Northcrest controversy widens

State Director of Civil Rights Johnny Mata of Austin is planning a visit to Big Spring to talk with residents at the Northcrest Apartments, according to Pat DeAnda, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Residents at the apartment complex have filed several complaints recently and met Monday night with Mayor Clyde Angel, Police Chief Rick Turner and Investigator Bob Yeager, members of the NAACP and LULAC. Mrs. DeAnda said a crowd of about 50 people attended the meeting.

In recent weeks residents at the apartment complex have been complaining about rent increases, a backlog of maintenance work, unannounced landlord inspections and unauthorized opening of tenants' mail. Monday's meeting was one of several planned to air complaints.

Yeager, who has been assigned through the Big Spring Police Department to investigate those complaints, said the police would meet with people who feel they have been inappropriately charged higher rent prices at the apartment complex. Yeager said that several complaints have been handled and some refunds made.

Mata will come to Big Spring at the request of LULAC and plans "to talk to anyone who wants to talk to him" about complaints at the apartment complex, Ms. DeAnda said. An "open seminar" for complaints is also planned.

Mata has not yet set a date for his Big Spring visit.

Man's body identified

Autopsy results expected today

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Local law enforcement officials have identified a body found Monday afternoon near Gail Road as Robert Dutchover Jr., 23, of 1205 Lamar, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said today.

Dutchover's body was discovered Monday afternoon about 4:30 p.m. by members of the sheriff's office, Texas Ranger Charles Brune and members of other local law enforcement agencies, Standard said. A motorist had told the sheriff's office of seeing an object that appeared to be a body near the road two miles from the Snyder Highway, he said.

Dutchover suffered gunshot wounds to his body, Standard said.

The sheriff's office and Brune are continuing to investigate Dutchover's death, Standard said. Officials said they believe Dutchover had been murdered, and that his body had lain near the road for "a day or two" before it was discovered.

Further details on the cause and time of death are not available yet, Standard said. Officials should receive the results of an autopsy by Dr. Robert Rember later today, the sheriff said.

A rosary for Dutchover will be said Thursday night in the Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home chapel. Services are 10 a.m. Friday in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, with the Rev. James Delaney officiating. Burial will follow at Mount Olive.

Dutchover was born June 24, 1960, in Big Spring and lived here all his life. He attended Big Spring schools and was employed in the oil fields. He was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Coahoma man dies in crash

MIDLAND — A 26-year-old Coahoma man died Tuesday night in a one-vehicle rollover near here that also injured his mother.

Dana Franklin Justice was pronounced dead at 11:08 p.m. Tuesday at the scene of the accident by Midland County Justice of the Peace Charles Sprayberry. The accident occurred about 5½ miles east of Midland on eastbound Interstate Highway 20, according to a Department of Public Safety report.

Justice's body was taken to Thomas Funeral Home in Midland, and will be transferred to Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home in Big Spring, a Nalley-Pickle spokesman said. Services are pending, he said.

Injured in the accident was Sylvia Tackett Justice, 46, a passenger in the pickup truck her son was driving, according to DPS reports. Mrs. Justice remains in serious condition in Midland Memorial Hospital with an injured spleen, a broken leg, cuts and lacerations, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Mrs. Justice was thrown through the windshield of the truck in the accident, DPS reports said. Her son's body was pinned in the wreckage of the truck, the report also stated.

According to DPS reports, the Justice were traveling eastbound on I-20 when "the driver of the vehicle apparently became lost," and entered the Exit 144 ramp the wrong way.

The truck failed to negotiate a curve, and slid off the exit ramp and down a dirt embankment. The vehicle then flipped 1¾ times before coming to rest on its left side, the DPS report stated.

Yeats files for county attorney

Timothy D. Yeats, a lawyer with the Big Spring firm of Weaver, Ferguson & Yeats at 105 W. Fourth, filed Tuesday as a Democratic candidate for Howard County attorney, County Clerk Margaret Ray said.

With Yeats' action, at least one candidate has filed for every race in the county, with the exception of the constable position in Forsan currently vacant, Mrs. Ray said. The filing deadline is Monday.

Yeats, 26, is a Big Spring native. He attended Forsan schools and Howard College before receiving his bachelor's degree from Texas Tech University. He graduated from Texas Tech Law School in May 1982, when he joined Weaver, Ferguson & Yeats in Big Spring. He served as a summer law clerk for the firm while still in law school, he said.

Yeats has named himself as his own campaign treasurer, he said.

Current County Attorney Bob Miller has not filed for re-election or any other elective office yet, Mrs. Ray said. Miller has said he is still deciding whether he will run for re-election.

If Miller does decide to run for county attorney, Yeats said he would not withdraw from the race. "I didn't enter this race with the idea that I would be unopposed, that it would be a 'gimme,'" he said.

'Sin' tax yes; gasoline tax no

By DAVID HILL
Texas Poll Director
Fourth of five parts

Texans by 3-to-1 margins want smokers and drinkers to pay more taxes for public schools, but they don't want more money for education to come from higher taxes on gasoline, sales or property.

Results of the Texas Poll show 71 percent of those surveyed supported an increase in liquor and tobacco taxes to make more money available for public schools.

But 77 percent opposed raising property taxes, 70 percent rejected increasing gasoline taxes, and 55 percent did not want sales taxes raised.

It did not seem to matter whether those surveyed had children in school; they opposed the same tax increases by almost exactly the same margins as those without school-age children.

A hard-core 17 percent said they didn't want to increase any of the four taxes that legislators have considered for raising education revenues.

The Texas Poll is a quarterly survey of Texas residents sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. and conducted by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University.

Results reported today are from a telephone survey of 1,007 randomly selected residents conducted between Dec. 9 and Dec. 23. The survey has a margin of error of 3 percent, meaning each result could vary by 3 percentage points in either direction.

The poll's findings suggest Gov. Mark White took a popular approach when he urged the state legislature last spring to help raise teachers' salaries by increasing "luxury" or "sin" taxes on alcohol and tobacco.

No tax bill emerged from the session, but some kind of tax proposal may be on the agenda if White follows through on his announced intention to call a special session after the May primaries.

The leadership of the Texas Good Roads Association, the powerful highway lobby, has recently indicated it would back a tax increase for education if the governor will open the special session to gasoline tax issues. The highway people want the state's nickel tax on gasoline — the lowest in the country — doubled to 10 cents per gallon.

The increase would raise $500 million more per year, and a fourth of the money would go to education, as required by the state constitution.

Resistance to tax increases for education was high in the Texas Poll, even though the same people surveyed said public schools were the biggest problem facing the state of Texas, with the exception of unemployment.

On the other hand, the poll also showed that Texans were to a large degree satisfied with their local schools. Fifty percent gave them grades of A or B.

Transportation problems ranked only sixth in the poll, suggesting there may be less support for new taxes for highways.

Congress receives $925 billion budget

...sends off budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today sent Congress a $925.5 billion budget plan for 1985 that would rein in domestic spending for another year but press ahead with a military buildup. The result: a $180.4 billion deficit that will occupy much of Congress' attention.

Despite the hefty budget deficit, the financial blueprint offers no major action — either through sharp spending cuts or a major tax hike — to wash away the red ink.

If the president's financial guide is followed, there would be decade-long freeze on domestic spending, after adjustment for inflation.

Nevertheless, the deficit would impose huge burdens. The budget projects that taxpayers will pick up a $164.7 billion tab just in interest payments on the national debt in the upcoming fiscal year that starts on Oct. 1. Those payments are estimated at $149.5 billion this year.

The deficit hit a record $195.4 billion in the 1983 fiscal year and is projected at $183.7 billion this year.

Reagan, in his message accompanying the document, took note of the red ink, saying:

"Only the threat of indefinitely prolonged high budget deficits threatens the continuation of sustained non-inflationary growth and prosperity. It raises the specter of sharply higher interest rates, choked-off investment, renewed recession and rising unemployment."

