Off the wall: Big Brother

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — It's 1984 and just as George Orwell wrote, citizens are reminded Big Brother "is watching you" — at a supermarket. The market named Big Brother was the target of pranksters with a literary bent, who draped painted sheets bearing the words "is watching you" under the store's sign. That completed the phrase Orwell used in his 1948 novel, "Nineteen Eighty-Four," about a totalitarian government that dominated every aspect of life.

Krueger, Hance agree to debate

AUSTIN (AP) — Opponents of U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, vying for the Democratic candidacy for the senate seat from Texas, say they have agreed to a debate with their rival.

BOB KRUEGER

Hance issued the challenge Wednesday as he began a statewide tour, calling his "chief rivals" to appear with him in a series of debates throughout Texas.

He did not mention the names of his opponents, former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Texas, and state Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

"It's time for the voters of Texas to see first hand, just how sharp the contrasts are between me and my opponents," said Hance. "I know why I'm running for the Senate, but I'm not sure about the other two candidates, and I bet the voters of Texas aren't either."

Doggett responded quickly with a letter to Hance and a carbon copy to Krueger, saying, "Absolutely," according to Paul Begala, Doggett's press secretary.

Krueger was campaigning and unavailable for comment. But a spokesman said Krueger supports the concept of debates. "We debated (Democratic Senate candidate) Joe Christie in 1978. We attempted to debate (U.S. Sen. John) Tower in 1978; he never would. We have no problem with the debate concept," said Robert Mann, Krueger's media consultant.

"Actually, I'm not sure what the big deal is. We've been on the same platform with Hance and Doggett at least four times," said Mann.

From Austin, Hance went to San Antonio, Houston, Beaumont and Texarkana, reissuing his challenge at each stop.

In Texarkana late Wednesday, Hance said the debate challenges were issued Wednesday morning to Doggett and Krueger offices. Doggett had accepted the challenge, but Krueger had not yet responded, Hance said.

Hance said he had never gone into a contested race as anything except the underdog, but added, "I've never lost a campaign."

He is in his third two-year term in Washington, previously serving in the Texas Senate.

Hance said in Texarkana that his polls show Doggett's campaign with much more "enthusiasm" than Krueger's campaign.

Oil industry safety practices targeted

By WILLIAM GARLAND
Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Hold on to your hardhats out in the oil patch. The federal government is ready to sweep through the oil and gas business with a hefty set of regulations that would enforce new safety requirements for almost all phases of oil and gas drilling.

The proposed regulations by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration would be the first since 1971 aimed squarely at oil and gas drilling, one of the most hazardous industries.

If implemented, the regulations would cost the petroleum industry between $22.3 million and $24.3 million annually, according to the published proposal. However, according to OSHA, the industry would save between $150 million and $164 million in 1984 with a reduction of the injury and fatality incidence rate.

The cost per drilling rig or servicing operation would be relatively small, according to the proposal, which estimates a compliance figure of $2,639 for drilling and $3,054 for servicing.

Many of the proposals undoubtedly will be challenged by petroleum industry officials who will have a chance to testify, along with other witnesses, in public hearings that could be held by late spring in Texas and Oklahoma in addition to Washington.

"We went through a flurry of that (the possibility of stiffer regulations) a few years ago," said Julian Martin of Austin, executive director of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association. "Here we come with another round of it and we're not anticipating it with much joy, I'll tell you," he said.

However, some industry officials, especially in the servicing area, have asked for more specific regulations because of the number of "general duty" citations issued by OSHA, said Tom Seymour, director of OSHA's office of fire protection engineering and systems safety standards. The citations are issued for work sites in which federal regulations are not clearly violated, but conditions are considered unsafe.

The regulations would affect Texas more than any other state. Out of 2,710 oil and gas drilling rigs operating during a slow cold period last week nationwide, there were 893 rigs operating in Texas, according to the Hughes Tool Co. rig count.

Wreck kills Ackerly man

A 32-year-old man from the Courtney community near Ackerly was killed and a Big Spring man was injured in a one-vehicle accident about 4 1/2 miles west of Stanton, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

Larry Gene Martin, 32, was pronounced dead at the scene at 4:15 a.m. Wednesday by Martin County Justice of the Peace F. E. Kennedy. Martin's brother, Lonnie Dean

Martin, 27, of Garden City Route remains in fair condition at Midland Memorial Hospital, according to a DPS spokesman.

The two men were travelling south around 3 a.m. Wednesday on F.M. 829 "at a high rate of speed" as they approached Interstate Highway 20, according to the DPS report by troopers Victor Taylor and Wade Turner. Their vehicle drifted into the northbound lane, and the driver overcorrected and brought the car into the southbound lane, according to the report.

The vehicle then ran off the right side of the road, hit a drainage ditch, and went down the embankment in a skid. The vehicle rolled 2 1/2 times before coming to a rest. Both men were thrown out of the car, the report stated.

Services for Martin will be at 4 p.m. Friday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel. Burial will be in See Wreck page 2-A

Never too late

Woman, 65, realizes dream as college grad

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

When 65-year-old Irene Smith registered for college four years ago, she had no illusions of preppy outfits, sorority parties and campus mixers. Instead, she was realizing a dream she had harbored more than 40 years.

Mrs. Smith was 61 when she registered at Howard College. She earned an associate degree from the community college and then began driving back and forth to the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa where she graduated in December with a degree in literature.

Looking back at the past four years, she said "I feel like I've accomplished quite a bit. It is something I wanted to do all my life. I'm really proud. Four years ago I hadn't even finished high school."

Mrs. Smith dropped out of school in the 10th grade while living in Dawson County and told herself she would return the following fall. But obstacles kept tripping her on her return to school.

"When I was 16, I got married. I was bound down with kids, cotton and cattle," she says with a laugh. Still, she kept telling herself that someday she would find the time to finish high school.

"My children didn't get to miss school ever," she said. Mrs. Smith let her children know they were expected to go to college. "That was a part of the plan for their life," she said.

Time slipped by, and Mrs. Smith found her children grown up and on their own. Her son, Harold, lives in Fort Worth. Another son, Kenneth, lives in Seagraves and her daughter, Betty Lyda, lives in Lubbock.

Her husband, Woody, retired from farming, and the couple moved to Big Spring. They agreed to travel. School again didn't fit in to her plans and she began pushing the idea out of her mind.

But there were reminders of her

COLLEGE GRAD — Big Springer Irene Smith, 65, recently realized a life-long dream when she graduated with a degree in literature from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. Mrs. Smith returned to campus as a co-ed at age 61.

thwarted plan. "Everytime I'd go down Birdwell, there was Howard College. But I'd begun to think I was over the hill. My husband wanted to travel, and I didn't want to tie him down with school."

The dream of going to college nagged at her. She began reading about the General Equivalency Diploma (GED) exam, a high school equivalency test, and decided to contact Howard College about it.

"It took courage to go down there and tell them I hadn't finished high school," Mrs. Smith said. But she got the information, took the test, passed it, and, inspired by her attempt, enrolled in classes at Howard College.

"I couldn't believe it," she said. "I was never as happy about anything in my life. That had been my aim."

Several of her friends were shocked by her enrollment. "I had people asking me 'Why? Why would you go back? I wasn't sure why. I just knew I wanted to.'"

