Cotton crop exceeds forecasts

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer
Dire predictions of a drought-withered cotton crop may prove wrong as area agricultural specialists cautiously admit the 1983 winter harvest may be slightly better than expected.
"It's surprising, but the harvest is a little higher than I thought," Howard County agricultural extension service agent Don Richardson said.
Richardson now estimates the county this year will produce between 10,000 and 12,000 bales of cotton. He originally estimated that county farmers would produce no more than 10,000 bales because of the severe drought conditions and the popularity of the Payment in Kind (PIK) program.

Howard County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service official Tim Hall estimates an even higher county total.
"We're about 70 percent harvested, and it's turning out better than we thought," Hall said. Agricultural officials originally predicted between 7,500 to 10,000 bales of cotton would be produced in the county, he said.
"I believe we're going to beat that," he said. "I'd say we'll have about 15,000 bales."
Richardson said the reason for the increase was a late freeze this year.
"We had a late freeze and the cotton was able to mature," he said. "The farmers were able to get almost every boll," he said.
Glasscock County farmers are expected to produce about 30,000 bales for the year, Glasscock County Extension entomologist Warren Multer said.

"It's about what we expected we'd get without any rain," he said. "Maybe a little better."
Most farmers in Glasscock County are getting an average of three-quarters to one bale of cotton per acre, Multer said. Totals in Glasscock County are slightly better than in Howard County because the county is over part of the Ogallala Aquifer and farmers can irrigate their crops, county agent Norman Kohls said.
Farmers in Howard County are averaging about one-quarter bale to an acre, Richardson said.
"Half a bale to an acre is great this year. In real isolated instances, they're doing better," he said, citing a farmer near Knott who is getting two bales per acre.

"But the best thing that happened this year is the price increase," Richardson said. Cotton is selling for around 67 cents a pound, he said, compared to last year when higher-quality cotton was selling for 50 cents a pound.
The higher price this year is caused by a decreased supply because of the PIK program and the drought and other adverse weather conditions, Richardson said.
"The decreased supply was mainly caused by severe weather. If there wasn't a drought, there was a flood somewhere (in cotton-producing areas)," Richardson said.

2 Spanish jetliners collide; 104 killed

PLANE COLLISION — Firemen work on the wreckage of the Iberia 727 which collided earlier today in thick fog at Madrid's Barajas airport against a DC-9 of the Spanish domestic airline Aviaco. 84 people are feared dead in the collision which occurred on the ground.

MADRID (AP) — Two Spanish jetliners collided in heavy fog today as they accelerated to take off from Madrid, touching off a fiery blast and killing all 42 aboard one plane and 62 on the other, Transportation Minister Enrique Baron said.
Airline officials said the accident was similar to the 1977 Canary Islands disaster in which two jumbo jets collided on the ground in heavy fog, killing 582 people. The planes involved today were an Iberian Air Lines Boeing 727, said to be going about 100 mph, and a DC-9 of Aviaco, a domestic airliner hit near the fuel tank, killing all aboard.
First estimates from civil defense officials were that about half of the 93 people aboard the 727 were killed. One of the 727 survivors, Luigi Intaglia, said Iberia pilot Carlos Lopez Barranco, who also survived, told him he saw the DC-9 approaching but it was too late to do anything.
He said Lopez Barranco apparently tried to speed up the takeoff of the 727 to avoid the colli-

Police urging crime watch after Greenbelt burglaries

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer
An outbreak of burglaries has hit the Greenbelt neighborhood of Big Spring, and police officials say they are concerned that city residents are unaware of steps they can take to prevent such break-ins.
Seven burglaries since the latter part of November have netted goods ranging from jewelry to guns to household appliances from houses at the former housing section of Webb Air Base, police say.
Though none of those burglaries have been solved as yet, "We are working on some leads and have recovered a small amount of the property involved," Edwards said. The police lieutenant could give no further information on police investigations in progress.
"Burglaries traditionally increase from about Thanksgiving to the end of the year," Edwards said.

"Thieves know that people will be Christmas shopping and there will be nice gifts around the house. They also know people will be going out of town a lot."
Big Spring residents who leave town for the holidays can request police officers on patrol to keep watch on their houses, Edwards said.
"It only costs their time to pick up the phone and call us," he said.
Edwards also recommended residents call police crime prevention specialist Sgt. Fred Pace for a free inspection of their homes. The inspection will show how residents can help secure their homes against burglary.
"Often it can be as simple as cutting some shubbery," said Edwards.
The sergeant can also conduct another more stringent inspection to help residents get a 5 percent reduction in insurance rates, Pace added.

Pace also emphasized the importance of starting neighborhood watch programs to fight burglaries. The programs include neighborhood meetings to discuss ways to improve security and an agreement among neighbors to watch each other's houses.
The program can include the posting of signs which say, "If I don't call the police, my neighbor will," to warn burglars away from the area, Pace said.
Edwards asks residents not to be reluctant to call the police when they see something or someone suspicious. Burglary is one of the hardest crimes to solve, he said, because "there is often very little evidence to work with and witnesses are few or non-existent."
"We can't do it by ourselves," said Edwards.

Midland crash widow files suit

MIDLAND (AP) — The widow of one of eight people killed in a November airplane crash at Midland Regional Airport claims an airplane charter service and the aircraft's owner, manufacturer and pilot were negligent in her husband's death.
Annette Stephens, widow of Bobby Stephens of Odessa, filed suit Friday against Texas Western Aviation Inc., Midland oilman Richard Gaddy, Beech Aircraft Corp., and the estate of pilot Keith Elkin as defendants.
Stephens, 47, was chief engineer for Odessa's KOSA-TV and one of six station employees killed in the crash. All eight men on the plane, which was chartered from Texas Western Aviation and returning from coverage of high school football games in Fort Worth and Wichita Falls, were killed in the crash Nov. 26.
Although amount of damages sought was not specified in the suit, one of two Odessa attorneys representing Mrs. Stephens said Tuesday that an amount probably will be set later.

"We didn't want to allege an amount at this time because we didn't know what was involved," attorney Ken Griffin said. "We filed the suit so we could get an investigation started."
The suit also was filed on behalf of Julie Stephens, a daughter, and Stephens' surviving heirs.
Gaddy, who owned the twin-engine Beechcraft turboprop, said Tuesday he was unaware the suit had been filed, but added, "I suppose things of that nature are normal in cases like this."
Gaddy said that, "to my knowledge," the plane was properly maintained, and called Elkins a "good, qualified pilot." He also said the FAA has not told him the cause of the crash.
George cCall, an attorney for Texas Western Aviation, declined comment.

PRECIOUS GIFT — The Marcy Angel, played here by Tanya Boucher, ponders gifts left for the Baby Jesus in Marcy Elementary School's production of "The Little Angel." The program was presented three times to Marcy students and PTA members.

Littlest Angel

Marcy performs Christmas classic

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer
"The Littlest Angel" took on a regional twist today at Marcy Elementary School as fourth grade students presented their West Texas version of the classic Christmas story.
The play was presented three times at Marcy, once for parents in the PTA and twice for fellow students. Tanya Boucher and Jay Hildebrand took turns playing the Marcy Angel who goes to Heaven but can't quite fit in there.
The Marcy Angel sings too loud in the Angel choir, plays hopscotch instead of attending to heavenly chores and is afraid to fly.

When approached by older angels and asked why it is so difficult to adapt to Heaven, the Marcy Angel remembers a little shoebox left on earth full of items that he longs for. The Angel of Peace sends a messenger for the box in an effort to help the Marcy Angel adapt to Heaven.
With his shoebox the Marcy Angel begins to fit into heaven.

District Judge Jim Gregg sentenced Rudy Joe Rodriguez, 21, of 203 W. 18th to four years in prison on revocation of probation on a burglary charge. Rodriguez also was sentenced to a concurrent six-year sentence on a separate count of burglary.

● Richard Lee Hinklin, 26, of the I-20 Trailer Park pleaded guilty in Howard County Court to tampering with government documents in a food stamp fraud-related case. County Court Judge Milton Kirby sentenced Hinklin to a $389 fine, $81 court costs, $389 in restitution and one year probation.

● Paul Rivera, a supervisor at Well Tech Inc. in the Industrial Air Park, told Howard County sheriff's deputies that someone, around 10 p.m. Tuesday, broke into the trailer office at Well Tech and stole two 10-key calculators, an AC/DC radio, a black leather case and four sets of keys to a gasoline pump behind the office. Someone also took 36 gallons of gasoline from the pump, sheriff's report said.

According to the report, sheriff's deputies have a suspect in the case, based on information from employees. They also found a waiver type tennis shoe print at the scene of the crime, the report states.

● Wesley Bryon Mullins, 17, of Brownwood Tuesday was transferred to the county jail after being arrested by Department of Public Safety officers on suspicion of failure to maintain financial responsibility and failure to carry a driver's license. Mullins paid fines of $81 for the insurance charge and $21 for the driver's license charge and was released. Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin set the fines.

ATTACK ANNIVERSARY — The Battleship Arizona topples after it was hit during the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japanese in 1941. The two-hour, four-minute bombardment by the 190 Japanese planes cost the lives of 2,113 sailors and Marines and left another 987 wounded.

Minute of silence

Veterans gather on Pearl Harbor anniversary

HONOLULU (AP) — Survivors of the attack on Pearl Harbor gathered for aerial displays, formal presentations and a private sunset service marking the 42nd anniversary today of the bombing that launched the United States into World War II.

A moment of silence was to be observed across the Pearl Harbor Naval Base, to be signalled by a shipyard work whistle at 7:55 a.m., the exact minute the attack began on Dec. 7, 1941.

After that, four F-4C Phantom jets from the Hawaii Air National Guard were to fly over Pearl Harbor in a "missing man" formation, in which one of the flight positions remains vacant.

The attack by 190 Japanese attack planes had been prepared months in advance. The two-hour, four minute bombardment killed 2,113 men, 1,177 of which were aboard the USS Arizona. An additional 987 men were wounded. Eighteen U.S. Navy warships were damaged or sunk.

A plaque was to be unveiled honoring the bravery of the men who were aboard the USS Nevada that day. The Nevada had been moored just behind the Arizona, and was the only battleship to get underway during the attack. Despite several fires, heavy casualties and a 30- by 45-foot hole in her bow from a torpedo hit, the Nevada managed to limp toward the entrance to the harbor in a bid to escape the attack.

Navy brass, fearful the ship might sink in mid-channel and block the harbor, ordered it intentionally beached near Waipio Point, now also known as Nevada Point. Fifty-seven men died aboard the ship.

The memorial marker will list the ship's two Medal of Honor winners, the 13 USS Nevada sailors and Marines who won the Navy cross, and the 57 crewmen killed in action.

Also scheduled was a morning ceremony aboard the Arizona Memorial, including prayers, a wreath presentation, a gun salute and echo taps.

The day's scheduled observances were to close with a sunset Mass at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific and a private service aboard the Arizona by the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association.

Angel

When word comes of the birth of Jesus, Heaven's residents scurry to find appropriate gifts for the infant. But the Marcy Angel has only his box of treasures and fears it is too worn to give as a gift. But he places it with more elaborate gifts, hoping not to offend the Baby Jesus.

It is the Marcy Angel's gift that is the most precious because it is the gift that means the most to the giver. Inside the shoebox are a Marcy T-shirt, a Dallas Cowboys' mug, a Big Spring Steers bumper sticker, and a letter from mother and grandmother.

