINGTON — The Middle East these days presents the spectacle of a mugging contest among cripples. Even the superpowers enter the area limping and half-blind. So the visits by Israeli and Lebanese leaders to Washington this week offer a chance to reduce exposure — decommit.

The original source of weakness is the Lebanese regime of President Amin Gemayel. Gemayel represents a Christian faction based north of Beirut. Its writ runs only to that area and the capital. It is contested by several dissident ethnic groups. Among them are the Shi'ite Moslems, and the Palestinians who are themselves split into a faction headed by Yasser Arafat and a rebel group which has besieged him in Tripoli.

Syria occupies part of Lebanon, manipulates the dissidents against the Gemayel government and backs the PLO rebels against Arafat. It enjoys both Soviet support and the patronage of the Islamic revolution preached by the Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran. If only to blunt that revolution, the Saudis sustain Assad financially. Since Iran also ties down Syria's historic enemy, Iraq, in a war of attrition, Syria looks like a powerhouse.

But President Hafez Assad is in uncertain health. He heads a minority regime of Alawite Moslems, which is detested by the Sunni Moslem majority. If his Lebanese proteges cut a deal with Gemayel, they would desert him. He also has difficulties with his Soviet backers.

Russia has 7,000 troops in Syria, some of them manning anti-aircraft defenses in Syrian-occupied Lebanon. But the leadership problem, implicit in the illness of General Secretary Yuri Andropov, has affected the Soviet stance in the Middle East. Russian forces have played no part in the various military engagements that have flared in Lebanon. Moscow has repeatedly come down on behalf of the Arafat faction which the Syrians have been trying to crush. So the Syrians do not have high confidence that Russia holds over their heads an umbrella of safety against Israel.

Israel is the regional military colossus. Its armed forces occupy the southern half of Lebanon. Its air force strikes at will — most recently in a retaliatory raid against Shi'ite local population. The new Israeli government faces an acute financial crisis, and a main purpose of the visit here by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir has been to secure economic assistance from Washington.

The U.S. is committed in the Middle East in ways almost beyond count. It backs the security of the Persian Gulf, and has renewed warnings to Iran and Iraq against spreading their war south to Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. It also backs the Gemayel government, and has contributed a contingent of Marines to serve along with French, Italian and British troops in a Lebanese peace-keeping force. Finally it is committed — through the Reagan Plan of last year — to foster a Palestinian accord by passage to Jordan of West Bank territories now occupied by Israel.

The strain of these conflicting commitments tells every day. There is little public support for the Marine presence in Beirut. The Pentagon is wary of helping Israel for fear of compromising its mission in the Persian Gulf. The Israelis find it difficult to cooperate with a U.S. that is dedicated to turning the West Bank territories over to Arab rule.

A deliberate winding-down of these dangerously overblown commitments is the only policy that makes sense. The first objective has to be an accord of some kind between the Gemayel regime and the dissident forces in Lebanon. Only then will it be possible to pull out the Marines whose presence constitutes this country's foremost vulnerability in the area.

Cooperation with the Israelis in pooling intelligence and the joint use of medical and storage facilities serves both countries. The U.S. can afford to pay for this help by scaling back debts. But there is no need, especially since it puts pepper in Arab eyes, to bestow on such arrangements the grandiose title strategic cooperation.

Conversely there is no point in alienating Israel now. Divisions in the Palestinian leadership, and in the Arab camp, put a comprehensive settlement in the Middle East out of reach. So decommitment should include temporarily shelving the Reagan peace plan.

Billy Graham

Evangelism duty is unfinished task

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I heard that you sponsored a big conference for evangelists several months ago, but I never heard how it came out. What do you think was accomplished? — P.E.L.

DEAR P.E.L.: No, it was not the sort of conference that attracted a great deal of attention from the press. But the conference — held in Amsterdam this past summer — drew over 5,000 people from 134 nations to discuss ways in which evangelists could be more effective in presenting their message, and the reports we have received have been thrilling.

Most of the evangelists were from the so-called Third World nations, including many countries where the number of Christians is very small. Many of them had never had contact with evangelists from other parts of the world, and they were eager to learn more about ways they could present the message of Christ to their people. It was a very practical conference, and the reports clearly show that the evangelists went back to their countries better equipped to reach people for Christ.

It also was a time of inspiration and challenge. Never before have there been so many opportunities for proclaiming the Gospel as we have today, and yet all too often we tend to get discouraged or feel that the task of evangelism is mainly finished. But God is at work today in many parts of the world, and we need to be ready to move through the open doors he gives us.

