How's that? How many?

Q. How many counties are in the state of Texas?
A. Texas has 254 counties.

Calendar: LULAC

TODAY

The League of United Latin American Citizens will meet at 7 p.m. at Amigo's, 205 Runnels. The group will be joined by members of the NAACP at 8 p.m. for a joint meeting.

Spring City Theatre will have a general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium to select committees to work on costumes, props, tickets, programs, promotions, advertising, hospitality and maintenance for their upcoming spring production. Anyone interested in participating is invited to the meeting.

THURSDAY

The Howard College Queens and Hawks play Frank Phillips College at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Coliseum.

FIRDAY

A senior citizens dance is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Big Spring Air Park building #487.

Tops on TV: Good sport

Ralph Waite and Lee Remick star in "A Good Sport," a movie about a newspaper reporter and a fashion magazine editor who try to develop a platonic relationship. The movie airs at 8 p.m. on channel 7. Bill Moyers takes a walk through the 20th century in "The Arming of the Earth" at 9 p.m. on channel 5.

At the movies Surf II

"The Power" and "Surf II" are in Big Spring this week showing at the Ritz Twin. At the R-70, "Angel" continues for another week. At the Cinema, look for "Uncommon Valor" and "To Be or Not To Be." Check listings for movie times.

Outside: Mild

Today should see a high in the mid-60s with partly cloudy skies and southerly winds, 10 to 20 miles per hour and gusty. By tonight, look for cooler temperatures with lows in the low 30s and northwesterly winds, 5 to 15 miles per hour. On Thursday, the weatherman is calling for mild temperatures in the mid-60s with westerly winds, 5 to 10 miles per hour.

Off the wall: Bad example

LONDON (AP) — J.R., the villain of TV's "Dallas," routinely ruins business competitors, wrecks happy families and otherwise wreaks general nastiness. So why not pin the decline of British marriages on him, too?

J.R. and the whole Ewing clan with their bed-hopping ways are setting a bad example, a group of English marriage counselors said Tuesday.

"They treat marriage like a second-hand car market," said Irene Watson, chairman of the National Housewives Association. "When they get fed up with one model they trade it in for a new one."

"In 'Dallas' the answer to marital problems is either to jump in bed with someone else, sock your partner on the jaw or shoot someone," said Stephen Saunders, spokesman for the Marriage Guidance Council.

"It's all right if people realize this is just entertainment, but it gives the impression that divorce is an easy step," he said.

Marines yanked from Lebanon

Pullout decided last week

BEIRUT (AP) — The battleship New Jersey bombarded positions in the Syrian-controlled central Lebanese mountains today with its 16-inch guns, and U.S. Marines awaited orders to pull back from their airport bunkers to ships off the Lebanese coast.

The 115-man British contingent of the multinational force withdrew from its suburban base and moved to a ship offshore because of the "deteriorating" situation in Lebanon.

The British move followed President Reagan's announcement Tuesday night that the 1,600 U.S. Marines would be redeployed to American ships off the shores of Lebanon. But Reagan authorized broader use of American naval guns and warships to support the disintegrating Lebanese army and the embattled government of President Amin Gemayel.

"The USS New Jersey is firing 16-inch guns at targets in Syrian-controlled areas of Lebanon which have been firing on the city of Beirut," said a spokesman for the Marines, Maj. Dennis Brooks. The Voice of Lebanon radio station said the bombardment destroyed at least eight Druse militia gun positions in the central mountains.

The ship's 16-inch guns are the largest afloat. Brooks said the New Jersey opened up at 1:25 p.m. and still was firing at 5:30 p.m. (10:30 a.m. EST). It was the ship's heaviest barrage since it joined the 6th Fleet flotilla off the Beirut coast last September.

Brooks said the targets had earlier fired at U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew's residence in suburban Yarze "and areas in Beirut," but he did not say if the residence was hit.

He also said the Marine compound at Beirut International Airport was hit by "three or four mortars or rockets" within minutes after the battleship began firing.

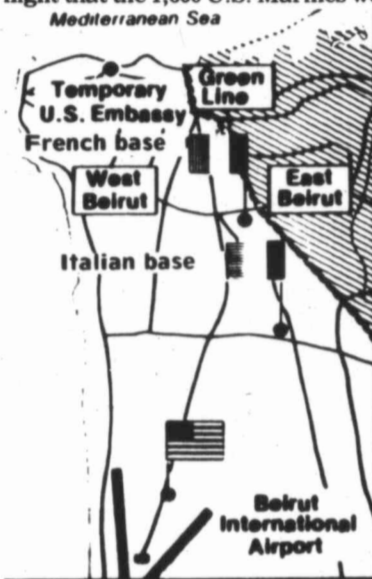

Moslem and Druse militiamen who took control of west Beirut after a week of fierce fighting tightened their grip on the largely Moslem sector today and the army's 6th Brigade, under Brig. Gen. Lutfi Jaber, said today it had defected to the rebels. A statement published by the leftist newspaper As-Safir said the brigade would assume security duties in west Beirut.

Amal, the nation's largest Shiite Moslem militia, ordered all armed militiamen off the streets of west Beirut. "All forms of armed presence are henceforth banned and any encroachments on citizens, official institutions or private enterprises will be stopped by force," Amal said in an announcement read on state radio.

In Paris, the Defense Ministry said more than 1,800 French troops in Beirut remained at their posts in west Beirut this morning, but patrols outside their sector had been halted. It said there were no immediate plans to redeploy the French contingent.

A spokesman for the 1,400-man Italian contingent said there were no new orders concerning its mission. But in Rome, Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini said Italy will reduce its force, although it plans no immediate withdrawal.

GOING HOME — A Marine private stands on top of his packed equipment vehicle waving an American flag and flashing a victory signal at the Beirut International Airport Wednesday as the Marine contingent started preparations for its departure from Lebanon.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan's decision to move the U.S. Marines from the Beirut airport to ships offshore was made a week ago but kept secret while U.S. officials explained the plan to Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, White House officials say.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Tuesday the decision was formalized about Feb. 1 in a written national security directive.

Reagan issued a written statement to announce the plan Tuesday as he arrived at Point Mugu Naval Air Station, Calif., en route to his ranch for a five-day vacation.

The president said that the 1,600 U.S. Marines would be redeployed offshore and that he had authorized American warships to provide naval gunfire and air support against any units firing from Syrian held positions, as well as against direct attacks on Americans or other multinational force personnel.

Reagan said he has directed Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to prepare a plan for the redeployment of the Marines, and a White House official said it probably would be presented to Reagan during his ranch vacation.

This official said the redeployment would not be completed for at least a month.

Speakes said that the Reagan administration had been reassessing the controversial role of the U.S. Marines in Lebanon for several months.

Green named boss of the year

MAXWELL GREEN
...Business Associate of the Year

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Maxwell Green, a certified public accountant, was named the Scenic Chapter of American Business Women's Association's Business Associate of the Year for 1984-1985.

His selection was announced by Dick Johnson, 1983-84 Business Associate of the Year, Tuesday evening at the chapter's annual Boss Night Banquet at the Brass Nail Restaurant.

Green was nominated by Loretta Burns, an accountant at his office, and by Sherrie Templeton, a former employee. "He is the kind of a man that you work with and not for," the women said in their letter of nomination.

Green began his accounting career in 1955. In 1961, he moved to Big Spring and opened his private practice in 1967. Green is active in civic and political activities, including the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors, the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center's board of directors and the United Way board. He has been listed as an outstanding American in Who's

Who in the South.

Joe Pickle presented the banquet's keynote address on "Citizenship." Pickle is a former editor of the Big Spring Herald and currently secretary of the board of directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Pickle said the definition of citizenship implies a democracy or a function of democracy. Democracy is the rule of the people he said, or rule from the people as a source of power.

As citizens, people have options of what they want the course of their government to be and what their lives should be. With increased population and urban society, pressures increase, he said. Pickle spoke about the history of citizenship and government in Big Spring, which has become more complex over time, thus increasing social pressures, he said.

Pickle asked the audience how they were going to deal with the pressures and yet retain the basic idea of democracy. At the heart of democracy lies the right of choice, he said. Mistakes are made, and as

State bans food containing EDB

From staff and wire reports
Supermarket managers in Big Spring say they have not heard from the state or their home offices on what products to remove from their shelves as a result of an order handed down this morning from the Texas Board of Health prohibiting the sale of certain foods containing the pesticide EDB.

The board opted to follow the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's on limiting levels of the pesticide EDB in food, ordering grocery stores to remove tainted products.

The H.E.B. grocery chain, which does not have a store in the Big Spring area, has already announced it would pull packages of Duncan Hines brand muffin mix from store shelves because it was found to contain 436 ppb of EDB.

The muffin mix was one of two products out of 200 tested in Texas, found to exceed the EPA's recommended limits. The other product is Jim Dandy Quick Grits, which has 90 ppb.

Texas Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein said he expected other grocery store chains to quickly comply with the guidelines and he said manufacturers have told him they will meet the state levels.

"We don't think much policing will be required," he said, adding that state authorities would conduct

'It will kill you. It will eat your organs out.' — Robert Bernstein, state health commissioner spot checks to enforce compliance with the guidelines.

The state board also went one step farther Tuesday, expanding the limits to citrus fruit and baby food.

The emergency guidelines will set ceilings for acceptable amounts of EDB at 900 parts per billion in raw grains, 150 ppb in processed grains produced for baking and 30 ppb in ready to eat products such as cereals and breads.

EDB, ethylene dibromide, has been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

The federal guidelines proposed Friday by EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus did not include limits for citrus products and baby food.

"We think it doesn't matter if you are eating EDB from nachos or from oranges," Bernstein said.

"We're taking a very conservative approach in what we are doing today," Bernstein said. "I think we have to aim towards elimination of the substance, if we can, because we know it's bad stuff."

Ruckelshaus said less than 2 percent of the total citrus fruit consumed in the United States is treated with EDB. Bernstein said the federal guidelines did not include citrus fruit because there is no effective substitute for countering fruit flies.

The controversy over EDB, a commonly used grain fumigant, heightened about six weeks ago when it was found in ground water and food substances in Florida. Bernstein said no EDB has been found in Texas ground water, and no EDB has been found in baby food tested by the state.

Bernstein described EDB as "bad stuff."

"It will kill you. It will eat your organs out," he said, but only true if consumed in extremely large quantities.

"Nobody I know of, can eat six to 12 tons of grain a day — the amount that would be required to reach levels used in (animal) experiments," he said.

Bernstein acknowledged that some environmentalists believe the federal recommendation is lax. "There are folks that are not going to be happy with what we are proposing. ... They say there should be zero EDB," he said, adding that he believed the guidelines were "very reasonable."

Council race draws one more

A third person has entered the race for the new District 1 seat on the Big Spring City Council, the city secretary's office said this morning.

The new candidate is John M. Haro Jr. of 703 1/2 S. Lancaster.

Haro told the city secretary's office he is a disabled war veteran, married and has no children.

Haro is the third candidate to declare for the newly formed district, which has an approximate 61 percent minority population, according to 1980 U.S. government census figures.

Already declared since filing opened Monday are Henry Sanchez of 709 Douglas and Richard Beltran of 804 Lancaster.

April elections are also scheduled for the city council District 3 seat, although no candidates have declared for the place as yet.

Lonely man makes friends of feathered flock

STREAMWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Life is sometimes lonely for Arnold Nilson. But he has his ducks and geese, and his feathered friends have him.

Twice a day since this winter began, Nilson has driven his battered Vega to the top of an incline that shields a pond in this Chicago suburb. Jammed in the front seat are bags of bread he forages late at night from trash bins outside bakeries and grocery stores.

ARNOLD NILSON

The rituals each morning and afternoon hold special meaning for the 59-year-old Norwegian immigrant.

His wife left him several years ago and he seldom sees any of his nine children. A 1975 heart attack has kept him from working and the family home is about to be sold for back taxes.

"My wife, she couldn't tolerate illness very well," Nilson explains, and his family "just fell apart."

As he heads for the frozen pond, he keeps a wary eye on the compressor that drives a stream of air in to the water and warms it for the birds. The machine has been on the blink.

Nilson has a simple philosophy: "If we didn't pollute the land, the birds would not be so tame. They get hungry and can't find food, so they come here."

He walks toward the pond where about 100 geese, ducks and a swan await breakfast.

"Yah hoo. Yah hoo," he signals.

"Look at this one," he says, dropping a piece of wheat bread on the ice for the mallard. "She's like a wife. Always here by my side and I don't notice her. But when I look for her, she's there."

That special mallard almost died this winter. She was sitting on the pond when her body heat melted a hole through the ice. She was stuck until Nilson came along to help her out, using a pick to chip the ice away.

Crews from the Streamwood Park District take care of the compressor and a daily feeding for the birds. But without the extras that Nilson supplies, says park director Michael Ryko, most of the geese would have found a warmer climate by now.

"We wouldn't have hundreds of birds out there in the winter," Ryko said. "But I don't mind. I think it's a great thing he's doing."

"Life is simple now," Nilson says. "It's just me and the geese and the ducks. They don't complain so much, like people."