Mrs. Smith has both sweet and sour memories of her life as a co-ed. Although she laughs about it now, she remembers her first day on the Howard College campus was rather embarrassing.

"I went to the campus early because I wasn't acquainted with it. It was getting close to class time and I couldn't find my room. See Grad page 2-A

Projects on board agenda

Colorado River Municipal Water District Board members will meet Thursday (Jan. 12) to consider $200,000 of projects and expenditures.

The board of directors will set fixed monthly charges to member cities. Most of the district's other rates are affected by the fixed rate.

In addition, members will consider developing a well in a Winkler County well field. Members also will consider a diversion on Beals Creek in an effort to upgrade the quality of water from Lake E.V. Spence.

Because of damage caused by last month's freeze, the board also will consider replacing damaged valves and stocking up on larger dimension pipe.

Also, directors will appropriate funds to pay for water royalties for 1984 in Ward County and for weather modification efforts.

Dying business

Longer life spans cause coffin sales to suffer

CHICAGO (AP) — People just aren't dying to do business with coffin makers the way they used to.

With an increase in Americans' life span and a sharp rise in cremations, some industry officials say the coffin business is suffering.

"You really can't sell two of them for one individual," says George Lemke, executive director of the Casket Manufacturers Association of America.

The result is a shrinking industry: the number of coffin makers, distributors and assemblers has dropped from 600 to 400 since 1967, Lemke said.

"There have been a number of bankruptcies and liquidations in the industry in the last 10 to 12 years," Lemke said. "There are people who closed their doors and gave up because of limited profitability and competition."

For those who survived, competition in the $620 million-a-year industry has become fierce, Lemke said.

"I think what you're talking about is a mature industry that has become increasingly competitive," said Lemke, whose Evanston-based association represents 200 companies and suppliers nationwide. "You're confronted with a stable to declining market and that creates a shakeup."

Competition is much like any other business — with the exception of price wars, coffin makers say. The best way to be No. 1 is to give the customer a reasonable price, good service and high quality.

In these times when quick delivery sells, the emphasis is on service, said Dennis Fish, sales manager for Brenner Casket Co. in Chicago.

"The customer (in an urban area) has come to expect one-day service," Fish said. "He orders a casket, he wants it the next day. That's a big part of this business."

Coffin makers can be innovative, too, offering different styles, such as a "princess model," a daintier model designed for women, said Patrick Forkin, of AMEDCO Inc., the nation's second-largest casket maker, which is enjoying a flourishing business.

Yet, even with different models and top-notch service, coffin makers are facing changing times. One major trend that's cast a pall on the industry is the rise in cremations, which are becoming cheaper and more acceptable.

Lemke said cremations have doubled in the last eight years to 12 percent of people who die, and nearly 75 percent of these are without caskets.

Cremated remains are commonly stored in urns, which can then be put in columbariums — a building or vault with niches for family space.

Last year, there were more than 230,000 cremations in the United States, said Jack Springer, director of The Cremation Association of North America.

The reasons: it's cheaper, families no longer live close together, and there has been a relaxing of attitudes in the Roman Catholic Church, which no longer discourages the practice.

Springer, whose society has 575 members, said a cremation may cost about $500 or $600 while a modest funeral — with burial plot, grave marker, casket and other necessities — could cost $2,000 to $3,000.

Cremations also have an impact on other areas of the "death industry," saving other costs, such as hiring a hearse.

Even richer people are opting for the urn or the cardboard box, Springer said. He said in posh Marin County, Calif., cremations have reached 40 percent.

But in the Bible Belt, fewer than 1 percent of residents are choosing cremation.

Springer also said cremations are more popular because "parents no longer live down the street," he said. "When someone passes away, it can be handled quickly."

And the practice is not about to fade away, Springer said. "Buggy makers would have liked automakers to go away," he said. "It wasn't going to happen. It's the same for cremations ... Eventually, the coffin may well be a thing of the past."

Some disagree. With casket and full funeral, "there's a degree of reverence which you can't get in cremation," said Forkin, who said his Springfield, Ill., company does not consider cremation a threat and reports sales of $95 million a year.

The coffin-maker business also is losing business simply because people are living longer, in part, because of better health care.

"One of the situations, you've got a ceiling on the market," Lemke explained. "There are only X number of deaths a year."

For example, he said, the mortality rate of 9.4 per thousand in 1973-74 has dropped to about 8.6 per thousand. Nearly two million Americans died last year.

Recent government statistics show that from 1970 to 1980, the average life span for a man increased from about 67 years to more than 70 years. For women, it was an increase from about 74 years to nearly 78 years.

Yet not everyone in the coffin industry sees a gloomy outlook because of longer lives.

"There's a point where people aren't going to live forever," Fish said. "It will level out eventually."

I met up with a man, and he said 'Here, let me show you.' I had been in the wrong building."

By the time she got across campus into the right building "I was late. I opened the door, stepped in, and the door banged real loud behind me." Mrs. Smith remembers looking up sheepishly at a class full of students looking back at their tardy classmate.

"I cringed, but I went in. That was my very first class, and I'll never forget it."

Becoming a student meant changes for her family. "My children would have to call me and see if they could come visit. That broke my heart, because I wanted them to know they could visit anytime. But they had to make appointments. They came when I said they could come."

Mrs. Smith took her study time seriously. Her husband was careful not to interrupt. If he had a question he'd begin with "I hate to bother you," Mrs. Smith said. "He's real proud of me. He kept my car serviced, bought the groceries, and even cleaned the house. He gave me his total support."

She found herself reading assignments or writing papers far into the night. She also found herself wondering if she was doing the right thing and thought about quitting.

"I would think to myself, 'Why am I doing this,' and then I'd think 'Because I want to,'" she said. She found encouragement from her family and from classmates and teachers at Howard College and UTPB.

With her new degree in hand, she says now that all the hard working and hours of driving were worth her efforts. And she has advice for other people with a dream.

"If you want something, you have to start it. That's the hardest part, but all you have to do is start."

Nation's schools tested, ranked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary T.H. Bell, in a bid to dramatize the shortcomings of American schools, today released statistics ranking all 50 states on their dropout rates, test scores, teacher salaries and other measures.

Bell scheduled a news conference today to discuss the state rankings. The figures showed that among 28 states where college-bound students customarily take the American College Test, the best average was compiled by students in Wisconsin, followed by Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and Colorado.

Among 22 states where students usually take the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the leaders were: New Hampshire, Oregon, Vermont, California and Delaware.

The states with the worst ACT average were from the bottom: Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, West Virginia and, in a tie for the fifth lowest, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Those with the lowest SAT average were: South Carolina, District of Columbia, Georgia, North Carolina and Hawaii.

From 1972 to 1982, college entrance exam scores fell in every state; only the District of Columbia registered an increase.

Some of the figures Bell spotlighted have been publicized previously, but some were being released for the first time from data culled from his National Center on Education Statistics and other sources.

New statistics showed that the high school dropout rate got worse from 1972 to 1982. Only 72.8 percent of ninth graders now stay to get their high school diploma, down from 77.2 percent a decade earlier.