I hope that you will pray for these evangelists, many of whom are working in very difficult situations. We also have started a fund to help some of them with practical assistance, and perhaps God would have you help in that way also. We discovered, for example, that some evangelists in some areas of the world could double their ministry if they only had a bicycle or a simple sound system.

But pray too that God would help you to be faithful in your witness for Christ, by your life and your words. Not every Christian is called to be a missionary or an evangelist — but all of us are called to share the Good News of Christ wherever he gives us opportunity. Pray for those around you, and pray that God will use you to point others to Christ.

Dr. Donohue

Vitamin lack can cause an anemia

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would very much appreciate the true meaning of enlarged red blood cells. Is this the same as megaloblastic anemia? I do not drink spirits of any kind, so please, could you tell me why this happens? Can this turn into pernicious anemia? — G.M.

Megaloblasts are red blood cells found in the bone marrow, usually when there is a deficiency of folic acid or vitamin B-12. Without those two vitamins, red cells do not mature normally; megaloblasts develop. In addition to abnormal development, fewer red cells are made, hence the anemia. Folic acid or B-12 deficiency can be determined by a few laboratory tests. B-12 lack causes pernicious anemia, one kind of megaloblastic anemia.

When megaloblasts leave the marrow and enter circulating blood, they are called macrocytes. So folic acid and B-12 deficiencies produce both macrocytic and megaloblastic anemia. I hope this doesn't confuse you. Macrocytes are found only in the blood. Megaloblasts are found only in the marrow and you need a marrow specimen to find them.

Macrocytes are found in conditions other than deficiency of folic acid or B-12. Alcoholism, as you mention, can be a cause. This can lead to macrocytes, large red blood cells in circulation, but not megaloblasts in the marrow. Let me skip to your situation. Finding a few abnormally-large red cells (macrocytes) in your blood need not be terribly significant. If there are a lot of them, you must find out why this is so. The two vitamin deficiencies I mentioned are possibilities.

What should you do? You should ask your doctor if the blood fingering was, as I suspect, the finding of a few innocent, oversized red cells, or if it is something that warrants further investigation. Express your concern to him. And, if you still are not satisfied, you should get a second opinion.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My dad is 63, average weight, watches his diet, and takes vitamins. He has had rheumatoid arthritis for about 20 years. For a couple of months now he has felt lousy. About a month ago he went for blood tests and his white blood cell count was way down. He doesn't have leukemia. The doctor figured his arthritis was to blame, but dad never had a low count before. I am really worried. Is there anything dad can do for his low white blood cell count? Should he be checked for any other problem? The worry is bringing him down, too. — A.L.

Some medicines used for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis may lower the white blood count. That has to be investigated, especially since your dad has had his condition for so long. What medicines is he using? Also, a low white count is found in Felty's syndrome, in which rheumatoid arthritis is part of the picture. With Felty's there is also an enlarged spleen, and there may be anemia and a low platelet count, too. Your dad certainly has to be checked for an enlarged spleen, which can be (and very likely was) done in the doctor's office. With Felty's, infections can become a serious problem, in which case the spleen can be removed. Then the white count will rise again.

I point out these things to you to indicate some of the things that can be behind low white cell count in those with rheumatoid arthritis. Basically, the most common causes are drugs and Felty's syndrome. I am sure your concerns and those of your dad would be eased by finding out what significance your doctor sees in the blood finding.

Dear Abby

Widower is bound by ties of love

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I lost my wonderful wife to cancer. "Angie" was 23, and we had been married for only a year. The love we shared was beyond description. I can't imagine myself loving another the way I loved Angie.

However, time has a way of changing things, and I know there is a God who sees, understands and perhaps may have plans for my future, so I keep my trust in him.

My problem is my mother-in-law. Angie was Mom's only daughter, and during her struggle with cancer, Mom and I developed a very close mother-son relationship. Now that Angie is gone, Mom considers me "all she has left" of her daughter.

I understand her feelings, Abby, but my life must go on. Unfortunately, Mom has grown so dependent on me that I have no opportunity to get interested in anyone else. Friends have offered to fix me up with some nice women, but I don't dare to accept because Mom would be devastated if I started to date. And I hate to think of what would happen if I were to marry again. So how do I get out of this trap?