His house in nearby Hanover Park is to be sold next month and he hasn't found an apartment he can afford on his disability payments.

Nilson says he will "take it one day at a time and somehow, something will come up. In the meantime, you have to be satisfied. Like the birds. The hungrier they get, the more satisfied they are when they finally get to eat."

CARING FOR HIS FLOCK — Arnold Nilson of Streamwood, Ill., feeds the geese and ducks on a frozen pond. Nilson, 59, drives his car twice daily to the pond to feed the flock with bread he forages from bakery and grocery store dumpsters.

Police Beat

Dog's murder reported

Ann Gauwain of 120 Airbase told police at 10:21 a.m. Tuesday that someone she knows cut her dog's throat while the animal was chained in her front yard, police reports said. The killing occurred sometime after Sunday, reports said.

Elbert Powers of 106 Washinton told police at 4:40 p.m. Monday that someone stole a gold and diamond ring worth $1,100 between Jan. 22 and Feb. 5, police reports said. Powers told police that although his residence showed no sign of forced entry, the ring was missing when he went to put it on for church, reports said.

Angela Jones, a student at Big Spring High School, told police at 4:55 p.m. Monday that someone between 8:30 a.m. and 10:55 a.m. Monday stole a Geinhardt flute worth $600 from her locker at the high school, police reports said. Miss Jones told police she was unable to lock her locker, reports said.

Corina Puentes of 3308 Auburn told police at 11:46 a.m. Tuesday that someone entered her residence between 5:30 p.m. Friday and 1:30 a.m. Monday, causing $115 in damages to a door, windows and a stereo speaker cover. The person then stole a sliding screen door worth $50 and an engine block worth $175 from a storage building at the rear of the house, police reports said.

For the record

The name of the driver of the pickup truck that collided with a pedestrian Monday was incorrectly reported. John Thea Harper, 51, of Snyder collided with Arthur Arnold Watkins, 40, of Colorado City, Department of Public Safety reports show.

Watkins was talking to Elmer Roy Cawthorn Jr., 63, of P.O. Box 1703, whose vehicle was parked on the roadway of the northbound lane of F.M. 821, before he started across the road and was struck by the truck, the DPS said.

The name of one of the Democratic candidates for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Place 1 was inadvertently left out of yesterday's listing.

Paul Silva, a bail bondsman and former Howard County sheriff's deputy, is running for the justice of the peace seat.

12 file for Demo party posts

Twelve Howard County Democrats have filed their intentions to run as precinct chairmen in the Democratic primary in May. The county has more than 20 precincts, County Clerk Margaret Ray said.

Prospective chairmen include E.M. Newton, Precinct 104; Larry Shaw, Precinct 105; Alta Lee Underwood, Precinct 202, Ward 3; Raford Dunagan, Precinct 203, Ward 2; Mrs. H.C. Wallin, Precinct 206; Clovis Phinney Jr., Precinct 207; and Mrs. L.T. Shoults, Precinct 208.

Other chairmen include John J. Roemer Sr., Precinct 303, Ward 3; Mrs. L.Z. Rhodes, Precinct 304; Leta Kirby, Precinct 403, Ward 2; Cecil L. Hamilton, Precinct 404; and Loyd Underwood, Precinct 406.

Reward offered in murder

Crime Stoppers is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for the murder of Robert Dutchover Jr.,

23, of 1205 Lamar, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said.

The sheriff's office and the Texas Rangers have made "considerable progress" in the investigation, Standard said. However, "some key information" that would aid in the investigation is missing, Standard said.

Dutchover's body was found Jan. 30 northeast of Big Spring on Gail Road about two miles from Snyder Highway. Justice of the Peace Willie Grant ruled Dutchover's death homicide by shooting. His body had three gunshot wounds, she said.

To report information concerning Dutchover's death, call Crime Stoppers at 263-1153, the Texas Rangers' Howard County office at 263-4542 or the Howard County sheriff's office at 263-7654.

Marines

A statement by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office said the British troops were withdrawing to a Royal Navy ship off the Lebanese coast.

It cited the "deteriorating security situation in Beirut and the particularly exposed position of the British force in Lebanon headquarters building..." It said the troops would remain at sea "until the situation becomes clearer."

The British contingent to the peacekeeping force arrived in Beirut on Feb. 8, 1983 — exactly one year ago — in a show of solidarity with its Western allies.

A man who answered the telephone at the former British post identified himself as a Lebanese soldier. "We're under bombardment. Shells are falling all around us," he told The Associated Press.

The future of Christian President Gemayel was uncertain, his army weakened by Moslem defections and his U.S.-backed government riddled by the Cabinet's resignation.

Brooks said the Marines had not yet received orders to leave their vulnerable positions, as provided under Reagan's decision. But the young soldiers' enthusiasm was already apparent.

"We heard last night (about the pullout). We drank our two beers for the day and had sweet dreams about going home," Lance Cpl. Nick Motta of Orlando, Fla., told reporters at the airport base.

Two-hundred and fifty "support personnel" were transferred to ships on Tuesday before Reagan's announcement, but Capt. Jim Santana, a Defense Department spokesman in Washington said, "Basically, it's not related to the announcement."

He called it a "normal procedure" to protect support personnel during times when "things get a little out of hand or we're taking fire."

Brooks said the Marines remain under orders "to stand fast and continue our mission." When the word comes to move out, it will "take three to five days to get all our supplies ... and all our personnel in a staged, orderly withdrawal back aboard ship."

Thirty-nine employees and dependents of the U.S. Embassy in west Beirut were airlifted to the ships by helicopter Tuesday because of "the current unstable situation," Brooks said.

They arrived today at Larnaca, Cyprus, where one called the experience "pretty damn scary."

"The last couple days were horrible," said Jenny Stewart, wife of embassy press attache John Stewart.

She said that before the evacuation, many of the embassy staff had remained in the basements of their Beirut apartment buildings because of the fighting.

The 22 embassy personnel and 17 dependents were taken by helicopter from the embassy building to the USS Manitowoc offshore. The Manitowoc sailed to Larnaca, 137 miles to the east during the night, and they were flown by helicopter to Larnaca airport early in the morning.

Two more U.S. warships, the carrier Independence and the destroyer Claude V. Ricketts, were steaming for Lebanese waters to rejoin the 6th Fleet after cutting short a port call in Turkey.

One French soldier was killed and at least 15 other members of the multinational force were wounded — including two Marines — in the fierce fighting in Beirut Monday and Tuesday.

Reagan

weeks in an effort to find, as he put it, a better use for the American members of the multinational force.

The final plan, according to a White House official who did not wish to be identified, was sold to Gemayel because it offered him the critical artillery support he had felt he needed.

The special U.S. envoy to the Middle East, Donald Rumsfeld, discussed the plan with Gemayel for several days, the official said. He said the Lebanese leader finally agreed to it Monday during a lengthy meeting with Rumsfeld.

Meanwhile, Reagan chaired a secret meeting of his national security advisers on Sunday and he ordered Vice President George Bush to convene a similar meeting in Reagan's absence Tuesday.

The White House official said Reagan gave the final go-ahead to the plan Tuesday, apparently after being briefed on the deteriorating situation in Lebanon by the three aides accompanying him on this journey. The three were Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, Deputy Chief of Staff Michael K. Deaver and Adm. John Poindexter, deputy to the national security adviser.

While aides appeared worried about the public image of a vacationing president at a time of world crisis, Reagan, who likes to visit his ranch at least six times a year, seemed determined to follow through with his planned vacation.

Loretta Burns was the vocational speaker. She described her position as an accountant at the Maxwell Green, C.P.A. office.

The chapter's March Enrollment Event will be at the Chamber of Commerce board room from 2 to 4 p.m. March 11.

long as there is democracy, people have a choice and can correct those things, he said.

According to Pickle, people are in danger of losing their right of choice because they are not exercising their right of choice. He cited the small turnouts at local elections as an example.

From this, Pickle defined citizenship as having the responsibility to exercise the right of choice. He quoted, "The person who stands aloof from public affairs is useless." He ended by saying, "Citizenship — use it or lose it."

Grass fires break out in county

Howard County volunteer fire departments Tuesday afternoon fought two grass fires in the area.

The Lomax Volunteer Fire Department was called at 3:40 p.m. to battle a grass fire located on Elbow Road one-half mile west of Highway 33. The fire was under control by 4:07 p.m., the sheriff's records said. The Jonesboro Volunteer Fire Department fought a grass fire located about five or six miles north of the Mount Olive Cemetery near Highway 87. The fire was reported to the sheriff's department at 3:03 p.m. and was reported under control by 4:15 p.m., sheriff's records show.

Ernest Guzman Jr., 17, of 1401 Mesa Tuesday pleaded guilty in Howard County Court to criminal mischief. County Judge Milton Kirby fined Guzman $300 and $81 court costs. Guzman remains in county jail on suspicion of committing a felony, Howard County sheriff's records show.

Daniel Alan Holland, 24, of the Mayo Ranch Hotel was released today after serving a two-day sentence for driving while license suspended, sheriff's records show.

Severo T. Torres, 35, of Snyder Monday was released from county jail after Justice of the Peace Willie Grant reduced his fine for failure to carry liability insurance to $45 from $81. He served two days in jail to lay out his fine and was credited with one day served, sheriff's records show.

Deaths

Ronnie Smith

Services for Ronnie Smith, 48, who died Monday from injuries received in a traffic accident, will be at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with burial in Trinity Memorial Park. The Rev. Dan Sanford of Aransas Pass will officiate.

He was born Nov. 5, 1935 in Big Spring. He married Judy Sloan March 5, 1981 here and spent most of his life here.

He served in the U.S. Marine Corps and was employed in the service department at Big Spring Hardware for more than 30 years. He had been a reserve captain on the Big Spring Police force.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Melissa Ann Smith of Big Spring; three aunts, Thelma Ayers and Jessie Verner, both of Odessa, and Merle Bundy of Vancouver, Wash.; and an uncle, Edmund Smith of Moline, Ill.

Pallbearers will be Richard Atkins, Hector Granados, Dr. Robert Patterson, Stanley Bogard, Stan Ballou, Roy Sloan, Walt Speaker and Neal Watkins.

Ortry

Boatler

Mrs. Elmer (Ortry) Boatler, 82, died Tuesday at a local hospital. Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Born Jan. 23, 1902 in Big Spring, she married Elmer Boatler June 26, 1921 in Howard County. He died March 6, 1975. She was a lifetime resident of Big Spring. She was a member of the Royal Neighbors of America. She was president of Past Matrons Club Order of the Eastern Star No. 67. Her parents, the Anderson Baileys, were pioneers in Howard County.

Survivors include one daughter, Kathleen Aton of Big Spring; one brother, Abe Bailey of Big Spring; three sisters, Ruby Petty, Clara Halbrook and Mattie Boling, all of Big Spring; two granddaughters, Mrs.

Jim (Sherry) Jacobs of San Antonio and Mrs. Larry (Kay) Reynolds of Bossier City, La.; and five great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by a brother, Bill Bailey.

Pallbearers will be Dalton Carr, W.M. McFarland, Charles Hamm, Bob Gardner, Nile Cole and Leland Calvert.

Honorary pallbearers will be Bill Talbot, Johnny Johansen, Noble Kenemur and Leonard Hanson.

Irene

Blackwell

CARLSBAD, N.M. — Irene Benz Blackwell, 87, mother of a Big Spring man, died here Tuesday of a lengthy illness.

Services will be Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Denton Funeral Home in Carlsbad. Burial will be in the Carlsbad Cemetery.

Mrs. Blackwell was born in Illinois in 1896. She had lived in New Mexico since 1908 and moved to Eddy County, N.M., more than 60 years ago.

She was a member of the First Christian Church of Carlsbad, the Order of the Eastern Star No. 54, and the Rebekah Lodge No. 13. She also taught Sunday school at her church.

Survivors include one son, Clarence (Chuck) Benz of Big Spring; one stepson, Eugene Benz of Carlsbad, N.M.; four daughters, Mrs. Opal Funk and Mrs. Gladys Wiseman, both of Carlsbad, N.M., Mrs. Georgia DeYoung of Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Edythe Gibson of Bothel, Wash.; two sisters, Verna Bailey of Lone Oak, Texas, and Faye Sides of California; and 10 grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

She was preceded in death by her first husband, George R. Benz, who died in 1957, and by her second husband, Carl Blackwell, who died in 1979.

Blind girl to meet Dolly

HOUSTON — A terminally ill 11-year-old girl who is blind and unable to speak is getting a dream come true — flying to Hollywood to meet her country-western favorite, Dolly Parton, and get a private concert.

Vickie Perales of Houston was going to Hollywood with her parents and brother today to visit with the entertainer at the Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studios in a trip arranged by A Child's Wish Come True, a nationwide organization that helps grant the wishes of terminally ill children.

While Vickie can't see or speak, she listens to Miss Parton's albums.

The youngster suffers from calcification of the brain stem and is confined to a wheelchair. Two years ago doctors told her parents she had only four weeks to live.

"She's a little fighter," says Rick Norris, spokesman for the Houston office of A Child's Wish Come True.

