Spring Board

How's that? Native

Q. Was Vice-President George Bush born in Texas?

A. Although Bush is generally associated with Texas, he was actually born in Milton, Mass., in 1924.

Calendar: Guild

TODAY

• The Big Spring Symphony Guild will meet at 2:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Ruth Penner, No. 2 Highland Cove.

• The Lakeview City Federated Club will have breakfast from 7 to 10 a.m. at Mount Bethel Baptist Church Cafeteria at 630 N.W. Fourth.

MONDAY

• The Disabled American Veterans and Auxiliary will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the VFW Hall on Driver Road.

• The American Association of University Women will meet at 7:30 p.m. at 611 Highland. New members are welcome.

TUESDAY

• The Overeaters Anonymous meeting has been changed from Mondays to Tuesdays at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center at 7 p.m. For more information call Anna at 398-5428, or Ruth at 267-1428.

WEDNESDAY

• Overeaters Anonymous meets at 1 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church Library.

• The Kentwood Center annual chili supper will be served from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Center at 2805 Lynn St. The meal is $3 per person. Chili, beans, pie, coffee and tea will be served.

SATURDAY

• Dance students of Ora Burson will present their annual winter recital in the Municipal Auditorium at 7 p.m. The concert is free.

Tops on TV: Bob Hope

A special featuring Bob Hope on tour in Lebanon will air at 8 p.m. on channel 13. Joining Hope on his tour to members of the peacekeeping force aboard the battleship U.S.S. New Jersey are Brooke Shields, Ann Jillian and Cathy Lee Crosby. At 8 p.m. on channel 2, Robert Redford and Jany Fonda star in "The Electric Horseman."

At the movies: Olivia

"Two of a Kind," starring Olivia Newton-John and John Travolta, opens at the Ritz Twin. "Pieces," a horror thriller, opens at the R-70. At the Cinema, "Sudden Impact" with Clint Eastwood and "The Man Who Loved Women" with Burt Reynolds continue.

Outside: Fair

Fair skies and cool temperatures are forecast today. Highs should reach into the mid-40s with southeasterly winds, 10 to 15 miles per hour. Tonight look for lows in the lower 30s. The area should see a warming trend the early part of next week.

Area water free of pesticides

From bureau and wire reports
No trace of the cancer-causing pesticide EDB have been found in the Big Spring and Lamesa water supplies, according to results of tests conducted last week by the Texas Health Department.

The pesticide also was not found in any public water supplies in the state, results show.

The test results on water samples taken from 25 reservoirs in 17 counties were announced Friday. They were prompted by the discovery of EDB in grain products such as corn meal, cake mix, grits and flour.

The health department also said baking the grain mixes that were contaminated with EDB removed 94 percent of the chemical. The heat dissipates it, the department said, and it apparently evaporates harmlessly into the atmosphere.

In previous tests conducted by the Texas Agriculture Department, detectable levels of the chemical showed up in about a third of the grain products taken from grocery store shelves. Agriculture officials called it a "deadly serious problem," and said ingesting EDB over a period of years can increase the risk of cancer.

But Bernstein said no one has determined yet what level of EDB is harmful to humans. "We are investigating the situation, and when we determine what the harmful level of EDB is, we will act quickly," Bernstein said.

The health department conducted its own tests on products sold in grocery stores, mostly grain items, and reported Friday that about a fourth of them contained detectable levels of EDB.

The list of items tested included beer and baby food, and in both cases, no trace of EDB was found.

The same day health department officials released their findings, a group calling itself the Texas Pesticide Research and Education Project said Bernstein should order the contaminated items removed from grocery stores or at least order warnings posted on them.

A statement from the Health Department insisted "we are doing the right thing" by waiting. It said a 154-pound man would have to eat six to 12 tons of raw grain a day to get the same dose given rats in tests that indicated the cancer danger.

Water samples tested by the health department were taken from public supplies in 17 counties: Cherokee, Comanche, Falls, Fort Bend, Hidalgo, Lubbock, Menard, Midland, Pecos, Potter, Randall, Smith, Tarrant, Uvalde, Ward, Williamson and Zavala. Twenty-five different water supplies in those counties were tested.

Darwin dropped from biology text requirement

AUSTIN (AP) — Biology textbooks used in Texas schools need not mention Charles Darwin or his theory of evolution, the State Board of Education decided Saturday.

A group in favor of teaching Darwin's theory said the board's decision was a victory for creationists and "a drastic step backward" for Texas education.

Those applauding the board's action noted that it also does not prohibit publishers from referring to Darwin or evolution as long as they follow another rule that requires books mentioning evolution to present it as "only one of several explanations of the origins of humankind."

That 1974 rule, which is under constitutional review by the Texas attorney general, applies to all Texas textbooks that may refer to evolution, and it was not affected by Saturday's board decision.

Texas' decisions on textbooks are considered important nationwide because the state is the largest buyer of school books in the country. Publishers generally will not print a textbook they cannot sell in Texas.

The board's action Saturday applies only to science and biology books, which will be selected this year for use in schools beginning with the 1985 school year.

"It means you could have a biology book that never mentions

Tougher curriculum proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposed tougher curriculum for high school students in Texas will be debated next month by members of the State Board of Education.

The new requirements, drawn up by the Texas Education Agency, would increase from 18 to 21 the number of credits needed for graduation, and would offer a special diploma for high achievers.

A credit equals two semesters of a single subject.

The TEA's proposed curriculum was accepted as a working draft without discussion by the state board on Saturday, and members scheduled a "committee of the whole" meeting for Feb. 9 to work on it. A final vote is expected March 10.

Board Chairman Joe Kelly Butler said several special interest groups can be expected to criticize the board no matter what it does with the curriculum.

"Those special interest groups do not show a whole lot of eagerness to

Military honors

GENERAL'S FUNERAL — Anne Ownby, wife of Maj. Gen. Robert Ownby, is comforted at his funeral by Buckner Fanning, who gave the last rites in San Antonio at the Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery. Ownby was found hanged last week in a building at Fort Sam Houston. See story on page 2A.

Tabling the issue

Owners hustle family image of billiards

By CAROL HART BALDWIN

Hidden among the tables at the Billiards Place at 212 Main Street are memories of the past.

The walls are decorated with old movie posters advertising films starring Humphrey Bogart, James Cagney and Alan Ladd. Some of the tables, inlaid with pearls, ivory and ebony, were made before the turn of the century. And the legends of notorious characters from the past fill the shadows.

Before the tables were transported to Texas from Chicago in the 1930s, "Al Capone and some of his boys used to come in and play on them," said Buck McMullan. McMullan and his wife, Sammie, and Barry and Marie Dunnam own both the Billiard Place and Southwestern Billiard Supply Co., located above the billiard hall.

A few of the tables inside The Billiards Place were brought to Texas by McMullan's father, 80-year-old W.H. McMullan, who with his cousin, James A. Autrey, had a run-in with Chicago Teamsters when they tried to move the tables out of a Chicago pool hall.

The Teamsters union was a young but tough organization in the 1930s. The elder McMullan found that members of the union wouldn't let him move the tables from the pool hall onto a waiting truck because he wasn't a Teamster and "if you weren't a member of the union, you couldn't do the work," Buck said. His father relented and "had to let the union members load the tables."

McMullan and his cousin, Autrey, who died recently at the age of 91, made trips around the nation collecting pool tables and bringing them to warehouses in Tuscola, near Abilene. At one time the two men had collected more than 400 antique tables.

"My dad had 60 different billiard parlors around the state," McMullan said. The elder McMullan and Autrey "were pioneer billiard table men in Texas. Their billiard supply store in Abilene was one of the first stores in Texas."

"From 1937 to 1963 it was illegal to have a billiards parlor in Texas," Buck remembers. "Some towns had them and some didn't. Big Spring (officials) wouldn't let the city have one."

But in 1963 when the law changed, Buck and his family moved to Big Spring, and the elder McMullan opened the old Cue and Triangle Billiards Parlor. It was located on Runnels.

McMullan and Dunnam view the Billiard's Place as a facility where families can come. And there is an attitude among the owners that one usually wouldn't associate with a pool hall.

"When most people think of a pool hall, they think of thugs and a trashy place. My dad ran a place that anybody could come into and feel right at home," McMullan said.

"Back in the '30s and '40s, my dad and (Autrey) ran a place where women and even preachers could come into. There were no drunks or gambling allowed."

Today, the tradition continues. "It's impossible to tell people how nice this place is. We have family people and teen-agers who like to come in here."

Dunnam's wife Marie said religion binds the owners

RACKING THEM UP — Marie Dunnam racks up the billiard balls at the Billiard Place, located at 212 Main. Marie and her husband, Barry, and Buck and Sammie McMullan, owners of the Billiard Place, say their billiards hall is not like most pool halls.

Times theater critic dies

NEW YORK — Brooks Atkinson, drama critic of The New York Times for 31 years and a Pulitzer-prize winning foreign correspondent, has died of pneumonia in a Huntsville, Ala., hospital, at age 89.

BROOKS ATKINSON

Atkinson, called "the theater's most influential reviewer of his time" by the Times, died Friday in Crestwood Hospital. He had been seriously ill since November.

Atkinson was the Times' drama critic from 1925 to 1960, except for a four-year break in the 1940's when, as a foreign correspondent for the Times, he won the Pulitzer for a series of articles on conditions in Moscow.

He was credited for raising public awareness of the theater both on and off Broadway, and a Broadway theater was named for him in 1960.

However, he said in an interview 1979, "The newspaper business is my real enthusiasm. The theater is secondary to the newspaper business." Atkinson gave up the critic's seat and wrote columns for the Times from 1960 until his retirement in 1965. He also wrote nearly a dozen books on theater, travel and nature.

Born on Nov. 28, 1894, in Melrose, Mass., Atkinson graduated from Harvard in 1917 and joined the Springfield (Mass.) Daily News as a reporter. He moved to the Boston Evening Transcript in 1919, then to the Times in 1922 as editor of The Book Review. Three years later he became the Times' drama critic.

Alabama pays the piper

NASHVILLE — Members of the country-rock band Alabama have been ordered by a judge to pay $1.8 million to their former talent agency.

The International House of Talent sued Alabama for $5 million after employee Dale Morris left the company in May 1981 and took the Alabama account with him.

A Chancery Court judge had ruled in April that Alabama breached its booking contract with IHT, which is owned by country performer Billy "Crash" Craddock. The judge turned the case over to a clerk to decide the amount of the damage award.

Alabama appealed the amount back to Chancery Court, and on Friday the court upheld all but $1,200 of the award decided upon by the clerk.

Bob Lynch, attorney for the two-time winner of the Country Music Association's Entertainer of the Year award, said he would file a motion for a new trial. If that is denied, "we'll appeal," he said.

Arguello boosts Contras

RENO — Former boxing champ Alexis Arguello says his 17-day visit with anti-Sandinista rebels in his native Nicaragua helped boost their morale. "I was supposed to do like Bob Hope in Lebanon, talk with the troops and their commanders," explained Arguello, who said he made the trip at the request of the guerrillas.

Arguello, a three-time champion in three weight divisions, said he also tried to undermine the morale of government troops by addressing them on a clandestine radio station called Latapuda.

"I was a messenger," Arguello, 32, told the Reno Gazette-Journal in a telephone interview from his King's Bay, Fla., home. "I would tell them who I am. I told them, 'We are not fighting against Nicaraguans. We are fighting communists, Cubans and Russians.'"

The boxer announced his retirement in Las Vegas last September. He entered Nicaragua the day after Christmas and returned home Wednesday night.

Arguello said he was constantly hunted by government troops while in Nicaragua, adding, "It was like going to fight." He is a veteran of 83 professional bouts in a career that spanned 15 years.

The spirit of Lady Liberty

SHELBYVILLE — When 6-year-old Michael Haverly heard that a national committee was trying to raise $200 million to repair the Statue of Liberty, he decided to launch a fund drive of his own.

The kindergarten pupil at Triton Elementary School here in Illinois has raised $67 so far, thanks partly to the help of a very extended family.

Michael, who has crippled hands and arms, is the adopted son of parents who have made a vocation of taking in foster children with special needs. There are five other children and the Haverlys have cared for 150 foster children.

Michael said he wanted to help save the statue "because my mom told me it stands for liberty and justice for all. The next thing my mom told me is it's a symbol for the country. I keep that in mind."

Tycoon's son ordered to trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has ordered the eldest son of slain millionaire Henry Harrison Kyle to stand trial on charges stemming from his father's murder last July 22 in a Bel-Air mansion.

The decision Friday by Municipal Judge Michael Sauer came at the end of a week-long preliminary hearing.

Sauer said Rick Kyle, 20, could remain free on $100,000 bail pending Jan. 30 arraignment in Superior Court.

U.S. changes Lebanon stance

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration believes Syria is blocking a security plan in Lebanon, apparently confident that American Marines and the multinational peacekeeping force will be withdrawn regardless of whether there is a plan, a senior official says.

But the official insisted a U.S. withdrawal wouldn't be considered without a security plan, although he said the administration might take "a fresh look" at the Marines' status if there is a plan and if a stronger Lebanese government emerges from follow-up negotiations.

The withdrawal of 1,600 Marines and other members of the multinational force is no longer dependent on an arrangement for the withdrawal of Syrian and Israeli forces, which occupy about 60 percent of Lebanon. But the official said that is still a U.S. objective.

The administration had previously said a withdrawal of the Marines was linked to a pull-out of foreign troops.

The official, who holds a senior position in the State Department, discussed the situation in Lebanon on the condition he not be identified.

