How's that? Recall

Q. Who has the authority to fire city councilmen?

A. A councilman can't be fired but can be removed by a recall election. To hold a recall election, a qualified elector must file an affidavit with the city secretary stating the names of the officers to be removed and the reason. The city secretary then is required to issue petitions, which must be signed by a number of qualified voters at least equal to 35 percent of the votes in the last regular city election. However, the petition must have at least 100 signatures.

After the petitions have been submitted to the city secretary and verified, the councilman named has five days to resign. If he does not, the council must order a recall election to be held 10 to 20 days from the end of the five days given to allow the councilman to resign. A simple majority vote in the referendum results in the removal of the councilman from office.

If the council refuses to discharge their duties in reference to recall, the county judge authorized to perform those duties. If three or more councilmen are named in a recall election, proposed candidates' names must be placed on the recall ballot. If less than three officers are placed on the ballot for recall, the resulting vacancies shall be filled by appointment by remaining council members.

Calendar: Registration

- TODAY
- Howard College students will register in the Anthony Hunt Library from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.
  - The League of United Latin American Citizens will meet at 7 p.m. at the Spanish Inn.
  - The Spring City Dance Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Eagles Lodge. Jim King will furnish the music. Guests are welcome.
- THURSDAY
- Howard College students will register in the Anthony Hunt Library from 9 a.m. to noon, 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Tops on TV: Chevy, chimps

Chevy Chase and Patti D'Arbanville star in "Modern Problems," a comedy about a hapless air traffic controller with numerous personal problems who is endowed with telekinetic powers after being doused with nuclear waste. The movie airs at 8 p.m. on channel 7. At 8 p.m. on channel 5, Dr. Jane Goodall is featured in a National Geographic Special "Among the Wild Chimpanzees."

Outside: Warm

Today's skies should be sunny with highs in the upper 50s. Winds will be southwesterly, 10 to 20 miles per hour. Tonight, look for clear skies with lows in the upper 20s. On Thursday temperatures should be cooler with highs in the upper 40s.

Suit aimed at city voting plan

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Hard questions and the threat of a lawsuit confronted Big Spring city councilmen last night when three city residents, including a former council member, voiced their objections to the council's recent voting rights settlement with the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Protests over the suit from former city councilman and county tax board member Jack Watkins, bail bond company owner Mary Thomas and former Big Spring policeman Raymond Hall focused on extensions of office terms for the mayor and two councilmen that come as a result of the LULAC settlement. "If they want to run again, I'd work for them in a minute, but I think they ought to put it to the voters," Hall said. "If there's nothing worked out, I'm sure there will be a lawsuit. You can't elect your own self to office again," Mrs. Thomas said.

The settlement, which expands the council to seven members and calls for elections from three single member districts in addition to four at-large positions, was approved by the Federal District Court in Abilene and the United States Department of Justice after it was hammered out by city and LULAC lawyers last summer.

Included in the settlement is a provision extending the terms of office of Mayor Clyde Angel and Councilman Larry Miller until 1986. Angel and Miller were elected in 1982 for two-year terms. The provision also extends the term of office for Councilman Robert Fuller — elected in 1982 for a two-year term — until 1985.

Watkins told the council the extensions are "a violation of civil rights" and wanted to know who suggested the extensions and under what law they are allowed.

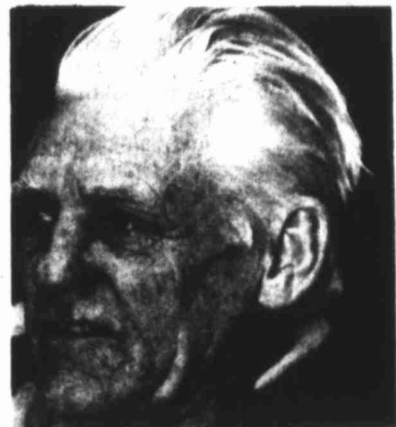

Speaking for the council, member Russ McEwan said he was unable to say who came up with the proposal because so many plans were discussed.

Local LULAC President Pat DeAnda, who also attended last night's meeting, said her organization's main concern in negotiations with the city was to get minority representation.

"We left it for (the council) to decide how they wanted to do it and when they wanted to do it," Mrs. DeAnda said.

City Attorney Doyle Curtis said the extensions came within the jurisdiction of the federal court in Abilene that approved the settlement.

Four file in county elections

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Three incumbents and one challenger have filed intentions to run for office with the Howard County clerk's office, Clerk Margaret Ray said.

Sheriff A.N. Standard, Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore and Precinct 1 County Commissioner O.L. (Louis) Brown have filed for re-election, Mrs. Ray said. In addition, Doyle L. Lamb of 554 Hillside has filed for the Precinct 1, Place 1 Justice of the Peace seat currently held by Bobby West. West previously has said he intends to run again.

Standard was first elected sheriff of Howard County in 1965. Previously he served as a sheriff's deputy for four years. He also was an officer with the Big Spring police department for 10 years before moving to the sheriff's department.

Mrs. Moore is trying for her second term as the county's tax assessor-collector. Her duties include issuing voter registration cards and collecting taxes for all the taxing entities in Howard County. She has been an employee in the county tax assessor-collector's office for 20 years.

Brown is the only commissioner "who works full time as a commissioner," he says. He is trying for a third term as a commissioner. One of his major projects as a commissioner is the formation of the county boxing club to help disadvantaged youths, he said.

Lamb is a master plumber and previously owned a restaurant on Gregg Street.

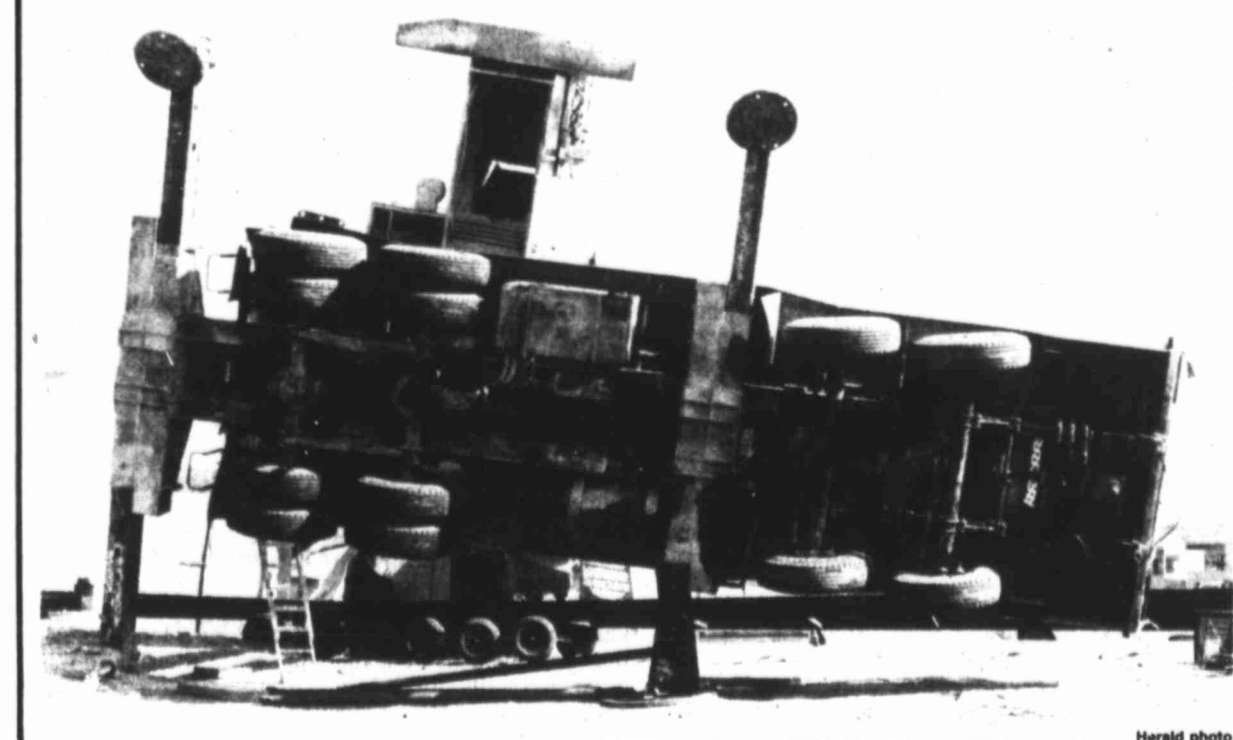

All four candidates have designated themselves as their own treasurers, Mrs. Ray said.

New voter registration cards should be mailed out in two weeks, according to the tax assessor-collector's office.

These things happen

CRANE CRASHES — "These things happen," said Del Ware, project director of Brinkcraft Development, the company building the $4.4 million apartment complex in the city's Coronado addition. "It's just lucky that no-one was hurt," he added. The accident happened when the 65-ton crane lost its balance while lifting one of the modular "building block" pieces the company is using to construct the new complex. The crane fell directly on the block it was lifting, cutting it in two.

Silkwood judgment reinstated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today reinstated a $10 million award won by Karen Silkwood's children against the Kerr-McGee Corp.

The justices, by a 5-4 vote, reversed a decision that had thrown out an Oklahoma jury's award to Ms. Silkwood's estate as an impermissible conflict with federal regulation of the nuclear industry.

The nation's highest court today said that there is no impermissible conflict between the state and federal laws. The decision, however, leaves Kerr-McGee free to challenge the amount of the award in lower courts.

Ms. Silkwood, a 28-year-old laboratory analyst at Kerr-McGee's Cimarron plutonium plant near Crescent, Okla., died in an automobile accident Nov. 13, 1974, while on her way to meet with a New York Times reporter.

Days before, she had been radioactively contaminated. Ms. Silkwood, a union activist responsible for monitoring health and safety matters at the Cimarron plant, reportedly wanted to make public evidence of missing plutonium and falsified safety records.

Her family sued in 1976, alleging negligence by Kerr-McGee and seeking damages for injuries Ms. Silkwood suffered — primarily fear and anxiety — during the nine days from her contamination to her death.

A trial jury in Oklahoma said Kerr-McGee should pay Ms. Silkwood's three children $500,000 in actual damages and $10 million in punitive damages. The jury also awarded $5,000 for Ms. Silkwood's contaminated belongings that had to be destroyed.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had overturned the punitive damage award after ruling that the

Dallas Morning News columnist dead

FRANK X. TOLBERT...Dallas columnist dead at 72

DALLAS (AP) — Frank X. Tolbert, the "walking encyclopedia" of Texas, has died at age 72.

The long-time columnist for the Dallas Morning News "died peacefully in his sleep between 10:30 Monday night and 8:30 Tuesday morning. I think his heart just stopped," said Kathleen Hoover Tolbert, his wife of 40 years.

Tolbert officially retired from the newspaper in 1978 to devote more time to his Dallas chili restaurant, "Tolbert's," which he ran with his wife, son Frank Jr. and daughter Kathleen Jr. But he continued to write his weekly column, "Tolbert's Texas," for the News.

His friend, the late Paul Crume, also a Dallas Morning News columnist, had once called Tolbert "a walking encyclopedia of the state."

Joe M. Dealey, chairman of the board of A.H. Belo Corp. and a close friend of Tolbert, said Tuesday that Tolbert "in many ways epitomized all that is Texan. Tolbert and Texas are synonymous, if not redundant."