Picking up on an appeal aired on a Houston country-western radio station, an aviation and jet fuel company, Jaco Energy, offered to provide the plane for the flight to Hollywood.

Philharmonic to tour Asia

NEW YORK — Music Director Zubin Mehta of the New York Philharmonic says he can't wait to set out on a tour of Asia next August and September.

Mehta, 47, a native of Bombay, India, announced the tour Tuesday.

"To me it's the New York Philharmonic tour of India and other places," he said.

Mehta announced there will be three concerts in Bombay. "The first two will be attended by my relatives. I belong to a small minority in India — Parsee. They're mostly in Bombay. About 80 percent claim to be my relatives."

Two concerts will be given in Tokyo; Seoul, Korea; Taipei, Taiwan; Hong Kong; Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; Jakarta, Indonesia, and Singapore. One will be given in Osaka, Nagoya and Yokohama, Japan; and in Delhi and Calcutta, India.

Wambaugh gets bad review

SAN DIEGO — Police Chief Bill Kolender has given a lukewarm review to Joseph Wambaugh's new book, "Lines and Shadows," about an undercover squad of San Diego police officers.

"It was entertaining, but I thought he exaggerated the emotions of the officers," said Kolender.

The officers hunted San Ysidro border bandits in the mid-1970's.

Wambaugh suggests the pressures of the continuous commando-like effort took a toll on several of the officers, driving them to near insanity.

Kolender said of the officers, "I don't think the problems within them were that great."

Their mission was to stop rapes, robberies and killings of undocumented Mexicans who crossed nightly through remote hills and canyons into the United States.

The operation was effective in reducing border crime but also resulted in numerous gun battles, with both bandits and officers being shot. It finally was abandoned as being too dangerous, Kolender said Monday.

Oswald's widow files suit

DALLAS — The widow of Lee Harvey Oswald, Marina Oswald Porter, has filed suit over videotapes and photographs taken when the body of the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy was exhumed to dispel the theory that a Soviet spy had been buried in Oswald's grave.

Arab Emirates diplomat shot

PARIS (AP) — A diplomat from the United Arab Emirates was shot and seriously wounded on a Paris street today, police said.

Details of the attack were not immediately released. Officers said he was shot in the head and received emergency treatment on the scene.

The Embassy refused all comment.

The news in brief

By the Associated Press

Weather may delay landing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Challenger's astronauts went before the camera today to star in a panoramic movie, while on the ground officials were eyeing bad weather that could delay or once again cancel the first shuttle landing in Florida.

The space travelers, after five bittersweet, busy days in orbit, welcomed a relatively easy day of experiments and relaxation before winding down the journey with more tetherless space walks on Thursday, a news conference from space Friday and return to Earth on Saturday, landing at a launch site runway.

But weather officials reported a storm front is heading this way from the Gulf of Mexico, and if a high front to the North does not pull it that direction, it could bring rain and clouds to this area at the planned 7:21 a.m. EST touchdown time Saturday.

NASA would like to start landing shuttles here instead of in California to save money and cut down turnaround time between launches. To achieve that goal on this flight, the agency said it would keep the Challenger crew in space an extra day and land here Sunday morning. After that there are no daylight touchdown opportunities here for several days, so the shuttle would be diverted to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. The weather prediction for a Sunday landing is good.

One previous attempt to land the shuttle here, last July, was scrubbed because of bad weather.

Today's filming sessions, with a special Cinema-360 camera, were to capture footage for a half-hour documentary, "The Space Shuttle: An American Adventure." They began with shots of Commander Vance Brand and pilot Robert Gibson working at their control stations.

The finished film, which will put audiences in the center of the 360-degree action, is designed for projection onto the domes of specially-equipped planetariums. It is to be completed after two more shuttle missions.

Volcano could erupt again

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Steaming cracks in Mount St. Helens' lava dome grew larger and shallow earthquakes kept up a seismic chatter today, warning that an explosive eruption at the volcano may be imminent, scientists said.

"Field crews report deformation (of the dome) is continuing at a rapid rate," Thom Corcoran, Forest Service spokesman at the Volcano Information Center in Vancouver, said Tuesday night.

"They also report some changes in the top of the dome, including disrupted areas, increasing size in the cracks on the top of the dome."

Corcoran added that "extrusions (of molten rock), rock avalanches and small explosions may follow over the next several days."

The earthquake activity remained at a high level today, said Rick Benson, a research scientist at the University of Washington geophysics program.

A field crew from the U.S. Geological Survey on Tuesday reached ridges near Spirit Lake, at the northern base of the mountain, to view the crater and measure the dome to check for deformation caused by magma under the volcano.

A landslide that reached the crater floor and sent an ash plume 800 feet over the crater rim Monday night probably was the signal that an "eruptive pulse" had started, said Corcoran. The slide was seen by geologists on a night flight over the 8,300-foot peak.

Scientists have said any danger from an eruption would probably be confined to the crater area and the flanks of the volcano.

Budget battle heats up

WASHINGTON — Talks between administration officials and members of Congress on President Reagan's call for a $100 billion "down payment" to reduce deficits are getting off to a shaky start with senior Democrats and Republicans already predicting failure.

5 killed

in propane explosion

WALLKILL, N.Y. (AP) — An explosion occurred when a propane tank was being installed at a lead-extracting business this morning, killing five employees, state police said. Four others were injured.

The explosion occurred around 7:10 a.m. at the RSR Corporation on Ballard Road in Wallkill, about two miles east of Middletown, said state police Sgt. Alfred Dorer.

At Reagan's urging, five top presidential advisers and two members each from the House and Senate were gathering today at Blair House, the government's official guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

But prospects for the negotiations are bleak. "How," asked Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, "can anyone realistically expect the whole budget to be rewritten by a few members of Congress and administration representatives meeting downtown, whether at the White House or Blair House or wherever?"

The fact of the matter is the process of crafting a budget requires weeks and weeks of careful preparation," said Byrd, of West Virginia.

Reagan's invitation to the talks was issued a week before he sent Congress a fiscal 1985 spending plan that projects deficits of $180 billion in each of the next few years, not far off the record $195.4 billion posted in 1983.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has said the president called for the election-year talks simply to "pass the buck" on the issue of huge federal budget deficits.

Legislative efforts to significantly reduce federal budget deficits have been stalled since last year by Reagan's insistence that big increases in taxes or big reductions in military spending are off-limits while Democratic leaders ruled out further domestic spending cuts.

Soviets snub U.S. elections

MOSCOW — The Soviet press is giving special attention to the 1984 presidential race, charging that President Reagan is the leading contender in a "competition of money bags."

On Tuesday, Socialist Industry, one of the Communist Party's daily newspapers, called Reagan a "stooge" of big business and harshly attacked his reelection committee. The paper charged the group would "buy the presidency to keep their man in the White House."

The Soviet press often seeks to portray U.S. presidential races as little more than popularity contests among wealthy candidates who are beholden to special-interest groups.

The official press also routinely takes the position that American voters are disgruntled with the choice of candidates available during election years. And it says candidates characteristically make many promises during their campaigns, only to forget them when elected to office.

Despite the general criticism, the Soviet leadership in most campaign years has been complimentary toward the candidate it perceives as most interested in improving U.S.-Soviet relations.

In years past, the Kremlin, using the press as its mouthpiece, has even endorsed favorites, as when it predicted then-President Richard Nixon would win over George McGovern because of Nixon's visit to Moscow in 1972. The Soviets also strongly supported Lyndon B. Johnson over Barry Goldwater in 1964.

But this year, the Soviets haven't picked any candidates. And press commentary promises to be especially contemptuous toward Reagan, whose administration has taken an exceptionally conservative approach to U.S.-Soviet relations.

Those relations have steadily declined in recent years, hitting a low point with the Sept. 1 Soviet downing of a South Korean airliner and the Soviet walkout last November from the Geneva arms talks.

Some observers believe the Soviets are showing such interest in the presidential race both because of a dislike for Reagan himself and as an opportunity to besmirch the American image in Europe.

Weather

By the Associated Press

West Texas — Partly cloudy most sections through Thursday. Patchy drizzle southeast tonight. Lows 25 Panhandle to 38 extreme south. Highs 55 Panhandle to 68 extreme south.

Rain expected over state

Fair skies and mild temperatures dominated the Texas weather picture before dawn today as warm air from the Gulf of Mexico began to creep into southern sections of the state.

Low clouds were developing over South and South Central Texas. Some light rain developed over sections of the Rio Grande Valley.

Pre-dawn temperatures dipped into the 30s and 40s over much of the state. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 26 at Marfa in the Davis Mountains of West Texas to 59 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Most temperatures were in the upper 30s and lower 40s, the National Weather Service said.

Southerly winds at 10 to 15 mph were the rule over the South Plains, North Central Texas and the Edwards Plateau, while light and variable breezes were noted elsewhere across Texas.

The forecast called for mostly cloudy skies and light rain or drizzle over South Texas. Clouds were expected to increase over North Texas, bringing a chance of rain tonight and Thursday. Fair to partly cloudy skies were forecast for the rest of the state.

The coastal marine forecast called for easterly and southeasterly winds near 15 knots through Thursday. Cloudy skies along with light rain, drizzle and a few thundershowers were possible along the coast. In addition, forecasters warned of the possibility of fog near shore tonight and early Thursday.

Elsewhere in the nation, light snow lingered over the lower Great Lakes early today as subzero temperatures continued in the Midwest and northern New England and freezing weather dipped into Florida for the second day.

It was 25 degrees in Tallahassee and 32 in Gainesville, Fla.

Light rain spread across the Pacific Northwest. Fair skies with temperatures in the 20s stretched from the Tennessee valley to the southern Atlantic coast.

The mercury dipped to 4 degrees below zero in Burlington, Vt., and International Falls, Minn., and to 7 below zero in Duluth, Minn.

The national forecast for later today predicted sunshine for most of the nation except light rain in the Pacific Northwest.

Cold temperatures were to linger over the Northeast with readings in the teens and 20s.

From the Northern Plains to the mid-Atlantic states, the temperatures were expected to hover in the 30s and 40s. Readings were expected in the 50s and 60s in the southern states and the West Coast, while Southern California was to enjoy temperatures in the 70s.

Temperatures at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 7 degrees below zero at Duluth, Minn., to 62 at Yuma, Ariz.

Temperatures on left indicate previous day's high and overnight low to 8 a.m. EST. Temperatures on right indicate outlook for tomorrow.

Keep arms out of outer space

The Air Force's announcement of a flight test of an anti-satellite missile threatens to spread the arms race above and beyond the planet, to outer space itself.

Any military advantage created by an anti-satellite missile would be more than offset by the many dangers involved in the militarization of space by the superpowers. There is little reason to suppose that the Soviets would be intimidated by a U.S. satellite-killer; more likely is the possibility that they would speed deployment of their own ASAT system.

As a high-tech superpower, the United States relies heavily on space satellites for civilian and military purposes. That's one reason why this country would have more to lose in a space-based war than the Soviet Union and more to gain by a system to protect satellites.

The best way to protect our satellites is to negotiate an effective treaty banning the weapons that threaten them. ASAT treaty talks broke down after the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in 1979. The administration has been cool to resuming them, on the grounds that compliance with any ASAT ban would be hard to verify.

Verification is a legitimate concern and it should (and would) be the subject of negotiations. But concern over verification is not a good reason to avoid talks in the first place.

The longer Washington and Moscow delay talks, the more testing the two sides will do, and the more difficult it will be to reach (and verify compliance with) an agreement. The United States should not wait until technology threatens this country's eyes in space.

Around The Rim

By KEELY COGHAN

Yesterday and forever

My mother used to shake her head and tell my dad, "It's just a phase she's going through."

My dad would reply, "I hope she goes through it quick."

I used to exasperate my parents with my musical tastes when I was growing up. And I admit now they were limited. My five favorite musicians of the time were: The Beatles, John Lennon, George Harrison, Paul McCartney and Ringo Starr. The Stones finished a distant sixth.

I still listen to the Beatles' records and to their solo efforts, despite the snide comments of my colleagues. Yesterday, I pulled out their first two American albums to commemorate their arrival in America twenty years ago today.

The Beatles' invasion of America changed a lot of things here. We stopped listening to as much surfer music. Men's hair became obscenely long (over their ears and midway down the neck), and all the bands had drummers who shook their heads in time to the music.

But the Beatles affected our lives in less superficial ways. Because I was growing up in the '60s, I'm not sure whether they helped shape our emerging values or whether they merely reflected them. I know they sharply defined what was "cool" for the period.

A lot of people thought they initiated the drug craze and the psychedelia in the late '60s. I sincerely doubt it. According to Tom Wolfe, author of Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test, Ken Kesey and Timothy Leary were advocating American youth to "turn on, tune in, and drop out," long before any of the various ex-Beatle biographies and autobiographies list their subjects' first experiment with heavy drugs.

Anyway, unlike some of the later rock groups such as the Grateful Dead, listening to their music did not require the use of drugs. Have you ever tried to listen to Onagodavida all the way through — no talking, no getting up to change the record after five minutes — let alone dance to the song? I don't think it can be done, with or without drug use. And they certainly didn't contain satanic references.

