Ice storm cripples area travel

By RICK BROWN
 Staff Writer
 Another round of cold winter weather blasted the Big Spring area last night, bringing icy conditions that closed area airports and had local law enforcement officials scrambling to aid motorists.

The temperature dropped to 12 degrees Tuesday night as the polar front glazed roads and overpasses with a thin sheet of ice.

Light snow continued to fall this morning. The temperature had risen above 20 degrees by noon today.

Big Spring Police reported 19 accidents this morning, including one major wreck on Wasson Road in front of Marcy Elementary School. One person was taken to the emergency room at Malone-Hogan Hospital by Shaffer Ambulance as a result of the accident.

Big Spring Police reported 15 minor accidents during the period between 7 a.m. Tuesday and 7 a.m. Wednesday.

Authorities at the Midland Regional Air Terminal reported no airline flights or landings through noon today, with cancellations and delays being the rule due to icy runways.

The airport was expected to remain closed until at least 5 p.m. today and may not reopen until

Wrecks litter streets

Staff reports
 Icy roads and poor visibility contributed to at least 20 accidents between 7 a.m. and noon today in Howard County, including a major accident in Big Spring, a police spokeswoman said.

Nineteen of the mishaps happened on Big Spring roads after 6:53 a.m. today, the spokeswoman said. A Big Spring man remains in stable condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital after suffering injuries in a major accident today, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The man was injured in a wreck that occurred about 10 a.m. today on Wasson Road in front of Marcy Elementary School. He was taken to the hospital by Shaffer Ambulance, according to police reports.

The hospital would not release his name. In addition to the 19 accidents See Wrecks page 2-A

Farmworkers win compensation battle

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas farmworkers have won a second round in their fight to win coverage under the state's Workers Compensation Act, but their battle is not over. A trial set for Feb. 21 will decide the issue on its merits.

In the meantime, State District Judge Harley Clark extended a court order Tuesday prohibiting the Industrial Accident Board from rejecting any on-the-job injury claims from farmworkers.

The accident board administers the state law on workmen's compensation.

"This order will restrain the board from finding that an injured employee is not covered on the basis that he is a farm or ranch employee if that employer is covered by some sort of insurance coverage on any other group of employees," the judge said.

Attorney Jim Harrington of Austin, who represents 10 farmworkers in their suit against the state and the Industrial Accident Board, applauded Clark's order.

"It's the only decent, humane thing to do,"

he said.

Bill Barbisch, an assistant attorney general said no one would be hurt, including farm and ranch workers, even if there were no court order against the Industrial Accident Board.

"The Industrial Accident Board will keep on doing what it does now," Barbisch said.

IRS makes tax forms EZ

Singles benefit from do-it-yourself return

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series of five articles written to help taxpayers prepare their 1983 income tax returns. This installment reviews forms and explains who must file.

By JIM LUTHER
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Single taxpayers who are looking for the quickest way to settle accounts with the Internal Revenue Service may qualify to use the one-page Form 1040EZ this year. The IRS says it's as simple as a tax form will ever be.

Attach the mailing label, fill in no more than 10 figures, sign your name and the date and you're through. But you qualify only if you're single, you don't claim exemptions for being blind or over 65, you claim no dependents, and your taxable income is under $50,000 and composed entirely of wages, tips and no more than $400 of interest.

Fifteen million people filed the 1040EZ after it was introduced last year.

But don't let the simplicity lure you to the 1040EZ if you could save money by filing a different form. If, for example, you own a home or have unusually high medical expenses, you might be better off itemizing deductions. And to do that, you have to file the long Form 1040.

Between the long and the very short forms is the reasonably short 1040A, which has lost some of its simplicity this year. It may be used by anyone with taxable income under $50,000, including unlimited amounts of interest and dividends. You may use the form even if you take a deduction for contributions to an Individual Retirement Account, or the two-earner-couple deduction, or if you claim the earned-income credit for low-income families or the credit for job-related child-care expenses.

Many who use 1040A will have to file with it the new two-page Schedule 1. One page is for listing sources of interest or dividends of more than $400; the second is for computing the IRA deduction and the child-care credit.

Even if you don't itemize, you must file the long form

1040 Tax Tips

if you paid or received alimony; claim an adjustment for moving expenses or employee business expenses; receive tax-exempt disability income; had income from capital gains, self-employment or rent, or if you claim the home energy-conservation credit or the special credit for the elderly.

But do you have to file a tax return at all? In general terms, you must file if, at the end of 1983, you were:

• SINGLE, under 65 and had gross income of at least $3,300, or 65 or over with income of $4,300 or more.

Beirut gunmen kill university head

BEIRUT (AP) — Two gunmen shot the president of American University of Beirut today near his campus office, killing him with a bullet through the head, authorities said.

About four hours after the assassination of Malcolm Kerr, 52, a Beirut-born American, an anonymous telephone caller told the Beirut office of Agence France-Presse, the French news agency, that "Jihad Islami," or Islamic Holy War, was responsible for the shooting.

Speaking in Arabic, the caller said Kerr was "a victim of the American military presence in Lebanon," according to the news agency.

The caller also claimed the group was behind the abduction by gunmen on Tuesday of the Saudi consul in Beirut, and said the diplomat "is being tried according to Islamic law and we will soon throw out his body."

Islamic Holy War, which is believed to be loyal to Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, also claimed responsibility for the Oct. 23 truck-bombings that killed 241 American and 58 French troops in Beirut.

Several pro-Khomeini Shiite Moslem Lebanese leaders, however, have disclaimed Islamic Holy War. Sheik Hussein Fadlallah, one such leader, has said "this organization does not exist. It is a telephone organization."

Walid Jumblatt, Lebanon's top Druse opposition leader, issued a statement in Damascus saying Kerr's killing and the kidnapping of the Saudi diplomat were the work of right-wing Christians.

Kerr had replaced David S. Dodge, the acting president, who was kidnapped in July 1982. Dodge was held by pro-Iranian extremists in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley and in Iran for a year before being freed after Syrian leaders intervened.

A university statement about three hours after the assassination said two gunmen fired and Kerr was hit by two bullets. It said the two attackers "managed to escape."

"The president was taken to the hospital at the university's medical center but his life could not be saved and he was pronounced dead by the hospital," the statement said.

State radio quoted Dr. Ahmed Harati, a Lebanese coroner who examined the body, as saying Kerr was killed by one 7.15mm pistol bullet that pierced his head at the right temple and exited just above the left ear.

The caller to Agence France-Presse also said: "We also vow that not a single American or Frenchman will be harmed."

Building permits top quarter million here

Building permits issued for construction last month in Big Spring topped the quarter-million mark, inspectors say.

Among those issued was a permit authorizing construction of a $110,000 fellowship hall for the Birdwell Lane Church of Christ.

The Rev. Byron Corn of the church said the hall, with the addition of dividers, will be able to accommodate both small and large groups.

According to Corn, the new multi-purpose addition will be finished at the beginning of April.

Permits for the month of December also included more than $31,000 in commercial construction and over $108,000 in residential construction.

The figures are down from those of November, when the city issued permits for more than $4.5 million. A substantial portion of that figure, $4.4 million, came in a permit issued to Brinkcraft Development Co. of Lubbock for the new Bent Tree apartment complex in the city's Coronado Hills addition.

Broken gas line forces evacuation of paper

DALLAS (AP) — Fire department officials evacuated The Dallas Morning News because of fumes leaking from a broken gas line in front of the newspaper's downtown building.

Employees were kept out of the building from shortly after 8 p.m. until 11:35 p.m. Tuesday, when crews from Lone Star Gas dug to a valve and shut off the gas.

Managing Editor Bill Evans said fire department officials ordered the evacuations because they feared that winds were carrying gas fumes into the building.

Evans said Tuesday night that the newspaper might "have a few late deliveries, but we'll be publishing the same as always."

Television station WFAA and radio stations KRQQ and KZEW, which are housed in an adjacent building, were not evacuated, Evans said.

If you could be claimed as a dependent on your parents' return and had "unearned" income — such as interest and dividends — of $1,000 or more, you must file.

- MARRIED, living with your spouse, both of you are under 65, filing a joint return and income is $5,400 or more. If one spouse is 65 or over and income is $6,400 and up, or if both spouses are 65 or over, you must file. If your spouse files a separate return, you must file, regardless of age, if your income is at least $1,000.

The $1,000 threshold applies to a married person not living with the spouse, but not to one with a dependent child. In the latter case, the taxpayer must file if under 65 and income is over $3,300, or if 65 or over with income of at least $4,300.

- WIDOWED before 1981, not married in 1983, under 65 and at least $3,300 income; if 65 or over, you need not file unless income exceeds $4,300.

- WIDOWED in 1981 or 1982, not married in 1983, under 65 and at least $3,300 income; if 65 or over, you need not file unless income exceeds $4,300. A qualifying widower with a dependent child may have an additional $1,100 of income before filing.

If you didn't earn enough to owe taxes, you'll have to file a return to get back any taxes that were withheld. And a working family with earned income under $10,000 but no tax liability should file to receive a special payment of up to $500.

NEW WAVE EXPRESSION — A young graffiti writer lies on a subway track in front of a train that he decorated in New York recently. Graffiti artists and their work will be featured in a film "Style Wars" that will air on PBS-TV tonight.

Style wars

Graffiti artists create pop-culture expression

NEW YORK (AP) — Are they budding Picassos, spray-painting moving canvasses for art's sake, or are they exhibitionistic hooligans, defacing public property for their own egos?

They're graffiti artists, leaving their signatures on the metallic landscape of New York's subway system, and they're captured on film tonight in "Style Wars," a revealing, beautifully photographed examination of this form of pop-culture expression in urban America.

For the most part, "Style Wars" lovingly treats graffiti artists, known as "writers" in their own vernacular, focusing on the best and the brightest of their work. Rarely do we see pictures of the random, vulgar scribbles that litter many subway cars.

The producers, Tony Silver and Henry Chalfant, chose, instead, to let voices of authority, such as New York Mayor Ed Koch and several transit authority cops, criticize these rockin' Rembrandts. Silver is a documentary filmmaker and Chalfant is a sculptor and reigning authority on graffiti.

One cop says he's no art critic, but he knows graffiti is a crime. Koch calls subway graffiti a "quality-of-life offense," comparing it to pickpocketing and shoplifting.

The mayor's idea of erecting barbed-wire fences with patrolling guard dogs has been introduced in at least one subway yard, and Koch is proud of the "Dump Koch" non-endorsements scrawled on some cars. "It's the highest praise imaginable," he said. "It shows I'm getting to them."

Graffiti also takes on generation-gap overtones when one young artist and his disapproving mother are interviewed together. His desire is to be "all-city," meaning his work will be displayed on enough subway lines to cover New York. His mother, obviously a caring woman whose doleful look speaks volumes, says graffiti-writing is dangerous and "a poor, miserable culture."

The basic motivating force for most of the graffiti artists is identity, the knowledge that the city's millions of commuters are a captive audience for their personal statement and style. One dedicated writer says he loves the excitement of the high-voltage third rail, cops breathing down his neck and the smell of the trains.