Islamic nations to gather

RABAT — Foreign ministers of the Islamic world adopted a program Saturday for next week's Islamic summit in Casablanca, but avoided debate on the meeting's most controversial issue — the proposed readmission of Egypt.

Habib Chatty, Tunisian secretary-general of the 44-nation Islamic Conference Organization, told reporters that Egypt's application for readmission would be discussed in a closed meeting of the three-day summit, which opens Monday in a specially constructed meeting hall in Morocco's largest city.

Meanwhile, Morocco's King Hassan II sent his chief political adviser, Reda Guedira, to Tripoli on Saturday to appeal to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy to attend the Casablanca summit. Moroccan officials said it was the third such appeal by Hassan in the past two weeks. There was no indication of Khadafy's reply.

Chatty said the foreign ministers did not discuss the matter at their preparatory meeting in Rabat, 60 miles to the north.

Egypt was suspended from membership in the organization because it signed the 1979 Camp David

A question of bad luck

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Radio station KQV, which asks listeners to answer a call-in poll each weekday, could easily have answered its own question on Friday the 13th.

"Do you believe Friday the 13th brings bad luck?" was the question for that date last week.

The poll sometimes draws more than 1,000 responses. But only about 100 were received Friday because of bad luck — a broken water line at the downtown station that damaged telephone lines, forcing it to stop accepting calls.

The problem also affected reporters trying to call in stories, but all was well by Saturday the 14th.

McDonald's founder dies

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ray Kroc, a paper cup salesman who transformed a hamburger stand into the multimillion-dollar McDonald's fast-food empire and planted the golden arches in 32 nations, died of heart failure Saturday. He was 81.

Thanks to an aggressive promotion campaign that included the San Diego Chicken, the team drew an audience of at least 1 million people for every game but one in the 10 years that Kroc owned it.

peace treaty with Israel. Conference officials said a number of Islamic nations led by Sudan are demanding Egypt's return to the group, while some militant countries — headed by Libya and Syria — remain firmly opposed to it.

Libyan Foreign Minister Abdelaati Obeida told reporters here his government, "is not hostile to the Egyptian people" and would welcome Egypt's return to the Islamic family of nations — if Cairo denounced the Camp David agreements.

The Egyptian government of President Hosni Mubarak was virtually certain to reject such a condition even if the militants persuaded the summit's moderate majority to adopt it, conference sources said.

Shultz to meet Gromyko

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz was heading for Europe on Saturday and a pivotal meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko against the backdrop of a 35-nation conference to reduce East-West tensions.

Shultz was carrying hopes for a thaw in the icy relations between the two superpowers and a resumption of stalled negotiations to reverse the nuclear weapons race. He vowed he would approach Gromyko "in a constructive spirit" when they meet Wednesday in Stockholm, Sweden.

But Shultz was leaving behind an administration report approved by President Reagan and to be sent to Capitol Hill within the week that contends the Soviets have violated at least three arms agreements and most likely ran afoul of others.

Other than the report, the administration went out of its way to suggest it was ready to turn a new corner in dealing with Moscow.

Pope wants superpower talks

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II on Saturday appealed to the United States and the Soviet Union to revive talks on limiting nuclear arms, warning, "not a single day can be lost." It was his strongest plea yet for such a dialogue.

"Anybody who backs out of such negotiations would face great responsibility before humanity and history," the pontiff said. "We are convinced that there is a grave duty on the part of all interested parties (in the negotiations)."

John Paul discussed a wide range of international issues in a traditional New Year audience for some 200 diplomats and their families at the 16th century Sala Regia in the Apostolic Palace.

'Terrible and crummy'

Snow and high wind blasted the central Rockies on Saturday, with light snow showers scattered ahead of the storm all the way to the Northeast, and freezing rain left roads "right treacherous" in Virginia, causing hundreds of traffic accidents.

"How would terrible and crummy sound to you?" Virginia state Trooper R.M. Kranchick said of highways around Fairfax County during the night. "They're icy and slushy. The roads are in real bad shape."

More than a foot of snow fell in the Colorado Rockies, wind gusts of up to 75 mph whistled through canyons in Utah and temperatures fell below zero in the northern Plains from Montana across the Dakotas to Minnesota.

A winter storm warning was issued for extreme western Kansas, with 5 to 10 inches of snow expected.

Snow fell over all of Colorado, except for a few Western Slope areas. A travelers' advisory was posted for all of Colorado as highways were slick and snowpacked, and there was a threat of blowing and drifting snow in the high country and the east.

Colorado's heaviest snowfall was in Larimer County, with 12 to 14 inches in Big Thompson Canyon add 10 to 12 inches at Loveland.

A high wind warning was issued in Utah from Salt Lake City north to the Idaho border as winds gusted up to 75 mph in canyons of the western Wasatch Mountains.

Strong winds in Utah's northern mountains caused considerable drifting and blowing snow, making travel hazardous, and a travelers' advisory was issued for the entire state.

Some highways in Virginia were closed during the night as ice caused hundreds of accidents, including three fatalities, but all were open by Saturday morning, the state Highway Department said.

"The major roads are in pretty darn good shape," John Mayo, a department engineer, said about 8 a.m. "It's just trying to get to them, trying to get out of your driveway."

But secondary roads in central Virginia east of the Blue Ridge and some roads west and north of Harrisonburg remained "right treacherous," he said.

On Interstate 195 in Richmond, a chain-reaction accident that involved 15 cars closed the highway for about two hours but caused no injuries, said state Trooper Kenneth Moore.

Tax limitations invite cheaters

About 2 million taxpayers each year file amended federal income tax returns, and not all of them involve corrections of innocent errors. Apparently, it is fairly common to try something fancy in one's original tax return and give it up — by filing an amended return — after the IRS starts investigating.

Indeed, in the two cases currently before the U.S. Supreme Court, the taxpayers involved admit their original returns were outright fraudulent (one of them was even indicted for criminal fraud), but they say they amended and corrected returns demonstrating that they have since repented. The question they are asking the Supreme Court to settle is how much this repentance will save them.

Under the U.S. Tax Code, the IRS can collect "at any time" the taxes and penalties owed because of an intentionally fraudulent tax return. With no mention of repentance or amendments, the law seems pretty straightforward. But for most errors on ordinary tax returns, the two taxpayers now appealing to the Supreme Court point out, there is a three-year statute of limitations. And once they filed their amended returns and abandoned fraudulent intentions, they say, that statute of limitations should have started running in their cases. Since the IRS didn't get around to going after them within three years of their amended filings, they should now be off the hook and not have to pay any back taxes or penalties.

Unconvincing as this logic may sound, they have a critical legal precedent on their side: The same legal language about assessing back taxes "at any time" applies to people who don't file any returns at all, and in those cases the courts have allowed repentant taxpayers to get back under the protections of the general statute of limitations as soon as they file their overdue returns. If the court feels compelled to follow this precedent, the two repentant defrauders — and anyone else who manages to run out the IRS clock with the same maneuver — could well get away with it.

Fortunately, in oral arguments the other day, it seemed that the Supreme Court judges were in a more commonsensical frame of mind. Justice O'Connor wondered aloud about an interpretation that would make it safer to commit fraud than many lesser tax crimes — like tax negligence, which by law comes under a six-year statute of limitations. Justice Stevens mentioned "convoluted reasoning." Justice Marshall suggested that it was not the "intent to defraud" but the "intent to escape punishment" that was at issue in these cases.

The court's decision probably will not be out for several more months, but it is reassuring to know that the judges are not adverse to calling a scam a scam. Even if they eventually decide for the taxpayers, they have made it clear it will not be because the court has been moved by their contrition. Repentance may cleanse the soul, but the court has plainly indicated that repentance alone can't wipe clean one's debt to the IRS.

Jury challenges against blacks

In his annual report on the judiciary, Chief Justice Warren Burger lamented the scarcity of judges and the abundance of lawyers, which he blames for chronic delays plaguing the legal system.

"The judiciary," he declared, "cannot be held responsible for litigation delay when it is not given the tools and resources needed to cope with the problem." What he ignored is that much of the litigation grows out of bad rulings by judges.

A classic example is a decision handed down Dec. 20 by a U.S. district judge in New York. It held that, in the selection of a jury in a criminal case, it is unconstitutional for a prosecutor to use his peremptory challenges to exclude blacks. That decision sounds reasonable enough. But while the decision addresses a genuine problem, it badly misunderstands the existing jury system, invites an avalanche of pointless new litigation and ignores simpler remedies.

In choosing a jury in a criminal case, each side is allowed to eliminate panelists it regards as unsympathetic. Prosecutors and defense lawyers may eliminate any panelist who, for some obvious reason, might be inclined to lean in one direction — say, a man whose brother is on death row, or a woman who used to be a police officer.

Then there are peremptory challenges, a specified number of which is granted to each side. They require no explanation — if a lawyer doesn't like a potential juror's necktie, she can strike him from the jury.

If a prosecutor is trying someone for welfare fraud, he won't want to stock the jury with poor people. If he's prosecuting a wealthy executive for income tax evasion, though, he probably will. The defense attorney in each case would have the opposite preference. So all or most of the people suspected of a natural tendency to favor the prosecution or the defense should get bumped.

But the federal court of the Eastern District of New York decreed that, though a prosecutor may arbitrarily exclude people on any other basis, he may not exclude blacks because they are black. The judge overruled a 1985 Supreme Court ruling that, while blacks can't be barred from the jury pool, peremptory challenges may ordinarily be based on such normally dubious grounds as "the race, religion, nationality, occupation or affiliations of people summoned for jury duty."

This decision strikes at the very heart of the peremptory challenge, whose point, after all, is to allow the removal of panelists for reasons that can't be persuasively explained or defended. To say a prosecutor may use a peremptory challenge against a black only if he has an explainable reason misses that point: If he had an explainable reason, he wouldn't need a peremptory challenge.

Once such challenges become subject to exacting scrutiny, they lose most of their purpose. If a prosecutor is faced with a defense objection and the possibility of litigation every time he removes a black panelist without stating a reason, the process of jury selection will be protracted considerably, and the courts will grow even more badly clogged.

No one can doubt that prosecutors will face just that prospect if this ruling is upheld. No defense lawyer worth his sharskin suit would passively let his adversary bump a black juror — even if other blacks have been allowed. Accepting a token black, after all, might be the clever ploy of a prosecutor who wants to keep his jury as white as possible.

Unless a prosecutor says he plans to keep all blacks off his juries, there is no way to prove he has used his peremptory challenges for that purpose — and no way to prove he hasn't. The result? A lot more litigation, achieving nothing.

Admittedly there is a problem here, namely the exclusion of people on the basis of race. But the real villain is not the unfettered use of peremptory challenges — which, remember, developed as a way to protect both the state and the defendant against biased jurors. It is rather the large number of challenges allowed each side. In Illinois felony cases, each side gets 10 peremptory challenges; New York allows from 10 to 20, depending on the crime.

Given so many, a prosecutor (or, in some cases, a defense lawyer) can often eliminate all the panelists of a minority race, leaving only those from the majority. That is obviously unfair.

Goodbye to a downtown landmark

By the time the discount hit 70 percent last week, the merchandise in F.W. Woolworth's on Main Street was nearly gone. The store has been going out of business since mid-October, and offered increasing discounts to clear its stock. In a few days, the fixtures will be gone, and a downtown landmark will be gone.

America's original "five-and-dime" opened here in the late '20s or early '30s (current employees are hazy on the exact opening). It changed locations once, but remained on Main Street downtown. Woolworth's sold fish and hamsters, wall decorations, clothing and bedding. It was an office supply, a record store and center for sewing notions. It had toys and plant supplies, hand tools and kitchen ware. It also had a snack bar.

Dianne Leshner, bookkeeper and cashier for eight years, recalled the snack bar as the lunchtime hangout for downtown workers and shoppers.

"They came mostly from the courthouse and the banks, or they were downtown shoppers, in for a quick lunch," she said. According to Mrs. Leshner, many came to see Hazel Marsh, who cooked those quick lunches for 19 years. The cheeseburger platter was one of the most popular menu items. Hazel quit in August, when it was certain the store would be closing.

Store manager Gary Abney was brought in that month from Duncan, Okla., specifically to handle the store closing. Rumors preceded him, so the announcement didn't come as much of a shock to employees. "They took it pretty well," Abney said. "We offered transfers, but most have families and ties here."

Some of Woolworth's regular customers didn't take it so well. Abney said the most common complaint was "we can't find everything we need in other stores." Since variety and discount stores are common today, the problem probably was more a matter of perception. The customers were used to the way the store packaged its goods; they were familiar with it.

If the store seemed comfortable, it's because every American has grown up with Woolworth's. Its inception is free enterprise, Horatio Alger and a better mousetrap all rolled into one. At 27, immigrant's son Frank Winfield Woolworth opened his "Great Five Cent Store" in Utica, N.Y., in 1879. His first sale was a five-cent coal shovel. The store failed and closed after three months.

The next year Woolworth was back, opening a store stocked with "Yankee Notions" in Lancaster, Pa. The Lancaster store worked. It became the first five-and-dime, and 10 cents was the price limit on merchandise until 1932.

By the turn of the century, there were 59 Woolworth stores. By the store's centennial in 1979 there were 1,900 stores in America, Canada, Germany, Mexico, Spain and Japan. But changes in buying patterns — and active competition from similar merchandisers — halted the growth of the Woolworth empire. Today there are about 1,500 stores. Many of the closings are downtown locations.

