By tonight, look for lows in the low teens, clear skies and winds northerly, 10 to 20 miles per hour. Thursday should see temperatures in the upper 20s and easterly winds at 5 to 10 miles per hour.

Brite: Free heat

DESHLER, Neb. (AP) — The gift was just like last year's and the one the year before that, yet it wasn't the proverbial Christmas tie.

Instead, townspeople got December electric bills marked "paid," without sending in a penny.

The present of a month's free electricity for 450 customers will cost about $26,000, said City Clerk Roland Koerwitz.

"We have been able to nearly offset the cost of the electric bill through the lease to Nebraska Public Power of our engines in the power plant to produce stand-by power," Koerwitz said.

The deficit was made up from interest on surplus utility funds invested in interest-bearing certificates of deposit, he said.

However, the three-year holiday power giveaway could be coming to an end. The city ended with an operating loss the past year, and now it's planning to boost electric rates by 6 percent in January.

Arctic air, snow return to city

City help on tap for water woes

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

City repair crews are scrambling to restrain a rash of over 40 breaks in city water mains which has left many Big Spring residents without water for almost a week.

Record low temperatures last weekend burst the pipes, sending cascades of water down city streets.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said Tuesday relief is not yet in sight for repair crews which have been on the job all through the holidays.

"As we thaw out, we will have the same problems as we did when we froze," Decell said.

Decell had no estimate on how many residents were living without water service because of the breaks.

Lilia Hinojos of W. Third and Hillcrest, a resident of Big Spring for more than 20 years, said her family has been without water since two days before Christmas.

"We've always left the water running in the past when it was so cold and we had no problems. This is the first time our water pipes have frozen up," Miss Hinojos said.

She said her father has been put-

From staff and wire reports
A steady snowfall began in Big Spring before noon as another arctic front plunged into the state this morning, spreading snow from the Panhandle as far south as the Permian Basin.

Travelers' advisories were posted in the area as precipitation iced over several thoroughfares.

Big Spring saw a high temperature of 63 degrees Tuesday in a brief break from record cold temperatures which have plagued Texas for almost two weeks. However, by nightfall, temperatures fell to a low of 21 degrees and are not forecast to rise above the mid-20s today.

The forecast is calling for a 30 percent chance of continued snow throughout the day. Winds will be northeasterly at 15 to 25 miles per hour. By tonight temperatures should fall into the low teens.

Across the state Tuesday temperatures had risen just high enough to trigger a flood of calls to plumbers and utility companies as frozen water pipes warmed and then shattered across the state. In Big Spring, plumbers said they each had received between 15 to 20 calls by early morning. The city water crews were also kept busy mending broken water mains which halted water service to large parts of the city.

Readings this morning dipped into the teens in the Panhandle this morning and into the 20s over the rest of the northern half of the state. Accumulations of snow were expected to reach 6 inches along the Red River and 4 inches in the

Water problems drain city budget

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Ice, overtime and accountants will mean a $70,000 loss to municipal ledgers as the city moves to plug its frozen water mains with less money than councilmen believed was on tap.

Stating "we've had a lot of water problems the last few days," City Manager Don Davis gave the City Council a preliminary report on the high number of water lines cracked by last week's record low temperatures.

The report said an estimated $25,000 has been drained from city revenue by water that has "for the most part been running down the streets.

The report also mentioned an estimated $5,500 paid in overtime costs for streets and utility department employees that have worked throughout the holidays.

The broken pipes interrupted water service to most of Big Spring's west side, causing "almost nil firefighting capability" in that part of town, Davis said.

Big Spring Fire Chief Jim Ryals said after the meeting that trucks in his department can carry 750 gallons of water and pointed out that hydrant water in the area can be turned back on in an emergency.

Not included in the Public Works Department report was an estimate of street damage caused by the water line breaks or a replacement cost estimate for lines broken.

In a move that spells an estimated loss of $19,000 to the city budget, the council voted to accept on first reading the city's 1983 tax appraisal roll.

The loss comes as a result of an approximate $3 million error in projected city property values given to the manager's office by the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District.

City officials blamed the tax appraisal district for delaying its report on city property values until after the city's budget had already been prepared.

"If we can't get our reports as needed, we need to look at other (ways) to see about our tax roll," said Councilmember Jack Y. Smith.

Following other action by the council, the city will pay an estimated $30,500 to the St. Paul Insurance Co. in back premiums because claims between Nov. 1981 and Nov. 1982 on the city's workmans compensation policy exceeded premiums paid to the company.

City Manager Davis called the premium adjustment a "direct reflection" of laxity in the city's safety program during the period, and he added that steps have been taken to make the program more effective.

In other action Tuesday night, the

Six killed in NY explosion

43 injured in Buffalo propane blast

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Firefighters combed the smoldering ruins of a residential neighborhood today for more victims of a propane gas explosion and fire that killed at least six people, injured 43 and leveled a city block, officials said.

Five firemen and a resident were known dead in the blast at a warehouse Tuesday, and another fireman was missing, officials said.

Of 43 people taken to three hospitals with injuries ranging from severe burns to broken bones and cuts, five were listed in critical condition.

The blast hit around 8:30 p.m., just minutes after three fire trucks arrived in the neighborhood east of downtown to check a report of a propane leak around a bakery supply building and an adjacent four-story brick warehouse, Battalion Fire Chief Michael Angrisano said.

About 15 firefighters were searching for the leak in and around the warehouse when the building exploded with two jarring blasts felt up to 15 miles away. The warehouse, bakery and several houses in the same block were demolished, and windows were broken half a mile away.

"I thought that a nuclear war had hit. I thought the Russians pulled one of them buttons," said Clinton Holloman, 56, a resident who heard the first fire trucks arriving and was leaving his house to see what was happening when the explosion knocked him down.

"If I had gotten there, I probably would have been one of those killed," he said, adding that only his hair was singed.

The debris crushed one fire truck and heavily damaged two others. Thirty-eight homes were damaged, according to James F. Casey of the American Red Cross. A knee-high layer of rubble covered the street in front of the warehouse.

It was not immediately known what ignited the blast. It was also not known what the warehouse contained.

Sarah Hampton was in the kitchen of her home across the street from the warehouse and had "just finished washing dishes when the lights went off and there was a big noise."

"I looked over and the house across the street was in flames," she said. Her own dining room "was full of wood and stuff and I had to walk through it."

Lizzie Preston, who lives with Ms. Hampton, was buried by the rubble. "I tried to pull the stuff off of her, but I just couldn't pull it off," Ms. Hampton said. "Then I went out and screamed, 'Get her out! Get her out!'"

"The fire following the explosion spread quickly to the adjacent bakery and wood-frame houses, and more than 150 firefighters battled in 20-degree temperatures to control the flames.

The blaze, so hot it melted parts of fire trucks and covered a square mile with thick black smoke, raged out of control for more than three hours. Fireman Robert Hartman said that when he arrived on the fourth alarm, the block was still "a sea of fire."

LULAC agreement to hike voting costs

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Primaries and general election costs for Howard County may increase $10,000 for each election because of the way city election wards were drawn in an agreement with the League of United Latin American Citizens, county commissioners said today.

Commissioners were trying to contact city, LULAC and Southwest Voter Registration officials this morning to iron out the problem.

Officials discovered today that the drawing of city district lines would require the county to set up at least seven extra voting sites during elections.

County clerk Margaret Ray said she drew the county commissioner precinct lines Tuesday on the map the city delivered with their new district lines.

The state election code forbids the county to set up a voting precinct by crossing city ward lines, she said.

Several of the areas which would require separate boxes have few residents. Two of the most notable areas are located where the ward lines jut north of 11th Place. A box would have to be set up in a one and a half block area north of 11th Place on Lancaster and on a one-block area north of 11th Place on Douglas, Mrs. Ray said.

Even if an area has no residents, the county is required to set up an election site, Mrs. Ray said.

Commissioner Louis Brown said he did not think the city officials or LULAC officials "knew what they were doing" when they drew the lines. County tax assessor-collector Dorothy Moore said the city official (Tom Ferguson) who brought the map over said he did not understand the problem.

"Those seven boxes probably wouldn't change five votes," County Judge Milton Kirby said.

Another area that would require a separate box is located two blocks north of 11th Place on Rosemont and goes behind Big Spring High School. Another area is a circle off Highland west of Goliad.

Commissioners have few options in the matter since the agreement has been approved both by a federal judge and the justice department. Commissioner Paul Allen said the next local election "is going to cost us $10,000 or more" because of drawing the lines.

Police Beat

Welding unit stolen

Randall Merrill of 1606 Nolan told police Tuesday morning that a blue welding unit valued at $1,700 was stolen from a construction site at 3310 W. Highway 80 while the welding truck was parked at the site. The unit weighs 500 pounds and was mounted on a wooden stand, police records show.