Other students with speaking roles were Misty Brown, Pam Fenley, Kathy Ogburn, Gary Hildebrand, Karma Morrow, Kody Gaskins, Callie Warren, Joy Jones and Joe Michael Brown.

Also John Bustamante, David

Ward, Leif Nelson, Jeff Moreno, Brian Reagan, Jimmy Voight, Stacey Mauldin, Yelica Fennell, Amber Richardson, Jana Moss, Lance Reeves, Jason Beddow, Randy Murley, Eric Nelson and Heath Hendrickson. All fourth graders were in the Angel choir.

The show was directed by fourth grade teachers Selma Hicks, Carolyn Freeman, Dorothy Yater and Teresa Cauthorn. Joyce Bradley was pianist.

The 727 involved in today's crash was on its way to Rome with 84 passengers and nine crew members aboard. Forty-two of the passengers on the 727 were Japanese on a tour of Europe. The DC-9 carried 37 passengers and five crew and was on its way to Santander in northern Spain.

There was no official word on the cause of the accident, but Iberia and airport sources said the collision occurred as one or both airliners were accelerating in preparation for takeoff. Sources said they believed the Boeing 727 was traveling about 100 mph.

The DC-9 was said to be completely destroyed in the crash and ensuing explosion and its wreckage scattered over more than a mile.

"All we can see is a mass of wreckage, seats and screams coming from all sides," said one radio reporter at the scene.

Dozens of ambulances and fire brigades rushed to the scene. Several hours after the collision hundreds of rescue workers were seen combing through the steaming wreckage, wrapping parts of bodies in grey plaid blankets.

Transport Minister Enrique Baron, who controls commercial aviation in Spain, left a session of the Cabinet and hurried to the airport.

Barajas Airport had been closed to all incoming traffic early today because of the fog. A number of flights were diverted to other Spanish airports, but some outgoing traffic was permitted to take off.

An hour after the 9:45 a.m. (3:45 a.m. EST) collision, visibility at the airport was reportedly less than 130 feet.

"We all heard the explosions, but no one could find the planes," said Antonio Rodrigo, a baggage handler for Iberia who was loading an aircraft at the time of the collision. "We ran out towards the noise. A survivor had to lead us to the wrecks."

Noted Spanish golfer Severiano Ballesteros had been scheduled to take the DC-9 today, but at the last minute changed his mind.

"I was due to board the DC-9 today, but I... returned home one day before because I was exhausted," he told journalists from his home in Pedrena, Santander province.

A Colombian Avianca jetliner crashed outside Madrid on Nov. 27, killing 181 people. The aircraft, on a flight from Paris to Bogota, was making a stopover here.

The worst air disaster in history occurred in Spain at the Tenerife airport in the Canary Islands in March of 1977. A KLM Boeing 747 taking off in fog crashed into a Pan American 747 that was taxiing on the runway, leaving 582 people dead.

Marines get big homecoming

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Some 1,800 Marines who survived the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing in Beirut returned to the United States today to welcoming signs, American flags and thousands of yellow ribbons.

The first ship carrying the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit arrived at the State Ports Authority terminal at 9:40 a.m., said Helen McBride, a terminal employee. The Marines are based at Camp Lejeune, 60 miles east of Morehead City.

"They're docking one now in Berth Nine," Mrs. McBride said. "It's just great," she said, adding that a large crowd was on hand to greet the troops.

After welcoming ceremonies, the Marines were to take buses to Camp Geiger and Camp Lejeune to be reunited with their families.

The troops, serving with a multinational peacekeeping force, were among those attacked in a suicide bombing at the Beirut International Airport. The bombing killed 240 U.S. servicemen.

Chemical plant to be rebuilt

HIGHLANDS (AP) — A chemical plant gutted by a series of explosions and fire that forced about 2,000 nearby residents to leave their homes will be rebuilt, a company spokesman says.

Joe Dollar, a spokesman for Hi-Port Industries Inc., estimated damage to the plant at about $20 million. Dollar said several warehouses and the company's corporate offices were destroyed in the blaze. The firm will begin limited production within 10 days, Dollar said.

Dollar said no herbicides or jet fuel were destroyed and no determination had been made as to what caused the explosions.

The blasts started Monday night and by early Tuesday about 70 percent of the plant had been reduced to charred rubble, Baytown firefighter Gilbert Contreras said.

Electrical power, turned off during the height of the fire, was restored early Tuesday, officials said, and schools opened on schedule.

The inferno burned about seven acres of the 34-acre plant, which manufactures jet fuels, insecticide and anti-freeze, said Harris County Sheriff's Department spokesman Ed Macaluso.

Many residents who left their homes in the community 20 miles east of Houston parked on streets outside the evacuation area and sat on the car hoods, eating and drinking and watching the flames.

Department of Public Safety Sgt. Rick Rose estimated that about 2,000 residents within two miles of the plant left the area because of the threat of toxic fumes being created by the blaze. They were allowed to return to their homes Tuesday, he said.

DPS trooper Jim Garrett said officers did not force residents to evacuate, but said of the inferno, "I don't think I'd have any problems leaving."

High school class celebrates advent of new computers

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Traditional office equipment such as typewriters, calculators and dictaphones sit atop desks in the Vocational Office Education classroom at Big Spring High School. But off to the side of the room are two new computers and a printer, signs of a new era in business.

The equipment was on display Tuesday as students in the VOE program and their teachers, Vonna Swim and Anna Walker, hosted an open house.

The VOE program at BSHS offers students a chance to get some experience in the business world and with the equipment they will use in business, Mrs. Swim said. A common barrier to young workers is the question "Have you had any experience?," she said.

"Through our training, we combine classroom and work experience. This gives students working experience and teaches them to work with other people," Mrs. Swim said.

The VOE program is offered to students age 16 and older. When a student enters his junior year, he may enroll in the VOE lab program. Mrs. Walker, head of the program, said students in the lab program attend school a full day but spend a two-hour block during the day in the lab "concentrating on different office machines such as computers, electronic calculators, 10-key adding machines, the dictaphone and the typewriter."

Students in their senior year may enroll in a half-day program where they attend classes either in the morning or afternoon and maintain a job off campus. Mrs. Swim oversees this program. Students are expected to work 15 to 25 hours a week and are paid for their work.

The program has been in Big Spring since 1965 when Doris Huibregtse, now an instructor at Howard College, initiated it. Mrs. Swim has been with the program more than 15 years and Mrs. Walker joined in 1978.

Computers were added to the program a year ago because "we felt it was necessary to prepare the students for the business world" in which computers are becoming a mainstay, Mrs. Walker said.

The computers are used primarily to teach word processing. The teachers are planning to expand to accounting and filing on the computers.

Students "really enjoy it. I wish we had more computers," Mrs. Swim said.

Students rotate on the equipment in the lab because "there are not that many machines." Working on them, though, is something most students seem to enjoy.

The program "is training students to earn a living in a working world. The skills they learn here can put them through college," Mrs. Walker said. Other students choose to go directly into the business world with their VOE backgrounds.

Student Lisa Maynard was on hand at the reception Tuesday and said she has found the VOE program offers "good office training. Next year, they will help me find a job in office work." She said she is eyeing a career as a secretary or receptionist and is depending upon what she learns in VOE to help her maintain a job.

Robyn Sanders, another VOE lab student, says "I wanted to get into business and I want to learn typing and computer skills so I can work in a big business. VOE will train me in that direction."

Special art show scheduled

A special preview showing of the Folger's Ranch Gallery Christmas Show will be held from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday at the Heritage Museum.

Jane Russell lands TV role

LOS ANGELES — Actress Jane Russell, who caused a stir with her plunging necklines in the 1943 movie, "The Outlaw," is making her television debut on NBC's "The Yellow Rose" series — but says she won't be trying to be sexy.

JANE RUSSELL

"The Outlaw" was censored for six years because of its revealing photograph of Miss Russell's cleavage, but Miss Russell, 62, told reporters Tuesday that what was considered "daring" in those days would hardly be noticed today.

As for displays of sex, Miss Russell feels there are "a lot of young girls around to do it now," said a publicist for the show. Miss Russell, whose 23 films include "Paleface," "Double Dynamite," "The French Line" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," hasn't appeared in a movie since "The Fuzzy Pink Nightgown" in 1957, although her famous bustline has been in evidence in recent years in Playtex brassiere commercials.

In the series, starring Sam Elliott, David Soul and Cybill Shepherd, Miss Russell will play the sister of Jeb Hollister (Chuck Connors).

Walters interviews cash

NEW YORK — Country music singer Johnny Cash says that at one time he took as many as 100 barbiturates and amphetamines a day because he "wanted to be John Doe for a little while."

"A man who is strong emotionally and physically, a lot is expected of him. And I felt at times there was too much expected of me. I guess I wanted a security blanket. I wanted to hide from that," the singer said Tuesday in an interview with ABC newswoman Barbara Walters.

Cash credited his second wife, singer June Carter Cash, with helping him kick the habit about 20 years ago.

"She fought me tooth and nail. She would find my medication and would take it and flush it," he said. "I would get raging mad at her ... She'd pack but before she'd leave I'd say, 'Don't go. You did the right thing. You saved my life.'"

The author of the hit song "A Boy Named Sue" said he took 100 pills a day — "50 to get me up and keep me up and when I got ready to crash, at least 50 to bring me down."

He said it was "a miracle — a gift of God" that he is alive today.

Miss Walters also interviewed talk show host Johnny Carson and "CBS Evening News" anchorman Walter Cronkite, who said he's considered a second career in politics, though "I'd hate to run for ... office."

Asked whether he would accept a cabinet post, Cronkite, 67, replied: "I might now, at this stage. I think I'm far enough from the daily news to possibly do that ..."

Reporter leans on fairness

PITTSBURGH — As "CBS Morning News" co-anchor Diane Sawyer describes it, she faces a lie detector test every day.

The television camera is a "lie detector," says the 37-year-old Ms. Sawyer, and the public is "going to know whether you know what you're talking about."

"The camera reads what you know over the long run," Ms. Sawyer told about 400 representatives of the news media at the Pittsburgh Press club Tuesday.

Concerning objectivity as a newsperson, Ms. Sawyer admitted "You do find yourself in tough situations."

"But in the end," she added, "you have to fall back on your own sense of fairness."

Reagan salutes Doolittle

WASHINGTON — A question President Reagan asked World War II flying hero Jimmy Doolittle touched off a round of laughter in the National Air and Space Museum.

Reagan used a salute to the 88-year-old Doolittle to jokingly respond Tuesday to criticism about banning reporters from covering the American invasion of Grenada.

"General, if you'll forgive me, I do have a question I've been wanting to ask you for the last several weeks," Reagan told Doolittle, who won the Medal of Honor for leading the first American air raid on Tokyo in 1942. "How did you get away with not taking any newsmen along?"

The audience at the black-tie dinner in the museum roared with laughter.

Reagan and his wife Nancy were named Jimmy Doolittle Fellows by the Aerospace Education Foundation.

Israeli leaders vow revenge

BEIRUT — Israel vowed to avenge the PLO bombing that killed four people aboard a crowded Jerusalem bus, and government leaders in Italy and Britain met today to reconsider their role in the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

LT. MARK LANGE

In Syria, the state radio said the body of the American pilot killed when his plane was shot down during air raids on Syrian positions in Lebanon was turned over today by the Syrian army to the Lebanese army.

John Stewart, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Beirut, said he expected the body of Lt. Mark A. Lange to be given to U.S. Marines for its eventual return to the United States. Lange, 27, of Fraser, Mich., was killed Sunday after his A-6 Intruder was downed during a bombing raid by 28 American planes.

