Off the wall: Surprise

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Cyril Votava said he didn't have a real tree to decorate this past Christmas, but this week he awoke to find his front yard was decorated with 37 evergreens, with tinsel.

"They were used trees from somewhere, and they were all standing up in the snow," Votava said, adding that he had no idea who did it or where the trees came from.

"There had to be a lot of planning to come up with that many trees," he said. "It was good for a chuckle because someone went through a lot of work to do this. Why they picked this particular corner, I don't know."

"It was funny the way they were lined up. They put some on the berm, some on each side of the sidewalk and some in front of the house," said Votava.

He said he also got a laugh out of people walking by. "After they had gone by the house for a half block, they still would look back to see what was going on."

The display stood for one day until a city truck hauled the trees away Wednesday.

Bank gets extension on loans

ODESSA — The First State Bank of Odessa has until Jan. 31 to decide what loans it will buy from its failed predecessor, the National Bank of Odessa.

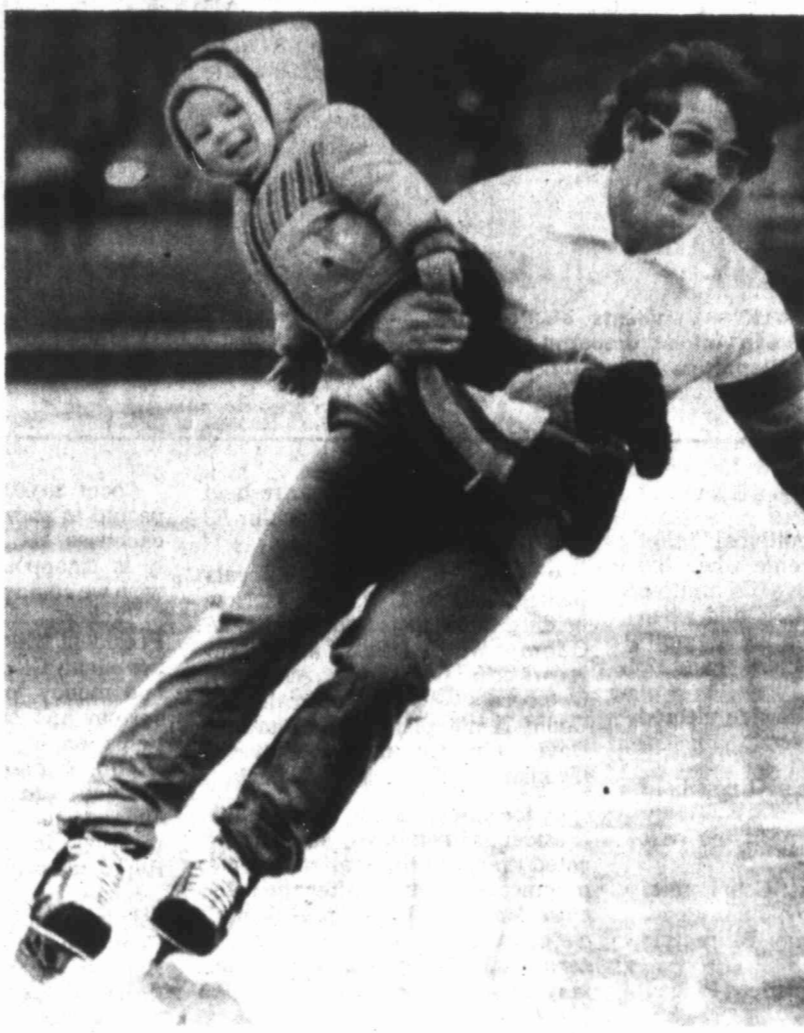

Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman Alan Whitney told the Odessa American that the FDIC's three-member board of directors last week granted the bank a second extension of time for reviewing the loan portfolio of the National Bank of Odessa.

In takeovers of failed banks, the FDIC routinely grants the new bank 30 days to review its predecessor's loan portfolio.

First State was granted an additional 30 days for review, which expired in November 1983.

The National Bank of Odessa was 24 years old when it was declared insolvent and closed in September. At the time of closing, the bank had $86.5 million in assets and had lost more than $18 million during the first six months of 1983.

Independent Bankshares Inc., an Abilene-based holding company, assumed $76 million in deposits, $10 million in installment loans and other assets of the failed bank.

Filing period begins today

By DANA PALMER

AUSTIN — The year's political lineup begins forming this weekend as the Republican and Democratic parties start accepting applications for places on the May 5 primary election ballots.

The 30-day filing period opens Saturday morning and closes at 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 6.

One official at the Texas Democratic Party noted that a number of candidates, especially for the hotly contested race to replace retiring U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, already have "informally filed" by announcing their candidacies and naming campaign treasurers.

However, no one officially is a candidate until the filing application and fees are posted with the appropriate political party.

With Tower's spot open and the traditional allure of presidential election years, Democratic Party spokeswoman Camille Burger expects a Democratic primary turnout of 1.3 million to 1.5 million — much the same as in the last presidential campaign year in which few major statewide elected offices were up for grabs.

Texas Republican Party spokesman Byron Nelson III noted that "with the U.S. Senate being a very good race, we expect a record turnout in our primary."

The primary elections, which are handled separately in Texas by each political party, will be held from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday May 5, with any run-offs scheduled for Saturday June 2.

Both major parties noted that several important congressional races around the state should help attract voters.

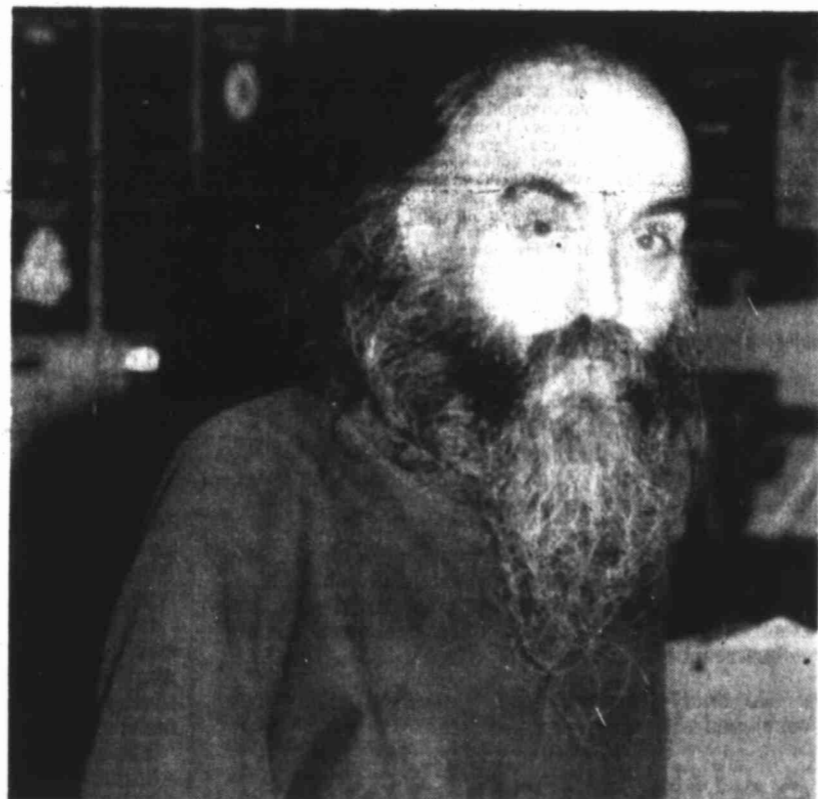

"We hope to equal the 1980 one where Ronald Reagan did so well," Nelson said. In that Republican primary, more than a half million Texans voted, with a majority casting ballots only in the GOP's presidential preference race between Reagan and George Bush.

In all likelihood, the primary ballots will include only those elected offices from the U.S. Senate on down to the local precinct chairman.

However, the party executive committees could vote later this spring to place a presidential preference poll or other non-binding referendum on the ballots.

Man held prisoner for 2 years in own home

TERRORIZED — John Denny, 43, was terrorized by a gang of youth who stole his welfare checks, starved him and used his Brooklyn, N.Y. home as a hangout since an initial burglary in April, 1981. Welfare agencies had been aware of Denny's plight, but he thwarted their efforts for fear the gang would kill him.

NEW YORK (AP) — For more than two years, John Denny's public housing apartment was his private hell, overrun by a gang of youths who stole his welfare checks, starved him and used his home as a hangout, authorities say.

When police finally arrested two teen-agers at the Brooklyn apartment Thursday, they found Denny paralyzed by fear and weakened by malnourishment from his ordeal.

"He is 43 years old, though he looks like he's 100 years old," said Roy Metcalf, a spokesman for the city Housing Authority. Denny, who has a long beard with patches of gray, told police he had lost 60 pounds.

For months, neighbors, police and welfare agencies have been aware of Denny's plight, but he thwarted any efforts to help him — mostly, according to police, because he was afraid.

"I've been a psychological hostage," he told police. Housing Detective Francis Murnane said Denny's problems began in April 1981, when several gun-wielding youths forced their way into his Gravesend Houses apartment and stole cash, jewelry and keys.

Denny had lived in the apartment since he was 10. His father died in 1967, his mother in 1972, leaving him alone; friends say he suffered a nervous breakdown when his father died, and Murnane describes him as "emotionally handicapped."

According to Murnane, the thugs who robbed Denny returned again and again, letting themselves in with stolen keys.

They stole his housing and food assistance checks — 60 in all, amounting to thousands of dollars — lounged around the apartment, and sometimes used it as a depository for stolen goods, Murnane said.

They warned Denny that they would hurt him if he went to authorities. Generally, they would buy food for him or bring him food from their homes, Murnane said: "If he died, then the checks would stop."

Sometimes, however, they neglected to feed him. In November 1982, he was hospitalized for a week with malnutrition, police said.

When Denny fell behind in his rent, the Housing Authority started eviction proceedings.

Officials asked Denny if he was being robbed and he denied it, but they insisted that his rent assistance checks be made out to both Denny and the Housing Authority, so no other party could cash them. From then on, the youths could only take his food checks.

Welfare officials learned about the case, but Denny refused to let them help him.