"Frank will be widely remembered through the Dallas community and the state," said Dealey. "He will be sorely missed by us all."

Tolbert was born in Amarillo. He worked on the sports desk of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal while attending Texas Tech University where he received a degree in anthropology.

After working on the sports desks of the Amarillo Globe-News and the Wichita Falls Times, he joined the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, where he covered sports from 1935 until 1941.

During World War II, Tolbert was a U.S. Marine Corps combat correspondent and edited the Marines' magazine "Leatherneck."

He joined the Dallas Morning News in 1946, but also wrote articles for national magazines such as "The Saturday Evening Post," "Colliers" and "True."

In the 1960s, when the big magazines began to fold, he turned to writing books. His first was "Neiman-Marcus, Texas," an account of the Dallas department store. Next was "Bigamy Jones," a cowboy novel.

In later years, he was known for his books about Texas history: "The Day of San Jacinto," "Dick Dowling at Sabine Pass," and "Tolbert's Informal History of Texas." "Tolbert's Texas" was a compilation of his articles.

His columns on chili cooking and his book "A Bowl of Red" led to sponsorship of an annual celebration of the spicy dish, the "World Chili Cookoff," held in the remote ghost town Terlingua in far West Texas.

Koch invites Hoffman's help

NEW YORK — Dustin Hoffman and other celebrities have been invited by the mayor to tour city shelters for the homeless and use their talents to help the poor this winter.

DUSTIN HOFFMAN

Koch's invitation was offered in a Jan. 4 letter to Anabel Nichols, wife of director Mike Nichols.

"I invite you and your colleagues to devote some of your great talent and resources to aid us" in sheltering the homeless, Koch said in the letter he made public Tuesday.

"I urge you and your group to visit a few shelters to convince you that they are indeed a humanitarian and decent response to emergency conditions, and may make clear the many opportunities for you and your group to help," Koch added.

A secretary to Ms. Nichols said she had not yet received the letter, and a check showed the mayor's office had sent it to the wrong address. The secretary said Ms. Nichols could not be reached immediately for comment.

O'Neill's husband cleared

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Actress Jennifer O'Neill's ex-husband says he feels good now that a weapons possession charge against him has been dropped.

State Supreme Court Justice Lawrence Martin ruled Tuesday that there was insufficient evidence that John Lederer, 36, owned the gun with which Miss O'Neill accidentally shot herself on Oct. 22, 1982, in the bedroom of the couple's home.

The ruling came on the third day of Lederer's non-jury trial in which Miss O'Neill, star of "Summer of '82," was a key witness.

Lederer was charged with possessing the .38-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver and had admitted he owned the gun. However, a legal technicality prevented prosecutors from entering his admission at the trial.

Miss O'Neill, 35, who has fully recovered from her wound, pleaded guilty last March to a weapons possession charge and was given a conditional discharge.

"I feel good," Lederer said after the ruling. "I've been in the Twilight Zone about this. I don't feel as if I've beaten something."

Lucas revamps ranch

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. — George Lucas' plan to reorganize his ranch has been approved by county planners, but the filmmaker's bid to enlarge his staff from 185 to 300 had to be dropped.

The creator of "Star Wars" says he will continue living at the 1,735-acre Skywalker ranch in San Marin County.

"My entire film career has been in Marin," Lucas said. "I moved here right after college. Other areas have been wooing us and me, but I'm not interested. That's not going to change."

Members of the Marin County Planning Commission said Monday they were concerned about the effects of any expansion of the ranch 45 miles north of San Francisco.

Approved were plans to relocate a special effects building, add an archives building, change roads and put up an electric fence.

Wallace gets a grandson

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Gov. George C. Wallace's name has been extended into another generation with the birth of his grandson, 7-pound, 4-ounce George Corley Wallace IV.

The son of Kelley and George C. Wallace III was delivered at 8:40 p.m. Tuesday in the birthing room at Saint Margaret's Hospital.

The newborn's father, who goes by the name George Jr., said both his wife and son were doing fine.

"He's a beautiful boy. He has my father's mouth and my wife's eyes — blue eyes," the child's father said. "We've got another generation here."

The grandchild is not the first for the 64-year-old governor, but he is the first male grandchild to be given his name.

The child's father is the son of the governor's first wife, the late Lurleen Wallace, who also served two years as governor of Alabama until her death in 1968.

Reagan seeks China's help

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is seeking Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang's backing for a four-nation conference to pacify the Korean peninsula and put an end to the tense three-decade stalemate of "two armed camps facing each other."

The president disclosed the proposal to reporters at a White House state dinner Tuesday night at which the 64-year-old Chinese head of state sharply criticized the United States for its tenacious loyalty to Taiwan, calling it the "principal obstacle" to the growth of closer relations between Washington and Peking.

Reagan told reporters he would like both North and South Korea to be joined at the conference table by China and the United States, adding that such an initiative would be "just wonderful."

He said he is not interested in a three-way conference to reunify the peninsula that would omit China, as the North Koreans have proposed.

North Korea's official Radio Pyongyang reported Wednesday that North Korea has suggested a conference with the United States and South Korea.

Although the communist regime has long demanded reunification of the two Koreas, it was the first time it was known to have suggested that South Korea be included in talks.

However, in Seoul today, South Korea effectively rejected the North's proposal by demanding an apology from North Korea for the Oct. 9 terrorist bombing in Burma that killed 17 South Koreans.

Block asks for calm on EDB

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block, saying the threat to human health still isn't known, is warning against public hysteria over possible contamination of food supplies and groundwater by a cancer-causing pesticide.

Block, after a meeting with the heads of the Environmental Protection Agency and Food and Drug Administration, as well as major agricultural groups, said Tuesday that while contamination by ethylene dibromide, EDB, is a major concern, it does not warrant panic.

"We're all concerned about residue in foodstuffs, but at what level?" Block said. "... There is a lot we don't know about EDB. It appears there is some hysteria out there that really isn't warranted."

In the latest developments, Florida on Tuesday stopped sale of a lemon cake mix after traces of EDB were found in a sample, and California authorities banned importation of citrus fruit fumigated with EDB until tolerance levels are determined.

The cake mix ordered was the 77th grain product the state has banned because of EDB contamination since Dec. 9. Spokesmen for the food industry have protested that Florida's 1-part-per-billion threshold is too strict.

Block met for an hour Tuesday with EPA chief William Ruckelshaus and Mark Novich, FDA's acting administrator. Also attending were more than a dozen representatives of agriculture trade groups and state organizations, ranging from the National Grange to the National Governors Association.

The meeting was closed to the public, but Block said afterwards the session was simply "an opportunity to review the problem and get a better understanding of it."

Ruckelshaus agreed and said he hopes to hold similar meetings with other groups, including consumer organizations.

He said his agency was attempting to determine a tolerance level for EDB and hoped to have some results within "a couple of weeks," Ruckelshaus said.

last week the agency was working "on an accelerated basis" to determine residue levels for EDB in grains and food products that could serve as a guideline for states to use in setting an acceptable level for EDB in food.

Storm cripples eastern U.S.

A fast-moving winter storm crippled major Eastern cities from Atlanta to Boston today, closing schools and disrupting travel with freezing rain in Dixie and more than a foot of snow in parts of New England.

At least two deaths were attributed to the snow and cold as the storm swept up the East Coast during the night, causing many accidents on the highways and forcing airports to temporarily close in cities such as Washington and Boston.

From Richmond, Va., to Portland, Maine, where 15 inches of snow fell, officials urged motorists to stay off the roads unless absolutely necessary.

A new Pacific storm was spreading snow across the northern Rockies into the upper Midwest, which already was in another deep freeze. Meanwhile, Vermont reported the heaviest accumulations from the departing East Coast storm with up to 16 inches in places.

An ice storm this morning in northern Georgia brought traffic to a standstill on freeways in Atlanta that were blocked with stalled cars and forced schools to close in seven counties.

Police in suburban Marietta closed sections of busy Interstate 75 and U.S. 41 during the morning rush hour because of ice. "It was impassable," said dispatcher Bruce Giles of the Georgia State Patrol post in Marietta.

As for serious accidents, Giles said, "I know there's a bunch of them out there, I just don't know how bad they are."

Schools in Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb, Hall, Forsyth, Habersham and Paulding counties, including Atlanta and Marietta city schools, were closed.

In Boston, where more than 9 inches of snow fell, schools also were closed and Logan International Airport was shut down for several hours after 3 a.m. Eastern Airlines canceled its early morning shuttle flights between New York City and Boston and Washington, where National Airport opened 40 minutes late.

Up to a foot of snow fell in the hills of western Massachusetts and a few residents of the Boston suburb of Cambridge were skiing this morning on normally bustling Massachusetts Avenue.

New York City escaped with only about 4 inches of snow in Manhattan and about half a foot in the inland suburbs, but delays of up to 25 minutes were reported on the commuter railroad serving Long Island. City schools remained open but many private schools were closed.

Most schools were closed in Connecticut, where most areas got 6 to 8 inches of snow, and many were closed in New Jersey, where accumulations in the northern part of the state ranged from 4 to 6 inches.

Schools also were closed in 12 counties in West Virginia, where accumulations ranged from just a few inches up to 8 inches in Pocahontas County, and in northwestern Virginia, where 4 inches was on the ground.

The season's first major snowstorm to hit the Eastern Seaboard also left a foot of snow in Utica, N.Y., 12 inches in most of southern Maine, 8 inches in the Pocono Mountains in eastern Pennsylvania and 5 inches in Baltimore.

Valley farmworkers to get free meals

SAN JUAN, Texas (AP) — An additional 1,000 farmworkers could be in need of the free meals provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as two juice processing plants shut down operation today, laying off employees hired to fill temporary jobs.

The processing plants have been converting citrus to juice since a devastating Christmas freeze destroyed the $30 million orange and grapefruit crop and put thousands of seasonal laborers out of work.

The economic devastation and unemployment from the freeze led to President Ronald Reagan declaring four Rio Grande Valley counties a disaster area last week.

Enrollment tops 4,661

There were 4,661 students enrolled in Big Spring schools at the end of the first week of the new year, according to figures compiled by the Big Spring Independent School District.

That figure compares to 4,959 students registered at the same time in 1983.

Part of the emergency relief offered to the Valley is the mass feeding program which is in its third day today.

Tuesday evening, volunteers waited to feed a thousand hungry, unemployed farmworker families at the Shrine of Our Lady of San Juan Pilgrim House. But only 250 people showed up.

The Rev. Manuel Villarreal said the reason for the poor turnout may have been that people were more tired than hungry.

"People have been standing in lines all over town trying to find help," he said. "At City Hall, at the Texas Employment Commission, at Catholic Charities, at the food stamp office there are long, long lines."

Officials with the USDA and Texas Department of Human Resources were prepared to serve 1,000 meals to the families of farm laborers.

On the first day of the program Monday, more than 450 meals were served in about three hours.

John Smith of the USDA said despite the small turnout Tuesday they would give the mass feeding program a little time to determine if there is a need. He said the USDA through the state was authorized to serve up to 25,000 meals each night in Hidalgo County and would decide today if the program should be expanded to other counties suffering economic disaster.

NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

By the Associated Press
West Texas: Increasing cloudiness and sunny south today. Widely scattered light snow Panhandle, otherwise considerable cloudiness north and clear south tonight. Decreasing cloudiness north Thursday and sunny south. Warmer today, then colder again north tonight and across the area Thursday. Highs today 55 Panhandle to 59 southwest and upper 60s Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight 20 Panhandle to 29 south and mid 30s Big Bend valleys. Highs Thursday 34 Panhandle to 53 southwest and low 60s Big Bend.

Fair skies predicted for state

A high-pressure air mass over Central Texas early today produced clear skies and cold temperatures statewide, but warmer readings were predicted later.

Winds were westerly at 10 to 20 mph over the Panhandle and West Texas as a low pressure trough developed over the eastern plains of New Mexico.

Temperatures early today were in the 20s almost statewide, ranging from 20 degrees at Dallas' Love Field to 39 at Brownsville.

The National Weather Service said sunny skies and warmer temperatures were forecast through Thursday across the state.

But in North Texas, highs should only be in the upper 30s, with lows in the 20s and cloudy skies.

Winds should be southerly at about 10 mph early Thursday, shifting to the north at 10 to 20 mph later, the weather service said.

Skies in Central Texas should become cloudy Thursday morning, with overnight lows in the upper 20s and highs in the upper 30s. Winds are expected to strengthen from 10 to 15 mph, shifting to northerly at 10 to 20 mph on Thursday afternoon.

Events vindicate supply-side plan

A month or so ago, President Reagan asked a rhetorical question that nearly summarized the dilemma facing critics of his economic policy. "Last year they were calling it Reaganomics; what will they call it now?" Mr. Reagan inquired.

Good question, because last year's recession has turned into a robust recovery that is currently creating 300,000 new jobs each month. Gross national product, the annual value of all goods and services produced, will almost certainly register a 1983 increase above 6 percent — double or more the growth rate forecast even by some in the administration. The Commerce Department's index of 12 leading economic indicators forged steadily upward in 13 of the last 15 months, a sure sign that the economy is getting well.

Unemployment has fallen from 10.87 percent a year ago to 8.2 percent today. And it is still falling.

The best part of this recovery is that the nation is getting growth without re-igniting the fires of inflation. The aggregate inflation rate for all of 1983 will probably come in at about 3.5 percent, the lowest annual level since 1971. One consequence of the taming of inflation is that real incomes, adjusted for inflation, are now rising for most Americans.

Confidence is a factor in keeping any recovery going. Consumers register their faith in the future partly by spending. New car sales in November were up a booming 25 percent over a year ago. This year's Christmas season was the best in five years for retailers. A year-end Business Week survey of the nation's leading economic forecasting services found them uniformly optimistic about 1984. Most corporations are similarly bullish, encouraged by an average increase in profits of 20 percent during 1983.

All of this reflects a remarkable turnaround from the recession-spawned gloom of just a year ago. More significantly, the pattern of sustained, non-inflationary growth that seems to be emerging could propel the economy on a rising curve throughout the decade of the 1980s. That is the Reagan administration's goal: Steady growth and stable prices.

Granted, the economic horizon is not without some clouds. The darkest are historically large budget deficits, and interest rates that stubbornly remain a few points higher than might be expected given the dramatic drop in inflation.

The deficits, however, will automatically decline as the recovery continues to transform the unemployed into working taxpayers. The red ink would subside more quickly if Congress would cooperate with Mr. Reagan in another round of budget cutting. As for interest rates, they must fall eventually if inflation remains under control and the deficits diminish.

Far from discrediting Reaganomics, events seem to be vindicating the basic supply-side theory. And Mr. Reagan can argue very plausibly indeed that the results to date would have been better still had Congress given him all of the tax cuts and budget trims that he requested beginning in 1981.

Management must face up to reality

To the editor: Does economic reality really catch up to labor and management alike?

The editorial in the Big Spring Herald, Tuesday, November 29, 1983 issue would have you believe that Greyhound employees and some airlines employees are being totally unreasonable in refusing to recognize the inexorable laws of the market place.

Consider if you will, that Greyhound Bus Lines Inc. request for "Business Necessity" from its employees included, a 9.5 percent pay cut, elimination of four (4) holidays, adding five (5) unpaid hours to the work week of clerical employees, higher worker payments into the company's health, welfare and pension plans, and a 50 percent reduction in meal allowance for drivers.

These demands from a company for "Business Necessity" who cited profits exceeding $19 million last year and in the third quarter of this year, while granting a 48 percent pay raise to one top executive (making his salary $594,991 per year) and a 22 percent raise for another company official.

Is this the way economic reality catches up to labor and management alike?

If then a 23 percent reduction on represented employees, while granting a 22 to 48 percent increase to top officials, is not economic reality — could it then be considered "Union Busting"?

Airline employees were also belittled by the nameless editor, so let us look at Eastern Airlines, a company that actually lost $74.9 million last year. You can bet that this made Chairman Frank Borman very unhappy. In an effort to make him feel better the Company raised his pay from $332,000 per year to $341,000 — not much, but it is about $200 a week raise, more than many of our working people earn.

Delta Airlines knows how to get rid of Union Labor so they can keep operating cost down. It's probably a good thing they got janitors wages down a couple bucks an hour, because net profits dropped off by 86 percent.

While profits dropped from $100 million to $20.8 million, they raised the pay of President David Garrett from $386,000 a year to $546,000. A reward of $160,000 for leading the Company into an 80 percent lower profit figure, while regular workers were being laid off.

How about Emerson Electric who experienced a modest five (5) percent increase in profits up to a total net of $300.1 million, and in doing this increased Chairman C.F. Knight's pay more than 300 percent. He went from $299,000 to $910,000 a year.

This company was among those complaining about the high cost of American Labor. The average professional hospital worker makes about $5.00 an hour, or about $10,000.00 a year. Knight is paid $900,000 more than that.

As a point of information for the editor there are eight (8) Local Unions in Big Spring alone and 65 Unions in the general area.

Soviet super-sub sinks as Red scare

WASHINGTON — In their insatiable hunger for fancy hardware and ever bigger budgets, the Pentagon's people are not above juggling the facts and figures when they testify behind closed doors on Capitol Hill.

A favorite tactic is to give key members of Congress secret, selective intelligence on new Soviet weapons, intended to scare the lawmakers into signing a blank check for matching U.S. weapons. The weapons "gaps" thus revealed can only be bridged by the expenditure of billions of dollars.

It's an axiom of this technique that Congress should rarely be told anything that makes the Soviets seem less than 10 feet tall. Reversing the words of an old song, the Pentagon fund-seekers accentuate the negative and eliminate the positive.

My associates Dale Van Atta and Donald Goldberg have uncovered a classic example of this misleading Pentagon practice, involving the Russians' new Alfa class attack submarine. From secret documents and intelligence sources, it appears that the Alfa is a most formidable sub. But without actually lying — simply by not telling the whole truth — the admirals have greatly inflated the Alfa's actual danger.

For example: — The Alfa is the fastest submarine ever made, with a maximum speed of 42 knots on the surface and 45 knots underwater. It can outrun not only the fastest U.S. subs, but the Navy's surface ships as well. The Pentagon doom merchants cite an ultra-secret intelligence report that tells how an Alfa sub showed off once doing figure-eights behind a Navy battle group.

But what the Pentagon experts conveniently play down is the fact that, while our fastest subs are as quiet as sharks, the Soviet Alfa is one of the noisiest vessels ever to churn through the ocean. It's the underwater equivalent of a hot rod without a muffler. In fact, the Alfa can be detected acoustically more than 1,000 miles away, which means it could hardly sneak up on an enemy target.

Furthermore, at anything over 20 knots, the Alfa's own engine noise would drown out the target's noise. Submerged subs are blind; a submerged Alfa is also deaf at high speed. And though it could outrun U.S. attack vessels, it couldn't escape the Navy's anti-submarine planes and helicopters.

— The Alfa can dive down to 3,200 feet, compared to the U.S. Los Angeles-class subs' maximum depth of less than 2,000 feet. But the reason for running deep is to avoid detection, and here again the Alfa's hot-rod noise betrays it. In addition, the Alfa can't go as far or stay out of port as long as U.S. subs can.

— The Alfa's lighter, stronger titanium-alloy hull is what enables it to go faster and dive deeper. The Soviets were first to develop the technology of welding titanium hulls — reportedly at the cost of several workers' lives. Besides being lighter and stronger than steel, titanium is also non-magnetic, which means the Alfa is virtually invisible to magnetic detection devices. But it can still be easily picked up by acoustical detectors.

— Though select congressmen are told in ominous, whispered detail of the Alfa's success, they are not told that the sub was a colossal flop when the first one was launched in 1969. After sea trials in 1971, the first Alfa was scrapped. It wasn't until 1978 that the supposed super-sub achieved operational capability. And technical difficulties still plague the Alfa.

Footnote: Significantly, for all their purported alarm over the Alfa submarine, the admirals have never suggested that the United States build one like it.

CONFLICT OF THE WEEK: Former President Nixon's son-in-law, Edward Cox, left his job as general counsel to the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp. last July to join the law firm of Reid and Priest in New York. One of his new employer's clients is Middle South Utilities, which has applied to the Synfuels Corp. for a subsidy on a co-generation facility that will use natural gas derived from coal.

And guess who one of the attorneys is working on Middle South's application to Synfuels? Right: former Synfuels general counsel Cox. He should have a certain expertise on the legal niceties of a Synfuels application.

Is this a conflict of interest? You or I might think so. Federal regulations forbid a former government employee to represent a client on matters with which he was directly involved while working for Uncle Sam.

But the key word is "represent," and the regulations define this narrowly to mean actually appearing before or communicating with the federal agency involved. And Cox has scrupulously avoided this direct contact. Behind-the-scenes work for his law firm's client doesn't count, so technically he's in the clear.

IMELDA AND THE GRINCH: The Philippines' straitened financial situation put a damper on first lady Imelda Marcos's Christmas. In the past, her extravagant yuletide shopping sprees in New York enriched the most fashionable boutiques on Fifth Avenue. But with her country begging for handouts from the International Monetary Fund and other credit sources, Mrs. Marcos was obliged to restrain her conspicuous-consumption impulses this year and forgo the New York shopping expedition. She might have run into a nosy reporter — or an international banker's wife.

Proper things to pray about

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What sort of things do you think we should pray about? I know God isn't interested in the little decisions and problems we face every day, but where do we draw the line so we pray properly? — Mrs. J.H.

DEAR MRS. J. H.: Why do you assume that God is only interested in the big things of life? This is not the case at all; because God loves us, he is concerned about every detail of our lives — even the things that are so small or unnoticed that they escape our attention! Jesus said, "Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from the will of your Father. And even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. So don't be afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows." (Matthew 10:29-31).

That is why the Bible tells us to "pray continually" (1 Thessalonians 5:17). It also urges us, "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God" (Philippians 4:6, emphasis added). If something is a matter of concern to you, it also is a matter of concern to God.

At times our prayers to God will be for guidance and wisdom as we face a decision — even one which is seemingly insignificant. At times our prayers will be for strength to do what we know is right. For example, we don't need to pray for God's guidance as to whether or not it is right to lie or commit an immoral act — God in his Word, the Bible, has made it very clear that these things are wrong. But we do need to pray that God will help us turn our backs on temptation and live for Christ.