ALONE AND LONELY
DEAR ABBY: Your mother-in-law needs to learn how to "let go." First she must let go of her grief so she can let go of you. You could help her by recommending Compassionate Friends, a national support group of parents who have learned how to deal with life's cruellest blow — losing a child. The address is P.O. Box 1347, Oak Brook, Ill. 60521.

You must get on with your life, my friend. Mom may need individual therapy to help her work through her grief, and you need to resume a normal life without feeling trapped or guilty. Good luck and God bless you. The Lord never gives us a heavier load than we can carry.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for the whole neighborhood. A friendly neighbor of ours just got back from spending a year in a tuberculosis hospital.

She visited my home yesterday, and after she left I sterilized everything she had touched. She hugged my children, and now I'm worried that they might have caught the TB from her. Is there any danger? Please hurry your answer.

WORRIED
DEAR WORRIED: No TB patient is discharged while he or she is contagious. You are far safer in the company of former TB patients than people who have never been tested for it. A discharged TB patient knows that he is "negative" (free of infectious germs). And unless a person has periodic tests, he can never be positive that he is negative.

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Proper care can expand car's life

Americans often give up their automobiles after only 60,000 or 70,000 miles. That's low mileage to auto expert Ross Olney, who says a car properly maintained and driven with care can be made to last 120,000 miles and more.

Olney, who has written over 50 books on car repair, shares his tips for extending the life of a car.

Olney recommends changing the engine oil and oil filter frequently. Some owners of high mileage cars do this as often as every 2000 miles, using premium oil for long engine and valve life. A chassis lubrication with every oil change will substantially extend the life of ball joints, springs, linkages and other critical parts, he adds.

Engine coolant, transmission fluid, power-steering oil, battery water and brake fluid levels should be checked regularly — usually when filling up with gasoline at the service station. Most of these checks can be done by a service station attendant.

Olney's maintenance program also includes replacement of fan belts if they're frayed, worn or cracked; changing the air filter according to the owner's manual schedule; draining and flushing the cooling system yearly; and regular tune-ups.

Besides maintenance and repairs, the other key to extending a car's life is to develop good driving habits. Olney says it's not necessary to warm up modern engines. Instead, start the car, give it a few seconds to be sure all the fluids are circulating, then drive away slowly and carefully. Never race a cold engine. Also, it's best when having difficulty starting a car not to grind the starter more than 10 seconds, and to allow a few seconds between 10-second bursts.

To help forestall the cost of a brake system overhaul, don't ride the brake pedal, he writes. Avoid hard stops by anticipating a stop well in advance. And when stopping, brake, release, then brake again gently to minimize heat in the brake system.

Olney also advises car when using the clutch in a manual transmission. Don't ride the clutch pedal when the car is moving, and also shift into neutral when stopped for more than a few seconds.

Reserve chute saves man leaping from radio tower

MISSOURI CITY, Texas (AP) — A man claiming to be a veteran building climber leaped from a 2,000-foot broadcasting tower and fell hundreds of feet after his first parachute failed, but he was saved by a reserve chute.

The man, who told reporters he was Skip Stanley, landed in a back yard about half a mile from the tower shortly after 5 p.m. Sunday.

The owners of the house, Dan and Gloria Ferris, sheltered him from lawmen for more than two hours before officers obtained a warrant to search the home. The man was taken into custody at 7:15 p.m. as a crowd of about 200 spectators cheered and clapped.

Stanley, who also goes by the name David Adcock, parachuted from the 68th floor of the 71-story Allied Bank Tower last May. He has also scaled a building in St. Louis.

The Associated Press was unable to learn whether charges were filed Sunday night. Sgt. L. Garza of the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department said he thought the climber would not be taken before a magistrate until today.

The climber landed in a yard across the street from where a red and white target had been placed on a roof. He told a reporter with KIKK radio his aim was spoiled when the first parachute didn't open.

He told that reporter he "didn't take time" to figure out how to adjust his fall to land at the target. The climber said he ascended with "a nylon gripper. There's no way it can possibly hurt or damage the cable in any way."

He climbed a guy wire attached to the top of the Senior Road Tower.

The jumper descended through a web of cables beneath his yellow, blue and red parachute. A crowd of several hundred jammed traffic along Farm-to-Market Road 2234 as they watched the ascent, then the leap.

A man who identified himself as the jumper's younger brother, Kenny, told KLOL-FM that his brother "opened a reserve chute, but something went wrong and he cut it away. He was trying to make it to us — you could tell — but something went wrong."

