Emotions

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Rams and gazelles have feelings, too — or so the contractor building a sewer line through a wild habitat at Kings Island amusement park will be told, in construction provisos designed to keep the animals' emotions on an even keel.

Warren County Sanitary Engineer Dick Renneker said Tuesday that bid specifications for the project, which will be awarded Thursday, include some unusually strict requirements to protect the animals from any type of upset.

Renneker said the precautions have been taken to suit the animals' emotions and to protect them from hurting themselves by climbing on the equipment or eating tools or other hardware left on the ground.

Dave Focke, director of park operations at Kings Island, said many of the animals do appear to be getting used to construction in the on-going park development.

Drug-related charges dating back to 1977 against District 3 Big Spring city council candidate Danny Heckler are still pending in 118th District Court, according to records and District Attorney Rick Hamby.

The two charges, which stem from a January 1977 Howard County grand jury indictment, allege Heckler delivered "a usable quantity of marijuana in excess of one-quarter ounce" to a Big Spring police officer working undercover on Sept. 21 and Sept. 22, 1976, records show.

Calling the charges "unprosecutable," Hamby said Tuesday the case was left hanging "when matters concerning the agents involved in these two cases came to my attention and destroyed their credibility in my eyes." At least two officers were involved in the undercover operation, Hamby said.

Heckler pleaded not guilty to the drug charges at a May 11, 1977, arraignment. There has been no further court activity on the case.

The city council candidate was arrested in connection with the charges on Jan. 13, 1977 and released the following day on two bonds of $13,000 each, set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West, records show.

"I am not prepared to say that (Heckler) is guilty of anything because I would have to rely on the word of these agents who subsequently revealed themselves as undeserving of trust," the district attorney said.

Former Police Chief Stanley Bogard said Tuesday that Heckler's arrest by the undercover police officers, was "a good bust," but declined to elaborate. Bogard was chief at the time of the undercover operation which netted eight suspects in all. Both of the officers involved in the Heckler case have since left the force, Bogard said.

Heckler, 31, is a bail bondsman and owner of Danny's T-Tops, 403 Gregg St., an automobile repair shop. Records reveal arrests as far back as 1970, including one May 15, 1970, for suspicion of house burglary for which he was never indicted and another May 20, 1974, for suspicion of criminal trespass.

Hamby said the credibility of the state's case on the drug charges came into question when one officer said, "that he would lie or do anything to assure conviction" and that "in a narcotics case, the end justifies the means."

"This same agent disclosed to me in a laughing way the number of females he had met in the course of his underground activities and had certain intimacies with," he said.

Hamby said the other agent was "subsequently indicted (for) felony theft in another jurisdiction very shortly after my procuring indictment."

Friends testify to running feud

By KEELY COGHLAN

Testimony today in a trial surrounding incidents in the Nov. 18 murder of a 20-year-old Big Spring man has centered on continuing threats between the accused, Oren Lee Craig, and his victim, James Phillip Harmon.

Teresa Phillips, a friend of Harmon's common-law-wife, Teresa Tate-Harmon, told jurors Craig had been threatening the dead man for nine or ten months before he was shot to death.

At one time, the Harmon couple had complained to the police about Craig's threats, but the police did not follow up the case, Ms. Phillips said. Trouble began between Craig and Harmon after Mrs. Tate-Harmon became pregnant with Harmon's child, Ms. Phillips said. Ms. Phillips testified she had been with Craig, Ms. Tate-Harmon and Harmon at different times during the night that Harmon was shot. She testified that she met Craig earlier that night and went to his house to "smoke a joint" when Craig showed her a shotgun in the bed of his pickup truck.

However, when Ms. Phillips met Harmon later in the evening and dropped him off at the Wagon Wheel Drive-In on Scurry, about a block from where Craig was parked at Robo car wash, she did not tell Harmon of the shotgun.

Ms. Phillips said she did not tell Harmon about the shotgun because she didn't think it was "important," she testified.

First blacks seek Lamesa city posts

By JIM BROWN

Staff Writer

LAMESA — The first black city council candidates in Lamesa's history will be on the ballot as residents prepare to hold their first municipal election under a single member district plan sanctioned by U.S. District Judge Hal Woodward of Lubbock.

The black candidates, Willy Hill and Henry C. Johnson, are running in the newly created District B that includes the east and southeastern parts of the city. Other candidates in the race are H.J. Harris and Ray Brewer.

District B has a population of 3,932 people, of which 60.1 percent or 2,364 belong to a minority ethnic grouping.

The ruling, which is similar to one agreed to by Judge Woodward in the Big Spring voting rights case, added two seats to the city council and extended the terms of one councilman.

Three members of the council will be elected from single member districts, and four members on an at-large basis.