His navigator-bombardier, Lt. Robert O. Goodman, 26, of Virginia Beach, Va., was captured by the Syrians, and Syrian Defense Minister Mustafa Tlass said he would not be released until Americans troops leave Lebanon.

The attack on Syrian anti-aircraft batteries in Lebanon was in retaliation for the firing on U.S. reconnaissance flights.

Police in Jerusalem said today that two girls aged 12 and 14 and an elderly man were among the four victims of the bomb that blew apart a bus Tuesday. Forty-six people were injured in the worst terrorist incident in the city in five years.

A spokesman said police were holding five people for questioning.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir pledged an all-out effort to find those who planted the bomb and said "they shall not go unpunished." His statement raised the possibility that Israel, following its customary policy, might send aircraft on reprisal raids against Palestinian bases in Lebanon.

The Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility for the bombing in a statement released by the PLO news agency Wafa. It claimed the target was a military vehicle.

Education forum draws 2,300

INDIANAPOLIS — Strategies for boosting pay and performance of the nation's teachers topped the agenda today for 2,300 educators, politicians and parents who jammed the Reagan administration's National Forum on Excellence in Education.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham, who pushed a tax hike through his legislature last summer to pay for a master teacher plan, an extended high school day and other reforms, was the leadoff speaker for the summit's second day.

The assembly was to break into 15 workshops for panels and discussions on state and local efforts to alter teacher compensation, change certification laws and other initiatives.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell, in the opening address Tuesday night at the Indiana Convention Center, appealed to state lawmakers and school board leaders to press for master teacher plans.

He also urged teachers and their unions to accept the concept of providing higher pay for outstanding performance, saying, "If you can't buy that, please come up with some other workable plan because the single salary schedule simply isn't sufficient."

President Reagan will journey here Thursday to speak at the final session of the forum, which Bell said is intended to give "the decision-makers of American education" a chance to exchange ideas as they head ined by government witnesses.

Each of the remaining charges carry possible prison sentences of five years and fines ranging from $2,000 to $10,000.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys finished their questioning Tuesday afternoon and were expected to begin final arguments today.

Steven Crawford, 20, of Center, who ran the farm, and Randall Waggoner, 22, of Nacogdoches, were indicted by a federal grand jury in June on 24 counts of transporting illegal aliens and keeping them in involuntary servitude.

Three of the smuggling charges and two of the slavery counts were dismissed on a defense motion Tuesday, because the Mexicans named in the charges were not mention-to a period of "massive reforms" next year in most states.

He urged every parent with school-age children to make them study at home an hour a day, and he exhorted state lawmakers "to reward excellence and discourage mediocrity on the part of students, teachers, administrators, governing boards and institutions at all levels."

The conference drew eight governors, 10 members of Congress, 30 chief state school superintendents, more than 150 state legislators, 395 school board members, 60 college presidents and 395 teachers, principals and other school personnel, according to Gary L. Jones, the undersecretary of Bell's department.

Klansman goes to trial

MOBILE, Ala. — For $1 and the "color of his skin," two Ku Klux Klansmen stuffed the beaten body of a black youth into a car trunk and later hanged it in a tree, a prosecutor says.

Chief District Attorney Tom Harrison made the statement in opening remarks Tuesday in the capital murder trial of Henry Francis Hays, 29, one of two men charged in the 1981 death of 19-year-old Michael Donald.

The beating death came in retaliation for the mistrial of a black man charged in an unrelated case with killing a white policeman, the FBI said.

The key state witness is Hays' accused accomplice, fellow Klansman James Llewellyn "Tiger" Knowles, 20, who was expected to testify today. Knowles, 20, has pleaded guilty to a federal charge of violating the victim's civil rights.

"Knowles will testify that he along with the defendant ... set out to find a black to hang," said Harrison. "They searched the side streets for a black, an isolated person. They found Michael Donald."

Donald was forced into a car at gunpoint by the two men and killed "simply because of the color of his skin," the prosecutor said.

Defense lawyer M.A. Marsal told the jury that Knowles is "the biggest liar that ever came down the track." He said Knowles' testimony "reeks with the worst corruption that's ever been brought to a jury in this county."

A jury of 12 whites and two blacks, including two alternate jurors, was being sequestered.

If convicted, Hays could be sentenced to death in Alabama's electric chair.

Knowles, awaiting sentencing on the federal charge, could receive a life term.

Donald was found hanging in the tree on a residential Mobile street on March 21, 1981.

Alzheimer's link discovered

SAN FRANCISCO — Clusters of the smallest known infectious agent may be linked to Alzheimer's disease, a common cause of senility, a researcher said today — suggesting the link could help in finding drugs to treat the brain-destroying illness.

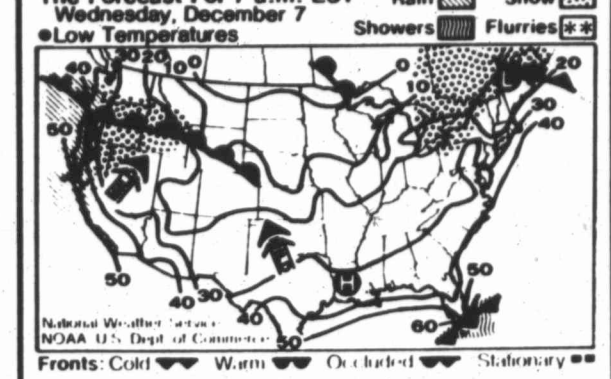

The agent, called a prion, forms rods resembling amyloid plaques, which are found in the brains of Alzheimer's victims and until now were thought to be a "garbage" byproduct of the disease, said Dr. Stanley Prusiner, a neurologist at the University of California at San Francisco.

Prusiner and his colleagues, writing in today's issue of Cell magazine, emphasized that Alzheimer's disease cannot be transmitted from one person to another, but that it may be possible for an infectious agent to cause a non-contagious disease.

Alzheimer's disease is a degenerative, irreversible brain disorder that afflicts more than 2 million Americans. It primarily affects people older than 60, but can strike people as young as 20, doctors say. It is believed responsible for 120,000 deaths a year.

By the Associated Press
West Texas — Mostly fair and warmer through Thursday. Highs mostly in the 60s, except 75 Big Bend valleys. Lows 28 north to 40 south. Highs Thursday 65 north to 75 south and around 80 Big Bend valleys.

Warming trend forecasted

Another cold morning chilled Texas today, but forecasters held out the hope of slightly warmer temperatures over the next two days.

Skies were clear over most of the state before dawn. Some scattered clouds were noted over the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Pre-dawn temperatures dipped into the 30s over most of Texas. Some readings in the 20s were noted over West Texas and across the Panhandle. The mercury hovered in the 40s in some sections of South Texas, while temperatures around the 50-degree mark were reported along the far southern tip.

A trough of low pressure was building over eastern New Mexico and West Texas, prompting southwesterly winds of 10 to 15 mph over the Panhandle, the South Plains and western sections of North Texas. Winds were light and variable over the rest of the state, influenced by a high-pressure ridge still entrenched along the coast.

The forecast called for mostly clear skies and warmer daytime temperatures through Thursday. Another chilly night, with temperatures dipping into the 30s and 40s over wide sections of the state, was on tap tonight.

Auto makers lose battle of air bags

Mass production of air bags to protect motorists could bring the price down to $200 a vehicle or less and eventually mean about $200 a year savings in auto insurance.

The air bags would pay for themselves and more. Air bags could save as many as 12,000 lives a year. This would make it possible for insurance firms to lower premium rates. Both Allstate, the nation's largest insurance firm, and USAA Insurance, the seventh largest, recently announced that the air bag could have a marked effect on insurance payments.

The firms ran statistics from five Los Angeles areas through computers and the results were yearly savings of from $114 to $191. They said, however, that it could take up to 10 years for the reduced rates to become effective, depending on how fast air bags are adopted.

Air bags are contained in the steering wheels and under the dashboards of vehicles. When there is a head-on or front-angular crash, the bags will inflate in a split second, cushioning the occupants and preventing serious injury or death.

Air bags or other automatic restraints were made mandatory for 1983- and 1984-model cars by Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams in 1977, while President Carter was in office. Later, after President Reagan took office, the ruling was rescinded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration because of pressure from the auto industry.

Last June, the U.S. Supreme Court found that the NHTSA rescission was arbitrary and capricious. The high court ordered the Transportation Department to reinstate the mandatory automatic restraint rule or find better reasons to rescind it.

The court said the automotive industry's resistance to air-bag protection is a "regulatory equivalent of war" — and a war the auto industry has lost.

At the present, the Department of Transportation is holding public hearings on a new automatic restraint rule. Representatives of insurance firms and safety organizations are appearing at these meetings to explain once again the advantages of air bags.

Traffic deaths and maimings are a national health problem. They claim more lives than heart disease. Auto crashes are the leading cause of death for Americans under the age of 34. Many young people become human vegetables. The economic loss to the nation is estimated at $57 billion a year. Air bags are a must. The sooner they are ordered to be installed, the better.

The modern American beauty pageant is one of the last great refuges for platitudes and clichés, not to mention insincerity.

Beauty pageants are designed for one thing: to find the American female who most resembles a "living" doll — Barbie doll, that is. The more made-up and the more plastic, the better. She walks, she talks, but does she think? No, Ken does that for her when he's not drooling.

The contestants spend multitudes of dollars to parade across a stage in high heels and swimsuits — an impractical combination, when you remember the last you tried to do the back stroke in spike heels.

Yes, a swimsuit competition takes pose and prepares you for a "real-life situation" — walking into a singles bar and pretending you're not another piece of meat parading past buyers.

Beauty pageants are an exercise in self-vanity. And, in the words of the one of the directors of the Miss Texas Pageant, if you aren't naturally endowed with good looks, see your plastic surgeon and buy some soon.

The talent competition may be the only saving portion of any beauty contest, but the name tells you whether beauty or talent is more important. If the contestants had real talent and a desire to appear on Broadway, why aren't they auditioning for plays, bands, symphonies and repertory troupes?

And then there are the baton twirlers. That prepares you for a career ... making $25 a week as a Dallas Cowboys cheerleader while waiting to get a bit part on the Love Boat or Fantasy Island.

If any contestant displays the glimmerings of a personality, they are weeded out in advance of the finals. Judging by the finalists in the Miss Lubbock Pageant Saturday, their typical goal in life is winning the Miss Lubbock Pageant, or on a more grandiose scale, the Miss America Pageant.

Then there's the contestant who wants to go to Broadway and become "an integral part of the theater world." Integral must have been the word of the week in Time or Newsweek — at least five contestants out of 11 used it in their two-minute speech about themselves.

One contestant said she wanted "to devote my life to the world's greatest resource, children." I'm assuming she wanted to be a teacher, not a surrogate mother, but she never said.

Don't forget the woman who wanted to go to graduate school, not for what she might learn or contribute to knowledge, but so that people could address her as "Doctor." And the woman who wanted the really tough, juicy stories as a television broadcaster — covering beauty pageants.

What appalls me is that women like these are presented as role models to the rest of society. To judge by the standards of this pageant, we don't want mature, functioning, thinking women in our society; we want mannequins with the right designer's clothes and the right haircut. We want people who are simply more interested in appearances than in anything outside themselves.

Only one person had anything original to say, a 6'3" imposing and very regal woman, who wanted to succeed in her career and her life so that she could stand as tall before God as she stood in that room.

