How's that? Tip's choice

Q. Has U.S. Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill endorsed anyone for the presidency? If so, who?

A. The veteran Massachusetts Democrat, whose backing is considered powerful by political analysts, has endorsed Walter Mondale for the White House post, as have many other important party figures. However, the endorsements have not stopped him from losing the last three primaries to his Democratic opponent Sen. Gary Hart from Colorado.

Bulletin

A Texas and Pacific train possibly carrying liquid petroleum gas derailed at noon today near the intersection of Channing and First streets in north Big Spring, police said.

Police reports said that at least eight cars, designed to hold liquid petroleum gas, had jumped the railroad tracks.

Texas and Pacific roadmasters were trying to determine if any gas was leaking from the cars, police said.

Traffic was routed away from the intersection, but no one was being evacuated.

The Big Spring Fire Department was called to the scene. There were no reports of injuries.

Fuller blasts forum

Says idea would serve no purpose

By RICK BROWN Staff Writer

Big Spring City Councilman Robert Fuller Wednesday rejected a call for a public forum to discuss the extension of his term of office and those of Mayor Clyde Angel and Councilman Larry Miller.

"(The forum) serves absolutely no purpose," Fuller said yesterday afternoon on KBST radio's "City Manager's Report" program.

Calling the forum "a waste of my time and all the people of Big Spring's time," Fuller said, "I don't have any other answers other than the ones I've given ... If my answers are not satisfactory, all I can do is apologize because there is no other answer. That's all there is."

Fuller said the provisions of the suit were publicized in July and its adoption was voted on in an August council meeting. There were no comments from the public at that time, he said.

Fuller called the extension of terms "a method... (but) not the only method in the world (to put the settlement into effect)."

"We felt at that time it was the proper thing to do to avoid having too many new councilmen at once," he said.

Fuller added that the extensions were decided upon "in good faith."

Fuller's comments came in response to a petition calling for the public forum to explain the extension of terms.

The petition was drafted in office of local attorney Wayne Burns. Burns represented Jack Watkins, Mary Thomas and Bill Chrane in their suit to force elections against the council members whose terms were extended.

Burns and the trio took their case to two state courts and one federal court but were refused a hearing in each court.

"It's not a question of taking sides, we're just asking that the public be informed," Burns said about the petition Monday.

County's sales tax takes sizable drop

Howard County has been mailed $373,933.43 in one-percent city sales tax payments thus far this year, down 20 percent from the same period in 1983, according to figures from State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office.

During a comparable period in 1983 the county had received $470,942.46.

Howard County has received $93,149.51 in local sales tax payments for the period ending Feb. 27, 1984. This reflects January payments reported late in February.

A breakdown of cities within the county shows that Big Spring received $91,125.17 of that total (compared to $145,599 in 1983), and Coahoma received $2,024.34 (compared to $1,158). Forsan received no payments for the period (compared to $3,013).

The 1984 total payments to date is $363,641.90 for Big Spring, $8,075.56 for Coahoma and $2,215.97 for Forsan.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said 985 cities levy the one-percent city sales tax. He sent checks on Tuesday totaling $53.5 million in local sales tax payments.

Martin County received a $3,377.45 payment. 1984 payments to date total to $10,954.13.

Mitchell County received a payment of $21,520.57. Of that figure, Colorado City received $19,618.40, and Westbrook received $1,902.17. Total payments to date for 1984 are $67,626.69 for the county.

Sterling County received a payment of $3,602.32. The 1984 payment to date is $11,640.19.

Farmworkers get compensation ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — A judge has ruled that it is unconstitutional to exclude farm and ranch workers from the state workers' compensation protection, it was announced today.

The American Civil Liberties Foundation of Texas and the United Farm Workers said the ruling means between 200,000 and 350,000 farm and ranch workers will get medical and lost time benefits if they are injured on the job.

"What this says is that farm workers are now like all other workers in Texas," said Jim Harrington, legal director for the civil liberties foundation.

The ruling was issued late Wednesday by Judge Harley Clark in Travis County District Court.

"The statutory exclusion of farm laborers and ranch laborers from the coverage, benefit and protection of the Texas Workers' Compensation Act is impermissible, unlawful, violative of and prohibited by the Constitution and the laws of Texas," Clark's ruling said.

"The judgment represents a great moral victory for farm workers in Texas and their most significant legal victory to date," Harrington said.

The lawsuit was filed against the state and the Industrial Accident Board. William Treacy, the board's executive director, said the decision came as no surprise.

"It was obvious the way the court was ruling throughout the injunction hearings that was going to be the final outcome," Treacy said.

He said the board would have to decide whether to appeal.

Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for Attorney General Jim Mattox, said an appeal

"is being discussed. I'd say it's pretty likely."

Harrington said the judge's decision extends important benefits to farm and ranch workers.

The primary benefit, he said, is immediate no-fault medical coverage for injuries sustained on the job. Injured workers also would be paid for time lost from work due to injuries, he said.

Harrington said farmers and ranchers also would benefit because expanding the workers' compensation coverage would put a limit on their liability.

• Big Spring city race boasts 7 hopefuls

Seven candidates had entered two races for the Big Spring City Council by the time filing closed yesterday for elections from newly created Districts 1 and 3.

Missing driver arrested

Police yesterday arrested a Big Spring man who apparently walked away from an accident Feb. 28 in which a man was killed, police reports said.

Arrested at his 2008 Johnson home and transferred to the county jail Wednesday was Paul Eugene Merrell, 30, reports said. Merrell was arrested on suspicion of failure to stop and render aid, reports said.

The arrest comes as a result of a one-car accident in the 1600 block of Airbase road in which John Loyal Horttor died of massive head injuries incurred in the accident.

Bond for Merrell was set at $10,000 by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

A Big Spring man was treated and released at Malone and Hogan Clinic following an accident at 11:21 a.m. in the 1600 block of Birdwell Lane, police reports and a hospital spokeswoman said.

Maxwell Kevin Dale, 19, of 2507 Peach was taken to the clinic by private vehicle after a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Margaret McAdams of 2308 Roberts ran over his foot while he was directing traffic for construction on the street, reports said.

John Rodriguez, 28, of 501 Nolan told police at 8:20 p.m. Wednesday that someone between 6 a.m. Tuesday and 5 p.m. Wednesday stole from his front yard a 20-inch boys bicycle worth $78, police reports said.

Dan Walker of Dan Walker Body Center at 200 Main told police at 3:13 p.m. Wednesday that someone between 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday stole a microwave oven worth $200 from the business' upstairs snack bar, reports said.

Jeffrey Griffith Starr, 27, of 1101 1/2 N. Bell was arrested at 5:04 p.m. Wednesday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police reports said. Starr was arrested following a minor accident in which his vehicle hit the southwest corner of the Chevron station at 910 N. Lamesa, reports said.

Robbie Dee Fuqua, 46, of 2604 Richmondale was arrested at 12:01 a.m. Thursday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police reports said.

For the record

Richard Dalton Carr, 28, of 1601 Kentucky Way pleaded guilty on Feb. 23 to one count of using the telephone to facilitate cocaine distribution on April 27, 1983, according to U.S. attorney Richard Stevens.

Articles in the Herald on Feb. 24 and March 6 incorrectly said Carr pleaded innocent on Feb. 23 to two counts of distribution of cocaine on April 27 and April 28, 1983.

The two cocaine distribution charges were dropped against Carr and he agreed to plead guilty to the lesser charge in a plea-bargain arrangement, Stevens said.

MEET THE PRESS — Stormie Jones, 6, the world's first heart and liver transplant recipient, is faced by a forest of microphones at a press conference at Pittsburgh Children's Hospital Wednesday. Stormie underwent the historic surgery three weeks ago and her doctor says she is better than expected.

Stormie's fine

6 year old OK after liver, heart transplants

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The 6-year-old recipient of the world's first heart and liver transplant says she's eager to go home to her sister and pet rabbit in Texas, but doctors refuse to speculate on a release date.

"Everything is awful," said Stormie Jones, coughing in her wheelchair during her first meeting with reporters since her transplant operation Feb. 14.

Doctors at Children's Hospital said Wednesday that Stormie is recovering better than expected, and her mother, Lois, said her daughter has been riding a plastic tricycle around the hospital.

But the sobbing little girl said she wants to be back home in Cumbly, Texas. Stormie, dwarfed by cameras and microphones, quietly answered questions at the news conference as she clutched her pink dress and whispered love for her 9-year-old sister, Misty.

"It's very early to say for certain what her prognosis is, but we're very pleased," said her pediatrician, Dr. Basil Zitelli. "We feel she will be able to live a normal life. It's possible she could be in first grade in September. But we have a lot of ground yet to cover."

Zitelli said the risk of organ rejection is constant and Stormie will be monitored carefully for the rest of her life.