The new seven-seat council will elect the mayor from among presiding councilmen. Incumbent Mayor Nelson Hogg is not seeking re-election.

District A, or the northern part of the city, has two candidates. Terry Adcock and Deral Beck are seeking the newly created district seat on the council. District A has the smallest minority population of the three newly created districts at 15.1 percent of its 3,906 residents.

District C, with a population of Sashi takes title again

By CAROL BALDWIN

Sashi Rajagopalan emerged for the second time as the winner of the Howard County Spelling Bee Tuesday afternoon following 37 rounds of competition.

Sashi, who spelled the word "falcon" to take the title, is a seventh grader at Goliad Middle School. Last year Sashi advanced to third place in regional finals in Lubbock.

This year she will travel to Moody Auditorium on the Lubbock Christian College campus April 7 to compete for regional honors.

Allan Johnke, a Coahoma Junior High School eighth grader, proved to be stiff competition for Sashi, however, as the two battled it out alone for 23 rounds on the Howard College auditorium stage.

"Meddlesome" proved to be just that for Allan, who missed the word in the 36th round. Sashi went on to spell "meddlesome" and "falcon" to win her title.

Sashi is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ramachandran Rajagopalan. Her father is a doctor with the Veteran's Administration Medical Center.

Allan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Johnke of Route 1. Taking third in this year's bee was Cleone Way of Moss Elementary. Cleone is the granddaughter of Mrs. Jessye Myles of 804 Pine.

After the competition was over Sashi said "I was pretty nervous. There is always a lot of pressure."

Sashi said she has spent the last few months studying after school with the help of her parents.

Her father said "she puts in all the effort. I'm very proud."

Tina Steffen of The Big Spring Herald was coordinator of the spelling bee. Janice Rosson was pronouncer and Helen Gladden went over rules with both judges and spellers. Judges were Mary Dudley of Howard College and John Rice and Rick Brown of The Herald.

Other participants Tuesday included Will Rutherford of Kentwood, David Scott of College Heights, Melissa DeGroff of Bauer, Jason Baskin of Marcy, and Tonya Seely of Washington.

Also Laura Ogburn of Runnels, Nathan Taylor of St. Mary's Episcopal School, Jennifer Hester of Hillcrest, Salman Mistry of Immaculate Heart of Mary School, J.J. Hollinghead of Elbow and Brandy Taylor of Coahoma Elementary.

Senate says no to prayer amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and other backers of a rejected constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in public schools vow they'll return another day to wage another battle.

Senate leaders, however, say it's unlikely the politically sensitive issue can be brought up again this year — even in a different form.

The Senate on Tuesday ended more than two weeks of debate by turning down the proposal, which Reagan had lobbied for, on a 56-44 roll call. That was 11 votes short of the two-thirds majority required for a constitutional amendment.

Reagan, who made passage of the amendment a major re-election campaign theme, said afterward that he was disappointed but that the battle was not over.

In a written statement, the president said: "This has been an important debate revealing the extent to which the freedom of religious speech has been abridged in our nation's public schools. The issue of free religious speech is not dead as a result of this vote. We have suffered a setback, but we have 'The issue of free religious speech is not dead as a result of this vote. We have suffered a setback, but we have not been defeated. Our struggle will go on.'

— Ronald Reagan

not been defeated. Our struggle will go on."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., an amendment supporter, told the Senate following the vote, "We have just begun to fight. As long as I'm in the U.S. Senate, there will be other rounds."

But Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., a supporter of the amendment, said he had promised a full and open debate and that has now occurred.

"This is my commitment that I feel I have fulfilled, and I have no plans for anything else," Baker said.

Opponents of the amendment hailed the vote. Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., the leader of the anti-amendment forces, called it "the crest of the wave" of the so-called "social issues" pushed by Reagan and his conservative allies in the Senate, none of which have won congressional approval.

"I think anyone who uses this issue in a presidential campaign in 1984 is going to have it backfire on him," Weicker added. Weicker had previously called Reagan's tactics in lobbying heavily for the proposal "tasteless."

Supporters argued that approval of the amendment, which would have overturned the 1962 Supreme Court decision outlawing government-sanctioned prayer in classrooms, would follow the will of a majority of Americans. "Our Constitution never intended to remove religion from our daily lives," said Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

But opponents argued that students can pray in silence now in public schools, and that the amendment would have eroded the principle of separation of church and state.

"All constitutional amendments are hard to pass. We'll be back for another day. I'm going to do my best to see that we look at the alternatives," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee on constitutional issues, and a strong supporter of the amendment.

Supporters talked of several possible routes to revive the debate: another try at winning support for a silent-prayer-only amendment, already rejected once by the Senate; and a proposal by Helms that would limit the jurisdiction of federal courts on matters like prayer, school busing and abortion.