Two new Ford pickup trucks were damaged in a break-in Monday night while parked on the lot at Bob Brock Ford, police records show. Police arriving on the scene found two wing windows and frames on the vehicles damaged and two cassette radios, valued at $700, taken from the pickups.

Susie Roach of the Wagon Wheel Drive-In at 2010 Scurry told police Tuesday morning that someone had attempted to break into the drive-in by prying open a door. Although entry was not gained, someone also threw a beer bottle through a front window at the drive-in and shattered the glass. Damage was listed at $125.

Zubeda Mistry told police Tuesday afternoon that an unknown subject had tried to enter Room 214 of the Great Western Motel at 2900 E. I-20 and had broken off a door knob in the attempt. Entry was not gained in the incident.

Joyce Wash of 813 Highland told police Tuesday afternoon that someone entered the door of an office in the building at 123 E. Third and took her purse and its contents.

Woman injured in crash

A Big Spring woman was injured Tuesday morning in a two-car accident about one-half mile north of Big Spring on U.S. Highway 87.

Agnes Rhine Belew, 59, of 1806 Alabama was admitted to Hall-Bennett Hospital after suffering bruises and abrasions, a Department of Public Safety officer said.

Ms. Belew's 1977 Ford Granada was struck at 7:50 a.m. Tuesday when she attempted to cross U.S. 87 from a parking lot on the east side of the highway. Her car collided with a 1977 Pontiac Trans Am driven by Refugio J. Cerda, 27, of 1414 Wood. Cerda was driving north in the inside lane of U.S. 87 and was unable to stop in time to avoid a collision, the report said.

Howard County sheriff's deputies Tuesday arrested James Lonnie Howard, 39, of Gatesville at the Coryell County sheriff's office in Gatesville at the Howard County warrant for suspicion of revocation of probation on theft. He was transferred to the Howard County Jail Wednesday. Bond was denied pending a hearing.

Donald Earl Hauser, 38, of 706 Wills was arrested Tuesday by the DPS and transferred to the county jail on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and two counts of speeding. Hauser was released on $1,000 bond for DWI and two $100 bonds for the speeding charges. Bond was set by County Court Judge Milton Kirby.

Cary (Mack) Loya, 17, of 711 N. Aylford was transferred Tuesday to the Howard County jail from the police department on suspicion of burglary. He was released on $10,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Hijinio M. Vasquez, 25, of Route 1 was transferred Tuesday to the county from the police department on suspicion of driving while license suspended. Vasquez was released on $1,000 bond set by Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

Fugitive captured in Van Horn

VAN HORN, Texas (AP) — A man convicted after he failed to appear for trial in the killing of a child earlier this month in Lubbock, was arrested with his common-law wife at a bus station in this Far West Texas town, authorities said.

Lee Roy Orana Licon, 29, of Pecos and Amelia Hernandez, 27, were arrested after a bus they had boarded was forced to return to the terminal after it was involved in an accident, according to the Culberson County Sheriff's Department.

Licon jumped bail and failed to show for the murder and injury-to-a-child trial Dec. 13 in which his children testified against him, officials said. He was convicted of fatally burning and beating his 2-year-old stepson, Robert, on July 26, 1982.

Licon and Mrs. Hernandez were arrested at 6 p.m. Tuesday by Sheriff Richard Upchurch, Deputy Efrain Hinojos and Deputy Stuart Gary about 40 minutes before the bus was to leave.

Justice of the Peace C.V. Villalobos refused bond for the couple.

Mrs. Hernandez was wanted as a witness.

A Lubbock jury took only 14 minutes to find Licon guilty when the trial ended Dec. 14. He was sentenced to 99 years in prison and fined $10,000.

Under state law, the trial was able to proceed without Licon because the indictment had been read to him in court.

Pet cat

Man's 385-pound lion is no ordinary feline

PALACIOS, Texas (AP) — Tony Kana's pet cat is no ordinary housecat. Fifteen-month-old Samson tips the scales at 385 pounds and is a real live King of the Beasts, an African lion.

Samson was given to Kana by his now-deceased brother, Dan, when the lion was just a cub.

Samson spends most of his time in the backyard of the Kana residence, lying in the shade, playing with his toys and staring back at the parade of curious people who have come to see Palacios' most popular feline.

"I always wanted one and finally my brother gave me one," Kana said. "I've grown up around animals and have been around them all my life."

The big cat is different from his domesticated cousins in many ways other than size. No Meow Mix for this tabby. He prefers something with a little more meat — rare meat in particular.

"I feed him once a day. He eats about three to four pounds of meat per day and he will eat fish and shark," Kana said.

Samson needs this diet because he is a growing boy. Kana said that at maturity in about one year, Samson will weigh around 600 pounds.

Samson's toys aren't the usual rubber mice and ball of yarn either. The lion plays with old automobile tires and a wooden cable spool. The lion has to do most of his playing alone since even the Kanas' family dog refuses to have anything to do with Samson any more.

Being a "domestic" cat has its disadvantages for Samson. The regal cat has had to get shots, has had his front feet declawed and has suffered the greatest indignity any king can suffer. He's lost his crown.

Samson has no mane because he was neutered "to take some of the meanness out," Kana said.

Not everyone can get along with the lion. "You have to know him to get along," Kana said. "I know his moods and can tell when he wants to be left alone."

Kana roughhouses with the cat one to two hours per day and said the cat especially likes to lie on top of him.

"There's not much you can do with 385 pounds on top of you," said Kana.

One has only to look at the big cat to see that the animal is very quick and powerful. Kana keeps him chained with several chains and locks attached to a heavy collar. The animal never has injured anyone or any property.

"There are curiosity seekers but no one has ever messed with him. The neighbors all get along with him and I've never heard any complaints," Kana said.

NEEDS A HOME — Tony Kana plays with his pet lion, Samson, in the backyard of the Kana home in Palacios, Texas. Kana is trying to find someone who will buy Samson because the Palacios City Council recently passed an ordinance making it more difficult for people within the city limits to have wild animals as pets.

All that changed just a few weeks ago when the Palacios City Council passed an ordinance prohibiting such wild animals within the city limits, unless the owner complies with certain conditions.

The ordinance, passed Nov. 21, requires owners to obtain a $50 permit from the council, confine the animal in "safe and secure" quarters and prove his ability to respond to damages of up to $200,000.

Violators could be fined up to $200 per day. The council adopted the ordinance at the urging of City Attorney Eli Mayfield, who contended it would protect the city from costly lawsuits that might be incurred if a wild animal injured someone.

"No one has ever talked to me about it," Kana said. "I didn't know about the ordinance until the next day."

Kana says it means he will have to work harder to find a new home for Samson.

ting a blow torch to some of their pipes, and she is worried that it might be dangerous.

She said her family has been buying bottled water for cooking and going to a friend's house to take showers. She has been waiting until arriving at work to brush her teeth, she said.

City water consumption for the period beginning midnight Dec. 21 has been running at an "inordinately high" rate, he said, with the city pumping 10 to 12 million gallons per day. The city normally pumps four to five million gallons per day during December, he said.

The "excess for the most part has been running down the streets," he said, costing the city an estimated $25,000 in revenues from the lost water. Personnel in the city's utility and streets departments have contributed "superhuman" efforts during the Christmas holidays, logging 559 overtime hours at an estimated cost to the city of $5,500, Decell said. "A lot of people did not spend any Christmas at all," Decell said. "All available forces" are currently working to restore water service to affected areas of the city, Decell said, including two crews from water utility contractor Permain Utilities.

City Manager Don Davis said he would like to thank Howard Co. Engineer Bill Mims and his crews for their help during the crisis. City water reservoirs remain low, Decell said. "As levels in our reservoirs drop, so will water pressure," said City Manager Don Davis.

Davis added that plenty of water is still available to the city from the Colorado River Municipal Water District and clear wells at the city water treatment plant.

Most breaks came in water lines more than 25 years old made of cast iron, Decell said.

Major pipeline breaks identified by noon Wednesday included those in the 1400 block of Lancaster (where water damage closed the street to traffic), 12 breaks around North and South Montecello, and breaks under the following streets: the 400 block of Third and Fourth, Purdue, Washington, 13th, 11th, Ridgelea, Benton, Main, Gregg, Abrams, Hillside, N.E. Sixth, Fifth, Canary, Wright, Highway 80, Air Park, and Wasson.

Brownsville.

On Tuesday, the problem was water rather than ice. Many Texans who still had water service were plagued by low pressure because of bursting mains elsewhere.

Hospitals in Houston turned away patients who did not have life-threatening conditions and limited surgery to emergency cases only.

Some health clinics in the bayou city closed because of lack of water and/or heat.