"But, the risk seems to be getting less," the doctor said. "It may be feasible for her to return to Texas and come back to Pittsburgh for checkups."

Stormie has been transferred from intensive care to a regular room, where nurse Sally Faulkner said she has made many friends.

But as Stormie emerged into the bright lights and clicking cameras, the blond, brown-eyed girl seemed frail and withdrawn, unaware of why reporters hung onto her every word.

Her mother said Stormie doesn't fully understand that her heart and liver came from Katie Rebstock, 4, of Macedon, N.Y., who died in an auto accident one day before Stormie's operation.

As she smoothed Stormie's hair and patted her cheek, Mrs. Jones urged her daughter to smile. "You don't want everyone to see you crying," she said gently.

But when Stormie tried to muster a grin, the tears began streaming down her face and she lifted her arms to her head to hide from the cameras.

Stormie has received hundreds of cards and letters from people as far away as Australia, Mrs. Jones said. "She even got Cabbage Patch dolls in the mail."

The girl was born with a rare disease that elevated her blood cholesterol to dangerous levels, damaging both her heart and liver, Zitelli said. She would have died within a year without the transplant, according to her doctors.

The 16-hour operation has since restored her blood cholesterol to normal levels.

Zitelli said the wart-like bumps on her hands and in the creases of her joints — cholesterol deposits symptomatic of her illness — are slowly disappearing.

The pediatrician said he could not respond to questions about similar surgery for others suffering from the same disease. He said doctors will closely follow Stormie's progress to learn if the surgery will be repeated.

Mrs. Jones, however, said her daughter is no different from others suffering from the illness. Stormie's strength to endure the operation, she said, "comes from the Man upstairs."

Appeals court says Greyhound can drop cities

From staff and wire reports

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans has refused to stop Greyhound Bus Lines from cancelling its bus service to 38 Texas cities, including Coahoma, Lorraine and Westbrook.

However, the Texas Railroad Commission said Wednesday that the commission approved in emergency session a temporary order authorizing Kerrville Bus Co. and River Coaches of San Antonio to transport passengers and baggage as well as small packages along the San Antonio-Houston route being dropped by Greyhound.

In a December order the Interstate Commerce Commission overruled the Railroad Commission and permitted Greyhound to cancel bus service to 26 Texas cities beginning Dec. 12 and to 12 other cities between San Antonio and Houston on Feb. 25.

The New Orleans court did issue a temporary stay Feb. 24 for the San Antonio-Houston route, but on Monday canceled the stay.

Kerrville Bus Co. said it would begin service over the San Antonio-Houston route immediately with two schedules a day. River City Coaches will begin its service as soon as equipment is available.

The Railroad Commission will hold a hearing later to determine if the permits for the San Antonio-Houston route will be made permanent.

Muti commutes to La Scala

MILAN — Riccardo Muti, the 42-year-old conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, will be commuting to his native Italy as the new music director for La Scala opera house.

RICCARDO MUTI

Muti will replace Claudio Abbado as the music director of the opera house which has been the seat of the Italian opera tradition since the last quarter of the 18th century.

He takes on the assignment in 1986, the theater announced Wednesday. Abbado, 50, has been director of La Scala since 1968. His contract expires next month.

It was not immediately known who will be La Scala's musical director in the interim.

Stephen Sell, executive director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, said Muti also will continue to be the orchestra's permanent conductor. He is now in the first year of a five-year contract in Philadelphia, where he spends 16 weeks a season.

Sell, in a statement, congratulated Muti "on his appointment to one of the most prestigious posts in the operatic world."

"He has assured us that this new responsibility will have no effect on his work with the Philadelphia Orchestra," Sell said.

Muti resigned recently as music director of London's Philharmonia Orchestra, and last year turned down an offer to become musical director of the Royal Opera House at Covent Garden in London.

Diamond: Let my album go

SANTA MONICA — Singer Neil Diamond has filed suit against Columbia Records aimed at forcing the company to release his latest album.

Columbia won't let the album out because it's not considered "commercial enough," a spokesman for the 43-year-old Diamond said Wednesday. The papers were filed in Superior Court last week.

Diamond's spokesman, who asked his name not be used, said the singer's 1981 contract with Columbia requires the company to release his albums within 45 days of delivery.

Diamond's last album, "Heartache," made the Top 10 on Billboard's LP charts in 1982.

A Columbia spokeswoman said questions about lawsuits must be referred to the company's legal staff, but the lawyers were in Honolulu for a convention.

Regan's good for a fiver

CINCINNATI — A teen-ager said he didn't think Treasury Secretary Donald Regan had made off with the $5 bill he gave him to autograph last week, but the youth wasn't "going to raise a stink" even if Regan had.

Mike Laurence, 15, had his picture taken with Regan autographing the bill at a fund-raiser for Rep. Willis D. Gradison Jr., R-Ohio.

The photo was published in newspapers, but after that Laurence did not see the bill again.

Turned out that Mark Jacobs, Gradison's local representative, had the bill in his desk, awaiting whoever claimed it, and Jacobs returned it to Laurence on Wednesday.

Jacobs explained that Regan had handed the bill to him as he went off to a news conference.

"If I didn't get the bill back, so what," said Laurence. It was only $5, and I figured it went to a good cause."

The news in brief

Honduras expels diplomat

TEGUCIGALPA — Honduras has ordered a top Nicaraguan diplomat expelled for spreading communist propaganda, while Nicaragua, in turn, claims Honduran troops participated in an attack on one of its border towns.

The Honduran foreign minister, Edgardo Paz Barica, on Wednesday accused Nicaraguan Charge d'Affaires Javier Aviles Ibarra of making his embassy "an agency of Marxist propaganda ... in favor of Sandinism," a reference to Nicaragua's ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front.

The diplomat was given 48 hours to leave the country.

Aviles Ibarra, at a news conference last week, criticized Honduras for allowing U.S. military operations and installations on its territory.

A Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry statement called the expulsion "unfriendly" and said it was "directed toward deteriorating still further the relations between the two countries and falls within plans of the North American administration to promote a climate of tension that makes possible higher acts of aggression against Nicaragua."

The United States aids the Honduras-based Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the larger of two groups fighting the Sandinista government. Another rebel group, the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, is based in Costa Rica.

Nicaragua charged Wednesday that Honduran soldiers and Honduran-based Nicaraguan rebels attacked the village of Santo Tomas del Norte in Chinandega province, 150 miles north of Managua, the capital.

A protest note from Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said a 12-month-old girl was killed and a Sandinista soldier wounded in the attack Monday.

Demos roast Speaker O'Neill

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill's political blessing on a Democratic presidential candidate?

It's the kiss of death, some of O'Neill's best friends told him at a dinner Wednesday night — but only tongue-in-cheek.

"Tip made Mo and me what we aren't today," cracked Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., at a "roast" of the 71-year-old speaker whose endorsement of Kennedy in 1980 failed to yield the White House nomination.

Rep. Morris K. (Mo) Udall, D-Ariz., host of the roast and chairman of Independent Action, the fundraising group that sponsored it, ran for the Democratic nod in 1976.

O'Neill's expressed desire to become ambassador to Ireland and his rotund figure also went up for grabs at the roast.

The kidding was so mild, though, that the speaker threw away his prepared script, saying he couldn't get too mad when he escaped so lightly.

Instead, he told Irish jokes, sang an Irish song and urged Democrats to unite to defeat President Reagan.

Iran tries to retake oilfield

Iranian fighters attacked Iraqi troops trying to retake the Majnoon Islands oilfield early today, "killing or wounding" most of the advancing force, Iran reported.

Iraq, without mentioning Majnoon, reported a series of successful air raids Wednesday. It issued no reports on fighting today.

In Baghdad, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz asked Wednesday that Arab foreign ministers meet next week to discuss "the serious situation threatening the Arab region ... in the light of the escalating Iranian aggression."

In Moscow, the official Tass news agency said the United States was "grossly violating" international law by moving ships and planes to the Persian Gulf, "creating a grave threat to peace and international security."

Tehran Radio said Iranian forces "destroyed Iraqi forces stationed around Shahid Hamid bridge, situated inside southern Majnoon Island" during a five-hour attack early today.

"Most of the armored and mechanized Iraqi forces which took part in yesterday's counter-attacks were killed or wounded," said the broadcast monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

Iran punched across the border and occupied the Majnoon Islands and other Iraqi territory two weeks ago. The oil-rich islands, in the Tigris marshes 90 miles northeast of Iraq's port of Basra, are perhaps the biggest prize Iran has taken since the war began 3½ years ago.

Tennessee convicts caught

NASHVILLE — It started on a chilly Saturday morning in a prison silage pit when five Tennessee convicts drew pistols on their guards and bolted to freedom.

It turned into 19-day trail of blood and terror that left two innocent people and one convict dead and two lawmen wounded.