The younger man said he was watching from a house in the neighborhood where the jumper landed.

Sheriff's Lt. Roger Boyd said a UHF channel, KTXH-TV, was off the air for about two hours because engineers feared the climber would be burned by an electrical field its signal produced.

Five men were killed Dec. 7, 1982, when one of the tower's guy wires broke and the structure collapsed.

A tower engineer who asked not to be identified said that shortly before the jump, police and Bill Cordell, the tower's chief engineer, had taken an elevator to the top and were "within a few feet" of the climber, where they tried to talk him out of jumping.

The climber said the stunt Sunday was designed to draw attention to children who would have a bleak Christmas because their families are poor, the engineer said.

Nine FM radio stations and the UHF channel own the tower.

Tarrant County deputy slain

SAGINAW, Texas (AP) — Sheriff's deputies searched today for the killer of a fellow Tarrant County officer, the first deputy slain in the line of duty in at least 24 years, sheriff's department officials said.

Deputy Clark M. Rosenbalm Jr., 27, was shot to death late Sunday just outside of Saginaw, located northwest of Fort Worth, authorities said.

Early reports said the shooting occurred after a car pulled up beside Rosenbalm's car, according to investigators.

Rosenbalm, who had cleared a call about a suspicious person at Boswell High School shortly before the shooting, was found lying on the ground next to his patrol car by a young woman from Rhome who worked at a nearby restaurant, officials said.

The slain deputy's handgun was found at the scene, Sheriff Lon Evans said.

Bush predicts Reagan victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Republicans have restored Americans' faith in their government by putting money in their pockets, Vice President George Bush said, predicting President Reagan would win the 1984 election for that reason.

Bush, speaking to a crowd of about 700 at a GOP fund-raiser Sunday night, said the Reagan administration had put 3 million Americans back to work this year.

Bush was in Houston for a two-day visit. He was to attend a ceremony at an Army Reserve center today.

Bush said the unemployment rate "is falling faster than in any recovery period in the last 30 years."

"Economic growth has been putting over 300,000 people a month back to work," he said.

Reagan has not made an official announcement that he will be a candidate.

Bush accused Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale of proposing policies that would bring back a high inflation rate.

"John Glenn said that if Mondale kept all the promises he's made so far in his campaign, it would add $90 billion to the deficit," Bush said. "And that's just so far — he still has almost a year of promises to go."

Bush and retiring U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, appeared at a fundraiser for the Harris County Republican party.

NO WHERE TO RUN—Seattle's running back Curt Warner, 28 looks for a hole but found running hard Sunday against a tough-nosed Dallas defense. Warner gained only 22 yards in 12 carries as the Cowboys won the game 35-10.

'Pokes polish off Seattle, 35-10

SEATTLE (AP) — In his 14th National Football League career start, rookie sensation Curt Warner of the Seattle Seahawks got a lesson about defense from the Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys, who have Super Bowl aspirations, held Warner to merely 22 yards, his professional low, on a dozen carries at the Kingdome Sunday.

The result: A 35-10 Cowboys' victory over the Seahawks.

"That's the way the game goes," Warner said. "Sometimes it just doesn't happen."

"They have a very unusual defense. They have some big guys up front and they come. They really clog things up and make it hard to get through."

That was strictly by design, Dallas Coach Tom Landry explained.

"Curt Warner is a great back, just like Tony Dorsett, but he's not going to run very far if we don't give him any room and we didn't give him any," Landry said.

Warner entered Sunday's game as the American Football Conference's leading rusher and No. 2 in the entire NFL behind the Los Angeles Rams' Eric Dickerson.

In Seattle's 51-48 overtime victory over Kansas City here the previous weekend, the former Penn State all-time rushing king set a club record by running for 207 yards.

So much for reputations.

With Warner baffled, the Seahawks could get just 28 yards on 17 carries.

"In our flex defense, if we're playing it right, we can control a good running back," remarked perennial Pro Bowler Randy White of the Cowboys. "Any time you can control the running back and put them in passing situations, you can pin your ears back more and go after the quarterback."

That's what the playoff-bound Cowboys did in Seattle, sacking quarterback Dave Krieg eight times for 65 yards. White, a defensive tackle, had 3½ of those sacks.

"They have a good pass rush," assessed Seattle Coach Chuck Knox. "That's really the strength of their defense."