Ann Sanchez, leader of the complex's tenant patrol and a friend of Denny's for 29 years, said he told her about his troubles, and she called police. But when officers arrived, Denny would refuse to allow them in his apartment and, through the door, would claim that there was no problem.

Last September, Mrs. Sanchez said, she collected some money for Denny and helped him change the locks on his flat and on his mailbox. "He was so terrified that he hadn't been out of his apartment in months," she said.

But then, she said, he gave the new keys to his tormentors. She gave up.

Two weeks ago, police went to the building to investigate a rash of break-ins. Tenants suspected that the youths who were terrorizing Denny were to blame for the burglaries, and were using his apartment as a safe house.

After an investigation, Murnane and Detective John Ruiz went to the apartment on Thursday. To gain entry, they told Denny they were from the Housing

Pesticide found in food

Officials term problem 'deadly serious'

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas agriculture officials said Friday the cancer-causing pesticide EDB was found in a third of food products, mostly corn and wheat mixes, taken from grocery stores for testing.

The new list of contaminated foods released Friday was an addition to a preliminary list announced Tuesday, and more tests for the fumigant are under way, said Ron White, assistant commissioner of agriculture.

He called it a "deadly serious problem."

"The science on the cancer-causing potential of this product is good, solid work. It's based on normal dietary intake of these products over a number of years," White said. "The conclusion of EPA (U.S. Environmental Protection Agency) and lots of other people is that it does pose a significant increase in the risk of cancer over a long period of time."

The list of grain products with EDB contamination included corn meal, grits, flour, and mixes for cakes, pancakes, waffles, cornbread and biscuits. White said his lab experts also tested two kinds of honey and five loaves of bread and found no traces of EDB, which is the chemical ethylene dibromide, in those products.

EDB is used to kill weevils and clean grain-milling equipment.

WILLIAM RUCKELSHAUS

Samples were taken from grocery stores in San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Brenham.

Traces of the cancer-causing chemical have been found in 29 out of 86 products tested so far in Texas. Amounts ranged from less than one part per billion to 436 parts per billion.

The highest level, 436 parts per billion, was found in Duncan Hines Bran Muffin Mix.

White said at this point, no recommendations were being made to order any food products removed from grocery store shelves. He said such a decision would be up to the Texas Health Department.

Similar results of tests were announced last month in Florida, where one part per billion has been set as an acceptable standard for consumption. Federal officials have not yet established a "safe" level of the chemical.

EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus said the presence of EDB in some grain products does not warrant a public panic, but he admitted the federal government has been slow to regulate the substance.

"It is bad stuff and it is a very potent carcinogen, but we don't have any evidence that it has harmed anyone — nor do we have any that it hasn't," Ruckelshaus said. "We don't believe at this point that we have a problem on our hands that warrants panic. If additional evidence turns up that leads us to believe otherwise, we'll act."

White said EDB was being added after the grains were harvested. "It appears it is being put in in the milling process somewhere," he said.

He would not say what he considered a safe level. He said that was up to the EPA. "We think people should look at this list and make up their own minds about it," White said.

"The shame is that there are efficient and cost-effective alter-

Panel nixes AT&T rate hike request

AUSTIN (AP) — A Public Utility Commission hearing examiner on Friday turned down AT&T's request for an immediate $115.4 million rate hike.

Instead, examiner Phillip Holder set a Jan. 24 hearing to consider the request that would increase Texas' intrastate long distance tolls.

AT&T lawyer Joyce Beasley said her company needs the money immediately.

"We in fact have a negative cash flow and are operating at a loss of $300,000 daily," Ms. Beasley said, adding AT&T faces an "extreme emergency need for rate relief."

"There's absolutely no cause to delay beyond today," she argued. Ron LeMay, an AT&T vice president, said Holder's ruling would be appealed to the full commission.

"We're being told we can't recover those rates consistent with the way they were imposed on us," he said of payments the commission has ordered AT&T to make to Southwestern Bell.

"The meter has been running at $300,000 per day since Jan. 1," he added. "We need the money."

But Holder said "basic fairness" requires an opportunity for opponents to prepare their cases against AT&T's request. AT&T could be forced to make refunds if interim rates turn out to be higher than the permanent rates to be set by the commission. However, Holder said refunds programs sometimes don't get all the money back into the right hands.

AT&T, which is the largest long-distance telephone service in Texas, filed for an overall increase of $301 million after the utility commission ordered it to make substantial payments to Southwestern Bell.

Assistant Attorney General Geoffrey Gay, representing the State Purchasing and General Services Commission, said an immediate increase would not be fair.

"Just because AT&T got to the emergency button and hit it doesn't mean we have to give him the money they asked for," said Gay.

He also challenged Ms. Beasley's contention that AT&T has been losing $300,000 a day since Jan. 1.

"I don't believe it. We ought to have an opportunity to scrutinize the data and challenge that number."

Panel to study food programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House task force on hunger will study a proposal to consolidate all federal nutrition programs — including food stamps — in optional block grants to the states, a knowledgeable source said Friday.

Such a move would represent a major change in the $12 billion food stamp program, which acts as a lever to minimize variations in welfare payments among the states. In states with low welfare cash payments, poor people can get larger allotments of food stamps.

The block grant proposal is expected to be discussed by the 13-member Task Force on Food Assistance when they meet Monday to try to fashion a final report to President Reagan on the extent of hunger in America and how to deal with it. The task force has held seven hearings around the country on the issue.

An earlier document prepared by the task force staff listed the option of placing all federal child nutrition programs into block grants. The source, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified, said the latest draft, prepared after individual discussions with task force members, would expand that plan to include all government nutrition programs, including food stamps.

Under the proposal, states would be given the option of continuing the present system or accepting federal nutrition funds in the form of block grants to be allocated at the states' discretion.

John Raisian, executive director of the task force, declined comment on the reported proposal.

The federal government sets standards for eligibility in the food stamp program while state and local welfare agencies certify who meets the eligibility standards.

Federal nutrition programs total about $15.3 billion a year, with $12 billion going to food stamps. Child nutrition programs, including school lunches and breakfasts, and the Women and Infant Children's feeding program, total about $3.3 billion.

Birdwell's two west lanes will remain open for two-way traffic until reconstruction is finished.

A decision on additional ballot items is likely to come when the Democratic Executive Committee meets in Austin Jan. 14 and when the Republican Executive Committee meets in Dallas March 11 and 12, party officials said.

Otherwise, the statewide elected offices up for grabs are:

- The U.S. Senate seat now held by Tower.
- A Railroad Commission post held by Mack Wallace.
- Texas Supreme Court chief justice, now held by Jack Pope. Pope is expected may retire this year.
- Supreme Court justices Place 1 and Place 2. Those seats are held currently by Justices Franklin E. Spears and C.L. Ray.

● Court of Criminal Appeals justices Place 1, 2 and 3. Now holding those spots are Wendell A. Odom, W.C. Davis and Sam Houston Clinton. All are Democrats, and party officials said Odom is not planning to run and Davis may not announce for reelection.

As for voters having a say on the presidential nominees, Ms. Burger noted that only those attending the precinct conventions after the polls close May 5 will elect presidential delegates to the county or senatorial district conventions on May 19.

About 30,000 Democrats are expected to show up for the precinct caucuses, Ms. Burger said. "It really is disappointing," she said. "I wish we could get more people out."

Backers of both former Vice President Walter Mondale and Ohio Sen. John Glenn are spending time and money to explain the caucus system and encourage more participation, Ms. Burger added.

Those county and district delegates go to state conventions June 15-16. The Democrats are meeting in Houston, while the Republicans go to Fort Worth.

Finally, the Democratic delegates pick their nominee in San Francisco July 15-19 and the Republicans make their choice in Dallas Aug. 20-23.

Authority and did not tell them they were police; once inside, they persuaded him to allow a search.

In a bedroom that the youths had expropriated as their own, the detectives found Lola Darden and Tyrone Ridges, both 18, said Murnane. Ms. Darden, who lives in the same complex, was semi-nude and hiding in the closet; Ridges, a resident of Denny's building, was sleeping on the bed, the officer said.

They were charged with grand larceny and burglary, police said. Murnane said Ridges was the "ring leader" of the gang; others who used the apartment will be questioned, he said.

Meanwhile, Murnane made appointments to take Denny to welfare agencies who might help him. Murnane usually does not have time for such work, but Denny — a man who refused to trust police for so long — has reached out to him.

"He really does trust me," Murnane said. "He's very open with me."

Blackbirds create health problem

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — The thousands of blackbirds that descend each evening on the county courthouse always leave the next morning.

The problem for county officials is what they leave.

"The volume of droppings is totally undesirable and is creating a health hazard," County Judge Tom Bacus told the Wichita Falls Record News. "A number of people have commented on the smell."

"The yard lady has been working full time to keep the stuff off the steps, which is impossible now. I hate people coming down to a public facility and having to deal with these pests."

Bacus said he has unsuccessfully battled the bird situation for several years. Scare tactics failed, as did an experiment last year with electronic sound devices.

White paroled from prison

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dan White, who gunned down the city's mayor and a supervisor five years ago, was paroled from prison Friday to a secret location in the Los Angeles area, while in San Francisco about 1,500 people staged a noisy demonstration to protest his release.

Members of a protest committee, including gay activists still bitter about the slaying of supervisor Harvey Milk, an avowed homosexual, had called for a series of demonstrations in San Francisco against White's release.

At noon, a few hours after White's release, about 1,500 people massed in Union Square, chanting, blowing whistles and banging pots.

They carried signs that read, "Dan White is an all-American murderer," "Dan White is condemned by God's law," and "Eat a Twinkie, Beat the rap," a reference to White's defense claims that he had been affected by junk food.

An effigy of White dressed in white prison garb dangled from a flag pole above the crowd.

"We're here to protest the injustice of a justice system that does not work," said Jay Hanke of the Committee to Protest the Injustice. "Being mad is all we have."

"Yesterday was the last day Dan White could spend knowing he would live through that day," said a bearded man in a nun's habit who calls himself Sister Boom Boom. "Dan White starts a life sentence, and it's not going to be a long one."