At the height of the chase, hundreds of nervous Tennessee and North Carolina residents packed guns and kept their lights burning through the night.

Two of the convicts said they would never be taken alive, shot a man as he grilled steaks, let his wife say goodbye as he lay dying in the back yard, then held the woman hostage on a 400-mile odyssey.

Another convict was found under a carpet, hungry and cold, and was talked into surrendering over breakfast and a Bible lesson served up by a 73-year-old woman.

The chase ended Wednesday morning for double murderer Ronald Freeman, killed by two shotgun blasts as he made his last stand behind an unhinged wooden door at an abandoned North Carolina house.

The end for habitual criminal James Clegg came nine hours later, when he meekly surrendered from his hiding place behind a board in a nearby home.

The bid for freedom against all odds began the morning of Feb. 18, when 25 convicts, flanked by two guards, marched out of the fence around Fort Pillow State Prison and headed for the prison farm's silage pit.

Less than two hours later, the guards were tied up and five inmates were racing eastward in a stolen car, pausing only to fire a shotgun at a pursuing officer.

Missing was Freeman, 41, a prison activist and ladies' man serving 198 years for the 1970 shooting deaths of his pregnant wife and stepdaughter; Clegg, a 30-year-old thief serving a life term as a habitual criminal; Randolph Oliver, 33, serving six life sentences for rape and murder; Riley Arzeneaux, 26, serving 25 years for second-degree murder; and Sylvester Alexander, 33, serving 40 years for robbery.

Today the race is over for all but Alexander, who authorities believe is hiding in Illinois.

'Praying' sections considered

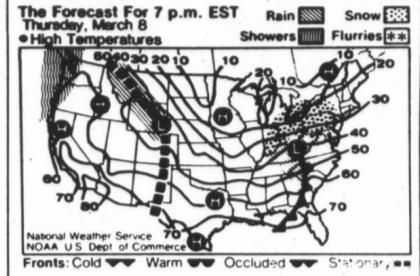

WASHINGTON — Public school classrooms might have to be divided into "praying" and "non-praying" sections under a proposed modification to a school-prayer constitutional amendment being debated in the Senate.

That's one change vote-hunting sponsors of the amendment are considering as they press their search for a compromise that can pick up enough support to win the two-thirds majority — or 67 votes — needed for passage.

The Senate today was entering its fourth day of debate on the proposed constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in public schools, with leaders now predicting a test vote unlikely before next week. Opponents, led by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., have vowed to delay a final vote on the issue until early June.

Backers of the prayer amendment have already revised the proposal once — spelling out that prayer in school could be either silent or spoken and specifying that the government could neither write the prayer that would be said nor force school districts to have a prayer period.

Blizzard strikes Midwest

A snowstorm backed by blizzard-force winds gathered strength over the Midwest today, dropping the mercury to just above zero in Iowa and South Dakota amid gusts that made it feel like 30 below zero.

Record low temperatures were reached in Marquette, Mich., where it was 16 below zero, and in Buffalo, N.Y., where the early-morning reading of minus 4 did "not compare well" with a freak high reading of 76 degrees a year ago today, forecasters said.

The storm was forging slowly eastward after plowing through the Dakotas on Wednesday with 60 mph winds that cut highway visibility to zero. Drifts plugged up parts of Interstate 90 in South Dakota and forced cancellations of hundreds of events, including Ash Wednesday church services, across the state.

Roads were treacherous with the storm blamed for the deaths of two people whose car slid out of control on wet pavement in Iowa. In other states, officials warned against unnecessary trips.

"I think some folks need a good grabbing by the scruff of their neck and given a good shaking," said Joseph Crawford, North Dakota's superintendent of public instruction.

Most of Iowa was under a blizzard warning today as the snow stretched from the Dakotas into Nebraska, northern and central Illinois, southern Minnesota, northern Indiana, northern Missouri, Wisconsin and Ohio.

In most places the snowfall amounted to only 2 or 3 inches, with Mason City, Iowa, getting 6 inches late Wednesday. But police and forecasters warned drivers of possible whiteouts as the snow whipped across open spaces.

"It's getting pretty miserable up there," meteorologist Harry Gordon, of the Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today.

This morning's temperature at Sioux City, Iowa, fell to 10 degrees, but winds of 30 mph made it feel like 32 below zero, Gordon said. It was 6 above zero at Sioux Falls, S.D., but the wind was blowing at 20 mph and made the temperature feel like 30 below, he said.

West Virginia and western Pennsylvania were the storm's next targets, Gordon said, but winds were "still pretty strong 100 miles in back of the snow" in the Dakotas and the upper Midwest remained under the threat of more snow.

North Dakota's high school Class A basketball tournament appeared likely to go on as scheduled this afternoon after seven teams defied the snow Wednesday to reach Minot. The eighth was headed there this morning.

To GOP women: 'Hang in there'

Give Mary Louise Smith the 1984 hanging-in-there award. The first woman to serve as Republican national chairman and a strong supporter of the equal rights amendment, Smith is immensely disappointed with the GOP, but is determined to reform from within.

In a recent interview, she expressed the belief that her support of the ERA and affirmative action caused President Reagan to drop her from the Civil Rights Commission. Yet she has not given up on Mr. Reagan or the Republican Party. When ERA supporters ask her whether they should leave the Republican Party, she says: "The Republican Party needs people like us more than ever. I don't want to see all the women in the Democratic Party. So my answer is, hang in there."

Smith argues that both affirmative action and the ERA should be Republican issues: "I often point out that our party was born in the struggle against slavery. We call ourselves the party of Lincoln, and we have a splendid civil rights record. I find it very hard to explain why we've turned away from the emphasis on civil rights and equality for women. Some would say we haven't turned away, but I don't see a sharply drawn social consciousness."

Specifically on the ERA, she points out: "The Republican Party has always represented individualism, rather than judging people by blocks or groups. That's one of the reasons I could never understand why the ERA was not a good conservative Republican issue."

Smith's perseverance is admirable. The world would be a better place if more people showed such pluck. However, unless GOP leaders make more effort to accommodate her viewpoints, we suspect that some of the GOP's other female members will decide not to hang in there.

Kudos and kicks go to two senators

WASHINGTON — Today I'd like to present awards to two members of the Senate: kudos for one, a kick for the other.

The kudos goes to Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., for his humanitarian efforts to get American rice shipped to thousands of desperately needy families in the Philippines.

The kick goes to Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, for his efforts to push legislation that would benefit his own oil and gas leases.

Here are the citations that go with the awards:

● Melcher: The 59-year-old senator from the Big Sky country spent this past Christmas holiday in the Philippines, and what he saw there has haunted him ever since. He visited the slums of Manila and saw hordes of hungry children whose parents have been unable to find work in the shattered Philippine economy.

Cardinal Jaime Sin, head of the Roman Catholic Church in the Philippines, appealed to Melcher for help in getting an emergency shipment of food for his starving flock. Melcher, who has two grand-children, was eager to be of service.

So the prelate wrote a letter to President Reagan, asking for 30,000 tons of rice from America's bulging granaries. The rice would fill the shrunken bellies of 100,000 Filipino families, the cardinal wrote. Melcher promised to deliver the letter to the president personally.

But Melcher, a World War II combat infantryman, found the White

House's bureaucratic defenses tougher to penetrate than the Siegfried Line. In the weeks since he has been back, he has been unable to get an appointment with the president to hand-deliver Cardinal Sin's letter, as he promised he would. The best a White House aide offered was to "send a messenger" to pick up the letter. Melcher refused.

On Jan. 17, the senator pleaded his case with Robert McFarlane, the president's national security adviser. He asked that the administration approve Cardinal Sin's appeal for food. Melcher told his associate Lucette Lagnado that McFarlane promised he'd take care of the matter.

So far, he hasn't. Neither has the State Department, the Agency for International Development or the U.S. Embassy in Manila. When U.S. Ambassador Michael Armacost returned to Washington early last month, Melcher collared him and told him of the trouble he'd had trying to deliver the cardinal's letter. Armacost suggested he might have more luck if he enlisted a Republican ally.

Melcher took the suggestion. He wrote a letter to the president, outlining the hunger problem in the Philippines and Cardinal Sin's hopes of alleviating it with American rice. Then he got Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, to co-sign the letter.

With Helms' clout, Melcher may yet deliver the cardinal's appeal — and the slum kids of Manila won't have to go to bed hungry.

● Murkowski: One of Big Oil's best friends on the Energy Committee, he has been enthusiastic lately in his support of a new trans-Alaska pipeline that would make North Slope natural gas available for sale to Japan, Taiwan and South Korea. He also proposed an amendment to the Export Administration Act that would legalize sale of Alaskan crude to foreign countries.

The new pipeline, which needs congressional approval before it can be used to ship gas, could make millions for Exxon, ARCO, Sohio and other big oil companies that own most of the gas leases in the region.