People have written books about how the Beatles, collectively or individually, changed our times. About how Lennon's song, "Give Peace a Chance," became one of the anthems of the anti-war movement. About how John and Yoko's avant-garde albums like the Wedding Album and Two Virgins pre-figured a lot of the music now produced by punk and new wave bands. I couldn't define their impact on my life or the times in such concrete terms. They highlighted what my mother would worriedly call "phases" in the '60s and '70s. There wasn't a trend that didn't touch on their lives, directly or indirectly. John became involved in politics and peace. Ringo went to the auto races, after he visited his yogi. Paul was ahead of his generation, reverting to middle-class values and materialism earlier than most of the other '60s idealists.

I'd like to think the group did more than continue to isolate youths from the "older generation." I'd like to think they encouraged people to become more tolerant of others' differences, such as the length of their hair, rather than prompting a need to conform.

Of course, there are those people who view the Beatles differently, or those whose misinterpretations of the band simply couldn't be held responsible for. One example of the latter group is Charles Manson, who thought the White Album justified his murder spree.

And the files of some ultra-conservative Washington, D.C., publishers now prominently associated with the Moral Majority and ultra-right wing candidates still have copies of articles condemning the Beatles and their music as communist plots, a thought which still seems absurd.

The Beatles, and more particularly John Lennon, symbolized idealism and concern to me. George had a concert for the hungry and poor, long before the present Democratic candidates discovered, contrary to Ed Meese, that they existed. If his music suffers from any particular problem now, it is the constant references to God in every song he writes.

Lennon, before he died, became known for his charitable contributions. He and his wife bought the New York Police Department bullet-proof vests as a show of gratitude. Ironic, because one of those vests might have saved his life. He became a "house-mother" long before it was fashionable for fathers to participate very much in child-rearing.

Whether they were rock-and-roll pioneers or not — and it varies with the critic — I'll still give them, 20 years later, more than a "70." You can do more than just dance to "Eleanor Rigby."

Advisers agree to disagree on economy

WASHINGTON — Two things happened the other day. The famous groundhog popped out of his hole in Punxsutawney, Pa., and the President's Council of Economic Advisers released its annual report in Washington, D.C.

There was enough sunshine emanating from the economic report to dazzle every groundhog in the country.

The council's chairman, Martin Feldstein, predicted continued economic growth, declining unemployment and a low rate of inflation. Last year, when Feldstein wrongly forecast a historically weak recovery from the recession, some of his fellow economists labeled him Dr. Gloom. This year, they'll be calling him Mr. Sunshine.

But behind the rosy report, the president's top advisers are bitterly divided over economic policy. Most Americans will shrug off this high-level disagreement as nothing more than a philosophical pillow fight. But unfortunately, the president's decision on which advice to follow will affect the pocketbook of every businessman, wage earner, pensioner and taxpayer in the nation.

The split among top economists is deep and unbridgeable. As one insider described it to me, it would be only a slight exaggeration to say that the differences in economic policy within the administration are as fundamental as if the CIA and the Pentagon disagreed over whether the Soviet Union existed.

Basically, the most critical problem Feldstein sees for the economy is continued $200 billion budget deficits, which he wants to reduce by a combination of spending cuts and tax increases. This will assure the durability of the economic recovery, he feels.

But other senior economists disagree. They believe the Federal Reserve Board's tight-money policy, in force since last summer, is not only choking off the recovery but is sowing the seeds for another recession by the end of the year. They believe that a slow, steady growth in the money supply is the best way to achieve a healthy economy and avoid the unsettling postwar cycle of boom and bust.

These monetarists were the only economists who correctly forecast both the severity of the last recession and the strength of last year's recovery.

What particularly infuriates them is that the Feldstein report will give gold stars to the Fed and its chairman, Paul Volcker. The Fed's erratic manipulation of the money supply last year resulted in a confidential Cabinet-level report critical of the agency.

"We are really concerned," one administration official told my associate Michael Binstein, "and we are conveying that to the Fed. What happens in the next month or two will determine whether it will be the death knell for the recovery or whether the Fed will bring us back from the brink of disaster."

Feldstein's critics are also bitter at his tendency to ignore divergent views in preparing the economic report. "The hidden agenda of every chapter is to sell the Feldstein line, which is that high deficits raise interest rates, and therefore you have to raise taxes."

In an election year, Feldstein is unlikely to get the budget cuts and tax increases he feels are necessary. He would be likely, therefore, to insist on heaving to the Fed's tight-money policy. Then neither Feldstein's nor the monetarists' suggestions would be followed, and the public would wind up with the worst of both economic theories.

If there is indeed a recession this year, one official pointed out, both sides will howl "I told you so" — and use the disaster as a vindication of their theory.

So the economists' argument will probably continue ad infinitum, with the American people caught in the middle.

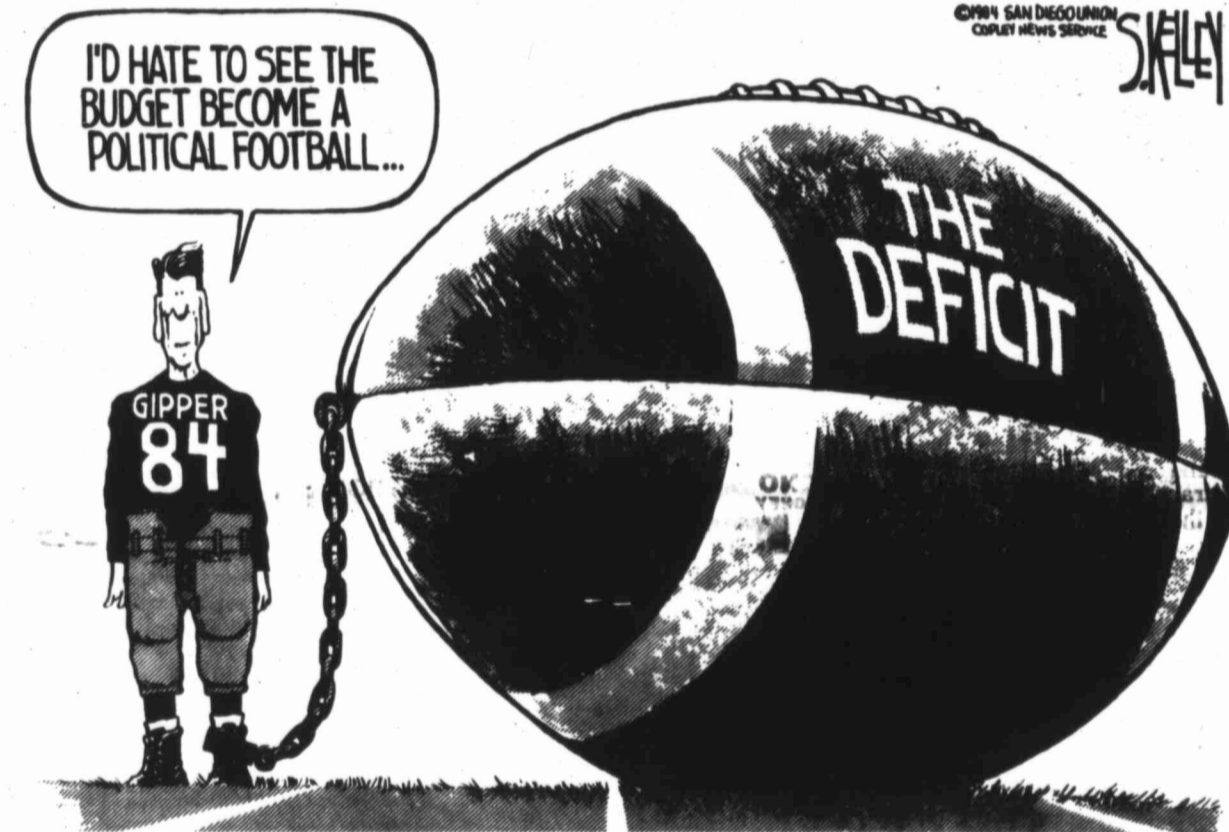

CITIZENS' WATCH: Phyllis Davis, an American military wife, reports from Bremerhaven, Germany, that the press has grossly exaggerated the anti-American feeling that is supposed to be widespread in Germany.

"I have encountered no anti-American sentiment in Germany whatsoever," she declares.

During the worst of the demonstrations against the deployment of the Pershing II and cruise missiles, she reports, her German neighbors were extra solicitous.

"They opened their homes to us and offered to take care of our car," she says. "Groups of German women baked cookies and cake and brought them to the base. And German women came to my Bible study class with flowers."

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Closing the deficit in 1984

WASHINGTON — The politics of the federal budget this year provides a nice example of how the system works. For the deficit, because of its remoteness from immediate experience, could have been finessed.

But competitive politics has forced both President Reagan and the leading Democrats to address the problem. Because of the election-year pressures — not despite them — there is promise of a start on closing the deficit in 1984.

The general dimensions of the problem are clear enough. Without an increase in revenues or a cut in expenses, deficits of $200 billion and up lie ahead for the foreseeable future. Interest charges alone will increase by $20 billion annually. So as times passes, bigger and bigger cuts or higher and higher taxes are required to reach a balance.

But the deficit is a statistical abstraction. It bears only an obscure relation to interest rates, an overvalued dollar and foreign trade troubles. It does not impinge directly upon daily life in the form of higher prices or fewer jobs. So the cynical view is that deficits don't count in politics.

Most Americans know in their bones, however, that you can't buy now and pay later on an unlimited basis forever. The various components of the deficit, furthermore, excite strong animus among different groups of the electorate. Some voters want to curtail the huge increases in defense spending. Others oppose the big outlays for social programs or retirement benefits. Still others want to stick it to the rich on taxes.

Serious bidders for political office are forced by their competitors to address those constituencies. The proof lies in the actions of the two front-runners in the presidential race — Fritz Mondale on the Democratic side and President Reagan.

In theory, Mondale, being out of office, enjoyed the luxury of standing back and taking potshots at the Reagan deficits. But Democrats in general have to prove they're not big spenders. Moreover, Mondale wanted to show that he was more of a Democrat than other candidates — notably John Glenn — when it came to cutting defense and taxing the rich. So last week Mondale advanced a detailed program for cutting the deficit by $100 billion — $40 billion from defense, and $60 billion in higher taxes — over the next three years.

The Reagan Administration had abundant reason for trying to ignore the deficits. Tax increases and cuts in defense spending run athwart the beliefs and commitments of the president and the interest of his backers. While Reagan and his supporters favor more reductions in social spending, an all-out attack on domestic spending would hand ammunition to the Democrats.

But with the Democrats agitating the deficit issue, the Republicans could not simply turn away. In mid-December an inner core came to the conclusion the president would have to do something about the deficits. The group was built around two senators — Chairman Bob Dole of the Finance Committee and Chairman Pete Domenici of the Budget Committee. It included two key White House aides — Chief of Staff James Baker and his deputy, Richard Darman.

This core group first beat off a move for a significant tax increase by Budget Director David Stockman and Martin Feldstein of the Council of Economic Advisers. They then withstood a push by Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan for a shot at social programs alone.

A Senate committee hearing in Utah, on January 16, convinced Secretary Regan he could not have his way on domestic spending only. He began to talk about closing tax loopholes. Stockman and Feldstein accepted that as an adequate way to raise revenue. Stockman then joined forces with Baker and Darman to put together a small package as a "down payment" on the deficit. The package finally fell into place when President Reagan signed on and personally won the assent of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to put a little military spending on the block.

Now the president has a political-ly acceptable approach to the deficit. He is calling for a "down payment" that would begin this year and realize cuts of at least $100 billion over the next three years. While the details are not being revealed, taxes and defense cuts are on the table as well as social spending. To do the rest, Reagan wants a bipartisan working group of leaders from both the Senate and the House.

The Democrats have responded in a fashion that everybody calls "wary." But it will be surprising if they can escape the deficit whip that worked so strongly on the president and Mondale. My guess is that, after some preliminary sparring, a bipartisan group will be formed. There is a chance that an agreed package of tax rises and defense spending cuts can be tied up. If so, the system will have worked. Both parties will be in better shape to face the electorate, and national fortunes will be modestly improved.

Joseph Kraft's reports on Washington, national affairs and trends are distributed nationally by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Billy Graham

The nation must return to God

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I get very discouraged when I look at our nation today, with all the crime, joblessness, poverty, and unhappiness that you see everywhere. Do you think things will ever get better in our nation, and if so, how will it happen? — Mrs. C.Z.

DEAR MRS. C.Z.: I would not pretend to be a political or social forecaster; even those who are, often disagree among themselves! But I do know that things can get better, if we will change our way of living and turn to God.

The Bible declares, "Righteousness exalts a nation, but sin is a disgrace to any people" (Proverbs 14:34). There are many political, economic, and social reasons for our problems today — but beneath them all is a spiritual and moral problem which is at the root of all our other problems. If we fail to deal with this spiritual problem, we will never know a lasting solution to the problems we face.

What is that spiritual problem? It is the problem of sin — which is rebellion against God. Today our nation is in danger of going the way of ancient Babylon or Assyria or Rome — because by and large we have turned our backs on God and his law.