A group called the Committee to Protest the Injustice had urged a citywide work stoppage Friday to express anger over White's short

Texaco enters fight for control of Getty

NEW YORK (AP) — The battle for control of Getty Oil Co. heated up Friday as Texaco Inc. disclosed an agreement to buy 11.8 percent of Getty's stock for $1.16 billion.

Texaco also said it had proposed an unspecified "business combination" to Getty's board of directors, just two days after Getty's largest shareholder had agreed to convert the company to private ownership in a $5.3 billion transaction with Pennzoil Co.

Texaco is the nation's third-largest oil company with 1982 sales of $46.9 billion. Getty ranks No. 14 with sales last year of $11.9 billion. Together they would be slightly smaller than Mobil Corp., the nation's second-largest oil concern.

Texaco's announcement appeared to scuttle the earlier agreement, in which Getty would be owned jointly by Pennzoil and the Sarah C. Getty Trust, which holds 40.2 percent of Getty's stock. The trust is controlled by Gordon Getty, the youngest surviving son of J. Paul Getty, the billionaire founder of Getty Oil.

Texaco said it agreed to pay $125 a share for the 9.3 million Getty shares controlled by the J. Paul Getty Museum, or a total of $1.16 billion. Under terms of the earlier agreement between Pennzoil and Gordon Getty, the museum would have received $110 a share.

Claire Eugenia Getty, a granddaughter of J. Paul Getty, has challenged the Pennzoil-Getty deal in court.

J. Hugh Liedtke, the Pennzoil chairman, responded to Texaco's announcement Friday by sending a telex to Getty directors urging compliance with Wednesday's agreement, which Liedtke said the board approved by a 14-1 vote. If the pact is broken, Liedtke said, Pennzoil would take unspecified "actions" against Getty.

Liedtke also said the Getty directors should consider the "significant antitrust issues presented by the Texaco offer."

Wall Street analysts said they saw possible antitrust problems with the Texaco offer, since it and Getty compete for gasoline and other oil product sales in key markets on the East Coast and in many central states.

In Washington, Justice Department spokesman Mark T. Sheehan said it was "certainly likely" that either the department's antitrust division or the Federal Trade Commission would examine both the Pennzoil and the Getty proposals.

Texaco's decision to jump into the Getty power struggle further complicated a battle that stemmed from Gordon Getty's unhappiness with the operating strategy of Getty management. He wanted the company to focus more on its oil businesses instead of the cable television and other enterprises it recently entered.

Pennzoil, which is a third the size of Getty, stepped into the fray last week by launching a tender offer to Getty shareholders for up to 16 million shares at $100 apiece. Liedtke said at the time that he wanted to participate in a "restructuring" of Getty, although he declined numerous times to specify what changes he would seek at Getty.

Pennzoil agreed, as part of its deal with Gordon Getty, to withdraw that tender offer.

Getty represents an attractive target for both Pennzoil and Texaco, since it is relatively rich in oil and natural gas reserves. Texaco's total oil reserves, domestic and foreign, shrank by 34 percent between the end of 1979 and the end of 1982, to 1.94 billion barrels. Getty had 1.95 billion barrels of oil reserves at the end of 1982, while Pennzoil had 141 million barrels at that time.

Martin County included in federal disaster aid

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A federal disaster declaration for drought-related aid has been expanded to include Martin County.

Word of the expansion came Friday from Gov. Mark White's office.

White's request for disaster aid to Martin County was made to the U.S. Department of Agriculture in August, but USDA officials deferred their decision until more detailed crop loss estimates could be made at harvest time.

The amended declaration directs the Farmers Home Administration to make emergency, low-interest loans available to eligible farmers in Martin County.

Cities have garbage dispute

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — The City of Richardson, waging war with the City of Buckingham, has issued the hamlet an ultimatum: It will take no prisoners.

Nor will it pick up its garbage, or after 1987, treat its sewage.

In a letter made public Thursday, Richardson City Attorney Louis Nichols informed officials in Buckingham, a 150-acre incorporated island surrounded by Richardson, that it will lose garbage pickup service and the use of its jail next month.

Richardson officials earlier had threatened such action if Buckingham votes to allow the sale of alcoholic beverages in a referendum Jan. 18. Richardson is dry.

Nichols' letter also said it will not renew a 20-year contract that requires Richardson to treat Buckingham's sewage until 1987. The garbage pickup contract expired in 1981 and there never has been a formal agreement on the jail service.

Said Richardson Mayor Martha Ritter: "The Buckingham we have served with these services will not be the same Buckingham we've known after next week."

Rogers plans hunger fight

LONG BEACH — Country singer Kenny Rogers says he often went hungry as a child, so he's planning a campaign against hunger during his sold-out Long Beach concerts Tuesday and Wednesday.

He wants every ticket holder to bring a can of food as a "trial run" on hunger in the Long Beach area. About 14,000 tickets have been sold for both concerts.

The food will be turned over to the Long Beach Food Bank for distribution to 90 relief agencies, Rogers said Thursday. Rogers said he and his wife Marianne got involved with world hunger problems five years ago when he joined benefit concerts with the late singer Harry Chapin in the World Hunger Year campaign.

Group to perform benefit

BUFFALO, N.Y. — The Fifth Dimension singing group and the Buffalo Philharmonic will perform a benefit concert Monday night for victims of an explosion that killed six people and devastated a neighborhood.

Arlene Bunis, a spokeswoman for the Philharmonic, said the Fifth Dimension and the 87 Philharmonic musicians are donating their time and talent. She said a city-owned auditorium is being made available without charge, and U.S. Air is providing free transportation for the Fifth Dimension from Los Angeles to Buffalo.

"So far we don't have a penny of expense, except our own time," she said. If all 12,000 seats are sold, the show will raise $60,000.

The Dec. 27 propane explosion destroyed a warehouse, wrecked buildings over a city block, killed six people and injured about 70 others, and damaged about 150 homes.

Torch lottery winner named

LOS ANGELES — A city window washer will help carry the Olympic Games torch this summer thanks to a lottery in which he won the sponsorship of his fellow city workers.

"I really wanted to carry the Olympic torch, but I really didn't think I was going to win," said Maurice Mathews, 47, after his name was pulled out of a box Thursday by Mayor Tom Bradley.

The Olympic flame will be carried through all 50 states, beginning in New York on May 8, before reaching the Los Angeles Coliseum to open the Games on July 28.

Runners or their sponsors must pay $3,000 — which will go to youth programs — to carry the torch one kilometer, or 0.6 miles, and the All City Employees Benefits Service Association decided to sponsor one of its members.

Backers get trip to France

BATON ROUGE — Fund-raising dinners and rallies aren't good enough for third-time Gov.-elect Edwin Edwards — he and 500 campaign backers, legislators and reporters are taking a gala trip to France.

There will be a black-tie dinner at Versailles, visits to 10 of Paris' finest restaurants, a special Mass at Notre Dame Cathedral, a champagne dinner-show at the Lido and a cocktail party at the Eiffel Tower. The group leaves Jan. 19 aboard two jets and returns Jan. 28.

It won't be all play for Edwards. "I don't know how much fun there will be for me with all the meetings scheduled with public figures and industrialists," said Edwards. He previously was governor from 1972 to 1980.

Tour-goers are paying $10,000 a person to Edwards' campaign. He hopes the trip will retire a $4.4 million campaign debt. Legislators also were invited along, at cost ($2,100), and 35 signed up.

"We're getting so many legislators we could hold the next session over there or on the planes coming and going," said state Senate Secretary Mike Baer, one of the organizers.

Marcos' wife takes trip

MANILA — First lady Imelda R. Marcos leaves for China on Saturday for a "working trip" aimed primarily at persuading the Chinese to buy more Philippine products.

A presidential palace spokesman said Friday that Mrs. Marcos will meet with Chinese President Li Xiannan, Vice Premier Wan Li and other top officials during her visit, which palace sources said will last for "a few days."

The palace said Mrs. Marcos will ask China to purchase more Philippine non-traditional exports such as metal machine parts and fertilizer.

Mondale blasts Reagan

TALLAHASSEE — Accusing President Reagan of "planning to repeal Medicare by stealth," Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale on Friday proposed establishment of federal limits on health costs.

Under the Mondale plan states would be free to set up whatever mechanisms they chose to keep health expenditures within the federal guideline.

Details of the proposal were outlined by Mondale aides just before he visited elderly residents of an apartment complex in St. Petersburg and Mondale was making it the theme of a luncheon speech in Tallahassee.

Mondale told the senior citizens he believed the Reagan administration is "planning to go after Medicare right after the election, just like they went after Social Security right after the last election."

He said Reagan was "planning to repeal Medicare by stealth" and cited an administration budget proposal he said would increase the cost of an average stay in the hospital by 70 percent. Medicare if the federal health program for the elderly.

The Mondale health proposal would address all health costs, not just Medicare and other government programs.

Mondale said his plan was based on the following principles:

—Assuring that the cost is controlled, not simply shifted from public to private budgets.

—Creation of state spending limits for hospitals and in-patient physician services under federal guidelines.

—Allowing states to devise their own plans "responsive to the diversity of local needs and circumstances."

—Encouraging innovations like pre-paid group practices.

—Applying cost controls to all payers, government, private insurance companies and individuals.

Lometa suspect nabbed

LAMPASAS, Texas — Authorities said Friday narcotics were involved in the slayings of a man, his wife and their 5-year-old daughter in nearby Lometa.

The man's 29-year-old son, James Haydon, an ex-convict, has been arrested and charged with the New Year's weekend triple murder.

District Attorney Cappy Eads of Belton said Haydon was released from prison last year after serving five years in the Louisiana penitentiary at Angola for rape.

The victims, Noah Haydon, 60, his wife Edna, 49, and their 5-year-old daughter Amanda, were found slain in their home Jan. 2. Each had been shot several times in the head, and Haydon's gun collection was missing.

The younger Haydon reported the slayings to authorities, saying he found the bodies when he went to his parents' home. Sheriff Gordon Morris said the son was a suspect from the beginning.

"When he came in (Thursday) afternoon we felt we had enough information to go ahead and arrest him, and we did," Morris said.

The defendant listed no permanent address or occupation.