All 100 senators voted on the measure. Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., the only remaining presidential candidate in the Senate, canceled a trip to Kansas and flew to Washington from Chicago to vote against the amendment. And Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy, a candidate for re-election in the Illinois senatorial primary, returned to the Capitol to vote in favor of the amendment.

Jennings donates $1,000

ALUM BRIDGE, W.Va. — Country singer Waylon Jennings has donated $1,000 to help a young namesake, a 5-year-old boy who suffers from a usually fatal form of bone cancer.

WAYLON JENNINGS

The check for Waylon Rose, of Camden, W.Va., arrived Saturday at the child's elementary school along with a letter asking that it be spent on toys and clothes, said the principal, Opal Marsh.

Residents set up a "Fund For Waylon Rose" in mid-December to help defray the boy's medical bills. Jennings responded to a letter sent by a third-grader at the school, Mrs. Marsh said Tuesday.

She also said the youngster has a page-long list of things he wanted and the most expensive item was a record player, which she predicts will be put to good use.

Producer enlarges studio

WILMINGTON, N.C. — "King Kong" producer Dino De Laurentiis has announced he is building up his North Carolina studio to mammoth proportions, including up to 10 movie production stages for year-round use.

DINO DE LAURENTIIS

His studio complex already houses two sound stages, 20 production offices and wardrobe and property facilities. But De Laurentiis, 61, says his company will spend $25 million to $50 million in the next year by producing a new film and through studio expansion.

De Laurentiis, whose other pictures include "The Bible" and "Ragtime," was in this eastern North Carolina city Monday for the premiere of "The Bounty," his recently completed film starring Lord Laurence Olivier, Anthony Hopkins and Mel Gibson. He said he was premiering the movie in Wilmington as a way of thanking some of the people involved in negotiations to bring the studio complex here.

Copperfield almost killed

GLENDÄLE, Calif. — Magician David Copperfield is using a cane to get around after nearly being impaled when an underwater escape trick being taped for television went awry, his publicist says.

In the stunt, Copperfield, 27, was bound with chains and submerged upside down in a tank of water, his wrists handcuffed to the tank's frame.

"A 10-foot, 500-pound spike hanging from above was timed to drop two minutes after he was submerged," spokeswoman Dawn Bridges said.

Mondale takes Illinois primary

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, blunting Gary Hart's momentum and predicting "a long tough race ahead" before the Democratic presidential nomination is settled, moves from his Illinois primary victory into a batch of big state contests led by New York.

By winning in Illinois on Tuesday, Mondale took the biggest primary prize so far and boosted his comeback after a string of early primary losses to Hart in New England and Florida. Mondale also won caucuses Tuesday in his home state of Minnesota.

But both Mondale and Hart noted that the road to San Francisco and the party's nomination is destined to be long.

"The debate has just begun," said Mondale, dismissing a suggestion that he has once again assumed the front-runner status that crumbled in New England. "I have a long way to go before I'm nominated."

Hart conceded that Mondale won a "significant primary" in Illinois but said he would battle the former vice president in a series of industrial-state contests coming up in Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania.

"As he is, I'm prepared to go on to Connecticut, New York and beyond," the Colorado senator said.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson drew 21 percent of the vote, compared to Mondale's 41 percent and Hart's 35 percent. But nine of every 10 of Jackson's votes came from blacks, belying his claim that women, Hispanics and other minorities will eventually join in a "rainbow coalition" to win him the nomination.

Among blacks generally, 70 percent voted for Jackson, television networks' exit polling showed, while Mondale led Hart for the remainder.

Nonetheless, Jackson said he would press on and insisted there is a now a three-man race for the nomination.

HAPPY WINNER — Walter Mondale, a candidate of the Democratic presidential nomination, shows his joy at winning the Illinois primary held yesterday. Mondale scored 41 percent of the vote to Gary Hart's 35 percent. Mondale now has 619 delegates in his march toward the nomination.

Ruling may hurt gas producers

DALLAS — Small natural gas producers could be hardest hit by a Supreme Court decision forcing rebates to pipeline companies and distributors, an industry official says.

In addition, the $1 billion estimated to be returned to consumers under the decision will amount to "pretty small peanuts" to the average natural gas customer, a pipeline distributor said.

The reaction came Tuesday as industry officials began calculating the impact of the high court decision forcing them back to a previously abandoned pricing structure. The justices on Monday left intact a lower court ruling scrapping the gas pricing structure created by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission four years ago.

The decision is expected to save natural gas customers about $1 billion immediately and hundreds of millions in lower heating bills in the future. Gas producers who had been charging higher prices under the new system were ordered to refund the difference between the new price and the old price.

Dallas-based Diamond Shamrock Co. charged the higher rates but kept the difference — about $3 million — in a special account, spokesman Roger Schrum said.