Remember too that prayer should not just be for ourselves and our own needs. Pray for others that are facing specific needs. Pray even for people you may have never met — the leaders in our nation and world, for example, and missionaries who are seeking to bring the Gospel to other lands.

Prayer is possible because Jesus Christ has reconciled us to God through his death on the cross. Have you put your faith and trust in him, and are you seeking to do his will each day? Remember: Prayer is not a means of trying to manipulate God into doing our selfish will, but a means of discovering the will of God and doing it through our lives for his glory, the Raiders....

Coliseum for football, not gladiators

Football games have become pretty disgusting. And not just because "America's Team" didn't make it to the Superbowl.

The opening of the AFC championship game between the L.A. Raiders and the Seattle Seahawks was simply scary, not to mention barbaric.

That's not saying football ever made any pretenses of being sheer artistic and athletic expression. The game's always been a collision sport.

But what makes me mad is the ethics of a team like the Raiders, whose practices have remained the same even though the name has been changed. I saw the Raiders defense come out and take pure cheap shots for the sake of intimidation at the beginning of the game.

The Raiders might be athletically better than the Seahawks and probably are, but I didn't see that. I saw a "power" team come out and try to maul its opponents so they would decide to keep their lives and health instead of opting for Superbowl bonuses.

I saw players deliberately running into a kicker full force, hoping at the least to scare him to death and knock him senseless. The kicker could easily have hurt his leg or even been paralyzed. And no, it's not his job to be a poster person for spinal injuries.

I saw Raiders shoving, kicking, starting arguments. And for what? To establish psychological domination. Why? If their team is really that good, then they can win by depending on their skill and finesse instead of their bone-crushing tactics. A 50-yardline seat shouldn't be the equivalent of ringside at Madison Square Garden.

The unnecessary violence can't be explained away as part of a heated contest. The contest had barely started. No, the players' actions were part of a concerted effort to beat the other team into submission, a game plan fully condoned by the coach. Unfortunately because of what it says about acceptable strategies in the game, the Raiders won. Yes, folks, it's okay to be Hacksaw Reynolds on and off the field. Don't just sack the quarterback or block a punt; break his leg.

Don't misunderstand me; I like football. And I'm not just picking on the Raiders. I could respect the Redskins more if they would realize that they probably could stop Dorsett by merely tackling him instead of tackling and kneeling him (in the play for which the Cowboys were penalized for Dorsett throwing the football back in retaliation). I would feel the same way if Dorsett had kneed Young.

Any team that thinks the way to play football is to tear as many of your opponents' ligaments as possible shouldn't be playing the sport.

Football is supposed to be rough. But there is a difference between vicious, malicious tackles and a solid hit, the same difference that exists between a game and gang warfare.

How appropriate that after the game, one of the networks aired "Slapshot," a movie about a losing hockey team that wins only when its strategy is to beat the other team bloody.

If that's the way football players want to play, then they should adopt the NHL's penalties — whenever there is a blatant personal foul or a particularly unnecessary show of violence, send the player out of the game for, oh, five minutes. And don't let him be replaced.

If that means Los Angeles, Dallas, Green Bay, Washington or whoever can only field seven players against the other's 11, the players might learn how to play without trying to knock each other senseless.

Either that, or they could start the NGL — the National Gladiators' League. We could name teams after famous barbarians like the Mongols, the Huns, the Saxons, the Mautlers, the Vikings, the Visigoths, the Raiders....

Open for Business Support the chamber of commerce

This week is membership drive week for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. The goal is to sign up 200 new members as we work together to make Big Spring a better place to live and work and play.

The traditional concept of chambers of commerce as only a business booster and economic force is still valid but they have broken out of that narrow mold and today are the closest thing yet to the total system approach to community development.

Our chamber is more visible than ever before as its members are taking increasingly bolder initiatives to forge the community's future and quality of life.

Here's a quick review of what the chamber does:

WHAT IT IS: Your Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary organization of citizens who are investing their time and money in a community development program — working together to improve the economic, civic and cultural well-being of the area.

Any citizen who is interested in helping to develop the area (which means more money — more business — more jobs and better living for everyone) is eligible to be a member of the Chamber of Commerce. The reasonable dues structure is designed to permit individual or business membership.

The Chamber of Commerce is composed of committee workers. Directors and officers serve without pay. The manager and his staff who devote their full time to the Chamber of Commerce are the only paid employees.

WHAT IT DOES: The Chamber of Commerce is a service institution and an action organization. It provides a medium through which people can take effective action for the progress of the community.

It helps to create job opportunities through stimulation of industrial and commercial growth.

It seeks the improvement of community facilities — streets, highways, parks, schools, marketing facilities and human resources.

It brings conventions, sales meetings, and other gatherings to the city.

It works toward developing the agriculture and agricultural industry of the area.

In all these functions the Chamber of Commerce is serving as a department — a partner — of every business and every professional person in the area.

HOW IT FUNCTIONS: The Chamber of Commerce functions through working committees of the organization. Money, planning, inspiration and guidance are useless unless the members work vigorously on the committees of their choice.

Careful study is made of the community needs and an action blueprint, the program of work, is designed.

The goal of the program is always to create more dollars for more people and to improve the economic welfare of all.

Every member has a voice in determining the policies and projects and every member is needed to work on active committees to get the job done.

The committees are:

- Community Development Council — Athletic and Recreation, Rodeo, Community Luncheon, Tourism, Sesquicentennial, Beautification, Quality of Life.

- Economic Development Council — Business, Small Business Council, Agriculture and Agri-Business, Transportation, Industrial Development, Energy.

- Organizational Affairs Council — Banquet, Blue Blazers, Ambassadors, Membership, Administration, Long Range Planning, Basics (Youth Involvement Council).

- Public Affairs Council — Education, Governmental Affairs, Cultural Affairs, Health and Safety, Crimestoppers, Leadership Development.

Big Jake kicks the bucket

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (A) — Big Jake, the celebrity crustacean that couldn't handle the bright lights and demands of his new-found fame, has gone to the Big Lobster Pot in the Sky. He was at least 50.

The monster lobster kicked the bucket Monday after being flown from Anchorage to Boston where he was scheduled for rest and recuperation, and perhaps freedom. He was hustled out of Alaska weary, and weakening, on a $90 one-way flight.

"They got him to Boston, he had a mere flicker left in him," said Jeffrey Pyska of the Alaska Lobster Exchange. "Then they turned him around, and sent him back dead."

"I've got him right here in Anchorage. He's laid out on ice in the freezer," Pyska said Tuesday. "The only thing I can do right now is call up a taxidermist. We tried to give him a second chance — we did our best."

Big Jake, one whale of a lobster at 25 pounds, had become a problem for Pyska.

He had asked a Boston supplier to send him a large lobster for display, and Big Jake — about $212 worth of lobster at Alaska prices — was sent to Anchorage.

Then the trouble started. As Big Jake's fame spread, customers began fighting to get him, to love him to death. He was handled too much in photo sessions and picked up too often because it pleased awestruck customers, Pyska said. His condition deteriorated.

"We had to get him out of here," he said.

But now, Big Jake will remain in Anchorage, on permanent display, Pyska said.

Big Jake was snared in a fishing net about three weeks ago off the coast of Long Island, N.Y., by a fisherman dragging for flounder. He was flown to Anchorage after a 10-day rest in Boston.

The Guinness Book of World Records lists a 44-pound, 6-ounce specimen caught off Nova Scotia in 1977 as the largest lobster.

U.S. agricultural debt declined slightly in '83

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's total debt owed by farmers declined slightly last year to $215.1 billion as of Jan. 1, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday. It was the first annual decline in farm debt since 1945.

One reason was a sharp drop in debt owed by farmers to the government for price support loans. Harvests in 1983 were reduced sharply, meaning a decline in crop loans from the department's Commodity Credit Corp.

Not counting CCC loans, farm debt increased 1.9 percent in 1983, compared with 3.7 percent in 1982 and the double-digit rates of the 1970s, according to a new agricultural finance report by USDA's Economic Research Service.

Looking ahead, the report said farm debt may rise again this year by 3.1 percent to about $221.8 billion by next Jan. 1.

Department economists estimate that farm income probably rose somewhat to a range of $22 billion to $24 billion in 1983 from about $22.1 billion in 1982. This year, according to preliminary forecasts, farm income could spurt to $29 billion to $34 billion.

Much of the increase, however, would be in the value of inventories as farmers put millions of acres back into crop production that had been idled in 1983 under government programs, including the payment-in-kind venture that paid farmers in surplus commodities for idling acres.

In any case, the new report said that farmers nationally had total assets of $1.068 trillion as of Jan. 1, up 1.8 percent after declining in 1982 and 1981. Real estate accounted for all of the gain, while non-real assets declined in value.

"Improved prospects for farm income and the general economic recovery here and overseas suggest farm real estate assets may increase 2.5 percent in nominal terms" in 1984, the report said.

The expected 2.5 percent gain in farmland values in 1984 after two years of decline would result from an improved cash flow among many farmers, along with an improved price outlook for some major commodities. Overall, the report said 1984 crop prices may be up 7 to 9 percent from last year and livestock prices 1 to 3 percent, on the average.

Death chamber moved to avoid crowds

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Wed., Jan. 11, 1984 11-A

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Directors of Texas prisons, recalling a pro-death penalty crowd which nearly rioted when an execution was stayed at the last minute, have decided to move the state's death chamber to a remote location.

No decision was made concerning where to move the death house, but prison board member Lindsley Waters Jr. of Dallas said the intent is to hold executions outside downtown Huntsville. Executions are now carried out at the prison system's Walls Unit.

"We want to locate it on such a unit so we won't have quite the crowd control problems we have now," said Waters, who headed a committee which studied the situation.

About 200 pro-death penalty protesters waved signs which read "Kill him" at a demonstration at the Walls Oct. 4, the night before James David Autry was scheduled to be executed for killing a store clerk.

Vendors sold beer and popcorn and one man was arrested for carrying a gun.

The crowd, which consisted largely of Sam Houston State University students, booed and cursed Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox when he announced that Supreme Court Justice Byron White had ordered the stay of execution.

"Give me the syringe. I'll kill him," one woman shrieked. Condemned prisoners are executed by injection in Texas.

A similar demonstration preceded the execution of Charlie Brooks Jr. Dec. 7, 1982. Brooks, 40, was condemned for killing a Fort Worth mechanic while stealing a used car.

Prison officials said a new death house could be built within a year.

The board's decision could be void if there is a state law against holding executions outside Huntsville. But the board voted to lobby to change such a statute if there is one.

In the meantime, the prison system will remodel its current death chamber by removing a wall used to separate the prisoner and his executioner when Texas used the electric chair. The executioner will remain hidden in a smaller, adjoining room, officials said.

Execution witnesses, who currently stand only a few feet from the condemned, will now be separated by a barred window.

The board also agreed to change execution procedures so that intravenous needles used to inject poison into condemned inmates' arms will not be inserted until the day the execution is scheduled.

Autry complained that he was taken to the death chamber about an hour before midnight Oct. 4. The order for his death stipulated that he be executed between midnight and dawn Oct. 5. He said tubes continued to pump a saline solution into his arm for about half an hour after the stay was issued.

Columnist signs 3-year contract with Tribune

CHICAGO (AP) — Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Mike Royko will join the Chicago Tribune on Thursday, three weeks after he took a leave of absence from the rival Chicago Sun-Times, a Tribune spokesman said today.