The sheriff said robbery was a "partial" motive, but "I am not at liberty to say at this time what the rest of it was."

Eads said "several factors" were probably involved in the slayings.

"We know the use of narcotics was involved. We know the argumentative nature of the defendant. But whether it was madness or meanness is anybody's guess," he said.

Eads declined to elaborate on the use of narcotics or say what kind of drugs may have been involved.

Morris said nearly all the guns that were missing from the victims' home had been recovered "from several individuals."

Friends of the family said James Haydon was often at odds with his parents.

State District Judge C.W. Duncan, who issued the arrest warrant, arraigned Haydon and set a $50,000 bond on each of the three charges.

Cease-fire talks continue

BEIRUT — Druse and Shiite Moslems battled soldiers near the capital and in southern Lebanon on Friday as mediators negotiated with Lebanon's warring factions to complete a civil war disengagement.

The state radio said Syrian-backed Arabian Red Knights militiamen in the suburbs. Christian and Druse gunners traded artillery and rocketbarrages for most of the day in the southern Kharroub region near the Israeli defense line at the Awali River.

Druse militia leader Walid Jumblatt expressed his objections about the plan on Thursday, but a Druse statement Friday said Druse leadership was "positively reciprocating to efforts to bring about the security plan in order to stabilize the cease-fire and clear the way for a resumption of national reconciliation talks."

Amal sources in Beirut said Berri had reservations about disengagement zones the plan calls for in the Shiite southern suburbs of Beirut and wants the plan to include an exchange of hostages held by the principal warring factions. Lebanese government sources said President Amin Gemayel is arranging to send army intelligence chief Col. Simon Kassis to Damascus to work on remaining problems in the plan.

As reported by Lebanese officials, who asked not to be identified, the plan calls for:

—Withdrawal of rightist Christian militiamen from the area between Beirut and Israel's Awali River line in the south, including the Chouf and Kharroub mountains.

—Police forces would take over security functions in the Kharroub.

—The army would take over the coastal highway from Beirut to the Awali.

—Disengagement zones would be set around the Shiite-inhabited southern suburbs of Beirut after the withdrawal of Christian militiamen from the area.

Tunisia price hikes nixed

TUNIS, Tunisia — Tunisians embraced and sang in the streets Friday after President Habib Bourguiba canceled the price increases for bread and other foods that set off deadly riots throughout the North African nation.

But the celebration turned into demands for the resignation of Premier Mohamed Mzali, whose government ordered the price hikes on Dec. 29. Mzali is designated to succeed Bourguiba, the 80-year old president for life.

Bourguiba went on nationwide radio and television to announce that "in the face of all the troubles" he had decided to cancel the higher prices.

Within moments of the broadcast, residents of Tunis jammed the streets, joyfully shouting Bourguiba's name, singing the national anthem and embracing troops who were shooting demonstrators 24 hours earlier.

The price of a loaf of bread from a bakery immediately dropped from the equivalent of 18 cents to eight cents.

Black widow spiders plague Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Black widow spiders swarming through Chile's central agricultural region have bitten hundreds of people and forced the closing of a recreational beach, medical authorities said Friday.

Maximiano Beltran, assistant director of health services in the Araucania region, said hospitals in 14 towns treated 329 people this week for the poisonous insect bites, and 25 remained under medical observation.

The zone is suffering a summer drought, and experts say the dry climate has led to an increase in the spider population.

Newspaper reports from the area, 400 miles south of the capital, indicate most of the victims were children. Medical authorities advised Araucania residents to tuck in their shirts and stuff their pants cuffs into their socks.

The spiders have forced authorities to close a river-side beach at Queipul and to begin a brush burning campaign to flush the pests out. In addition, the Agriculture Department is seeding clouds in an effort to bring rain.

Medical authorities said that in years of normal rainfall no more than five people are treated at hospitals for black widow bites.

Rain has not fallen in the Araucania area for two months, causing an estimated $10 million in damage to sugar beets, wheat and other grain crops and triggering more than 400 small forest fires — twice the usual number.

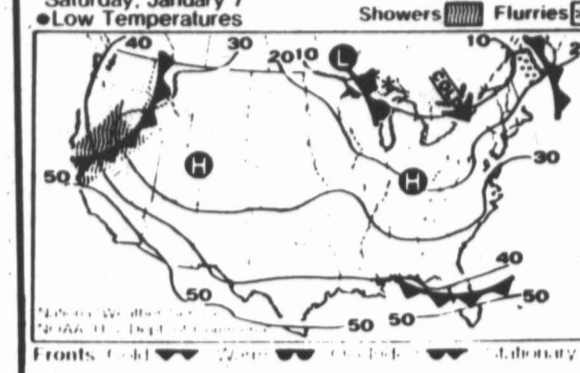

But the damage has been overshadowed in the Chilean press by the spider menace.

Despite daily headlines in tabloid newspapers about the "plague of killer spiders," Beltran said no deaths have been reported and "the situation is totally under control from a medical point of view. All we need is a little rain to diminish the problem."

The Forecast For 7 a.m. EST Saturday, January 7

West Texas - Partly cloudy. Colder north Tuesday. Lows Monday 30s except low 40s southeast. Highs Monday mid 60s north to mid 70s south. Lows Tuesday mid 20s extreme north to low 40s southeast. Highs Tuesday mid 40s Panhandle to low 70s extreme south. Lows Wednesday mid 20s Panhandle to upper 30s Big Bend.

Weather looking good

Much of the nation had fine weather Friday with temperatures soaring above 70 degrees in southern Texas.

Temperatures reached the 50s and 60s by midday from the Carolinas to Texas and from southern New Mexico to southern California.

Temperatures remained below freezing, however, from the Colorado Rockies to the central Intermountain region and from the Great Lakes to northeastern North Dakota.

A few scattered patches of rain, drizzle and snow lingered over the Appalachians, eastern Great Lakes and Northeast, with areas of light rain and drizzle over the Pacific Northwest.

Overnight rainfall over western Washington was light and flood warnings were canceled.

Freezing drizzle and light snow glazed highways in parts of the Intermountain region, and dense fog persisted in California's San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 p.m. EST ranged from 8 degrees at Gunnison, Colo., to 79 at Brownsville, Texas. The low for the day was 9 degrees below zero at Alamosa, Colo.

For Saturday, rain was forecast in the Pacific Northwest with scattered rain showers from eastern Washington to central Montana and southwest Texas. Snow showers and light snow were forecast over northern Maine.

Highs in the 60s were predicted across Florida, the lower Mississippi Valley, the southern and south central Plains and from southern New Mexico to southern California; in the 70s in southern Florida and southwestern California; in the 40s and 50s in the mid-Atlantic Coast and Southeast to the Mississippi Valley and from the central Plains to the Pacific Coast; and below-freezing from northeastern Montana to the eastern Great Lakes and interior New England.

Claims from December's frigid weather are expected to be the costliest ever from a non-hurricane catastrophe and helped push the 1983's total claims to a record level, the Insurance Information Institute announced Friday.

Insured losses in 38 states hit by the wind, snow and freezing temperatures are expected to total $510 million, said John Hilbig, south central regional manager of the institute.

Texas' estimated losses of $145 million are the highest of any state, he said.

Losses from the December weather are exceeded only by losses from Hurricane Frederick, $752.5 million; Hurricane Betsy, $715 million; and Hurricane Alicia, $675 million.

The icy weather also helped push claims during 1983 to a record level of more than $1.88 billion from the year's 33 catastrophes. The previous record was $168 billion in 1979, the year Hurricane Frederick struck.

The loss estimates were compiled by property claims services of the American Insurance Association and include damages associated with weather Dec. 17-30.

Coping with cold weather

Animals in Winter

Some animals hoard food in burrows and wake up every few days for snacks.

A chipmunk might put away thousands of nuts before it crawls into its den to spend the winter sleeping and snacking.

Animals in the warmer, southern parts of the country don't have to worry about the cold weather.

But many animals in the cold, northern parts of the country do.

Warm-blooded animals
Warm-blooded animals have body temperatures that usually stay about the same whatever the temperature around them is.

Some animals sleep a lot. They usually have layers of fat and longer fur coats. These animals are not true hibernators. Sometimes they wake up on warm winter days and search for food. Then they go back to sleep when the cold returns. The black bear might sleep as long as seven months without eating and drinking.

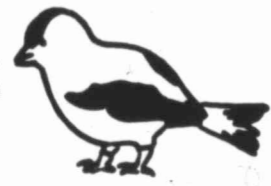

Some birds fly south to warmer weather, but the cardinal is one stay-at-home who is around all winter.

Some animals go on a diet and really don't eat much. By eating a lot in the late summer and early fall, they can live off the fat they have stored in their bodies. Deer look for food all winter long, but they don't eat as much as they do in warmer weather.

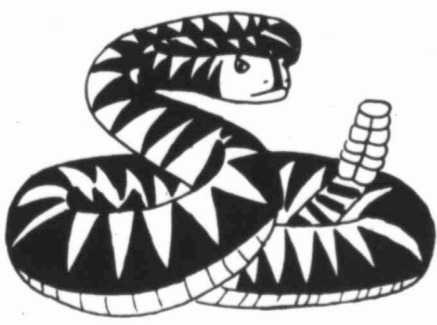

Some animals shiver. When the temperature drops, certain muscles contract and release energy that produces heat.

Some scientists believe that the tiny American goldfinch shivers most of the cold winter.

Red foxes use their bushy tails as scarves to cover their noses and paws when they curl up to sleep.

Sometimes as many as 100 snakes might huddle together in the same burrow. That's some slumber party!

Some turtles and frogs bury themselves in the mud.

Cold-Blooded Animals
Cold-blooded animals have body temperatures that match their surrounding environment. This group includes reptiles and amphibians. When it gets too cold, they find a safe place and hibernate or go into a very deep sleep. These true hibernators sleep so soundly that they look as if they are dead. They wake up only when warm weather comes.

December sales boost retailers' 1984 outlook

By CHRISTOPHER LINDSAY
AP Business Writer

Apprehension that the strong Christmas shopping season would peak early proved needless as major U.S. retailers said sales throughout December rose sharply from a year earlier.