"We are basically without (city) water," a spokesman at Spring Branch Memorial Hospital told the Houston Chronicle. "We have brought in distilled water and have contacted the city and Civil Defense about our problems. It's a lot like the situation during the hurricane."

The backlog of broken water pipes continued to mount in Lubbock even though repair crews had never even taken off for Christmas.

"We've had 1,744 calls since Saturday," said Marjorie Lishman, water and sewer administrative assistant. "We're getting about four calls per minute."

About 600 families in Fort Worth were without running water more than two days. City water lines broke faster than city crews and private contractors could repair them.

"We know how the pioneers must have felt," said Billy W. Poole, whose family has had no water since early Christmas morning. "I can't wait until I can take a hot shower again because I miss that most of all."

Dallas detective James Hobbs said the cold weather was a windfall for auto thieves because motorists were leaving their cars unattended and running.

Fair board changes rental policy

The Howard County Fair Board in its meeting this month changed its policy on fair building rentals during major holidays, board members said.

The board now will conduct a drawing for the rental of the building on special holidays for which there is demand for the building, members said.

Previously, the building was rented to the first person who made a request.

Board President Smitty Smith said the change was made to "give everyone an equal chance to use the buildings."

The drawing for the building rental will be conducted at the Howard County Fair Barn. Organizations or individuals interested in renting the facility must be present at the drawing, conducted at least a month ahead of the holiday.

They also must have some kind of identification such as a driver's license showing they live in Howard County and must be ready to pay a deposit at the time of the drawing, board members said.

The board will conduct a drawing in early January for rental of the fair buildings for Valentine's Day.

A list of the holidays the new policy affects and the new rental rates for the building will be published in the Big Spring Herald.

For more information, call Lewis Mancha, the Howard County Fair Association building manager, at 263-1258.

Council authorizes mayor to proceed with hangar lease

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council last night instructed Mayor Clyde Angel to sign an agreement setting out a 60-day time limit for fixed base operator (FBO) Mac Air Inc. to follow through on its proposal for a second hangar at Big Spring Air Park.

The action comes in response to a Federal Aviation Administration investigation into charges made by Jerry Rosenbaum of Trans Regional Air that the council eliminated competition among FBOs at the Air Park by awarding sole use of both city hangars to Mac Air.

The FAA's investigation found the city's actions in awarding the second hangar to be "proper and within its authority," but noted no deadline had been established for Mac Air to put into effect the avionics shop, executive hangar, increased personnel, equipment and advertising promised in its proposal.

As a result, the FAA directed the council to enter into the agreement setting out the 60-day time limit, adding "if (Mac Air) is unable to perform, their lease for the (hangar) should be terminated in order to preclude Mac Air's leasing it only to eliminate competition."

The council's action last night took the form of resolution authorizing the mayor to sign such an agreement with Mac Air president James Massingil.

The council passed the resolution unanimously on first reading with no discussion.

The FAA also directed the council to establish terms for a raw land lease for Trans Regional Air and other qualified operators in the Air Park so they can build facilities similar to the Mac Air hangars.

Overhead costs for the hangars should be similar to rent charged Mac Air for its city-owned hangars, according to the FAA directive.

The city must make the land available "expeditiously in order not to impose an undue hardship on Trans Regional Air," the directive said.

Youngster rescues friend

AUSTIN (AP) — A quick-thinking 9-year-old used a tennis racket to rescue a friend who fell through the ice on a pond southwest of Austin.

Collin Parker and his friend, Heath Johnson, 10, went to the Travis Country subdivision tennis courts Monday to try out the racket Heath received for Christmas. But a nearby frozen pond lured the boys into a makeshift ice hockey game.

"The ice was thick — maybe 5 inches in some places," said Heath. He said he was following a fish under the ice when he heard the ice crack.

Collin, standing on the grassy bank, said "the ice kept on crunching and Heath couldn't get off in time and he just sank into the water."

Hope returns to U.S.

LOS ANGELES — Fresh from a holiday tour for U.S. troops in Lebanon, Bob Hope says he's willing to do it again next Christmas — but hopes it won't be necessary.

The 80-year-old comedian was greeted Tuesday by cheering military personnel and friends as he stepped off an Air Force plane at a California Air National Guard base in Van Nuys.

"It seems like we just left here a few minutes ago," quipped Hope, who was accompanied by actresses Ann Jillian, Cathy Lee Crosby and Brooke Shields, Miss USA Julie Hayek, singer Vic Damone and comedian George Kirby.

Getting serious, Hope told the crowd, "Of all the tours I've taken over the years, this was the most exciting." The seven-day tour was his first visit to troops overseas in 11 years, and the 31st of his career.

Asked if he would take a show to Lebanon next year, he replied, "I hope we don't have to go again, but if they're there, we'll go."

Loretta Swit gets hitched

LOS ANGELES — Hitched: a Houlihan and a Holahan.

Actress Loretta Swit, who played chief nurse Margaret "Hot Lips" Houlihan in the long-running television series "M-A-S-H," has been married to actor Dennis Holahan, and they are honeymooning in Egypt.

It was the first marriage for the 46-year-old Miss Swit, who met her husband-to-be while he was working on an episode of the program about a year ago, said Miss Swit's publicist, Dawn Davis, on Tuesday.

The wedding last Wednesday in suburban Studio City was the second for Holahan, who has a 15-year-old son and 14-year-old daughter from a previous marriage.

He is in the movie "Scarface" and has appeared in television's "Fall Guy" and "Blue Thunder."

Wills arrested for theft

LOS ANGELES — Maury Wills, longtime Dodgers shortstop who was the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1962 when he stole a then-record 104 bases, has been arrested for investigation of grand theft.

Wills, 51, was arrested early Tuesday in a stolen Audi 4000 on the Harbor Freeway. A glass vial containing what appeared to be cocaine also was seized, said police Capt. John Sparkenbach, who said a field test on the substance turned out positive.

"We'll have to have a lab test on it, also," he added.

Wills, fired as manager of the Seattle Mariners in 1981, lives in Playa del Rey and described himself as self-employed.

He was freed on $1,500 bail and is scheduled to appear in court in suburban Compton on Jan. 6, Sparkenbach said.

Author feels like a ghost

VASHON, Wash. — Six years after the award-winning movie based on his book "Soldier of Orange" was released, author Erik Hazelhoff says he feels somewhat like a ghost.

Hazelhoff, 66, former aide de camp to the late Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, wrote his autobiographical opus in 1972 after working as an NBC network vice president, director of Radio Free Europe and president of a telecommunications network.

He says he wrote the book to get off his chest the experiences he had been through during the Nazi occupation of the Netherlands in World War II. It was "a stone in the pit of my stomach," that had to be removed, he said.

In the movie, which won the 1981 Los Angeles Film Critics Award, Hazelhoff was portrayed by Rutger Hauer.

A resident of Hawaii, he had come to this Puget Sound island near Seattle to visit a stepdaughter.

Reagan readies for onslaught

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan is waiting for the Democrats to "make political hay" out of the Beirut bombing that killed 241 U.S. servicemen, but he does not plan to discipline anyone or withdraw the Marines from Lebanon because of the blast, a White House official says.

Anticipating the public release today of a special commission's report on the Oct. 23 attack, the president accepted "full responsibility for the incident," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Tuesday as Reagan flew here for a vacation.

The report places the responsibility for security flaws at the Marine headquarters in Beirut before the bombing on the entire military chain of command, including the commander in chief.

A White House official accompanying Reagan said that the president would review "alternate ways of deploying the Marines" over the next several weeks and will confer with Donald Rumsfeld, his special Middle East envoy, after returning to Washington next week.

This source said there was "only a remote possibility we would pull the Marines off and put them on the ships. The president is not inclined to do that."

And, in reviewing the report, the president decided once again "that the United States' forces would remain there, in Beirut ... until our goals are accomplished."

Reagan told reporters before leaving the White House that "while there's hope for peace, we have to remain."

The official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name, said Reagan believes that certain aspects of a House subcommittee report on the bombing "and other activities that may take place in the House" when Congress begins its next session in January "do have political overtones."

Democrats have balked at the deployment of the 1,800 U.S. Marines in the United States' contingent of the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon. Republicans, including Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, also have expressed opposition and the Republican leadership in Congress has been reluctant to support this aspect of the president's Middle East policy.

The official said he thought the Democrats would use the House study and the report prepared by a special commission under retired Adm. Robert L.J. Long for political purposes.

"There's no doubt the Democrats in the House will use whatever kind of legislative tactics they can as a political element in an election year," he said.

Bombs explode near Beirut

BEIRUT — Six bombs exploded in rapid succession in the Israeli-occupied port of Sidon overnight, and radio stations said today that six Lebanese civilians were wounded.

The state radio said the bombs went off in various neighborhoods of the south Lebanon city within a 10-minute period around midnight. It said Israeli troops sealed off the areas where the explosions occurred and made several arrests.