The District of Columbia had the worst dropout rate in 1982, followed by Mississippi, Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida. The dropout rate that year was not available for Georgia, which ranked 49th out of 51 in 1972.

The states with the highest percentage of graduates were: Minnesota, North Dakota, Iowa, Hawaii and South Dakota.

Cloud-seeding project gets state grant okay

The Colorado River Municipal Water District has been granted another four years for its weather modification experiments.

The Texas Water Commission Tuesday unanimously approved the new permit for what has become one of the longest continuously operated cloud-seeding experiments in the nation. There was no opposition to the permit.

Since 1971 CRMWD has seeded convective clouds in storm systems over a target area from Big Spring, Lamesa, Post and Roscoe. The project began as an effort to induce more rainfall on the Lake J.B. Thomas and Lake E.V. Spence watersheds. During the last 10 years it became a research project in conjunction with the Texas Department of Water Resources and for a time with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

CRMWD uses two airplanes in the program. Reports from the study show a strong statistical picture in support of increased rainfall within the target area and downwind of that area, CRMWD officials said.

The 33 pages of proposals, single-spaced in three columns, were issued last week in the Federal Register. Seymour predicted that the regulations in some form would probably be approved in the fall, after a public comment period that will last until March 5 and after hearings that he said probably would be held in late May or June.

The new regulations are an attempt to specifically address health and safety dangers that exist only on oil and gas rigs and with oilwell servicing, he said. OSHA's safety regulations for general types of industry are too broad to effectively cover the oil and gas industry, explained Seymour.

He said that oil and gas servicing industries show a slightly higher incidence of injuries and death than the drilling industry, but that both are more hazardous than most industrial jobs.

The regulations address emergency planning and escape from drilling and servicing operations, illumination, raising and lowering derricks, fire prevention and protection, handling drilling fluids and chemicals, handling and racking pipe, drill collars and tubular goods, riding hoisting equipment and procedures related to drill stem testing, among most other operations.

The proposals would attempt to reduce injuries and deaths related to falls from drilling platforms, entanglements in machinery and well blowouts, among other causes.

One regulation would require that a person trained and certified in first aid techniques be present at all drilling or servicing sites.

Everlys plan comeback

NEW YORK — "Do I miss the success? Not really," says Don Everly, the older of the Everly Brothers who rocketed to fame in the '50s and now are looking for a comeback with a concert broadcast, and maybe a video disc and tour.

Don, now 46, and brother Phil, 44, famous for such hits as "Bye Bye Love," "Wake Up Little Susie" and "Cathy's Clown," broke up in 1973 when Don put down his guitar and walked off stage, but got back together for a concert in London last September. The concert will be broadcast Jan. 14 on Home Box Office.

"Time has taken care of a lot of things in my life," said Don in an interview Wednesday. "We've resolved our personal differences. I am really happy now — in my life, in my career.

"Do I miss the success? Not really."

But Phil indicated the Everlys aren't taking any chances.

"We now use two mikes instead of one," he quipped.

Gina files $10 million suit

NEW YORK — Lawyers for Trader Vic's, the popular restaurant on the ground floor of the posh Plaza Hotel, will get to question the dentist of actress Gina Lollobrigida, who's suing the eatery for $10 million in the case of a broken tooth.

The suit stems from an incident June 17, 1980, when the 55-year-old actress says she broke a tooth while eating shrimp. She contends that from biting into a "hard foreign object" she suffered injury to her "head, body, limbs and nervous system" and that her occupation was affected.

Permission to question Dr. Marc Benhuri was granted by state Supreme Court Justice Andrew R. Tyler in a ruling Tuesday. He also said the lawyers could look over Miss Lollobrigida's dental records.

In 1979, Trader Vic's was sued by actor Yul Brynner who claimed he contracted trichinosis while eating spare ribs. That case was resolved in an out-of-court settlement.

Danny Kaye hospitalized

LOS ANGELES — Entertainer Danny Kaye, who landed in the hospital after serving as grand marshal of the Rose Bowl parade on Monday, was reported in fair condition recovering from bronchitis.

"He went right from the Rose Bowl. He flipped a coin to determine which side would kick the ball, got into a car and was taken to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center," said Warren Cowan, publicist for the 70-year-old stage and screen veteran.

"I talked with him today, and he's coming along," Cowan said Wednesday.

Kaye, known for his philanthropic work with UNICEF as well as his entertainment activities including his films and the 1964 Emmy award-winning "Danny Kaye Show," underwent quadruple coronary bypass surgery in February.

Woman sets jet on fire

LOS ANGELES — A woman jailed today tried to set her clothing afire and "scorched" the lavatory of an airborne jetliner carrying 148 people before being overcome by federal sky marshals, authorities said.

The Boeing 727 from Dallas was on a landing approach 35 miles east of Los Angeles International Airport when the fire broke out Wednesday afternoon, FBI spokesman John Hoos said.

Crew members quickly extinguished the blaze, the spokesman said.

Audrey Jean Taylor, 31, of Las Vegas, Nev., was booked for investigation of destroying an aircraft, Hoos said.

The federal marshals were already aboard Delta Flight 331 and made the arrest while the plane was still in the air, Hoos said.

"During the course of the flight Taylor set fire to a lavatory on the aircraft which was extinguished by the crew," Hoos said. "Two U.S. marshals aboard the flight assisted the crew and placed Taylor in their custody."

She was turned over to the FBI at the Los Angeles airport just before 5 p.m. PST.

Another cease-fire proposed

BEIRUT — Lebanese officials reported today that Syria and Israel have endorsed a proposal to separate Lebanon's civil war combatants but they said U.S. Marines should stay in Beirut even if the security plan takes effect.

If the plan is implemented, President Amin Gemayel will ask the nations in the multinational force — the United States, France, Italy and Britain — to keep troops in Lebanon in support of the effort to stabilize Lebanon's cease-fire and extend government control, the officials said.

Neither the Syrian nor Israeli governments had immediate comment on the report they had approved the plan.

In southern Lebanon, Israeli occupation forces were attacked three times today, a day after Israel staged its largest air bombardment since it invaded Lebanon in June 1982.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said a grenade was hurled at an Israeli convoy, flattening a tire on one truck but causing no injuries. Earlier, reporters in Sidon said two Israeli soldiers were believed slightly hurt in the attack.

The Tel Aviv military command said a Lebanese man was injured when a mine exploded as an Israeli patrol walked by. And Israeli soldiers safely detonated a grenade that was thrown at them, the military sources said.

Shiite Moslems had vowed retaliation not only against Israel but against the United States in response for Wednesday's Israeli attack, aimed at pro-Iranian guerrilla bases in central Lebanon's Syrian-controlled Bekaa valley.

The state radio said more than 100 were killed and

Troops fire on rioters

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Army troops and police opened fire on rioters in Tunisia today as a crowd tried to set fire to one of the city's largest stores. At least three people were wounded.

It was the first report of major violence in Tunisia since Tuesday. Rioting erupted in the southern part of the north African country Dec. 29 after the government announced it was doubling the price of bread and increasing the cost of other basic staples.

400 injured in the raid, including many civilians. Searchers hunted today for more victims in the rubble, and residents throughout the area staged a general strike to protest the attack.