"As soon as the new price structure came out in 1980 it was involved in a legal battle so we put all the monies into a contingency fund pending the outcome of court action. The money won't have to come from our earnings," said Schrum.

"But I don't think a lot of the small producers did that," Schrum said. "Small producers work on a shoestring and have to use every dollar they get. Down the road, we may see some (small) producers hurt very badly."

Bob Wells, a spokesman for Houston-based Coastal Corp., said his company had not yet learned details of the ruling.

"It's too soon to calculate the thing entirely. We think we'll be recovering on a retroactive basis about $30 million from producers, and that will flow right through to consumers," said Wells.

But to the average gas customer, Wells said, the effect will be minimal.

"A billion dollars is pretty small peanuts as far as total gas bill for the nation is concerned," he said.

Texas consumers would not notice much difference in their bills, but "customers at the other end of the pipeline, such as in the Northeast, could notice some difference," one Houston executive said.

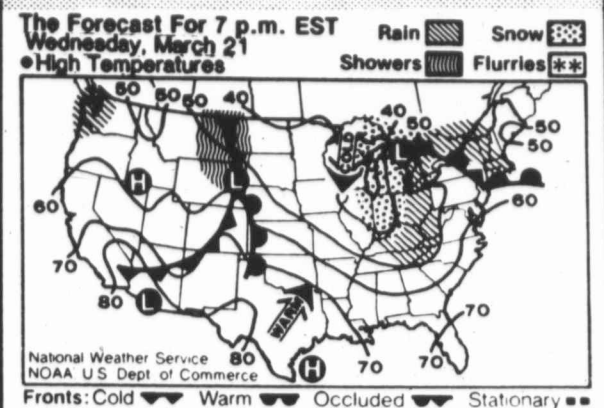

The justices, with one recorded dissent, left intact a ruling that the FERC acted illegally when in 1980 it changed the system of calculating how much pipeline companies pay gas producers. The change centered on measuring the energy content of gas in terms of British thermal units, the amount of energy needed to raise the temperature of water by one degree Fahrenheit.

The previous pricing system understated the BTU total in natural gas and, therefore, tended to lower the price that could be charged.

Some producers, such as Texas Oil and Gas Co., stuck with the old pricing system until the issue was resolved, said spokesman Mike Dixon.

"For Texas Oil and Gas, the impact is very insignificant," he said.

Censorship plan justly put down

A Reagan administration effort at censorship — involving an attempt to dictate which charities would be permitted to solicit contributions from federal workers — has been called up short. A federal appeals court has ruled that the government cannot apply an ideological litmus test in selecting "appropriate" charities.

The administration had argued that the Combined Federal Campaign, an annual charity drive that last year raised $100 million, should be restricted to groups like the March of Dimes, which stay out of politics.

It relied on that rationale to reverse past practice and exclude such organizations as the Sierra Club, the Moral Majority Foundation, and the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund from the fund drive.

This distinction among organizations, all of which are treated identically by the tax code, made no sense to the judges. "History unmistakably informs us that the principal victim of this type of censorship is the unpopular minority — be it religious, racial, political or some other. . . . The growth of our nation has not been accomplished by suppressing ideas that we find distasteful."

Amen. Pocketbook suppression is as offensive as the other forms of thought control that the Reagan administration has tried. It's the federal workers themselves who, through their individual choices, should determine which among the charities included in the fund drive they want to support. They don't need official "help" in reaching those decisions.

Around The Rim

Down on the drag

Driving on Gregg Street on a Friday night is similar to being sandwiched into a Chinese New Year's Parade — there's a lot of fireworks, but no real action.

One of my newly divorced friends has been returning to single life with a vengeance. In her age group in Big Spring, this means cruising Gregg Street.

On a Tuesday or Wednesday night in town, there's not much else to do if you want to get out and meet people, she told me.

So one night last week, I went with her. Before I continue any further with the thrills and chills of that particular drive, you need to know this about me: I never lived in a small town, and I hadn't been to a Sonic in about six years, since high school. The evening held its surprises.

In the great land of the suburbs near Dallas where I was raised, cruising the Sonic after your junior year — except right after school to find out what everyone was doing at night — was taboo. If you couldn't find something else to do — be it parties, concerts, movies, sports games, or work — you didn't announce it to the freshmen and sophomores.

No one here worries about whether anyone knows you couldn't find anything else to do at night. They couldn't, either. Nobody can, or at least that's how the kids on Gregg Street feel. And they're not far from being wrong.

People "come to town" from Coahoma and Ackerly and Stanton to drive back and forth, at least 50 times a night, up and down Gregg Street. This is night life in Howard County, even for some 25 and 26 year olds.

Some of the oldsters on the circuit did tire of the Gregg Street drive. They parked along the street in a dirt lot, and sat on their trucks drinking beer, waiting for the other drivers to stop and talk to them. According to my friend, they were the ones with class.