Our greatest need is for a spiritual awakening — an awakening in which we repent of our sins, turn to God and seek his will, and then discipline ourselves to live as he wants us to live. We should all pray for this kind of awakening.

But no matter what the future holds for our nation or our world, don't let that keep you from your own responsibilities. Your first responsibility is to turn to Christ if you never have, and to acknowledge him as your Savior and Lord. Have you done this, and are you seeking to do his will every day? If every person — or even a majority of people — in our nation honestly turned to Christ and sought to obey his will, our nation would be a much different place.

Then be faithful in your responsibilities as a citizen. The Bible commands us to pray for "all those in authority, that we may live peaceful and quiet lives" (1 Timothy 2:2). In our society you also have the opportunity to let your views be known through your vote and your voice. Do what you can — and remember that our ultimate hope is not in political solutions, but in the Kingdom of God which will come when Christ returns.

Civil War buffs like reliving old battles

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Blocking out the 20th century, going back in time and psychologically taking on the role of an earlier American is, for Jeff Marks, a way to fully appreciate the contributions of his ancestors.

"It's more than a hobby," Marks said. "I like people to know that we're serious about this. There's a lot of misinformation regarding our motives. People will laugh when they see us. But we are truly involved in the preservation of history."

Marks is one of 30 members of the revived 53rd Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. Dedicated to the preservation of Civil War history, the 53rd Infantry participates in "living history" throughout the year by re-enacting Civil War events at Gettysburg and other historic sites.

Even as a young boy, Marks, now a student at the Pennsylvania School of the Arts, enjoyed Civil War movies and books. But it was later, after a trip to Gettysburg, that he became "hooked" and began to investigate park services involving the Civil War.

For Marks, re-creating a battle situation is like being in a time warp. He assumes the dress of a Civil War soldier and lets his imagination re-create the environment, paying tribute to the many lost lives.

"We don't emphasize the shooting or battles as much as the personal attitude of the soldier — what he wore, how he felt," said Bob Moore, a lieutenant with the regiment.

Moore, a Landisville resident and project engineer in York, also has been fascinated with the Civil War since he was young.

"In a sense, we are all actors, but precise actors," Moore said. "We're not cowboys, we are truly interested in portraying, experiencing and understanding this portion of history."

William "Doc" Hanks, of Denver, is the regiment's corpsman. He is the proud owner of an original medical kit, complete with all the necessary surgical equipment of the period.

Hanks said the biggest medical problems for his Civil War counterpart were infection and "the Virginia quickstep," or diarrhea. Surgical procedures were the same then as they are today. The wounded were segregated into head, chest, stomach and extremities cases.

"One hundred percent of the head cases died immediately, 85 percent of the chest and stomach cases were dead within five days and amputation was the treatment for extremity wounds," Hanks said.

"During one battle, there were two wagon loads containing the severed limbs of wounded soldiers."

Hanks' interest in the Civil War dates back to age 7, when he learned of his great-great-grandfather's involvement with the 151st Regiment.

Dave Seguin of Collegeville joined the 53rd after seeing a re-enactment in 1981. An employee of the National Park Service at Valley Forge, Seguin grew up in Gettysburg and has always been surrounded by history.

Seguin makes most of the uniforms for the regiment. He has researched the National Archives, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania and the Carlisle Army barracks for information, and believes his uniforms to be authentic.

For all of the members of the regiment, authenticity is a major concern. Donna Wickert, a first-grade teacher, attended a recent event bedecked in period finery — a turquoise satin ball gown, trimmed in black velvet, complete with hoop and pantafoons.

Ms. Wickert says she enjoys delving back into history and contemplating the experiences of women who lived during the Civil War. She recalls a re-enactment at Fort Niagara, where food was prepared over an open fire, and says she felt as if she were truly back in Civil War times.

Says Jim Solick, of Ephrata, "It's expensive, but it's worth doing — more than a passing fancy. It would be fun to do this for a living."

Course teaches wives how to be detectives

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. (AP) — A former police detective and his wife have teamed up to teach women how to track down their wandering husbands.

For $75 per five-week course, Ron and Gigi Moers instruct their classes on the use of disguises, cameras, citizens band radios, tape recorders, special binoculars that "see" in the dark and microphones that block out background noise as the "suspect" talks.

Some techniques could be right out of a spy novel. For instance, if a woman wants to follow a car at night, she should first poke a hole in a tail-light "to provide a distinctive white glow in a sea of red," Mrs. Moers said.

Students are taught not to use the family car because it might alert the philandering husband. "You can rent a wreck (car) for $9 a day," she said.

The Moers started Wives Infidelity Service a couple of years ago after offering to help a distraught woman friend and finding that books and professionals provided very little inexpensive information.

Mrs. Moers said many wives have little access to family purse strings and are expected to shoulder the burden of child care both in marriage and divorce.

"Infidelity has nothing to do with liberation," said Mrs. Moers, a 28-year-old mother of three. "In a great percentage of cases, even in this progressive society, the man walks out the door (to work) and the woman is left sitting at home worrying about the kids. If a man walks out on a marriage, he won't have the burden of the kids. He'll maintain his credit rating — he'll walk away intact."

Private investigators are out, she said, because they cost too much and women like to keep their personal lives to themselves.

What about a wife who cheats on her husband? "Basically, a man could do it himself (track her down). He's got the money and he can punch the other guy out," said Moers.

"Most statistics show about half of married men have had an affair," said Mrs. Moers. "But only about 9 percent of women have had one. That's because women have sex, love, fidelity and marriage all rolled up in one ball. Men tend to have sex in one category, marriage in another."

The Moers say they have helped more than 300 wives nationwide, with demand soaring after appearances recent television appearances.

A client who comes in for consultation will say "where she's at, what made her suspicious, and I review with her a 'warning bell list' to see what bells are going off for her," said Mrs. Moers. A "warning bell" might be a change in a husband's work hours, or a misplaced deposit receipt showing he had opened a new bank account.

The five-week basic course on husband hunting is $75. A one-day, crash-the-affair course costs $35.

Sometimes, the husbands get wise to the service and phone to check on whether their spouses are getting coached. But "I never give out any information to anyone about my clients," Mrs. Moers said.

The couple also refers distressed wives free of charge to female therapists, attorneys, mental health centers and divorce counselors nationwide. Also planned is a book, "Truth Seekers."

About half of the wives who use the service stay married because they can't afford to leave or care for children on their own. The remainder consult a marriage counselor.

Junkfood exposition slated

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Snaxpo '84, a dieter's nightmare but a junk food addict's delight, has opened with such offerings as powdered nacho sauce and a pasta potato-chip substitute.

The 47th annual convention of the Potato Chip-Snack Food Association boasts nearly "2,000 snack food producers and suppliers from around the world," according to a press release.

Pasta Foods Ltd. was among those with a booth at the Anaheim Marriott Hotel. As a video tape played over a color TV, development manager Peter Dawe expounded on the virtues of his company's snack — neither macaroni nor spaghetti and shipped in pellet form.

"Unlike potato chips, which have an oil pickup of 35 to 40 percent, our pickup is 18 to 29 percent," said Dawe. "It's all new technology."

MAZIE ROBERTS, R.N.
...presented 'Hands and Heart Award'

Hospital honors nurse practitioner

Mazie Roberts, R.N., nurse practitioner, was given the Administrator's Hands and Heart Award at the Veteran's Administration Medical Center, Feb. 3. John Stewart, medical center director, presented the award.

Ms. Roberts received a pin, and a name bar which will go on a plaque at the hospital. She has worked at the hospital for 32 years. She went to nursing school in Augusta, Ga. She enjoys painting and fishing.

The award is given annually to one person at each Veteran's Administration Hospital, said Tom Balderach, assistant to the VAMC director. "It is given to the person, who has shown the greatest amount of emotional support and care for the patients." The person goes "beyond and about the call of duty and is a friend to the patients," he said.

February activities planned at meeting

Activities for February were planned at a meeting of Beta Sigma Phi's Alpha Kappa Omicron chapter in the home of Jan Jordan, Jan. 10.

The members helped with the Mother's March of Dimes, Feb. 4. A birthday party for Mountain View Lodge Nursing Center's residents, Feb. 5. The annual Beta Sigma Phi's Valentine Ball is planned for Feb. 11 at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

Janie Swafford was welcomed back into the chapter following a leave of absence. Jett Moore presented a program about hobbies.

A pledge ritual for Bee Garrett was held at a meeting of Alpha Kappa Omicron in the home of Jan Jordan, Dec. 13.

Ms. Garrett gave a program, "Keeping a Personal Score". The program was to get the members to take a closer look at themselves and to recognize their strong and weak points.

Plans were made for Beta Sigma Phi's annual Valentine Dance to be held at the Dora Roberts Community Center, Saturday. This year's charity proceeds will be presented to the Sunshine Kids.

Helen Cobean elected to Colonial Daughters office

Helen Cobean of Big Spring was elected corresponding secretary for the Texas Chapter of the Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century at a meeting at the Cross Tie Restaurant in Sweetwater, Jan. 28.

Mrs. Carl Barnett was elected as a delegate to the General Assembly of the National Society to convene in Washington D.C. in April.

Two new members are Mrs. Robert Truitt of Fort Worth and Mrs. Edward Niedermaier, Sr. of Dallas. Delila Baird gave a seventeenth century commemorative program, "The Six Carpenter Sisters". The Carpenters were among those who sought refuge in Leyden, Holland in order to be free to worship in their own way. After changes in England they returned to their native homes and formed the core of the group who booked passage on the Mayflower and later voyages. Five of the Carpenter sisters came to America. Among their descendants were Franklin D. Roosevelt and Banker Levi P. Morton, vice president of the United States under President Harrison.

The next meeting will be in Snyder in May. Mrs. Miloslav Skalicky will present a music program.

Lee Henry to speak about Rainbow Project

NARFE, National Association of Retired Federal Employees, will meet at 9:30 a.m., Thursday at the Kentwood Older Adults Center.

Lee Henry will speak about the Rainbow Project and what it means to Big Spring. All federal retirees are urged to come to the meeting and to learn more about the organization.

Dr. Donohue

Water pills and potassium

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Over a period of time, two of our friends have written to you, and we have all been eagerly awaiting an answer. We would be very thankful if you would find time for that. It pertains to diuretics. A number of our friends are taking them. Some were told that they take potassium out of the system. Another was told to take potassium capsules, another to take food rich in potassium, and another nothing. What is your opinion of this? — R.T.

This question comes up so often and I've answered it in one way or another so often, that I thought I was boring everyone. But if you insist, I'll go at it again.

Many water pills in the process of ridding the body of excess sodium rid it of potassium at the same time. Often this lowering is transient and corrects itself in a few weeks. However, for some there is a persistent low potassium level. Those are the people who have to take potassium supplements in some form, either as high-potassium foods or capsules.

What can I say about the variance of advice to your friends? There are many ways to practice good medicine. I have no monopoly. But I tend to think that the best way to approach the potassium-deficit problem is to check the person's blood after a month of taking the water pill, then every so often afterward. At that point you can tell whether extra potassium is needed.

There is another point that needs to be made and about which there is apparent confusion. Some water pills (diuretics) actually keep potassium in the body, so giving extra potassium to people taking this kind of pill is dangerous because it can cause an excessive blood potassium level. That might account for some of the conflicting information you are getting from your friends.

It depends, then, on the kind of water pill taken and how the body reacts to it. Here's another example. If one of the potassium-riding water pills is being given to a patient for treatment of congestive heart failure and if the drug, digitalis, is being used at the same time, then potassium supplementation is often indicated automatically.

NOTE TO READERS: Literature on scleroderma is available by writing to the United Scleroderma Foundation, Inc., P.O. Box 350, Watsonville, Calif. 95077. I had a letter from the Foundation asking me to pass this information along to my readers.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Frustrated husband says 'Take my wife'

DEAR ABBY: My wife would like to trade me for a kindly gentleman who is well-to-do and no longer interested in sex. Based upon our 45-year marriage, I can recommend her highly as a person of good moral character and an excellent homemaker. She is also a healthy, attractive, conservative and well-informed woman with many friends. I am prepared to release my 65-year-old wife to any man she might choose because I want her to be happy.

Also, feeling humiliated and frustrated over my long exile from the marriage bed, I would like to be free to love again.

Can you suggest a way in which I might discreetly "advertise" her availability? If successful, the golden years of three senior citizens might thus be substantially enriched.

SERIOUS IN LAGUNA BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR SERIOUS: If you're looking for a kindly, well-to-do, older gentleman who is no longer interested in sex, take an ad out in The Wall Street Journal.

DEAR ABBY: I live alone in very cramped quarters. I have no complaints until unexpected company drops by. Since I have no warning, I usually ask my guest to stand outside for a few minutes while I quickly tidy up my one room, which serves as living room, bedroom, den and eating area.

One guest said she thought this was very rude of me.

What are my alternatives? I enjoy having company.

CRAMPED IN BURBANK
DEAR CRAMPED: (1) Keep your quarters tidy at all times in case unexpected company knocks on your door. (2) Open your door immediately and bear the embarrassment. (3) Continue to ask drop-ins to wait a few minutes while you rush around trying to make the place presentable.