Michelangelo, who painted the Sistine Chapel while on his back, had a different set of problems from these modern-day wall painters. The best of them are seen drawing outlines and filling in their elaborate, energetic works with cans of spray paint.

A lament from one artist is that the trains used to remain stationary for entire weekends, now they're constantly on the go, and it's impossible to hit a moving target.

Another problem, an ironic coincidence that seems lost on this particular graffiti artist, is that his masterpieces have been vandalized by other writers, called "dogs" who cross out other people's work out of jealousy. He calls it a "never-forgive" action.

Unquestionably, the best writers would be talented artists on any canvas. An art-gallery exhibit brings praise from aficionados in Soho, one of whom raves about how "alive and vibrant" graffiti is. One graffiti painter explains his move indoors to hanging art this way: "I'm into making money."

The major omission in the production is that it doesn't go far enough in exploring how the graffiti painter has fared in the world outside subway cars and subterranean museums. How many have earned art scholarships, and how have they done in traditional art classes?

"Style Wars" also takes a look at another burgeoning form of urban expression, "breaking," which is an increasingly popular and intricate form of dancing that combines the energy of the street with the studied discipline of gymnastics.

Breaking is not the kind of dancing that Fred and Ginger could do cheek-to-cheek. In a sense, the breaker's only partner is the pavement. The movements resemble an injured ant, writhing rhythmically on the sidewalk, and, in one unforgettable move, the breaker spins on his head, like a top.

Birdwell Lane became clogged with accidents earlier this morning. Police reported at least four accidents on Birdwell by 9 a.m. today. A police officer who answered a report of a wreck on Birdwell said he saw at least two accidents happen while working the original one.

chman will remain on this soil. We will take no different course and shall not waver."

A university source, who asked not to be identified, said Kerr's secretary and others in the building did not hear any shots but rushed to the scene after hearing Kerr's books, briefcase and umbrellas hit the floor.

Earlier, a university professor, Delwin Roy, of Atlanta, said "one individual" shot Kerr as he was getting out of the elevator to go into his office.

The forecast from the National Weather Service in Midland calls for continued cloudy and cold weather with a 30 percent chance of light snow today and tomorrow. Temperatures should dip into the mid teens tonight and reach the upper 20s tomorrow.

No significant snow accumulation is expected.

A spokesman for the service said temperatures should not rise above freezing before Friday.

Travelers advisories remain in effect for North and West Texas due to icy roads and in the central and southern portions of the state due to fog.

This latest round of cold weather comes in the wake of a moist cold front that moved through the area last night and is now situated over Mexico and the Gulf of Mexico, according to the National Weather Service.

The U.S. Agricultural Research Service at Big Spring Air Park reported a low of 12 degrees last night, with a trace of precipitation.

Department of Public Safety officials in the Midland regional office at 10 a.m. said no fatalities or serious injuries were reported in the Big Spring-Howard County area.

DPS officers handled at least one minor accident in the county today, a one-vehicle turnover on South Highway 87 at 8:55 a.m., a sheriff's dispatcher said. However, the driver already had left his car when DPS officers arrived at the scene, she said.

An accident count or report from local DPS officers was not available this morning, but a DPS secretary said patrolmen "were busy."

An initial radio report said a lone gunman fired a bullet into Kerr's head from a silenced-equipped pistol.

University sources said the attack occurred on the third floor of College Hall, one floor above Kerr's office, as the president headed for a meeting of deans.

Lebanese army troops and police sealed off all gates of the 73-acre campus in west Beirut's Manara district and of the nearby hospital.

The vice president of the university, Samir Thabet, called an emergency meeting of school deans and announced classes were suspended until Monday in mourning for Kerr.

At American University's New York office, Dr. Vahe Simonian, director of development, said no threat had preceded the shooting.

"This caught us all by surprise," he said. "It's so senseless."

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the shooting was "certainly tragic and we deplore assassinations of this type of ... a prominent citizen."

Private park raises stink in New Braunfels

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — It's the Schlitterbahn water slide versus the "Stinky Falls" tube chute and already the battle has spilled over into federal court.

The owners of the Schlitterbahn amusement park contend they're being driven out of business for competing with "Stinky Falls," a city-operated water attraction.

The city, the park's owners say, has fought the Schlitterbahn's attempts to divert additional water from the scenic Comal River.

This battle of the water slides, which hardly seems earthshaking, has touched off a federal lawsuit and probably will impact on the city's elections.

Bob Henry, whose family owns the Schlitterbahn, filed a federal suit in August 1983 and has vowed to run for a seat on the City Council this spring.

"Somebody's got to watch over these people," he said.

Henry's son, Jeff, 27, called the city's actions "harassment — pure and simple."

City Attorney John Chunn did not return calls from The Associated Press on Tuesday, and his secretary said he was in a meeting.

The Henrys recently asked the Texas Water Commission for a 500 percent increase in the amount of water the amusement park diverts from the Comal River, which flows through this Central Texas town.

The city of New Braunfels won a continuance in the case until Feb. 6 and is conducting a study to see how the diversion would affect erosion along the river's banks.

Jeff Henry said the city first battled the family's amusement park, which opened in 1979, by instituting a parking ban from April to September.

Cars belonging to hundreds of angry patrons have been towed away from spots near the Schlitterbahn because of the "no parking" areas, he said.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras' capital. Until today, the men have not spoken to reporters about the downing of the helicopter near the Nicaraguan-Honduran border.

Air Force Secretary Verne Orr arrived in Tegucigalpa on Tuesday and said Chief Warrant Officer Jeffrey C. Schwab "died in cold blood in Honduran territory from shots fired by Nicaraguan soldiers on the other side of the border."

Nicaraguan officials say their troops shot at the helicopter while it was in Nicaraguan airspace but deny U.S. allegations that the soldiers shot and killed Schwab after he landed on the Honduran side of the border.

Nicaragua's defense minister, Humberto Ortega, said Tuesday that the helicopter was part of a CIA plan to help rebels overthrow the leftist government in Nicaragua.

Ortega said the plan includes forays into Nicaraguan air space by U.S. military aircraft and the use of Honduran soldiers, dressed in rebel uniforms, to aid the insurgents.

Pipe bombs rip hospital

OGDEN — Three pipe bombs that exploded in a hospital physicians' locker room tore a chunk from the wall and ceiling and injured an operating room technician who is a suspect in the case, police said.

The three half-foot pipes, placed against a wall separating the locker room from the showers, caused about $1,000 in damage when they went off at McKay-Dee Hospital on Tuesday, police said.

There were no patients or doctors in the area, which is adjacent to the surgical complex, and no evacuation was ordered.

The three bombs went off together, but only one shredded — like a banana — and the other two simply blew off the ends of the casings, said Lt. Charles Buzick, bomb expert for the Ogden Police Department.

"I suspect they were packed with black powder or some other kind of gunpowder" and were set off by lighting a fuse, he said.

The name of the injured technician was being withheld today until officers could discuss the case with the county attorney, Buzick said. He said the technician was a suspect, but he and other police officers declined to discuss motive.

Mike MacFarlane, assistant hospital administrator, said the man suffered superficial cuts on the forearms and doctors planned to keep him in the hospital overnight. He was in good condition today.

MacFarlane said he knew nothing about a possible motive.

"Employees heard a loud thud when it went off. There was some confusion at first, as there always is, but it was contained rather quickly," MacFarlane said.

Police Lt. Jim Anderson estimated the damage at $1,000.

Buzick said a casing hit a sprinkler, setting it off and flooding the room. MacFarlane said a darkroom is under the locker room and he had not yet checked to find out whether it was damaged by the water.

Pennzoil challenges Texaco

HOUSTON — Texaco Inc.'s bid to buy Getty Oil Co. is a display of "sheer financial power" which threatens to seriously limit discovery of new petroleum reserves, Pennzoil Co. contends in a suit to stop the merger.

The antitrust lawsuit, filed Tuesday in a Tulsa, Okla., federal court, says the $9.89 billion merger is likely to touch off a wave of purchases as large companies "scramble to acquire new reserves by acquiring their competitors rather than by exploration."

Pennzoil released copies of its suit in Houston, its home base. The 32nd-largest petroleum company in the United States offered Getty stockholders $110 a share in an attempt to buy 43 percent of that firm.

Pennzoil announced it had reached an agreement with Getty for a $2.6 billion deal Jan. 4. The purchase was to result in a private company owned by Pennzoil and Getty.

But Getty backed out three days later, announcing that Texaco had offered $125 a share to buy out the company. The deal would make Texaco the world's second-largest energy corporation, behind only the Exxon Corp.

Weather

West Texas — Mostly cloudy with freezing drizzle east of the mountains ending by tonight. Fair to partly cloudy tonight and Thursday.

Arctic front freezes U.S.

A storm that dumped up to a half-foot of snow on Missouri marched toward the Northeast today, the result of a "collision" between heavy moisture from the Gulf and an unyielding Arctic air mass that sent the mercury plunging below zero across the Plains.

Drivers spun on icy north Texas roads, and travelers' advisories and winter storm warnings were posted today from the southern Plains to Ohio and Kentucky.

Numbing temperatures spread southward, threatening wind-chill readings of 20 degrees below zero in Oklahoma and snowfall in north Alabama, the National Weather Service said.

The front that chilled Butte, Mont., to 28 below today was on a "collision course" with moist air from the Gulf, with the resulting snow and rain expected to extend from the central states to the East Coast, said meteorologist Nolan Duke at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

As much as six inches of snow was forecast for New Jersey, and parts of New England also braced for heavy accumulations. "A mixed bag" of winter weather in Alabama was expected to include snow in the north, the National Weather Service office in Birmingham predicted.

Five inches of new snow blanketed Springfield and Joplin, Mo., early today, and 6 inches was recorded in the southern part of the state.

Colorado temperatures were in the minus-20s, prompting officials to warn parents not to let their children dawdle on the way home from school.

Interstate 70 east of Denver was closed briefly Tuesday when blowing snow blinded drivers.

Two Colorado towns reported record lows for the date Tuesday — Alamosa at 27 below zero and Pueblo at 8 below.

But the chill extended further east as at least seven other marks were broken in Maine, New York, New Hampshire and Michigan.

Caribou, Maine, reported a reading of 27 below. Concord, N.H., reached 19 below, and Lansing, Mich., fell to 17 below.

Russians caused cutline mistake

We're going to blame this one on the Russians. Those Commie rats are the only reason we can come up with to explain why in a cutline on page 5B in Tuesday's Herald we had four Big Spring High School choir students playing first and second base instead of singing first and second bass.

Now, we know the difference between hardball and harmonics, so the gaffe we attribute to high-tech hijinks.

Tuesday morning our computer system rolled over and died, leaving us with no Associated Press wire. Apparently our satellite dish was not receiving signals, and we suspect Warsaw Pact satellite sabotage.

Anyway, by the time we got the computer up and rolling again, we were seriously behind deadline. The news editor, who handles the wire and designs the pages, enlisted the city editor for help, who completed page 5B in a record 32 seconds.