Double-digit gains quashed fears that sales might not hold up through Dec. 31 because the Christmas season got off to an early, strong start in October and an abnormal cold wave blanketed much of the nation in December's last two weeks.

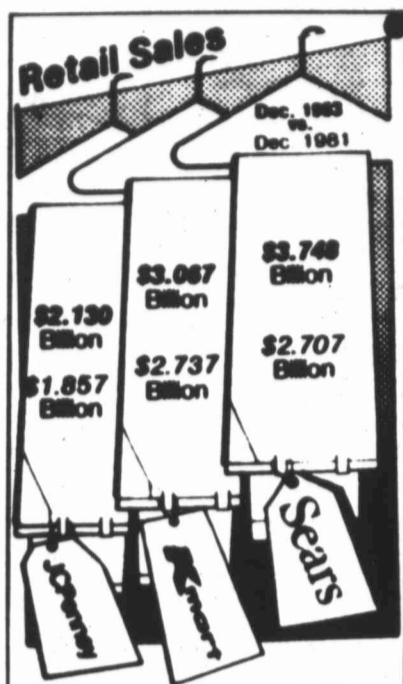

December sales exceeded merchants' expectations, gaining momentum in the last week during clearance sales, said Jeffrey Edelman, retail analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

"We think 1984 is going to get off to a good start. But we don't expect the gains will be as strong (as 1983)," predicted Edelman.

Analysts pointed to restrained inflation and improved employment, which restored consumer confidence in 1983, as the main impetus for the sales gains.

Many retailers reported a general consumer preference for high-quality merchandise and big-ticket items such as TV sets and jewelry.

"Robust sales made this Christmas our merriest in years," said Bernard M. Fauber, chairman of K mart Corp., which said its sales last month were up 11.3 percent from December 1982. Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's biggest retailer, turned in one of the strongest performances, gaining 17.5 percent in December, the largest for that month since 1977, and ringing up gross sales of $3.748 billion. It was the first time in Sears' 97-year history that sales in a month topped $3 billion.

Sears Chairman Edward R. Telling said sharp increases were recorded in stores nationwide and in all five merchandise lines — apparel, auto-recreation, appliances, home fashions and home improvements.

In the 48 weeks ended Dec. 31, excluding Sears' newly acquired Canadian unit, sales were $20.817 billion, up 10 percent from last year's record $18.917 billion.

Most retailers begin their fiscal years in February.

K mart, the No. 2 chain, said December sales rose 11.3 percent to $3.07 billion from $2.755 billion. Fiscal year-to-date sales rose 11.2 percent to $17.5 billion from $15.768 billion.

Third-ranked J.C. Penney Co. said December store and catalog sales were up 11.6 percent to $2.1 billion from $1.9 billion, its best monthly sales gain in two years. For the 48 weeks, sales rose 5.9 percent to $10.4 billion from $9.8 billion.

Federated Department Stores Inc., the fourth-largest retailer with groups of stores under a number of names nationwide, said its December gain was 12.4 percent to $1.563 billion from $1.391 billion, minus sales of a division that is being liquidated.

For the fiscal year-to-date, sales rose 13.4 percent to $8.086 billion from $7.130 billion.

Also setting a record in December was No. 7 retailer Montgomery Ward, which posted sales of $1.025 billion.

Dump truck crushes worker

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A construction worker was killed instantly when the 15-ton bed of a fully loaded dump truck slammed on top of him, the medical examiner's office said.

Firefighters and fellow employees struggled 45 minutes Thursday to unload the truck and free the body of James E. Sumpter, who had been spending his first day on the job.

Sumpter, 32, had been trying to dump a load of topsoil when the bed of the truck became stuck, said witness Martin Garza.

State threatens to halt town's school funding

VENUS, Texas (AP) — With a 1982 census of only about 520 residents, Venus would be one of the last places you'd expect to have a school overcrowding problem.

But it does. Population has boomed recently in Venus, and state officials say they will withdraw accreditation and state funding for the school district unless local educators quickly devise a plan to deal with a serious overcrowding problem that is getting worse.

In a report critical of several parts of the Venus school system, Texas Education Agency inspectors said existing school facilities are unsafe and overcrowded with as many as 45 students in a classroom.

Venus, located south of Fort Worth, now has 581 students.

The inspectors said the district must either find money for the school construction or consolidate with another school district by May.

Grady Vaughn, the 68-year-old retiring school superintendent in Venus, called the report "unfair and unjust."

New subdivisions and mobile home parks near the town have driven up enrollment 60 percent since last spring, Vaughn said. Venus' 29 teachers work in two school buildings and seven portable buildings — a total of 25 classrooms.

Vaughn said district officials have done their best to keep up with all the new students. In October, Venus voters rejected a $2.5 million bond issue to renovate one school and build a new 400-student high school.

The state report also demanded improvements in the school district's management and its curriculum and planning procedures, and said seven instructors must get additional teaching credentials or be removed from classes for which they aren't certified.

"A lot of that stuff, in my opinion, is nitpicking," Vaughn said.

Joyce Miller, who headed the TEA inspection team, said state aid amounts to 72 percent of the district's $750,000 a year budget.

The report also criticized building maintenance, saying school buildings failed to meet state health and fire regulations. Vaughn said "95 percent" of the safety problems have been corrected since the report was received in November.

Bird flies into plane engine

ODESSA (AP) — A Southwest Airlines jet which aborted a flight when a large bird flew into one of its engines was returned to service Friday, an airline spokesman said.

The flight was aborted Thursday when the bird damaged the aircraft's engine near Midland Regional Airport, Southwest Station Manager Rudy Lopez said.

"It caused major damage to the No. 1 engine," Lopez explained. He said another engine was trucked from Dallas, and the Boeing 737 flew with passengers to Dallas Friday.

About 65 passengers were on Thursday's flight, which originated at the Midland facility, Lopez said. No injuries were reported.

He said airline workers found debris indicating that a bird had been sucked into the engine while the aircraft was taking off from the Midland-Odessa airport about 4:50 p.m. Thursday. The craft was bound for Dallas' Love Field.

Lopez said the plane was about 200 feet off the ground when the pilot decided not to attempt the flight with one engine.

About half of the passengers continued onto Dallas aboard another Southwest plane about an hour later.

Steers trampled by Bulldogs

OVER YOU—Big Spring's Chris Roberts (30) goes up high over Midland's Willis Rattliff (32) for a basket in Friday night basketball action at Steer Gym. Also pictured is Albert Reed (44) and Billy Cole (32). Midland won the contest 84-57.

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

Two things that the Big Spring Steers and Midland Bulldogs did in common in their district basketball battle—both teams substituted freely and both squads took their share of knocks on the court, but that's when the similarities stop as the Bulldogs cruised to a 84-57 victory.

The contest was not one of your better-played games as both squads' style of play imitated play ground ball at times. But it was the Steers inability to shoot free throws, Midland's offensive rebounding and Darrell Davis.

Davis, a 6-2 sophomore reserve came off the bench early in the first quarter to ignite his team with his 10-12 jumpers and hard work on the boards. When he existed the game midway through the fourth quarter he had racked up 25 points and 12 rebounds, not a bad night's work for a reserve.

The Steers' performance was better—not better looking than their first outing against the Bulldogs in which Midland went over the century mark. In fact BSHS was in the contest until early in the third quarter until Midland's Kenneth Johnson hit two jumpers to push the lead to 42-27.

The Steers trailed at halftime 36-25 thanks to free shots. The Bulldogs were whistled for 36 fouls in the foul-marred contest and sent BSHS to the line 25 times in the first half alone, and the Steers could only sink 13 of the shots. Big Spring scored all but two of their second quarter points from the line.

When the Steers weren't missing free shots Midland was getting second and third shots at the bucket. The Bulldogs outrebounded the Steers 50-30 in the contest.

$5 million makes Gossage a Padre

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Free agent relief pitcher Rich Gossage agreed Friday to a five-year contract with the San Diego Padres, ending what he termed weeks of sleepless nights.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but it is understood that Gossage will be paid $5.5 million over the life of the contract. The contract also calls for a one-year option in the sixth year.

Gossage, the backbone of the New York Yankees bullpen for six seasons, told a large news conference at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium that he is looking forward to playing baseball again.

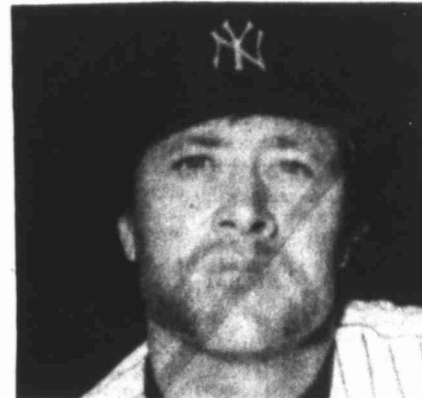

"This negotiating," Gossage laughed, "I'd much rather pitch than negotiate."

Gossage, 32, said he devoted some three months to the search for his new employer, and much of the last three weeks was devoted to nocturnal agonizing.

"Many nights I would wake up and just lay there for an hour mulling over the contract," Gossage said. "Even when I wasn't awake, I must have been thinking about it."

Gossage said a major factor in his choice of San Diego over, among others, the Atlanta Braves, was the youthful but talented Padre corps of starting pitchers.

"Now the starters will be able to go as hard as they can for as long as they can," said the hard-throwing right-hander.

GOOSE GOSSAGE
...signs with Padres

Gossage dismissed any talk concerning possible adjustment troubles in moving to the National League.

"I've got to throw it and they've got to hit it," he said. "I've never fooled anybody in my life."

The signing of Gossage marked the second time in as many seasons that the Padres had landed a standout from the stable of agent Jerry Kapstein. Last year, the Padres landed longtime Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman Steve Garvey.

"I don't want to talk about the monetary terms other than to say that it's a lot of money for somebody who deserves to be making a lot of money," said Padres President Ballard Smith.

NFC, AFC title games pave way to Super Bowl

49ers must play best to stay with Redskins

WASHINGTON (AP) — San Francisco 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said Friday night his team would have to be at its very best to upset the defending champion Washington Redskins in the National Football Conference championship Sunday.