The radio said six residents were hospitalized with shrapnel injuries.

On Tuesday, an Israeli patrol clashed with guerrillas laying an explosive charge in Sidon. The Israeli military command said one soldier and three guerrillas died in the shootout.

The command said it had no information on the blasts reported in Sidon. But it said an overnight roadside explosion slightly injured two Israeli soldiers in Lebanon's western Bekaa Valley.

Israeli officials have blamed a recent surge of anti-Israeli violence in southern Lebanon on guerrillas, although they haven't specified the nationality of the attackers. Political and religious leaders of Lebanon's Shiite Moslems, who make up the majority of the population in the south, have been advocating revolt against the Israeli occupation.

Andropov misses function

MOSCOW (AP) — President Yuri V. Andropov, ailing and out of public view for 132 days, missed another major Soviet function today as the national parliament convened for its winter session.

YURI ANDROPOV

Andropov's repeated absence from ceremonies which, according to Soviet tradition and protocol, he should attend are thought to be unprecedented and suggested he is hospitalized with a serious illness.

Reports about Andropov's poor health, which have circulated since he took power 13 months ago and intensified when he was hospitalized last spring, were renewed when he missed the Nov. 5 Kremlin gathering and Nov. 7 Red Square parade marking the anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The Kremlin insists Andropov is not seriously ill, but his absence from the important events — including a Communist Party Central Committee meeting Monday and Tuesday — clearly indicates his condition is poor. He has reportedly undergone dialysis treatment for kidney problems.

Andropov holds the dual titles of president and general secretary of the Communist Party, and was virtually required by protocol to be on hand for the Supreme Soviet meeting, where decisions of the Central Committee are ratified.

Since he is head of the party, his absence from its policy-setting committee's winter session this week was likewise believed to be unprecedented.

Chemical fire closes mall

HOUSTON (AP) — A four-alarm fire at a chemical plant in northwest Harris County Tuesday night forced officials to close down a shopping mall and evacuate residents within three miles of the plant because of toxic gases released by the blaze.

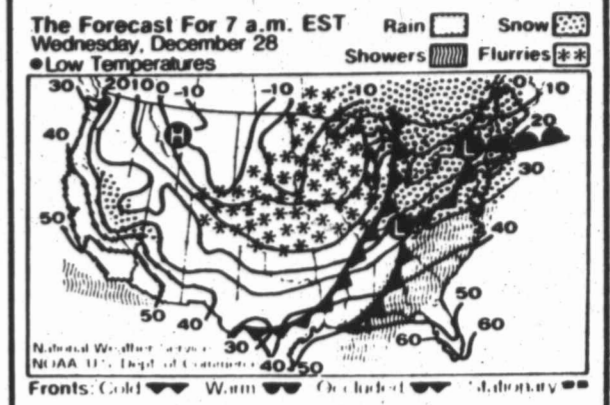

No serious injuries were reported. The fire erupted about 5:30 p.m. at the CSA Chemical Co. plant, which manufactures WD-40 lubricant, hairspray and insecticide. The fire was expected to burn all night.

"The entire plant is gone," a company official who would not identify himself told the Houston Chronicle.

Northwest Volunteer Fire Department spokesman H.E. Womack said the blaze was fed by gas escaping from butane and propane tanks. More than a dozen fire trucks from eight departments in the area were spraying water on nearby tanks in the plant to prevent explosions.

Arafat's fortunes adrift in failures

Yasser Arafat has been expelled from Lebanon for the second time, and the 4,000 Palestine Liberation Organization loyalists who departed with him in rented Greek ships so far amount to the only foreign troop withdrawal accomplished in that war-torn country.

During 14 years of PLO leadership, Arafat failed miserably in his goal of destroying Israel and was at war more often with other Arabs, including rivals within the PLO. His latest defeat was at the hands of Palestinians in Lebanon dominated by Syrian President Assad, who for the moment is the big victor of the battle of Tripoli.

Arafat has survived so many defeats that one cannot entirely rule out his re-emergence. One possible scenario would be for him to make a deal with a former enemy, Jordan's King Hussein, over a homeland for Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank. Though beaten and humiliated, the PLO leader remains a popular figure with West Bank Arabs and the Palestinian with greatest international recognition.

Similar negotiations last May led to the latest revolt against Arafat by rival PLO forces, however. Syria, backed by Russia, is likely to oppose another round of Arab negotiations that might enhance Arafat and Hussein, both enemies of Assad. Israeli leaders also seem delighted with Arafat's fall from power, and with it, a Palestinian liberation movement set adrift.

With much of the (albeit discredited) PLO and Lebanon under its thumb — and Iraq preoccupied by a war with Iran — Syria now is more powerful than ever in the Arab world. With the PLO movement divided and southern Lebanon under its control, Israel also has benefited to a lesser extent.

This polarization makes the work of U.S. diplomats and peacekeeping forces no easier and may rule out negotiations or a peace agreement in the immediate future. If Arafat's latest defeat removes one thorn in the side of the Lebanese, it also adds fuel to the "Mideast Tinderbox" referred to by President Reagan at his recent press conference.

Yet Lebanon will be no closer to peace and Israelis and Palestinians further than ever from the elusive goal of peaceful co-existence if the United States turns tail at this critical moment.

As Arafat has demonstrated on so many occasions, the advantage in the Mideast can quickly change. It would be foolish and irresponsible for President Reagan to set U.S. policy adrift by following the retreating Arafat armada with one filled with U.S. forces.

Curious system of rewards

WASHINGTON — In an earlier column I identified five senior Energy Department officials who were criticized by congressional investigators for allowing shocking lapses of security at government plants that produce weapons-grade nuclear material.

In what Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., called a "curious" system of rewards and punishment, the five officials were given achievement medals and substantial bonuses despite the accusations of mismanagement.

Now my associates Indy Badwar and Tony Capaccio have obtained internal DOE documents which show that some of the bonus babies wrote the glowing recommendations that earned their colleagues the financial awards.

Dingell's year-long investigation concluded that the five officials not only were responsible for lax security that left the nuclear plants vulnerable to terrorist attacks, but deliberately misled both Congress and the White House on the lapses. Yet during the three-year period of alleged mismanagement, the accused officials pocketed $115,000 in awards.

In a pitiful attempt to cover up the congressional criticism, Len Kojm, a DOE congressional liaison official, tried to use his own stamp and ink pad to put a spurious "Secret" label on a letter from Dingell that spelled out the transgressions of the agency officials.

Here's a rundown on the incestuous bonus babies:

— Herman Roser, assistant DOE secretary for defense programs, collected more than $35,000 in bonuses. Based on Roser's testimony at a closed hearing on Sept. 10, 1982 and other meetings, Dingell concluded that the official had not only misled the subcommittee but had managed to kill a highly critical security assessment undertaken by independent anti-terrorist experts.

But on Sept. 16, 1982, in a recommendation for an $11,115 bonus, Energy Secretary Donald Hodel cited Roser's "exceptional" service and cited his "strengths in communicating and negotiating with members of Congress."

— Troy Wade, principal deputy assistant secretary, won more than $32,000 in merit awards. Roser commended Wade for having "far exceeded expectations of him," and praised him for ensuring that safeguards for DOE facilities received top priority.

Dingell concluded that Wade was Roser's "point man" in scuttling the embarrassing independent assessment program.

— James Culpepper, deputy assistant secretary for security, earned more than $20,000 in bonuses. Wade wrote that Culpepper had discharged his duties "in a highly proficient and diligent manner." Dingell pointed out that Culpepper was responsible for a report to the president that the General Accounting Office called "misleading."

— Ralph Caudle, director of the safeguards office, was given a silver medal and about $15,000 in bonuses. Dingell wrote that at the Sept. 10 hearing and later, Caudle "continued to assure Congress that security was adequate." But Dingell added: "This was not true, and documents in his own files indicated that it was not true." Yet in a performance rating dated Sept. 8-16, 1982, Culpepper praised Caudle's skill at "intra-agency and congressional interface" and in conveying "a message of safeguards and security."

— Robert Morgan, former manager of the Savannah River, S.C., nuclear plant, topped $28,000 in cash awards. Dingell found that Morgan had "misled the subcommittee about the status of safeguards at Savannah." In a recommendation dated Sept. 8, 1982, Roser said Morgan "has established effective contact... with members of Congress to ensure that they are well informed..."

RED BRIGADES CRUMBLING — Italy has been having amazing success against the Red Brigade extremists who once terrorized the nation. According to U.S. government figures, there were only 10 major terrorist incidents in the first 11 months of 1983. That compares dramatically with 41 incidents in 1982, 24 in 1981 and 31 in 1980.

So far in 1983 there has been just one terrorist assassination, compared to nine in 1980.