Royko, 51, signed a three-year contract and his column will appear Monday through Friday, according to Tribune spokeswoman Ruth Roguski. Details of the contract were not disclosed.

The newspaper called a news conference for this afternoon to announce the signing.

Royko took an indefinite leave of absence from the Sun-Times on Dec. 20. He cited as a reason the purchase of the newspaper by publisher Rupert Murdoch, who officially took over the Sun-Times on Monday.

Royko, a native of Chicago, joined the Chicago Daily News in 1959 and went to the Sun-Times in 1978 when the Daily News folded. He won a Pulitzer for commentary in 1972 and is the author of "Boss," a well-known biography of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley, and four other books.

Dr. Donohue

Artery spasm

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I love your column and have gleaned much knowledge from it. I wonder if you would address the problem of Prinzmetal's angina. Much is said about angina, but I hear nothing of this kind, which I have. I am an otherwise healthy female, 58 years old, 5 feet, 110 pounds. For a long time I suffered from chest pains, which were dismissed by my doctor as caused from anxiety on the death of my husband. Yet the pains occurred off and on and were crushing.

Recently, I had several severe attacks. Finally, in my sleep I had another very bad attack, several chest pains, front and back. It felt like an elephant standing on my chest. I was rushed to the hospital. The doctor said I had a severe lack of oxygen in my blood. The cardiologist diagnosed my problem as Prinzmetal's angina.

What causes this? I am sure there are others like me, who have clear arteries, good heart valves, and good or low blood pressure, and who still have such a problem. — C.B.

In the usual angina, pain develops during physical exertion. The exertion creates a deficiency of blood supply to the heart because heart arteries are occluded from buildup of fatty material, platelets and clotting proteins. This is a permanent narrowing, so onset of pain can be predicted based on the level of exertion.

Prinzmetal's angina, too, arises from deficient supply of blood to the heart muscle, but unlike the narrowing of regular angina, the Prinzmetal's narrowing is transient from spasm of the heart arteries. Since the spasms are unpredictable and not based on level of body activity, Prinzmetal's angina is difficult to diagnose. Only an EKG taken during an attack of pain will show the abnormality. In between attacks, the EKG will be normal.

Now, having said all this, I want to add a little extra piece of information: Not everyone with Prinzmetal's angina is free of arterial deposits. The spasms can occur in arteries with internal buildup as well as in those without. And, as a matter of act, the usual thing is to have a combination — artery spasm on top of a degree of permanent narrowing.

Need for organizing papers emphasized

Mildred Callihan presented the program, "Just How Organized Are You?" at a meeting of the City Extension Homemakers' Club in the home of Mrs. Callihan, Jan. 6.

Members will work at the stock show Jan. 27-28. The next meeting will be at 2 p.m., Jan. 27 in the home of Marie Daniels, 1310 Johnson.

Mrs. Callihan emphasized the importance of keeping important papers such as wills, insurance, medical records, abstracts and titles.

Hospital names Carol Benz as its director of volunteers

By RHONDA WITT Lifestyle Writer

"Being a volunteer gives a person a feeling of self-satisfaction," said Carol Benz, the new Malone-Hogan Hospital director of volunteers.

Mrs. Benz became interested in volunteer work while her family was living in Georgia. She worked in the gift shop and on the pediatrics floor at a Columbus, Ga. hospital.

"When we moved out here I wanted to continue doing volunteer work." She worked as a Malone-Hogan Hospital volunteer for six months before she began teaching four years ago. "That is how I became acquainted with everybody, and everyone with me."

She will continue teaching her classes at St. Mary's Episcopal School until the end of the school year.

The volunteers had been supervised by Dan Wise, director of Social Services, until the director of volunteer position was offered to Mrs. Benz. "He was so busy with other things that he didn't have enough time to devote to the volunteers. He is going to help me out until I get my feet firm on the ground," she said. The volunteer program has 65 active volunteers, but new volunteers are still needed, she said. "After the beginning of the year I will be doing some recruiting. We don't have any back up people and we need to have two people on the desk."

She wants to get the volunteers together "as a cohesive organization," and would like more communications between the volunteers.

"A lot of people don't know exactly what we do unless they come out to see what we offer," she said. The volunteers decorated the entire hospital for Christmas. They make tray favors for Easter, Christmas and Valentine's Day, and baby bunting for all the newborn infants in the hospital.

The volunteers also work at the information desk and run the gift shop. "I think if a lot of people in the community came out here they would be surprised at what we have. We have nice things at reasonable prices. The money is going for a good cause." The volunteers use the money for scholarships or for hospital equipment.

If anyone would like more information on the Malone-Hogan volunteer service, they can contact Carol Benz at Malone-Hogan Hospital or by calling 3-1211 ext. 212 in the afternoons.

Dear Abby

Forced heirship law stirs controversy

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Stuck in Louisiana," who complained because in Louisiana, children automatically fall heir to their parents' inheritance whether they are deserving or not. As a third-year law student at Tulane University in New Orleans, I have studied this subject under the direction of several legal scholars who are expert in this area of law.

Louisiana's forced heirship laws are derived from ancient Roman law in existence before the birth of Christ. They are virtually identical to those found in almost every modern country today with the exception of the United States and Great Britain.

The purpose of forced heirship was based on the concept that a parent who brings a child into the world must ensure that the child is adequately cared for. Our laws simply place the burden on the parents rather than society.

I see no unfairness in this. KALISTE J. SALOOM III DEAR ABBY: "Stuck in Louisiana" is partially correct. Louisiana law does exalt the family unit with some consequent diminution in property rights, by requiring that when parents depart for the next world, a portion of their estate goes to the children they left in this one unless the parents have good cause to disinherit them.

Article 1621 of our Civil Code lists the following 11 just causes for disinheriting one's children:

1. If the child has struck the parent or even raised his hand to do so.
  2. If the child is guilty of cruelty, crime or grievous injury toward the parent.
  3. If the child has attempted to kill the parent.
  4. If the child has accused the parent of a crime that bears the penalty of capital punishment — with the exception of high treason.
  5. If the child has refused to feed a hungry parent.
  6. If the child neglects to take care of an insane parent.
  7. If the child refused to ransom the parent while he or she was held captive.
  8. If the child has used an act of violence or coercion to hinder a parent from making a will.
  9. If the child refuses to bail his parent out of jail.
  10. If the son or daughter is a minor and marries without the parent's consent.
  11. Conviction of the child of a felony carrying a possible sentence of life imprisonment or death.
- It is a shame that with 50 states in which to live, this disgruntled person did wind up in the only state with forced heirship. Very truly yours, ROBERT H. HODGES, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Businessmen campaign for nuclear dump site

THE TOWN WANTS NUKE DUMP SITE — A sign at the edge of town boasts of agricultural and manufacturing industries and the once booming uranium business at Edgemont, S.D. A chamber of commerce committee has invited a company to locate a disposal site for low-level nuclear waste near the town.

EDGEMONT, S.D. (AP) — While many communities are battling to keep nuclear garbage out, businessmen in this small ranching town are fighting to bury up to 1 million cubic feet of low-level nuclear waste each year under the rolling grasslands of southwestern South Dakota.

The businessmen say a nuclear waste dump could mean up to 300 new jobs for the area, almost doubling employment in this community of nearly 1,500 people. Local opposition to the site is hard to find, but opponents in other parts of the state are campaigning to prevent creation of the dump without voter approval.

"The closer you get to here the less opposition you get to it, and the farther away you get the more opposition you have," said Edgemont banker Don Hanson. "There's not a person in this county that would support this issue if it would be harmful to the environment or the water supply."

Hanson is a spokesman for a Chamber of Commerce committee that has invited Chem-Nuclear Systems Inc. of Columbia, S.C., to build a nuclear waste dump at Igloo, an abandoned U.S. Army bomb storage depot eight miles south of Edgemont.

Chem-Nuclear officials have said they'll seek permission to build at Igloo if geological conditions are suitable. They estimate the dump could generate $5 million to $8 million a year in state taxes and fees.

A coalition of groups concerned with the environment, including the Black Hills Alliance and the Farmers Union, has started a petition drive for a statewide vote in November on the nuclear waste issue.

If the petition gets on the ballot and passes, voter approval would be required before South Dakota could allow a dump site in the state or join a nuclear waste disposal compact with other states.

Hanson said the 12,500-acre abandoned munitions depot appears to be a perfect site for a nuclear waste dump. The water supply is more than 3,000 feet below the surface and a thick layer of shale would prevent radioactive material from getting into the water, he said.

The plan to create a nuclear waste dump hasn't stirred much emotion in Edgemont because the town's residents are used to living with radioactivity, supporters of the dump said.

"People who live here a while know they're not going to turn green or glow or come down with cancer tomorrow," said Chamber of Commerce President Harold Wyatt, who sells insurance and real estate.

Hundreds of thousands of tons of radioactive tailings still sit on the edge of town near a uranium mill that closed in 1974. The federal government considers the tailings a potential health hazard and plans to bury them several miles outside town within the next several years. It also is cleaning up radioactive tailings from private property around town. Uranium ore still lies under the countryside surrounding Edgemont.

The low-level nuclear waste that would be buried near here comes from hospitals, industries and nuclear power plants. It includes radioactive material that decays within 300 years and longer-lived material that is greatly diluted.

But Edgemont residents qualify their support for the proposed nuclear waste dump, saying they would welcome it as long as they can be convinced it would be safe.

"I really haven't talked to too many people who are dead set against it. They have some questions is all," said Bret Fox, who works at the idle uranium mill.

"There's a lot of unanswered questions," Fox said. "I'm not completely convinced, but I'm not afraid of it."

Debate rages on waste burns

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — An Environmental Protection Agency official said Tuesday that the outcry over a plan to burn toxic wastes in the Gulf of Mexico is louder than anything he's seen in a decade, and may cause federal officials to alter their course.

Jack Ravan, the EPA's assistant administrator for water, made the comments at a public debate sponsored by the Gulf Coast Coalition for Public Health. About 250 people attended the debate.

A much larger crowd of 6,100 attended a public hearing last November during which the EPA took public comment on the proposed granting of permits for offshore incineration.

Ravan said the "magnitude of concern" expressed by people at the November hearing and the Tuesday debate will influence his agency's decision on the gulf burning.

"I have seen this kind of mobilization on an issue only once before," Ravan said. "That was on the wetlands issue in Florida in the mid '70s."

Ravan spent seven years as a regional administrator for the EPA, before leaving to do private consulting. He rejoined the agency about three months ago, as part of personnel changes which took place after EPA chief Anne Gorsuch resigned from the agency under fire.

Ravan said the public hearings may cause the EPA to "stop what we're doing and re-examine the entire direction we are taking" on the disposal of waste at sea.

"It may be time for us to redefine what our policy is with regard to the ocean."

He said the EPA is also considering burning toxic waste in the Atlantic and Pacific, but sites will not be selected in those oceans until after a decision has been reached on the Gulf of Mexico burn.

The EPA will be accepting public comment until the end of January. It will then decide whether to give final approval to permits already tentatively granted to Chemical Waste Management for the burning of 300,000 metric tons of PCB and other liquid toxins about 250 miles off the Texas coast.