It could also be a bonanza for a cooperative venture of which Murkowski owns about 2 percent; its leases are in the Prudhoe Bay area that would be served by the proposed pipeline.

How much Murkowski might net if the pipeline he's pushing gets approval is impossible to figure. But one leaseholder told my associate Jock Hatfield: "You could make a killing. ... Even if you have a few hundred acres next to a productive well, it's big money."

Murkowski, a former Fairbanks banker, has already more than doubled his original 1979 investment in the co-op. According to his 1981 financial disclosure statement, the holdings were worth between $15,000 and $50,000. A year later, his share of the co-op's sale of a lease to Murphy Oil amounted to $75,000, and his share of the co-op's 13 remaining leases is valued at $50,000 to $100,000.

Murkowski sees no conflict of interest in his pipeline promotion efforts, which included a trip to the Far East to drum up buyers for the pipeline's future gas shipments. He said buy-and-sell decisions on the leases — which may or may not yield gas — are made by the co-op, and he has no contact with it.

And the Senate's conflict-of-interest rules are so accommodating that he's safe from censure. A senator would have to get a bill passed that affects only himself to be in violation.

NOT CHOOSIN' SUSAN: At a U.S. Chamber of Commerce party to honor the late Susan B. Anthony — and to raise funds for Republican women candidates — Maureen Reagan appeared in an old-fashioned, high-necked dress. She was not dressed as the famous women's rights advocate herself, but as Elizabeth Cady Stanton, a feminist of the same era.

Ms. Reagan's office said she decided on the Stanton costume because Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Stanton were best friends. But another source said that Ms. Reagan decided not to dress up as the evening's honoree because Anthony was a generally bad-tempered abstinent.

Around The Rim

By RHONDA WITT

Canine cohorts

Have you ever been a sucker for a cute little face with sad eyes and floppy ears? My parents have been a dozen times. Ever since I can remember I've had a dog of some sort. I guess that's why I love all dogs, big or small, cute or ugly.

When a person needs someone to talk to he always talks to his dog. A dog always listens and never talks back. A dog gives love freely and makes a person feel better. You can always count on a dog. Maybe that's why a dog is man's best friend.

Our first dog was a little black mutt named Sticks, because it was the only word my sister and I could both say at the time. We used to drag that poor dog everywhere.

Another dog we had was a Great Dane named Max which we got from some friends. Every time it rained, Max wanted to come in the house. Can you imagine a Great Dane covering in the rain?

Susie, a boxer, was a gift from some friends in Colorado City. Susie soon had a mean little mate, a Cock-a-poo, named Reanshea which once belonged to my grandmother. One day we heard some whining in our backyard. My entire family went to look for the strange sound. My dad found two little puppies, and when he turned around I held three more in my chubby little arms. Susie was a proud mother, and Reanshea was jealous.

My favorite dog was a Springer Spaniel named Cody. Cody was one of the sweetest dogs you could ever own. When my little brother was three years old he used to torment that poor dog to death, but Cody didn't seem to mind. They were the best of friends. My brother used to lay on top of that dog for hours. One day my mother heard my brother scream and ran to see what was wrong. Cody had decided turnabout was fair play, and was laying on top of my brother.

Don't believe it when someone tells you a Doberman Pinscher is mean. My parents recently adopted one of the biggest chicken-hearted dogs I have ever seen. Ernestine, a full grown doberman, started following my dad around at work. After a week, my dad conned my mother into taking in this overgrown clutz.

The other day, Ernestine was sticking her nose into something that was none of her business. I raised my voice to her, and she ran and covered behind my mother. It took me ten minutes to coax her into letting me pet her again.

Ernestine's pal is a little bitty Heinz 57 called Apache. My parents inherited Apache when he was three weeks old. He had been given to the animal shelter when I saw him. I called my mother and asked her if she could take in this sweet adorable puppy for a couple of weeks.

My brother took to Apache immediately. My dad claimed to not like "the runt," but I caught him sharing his chair with Apache a couple of days later. Now this little creature is a permanent fixture in my parents' house. I don't think they would part with him.

Apache, who resembles a drowned rat, should be a professional cartoon artist. He is smart and knows it. He knows who he can sucker and who he can't. Everytime someone comes home, he follows them around until that person feeds him or picks him up. He loves any attention he can get.

Even though Apache and Ernestine pretend to be ferocious animals around strangers, they aren't great watch dogs. I have a fear of a burglar breaking in and stealing them because they are so friendly. Like the saying goes, "Their bark is worse than their bite."

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Steve Chapman

Contentment is a dangerous thing

Every so often I get an irresistible urge to set aside my usual assumption that the world is going to hell in a wheelbarrow. On these occasions I find myself overwhelmed with contentment, rejoicing at the richness of life, marveling that the world is made up of nothing but cute kids, lovable dogs and cozy evenings by the fire. That's when I know I've been watching too many television commercials.

Anyone wondering why the U.S. economy isn't showing its old spark need look no further than that fat little box in the living room. Americans have lost their drive, and no wonder. Nowadays, our TV ads seem dedicated to convincing us that life could not possibly be lovelier. Most of them are better than a case of Valium for soothing the nerves, replete with idyllic scenes, handsome people and music that would give Debby Boone a case of insulin shock.

The prime example is those ads for the Beatrice Foods Co. that ran every minute and a half during the Winter Olympics, showing improbably wholesome people enjoying a dazzling variety of products, all stamped out by the same conglomerate. Beatrice doesn't seem to care if it sells anything, since none of the products appears onscreen long enough for its name to register. The commercials apparently have no purpose but to brighten the viewer's day, though in fact it depresses me immensely to learn that everything in the country worth owning is already owned by Beatrice.

Other commercials depart in other directions from the traditional American hard-sell. Take those ads for Calvin Klein jeans, which involve vacant-headed ingenues prattling interminably about anything they can think of, so long as it has nothing to do with Calvin Klein jeans. They seem designed to make the viewer think he's been transported into the Twilight Zone, and they work. Lately, Diet Pepsi has been trying a pale imitation, featuring young couples who are clearly preoccupied with earthier matters than soft drinks.

Given these sorts of pitches, is it any wonder that the U.S. economy has grown so sluggish and uncompetitive? Commercials used to make you want things for which you had no imaginable use, whether it was a shaving cream that made you smell like a citrus grove or a sports car that could travel four times the legal speed limit but whose trunk could barely accommodate a toothbrush.

Back in the golden age of American capitalism, commercials tried to induce in the viewer deep feelings of inadequacy, while holding out a guaranteed cure. That was what made the nation's economic engine purr: millions of inadequate people spent vast sums in search of adequacy, thus providing employment and paychecks, which were used in turn to cure yet more inadequacy, and so on and so on.

But all that has changed. In the old days, there was always some statuesque blonde on TV suggesting that if I bought a particular brand of motor oil, my car would run better and, as a bonus, she'd be mine for the asking. When was the last time a statuesque blonde tried to sell you anything? I suspect they've all moved to Omaha, raised dozens of adorable tykes, let their roots grow out and found work appearing in Beatrice ads.

Our new commercials completely evade their responsibility to whet our appetites. Some, like Calvin Klein, regard the business of selling jeans as beneath their dignity and irrelevant to human welfare. Others, like Beatrice, portray a world so blissful that no material possession could possibly make it better.

This last suggestion is not only empirically inaccurate but also insidiously destructive of our economic system, which rests on my willingness to work like a galley slave so that I can afford to buy useless junk, thus propelling the economy ever further upward. Once I achieve contentment without ever enjoying a single product made by Beatrice, or grow scornful of the need for Calvin Klein jeans, I am apt to stop buying, take up transcendental meditation and slack off on the job.

If that happens on a mass scale, America's factories and offices will soon look like Dresden in 1945. Advertisers had better wake up to their duty to keep us trapped in misery, only one purchase away from Nirvana. Contentment is a dangerous thing.

Billy Graham

From behind bars into the lion's den

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: During my time in prison I have decided to repent of my sins and follow Jesus. It has not been easy but God has been with me and strengthened me. But now I am about to be released, and I am very fearful about re-entering society. I'm afraid the freedom and the temptations will be too much for me. How can I avoid this? — B.R.

DEAR B.R.: God has been faithful to you in the past, giving you strength so you could resist the pressures of prison and live for Christ each day. And God does not change. Just as he has been faithful in the past, so he will be with you in the future, no matter what you might face. "Because of the Lord's great love we are not consumed, for his compassions never fail. They are new every morning; great is your faithfulness" (Lamentations 3:22-23).

At the same time, there are several important steps you should take, both now and when you are released. First of all, saturate your mind and heart with the Word of God, the Bible. Memorize verses that tell of God's love and watch over you, and let the Word of God teach you what is right and wrong. "Blessed is the man who does not walk in the counsel of the wicked or stand in the way of sinners or sit in the seat of mockers. But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he meditates day and night" (Psalm 1:1-2).