The difference is noticeable to visitors. Where a few years ago the major piazzas of northern Italian cities looked like military occupation zones, today the police patrols and armed bank guards have all but disappeared.

The Italians' success began with the arrest of the Red Brigade gang that kidnapped American Gen. James Dozier. Then legislation gave "repentant" brigade members amnesty if they turned stool pigeon.

Moby Dick ate my TV

Have you ever lived a nightmare? Had some horrible recurring dream that breaks you out in a cold sweat actually come to life?

I have. The stuff that nightmares are made of Monday crystallized into a real and solid fear. Just a day after Christmas, the time of brotherly love and material acquisitions, I lost the most important piece of my baggage on an airplane.

Yes, the gorillas that toss your luggage onto the plane with a "GRUNT" and onto the luggage carousel with a "THUD" managed to misplace my one-day-old color television set on a non-stop flight from Dallas to Midland.

It's not as though the ground crew had to wrinkle their brains too much to figure out they needed to take the fragile items off the plane after it landed at its one and only destination.

Or so I thought. But I obviously overestimated their intelligence. Granted, baggage people often look like they could have substituted for the simians in the Samsonite commercials that jump up and down on suitcases to prove their durability. However, I've always believed in giving everybody a chance to prove their ignorance.

But the counter people at the Muse Airline ticket counter in Dallas convinced me. "We'll hand carry it on and off the plane," they said. "We'll place it in the fragile bin," they said. "It shouldn't get broken," they said.

They also told me they couldn't assume liability because the set wasn't packed right. The TV was in its original container, the same one they shipped it in from Korea to Dallas. And it's not securely packed? Only if a wild herd of incompetent, hyperactive orangutans lacking a collective IQ of 35 decided to play Frisbee with the carton would it not be securely packed.

Anyway, all during that flight I worried about the security of my new television. Would some fool casually toss it to his compatriot in clumsiness out on the runway and miss? When I picked up my package at the baggage counter, would it rattle with the thousand splintered fragments of my picture tube and other crushed components? These were the things I worried about as I flew into the Midland Air Terminal.

But my fears were groundless. I didn't get a package of broken glass and twisted diagrams. I just didn't get a package.

It wasn't what I expected. The ticket agents had talked about not assuming responsibility for damages. They hadn't let me buy additional insurance to cover possible accidents. But they never said a word about losses incurred due to disappearance.

They never told me the fragile baggage bin on flight 814 was a hidden door into Rod Serling's Twilight Zone, that I had only to watch them carry my box into the belly of the plane to see it disappear forever into an internal Bermuda Triangle.

When the baggage girl told me and 20 other people that was all the cargo they'd taken off of Flight 814, I told her she'd made a mistake. She laughed. And sneered. Suddenly, all the symbolism in Moby Dick finally began to make sense. The great white whale... things being swallowed up in the belly of the beast... It was a bad 19th-century novel come to life. If the flight number had been 666, I would not have been surprised.

I went to the ticket counter to see if there had been some awful mistake. The man at the counter said, "Oh, a TV? It's probably already been broken and someone's stolen what's left." I've never wanted to kill a person before for joking.

Nor could I quite believe it was happening on "the low-cost airline with class." But I soon did.

The clerk, after at least an hour of scurrying back to the baggage claim area trying to prove that all 20 of us complaining customers had just overlooked our bags, finally said, "I don't know what happened. It's not here." He had my nomination for the obvious understatement of the year.

Then there was the overpolite young man who smiled as he was filling out my lost baggage claim report and asked me how my Christmas was. Needless to say, I didn't refrain from saying that it depended on how fast his company restored my baggage.

He had to tell me, "Have a nice day," when I left. People like that have a sado-masochistic streak.

Right now, I'm waiting on Greyhound. Supposedly my TV set is safely aboard a bus on its way to Big Spring. I'll believe it when it gets here.

In the meantime, I would find it satisfying if Muse would at least apologize for the inconvenience they have caused me. But I'm sure Miami will freeze over before that happens.

Next time I need something delivered on the same flight with me, I'll call Federal Express or its competitors. They at least promise packages delivered overnight.

Taking exception to Shaw's NAACP speech

To the editor:

I would like to make a few comments on the speech that Larry Don Shaw made to the NAACP.

As usual for a Democrat, he flailed away at the struggle against unemployment, poverty, and inferior education — "democratic struggles," for whatever that means.

There has been no country in the world that has spent more money to combat poverty than the United States. However, the figures will show that as expenditures on fighting poverty have grown, so have the members of poverty-stricken people, plus the growth of a tremendous bureaucracy to administer poverty. For what it takes to administer HEW, we could take that money and give it to every poor family in the USA and raise them

I see that you used the words "John Wayne" and "gun-boat diplomacy." Tip O'Neal would be proud of you. However, just like Tip, you are out of the mainstream. Over 60 percent of the American people favored the Grenada invasion and had we had some "gun-boat diplomacy" over 20 years ago we wouldn't have Castro in Cuba today. This Soviet cancer has spread thruout South America, Central America, and Mexico. This could have been stopped years ago with a little guts on some politicians part.

As far as your naive, school-boy remark — "America and Russia should go home for awhile," the problem is that the world has gone home for nearly 40 years, except Russia stayed on the prowl. Now, their cancerous tentacles have so encircled the world that it is going to take extraordinary efforts to disengage them from our affairs.

Larry Don, you are a fine young man, but I don't think that the old time partisanship between parties will work anymore. What we need is bi-partisanship — people working together to solve our problems. We are in this together and the problems are tough and our continued appeasement of the Soviets. The path of appeasement leads to the loss of freedom. Just as Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Romania, Finland, Cuba, Afghanistan, Vietnam, Laos, East Germany and others.

Farm changes

In an article in the Big Spring Herald by Phil Swann titled "Lanc brokers spell relief to farmers in financial trouble" (Harte-Hank Bureau).

I appreciate the article very much. I view it as pro American and pro farmer.

I don't condemn Farmer Bloch but as you point out, this might not be such a Godsend for our country.

I would like to expand a little more if I may about the bad effects for our country and for the consumers, farmers and future generations as well. Esau sold his birth right for a bowl of beans.

I believe we have an agricultural system that is the envy of the entire world. We are destroying it as fast as we possible can. Agriculture is at least 23 percent of our gross national product. The farm related industries employ about 20 percent of our work force. Last year the farmers had about $22 billion interest. In 1977 the farmers debt was some $58 billion. At the beginning of 1983 their debt was $234 billion. These figures I have got from USDA reports. The USDA uses the value of living in our own home as a part of our income and they say that the property taxes we pay are not part of our farming expense. (Source: Texas Agriculture paper put out by Texas Farm Bureau 1983 Nov. issue.)

The American farmer doesn't compete against other farmers for export markets but against governments that subsidize the exports of their farmers in the world markets.

We compete against a strong dollar that has appreciated some 20 to 40 percent against other major currencies of the world making our commodities higher.

We compete against a cheap food and fiber policy of our government.

We compete against each other. If one of us dies there is a parade of farmers wanting his land. Some ask for it even before they get him buried. The margin of profit is so small (if any) that you get bigger or get out. It is a situation where we devour each other economically to survive. The really big farmers have tax advantages that help them consume the smaller family farmers that are really the backbone of the industry.

In my opinion — and for what ever it is worth — here it is.

Supply management with mandatory control on either acres, pounds, bushels or some regulation of supply that will let the farmer produce at a profit. We have a minimum wage for most workers. Why not a minimum price of cost of production plus a reasonable profit for farmers? Some say get the government out. Who is the government? Would we like to do away with our police officers, judges, firemen, post offices and what? I believe that really the government is us!

I believe that each agricultural dollar turns over in the economy 6 or 7 times and if the U.S. would let our product bring a decent price, it would generate enough income to balance our national budget.

I believe we need to conserve our soil and put some things back into the soil to store up fertility so that when we need more production our soil will produce it. It is a shame to literally mine our soil from fence row to fence row to raise more than we can use or sell. It breaks our prices and makes a big bill to pay storage on for the tax payers and that is us too if we can pay them.

I don't believe we have such a surplus but really a distribution problem for there are people literally starving to death in many parts of the world. They don't have the money to buy. There are also hungry people in America, too. Even Mr. Edwin Meese has not heard about it yet. I believe it will be brought to his attention.

I farmed for 42 years for myself and quit because as I see it there is going to have to be some changes made for farmers to survive economically.

Again thank you for a good article.

Social Security

Looking ahead to the new year, Social Security recipients may need to be reminded of some important changes in the laws:

Pensioners under 65 years of age will be able to earn $5,160 without losing benefits; those aged 65-70 will be able to earn $6,960.