(P.S. And tell the person who called you "rude" that she won't have to wait outside if she phones first.)

Samples of embroidery and crochet displayed

Members displayed various forms of embroidery and crochet during the Sew and Chatter Club meeting at the home of Della Nobles, Jan. 25. Avanel Cook and Twila Lomax's birthdays were celebrated at the club's first meeting in January. Members had a review of the meetings and activities during the holidays. Members donated to the Cheer Fund, March of Dimes and sent a memorial in memory of Ethel Weaver in December.

The Sew and Chatter Club was organized in March 1937 under the name of "Busy Bee Club". Its name was changed to "Dos Por Ocho" and then in 1946 it was changed to "Sew and Chatter." Two charter members are still active: Lona Crocker and Neva Clinkscales.

February is heart month. During February, the American Heart Association is engaged in a national campaign to help increase the public's awareness of cardiovascular disease and other heart-related problems.
Mayor Clyde Angel signed a proclamation Feb. 3 designating February as American Heart Month in Big Spring and urges all citizens to support the educational and fund raising efforts of the American Heart Association.
The American Heart Association recommends using the following recipes.

SESAME CHICKEN
2 Tbsps. margarine
2 Tbsps. oil
1 frying chicken (2½ to 3 pounds), cut into serving pieces
½ cup flour seasoned with pepper
¼ cup sesame seeds
3 Tbsps. minced green onion
½ cup dry white wine
Juice of ½ lemon
Melt margarine with oil in baking pan. Allow to cool slightly but not harden. In a paper bag, shake chicken in seasoned flour until coated. Then roll pieces in oil in baking pan, and arrange so that pieces do not touch. Sprinkle with lemon juice and sesame seeds.

Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes, or until lightly browned. Turn chicken; sprinkle with sesame seeds and minced onion. Pour wine into bottom of pan and cook for 30 to 45 minutes, basting occasionally, until done. Makes four servings with 400 calories per serving.

GINGER COOKIES
¾ cup margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten (or 2 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
½ cup molasses
½ cup flour
2 tps. baking soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. ginger
1 tsp. sugar
Cream the margarine and cup of sugar. Beat in the egg and molasses. Sift the flour with soda and spices, and mix with the wet ingredients. Chill the dough. Shape into balls about one inch in diameter, roll in sugar and place three inches apart on an oiled baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Makes 24 two-inch cookies with approximately 130 calories per cookie.

VARIATION:
Gingerbread Men: Follow above recipe for Ginger Cookies, but add ½ cup more flour. When dough is chilled, on a lightly floured board, roll dough to ¼-inch thickness. Cut out gingerbread men shapes with a 6-by-3½-inch cookie cutter. Bake eight to ten minutes at 350 degrees. Decorate with Confectioners' Glaze.

Yields two to three dozen gingerbread men.

SPINACH QUICHE IN A RICE CRUST
¾ cup dry rice
1½ cups water
3 eggs (6 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 3 eggs)
3 Tbsps. grated Parmesan cheese
1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
½ tsp. nutmeg
Freshly ground black pepper
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 medium onion, chopped
1 Tbsp. margarine
1 cup skim milk
Add nutmeg, pepper and lemon juice. Continue cooking until all water has evaporated. Sauté onion in margarine, until slightly brown. Add to spinach. To the crust add the spinach mixture, sprinkle with remaining two tablespoons cheese.
Cook rice in water until tender (approximately 30 minutes), drain and mix with one beaten egg and one tablespoon of grated cheese. Press firmly into pie pan, forming a crust. Bake the crust for three minutes at 425 degrees. Remove from the oven. Cook spinach until defrosted in a little bit of water.

CowBelles plan Beef Cook-off

Texas CowBelles are planning the 1984 Texas Beef Cook-Off to be held in Lubbock, April 27-28.
Five finalists will be selected from among the entries. The finalists will receive an expense-paid trip to the Texas Cook-Off in the College of Home Economics, Texas Tech University, in Lubbock.
State winners will be awarded $500 for first place, $300 for second place and $200 for third place. The state winner advances to the national cook-off contest in September of 1984 in Albuquerque, N.M. The state winner will compete for a $5000 first prize, $2500 second prize, $1000 third prize or any of five honorable mention awards of $300 each.
Send a typed copy of your best beef recipe using chuck, round, rump, fresh brisket, plate, ground beef or shank. Include your name, address, phone number, and a brief statement about the origin of your recipe.
Beef dishes will be judged on taste (40 points), ease of preparation and practicality (20) originality (20), and appearance (20). Each recipe must contain a minimum of one pound of beef and each serving of the recipe must contain at least three ounces of cooked beef. Cooking time can-

Cake mixes vary in cost, calories

Not all cake mixes are created equal either in cost or calories, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service foods and nutrition specialist.
Some packaged cake mixes can be economical and actually cost less than similar cakes baked from scratch, says Mary K. Sweeten. But "better quality" cake mixes can cost three times as much as simpler mixes and still require the addition of costly ingredients at home.
For example, a "butter" cake mix requires the addition of one-quarter pound of butter and three eggs, which would add about 75 cents to the cost of the cake. The shortening used in the cake mix is usually soy oil, so the only butter in the butter cake is added by the cook. Yet, the butter cake may cost up to 50 percent more than a competitive yellow cake mix.
Research conducted by Cornell University Extension home economists compared "pudding mix" cakes with their plainer counterparts in the same product line and found that the richer texture of these cakes was due primarily to the cook's additions.
They also found that nutritive value of the dry mixes are identical for protein, calories and fat, with the pudding mixes providing two extra grams of carbohydrate. But the finished pudding cake has twice as much fat, and 25 percent more calories than the plain layer cake.
The addition of extra eggs and oil to the pudding mix increases the calories as well as the cost of the cake. Sweeten suggests that consumers make it a habit to read the labels on mixes, since nutritional differences among cakes are surprisingly large.
The fat content of various cake mixes ranges from four to fourteen grams for one twelfth of the cake; the calories from 180 to 300 per slice; and the sodium from 270 to 375 milligrams per slice.

In general, angel food cake and white cake mixes, made without egg yolks, are low in fat and calories, and cake mixes that require additional oil and shortening are high.
The good news for chocolate lovers is that chocolate cake mixes are not significantly higher in fat or calories than other flavors, says Ms. Sweeten.

Man plants turnip greens for poor

By BILL LEWIS
Arkansas Gazette
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Chinese said something like, "Teach a man how to fish and he'll have food for life."
For Truett Holder, the saying is something like, "Plant turnip seeds and in time somebody can make pot likker."
Holder, who retired in 1979 from a 39-year career in state government, shells out money for turnip seeds and other seeds each fall. He scatters the seeds on fertile but usually idle land. Mother Nature takes her course and in due time the ground is likely to be covered with a helter-skelter stand of turnip greens, free to all comers for the picking.
"This is a rich country," Holder said. "There's no point in being so persnickety. Stop, get some free greens. It's a nice thing."
Holder, 69, has been spreading the seed for nearly a decade. The majority of those who benefit are poor. They can go out, often to lands near their homes, and harvest a mess of turnip greens for the evening meal. There are a few who regard Holder's beneficence as a catering to sloth, an encouragement of dependency.
"Eight or 10 years ago, I was down at Reydel, at the lower end of the Bayou Meto hunting area," Holder said. "Guy Kochel, the postmaster in Reydel, had been growing free patches of greens and turnips ever since I'd known him, and I've known him for over 30 years."
"I was getting some turnips out of his patch — he had them by the tons, great big old things, about an acre and a half. Mrs. Kochel said, 'A lot of people could do this if they thought about it.' I said, 'Mrs. Kochel, let me harvest a whole bunch of turnips and give them to people — politicians, legislators, the Pollution Control Commission people.'

"I carried a whole bunch of turnips back, and every time I'd go down there, I'd fill the back end of this old 1965 Chevy wagon with turnips. I'm still doing my turnip-greening in that old car, and it has over 160,000 miles on it."
Holder got the Pollution Control and Ecology Commission to recommend that unused or partially used rights of way and other idle property be used to grow free food, for humanitarian and good land use practices. That was in 1974.
Aug. 22, 1975, was designated as turnip planting time by then-Gov. David Pryor. In August 1983, Holder had Gov. Bill Clinton sign a third turnip planting resolution. Holder brought along a couple of 100-pound sacks of turnip seeds.
"All you have to do is take a chance and scatter the seeds very lightly and let Mother Nature take it from there," Holder said.
Other vegetables planted by Holder include Jerusalem artichokes, collards, rutabagas, three kinds of mustard, kale and some purple-hull peas.
Some Little Rock businessmen and the Rockefeller Foundation have donated money for seed purchases. Holder pays for most of it, though, and says the cost is more than he would care to admit.
"I love turnip greens," Holder said. "I've even eaten them for breakfast."

Shoppers compare nutrition labels

Next time you are shopping for groceries, read the nutrition labels. Compare nutrients and calories in one food to those in another product. You may be surprised. The foods you have been purchasing may not contain the nutrients you thought they did. On the other hand, you may find you are a "nutrition wise" shopper.
U.S. government regulations require that all enriched or fortified food, and food for which a nutrition claim is made, include nutrition information on the label. Fresh meats, fruits and vegetables usually are not labeled.
Information on the label is divided into two categories: Nutritional Information per Serving (serving size, serving per container, calorie per serving, and protein, carbohydrate and fat in grams per serving) and Percentage of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA). Most people will get an adequate amount of protein, vitamins and minerals if the food they eat meets the U.S. RDA standards. Special U.S. RDA's are used for food for infants and young children.

The number of calories per serving must be listed on the label. Calories depend on the amount of fat, protein and carbohydrate in the food. Fat, which has the most calories, supplies nine calories per gram. Protein and carbohydrate each supply four calories per gram. By multiplying the grams per serving by the calories per gram, you get the total calories per serving.
Reading food labels is especially helpful if you are on a fat-controlled diet. For example, by comparing the contents of skim milk and whole milk, you'll discover that whole milk contains 10 grams of fat per serving, or 90 calories (10 times 9 equals 90). That is 81 more calories from fat per one-cup serving than skim milk.
The amount of cholesterol per food serving is important information for persons interested in a fat-controlled diet. Cholesterol content does not have to be listed on food labels, but it may be if the food producer wishes. If you want additional information on fats and cholesterol, call your local American Heart Association.

Shut down plutonium plant may reopen in near future

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — A plant producing plutonium for nuclear weapons was shut down two weeks ago when radioactive thorium was detected escaping from a smokestack, though no announcement was made, officials said Tuesday.

Pegge Bennett, a spokeswoman for Rockwell-Hanford, which operates the plant for the U.S. Department of Energy, said none of the radioactive material was detected beyond the base of the stack.

Plant manager Bruce Campbell said there was no health hazard from the thorium. The plant is located on the 570-square-mile Hanford nuclear reservation in southeast Washington.

Ms. Bennett said the plant would resume operation sometime this week.

The emissions took place "for a matter of a week or two weeks" and were "well below our acceptable limits (and) did not constitute a radiological safety problem," Campbell said. He had no estimate on the quantity of thorium released.

The material has a half-life of 12 hours, meaning it loses half its radioactivity every 12 hours, officials said.

The Department of Energy made no announcement of the release.

"This emission produced no fatalities or serious injuries," said Tom Bauman, the DOE's chief spokesman at Hanford. "There was no significant contamination of people or property. There was no shutdown of critical operations or facilities."

The plutonium plant, completed in 1956, was reactivated last fall at a cost of $150 million after an 11-year shutdown. It converts metallic uranium from another Hanford reactor into plutonium oxide powder for nuclear weapons.

Thorium is a naturally occurring radioactive element used in such devices as camera lenses and sun lamps. It was processed at the plant during the late 1960s.

"This emission resulted from the concentration of thorium that remained from our past operations," Campbell said.

Interest rates worry Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market broke its string of losses, but analysts cautioned that the fears that triggered the sell-off have not stopped haunting the Wall Street houses.

"The first wave of selling is over," Monte Gordon, director of research at Dreyfus Corp., said Tuesday after the market turned in a mixed performance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which had tumbled nearly 23 points Monday, rebounded for a 6.18 gain, closing at 1,180.49. It was the biggest gain since Jan. 5 and only the fifth advance in the past 22 trading sessions.

For the New York Stock Exchange as a whole, however, about nine stocks fell in price for every seven that rose. Trading volume totaled 107.64 million shares, the 11th consecutive day in which volume surpassed the 100-million mark.

Prior to Tuesday's gain, the Dow Jones industrials had tumbled 112 points since hitting its 1984 peak on Jan. 6.

Analysts said there were no assurances that the stock market's month-long slide had ended.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, asked about the market's slump, said, "The main reason seems to be the potential for high interest rates continuing."

In congressional testimony Tuesday, Regan and presidential economic adviser Martin Feldstein urged Congress to slash the budget deficits or risk crippling the economy.

Separately, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker issued his strongest condemnation of excessive red-ink spending, telling the House Banking Committee that the budget and foreign trade deficits are "a clear and present danger" to the economic recovery.