Abner and Mrs. Leshner attribute the demise of this store to the closing of Webb Air Force Base, the decline of downtown business with the advent of suburban malls, the devaluation of the peso and the oil boom and bust cycle.

"In 1975-76, we were No. 1 in sales," Mrs. Leshner recalls of her store's competition with others in the district and region. "The walls of the employee lounge were plastered with plaques. There were 60 or 75 of them."

Rumors pegged the store as a candidate for closing as early as two years ago. Still, Mrs. Leshner takes it hard. As she looked at the barren racks and counters, tears welled. "Don't get me started," she said. "I'll miss everything. The people. The customers. It's a part of my life."

"Declaring that he is the candidate who can best solve their problems, the National Association of Insomniacs has endorsed Walter Mondale."

Diary of a 'stoned' hospital patient

DAY 1
I am writing these words with my back arched in the fine form of a New Orleans prostitute about to consummate a deal with a bordello customer.

I am in great pain because I have — in the discreet terminology of my doctor — a stone.

That means a mineral concretion from my kidney deviously made its way to the middle of my ureter, that long, narrow duct connecting my kidney to my bladder. There the stone stopped; thus my cathouse acrobatics.

I have been interned in a medical complex, modern society's euphemism for the Gulag, the Konzentrationslager, the Pits.

DAY 2
My urologist, an Arab who this morning persuaded the hospital dietitian to prepare kosher food for me, says the kidney stone, according to the testimony of his female patients, is more excruciating than labor pains. If this be true, I have given birth 16 times in the last 24 hours.

My days in the urology department here may be numbered, for as I write this atop a shabby hospital bed table listening to Creedence Clearwater Revival on a cassette player and quaffing Gatorade from a styrofoam cup, my esteemed physician is debating whether to pluck "the stone."

DAY 3
Heavy doses of powerful drugs, legal but by no means inexpensive, give brief respite from the agony, allowing my back to straighten for short snatches of sleep; but these peaceful interludes fail to dissuade me from my first impression that my roommate is a psychotic hypochondriac intent on draining my last reservoir of sanity with his incessant pig-like gurgles and giggles.

To describe the food here as anything more than the product of benign neglect would be to perjure myself profusely. The cook's name must be Kafka, for his creation is always of the same substance, only assuming different forms.

I make a great leap of faith in the reality of external appearances when I say I had string beans and cauliflower for dinner. (My roommate loves the stuff.)

QUAINT THE MODERN medical complex ain't. All is white and steel and plastic.

My constant companion during my sojourn here has been a robotic apparatus which Monty Python quite accurately would call "the machine that goes ping." I am attached to it by an Orwellian umbilical cord. I follow it, and it follows me.

I have no idea what this machine does, other than going ping. It pings when I walk. It pings when I sleep. It pings when I go to the bathroom. I'm getting pretty pinged off with it. And so I rest, back arched, to contemplate "the stone," that Sisyphian rock which defies gravity, fluids and intimidation.

It will not move. Here I lie; I can do no other.

DAY 4
Even under oppression, there is justice. I have been released from this medical marketplace, where health is sold as a commodity, to await my fate at home. In one week's time, if the stone does not move, it will be excised.

The Sword of Damocles hangs over my kidney.

DAY 8
Frequent ingestion of pain-killing drugs has altered my personality and distorted my perception of reality. I am talking to myself, addressing me as Your Royal Highness. We are becoming very good friends.

DAY 10
God visited me last night and told me I am the Messiah.

On average, women can expect to outlive men and thus are likely to spend their later years alone. The American Council on Life Insurance says this is because women outnumber men nearly 3-to-2 in the over-65 age group, but by nearly 2-to-1 among those over 75. According to the council, in 1982 50 percent of older women were widows compared with 12 percent of older men.

Class favorites chosen

Ballots have been tallied for Big Spring High School's class favorites after elections were held last week.

Results of the election are: freshman class favorites, Mary Anita Trevino and Carey Fraser; sophomore class favorites, Tracey Kilgore and Dax McCracken; junior class favorites, Julie Miller and Jay Pirkle; and senior class favorites, Kerri Chandler and Robert Porras. Charley Ragan and Kay Pollard were elected Mr. and Miss BSHS.

Congratulations go to Danny Arista on being named to the all-state football team. This is one of the highest honors a high school football player can be awarded.

Paul Blalack placed first alternate on e-flat clarinet, Rachel Tedesco placed first alternate of e-flat alto clarinet, and Amy Cox placed first alternate on the contra-bass clarinet in the Area 5 All-State tryouts held in Odessa recently.

In the Texas All-State Choir tryouts held recently, Jimmy Cowan ranked fourth and Mike Garner made first alternate, Bass I; Chris Harwood ranked third and Don Moore ranked seventh, Bass II; Jaime Sotelo, Tenor I, ranked number one out of all Tenors attending; and Mark Corwin, Tenor II, ranked fifth.

The Multi Media production will be presented on Monday at 9 a.m.

One-act play to be staged

Mrs. Jan Sims has rounded up another talented crew for her one act play this year. The cast will present "Falables" which is a take off on Aesop's fables. The cast includes Herb Crown, Jamie Gustin, Larry Harp, Kerry Rawls, Tonya Booth, Cheryl Bodyston, Kim Henry, Dana Hiltbrunner, Melissa Griffin, Lance Soles, Danielle Clere, Thad Sneed, and Cathy Thurman. The crew members are Tom Cates, David Polendo, and Paula de la Garza. Zone contest for the play will be March 20.

The school was surprised with a video assembly put on by "Campus Life" and sponsored by the Student Council on Tuesday of this week. The background music of popular rock groups left the students humming throughout the day.

Juniors and seniors also participated in a career assembly presented by Bell and Howell on Wednesday.

The varsity teams take on Robert Lee at the Forsan gym on Monday, Jan. 17. The junior varsity teams will also be playing. The games will begin at 4:00 and at the conclusion of these games the varsity will play.

The UIL contenders in speech events attended the speech tournament at Big Spring High School on Saturday, Jan. 14, as observers. Jamie Gustin competed in prose competition. Contenders will have the opportunity to attend the Rankin Tournament of Jan. 28. Entries must be recorded with Mrs. Sims by Wednesday, Jan. 18.

Man wakes up in ocean

HONOLULU (AP) — A man who fell asleep at the wheel of the car he was driving home after a party early Saturday had a soggy awakening when he found himself and the car in the Pacific Ocean.

"I woke up in the water," said Richard Stein, 24. "They (the police) woke me up."

Honolulu police received a call about 5:22 a.m. saying a car had gone into the water off popular Waikiki Beach.

Police say the car had apparently knocked down a metal post holding a chain barrier after failing to make a turn, and later went parallel to the beach for about 50 yards before coming to a stop in shallow water about 20 feet offshore.

A tow truck was summoned to remove the vehicle from the water.

Library adds new books

The Goliad library has added many new books this year. They include all kinds of books that students would be interested in.

One of the new fiction titles is Words by Heart, by Ouida Sebestyen, a story of race relationships. Across Five Aprils by Irene Hunt is a story of young love. A classic tale of great adventure is Treasure Island by Robert Louis Stevenson. Mysterious happenings are found in Mystery of the Vanishing Treasure and The Mystery of Monster Mountain by Robert Arthur.

All kinds of subjects are found in the new nonfiction. Two of the titles are How to Care for Your Dog by Jean Bethell and Favorite Pets: How to Choose and Care for Them, by Rita Vandivert. Also, readers can find books about tennis, the NFL, teams, jokes and riddles, fishing, bicycles, and space.

The new biographies are about such interesting people as Elvin Hayes, Elvis Presley, Debby Boone and Judy Blume.

Americans make private peace missions to Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Ten children from California calling themselves "Teachers of Peace" came to Moscow just after the New Year, the latest in a steady stream of Americans on unofficial missions to preach peace and friendship between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Every year, dozens of such groups turn up here and are warmly received by their official Soviet hosts. Like other foreign visitors, they are shielded from unpleasant sides of Soviet life and kept on a busy program of official and informal meetings, culture and travel. Most leave speaking of their desire to return and meet more peaceful, friendly Soviets.

There is no evidence, however, that the visits have had any success in altering either Soviet or American policy.

The American visitors rarely penetrate the rigid secrecy of Soviet society or break through the carefully rehearsed hospitality they encounter for any free and open discussion that might alter some distorted pictures Soviets have of Americans and their policies.

The best-known American "envoy" so far was Samantha Smith, the 11-year-old Maine girl who visited last July at the invitation of President Yuri V. Andropov.

Samantha had written asking if the Soviets wanted war. After two weeks in the Soviet Union, she said she had an answer: "No, they don't at all." Indeed, she added, Soviets are "almost just like Americans."

To the Soviet Union, constantly concerned with its image, such praise for peaceful intentions or its way of life from any American or other foreigner, adult or child, is important and worth extending considerable effort to gain.

Hence the troupes of children speaking English, performing dances and singing songs or simply playing in ideal settings wherever Samantha went. Hence the 17 boxes of gifts and film-star treatment showered upon her.

Hence, too, the turnout of Soviet children for the 10 Californians, who left Jan. 7.

At least one girl who spoke at a meeting with the 10 children Jan. 4 had also been presented to Samantha, impressing the Americans with her English as she went through a routine welcome speech.

In reply to the Soviet welcomes, the more spontaneous Californian children explained their mission.

"We need to get to know and trust each other," said Lisa Grant, 10, of Danville, Calif.

Added Keita Grant (no relation), 13, of Orinda, Calif., "I'm here on these peace missions to help create peace and help world leaders to understand that peace is important."

The Soviets do not quarrel with such sentiments. As they never fail to remind foreigners, they lost 20 million people in World War II and have a genuine fear of a new war.

But current Soviet propaganda talks repeatedly about the danger of a new conflict and singles out the United States as the source of the danger. What Westerners here see as a new belligerence in Soviet policy rarely surfaces in the meetings between the American goodwill missions and their Soviet hosts.

Instead, the Americans often express surprise in discovering a fear of war among Soviets.

Virginia Higgins, a recent visitor from a New England group building "Bridges for Peace," blamed ignorance fostered by what she claimed to be poor media reporting for "a 20-year timelag between the Soviet Union and what Soviet society is today."

The "Bridges for Peace" missionaries were returning a visit last spring to New England by a group of Soviets. Clinton Gardner of Vermont said that the Soviets toured all over New England and "were able to convince their audiences that Soviet citizens were not turned out by computer and are not all alike."

Soviets who travel abroad in this way are handpicked by Communist authorities; tens of thousands of others who would like to go abroad for vacations or to emigrate cannot.

Unpleasantly, however, Gardner said that when he spoke to a factory peace meeting in Volgograd (formerly Stalingrad), he addressed "very harsh," "offensive" and "entirely one-sided" criticism of U.S. foreign policy.

A.: Your broker will help you gather the information needed to complete the listing agreement. However, there is certain basic information included in most listings. You will need a detailed description of the property to be sold. This usually requires a complete legal description of the property including location, etc., which your broker will know how to get. Also included will be price you are asking for the property, the terms of the sale, the commission to be paid, the expiration date of the listing agreement and the signature of the person who agrees to pay the commission.

Coffey at summit of second straight Super Bowl contest

Editor's Note: Former Herald sports editor Nathan Pess spent the weekend of the NFC title game between Washington and San Francisco as the guest of former Big Spring High School and Southwest Texas State University standout Kenneth Coffey. He had a chance to gain a little insight on the former Steer and his feelings about the upcoming Super Bowl against the Raiders.

By Nathan Pess

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Six years ago, when a Southwest Conference assistant coach visited Big Spring to look at films on Kenneth Coffey, he was told by the then-Big Spring High football coach no players at the school were worthy of major college consideration. Some insiders thought that was the coach's excuse for a 1-8-1 record. Others felt it was Coffey's somewhat low-key personality. He isn't the rah-rah type, a showboat or a vocal leader.

Coffey ended up at Tyler Junior College and then helped lead Southwest Texas State to the Division II national football championship in December 1981.

He's still low-key and mild-mannered, remarkable because when the defending world champion Washington Redskins line up in Super Bowl XVIII against the Los Angeles Raiders, the ex-Big Spring Steer will be the starting strong safety.

His success and his attitude aren't surprising, because I've known him since his high days. But his attitude is still a little strange, too, especially after I stayed at his suburban Virginia residence the last weekend. No doubt Coffey felt some inner tension from the time he picked me up Friday to the time he reported to RFK Stadium early Sunday morning, a RFK Stadium that was beginning to hop as soon as the gates opened at 10 a.m. in sub-freezing temperatures.

But Kenneth still played the perfect host, not seeming the least bit uptight as most persons might have been. In fact, his fiancée Brenda said she was certain she was more nervous about the NFC title game with the 49ers than Kenneth was.

Kenneth did get excited one time during the weekend, about the game, I think. When he was at Redskins defensive tackle Daryl Grant's home. (Ironically, Coffey is buying a townhouse near Grant.)

Grant wasn't low-key when we discussed the game. "I want to win this game so badly tomorrow," Grant said intensely. "We can't come this far, have such a great year, and lose now. We've got to take it to them early and get some points on the board. I know Joe (Theisman) will be ready. He's got such an ego, and this is a battle with Notre Dame quarterbacks, with he and Montana.

"Besides, after going to the Super Bowl and winning last year, I don't know what I'd do if we couldn't go back. It's a great feeling," Grant said, his voice rising.

"I'm hip," Coffey said, lazily rolling over from his spot on the carpeted floor. That was as excited as Coffey seemed to get.