Starting in 1984, many Social Security recipients will have to count part of their checks as taxable income. This means that many individuals whose incomes are more than $32,000 will have to make quarterly income-tax payments for the first time. One way to instruments such as municipal bonds, which are exempt from federal taxes and from state taxes in the states where issued. But note: tax-free interest must be counted as income when calculating how much of your Social Security benefits are taxable.

The Social Security tax on employers will rise to 7 percent on Jan. 1. The rate for the self-employed climbs to 11.3 percent. Employee tax remains 6.7 percent.

Tax reminders: The IRS has revised its simplified 1040EZ tax form so it can be checked by computers rather than humans. This change will permit 1983 tax returns filed by up to 20 million single taxpayers who earn less than $50,000 a year to be scanned by special computers. Each machine will be able to read up to 750 forms an hour, compared with an average hourly rate of 113 for IRS employees.

Taxpayers will also be able to use the short form 1040A rather than 1040 to deduct child-care credits and IRA contributions.

Be careful on deducting for personal political giving. New law sets limits and many people and groups may not donate at all. If you need advice about any aspect of your income-tax preparation, call the IRS toll-free number 1-800-424-1040.

The realization is now beginning to set in — this is big, really big — this AT&T breakup thing! So big that it will change forever the way business users and general consumers view their phone company and the phone itself. It's a new ball game.

Historically, phone service has been priced with a social aim in mind: to provide affordable service for anyone who wants it. This has been done through a complex array of subsidies, the most prominent of which keeps long-distance rates high in order to hold basic local fees down.

This worked as long as AT&T monopolized the long-distance business. Then along came approval from FCC to such rivals as MCI and Sprint to enter the long-distance service and it became necessary to allow AT&T to price its services according to actual costs.

The net effect is that people who dial few long-distance calls will suffer, while those who make frequent toll calls will benefit. FCC officials predict that the average bill for basic local service will rise from $11 a month today to about $26 a month in 1989, not taking into account effects of inflation. But they expect AT&T's toll rates to decline by 35 to 40 percent by 1989.

The most comprehensive government report ever put together on crime and justice in the U.S. demonstrates the extent of law breaking and the trouble that officials encounter in dealing with it.

Among key findings of a study issued on Dec. 4 by the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics and reported in the U.S. News and World Report:

Nearly 40 million Americans — almost 1 of every 5 citizens — have been arrested at some point for an offense more serious than a traffic violation.

In 3 of 4 violent crimes, assailants are the same race as their victims. In cases where the races differ, blacks are the attackers more often than whites.

The effectiveness of prosecution varies widely among cities. In New Orleans, 100 cases produce 59 conviction.

Crime rates per 100,000 people are highest in Western states, lowest in central and Appalachian areas. The urban violent-crime rate is nearly twice that of suburban areas and more than three times that of rural areas.

Despite the public's fear of crime, the average taxpayer spends $59 yearly for police protection, compared with $147 for highways and $208 for welfare.

The average American runs a higher risk of being a victim of violent crime than of being hurt in an auto accident.

Dear Abby

Host who serves alcohol is responsible for guests

DEAR READERS: Are you entertaining for the holidays? Whether you are having just a few friends over, or a houseful, if you plan to serve alcoholic beverages, here are a few timely suggestions:

Many folks (more than you think) prefer something non-alcoholic, so let your guests know that soft drinks, iced tea, fruit and vegetable juices are available, and give them a choice. (It's cheaper, too.)

Always serve something to nibble on with cocktails. (Food retards the flow of alcohol into the bloodstream.) Don't serve alcoholic drinks in king-sized glasses. They hold too much.

Never "load" drinks or force "just one more" on anyone. That kind of generosity does no one a favor.

White wine (a favorite these days) tends to go down more easily, so people are apt to consume more wine than liquor, but be aware that wine is no less intoxicating. And don't sell beer short as an intoxicant, either.

Never offer a departing guest "one for the road."

Stop serving alcohol well before the party is over, and bring out the coffee, tea and snacks. This is to allow the guests who have a buzz on time to sober up before they buzz off.

If a guest shows any signs of intoxication, do not let him drive home! Call a taxi or drive him home yourself. Or insist that he stay all night. (Better your sofa, or even your floor, than a hospital bed — or heaven forbid, the morgue.)

I want to emphatically state that everyone does not have the same tolerance level for alcohol, so the best rule to follow is: If you drink, don't drive, and if you drive, don't drink.

Have a happy, healthy, safe New Year. And if you're a host or hostess, help your friends have one, too.

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column dealing with burying pets, you noted that special arrangements could be made according to "religious preferences." Would you please tell me how I can determine the religion of my pet? I wouldn't want it observing Christmas when it should be celebrating Hannukkah.

EDGAR J. BURNS, PORT ORANGE, FLA.
DEAR MR. BURNS: Pets raised in a Christian home are assumed to be Christian. Pets raised in a Jewish home are assumed to be Jewish. I once knew a terrier in Sioux City, Iowa, named "Tex Lansburg" who refused to eat anything that wasn't kosher.

Dr. Donohue

Changing drug molecules

Dear Dr. Donohue: I hope you can clear up some confusion. I have been taking Diabinese for years to control my diabetes. I recently read an article that said this oral medicine contains Antabuse, which is used to keep alcoholics from drinking alcohol. I have continued to drink moderately and have had no problems, no reactions. My question is, why is Antabuse even in oral diabetic medication? I'm sure many diabetics are not aware of this, since for many, alcohol is not always totally forbidden. Please explain. — J.S.

There is no Antabuse (disulfiram) in the medicine you are using. Diabinese does, however, contain the drug sulfonylurea, which is chemically related to disulfiram. It helps control diabetes (the adult-onset type) by stimulating pancreas cells to produce insulin.

I can understand your concern. Antabuse alters normal body metabolism of alcohol, causing the liver to make large amounts of acetaldehyde when the person drinks. This leads to facial flushing, throbbing headache, nausea and vomiting, prospects that discourage alcohol use. When it is used as part of alcoholism therapy, close supervision by the physician is required, for reactions can be more violent than those I describe above.

Now, about drugs in general. Drugs are chemical substances, and small changes in their molecular structure can greatly alter their action in the body. The drug you ask about is a classic example. Rearranging a few molecules of the disulfiram (Antabuse) produces an entirely new drug (Diabinese), the oral diabetes medicine. Its structure resembles disulfiram, but it doesn't cause all of disulfiram's actions.

However, you do raise a good point. Because the drugs are related there for some the possibility of an Antabuse-like reaction when alcohol is ingested. So drinking alcohol while using the diabetes medicine to be aware of the potential for trouble and report such reactions should they occur.

FOR R.R. — The monitor your doctor is talking about is quite simple, really. You wear little discs on your chest (not inside your skin!) which are hooked to a little recorder. While you use it every single heartbeat is recorded and the doctor can read them later to find out more about your fast heart episodes.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For a better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Donohue in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Former baseball star arrested for theft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maury Wills, former base-stealing king and Most Valuable Player of the National League in 1962, is free on $1,500 bail after police arrested him for investigation of car theft, officers said.

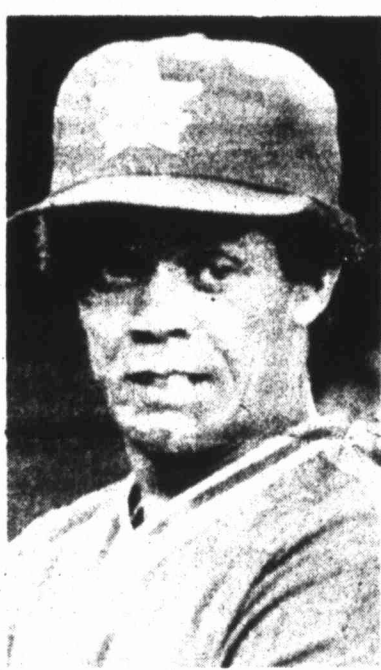

A white substance found in a glass vial beside Wills field-tested positive as cocaine, but further tests were needed to be sure, police Capt. John Sparkenbach said Tuesday. Wills was booked only in the car-theft case.

The former Los Angeles Dodger was arrested at about 5 a.m. Tuesday after two police officers pulled him over on Harbor Freeway when they spotted a broken window on the passenger side, said Sparkenbach.

Wills, 51, who briefly managed the Seattle Mariners, was freed after posting bail.

A Dodger executive confirmed that Wills was admitted to an Orange County rehabilitation unit for an unspecified problem last August. Fred Claire, executive vice president of the Dodgers, said the club had urged that Wills go and Wills agreed. Claire said he took Wills to the center.

"A broken window in a newer-model car might indicate it was stolen," Sparkenbach said in explaining why Wills was stopped. "So the officers ran the license plate and our computer system said it was stolen from (nearby) Lakewood."

It was listed stolen in April, Sparkenbach said.