Many of those at the Tuesday debate feared that the EPA had already made up its mind to grant permits. "This plan is typical of the old EPA strategy of dispersing the problem rather than solving it," said Lloyd Bletscher, a National Audubon Society staff member.

"Just because you can't detect something doesn't mean it isn't there."

Bletscher said that monitoring pollution created by the offshore burning would be extremely difficult. "The middle of the Gulf of Mexico is not exactly the kind of place where you know what's going on."

Bletscher's concern was repeated by one of the dozen who experts spoke and answered questions from the audience.

Crane powers past Coahoma

Crane's inside game too much

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Crane's powerful inside game and the loss of Melissa Paige spelled defeat for the Coahoma girls as Crane came away with 42-33 victory in 6-3A basketball action.

Crane's front line consisting of sisters LaWanza and Jo Mitchell along with Jackie Drones and Teri Grooms controlled the backboards and combined for all but seven of Crane's total points.

Coahoma's hopes were dampened when leading scorer Melissa Paige suffered an ankle injury and left the game with 3:22 left in the first quarter, after she had just tied the contest at 10-10 with a jumper.

From then on Crane crashed the offensive boards; often the Cranes would get two and three shots at the basket. For the night, Crane outscored their opponents 32-20; with L. Mitchell leading the way.

L. Mitchell was the game's leading scorer and rebounder with 15 points and 12 rebounds. Time and time Coahoma would make a charge at the Cranes and each time the Cranes' front line would hit an inside jumper or grab an offensive rebound to stifle the charge.

Crane surged ahead 17-13 at the end of the first quarter on baskets by the Mitchell sisters. Early in the second period Coahoma guards Janna Griffin and Tobie Henry uncorked two long range bombs to cut the lead to 19-17. Shana Fowler got a steal and was fouled on the play. Her free throw cut the lead to 19-18 with 3:30 remaining in the half.

That is as close as Coahoma would get as the Cranes ran off a 8-2 spurt to take a 27-20 halftime lead.

In the second half Coahoma rebounded better and played good pressure defense, but their shots just wouldn't fall. During one period Coahoma's defense, keyed by Paige and Henry forced Crane to loose the ball 10 times in a four minute span, but time and time again Coahoma's shots rolled off the rim into the outstretched arms of the Crane defenders.

Coahoma made one last run at the Cranes late in the final period with the score 40-28. Griffin cut the lead with a 17-footer and Henry followed suit to narrow the margin to 40-32.

Coahoma got the ball right back when Mila Gellido got a steal; but the offensive threat ended at the other end when L. Mitchell blocked the shot; and the Cranes went into their stall game.

Coahoma coach Bill Dennis said he was proud of his team's effort. "The girls sucked it up and got after it," said Dennis. "It hurt when we lost Melissa, but these girls won't fold because they have the character to not get down because of injury or the situation of the game.

"I knew they would beat us on the boards; but I thought we rebounded well considering our height disadvantage. We are not ready to throw in the towel yet."

The wins ups Crane's record to 2-0 in district and 14-2 for the season. Coahoma is 0-2 in district play.

Sutton eyeing Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — In each of his previous two seasons, Hal Sutton sat down and figured out his goals on the PGA tour.

"I didn't want to put those goals at an outlandish level," he said. "I wanted to set a goal to shoot at, something that was attainable but still something that would make me work," Sutton said.

The goal for his rookie year, 1982: win a tournament. Result: he won a tournament, was Rookie of the Year and set a money-winning record for first-year players.

The goal for his second season, 1983: win a major tournament and place in the top five money-winners. Result: He won two tournaments including a major (the PGA) and led the tour in money-winnings with $428,668.

With that record of achieving and surpassing his announced targets, the announcement of Sutton's 1984 goals was of more than passing interest.

"There are two things I want to accomplish," Sutton said before teeing off today in the $400,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

"I want to win three tournaments. And I want to go past $1 million in winnings before the year is out."

Both are very much within the realm of possibility, but both would represent major achievements. He needs $330,000 in winnings this season to become the first player to reach $1 million in three seasons. And winning three titles, while not particularly unusual, was not achieved on the tour last season.

Sutton set out in pursuit of those targets today as one of the leading contenders for the $72,000 first prize in the five-day, 90-hole tournament that is spread over four desert golf courses.

Sutton was in the group that played La Quinta today. Thursday, he will compete at Eldorado with the premier amateur team, former President Gerald Ford, the host comedian and House Speaker Tip O'Neill.

Lubbock Christian College forfeits 7 games

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — School officials said it was just an oversight, but the mistake will cost the Lubbock Christian College seven of its 10 basketball victories this season.

Reserve guard Coby Beckner, a transfer student from Amarillo College, was ruled ineligible because he failed to sit out 16 weeks. Because he was ineligible, LCC must forfeit victories in games in which Beckner played.

"Of course, it really hurts. It's a real shock. It's just a freak deal because if he had laid out, he'd be eligible," said LCC Head Coach John Copeland.

The college was notified Monday by National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 8 eligibility chairman A.C. Sharp of McMurry College that Beckner was ineligible.

Beckner, a 6-3 junior from Clayton, N.M., first attended Ottawa University in Kansas before moving on to Amarillo College, a two-year school. Since he did not graduate from the Amarillo school, he was supposed to wait 16 weeks before competing for the Chapparals. "Coby filled out all the forms right," LCC Assistant Athletic Director Walt McAlexander told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "His coaches at Amarillo College told him he didn't have to graduate to transfer to an NIAA school and start playing, but that's wrong. "Three of us looked at his transcripts. But no one noticed it," said McAlexander.

"Usually, when something like this happens, it's because you don't have all the information," Athletic Director Larry Hays added. "But Coby put it all down and it was all right."

The Chaps, who were 9-3, dropped to 2-10 entering Tuesday's game against Dallas Baptist, which they won 67-62. LCC's recent victories against Belmont College and Austin College were not affected.

"I don't think it will have that much of an effect on us. Our goal is the same as it always was ... to make the playoffs and hopefully host a playoff game," said Copeland.

The decision does not affect the Chaps' position in the Dunkel ratings, which are used to seed teams for post-season play.

"This is one of those things that always looms over you and you never expect it to happen. But there's always a first time," said McAlexander.

"We told the schools involved it was just an oversight," McAlexander explained.

Steers defeated by Broncos, 65-49

ODESSA — The Big Spring Steers dropped their third district basketball contest as they were defeated by the Odessa Broncos by a count of 65-49.

It was the third consecutive district setback suffered by the Steers while Odessa won their first district contest in three outings.

Again turnovers were the main culprit of the Steers as they committed a astounding 39 turnovers, the third straight game Big Spring has committed over 30 turnovers.

The Broncos cashed in on the Steers mistakes and dominated the boards led by 6-4 post Joe Terry who was the game's leading scorer with 16 points.

The Steers started out slow as Odessa jumped out to a 9-0 lead. It was four minutes before Big Spring scored their first basket by Jimmy Brown and the Broncos held a 13-2 lead.

Odessa stretched their lead to 38-21 at the half. The Steers made a slight comeback in the final period as their press keyed by Glen Mellinger led to 20 points, six coming from Fred Cole., but it was too little, too late. Brown led the Steers' scoring with 10 points.

Lewis named top AP athlete

Edges out Gretzky and Malone

NEW YORK (AP)— Sprinter-long jumper Carl Lewis, The Associated Press' Male Athlete of the Year for 1983 who has been compared to the great Jesse Owens, thinks this will be an even better year for him.

"I am looking forward so much to this season," Lewis said Tuesday after becoming the first track and field athlete since decathlete Bruce Jenner in 1976 to win the honor.

In the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, the 22-year-old Lewis received 37 votes to 22 for runnerup Wayne Gretzky, the high-scoring center of the Edmonton Oilers who was named the National Hockey League's Most Valuable Player for the fourth straight year after winning the scoring title for the third year in a row with 196 points, including a record 125 assists.

Center Moses Malone, who led the Philadelphia 76ers to the National Basketball Association title, finished third with 19 votes, followed by Atlanta Braves outfielder Dale Murphy, the National League's MVP for the second consecutive year, with 13 votes.

Lewis, winner of three events in both the World Track and Field Championships and the USA Championships in 1983, will be gunning for four gold medals in this year's Summer Olympic Games at Los Angeles — and perhaps some world records.

"I'm four inches away in the long jump, one tick from the world record in the 100-meter dash and three ticks from the 200," said Lewis. "They're all within reach."

Lewis long-jumped 28 feet, 10 1/4 inches last year, 4 1/4 inches short of the world record set by Bob Beamon in the 1968 Olympics in the rarified air of Mexico City.

He ran the 100-meter dash in 9.97 seconds last year, the fastest-time ever at sea level but actually .04 of a second off the world record of 9.93 set by Calvin Smith of the United States in the high altitude of Colorado Springs, Colo. in 1983.

And Lewis ran the 200 in 19.75 seconds last year, an American record, the fastest-clocking ever at sea level and exactly .05 off the world record of 19.72 set by Pietro Mennea of Italy at Mexico City in 1979.

"I plan to compete in all three events in the (U.S. Olympic) Trials (at Los Angeles in June)," said Lewis.

If he makes the American team in the 100, placing among the top three finishers in the Trials or even finishes fourth, he also would qualify for the 400-meter relay team — his fourth event at the Olympics. Last year, Lewis ran a blazing anchor leg on the United States relay team that set a world record of 37.86 seconds in the World Championships at Helsinki, Finland.

The World Championships were the culmination of Lewis' brilliant season.

In addition to capturing a gold medal in the relay, he led a 1-2-3 United States sweep in the 100, winning in 10.07 seconds, and paced a 1-2-3 American sweep in the long jump, leaping 28-0 3/4.

His first "triple" of the year had come two months earlier in the National Championships at Indianapolis. There, he broke Tommie Smith's American record in the 200 by .06 of a second, captured the long jump with his sea-level best and won the 100 for the third consecutive year in 10.27.

It was the first time since 1886 that an athlete had won those three events at the National Championships.

"That meet just set up everything for me," said Lewis. "Winning gave me tremendous confidence.

"Now, I feel I can do anything on the track. If I want to run a fast 200, I can do it. And if I want to run the 400 hurdles, I feel I can do it."

If the National Championships were the springboard for Lewis' great season, the World Championships were the climax.

"The entire city of Houston was behind me," said Lewis, a student at the University of Houston. "I didn't realize how much it (his performance) meant to the city."

"When I got back (from Helsinki), there was joy, tears and smiles on everyone's face. Everyone in Houston was happy."

During the year, Lewis was beaten only once in the 100 and once in the 200, and did not lose in the long jump for the national Championships and World Championships and running 9.97 in the 100 in 1983, Lewis set a world indoor best of 6.02 in the 60-yard dash, and scored the first sprint-long jump double in the USA Indoor Championships in 38 years. He won the 60 in 6.04 and the long jump at 27-4 1/4.

The AP's Female Athlete of the Year will be announced Thursday.

Rozier officially a Pittsburgh Mauler

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Maulers say they're "very relieved and happy" that the confusion involving Mike Rozier's signing with the United States Football League team has ended.

"I'm not necessarily surprised" about the confusion, Maulers spokesman Bill Keenist said late Tuesday in Pittsburgh. "The fact that Mike was halfway across the world in Japan, the 14-hour time difference. There were a lot of time variables involved," he said.