In addition, the Cowboys recovered four Krieg turnovers, two pass interceptions and two fumbles. They pounced on one of the fumbles after Seattle reached the Dallas 1-yard line in the opening quarter. Both fumbles came on Krieg handoffs to Warner.

While Warner had his problems against Dallas' defense, Dorsett had a big day against the Seahawks.

Dorsett rushed for 117 yards on 26 carries, including touchdown bursts of 8 and 7 yards in the first half. In addition, he caught five passes for 50 yards.

Danny White also had a big offensive day, nitting 19 of 26 passes for 233 yards and two touchdowns. He had a 35-yard scoring pass to Doug Donley and a 16-yarder to Butch Johnson.

Despite the enormous pressure, Krieg passed for 253 yards. He had 16 completions in 30 attempts.

"They came after us and we couldn't get anything going," Krieg lamented.

Seattle was nearly held without a touchdown. It finally got one with 4:09 left on a 2-yard run by Warner.

Although the Seahawks, 7-7, are still mathematically alive in the NFL playoff picture, they are going to have to have a combination of things happen in order to get there. Even then, a 9-7 record isn't a sure bet to get them into the playoffs.

Miami comeback sinks Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — When the Houston Oilers went ahead of Miami 17-7 in the third quarter, the Dolphin defense had its back to the wall and running back Tony Nathan feared the worst.

That's when the Dolphins had the Oilers right where they wanted them.

Miami's defense, awakening to discover it had drowsed through the first half, stopped the upstart Oilers and Nat Moore's 28-yard touchdown catch and Nathan's five-yard TD run with 3:51 to play gave the Dolphins a 24-17 victory and a return to the playoffs.

Miami, 10-4, assured itself of its 11th American Football Conference Eastern Division title with the comeback victory.

"I guess it takes getting our backs against the wall," said safety Lyle Blackwood, whose interception killed Houston's last offensive drive. "We had a lack of emotion in the first half."

"We had the AFC Eastern lock riding on the game. That should have been enough to get us up for the game."

Miami's slow start concerned Nathan prior to the game.

"They (Oilers) can play the spoiler's role and spoil everybody's dreams," Nathan said. "Today when we warmed up it seemed like our attitude was flat. You could tell it in the locker room too."

"It scared me because it got to the point where you could pick it up."

With the Dolphins in repose, Houston fashioned a 14-7 halftime lead on a pair of picture-perfect drives to start the game. Oliver Luck hit Tim Smith with a five-yard TD pass and Earl Campbell rammed one yard for the other score.

Andra Franklin got Miami on the scoreboard before the half with a one-yard run.

Houston's Florian Kempf kicked a 23-yard field goal for a 17-7 Oiler lead in the third quarter and that was the Oiler offense's last hurrah.

The Dolphins came back with a 19-yard field goal by Uwe Von Schamann for a 17-10 deficit before ending Houston's upset dreams in the fourth quarter. Houston Coach Chuck Studley, whose team is 1-13, was at least happy to see the Oilers weren't embarrassed as they have been so often this season.

"Our guys have nothing to be ashamed of and personally, I'm damned proud to be coach of this team," said Studley, whose Oilers have lost 20 of their last 21 games. "I've said it before but it is very important how this team starts. We did some things early in the game to keep up our momentum."

Most of Houston's momentum came from Campbell, who rushed 138 yards on 28 carries to go over 1,000 yards for the fifth time in six seasons as a pro.

Lubbock Christian at Howard Queens (11-5)

The Queens take a night off from Western Junior College Athletic Conference play, hosting the LCC women at 7:30 p.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Howard dropped its conference opener 70-67 in overtime to Amarillo Thursday. Debbie Hall scored 20 and Molly Early 18 points in the loss. Hall leads the team with a 14.4 scoring average while Early is tossing in 12.8 points a contest.

LCC played in the Hawk Queen Classic last month, winning one of three games. Laura Geurin scored a tournament high 32 points in win over Southwest Christian while Tonya Ivie also provides Lady Chaps with double figure scoring.

Lubbock Dunbar at Big Spring Lady Steers (5-3)

The Lady Steers are coming off a third place finish Saturday at an invitational tournament in Crane. BSHS topped Odessa 68-62 for third; Paula Spears and Debra Rubio were named to the all-tournament team. Wall, which downed the Lady Steers 44-29 in the semifinals, won the tournament championship by rallying by host Crane in the finals.