He called for the deficit problem to be "laid to rest" through a bipartisan effort to curb spending.

He also urged, as he has previously, enactment of constitutional amendments that would require a balanced budget and give the president line-item veto authority so he could pare individual items from appropriations bills rather than accepting — or rejecting — the measures in total.

On Capitol Hill, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., reacted critically to the budget, and scored the plan for its "ridiculous spending" on the military and for the deficits.

"Militarily, he spends a thousand million dollars a day ... on the defense of this nation, and we are not as

Today's topic*Video fever infects casinos

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Despite differences among gaming regulators, Nevada is slowly shaking its one-arm bandits, opting for flashy video machines they hope will transform today's video generation into tomorrow's gamblers.

Gaming's video revolution began with a whimper in 1975 when a primitive video poker machine was unveiled. Today, 23 percent of the state's 88,000 gaming machines are video and industry officials say the figure could eventually reach 80 percent.

The video boom has drawn mixed reviews from the people who regulate Nevada's No. 1 industry.

"Gaming needs to grow, to keep up with the challenge of the times," said Jim Avance, chairman of the Gaming Control Board. "With video in every aspect of our lives, it doesn't surprise me that it becomes a part of gaming as well."

Former board member Richard Hyte said video proliferation presents a problem to the state. He took on the issue when the state approved a new video machine, "Gold Fever," for testing in November.

"Gold Fever" features an animated prospector digging for gold, with a selection of three mines offering riches, a fire-breathing dragon or extinction by dynamite. If the player makes the right choice, he can quit with his winnings, or move on to a second and third level. There's the potential of winning $1,000 on a $3 investment.

Hyte said "Gold Fever" is the first time the state has approved for trial a gaming device that did not have traditional gaming symbols such as cards, dice or fruit. He said he is worried the game "will be a challenge for every kid in the state to play it at least once."

Gaming Commission Chairman Paul Bible agreed that "Gold Fever" could be "like a swimming pool without a fence around it."

Officials at the four casinos where the machine is being tested have been warned to pay close attention to whether children are attracted to the machine, even though minors are not allowed in casinos by Nevada law.

Avance discounts fears that young people will see the machine as just another video game, noting it will be restricted from supermarkets and convenience stores where banks of slots and video poker machines abound.

Avance said times have changed — and Nevada needs to change with them.

"When I was a kid my folks played penny-ante poker using match sticks or beans," he said. "That was our form of entertainment. Now kids have video. It's a different world."

Video gaming devices can be found everywhere in Nevada, from casinos to restaurant counters and built into bars — assuring customers the chance to gamble while eating or drinking.

"Gold Fever" is one of several video gaming devices manufactured by Reno-based International Gaming Technology Inc. The company builds 10,000 machines annually, with gross sales around $80 million.

IGT president George Drews admits to zeroing in on the video generation.

"We would like to have something for the video generation when they come of age. We think it will take something a lot more interesting than just the ordinary reel-type slot machines," he said.

Video poker machines were the first major change in gaming machines in 40 years and have proven to be immensely popular, Drews said.

Some feel the machines are less intimidating than walking up to a poker table, especially for the novice learning the gaming ropes.

"These poker machines produce earnings far superior to ordinary slot machines. It would have been a severe setback to the state if their introduction had been prohibited," Drews said.

The manufacturers and casinos should be encouraged to come up with every type of gaming device they can, and let the marketplace decide."

Once the field test is completed for machines such as "Gold Fever," state gamers study the appeal to players, maintenance records, the money it earns, payoff percentages and whether it can be cheated easily. The gaming officials have the final say on whether the machine goes into production.

Hyte said the test period, even if it's perfect, "won't address the basic philosophical concerns" with such machines.

"Do we want to add another element of amusement, or do we want to stay with the traditional gaming mechanisms?" Hyte asked.

Bill Friedman, president of the Castaways Hotel and Casino where two of the machines are being tested, already has an answer.

Video machines are "the future of our industry," he said.

Drews agreed.

"If we don't reach today's video generation, the number of casino players will fall off to nothing."

Smith chosen head*of planning panel

Longtime City Councilman Jack Y. Smith has been named chairman of the board of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, headquartered in the Air Terminal at Midland.

Howard County is one of 17 counties represented on the 24-member commission. Members, including county judges from each represented county, review all grant proposals to be submitted to government agencies.

The commission "gives favorable or unfavorable comments" to each request, Smith said. He said the board usually studies proposals to make sure they can pass governmental qualification requirements and turns back any proposals which need further work.

Also serving on the PBRPC are three representatives from cities within the 17-county area, a representative from Midland and one from Odessa, and two representatives from area schools.

Smith served as vice chairman of the committee last year. The group meets the second Wednesday of each month at the PBRPC offices.

Judge refuses to rule in starving horses case

MIDLAND (AP) — A federal judge turned down requests by two animal rights groups for an order to require ranchers to care for horses forced on them by a failed business, but he hinted that state courts might have jurisdiction.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton on Tuesday said he might not have the jurisdiction to issue an injunction, but he said he would hold a Feb. 10 hearing if the controversy is not resolved by then.

The judge also hinted that Fund for Animals of New York and the American Horse Protection Association of Washington, D.C., which requested the temporary order, might have valid legal remedies in state court.

The groups had sought the federal order against Horses Unlimited; Roland Jones Jr. and R.D. Plunkett, partners in the horse-dealing business; ranchers Mike Davis of Clifton and Phillip Scruggs of Marlin; and A.J. Roming and Leslie Green, both of Roming & Green Livestock Co. of Marlin.

An executive of one group charged, meanwhile, that the Texas Animal Health Commission has failed to stop the shipment of diseased horses into and out of Falls County.

The groups also had asked Bunton's court to stop shipment of horses to and from Falls County until tests prove they are healthy and that a veterinarian is appointed to determine the condition of the horses and the care needed.

Jerry Owens, executive vice president of the Fund for Animals, on Tuesday criticized ranchers he said resisted efforts to help the horses, saying some were "getting a kick" out of obstructing relief efforts.

Owens also accused the Animal Health Commission of failing to stop the shipment of diseased horses into and out of Falls County. He said many horses have been stricken with the equine infectious anemia, a sometimes fatal disease.

Dr. John Holcombe, commission executive director, said the number of horses infected with the disease has been exaggerated. He said an estimated 30,000 horses were shipped into the Falls County area during the past year, and only about 30 showed a positive reaction on a test for anemia.

Holcombe said the governor's office was "concerned" about the matter and would release a statement today.

Groups angered by the deaths of starving and diseased horses in Falls County said more than 1,200 horses have died because of the harsh winter and the collapse of Horses Unlimited, which left ranchers with between $2 million and $5 million worth of horses the company could not buy back.

Horses Unlimited, which brought about 14,000 horses into Falls County during the past nine months, sold horses to ranchers and promised to buy them back later, officials said. Ranchers were paid for grazing costs, allowing them to make a profit while Horses Unlimited received fatter horses to sell at higher prices for slaughter.

Reagan helps out artist

WASHINGTON — Moved by news of a fire that destroyed the studio of an artist who gave lessons to underprivileged children, President Reagan has ordered aides to help drum up donations to help rebuild the gallery.

Reagan directed the White House's Office of Private Sector Initiatives to line up local businesses to help Eddie McKinnon rebuild the converted boiler room where he taught children painting, pottery and sculpture.

A number of Washington businesses have already pledged to donate art supplies, equipment and construction services.

Fire destroyed the studio Friday night while McKinnon and 21 other city residents were being honored for their community service by the Downtown Jaycees and Washingtonian magazine. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

McKinnon said Reagan's efforts to help him were "fantastic."