"We are just very relieved and happy that the confusion is apparently cleared up," Keenist said.

"This whole thing was a mountain made from a molehill over a communications problem. When you have 14 hours of time difference and thousands of miles, this kind of thing happens," said Mike Trope, Rozier's agent.

The Heisman Trophy-winning running back from Nebraska confirmed in Tokyo on Wednesday that he had signed a three-year contract to play for the Maulers.

"Yes, I signed," Rozier told an Associated Press reporter outside the Tokyo hotel where he is staying with other players participating in next Monday's ninth annual Japan Bowl football game.

Rozier would not say how much the contract was worth and would give no other details. Reports from Pittsburgh had indicated the contract was for $3 million.

Rozier had refused Tuesday to confirm an announcement by the USFL expansion team that he had signed a contract, saying he had not decided whether to play for the Maulers. He offered no explanation for having made that comment, but the Maulers and Rozier's agent said it was because he had not been told that the official announcement was made Monday.

He was the top pick in the year-old league's college player draft last week.

"I'm excited and looking forward to getting back and getting started," Rozier was quoted as saying in a copyright story in Wednesday's editions of USA Today.

Keenist had repeated Tuesday that the team has a "legal, formal, legitimate" agreement, and said "the contract is signed by Mike Rozier."

Maulers General Manager George Heddeston, in a statement issued in Pittsburgh, said when Rozier had signed a multi-year contract Jan. 3 he had asked that the announcement of his signing be delayed by one week.

"There were also some additional details to the contract that weren't finalized until this past weekend," Heddeston said.

Officials of the Maulers, an expansion team in the year-old league, announced at a news conference Monday that Rozier had signed a "generous" contract, reportedly for $3 million. They also quoted him in a news release as saying he was "extremely happy" to join the team.

For a healthier year, use low-sodium recipes

The new year is a good time to evaluate one's eating habits, especially if you're among the 30 million Americans who need to limit sodium intake.

In fact, it is wise for everyone to limit the amount of sodium in their diet. Studies show that most people consume far more than they need to maintain good health.

There is a variety of low-sodium hors d'oeuvres recipes to prepare that are perfect when entertaining guests at home or as party bring-alongs.

GUACAMOLE IN CHERRY TOMATOES

20 cherry tomatoes
2 medium avocados
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 Tbsp. minced onion
6 drops tabasco sauce
1 Tbsp. sour cream
1/4 tsp. salt alternative

Slice the tops of the cherry tomatoes. Working carefully, use a small spoon to remove the pulp and seeds. Turn the tomatoes over on paper towels to drain for 20 minutes. Peel the avocados; then mash them by hand, in a blender or a food processor. You should have one cup. Mix in the remaining ingredients. Fill the tomatoes with mixture. Makes 20 tomatoes. Sodium content is 2.5 milligram per tomato.

HOT STUFFED MUSHROOM CAPS

24 large mushrooms, wiped clean
1 Tbsp. unsalted butter or margarine
1 scallion, sliced finely
1 ounce unsalted farmers cheese or low-sodium cottage cheese
1 Tbsp. fresh parsley, chopped
2 tps. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. salt alternative
1 small tomato peeled, seeded and finely chopped

Remove the stems from the mushroom caps and chop the stems finely. Melt the butter over medium heat and saute the chopped stems and scallion until most of the liquid is reduced. Set aside to cool.

In a mixing bowl, cream the cheese, parsley, lemon juice, and salt alternative until well mixed. Gently stir in the tomato. Stuff each mushroom cap with the mixture and place on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven for about 10 minutes. Makes 24 mushrooms. Sodium content is 16 milligram per mushroom.

CHICKEN ALMOND PINWHEELS

8 slices of low-sodium bread
1 cup cooked boneless chicken breast
1/2 cup toasted almonds, finely chopped
4 Tbps. low-sodium mayonnaise
1/4 tsp. salt alternative
1/2 tsp. pepper
2 Tbps. chopped parsley
1/4 cup unsalted butter or margarine, melted

Trim the crusts from the bread. With a rolling pin, roll each piece of bread until thin. Finely chop the chicken and transfer it to a mixing bowl. Add the remaining ingredients and combine thoroughly. Spread the mixture evenly over the bread, then roll each piece jelly-roll fashion. Brush with melted butter. Place in freezer for half an hour. Slice each roll into four pieces. Place seam side down on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for about 15 minutes or until golden. Sodium content is 7 milligrams per pinwheel.

APPETIZERS — These savory appetizers can be made ahead for easy entertaining. Only the cook needs know they're made with a salt alternative for a low-sodium bonus.

Recipes help beat the brown bag blues

Suffering from brown bag boredom? When lunch from home starts looking the same day after day, month after month, it's time to pack some variety in with the usual fare.

Put an end to the monotony with delicious homemade taste treats that are guaranteed to help you and your family beat the lunch box/brown bag blues.

Kids and adults alike will appreciate the change of pace when you surprise them with something special from your kitchen. The cold winter months are perfectly suited to warming up your oven.

Remember the basic four food groups when planning your daily lunches: meat, milk, grain, fruits and vegetables. Try to include an item from each group for a well-balanced noon meal. Hot soup is also a welcome addition to any lunch in the wintertime.

MINT FROSTED BROWNIES

1/2 cup pecans, chopped
1/2 cup soft butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla extract
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 square semi-sweet chocolate, melted

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 9-inch square pan. In large mixer bowl, cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, creaming well after each. Add vanilla and melted unsweetened chocolate and continue to mix.

Reduce speed to low and gradually add flour, baking powder and salt. Add nuts. Pour into prepared pan and bake 35-40 minutes. Cool and frost. Drizzle chocolate in vertical lines from 2 inches apart. Lightly pull tip of knife across lines to form squares. Makes 20 to 24 squares.

To make frosting for mint-frosted brownies:

1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1/2 tsp. peppermint extract
3 cups powdered sugar
3 to 4 Tbps. milk
2 to 3 drops green food coloring

Put all ingredients into small mixing bowl. Mix to combine ingredients. Continue to mix until fluffy.

OLD-FASHIONED MOLASSES COOKIES

1 cup sugar
1/2 cup vegetable shortening
1 egg
1/4 cup molasses
4 cups whole wheat flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. ground ginger
1/2 tsp. ground cloves
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/4 tsp. ground allspice
Sugar

In large mixer bowl, cream together sugar, shortening and egg until fluffy. Add molasses, mix until combined. Stir together flour, salt, soda and spices. Add to mixing bowl. Mix until well combined.

Refrigerate for two hours. Roll out on floured surface to 1/4 inch thickness. Cut with round three-inch cookie cutter. Place on greased cookie sheet 2-inch apart. Sprinkle top of cookies with sugar. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven for 10 minutes. Cool on wire rack. Makes 3 dozen.

CRUNCHY CASHEW COOKIES

1 cup cashews
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1/2 cup vegetable shortening
1 egg
1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
2 tps. baking powder
2 cups wholegrain cornflakes

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Process cashews. Set aside. In large mixer bowl, cream together sugar, butter, shortening and egg until fluffy. Add whole wheat flour and baking powder mixing until well combined. Add cornflakes and cashews and mix until combined. Roll into 1-inch balls. Place 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated oven for eight to eleven minutes. Cool on wire rack. Makes 4 dozen.

HONEY BARS

1/2 cup walnuts
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1/4 cup honey
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1/2 cup whole wheat flour
1/2 cup oats
1/4 cup wheat germ
1 cup coconut

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Put walnuts into blender container. Cover and process two cycles at chop. Set aside. In large mixer bowl, cream together butter, honey, egg and vanilla. Add flour, oats and wheat germ. Mix until combined. Mix in coconut and chopped nuts. Spread into an ungreased 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan. Bake in preheated oven for 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Cool. Cut into bars. Makes 28 bars.

Tips help reduce caloric intake

Are you counting calories after the holidays again this year? Martha Pehl, registered dietitian and food and nutrition consultant to the Sugar Association, Inc., presents these tips.

Watch out for gravies, creamed dishes, salad dressings, pastries and fried foods. All have a relatively high fat content.

Alcoholic beverages are another area for moderation. They contain seven calories per gram compared to four calories per gram in protein and carbohydrates.

Develop the habit of eating smaller portions. In this way you can continue to enjoy many of your favorite foods without exceeding your calorie limit for the day.

Regular exercise is a must. More and more diet and obesity experts are concluding that the most underemphasized aspect of weight control for many years has been the body's need for exercise.

It's often not the food itself that is calorically high, but the way it's prepared. You can easily add 200 to 300 calories to a potato by heaping on butter and sour cream. Go light on the mayonnaise in your sandwiches. Ask for dressing on the side when you order a salad at a restaurant.

Use leaner cuts of meat rather than those that are highly marbled with fat.

It's better to bake, broil or boil than it is to fry. When you're eating toast at breakfast, remember that a portion of butter is more than twice the calories as the same weight of jam.

Eating citrus helps control weight

COLLEGE STATION — Substituting citrus for the high-calorie sweets you have been eating during the holiday season can help get your weight under control without breaking your food budget.

Consumers often think that citrus prices will double or triple after a freeze such as the one that struck Texas in December. But things may not be so bad for consumers since part of a bumper crop of Texas grapefruit and oranges was harvested before the freeze, and a large supply of juice was already in storage from last year, says Marilyn Haggard, a food and nutrition specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

Even if prices go up a few cents per pound, citrus fruit is a particularly good buy, says the specialist, because it has a high proportion of nutrients for the calories.

The high nutrient-density of oranges and grapefruit is also an advantage for dieters who want to keep their calorie intake low without sacrificing good nutrition, says Haggard.

Because Texas citrus is known for its sweetness, it makes an excellent low-calorie snack. A half grapefruit, for example, contains only 55 calories and a whole orange has just 64 calories.

Most people know that citrus is high in vitamin C, but may not realize that just one orange provides 110 percent and half a grapefruit provides 80 percent of the recommended daily allowance, says the specialist.

In addition, citrus has negligible sodium and is high in potassium. This is important for people on sodium-restricted diets, and those interested in overall good nutrition, she notes.

All Texas citrus is tree-ripened and ready to eat when you buy it. Select firm, well-shaped, heavy grapefruit and oranges for more juice inside, suggests Haggard.

Texas citrus are a very thin-skinned fruit. Slight skin defects, such as scars or scratches caused by wind brushing the fruit against tree branches will not affect the eating quality.

Store citrus is a well-ventilated place away from heat. They will keep about 10 days at room temperature, or two to three weeks in the vegetable crisper of the refrigerator, says the specialist.

Tips for using and keeping spices

To remove the powerful smell of garlic from your fingers and chopping board when chopping fresh ginger and garlic for Chinese recipes, follow this tip. Always cut the garlic first. The ginger will remove the strong garlic smell.

Speaking of spices, the fresh flavors and colors of chili powder, cumin, paprika and red pepper will last and last if you keep these spices in the refrigerator.

Ex-Big Springer busted for drugs

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

A former Big Spring resident that police have reason to believe transported and sold narcotics in the Big Spring area was arrested in Austin Friday for possession of large amounts of cocaine and marijuana, Police Chief Rick Turner said in a news conference this morning.

Steven Paul Riordan, 34, was arrested at 12:30 p.m. Friday in his Austin home by members of the Big Spring Police Department and Midland and Austin Department of Public Safety authorities for possession of four ounces of cocaine and 30 pounds of marijuana, Turner said.