The cutline in question was coded as having been edited, so it wasn't read again before it went on the page. As is common at a newspaper, no one noticed the mistake until after the paper was off the press. There's something about the cold light of newsprint that makes a mistake jump off the page.

The reporter who wrote the cutline gave a good excuse for her foible.

"I don't know why I spelled it that way," she said. "I used to sing in a choir."

So, because the Russians knocked out our satellite, the news editor got behind, the city editor got rushed, and the reporter's cutline got in the paper unedited.

This apology, we realize, doesn't assuage the indignation probably experienced by the choir members who were being honored. We appreciate their accomplishments, and we'll run the picture again with a correct cutline.

That's assuming we don't have to fight the Russians again.

Around The Rim

By KEELY COGHLAN

See your face in the floor?

The commercials that always blare from my television lately are the ads for cleaning products.

The happy mother of six is faced with a life-threatening dilemma between Brands Y and X. Which will clean her children's clothes best? Which will be the whitest? Which will get rid of her husband's ring-around-the-collar?

Oh, those guilt-feeding commercials. You try tuning them out, turning down the volume, even switching to another station. But they still confront you.

You — yes, you — aren't living up to expectations. You aren't the perfect mother, the proper housewife, or the sexiest woman.

Listening to commercials makes life seem so easy. All you have to do is pick the right brand, and your husband will be happy because his white shirts are starched and spotless, and your kids will love that April-fresh smell.

For women on television commercials, picking cleansers and stripping yellowed wax off floors seems to be their entire social life. Unless, of course, you talk toothpaste commercials.

Did you know that all you have to do is smile to achieve the perfect relationship? Flash 'em those pearly whites, and he's yours — unless Her brand is better.

The closest things to reality on television commercials anymore are the coffee commercials, although when I say I want to talk things over coffee, I don't even think about the brand.

Still, most commercials reflect life the way "it's supposed to be," or the way advertising executives want it to be, and not just so you'll purchase their product.

Commercials are unreal. And their writers know that. A woman is either a housewife concerned about every spot on her glasses, or she is Supermom. Men are tough, competent executive types who are trying to get ahead. None of the images can ever be attained in real life.

I've come to think that not only do ad writers want you to constantly aspire to bigger and better products, newer with extra additives, they want most Americans to feel unhappy.

If you feel you are not meeting the general picture of life, as seen daily on every television station in America, including cable, you are more likely to feel you can solve your problems by just increasing your status, by conforming, by buying their product, instead of reasoning your problems through.

The emphasis in your life slowly switches from the give-and-take with your friends and family to the image you present and the buying power you have acquired. You may not be happier with Heineken beer, but they don't advertise it as the cheap beer within everyone's reach.

Too many people base their expectations on the messages the media sends us, including the messages in commercials. True, many commercials are not as hard-pitch as they used to be, but there are enough Proctor & Gamble, "Honey, this floor is a mess!" commercials to make even the most successful woman guilty if she can't see her face in her floor.

I don't know what to do to combat this vision of life. People should be ambitious and aspire to higher goals beyond the kind of car they drive. They should listen to each other, something that rarely happens on television or commercials.

But lately they all sound like commercials.

B-1 bomber is too good for Soviets

WASHINGTON — The Soviets' air defense forces in the Far East are surprisingly incompetent. This is the conclusion of intelligence analysts who have studied the circumstances surrounding the destruction of a Korean airliner last September after it violated Soviet air space.

The incident has convinced some former advocates of the B-1 bomber that this $30 billion program may no longer be needed. The whole purpose of the B-1 is to give the United States the ability to penetrate Soviet air defenses.

The tragic odyssey of Flight 007 showed that an unarmed civilian airliner — its lights on and its radio sending out a frequent signal, flying at a sitting-duck 35,000 feet — was able to penetrate Soviet air space for more than two hours before it was finally tracked down and destroyed.

According to top-secret intelligence analyses, the Russians never even succeeded in identifying what kind of plane they were chasing over some of their most vital military areas.

The best of the Soviet interceptor forces never got within 20 miles of the Korean airliner as it flew over the Kamchatka Peninsula, which is home base for the Soviet Pacific Fleet's ballistic missile submarines. The airliner continued in a straight line over the Sea of Okhotsk and Sakhalin Island, heading toward the Soviets' principal base of Vladivostok.

The Soviets scrambled eight fighters, which could fly twice as fast as the lumbering airliner. Yet only one fighter even came close to the intruder — and then only as it was leaving Soviet air space for a second time.

Intelligence sources, citing top-secret reports on the tragedy, described the Soviet failure to my associate Dale Van Atta. There was an abysmal lack of coordination, they said, between the Soviet radar facilities on Kamchatka and Sakhalin.

After first confusing the Korean 747 with a U.S. reconnaissance plane that had been in the area earlier, the Kamchatka radar controllers failed to "hand over" the intruder to their comrades on Sakhalin. Crucial time was lost before anyone realized it was the same plane.

When the single Su-15 fighter finally locked onto the airliner and fired two missiles at it, only one hit the target. The Su-15's heat-seeking missile found the airliner; its radar-guided missile missed.

What does all this have to do with the B-1 bomber? Simply this: The Soviets' inept performance against a civilian airliner was dramatic evidence that they would do even worse against U.S. B-52 bombers.

These old bombers were considered virtually obsolete. But they emit no radio signal or blinking light, can fly low and take evasive action to avoid radar and interceptors, and have super-sophisticated electronic equipment to foil Soviet radar.

It now seems certain in light of the September incident that our B-52s are capable of penetrating Soviet airspace. Then why spend $30 billion on a new plane designed to do the same thing?

Instead of wasting time and money on the B-1, some defense analysts recommend concentrating on the Stealth bomber. One secret Pentagon report says the Stealth could be ready by 1991. Meanwhile, the United States can safely depend on its B-52s, with their air-launched cruise missiles — each of which is 1,000 times harder for even competent air-defense forces to spot than a 747.

DRUG UPDATE: Both Johnson & Johnson and the Food and Drug Administration have mishandled the controversy over the painkiller Zomax. I've already reported misleading statements the drug firm made in a "briefing paper" it circulated in Capitol Hill and inside the FDA.

Now investigators for an FDA oversight subcommittee, headed by Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., suspect that the company misrepresented several FDA positions on the drug's cancer-causing potential. The investigators also found that seven months after Zomax was OK'd for general use, the FDA had failed to analyze adverse data on the drug, which has been linked to at least 15 deaths and 2,200 allergic reactions, 500 of which were life-threatening.

The subcommittee sleuths analyzed the FDA data and found that only 14 percent of the patients, who had mild-to-serious allergic reactions to Zomax, had experienced similar reactions from taking the drug earlier. This means a doctor usually has no clue that the drug being prescribed could cause problems.

PARTY POOPER: The tension in Lebanon, particularly the fear of terrorism it has caused, cast a pall over the annual Christmas party for White House and Budget Office employees and their families. For one thing, the president put in only a brief appearance, and first Lady Nancy Reagan was sick and couldn't make it. But the real chiller — literally — was the stepped-up security now in force at the White House because of the terrorist threat. Party-goers had to stand in line outside in the cold while everyone was checked before being allowed in.

Prolonging the Lebanon agony

WASHINGTON — Withdrawal of the Marines from Lebanon is now a forgone conclusion. The question is which way out?

The choice lies between a unilateral redeployment and a retreat covered by diplomatic accord with Syria. Strange to tell, the redeployment provides a far, far better exit because the diplomatic accord would be a fraud.

The inevitability of withdrawal follows from a convergence of events. First, this country's main partners in the multinational force perceive that the game is up. The Italian and the French have begun to redeploy and whittle down their contingents in Lebanon. Before long, the U.S. will be standing alone.

Secondly, Pentagon opposition to the venture, covert in the past, has now come into the open. The Board of Inquiry into the massacre of Marines on Oct. 23 called, in the report released last week, for a "re-examination of alternative means of achieving U.S. objectives in Lebanon." Which means, in English, that unless the forces are withdrawn, the Pentagon will soon be in outright opposition to the presence.

Finally comes the domestic political factor. Jesse Jackson, by going to Syria and freeing an American prisoner of war, has given his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination a shot in the arm. Even before that, the Pentagon report virtually forced all Democrats to take issue with the administration. Hence the push by former Vice President Mondale for withdrawal in 45 days. Hence, too, the move by Speaker Tip O'Neill to align House Democrats behind an early deadline for withdrawal.

Opportunism rears its unlovely head in those actions. But the calls for withdrawal reflect deeper currents in public opinion. There is no general support for the Lebanese presence. Given the hostility of the Pentagon and the allies, a pullout becomes inevitable. Which brings us to the choice of exits.

Unilateral redeployment is quick and dirty. The Marines would simply be moved in stages — first south of Beirut, and then onto ships off the coast.

But there would be no political solution. The local forces on the ground would be left to their own devices. The Lebanese government of President Amin Gemayel would have to contend with the dissident Moslem minorities. The dissidents, in turn, would have to balance between the Lebanese Christians and the Syrians. All would have to fend off Israel.

In the process, some of the present Ins would become Outs. The settling of scores might produce some grisly scenes. Still, a local balance among Israelis, Syrians and the various Lebanese factions would almost certainly evolve. The U.S., with its offshore presence, would retain its capacity to influence the area as the superpower able to push around the regional power, Israel.

As to a diplomatic accord, the way has already been shown by that new Pied Piper, the Rev. Jackson. American diplomacy would follow him down the road to Damascus. The U.S. would conclude with President Hafez Assad a deal whereby Syria accepted the Lebanese government and agreed to leave Lebanon once Israeli troops were withdrawn. To seal the bargain, Lebanon would break the security treaty it signed with Israel under American auspices on May 17.

That arrangement would save face for the Gemayel regime and preserve a kind of order in Lebanon. Most Arab leaders would be pleased to see the U.S. break with Israel. President Reagan could, in those conditions, pull out the Marines, saying he had achieved peace with honor.

Those words, with their evocation of Neville Chamberlain after the Munich sellout, underline the perils of a negotiated retreat. The controlling fact is that Assad is one of the bloodiest leaders in the Middle East. He is, indirectly at least, party to the terrorist attacks that destroyed the American embassy and massacred 240 Marines. He is a radical nationalist, supported by Russia, and his alliance with Iran and Libya menaces the security of all the neighbors.

By negotiating with Syria, the U.S. certifies Assad as the leading figure in the Arab world. He would acquire increased ability to play off Russia against the U.S.

Billy Graham

Mental illness strains marriage

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My wife has some serious mental problems and from time to time has to be hospitalized. Needless to say our home life is hardly normal or happy, and several of my friends say I should leave her because she will never make a good wife. Is this a good reason to end a marriage? — P.T.R.

DEAR P.T.R.: Absolutely not. In fact, it should be a reason for your marriage to grow stronger, if you let it.

Do you remember the vow that you took when you were married? It probably went something like this: "I take thee ... to be my wedded wife; And I do promise and covenant; Before God and these witnesses; To be thy loving and faithful husband; In plenty and in want; In joy and in sorrow; In sickness and in health; As long as we both shall live."