Driving down Gregg Street probably would have been fun if I'd been younger. I enjoyed cruising in Irving as a high school student. But even the staunchest romantic or the grittiest realist can only stomach so many cokes and greasy fries, so many monotonous nights trading the latest street gossip — "Mary Jo's riding with who-o-o?" — before they realize the cute guy in the red custom Mustang is never going to roll down his window and notice you.

Or worse yet, he might decide to lean out of his window and tell you to meet him at the Sonic or at Gibson's parking lot.

Judging by the fantastic specimens there last week, it would be best to pray that your dreams never come to life. "Prince Charming," if past high school age, would only grunt hello, and hand you a warm beer from the cooler in his back seat. I have to hope the man was rehearsing for a John Cougar Mellencamp contest somewhere. Uh-huh.

Gregg Street is a separate world, complete with its own language. Its longtime habitués know the codes and the nuances, the frantic honks, the casual waves, the races through the yellow lights.

Aliens are spotted immediately. "Hey, who are you?" someone yelled at me out the window of a pickup at a red light. "I don't know that car," his companion told him. There are no undercover cars on Gregg.

My friend, who grew up in Big Spring, tried to draw me a map of the street's dos and don'ts. Don't wave at anyone unless they wave at you; don't stop and talk unless they pull up next to you or at least wave at you; and don't be obvious when you're checking the action at the Sonic.

There are sins of omission, too. Failure to wave or to stop and talk to someone you know is a sign of snobbery; failure to run a red light and call it pink is to label yourself a chicken.

And failure to have at least one "geek" follow you around for at least a block is to label the night a total loss. The only thing worse than not being chased by someone you like is to be chased at all, she said.

But the biggest sin of all, to me, is the waste of all that time and energy. The kids cruising Gregg at 26 will never change. They may eventually move their cruising indoors, to one of the little honky-tonks that sprout up around the fringes of the town.

But they won't change. They'll stay bored, partly because they haven't found anything else to do and partly because there is little else to do.

A rec center with a stereo and a no-alcohol rule for the high school kids might help. The people I talked to thought they'd like it. At least they'd have a choice.

But they didn't think it would ever happen. Most of them had filled out the same questionnaires, class after class, saying yes, they wanted someplace to sit and talk and dance and play video games and pool. None were holding their breath.

Meanwhile, the same cars are continuing their slow parade down Gregg, still racing in the streets. Only Bruce Springsteen can make it sound romantic.

Volcker walks the wire on loans

WASHINGTON — There is one calamity that could cause the sky to fall. The international debt crisis is so tense that one bobble — say a default by an indebted nation — could start an economic reaction.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker, with a great clanking of the crusader's armor, has taken charge of managing the debt crisis. Whether he's Sir Galahad or Don Quixote remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, Volcker appears more concerned about protecting the lenders than the borrowers — particularly the big banks whose credit lines are so dangerously extended to the Third World.

He fought fiercely for the $8.4 billion U.S. subsidy to the International Monetary Fund, which will help keep the big banks solvent until another fix is needed. Now he's trying to spread the risk by pressuring the smaller banks to grant more loans to Third World governments.

These bankers don't want to flush good money down the drain after the bad, banking sources tell me. But Volcker is using the regulatory club to persuade the smaller banks to make the loans. The pressure has been brought quietly by the Fed's regional administrators.

Volcker contends that the only way to keep the indebted nations from defaulting is to continue loaning them money until they produce their way out of the crisis. He has rushed to the rescue of one troubled nation after another with emergency loans.

Volcker was the power behind the scenes, for example, who saved Mexico from bankruptcy in late 1982. I have reviewed a 104-page study by the International Monetary Fund, which began pumping money into the depleted Mexican coffers. It's the fund's function to provide bailout money to nations in need, but private loans to the faltering government would hardly be considered good banking practice.

Yet according to the study, which is stamped "Confidential" and "Not For Public Use," 526 commercial banks outside Mexico granted the government a staggering $5 billion in loans. Most of these generous lenders were U.S. banks under Volcker's jurisdiction.

This is just the beginning. Declares the study: "An important source of external financing for 1984 will be $3.8 billion from the commercial banks." And the study assumes that the Mexican government will continue "new borrowing in the order of $3 billion to $4 billion a year during 1985-89."

In return for all these billions, the Mexican government has adopted several strict fiscal reforms that have been hard on the populace but have stabilized the economy. Reports the study: "The economic program adopted by the Mexican authorities in late 1982... has brought about a sharp turn around in economic conditions and has helped Mexico to begin to recover from the severe economic crisis experienced in 1982."

But there are some clouds on the horizon. Here are the warnings cited in the confidential report:

• "The structure of interest charged on loans have resulted in certain distortions and may affect adversely the recovery of private investment."