Father admits to killing son

WASHINGTON — Prosecutors are recommending no more than 15 years in prison for a 66-year-old retired Army officer who sobbed in court as he admitted shooting to death his badly burned son.

Retired Lt. Col. Stanley Stephenson pleaded guilty Wednesday to manslaughter while armed in the killing of his son, Martin, who was burned in a suicide attempt 2½ years earlier. A prosecutor quoted Stephenson as saying he shot his son as he lay in a bed at Walter Reed Army Medical Center "to let him die."

In exchange for the guilty plea, prosecutors dropped a second-degree murder charge and agreed to recommend a maximum sentence of no more than 15 years. Stephenson could be sentenced to life in prison.

The 27-year-old Stephenson had been admitted to the hospital last Feb. 24. The next morning, he was found in his hospital bed shot in the head.

"This is a very tragic case," U.S. Attorney Joseph E. diGenova said. "You had a situation where a bereaved parent was overcome with grief and concern for his badly burned son."

Martin Stephenson, who had been burned over 80 percent of his body in the suicide attempt in 1980, was in the hospital for surgery on burn scar tissue, said assistant U.S. Attorney Peggy Ellen in District of Columbia Superior Court. But she said he told his surgeon he did not want to go through with it.

The next morning, Ms. Ellen said, Stanley Stephenson told a nurse that he had shot his son and asked the nurse "to let him die."

Ms. Ellen said hospital officials found a covering over Martin Stephenson's head. A pistol and an expended shell casing were found in a wastebasket in the room, she said.

Martin Stephenson died later that day.

Judge Warren R. King released Stephenson on his personal recognizance pending sentencing March 21.

Kennedy checks in for tests

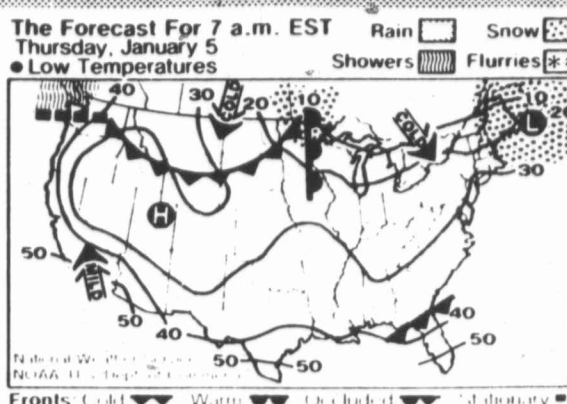

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, hospitalized with a variety of ailments, will be out "in a day or two" and plans to go to Florida to visit his ailing mother, his press secretary says.

The Massachusetts Democrat was admitted to George Washington University Hospital on Monday suffering from a mild case of hepatitis, an ulcer, dehydration and symptoms of gastrointestinal flu.

Doctors have confirmed that Kennedy, 51, had hepatitis-A, which is caused by contaminated food or water, press aide Robert Shrum said Wednesday. Shrum said Kennedy went for a walk around the block with son Patrick and daughter Kara on Wednesday morning, and later worked for a while in the hospital's solarium.

This weekend the senator expects to visit his 93-year-old mother, Rose, who has been hospitalized since Dec. 29 in West Palm Beach, Fla., for a viral infection.

Partly cloudy Friday with a chance of showers extreme southwest. A little warmer in the Panhandle today. Highs today 60 to 68. Lows tonight 31 to 42. Highs Friday 62 to 70.

Fair skies predicted

A weak cold front had pushed across Texas to the Gulf Coast by this morning, but temperatures varied little on either side of the air mass.

As the front moved into the Gulf early this morning, a high pressure system was creeping over North Texas, bringing clear skies, light winds and cool temperatures.

The only winds of consequence in the state were blowing over the Panhandle from the west at about 15 miles an hour.

Pre-dawn temperatures were mostly in the 30s and 40s over Texas; however, readings were in the 50s along the coastline and in the southern tip of the state. The state's cold spots were San Angelo and Lubbock at 34 degrees.

Elsewhere, it was 43 at Amarillo, 34 at Abilene, 37 at Wichita Falls, 40 at Dallas and Texarkana, 37 at Lufkin, 47 at Houston, 46 at San Antonio, 48 at Austin and Corpus Christi, 60 at Brownsville and 39 at El Paso.

Today's forecast called for cloudy skies in far South Texas, the Trans-Pecos region and Upper Rio Grande valley.

Saying thanks to Albert Sabin

As every American over 30 years of age must know, Dr. Albert Sabin developed an oral vaccine that, together with Dr. Jonas Salk's vaccine, helped to conquer polio, that cruel crippler of children and young adults. No one who remembers the fear caused by even the thought of polio and its attendant paralysis can doubt that Drs. Sabin and Salk deserve just about whatever a grateful nation can bestow on them, and then some.

Accordingly, it seemed especially ironic and unfair when Dr. Sabin, now 77, developed a mysterious ailment and then became paralyzed some months ago. Indeed, Dr. Sabin nearly died from the effects of his paralysis after surgery on his spinal cord in August.

Dr. Sabin's plight, his close scrape with death, and his struggle to recover were duly reported by the news media. But this was just another news story until Chicago columnist Bob Greene penned a request last week for his readers to give Dr. Sabin a demonstration of just how much he and his good work are appreciated.

Now Bob Greene's column is syndicated in several hundred newspapers across the country. But not every paper carries every column Greene writes. And even a widely published piece on an eye-catching topic often generates less mail than many readers might suppose. After all, it is one thing to be moved by something you read and quite another to sit down and write a letter or go to the store and buy a card.

So, Dr. Sabin, his wife, and the staff at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) in Bethesda, Md., where the doctor is a patient, were astonished when about 4,000 letters and cards arrived within the first few days after the Greene column appeared. Every day since, the mail has poured in from every corner of America. School children have written. Whole classes of school children have written. Parents have written. People who can remember polio and people who cannot have written.

What they all wanted to do is say thank you to someone who did something magnificent and now could use a little cheering up himself. Did we say a little cheering up? When the mail to Dr. Sabin hit the 60,000-piece level last week and kept right on climbing, the NIH ran out of places to put it. Even the good doctor himself took advantage of a hospital-room appearance on ABC's Nightline last week to thank the public but ask that no more mail be sent to him.

Dr. Sabin reports that he is recovering slowly and with some pain, but still recovering. He may well walk again. When he was stricken with his still unexplained malady this year, Dr. Sabin was working on a spray vaccine for measles, a disease triggering secondary infections that kill thousands of children in Third World countries each year. If he completes his work successfully, new generations will be in Dr. Sabin's debt.

For now, we want to add our thanks to the tens of thousands already sent to Albert Sabin. And thanks to Bob Greene for a wonderful idea.

Let's hear solution for financial woes

To the editor:
Stories in your issues of Dec. 12, 13 and 28, raise serious concerns about the future financial solvency of the City of Big Spring, namely, the first two issues named indicate to me that the City will probably lose close to 5 million dollars in revenue over the next 13 years because of the departure of O.I.L. at the end of December.

The issue of Dec. 28 informs us of the loss of nearly $25,000 revenue because of lost water plus high additional expenses in repairs during the recent deep-freeze.