You made that vow before God — not just your wife and your friends. Why do I stress this? I stress it because God gave marriage to us, and it should not be broken. One reason he gave it to us was so that when times of difficulty and stress come — such as serious illness — we would have someone to provide for us because of their love. Suppose, for a moment, that you were the one who was ill. Probably the worst thing that could happen to you then would be for your wife to leave you in such a time. It would be an extremely self-centered act — and selfishness is always the opposite of true love.

Your question indicates, however, that you (and probably your wife also) have never really thought very much about your relationship to God. But God loves you and wants to help you. Perhaps one reason why God has allowed this difficult time to come upon you both is to show you that you need him. You need forgiveness for your sins, and you need Christ's help to give you the love for each other that you should have.

Don't give in to your own selfish desires. Instead, turn to Christ by faith and invite him into your heart. If you will do that, Christ can give you a new joy and peace that you have never known before — even in the midst of the problems you may face. "Humble yourselves, therefore, under God's mighty hand, that he may lift you up in due time" (1 Peter 5:6). Then God will give you a new love for each other — a love which comes from God's love for you.

Thoughtful TV

Another thought-provoking TV special movie will air on CBS Jan. 24. It deals with ethics of police investigations and journalistic practices. Mario Thomas stars as Kathryn Beck, a quiet, serious woman who becomes friend to the man, played by Kris Kinstofferson, who unbeknownst to Beck, is under police surveillance. He loses the police, but they continue to harass Beck, feeding lurid stories to a news reporter whose front page articles destroy her life.

NBC presented "A Matter of Sex," starring Jean Stapleton and Dinah Manoff last Monday night. There was a great deal of cable trouble in our area and many missed this interesting true story. If it ever comes back on TV as a rerun, be sure to catch it. It is the story of the eight women who in 1976 sued their employer, the Willmer, Minn., bank for sex discrimination in what became a nationally publicized two-year struggle.

Did you know...? Last year only seven letters in every one million and three parcels in every 10,000 were lost in the U.S. mail. This happened as mail volume hit a new record.

Mail volume for fiscal 1983, ending Sept. 30, was up 4.7 percent to a record 119.4 billion pieces. The volume in fiscal 1982 was 114 billion pieces.

First class mail was up 3.3 percent and third-class was up 10.9 percent.

The Postal Service is more popular with the public than any department of the federal government, according to an opinion poll released by the Roper organization this month.

Participants in the national survey gave the Postal Service a 70 percent "favorable" rating. Runner-ups were the Department of Agriculture with a 58 percent "favorable" rating and the Treasury Department with a 55 percent "favorable" rating.

A voter registration drive among white-collar workers is planned by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Over 14 1/2 million such employees aren't registered, 25 percent of the total. And 40 percent of white-collar workers didn't vote in 1982. The registration campaign will help Republicans more than the Democrats.

Our own Chamber Governmental Affairs Committee will be considering ways to hold a local drive for voter registration.

The 150th birthday celebration of Texas Independence is on the way. In 1836, the Texas Centennial produced a wealth of materials promoting state historical preservation. The 1986 Sesquicentennial is another opportunity for us to take stock of ourselves, our past and future. Plans are already beginning in Big Spring for our part in this celebration.

Those interested in working closely with this can attend a series of free workshops funded by the Texas Committee for the Humanities. Call Joe Pickle or me for more information.

Perry Motor Freight and Perry Express, headed by the Perry brothers, Ken, Charles, Jim and Bob, had ribbon-cutting ceremonies last week for their Big Spring Terminal, which is both interstate and intrastate.

At a luncheon prior to the ribbon cutting, introducing the Perry officers and directors, Ken Perry said Big Spring would play an important part in the development of the vision of this community.

Charles displayed a map showing the 13 terminals now located in four states with between five to 10 scheduled to open in 1984.

Linda Floyd, executive director of the March of Dimes, has been pleased with the response to her request for volunteers for the Jan. 30th Mothers March. There are still spots open, however, for more volunteers. Call her at 263-3014, if you're willing to contribute a few hours on Jan. 30 to a great cause. A kickoff and orientation meeting will be held at the Big Spring Country Club next Tuesday.

4-H Around the County

4-Hers learn important leadership skills

This past weekend, Janet Anderson from Lucky Acres and Robbie Dolan, Tonya Rock and Dana Dolan from Forsan 4-H attended the Teen Leadership Retreat held at the Texas 4-H Center on Lake Brownwood.

Coordinator for the retreat was Dr. Martha Couch, a former Howard County 4-Her and Gold Star recipient. Having completed her doctorate degree, she is Area 4-H specialist in the Lubbock area. In this field, she meets with 4-H county agents to set up programs for the year for each county.

Assisting Dr. Couch were Tommy Martin and Carl Jackson from San Marcos.

The purpose for the retreat was to help us to become better leaders in our own clubs and how to have better control when your group is becoming restless. When the group has become noisy and out of order, have words that rhyme to get their attention.

For instance, the leader says, "Hi" and the group comes to attention and answers, "Ho." Some other suggestions are: 1. Not to be too bossy. 2. Take directions as well as give them. 3. Be a participant not an observer. 4. Not to shut others in our group out. Include and involve everyone. 5. Show enthusiasm ourselves.

Also discussed were ways to overcome our fears and sometimes to face them. Remember we are all people and we can all make mistakes. Consider others feelings when they are trying.

We were divided into groups to make a poster on 4-H. As we discussed, planned, and worked, we were shown how better to apply our rules.

Martin talked to us about the Space Shuttle. He gave us all a worksheet to do by ourselves, then to compare them with the other people in the groups. The worksheet was on what were the most important things to try to save if your shuttle wasn't working. We had to number them from 1 to 15. The grades averaged from 2 to 94, with the lower the grade, the better.

Then there were other activities, too. We had free time, planning time, movies, contests, games to get to know each other better. Then each night we had snacks and dancing before Vespers and lights out. We had a lot of fun.

The Howard County 4-H and FFA Stock Show will be held Jan. 27-28. You need to be putting the finishing touches on your animals now. We are hoping this will be the best show we have had yet. See you then.

Women think they're too fat

NEW YORK (AP) — No matter how thin they are, most women still think they're too fat.

Those were the findings in a Glamour magazine survey of about 33,000 readers, mostly women between the ages of 18 and 35. An overwhelming majority — 75 percent — said they felt "too fat," even though only 25 percent were actually over their desirable weights in standard height-weight tables.

Furthermore, 45 percent of the women who were actually underweight still said they felt too fat and wanted to diet.

"What we see is a steadily growing cultural bias. Almost no woman, of whatever size, feels she's thin enough," said Dr. Susan Wooley, a psychologist who analyzed the data, published in the magazine's February issue.

As for the parts of their bodies that they most despised, thighs, stomachs and hips were the greatest offenders.

The part women are most proud of? Feet got a whopping 81 percent vote, followed by calves and breasts.

Study examines suicide patterns

BOSTON (AP) — A study of suicides shows that people are most likely to take their own lives on Mondays, on the fifth day of the month and in the springtime.

Just why these patterns occur is a mystery, though experts suspect they reflect particularly stressful times for people who are depressed.

The latest study, conducted by Kathleen MacMahon at the Harvard School of Public Health, is based on an analysis of 185,887 suicides in the United States from 1972 through 1978. It confirms two trends that other researchers have also noticed: Monday is the most common day for suicides, and Saturday is the least. And people are most apt to kill themselves in May and least suicide-prone in December.

However, another finding of the study is new. According to the report, published in the American Journal of Epidemiology, the statistics "reveal a remarkable cyclic variation by day within month which has not previously been recognized."

Suicides reach a peak at about the fifth day of each month, when there are 6 percent more of them than usual. Then they decline to about the 23rd, when they start to go back up again. Throughout the whole year, the only major exception to this pattern is February, when suicides peak during the middle of the month.

However, none of this seems to be related to the phases of the moon, which some people think affect behavior.

"No ready explanation comes to mind for this as for the other cycles," Miss MacMahon wrote. "Possibly it is related to cycles in personal finances during the month — arrival of bills or pay checks, for example."

Monday is the most common day for suicides, and Saturday is the least. And people are most apt to kill themselves in May and least suicide-prone in December.

During April, she noted, the suicide surge arrives a bit later than usual and peaks in the week before federal income tax returns are due.

At the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, sociologist James Mercy said the outburst of suicides at the start of the work week has promoted some people to call this day "blue Monday."

Although it is not clear why people choose this day to kill themselves, he said, some theorize that "people are going back to work, and those who are isolated or left out feel an exaggerated sense of depression at that period."

These suicide trends are more than statistical curiosities, Mercy says.

"If we know that suicides occur at a higher rate at one point in time," he said, "we can alter interventions to take that into account."

It might help, for instance, to advertise suicide hotlines on Sunday evenings or in the springtime.

The study of suicide is a craft that thrives on statistics. For instance, various reports have shown:

—Suicide is the way that approximately one in every six people with major depression eventually dies.

—Suicide is the third leading cause of death among Americans in their late teens and early 20s.

—Women make two to three times as many suicide attempts as men, but men are more likely to be successful at it.

—The suicide rate for female physicians is four times higher than for women in other walks of life.

—The highest suicide rate in this century occurred in 1932, during the depths of the Great Depression.

—During the 1970s, there were 73 suicides a day.

A federal study published last year in the New England Journal of Medicine said the use of firearms to commit suicide has increased dramatically over a 25-year period — from 4.9 deaths per 100,000 in 1953 to 7.1 per 100,000 in 1978.

Oklahoma senators save money with free prayers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma's state senators are saving money with free prayers.

The move toward austerity in state government, forced largely by a decline in oil revenue, caused the Senate to cut its funding for the traditional "chaplain of the week" program.

Chaplains in the Senate, nominated by senators for one-week stints from various parts of the state, were paid $125 a week. They received no per diem, so cutting the program saved less than $3,000.

While Senate chaplains will no longer be paid, preachers have been asked to volunteer to lead a daily prayer.

"We don't have as many offering to do it for free as we did when we were paying them, but we do have some who have volunteered," said Senate Chief of Security Bob Craig, who coordinates the program.

Insulin pump may help diabetics

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A computer-controlled pump implanted in the abdomen for up to 10 years at a time could provide safer and simpler insulin treatment for diabetics, the pump's developer said.

The pump, which has so far been tested only in animals, can be programmed to dispense insulin in a way that mimics the normal action of the pancreas, which is deficient in diabetics, Robert Fischell of the Applied Physics Laboratory at Johns Hopkins University said Tuesday.

The Programmable Implantable Medication System, or PIMS, has a 10-year lifetime and can be easily refilled with medication from outside the body. Besides insulin, it can be used to dispense any drug that is used over a period of time.

The first use of the device in humans, which may come as early as March, will be to deliver pain-killing morphine to the spinal cords of terminal cancer patients, Fischell said.

By next year the pump could be in use by several people, he said.

Fischell, speaking at a science writers' seminar sponsored by the American Heart Association, said studies have shown that the pump may prevent certain side effects of diabetes by avoiding the single large daily injection of insulin now taken by many diabetics, who number about 10 million in the United States.

It may, for example, reduce levels of blood cholesterol, which are often abnormally high in insulin users, Fischell said.