"I never thought this would get this far," he said. "Mayor (Marion) Barry and Councilman (H.R.) Crawford and now the president. Maybe this is what is needed to get art back in D.C."

But McKinnon said he had mixed feelings about reopening the studio, where 60 to 80 children learned painting, pottery and sculpture.

Winkler donates money

HAMPTON, Va. — Henry Winkler, television's "The Fonz," has donated $1,500 to an 11-year-old badly burned while rescuing an 83-year-old neighbor in a fire the night of Jan. 21.

Timothy Diakis of Newport News, whose family does not have insurance to cover the costs of the skin grafts he will need, already has undergone one operation and is facing more surgery.

Winkler, 38, sent a note along with a check, said Hampton General Hospital spokesman Rick Piester on Tuesday, adding that the family did not want to make the note's contents public.

Donations have been flowing in, said Piester. With Winkler's contribution, more than $37,000 has been raised.

Daniels endorsed a proposed amusement tax for education in Tennessee.

"Let's do it," said the 47-year-old Daniels on Tuesday, endorsing the proposal of Gov. Lamar Alexander. "I think a lot of our ills in this country are caused by substandard education."

The news in brief

By the Associated Press

Democrats want troops out

WASHINGTON — Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and other top House Democratic leaders are lining up support within their own party for a resolution calling for the "prompt and orderly withdrawal" of U.S. forces from Lebanon.

The Democratic plan does not set a specific timetable for the pullout, but calls for a progress report from the president to Congress within 30 days on what steps he has taken to accomplish the withdrawal.

Although the resolution would not carry the force of law, it represents a major departure from congressional sentiment last fall, when both the Democrat-run House and the Republican-led Senate voted to allow President Reagan to keep the Marines in Beirut through mid-April 1985.

O'Neill said the administration has not justified keeping Marines in Lebanon. "The policies of the administration are unexplained and the American people do not know why our Marines are there," he said late Tuesday after the resolution was drafted at a Democratic strategy session on Lebanon.

O'Neill was to present the withdrawal proposal today to a closed-door caucus of all 267 House Democrats. Party endorsement of general terms of the resolution was expected.

"We want to bring those boys home as quickly and as safely as we can," O'Neill said. He said Democratic leaders shied away from any formula setting specific dates for the withdrawal, such as the 60-day pullout being pushed by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., preferring to leave that up to the administration.

But asked by reporters what "prompt and orderly withdrawal" meant, O'Neill responded: "prompt removal is immediate or right away."

Bloody Afghan war continues

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Week after week, from behind the dark curtain of the Afghan war, persistent reports filter out of civilian massacres, the use of inhumane weaponry and other brutality by Soviet and Afghan government troops.

Many accounts cannot be verified, since Afghanistan's Marxist government seldom allows Western journalists in to investigate and the official Soviet media report little on battle activities. And the sources of the accounts, often Western diplomats and anti-communist guerrilla spokesmen, sometimes seem to exaggerate.

But enough has been confirmed to help fill in a picture of a "dirty war" grinding on in the remote valleys of mountainous Afghanistan.

The Soviet army has settled on a counter-insurgency strategy that "involves massive reprisals against the population, sometimes including the extermination of a large part of that population," Claude Malherbe, head of a French medical assistance group in Afghanistan, wrote recently.

The reported atrocities are not one-sided. Among the Moslem guerrillas it has been common practice to mutilate Soviet prisoners, in the belief that anyone with facial disfigurement would not get God's blessing.

Some of the most-publicized disclosures came in Paris in December 1982, before the Permanent Tribunal of the Peoples, the successor to the "war crimes tribunal" at which the late British philosopher Bertrand Russell symbolically put the United States in the dock for its Vietnam intervention.

American Islamic scholar Mike Barry told the Paris tribunal how he made a secret trip into Afghanistan to verify a reported massacre in a village near Kabul, the Afghan capital.

He said he learned that 105 villagers — a dozen of them children under age 10 — had been sealed up and burned alive by Soviet troops in an underground irrigation tunnel where they had taken shelter.

On Tuesday, a Western diplomat in New Delhi, India, told reporters several hundred civilians were killed in Soviet bombings of Afghan rebel strongholds near Kabul in the period Jan. 19-27.

This informant, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said that in one village, Qala, 73 civilians were reported killed in the Soviet onslaught.

Last October, an Afghan guerrilla spokesman who has proven reliable in the past told journalists in Pakistan that Soviet troops had killed 126 residents of three villages in southeastern Afghanistan, apparently in retaliation for guerrilla attacks on Soviets.

Police seeking 27,000 people

INDIANAPOLIS — Twenty-seven thousand people had reason to look over their shoulders today as police began rounding up suspects who failed to turn themselves in for traffic offenses, misdemeanors and felonies during a 50-day grace period.

Police made 132 arrests after the grace period ended Tuesday, and 50 officers from several jurisdictions were continuing the roundup today, said Lt. Jerry Barker, public relations officer for the Indianapolis Police Department.

"They got me at work," said one handcuffed man who was being led into the reception area of the county lockup. "Isn't there some sort of law against that?"

But police Chief Joseph G. McAtee had no sympathy for those caught in the dragnet.

"The people have had ample warning, and a warrant is the same thing as a court order, so this doesn't have much to do with civil rights," he said.

The outstanding warrants include those issued for scofflaws who did not answer traffic citations or court summonses, and others for defendants who could not be located and served when a warrant was first issued.

If everyone cited for a traffic violation pays the minimum fine, the city will receive more than $1 million, officials said.

More than 2,000 people turned themselves in during what police called the 50-day "amnesty" to avoid being corralled at their jobs or homes and hauled off to jail in handcuffs, police said. Two hundred surrendered Tuesday alone.

Judge to rule on testimony

GEORGETOWN, Texas — A Kerrville doctor in whose office six children mysteriously went limp has a harrowing story to tell. Now a judge must decide whether jurors in the murder trial of the doctor's nurse can hear the story.

State District Judge John Carter previewed Dr. Kathleen Holland's testimony Tuesday. Jurors were sent home while lawyers in nurse Genene Jones' murder trial argued whether the "extraneous" offense testimony should be allowed.

Ms. Jones, 33, is being tried in the Sept. 17, 1982, death of Chelsea McClellan, a 15-month-old girl who died after receiving two injections from the nurse. Prosecutors say Ms. Jones injected the girl with a fatal dose of succinylcholine, a powerful muscle relaxant.

Mrs. Holland calmly recalled Tuesdays that Chelsea was one of six children who suffered mysterious seizures during the month Ms. Jones worked for her.

"In retrospect, there was a pattern of physical signs in each of the children, similarities," the doctor testified.

There also was a pattern of occurrences, according to her testimony. Each child fell ill after either being alone with Ms. Jones or getting an injection from her.

Deputies accused of murder

MIDLAND — An Odessa man who was in Ector County Jail the night Larry Ortega Lozano died says he fears retaliation "from the county" for testifying in a civil lawsuit brought by the inmate's family against two sheriff's deputies.

The suit filed against Ector County Sheriff's deputies Randy Tenney and Jackie Perkins by Lozano's two children alleges the two men used excessive force to restrain the prisoner during a Jan. 22, 1978 jailhouse scuffle.

Lozano died in the deputies' custody from a crushed larynx received during the restraint effort, an investigation concluded.

Orlando Molinar testified on Tuesday he heard noises coming from Lozano's cell early that evening and, minutes later, deputies lay Lozano in front of Molinar's cell.

"He was gasping for air," said Molinar. "He had liquid in his mouth, saliva and blood, whatever."

Lozano was being held on traffic violations and a charge of resisting arrest at the county jail, authorities said.

The suit first was heard in 1981. A federal court jury ruled in favor of county officials and sheriff's deputies, including Tenney and Perkins.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans overturned the Midland jury's verdict last December regarding the conduct of the two deputies and ordered that portion of the suit retried.