• "The recently awarded minimum wage increase of 30 percent raises questions about the margin remaining for wage policy during the rest of 1984.... Great care will have to be taken to avoid re-igniting inflationary pressures."

• "The real effective exchange rate index shows a significant depreciation with regard to previous years, but it has appreciated somewhat in recent months."

• "The ban on a list of consumer goods and items competing with domestic production... has to be viewed with concern."

• "Mexico will continue to face large debt servicing requirements in the years to come because of the size and term structure of its outstanding external debt."

Yet the study declares frankly that "Mexico will need to count on the continued cooperation of the international financial community in coping with its financing need and handling its debt repayment schedule."

Thus far, Volcker's skillful juggling has saved Mexico from financial collapse. But there are dozens of governments in similarly precarious shape. The trick is to juggle hundreds of billions of dollars that are owed but can't be paid. A slip-up could cause the scandal of the decade.

The case for mergers

WASHINGTON — Schemes for big mergers pop up every day in oil, autos, steel — you name it. For the Republicans have found in the antitrust laws the functional equivalent of what the Democrats call "industrial policy."

The Reagan administration is using the antitrust laws to promote the international competitiveness of American manufacturers. While full returns are not yet in, it looks as if the administration may have stumbled on a pretty fair approach to a baffling problem that is central to the American economy and its role in the world.

The problem is the slow, but unmistakable decline of manufacturing in the United States. For a century and a half, basic industries paced the advance of the American economy. Sometime around 1965, they began to lag behind the general rate of growth. Now a large number of these industries are shrinking, or expanding only very slowly. The list of troubled manufacturers includes textiles, leather products, electrical appliances, iron and steel, shipbuilding and railroad equipment, machine tools and autos.

Many factors enter into the slump. Wages soared in the past 20 years, as did salaries for management. High interest rates drove up the cost of capital. Environmental and safety regulations added additional burdens.

Severe dislocations have already been felt in this country as a result. Millions of jobs have been lost, and many areas built on heavy manufacturing, notably in the Midwest, have suffered grievous revenue losses that show up in dwindling public programs and more intense social problems. Regional tensions between hard-hit areas and those, notably in the Sun Belt, which have not been so badly hurt, have been exacerbated. While growth in service enterprise has offset some loss of jobs, it is a question whether services provide a feasible base for this country's responsibility as a mainstay of international security. The Democrats, in keeping with their labor connections and their activist view of government, have advanced remedial measures in great profusion. A majority of the Party favors protectionism and programs of direct assistance to afflicted companies, workers and areas.

The Republicans, as the party of free enterprise, have been highly critical of industrial policy. The Council of Economic Advisers, in its report for this year, concludes a lengthy section on the subject with the remark that "government officials simply do not have the right incentives to make wise choices about which industries or companies to invest in."

But whatever their theories, Republicans in office have had to deal with the plight of manufacturing industry. They have come up against the problem repeatedly in applying a favorite Republican nostrum — the antitrust laws. In retrospect it can be seen that the Reagan administration is interpreting the laws to favor U.S. companies competing in the global market.

Perhaps the one good thing that can be said for the breakup of the telephone company is that it frees AT&T to become a formidable competitor in telecommunications and data processing around the world. Similarly the approval of the sharing arrangement between General Motors and Toyota makes the No. 1 American auto-maker a more formidable force in the world auto market. Those implicit considerations have now been made explicit in a proposed merger of the country's third- and fourth-largest steel companies — LTV and Republic.

The Justice Department opposed the merger on grounds it would "sharply increase concentration." But in a written opinion, Paul McGrath, the assistant attorney general for antitrust, observed that "the American steel industry is in a state of crisis." He wrote that "its long-term survival" might require

'Faith healing' is confusing

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you believe in faith healing? I have a nephew who is very sick and I wonder if maybe he could be healed through prayer or something instead of medicine — L.K.

DEAR L.K.: There is much controversy and misunderstanding on this issue, so I want to be as clear as I can on what I believe the Bible teaches.

First of all, certainly God can and does heal from time to time in ways that are beyond our understanding. This was true in Bible times (although there were some times during the period of the Bible when it seems to have been infrequent). It is also true today, and it is perfectly right for us to pray for God to heal someone who is suffering some type of illness — just as we should pray for someone facing some other type of need, such as an emotional or spiritual problem. God is all-powerful. "I am the Lord, the God of all mankind. Is anything too hard for me?" (Jeremiah 32:27).

Second, we must realize however that it is not always God's will to heal through some type of supernatural means. At times God may choose to use modern medicine — after all, modern medicine only makes use of the means and abilities God has already given to us. At other times it may not be God's will for healing to occur at all. We may not always understand his ways, but God is still in control, even if we do not understand. Paul prayed fervently for God to remove "a thorn in my flesh," but God did not do it.