In addition, we are told that the City must pay an estimated $30,000 in back premiums which City Manager Davis called a "direct reflection of laxity in the City's safety program and that steps have been taken..." It is nice to know that particular leak in the dike is being plugged so late. However, the total losses (current plus future) appear to exceed five million dollars! How does the City government expect to cover our financial difficulties? I can think of one which I don't want to hear. I hope the answer our City Council finds is a better one!

Open your eyes to child abuse

To the editor:
So many emotions flooded my heart when I first heard that poor helpless and abused child. Anger, pity, love, sorrow & guilt. Yes, guilt, guilt for turning my head away from a serious, no catastrophic, epidemic in Big Spring. CHILD ABUSE.

I saw my very first abused child tonight and I know the children on CARE commercials look healthier. Looking into his beautiful hungry eyes I knew I had fallen helplessly in love with him. Anyone, well almost anyone would.

I feel a very deep need to have a part, however small, in making this child well again. That will be easy — love, affection, food, warmth and sunshine.

The hard part is to make the community well — well aware of what is really going on. Hey! Big Spring, Santa Claus wasn't around for the baby I held tonight. He didn't even have clothes when I first heard about him. I was touched to hear about a woman who was going to spend what little money she earns as a housekeeper to buy him some socks for his bruised little feet. If everyone in this good community had her attitude and would pull together we could wipe out the horrendous problem. Make a new year's resolution to open your eyes to what is happening around you and take action!

Be a "Santa" all year. Push congressmen and senators for better laws to protect the children in our town. I've written my letters, will you?

What cars should know about women

Women and their cars — they have absolutely nothing in common. Especially when it comes to Rhonda and Kim.

Our dads have always taken care of our families' cars. They always checked out the funny knocks, changed the flat tires and checked the oil. Even though we were tomboys, we never took much interest in the work our dads did on the cars.

When we went to the gas stations, our parents never put in the gas; instead an attendant did. The attendant also cleaned the windows and checked the air in the tires.

However, being working girls, we had to learn to be conservative with our money and independent with our cars. Even if our gas gauge reads empty, we will still drive an extra mile to save a penny a gallon on gas. We get out of our cars and read the instructions on the gas pump carefully. After we put in the precious fuel, we rush inside the station to pay the attendant for the three dollars of gas we have purchased.

Kim usually takes her 15-year-old brother with her to the gas station. While she is paying for the gas, she can see him outside in the cold putting gasoline in her car. She hardly ever puts gas into her own car.

We both have the same model of car, 1977 Buick Skylark. Kim's car is red with a white top, while Rhonda's car is bright yellow.

Right after Rhonda got her Skylark, she experienced one of her weekly car problems. This time her battery wasn't working. Kim was parked beside her, so they journeyed outside. They then realized neither one had jumper cables. After questioning several fellow employees, they finally found someone who had jumper cables. Back outside they went, this time with Jenny Merry.

Their next problem could have ended in major disaster. They couldn't find out how to open the cars' hoods. There weren't hood releases inside the cars, and there weren't releases on the underside of the hoods. There was a moment of panic until someone noticed there was a thingamajig in one of the bumpers. It turned out to be the hood release.

Upon opening both the car hoods, there was a major discussion as to who knew how to use the jumper cables. Rhonda had the most knowledge in this matter since she had had this trouble with other cars many times before. After trying to jump the car off for several minutes, they finally gave up. Rhonda ended up getting a new battery.

Not long after that, Rhonda's car got a flat tire, which her sister pointed out to her. Upon getting out of her car to check the flat tire, she locked her keys in the car. After getting her car unlocked, Rhonda then took it upon herself to change the flat tire, although she had no idea how to do it.

The first thing she did during the two-hour job was to put the jack together. Then she had a question, "Where does the jack go?" Since she was by herself, Rhonda had to guess. She decided to put it in a little hole on the bumper, which she later found out happened to be the right place.

She had jacked up the car when she realized that she hadn't loosened the lugbolts. With the tire off the ground, each time she tried to loosen a lugbolt, all that happened was that the tire spun around and around. Next, Rhonda tried to figure out how to get the jack down. A passing postman stopped to help her with this endeavor. After solving this problem, the postman went on his way.

Rhonda's lack of strength now showed as she removed the lugbolts. She twisted herself into the ground as she twisted the lugbolts off. Now, she had to jack the car back up so she could get the tire off. After that, she managed to pry the tire off the axle, which she promptly took to the gas station.

After getting the tire repaired, Rhonda left the job of putting the tire back on to her 13-year-old brother.

Although we don't know that much about cars, we are still learning about them. As a matter of fact, we are considering taking an automechanics class at Howard College.

Doctor diagnosed judicial despotism

WASHINGTON — Federal judges are the great avatars of justice, figures of majestic presence, a law unto themselves.

They have life tenure on the bench. Removing them for misconduct is a cumbersome, almost impossible process. They are effectively untouchable.

Newly disclosed documents, which had been covered up for almost nine years by the Wisconsin attorney general's office, reveal a particularly malodorous example of judicial despotism and ethical insensitivity.

This abuse of judicial power was not justice in the abstract; the victim was a flesh-and-blood individual, Dr. Milton Margoles, formerly of Milwaukee. I reported several years ago on the harassment that befell Margoles after he opened Milwaukee's first racially integrated hospital. He was stripped of his medical license for a time by the state medical board and was left financially ruined and broken in health.

The doctor and his son, Perry, are still fighting for vindication. Court records and other documents, which have now been made available to me, reveal how the doctor's attempt to fight back was probably doomed from the start.

Margoles was victimized by a smear campaign that falsely depicted him as an abortionist. So he filed a civil rights suit against state medical board officials and an assistant to then-Wisconsin Attorney General Robert W. Warren. A reporter for the Milwaukee Sentinel began gathering information critical of Margoles, so the doctor filed a defamation suit against the newspaper.

Margoles was stunned to find that the newly appointed federal judge assigned to this suit was none other than Robert W. Warren, the former attorney general. At a pretrial conference, Margoles requested that Judge Warren disqualify himself because his former assistant had been engaged in a legal battle with the doctor.

Warren refused to step aside. He would not even conduct an impartial inquiry to determine whether he had himself been involved in the earlier Margoles case while he was attorney general.

After refusing to remove himself from the case, the judge threw out Margoles' defamation suit without a trial.

When contacted by my reporter Bill Bartman, Warren insisted that he had not known of the Margoles matter while he was attorney general. He shredded his personal files on the day he left office to become a judge.

But documents, which Margoles has now obtained, contradict Warren's memory. They show that the judge had indeed been involved, in a supervisory role, not only in the earlier Margoles case against the assistant attorney general, but in the very case from which he had refused to disqualify himself. Warren's office sent and received internal memos that make clear the close cooperation between the attorney general's office and defense attorneys in both cases.

Warren was informed of the documents but insisted he knew nothing of the Margoles matter while he was attorney general.

The long-hidden documents reveal that Warren's office was providing the newspaper's attorneys with substantial material on Margoles from official files. One assistant attorney general recalls that one of the newspaper's reporters called repeatedly for more information.

Margoles later appealed the dismissal of the defamation suit, on grounds that Warren should have disqualified himself. The appeal was denied. In the civil rights trial, meanwhile, a jury found that Warren's assistant attorney general had maliciously violated Margoles' rights. But consistent with the doctor's treatment by the federal courts, the judge in that case overruled the jury and dismissed the complaint.