She could sing a song so that it sent chills up and down your spine, she could design a dress fit for a New York fashion model, but she was black and seemed intelligent, and so unfit to place in a competition held in West Texas and judged by officials from East Texas.

The problem with pageants is that they are symptomatic of our society. And so one of the most famous scholarship pageants in the United States awards an academic scholarship on the basis of mediocrity in knowledge. A past contestant in the Miss Lubbock contest who worked as a reporter was told to stop reading AP, UPI and The New York Times for information. If it wasn't in Time, she was told, it wouldn't be asked in a current events quiz in the pageant.

A beauty pageant that names as a finalist anyone who not only thinks, but says, the world's problems can be solved by everyone smiling, has never seen true hunger, has never seen disease and filth in urban ghettos, has no conception of war, of racial and sexual discrimination, of true ignorance.

Awarding such ignorance leads to the perpetuation of the myth that women are unable to contribute anything useful to society. The women who participate in them certainly seem fit for nothing else.

Nixon struck Oilgate with foreign policy

WASHINGTON — In an earlier column, I blamed Richard Nixon for the oil price explosion — a catastrophe that has brought economic devastation to the West, a scandal that far surpasses Watergate in infamy. I call it Oilgate.

The dimensions of this scandal are truly staggering. The hyperinflation in oil prices drained hundreds of billions of dollars out of the western economy. The human damage can be measured in millions of jobs lost, thousands of businesses ruined, less money for most people to spend.

High oil costs have also brought on the looming crises of international debt default and Third World disintegration. Much of our current hardship and future financial danger, in other words, is traceable to the oil calamity.

Yet there was no respectable reason for oil prices to skyrocket, no pattern of necessity at all. Nixon simply wanted to avoid confrontations by giving in to political pressures and postponing the inconvenient consequences to the next president's term.

At home, Nixon wiped out or undermined all the scheduled programs for increased energy production that had been developed to keep America self-sufficient. He stopped offshore oil development — where 43 percent of U.S. oil was estimated to be. He botched the Trans-Alaska Pipeline, and prevented Alaskan oil from flowing.

Nixon prematurely banned domestic coal for power production, which caused a massive shift to foreign oil. He sabotaged the efforts to change the oil tax loopholes into real production incentives, instead of handouts for doing nothing. He rejected various plans for stockpiling oil for emergencies. His price controls on oil slowed down production and boosted consumption just when the reverse was needed.

Nixon also failed to halt the disastrous decline in natural gas reserves, caused by the disincentives and delays of bureaucratic regulations. The decline caused another massive switch to oil. And he abandoned the legal restrictions against oil imports, which had been designed to prevent dependence on Arab oil.

On the foreign front, Nixon made one decision after another that destroyed American dominance of the world oil system. This was a sophisticated system that had operated for decades under the control of the great multinational oil companies. Most of them — Exxon, Gulf, Mobil, SoCal and Texaco — were rooted in America.

They had a legitimate title to the oil, which they owned under long-term contracts. After all, they had discovered the oil, drilled for it, developed it, refined it, distributed it and marketed it. They had also taken all the risks.

The OPEC governments, which had played no productive role whatever, were collecting three-fourths of the profits — hardly the exploitation that Arab militants liked to fulminate about.

Meanwhile, the whole world benefitted from the system, which provided all the oil the world needed at a price of around $1.20 for a 42-gallon barrel of crude. The greatest beneficiary was the Third World, which was using cheap oil to rise out of destitution.

As the protector of the Western family of industrial nations since World War II, the United States had always interceded if any government laid hands on the oil companies or unilaterally tore up agreements upon which the West depended for oil.

Washington was fully justified in using every lawful means to see that those agreements were kept and to block any coalition that tried to contrive fake shortages to drive up prices. I am not talking here about the use of military force — only the use of those economic, commercial and diplomatic sanctions that are traditionally used against those who violate their commercial agreements.

Nixon should have used the foreign policy tools available to him to maintain oil stability and protect oil security. Instead he used his foreign policy tools against stability. He reversed the oil policies of his predecessors in the White House without bothering to study why the existing oil order was essential to the welfare of the Western world.

Footnote: This scandal of the decade cannot adequately be reported in a few columns. There simply is not enough space here to document these serious charges. But I assure you the documentation is given, chapter and verse, in a book the New York Times book division asked me to write: Fiasco.

American dream Coahoma nightmare

To the Editor:

The American Dream of government for the people, by the people, seems to be approaching a nightmare in the city of Coahoma. For example, there are serious discrepancies between the city's financial report and the auditor's financial report: differences of $53,000 in wages, $50,000 in water sales, and $35,000 in disbursements, to name a few. When asked to explain these differences, council members replied "I don't know". The city has several notes at the Coahoma State Bank. Councilmen "did not know" the total due to the bank, nor did they know the amount of the monthly payments.

The increased tax rate will generate approximately $72,000 in operating funds for the 1984 fiscal year, beginning April, 1984, ending March, 1985. General fund and police department salaries will amount to approximately $72,000, annual note payments add up to $36,000, last year's total disbursements, excluding salaries, were $135,000. According to the 1984 budget announced by the Council, this year's disbursements will increase 10 percent, changing this figure to $148,500. The obvious question is how will the city operate? Councilmen have admitted already spending the funds collected for this upcoming year. Would they answer "I don't know" again?

The unorthodox imposition of a garbage collection fee opened the door to question the management of the city of Coahoma. With the record already showing a deficit, we hire someone to haul garbage at an annual salary of about $30,000. There are no minutes nor is there a valid contract to substantiate this salary. Every residence is charged a $7 monthly fee, however exceptions have been made to reduce some billings to $3.50 per month and some people don't pay the $7 fee at all. Did the city reduce the salary to the garbage collector to coincide with these reductions? According to the city's monthly salary figures — no. It is probable that the garbage collection is an added expense to the city rather than a profitable or break-even asset. And there is still no City Ordinance providing for garbage collection or the collection of the $7 fee.

Equipment purchases show poor judgment. The city purchased a computer for $6,200, but the program, or software, for our needs is not available. So the computer sits in a corner of City Hall collecting dust, while the records and billings are still handwritten. The city had to borrow money to purchase this computer, consequently we're out the expense of the machine plus the interest payable to the bank.

These facts and figures are not made up. They are available to the public in the council minutes, monthly financial reports and the annual audit. The stigma "bankruptcy" is fast becoming an acceptable way of modern living. And we citizens of this nation sit back, preaching our fireproof politics, solving everyone's problems — if only "they" would listen. But these financial dilemmas are someone else's problems, never ours.

These councilmen committed themselves to serve the residents of Coahoma, working in the best interest of the community. When they reply "I don't know", they betray this commitment.

Coahoma's problems are crucial. The business management of the city indicates a bleak future. Do we sit back and accept this because it's really not our problem? Do I care? Yes. Do you care?

Belief in God best fitness plan

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I just can't seem to get any self discipline in my life. I smoke too much and eat too much, and every so often I decide to conquer them but after a week or so I fail and just get depressed about ever doing anything about these habits. I know they are harming me but it seems hopeless. — Mrs. V.J.

DEAR MRS. V.J.: Yes, you are right that these things are harming you and you need to do something about them — not just because you would be a better person but because God wants you to get rid of habits that harm your body.

You need God's help to develop the discipline you need; you have already discovered that you don't have strength by yourself to combat these habits. But the issue is much deeper than just the habits that you want to get rid of in your life. Your basic need is to yield your whole life to Jesus Christ and begin to build your life on his foundation. God loves you, and he wants to come into your life and give you the strength that you need. He also wants to give you real joy and peace in your heart. There is no greater joy than knowing you are a child of God, and you can know that by putting your faith and trust in Jesus Christ.

Then ask God to help you develop the self discipline you need. How will he do that? First of all, he will give you a new motive for living as you should. When you know Christ, you have a new desire to honor God and serve him out of the knowledge that your body is God's and should be treated with respect. "Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your body" (1 Corinthians 6:19-20).

God also will help you in practical ways. For example, other Christians can help you and encourage you as you have fellowship with them. You may be surprised to find many of profit from their experience. Put Christ first in your life, and these things that are harmful to you will begin to fall away.

Magazine features city

The front cover of "Contact," Southwestern Bell Telephone's regional employee magazine, pictures Big Spring City Manager Don Davis and Maxey Brashears, a Bell employee. Inside the magazine is an article about the cooperation and communication between Bell and the city in efforts to improve telephone service in Big Spring.

The Bell Community Relations team, headed by Darlene Gifford, began 1983 by identifying several areas to concentrate on improving service. The 17-member team spent 75 percent of its time improving service problems and 25 percent in community involvement. One small, but highly visible way that Bell employees became involved was to place "We Believe in Big Spring" bumper stickers on all company vehicles and personal automobiles. They also passed out these bumper stickers at company locations and on house calls as a means of spreading the word that Southwestern Bell believes in its renewed commitment to Big Spring.

Buford Durst, Bell Customer Services Supervisor, was recently notified that the Big Spring Community Relations team won three sectional company awards for work in 1983: service on facilities, first place individual and second place overall team; March of Dimes Community Project, first place. Durst said Big Spring is the first town to win more than one award.

A good story on entrepreneurship is unfolding in downtown Big Spring involving former city employee Janie Mendez. Janie has for many years wanted to open her own Mexican food restaurant specializing in authentic homestyle Mexican food. This entrepreneur bought a rather run-down building in the 100 block of Main Street between Thomas Office Supply and Big Spring Hardware.

Janie, who had a long tenure at Berkley Homes as a carpenter, began renovating the building herself, building partitions and counters, installing booths, working on the heating, plumbing, and flooring. Upon finishing the kitchen and first big room, she opened quietly for business while continuing to work after hours on the second dining room and office area.

Janie has had a steady stream of customers at the La Frontera, open every day but Monday for breakfast, lunch and dinner.

This is her first business. She has five employees and has already expanded her operation to include a catering service and selling flour tortillas.

Another example of America's free-enterprise opportunities.

Max Vigil from the ACTION office in Austin visited the Retired Senior Volunteer Program. While here he met with city staff who sponsor the RSVP Program. Vigil also met with the RSVP advisory council to discuss the need for another project vehicle to replace the 1975 model station wagon. Because there are no federal or state funds available for the replacement of a project vehicle, the Advisory Committee will have to rely on donations for the project. Estimated cost of a medium size sedan is $8,000 to $10,000.

This vehicle is needed to transport senior citizens to their volunteer work stations. Clubs and organizations who have a special interest in senior citizen projects should consider this as a worthy possibility. Contact Joy Decker, RSVP coordinator, 267-2589, if more information is needed.

Lee George of George Construction Co. has recently moved his company to new facilities at 1400 West 4th. The large attractive building houses the office, cabinet shop and storage. Landscaping and paving around the building is not yet complete.

The newly formed Sacred Music Forum of Big Spring will perform a free Christmas concert Dec. 9 at 7 p.m. at the Big Spring Mall.

The Sacred Music Forum is made up of music directors of local churches with the purpose to foster and perpetuate unity and support to the various music ministries.

This group hopes the Christmas concert, featuring the church choirs, is the first of many interdenominational cooperative efforts.

Participants of the Sacred Music Forum include: First Presbyterian, Keith Ross; First Methodist, John Wilson; Hillcrest Baptist, Randy Anderson; St. Paul Lutheran, Suzanne Haney; St. Mary's Episcopal, Mary Skalicky; Immaculate Heart of Mary, Mary Lou Johnson; First Christian "Disciples" Church, Sharon Andrews.