Then get involved in a church where Christ is preached and where you can have open and honest fellowship with other believers. You need the strength of other believers. At the same time, avoid those old acquaintances and places that will make you open to temptations. The Bible commands, "Do not set foot on the path of the wicked or walk in the way of evil men. Avoid it, do not travel on it; turn from it and do not go on your way ... the way of the wicked is like deep darkness" (Proverbs 4:14-15, 19).

Don't be ashamed to take your stand for Christ when you get out of prison. In your own strength you can't resist the temptations that will come your way — but as you trust Christ and look to him for strength, he will help you. "God is faithful; he will not let you be tempted beyond what you can bear.

What kind of student comes to school at 5:30 a.m. and gives 64 performances during a touring improvisational show in a two-week period.

Jimmy Smith, drama teacher at Big Spring High School, has 10 such students dedicated to drama who will spend this week and the week of March 19 touring to 64 schools, churches and hospitals with the fourth annual Improvisational Children's Tour.

Smith said he originated the touring show "to give actors experience in a touring company, and to work on their stamina, momentum and energy level. Most jobs (in acting today) are with touring companies."

During Public School Week Smith and his young troupe of actors are giving several shows a day to local school children and schools throughout the area. On Tuesday, for example, the troupe gave two shows at Marcy Elementary, one show at the Marthe result of a brainstorming session with Smith and his actors. The show follows a basic outline but changes from place to place, Smith said. During the show, actors incorporate sign language.

music, and mime. They talk with their young audiences to see what they would like to see acted out. And they emphasize the advantages of dreaming and realizing dreams.

Actors in the touring show include Kim Beckham, Tatia Colvin, Paula Valli, Molly Thompson, Loryne Russell, Dee Wilson and Sami Eyskens.

Others include Mike Walker, Lanton Hamby and Shot Smith.

Rehearsals for the show are scheduled from 5:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. daily. Participating in the show is voluntary, Smith said.

In addition to working on the touring show, Smith and the drama department are preparing for an upcoming one-act play competition. This year the group is preparing "Private Ear" for the event. Several students in the touring production are also involved in the one-act play.

Malone and Hogan doctors credited through program

Malone and Hogan Clinic physicians earned 1,833 hours of credit in 1983 through a local continuing medical education program the Big Spring medical facility said.

Individual clinic physicians who tallied more than 100 hours each were Brian Caplan, Douglas Park, R.R. Patel, N.K. Reddy, R.K. Reddy, Robert Rember, Taylor Smith and Bernard Zilberg.

Dr. Bernard Zilberg, chairman of Malone and Hogan's Wednesday seminar series, has announced the following schedule for March. Area health professionals are invited to attend.

• March 7 — "Diabetic Hypertension," by Dr.

Robert Roswell, department of Endocrinology and Hypertension, University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center.

• March 14 — "Thrombo-embolic Disease," by Dr. R.K. Reddy, Malone and Hogan Clinic orthopedic surgeon.

• March 21 — "Prolonged Apnea," by Dr. John Bray, Midland allergist.

• March 30 — Dr. D.M. Krikler, editor of the "British Heart Journal" and cardiologist at Royal Postgraduate Institute of Medicine, Hammersmith Hospital, London, England. Topic will be announced later. This seminar will be held on Friday instead of the usual Wednesday meeting. Seminars begin at 12:30 p.m. in the first floor classroom of Malone and Hogan Hospital. Medical professionals who plan to attend the noon luncheon before each program should make reservations by 4:30 p.m. the preceding day. For reservations, call Sissy Jones, 263-1211, ext. 175.

Laredo college official charged with theft

LAREDO (AP) — Officials said a Laredo Junior College administrator will be arraigned in two weeks in connection with about $30,000 in school funds discovered missing last fall.

Javier B. Santos surrendered Friday to Webb County District Attorney Julio Garcia and was released on two $25,000 bonds. He had been charged with two counts of felony theft.

Garcia said he would wait to arraign Santos in the 49th State District Court which is currently hearing cases in Zapata.

Santos had been the subject of a nationwide search by the FBI and other law enforcement agencies after he disappeared last November.

Before he disappeared, Santos had been an assistant dean and director of the junior college's continuing education department.

About $30,000 has been reported missing by college officials. The money was collected as tuition for classes.

An investigation into the missing funds began after a college administrative employee tried to match her records with business office records and discovered that office didn't have the records.

A school spokesman said the funds were taken over a period of about two years.

Santos was reported missing by his parents on Nov. 10 after he failed to return from a vacation trip to San Antonio.

He was indicted by a Webb County Grand Jury Nov. 23.

Officials said Santos apparently had been living in the Los Angeles area before returning to Laredo.

Garcia's office reportedly had been negotiating with Santos before his surrender.

Hamlin's certificate was sponsored by Texas Industrial Value, Inc. Charles G. Hooks III sponsored Stallings' certificate.

The certificates are used to purchase a registered beef or dairy heifer to raise and show for one year. After showing the animal in the Houston stock show, the boys can keep the heifers to start their own herd.

Dear Abby

Surgical relief available for impotent men

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "Better Than Ever," whose sex life was improved by therapy despite her 44-year-old husband's impotence following surgery: Although the letter didn't describe the therapy, one option to overcome impotency should be publicized — surgical implantation of a penile prosthesis.

There are many types of penile prostheses being implanted by specially trained urological surgeons, but the most natural is the Scott inflatable type, which has been in use since 1973.

Impotency can be caused by diabetes, vascular disease, paralysis, medication for hypertension, radiation therapy etc., but far too often these patients are told that their impotency is either "all in their heads" or something they must learn to live with.

Unfortunately, many health professionals hesitate to discuss penile implant surgery, which is neither new nor a fad. I am a registered nurse, and the urologist for whom I work has given many requested interviews to the media on the subject, but few were publicized. (He was told that although the subject is important and interesting, it's too "risque" for the general public!)

Abby, do you think that publicizing an operation that can help restore a man's ability to perform sexually is too "risque" to publicize?

BARBARA C., ORLANDO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR BARBARA: No. The news of Dr. F. Brantley Scott's invention appeared in my column in 1973. (A wealthy South American businessman sent a cable from Brazil saying he wanted to fly his private jet immediately to see Dr. Scott in Houston!)

Surgeons everywhere are now performing penile implants. Interested parties should ask their urologists for the names of surgeons who specialize in it. Or they should contact their county (or state) medical societies.

DEAR ABBY: A teen-age girl wrote, "My boyfriend, Roger (not his real name), is in big trouble with my parents because they caught him in my room at 2 a.m."

In your response you said, "Roger had better respect your parents' rules or his real name will be 'Mud.'"

Since you obviously were making a pun on the name of Roger Mudd, you should have spelled it with two "d's."

Incidentally, Abby, do you know where the expression "Your name will be mud" originated?

HISTORY BUFF

DEAR BUFF: Yes. John Wilkes Booth, the actor who assassinated President Lincoln, broke his leg while making his getaway. The doctor who set Booth's leg was Samuel Alexander Mudd.

Dr. Donohue

Fat loss continues after exercise

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Two years ago I weighed 101 pounds. I now weigh about 130. I'm 38, and 5 feet 5 inches tall, not really active, and have a husband and a daughter at home. I'm also small-boned. My breaking point is faithfulness to a diet for one month. I have lost a pound and a half. Naturally, I recognize that increased activity would help, but don't understand why I can't lose more when I am on my diet. I guess I'm looking for miracles. I have a bunched middle and have gone up two dress sizes. Help! Why can't I lose more? — P.Z.

We're talking about fat weight. There are many things we don't fully understand about this. We do know that fat is our way of storing up energy, something that probably harks back to the earliest stages of man's development, when like the lower animals he had to husband nourishment for a rainy day. For us, it's still pretty much like filling up the coal bin in preparation for a long winter.

It's when we don't use that stored energy that we keep accumulating fat. The coal bin overflows, or in your case, from what I gather, the fat overflows.

At the risk of tedious repetition, let me once again offer the patently-obvious suggestion that the best approach to weight loss is not through miracle diets, or gadgets like massage machines or "fat-burning" pills. The very best approach is through a sensible, reduced-calorie balanced diet and exercise.

You don't have to make your diet a starvation regimen. In fact, you don't want rapid weight loss, because that holds the threat of loss of muscle tissue and valuable body fluid. You want to lose only the extra amount of fat you've stored. You just want to spiffy up the coal bin, not empty it.

So even though you don't like exercise, you can find some kind of activity you do like and use that. One or two pounds a week is plenty of loss. You may not do that the first month, but it will come.

And here's something you may not realize. With exercise, you get a bonus loss of fat. There is a protracted expenditure of energy through fat-burning for hours after you have stopped the exercise. The booklet "Lost Secrets of Reducing" is still in print. You can order a copy by writing me care of the Big

Creek plan on agenda

Water quality and supply items will top the agenda for the board of directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District at their meeting March 13.