Dr. Donohue Aspirin and nose surgery

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 18-year-old daughter has planned to have nose surgery in a few months. She was told not to take aspirin during the two-week period prior to the surgery. Why? — C.M.L.

It's a precaution to make sure that there won't be any unnecessary bleeding during the surgery. Aspirin stops platelets in the blood from sticking to each other and clotting. If you're going to have surgery, doctors like you to be off aspirin a sufficient time beforehand so that this effect has worn off.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband's eye specialist told him he had a parasite in his eye contracted from chicken or birds, maybe as far back as 20 years ago. I had a parakeet that died recently. Could a person get parasites from them? I would like to get another one, but now I am afraid to. — Mrs. L.M.

I'm certain your husband's doctor was talking about histoplasmosis, an infection from a fungus found in soil throughout the world. It survives in soil because of the friendly environment created by droppings of chickens, starlings and bats. We breathe in spores of this fungus wafted up into the air. While found everywhere, the fungus is prevalent in certain regions of the world, where most of the inhabitants have at one time or another been infected by it. Only on rare occasions does it cause serious illness.

It's safe for you to have a parakeet. The fungus thrives in soil and not in the bird cage bottom. Please check with your doctor to be sure we are talking about the same illness, OK? It's histoplasmosis.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung problem, write to Dr. Donohue for a copy of his new booklet, "Emphysema-Bronchitis: The Twin Problems," P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Abby Wife resents being 'odd man out'

DEAR ABBY: My husband has made fantastic progress with a large company. (He's in sales.) I am very proud of him and love him very much.

Now the problem: One of his best accounts has social "business" functions for "merchandise." I have asked him to suggest that wives be included, and he said it wasn't his place to make any suggestions. I told him that if enough men, beginning with himself, would turn down such invitations, the company would have to start including the wives.

Last week my husband received another one of those invitations. I begged him not to go but he said, "When a big shot invites you, you don't turn him down." And he went anyway.

Abby, I feel that my husband has no respect for me or himself. What is your opinion?

FEELING REJECTED
DEAR REJECTED: Assuming that these functions are respectable company get-togethers, your husband's decision to go has nothing to do with his respect (or lack of it) for you or himself.

It would be inappropriate for him to suggest that wives be included, then refuse to go unless they were.

If you love your husband, add some confidence to that love and quit hassling him. Your present attitude is a millstone around his neck.

DEAR ABBY: For the last few weeks I have been dreaming that I am pregnant! I know it is not a suppressed desire, and it certainly cannot be the fear of pregnancy, because I am 74 years old!

I have all my marbles, Abby, and this isn't of sufficient importance to justify seeing a "shrink."

What could the reason be?
IMPOSSIBLE DREAMS
DEAR IMPOSSIBLE: Perhaps you have a fertile imagination.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a dispatcher for a police department in a very small town.

Three officers and I were talking about whether it was proper for a policeman to wear his gun to church services when he's on duty. One officer said it might of ferend some folks, and possibly the Lord.

On the other hand, thieves are not picky about where they steal. (There's always plenty in the offering.) I personally would feel more secure knowing someone is there to protect me.

Two of the officers don't take their guns to church services, and one does. Who is right?

PUZZLED
DEAR PUZZLED: Very few police officers attend church while they are on duty, but those who do, carry their guns, since an officer in uniform must be armed.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to whether "make the bed" or "dress the bed" is correct, be advised that the English "lay the table."

Group protests gas distribution system

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Something should be done about the unfair distribution of offshore gas production, according to the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

The gas-producing industry is not drilling enough wells to meet future needs because the current excess of deliverable gas is not fairly distributed among producers, Bruce Anderson, Houston independent producer and TIPRO president, told the monthly allowable hearing of the Texas Railroad Commission on Tuesday.

"The excess deliverability — the so-called gas bubble" — is distributed inequitably among different classes of gas producers," Anderson said. "Offshore producers under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Department of Interior are not subject to proration and many gas-producing states have failed to establish reasonable ratable take systems."

"Such inequities only interfere with orderly, adequate exploration by the total industry," Anderson said.

"There are many reasons why drilling is below needed levels, and unfair distribution of excess deliverability is one of the. It is time for that reason to be eliminated," he said.

The Railroad Commission continued the Texas oil production rate for April at 100 percent of market demand, after reviewing oil companies' nominations to buy a total of 2,384,893 barrels of Texas oil per day.

The April nominations represented an increase of 24,867 barrels daily compared with March nominations.

The state first went to the ceiling level for oil production in 1972, and March marks the 86th straight month for the maximum allowable.

It applies to most fields throughout the state. Exceptions include the East Texas Field, which was assigned an 86 percent allowable to insure reservoir pressures will not be depleted.