Veteran fights to end town's cemetery discrimination

KAUFMAN, Texas (AP) — An infantryman's statue stands proudly above a neatly trimmed hedge, honoring Confederate soldiers. A few blocks away, the grave of a soldier killed in Korea is hidden in a tangle of four-foot weeds.

He was black. But cemetery trustees finally have heeded the protests of a white U.S. Army veteran and agreed to end segregation in the local cemetery.

"There's no question there was discrimination, and there was segregation, and that's against federal law," said George Cerney, a conciliator for the U.S. Justice Department's Office of Community Relations.

"Blacks now will be able to buy a lot anywhere in the cemetery," he said.

The changes at the Kaufman Cemetery are the result of complaints first raised this fall by Alvin Potak, a state highway department employee who grew up in the town about 40 miles southeast of Dallas.

"I'm a veteran," said Potak, 41. "In this black cemetery, I see veterans from World War I, World War II and Vietnam. And I see that they can go to World War II or Korea or Vietnam, but they come back and have to be buried in a black cemetery.

"That's wrong," said Potak, who is white. "As an American, I've got to do something."

Representatives of the city's white and black communities sat down last week with federal mediators and negotiated an agreement to remove fences isolating graves of blacks, providing the same maintenance care for the black and white portions and adding two black trustees to the cemetery association's board.

Potak told the Dallas Times Herald he discovered one area of the cemetery that had not been cared for in years.

"I only live about a half a block from there, and when the weather's nice I take walks. I saw some of the gravestones back in there and found out that it used to be the black cemetery. I don't think 90 percent of the people in Kaufman knew it was back there," he said.

Potak took his complaints to the cemetery board, which refused to clear the brush and remove the fences that separated black from white. He pressed the matter by circulating a petition and sending letters in late September to state and federal officials.

The FBI investigated and found "some credence" to charges of discrimination, federal prosecutors said. But court action was delayed to allow mediation efforts, which last week resulted in the voluntary decision to remove the fences.

"Over the years, the fence is the only thing that's been maintained there," said Von Carl Thomas, who runs the funeral home his mother started 50 years ago to serve the black community.

"The fence disturbed all of us, but it was the sort of thing you just got used to," Thomas said.

"We're not trying to turn this into a big race war," he said. "There are simple things that for humane reasons need to be done."

But, Thomas said, the fences were more than a symbol of segregation. They also restricted black graves to an area that had become overcrowded.

"A lot of the graves over there aren't marked, and on most services today they start digging the grave and find somebody else already there," he said.

Police stripped of search

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Because police strip-searched a woman who was taken into custody for not having a dog license, Long Beach is modifying its policy so only pat-down searches are required for minor infractions.

Police Chief Charles B. Ussery said Monday the new policy also will require those arrested for lesser misdemeanors such as warrant arrests and minor traffic violations to be segregated from those arrested on criminal charges.

The policy came under review after Cheryl Plunkett, 35, was taken into custody Sept. 13 on a 2-year-old citation for an unlicensed dog. After Ms. Plunkett was arrested, police found an outstanding warrant for a 4-year-old speeding ticket. Ms. Plunkett was booked, strip-searched and put in a cell with what she said was 15 to 20 prostitutes and drug users.

Ms. Plunkett has since filed a $500,000 damage claim against the city of Long Beach.

Stress test

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband's doctor has suggested he have an exercise stress test for his heart. Could you please explain what this test shows? My husband smokes and is a little overweight. Is that why he needs this test? Also, his father has had a heart attack. — J.L.

Some medical tests are like those you get for your automobile. Having your brakes tested might not help how they behave, but it is best to know when you're living dangerously, with brakes about ready to go out on you. It's the same with the stress test your husband's doctor wants. It's going to tell him how much he can strain his heart without courting an accident — a heart attack.

Specifically, the exercise stress test will tell if the heart is getting enough blood. A heart attack occurs when heart arteries become clogged, blocking blood supply.

It's the same ECG test and done with the same basic equipment as when the patient is lying down. But many times a person can have significant artery blockage and come up with passing ECG grades. That means only that the heart is getting sufficient blood to serve its purposes while resting. When you add a bit of exercise to the formula, the test results become really meaningful. Now you know how your heart is going to react when the blood supply deficiency has its real effect, when its demands exceed immediate supply. The test approximates situations your heart faces in the real world of normal daily activity.

Your husband should have the test for a couple of good reasons — three, in fact. One is that he is a smoker; two that he is overweight, and three that he has heredity as a possible negative factor — his own father's heart attack. His heart is like the car that's been driven many years under stressful conditions. Best to have the brakes looked at.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Niece fears her uncle

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl with a problem I can't talk to anybody about. I have an uncle who everybody thinks is the greatest. He's 39 and married.

Lately he has been pulling me on his lap, feeling me, and trying to give me grown-up kisses on the mouth. He used to be my favorite uncle, but now I feel funny when he gets near me.

I can't prove that he has done anything wrong because he really hasn't, but I think he would if he got the chance.

If I told my mother she probably wouldn't believe me. I don't have a father, so I can't tell him. My uncle comes over a lot and wants to teach me how to drive. I'd like to learn, but I really am afraid to get into his car and go for a ride because of this funny feeling that comes over me when he touches me. I don't think it's just my imagination.

What should I do? ASHAMED AND AFRAID DEAR ABBY: It is not your imagination. That "funny feeling" you get is a warning signal.

The next time you see your uncle, tell him that you do not want to sit on his lap, that you do not want him to put his hands on you and that you do not want any "grown-up" kisses. Tell him that if he tries to do any of these things, you will tell your mother. And if she doesn't believe you, tell another adult — a relative, a teacher or your minister.

Don't be afraid, honey. And don't be ashamed. You have done nothing wrong. Just make sure your uncle knows that you aren't to be touched! Please, write again soon and let me know how you are. I care.

 DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what my correct name is presently, based on the following facts: (1) I was born Janet Sue Flanagan (2) I married John Donlevy and became Janet Flanagan Donlevy. (3) John died and I recently married George Williams.

Am I now Janet Donlevy Williams, Janet Flanagan Williams or Janet Sue Williams? JANET

DEAR JANET: When a widow remarries, she has the option of using her first husband's name as a middle name or of dropping his name and using her maiden name. If she was married for a long time and has children, she will undoubtedly prefer to keep the name of the man with whom she spent many years and which identifies her with her children.

So, take your choice: Janet Donlevy Williams or Janet Flanagan Williams.

 DEAR ABBY: Your recent column in which you quoted the late, beloved Sam Levenson, contained an error.

Traditional green money may be getting the blues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Picture, if you will, George Washington winking as you move a dollar bill from side to side.

A blue dollar bill, that is. Woven with metal threads carrying information in secret code.

Our currency for the 1990s? The mental picture goes well beyond what the government is willing to say about plans to change America's folding money in the next few years. And it's probably wilder than what will actually happen.

But changes are indeed coming for familiar old U.S. currency — the first substantial changes in more than half a century. And the possibilities apparently do include colors, coded threads and "optical variables" that change shape when viewed from different angles.

Though officials are secretive about proposed alterations, they are open about the cause: A fear that sophisticated new photocopying machines could soon make counterfeiting much easier than it has been.

Need groceries on the way home from work? Before leaving, just run off some cash on the office copier. Federal officials, studying the problem for several years, don't think that's far-fetched in light of expected technological advances in copiers.

And former U.S. Treasurer Angela Buchanan, whose signature still appears on new currency, real or counterfeit, said in an interview before she left Washington earlier this year, "When you bring counterfeiters into the office-boy level, you really have problems."

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker, who is responsible for guarding the credibility of the U.S. monetary system, said recently the threat seemed to be genuine and "the desire to keep ahead of that technology may point to some technical devices" in American currency.

NEW MONEY — First substantial changes in more than half a century are coming for the U.S. currency. Officials fear that sophisticated machinery could make counterfeiting much easier than it has been.

Treasurer spokesmen say no decisions have been made on how to change paper money. And they play down the possibility of drastic changes, noting that the government wouldn't want to do anything to lower the respect U.S. currency commands.

However, a decision is close enough that officials felt the need to show a few congressmen prototype bills in a secret meeting last month. Rep. Ron Paul, a Texas

Republican, reacted to the secrecy by calling a news conference.

Paul, a critic of even the current U.S. monetary system, said Treasury wouldn't let him keep any of the mock-ups. So he showed the press some artists' renderings of pink and blue bills.

Government officials said that was preposterous. At most, there would be a few "tinted" threads woven into the bills' backgrounds — detectable only at close range by holding the bills up at an angle.

Paul's aides disputed that reaction, saying the colors were much more noticeable. The general public isn't getting a look now, so the proof will have to be in the eventual printing.

Other changes being considered, according to sources in the government and out:

—Holograms, which produce three-dimensional pictures, or plastic strips that would show different images when viewed from different directions. A winking George Washington would never be seriously considered, but one possibility is changeable wording on the Federal Reserve seal on the left front of bills.

—The tinted backgrounds, though Treasury spokesman Robert Levine says the idea of brighter colors was discarded after being "kicked around."

—Coded, metallic threads that special machines could read, thus detecting counterfeits. However, that wouldn't be much help to people who casually pay out and accept cash every day.

Paul also objected to the idea of such threads or metallic strips on privacy grounds, implying that the government might use it to monitor cash being taken out of the country.

"Americans must have the freedom to travel out of the United States without any restrictions," he said.

Loan officer shot by customer

FORT WORTH (AP) — A loan office was in critical but stable condition Tuesday after a 60-year-old man, apparently disgruntled because he was turned down for a loan, entered a mortgage company office and shot him in the face, police said.

Witnesses told police Kurt Krueger, 23, was shot Monday after he and the bank customer had argued over a loan.

Krueger was taken to Harris Hospital, where he was listed in critical, but stable condition, according to a hospital spokesman.

Santa warms up to Christmas favorites

The charm of cookies as a Christmas tradition goes back many centuries. Pagans in northern Europe probably started it by imprinting small pieces of dough with animal shapes. Not only are cookies delicious at Christmas time, but so are cakes and pies. Recipes for Christmas treats are given below.

DIABETIC PECAN PIE
LURLENE GREGG
3 eggs
3/4 cup Carob syrup
1/4 cup melted butter
1 tsp. vanilla
1/4 tsp. salt
1 1/4 cup nuts
Beat eggs slightly. Add syrup, butter, vanilla and salt. Mix well. Add pecans and put in uncooked pie crust.
Bake in preheated oven 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. The pie is better, when eaten the day it is cooked.

TWO-WAY SCANDINAVIAN WALNUT COOKIES
1 1/2 cups (3 sticks) butter
3/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tsp. vanilla extract
3/4 cups all-purpose flour
3/2 cup finely chopped walnuts
3/4 tsp. ground cardamom
1/2 cup apricot preserves
1/4 cup chopped walnuts
Decorator's icing
Cookie decorations
Cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Stir in vanilla. Gradually blend in flour, nuts and cardamom. Divide dough into three equal parts. Makes 7 dozen cookies.

WALNUT BALLS: Shape dough (1/2 portion) into 1-inch balls. Place on un-buttered cookie sheets. Refrigerate on cookie sheets about 1 hour so that cookies will hold their shape. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake 20 to 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheets and cool completely on wire racks. Frost with Confectioners Sugar Glaze. Makes 4 dozen.