How was all this possible? Michael Shaw, chairman of the Federal Bar Association's committee on standards of practice, says the conflict-of-interest rules regarding judges are ineffective, and warned: "If this trend continues, public confidence in the judicial system will decline even further, and Congress will step in and mandate new solutions."

CITIZENS' WATCH: If you're one of those white-knuckle airline passengers, you probably worry whether the big silver bird will really defy gravity and get you to your destination without the wings falling off. But there's more to worry about: Don't get seriously ill during a flight on an American commercial plane.

God and courts: responsible to both

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How strict do you think our courts ought to be in dealing with criminals? I am appalled at how often you hear of some criminal being let loose on some technicality or given a very light prison sentence. — P.O.

DEAR P.O.: I would not pretend to be an expert on our legal system, or try to give an answer to questions which should be dealt with by our elected officials. There are, however, several principles in the Bible which should guide us.

One is the principle of accountability — that a person should be held accountable for what he does. This is especially true in the moral and spiritual realm, where the Bible stresses that we are all accountable to God for our actions. God is perfect and holy, and when we sin against him we are subject to his judgment. But it is also true in society. Many of the laws of the Old Testament that were given to govern the ancient people of Israel underlined this fact.

That does not necessarily mean that a long prison sentence is always the best way to make a person accountable for his actions if he has committed a crime — although I agree with you that at times our courts have not been as responsible as they should have been in removing hardened criminals from society so that they cannot continue harming others. Certainly, another principle found in the Bible is that of restitution — making a person who has done wrong work to restore what he has damaged or stolen. Zacchaeus was a tax collector for the Roman government who had probably stolen great amounts of money over the years. When he came to Christ he declared, "If I have cheated anybody out of anything, I will pay back four times the amount" (Luke 19:8). He was making restitution.

The vast majority of judges and courts do a splendid job, and we should thank God for the freedoms we have and the protection we enjoy under our legal system. But let us also remember that we stand under a greater judge — God himself. No, you may not be guilty of a crime that puts you in jail — but in God's eyes you have sinned and you need his forgiveness. Christ came to set you free from the penalty of sin, and your greatest need is to humbly acknowledge your need of him and invite him into your heart by faith.

Sperm in epididymis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is epididymitis? What causes it? How can you prevent getting it again? My son had blood in his urine and I was told this is what he had. Can it be dangerous? — Mrs. I.A.M.

The epididymis (EP-ee-DID-ih-miss) is part of the testicle. It's where sperm are stored and mature. Epididymitis means the structure is inflamed, and it usually gets that way from an infection. Germs may get into it from a site in the urinary tract, like the bladder. Urinary tract infection can cause red blood cells to appear in the urine. Often, antibiotic treatment eradicates the infection, both in the urinary tract and in the epididymis. Repeated infections of the epididymis can be a serious problem to treat. It often suggests some obstruction in the urinary tract, creating a haven in which germs flourish. One episode of epididymitis is not that dangerous.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please write about Morton's neuroma. I believe that is what my orthopedic doctor wrote on the receipt I received. I still have a throbbing pain, especially in the night. — S.S.

Neuroma is a benign growth of tissue around a nerve. In Morton's neuroma, the nerve involved is on the bottom of the foot, especially the one serving the fourth toe. I'm glad you tell me (another part of your letter) that you have changed your footwear, for tight-fitting shoes are usually part of the background of Morton's neuroma. Wider shoes should relieve the pressure on the nerve. Sometimes even going barefoot when practical gives relief by further preventing the squeezing of foot bones against the nerve area. If required, an injection of cortisone in the area shrinks the swelling and eases the shooting pain so typical of nerve disturbance.

If your problem persists then surgery to remove the growth might be considered. Report your continuing problem. If untended, numbness may develop in the foot. Foot health is discussed in greater depth in the booklet "Relief and Care of Your Feet," which other readers may obtain by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please give me information about atypical tuberculosis (mycobacteriosis). Is it actually TB? — B.H.

Your question is short. I hope a brief answer will suffice.

Tuberculosis is caused by the germ, mycobacterium tuberculosis. Other mycobacterium germs (atypical) resemble the TB organism, but they do not cause TB. The illnesses they cause are referred to as "atypical bacterioses." An example is a skin infection of the fingers from aquarium water contaminated by the mycobacterium marinum. Another organism (mycobacterium intracellulare) causes lung infection that looks like TB on X-rays, but isn't. There are drugs to treat atypical bacterioses. If your question is about a particular kind, write again with that information.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and one dollar.

Dear Abby

Wife is 'other woman' for straying husband

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, my husband of 23 years (we're both in our mid-40's) left me to move in with a 23-year-old girl he picked up in a bar. Until then we had a good and loving relationship. Then his business failed, which was more than he could handle, so he left.

He didn't leave completely. He keeps many of his personal belongings here, still pays all the household expenses and comes to see me two or three nights a week. (We usually end up in bed.) Of course, we can't see any of our old friends anymore or go out in public because he doesn't want his girlfriend to know about our continuing relationship.

My question: Am I doing the right thing by continuing to see my husband? I think he needs all the love and support I can give him. I'm sure that when he gets things figured out he will want to come back home again. But until then, what about the girl?

I don't want to hurt anyone, but I still love my husband and don't want to let him down when he needs me. What do you advise?

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: You are to be commended for your loyalty, devotion, understanding and support of a husband who left you to live with another woman. But what kind of man would live with one woman and sneak out to be with another two or three times a week? Take a closer look at this deceitful and mixed-up character. What assurance have you that he will return and be a decent husband again? You are being more a forgiving mother to him than a wife, but if you are happy in that role, 'tis folly to be wise.

DEAR ABBY: I recently announced my engagement, so everywhere I go people congratulate me, then they say, "I'm looking for my invitation." Or they ask the wedding date, and when I tell them, they say, "Oh, great, I can make it!"

I am furious at myself for not saying something on the spot to let them know I had not planned on inviting them. These people who are not my close friends try to bribe me by saying, "If you invite me, I'll bring a nice present." That is not the point. I can't invite the whole blasted community to my wedding!

My parents are retired and can't afford to pay for my wedding, so my fiance and I are footing the bill, and we are limited because of the cost.

How should I handle these people who invite themselves? I hate to hurt their feelings, but I need to let them know they shouldn't expect an invitation.

SPEECHLESS AND FUMING

DEAR S. AND F.: What's wrong with the truth? Tell them you are planning to have a very small wedding because that's all you can afford.

Mrs. Avery speaks on community development

Local community leader and businesswoman, Johnnie Lou Avery, was the guest speaker at a Soil Builders Garden Club meeting, Monday. The meeting was held at the home of Pauline Garrison, 807 E. 13th.

Mrs. Avery outlined three areas of community development that will be addressed in the Chamber of Commerce's program of action through various committees. These are: *Economic and industrial development, which includes tourism development. This entails enticing new industry while helping the existing businesses and industry to get stronger, looking for new avenues of financing, and building support systems through education and awareness.