But I sensed his coolness is probably what has gotten him this far. Like the rest of the Redskins, they seem to have a great sense of perspective. They obviously have confidence, but not arrogance. In both Coffey's case and in the Redskins', that seems to be a key.

And for the ex-Steer and Obie Bristow Award-winner as ESHS' outstanding athlete in 1978, Coffey had the key, a cool head concerning the complicated 49er offense.

"They do so many things out of so many sets that it's been hard for us to get a defensive game plan," he said

Friday night. "With most teams, you pretty well know what they're going to do. Even with the Cowboys, because we play them so often. But with the 49ers, you can't tell. Walsh is not the genius that people like to say he is, but their offense is still hard to prepare for."

But for three quarters Sunday afternoon, the 49ers were scoreless, with the Redskins holding a seemingly comfortable 21-0 lead. In the wild RFK Stadium, the vendors began the game selling "Hog Beer." It changed to "Championship Beer," and then to "Super Bowl Beer." But with the game suddenly tied at 21 and just under seven minutes remaining, it was quietly sold as "beer."

But that's when the Redskins pulled it out, relying on a couple of bruising runs by the team's No. 1 character, John Riggins, a great catch by Art Monk, and a pair of pass interference penalties that still anger the 49ers. And of course, Mark Moseley's field goal.

That win gives the Redskins a chance to join the immortal likes of the Packers of the late 60s, the Dolphins of the early 70s, and two Steelers' teams of the 70s as the only teams ever to win back-to-back Super Bowls.

That's something that even the soft-spoken, but talented 190-pound strong safety for Coach Joe Gibbs' team finds hard to believe.

"You know," Kenneth said, "people around here are tripping out, comparing us to those great teams like the Dolphins and Steelers. I guess it's because I'm here, and I see some of the mistakes that we make, and some of the things that I do wrong, that it's hard for me to compare and relate us to those teams."

"But this is such a tight team. I've never been around any group that is so tight and gets along so well with each other, that it's hard to explain," he said. "I know that has something to do with our success."

Sunday after the game, Coffey was relieved. "They went through every formation and play we'd seen since training camp," Coffey said, at a restaurant the Redskins frequent after their wins. "It (the 49er offense) was unbelievable. I have never seen anything like it."

Free safety Mike Murphy came up to Coffey at the restaurant, and asked him, "Kenneth, did you have any mental errors out there today?"

Coffey returned the question.

"No," Murphy said, with a snicker, "because I called the defenses."

After dinner, the conversation shifted to the team's second trip to the Super Bowl. "I really just feel like I did when we won the Nationals at Southwest," Coffey said.

He began talking about the upcoming Super Bowl with the Raiders, and the Big Spring native finally became animated.

"I'm looking forward to it, I've got to admit," Coffey said, with a grin of excitement. "Last year's Super Bowl was a trip, with everything that goes into it. And the Raiders are wild, man. They are really a wild and crazy bunch."

As each Redskin and his entourage left the restaurant, the packed dining room audience cheered. Moments later, Kenneth led our group down the street in Georgetown toward our parking lot. We watched as people hung out of cars, teenagers stopped traffic and imitated the "Fun Bunch," stangers kissed, and nobody seemed to have a bit of sanity. The scene looked like Mardi Gras.

"Hey, Coff, just think, it's all your fault," I said. He turned and winked. "What can I say?"

Some people never change.

Cougars hold off Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Seven-foot center Akeem Oluajun scored 27 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and blocked 10 shots but seventh-ranked Houston still had to scramble to earn a 70-64 Southwest Conference win over Texas A&M Saturday night.

Down by 11 points with 4:30 left, the Aggies excited a home crowd of 7,086 with a charge that cut the margin to three points four different times, the last at 67-64 with 25 seconds left. But Richie Winslow made a slam-dunk and Oluajun hit a free throw to seal the win.

It was the 29th straight Southwest Conference regular-season win for Houston, which now has a 5-0 record in league play and 15-2 overall. A&M fell to 2-2 in SWC play and 8-6 overall.

The first half was a tight battle as Houston led by six points twice at 10-4 and 30-24. It ended with the Cougars in front 30-27.

half points to spark the Rice Owls to a 63-49 victory over the Texas Longhorns in a Southwest Conference game Saturday afternoon.

The Owls led 20-18 at halftime and Barnett scored nine points in the first eight minutes of the second half to give the Owls a 12-point lead.

Texas never got closer than nine after that. The Owls won their second straight SWC game.

Tracy Steele had 13 points for Rice as the Owls proved their record to 6-7 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

Texas, 2-10 and 0-3, was led by Carlton Cooper's 13 points and 13 rebounds and Marcus Bolden with 10 points.

Rice moved ahead early, leading 14-6 with 12:32 left in the first half. The Longhorns battled back behind the shooting of Raynard Davis to pull within two at the half.

Barnett, the Owls' leading scorer with a 10.3 average, was also the game's top rebounder. He got 18 points and 15 rebounds.

Perkins lead N.C. over Demons

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Sam Perkins scored 17 points to spark top-ranked North Carolina to a 70-62 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over No. 12 Wake Forest Saturday.

The victory extended the unbeaten Tar Heels' winning streak to 12 games and raised their conference mark to 3-0.

With North Carolina trailing 32-27 at intermission, Matt Doherty scored four points and Perkins added a hook to give the Tar Heels a 33-32 edge with 18:29 left. The teams exchanged baskets and Wake Forest tied the score on a free throw by Danny Young.

Michael Jordan broke a 37-37 tie with two free throws and the Tar Heels led the rest of the way.

Perkins added 11 rebounds to his performance. North Carolina, which shot 65.4 percent from the field in the second half and 56.6 percent overall, got 15 points from Jordan, 13 from Doherty and 10 from freshman Kenny Smith, all in the second half.

Oregon 62, No. 6 UCLA 51

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Blair Rasmussen, Oregon's 7-foot center, scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half Saturday as the Ducks stunned sixth-ranked UCLA 62-51 in a Pacific 10 Conference basketball game.

It was Oregon's first victory over the Bruins in seven years. UCLA had won 12 consecutive games in the series. Oregon improved its record to 8-6 overall and 3-1 in the conference.

The game was tied at 45 with just under six minutes to play on a rebound basket by UCLA's Gary Maloncon. But Oregon scored the next 10 points, six by Rasmussen, for a 55-45 advantage with 1½ minutes left.

The Bruins, 10-2 overall and 3-1 in the Pac-10, scored the game's first eight points for their biggest lead.

Despite cold shooting, the Ducks managed to rally within 26-25 by halftime. UCLA rebuilt a 36-29 lead five minutes into the second half before Rasmussen, a junior, got hot. At one point, he scored 10 straight Oregon points.

Guard Chris Harper added 16 for the Ducks, 12 in the second half. Guard Ralph Jackson topped UCLA with 16 and Kenny Fields added 10.

No. 3 DePaul 98, UAB 63

CHICAGO (AP) — Tyrone Corbin scored a career-high 25 points and Kevin Holmes added 17 Saturday to carry No. 3 DePaul to a 98-63 thrashing of Alabama-Birmingham in college basketball.

Freshman sensation Dallas Conegys added 16 points for DePaul, 13-0 and one of only four NCAA Division I teams still unbeaten. The Blazers dropped to 14-3.

The Blue Demons took advantage of several UAB turnovers and poor shot selection to run roughshod over the visitors from the outset. DePaul opened up a 13-6 advantage after nearly nine minutes in the first half while the Blazers made just three out of 13 shots from the field. In the remainder of the first half, DePaul outgunned UAB 33-20 for a 45-26 lead at intermission.

The Blue Demons continued to control the ball and dominate play in the second half, reeling off a 13-2 scoring streak in a seven-minute stretch to move ahead 75-45 with seven minutes remaining.

Jerry McMillan and Tony Jackson added 10 points apiece for DePaul.

McKinley Singleton led the Blazers with a career-high 24 points, and Marvin Ray Jackson added 12.

No. 5 Maryland 81, Duke 75

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Len Bias scored 17 points to lead a strong inside attack as fifth-ranked Maryland defeated Duke 81-75 in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday.

Duke, which trailed by as many as 10 points in the first half, went ahead briefly midway through the final period. The Blue Devils' man-to-man defense forced three Terrapin turnovers which helped Duke build a 58-55 lead with 12:06 remaining.

Maryland retook command, scoring eight unanswered points behind the front-line play of Bias and 6-foot-9 center Ben Coleman.

Several short scoring bursts brought Duke to within one point with four minutes left. But Duke resorted to fouling, and Maryland preserved its lead by hitting six of eight free throws in the final two minutes.

Guards Jeff Adkins and Adrian Branch scored 14 points apiece for the Terps, who improved to 11-2 and 2-1 in the ACC.

David Henderson came off the bench to lead Duke with 19 points, including the last eight of the first half, bringing the Blue Devils to within 41-36 at intermission. Mark Alarie added 16 points.

ACC scoring leader Johnny Dawkins made four of 18 from the field and finished with 12 points for Duke, which fell to 14-2 and 1-1.

No. 18 Boston College 69, No. 10 St. John's 67

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Guard Michael Adams, held to just two points in the first half, tossed in eight straight free throws including two with four seconds remaining Saturday to give 18th-ranked Boston College a 69-67 basketball upset victory over 10th-ranked St. John's.

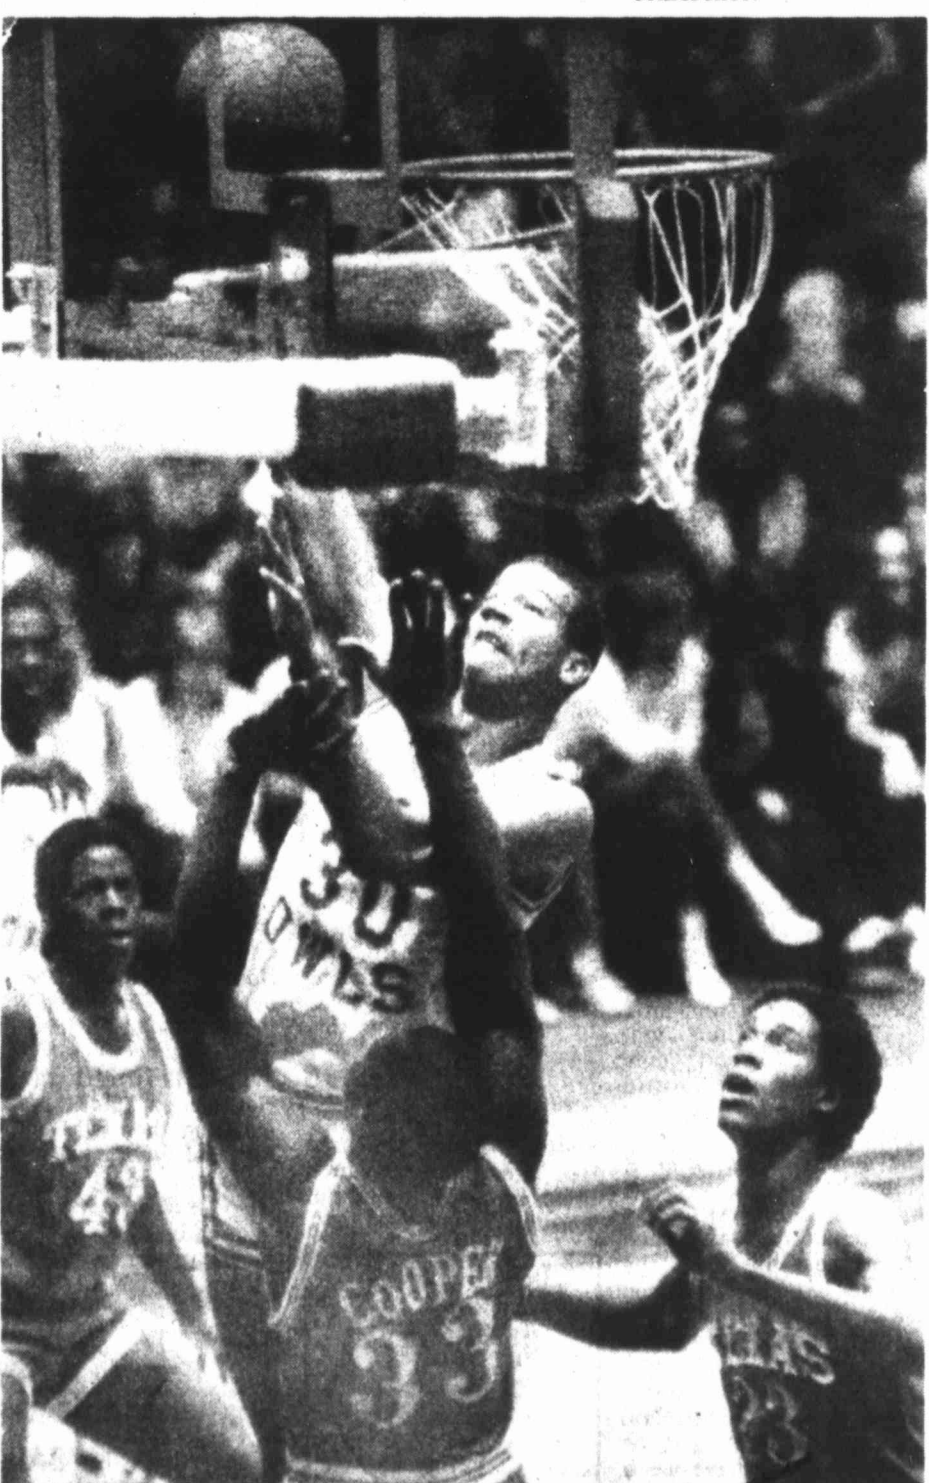

The Eagles broke a three-game St. John's winning streak and handed the visitors their second loss in 13 games.