Big Spring hopes to be at full strength tonight. Rubio and shooting guard Monette Wise are recovering from ankle injuries but are expected to be full strength for Dunbar. Game time is 8 p.m. in Steer Gym; junior varsities play at 6:15 p.m.

STILL DRIVING—Former University of Texas star Johnny "Lam" Jones of the New York Jets still tries to pick up some extra yardage despite Kim Anderson of the Baltimore Colts on his back. The Jets won the game 10-6.

Cribbs rushes for 185 in Buffalo win

By the Associated Press

In NFL action Sunday, Buffalo took a 14-9 decision over Kansas City, Green Bay edged Chicago 31-28, Philadelphia upset the Los Angeles Rams 13-9, San Francisco beat Tampa Bay 35-21, Cincinnati whipped Pittsburgh 23-10, Denver routed Cleveland 27-6, Washington hammered Atlanta 37-21, New England blanked New Orleans 7-0; St. Louis trimmed the New York Giants 10-6, Dallas blasted Seattle 35-10 and the New York Jets downed Baltimore 10-6.

Minnesota plays Detroit tonight. In a game last Thursday night, the Raiders beat San Diego 42-10.

Bills 14, Chiefs 9

Mike Kennedy returned an interception of a Bill Kenney pass 22 yards for a fourth-period touchdown and Joe Cribbs rushed for a career-high 185 yards to lift Buffalo over Kansas City. With quarterback Joe Ferguson completing only six of 15 passes for 76 yards, Cribbs provided most of the Buffalo offense with 36 rushes as the Bills improved their record to 8-6 in the AFC East.

Packers 31, Bears 28

Jan Stenerud kicked a 19-yard field goal with three seconds left to lift Green Bay over Chicago. The victory gave the Packers a 7-7 record in the National Conference Central Division, one game behind Detroit and Minnesota, tied at 7-6.

Stenerud's field goal brought him within one of tying George Blanda's career field-goal record of 335.

Eagles 13, Rams 9

Ron Jaworski's 29-yard touchdown pass to Tony Woodruff with 21 seconds left rallied Philadelphia over the Rams and snapped the Eagles' seven-game losing streak. Woodruff fought off cornerback LeRoy Irvin in a corner of the end zone, as the Rams dropped into a first-place tie in the NFC West with San Francisco with an 8-6 record.

49'ers 35, Bucs 21

Wendell Tyler ran for 102 yards and rookie fullback Roger Craig powered his way to three touchdowns, giving San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana support as the 49ers returned to a first-place tie by beating Tampa Bay.

Bengals 33, Steelers 10

Cincinnati turned a pair of first-quarter Pittsburgh turnovers into Pete Johnson touchdown runs and an early 14-0 lead and the Bengals went on to beat the slumping Steelers, who lost for the third straight time after seven consecutive wins.

Broncos 27, Browns 6

Struggling rookie John Elway fired touchdown passes of 39 and 49 yards to rookie wide receiver Clint Sampson, keeping Denver's playoff hopes alive with a rout of the Browns. The victory gave Denver an 8-6 mark and the possibility of a wild card berth.

Redskins 27, Falcons 21

Joe Theismann passed for three touchdowns and kicker Mark Moseley set an NFL scoring record as Washington beat turnover-prone Atlanta.

Moseley kicked three field goals and four conversions for 13 points, giving him 147 points for the year. That surpassed the non-touchdown record of 145 by Jim Turner of the 1968 New York Jets. The overall record is 176 by Paul Horning for Green Bay in 1960.

Patriots 7, Saints 0

Tony Collins scored on a three-yard run after Ricky Smith returned the opening kickoff 53 yards, and the New England Patriots overcame snow, sleet and heavy rain to beat New Orleans.

Cardinals 10, Giants 6

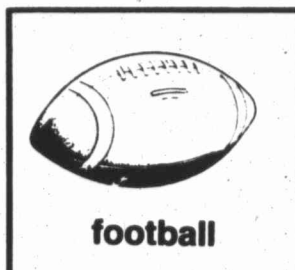

Neil Lomax fired a 20-yard touchdown pass to Roy Green while rookie Lionel Washington recovered a fumble and intercepted New York quarterback Scott Brunner twice to lead St. Louis over the Giants.

The crowd was the Giants' smallest turnout since Giants Stadium opened in 1976. There were 51,589 no-shows, breaking by 2,759 no-shows the NFL record set at Atlanta between the Falcons and Green Bay Packers in 1974.