In the second day of the trial Tuesday, Molinar initially refused to give his address under cross-examination, saying, "I fear retaliation."

"From whom, Mr. Molinar?" U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton asked.

"The county," Molinar answered.

On Monday, the six jurors in the case heard testimony from three witnesses who were absent from the 1981 trial.

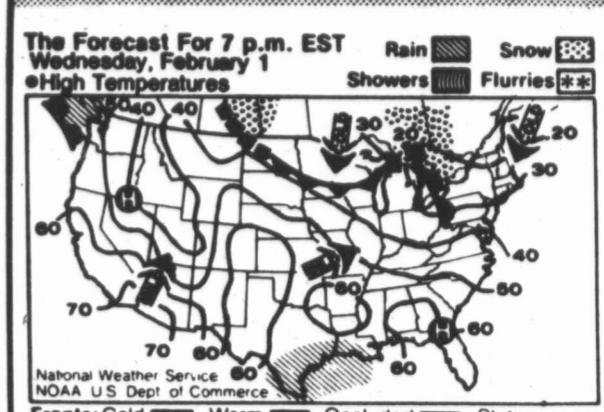

The three, serving time at the Texas Department of Corrections who were in the jail when Lozano died, contended that former Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught beat Lozano the night of his death, then tried to whitewash the incident.

Perkins and Faught denied the allegations, saying deputies used only necessary force to subdue a prisoner with proven violent tendencies who "went berserk" in his cell.

Weather

By the Associated Press

WEST TEXAS — Cloudy with early morning fog in south-central areas. Otherwise, mostly sunny and warm. Highs in the 60s, except for readings in the upper 50s in the mountains. Lows tonight in the mid 20s in the Panhandle, to the mid 30s in the Concho Valley. Lows near 40 along the river in the Big Bend. Highs Thursday in the mid 50s in the Panhandle, to the mid 60s elsewhere. Highs Thursday near 70 in the Big Bend Valleys.

Fog, showers over state

Early morning rain and a few thunderstorms persisted today from the lower Rio Grande Valley through the Coastal Plains and adjacent Gulf waters. The National Weather Service said the wet weather was being caused by an upper-air disturbance moving East, across Northeastern Mexico.

Since Tuesday afternoon, more than six inches of rain had fallen in Brownsville. In McAllen, more than half an inch of precipitation was registered.

Skies were clear from the Panhandle through the Red River Valley, becoming cloudy south of Del Rio to Victoria.

Clear skies rapidly chilled the Permian Basin, producing a blanket of dense fog. In Midland, visibility plunged to one-eighth of a mile and a traveler's advisory was posted.

A sheet of clouds that held Tuesday's high in the 40s in South Texas also kept predawn readings in that same vicinity. By 4 a.m. today, the mercury dropped slightly to the 30s and 40s. The state's cool spots were Midland and Reese Air Force Base, near Lubbock, with 31 degrees.

Corpus Christi had a high of 48.

The forecast today called for light rain in South Texas and the coastal waters. Skies will be cloudy in South Texas, but it will be fair and warm elsewhere.

Highs will soar to the 50s and 60s in most parts.

Bitter cold chilled New England and the Northeast today in the wake of a winter storm that dumped almost a foot of snow on Maine and then moved into Canada.

Travelers' advisories for blowing and drifting snow continued over northern and eastern Maine.

Fair skies dominated this morning, although light rain was scattered across southern Texas and light snow persisted over the eastern Great Lakes and northern Maine.

Temperatures were near or below zero in many parts of New England and northern New York, with freezing weather common elsewhere except for the south Atlantic and Gulf Coast states, the southern Plains and the Pacific coast, where readings were in the 40s and 50s.

Sunshine was expected to last throughout the day in most areas, with light snow lingering over the lower Great Lakes and light rain over southern Texas and the Mississippi Delta.

Temperatures on left indicate previous day's high and overnight low to 8 a.m. EST. Temperatures on right indicate outlook for tomorrow.

Open courtroom assures fair trial

The U.S. Supreme Court has made it clear that openness is a necessity to ensure fair trial in our nation's court system.

The high court recently ruled that the selection of jury members in criminal cases should be done in public, except in rare instances where testimony would embarrass a prospective juror. If jury selection is to be closed, the trial judge must spell out in detail why such secrecy is necessary, and a higher court will make a complete review of the order.

The ruling will bring to a halt the growing tendency among judges to keep the press and the public from observing the selection of juries.

In explaining the high court's 9-0 decision in the matter, Chief Justice Warren Burger said:

"The value of openness lies in the fact that people not actually attending trials can have confidence that standards of fairness are being observed; the sure knowledge that anyone is free to attend gives assurance that established procedures are being followed and that deviations will become known. Openness thus enhances both the basic fairness of criminal trial and the appearance of fairness so essential to public confidence in the system."

The case was brought to the Supreme Court by the Riverside (Calif.) Press-Enterprise, which had been barred from monitoring jury selection for a murder case. The Riverside newspaper, at considerable expense, appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court after the California Court of Appeal and the California Supreme Court refused to hear the matter.

Another decision by the Supreme Court is needed if our court system is to be truly public. Five years ago, the high court refuted arguments that the press and the public had the right to attend a pre-trial hearing in a New York murder case. We hope, in its quest for openness, the high court will take another look at closed pre-trial hearings when a similar case is brought before it for judgment.

It is important that pre-trial proceedings be public because 89 percent of criminal cases now are disposed of in such sessions, without going to trial.

A tragedy

They shoot horses, don't they?

Unfortunately, they sometimes do more than that in Texas. They starve horses — to death.

More than 100 horses already have died in Falls County alone this month as the result of a failed business deal and bad weather.

And no one will take responsibility for the animals. We are more outraged at the rising cost of living index than we seem to be at the mass starvation of some of the most beautiful animals ever created.

Who would knowingly let that many horses go without food? And furthermore, why did it take 100 deaths before people were motivated? Have we become so immune to cruelty and death toward each other as human beings, both on television and the newscasts, that it takes mass murder — of animals and people — to catch our attention?

Horses are starving in Marlin, located in Falls County in Central Texas east of Austin, because of man's everlasting chase after the dollar bill.

Prosecutors in Falls County say two business entrepreneurs, a banker and tack and veterinary supply dealer, sold 8,000 to 10,000 horses to area farmers. The farmers were supposed to pasture the animals and then sell them back to Horses Unlimited Inc., the original seller of the animals.

But farmers and ranchers were left holding an empty feedbag. The hard winter freeze ruined the pastures the horses were feeding in. And coupled with Horses Unlimited's failure to repurchase the horses they sold, that equals starvation.

Ranchers say they are going bankrupt from the sour deal. I pity them. They thought they were being

Latin terrorists have respectable 'front'

WASHINGTON — I have been investigating the Latin American "death squads," which practice politics by assassination. Not only do they belong to a subterranean network of right-wing groups that cooperate across international boundaries, but they reportedly are connected to political "front group" that retains some respectability.

This is the word of a death squad member in Honduras — a physician by day, an assassin by night — whom I've given the pseudonym El Lobo. "Our movements are all coordinated out of Mexico by our front group," the assassin told my associate Jon Lee Anderson.

El Lobo identified the group as the Latin American Anticommunist Confederation, which is a member of the World Anticommunist League.

The league is an ultraconservative worldwide organization, founded in Taiwan in 1967. It operates in the open and holds annual conferences of its affiliated groups.

In recent years, league watchers have noted the inclusion of known new-Nazi, white-supremacist groups in the organization. There is concern that the World Anticommunist League was taken over by fascist elements in the 1970's. El Lobo's information now gives credence to this concern.