Adams' free throws with four seconds left proved to be the winning margin as St. John's scoring leader Chris Mullin hit for a basket at the buzzer to give him a game high of 25 points.

Roger McCready, moved to center by the Eagles for the Big East contest, responded with 18 points, while regular scoring leaders Jay Murphy and Adams collected 14 each for the winner.

St. John's built a 33-28 first-half lead but the Eagles went on a 12-4 spurt to start the second half and took charge of the game with a run of nine straight points midway in the period.

But foul shots made the difference. The Eagles were held to only one basket — a McCready layup — in the final eight minutes of play.

HIGH SCORER — Rice Owls forward Tony Barnett (30) goes up to score two of his game-high 18 points in leading his team to a Southwest Conference victory over the University of Texas Saturday afternoon at Autry Court. Texas defenders Carlton Cooper (33) and Marcus Bolden (23) can't stop the score.

Coahoma wins two

OSONA — The Coahoma boys and girls both came away with victories in district 6-3A action Friday night.

The Coahoma girls gained their first district win with a 54-44 victory. The Bulldogettes had a balanced scoring attack in their win with all nine players getting into the scoring column.

Coahoma took a 16-5 first quarter lead, stretched it to 36-22 at the half, and cruised in with the win. Sophomore post player Leslie Kirkpatrick led the charge with 14 points, guards Jana Griffin and Tobie Henry scored 9 each and Shana Fowler added eight points.

The win ups the Bulldogettes' record to 1-2 in district and 10-9 for the season.

In the junior varsity game, Ozona nipped Coahoma by a 30-26 count.

The Coahoma boys won their district opener over Ozona by a count of 70-51, behind the 1-2 scoring punch of John Swinney and Robbie Phernetton.

Swinney led the scoring with 23 points and Phernetton followed closely with 21. Post player James Sanders chipped in 14. Coahoma coach Larry Baer credited Donald Ewing with having a fine defensive game.

The wins ups Coahoma's season record to 12-6.

In the junior varsity contest, Ozona downed the Bulldogs 63-46.

Coahoma's next contest will be Tuesday versus Colorado City in Coahoma.

win own tourney

Coach Susan Sharp's Lady Steers freshmen team walked away with first place in their own tournament conducted this weekend at Steer Gym.

In the opening round the Lady Steers defeated Brownfield by a score of 62-34. Lynnette Smith led the scoring with 17 points while Paula Jolley added 16. Rose Freitag and Lisa Hale chipped in six points each.

The Lady Steers had another easy time in the second round as they drummed Andrews 55-31.

Connie Swinney and Yo Green led the scoring with 14 and 12 points respectively. Sonya Evans and Smith added eight each and Shelia Chatman tallied seven points.

The Lady Steers got sweet revenge in the championship game with their 31-29 victory over Sweetwater.

It marked the first time in the freshmen's careers that they had defeated Sweetwater. Jolly and Smith led the scoring with 10 and nine points respectively, while Evans added four points.

The wins ups the Lady Steers' record to 7-4 for the season. Their next contest will be Monday at 6 p.m. versus Lamesa in Lamesa. On Friday they will participate in the Sweetwater tournament.

LENDI DEFENDS MASTERS TOURNAMENT — Ivan Lendl returns one against Jimmy Connors during tennis action from the $400,000 Volvo Masters Tennis Tournament Saturday at Madison Square Garden. Lendl defeated Connors and will meet John McEnroe in the finals.

Lendl advances to Volvo tennis final

NEW YORK (AP) — Defending champion Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and 1983 Wimbledon winner John McEnroe moved into the final of the $400,000 Volvo Masters tennis championships for the second consecutive year.

Lendl, who is making his fourth straight trip to the title match in this season-ending Volvo Grand Prix event and looking for his third consecutive crown, defeated Jimmy Connors 6-3, 6-4, while McEnroe routed top-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden 6-2, 6-4.

The winner of Sunday's best-of-five-sets final, which will be nationally televised by NBC, beginning at 12:30 p.m. EST, will pocket $100,000. The runner-up will collect $60,000.

Lendl roared through the opening five games of the match, his booming serve and rocketing groundstrokes simply overwhelming Connors. Before the stunned crowd could barely get seated, Lendl had a 5-0 lead.

Connors, the street battler, was getting mugged in his own territory.

The crowd came alive when Connors held service at love in the sixth game. They cheered when Connors swept the next four points to break Lendl. And when he held serve at 30 in the eighth game to pull to within 5-3, he received a standing ovation.

Connors, who has won the last two U.S. Opens and has an on-going love affair with New York fans, thrilled the crowd when he closed in on another break, taking a 15-40 lead.

But Lendl, who has been the victim both years in the final of America's premier tennis tournament, hushed the crowd and Connors' momentum when he ripped a backhand passing shot cross-court, slammed a winning forehand into the corner, powered his second ace of the match, then closed out the game and first set with a service winner.

Connors held serve to begin the second set, at 30. Lendl needed only four points to pull even.

Then, in a 16-point game, Lendl broke Connors' service to take an advantage he would never relinquish. Connors fought off four break points, but on the fifth, the Czech right-hander closed it out with a backhand cross-court volley.

Lendl then held service the rest of the way to advance into the final and another meeting against the 24-year-old McEnroe, whom he defeated in straight sets here last year.

Outlaws hire defensive coaches

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Outlaws of the United States Football League have announced the hiring of two defensive coaches.

Jim Johnson, an assistant at Notre Dame, has been named defensive coordinator, and Ralph Staub, an assistant for the Houston Oilers, has been hired as defensive line coach.

Outlaws Coach Woody Widenhofer, whose coaching staff now stands at six, said he expects to hire two more coaches for the expansion club.

Johnson, who also will coach the secondary, was Widenhofer's roommate when both played football at the University of Missouri from 1960 to 1962.

Widenhofer was the longtime defensive coordinator of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League before he was hired as the Outlaws' first coach last week.

RETAINS CROWN — With his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lenny Mancini, in the ring, WBA Champ Ray Mancini raises his arms in victory after knocking out Bobby Chacon in the third round of their championship fight where Mancini retained his crown.

Mancini halts Chacon in three

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Bobby Chacon says he was just warming up, but Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini said the blood flowing into Chacon's left eye made the outcome of Saturday night's fight a foregone conclusion.

"Bobby's eye was all chopped up — I think his own corner might have even stepped it. The blood was dripping in his eye," Mancini said after referee Richard Steele stopped the fight at 1:17 of the third round.

Mancini, who had Chacon on the ropes and was swarming all over him when Steele looped in to stop the bout, said Chacon couldn't have taken many more punches.

"He was standing there, yeah, but I don't know how many more of those shots he could stand," the World Boxing Association lightweight champion said. "It was just a matter of time. I knew it."

Steele's decision to stop the fight infuriated the pro-Chacon crowd on the University of Nevada-Reno campus, which rained cups of beer into the ring.

The 32-year-old Chacon agreed with his supporters that it should have gone on. "I was just starting to fight. It takes me a while," Chacon said. "I'm not a young kid that can come out right away and bang like a 22-year-old."

But Chacon, his left eye swollen shut after the fight and with cuts above and below the eye said he understood the referee's decision.

"Richard didn't want me to get hurt. He's just trying to protect the fighter. So many bad things have happened. I don't blame him."

Chacon said the fight probably wouldn't have gone another round anyway, because his cut man, Jim Ponce, would have moved to stop it himself.

"Jim said he was going to stop it the next round (because of the cuts)," the former two-time champion said.

Chacon, who began boxing professionally in 1972 and has posted 52 victories in his 60-bout career, said before the fight that he would probably have one or two more contests before retiring. After taking a beating at the hands of Mancini, he said his future is up in the air.

Rockets too much for Kings

HOUSTON (AP) — Lewis Lloyd scored 33 points and Ralph Sampson 30 as the Houston Rockets broke a three-game losing streak with a 109-104 victory over the Kansas City Kings Saturday night in a National Basketball Association game.

James Bailey hit three free throws and a layup to break an 89-89 tie and put Houston ahead for good, 94-89, lead with 7:39 left. Eddie Johnson's 12-foot baseline jumper with 56 seconds left cut the Rockets' lead to 104-102, but Lloyd's 15-footer with 28 seconds to go iced the game.

The triumph gave Houston a 14-25 mark, equaling their win output for last year, when the Rockets compiled the NBA's second worst record ever at 14-68.

Padres' owner dies of heart failure at 81

OAK BROK, Ill. (AP) — Ray Kroc, who built McDonald's Corp. into a fast-food empire after buying the franchise for a California hamburger stand, died Saturday in San Diego at the age of 81.

Kroc, who also owned the San Diego Padres baseball team, died at 8:30 a.m. PST of heart failure in Scripps Memorial Hospital, said Dick Starman, vice president of corporate communications for McDonald's.

Kroc suffered a stroke on Dec. 23, 1979. He said his required medication was "incompatible with the use of alcohol" and as part of his treatment he entered an alcohol rehabilitation center.

Erving leads in All-Star votes

NEW YORK (AP) — Center Moses Malone of the Philadelphia 76ers attracted a record number of votes to head the starters for the National Basketball Association's 34th All-Star Game, the league announced Saturday.

The 6-foot-10 Malone drew 927,779 votes from more than 2.5 million cast by fans. The league's most valuable player last season when he led the 76ers to the championship, Malone is averaging 23.3 points and 14.1 rebounds this season.

Joining Malone on the East starting team are forwards Julius Erving of the 76ers and Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics, and guards Sidney Moncrief of the Milwaukee Bucks and Isiah Thomas of the Detroit Pistons.

For the West, the fans chose Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers at center, Alex English of the Denver Nuggets and Adrian Dantley of the Utah Jazz at forward, and guards George Gervin of the San Antonio Spurs and Magic Johnson of the Lakers, the top vote-getter in the West.

K.C. Jones of Boston will coach the East squad for the contest, to be held Jan. 29 in Denver. The West will be coached by Pat Riley of Los Angeles or Frank Layden of Utah, depending on which team has the better record following Sunday's games. If Los Angeles and Utah have the same record, Layden will be the coach because Riley coached the West last year and Layden never has served as All-Star coach, the NBA said.

The remaining players on the 12-man squads will be chosen by the coaches in each conference and will be announced at a later date.

In the balloting sponsored by Miller High Life, a record 2,569,336 votes were cast, breaking the previous mark of 2,104,605 last year.

Malone topped the previous individual high of 707,012 set by Erving last season. Johnson and Erving also surpassed that mark this year.

Malone far outdistanced the East centers. Atlanta's Tree Rollins was the runner-up with 264,448 votes.

Erving, the leading vote-getter among East forwards with 779,932, gained his eighth All-Star starting berth. He has averaged 20.7 points in his seven All-Star appearances and was named the game's MVP last year.

Bird received 574,926 votes to beat out Detroit's Kelly Tripucka (390,881) for the second forward spot.

Moncrief, who will be making his first All-Star start, led the East backcourtmen with 574,926 votes, while Thomas (527,370) became an All-Star starter in each of his three pro seasons, beating out Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks (392,667).

Johnson, who missed a month of the current season because of an injured finger and is averaging 18.6 points, 14.5 assists and 7.9 rebounds, paced the West with 788,954 votes. Gervin received 648,607 votes, beating out Utah's Rickey Green, who was next with 418,050.

Abdul-Jabbar, heading for his record-tying 13th All-Star appearance and 11th start, beat out rookie Ralph Sampson of the Houston Rockets in the closest contest. Abdul-Jabbar received 459,088 votes to 457,271 for Sampson.

English, last year's NBA scoring leader, drew 510,853 votes, and Dantley, the current top NBA scorer, received 422,060 votes. Kiki Vandeweghe of Denver finished third with 398,372.

The East won last year's game 132-123 for its fourth straight victory and an overall 22-11 lead in the series.

South takes one point decision

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Defensive tackle Doug Smith of Auburn said the South "just played ball and had fun" in the 35th Senior Bowl football game Saturday.

Smith and his defensive cohorts had the most fun, shutting down a North attack by intercepting four passes and coming up with a blocked extra point that preserved the Rebels' 21-20 victory and lifted their series lead to 17-15-3.

"Everything we did on defense was basic," said Smith, who won an automobile after being named the game's top defensive performer. He was in on nine tackles and broke up two passes.

"The second half they got real tough," Smith said of a North squad that rallied from a 21-7 intermission deficit. The North had a late drive stalled by a 15-yard penalty and then ended by the second interception of the game by Tony Lilly of Florida.

All members of the South squad received $2,500 in their professional debut and the North players each received $2,250.

Walter Lewis of Alabama was named the game's outstanding offensive player and also won a new automobile. He passed nine yards for one touchdown, which he set up with a 59-yard run.

Four other players received an additional $1,500 for being named their team's outstanding offensive and defensive players — Kevin Baugh of Penn State and Jackie Shipp of Oklahoma for the North and Louis Lipa of Southern Mississippi and Wilbur Marshall of Florida for the South.

Lewis said he hoped he made enough impression to be drafted as a quarterback, rather than as a running back.