"After the stop, the officers observed in plain view a six-inch glass vial with a white substance. It was field-tested positive for cocaine. We'll have to have a lab test on it, also," he said. "Additionally, they observed a clear-glass water-type pipe. That's commonly used in using cocaine."

Sparkenbach said the test-tube vial which had the white substance weighed 20 grams gross (the test tube and the substance). The water pipe weighed 42 grams gross, he said.

Sparkenbach said Wills, who told officers he lives in nearby Playa Del Rey and is self-employed, was free on $1,500 bail and is scheduled to appear for arraignment in the Compton court on Jan. 6.

Wills was called up by the Dodgers as a 26-year-old rookie during the 1959 season and helped spark them to the National League pennant and a World Series victory over the Chicago White Sox. He also helped Los Angeles win world championships in 1963 and 1965.

Studley joins Miami

Marino to start Saturday

MIAMI (AP) — Coach Don Shula has decided to throw record-setting rookie quarterback Dan Marino at the Seattle Seahawks Saturday.

Marino, who missed the last two games of the National Football League season with a sprained left knee, said Tuesday he was ready to play after a three-week break.

"It feels real good," Marino said. "I don't know what the percentage would be, but it doesn't feel bad at all. The brace restricts me just a little bit, but it's no problem."

"I should be playing Saturday." Shula made it official after practice, saying he was pleased with Marino's progress since the rookie's knee was hurt in Houston Dec. 4.

"Everything is going well, and I think it will continue to go well," Marino said. "I had a pretty good week of practice last week. Maybe if we had to play last week, there might have been some doubt, but the extra time off has been good for me."

The Dolphins, 12-4, had the Christmas weekend off as champions of the American Conference East. The Seahawks earned a trip to Miami by downing the Denver Broncos in the AFC wild-card playoff Saturday.

Shula has been confident all along that Marino could return to the lineup in the playoffs. Last week, the coach said he might have used Marino in the season-ending victory over the Jets if he'd needed his offensive leader. But Don Strock performed adequately in relief, and Marino got some more rest.

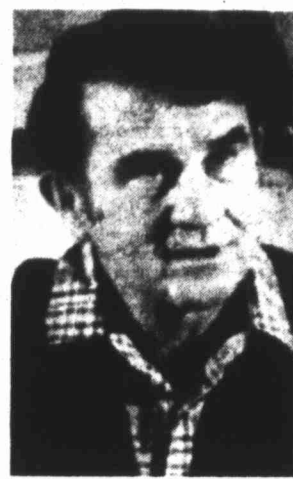

Shula said Marino looked mobile and sharp in workouts last week.

Since taking over from David Woodley six games into the season, Marino passed for 2,210 yards and 20 touchdowns, compiling a 7-2 record as a starter.

He is the first rookie quarterback ever voted to start the Pro Bowl.

Shula revealed another decision Tuesday — the hiring of former Houston Oilers Coach Chuck Studley to replace Bill Arnsparger as the Dolphins' defensive coordinator.

Arnsparger, who will become head coach at Louisiana State, will stay with the Dolphins until they are out of the playoffs.

CHUCK STUDLEY
...Signs with Dolphins

DAN MARINO
...Will start Saturday

Studley, 54, started the NFL season as defensive coordinator for the Oilers. When Ed Biles quit in October, Studley was named interim head coach of the Oilers.

Shula said he was impressed with the way the Oilers jumped ahead 14-0 in their Dec. 4 meeting with the Dolphins and that he also liked the San Francisco 49ers defenses Studley masterminded. Studley was defensive coordinator with the 49ers two seasons ago when they won the Super Bowl.

Prior to four seasons in San Francisco, Studley had been an assistant at Cincinnati for 10 years.

Safety Lyle Blackwood, who strained a tendon in his ankle against the Jets Dec. 17, worked out Tuesday.

And wide receiver Jimmy Cefalo, knocked out of the season in September by a knee injury, ran plays for the scout team in his first practice since surgery.

Cash leads Australia to Davis Cup

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Pat Cash, forsaking his image as a brash, volatile teen-ager, scored the clinching victory as Australia reclaimed the Davis Cup Wednesday by defeating Sweden in the final of the year-long international tennis competition.

Cash, at 18 the youngest ever to play singles for Australia in the Davis Cup final, scored a 6-4, 6-1, 6-1 victory over Sweden's Joakim Nystrom to give his team an unbeatable 3-1 lead in the best-of-five final.

The series wound up 3-2 when Sweden's Mats Wilander defeated John Fitzgerald 6-8, 6-0, 6-1 in the closing match, made a best-of-three competition since it had no bearing on the outcome. Wilander scored both victories for Sweden, having won the opening match of the competition.

Australia won the trophy for the 25th time — just three short of the record 28 victories by the united states — and for the first time since 1977.

Cash, born just five miles from the Kooyong center court, played inspired tennis in front of his hometown crowd.

Nystrom, 20, a surprise selection for the final, always was tentative and never managed to stamp his authority on the contest.

Cash, serving and volleying impressively, was a model of calm throughout the match.

He was mobbed by his teammates after his victory, which took just one hour 38 minutes.

Cash described his victory as "the greatest moment of my life."

The Australian more than made up for his loss to Nystrom in the semi-final of the New South Wales Open earlier in the month and repaid the faith shown in him by team captain Neale Fraser.

Fraser selected Cash despite his brittle temperament and the teen-ager was at his brilliant best Wednesday.

Full of confidence and aggression, he took the match to Nystrom from the start.

Landry will return next season

Has no intentions of quitting now

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry ended all speculation Tuesday on whether he would return for another year by saying, "I don't have any intention of quitting now."

The Cowboys suffered a 24-17 upset loss Monday to Los Angeles, marking the fourth consecutive year the Cowboys got into the National Football League playoffs but failed to reach the Super Bowl. Landry said his coaches will take several weeks off, then study game films to determine where the team went wrong in losing its final three games of the season.

"We're down," Landry said, "It took us three years to get back the last time we were in this mess."

Landry's contract with the Cowboys ends next year, giving him 25 years in the NFL.

He held an impromptu news conference in his office 24 hours after the loss to the Rams, to clarify his intentions.

Asked if he planned to do some television commentary, which he has done in the past after playoff losses, Landry quipped, "Nobody has invited me. I guess that's the way it goes."

Two Houston Cougars quit squad

HOUSTON (AP) — Two University of Houston basketball players Benny Anders and Braxton Clark, quit the team and returned to Houston shortly before the team played in the finals of the Chaminade Classic in Honolulu.

The Houston Chronicle reported that Anders and Clark were on an airplane en route to Houston as the Cougars tipped off against Fresno State in the final, a game which Houston lost.

Houston Coach Guy Lewis made no comment, but the Chronicle said Anders and Clark were upset over a lack of playing time. Both had been starters earlier in the season, but have been on the bench during recent games. Anders averaged 7.3 points per game and Clark was averaging 2.6 points.

Anders told radio station KIKK that he quit because he didn't think he was playing enough. "I feel that I'm playing well enough to be a starter for this university," he said.

Anders said there was little chance that he would return to the team.

"I talked to him (Lewis) and we still couldn't come up with any agreement," Anders said. "I said that, 'Well, this is goodbye.'"

USFL's Gamblers and Lions feud over Sims

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. District Court in Detroit is a neutral field, and neither the Houston Gamblers nor the Detroit Lions will have an edge when a judge determines where Billy Sims will play football next season, attorneys say.

Judge Robert E. DeMascio consolidated all further legal action in Sims' contract dispute with the two teams in federal court Tuesday, saying he would decide on Jan. 25 where Sims plays in 1984.

The ruling came after DeMascio refused to dismiss a suit by the Lions of the National Football League seeking to void Sims' contract with the United States Football League's Gamblers.

He also denied the running back's request to lift a Texas court's temporary restraining order barring Detroit from interfering with Sims contractual relations with the Gamblers. "There's no such thing as a home field advantage in federal court," said Detroit attorney Edward Bell. "However, trying the case in federal court has tremendous value in that at least there will be some definitive position as to the validity of the contract."

David F. Simon, another lawyer not involved in the case, said the Lions attorneys might get only a "psychological advantage" by having the case heard in Detroit.

"In this case, you prefer to have it in your own backyard," said Simon. "You're in the judge's court every day, and that has a psychological advantage for the attorneys. (Gamblers co-owner Jerry) Argovitz will probably retain local attorneys to negate that advantage though."