* War on drugs and crime, which includes alcohol and other types of drugs use and abuse, trafficking and other drug-related crimes. It also includes the effective law enforcement and court procedures. She emphasized that juries often turn criminals loose, not the courts or police who have done their jobs. Vandalism and domestic problems also affect the public.

* Environmental control includes community appearance, pollution and chemical control, and declining water supply. Some of the problem areas that needed attention in the environmental control were enforcement of dog and cat laws, code enforcement of vacant lots, houses, abandoned cars, attention to zoning laws with more thought put into these, more education and awareness, restitution by vandals, the tying together sewer rates to water rates which discourages people from keeping yards beautiful, and incentives for those who keep their property in good shape.

Thursday Notes

As hoop season rolls into the new year all the fun is put aside and it's time to get serious, especially for the Lady Steers and Steers, as district 4-5A action is now underway.

Talk about close, the Lady Steers' season has been about as close as you can get. Sporting a 9-7 season record and 2-1 district tally the Lady Steers have lost six of their seven games by a total of only 23 points.

This includes two losses by one point and one loss by two points. Their largest margin of defeat came at the hands of San Angelo in a district game last week by a 64-52 count.

The Lady Steers' wins have been nearly as close, winning four games by a grand total of 16 points, the most recent being a 69-66 victory over district foe Abilene.

The few Lady Steers blowout wins came against Permian (69-30) and Odessa (82-61) in non-district games, and Del Rio by a score of 76-57 in the consolation finals of the Midland tournament.

The Lady Steers scoring averages also have been very close this season.

As a team they averaged 60.5 points per game in non-district play while the opposition averaged 58.2. If you think that's close, look at the team averages in three district games. The Lady Steers are averaging 60.0 while their opponents are averaging 60.3.

Individual scoring for the Lady Steers for non-district and district is also very tight.

Most of the scoring punch for BSHS has come down low from the post players. Nearly 70 percent of the scoring has come from center Paula Spears and forwards Monette Wise and Tris "Trell" Clemons. Guard Debra Rubio has provided the Lady Steers with nearly all of their firepower from the backcourt.

In non-district play, Spears was the leading scorer and rebounder — averaging 19.8 points and 10 rebounds. Wise followed with a 13.3 average and 7 rebounds while Clemons averaged 7.2 points and 8 rebounds.

Aside from picking the opposition's pocket and running the offense, Rubio found time to average 13.1 points in non-district competition. The Lady Steers bench contributed 6 points per game.

So far in district competition Spears and Clemons have picked up their pace, especially on the boards. In the rebounding department Spears is averaging 14 per game while Clemons is hauling down nearly 10 caroms per contest.

The duo also has picked up in the scoring department with Spears scoring at 22.0 per clip and Clemons 9 points per game. Wise maintains a 13.7 scoring average while Rubio is averaging 9.3 points and the bench five points.

Whoever said that football was a game of inches should follow Lady Steers basketball, they might change their mind.

Stepping into a new job is not easy — ask Steer basketball coach Mike Randle.

Randle inherited the head spot this season and with his squad's current 2-15 record he no doubt hums a few bars of "If It Ain't One Thing It's Another."

That's the bad news. The good news is that he has seven varsity members coming back which will lead to a good foundation next season.

So far this season senior guard Jimmy Brown has been leading the squad in scoring with a 12 point average. The Steers have been outscored 71.5 to 48.5 by the opposition. Hang in there Mike!

Speaking of Big Spring basketball, both the Steers and Lady Steers should have good teams to come in the future judging by the talent on the junior varsity teams.

The JV girls boast a talented group of underclasswomen in the mold of Teresa Pruitt, Monica Lockridge, Tabitha Green and Monique Jones — just to name a few. Most of these young ladies are freshmen.

The JV boys boast a scoring star in freshman Benard Williams who scored a whopping 36 points against Abilene Tuesday night.

Congratulations to the Coahoma boys and girls for their recent second place finish in the Jayton tournament. Both teams lost heart-breaking games in the finals. The girls were downed by Snyder 55-51 and the boys lost to the tough Snyder JV 56-52. Good job Bulldogs and Bulldogettes!

Two 'Huskers, one Razorback head USFL draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Rozier and Irving Fryar, who led Nebraska to an undefeated regular season, were two of the top three picks in the United States Football League draft Wednesday. Running back Rozier, the Heisman Trophy winner, was selected No. 1 by the Pittsburgh Maulers and Fryar, a wide receiver, was chosen No. 3 by the Chicago Blitz.

The Oklahoma Outlaws, one of six expansion teams for the USFL's February-June second season, had the No. 2 pick and took defensive end Ron Fautrot of Arkansas.

The drafted collegians weren't rushing in waves, pens in hand, to sign with the USFL, although the league did put a few under contract quickly, including Tulane defensive end Clint Wenzel (by New Orleans) and Mississippi State wide receiver Danny Knight (by New Jersey).

But for most of the bigger names, like Rozier, it figured to be a waiting game.

The USFL, which signed a few prospective National Football League stars after last year's inaugural draft, then made a few successful raids on NFL rosters, was getting a big draft jump on the older league — as it had a year ago.

But the NFL, which chose to stick with a May 1 draft date (midway in the USFL season), was counting on this year's crop of collegians to wait until then before they sign with any team, thereby depriving the USFL of their services for one year at least — as many did last year.

A typical comment came from Buford Jordan, the running back from McNeese State drafted in the first round by the Breakers, who moved to New Orleans this season after playing their first year in Boston.

"I'm not going to play one league against the other," Jordan said. "I'll just wait until I talk to the Breakers to make up my mind."

"You're not going to sign anyone in a day," George Heddleston, the general manager of the Maulers, said after Pittsburgh selected Rozier. But he promised, "We'll be competitive about signing our first-round pick."

They will have to be, from the way

Rozier talked in Lincoln, Neb., when he heard he was the No. 1 pick.

"It's going to take some money. I think I'm worth something. I gave a lot, they're going to have to give a little bit," he said.

Rozier was the nation's premier college football player in 1983, when he rushed for 2,148 yards — only the second collegian in NCAA history to surpass 2,000 yards in a season. But against Miami in the Orange Bowl last Monday night, he was sidelined in the third quarter by an ankle injury.

Fryar had 40 receptions for 780 yards and eight touchdowns and, as an all-purpose back (rushing, receiving and kickoff and punt returning), he averaged 105 yards per game.

But in the Orange Bowl, Fryar dropped a "sure" touchdown pass in the closing minutes.

"That'll cost him a couple of million bucks," Dr. James Hoffman, the owner of the Blitz, joked.

Jeff Smith, a junior and Rozier's replacement, got Fryar off the hook moments later when he ran for his second touchdown of the game — then quarterback Turner Gill's pass for a two-point conversion fell incomplete and the Cornhuskers lost the game 31-30 and the national championship to the Hurricanes.

Two other Nebraska stars were drafted in later rounds. Quarterback Turner Gill was selected by Houston in the fifth round and guard Dean Steinkuhler was picked by Arizona in the sixth.

The teams went through 11 rounds Wednesday, which took them 13 hours and 34 minutes before ending at 11:45 p.m. EST. In all, 231 players were drafted during the day. Three teams each lost one pick for violations last year — Denver and Chicago for tampering and New Jersey for drafting Herschel Walker out of Georgia.