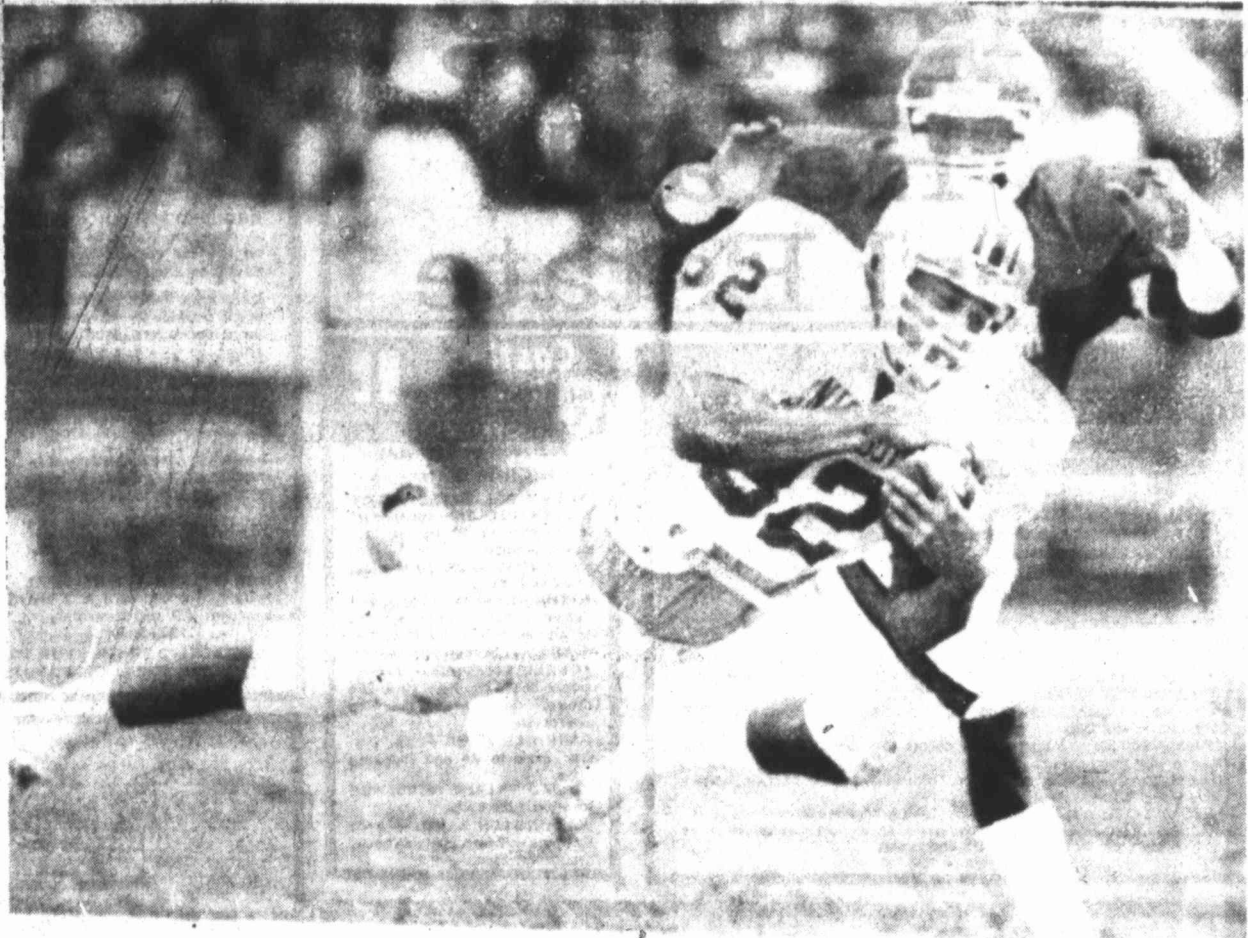

"I've been a quarterback all my life," Lewis said. "I'd like to throw for a lot of yardage in a game and maybe for 3,000 yards in a year."

"We just wanted to come out and play as good as we could," Shipp said, adding that the coaching strategy gave him more opportunity to roam freely, resulting in his four unassisted tackles.

"We were shocked a little bit early in the beginning, but the TDs were not that hard to overcome," Baugh said.

"The last drive we were in perfect position to win," Baugh said. "It's too bad the penalty took us out of range, but we came back and showed what kind of football players we are."

The North drove to the South 28 in the final minute, drew a 15-yard penalty for blocking below the belt, and then Lilly claimed his second interception with 18 seconds to seal the victory.

FIRST DOWN CATCH — North squad's Don Kern (82) of Arizona State dives for a first down catch in the second quarter of the Senior Bowl Saturday. Defending is South's Darryl Jones of Georgia. The South won the contest, 21-20.

Sauna blaze sweeps 10-story structure

Hotel fire kills 37 in S. Korea; 75 injured

SEOUL (AP) — A fire that started in a sauna swept through a 10-story tourist hotel in the southern port city of Pusan on Saturday killing 37 people and injuring 75, police said.

Military helicopters lifted some people from the roof but others plunged to their deaths while trying to escape the flames.

Authorities said they believed an overheated kerosene stove in the sauna of the Daea hotel started the blaze.

Sixty-eight pieces of firefighting equipment, including eight ladder trucks, battled the fire and aided in the rescue work. Some firefighters came from U.S. military units stationed in the Pusan area.

South Korean military helicopters were credited with saving at least 18 people. But reports from the site said one man died when he plunged from a line lowered by a helicopter.

The Joong-Ang daily in Pusan said some guests trapped in rooms on the upper floors died when they tried to leap to the roofs of adjacent shorter buildings or fell from makeshift ropes of sheets and blankets tied together.

A Pusan fire department statement said 19 men and 18 women died in the blaze or from injuries. Eight of the victims died Sunday at hospitals.

Police listed three Japanese among the identified fatalities. Reports said nine Japanese and three people from Taiwan were the only foreigners registered at the hotel.

The Yonhap news agency reported Saturday night that 18 bodies had been identified, including the leader of the hotel band and two other hotel employees.

Pusan authorities said an investigation into the fire was continuing, but that it was "presumed" it started in a kerosene stove in the fourth-floor sauna and health club facilities.

Witnesses said a small explosion was heard in the sauna area shortly before flames erupted and swept through the upper floors.

Authorities said 103 people had been registered at the hotel, and about 40 employees were in the building when the fire broke out. They said another undetermined number, perhaps about 70, were in the sauna-health club.

It was the third-worst hotel fire in South Korea's history. A 1974 fire in Seoul killed 165 people in the world's worst hotel blaze, and 88 people died in a fire at a Seoul hotel nightclub in 1971.

Virus strikes Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A viral infection, possibly the flu, forced more than 700 students out of Anchorage schools, and officials say the entire Anchorage area eventually may be affected.

"There's some evidence the virus is spreading," said state epidemiologist John Middaugh. "It's very probable this virus may spread throughout the entire Anchorage area. I really think that what we're seeing is the onset of a major outbreak."

It will be a week to 10 days before lab tests identify the virus, Middaugh said. But it's unlikely the illnesses were caused by contaminated food or water.

"It's an explosive outbreak. It's definitely a viral infection. An educated guess is that it's influenza," he said.

On Friday, the bug struck almost half the students at Romig Junior High School. The day began with 307 of the school's 750 students absent.

An additional 35 became ill during the day and were sent home.

More than 300 of West High's 1,800 students were ill Friday. And a quarter of the student body at Northwood Elementary was stricken.

Snow storm hits Central U.S.

By The Associated Press

Snow fell Saturday over much of the nation, with high winds in the central Rockies and freezing rain spreading across the central Atlantic Coast.

A winter storm warning was issued for western Kansas and travelers' advisories were posted over eastern Utah, central and southern Wyoming, Colorado, northern New Mexico and western Nebraska.

A travelers' advisory for snow and icy roads was also issued for the central mountains of Arizona, and 2 to 4 inches of snow were forecast in northeast Illinois and northwest Indiana. More than a foot of snow fell in the Colorado Rockies, winds up to 75 mph struck parts of Utah and temperatures fell below zero in the northern Plains.

Snow showers extended Saturday from New England through the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes, also scattered over lower Michigan and Minnesota.

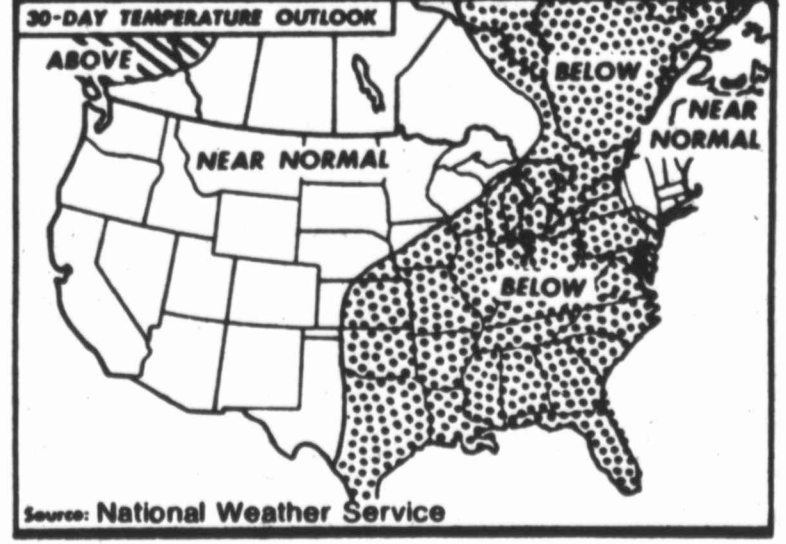

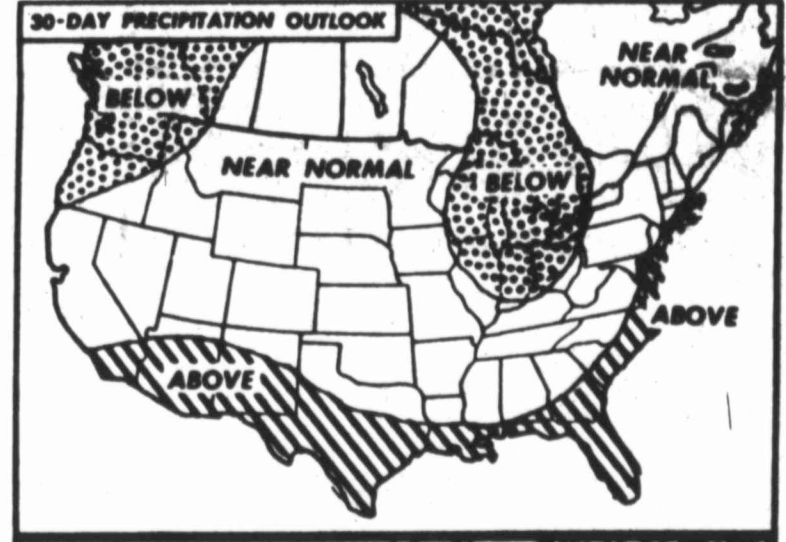

Heavier snow reached from North Dakota across western Kansas into the Texas panhandle, across Nevada, and from Idaho and Montana through central New Mexico and Arizona.

Snow changed to freezing rain along the central Atlantic Coast, causing hundreds of traffic accidents. Light rain spread across southeast Texas and much of Louisiana.

Sunday's forecast called for snow from western Illinois across Missouri, eastern Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota, also scattered from eastern Kentucky into southern West Virginia.

Freezing rain was predicted across much of Arkansas, changing to rain from southeast Texas across Louisiana and southern Mississippi. Rain was forecast for northern California, changing to snow over Nevada, western Utah and southern Oregon and Idaho.

High temperatures were expected Sunday in the teens and 20s from the northern plateau across the northern Rockies, the Plains from Oklahoma through the Dakotas, and the northern Mississippi Valley, Great Lakes, Ohio Valley and northern Atlantic Coast. The mercury was expected to reach near 40 over the Pacific Northwest; hit the 50s across southern Texas; near 60 along the Southern California coast; 60s through the inland Southwest; and the mid 70s over southern Florida.

Temperatures around the nation Saturday at 2 p.m. EST ranged from 9 below zero at Havre, Mont., to 76 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Miami.

Police raid neo-Nazis at tavern in Frankfurt

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Police arrested 43 alleged members of a banned neo-Nazi group in a raid Saturday at a tavern on the outskirts of Frankfurt.

Some of those arrested were only 14 or 15 years old and were released immediately, police said.

They identified the leaders of the group as Thomas Brehl and Peter Mueller and said they belong to the Action Front National Socialists-National Activists. That organization is led by Michael Kuehnen, a former army lieutenant who claims to be the successor of Adolf Hitler. Kuehnen was not among those arrested, police said.

During the raid, police confiscated leaflets that they said showed the group planned to continue its activities despite a ban on the 270-member organization issued last month by Interior Minister Friedrich Zimmermann.

Closed-captioned television

By RHONDA WITT
Lifestyle Writer

Captioning on television and movies keeps hearing-impaired people informed as to what is happening in the world.

"If they didn't have it (captioning), they wouldn't know what was going on (in the program)," says Carla Relaford, media coordinator at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. "It provides entertainment that wasn't available before, and opens up opportunities for the hearing impaired."

As an example, Mrs. Relaford used the movie, "Winds of War," to demonstrate how captioning works. A scene shows military officers walking up some stairs as the narrator talked. Without captions, the hearing-impaired only see the marching men. They don't know what the narrator is saying.

During the show, the captions are placed directly below the person talking so the hearing impaired doesn't have to search to see who is speaking.

"CAPTIONING IS A very long process which is expensive and time consuming," Mrs. Relaford said. When someone decides to caption a program they must first get the script. Once they decide what can be understood, they adapt the script to fit the audience.