The board will consider hiring a fiscal agent and attorney to issue bonds to finance the Beals Creek diversion project southeast of Big Spring and to obtain additional groundwater reserves.

The Beals Creek project is designed to intercept low-quality normal low flow that normally would enter Lake E.V. Spence.

Tymi Brooks takes state Tri-Hi-Y honors

Tymi Brooks was elected district judge and won outstanding judge in the state at the Texas Youth and Government Conference in Austin in February.

TYMI BROOKS

Miss Brooks and 10 other Tri-Hi-Y students from the Big Spring YMCA attended the conference with their advisor, Hannah Coleman.

Miss Brooks, a senior at Big Spring High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brooks. She will now advance to the Blue Ridge Foreign Affairs Conference in North Carolina. The Foreign Affairs Conference is limited to the top 20 youth delegates from each state.

Bronwyn Allen and Andi Burns, also of Big Spring, had their bill passed in the Senate and signed by the youth governor during the conference.

In the judicial session, Molly Thompson was district judge in a trial in which Lori Gilbert, Shelly Brasel and Stacy Jackson were called in as witnesses.

Paula Valli, Sharla Bailey and Shelly Bennett participated as members of the Youth Commission. Kristie Grimes debated her bill in the House of Representatives.

Any bill passed and signed by the youth government is considered by the state legislative bodies and has the chance of becoming state law.

Libertarian in race for 28th district seat

ODESSA — A former Odessa City Council candidate and sales manager with an Odessa-based grout placement service company filed this week as the Libertarian Party challenger to State Sen. John T. Montford's 28th district seat.

Ronald Holder, 33, of Gardendale is campaigning on a slogan of "less government and more freedom," and uses the passage of the Ector County tax rollback as an example of the momentum the philosophy has in West Texas.

"West Texas is ready for a big turn-around in government," he said in a press release. "We must prevent future complications and breakdowns in our state government. By passing the tax rollback in Ector County, the issue of this political year has been stated."

Holder served three years in the U.S. Army Security Agency, and left the agency as a sergeant in 1972. He ran for the Odessa City Council in 1977 and helped co-found the Ector County Independent Libertarian Party in 1982. He is a member of the Sheriff's Association of Texas and the Permian Bass Club.

Free diabetes screening set

A free diabetes screening is being offered March 15 at the Medicine Shoppe, 1001 Gregg Street, from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. No appointment is necessary.

Volunteers from the Texas Nurses Association will conduct the tests.

Of the estimated 10 million people who have diabetes, approximately 4 million are unaware they have the condition. Seventy-five percent of all known diabetics are over 45 years old.

People who wish to be tested should eat a balanced meal with minimal sugar content and high in carbohydrates approximately two hours prior to testing.

Graham film 'not suitable'

DALLAS (AP) — The Prodigal, the new Billy Graham movie, will be rated "not suitable" when it opens here Friday because the city's screening board has not been able to review it.

Scheduling conflicts prevented the Dallas Movie Classification Board from screening the film at its regular meeting Wednesday. Consequently, the film will carry a "not suitable" rating until the board is able to screen it next week, according to city guidelines.

Rolph Fletcher, coordinator for the film's premier, said previous Dallas movie boards had felt no need to review a Graham film and followed the industry's "suitable" rating.

There are a variety of things in this week's notes so let's get started:

One player of the eight member Lone Star Conference Women's Basketball Tournament champion is Forsan's Karla Cregar. Cregar is a starter for the Lady Yellow-jackets at both forward and guard and started for Forsan on regional tournament teams in 1980-81-82.

For their efforts the Lady 'Jackets received an automatic bid in the NCAA Division II Women's 32-team tournament.

Didn't have space enough last week, but here and now Big Spring High School golf coach Howard Stewart wants it known that he appreciated very much the use of both Comanche Trails and the Big Spring Country Club courses for his recent boy's invitational tournament. He also would like to thank State National Bank for providing the trophies.

And speaking of girl's track and field: The Goliad seventh grade girls scored 36 points for a sixth place finish in the 12-team San Angelo Relays. The meet marked Goliad's first action of the year. This week girls from Goliad and Runnels will be competing in the Big Spring Optimist Girl's Relays.

At San Angelo, however the top individual places came from Tracey Parker, who was first in the shot put (32-3) and discus (75-3), and Monica Smith, who garnered third place in the 100 meters (13.5). In relay action the 1200 meter relay of Angela Dees, Katherine Burrow, Sharon Chatman and Gina Johnson scored fifth in 3:35.44.

And in other sub-varsity girl's track action:

The Lady Steers junior varsity grabbed seventh out of 11 teams at the Plainview Relays with best individual showings coming from:

Sheila Washington in the 1600 (6:30.20 for fifth) and 800 (third in 2:46.96); Millie Correla (fourth in the discus, 80-6).

The JV 400 relay of Carleta Lewis, Connie Swinney, Joann Ezell and Lisa Hale was fifth in 55.64.

Wranglers knot Queens' hopes with 85-74 win

By BILLY NABOURS

MIDLAND — True to their form, the Howard College Hawk Queens never gave up, despite huge deficits, but unlike their previous 10 games, their Region V semifinal contest had an unfamiliar ending — a loss.

Odessa jumped to a lead that was just too much to overcome in beating the Queens, 85-74 here Wednesday night to advance to tonight's championship game against McClennan Community College at 7. Howard ended the year at 24-9 and had its 10 game winning streak, which included a win over Odessa, snapped in the process.

It just wasn't to be the Queens' night. They were never ahead or able to tie the contest. The closest Howard got to Odessa was 67-62 with 6:46 left in the contest. Poor shooting on Howard's part in the first half (11 of 37) and a lack of rebounding (23-14, Odessa) pushed the Lady Wranglers to a 46-25 halftime lead.

Odessa scored the game's first four points before Howard answered with a bucket from Alex Provencio. Howard never got anything going until the 5:05 mark of the first half after Odessa had a 38-13 lead.

Terri Moore, Howard's leading scorer with 25 points, Janene Berry and Provencio cut the score to 38-19, but Odessa's Sharon Cain scored six points in the final 1:26 to give Odessa its 21 point halftime cushion.

The Queens shooting improved considerably in the second half (19 of 35 overall) while Odessa excolled off even more. After hitting 21 of 38 in the first half the Lady Wranglers made only 13 of 32 second half field goals. Some of the credit went to a resurgent Queens' bunch that just got started too late.

Behind Provencio, Berry, Moore, Debbie Hall and Molly Early the Queens cut the lead to 65-50 at the midway point of the second half. Free throws from Early and Berry and a two pointer from Berry made the score 65-54 with 8:47 to play.

Following a bucket by Elaine Johnson the Queens made their best run of the game when Hall, Early and Moore beat the defense to put Howard close at 67-62 with just over six minutes to play.

However, disaster struck when Moore fouled out with 2:27 in the game and Howard trailing by 10, 77-67. Early, Hall and Berry gave gallant effort after that, but Odessa's large first half advantage had been too much to overcome.

For Berry, Moore and Coahoma's Kari Robinson, the game marked the end of their Howard College basketball careers. Berry finished with 11 assists and 14 points. Moore pulled down 11 rebounds in addition to her point total.

Freshmen Hall and Early scored 13 and 14 points respectively.

Queens (83) — Alex Provencio 4 0 8; Molly Early 5 3 13; Janene Berry 5 4 14; Debbie Hall 7 0 14; Terri Moore 9 7 25; Totals 30 14 74.
Odessa — Alvarez 2 2 6; Schuerman 2 0 4; Johnson 2 0 4; Jackson 1 0 2; Sharon Cain 9 7 25; Annie Davis 6 0 12; Tricia Clay 5 2 12; Sharon Blair 8 6 22; Totals 34 17 85.
Halftime: Odessa 46, Queens 25.
Records: Odessa (32-4), Queens (24-9).

Lady Steers expect to challenge; boys have tough task in WT

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The Big Spring Lady Steers tracksters will be going for some more gold this Friday and Saturday at the West Texas Relays at Odessa's Ratliff Stadium.

The BSHS girls, though short on experience, has performed well in their previous two track meets at Fort Stockton and Plainview, finishing third and fourth respectively.

They will be out to challenge meet favorites Odessa high and Odessa Permian. Stanton will also be in the girl's division, because all girl's will compete in one division.

Lady Steer coach Anna Ezell is not sure whether her team will challenge for the team title, but is sure they will be in the thick of things in the relays.

Sprint talent runs deep for the Black and Gold with the likes of Lisa Bacon, Joi Tate, Tina Smith, Paula Spears, Aretha Cork, Latresa Cork and Pam Palmer handling the duties.