Jets 10, Colts 6

New York quarterback Richard Todd, stung by the degrading comments of Baltimore players following a loss four weeks earlier, passed for the game's only touchdown as the Jets edged the Colts and knocked them out of playoff contention.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning will find you in a contentious frame of mind so use self control. Make long-term plans for gaining the respect of those in power. Handle business matters well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't argue with superiors. Be precise in handling business matters. Drive carefully to avoid a possible accident.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get ahead faster by being with partners who understand your ideas. Be logical about success, and take one step at a time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Communicate well with business people who interest you. Cooperate with a co-worker. Avoid arguments at home tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be congenial today. Accomplish a good deal by avoiding opposition. Take time for fun in the evening.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Steer clear of a co-worker who wants to argue. Listen to advice of higher-ups. Don't lose your temper with anyone.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't permit a money matter to upset you this morning. Learn to economize. Be more practical from now on.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to get along better with kin. Arrange it so that you work less and make more money. Entertain at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Avoid worrisome enemy, but join in plans of those about you. Take time to visit with persons who can help you. Take it easy tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find best way to avoid contention with a good pal. Plan action that can lead to greater success. Be happy at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Refrain from arguments with a higher-up. You can practically double your present benefits. Avoid one who dislikes you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit a newcomer to criticize you. Go to a good advisor for problems. Make sure you have the right facts and figures.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Avoid arguments with persons in business. Use new ideas wisely. A social evening can be very nice.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be someone who has to be taught early to deal more harmoniously with people, but upon maturity, such an attitude will achieve success in business. Prepare for education. Have many good books around for early perusal.

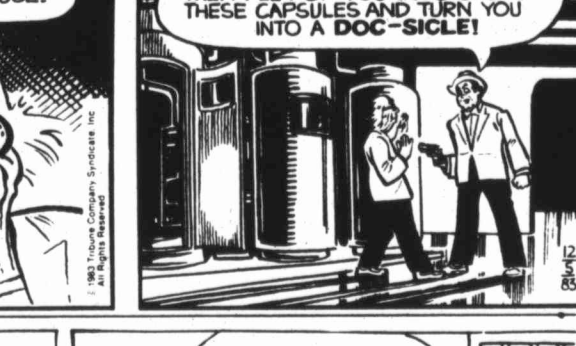

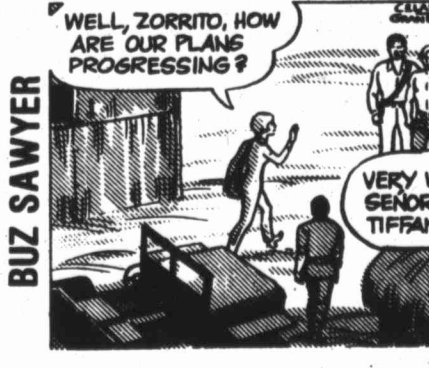

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Retiree says he's paid in smiles

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — Lawson Peugh is a square-shouldered man with the strong square hands of a laborer and the ruddy and roughened skin of a man who has spent 40 or more years in hay fields. He is the kind of man who would look in place on a construction site, or in a dairy barn or on a tractor.

Now, he looks in place in a Northeast Texas center for children with multiple disabilities.

One morning about nine years ago, the retired grandfather brought his wife, Lou Jane, to her job as a teacher at the Hopkins County Opportunity Center and stopped to look in. "I saw things that needed to be done, so I offered to help," said the soft-voiced Peugh.

The center, a part of the Denton State School's Mental Health-Mental Retardation outreach program, provides therapy, educational services and day care for children with multiple handicaps. It opened in its present location on Church Street 12 years ago.

Doris Rawls, director of the center, said a number of people volunteer to help at the center "but they come and go. Lawson has been here so long that I don't think that any of us can really remember when he wasn't here for us whenever we needed him."

Peugh, when asked what kind of services

he does for the center, thought for a minute and said with a slow, easy smile, "It would be easier for me to tell what I don't do." He paused and then added, "I don't change diapers, but I don't know if you should say anything about that."

Over the years, Peugh, in addition to doing a lengthy list of handyman chores of painting, carpentry, yard work and all manner of things that it takes to keep an old, large frame house habitable and functional, also keeps the center's bus running, fills in as substitute bus driver and rescues stranded center personnel when their own transportation fails.

He also washes dishes, feeds children and helps to exercise stiffened and palsied limbs of children who do not have control of their arms and legs. He is often the arms and legs for students who cannot stand, sit or feed themselves.