He said the pump should be suitable for the delivery of drugs to control high blood pressure and prevent clot formation.

Other insulin pumps and drug delivery systems have been developed, but Fischell said his is the only one that can be immediately programmed to dispense drugs in the most natural ways.

Diabetics, for example, would be able to trigger the device at mealtimes to briefly increase the insulin dose just as the pancreas does in people who are not diabetic.

A small radio transmitter held over the abdomen would be used to send signals to the pump.

All this would be done in accordance with settings provided by the individual's doctor, who would be able to change the pump's settings by means of a telephone connection between the doctor's computer and the radio transmitter, Fischell said.

The pump, being manufactured by Pacesetter Systems of Sylmar, Calif., would be refilled by a special syringe that prevents accidental injection of medication into the abdomen rather than into the pump.

The syringe has no plunger, so medication cannot be ejected. But the pump contains a small vacuum chamber that sucks the medication in.

The device will probably cost about $10,000, Fischell said.

The development of the device was sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which also supported the earlier development of an implantable device to prevent abnormal heart rhythms called fibrillations.

The next step in research by Fischell and his colleagues will be the development of a drug-dispensing mechanism that can monitor conditions in the body, then adjust drug doses automatically.

Such a device is under development for treatment of hypertension, Fischell said.

It would administer anti-hypertension drugs to the bloodstream and measure blood pressure electronically, adjusting the drug dose to keep blood pressure normal.

Drug developed for stroke victims

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A new drug for treatment of strokes has produced dramatic reversal of paralysis and other damage in some people who received it within 24 hours of the attack, a researcher says.

A scientifically controlled study of the drug, called prostacyclin, has begun only recently, but in early trials with eight patients, four showed improvement, according to Dr. Frank Yatsu of the University of Texas Health Science Center in Houston.

Speaking Tuesday at a science writers' seminar sponsored by the American Heart Association, Yatsu said that one man who was given the drug had lost all movement on his right side and was unable to talk. Within minutes, both movement and speech were restored, Yatsu said.

In another report at the science writers' meeting, a researcher said Tuesday that high levels of a blood protein may indicate higher risk of heart disease in people with normal cholesterol levels and no apparent sign of illness.

Some 500,000 Americans suffer strokes each year, according to the American Heart Association. But Yatsu said only 50 percent to 60 percent of the victims can be treated with prostacyclin — those who suffer strokes caused by a blood clot in the neck or brain that blocks blood flow to a part of the brain, threatening to kill tissue.

Other strokes caused by leakage of blood into the brain or by a clot that travels from the heart to the brain must be treated by surgery and other means, Yatsu said.

A scientifically controlled study of the drug, called prostacyclin, has begun only recently, but in early trials with eight patients, four showed improvement.

Prostacyclin, which was discovered in 1976 and earned its discoverers the Nobel Prize, is a natural substance produced in blood vessel walls that helps regulate blood clotting. It prevents blood cells called platelets from sticking to vessels and forming clots and slightly opens tiny capillaries, easing the passage of blood.

In cases in which it can be used, prostacyclin should be administered as soon as possible after the stroke, Yatsu said, because once brain tissue dies the resulting damage cannot be corrected.

That tissue death can occur in a matter of minutes.

In the dramatic recovery described by Yatsu, the brain tissue had become inactive because its blood supply was drastically reduced, but enough blood apparently was getting through to keep the brain cells alive. That man did not receive the drug until 22 hours after his stroke.

Yatsu and colleagues at four other institutions in the United States are cooperating on the large-scale trial of the drug. It may be two years before the ongoing trial shows whether the drug is useful, Yatsu said.

If the drug is found to be effective, Yatsu expects paramedics will be trained to administer it intravenously as soon as they reach a stroke victim.

He also said that the manufacturer, Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., is working on the development of prostacyclin in pill form.

Of the stroke victims eligible for prostacyclin therapy, roughly 25 percent are likely to die, and half of the remainder will probably suffer permanent damage, Yatsu said.

So prostacyclin "may not be the penicillin of stroke therapy," he said, "but it certainly provides new insights."

Dr. Donohue

A look at how nerves work

Dear Dr. Donohue: In a recent column you answered a question on peripheral neuropathy involving damage to trunk and limbs. My question: Does peripheral nerve damage affect both the sensory and motor nerves together, or just one? I have a problem affecting the motor nerves, with my sensory nerves still at 100 percent. Can you help me understand what is happening? — T.W.

For other readers let me restate your question. Is it possible to retain sensation in a body part, like a leg, while losing control of muscles there, or vice versa? This can be answered if we take a closer look at nerves in general, then at the motor and sensory nerves in particular.

All nerves are bundles of specialized cells with long octopus-like tentacles. The tentacle of one nerve cell touches that of another, permitting a chain-reaction message relay.

But there is more than one kind of nerve, as you know. There are autonomic nerves that regulate certain body functions (like regulation of the heartbeat) the kind that occur without our conscious intervention. And there are cranial nerves, which are extensions of brain tissue — used for hearing, vision, etc.

Finally, there are the peripheral nerves, which reach out from the spinal cord, relaying messages between that point and body muscles and bringing in messages such as those for pain, temperature and position. Peripheral nerves are actually mixtures of two kinds of nerves — outgoing (motor) nerves and incoming (sensory) ones. They are, however, bundled into one large cable.

This brings us to your question. Peripheral neuropathy means that one or more of these peripheral nerve cables is diseased. Usually when this happens both outgoing (motor) and incoming (sensory) messages are affected. So you lose both muscle control and sensation. There is both motor and sensory deficit.

However, with certain illnesses there may be more of one deficit than of the other. For example, lead poisoning leads mostly to motor deficit. Muscle function is most affected, while sensation remains fairly intact. Other neuropathies, like Hansen's disease (formerly, but no longer, called leprosy) causes mostly sensory loss, with muscle control retained. Have I answered your question?

Low blood sugar is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of "Hypoglycemia," enclosing the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Winter care necessary for trees

Homeowners should begin watering and fertilizing their fruit and shade trees, but they should hold off any pruning of winter damage until just before spring to prevent more damage from late freezes, according to Texas Tech University plant and soil science professors.

Dr. George Tereshkovich said most shade trees probably were not harmed, but if tree damage should exist it will appear this spring.

"It's hard to tell if there is any damage a week after a cold snap," he said. "While the trees are dormant, they're not under stress and growing out, so the damage could be internal or just leaf loss."

Dr. John D. Downes said fruit trees have come through the recent cold in good shape, but the warm spell at the first of January may have done some damage because "fluctuating temperatures dehardened trees, making them more vulnerable to cold temperatures."

He said trees are toughened by cold temperatures and become dormant. Tree dehardening occurs when cell growth is stimulated by warm temperatures or pruning, causing the plant to be not as hard and more susceptible to cold temperatures during fluctuations, he said.

A cold snap following warm weather could kill parts of the tree because the tree may be dehardened, Downes said.

Homeowners should not prune injured wood on fruit trees at this time because pruning dehardens the trees, he said.

"People should put off pruning until at least late winter and then not do any drastic pruning of damaged parts because it will reduce fruiting potential," Downes said. "If there does appear to be some damage, prune it out, as it is better to have a reduced fruiting surface than to lose the tree."

Tereshkovich said homeowners will find out about shade trees' condition when the trees do or don't leaf out.

For fruit trees, the test is whether the buds come out. Even then, the buds may be damaged if they emerge during a warm period followed by a hard freeze, Downes said.

"If the buds do come out and are hit by frost, don't prune the branches back but wait to see if latent buds may give you at least a partial crop," Downes said.

Fruit trees sometimes sustain bark or wood damage from hard freezes. If the wood is damaged, the tree probably will be lost, but bark damage can be repaired, Downes said.

He urged homeowners not to tear off the split bark because it opens the tree to disease, fungus and decay. Instead, he suggested pushing the bark together, tacking it in place with small nails and then wrapping it with a protective material.

"If you find no wood damage, the tree should recover in a couple of years with judicious watering and fertilizing," he said. "If there are deep splits in the wood, I doubt the plant would survive."

If a tree has wood damage, its symptoms include late leafing, small leaves and little growth of the tree or fruit, Downes said.

He said the fruit trees also are affected by sun scald on the south and southwest sides, caused by sudden warming and by spring frost occurring after the trees have started blooming.

Tereshkovich said trees in most of West Texas went into the winter in good shape because of the heavy rains in October. "The October rains may have saved the trees because the moisture went deep into the ground, preventing winter desiccation," he said. "If we had had a dry fall on top of the dry summer, there wouldn't have been enough moisture in the soil and there probably would have been some root damage."

The amount of moisture in the ground will determine plant survival or the extent of injury. Loss of leaves is a normal process and is not indicative of a damaged plant, Tereshkovich said.

Before next winter, Downes suggested homeowners stop fertilizing in late summer and water trees heavily before the cold weather sets in, wetting the ground to a depth of three or four feet. Also fruit tree trunks can be wrapped with an insulating material or have soil banked around them to protect the ground line area of the trees.

The trees also can be sprayed with white paint up to the main branches for protection, Downes said.

Dear Abby

Buckle baby's seat belt

DEAR ABBY: "Worried Sick" expressed concern because her sister never bothered to tell her children to buckle up their seat belts. The sister dismisses it by saying, "If anything happens to them, it will be God's will."

"I'm sending you an article I clipped from Aids magazine. It really shook some sense into me, and now I religiously buckle my children into their seat belts before I turn the key: CHILD SAFETY SEATS

This recent letter to Dear Abby made our point about child restraints better than we ever could.

"Dear Abby: Here in New York, the state legislature recently passed a law requiring all car passengers 4 years old and under to be strapped into approved safety seats. There is a $25 fine for parents who have not equipped their cars as yet, and that $25 goes toward the purchase of a seat. I can't believe all the grumbling and complaining about this law.

"We moved here four years ago, leaving behind in Ohio a deep, dark secret we never mention here. Six years ago I was driving my 6-month-old daughter, unbelted, sitting in her carrier beside me. Five blocks from home, I was broadsided by a truck.

"My car flipped over twice, and my precious baby girl was tossed around inside like a pingpong ball. She died 72 hours later of massive head injuries. (I was told it was a blessing — that she would have been a vegetable had she lived.)

"Going home to an empty nursery drove me crazy with guilt. I had always been so careful. I had padded her crib, made sure she had only the safest toys, guarded her with my life and loved her with all my heart. If I had only known what I know now, she would have ridden home from the hospital as a newborn baby in a safety seat instead of in my arms.

"We buried the truth with Tina and moved here to escape the memories. No one here knows we ever had a child. My husband finds it too hard to talk about. Since I can't tell the story, I beg you to do it for me. If it saves only one child's life, Tina's death will not have been in vain. — Learned Too Late"

ALSO WORRIED

DEAR ABBY: In a lot of states it's the law that all children have to be buckled into safety belts when they're riding in a car. There are also TV commercials to remind adults to "buckle up."

If everyone is so concerned about safety in automobiles, how come there are no safety belts on school buses?

If safety belts save lives, why not save more lives by putting safety belts in all public vehicles, like the city buses, too?