Last week at Plainview BSHS won the 400 and 800 meter relays in times of 48.9 and 1:45.84. The 1600 relay should be strengthened by the addition of Palmer who normally runs the 200 meters. But she will compete in the relay because there is no 200 meters in the girls division.

Ezell feels like her 1600 relay team will do well.

"We will knock some time off our time," (4:20.8) said Ezell. "I feel that we can get down around 4:08 or 4:09."

Stanton to get tested
The Stanton girls will get their toughest competition so far this year, according to coach Bill West. "It's going to be tough with everyone being in one division. Both of the Odessa schools will be the favorites, with Big Spring being tough in the relays," said West.

West has couple of good relays in his 800 and 1600 meter relays that have clocked times of 1:49.8 and 4:22.8 respectively.

Dawna West will be the favorite in the 100 meter hurdles with a time of 14.86. West could also score points in the long jump and triple jump. Sandra Henry could also score points in the shot put and discus.

Other Stanton hopefuls are Lorrie Jensen in the 800 meters and Mary Beth Tollison in the 1600.

Wolves hungry for title
Last week the Colorado City boys opened up their track season with a team championship at the Junction Invitational.

The finish left C-City track coach Rick Robinson a little off guard. "I was surprised we did so well after only one week," said Robinson. "The kids got after it and did a good job."

Robinson says he expects Kermit to be the team to beat in the the class 3-A and under division. "They are further ahead than most teams are right now," said Robinson.

Last week C-City got a good performance from distance runner Jay Claxton, who recorded career bests in the 1600 and 3200 meters. Hurdler Dennis Rivera also recorded a career best of 41.34 in the 300 meters intermediate.

C-City is also expected to get points from both relay teams and Kevin Norman in the sprints.

Stanton will have high hopes resting on 400 meter runner Rocky Barnes (52.73), pole vaulters Eddie Thomas and Tim Bryan and sprinter Butch Jordan. The Bulldogs could pick up points in both relays.

Steers have big chore
In the 5-A division the Big Spring Steers will have their hands full, according to track mentor Randy Britton. "There are 16 teams in the division and it's going to be tough," said Britton. "The kids are going to learn that track and field is not just going through the motions. They are going up against some good athletes."

Britton also added that as long as his squad keeps improving their times, then he can't ask for more.

Top hopefuls include DeWayne Sherman in the 300 meter hurdles, Dax McCracken in the 800 meters and discus thrower Jimmy Cearley who has been throwing 150 feet in practice.

Homers aid Howard, 9-5

After late rallies came up short in Tuesday's opening doubleheader loss to Allen County, the Howard Hawks made sure a repeat didn't happen in Wednesday's game.

The Hawks jumped in front, 2-0 after one inning and stayed in front the entire contest in whipping the Iola, Kansas based school, 9-5 to bring Howard's record to 12-7.

Chuck Ashcraft went the distance in picking up his fourth win against no losses and he said the outing was especially nice since a previous one against Northwood saw him leaving early.

"I generally have one bad game a year and I hope the Northwood game was it," he said. "I felt about the same today as when I got knocked out early, but I think I had a little more on my cut-fastball than usual," he added.

He definitely did through the final five innings Ashcraft was touched for only three hits while striking out seven. The only time he seemed in serious trouble was in the third when Allen County batters touched him for a walk, single and double to cut the margin to 6-3. In the fifth he gave up a two run homer that made the score 8-5. Other than that the Fort Worth freshman was in control.

He was aided by Bobby Behnsch's 13th homerun of the year and also with a solo shot from the bat of Stephon Hodge in the sixth for Howard's final run.

After facing Allen County in a single game Wednesday the Hawks take off until Thursday, Mar. 15 when they host Longview, Missouri.

Walker gets more money

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Running back Herschel Walker's future with the New Jersey Generals will be longer and more lucrative after he signs a four-year contract extension worth about $6 million, according to published reports.

The United States Football League franchise called a news conference for today to "announce future plans" for Walker, but team officials refused to comment further.

The Dallas Morning News, however, quoted a source in today's editions as saying Generals owner Donald J. Trump guarantees Walker the money even if the fledgling league folds.

Team officials would not say whether Walker had been offered an extension on his contract.

STRAGEDY SESSION — Howard Hawks coach Mike Mitchell is surrounded by his players as he goes over the game plan during a timeout at a recent game. Mitchell and his high-flying Hawks will be vying for a berth at the national junior college tourney finals, as they participate in the Region V Tournament this weekend at Midland's Chaps Center.

Basketball

Howard College Hawks (25-3) vs. Grayson County (17-13) in opening round of Region V Men's Basketball Tournament in Midland Howard, in its first year under coach Mike Mitchell, is making its entry into this tournament as a conference champion for the first time in 10 years. Grayson County of the Northern Junior College Athletic Conference went 10-6 and finished fourth on a power rating to Texas State Technical Institute (TSTI) which went 10-6 also. That conference record put Grayson County only one game out of first place behind second place Ranger and champion McClennan Community College, both of which went 11-5.

The Hawks are paced by 19 point a game forward Jerry Stroman, who was recently voted MVP in the WJCAC.

Game time is 9 p.m. at Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus.

Stroman cites hard work being key to MVP honors

By BILLY NABOURS
Sports Editor

At the start of the 1983-84 basketball season Jerry Stroman said the Western Junior College Athletic Conference's Most Valuable Player award, "was the farthest thing from my mind."
Maybe so. But it is now a reality in light of the recent announcement of the WJCAC All-Conference Men's team which showed Stroman and teammate James Johnson named along with their coach, Mike Mitchell. Mitchell was voted Coach of the Year for posting a 16-2 conference record and 25-3 overall regular season mark upon his return from Southern Idaho. He has already coached Western Texas to a WJCAC crown and national championship to boot.
But about Stroman. The 6-6 sophomore from Columbia, South Carolina said he is grateful for the MVP honor. "It's due in part to a lot of things," he said. Mainly hard work. "Coach Mitchell is always saying that something good will happen when you work hard," said Stroman. "He (Mitchell) really knows the game," added Stroman. The soft spoken athlete is also quick to credit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hattie Stroman of Columbia for his success.

JERRY STROMAN

He comes from an athletic family he said, and in fact has a brother playing for Lower Richland High School. "The last time I called home Lower Richland was leading its conference and was on its way to the playoffs," said Stroman.
But how did the conference's MVP come to be in Big Spring and at Howard College from Columbia, South Carolina? "I was playing for Benedict College in Columbia," he said. Benedict is an NAIA school where Stroman was second in the nation in scoring during his freshman year. He finished third in the WJCAC stats with a 19.9 average after becoming the Hawks' bread and butter point getter during the final weeks of play.

"I wanted to get the chance to play for a major college and I knew from a friend that coach Mitchell would be a good guy to play for if I wanted to reach that level," Stroman said.
Stroman said the pressure to excel is constant and that rivalries with Midland, Amarillo, Odessa and Western Texas make for some good basketball in the WJCAC.
Stroman intends to attend the University of Utah after completing his final year at Howard. "I would like to get into pro ball, but if that doesn't happen then I would like to get into coaching on the high school level," he said.

UIL extends authority over junior highs

AUSTIN (AP) — The legislative council of the University Interscholastic League has voted to extend the organization's authority over junior high school competition.
Under the new rules adopted Wednesday and effective next school year, junior high school students will be under the same academic requirements recently approved for high school students.
A student won't be allowed to participate in an interscholastic activity if it means the student will miss a class that he or she is failing.
Also, students must be passing four courses — seven days before an event — in order to participate.
The legislative council, made up of 20 school superintendents, is the rule-making body of the UIL.
In a move mirroring a recently approved high school rule, the council restated its ban on "redshirting" of seventh graders — the practice of making a student repeat the seventh grade in order to gain an additional year of growth before high school.
Before Wednesday's unanimous vote by the legislative council, the league regulated only non-athletic competitions at the junior high school level.
Some officials on Wednesday also voiced displeasure with a UIL executive committee deci-

SCHOOLGIRL PITCHER — Wanda Lynn Krejci shows her pitching form during warmup session at Flatonia High School. The University Interscholastic League, after a 90-minute closed-door session Tuesday overturned a rule that kept the 5-foot-3, ninth grader from playing on the high school baseball team.

Bridge City superintendent Glen Pearson, chairman of the legislative council, said he felt the executive committee should have forced Diane Henson, the attorney for Wanda Krejci, a Flatonia High School freshman, to go to court for that opinion.
"I would rather have a judge tell me a rule is unconstitutional," said Pearson. "I think the legislative council is concerned with possible damage to girls' athletic programs, especially the possibility that boys might try to play girls' volleyball, since the UIL has no boys' program."
After emotional outbursts by members of both the legislative council and the executive committee, harmony was restored with an agreement to appoint a study committee on the issue.
"We don't need to be fussing at each other," said Slaton superintendent J.C. McClesky. "We need to support one another. The (executive committee) action does not open the gate on any activity (for girls) but boys' baseball."