• Its Latin affiliate, according to El Lobo, secretly bankrolls a well-known, right-wing weekly newsmagazine, Replica, based in Mexico. At the 1978 league conference in Washington, D.C., the delegation from Mexico reportedly handed out copies of Replica containing an article attacking the "Holocaust" television series as "Jewish propaganda."

• Each country's underground death squad has an unacknowledged front group to lend legitimacy to the anti-communist movement. El Lobo identified his squad's political associate as the Honduran Anticommunist Action Movement. "It takes charge of propaganda activities," he explained. "If we confirm, for example, that you are a Marxist, the movement will have posters with your photograph on them plastered on walls all over the country the next day, denouncing you as a communist traitor."

• El Lobo acknowledged that his underground death squad "receives assistance" from the Honduran armed forces. But he stressed that the aid is "unofficial, mostly training and weapons provided by sympathetic junior officers." The Honduran death squad started out as a group of right-wing graduate students at the National Autonomous University in 1979, but later expanded to include police and military men.

While his group is a mixture of civilians and military, El Lobo said that the related underground group in the industrial city of San Pedro Sula is made up entirely of police officers. "They are known simply as 'el escuadrón de la muerte' (the squadron of death), and they kill common criminals," El Lobo said, "but occasionally they will do us a favor and kill communists we have fingered."

El Lobo revelations about international coordination and the assistance of government security forces confirms what human rights groups and investigative reporters have suspected for years. In some countries, such as Guatemala, Argentina and El Salvador, official support for the death squads has been traced to top military headquarters and even presidential palaces. In Honduras, though El Lobo's group is publicly disavowed by the military, the unofficial assistance is well known to the high command.

"We have to be careful and remain clandestine," said El Lobo. "We have enemies in this country. Our victims' relatives have formed a Committee of the Families of the Disappeared Ones."

BOONDOGGLE OF THE WEEK: Ever solicitous of defense contractors' slightest wishes, the Pentagon is allowing widespread abuse of a procedural shortcut intended to help small contractors collect their payments without long delays. And the taxpayer is being shortchanged.

"Fast pay procurements" let contractors collect for goods worth less than $25,000 by simply submitting their invoices. They don't have to prove that the goods were satisfactory — or even that they were delivered.

To the editor:

My letter is in reference to a picture on the front page of the paper on Jan. 18, 1984. It was a picture of a young man and his wife being taken into the Police Station. I will not mention his name again because I think he has already had enough bad publicity. It was on the front page the same day as the article about Mr. Ford pleading guilty to selling cocaine, while the young man in question was indicted for delivery of marijuana.

My question is — Why was his picture on the front page? He is supposedly innocent until proven guilty, while two other prominent citizens have admitted their guilt. Now this young man has already lost his job because of bad press for his employer and he hasn't even been found guilty of anything yet. Why did his employer's name even have to be mentioned? Now what will he do for income to hire a lawyer or will the court now have to provide him one?

I do not know if this young man is guilty or not, but at this point neither does anyone else, yet he has already begun to pay for a crime he may or may not have committed. What purpose did the picture serve? Justice? For who? If it served justice, why isn't everyone who is arrested photographed for the paper?

Reader claims facts omitted

To the editor:

Recently I was interviewed by your staff writer concerning my graduation from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa. When I was called for the interview I understood it was because of my academic achievements as I worked toward my dream of graduating from college after an absence of more than forty years from the classroom, at the age of sixty-five.

In my opinion you left out the most important facts, for example when you told of some of my experiences at Howard College why did you not include that I was listed in Who's Who in American Junior Colleges, and was a member of Phi Theta Kappa, which recognizes the intellectual achievements of the college student as well as promoting scholarships? Also, you did not include the fact that I graduated from Howard College as the Salutatorian.

I received the Permian Honor scholarship and the Merit Award while attending UTPB and maintained the required grades. These achievements were what I was proud of and made me feel I had accomplished quite a bit. I did study sometimes far into the night, not only to obtain my degree but to maintain my academic achievements. I cannot understand why these facts were omitted from the story.

Big Two chill tests Atlantic alliance

WASHINGTON — The Arctic winter of Big Two relations looks like it will be lasting for months to come. So a new testing time for the Atlantic alliance impends.

But it is not a time for renewing the permanent, floating debate about the defense of Europe. It profits far more to concentrate on the economic problems of the Atlantic world which are fundamental — and where at least modest progress is possible.

Russian policy for more than a year now has centered on dividing this country from the allies on the issue of nuclear weapons. Weighty considerations now make it hard for Moscow to change its tune.

The illness of Yuri Andropov, for one thing. In the absence of a strong leader, the instinct in Russia is to continue on automatic pilot. A policy switch requires a push from the outside.

But the U.S., though talking peace, has not offered anything that could tempt Moscow. To be sure, President Reagan at the White House, and Secretary of State George Shultz at the European security conference in Stockholm, gave speeches urging a resumption of Big Two arms talks.

But the Reagan speech was void of specifics, and the president then passed on to Congress a report on Soviet violations of arms control agreements that implicitly questions the value of any accords with Moscow. Secretary Shultz, in an incomprehensible departure from his normal good sense, included in the Stockholm speech a jibe at the "legitimacy" of present borders in Europe. If that's conciliatory, then John Foster Dulles was soft on Communism.

Lastly, there is Western Europe. The deployment of new American nuclear weapons, which the Russians so strongly opposed, has begun. Governments aligned with Washington on the issue still stand in all the major capitals. But there is unease, especially among the West Germans. The Russians have an incentive for being beastly to Europe about the new missiles.

So it comes as no surprise that Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko delivered at Stockholm a harsh attack on American policy as "the main threat to the peace." Nor that the private discussion between Gromyko and Shultz yielded no progress. The fact is that a thaw in Soviet-American relations is not in sight. The question is how best to live in the Arctic night.

One thing not to do was made vividly apparent at a European-American seminar in Brussels 10 days ago. A number of distinguished former officials were on hand — including former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and former Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany.

Dr. Kissinger gave a brilliant analysis of the contradictions in NATO strategy. He showed, not for the first time, that the Europeans could have little confidence an American president would risk nuclear destruction of this country in order to resist a conventional Soviet attack on the Continent. He then went on to show that, nevertheless, Europeans were not building up conventional defenses.

Chancellor Schmidt took offense. He dipped his ladle into the river of remorse, and came up with all the old European complaints about the U.S. How, he especially wanted to know, could the Europeans ever develop a consistent strategy when Washington kept changing its signals every four years?

As it happens, European defense is loaded with inner contradictions, and the U.S. does keep changing the signals. But there is no point in saying it all the time. The Europeans are not going to pay much more for security, and the U.S. is not going to change the Constitution. We will limp along with an imperfect defense. We have, after all, been doing it for years.

Economic conditions, by contrast, have recently taken a new turn. In every corner of the American economy — in autos, banking, airlines, communications, oil, and high technology — big shakeups are underway. For better or worse, this country has responded to stagflation, and change has been given its head.

Europe lags way behind. Except in Britain, high technology is nowhere. Agriculture and the smokestack industries are still digging in. Governments are only beginning to initiate the policies to which American industry is already responding.

In this climate, there is a strong impulse in the U.S. to look outside Europe for partners — across the Pacific to Japan especially. But the recent elections showed there is a weak political base in Japan for cooperation with the U.S. A far better bet is to work on improving economic cooperation with Europe.

Large initiatives are ruled out by circumstance. There is no constituency, here or abroad, for a big Reagan round of tariff cuts, or a restructuring of the international monetary system — a new Bretton Woods.

But there is intermediate work to be done — in addressing the problem of Third World debt; on behalf of Africa; in establishing guidelines for such high-tech business as genetic engineering and telecommunications.

Home sales surge 28% in December

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of new homes surged 28.5 percent in December with the strong close boosting sales for the entire year up 53 percent from the depressed levels of 1982, the government reported today.