In other economic developments Tuesday: —General Motors announced it earned $3.7 billion last year, a company record that could push the U.S. industry's profits to record levels. GM was the first U.S.

automaker to report 1983 earnings; the others are expected later this month.

—The Commerce Department reported the merchandise trade deficit widened to $18.8 billion in the final quarter of last year from about $18.2 billion in the previous quarter. The report said the deficit for the full year was $60.6 billion, up 67 percent from 1982.

—The Commerce Department issued a preliminary ruling that steel imports from Argentina, Brazil and Mexico are subsidized, but the government-proposed penalties would be less than the U.S. industry had sought. The ruling will not become final until April 18.

—The American Automobile Association said retail gasoline prices declined an average 4.7 cents a gallon last year. The report, based on monthly surveys of 6,000 service stations, said the average prices for leaded regular and unleaded gasoline in 1983 were $1.22 and $1.29 respectively.

Good Samaritan gets jobs offers and money

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — One good turn deserves another, and Harry Smith now has a job thanks to a construction company foreman who heard how the unemployed ex-convict crawled into a smoke-filled, burning house to rescue an elderly man.

He'll start work on Monday at Redman Homes in Silverton, taking up an offer from foreman Bob Knodel.

"I thought he would be swamped with calls," said Knodel, who said his wife prompted him to make the offer after reading about Smith's heroic act. "But I thought a guy that would do something like that needs someone to give him a break."

Smith was on his way home from visiting parole officer on Feb. 1 when he rescued 76-year-old John Natham from his burning home. The Salem Fire Department plans to present him a commendation Friday.

He had been released from the Oregon State Correctional Institution in September after serving seven months for burglary. His job search had been fruitless and, with a wife and 7-month-old son to support, he was becoming worried, he said.

This week, Smith said, he received several job offers and although he couldn't accept most of them because of a lack of transportation, he appreciated them all.

He also has received several checks ranging from $5 to $100, which "will sure help pay the rent this month."

One man gave Smith five sacks full of groceries, another person mailed the family a Bible and another man offered to relocate the entire family to eastern Oregon so Smith could accept a job there.

"It's been a real emotional experience," he said. "It's hard to believe this outpouring. It makes me real proud that my son was born in Oregon."

The Smiths moved to Oregon about two years ago from Philadelphia. But neither could find work and they were about to be evicted from their apartment when Smith was arrested for burglarizing an office building in the Eugene-Springfield area, where they were living.

His wife "was two months pregnant and we needed money," he said. "I know that's no excuse."

Waite brightens 'Good Sport'

NEW YORK (AP) — "A Good Sport" tonight on CBS is romantic comedy in the traditional mode, with Ralph Waite as a crusty, cigar-chomping sports columnist who falls in love with an elegant fashion editor played by Lee Remick.

They meet in a four-star restaurant for lunch with "Zack the Sack," a professional football player who's designed a line of leisure wear. A drunken lout knocks Zack on the head with a beer bottle, and Tommy O'Bannon, the sports writer, pops the guy in the kisser.

The fashion editor, Michelle Tenney, is not particularly surprised by the disagreeable turn of events.

"Well," she says sarcastically, "at least this gives you another 'sporting event' to write about."

"What would you do," Tommy growls back, "if a mean drunk came after you with a beer bottle? Criticize his color coordination?"

Waite, a regular in "The Waltons" and, more recently, "The Mississippi," is delightfully credible as the ruffled O'Bannon, though the portrayal at times waxes stereotypical — more caricature than character. Miss Remick's Michelle is just classy enough to make Tommy appear coarse in almost any circumstance. The contrast is beautiful:

"Daring," purrs Michelle's photographer, Clifford (Antonio Fargas), "where did you get this divine, shaggy man?"

For whatever reason, the two unlikely companions are drawn to one another, though Michelle (two failed marriages, two "serious, meaningful relationships") is less inclined than Tommy ("14 months single," "a whole bunch of meaningless relationships") toward permanence.

Indeed, she's dead against it. "No romance, no courting, no games," she declares.

"You don't go out with guys?" Tommy inquires, characteristically.

With Tommy in pursuit, Michelle's attitude begins to change ... and so does Tommy's style. "Wrinkle free," a colleague marvels when the columnist shows up for work in a new suit, "for the first time in his life."

The "friendship" endures its ups and downs, through a travelogue-like tour of outdoor New York City: from a coin-op laundry on the West Side where they meet for their "first date" to Central Park, the United Nations Plaza, the Metropolitan Museum, a promenade overlooking the East River.

The biggest problem, for Tommy, is Michelle's ban on mixing friendship and sex. This causes Tommy to leave New York for some commiserating with the horses at a racetrack, supposedly Saratoga.

"That's a good life," he says of one horse on his way to a stud farm. "All the oats you can eat, 40-50 ladies a year, and not one of them wants to be just a friend."

But, gradually, the relationship takes on the look of love ("going soft in the head," in Tommy's words). Michelle talks sports with Tommy's newspaper cronies, Abe and Carl (Sam Gray, Richard Hamilton), and he sits down for lunch with her high-fashion friends.

"I thought you said he was gruff and surly," Michelle's daughter, Suzanne (Tracy Pollan), says when Tommy arrives for the luncheon, with flowers for her and a bottle of wine for her mother. "He keeps surprising me," Michelle says.

Michelle decides to end her long-distance affair with an older guy from Chicago, but that seems a bit premature when she catches Tommy in his drawers and Sherri (Janie Sell) in the bedroom.

Tommy's response is not particularly original (except, perhaps, for him) and the happy ending is predictable. But no matter; there's enough humor, enough tenderness and enough of the Spencer Tracy-Katharine Hepburn magic in "A Good Sport" to recommend the two-hour diversion.

Greenwood girls rip Forsan, 46-23

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

GREENWOOD — The Forsan Buffalo Queens' front line provided some offensive spark, but their guards left their shooting touches at home as the Greenwood Rangerettes thumped Forsan 46-23 in girls' Class A non-district basketball.

All of Forsan's points were produced by their post people, three to be exact — Cathy Thurman, Tracy Painter and Tina Sterner.

But much of the credit for Forsan's non-guard scoring can be attributed to some pesky defense employed by Greenwood. The Rangerettes, 22-3, played tight defense throughout the game. Whether they were in their zone press or their man-to-man defense, the results were still the same. Forsan had a hard time getting a good shot.

Forsan connected on just 25 percent of its shots from the floor. Even when Greenwood wasn't guarding the Buffalo Queens, they shot poorly. They connected on five of 14 free throws.

Meanwhile Greenwood had a balanced scoring attack and shot a respectable 45 percent from the field.

Greenwood never trailed in the contest as Deona Deah, who scored 10 points, and Andrea Graham hit quick baskets to give the Rangerettes a 4-0 lead.

At the end of the first quarter Greenwood led 14-6. Sterner, who finished with eight points, hit two baskets and reserve forward Painter added another to keep Forsan close.

Greenwood opened up a 10 point lead late in the second quarter. Thurman, who led all scorers with 11 points, fired in three baskets to cut the Greenwood lead to 22-14 at halftime, however.

Greenwood guard Maria Morgette hit the first two baskets of the second half, and the Greenwood lead continued to grow. Thurman's three-point play narrowed the margin to 32-19 going into the final quarter.

But the Rangerettes displayed their other weapons as guard Belinda Duke got the hot hand in the half. Duke, the Rangerettes' leading scorer with a 16 point average, was held scoreless in the first half.

In the second half she connected on five of seven shots to finish the night with 10 points, five rebounds and five steals.

Thurman played a strong game under the boards for the Queens as she collected eight rebounds. Dean led all Greenwood rebounders with eight caroms.

Forsan's record falls to 14-8 for the season.

Steers stumble

ABILENE — With three games left in the season the Big Spring Steers are still winless in District 4-AAAAA boys' basketball action.

The latest setback in a frustrating season came Tuesday night in Abilene when Cooper beat the Steers, 58-44. Big Spring is 0-11 in loop play and 2-23 for the year.

The brightest spot for Big Spring was at the line where the Steers sank 16 of 22 charity efforts (72 percent). Cooper didn't get as many chances (12), but Cooper made 100 percent of its attempts. Jimmy Brown led Big Spring with 13 points and was the only Steer in double figures.

Wildcats defeat Borden County

By BILLY NABOURS
Sports Editor

GRADY — In a game that was closer at the end than it really was, the Grady Wildcats beat the Borden County Coyotes, 56-50 in a boys' 11-A basketball game Tuesday night.

There was one tie in the contest that helped put Grady's district record at 3-4 and season slate at 10-8. Borden County is 9-13.

The deadlock came with 6:22 left in the first half at 2-2. After that, however the game was Grady's from start to finish.

Fred Garza, Michael Mitchell, Lino Cantu and Randy Gutierrez scored buckets down the stretch to have Grady up 15-6 after one period. Garza led the Wildcats with 20 points. Cantu added 10.

The onslaught continued in the second quarter as Grady built a 21-8 lead, threatening to turn the game into a rout. Borden County had other ideas though and the Coyotes came scrambling back with 12 unanswered points to make Grady's lead only 21-20 with 2:29 before halftime. Garza and Cantu sank field goals that boosted the advantage back to five, 27-22 as the first half closed.

Jay Billingsley sparked the Wildcats into stronger control in the third period with five points. Dennis Sawyer, Garza and Cantu chipped in as Grady went in front by 16, 42-26.

Grady's margin of control reached 22 points in the final 4:10. At that point coach Johnny Tubbs began substituting freely. Tarry Farrington was one of those coming off the bench to contribute points in the victory. In fact Farrington's points were the only ones scored by the Wildcats in the game's final two minutes while Borden County managed 13.

Grady will close out its season Thursday, Feb. 9 by traveling to Klondike High School to battle the Cougars.

Tech lands gem in Judson's Pryor

Texas Tech landed the leading rusher in Class 5A history, Southern Methodist got the No. 1 offensive lineman in the nation, and Texas A&M signed the top receiver in the country today as Southwest Conference schools harvested the rich Texas schoolboy football crop.

Red Raider assistant Rodney Allison was at Converse Judson at the legal 8 a.m. signing hour to welcome aboard running back Chris Pryor and wide receiver Chip Lambert.

The 5-10, 195-pound Pryor scored four touchdowns and rushed for 203 yards in the Rockets' 25-21 State Class 5A championship victory over Midland Lee.

Pryor's 2,804 yards in his senior season broke the Class 5A record held by Craig James, who later played at SMU.

SMU signed bluechip 6-5, 300-pound offensive tackle

Dave Richards, a Parade Magazine All-America and their selection as the No. 1 player in the nation. The Highland Park star committed to the Mustangs despite a bogus letter he received in the mail on a phony SMU letterhead that said the school was on NCAA probation.

Tony Jones, a wide receiver from Houston Sam Houston and perhaps the most widely sought pass catcher in the country, went with the Aggies. Also going with Coach Jackie Sherrill was Tony Thompson, a slick wide receiver from Houston Lamar, who was a member of Texas Football Magazine's Top Thirty.

Jones has run a wind-aided 10.1 in the 100 meters. The Aggies also got highly regarded defensive back Tim Landrum of Plano and running back Melvin Collins of Temple.

The Red Raiders also did well on the defensive front, signing tough Midland Lee linebacker Mike Johnson, a 6-2, 200-pounder, who was rated high on most recruiting lists.

The Texas Longhorns got a blue chip defensive back in Charles Washington of Dallas Spruce and welcomed aboard Tyler Junior College transfer Kip Cooper, an excellent defensive end who played in high school at Port Arthur Jefferson.

The Aggies received some bad news when Willowridge running back Thurman Thomas said he was signing a letter of intent with Oklahoma State.

"I picked them because I like the I formation," Thomas said. "I already feel like I'm a part of the team."

Thomas' uncle, Grady Caveness, said the final decision was made Tuesday night following a lengthy discussion.

Rangers wreck Buffalos, 61-38

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Rangers used some hot first half shooting to get them on their way to a 61-38 victory over the Forsan Buffalos last night in Class A non-district basketball.

Greenwood of 11-A, got 14 points from forward Troy Wallace in collecting its 20th win. The Rangers connected on 18 of 33 shots to take a commanding 37-12 lead at halftime. Meanwhile Forsan, 10-15, connected on just six of 23 attempts in the first half, and finished the night shooting a cold 35 percent from the field.

Wallace, a 6-1 senior went on a tear in the first half which saw him connect on six consecutive shots. For the night Wallace connected on nine of 16 shots, led all scorers with 18 points while pulling down nine rebounds.

In the second quarter the Rangers were scorching hot, as they connected on four of their first six shots to take a 24-10 lead with 4:14 remaining. Greenwood finished out the quarter by hitting 10 of 14 field goals to take its 25 point halftime lead.

The Ranger lead grew in the third quarter when John Gilliam hit back-to-back buckets to up the lead to 47-18. From then on the Rangers cruised in for the win. Forsan post player Todd East had another fine defensive game by blocking four shots and grabbing a game-high 13 rebounds.

Wallace was the only Ranger in double figures. Gilliam and Ken Wallace followed the balanced scoring attack with eight points each. David Lucas and Jason Donaghe 11 and 10 points respectively.