JAM SLICES: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Divide dough (1/2 portion) into 3 equal parts. Roll each on a lightly floured surface to form a 12 by 2-inch rectangle. Dough should be approximately 1/4 to 3/8-inch thick. Transfer strips to un-buttered cookie sheets.
Using finger, make a depression about 3/4-inch wide down center of each strip. Fill with apricot preserves, using about 2 tablespoons for each. Sprinkle each with 1 tablespoon chopped walnuts. Bake 18 to 20 minutes, or until golden.
Cool completely on cookie sheets on wire racks. Cut each strip diagonally into 8 pieces. These cookies soften on standing; they are best

HOLIDAY EGGNOG PIES
2 (9-inch) Buttery Almond crumb crusts
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1 1/2 cups water
4 eggs, separated
1 (14 ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
1/2 cup rum
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/4 tsp. cream of tartar
1 cup (1/2 pint) whipping cream, whipped
Additional whipped cream and ground nutmeg, optional
In medium saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over water; let stand one minute. Over low heat, cook and stir until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, in small bowl, beat egg yolks; stir in sweetened condensed milk. Pour into gelatine mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes. Stir in rum and nutmeg, mix well.

Pour into a large bowl; chill, stirring occasionally, 45 minutes or until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. In large mixer bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Fold egg whites, then whipped cream into gelatine mixture. Pour into prepared crusts. Chill 3 hours or until set. Garnish with additional whipped cream and nutmeg if desired. Refrigerate leftovers. Makes two 9-inch pies.
Pies may be frozen for future use. Tightly wrap with aluminum foil and freeze. Before serving, unwrap and thaw in refrigerator about 4 hours.

BUTTERY ALMOND CRUMB CRUSTS: In medium saucepan, melt 3/4 cup margarine or butter; stir in two cups vanilla wafer crumbs and 1 cup finely ground almonds. Press into bottoms and up sides of two 9-inch pie plates. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. Cool.

MACADAMIA FRUITCAKE
1/2 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ground allspice
1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/2 cup butter, cut up or at room temperature
3 Tbsps. firmly packed light brown sugar
3 Tbsps. honey
2 large eggs
2 Tbsps. orange juice
1 cup (7 ounces) candied cherries
1 cup (7 ounces) candied

pineapple chunks
1/2 cup (6 ounces) candied orange peel, finely cut
1/2 cup (6 ounces) candied lemon peel, finely cut
3 1/2 cups (16 ounces) salted macadamia nuts
Grease a round layer cake pan (8 by 1 1/2 inches). Line bottom with wax paper and grease paper. On another sheet of wax paper or in a small bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt, allspice and nutmeg. In a large bowl cream the butter and brown sugar. Beat in the honey until blended. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, until blended each time. Stir in one-third of the flour mixture and then 1 tablespoon of the orange juice; repeat, ending with the flour. Spread 1/2 of the batter over the bottom of the prepared pan. Reserve some cherries for a garnish. Into the batter in the bowl, stir in remaining cherries, pineapple, orange peel, lemon peel and macadamias. Spoon over batter already in the pan. With a small spatula level the top. Decorate with the reserved cherries, pressing down firmly. Cover with greased foil. Place in a larger baking pan containing 1/2-inch hot water. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven for 1 hour. Remove from water bath. Continue baking until cake is firm — about 1 hour longer. Place on a wire rack for 10 minutes. With a small metal spatula loosen edge; turn out on rack; with another rack turn right side up. Cool completely. Store in a tightly covered container. If desired, brush with a glaze before serving. Makes one 2 1/2-pound cake.

PUMPKIN SPICE BUNDT CAKE
3 1/2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 teaspoons baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
4 large eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup safflower oil
1-pound can solid-pack pumpkin
2-3rds cup water
Grease a 12-cup bundt pan.
On a sheet of wax paper or in a medium bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, allspice, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves.
In a large bowl beat the eggs until foamy; add the sugar, oil and pumpkin; beat until blended. Add the flour mixture 1/2 at a time, alternately with the water, beating after each addition until smooth.
Turn into the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 1 hour. Place pan on a wire rack to cool for 10 minutes; with a small metal or plastic spatula loosen edges. Turn out onto the rack to cool completely.
Store, tightly wrapped, in the refrigerator. Serve at room temperature. If you like, sprinkle cake with confectioners' sugar.

Diabetic study misinterpreted

COLLEGE STATION — A recent research study is being mis-interpreted to mean that diabetics no longer have to worry about their sugar intake, says Dr. Alice Hunt, a foods and nutrition specialist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

But according to Hunt, the limitations of the study have not been thoroughly discussed in reports of the results.

For example, the study used only 10-12 insulin-requiring diabetics, an equal number of adult-onset diabetics and a control group. This is a small number from which to generalize to the more than four to five million American diabetics.

Most important, says Hunt, is the fact that diabetics in the study consumed their sugar with a meal containing protein. This served to slow down the digestive processes, which helps diabetics metabolize both simple carbohydrates like sugar, and complex carbohydrates like starch.

The results of the study indicated that diabetics did not differ from non-diabetics in their blood sugar levels after consuming meals which included sugar.

"That doesn't mean diabetics should start consuming sugar at will, however," states Hunt.

"It's still important to divide both complex and simple carbohydrates into at least three meals a day to be consumed with other foods," warns the specialist.

Simple carbohydrates such as soda or candy consumed by themselves as a snack, will dangerously increase the diabetic's blood sugar level, she adds.

Insulin-requiring diabetics should consult with their physicians before making changes in their diets, and all other diabetics should be wary of any radical changes, cautions Hunt.

CBS film is credible, significant television

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the season to believe in Santa Claus, Cabbage Patch Dolls and the first humanoid, the star of tonight's CBS film, "Prototype."

This scientific invention has the interior of a clock, the brain of a computer and the heart of a Hallmark Card. As played with sensitivity and innocence by David Morse of "St. Elsewhere," Michael is one beautiful human being.

No Frankenstein monster or Saturday morning cartoon hero, this science-fiction personality is so believably human that viewers might want to adopt him.

That's because writers-producers Richard Link and William Levinson, two of the most acclaimed creators in TV, have constructed a credible and significant contemporary story, which offers moving drama while raising questions about the responsibility of science in the area of manufactured life.

Christopher Plummer is Carl Forrester, a Nobel-winning scientist who, along with a team of physicists, engineers, biochemists and computer programmers, creates Michael, only to realize that his pure research achievement might be used by the military, which sponsored the project, for malevolent ends.

While fearing that Michael might become the ultimate political assassin, Carl begins viewing him as the devoted son he never had. "I don't want anyone using you for the wrong message," Carl says.

At first, Carl sees Michael merely in scientific terms. As an experiment, he brings him home to meet his wife, Dorothy (Frances Sternhagen), for a human inspection. Dorothy, who's in the dark about the top-secret project, finds Michael agreeable, if slightly eccentric, but no more than the lab's other mad scientists.

Michael has passed the test, even hiding the food he can't eat to extricate himself from a tight spot at dinner. "Do you think it was a mistake building me so I can't simulate eating?" he asks Carl privately. "It might be a problem with social interaction."

This is the first time viewers learn how different Michael actually is. Until then, he just seemed a bit odd, with pallid features and an almost frozen gaze.

Subtlety is a lost art in TV, but Levinson and Link have found it.

Michael, his consciousness raised, wants to rap about his venture into the outside world, but Carl treats him like machinery: "Shut yourself down. Resume functioning in the morning," which is the equivalent brush-off to "kids should be seen and not heard."

But, how are you going to keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Paree?

Michael yearns for being more than the office guinea pig. He wants relationships and wishes he could read books in the "linear way." He finished "War and Peace" in less than a second. He liked it.

Carl's field trip home with Michael was not authorized by lab administrator Arthur Jarrett (Stephen Elliott), who criticizes the scientist's independence. On the other hand, Carl doesn't respect bureaucratic meddling.

Another meaningful conflict is between Carl and the military, which conducts its own testing on Michael, including teaching him to fire a gun.

This enrages Carl, who questions the military's motivations for funding Michael. Gen. Hawkins, played with a calculating undercurrent by Arthur Hill, denies evil intentions but says it's none of science's business, anyway. The rights rest solely with the purchaser.

To which the idealistic Carl asks whether J. Robert Oppenheimer, father of the atomic bomb, should have had any say on his creation. For Michael, whose humanity has grown beyond the in-putted computer software, the issue is whether he has the dignity to control his own destiny.

With their own production company, Link and Levinson now can better protect their own destinies. "Bill and I have the good fortune to see our scripts filmed as written," said Levinson when the pair recently was honored by an exhibit at the Museum of Broadcasting.

Add "Prototype" to their long list of superb TV credits, which includes the movies "That Certain Summer," "My Sweet Charlie," "The Execution of Private Slovik," "Crisis at Central High" and "Rehearsal for Murder" and the series "Columbo," "McCloud" and "Ellery Queen."

BUT LOOK WHO'S THERE, MOM — Four-year-old Matt Stephens of San Angelo shows his parents who he wants to see next during "Christmas at Old Fort Concho" recently. The annual celebration, based on pioneer traditions, is held in a 1880s frontier fort near the city.

Chicken flu drives egg prices upward

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans were told Tuesday they are paying at least three cents a dozen more for eggs because of a deadly poultry virus in the Northeast, but were assured the epidemic has not spread to Texas.

"There is no evidence whatever of this disease anywhere in Texas," Bill Powers, executive director of the Texas Poultry Federation, told a Capitol news conference.

In Pennsylvania, authorities said the fatal strain of avian influenza has spread from chickens to turkeys and has infected 103 flocks containing about 5.5 million birds.

Powers said the federal government has spent about $8 million fighting the disease and, to keep it from spreading to other states, has destroyed about 2 million hens and 1½ million broilers in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"There have been no new cases found the last 10 days and since the incubation period is thought to be 11 days, it appears the outbreak has been stopped," he said.

Appearing with Powers were Dr. John Holcombe of the Texas Animal Health Commission and Bill Brownlee of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Railroad forgets road to station

SICAMOUS, British Columbia (AP) — Officials at Canadian Pacific Rail forgot something for their spanking-new passenger depot: a road leading to it.

It seems that when the facility was built, no one bothered to get a right-of-way agreement through neighboring property.

When the problem was discovered, the landowner, who lives in Oregon, denied permission to cross her property and threatened to bring trespassing charges if anyone tried.

The case is now before the courts, small consolation for people who want to travel between Sicamous and Vancouver, about 250 miles to the west, or Calgary, Alberta.

They now board and leave the train on the Trans-Canada Highway, where the tracks cross the road. The crossing has neither a restroom nor a telephone.

The area's representative in Canada's House of Commons, Nelson Riis, compared the case to building a stadium without putting in seats. He noted that the dormant depot also lacks a parking lot.

"To call it a station or passenger depot is to use the term very loosely," he said.

At last Brown's 22 points guides Steers to first hoop victory

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Call it the basketball version of the Oilers-Buccaneers game but a victory is a victory to Big Spring High coach Mike Randle.

Randle's Steers entered the game 0-6 and faced 0-4 San Angelo Lake View. One of the two teams had to get in the win column and thanks to Jimmy Brown's 22 points, Randle's crew gave their coach his first varsity victory with a 54-52 win over the Chiefs.

"We did it sloppily but we did it," Randle sighed. "I told them we had to win this one...we had to start somewhere."

The Steers started to win with Brown, the 6-1 senior guard who suddenly took command of his team's offensive attack. Brown hit 10 of 17 jumpshots and picked up several key fourth quarter rebounds to give his team the leadership it has been searching for in the past six games.