B.P. IN AVILLA, IND.

Christmas customs discussed at meeting

"Much of our Christmas art and decorations originated in the Bible in Luke and Matthew; however, some of our customs have pagan beginnings," said Betty Thomas as she told about the symbols used in Christmas art and decorations at the 1905 Hyperion Club meeting, Dec. 15.

"Through the years other traditions have developed. St. Nicholas filling the stockings goes back to the 4th century, and St. Francis of Assisi is said to have begun the custom of the humble and lowly creche," she said.

The meeting was held at First Baptist Church Parlor.

Rene Eyskens shares her family's favorite recipes

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

We received two letters this week requesting recipes for several items. A woman named Sheena, who works at Halliburton, requests recipes for corn dogs, cheese cake, fried cheese, baked beans and meat loaf. Another woman wanted Jacky Brackeen's recipes for Chili Con Queso, Swedish Meat Balls and Spinach Dip.

If you have these recipes, and even recipes similar to Jackie Brackeen's, please send them to the Herald Recipe Exchange so our readers can compare them and choose the one for their families. The address is Herald Recipe Exchange, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Rene Eyskens, secretary to Tom Watson, publisher of The Herald, is known as a terrific cook among her family and friends. Today's Recipe Exchange features several of her favorite recipes and tips.

Rene says, "be adventurous; be creative. Try new things all the time so you develop new favorites."

"If you learn to read recipes, you will know if your family will like them," she says. Think about the combination of ingredients.

"People all over the world use the same ingredients, but they turn out a different product. For example, potato pancakes are made different in three countries. There isn't one that is better, it's just finding the one your family likes best," she said. Another tip is "if you give a fancy name to a recipe, people are a lot more impressed with it."

Take time to garnish the dish, Rene says. Lemons and oranges are good garnishes that children will eat later. "The time and effort are worth it," she says. "You may think you don't have the time to do something different (a new recipe). It could be fun to do it and it doesn't necessarily have to take all day. Try some new ones and enjoy."

Rene also has definite ideas on how to buy a cookbook. "Check it out from the library first and try it out at home. That way you have a two week period to look it over. And if you like it, then go and buy it."

Two of her favorite cookbooks are The American Regional Cookbook and The New Orleans Cookbook. The first book is divided into regions of the country. It gives quite a bit of background information on recipes. "If I know a story behind a recipe then that's fascinating," Rene said.

The second book has a wide variety of Cajun recipes, "not just shrimp creole or gumbo," Rene said.

CARROT CAKE

Rene Eyskens
Refrigerate leftover cake to keep the frosting from spoiling. Carrot Cake tastes best at room temperature, so take it out of the refrigerator about 30 to 40 minutes before serving.

- 2 1/2 cup flour
- 2 cup sugar
- 2 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp. freshly grated nutmeg
- 1/2 tsp. allspice
- 5 large eggs
- 1 cup (2 sticks) well-softened salt butter
- 3 cup grated fresh carrots
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans or walnuts

FROSTING

1 (8-ounce) pkg. Philadelphia cream cheese
1/2 cup (1/2 stick) salt butter
1 lb. confectioners' sugar
Sift the dry ingredients together twice. In a large mixing bowl beat the eggs with an electric mixer or a wire whisk for 2 minutes. Add the butter and mix lightly but thoroughly. Gradually add the dry ingredients, mixing gently but constantly with a wooden spoon or spatula. Add the grated carrots and chopped nuts and mix to blend thoroughly.

LOCAL COOK — Rene Eyskens, secretary, shares a few of her favorite recipes and tips in this week's Recipe Exchange.

Butter 3 eight-inch layer pans, an 11-X-15-inch pan, or a 10-inch tub mold, then dust the buttered surface lightly with flour. Pour the batter into the pans and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for about 30 minutes for layers, 50 minutes for a single rectangular cake, or 1 hour and 10 minutes for a tub-mold cake. Test for doneness by inserting a cake tester or toothpick into the center of the cake; if it comes out dry, the cake is done. Set to cool on a rack.

To prepare the frosting, cream the cream cheese and butter together with a pastry blender or spatula until smooth. Add the sugar and blend thoroughly by mixing with a wooden spoon, wire whisk or electric mixer at low speed for 2 minutes. For a layer cake, frost the top of each layer, stack, then cover the sides with frosting. For a single rectangular, frost the top and sides and make patterned swirls on the top with any leftover frosting. For a tube cake, spread the entire surface evenly with frosting, using a spatula.

BEIGNETS (FRENCH MARKET DOUGHNUTS)

Rene Eyskens
Beignets are the rectangular doughnuts served fresh and hot around the clock at the French Market coffeehouses in New Orleans. They are simple to prepare at home. They are great for breakfast or a snack. The dough must be prepared in advance and refrigerated overnight. For home preparation, the dough works best in the large quantity given, enough for five dozen beignets. The dough keeps well under refrigeration for almost a week. Just cut off some dough when you want to make beignets. The secret to the flavor of beignets is using canned evaporated milk.

- 1 1/2 cup warm water
- 1 pkg. active dry yeast
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 large eggs
- 1 cup undiluted canned evaporated milk
- 7 cups flour
- 1/4 cup vegetable shortening
- Oil for deep frying
- Confectioners' sugar

Put the warm water into a large bowl, then sprinkle in the dry yeast and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Add the sugar, salt, eggs and evaporated milk. Gradually stir in 4 cups of the flour and beat with a wooden spoon until smooth and thoroughly blended. Beat in the shortening, then add the remaining flour, about 1/2 cup at a time, beating it in with a spoon until it becomes stiff to stir, then working in the rest with your fingers. Cover the bowl with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight.

Roll the dough out on a floured board or marble pastry surface to a thickness of 1/8 inch, then cut it into rectangles 2 1/2 inches by 3 1/2 inches with a sharp knife. Preheat oil in a deep fryer to 360 degrees. Fry the beignets about 3 or 4 at a time until they are puffed out and golden brown on both sides (about 2 to 3 minutes per batch). Turn them over in the oil with tongs once or twice to get them evenly brown, since they rise to the surface of the oil as soon as they begin to puff out. Drain each batch, place on a platter lined with several layers of paper towels, and put the platter in a 200 degree oven to keep warm. Sprinkle the beignets heavily with confectioners' sugar and serve piping hot.

CHICKEN PONTALBA

Rene Eyskens
Simple to prepare if you proceed one step at a time.
1/2 cup (1 stick) salt butter
1 cup chopped onion
1 1/2 cup thinly sliced shallots (scallions)
1 Tbsp. finely minced garlic
1 1/4 cup diced potatoes (1/2-inch dice)
1 cup diced lean ham (3/4-inch dice)
1 1/4 cup thinly sliced fresh mushrooms (if not available, substitute high quality canned)
1/2 cup dry white wine
1 Tbsp. finely minced fresh parsley
1 cup flour
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
1/2 tsp. cayenne
2 lb. deboned chicken breast, leg, and thigh (about 2 whole small fryers)
1 cup vegetable oil

2 cups Bearnaise Sauce
In a heavy 10-inch saute pan or skillet melt the butter over low heat. Add the onion, shallots, garlic and potatoes and cook over low heat until the vegetables are browned (about 15 minutes), stirring frequently. Add the diced ham, mushrooms, wine, and parsley and cook for 8 minutes more, then turn off the heat. Remove the vegetables and ham from the pan with a slotted spoon and place in a large gratin dish attractive enough to bring to the table, allowing the excess butter to drain back into the pan. Put the dish in a preheated 200 degree oven.

In a shallow bowl or pie dish, combine the flour, salt, black pepper and cayenne. Cut up the larger pieces of deboned chicken so that none are thicker than about 1/2 inch or longer than about 1 1/2 inches. Dredge the pieces of chicken in the seasoned flour. Add the vegetable oil to the butter in the pan, then heat the oil and butter mixture until it sizzles lightly. Fry the chicken pieces until they are cooked through and golden brown on all sides (about 8 to 10 minutes), turning frequently with tongs. Remove the chicken, drain for a minute on paper towels, then arrange the pieces evenly over the sauteed vegetables in the gratin dish. Put the dish back in the oven while you prepare the bearnaise sauce, then remove the dish from the oven, spoon the sauce evenly over the entire surface, and serve. Serves four.

BEARNAISE SAUCE

Rene Eyskens
Glaze:
1 1/2 Tbsp. finely minced green shallot (scallion) tops
1/4 tsp. finely minced garlic
2 tps. fresh lemon juice
1/4 cup dry white wine
1/2 Tbsp. dried tarragon
1/2 Tbsp. dried chervil
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. freshly ground white pepper
1/2 cup (1 stick) salt butter
3 large egg yolks

Scant 1/2 tsp. cayenne
In a small heavy saucepan combine the ingredients for the glaze and cook over medium heat until the mixture is reduced to about 2 tablespoons; it will have almost no liquid. In a separate saucepan, melt the butter over the medium heat, then remove from the heat. Put the egg yolks and cayenne in the blender container. Cover and blend on high speed for a few seconds, just to break the yolks. Add the glaze, cover again, and turn the blender on high for a few seconds more. Remove the blender cover, turn on high speed, and gradually pour in the hot melted butter in a steady stream. Cover the blender and switch on for 60 seconds and then off for 30 seconds. Repeat the on-off procedure until the sauce is quite thick. Makes about 1/2 cup.

Cold Steers lose, 62-30

MIDLAND — The weather was not the only thing cold in the Howard County area Tuesday night — so were the Big Spring High School Steers.

Big Spring couldn't buy a shot against Midland Lee and the end result was a 62-30 whipping suffered by the Steers in 4-AAAA boys basketball action. Big Spring is 0-5 and 2-18 overall.

Three minutes were gone in the first quarter before Big Spring found the basket. By that time Lee led, 9-0 and after the Steers' initial field goal the Rebels ripped off nine more points to hold a commanding, 18-2 advantage. The halftime score stood at 34-14, Lee.

In the third quarter field goals were virtually non-existent for the Steers. They garnered only four points, scoring 30 seconds into the period and then again when there were 30 seconds left in the quarter.

Turnovers plagued the Steers again with coach Mike Randle's young crew committing 30 giveaways.

Mike Leuschner and Billy Cole were high point Steers with nine and six points respectively. Jimmy Brown, Mark Sanders, Glen Mellinger, Fred Cole, John Howie and Chris Roberts rounded out the point production for Big Spring.

The Steers will host Odessa Permian Friday in three games with a sophomore contest starting things at 4 p.m. The JV and varsity games are expected to start at 6:15 and 8 p.m.

Vilas' suspension is lifted but $20,000 fine remains effective

NEW YORK (AP) — The International Lawn Tennis Federation today threw out the one-year suspension imposed on Argentine tennis star Guillermo Vilas for accepting an illegal guarantee to appear in a tournament.

But the federation ordered Vilas to pay the $20,000 fine that went with the suspension.

The federation said that the three-member appeals board had ruled unanimously on both issues.