For all of 1983, 625,000 new houses were sold, bettering the 412,000 sold in 1982 when the country was mired in the recession. The 1983 pace was the best since 1979 when 709,000 new homes were sold, according to the report by the Commerce Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

New houses were sold at an annual rate of 808,000 in December, up from the revised rate of 629,000 for the previous month, the report said.

The report on sales of new homes follows figures released last week by a real estate trade group showing that resales of single-family homes jumped 36.7 percent during 1983 to their best level in three years.

The annual rate for December was the best since May when sales peaked at a rate of 665,000 units just as conventional fixed rate mortgages began rising from around 12 percent to eventually near 14 percent. Rates have now declined to around 13 percent for a fixed-rate mortgage and around 12 percent for the new adjustable rate mortgages.

Government economists said sales in the South accounted for the sharp increase.

The report showed an average price for houses sold in December of $31,000, the same as November's average. For the whole year, the average sales price of a new home was $39,400 compared to $33,900 for 1982.

The sales rate is adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations. Before adjustment, the report said, 50,000 new homes actually were sold last month compared with 45,000 in November.

The report said the inventory of unsold homes dropped to a seasonally adjusted 302,000 units. That represented a 4.5 month supply at December's sales rate.

Dr. Donohue

Reactive hypoglycemia questioned

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please discuss reactive hypoglycemia, which I am told is the kind I have. Is it true that one can control this kind with diet? Can that keep the blood sugar up? — T.U.

Reactive hypoglycemia is an abnormally low level of sugar in the blood resulting from a lack of "fine tuning" of the system that regulates release of sugar-burning insulin from the pancreas. Normally the amount of insulin release is proportionate to the level of sugar in the blood. In that way, blood sugar is kept at desired levels.

Some people get low blood sugar levels because their pancreas is reacting too exuberantly to the presence of a normal amount of sugar. Too much insulin is released and blood sugar drops. Symptoms may include dizziness, headache, visual disturbance and emotional upset. That's reactive hypoglycemia. For these people, symptoms occur two to five hours after having a meal, which points to the cause-effect relationship mentioned above. The answer for them lies in eating more complex foods, those that do not break down so easily to prompt the excess insulin release.

The other kind of hypoglycemia, which I had better mention, is rarer. It develops because of a tumor on the pancreas gland. That tumor mimics the action of the rest of the gland, producing insulin and resulting in excess amounts in the blood. Again, blood sugar drops. The symptoms of this are the same as occur with the reactive form, but they occur after a period of fasting, for example when arising from a night's sleep. The answer here is to remove the tumor.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have read that osteoarthritis is caused by overuse of joints. It's a subject you have discussed on other occasions. My question has never been answered: What causes osteoarthritis in a person of relatively young age (40s) and one who has never done physically taxing work or engaged in athletics that would injure joints? — W.W.

The term you have probably heard most in connection with osteoarthritis is wear and tear, for it is misuse of joints, as from one's occupation or athletics, that is usually behind it. But why would this happen?

It is not common, but osteoarthritis might appear in a person born with defective cartilage, or if his joints were so constructed as to make him more susceptible to stress from even normal use. The common factor in all osteoarthritis, however, is the breakdown of the cartilage that cushions bone ends where they form joints, as knees, etc.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have just learned that two of my grandchildren, ages 1 and 4, have amebas. They tell me there is no cure. Is this true? — Mrs. H.S.

If you mean the amebas I think you mean, there are many medicines to cure the illness. I think the ameba to which you refer is Entamoeba histolytica, the one that causes diarrhea. The medicines I am thinking about include metronidazole, but there are many others. I am sure the doctor caring for these children is selecting the one he wishes to try and that the children will be fine soon.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Why is it we have not as yet come up with a vaccine to prevent people from getting colds? I know we have flu vaccine, but in spite of that we still have to suffer (at least my family does) from multiple colds each year. — Mrs. A.Z.

However much desired, developing vaccines to protect against the common cold would be a monumental task. For as you probably know, colds involve not just one or a handful of distinct viruses, but hundreds of them. For example, there are about 100 rhinoviruses.

It is different with flu viruses. Here we are confronted by only a few well-known viruses that affect millions of people each year. It is thus both economically and medically feasible to arm ourselves against these few troublemakers. So we have vaccines to protect against them should they invade our bodies. As for the common cold, my guess is that it will continue to remain just that — common, at least within our lifetimes.

Low blood sugar is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of "Help for Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and one dollar.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Face-lift raises some doubts

DEAR ABBY: My husband died when my son was 3, so I went to work as an aide in a hospital to support myself and my son. It wasn't easy, but it was worth the effort because he has just graduated from college.

My problem: About five months before my son was to graduate, I looked in the mirror and thought, "You look like an old lady. If you go to your son's graduation looking 20 years older than the other mothers, your son will be ashamed of you." So through the generosity of a plastic surgeon I met at the hospital, I had a face-lift. It cost me only $1,500, and it was worth it to make my son proud of me.

He was very pleased when he saw me, but the women I work with were cold and unfriendly. (One said, "Even $1,500 is a lot of money to a woman in your circumstances.") Abby, many of these women spend $20 and $30 at the beauty shop every week.

Please tell me I didn't do anything so terrible. Or do you feel the way they do?

UNHAPPY: You deserve to be happy. But unless you do things to please yourself, you never will be.

You had a face-lift for the wrong reason — to please your son. (He may have been just as proud of you the way you were.) And now you're "unhappy" because the women at work "think" you did something wrong.

You, my friend, are the most important person in the world. Be good to yourself, and don't worry about what others may think.

DEAR ABBY: A group of us girls were gathered at our weekly card club when a question was asked by one of the members:

"Is it possible for a husband to come home, undress and get into bed with his body reeking of someone else's perfume, then deny that he was with another woman?"

The majority said it is not possible, so we decided to ask you.

THE THURSDAY GROUP: It's possible for a husband to deny it, but in view of such overwhelming circumstantial evidence, it would be impossible to believe him.

DEAR ABBY: When you advised the young girl who wanted to get married to go to college first because one day she might have to support herself and maybe a child, too, it really struck home with us.

My husband and I tried to convince our daughter of that very thing, but she refused to believe that one day she might have to support herself and a child. Well, after five years of marriage and a darling little son, that's exactly what happened. Her husband suddenly decided that the responsibilities of marriage were not for him.

The responsibility, of course, became our daughter's, so she and her son are now living with us, and she's gone back to college to become a registered nurse.

It's difficult for all of us, but we are glad we can give her the assistance she needs to become self-supporting. How much easier it would have been if she had finished her training and then married and had a family.

Abby, if all the young girls out there who should have taken that advice, but didn't, were laid end to end, they would reach from UCLA to the University of Maine.

Positive aspects

DID YOU KNOW?

That Big Spring uses more fiberglass fibers in manufacturing per capita than anywhere else in the world!

That Star Com is now the largest satellite dish sales distribution center in the nation!

That Fiberflex has 230 employees!

That Western Container now employs almost 100 people!

That the proper name for our railroad company is Union Pacific Railroad instead of Missouri-Pacific or Texas and Pacific!

That Cameo Energy Homes, Inc. averages building 5 homes a day with 180 employees!

That Big Springers gave 100 pints of blood during the last 30 days even though much of that period was below freezing with icy streets and highways!

Remember what Ted Groebel said in Saturday's progress edition that many chronic complainers often forget to look at the positive aspects of this super city and instead dwell on the setbacks. John Taylor said it another way...that we have the right stuff if we all pull together recognizing and utilizing our strengths.