"It feels good," Brown smiled in the locker-room. "We did the things coach told us to do." Part of that was getting the ball to Brown. "I felt hot. We had a new offense and coach said most of the time I'd be open. If I was, shoot it. Tonight I was hot."

Although the game wasn't a blow-out, Big Spring was in command from the first quarter. Two free throws by Billy Cole late in the game gave BSHS a 54-48 lead that withstood a jump shot by Thomas Campbell and Robert Franco's undisputed lay-in at the buzzer.

Big Spring roared off to an 18-10 first quarter lead as John Howie hit four baskets. Brown's lay-up to start the second quarter propelled BSHS into a 10-point lead but Lake View responded with six straight points.

The Steers then went on a 8-2 spree and Eric Sherman's jumper gave Big Spring its biggest lead of the night at 28-16 with 4:40 left in the half. The Steers were up by nine, 34-25, at intermission.

For the first 16 minutes, Big Spring hit 14 of 28 shots for 50 per cent, easily the team's most productive field goal effort of the season. Brown had 13 points at the half.

The second half was a matter of the Steers holding on. "We didn't know what to do with a lead," Randle shrugged. "We got out in front and just tried to hang on."

Led by Campbell's aggressive play up and down the court, the Chiefs closed to within 34-33 as he converted a three-point play with 5:38 to go.

Howie fouled out moments later but Fred Cole came off the bench to hit a pair of baskets from offensive rebounds to help put Big Spring in front 44-37 after three quarters.

Brown's jumper and following steal and lay-up gave BSHS a 48-41 lead midway through the fourth quarter and the Steers were headed to their first win.

"If it wasn't for Fred getting on the boards..." Randle began.

"I was scared a little," Brown said of the Chief's constant pressure. Will more wins follow? "I hope so. We just have to work hard."

No other Steers was in double figures. Campbell finished with 16 while Franco and Scott Frazier had 10 each for Lake View.

Big Spring plays next in the Canyon Reef Tournament in Snyder, taking on the winners of the Snyder-Wichita Falls Rider game at 10 a.m. Friday.

The Big Spring junior varsity snapped a three-game losing streak with a 62-57 win over Lake View. Bernard Williams scored a game-high 26 points while Mike Howie hit 13 and Mark Sanders 11 for the Steers, now 3-3. Brian McCall had 19 and Joe Garza 15 for the Chiefs.

Class A playoff here Friday

The Class A state semifinal football game between Knox City and Wink is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday in Big Spring's Memorial Stadium.

Runnels splits with Andrews

The Runnels A team swamped Andrews 54-10 in a junior high basketball game Monday night. Runnels rolled off to a 14-0 first quarter lead and finished the game with an 18-0 final period. Michael Rubio had 19 and Brian Mayfield 15 points and 10 rebounds for the winners. Runnels hit 25 of 52 shots for 48 per cent.

"We did pretty good for just our second game of the year," coach David Drake said.

Andrews won the B team game 31-23. Charles White had 12 points to lead Runnels which shot just 23 per cent.

Both teams play again Thursday against Monahans, the B team game set for 5:30 p.m. and A game at 7 p.m.

Snyder sweeps past Goliad

SNYDER — Snyder swept Goliad in a junior high basketball doubleheader here Monday night. Snyder downed the Goliad A team 28-10 while the B team lost 26-10. Coach Kim Watson cited the defense of Melissa Martinez and Sharon Chatman for the A team, now 1-3. Both squads are in action again Thursday.

Redskins' thievery concerns Landry

DALLAS (AP) — The Washington Redskins' ball-stealing talents have Dallas Coach Tom Landry worried.

The thieving Redskins have a National Football League high of a plus 40 in turnovers.

Landry called the Washington surplus of recovered fumbles and interceptions "incredible."

Dallas is second with a plus 16 turnovers or takeaways.

The National Football League history books don't list records for plus turnovers but the current edition of the Redskins would qualify as one of the best ever.

Ironically, the only two games Washington has lost this season were ones in which they didn't have plus turnovers.

Dallas beat Washington 31-30 in a season opener and the Redskins were a minus one in takeaways.

In a 48-47 loss to Green Bay, Washington was even in turnovers that night.

"Washington is on a roll and that roll basically is turnovers," Landry said. "It's incredible that the team is a plus 40 or almost three a game. That's an extra thirty yards or so each game."

Special Assistant Neill Armstrong said "I don't know any team that's ever had 40 plus turnovers at this time of the year. Normally, 15 to 16 for this part of the season is excellent."

Both teams are 12-2 and have clinched wild card spots going into Texas Stadium Sunday for their 3 p.m. National Conference Eastern Division showdown.

Dallas, which beat Washington 31-30 in the season opener, can win the title with a victory because of a big edge in tie-breaking procedures.

The Redskins would have to beat the Cowboys and the New York Giants the next week to win the championship.

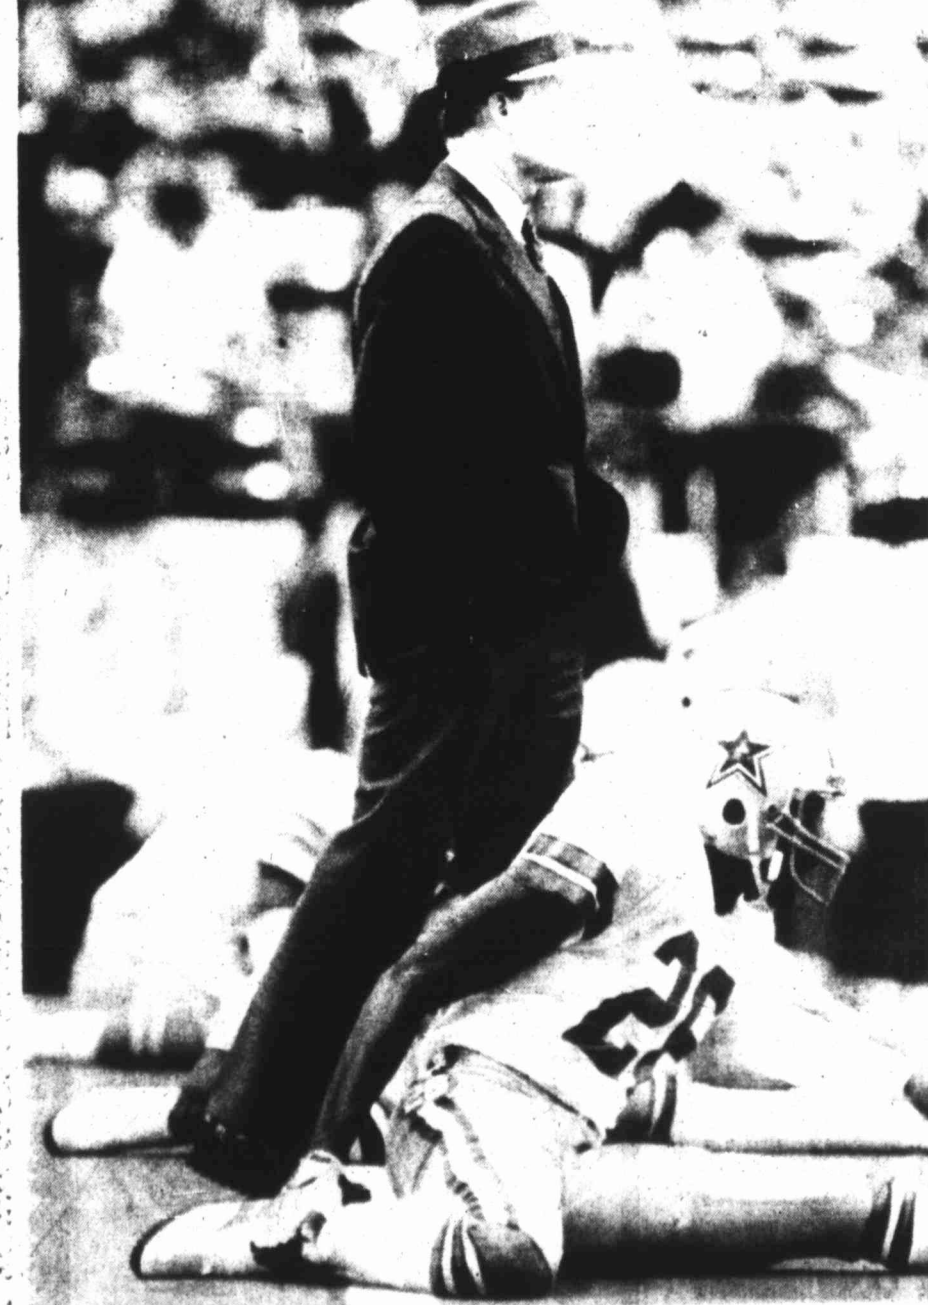

Landry said a third Dallas-Washington confrontation in the playoffs would "have to be expected if things go normal."

The conference winner gets the homefield advantage throughout the playoffs and doesn't have to play until either Dec. 31 or Jan. 1.

Dallas has lost three consecutive seasons in the NFC title game on the road.

The runnerup in the NFC East will host a first round wild card game Dec. 26, but will have to play on the road the rest of the playoffs.

The Cowboys were rated a field goal favorite and Landry said "They (the oddsmakers) must be giving us credit for playing at home."

WALKING THROUGH WARMUPS — Dallas Cowboys head coach Tom Landry surveys Tuesday workouts in Texas Stadium. The 12-2 Cowboys host the 12-2 Washington Redskins Sunday in a battle for the NFC East title and home field advantage in the league playoffs. Michael Downs stretches in foreground.

Cowboys' sale progressing towards finding right owner

DALLAS (AP) — Club President Tex Schramm said on Tuesday the sale of the Dallas Cowboys is "progressing" but still hasn't centered on a specific new owner.

Schramm said if he found the proper prospect he "would not prolong it (the sale) if it's the right person and the right combination." He said it was possible the club could be sold while the team was still in the National Football league playoffs.

"Timing is no distraction to the players as long as the new man brought the same organization they are accustomed to under (majority owner) Clint (Murchison)," Schramm said.

"I know I'm not likely to find another Murchison but we're looking for the next best thing," Schramm added.

He said he discovered one thing while screening prospects: "There are a number of very successful people out there that few people know exist."

Schramm said he isn't looking for someone who wants in the business to make big money or who would sell the team in five years or so.

No. 6 Coogs edge

No. 9 LSU, 100-91

By The Associated Press

Akeem Olajuwon could still intimidate ninth-ranked Louisiana State, despite picking up his fourth foul early in the second half.

Olajuwon fouled out with 6:31 left in the game, but the damage had been done, and the sixth-ranked Cougars whipped LSU 100-91 Tuesday night.

In other games Monday night involving Southwest Conference teams, Texas held off Biscayne 51-50, Southern Methodist routed Pennsylvania 96-66 and North Texas State nipped Texas Christian 66-65.

Houston opened a 9-point margin in the final 6:17 of the first half with Olajuwon scoring five of his team's points in a 12-5 surge. LSU pulled to within two points seven minutes into the second half, 50-52, but Young got 13 of his game-high total of 25 after that.

Gettys finished with 14 points for Houston, now 5-1, and Alvin Franklin had 21.

SWC roundup

Jon Koncak scored 14 points and blocked four shots as SMU clobbered the visiting Quakers. SMU hit 64 percent of its shots from the field and out-rebounded Penn 43-25 to raise the Mustang's season record to 4-1. The loss dropped Penn to 1-2 for the year.

Kevin Lewis scored 14 points for the Mustangs and Butch more scored 13 and had six assists.