The drugs have an estimated street value of $30,000, Turner said.

Riordan was released from Travis County jail Saturday morning on $40,000 bond, police investigator Bud Jones said.

Turner said the investigation that led to Riordan's arrest originated in Big Spring and led officers to Riordan's Austin home at 4204 St. Clair.

"We had information that gave us reason to believe he was trafficking narcotics into Big Spring," Turner said, "and we subsequently got enough information to secure a search warrant for his residence," he said.

Police authorities said they did not know the extent of involvement

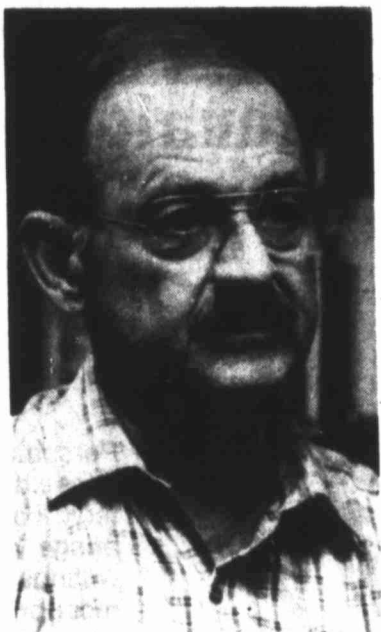

Riordan may have had in Big Spring.

Jones said Riordan told him he was a former student of Big Spring High School and was raised here.

According to transcripts at Big Spring High School, Riordan is the son of C.V. Riordan, former Democratic Party Chairman in Howard Co.

Seminar planned for Jan. 28

Malone-Hogan Hospital and the Athletic Department of Big Spring Independent School District will sponsor an accredited Sports Medicine Seminar at Big Spring High School Jan. 28 for any athletic coaches, trainers, physicians, nurses, allied health personnel and paramedical personnel. ## Big Spring receives .25 inch

Gentle rain dots area

From staff and wire reports

A flash flood watch was posted for portions of South Texas today as widespread rain and scattered thunderstorms moved across the eastern half of the state before dawn.

Scattered showers brought rain to Big Spring and other area communities during the night. The Big Spring Experimental Field Station reported .25 of an inch of rain, while the city received .35 of an inch. Red Thomas of 107 E. 13th said.

Rod Lewis, assistant district manager of the Colorado River Municipal River Authority, said both the CRMWD station north of town on Snyder Highway and at Lake Thomas reported half an inch of rain, while Lake E.V. Spence received one-and-a-half inches.

Colorado City received "so much rain, we've got a 100 buckets in the station to collect. It's coming through the roof," a spokesman for KVMC-radio in Colorado City said. The station reported .06 inches of rain, he said.

Meanwhile, Lomax reported .6 inches of rain last night, Richie Tubb said.

Skies are supposed to clear tomorrow, but area farmers say they need rain.

Vincent rancher and farmer David Barr said the recent cold spell dried up his land.

"We need rain. A couple days of that freezing weather'll dry up the land fast," Barr said.

Forecasters expected the shower activity to intensify during the day over southern sections, bringing the threat of local flash flooding.

Locally, forecasters are calling for a 20 percent chance of showers through today. The high temperature today is expected to be in the mid 50s, with the low tonight expected near 30. Tuesday's high should be in the mid 60s. Winds today should be from the northeast at 15-20 miles per hour.

The extended forecast calls for warm days with occasional scattered showers. Highs are expected to be in the mid 50s to upper 60s through Friday.

County gets clean audit report

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

The county today received a clean audit for fiscal year 1983 from outside auditor Guy White Jr., and commissioners approved changes in election precinct lines adding seven more voting boxes.

According to White, the county has $6.4 million in assets — $1.28 million more than last year's total of $5.1 million.

White said the county received $3.3 million in revenues for the general fund, an increase of $787,000 over the budgeted figure of $2.5 million. Commissioners also spent $167,930 less than they budgeted out of the general fund this year, spending only $2.5 million instead of $2.7 million.

Commissioner David Barr said, "I think everyone is satisfied with it

(the audit), I know I am."

County Treasurer Bonnie Franklin said that as of Dec. 30, 1983 the county has $2.7 million in investments and cash.

In other action, the commissioners voted 3-1 to approve changes in election precinct lines for general and presidential elections.

The changes were made to comply with state law which says county precinct lines cannot cross city district lines in general or presidential elections. The city's election boundaries recently were changed in a settlement with the League of United Latin American Citizens, thus causing a need for county boundaries to change.

Under the change four more voting boxes will be added in the four commissioner precincts.

Precinct 4 will get one box, Precinct 3 will get two boxes and Precinct 2 will get one box.

Barr said he opposed the creation of the four additional boxes.

"It (the city-LULAC agreement) zoned off too much. I believe in being for treating every one the same. But LULAC was doing exactly what they accused us of doing. They carried it a little too far," Barr said.

"If they wanted to add to the ward, they should add in one area, and not go around picking areas from here and here to get more votes. I don't think they had to do that," Barr said.

Commissioner Louis Brown disagreed, saying that Barr's way of thinking would leave minority representation "in the same boat."

Every program has faults. You can't wipe them out in the first year."

Commissioner Paul Allen, who voted for the changes, said he didn't like the necessity of adding new boxes, "but what can you do?"

The commissioners also:

- Agreed to have county employees put insulation on the Luther fire station. The pump in the station froze during the recent cold spell and would have been useless in an emergency, commissioner said.
- Voted unanimously to rehire White as auditor for 1984, and to commend both White and County Auditor Jackie Olson for their job.

- Extended the county's participation in Intoxilizer lab testing with Midland County for another six months.

Joy! To the world

By JOY CULWELL
Colorado City
Correspondent

Marsha Moore of Colorado City completed work toward her bachelor of arts degree at Angelo State University in San Angelo just before Christmas.

Naturally, the degree was in drama. I say "naturally" because Marsha is married to Carl Beery Moore, drama teacher for Colorado High and Middle School. Even their two children, Amy and Dylan, are actors in the best playhouse group anywhere around, The Colorado City Play House.

Well, Marsha was so anxious to get her grades in the mail. That's why she met postlady Pat Wall every day for three days at the mailbox in front of her home. Pat delivers the mail on Route One in Colorado City since veteran mailman Fred Smith decided to retire earlier.

The weather was severely cold before Christmas but Marsha was out there by the mailbox when Pat the Postlady drove up. Finally the grades came and Pat recognized the envelope from Angelo State University. When she drove up to the mailbox, it was bitterly cold and Marsha wasn't waiting. Pat honked and Marsha came running out, and she and her own cheerleader, Pat the Postlady, jumped up and down for joy when the envelope was opened.

Three Bs and one A. How wonderful! Not only did she pass but she excelled. Now she could relax and tell her children, "If I can do it, you can do it!"

There are a lot of other reasons why living in Colorado City is wonderful but the Colorado City playhouse is a main reason for several families, including the Carl Moores. The directors and officers see to it that the auditions are open to everyone in the whole area who might be interested in appearing in a play.

"Every kid with any ham in them at all can try out their acting ability," a board member said. And when they get the applause for a job well done, they are hooked on it for life. They will have opportunity for many, many years to act, direct, produce, run lights, make costumes, do makeup, write publicity, design programs or any of the other thousands of jobs around an amateur theater.

George Womack, an officer at City National Bank, has made the theater group his avocation for the past 20 years. He looks forward to the next 20 years. He is a charter member of the group and joined in 1964. His first production was in a one-act non-royalty play called, "Those Dog-gone Elections." We've come a long way, baby, since that beginning, presenting the best in amateur theater for the last 20 years.

House damaged in wreck

A 34-year-old Big Spring man was arrested Saturday morning in connection with a four-car accident Friday night that injured one person and damaged a house.

Ruby Davis Stevens of Gail Route was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital Friday night for minor injuries, a hospital spokeswoman said. She had been transported to the hospital from the accident scene by Shaffer Ambulance.

Raul John Rivas of 805 Lorilla turned himself into police Saturday morning. He was arrested on suspicion of felony failure to stop and render assistance, driving while license suspended, failure to maintain liability insurance and failure to yield the right of way, according to police reports.

Rivas collided with Ms. Stevens'

1980 Mercury Marquis at 7:13 p.m. Friday at the intersection of Seventh and Goliad. According to reports, Rivas failed to stop at a stop sign and hit Ms. Stevens' car, which was headed south on Goliad.

Ms. Stevens' car went out of control, then hit a parked 1973 Ford, a house 40 feet from the curb and another parked car before coming to a stop.

Should you lose weight?

How can you tell if you are overweight? Is there a difference between being overweight and being obese?

These questions often bring conflicting answers and there's even some controversy among nutrition experts about the definitions of and the methods used to determine who is overweight or obese.

For many years most physicians have used height/weight charts to determine if an individual is the correct weight. These tables were developed by insurance companies based on their records.

They indicated the weight ranges at which people of various heights and builds were statistically at less risk of premature death. Recently, these weights were revised upward by about 5 to 7 percent, although several health associations have advocated using the original lower weights.

Because body weight alone does not determine fatness or leanness, the "average" weight of a person may be meaningless. For example, skeleton weight can vary from 4 to 9 percent from person to person.

This means that a 125-pound woman could have a skeleton that weighed as little as 5 pounds or as much as 11 pounds. Also, a very muscular person's weight may seem to be high in proportion to height, but the person actually has very little fat tissue.

Determining the amount of body fat a person has is the best method for defining overweight or "over fat." One way to measure body fat is by weighing under water. Mathematical calculations are then made which define the amount of body fat.

A reliable method of determining body fatness which is easier than weighing under water is to measure skin fold thickness by constant tension calipers. About half of the body's fat is directly under the skin, so measuring the thickness of this fat (called subcutaneous fat) is a good index of total body fat.

The calipers are used to measure several different body sites for thickness. An index of percent of body fat can then be calculated according to readings at the various body points.

A simpler home test of body fatness makes use of a full-length mirror. A person is often able to decide whether he or she is carrying too much fat by a careful study of oneself before a mirror without clothes.

Have you gained several pounds over the years? Do you find your clothes a little tighter than in the past?

If the signs point to having too much body fat, don't wait. Check with your physician about a well-balanced, reduced calorie diet and an exercise program that would be right for you.

Enjoy exercising by stepping into one of today's most popular exercises - walking!

Walking can help reduce fatigue, depression and obesity, as well as helping to maintain good health.

Regular walking will help build endurance. The amount you should do depends on your age and physical condition. A beginner might try a brisk 20-minute walk every day, working up to a 3-mile hike in 45 minutes at least three times a week.

Obesity and high blood pressure are among the leading risks for heart attacks and strokes. Walking may help get rid of stress, which is often associated with both conditions.

Walking is not the fastest way to lose weight, but it is one of the most enjoyable. If you can walk 3 miles per hour, you can burn up 66 calories per mile. If you can walk a mile in 12 minutes, you'll use up 124 calories per mile.

Increase your walking to a mile a day and by the end of the year, you can take off about 10 pounds - if you decrease or maintain your present intake of calories.

There are additional advantages to walking. You get to know your neighbors. Also the quiet time will give you a period to think through the day's activities, meditate or enjoy the beauty of nature.