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have many fine ideas for gaining whatever you desire and also have good judgment. Spend the evening with an interesting group.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have been endeavoring to garner data you need, but now it comes to you quite easily. Make plans to realize your ambitions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) With the onset of the coming year, this is a good day to decide how to make your future brighter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take your ambitious plans to those who can help you. Your career should be uppermost in your life right now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new interests that could prove very profitable in the future and plan how to add them to present activities.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Spending more time with the one you love can patch up any misunderstandings and you can reach fine rapport.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be so radiant and will gain favors from others without even asking for them. Reach early to be more independent and to learn to work since later on your progeny will have to rely on own efforts and ingenuity.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Musicians rise to fame from oil patch

RANKIN, Texas (AP) — A pinch of Tennessee music, sifted through the hands of retired Rankin oilfield worker E.W. "Waylon" Seals, got three of Seals' sons on the music business track.

Two internationally reputed musical groups, Seals and Crofts and England Dan and John Ford Coley, have their roots in the West Texas oil patch.

Waylon Seals came to Texas in 1919 with his parents, Fred and Eunice Seals, "because there was work in the oil fields." The family's musical talents were saved for evenings on the porch at Rankin. Playing music was a kind of relief from the back-breaking oil patch labor.

Like most country music success stories, the Seals' story revolves around music learned in the home.

"My dad was a banjo man when he lived back in Big Sandy — that's in Benton County, Tenn.," said the 71-year-old Waylon Seals. "He taught me what I know about music. My boys learned from us and taught themselves."

Danny Seals, at 35 the youngest of those three sons, was born at McCamey in 1948. He lives today at Hendersonville, Tenn.

Dubbed "England Dan" at the beginning of his musical career by his older brother Jim, Danny Seals teamed with Dallas musician Coley and the match lasted for 15 years. The duo's list of hits recorded during the 1970s is impressive.

Jim Seals, who now lives in Costa Rica, was born in Comanche County at Sidney on Oct. 17, 1942. He began playing music at the age of 4 and, by high school, played several instruments well.

Jim Seals and his musical partner

Dash Crofts, of Cisco, met in junior high school. They released their first album in 1968. Since then, six of 12 albums went gold (sold 500,000 copies), and three went platinum (sold 1 million copies).

Eddie Ray Seals was born in 1934 at Gorman. Waylon Seals and his wife were living at Iraan, where Waylon Seals and his father had found work in the oilfield.

Eddie Ray Seals, the only one of Waylon Seals' three boys who doesn't count on music for his living, will be 50 next year. While his livelihood comes from his work as a real estate investor in his home town of Hendersonville, Tenn., he still plays music regularly.

Waylon Seals still loves to play music, but arthritis makes fretting his favorite old Gibson six-string flattop harder than before.

"I still play guitar, but just enough to get along," said Waylon Seals, his thinning hair still jet black and cropped in a burr.

"I'm not near as slick as I used to be. But it's like riding a bicycle. You always remember how to stay on the thing, once you learn, but as you get older, you just can't pedal as fast."

"That oldest boy of mine, Eddie Ray, he can flat play a guitar. He's always done his own show, up in Dallas, out in Las Vegas or now in Nashville," said his father.

"Jim won the state fiddle championship when he was 9 years old," Waylon Seals said during a recent chat at his kitchen table.

"They wouldn't let Jim play saxophone in the Rankin High School Band because he couldn't read music," said Waylon Seals, but Jim Seals played his self-taught sax well enough in 1958 that country music legend Gene Autrey, who heard the boy at age 15 on an audition tape, sent his promoter to Big Lake to sign Jim Seals to a contract with "The Champs," Autrey's band.

"Then, the youngest, Danny, used to play a big ol' bull fiddle with the rest of us, (Waylon Seals, Jim Seals and Crofts).

"We all played on a television show one time in the '50s and people in the audience got the biggest kick out of watching Danny. He was so little that he'd have to jump clean off his feet to reach some of them low notes way up on that fiddle neck. He was only 4 or 5 years old then," Waylon Seals recalled with a chuckle.

Waylon Seals and his mother Eunice, 89 and a widow since 1964, live together in a modest frame house in the middle of Rankin.

Blown-out tire blamed for bus wreck

DEVERS, Texas (AP) — A blown-out tire on a church bus is believed to have caused a collision Friday that killed nine people and injured 14 others east of Houston, authorities said.

A 191-foot scalloped tire mark indicates the left front tire on the bus went down slowly and then blew, causing the vehicle to veer to left into the path of a tractor-trailer rig, investigating Justice of the Peace Ronnie Davis said Tuesday.

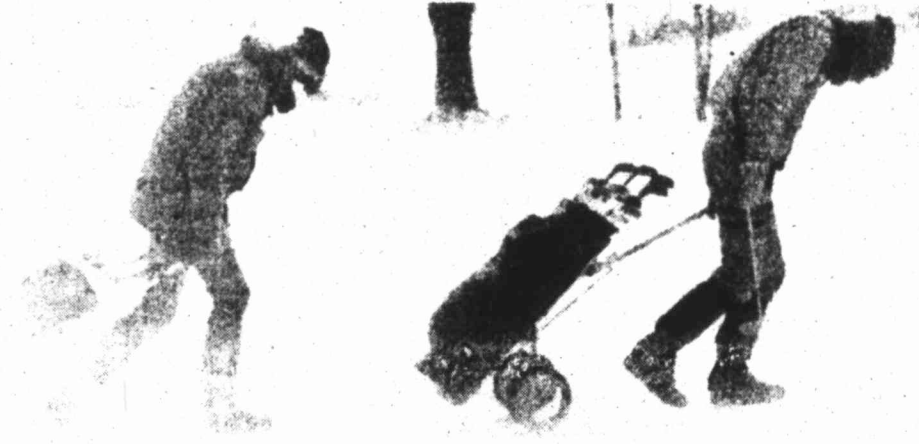

The nine fatalities included eight people aboard the bus and the driver of the rig. The accident occurred on Texas Highway 61 about 40 miles east of Houston. No other skid marks were found, Davis said. Neither the bus nor the truck is believed to have applied any brakes before the collision, investigators said.

"The road was straight and narrow and as dry as it could be," he said. "It was cold, but there was no ice."

Autopsy results made available Tuesday indicated both drivers, Walter Edward Odum, 39, of Daisetta, and the Rev. Leo Walters, 56, of Nome, were free of drugs or alcohol.

The bus was carrying members of the Lilly of the Valley Church of Anahuac to another church in Beaumont, 50 miles away, for the last night of a week-long Christmas revival.

Winter is toughest for Matamoros poor

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Victor Jara is worried about heating fuel costs this unusually cold winter.

In his concerns, he is not unlike his American counterparts just across the Rio Grande.

But Jara's concerns run from day to day, not month to month, and there is nowhere for his parents and younger brothers to turn if he fails to find money for fuel.

Like most of his neighbors in the poor Colonia Buenavista, Jara doesn't know if he will have the 25 pesos, about 12 cents, needed to buy firewood to keep his family warm when the next arctic blast hits the border later this week.

The residents of Buenavista aren't alone. Conservative estimates place the number of Matamoros families without indoor heating at 100,000, roughly one-third of the city's population.

Throughout town, small fires burned in dirt yards beside one-room frame shacks to ward off the sub-freezing weather of the past week.

Jara said families keep fires burning outdoors and bring coals into the house in a bucket that radiates heat. Many of the city's poorest residents are recent immigrants from the country where they used the same method to keep warm, often burning cactus when wood was in short supply.

Jara said the coals are the only heating source many families have ever known and so people are familiar with the dangers inherent in the system.

Jara's neighbors know how to prevent fires from igniting their tinderbox colonies and ventilation is rarely a problem in their drafty, thin-walled homes. City police report only one death attributable to the cold so far this year and no homes destroyed by fire.

Unlike Brownsville and other Rio Grande Valley cities, Matamoros does not provide any public shelters or other forms of assistance to those suffering from the cold. Instead, there is a sense of community spirit, of neighbor helping neighbor, even though there is little to share.

"It is hard for all of us," Jara said. "But God will provide."

Monday night brought milder temperatures — the low 40s — and relief from the stinging, unrelenting cold of the weekend. Children, wrapped in blankets, joined their papas who gathered around outdoor fires to share jokes and gossip.

Inside, mamas prepared hot coffee for their men.

Around other fires, groups of teen-age boys sipped tequila from paper cups and traded stories about girls.

A few blocks from Buenavista, on the highway to Ciudad Victoria, those who could afford butane heaters were lined up to fill their tanks. About 200 people queued up to buy fuel. Those in line said they had not been able to buy fuel until over the weekend because fuel lines froze Saturday.

Few tourists saw the butane lines or the Buenavista fires or Jara and his brothers. But anyone crossing the International Bridge could see those who suffer most from poverty and the bone-chilling cold.

Wrapped in thin, cotton blankets and carrying babies with runny noses and teary eyes were three "India Marias," begging women dressed in indigenous clothes shuffling between cars.

One woman said she and her two small children are homeless and, as always, are sleeping in the street.

"With the help of God this (weather) won't last too long," she said.