In Denton, North Texas's Andre Boutte hit two free throws with seven seconds left in the game to give the Eagles their win over the Horned Frogs. TCU's Tracy Mitchell had a chance to win the game, but his shot at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

Senior center John Horrocks led North Texas, 3-3, with 16 points and 10 rebounds. TCU, 3-2, was led by freshman Carven Holcombe, who poured in a game-high 23 points.

At Austin, Longhorn freshman Dennis Perryman hit a layup and a free throw in the final minute to secure the win for Texas, now 2-2.

Texas, playing without last year's leading scorer, Bill Wendlandt, who quit the team Monday, led by 10 points, 45-35, with less than four minutes to play. But the Longhorns hit just four of 10 free throws in the last 3:24.

Kings halt Mavericks

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City's Mark scored a season-high 26 points, as the Kings snapped the Mavericks' eight-game winning streak with a 112-103 victory over the National Basketball Association Midwest Division leaders.

18 for the Rockets.

Blaizers 130, Spurs 118

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland Trail Blazer Mychal Thompson said his team defeated the San Antonio Spurs here Tuesday night largely because foul trouble prevented the opposition's star center from playing to his full potential.

"The whole key to that game was getting Artis (Gilmore) into foul trouble early," Thompson said.

"Anytime you play San Antonio, you try to keep Artis out of the game as much as you can because he is such a force on the court."

The bruising 7-foot-2 San Antonio center played 29 minutes after getting into foul trouble early and drawing his fifth foul with 3:46 to play in the third quarter.

The Rockets, who fell to 7-12, entered the final period deadlocked 85-85. But the Bulls, 8-11, hit 14 of 16 foul shots in the last quarter to capture the victory.

Jeff Ruland had 22 points and 13 rebounds for the Bulls. Sampson had 19 and Caldwell Jones added

NBA roundup

Small forward Eddie Johnson finished with 25 points as the Kings snapped a two-game losing streak and upped their record to 9-10.

NCAA reports Dupree can't play until 1985

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — The NCAA reportedly has informed University of Southern Mississippi officials that former Oklahoma football star Marcus Dupree will be unable to play for the Golden Eagles until the 1985 season.

"I thought there was a question he might be (eligible) or we wouldn't have asked for a ruling. I don't know the rule," Dale said. "I don't think there was ever any case of there being a clearcut advantage one way or the other."

The newspaper USA Today reported in today's editions that an NCAA official had sent a letter to Southern Mississippi, where Dupree is now enrolled, informing school officials that the athlete would not be eligible to play in 1984.

Southern Mississippi officials had requested an interpretation of the one-year residence requirement for transfer students as it applied to Dupree, who will be a junior in eligibility in 1985.

Dupree could not be reached for comment. Athletic director Roland Dale said he had not received the letter but that any ruling would be accepted without further appeal.

Thoreau's night

A NIGHT IN JAIL — Cast members of "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail" smile as they go through a scene from the production, slated Dec. 8, 9 and 10 in the Big Spring High School Auditorium. Pictured above are Robert Hughes and Matt Warren, with several other cast members seated on the set behind them.

Local citizens asked to donate items

Toys, games and children's clothing are being collected for Christmas distribution to needy Big Spring families served by the Northside Community Center.

"Help make this a Merry Christmas for many children," says Polly Mays, spokeswoman for the Republican Women's Club and the Permian Basin Medical Society Auxiliary which are spearheading the holiday drive.

Drop boxes for donations are located at K-Mart, the Medicine Shoppe and several local hospitals. Donated items will be picked up and delivered to the Northside Community Center by the two clubs through Dec. 22.

Couple plans to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Glenn, 707 Highland Dr., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Dr. Gayle Glenn, to Dr. Jerry L. Foxx of Dallas. Foxx is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred F. Foxx of San Antonio.

The couple will wed Jan. 28, 1984 at the Baylor Hospital Memorial Chapel in Dallas with the hospital chaplain officiating.

Historical Commission selling books

For Christmas gift giving, the Howard County Historical Commission has copies of the book "Howard County 1882-1982" for sale at the Heritage Museum and Howard County Library.

'Thoreau' set to spend night in Big Spring

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

In an attempt to show Henry David Thoreau "marched to the beat of a different drummer," Big Spring High School and Howard College students will put their theatrical talents together in "The Night Thoreau Spent In Jail."

The performances will be at Big Spring High School Dec. 8-10 at 8 p.m.

Instructors Tim Haynes of Howard College and Jimmy Smith of Big Spring High School are coordinating the production. Haynes is director and Smith is technical director.

Smith said "this is the first joint venture between the two theater departments. This summer I went to meet Tim. He told me what productions he had planned and we both had shows planned at the same time." The two agreed to combine efforts for a December production.

"This show is without a doubt the best show that's been on this stage in many years," Smith said. "I like it, and the kids are eating it up. This is the most exciting thing to happen in Big Spring in December besides Christmas."

Haynes said he enjoys the rapport between Howard College and Big Spring High School students. "We have a wonderful working relationship," he said.

Differences in the actors' ages, which range from 14 to the early 20s, has posed no problem.

"We were skeptical at first," Smith said. "Now, everyone is working together. It's nice to see young actors playing off older actors. The (high school) freshmen are acting as mature as the 20-year-olds in college."

The production, set in the 1800s, outlines the life of transcendentalist Thoreau as a young man. He was jailed during wartime because he refused to pay taxes.

Smith said "Thoreau didn't believe it was morally right to be in the war, so he said he wasn't going to pay taxes to support it."

Thoreau "was an oddball in his time," Smith said. "Today we take his philosophies in stride."

Haynes said "I've always admired the work of Thoreau as an educational tool." The play triggers questions and makes one start thinking, Haynes said.

The full-length production "is not a typical theatrical experience," Smith said. During the pre-show which begins at 7:30 p.m., "The set assembles in front of the audience and the actors warm up." This enables "the audience to feel like a part of the show," Smith said.

The multi-level set "is very stylistic," Smith said. "It was designed by a student, James Puentes. Lighting design was by another student, Shot Smith."

Every corner of the set is built in right angles and "doesn't exactly fit together, but every platform stands together. Tim has used every piece of this stage effectively," Smith said.

Walker benefit raises $730

A car show held this weekend to benefit the Bruce Walker medical fund raised $730, Howard Walker, Bruce's father, said.

The benefit was the second held since the younger Walker was shot and severely injured Oct. 1. Bruce has been in intensive care at Lubbock General Hospital and area residents have planned several events to help with rising medical bills.

A benefit held two weeks ago at the Highland Shopping Center raised "between $3,800 and $4,000," Walker said. Walker said that coordinators from the benefit told him that money from the benefit was still coming in and that almost $4,600 had been raised. However, organizers must pay several bills from expenses triggered by the event.

Step-families strengthen during holidays

Holidays can provide extra stress for a step-family in the process of developing its own identity as a family unit, says a Texas A & M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

Before the holidays, parents should decide where and how children will spend their time, without placing them in the middle of disagreements among ex-spouses, parents and step-parents. Parents also may have to remind relatives that children and step-children should be included equally in receiving gifts from relatives and in extended family celebrations, ceremonies, pictures or other activities.

The step-family can also take time for hobbies, a sport or other activities they enjoy doing together.

Proper care can expand car's life

Americans often give up their automobiles after only 60,000 or 70,000 miles. That's low mileage to auto expert Ross Olney, who says a car properly maintained and driven with care can be made to last 120,000 miles and more.

Olney, who has written over 50 books on car repair, shares his tips for extending the life of a car.

Olney recommends changing the engine oil and oil filter frequently. Some owners of high mileage cars do this as often as every 2000 miles, using premium oil for long engine and valve life. A chassis lubrication with every oil change will substantially extend the life of ball joints, springs, linkages and other critical parts, he adds.

Engine coolant, transmission fluid, power-steering-oil, battery water and brake fluid levels should be checked regularly — usually when filling-up with gasoline at the service station. Most of these checks can be done by a service station attendant.

Olney's maintenance program also includes replacement of fan belts if they're frayed, worn or cracked; changing the air filter according to the owner's manual schedule; draining and flushing the cooling system yearly; and regular tune-ups.

Besides maintenance and repairs, the other key to extending a car's life is to develop good driving habits. Olney says it's not necessary to warm up modern engines. Instead, start the car, give it a few seconds to be sure all the fluids are circulating, then drive away slowly and carefully. Never race a cold engine. Also, it's best when having difficulty starting a car not to grind the starter more than 10 seconds, and to allow a few seconds between 10-second bursts.

To help forestall the cost of a brake system overhaul, don't ride the brake pedal, he writes. Avoid hard stops by anticipating a stop well in advance. And when stopping, brake, release, then brake again gently to minimize heat in the brake system.

Olney also advises care when using the clutch in a manual transmission. Don't ride the clutch pedal when the car is moving, and also shift into neutral when stopped for more than a few seconds.

Shop, Wrap and Mail at Rainbarrel General Store

So you think Christmas is hectic — all that shopping, wrapping and mailing? Well, here's good news from Rainbarrel General Store: you can fill your gift list and have all your purchases gift-wrapped there. Plus they'll wrap for mailing, according to postal services standards, and even mail your gifts for you at the Rainbarrel Postal Substation. All in one easy stop.

And for even greater customer convenience, Rainbarrel will be open until 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday from now until Christmas. Here are just a few gift ideas from the endless variety at Rainbarrel General Store in College Park.

Golden Gate RV Center Expands Sales, Service

Golden Gate RV Service Center can offer complete RV sales and service in its new 7,500 sq. ft. building. The Center, along with Golden Gate Siding Company and Golden Gate Storm Window, Glass & Mirror Company, is located 8 miles east of Big Spring on I-20.

There's a fabulous collection of gourmet chocolates, by the bulk or packaged. Candies with such names as fudge love, grand marnier, coconut hay stacks, white chocolate, almond bark — many handmade, hand-dipped. See the Christmas candies, red and green gum drops, sour balls, mints and more. Rainbarrel has festive bags and boxes that will make even the smallest candy gift something special.

The RV Service Center handles a complete line of new vehicles, and has parts and accessories in stock. They offer a complete service department — everything from welding to engine overhaul.

Nostalgia buffs will love the authentic reproductions of enamel antique advertising signs for Crackerjack, Purity Beer, Gold Dust Twins Soap, and many more, most priced under $20.

Golden Gate Siding offers 8 different colors in USS all-steel siding for residential or commercial use. There's a lifetime guarantee against fading, rust and peeling; and a 50-year guarantee against hail.

Give a pound of stationery, mixed or matched from a kaleidoscope of colors, for $4.50. Or a lucite clipboard that's round or octagonal (instead of the ubiquitous rectangle) with refillable notepad to match, for $12.95.

Golden Gate makes custom storm doors and windows, and will install them or deliver to customers who wish to install their own.

There's also a line of men's gifts inspired by antique Jack Daniels advertising — shot glasses, chest of poker chips and tin boxes. And men's jewelry boxes of hand-polished wood topped with a real horseshoe for $19.95 or an operating slot machine for his bar for $50.00.

Golden Gate gives free estimates and will work within customers' budget perimeters. Most installations require no money down. No job is too large or too small.

One of the most unique gifts is a back massager of exotic wood in animal shapes — moose, rabbit, pig, whale — that doubles as an art object when not in use.

Golden Gate is a Christian company, locally owned and operated by Mike and Carol Arnett.

For the office party, choose from hundreds of coffee mugs — or a humorous "Garfield" cat trophy or night light.