Weather forces downhill action

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Heavy snow forced cancellation of Wednesday's training run for the Olympic women's downhill on Mt. Jahorina.

About a foot and a half of new snow fell and visibility was poor, creating potentially hazardous conditions. The women already had three training runs on a good track Monday and Tuesday in preparation for Saturday's race. Switzerland's Michela Figini was fastest in two of them. Her teammate Maria Walliser led the other.

The women's downhill medal race is this Saturday. The teams left Mt. Jahorina as soon as the cancellation was announced to go back to the Olympic village and get ready for the opening ceremony.

Borden County defeats Grady

GRADY — The game was close once, at 4-2, but after the Borden County Lady Coyotes got cranked up they showed the Grady Wildcats why they have spent most of the season in the state's top 10 as they rolled to a 48-12 win in girls' 11-A basketball action.

Borden County is 20-2 for the year and headed for the playoffs with a 5-2 district slate. Both of Borden's losses have come against Greenwood.

Not that the Lady Coyotes shot an excellent percentage in whipping the Wildcats. The fact was Borden County simply took more shots while limiting the much smaller Wildcats to only 33 attempts. Grady connected on four of the efforts. Borden County put the ball up 59 times and made good on 23 two pointers. Grady did manage to force 20 turnovers on the Lady Coyotes, but the Wildcats were guilty of giving the ball away 23 times.

Grady was led by Belen Perez with four points. Shanna Hale had three while remaining points came from Shelly Tunnell, Brenna Hale, Mary Linda Rodriguez and Wendy High. Grady is 4-13 overall and 0-7 in district.

Kelly Williams and Shawna Vaughn paced Borden County with 12 points apiece.

Grady will finish its season Thursday, Feb. 9 with a game at Klondike High School.

Grady (12) — Tunnell 0 1 1; B. Hale 0 1 1; S. Hale 1 1 3; Rodriguez 0 1 1; High 1 0 2; Perez 2 0 4; Total 4 4 12.

C-City, Coahoma split

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City Wolves boys kept their District 6-3A slate clean, but had a very hard time with a narrow 49-48 victory over the Coahoma Bulldogs on Colorado City's home court Tuesday night.

The contest was nip-and-tuck all the way with the score being tied after one quarter of play and the Wolves leading 29-28 at the half. Going into the final eight minutes of play the count was tied at 39 all, but C-City rallied for the win.

Junior post player Don Randle led the Wolves with 14 points, whose record goes to 2-0 in the second half of play. Yardy Powell and Doug Chitsey added 18 more points for Colorado City.

Coahoma, 1-1, was led by John Swinney with 20 points. Robbie Phernetton added 10.

In the girls contest Coahoma got revenge for an earlier loss with a 67-46 thumping of the Wolves. Leslie Kirkpatrick led the win with 17 points, Jana Griffin added 16 and Denise Greenfield scored 12 as Coahoma's record goes to 3-1.

Laura Baum led the Wolves, 0-4, with 25 points. Lynn Scott added 12.

G-City falls

ROBERT LEE — Both Robert Lee boys and girls team stayed on top of things in District 16-A with wins over Garden City Tuesday night.

Robert Lee won the boys contest, 76-33. Kirby Rasco led the winners with 24 points. Dean Munn paced Garden City with nine points, as its district record falls to 1-6.

Garden City was also defeated in the girls contest 54-35, dropping its district record to 0-7. Missy Grimm paced the winners with 14 points. Jana Hunter led G-City with 18 points. Debbie Bendar added 11.

Stanton boys win

STANTON — The Stanton boys and girls split wins with Big Lake in District

8-2A action Tuesday night.

The Stanton boys evened their second half district slate to 2-2 with a 64-62 win. Four Buffalos scored in double figures led by Darren Sorley and Rocky Barnes who tallied 15 and 14 respectively.

The Stanton girls were defeated by a count of 59-43, dropping their record to 1-4. Pam Garcia led the Lady Buffs with 15 points.

Lamesa still perfect

SAN ANGELO — Last time the Lamesa boys played San Angelo Lakeview, Lake View played the Tors close for three quarters. This time it was "blowout city" all the way as Lamesa ran away with a 104-54 victory in 2-AAAA action Tuesday night.

The win ups Lamesa's District 2-4A record to 11-0. Chris Mason paced the winners with 25 points. Richard Diaz added 16, Jerry Mason scored 14 and Tod Sons 15.

Lake View drummed the Lamesa girls 73-38. Angela Hawkins led the losers with 14 points.

Sands boys pull upset

ACKERLY — Sands threw a monkey wrench into Klondike's playoff hopes here Tuesday night by edging the Cougars, 68-65 in boy's 11-A action.

The win by Sands puts the Mustangs in a tie for third with Grady. Both are 3-4 while Klondike at 4-3 faces a must win situation Thursday when the Cougars entertain Grady.

Keying the upset of the Cougars were Chris Wigginton with 20 points, Leland Beraden with 11 and Johnny Williams with 10. Tim Copé and Mitch Mitchell led Klondike with 24 and 13 points respectively.

In the girl's game Klondike scored a 47-39 win which puts Klondike and Sands both at 3-4 in the race behind Greenwood and Borden County. Sherry Perry led Sands with nine points while Teri Cave scored 20 for Klondike.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 9, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until midafternoon, you can make some serious mistake that involves financial or business matters. Make sure you handle things in a most cautious manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be careful not to take on any heavy investments which could cripple you financially very quickly. Socialize tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are anxious to go after your personal wishes, but don't use force and make others turn against you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be tactful with your friends since they are apt to be under some tension or other and quick to retaliate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You may find it difficult to get backing for practical affairs during day hours, but the evening is fine for such.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be protective of your good name during the daytime, but tonight you can have recreational fun. Use care at work.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to get into new interests, but it is important you handle regular routines during the day. Safeguard your money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you go over some account well and be sure you have not made a mistake. Devote yourself to loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A partner could be fixed in ideas and give you a rough time if you don't compromise. Reach a happy agreement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may have difficulty on the job today, but use self-control and you win out. Rest up and be happy at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't spend too much money for pleasure during the day. Await the evening to seek out inexpensive pleasure.

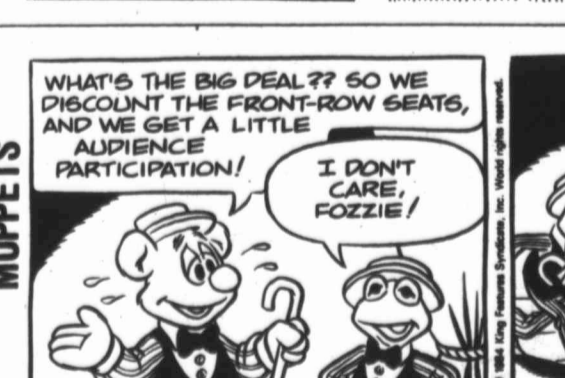

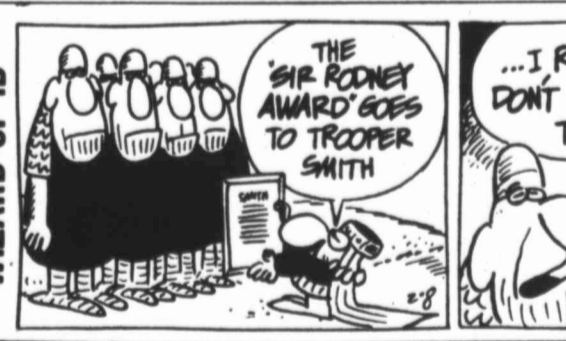

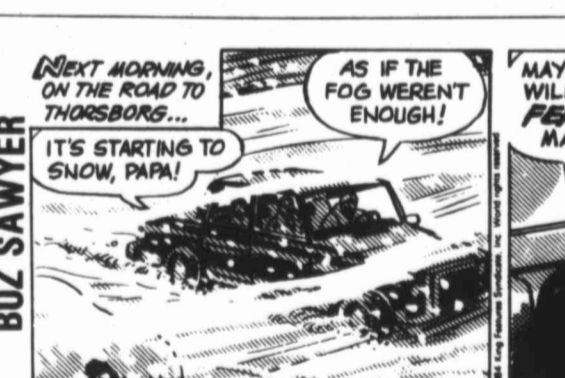

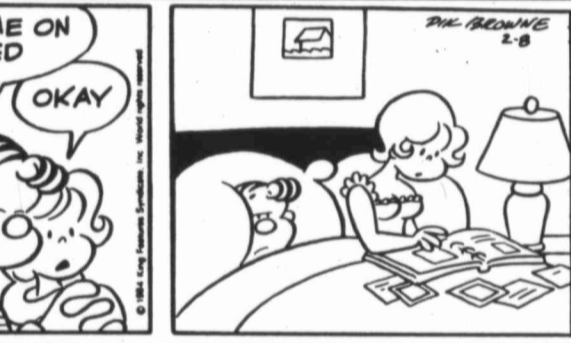

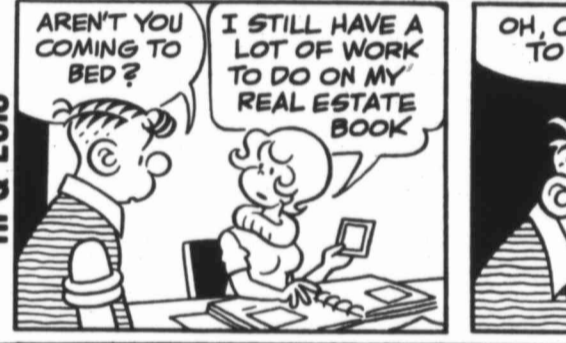

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There could be trouble at home if a close tie is under some bad outside influence, so be tactful with this person.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A letter or telephone call could cause problems, but handle them quickly and rise above depressed feelings.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she may have to contend with poor environment and other limitations, but with determination, can rise above them. Spiritual training is important. Teach how to work, even to acquire a good education and avoid bad influences.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Roots: Expressions of Change in American Education.
Seniors who have had some contact with TCU, who are ranked high in their class and have earned SAT scores of 1200 and above or ACT scores of 28 and above are invited to the Honors Collegium.

A Texas Permian Basin chapter of the Louisiana State University Alumni has been formed, according to LSU officials. The group was chartered at a meeting held in Midland Jan. 16.
Officers include B.Y. "Bud" Butler of Big Spring, Dr. Jim Welsh is chairman of the chapter.

Richard Sevier is vice chairman. Both are from Midland.
Plans for future activities include a seafood supper and a T.V. watch-in. The organization is open to all ex-students of LSU. People interested in the organization may contact any officer.

A most unusual Ranch Style, but this gold cottage with gingerbread trim at 2000 Gregg is not for sale. It's Sun Country Realtors, Inc.'s home, from which they work to find YOU a home. Their staff of Janelle Britton, Patti Horton, Jane-Il Davis, Linda Williams and Katie Frimes are all here to serve you.

Sun Country Realtors Know Big Spring Area

"We treat people equally, no matter what price home they have to sell, or what price home they want to buy," say the folks at Sun Country Realtors, Inc. "We try to give others the service we'd like to receive if we were in their place."
An independent real estate office, the staff members are all long-time residents of Big Spring and involved in community activities. They know the Big Spring market especially well and usually maintain an inventory of well over 100 listings.
Sun Country Realtors, Inc., opened in 1981, is owned by Patti Horton, president; Janelle Britton, vice president-treasurer; and Janell Davis, vice-president-secretary. They have a combined total of 24 years real estate experience in Big Spring. The owners are the principal brokers. There are also two associate brokers and four sales associates on the staff.
Sun Country is a believer in continuous professional development, with three Graduates of Realtors Institute (GRI) and one Certified Residential Specialist. Janell Davis is president of the Big Spring Board of Realtors and Patti Horton is past president.
For sellers, they offer free market analysis — that is, what homes comparable to yours are selling for — at no obligation.

Sun Country has a 20-point plan of action they set into motion when you list your home with them. The plan includes newspaper and radio advertising, yard signs and Multiple Listing Service. They provide you with house selling tips and arrange for maintenance when necessary. Homeowners appreciate their policy of showing your home only to qualified buyers, and of maintaining strict control of appointments and keys.
For buyers, Sun Country offers guidance in obtaining VA, FHA, conventional financing and other creative financing. They also help buyers determine what price home they can afford. They can show all Multiple Listing Service properties listed under Big Spring Board of Realtors, Inc. In addition they offer guidance on construction of new homes.

Let Pettus-Haston Do Your Electrical Work

Pettus-Haston Electric has served the Big Spring community for over 30 years. New and long time customers alike have come to depend on their courteous service and expert work.
They are conveniently located at 109 Goliad if you need to drop by and see them about service or electrical supplies. Or the firm will send an experienced serviceman to your home or business to give an estimate.
They do contracting and repairs for business and residential, trouble shooting, and offer sales and service on electric motors.
Residential services include range and dryer outlets and switches, installation of fixtures, rewiring, 220-volt service, electric heating and water distillers.
Pettus-Haston offers 24-hour service. Their number is 263-8442 or 267-5103. If no one answers at those numbers call 267-6522 or 263-1575. Keep their numbers by your telephone for your next electrical service call.