"If you have too many words going across (the screen) it can be difficult to read," she said. Most closed-captioned programs are edited to a reading rate of about 120 words per minute.

Next, someone types all the script into a character generator. After the script is typed, the captions are fitted to the film. "It takes someone with a great deal of talent to do this,"

she said. "Most TV networks use computers and stop frame by frame to put the captions in."

"For every 30 minute show, it takes approximately 50 manhours to put it in captioned form. That is why you don't see many shows captioned, because of the time and expense involved."

Three types of captioning exists: open captioning, closed captioning, and real-time captioning. Open caption, which is seen by everyone, includes subtitles in foreign films, weather bulletins, and sport scores. Open captions can be disturbing to hearing people because they have to concentrate on reading and watching, says Denver Dolman, who works with open captioning at SWCID.

Open captioning can be done at SWCID; however, the facility doesn't have the ability to do closed captioning because it don't have an encoder.

CLOSED CAPTIONING is used to inform the hearing impaired as to what is happening on television. To view closed caption, a person must have a closed-captioned decoder. The decoder picks up the electronic waves of Line 21 signal which has the captions in it. "The closed caption is a signal that comes through vertical interval control pulses that hold the picture together," said Glen Vargas, an engineer at KMID-TV.

Sears Roebucks sells the closed-captioned decoder for $279 and the 19-inch colored television with the built-in decoder for $400. RCA recently began making closed-captioned videocassettes.

Real-time captioning is a closed caption that is put on the screen as the live event is happening. Real-time captioning became a reality in 1982 when it was used for the acceptance speeches at the 54th Annual Academy Awards Presentation. On Oct. 11, 1982, a nationally televised program, ABC's World News Tonight, was closed-captioned as it occurred. The program is now real-time captioned nightly.

ABC IS THE forerunner in closed captioning, Mrs. Relaford said. PBS has shown Captioned ABC News, which has open captions, since 1973. NBC began doing closed captioning three years ago.

Eleven of ABC's prime time series are closed captioned said J.J. Davis of KMID-TV. "ABC works closely with NCI (National Captioning Institute). ABC has really joined hands with them to do more closed captioning. I think it is something they definitely plan to commit themselves to in the future."

KMID-TV, an ABC-affiliate, has had a slight problem before with closed captioning because the machine it had wasn't letting the closed caption signals through, said Vargas. Since then KMID-TV has bought a new machine, which has eliminated the problem.

KMID-TV also bought a closed-captioned decoder which it uses to monitor programs. "During bad weather, the weather signal would block out the closed captions," he said. "We wouldn't know it until we would get calls from Big Spring."

"There are several people in the nation that are deaf. Several senior citizens have trouble hearing," Mrs. Relaford said. "Apparently it is a very valuable service. We do get a lot of calls when a show is not closed captioned," Ms. Davis said.

Self-confidence a trait of successful women

Self-confidence is the single most important personality trait a woman must have to be a successful leader in a profession, business or the community, a University of Texas study shows.

Lack of such confidence is the biggest roadblock to a woman leader's success, the study adds.

Self-confidence received the highest endorsement in a UT study that questioned women participating in seminars of Leadership Texas, a program begun in 1983 by the Texas Foundation for Women's Resources. The new program helps develop women leaders by exposing them at mid-career or above to important Texas issues and prominent leaders in the state.

The study was financed by a grant from the RGK Foundation of Austin.

Forty-one of 58 women in Leadership Texas answered the questionnaire. They ranged in age from 27 to 55. They responded to questions about themselves and their work styles and how they perceive successful women leaders in general. The small study, one of the first to look at women leaders from a female perspective, suggests some of the characteristics of women leaders in Texas.

TRAITS OTHER THAN self-confidence that were deemed essential for women leaders were sense of humor, flexibility, being responsible, dedication and decisiveness.

Among traits that the respondents viewed as being negative forces in a woman's success were those by which women appear to be "conceited," "pompous," "power-hungry," "dominating," "manipulative," "cunning" and "excitable."

Dr. Cristina Banks, UT assistant professor of management who directed the study, says she was surprised to find that charisma, a trait often associated with male leaders, was endorsed by only 54 percent of the women.

Dr. Banks says what comes through in the study is how hard the women leaders work. Most work between 46 and 70 hours per week, with 12 percent reporting they work more than 70 hours.

To cope with those times when workloads increase, the women indicated "they would just work even harder and longer hours rather than lessen the burden by eliminating tasks or taking longer to get things done," the report says.

Dr. Banks summed up that determination by saying: "When the going gets tough, they get tougher."

All that devotion to work, however, takes some toll in the form of stress.

The study found that more than 63 percent of the women experience either some or much stress at home as a result of their work.

Those who worked more than 50 hours a week and were married felt moderate to high levels of stress, the report reveals. If those same women had children, stress seemed to increase.

"ONE OF THE MOST striking results from this study," the report notes, "is the observation that those women want the most out of life and work very hard to get it. They report career motivations that are internal, meaning that something inside of them is driving them to achieve great things; their motivations do not seem to be a function of external factors such as needing approval or seeking rewards."

The report adds: "Very plainly, they want to be the best." Two career motivations receiving the highest endorsement from Leadership Texas women were "to achieve respect and status" and "because of dedication to an issue or a cause."

As for career aspirations, the respondents indicated they wanted to have equally a challenging successful career and a fulfilling personal life. They also wanted to make a significant impact on society and to have national visibility.

The study shows the women rely primarily for emotional and professional support on themselves, depending to a lesser extent on their spouses or "significant others."

In regard to the support needed by women leaders, Dr. Banks says "it seems that when a partner is present, he needs to be involved in the woman's career goals and aspirations."

"In addition, he is expected to share household burdens," she reports. "When young children are involved, the woman needs structure child care to share child-rearing demands."

OTHER FINDINGS of the UT study reveal that: — Although personal appearance is considered important, no rigid rules about dress were expressed except that one look neat, natural, genuine and subtle.

"The irony is that these women say to dress in a way that does not call attention to your dress," the report states.

— Upbringing (such as having had as supportive father and a working mother) is an important contributor to a woman's success.

— What women leaders have to do differently from men is to work harder, be more prepared, manage time more efficiently and be resilient to slights.

— Organizational savvy is viewed as important, including being able to identify powerful members of an organization, leaning rules of the game and knowing how to use others' expertise and talents.

— Many women strongly disagreed with the statement: "Anything is acceptable as long as you make a profit."

— Having contacts in the community and learning from others in the field were judged more beneficial to a woman's career than reading journals, attending seminars or listening to lectures.

PRIOR TO PREPARING the questionnaire submitted to Leadership Texas women, Dr. Banks interviewed 28 Texas women who already had achieved success either at national or state levels.

Many similarities emerged among the 28 interviewees and the Leadership Texas women, but there also were differences.

For example, unlike the interviewees, Leadership Texas women on the average underplayed the importance of actively building up their images to others, Dr. Banks notes. Also, those in Leadership Texas generally "downplayed the importance of 'working behind the scenes' to help them gain power and influence."

Another difference, while Leadership Texas women reported putting in longer hours when their work load increased, the interviewees who had been in their careers the longest "felt it was important to keep work loads manageable so that they would not have to put in an excessive number of extra hours during 'crunches.'"

"They (interviewees) stressed the need to 'keep on top of things' by working smarter and working more efficiently," Dr. Banks says.

Dear Abby

Bride-to-be feels crushed between mothers' love

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged to marry a wonderful man. We're both 22. His mother and I get along fantastically. I call her "Mom." She says that I am the "daughter" she's always wanted but never had.

"Mom" asked me if she could come along with my mother and me and help pick out my bridal gown. Seeing no reason why she shouldn't, I told her I'd love to have her.

Well, I told my mother, and she said she thought it was totally rude of my future mother-in-law to include herself. Then she said if "Mom" wants to help pick out my wedding gown, she should pay for half of it.

Abby, I've already told "Mom" she could come along, and it would break her heart if I had to tell her I changed my mind. How should this be handled without making my own mother look bad?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Tell your mother that you've already made your future mother-in-law welcome, and there is no way you can exclude her now without causing hard feelings.

Be patient with your mother. She could be jealous of the woman with whom she must now share her daughter. Tell your mother that you want yours to be a happy, lasting marriage, and one of the most essential ingredients is a loving relationship with your husband's mother.

***

DEAR ABBY: I've been overweight all my life, so I read with special interest the letter signed "Thin but Healthy," and when I came across the line, "No one would ever say to a fat person, 'Gee, you're fat.'" I plotted!

Abby, I wish I had a dollar for every time someone has said to me, "You have such a pretty face, why don't you do something about your body?"

I have a twin sister, and we are both in show business. Sometimes our weight works against us, but it usually works in our favor because we're glamorous, dress well and have no trouble accepting ourselves the way we are. Like most fat people, we've lost weight and gained it all back, but it became too much of a struggle to stay thin, so we decided to "be our natural selves" — fat.

Wouldn't it be a boring world if we all looked alike? I, for one, plan to continue being myself, and if some people don't like me, that's their problem.

MARILYN IN NEWARK, CALIF.
DEAR MARILYN: I like your style.

MRS. DON LEE FLEMING
...formerly Cindy Renee Maloney

Maloney-Fleming

South Plains Church of Christ in Lubbock was the site of the Saturday evening wedding ceremony of Cindy Renee Maloney and Don Lee Fleming, Leslie Maloney of Memphis, Tenn., brother of the bride, officiated the 7 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Maloney of Lubbock. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Don Fleming, Sterling City, and the late Don Fleming.

The couple was wed before a brass archway accented with a votive lit halo and brass spiral candelabra topped with votive lights. Two baskets of floral arrangements completed the setting.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Hinds, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Paden, and Dita Keesee, vocalists, provided music for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length gown of white silk organza and French tulle. The Queen Anne neckline accented with pearls was enhanced with fitted bodice which covered with Alencon lace. The A-line skirt fell chapel-length train.

The bride carried cascade of white, pink and burgundy silk flowers accented with ribbon streamers. Kayla Mitchell of Lubbock was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Alison Bennett of Lubbock, Margaret Maloney of Memphis, Tenn., sister-in-law of the bride, and Mandi Gholson of Lubbock.

Mike Davis of Waco served as best man. Groomsman were Dicki Arant of Ropesville, Wade Wiley of Idalou, and Fred Thompson of Snyder. Ushers were Ted Wheeler of Cross Plains, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Buck Welch of Lubbock, and Jerry Steward of Tyler.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held. A four-tiered cake was accented with lacy scallops and pink and burgundy roses. The table was covered with a white satin cloth.

The bride graduated from Monterey High School in Lubbock and attended Lubbock Christian College. The bridegroom graduated from Sterling City High School and attended Angelo State University in San Angelo and South Plains College in Levelland. He is employed by Plains Machinery Corp.

The couple will make their home in DeSoto.

MRS. JACK WAYMAN DORSETT
...formerly Trena Jana Bayes

Bayes-Dorsett

Trena Jana Bayes and Jack Wayman Dorsett were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony, Jan. 7, in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.C. Bayes of Sand Springs. Mrs. Juanita Dorsett of Childress is the mother of the bridegroom.

Eric Dickey, minister of Sand Springs Church of Christ, officiated at the 1 p.m. candlelit rite.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory silk organza, fashioned with a Victorian neckline and empire waist with accents of Venise lace on the bodice, sleeves and hemline. A fingertip-length veil of ivory illusion edged in Venise lace completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of mauve and ivory roses, accented with white baby's breath and lace streamers.

Shelley Whaley of Big Spring was matron of honor. Don Fisher, also of Big Spring, was best man. Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception at the home. The couple's table was covered with a brown cloth overlaid with white cutwork lace. It featured a three-tiered cake accented with mauve roses and topped with white wedding bells.

The wedding cake, bride's bouquet and corsages were made by the bride's sister-in-law Audrey Bayes.

The bride graduated from Coahoma High School, Howard College and Texas Tech University in Lubbock. She is employed by McCann Oil Corporation. The bridegroom graduated from Childress High School in Childress, and Panhandle State University in Goodwill, Okla. He is employed by Big Spring Independent School District as a high school teacher and coach.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Wedding policy

Weddings are published in the Sunday Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. A wedding form, available at the Herald, should be filled out, signed by either the bride, bridegroom or a member of either family and in our office no later than noon the Wednesday before the wedding.

The information may be accompanied by a photograph either of the bride or the couple. A black and white glossy 5 x 7 inch print is preferred. The picture must be of sufficient quality to reproduce in the newspaper. Pictures may be picked up following publication.

If a wedding writeup is turned in after the wedding, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

Forms for wedding stories may be picked up at the Lifestyle Department of the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry. Writeups may be brought in to the department or mailed to Big Spring Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Please call our office if you have problems or questions. Our number is (915) 263-7331.

Engagement policy

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald from anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks before the wedding.

We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form should be signed by the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or parents of either.

We will use a picture of the couple or the bride-elect. The picture must be of a quality that will reproduce well in the newspaper. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to our paper. If only grandparents live in our area, please, give their names and addresses.

The information may be brought by the Lifestyle Department of the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry, or mailed to the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Call us at (915) 267-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

5 self-help remedies fight mild depression

For the eight million Americans who are severely afflicted with depression, therapy and medication may be the best route. But for those who hit an occasional downdraft of mild or moderate depression, there are a number of self-help remedies that can give a substantial boost.

*Exercise. The very fact that a person is taking action instead of just sitting there helps, but exercise actually changes the level of hormones in the blood.