The 31-year-old Vilas, who has been ranked among the world's top ten tennis players since 1974, was charged with accepting an illegal $60,000 guarantee to play in a Volvo Grand Prix tournament in Rotterdam, Netherlands, last March. He was fined $20,000 and suspended for a year by the Men's International Professional Tennis Council.

Two days of public hearings were conducted in Rotterdam in December, followed by three more days of testimony in New York that ended Monday.

The review board included Vic Seixias, the Wimbledon champion in 1953, Bill Talbert, another former tennis star, and Forrest Hainline Jr., a Detroit lawyer.

Marshall Happer, administrator of the Pro Council, made the original determination that Tiriak had accepted a guarantee from the Rotterdam tournament, in violation of Volvo Grand Prix rules, and that determination was upheld by the Pro Council last June.

Wolves get first loop win, 56-54

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — The Coahoma and Colorado City girls hooked up in a District 6-3A basketball contest Tuesday night that had more excitement, chills and spills than any spectator could want, and when the final buzzer went off and no time was left on the clock Coahoma still had a chance to send a 56-54 game into overtime.

The ordeal rested on the shoulders of freshmen post player Shana Fowler, who was the main reason Coahoma had pulled from a 14-point deficit to within two.

Fowler was fouled at the buzzer on an attempted jump shot by C-City's Sonja Mercer. Fortunately for Colorado City, Fowler missed both attempts.

In fact it the young Fowler and older sister Ronda that got Coahoma back into the game after trailing 47-33 late in the third quarter.

Ronda, a senior hit three key baskets in the closing minutes while Shana came dominated the boards in the second half; especially the offensive boards where she collected six of her game-high 11 rebounds.

But it the shooting touch of Colorado City guard Laura Baum that proved to be the difference in the contest. Baum hit 12 to 17 shots from the floor and led all scorers with 29 points. The 5-8 senior also worked hard on the board along with Julie Waid and Sherry Fite as the trio combined for 22 of the Wolves' 36 rebounds. Coahoma stayed close in the first half thanks to timely shooting from Jana Griffin who led Coahoma scorers with 14 points.

Coahoma started its surge in the final quarter with the C-City holding a comfortable 48-36 lead. Shana Fowler started thing off by grabbing two offensive rebounds and turning them into scores. She got her third consecutive basket on a feed from Rhonda Fowler, cutting the lead to 48-42.

With 2:37 remaining in the game Rhonda Fowler hit her second baseline jumper and Colorado City's lead had dwindled to 52-49.

C-City's Julie Waid hit a free throw at the other end and Rhonda Fowler sunk her third straight basket and the lead was 53-51.

Colorado City got another point when Fite hit a free throw. At the other end Shana Fowler grabbed another offensive rebound and was fouled on the play. She sunk both of them to pull Coahoma to within 54-53 with 38 seconds remaining.

After a Coahoma steal, the ever present Baum stole the ball right back and dribbled in for a layup to up the score to 56-53 with 20 seconds remaining. Down at the other end with 13 seconds left Shana Fowler was fouled on a rebound, sunk one shot and that's the way the score would end.

Colorado City took control of the contest in the second quarter when its running game hit high gear. C-City sank eight of its first nine shots in the quarter as Denise Jackson and Baum hit two baskets each. Fite, Waid and Lynn Scott each got layups off the break.

When Colorado City slowed down, they had built up a 34-18 lead with four minutes remaining in the half. C-City shot a hot 63 percent from the field in the first half; and 53 percent for the game.

The win was Colorado City's first in four district outings. Coahoma's district record falls to 1-3.

Colorado City boys stay perfect in 6-AAA, 54-49

COAHOMA — The Colorado City Wolves' full court press wasn't effective the entire game against Coahoma, but when it was it had a powerful effect on the Bulldogs as the Wolves took a 54-49 victory in boys District 6-3A basketball action.

The first time Colorado City mentor Mike Hart ordered his troops into the press was early in the second quarter, and that was the time that did Coahoma in.

The Wolves barrage started with the second stanza one minute old, just after the Wolves had taken the lead. Junior postman Don Randle, who finished the night with a game-high 16 points along with 8 rebounds.

Then Colorado City's press, keyed by Dennis Rivera and Doug Chitsey who had no less than five steal each; went to work. First Randle hit a basket, got a steal and scored another basket. Next Rivera and Randle scored two more baskets each as the C-City onslaught went on.

In a six minute span the Wolves outscored the Bulldogs 17-5 and took a 30-17 halftime lead.

Colorado City's defense was so tough that it held Coahoma's high scoring John Swinney scoreless the first half.

Swinney did not score his first points until 2:53 remaining in the third quarter. Coahoma slowly edged its way back into the game as Swinney found his shooting touch in the final quarter.

The 6-3 junior rallied his teammates with 8 points in the final quarter. The Wolves seemed in command of the game as they held a 46-32 lead with six minutes remaining.

But the Bulldogs fought back thanks to some presser defense of their own. James Sanders hit a basket, Robbie Phernetton, who ended the night as Coahoma's leading scorer with 14 points scored on an offensive rebound and Swinney hit from the top of the key to cut the lead to cut the margin to 46-38.

Randle ended the Bulldog's string with a 10-foot jumper and it would be the last serious threat Coahoma would make.

The Bulldogs led the entire first quarter as they jumped out to a quick 6-0 lead on two long range bombs by Brian Calaway and a basket by Phernetton. Late in the quarter the Wolves narrowed the margin to 10-9 on basket by Rivera and Yardy Powell.

The Wolves are undefeated in district with a 2-0 record, while Coahoma drops to 1-1.

Rozier looking at NFL

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier of Nebraska says he didn't accept money from an agent last summer, wasn't coerced into signing with the United States Football League and didn't fire his agent, Mike Trope.

In a copyright story in today's editions of the Omaha World-Herald, Rozier denied earlier news reports that he may have taken the money, may have been coerced into signing the contract and had fired Mike Trope.

Rozier made the comments in an interview Tuesday after he returned to Lincoln from the Japan Bowl.

He also said he plans to eventually move to the National Football League after his three-year, $3.1-million contract expires with the USFL's Pittsburgh Maulers.

Rozier said he was reluctant to talk to reporters because he was disappointed in stories written while he was in Japan.

"Wouldn't you be disappointed that some people were talking . . . in the papers that isn't true?" Rozier asked.

Rozier said he was upset with a Boston Globe story that reported he may have been coerced into signing with the Maulers the day after the Orange Bowl. If Rozier didn't sign, the story said, Trope would reveal that Rozier had accepted money from him before his senior year.

"I don't think Trope told anyone that," Rozier said.

Asked if Trope threatened to say Rozier had been paid money before his senior season if he didn't sign with the USFL, Rozier said, "He didn't threaten me. I don't know anything about that. That's just not true."

Rozier said Trope didn't pay him money before his last Cornhusker season.

He also denied a story Monday that said he had fired Trope. The report said Trope was fired during a telephone conversation while Rozier was in Japan and Trope was in the home of Rozier's parents in Camden, N.J.

"No, I didn't fire him," Rozier said. "I'm telling you, that's a bunch of junk they wrote in the paper."

When Rozier was told that his family lawyer, Art Wilkinson of Philadelphia, said he had indeed fired Trope, Rozier said, "Why don't you call him?"

"I'm telling you, I just hired Trope to negotiate my contract. Nobody got fired or nothing."

Rozier said Trope understood that he would be Rozier's agent only until his initial professional contract was signed.

Asked about reports that he had become upset that Trope had also signed him to a six-year professional services contract that allotted Trope 13 percent of Rozier's earnings, Rozier said, "I just hired him to negotiate my contract, not to handle my money, just to do my contract. He knew that."

Rozier also denied reports that he was unhappy with his reported $3.1 million Maulers' contract.

Branch ready for second try

STRETCH AND TURN — Los Angeles Raiders wide receiver Cliff Branch twists and turns during an exercise period before a team workout in Tampa as the TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The last time the Washington Redskins saw Cliff Branch, it was from behind. The speedy Los Angeles wide receiver is anxious to give them another look from that direction.

"I can't wait for Sunday to get here," said Branch on Monday, after the Raiders had arrived at this site of Super Bowl XVIII. "I think Washington is vulnerable in the secondary. I'm healthy, I'm ready."

Branch, who is completing his 12th National Football League season, was on the receiving end of a 99-yard touchdown pass play during the Redskins' wild 37-35 victory over the Raiders on Oct. 2 in Washington.

The play came in the second quarter, cutting Washington's lead at the time to 10-7. While it was a big play for the Raiders, it also was a big play for the Redskins since Branch suffered a hamstring injury on the play and had to sit out the rest of the game. "I missed the next five games, too," recalled Branch, who holds the NFL record for receiving yards in postseason play with 1,195 yards in 20 games. "I'm just glad I didn't have to undergo a knife (surgery)."

On Sunday, Branch will be in the starting lineup for a third time in Super Bowl competition. He believes he'll be a member of the winning team a third time. "This is what you go to training camp for," said

Branch, who helped the Raiders trounce Minnesota 32-14 in Super Bowl XI and whip Philadelphia 27-10 in Super Bowl XV. "We're ready, no question about it. There's a lot riding on this game. We want to be world champions. We can't let these guys win it two years in a row, no way."

The Redskins, 16-2, topped Miami 27-17 in Super Bowl XVII last Jan. 30 and are favored by three points over the Raiders, 14-4. "We want to play the Redskins," said Branch.

"It's fitting that we're playing them. We think we owe them something."

"They won't have the home field advantage and their fans this time," he added. "We're on neutral turf now."

Branch, a 5-foot-11, 170-pounder, was asked if the Raiders planned to pick on any particular member of the Washington secondary.

"We're just going to attack, period," he said. "We don't try to pick on one individual or one side of the field. We'll put the ball in the air. We'll go deep. We're just going to play Raider football."

Branch smiled when he talked about what he called Raider football.

"We're not America's team, that's for sure," he said. "We're a very intimidating team and we do a lot of talking. We like that. It's part of the Raiders' image. We are winners."

Will the Redskins be intimidated?

"I can't really say," he replied. "They probably figure they're intimidating and physical, too."

Stanton boys drop 8-AA game with Eldorado by 56-54 count

By BILLY NABOURS

STANTON — In a game that was played as close to the vest as one could ask for, Eldorado nipped Stanton, 56-54 here Tuesday night in 8-AA boys basketball action.

The loss places Stanton at 1-2 in district and 10-9 overall.

Eldorado jumped in front quickly and led throughout most of the first quarter by a margin of two to four points. Darren Hagen and Jerry Anderson ran off eight consecutive Stanton points in the final 20 minutes of the period, however to give the Buffalos the lead, 19-17.

Stanton continued to lead through the second quarter also despite the absence of starter Robby Barnes who went to the sidelines early with foul trouble. Mark Gonzales came off the bench and hit a field goal that kept Stanton ahead, 28-27 with a minute before intermission. The Eagles came back with a pair though and were up, 30-28 at halftime.

A tight contest continued in the second half as Stanton regained control, 42-41 after three periods. Hagen, who led all scorers with 16 points, Anderson, Rocky Barnes and Gonzales fueled the comeback.