"We have yet to play our best game this year, and we will have to be at our best to be in the contest against the Redskins," Walsh said at a news conference.

The 49ers are a 10-point underdog against a Redskin team that has a 15-2 record, best in the NFL, and set an all-time league scoring mark with 541 points during the regular season.

"Our players have a history of winning too," said Walsh. "We have not just been herded here to play a game."

"A team might be awed by the publicity on behalf of the Redskins but our team has been through the same type of thing before," said Walsh, who guided the then lightly-regarded 49ers to a Super Bowl victory over Cincinnati in 1981.

"This is a better team than the one in '81. I just can't guarantee at what level we will play," Walsh said of the 11-6 Western Division champions.

Walsh said the team's main concern remains stopping Washington fullback John Riggins, who set a single-season touchdown record with 24 and gained 1,347 yards during the regular season. Riggins, who has gone over the 100-yard mark for a record five playoff games, rushed for 119 yards last week as the Redskins routed the Los Angeles Rams 51-7.

"Offensively the Redskins have a dimension that no one in football has and that's John Riggins," Walsh said. "There are fullbacks and there are fullbacks. Riggins is in a class by himself."

In an effort to slow Riggins, Walsh is expected to bring his secondary closer to the line of scrimmage. The Redskins faced a similar defense in Dallas in their December successful showdown with the Cowboys.

"We used three wide receivers against the Cowboys and forced them to play us one-on-one," Gibbs said.

Redskin warm-up

WORKING OUT — Joe Theismann, quarterback for the Washington Redskins, throws the ball as John Riggins, running back, left, and Joe Jacoby, tackle, look on during the Redskins workout Friday. The Redskins play San Francisco Sunday for the NFC title.

"As well as the 49er secondary plays, I don't think they want to play that way against us like that all day."

The two teams held their last contact work Friday with both teams planning light workouts Saturday morning.

The 49ers, who flew east Thursday night, have been practicing at the University of Maryland in College Park, Md.

Gibbs, Coach of the Year, the past two years, is 31-11 as a head coach in three years with the Redskins. The only NFC team he has not beaten is the 49ers.

The Redskins, meanwhile, announced they have no tickets left for the Super Bowl. The team's allotment of 16,500 tickets, at $60 each, was distributed to season ticket holders on a first-come, first-served basis.

Seahawks want first AFC conference title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three is the number to keep in mind for Sunday's American Conference championship game.

Three years ago, when the then-Oakland Raiders were the AFC's surviving wild-card team, they knocked off the Western Division champs to win the conference title and a berth in the Super Bowl.

And last year, Miami knocked off the New York Jets three times in a row, the last time for the conference crown, to make it to the National Football League championship game.

The Seattle Seahawks' aim is to achieve both feats in one afternoon when they play the Raiders, now berthed in Los Angeles.

"The hardest thing is to get to the playoffs," Raiders Coach Tom Flores said. "After that, anything can happen. I'm well aware of what can happen to a wild-card team that gets hot. We did it in 1980 and became world champions."

The Raiders won the AFC West with a 12-4 record, but two of those losses were to the Seahawks, 38-36 in Seattle and 34-21 back home two weeks later. Now the Seahawks get a third shot at Los Angeles.

"I don't think beating them twice is going to have anything to do with what happens Sunday," said Chuck Knox, who guided Seattle into its first playoff appearance in his first year as its head coach.

"Revenge is not a factor in this game," concurred Marcus Allen, the Raiders' running back. "What's at stake has nothing to do with those two games. What's at stake is a trip to the Super Bowl."

The two Seattle victories were built on turnovers — a whopping 13 of them in the two games. The Raiders had five fumbles and three intercepted passes in the first game, and three four interceptions and committed a fumble in the second one.

The title matchup brings together two of the more electrifying young runners in the game, two of the finer receivers — and two of the most overlooked passers.

Caulkins leads U.S. swim team

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tracy Caulkins, who saw her 100-meter breast stroke American record broken, outlasted a late surge by East German Kathleen Nord to win the 200-meter individual medley Friday at the United States Swimming International meet.

Caulkins, 20, led most of the way but had to hang on in the final lap to edge Nord by .18 with a winning time of 2:19.61. It was Caulkin's first win in international competition since 1981. Her time of 2:19.61 beat Nord by .18.

"I've been training hard and I have been ill," said Caulkins. "So I was really happy to win. I wanted this one more than I have in a while."

East German Ute Geweniger broke Caulkins American Open record earlier Friday in the meet that is the last international competition before the Olympics, winning the women's 100-meter breast stroke in 1:09.42.

Tiffany Cohen of the U.S. team won the women's 200-freestyle, defeating hard-charging East German Kristin Otto by a tenth of a second with a time of 2:00.83. Cohen was upset in the 1,500-meter freestyle Thursday, the first day of the four-day competition, losing to another East German, Astrid Strauss.

"I guess this helps make up for yesterday," Cohen said after her win. World record holders Mary T. Meagher and Matt Gribble of the U.S. team won the women's and men's 100-meter butterfly. Meagher won with a time of 59.63 and MGribble with a time of 54.78.

Andy Astbury of Mission Viejo, Calif., who won the men's 200-meter freestyle with a time of 1:52.63.

However, Rowdy Gaines of the U.S. team, who did not qualify for the championship, turned in the fastest time in the event with a 1:51.41 clocking in the consolation event.

Other winners Friday were Jozef Hlabky of Czechoslovakia in the men's 200-meter individual medley with a time of 2:05.91 and Adrian Moorehouse of England in the men's 100-breast stroke with a time of 1:03.16.

The United States (A team) also won both the men and women's 800 freestyle relays.

In Thursday's opening session, Tony Corbisiero of New York City won the men's 800-meter freestyle in 8:03.59 and 15-year-old Astrid Strauss of East Germany set a European record of 16:13.55.

East-West Shrine game showcases best players

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Irving Fryar was slumped to the ground in agony because he felt he'd let his Nebraska teammates down in the Orange Bowl.

The All-American wide receiver, no matter how well he does on Saturday, will be helping many people. He'll participate in the 50th Shrine East-West football game, played for the benefit of crippled children who get free care in Shriner's hospitals around the country.

Another player in the game, Florida quarterback Wayne Peace, said after visiting the hospital in San Francisco this week, "It's so easy to think things aren't going well, that you have problems. This kind of thing lets you know that you've got everything in the world."

Things did not go well for Fryar in the final minute of Monday's Orange Bowl game.

He was wide open at the goal line with a minute remaining and his team behind 31-24 when he dropped a perfect pass from quarterback Turner Gill. The Cornhuskers scored on the next play but lost the game and the national championship to Miami's Hurricanes when Gill's pass to Jeff Smith on a two-point conversion attempt fell incomplete.

Fryar should have several opportunities to remind a national television audience and about 70,000 fans at Stanford Stadium how good a receiver he is. Gill and Arizona's Tom Tunnicliffe are the quarterbacks who will be aiming at Fryar and other West receivers.

The East squad includes Miami tight end Glenn Dennison, who caught two touchdown passes in the Orange Bowl, and linebacker Jay Brophy of the No. 1 Hurricanes.

Mike Rozier, Nebraska's Heisman Trophy winner, is on the West team but will miss the game because of the ankle injury suffered Monday night. Tulsa's Michael Gunter has taken his place and will share the running back duties with Kevin Nelson of UCLA and Alfred Anderson of Baylor.

Nelson, younger brother of former Stanford star Darrin Nelson, scored a touchdown and ran for 69 yards in UCLA's Rose Bowl victory over Illinois. On the East team, players coming off winning days in bowl games include quarterback Walter Lewis and wide receiver Joey Jones of Alabama, running back Lionel James and defensive lineman Doug Smith of Auburn, and linebacker Rowland Tatum of Ohio State.

Watson survives first round at Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - A wave of upsets eliminated all the seeded players in two rounds of competition Friday in the Seiko-Tucson Match Play Championship, but another set of eight exempt players - including some of golf's greatest stars - are poised to make their entrance in the PGA Tour's season-opening event.

Tom Watson, Hal Sutton, Fuzzy Zoeller and five others, the leaders from the 1983 Seiko Grand Prix list, begin competition Saturday against the survivors of four rounds of earlier competition. Ben Crenshaw, Tom Kite, Lanny Wadkins, Cal Peete and Gil Morgan, who won the Tucson tournament as a medal-play event last year, also were given byes into the fifth round of play.

And, Mark Hayes said, they may begin at something of a disadvantage. "There probably will be an advantage to the guys who have played through the tournament so far," Hayes said after his 2-up triumph over D.A. Weiringer in the fourth round.

"The guys who have played know the course better. They've gotten into the season. For the others, they're playing their first competitive round of the year. They might be a little edge. They might not know just where their game is."

Eight other players had been given exemptions into the second round. Three were knocked out Wednesday. Four more - Andy Bean, Curtis Strange, Fred Couples and Mark McCumber - lost Friday morning, and the last survivor, Payne Stewart, was a 3 and 2 upset victim at the hands of Jim Dent Friday afternoon.

In the other late matches, Keith Fergus beat veteran Dave Stockton 1 up, Richard Zokol took Allen Miller 4 and 2, Scott Hoch advanced 4 and 3 over Doug Tewell, Victor Regalado stopped Morris Hataalsky 4 and 2, Lon Hinkle beat Brad Bryant 2 and 1 and T.C. Chen, a tour sophomore from Taiwan continued his advance with a 12-foot birdie putt that won from Tom Purtzer on the 20th hole.

AFC

Curt Warner of Penn State, the Seahawks' No. 1 pick in the first round of last April's NFL college draft, was the AFC's leading rusher with 1,449 yards, 138 more than his nearest competitor, Houston's Earl Campbell. And only Cincinnati's Pete Johnson ran for more touchdowns in the conference than Warner's 13. Warner also caught 42 passes during the year.

Allen, in his second pro season, was the Raiders' leading ground-gainer, seventh in the conference, with 1,014 yards. He also is a major cog in the Los Angeles passing game. During the season he caught 68 passes, seventh in the AFC, for 590 yards.