Most of all, Mrs. Rawls said, he is a warm, loving grandfather to all of the children, and someone who can get a smile from a child when the rest of the staff cannot get the smallest response.

Peugh, who spent most of his adult life doing farm work and running a dairy, said an early retirement, forced on him by a medical problem, suddenly left him with a lot of vacant hours to fill. At that time, he was worried about what he could do to occupy himself. "But now I find that I don't have enough hours in the day," he said.

Working with young children, especially children with so many needs and problems, is not something that most men would find satisfying, but for him it has become an important part of his life. "I've just fallen in love with all of these children," and with a little twinkle in his eye, he added, "the teachers, too."

At the center, different members of the staff passed through the room as Peugh watched several napping children. They stopped to tell of times that Peugh had helped out in a difficult moment, or day, or even filled in for an absent teacher for several weeks. Each time, Peugh's ears glowed red from embarrassment at all the attention he was receiving.

Mrs. Rawls added that Peugh is modest to the point of being shy, "and I guess that makes it easy for us just to take him for granted. He just comes in and does whatever we need done. We've become so used to it that we don't even stop to say thank you, and that's the only pay he gets."

Peugh said firmly, "I get paid with every smile I get — with the eyes that light up when they see me."

Peugh added that in some ways he has discovered some of the joys of parenting that he missed with his own children.

Court issues injunction against firm

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox said today that a Nueces County district court has issued a permanent injunction against Memory Gardens and Gibraltar Mausoleum Corp. both of Corpus Christi, for debt collection practices.

Mattox said the injunction forbids the defendants from "threatening that non-payment of an alleged debt will result in the seizure, repossession or sale of property of the alleged debtor without proper court proceedings."

The injunction notes the firm voluntarily discontinued its procedures after becoming aware that such practices violated state laws.

In Texas, Mattox said, a person's wages may not be garnished, except for the payment of delinquent child support.

Beard contest puts men in hairy situation

LAPLACE, La. (AP) — Men in this town had better grow beards or they'll land in jail — and they won't go to the jail, it will come to them.

Three-hundred of LaPlace's most prominent men have been asked to show up Dec. 11 in top hats and flashy beards, part of a contest celebrating the town's 100th anniversary.

The object is to get the men looking as much as possible like the people who lived here back in 1883.

Even St. Charles High School is full of facial fuzz, though it's generally forbidden for students at the Roman Catholic school.

"We're not supposed to have beards, but we thought that in the spirit of the centennial it would be nice," says Principal C.J. Tastet. He is growing a beard for the occasion, but his students have been told theirs will have to be shaved off by the time they come back from Christmas vacation.

Many aren't waiting that long. "I just didn't like it," said Kyle Bourgeois. "It kind of itched."

FBI arrests hijacking suspect

MIAMI (AP) — An air pirate who served time in a Cuban prison for a 1972 hijack in which a pilot and mechanic were shot slipped back into the United States a year ago and has been arrested at an Iowa motel, the FBI says.

Joseph Terron Bennett, 35, was expected to appear before U.S. Magistrate Ronald Longstaff in Des Moines, Iowa, today, to face charges, an FBI spokesman said.

Bennett was jailed on $500,000 bond over the weekend, FBI spokesman Chris Mazzella in Miami said.

The suspect served time in Cuban prison for the hijacking, was released, then jailed on unrelated charges and apparently slipped back into the United States last year, Mazzella said.

He was taken into custody Saturday while working at the Marriott Hotel under an assumed name.

James William Brewton, also imprisoned in Cuba for the 1972 hijacking, was killed in Jamaica during an armed robbery in 1975.

As the two men tried to hijack the Chalks International Airlines seaplane from Dodge Island in Miami on March 7, 1972, pilot John M. Cothron was shot in the arm and leg and mechanic Douglas MacKenzie was shot in the chest. Both recovered.

"I'm glad to hear" of the arrest, MacKenzie said Sunday. "Once in a while something good happens." The mechanic was hit after pulling a .25-caliber revolver from his car and trying to shoot out the aircraft's 12-ply tires.

The plane, originally bound for the Bahamas, was flown to Cuba by copilot Bob Wallis. It was the first time Wallis flew the seaplane on his own, officials said.

The aircraft was returned to Miami the next day, and Bennett and Brewton were indicted the following May. But both men have been fugitives ever since, Mazzella said.