In the fourth quarter a lack of free throw shooting contributed to Stanton's downfall while Buffs coach Eric Looney said "they (Eldorado) did everything right. They played us well and came through."

Looney added the loss does not knock his team from playoff contention because "the district is so balanced. It's possible someone could lose two games and finish second. We have to make sure we win the rest of them though."

The Buffalos travel to Big Lake Friday for a game with Regan County.

Lady Buffs fall in loop match

STANTON — The Stanton Lady Buffalos suffered a 51-44 loss against Eldorado Tuesday night at Buffalo gym, seriously damaging any 8-AA first round basketball playoff aspirations for Stanton.

Stanton is 1-3 for the first half of district play with one game remaining against Big Lake (Reagan County). Head coach Bill West said afterward "Wall pretty much has things in control for the first round." He added "the best thing for us to do is try and win it all in the second round and force a playoff."

Dawna West was the only Lady Buffalo in double figures with 20 points despite playing with a knee injury. Pam Garcia and Ruth Jones added seven each and Catherine Scurlock six. Julie Todd and Sabrina Finch chipped in two apiece.

DENNIS THE MENACE

HOW COME I ALWAYS HAVE TO TAKE A BATH WHEN I'M HUNGRY AND HAVE TO EAT WHEN I FEEL LIKE TAKIN' A BATH?

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Look what I can do, Grandma!"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JAN. 19, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for some delays where some long desired wish is concerned, you are now under excellent influences for putting into motion a course of action that is broad and comprehensive.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Steer clear of that money problem with another and you can then carry through with activities of worth you have in mind.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid one who is inimical to your best interests and look to family for the support you may need at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Regular tasks can be annoying to you today, so dash out and do those profitable and interesting things at hand.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Finances should be uppermost on your mind. You can handle them well, provided you forget a jealous romance.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Rely on yourself and charm others into doing what you want that is of a constructive nature. Avoid opposition from kin.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Walk and drive with greater care than usual. Don't change those particular plans you want to put in operation shortly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Forget the financial side of life and concentrate on more private, personal affairs and improve them. Spend time with friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get into some kind of civic work that will give you added prestige and stop being demanding with friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Stop worrying about something you can do little about and take on new interests that can be more profitable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get busy on practical affairs and avoid friends who expect too much of you. Devote spare time to your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be with persons who have your interests at heart and have good ideas. Steer clear of irate higher-ups.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get into money matters that are worthwhile and of real scope and be ready to do the work that can bring big success.

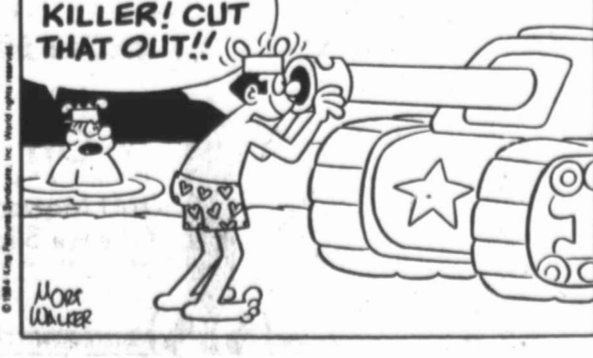

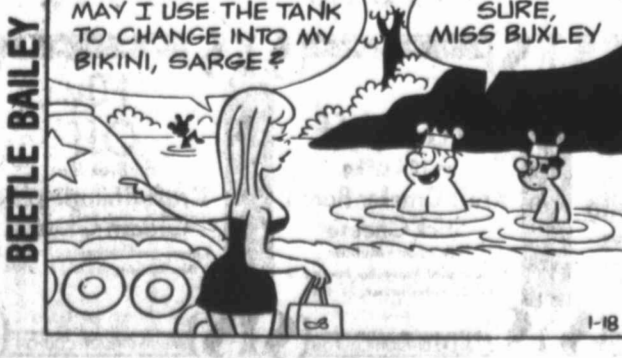

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will early in life make wonderful plans for the future and will have the ability to make them materialize. Be encouraging in this. Teach not to be jealous or greedy, but more willing to share good fortune with the less fortunate.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Group fasts to prevent Kiss rock concert

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A group opposed to rock music has asked local ministers to join in prayer and fasting to prevent the band KISS from playing a scheduled concert Thursday night.

"A rock concert often turns out to be a crash course in drugs, violence, satanism and rebellion," said Sam Shamoon, a member of People's Baptist Church, who is spearheading the concert protest.

About 20 people gathered Sunday at the Altar of Prayer Church to hear Shamoon ask members of other Corpus Christi churches to participate in the prayer and fasting to keep the rock band out of the city.

"We feel that prayer and fasting will prevent the concert. We are asking all pastors to pray and fast," Shamoon said.

Shamoon hopes prayer is more productive than politics. Last March, the group unsuccessfully asked the city council to ban rock concerts at municipal facilities.

"I listened to all the arguments for the concert at the city council meeting last year...constitutional rights, freedom of choice, freedom of the arts, selective perception and the American way of life.

"I believe in all of the above, but most people today tend to confuse freedom with moral depravity," Shamoon said.

The Rev. J. J. Fox, pastor of the Altar of Prayer Church, said he was joining in protest against the concert, but was not participating in the fast.

Shamoon was joined Sunday by two 16-year-olds from the Anchor Home for Boys who spoke against rock music.

Both teenagers blamed rock music for creating problems in their lives.

Spy gets diplomatic immunity

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge ruled Tuesday that a Bulgarian trade official arrested on espionage charges is protected by diplomatic immunity.

The judge ordered that Penyu B. Kostadinov, who was indicted on charges he tried to buy classified U.S. nuclear weapons security secrets, be held in prison while the government appeals his ruling.

The ruling was made by Judge Vincent L. Broderick at U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

The Justice Department had argued that Kostadinov's job as an assistant Bulgarian trade counselor at the Bulgarian Commercial Office, located at 121 E. 62nd St. in Manhattan, was not a diplomatic post.

Kostadinov, 41, was arrested Sept. 23 after allegedly buying a classified report on U.S. nuclear weapons security procedures from an unnamed American who was cooperating with the FBI.

The FBI described the documents as highly classified U.S. government material relating to nuclear energy. They were seized after Kostadinov's arrest.

The bureau would not disclose the source of the documents.

China's evening news shows birth on a train

PEKING (AP) — China's television viewers on Tuesday saw a woman give birth on a train, thanks to an alert TV news crew that happened to be aboard.

The nightly news, China's most popular television program, reported that crew members heard that a woman was about to give birth in a sleeper car after the train left Yanzhou in Shandong Province en route to Nanjing at 9:30 p.m. Monday.

"They immediately went to the car and filmed," said commentator Xi Chen. "At 10:30 p.m., a baby girl was born."

The broadcast showed several uniformed officials attending to the unidentified woman as one cut the infant's umbilical cord. The commentator said many passengers gave sweets to the mother as gifts.

"In our country, relatives are everywhere," he said.

Such stories are unusual fare for the evening TV news in China, which generally concentrates on state meetings, official visits and factory reports.

Tax amnesty plan draws thousands

BOSTON (AP) — Thousands of tax evaders were "storming the doors" at state offices Tuesday before an amnesty program ran out at midnight, and a delighted official predicted the last day would net $30 million.

The state had collected $18.5 million from 16,000 taxpayers as of Friday.

"I wouldn't be at all surprised if more than 10,000 people walked through the Department of Revenue," Commissioner Ira Jackson said. "That would be virtually unprecedented. We've obviously struck a very responsive chord."

"We don't have time to count money on people," he said.

The one-time, three-month amnesty program frees taxpayers who pay back taxes and interest from any prosecution and civil penalties.

The original 30-member staff of the amnesty program had to be beefed up to 300 Tuesday to handle the lines of people and piles of mail.

The department's dozen offices originally were to remain open until 8 p.m., but by late morning long lines prompted Jackson to order offices in the state's three largest cities — Boston, Worcester and Springfield — to stay open until midnight. And offices in Lowell, 25 miles north of Boston, and Hyannis on Cape Cod would probably follow, he added.

"As one 30-year veteran of the department said, 'Now we've seen everything — people storming the doors to pay taxes at the Department of Revenue,'" Jackson said. "That's literally what we've been faced with."

"This is going to be a $20 million Tuesday," he said.

One recalcitrant taxpayer waiting in line at the department's downtown office explained his reason for paying up.

"Deep down you expect one day to get a notice, 'You owe taxes, so why not come in?'" said the young man, declining to give his name.

Revenue spokesman Harry Durning reported 3,600 amnesty applications arrived in the morning mail, on top of 13,000 received Monday.

"It's chaos," Durning said from his downtown office. "Booming business here."

Man accused of stealing

BALTIMORE (AP) — A man accused of transporting a stolen 120-year-old photograph — the only known picture of Confederate Gen. Stonewall Jackson at a Civil War encampment — faces up to 20 years in prison and a $30,000 fine if convicted of the federal charges.
The trial in U.S. District Court, which began Monday, is expected to conclude today.
Jack Miller, an FBI agent, told the jury Tuesday that Jeffrey Thomas Stouffer admitted he had seen the rare ambrotype, worth between $15,000 and $20,000, at a West Virginia mansion in 1979 and had photographed it with a borrowed 35mm camera.
Stouffer, 34, of Sharpburg, is charged with receiving stolen goods and transporting stolen property across state lines, from West Virginia to Maryland. He was not charged with stealing the photograph, which was switched with a fake and has not been recovered, a curator said.
The photograph, more than 120 years old, was allegedly stolen from a miniature chest atop a piano in a room at a Charles Town, W. Va., estate, according to prosecution witnesses. The estate, known as The Piedmont, was owned by the late Louise Briscoe, who was 96 when she died in October 1979, according to testimony.
The picture, which shows Jackson, two officers and a slave at a Confederate encampment during the Civil War, is the only known photograph of Jackson in the field, according to a Smithsonian Institution curator.
The original photograph, actually an ambrotype or an image on glass that was the Civil War-era equivalent of a modern Polaroid picture, has not been recovered since it was reported missing three years ago.
The 3 1/4-by-4 1/4-inch ambrotype, which also pictured Miss Briscoe's uncle, Capt. Fred Briscoe, who was Jackson's assistant quartermaster, was kept inside a red velvet-lined leather case beneath glass and bordered by a copper mat.
But William Stapp, curator of photographs for the Smithsonian Institution's national portrait gallery in Washington, D.C., testified that the picture now in the case is not the original.
"In fact," Stapp said, "it's a modern black and white copy photograph pasted onto a piece of glass and shellacked to give it the semblance of an ambrotype."
Stapp also testified that the pilfered ambrotype was photographed sometime between the fall of 1861 and late spring or early summer of 1862. Jackson was 49 when he died May 10, 1863, from wounds he suffered in the battle of Chancellorsville nine days before.
Stapp, who said he would have recommended Smithsonian acquisition of the ambrotype, said he would have expected to pay $15,000 or more for the original.
An appraiser of antique photographs, Clifford Krainik of Washington, D.C., valued the ambrotype at $20,000, "because it is a very rare outdoor scene, a Confederate camp, that includes a slave."