But the Raiders' primary receiver was the league leader, tight end Todd Christensen, with 92 receptions for 1,247 yards and 12 touchdowns. Steve Largent led the Seahawks' receivers with 72 catches, sixth in the conference, for 1,074 yard and 11 TDs.

Dave Krieg, who won the Seahawks' starting quarterback job from Jim Zorn midway in the season, wound up the AFC's No. 2 passer, behind only Miami rookie Dan Marino. Krieg threw 18 touchdown passes and 11 interceptions.

Jim Plunkett of the Raiders lost his starting job to Marc Wilson midway in the season, then got it back three games later when Wilson suffered a dislocated left shoulder. Plunkett finished fifth in conference passing, throwing 20 TDs and 18 interceptions.

Maulers after Rozier

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League said Friday they are optimistic they can sign Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier to a USFL contract within 10 days.

Mike Trope, Rozier's agent, said the Nebraska running back's value now - before he's been drafted by the National Football League - is as high as it will ever be.

Trope and the Maulers, however, were still dickering over a number of items, most notably Trope's contention that Rozier is worth as much to the USFL as fellow Heisman winner Herschel Walker was last season.

Maulers General Manager George Heddeleston said his team, which drafted Rozier Wednesday, "never agreed to match Herschel's contract." Despite that, Trope said: "I think they really want the kid."

Trope, the Los Angeles-based agent who has represented seven of the last 12 Heisman Trophy winners, said Rozier is "definitely in the category" of Walker, who reportedly signed a three-year, $5 million contract with the USFL's New Jersey Generals last year.

"I'm not going to tell you what we've asked for, but it's very substantial," Trope said.

Heddeleston, who said he hopes to sign Rozier before the running back leaves Jan. 14 for the Japan Bowl, said Walker's name came up in negotiations, which FALLEN IDOL - Bob Hayes, in New York Thursday to be honored by the Madison Square Garden Hall of Fame Club, is a fallen idol who is seeking to resurrect a life shattered by a crime of which he says he was innocent. Hayes won the 100-meter event and anchored the 400-meter relay team to gold medals in the 1964 Olympics. In 1979, he was sentenced to five years in prison on a dope dealing charge, but was released after 10 months.

Forsan, Garden City seeking district crown

By STEVE BELVIN Staff Writer

The District 16-A girls' basketball race promises to go to the wire with Garden City and Forsan trying to cop a playoff berth with young squads.

Both teams are short on experience; the two schools have only two seniors between them; and both are listed on the Buffalo Queens' roster.

Garden City coach Jim Eubank has an extremely young squad, starting three juniors and two sophomores. Not only are they inexperienced, but 5-6 sophomore forward Jana Hunter is the tallest player on the team.

Gina Wilde, a 5-5 junior post player leads the team in scoring with 12 points per game. Debbie Bednar, a 5-1 junior guard follows with an 11 point average.

Garden City has 5-3 junior post player Stephanie Frerich who leads the squad in rebounding followed closely by Wilde. Sophomore Gina Schaefer rounds out the starting lineup.

Freed flier finds cheery welcome at home

NEIGHBORLY — Navy flier, Lt. Robert Goodman, with his wife, Terry Lynn, gestures to neighbors to join them on their front porch at his arrival home in Virginia Beach, Va., Friday.

Lt. Goodman returns to Virginia Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Navy Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., freed after a month of captivity in Syria, returned Friday to his own house and a joyous, banner-waving welcome from neighbors and fellow airmen.

"Hey, this is my front door. This is fantastic," Goodman said when he stood on the porch of his two-story colonial-style home in a Virginia Beach subdivision.

Goodman, 27, hugged several of his neighbors, who had decorated his house with banners reading "Welcome Home Rob" and "Some people will do anything to come home early" — a joking reference to his being shot down Dec. 4 over Syria.

Goodman, his wife Terry Lynn and two daughters, Tina, 7, and Morgan, 2, flew from Washington to Oceana Naval Air Station, where Goodman's Attack Squadron 85 is based.

As a Navy band played "Anchors Aweigh," Goodman's friends and fellow fliers waved more welcome banners and small American flags.

Smiling and wearing a green cap marked VA-85, Goodman shook hands with Navy officials and then rushed to hug wives of his squadron mates. Goodman's squadron is aboard the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy off the coast of Lebanon.

"This is home territory for me, a lot more familiar faces," Goodman said at a news conference. "My hands are shaking."

He and his family plan to leave Saturday for Portsmouth, N.H., where Goodman attended high school, for more celebrations.

Goodman spent two days after his return Wednesday meeting President Reagan and other officials in Washington and said his reception has been "pretty overwhelming."

"I don't want to change," he said. "I want to be the same person I was before I left."

Goodman said medical examinations at Bethesda Naval Hospital showed that a knee injury he suffered when his plane was shot down, killing the pilot, "is a little more serious than I had envisioned."

He said he will be on a month's convalescent leave and may need surgery for possibly torn ligaments.

After that his plans are uncertain, although Goodman said he would like to return to his attack squadron. He has talked to his squadron leaders by telephone since his release.

Goodman, who was freed Tuesday after the Rev. Jesse Jackson made a personal appeal to Syrian leaders, said he had developed a good relationship with the Democratic presidential candidate. As a military officer, Goodman said he is prohibited from campaigning for anyone.

After meeting with Navy officials at Oceana, Goodman and his family were driven to their home, where a small cluster of neighbors waited to yell "welcome home."

The Goodmans chatted briefly with neighbors before heading inside.

"Champagne and the fire. We're all set. Bye," Mrs. Goodman said before she closed the door.

December's cold causes heating bills to soar 41%

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heating bills jumped 41 percent in that December cold snap, costing Americans nearly $1.8 billion more than usual to stay warm in just the last two weeks of the month, according to government estimates issued Friday.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration estimated that heating American homes and factories between Dec. 18 and 31 cost $6.03 billion.

That's $1.76 billion more than would be expected in the same period of a normal year, according to the agency's Assessment and Information Services Center.

The agency said it did not break down the added cost according to homes, businesses and factories. But with about 234 million Americans, according to Census Bureau figures, that amounted to an average added heating cost during the period of $7.52 for each person, both at home and at work.

The meteorologists estimate heating expenditures based on temperature and the costs of various fuels in different parts of the country.

Here is a regional rundown of heating costs between Dec. 18-31, and how they vary from what would be expected in a normal year:

- New England, $380 million, $65 million above normal. Includes Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.
- Mid-Atlantic, $1.12 billion, $254 million above normal. Includes New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.
- East North Central, $1.48 billion, $472 million above normal. Includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.
- West North Central, $639 million, $228 million above normal. Includes Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.
- South Atlantic, $780 million, $232 million above normal. Includes Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.
- East South Central, $404 million, $157 million above normal. Includes Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee.
- Mountain, $308 million, $70 million above normal. Includes Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.
- Pacific, $395 million, the same as normal. Includes California, Washington and Oregon.

Beekeeper rides herd on swarm of 1 billion

VIDOR, Texas (AP) — Ken Horn used to pray that God would send him "some little something" that would help him make money.

What he got was a swarm of very angry bees in his back yard.

That was 14 years ago. Now the swarm has grown a billion bees in 1,500 hives. Horn expects them to produce half a million pounds of honey next year.

"The bees make the honey," Horn said. "I don't have to plow or plant any seeds and the bees take nothing from the soil or the plants. They help the plants by helping pollination."

What sounds like a sweet deal has a stinger in it: Keeping bees is hard work.

"We've got something going on around here all year long," Horn said. "Right now we're getting new boxes ready for the hives for next year."

Horn has to give the bees medicine, clean and repair their wooden hive homes, make sure each colony has one — and only one — queen, take honey from hives that have an excess, provide food for hives with too little and perform dozens of other tasks.

The busiest time of all starts May 15 and ends about a month later. It is then that thousands of tall trees bloom in Orange County and millions of Horn's bees go into a frenzy of honey production.

Horn says his bees make an average of 180 pounds of honey in every hive, although the national average is 60 pounds per hive. One year one of his hives produced 268 pounds.

Soon after he captured his first hive, Horn discovered little is known about producing honey in southeast Texas.

"Every bee book we found was about growing bees in Wisconsin or someplace," he said. "Nobody knew anything about growing bees down here."

Although thousands of hives are trucked to Texas and other southern states in the winter so the bees won't die of cold, the South's year-round heat is not considered good for the insects.

So it was up to Horn's friend Henry Kettl, a retired Beaumont man who worked as a senior chemist at an oil refinery, to invent a device that provides a sort of natural air conditioning.

Kettl has a patent pending on the device, which allows air to escape through vents on top of a hive while vents below bring in fresh air. In the winter, the hive covers are turned off and bees use their bodies to keep the central part of their home warm.

The air circulator has the added benefit of reducing the honey's moisture content. Horn said humidity is a problem in the steamy southeast corner of Texas. Honey begins to ferment when its water content reaches 19 percent.

Even with the hive covers, Horn found dampness was destroying his honey. Boiling the honey to steam away the water didn't work because honey burns at 220 degrees.

So Horn sought Kettl's advice again.

"About three weeks later he brought a set of drawings and said, 'This will work,'" Horn said.

The sketches were an adaptation of a vacuum used in refineries.

"I was used to having all the data on hand before starting a project," Kettl said. "Nobody could tell me about the specific gravity of honey at different temperatures or about its viscosity. We had to do it by trial and error."

Kettl's machine creates a vacuum, in which water boils at 190 degrees, low enough that the honey is not damaged.

Twin babies killed in fire

WACO (AP) — Twin 2-year-old sisters were killed Friday in a fire set by their 4-year-old brother while their mother slept.

Firefighters found the bodies of Jamie Lynn and Amy Wannell Bishop in a closet of their family's upstairs apartment.

Their mother, Melissa Bishop, and 4-year-old brother Jimmy received minor injuries in the blaze, which broke out shortly after noon, firefighters said.

Fire officials said Mrs. Bishop told them her son had set a teddy bear on fire with a cigarette lighter earlier in the day.

Jackson hits campaign trail

BOSTON (AP) — Jesse Jackson was on the campaign trail again Friday, hoping his success in winning the release of a Navy flier will convert to political currency — but dogged by questions about who paid the bills for that Syrian trip.