Big Spring High School teacher, Kathy Terrazas, has written an article published in the professional magazine put out by the Association of Texas Professional Educators. The United Health Care Center, 901 Goliad, has been bought by the Golden Plains Care Centers, Inc., who have changed that facility's name to The Golden Plains Care Center. Change in ownership took effect on Jan. 1 by the Texas-based company which has 17 years experience in the Texas health care industry. Owners Pat Pollan and Mike Mayo also have 5 other facilities with 2 under construction scattered around Texas. Administrator of the local facility will be Vicki Griffin who has five years experience, is a licensed administrator who comes from Crosbyton. Remaining as Director of Nurses is Maxine Conlan. Mayo stated that it is important to the owners that they maintain superior standards and that it operate efficiently and effectively for the residents. They expect to have an open house and ribbon cutting ceremonies in the near future.

Jayne Smith and Sandy Burroughs have just returned from Austin where they attended the Democratic Women Working and Winning '84 Conference sponsored by the Texas Democratic Party. There were 959 registered and 350 had to be turned away who had not pre-registered. Among those on the program were Linda Gale White, Mark White, and Diana Hobby. Barbara Jordan was presented in a video taped message. Ann Richards and Lynn Cutler (chairperson for the Women's Division, Democratic National Committee) were the featured speakers. Jayne said most impressive to her was the diverse attendance, the large turnout, and the quality and organization of the program. Attendance was made up of 35 percent black, 10 percent Hispanic, and 55 percent all others. This compares to the state population of 16 percent black, 25 percent Hispanic, and 59 percent others. Sandy said that Lynn Cutler and Ann Richards both were excellent speakers, gave great insight about the political process and women's potential clout, and the importance of getting meaningfully involved. Sandy was also amazed at the smooth functioning of such a large body. The small group sessions were evenly divided so that much dialogue could occur.

It is impressive to me that 350 had to be turned away because of lack of space. That should prove that women are willing to be involved and to pay the price of growing and learning to become effective, contributing citizens.

Stray dogs and cats overrun Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's top dogcatcher believes the city has at least 200,000 dogs and cats running loose and the situation is getting out of control.

Robert E. Armstrong, chief of the city's Bureau of Animal Control, says his agency picks up 110 animals each day, "but that's not enough" to keep up with stray animal population.

"It is a very serious situation. My officers are bringing in animals in record numbers," he said Monday.

Armstrong, using figures from the American Humane Society, estimates Houston has 770,000 dogs and cats, but about a quarter of them — 200,000 to 220,000 — are strays.

And despite the huge animal population, only 11,000 were licensed in 1983, up slightly from 9,000 the previous year, he said. "That's a drop in the bucket," according to Armstrong.

Rabies is the most feared problem with strays, but Armstrong says the disease itself is relatively rare. Of more pressing concern is the number of bites.

"I will investigate probably 3,000 animal bites this year," he says. "I investigated 2,790 last year — probably about one-third of the actual number — and 3,000 the year before that. We're sitting on a real potential problem."

Last year, 671 animal bites required the attention of a doctor. Sixteen required hospitalization. A 20-month-old child died of injuries suffered after being mauled by two dogs.

Biting incidents forced the quarantine of more than 1,700 animals.

Armstrong would like to see tougher laws so owners get pets licensed, vaccinated and neutered. Currently, the city charges $5 to license a fertile animal and $1 for a neutered animal. Armstrong wants the fee for fertile animals boosted to encourage neutering.

He also would like to begin tattooing animals so animal control officials can determine if the same animals are being picked up repeatedly. Repeat offenders would be forced to pay a progressively higher charge each time their pet is picked up.

The procedure now has owners paying $20 each time their pet is retrieved, plus charges of $4 for vaccination and $5 for license.

Bulldogs handle Steers

MIDLAND — The Big Spring Steers just have a hard time putting together a full 32 minutes of basketball, as was the case Tuesday night in their 81-51 loss to district 4-5A basketball team Midland.

Coach Mike Randle's Steers played good, competitive basketball for a little over a quarter of play, trailing Midland, who is now 6-3 in district, and 23-6 for the year, only 16-14 after the first quarter.

But then things went sour for the Steers as the host ran off a 24-12 scoring edge, to take a 40-26 halftime lead.

Fred Franklin led the winners with 19 points, Chris Rooker added 18.

Chris Roberts led the Steers with 10 points, Billy Cole followed with nine and Fred Cole and Jimmy Brown added eight each.

Poor shooting hampered Big Spring throughout the contest as the Steers shot below 30 percent from the field and connected on 29 percent of their free shots, including missing their front end of nine one and one's.

Big Spring's record falls to 2-22 and 0-9 in district.

In the junior varsity game, the Steers fell 78-69, despite 29 points from freshmen Bernard Williams, David Shortes scored 14, Arthur Jackson; 11 and Dwayne Sherman; 10.

Wolves bite Ballinger

BALLINGER — The Colorado City Wolves boys claimed outright ownership of the District 6-3A first half title with their 53-51 victory over Ballinger Tuesday.

The Wolves ended the first half race with a perfect 5-0, followed by Crane with a 4-1 slate, and Ballinger's 3-2 record.

The Wolves rallied from a 30-23 halftime deficit to win the game. Junior post player Don Randle led the winners with 23 points. He was followed by Yardy Powell with 12.

The Wolves' girls lost their second consecutive district contest by a score of 77-65.

Forsan over G-City

FORSAN — The Forsan boys and girls both came away with wins over Garden City in District 16-A action Tuesday night.

The Forsan girls employed a balanced scoring attack in their 71-23 win over Garden City.

Cathy Thurman led the charge with 21 points. Kristy Evans followed with 14, while Tina Sterner and Traci Painter tallied 10 each. The win keeps Forsan in first place with a 6-0 district slate. The Buffalo Queens are 17-6 for the season.

G-Wood still perfect

Robbie Phernetton and John Swinney led the Bulldogs with 21 and 23 points respectively.

Dupree doesn't figure in USFL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Commissioner Chet Simmons has expressed optimism for the future of the United States Football League and said better players were expected to boost attendance and television ratings this year.

Marcus Dupree may not be one of those new players, however.

Simmons called the signing earlier this month of Mike Rozier, the 1983 winner of the Heisman Trophy, by the Pittsburgh Maulers a USFL plum. But he declined to say whether the league would bid for Dupree, the former Oklahoma running back who has dropped out of the University of Southern Mississippi because the NCAA would not permit him to play next season.

The commissioner said evening time slots for USFL games are under consideration along with a possible shifting of the schedule eventually to the fall in competition with the NFL.

AIRBORNE — John Ogrodnick flies through the air after colliding with Rick Middleton during third period action in the NHL All-Star game Tuesday night. Midleton was part of the winning Wales Conference team. For related picture see 2B.

Tuesday in Kansas City. Sampson scored 33 points as the Rockets beat the Kings, 122-107.

Hawks fly over Stanton, 72-42

By BILLY NABOURS
Sports Editor

STANTON — Stanton ran into a stonewall — literally — when the Buffs fell to the Wall Hawks, 72-42 in boy's 8-AA district basketball action here Tuesday night.

Wall's tenacious defense kept the Buffs outside most of the first half and forced poor shooting as well as numerous turnovers on the part of the Buffs who are 0-2 in second half district action.

The game was never close. It was only a question of how much and how many points Wall could score and win by. The Hawks went ahead 2-0 at the outset and Stanton tied the game with a basket from Jerry Anderson. That was the only time Stanton was neck and neck with the Hawks.

Wall upped its first quarter lead to 16-8 and outscored the Buffs 12-2 down the stretch of the second half to hold a commanding 35-15 halftime lead.

After a seven of 26 performance buried them in the first half, the Buffs came out smoking in the second, cutting the gap to 35-19 and not allowing a Hawk score until 3:52 remained in the third quarter. The rally didn't last though and Wall finished the period outscoring the Buffs, 8-2 in the final 2:08 for a 44-25 lead after three periods.