The draft will conclude Thursday with the final eight rounds, with the six expansion teams — Pittsburgh, San Antonio, Memphis, Houston, Jacksonville and Oklahoma — continuing to get a bonus pick in each odd-numbered round.

Montana has 'Skins in worried state

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins are worried, worried about San Francisco 49er quarterback Joe Montana and the miracles he performs on the football field.

The Montana-led 49ers invade Robert F. Kennedy Stadium on Sunday for the National Conference championship game. If the Redskins win, they will become the first National Football League team to advance to back-to-back Super Bowls since the Pittsburgh Steelers turned the trick in 1979 and 1980.

Montana, who can throw from in the pocket or on the run, completed 65 percent of his passes (332 of 515) for 3,910 yards, 26 touchdowns and 12 interceptions, in leading the 49ers to a 10-6 regular-season record.

In last week's 24-23 playoff victory over Detroit, Montana completed 18 of 31 for 201 yards and a touchdown. He also was instrumental in driving the 49ers 70 yards in the waning moments of the game for the winning touchdown.

"Montana is the man who makes the 49ers tick," said Redskin assistant head coach Richie Petitbon. "Offensively the 49ers will be the best team we have faced all year and Montana the best quarterback."

"Containing Montana will be the key to our success," said linebacker Mel Kaufman. "Our defensive line will have their hands full."

The Redskins front four — Todd Liebenstein, Dave Butz, Darryl Grant and Dexter Manley — are No. 1 in the league in defending against the rush, holding opponents to 80.1 yards a game.

The 49ers, who average 140 yards a game on the ground, are led by Wendell Tyler (4.9 yards a carry), Montana (4.7 yards) and Roger Craig (4.1).

"They have some impressive numbers but that is because most teams consider them a passing team. They are too well-balanced, offensively, to ignore the run," said Redskin safety Mark Murphy.

A handicap for Montana will be the absence of wide receiver Dwight Clark. The 49ers leading ballhawk with 60 receptions and eight touchdowns, Clark has been sidelined for the playoffs with a knee injury.

Defensively, the 49ers must stop All-Pro John Riggins.

Riggins who seems to save his best for the playoffs, has rushed for at least 100 yards in his last five playoff games.

Can Seahawks make it three-in-a-row?

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Coach Tom Flores of the Los Angeles Raiders knows from first-hand experience that form doesn't always prevail in the National Football League's "second season."

"The hardest thing is to get to the playoffs," Flores said Wednesday at his weekly meeting with reporters. "Anything can happen."

"I'm well aware of what can happen to a wild card that gets hot. We did it in 1980 and became world champions."

The Raiders, then playing in Oakland, made it to the playoffs as a wild card team three years ago with an 11-5 record, finishing second behind San Diego in the AFC's Western Division.

The Raiders beat Houston in the AFC wild card game, then disposed of Cleveland and the Chargers to get to Super Bowl XV where they whipped Philadelphia 27-10.

Flores didn't need to say that he hopes form prevails at the Los Angeles Coliseum this Sunday in the AFC Championship Game.

That's because his Raiders, the AFC West champions, are playing division rival Seattle, which entered the playoffs as a wild card team. The winner will earn a berth in Super Bowl XVIII at Tampa, Fla., on Jan. 22.

"We're playing good football, we're playing against a team that's playing good football," said Flores, whose team is favored by seven points over the Seahawks. "They're hot, they're on a roll."

Seattle enters the game having won a franchise-record four straight games and is in the playoffs for the first time ever.

First, the Seahawks beat the New York Giants and New England Patriots to finish the regular season with a 9-7 record and earn a wild-card berth. Then, they beat Denver and Miami to earn their berth in Sunday's game.

Georgia dodges yellow flag

AUSTIN (AP) — What appeared in television film sequences to be a flagrant holding violation by Georgia tackle Guy McIntyre may have cost Texas the national college football championship.

TV sequences shown on two Austin stations Tuesday night showed McIntyre apparently reaching out and grabbing Texas linebacker Mark Lang by the left ankle, causing Lang to fall on the seat of his pants.

No penalty was called. With Lang on the ground, Georgia quarterback John Lastinger raced past him for 17 yards and the winning touchdown with 3:22 to play in Georgia's 10-9 victory over the Longhorns.

The loss destroyed Texas' chances for a national title. The Longhorns were ranked No. 2 and top-ranked Nebraska lost to Miami 31-30, with Miami jumping to first. Texas finished fifth.

Lang, reached at his home in Iran, Texas, said, "I was reading the tackle (McIntyre), and I was going to scrape off to the outside and the tackle grabbed ahold of my leg and I fell down and failed to get outside."

Lang said, however, "You can't make excuses. It is one of those things. They didn't see it and it isn't holding if they don't see it."

Earl still wants to depart

HOSTON (AP) — Hugh Campbell's hiring as the new Houston Oilers coach is not changing All Pro running back Earl Campbell's desire to be traded from the Oilers.

Earl Campbell, quoted in today's editions of the Houston Post, said the appointment of Hugh Campbell would not change his situation.

"Hello, goodbye and down the road we go," Earl Campbell said. "I can work with anybody, but I don't think it's going to change my situation just because Coach Campbell is here. I already push myself. I have my own desire. I don't want to be last in nothing. I know what I have to do."

The Oilers' all-time leading rusher, asked by the newspaper whether he was anxious to meet the new coach, shrugged and said: "Is he anxious? I don't know.

We'll bump into each other eventually — if not here, somewhere else. He may OK me out of here. He may think they're better off by letting me go. Nothing good lasts forever."

Hugh Campbell has said that if it's best for his fullback to play elsewhere, then he'll accommodate Earl's wishes. But the coach said if it's best for the Oilers that Campbell remain, "then I'm going to be hammering away to keep him."

Campbell gained 1,301 yards in the recently completed season despite missing several games with injuries. The yardage was the second best in the American Football Conference, trailing only Seattle's Curt Warner.

"I'm tired of hearing every week how I'm too dumb, washed up, too dumb to read holes, can't block, can't catch the football," Earl Campbell said.

PADON ME BIG GUY — Utah Jazz forward Adrian Dantley attempts to fake out Houston Rocket's 7-4 center Ralph Sampson during first quarter action Wednesday night. Dantley faked out a lot of Rockets during the course of the game as he scored 46 points while the Jazz took a 116-111 victory.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Put more effort into your regular work and get far better results. Don't let communications irritate you later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Get appointments set up for looking into new interests before you get to work on dull money affairs. Show a little spunk.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): A good day to get your home fixed up more to your own liking. Then have friends in for luncheon, but not in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You get good ideas how to add to income in the morning; do something about them right away. Get your property intrinsically improved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You have excellent ideas about gaining personal aims so work on them quickly, and then tonight you can relax. Avoid groups.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Show your originality. Avoid bigwigs who criticize you. Home is your best bet tonight. Set up appointments for later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Contact a good friend who wants to see you get ahead. Avoid new set-ups later. You can attain some desired wish. Drive with utmost care.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a New Era person who will fit in very nicely to modern homes, businesses and activities so be sure your progeny has free reign once the lesson of discipline is learned. This is one who will do things differently from others.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