The junior high school package included two recommendations that won't be enforced as rules. The council wants junior high school students to be home by 10 p.m. on competition nights and not to participate in competitions before major exams.
The 10 p.m. recommendation sparked debate about an old problem for West Texans. McClesky said some junior high schools in his sparsely populated area must travel 200 miles for competitions.
UIL member schools recently approved a referendum including several proposals for high school competition. That package included the four passing grades requirement and the ban on missing failing classes.
The junior high rules will go into effect without a referendum of the UIL membership.

Colts remain in Baltimore

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The mayor of Indianapolis says reports of a deal being reached to bring the Baltimore Colts to Indianapolis are "absolutely not true."
Mayor William H. Hudnut also said, when asked if a contract agreement between the Colts and Indianapolis representatives was imminent, "No comment."
"No deal has been reached," he said in an interview Wednesday before addressing a church meeting. "I wish I could say more, but I can't. However, reports that an agreement has been reached to move Baltimore here are absolutely not true."
Hudnut said that before a deal could be finalized, it would have to be approved by the city's Capital Improvement Board which is responsible for operating the new $80 million Hoosier Dome the National Football League team would use.
"We'd have to make public notice of the meeting at least 48 hours ahead of time," Hudnut said.

Meanwhile, Maryland Gov. Harry Hughes said late Wednesday he expects the state to be able to offer Colts owner Robert Irsay a privately subsidized, $15 million loan within 24 hours. Hughes said the state was also putting together a package that would relieve Irsay of the financial burden of operating a training center north of Baltimore.
"The Baltimore Colts should stay in Baltimore. They're quite a tradition. Indianapolis Colts just doesn't sound right," Hughes said.
In Indianapolis, the Capital Improvements Board scheduled a meeting Friday, but the Colts topic was not listed on the agenda.
"Because it is not on the agenda, unless the agenda can be amended, I do not think we can act on it," board president P.E. McAllister said.
Indiana Central University Vice President Lynn Youngblood and athletic director Bill Bright said the school had been approached regarding use of university facilities by the Colts.
"We have had conversations with city officials to determine whether we

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although you are mentally alive, alert and awake now, you still need to keep in mind that there are confusing conditions about you and you need to keep very much on your toes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be most careful in handling communications since the wrong word or figure could mean loss. Hit on the most sensible course of action.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some monetary situation does not seem to be on the up and up. Don't be jealous with the one you love, or you lose the upper hand.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Before dashing out on some personal pursuit, know what you really want. Don't get dragged into something you don't approve of.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Do not divulge anything confidential, or you can get into trouble. Avoid a confrontation with your loved one.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You may not feel right about some interest in which a friend is trying to get you involved. Steer clear of an argument.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find more efficient methods of operating for greater income. Not a good day to seek support from a bigwig.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have fine ideas but they need further study before you can put them into operation. New contacts may seem superficial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go over any questions about some account before doing anything. Your mate may be working some trick to get you away.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A partner, who is trying to make a contract with you, has the upper hand, so be careful.

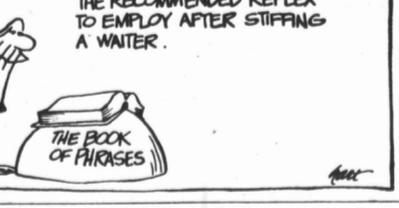

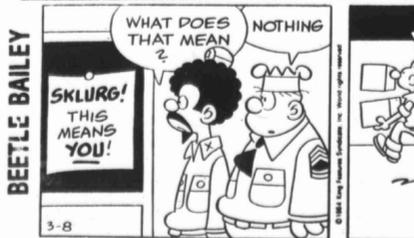

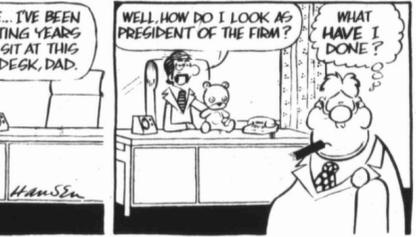

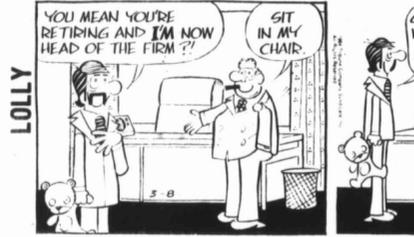

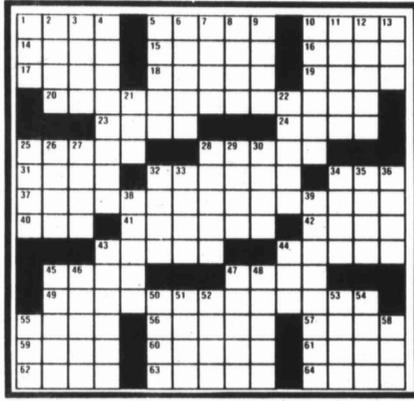

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure of the work you have assigned to you. A fellow worker has a plan that is full of holes, so forget it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You feel that some amusement will relieve you from worries, but it could cost you more than you think.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't take anything for granted at home. Be sure of where you stand with kin. Demonstrate poise and charm with guests.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who will want to study everything twice or more to be sure that there are no flaws in it before buying. The nature is very idealistic and should have the benefit of courses in ethics and practical matters.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Dallas ambulance call investigated

DALLAS (AP) — At the same time that a television station was broadcasting a tape recording of a man arguing with a nurse who wouldn't dispatch an ambulance for his dying stepmother, Beatrice Flores' children were calling the emergency number.

Raynaldo Cardenas said he grew tired of listening to his sister argue with the nurse who took the call, so he put his mother in his car and raced to a hospital.

Mrs. Flores, 51, died shortly after arriving at Stevens Park Osteopathic Hospital Monday night, television station KDFW reported Wednesday.

The station said Mrs. Flores collapsed at a store as she was shopping with three of her children. After a clerk and then a store manager could not answer the emergency number nurse's questions, Mrs. Flores' daughter, Anita Saldana got on the line, the station said.

"I said, 'Look just send an ambulance, my mother's dying,'" a sobbing Ms. Saldana told KDFW, which interviewed her at her mother's burial Wednesday. "And she said, 'Well, I can't do nothing until you tell me what's wrong with her.' And I said, 'She's having a heart attack.'"

Ms. Saldana said the nurse recommended giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and that she told the nurse her brother had tried that.

"She said, Well, I can't do nothing until you tell me what's wrong with her, and I said, 'It's a heart attack,'" Ms. Saldana said. "It took so long..."

Cardenas said, weeping. "I just took off with her. By the time we got her over there it was just too late. She (the nurse) shouldn't ask so many questions. My sister told her she was a heart patient. She should have just went ahead and sent an ambulance then and there."

The Dallas Fire Department said it would not release a tape recording of the Flores call because the incident is under investigation, KDFW said. The station obtained a recording of a call Larry Boff made to the emergency number on Jan. 5 under the Texas Open Records Act.

Boff was heard telling the nurse who took the call that his 60-year-old stepmother was having trouble breathing and was "incoherent." The nurse, Billie Myrick, insisted on talking to the woman.

During a second call to the emergency number placed by Boff's roommate, Ms. Myrick continued to insist on talking with Lillian Boff. Boff came back on the line and said, "She's dead now. Thank you, ma'am! Would you please send an ambulance? Would you please send an ambulance here?"

Mrs. Boff was dead when paramedics arrived.

Ms. Myrick was placed on administrative leave after the story aired Monday night. She will continue to receive her salary while the incident is investigated, said department spokesman Bill Jernigan.

It is not known what nurse took the Flores call.

Fire department officials said Ms. Myrick had a previous complaint lodged against her in December when she did not send an ambulance for a man who had had hip surgery and could not get out of a barber's chair.

Ms. Myrick, reached at her home Wednesday night by The Associated Press, would not comment.

"It will come out later on," she said.

Fire department officials said Wednesday they are planning to review their system of having nurses screen calls for ambulances to make sure it is a real emergency.

Several members of the Dallas City Council called Wednesday for a thorough investigation of the practice.

"Obviously there's a problem there and it must be corrected immediately," said Mayor Pro Tem Annette Strauss. "This is just one incident that we know about. The problem could be a lot bigger and I think we need to look at the whole situation."

Boff has filed a $315,000 claim against the city, seeking $15,000 in compensatory damages and $300,000 in punitive damages.

Officials said Ms. Myrick didn't handle the Boff call according to department rules, but they say the city is not responsible for Mrs. Boff's death.

"Even if we had been there sooner I don't know if anyone could have saved her," said Bobby Moore, the head of the city's ambulance service. "We'll probably never know that."