*Nutrition. Some authorities believe that even a single nutritional deficiency can cause depression in susceptible people. Vitamin therapy, when taken in accordance with a physician's instructions, is harmless and can quickly have an effect.

*Think Positive. Depressed people view life darkly. Be aware that dark feelings originate in the head and may not jibe with reality. Work on covering negative thoughts into more realistic alternatives.

*Socialize. The very fact that one may feel isolated and lonely is an early-warning signal of oncoming depression. Make a point of seeing friends and keeping in touch with associates.

*Check Medications. Many prescription drugs can cause depression as a side effect. A person can check with a doctor if he is taking medication.

If frequently feeling down in the dumps, a doctor or a mental-health professional can help. Depression can be successfully treated.

Howard County Extension Home Economics programs focused on Family Resource Management during 1983. Fifteen different educational activities were conducted. Multiple sessions of some activities were held reaching 728 participants.

Major educational programs are planned and presented by the Family Living Committee. The Committee studies the county situation to determine the educational needs of county residents, then plans programs and activities to address these needs.

The Family Living Committee is composed of volunteers who represent all population segments in the county. Various age groups, all geographic areas, ethnic groups, both sexes, all social-economics levels, and a variety occupations, organizations and interests are represented on the committee. Committee members serve a 3-year term, then rotate off the active membership and a new member is added. Current committee members are: Janet Wolfe, Chairman, Claudette Green, N.J. Lucas, Esther Lopez, Margaret Travino, Laverne Gaskins, Jean Prudhomme, Zula Rhodes, Jovill Etchison, Millie Hartfield, Madeline Boadle, Myrl Soles, and Mike Partick.

A variety of types of programs are presented to provided education for a broad spectrum of the community. Activities last year included: a direct mail letter series, seminars, workshops, clinics, shortcourses, demonstrations and educational meetings. These activities are supported by radio programs newspaper articles, exhibits and newsletters.

Programs on financial management reached 216 people, participants learned about setting financial goals; planned spending credit, household record keeping and teaching children how to manage money. As a result of these program participants have achieved more financial goals, increased family financial security, reduced their debt load and saved money by shopping for credit.

Those who participated in clothing recycling, basic sewing and home sewing programs learned more about the fashion industry how a pattern is made and how to get more use from patterns. A representative sample indicates that participants saved over $100 per person through clothing and pattern recycling, home sewing and wardrobe interweaving.

The "Cleaning on a Shoestring" demonstration taught 121 participants how to make window cleaner and porcelain cleaner from low cost ingredients usually kept in the home. Those who prepared the cleaner saved almost 50 per person over commercial cleaners. Program participants also learned low cost methods for cleaning many household surfaces.

A world of Work Workshop helped participants improve their job skills and learn about employment opportunities in the community.

Extension Homemakers reduced home energy consumption by increasing their knowledge about home heating and cooling, water heating appliances and lighting. They have learned to evaluate the energy consumption of appliances and use the one which consumes the least amount of energy to do the job.

For more information about Extension educational programs contact the County Extension in the Courthouse basement.

Dr. Donohue

Skiier's thumb

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Yesterday while skiing I hurt my thumb. I was about to fall forward and stuck out my pole to catch myself. When I did, my thumb jammed into the pole and it has been hurting me since. Do I need a doctor? — Mrs. P.P.

This injury has acquired a name, and (what else could it be?) it is called skier's thumb. It is actually a sprain of the inner thumb ligaments. A clue to skier's thumb is when you can't pinch your thumb and index finger together. The ski setting you describe is classic. Even though it is called skier's thumb, this kind of sprain happens to many non-skier athletes — boxers and hockey players, for examples.

Your reaction should have been to apply the standard first aid measures for any sprain — ice, compression, elevation and immobilization. If you did that, and you still have a painful thumb and can't perform the thumb and index finger test without pain, then you should see a doctor. The thumb may need a cast to give it complete rest. If the ligament damage is great, it may have to be sutured back together. I hope this isn't the case, but the only way to find out is to see the doctor. The earlier the better to avoid any future disability.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: We have just installed a whirlpool in our home. We let our neighbors use it, but after reading about infections from such baths, we're wondering if this is a safe practice. — Mrs. O.L.

You are wise to begin thinking preventively in this. There have been reports of skin problems from such baths, even serious infections like pneumonia and urinary tract infections. But much of this can be prevented. The usual story behind such infections includes inadequate attention to keeping water properly treated.

A good general rule is to keep the free chlorine content of the water at 1 to 3 milligrams per liter and the pH between 7.2 and 7.8. If you keep those standards in effect at all times, bacteria will not contaminate your water.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A diet question: I read that taking bran will cause one to lose trace minerals. Is this true? I started taking Metamucil a few weeks ago and although it helped me a great deal (constipation-wise) I stopped using it when I read that. I will appreciate a comment. — E.M.R.

You don't have to give up your bran. You just have to be sure you take it in the amounts recommended. Bran's natural fiber offers an effective way to prevent constipation. High-fiber food is being used to stop formation of colon pockets (diverticulosis). It is also being used to help lower blood sugar and fats. They keep water in indigestible food, making it easier to eliminate.

Now about loss of dietary minerals. The fear that too much fiber will leech out important minerals from the body has been expressed. Calcium, magnesium, zinc and iron levels have been tested in those using fiber. The conclusion is that unless your diet is deficient in these minerals, or unless you are using too much fiber, blood levels of the minerals stay in normal range when fiber is added to a diet.

But, please remember that you must not go overboard on fiber. Metamucil, which you say you were using, is quite safe when used as directed on the label. It is a handy form of fiber. I don't think you should give up its benefits because of that story you read.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading Dr. Donohue's booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Tammi Biel plays 'Sandy' in 'Grease'

TAMMI ELIZABETH BIEL, formerly of Big Spring and granddaughter of MR. AND MRS. CHARLES R. POISALL of Midway Rd., was recently selected to play the leading role of "Sandy" in the 1984 Midland High School production of "Grease."

Tammy is the 16-year-old daughter of MR. AND MRS. RICHARD C. BIEL of Midland and formerly of Big Spring. She attended Runnels Junior High during the 1980-81 school year and Big Spring High School from Sept. 1981 to 1983. Here she was active in pep club, cheerleading, choral groups, the Meistersingers, and the cast of the 1982 Big Spring High School production "Brigadoon."

Her local friends may want to see her perform as "Sandy." Tickets for the production will be available at the door. The performance will be Thursday through Saturday of this week. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students.

The KENTWOOD OLDER ADULT CENTER will have its annual chili supper Wednesday from 5 to 7 p.m.

According to ALVIN SMITH, this is the center's only fund-raising event with the proceeds going to pay for the upkeep and expense of the building. Everything earned at this supper goes directly back to the center.

All labor and supplies are donated by members.

The public is invited to enjoy the chili and see the center and what it offers to the older adults of this community. The cost is $3 per person, and that includes chili, beans, homemade pie and coffee or tea. Tickets are available at the door or by calling Smith at 267-6764.

The Kentwood Center and the SENIOR CITIZENS CENTER provide so many activities for our older adults to participate in and enjoy.

I had a delightful lunch with LILA ESTES Friday at Big Spring Country Club. We found out we had something in common as we talked about ourselves and our families. When we were in our dating years, we both made a list of qualities we wanted in our husbands-to-be. And when we compared our husbands-to-be to the lists, they met all but one or two of the things listed. But that didn't matter in the long run because we married them anyway. And we have happy marriages on top of that.

Tax & financial planning

BACKUP WITHHOLDING (New Form W-9)

You may have thought the issue of withholding on interest and dividends died when the 10% withholding provision was repealed in 1983. However, at the time that provision was repealed, a new provision called "backup withholding" was instituted.

Any individual who does not provide his correct social security number to a payor of interest, dividends, and "other reportable payments" may be subject to a $50 penalty and to backup withholding starting January 1, 1984. Backup withholding will also be required for individuals whom the IRS identifies as having underreported interest and dividend income.

Backup withholding will be done by the payor of such income at the rate of 20%. It applies not only to interest and dividends but also to other payments such as rent, royalties, commissions, non-employee compensation, and other reportable payments.

You will be receiving identification number verification requests (Form W-9) from such payors. These requests should be read carefully and the instructions followed, or you may find yourself subject to backup withholding and a $50 penalty.

Backup withholding is not an additional tax. Rather, the tax liability of persons subject to backup withholding will be reduced by the amount of the tax withheld. If withholding results in an overpayment of taxes, a refund may be obtained.

Players who must withhold the tax are to report and deposit it in the same way that they handle withheld payroll taxes.

In general, only those payments that are considered "reportable payments" are subject to the backup withholding rules; that is, annual interest and dividend payments of less than $10 or other payments of less than $600 are not subject to these rules.

Newly discovered author, 88, goes back to bed

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — After a hectic week of interviews and appearances on national television, newly discovered author Helen Hooven Santmyer bowed to the infirmities of her 88 years Friday and "went back to bed."

Employees at the Hospitality Home East nursing home in this Ohio town had awakened Miss Santmyer early for a live interview on the CBS "Morning News." The night before, she appeared on NBC, and her story appeared this week in newspapers across the nation.

The cause of Miss Santmyer's newfound celebrity is her 1,344-page novel "... And Ladies of the Club." It was written over almost half a century as her counterpoint to the unflattering portrayal of small-town America in Sinclair Lewis' book, "Main Street."

Miss Santmyer's novel tells of several generations of life in the fictitious southwestern Ohio town of Waynesboro as related through members of a women's literary club. The book has caught the attention of publishers, agents and Hollywood producers — and turned Miss Santmyer into a sometimes weary celebrity.

"She's gone back to bed," nursing home administrator Helen Brentley, who is screening calls for her suddenly famous resident, said after Friday's CBS interview. "She's tired."

Miss Santmyer suffers from emphysema, arthritis and is losing sight in one eye. But with the aid of her lifelong friend Mildred Sandoe, 83, who also lives at the home, she was able to revise the book in the late 1970s and early 1980s at the request of Ohio State University Press, which published it in June 1982.

Now G.P. Putnam's Sons plans to republish at least 50,000 copies in August. Hollywood movie producers Gerald Sindell and Stanley Corwin have film rights to the book and plan to base a television miniseries on it. And the Book-of-the-Month Club has designated her novel as a main selection for September or October.

"It is an absolutely stunning story," said Edward E. Fitzgerald, the book club's chairman.

Miss Santmyer, who said she is "flabbergasted" by the turn of events that brought her book to national attention, said earlier this week that she hopes readers will find their own meaning in the book.

"I think there's something there, but I don't think I can put it into words," she said. "I just hope they enjoy it."

She began writing the novel in 1929 after reading Lewis' book and objecting to his portrayal of small-town life. She worked on it sporadically for 46 years before turning over her manuscript — in 11 boxes — to Ohio State University in 1975. Then she was asked to do the revisions.

Doctor named to academy

Dr. Thomas Long, Malone and Hogan Clinic's new dermatologist, has been named a fellow of the American Academy of Dermatology, according to a recent release by that specialty's national board.

To receive board certification as a dermatologist, a physician must after medical school complete a one-year internship and usually three years of residency in an approved dermatology training program. The physician also must successfully complete a board-administered examination covering all aspects of dermatology.

Dr. Long was one of about 250 new dermatologists certified by the American Board of Dermatology this year.

Dr. Long's wife Ann is an instructor in Howard College's Associate Degree of Nursing Program. She teaches obstetrics and maternal health care and medical/surgical nursing. The couple moved to Big Spring from Boston in July, 1983 and have a 2-year-old daughter, Sarah.

Low temperature damage to trees, shrubs

A quick survey around town indicates some visible results of our recent cold spell. Ligustrums have a bronzy-gray cast to their leaves. This condition may be over the entire plant or in localized spots in a hedge. Almost every euonymus in the county has light brown stems and leaves in irregular patterns. Winter creeper euonymus and Chinese photinia now have leaves with a coloration similar to the ligustrums. Palm fronds are brown or browning rapidly. Oleander leaves and stems are variously light brown to gray in odd patterns. The prickly pear cacti in town are dismembering, literally falling apart at the joints. All of these maladies were caused by sustained temperatures less than 10 degree during the past few weeks.

It seems strange that the visible browning is so random in its appearance.

Remember that every home site has certain microclimates. Usually the south and southeastern sides of a home have slightly warmer conditions than the other facings. A few degrees may make a big difference in the extent of winter cold damage. The other major contributing factor to the apparent random nature of the cold damage was the condition of the plant as it went into the cold weather. Trees and shrubs that were drought stressed last summer are in the worst condition now. If your trees and shrubs show considerably more damage than the neighbors, you may want to change your future water management practices. Try watering the dripline of trees and shrubs instead of just the trunk.

All of the plants mentioned above are evergreens. Deciduous trees and shrubs will show their damage this spring and it is very likely that the evergreens will continue to show some freeze related damage throughout the growing season of 1984.

In the meantime what should be done? If we don't receive substantial rains every 3-4 weeks through the winter then water your landscape plants.

Wait to prune dead wood until the latter part of January and through the month of February. It will be easier and better to prune dead branches from deciduous trees and shrubs this spring. This type of spring and summer pruning will not damage the plant. Follow good pruning practices (topping is not one) or you may add to the damage instead of correcting it. Fertilize trees and shrubs during the first weeks of March, now is too early. Avoid miracle cures and door-to-door pruners. The best things to do now are wait, water and be consoled that the majority of the ugly problems will through new growth from eliminate themselves healthy tissue next spring.