At a news conference enroute to New Hampshire, Jackson said: "We went to Syria as guests of the Syrian government. We came back as guests of our government. If there were any bills that were picked up inadvertently, and not at our request, any outstanding bills will be paid for by our delegation or by our supporters."

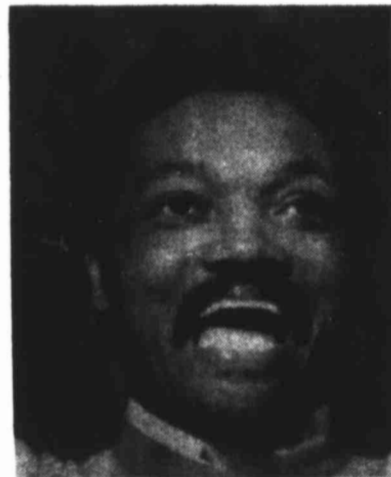

Jackson said his entourage paid its own airfare to Syria and noted that it returned on U.S. military aircraft after securing the Navy pilot's release.

He said any Syrian payment of his group's hotel bills while in Damascus was inadvertent and that the Syrian government will be reimbursed from funds raised on Jackson's behalf for that purpose — not from his campaign fund.

Still unsettled late Friday was whether the flier he freed from Syrian captivity — Lt. Robert Goodman Jr. — will appear with him at a Saturday afternoon homecoming rally in New Hampshire.

That joint appearance had been planned in Portsmouth, N.H., — where Goodman grew up — but there were signs on Friday that Pentagon officials were wary of letting an officer appear at a rally arranged by a presidential campaign staff and that Goodman might not return to his home state until Saturday evening.

Jackson described as trivial any confusion over a joint appearance with Goodman in New Hampshire.

JESSE JACKSON ...hitting the stump

"We will not allow any actions to effect the sense of celebration," he said. "We don't want to stain that moral mission."

Aides said Jackson plans to go to Portsmouth on Saturday whether or not Goodman is on hand for the festivities.

Jackson said he did not want Goodman to become embroiled in his political campaign. In fact, Jackson said he told Goodman and Goodman's parents earlier this week not to allow the events that led to Goodman's release to cause Goodman personal or professional problems.

He said he told Goodman: "Do not feel any sense of obligation to what I am doing politically. ... The first thing you should do is get reacquainted with your wife and children. The second thing is to make sure that your professional career is not thrown off track."

Jackson's first scheduled event in New Hampshire was a speech to a conference on acid rain Friday night in Manchester — a major issue in New England. At least six of the Democratic candidates are scheduled to speak to the conference over the weekend.

Role reversal

Actor trades in good image for difficult role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Playing an incestuous father in a new TV movie was a difficult role for actor Ted Danson, and it forced him to take a look at "the dark side" of himself.

By that he meant that he had to probe his mind, in the same way an actor portraying a murderer would, to pull out those hidden feelings and emotions.

"My role in 'The Onion Field' was a tough one, too," Danson said. "But I don't think I've ever had to take a look at that side of myself that you don't want to look at often. In a way it's also fascinating."

The movie, "Something About Amelia," which ABC will telecast on Monday, focuses on the effects of incest on a middle-class family and how they cope with it by means of therapy.

It all comes out in the open when Danson's 13-year-old daughter, Amelia, breaks down before her school counselor under mounting feelings of shame, guilt and powerlessness. Glenn Close co-stars as Danson's wife, and Roxana Zal plays Amelia.

Danson, who plays good guy Sam on the comedy series, "Cheers," said he spent a lot of time discussing his role with Dr. Stan J. Katz, director of education and training for Children's Institute International, who was technical consultant.

He said he asked Katz what kind of people commit incest and Katz told him "ordinary people." Katz also told him he didn't know why men do it, but it appears that it's a lack of self-esteem.

Danson said he was pleased that the film took enlightened therapeutic approaches

TED DANSON ...challenging role from different states and used them all in the story. "What I think is good about that is that the bond between parent and child is the strongest bond we have in life," he said. "If there is any way through therapy we can keep that bond together, it's worthwhile." He also was glad the movie did not show any sexuality. "He was a man who had been involved for two years. If we had done a scene, it wouldn't have been as devastating as having Amelia say, 'Yes, we've been having sex once a week for two years.' That stirs the imagination more than seeing it."

In his portrayal, Danson said he had to suppress feelings of immorality so he would not be a bad guy.

"I had to be as truthful as I could in every moment so people wouldn't sit there and say, 'Hey, that isn't me.' I don't want to let people off the hook."

Danson, tall and handsome, with the lithe build of an athlete, starred last year in the TV movie, "Cowboy" and was the dancing prosecutor in "Body Heat."

Born in San Diego, Danson grew up in the mountains of northern Arizona, the son of a local museum curator. He became interested in drama during his second year at Stanford University and transferred to Carnegie Tech to concentrate on the craft.

After graduation, he landed a role in an off-Broadway production of "The Real Inspector Hound." After doing commercials and daytime soaps, Danson and his wife, environmental designer Casey Coates, moved to Los Angeles where they managed the Actors Institute.

He landed the part of officer Ian Campbell in "The Onion Field," and did a few guest spots on "Family," "Magnum P.I." and other TV shows.

"I think the reason I was chosen for this role is because I portray nice guy Sam Malone on 'Cheers.' It lets people stick with it longer because he is a nice guy," he said.

CBS still ranked No. 1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC's spicy duo of "Hotel" and "Dynasty" finished first and second in the Nielsen TV ratings for the past week, but CBS held onto overall honors despite being squeezed out of the first four places in the Top 10.

"90 Minutes" was CBS' highest-rated show, and it was in fifth place. Second-place network ABC tied CBS with four shows each in the Top 10, and third-place NBC had two.

Just behind ABC's Wednesday combo of "Hotel" and "Dynasty" were the two NBC offerings in third- and fourth-place: "The A-Team" and a Clint Eastwood movie, "The Enforcer."

"Hotel," which stars James Brolin and Anne Baxter, made its initial appearance in first place. But the glamorous anthology series set in an exclusive San Francisco hotel, one of the few hits among the new fall shows, has been in second place twice.

CBS won the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey for the week ended Jan. 1 with a network average of 16.7. ABC was second with 15.9 and NBC was third with 14.8. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 16.7 percent of the nation's television homes were tuned to CBS.

The victory was the sixth straight win for CBS. The network also leads in the season-to-date ratings. CBS has 18.1, ABC 17.1 and NBC 15.6.

Other shows in the Top 10: the CBS movie "Dixie: Changing Habits" was sixth; CBS' "The Dukes of Hazzard" was seventh; ABC's "The Fall Guy" was eighth and ABC's "Hart to Hart" and CBS' "Simon & Simon" tied for ninth place.

The lowest-rated show for the week was "NBC Reports: Beyond the Missile Crisis." The bottom five shows in descending order were: NBC's "Rouster," CBS' "Cutter to Houston" and NBC's "First Camera," "Manimal" and "NBC Reports."

CBS continued to dominate the evening news shows. It was first with a rating of 14.3. ABC was second with 12.0 and NBC was third with 11.9.

IS THAT YOU, LYNDON? — Jack Klugman shows his two faces of "Lyndon," after a makeup session in Los Angeles recently in preparation for his one-man show portrayal of the late President Lyndon Baines

Johnson. Makeup artist Charlie Schram put his talent to the test for Klugman's cross-country tour which highlights Johnson's life as president.

Cafe artist, 80, revives lost art

HEAVENER, Okla. (AP) — Most cafe artists left the scene in the late 1950s with the passing of the beatnik generation. Ples Pilkington, though, was not among them.

He didn't join the ranks until 1970, the year he retired as a conductor with the Kansas City Southern Railroad. Now at 80, Pilkington has visited most every town in LeFlore County as well as towns like Hartford and Mansfield in the mountains of western Arkansas. He leaves behind a legacy of art created with deft strokes of felt-tip pens.

Though his works may never grace the halls of the Louvre, most people are pleased to get a Ples original. "I never charge," he said. "I just enjoy doing it."

Sometimes Pilkington sketches the waitresses at work in the cafes he visits. Often he draws the signs that entice customers to order biscuits and gravy or another mug of coffee.

Pilkington, whose first name is short for Pleasant, began painting as a little boy. He joined the railroad in 1923 and began painting signs a few years later when the Great Depression hit. Now, he lives in a large green house along U.S. Highway 59, a stone's throw from the tracks he once rode.

"I like to live in a little town where you know everybody and you can help them run their business," he said with a smile.

Pilkington took his business on the road a few years back, visiting cafes and diners along the way. Equipped with his colored felt-tipped pens, he was able to earn a cup of coffee at each stop.

Though he has visited most of the towns in the area — "I've got a couple more I'm going to" — the random visits are over. "I have a schedule I go by now," he said.

Up each day at 3:30, he arrives at the Rock Diner no later than 4:45. Next stop is the Wooden Rail, then the doughnut shop by half-past six. "I have coffee at all three places, come home, eat breakfast and go to T and M Pharmacy to meet my friends," he said.

Baloney wins out over hot lunches

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — For the inmates at the city jail, it was the same old bologna today, and it will continue to be that way for at least two weeks to come.

Inmates at the facility have been fed a steady diet of bologna and cheese sandwiches for the past 11 years. But changes were to be made and hot food was to be added to the menu.

But assistant Purchasing Agent Emily Karwoski said Thursday the City Council put off consideration of a menu change for the prisoners because the luncheonette that offered to supply hot food is owned by the brother of the janitor who has been making the bologna sandwiches all these years.

Nick Montis, who owns the Majestic Restaurant, was the sole bidder to supply egg, bacon and cheese sandwiches for breakfasts and hamburgers for lunch and dinner.

"I also have to check with the chief of police to see if he is satisfied with the proposed food," Ms. Karwoski said. "As of now, the people in the jail are still getting bologna sandwiches."

The next meeting at which the council could vote to approve the contract and give inmates a break is Jan. 19, Ms. Karwoski said.

The food controversy started late last year when a municipal public defender complained that inmates had received only bologna and cheese sandwiches for more than a decade.