Stanton picked up the pace in the final quarter, however as Anderson, Darren Sorley, Kevin Glaspe and Darren Hogan all hit shots. The Buffs hit their first five field goals of the quarter to keep things respectable for most of the quarter at 55-35. However a streak where the Buffs missed seven straight allowed Wall to up their score to 72-42. Stanton did not have anyone in double figures, but seven of the eight Stanton players contributed points.

Hogan led the charge with nine and was followed by Rocky Barnes with eight, Darren Sorley and Anderson with six each, Mark Gonzalez with five and Robby Barnes and Kevin Glaspe with four apiece.

Stanton (42) — Darren Sorley 3-6, Darren Hogan 4-19, Rocky Barnes 4-0, Robby Barnes 2-0, Jerry Anderson 3-0-6, Mark Gonzalez 2-1-5, Kevin Glaspe 2-0-4, Totals 20-24-22. Wall (72) — Darren Sorley 1-5, Darren Hogan 1-5, Kevin Glaspe 2-0-4, Totals 15-15. Stanton 15, Wall 35.

Wall hands Lady Buffs district setback, 34-27

STANTON — The Stanton Lady Buffs had a lead and couldn't keep it here Tuesday night as the Wall Lady Hawks came back to secure a 34-27 win in District 4-AA girl's basketball action.

After ending the first quarter knotted at 6-6 Stanton went ahead in the second and held a 15-11 lead.

The Lady Buffs continued to hold their advantage until 3:50 of the third period when Stanton's 21-19 cushion became a 25-21 deficit as the Lady Hawks scored eight consecutive points from long distance.

While the Lady Hawks were warming up, the Lady Buffs cooled off. Of Stanton's 12 second half points, Pam Garcia was called upon to shoulder 10 of them. Stanton hit only three of 12 shots in the final quarter despite rallying to trail by only two on three occasions.

The loss leaves Stanton with a 1-2 record for the second half of league play and 11-13 overall.

Stanton (27) — Pam Garcia 6 0 12; Cathy Scurlock 1 1 3; Sylvia Hernandez 1 0 2; Ruth Jones 2 0 4; Dawn West 2 0 4; Julie Todd 1 1 2; Totals 13 1 27.

Wall (36) — Braden 1 1 3; Hoffmann 5 2 12; Kvapil 0 2 2;

Morton 1 0 1 7. Total 14 0 34.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 2, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A strange day and one that ricochets between moments when you are able to see how best to achieve good results in an unusual and progressive manner. Keep alert.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Different types of interests and friends can bring you the greatest progress at this time. Gad about more socially.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact prominent persons you know who can be helpful to you and start working on new projects you have in mind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Any new situations that arise should be studied from every angle and handled wisely. Avoid tendency to argue with others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Find a different method to handle all business affairs that will get you better results. Cement a relationship.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Listening carefully to what partners have to suggest will mean working together more profitably. Socialize this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Combining standard methods with the new at your work can bring better results in the future. New contacts materialize.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are desirous of enjoying new types of pleasures, but use care in making choices. Be more interesting to your mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Look to good friends for the assistance you need in order to gain your aims more quickly. Make changes at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact those persons who can assist you to get ahead in your own field of endeavor. Show capabilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can get into various financial affairs now that can add much to present abundance. Make repairs to property.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have fine talents which can be expressed admirably at this time and you get ahead faster. Attend social affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't confide your secret affairs to others now and work quietly to gain your aims. Take care you do not lose your temper.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to combine the old with the new to come up with formulas that can prove workable and profitable. Send to the right type of schools that will be helpful in such lines. Early teach to accept standards.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Lambs exhibit woolly behavior

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

The saying "as gentle as a lamb" may need some revision. Lambs can be stubborn, balky, and jumpy when they get nervous during a stock show.

Several times during the Howard County Stock Show lamb contest, lambs ran into each other, spooked each other and jumped over each other.

"Yeah, they get nervous," said the father of one contestant. His lamb was placidly chewing on grass outside the fair barn before the show, but started when an unfamiliar person approached him.

Josh, a red-wooled lamb, moved back and forth on his legs while he was being groomed by Denise Walker of Coahoma and her father, a scene repeated all over the barn room where animals were being smoothed and groomed.

What lambs don't like to do could include a lot at the stock show, just judging by their owners, who often did more than just pull on their necks to move their animals.

"Sometimes you have to help them from behind," Howard County Agricultural Extension Agent Don Richardson said.

One thing lambs don't like to do is bare their teeth. When the lambs are admitted into the show area, a show assistant checks to see if each has its teeth. Most lambs shy away from the prying fingers; often they rear up in imitation of a stallion.

A lamb's teeth are checked because the animals lose their teeth, they are considered sheep, and can only be entered in sheep shows, county agents said.

And they bleat, loudly and deeply. A visitor to the stock show would know he was in the right place as soon as he heard earshot of the fairgrounds. He wouldn't have to wait for the sight of the dusty pick-up trucks or the farmers and their kids in their jeans and plaid shirts chewing gum and tobacco leaning up against the bleachers in the barn.

Members of the county 4-H clubs or Future Farmers of America aged nine to 19 can enter livestock and poultry in the stock show. And the difference in ages in a show can be amusing, Miss Kalina said.

"The young kids with the big lambs are cute, but some of the big boys and their little lambs are funny," Miss Kalina said.

Some of the younger children showing lambs are outweighed by their entries, and often engage in tugging, slapping and shoving their animals in the direction they want it to go.

Nine-year-old Chad Archibald's heavyweight finewool lamb, at 113 pounds, weighed nearly double Archibald's 60 pounds. Yet the boy, despite losing his lamb when his neighbor's entry ran into him, won reserve champion in his class and the entire finewool class in his first year as a contestant in the lamb show.

"I didn't have much trouble with him, ma'am," Chad said. He smiled when he was asked how much the lamb weighed and how much he weighed. "I'm going to show him again (in the contest for grand champion lamb)."

His lightweight crossbreed placed sixth in its class. Chad, who said he had been practicing a lot on showing his lambs (he showed two in the stock show), smiled and said he liked entering lambs in the show, but didn't know why.

"I don't know why, ma'am," he said, clutching four pieces of bubble gum for his friends and himself. "I just do. I didn't have much trouble with him."

"Chad did a real good job," said a friend's father. "I thought he kept hold of his lamb except when the one next to him ran into him. Even then, I thought he did real well."

You won't dread April 15 nearly so much when you seek the friendly, competent help of A-1's tax experts Dottie Carper, Wilma Dorsey, Erminia Bustamante Camacho, and (seated) Ruth Gibson.

Let A-1 Tax Service Help Save You Money

No income tax return is too small or too large for A-1 Bookkeeping and Tax Service.

Dottie Carper and her crew of tax experts believe they can help most taxpayers find extra deductions and save them money.

And, on the other hand, A-1 has the in-depth knowledge and experience to enable them to prepare the most complicated returns. They have regular customers among corporations, partnerships, large and small business firms and self-employed.

A-1's expanded tax-time hours have already begun, 8:30 to 5:30 on weekdays and 9 to 4 on Saturday.

One of A-1's tax experts reads and speaks Spanish fluently, and this is a great help to those who may not feel confident discussing financial information in English.

In addition to Dottie, the staff includes Wilma Dorsey, Renee Blackwell, Erminia Bustamante Camacho, and for the tax season, Ruth Gibson.

When your tax problems are over, don't forget that A-1 offers complete bookkeeping service, including annual and quarterly reports, payrolls, accounts payable and accounts receivable. Customers have a choice of manual or computerized bookkeeping.

The staff invites phone calls and visits about tax or bookkeeping problems. No appointment is necessary.

A-1 is located on the Lamesa Highway, about 1 mile north of Rip Griffin Truck Terminal. Phone them at 263-3287 or 263-3833.