NOTICE OF HEARING BEFORE THE TEXAS WATER COMMISSION OF AN APPLICATION TO APPROPRIATE PUBLIC WATERS OF THE STATE OF TEXAS

Notice is given that COLORADO RIVER MUNICIPAL WATER DISTRICT

P.O. BOX 869
Big Spring, Texas 79721-0669

applicant, seeks to amend its Certificate of Adjudication No. 14-1008 pursuant to 11.22, Texas Water Code and Rules 156.04.10.004-006 (31 TAC 347.24-347.26).

Certificate of Adjudication No. 14-1008 authorizes the applicant to maintain a dam on the Colorado River in Coke County creating Lake E. V. Spence with a capacity of not to exceed 488,700 acre-feet and to maintain an off-channel reservoir (referred to as Barber Reservoir) in Mitchell County with a capacity of not to exceed 2500 acre-feet of water diverted from a designated point on the Colorado River. The certificate authorizes the municipal use of not to exceed 40,000 acre-feet of water per annum diverted from Lake E. V. Spence, the industrial use of not to exceed 2000 acre-feet of water per annum diverted from Lake E. V. Spence (which the District may divert not to exceed 8000 acre-feet of water per annum from the authorized diversion point on the Colorado River to Barber Reservoir for mining use).

The certificate includes a special condition that indicates diversion from the Colorado River to Barber Reservoir can take place only when the chloride content equals or exceeds 500 PPM.

The certificate authorizes three diversion points on Lake E. V. Spence and indicates that combined maximum diversion rate at all four points of diversion will not exceed 156 cfs. The time priority of the certificate is August 17, 1984.

The certificate includes a special condition concerning use of water from Lake E. V. Spence in combination with use from the District's Lake J. B. Thomas (Adj. Certificate No. 14-1002) and special conditions designed to protect and honor downstream senior and superior water rights.

The applicant seeks to amend Certificate of Adjudication No. 14-1008 as follows:

1. To authorize construction of a channel dam forming a 3.4 acre-foot capacity reservoir on Beals Creek, tributary of Colorado River, Colorado River Basin, in Howard County, about 5 miles east of Big Spring;

2. To authorize a diversion point on the reservoir created by the Beals Creek Channel dam that is S 82° 52' E, 2910 feet from the NE corner of the O. M. Brack Survey, Abstract No. 1518, Howard County, with a diversion rate of 25 cfs;

3. To authorize construction of a dam forming an 8538 acre-foot capacity reservoir on Red Draw, tributary of Beals Creek, about 1.3 miles south of the proposed channel dam on Beals Creek;

4. To authorize use of the water diverted at the proposed Beals Creek diversion facility and stored in the proposed Red Draw Reservoir to satisfy up to 6000 acre-feet per annum of the existing allocation of 8000 acre-feet per annum for mining purposes;

5. In addition to the presently authorized diversion points on Lake E. V. Spence, to authorize use of the water diverted at either the existing Colorado River diversion facility and stored in either the existing Barber Reservoir or the proposed Red Draw Reservoir to satisfy the existing allocation of 2000 acre-feet per annum for industrial purposes; and

6. To authorize use of 50 acre-feet of water from Beals Creek and Red Draw facilities.

The proposed channel dam on Beals Creek will be in T&P RR Co. Survey No. 7, Abstract No. 107, Howard County, with Station 1+00 on the centerline of the dam being S 81° 57' E, 2832 feet from the aforesaid Brack Survey corner. The proposed dam on Red Draw will be in T&P RR Co. Survey No. 13, Abstract No. 158, Howard County, with Station 26+01 on the centerline of the dam to be S 09° 42' E, 2828 feet from the NE corner of T&P RR Co. Survey No. 13.

Water diverted from the proposed Red Draw Reservoir will be diverted at a point S 02° 45' E, 3060 feet from the NE corner of T&P RR Co. Survey No. 13, at a maximum rate of 25 cfs, all being more fully set out in the application.

This amendment to Certificate of Adjudication No. 14-1008 was accepted for filing on March 6, 1984, and a hearing thereon will be held by the Commission in the Stephen F. Austin State Office Building at 1700 North Congress Avenue in Austin, Texas, on April 12, 1984, at 10:00 a.m.

Those opposing the granting of this application may appear at the hearing and/or, not less than eight days before the hearing date, may file written protests with the Commission and serve copies on the applicant with proof of service to be provided to the Commission. Written protests shall contain the name and address of the protestant's interest, location of protestant's diversion point(s) or property, if applicable, and any amendments or adjustments to the application which would be noted by the Commission but will not be considered as evidence since the right to cross-examine is absent. No protestant will be admitted as a party to the proceeding unless the protestant complies with Commission Rule 155.04.00.001 (31 TAC 3267.1) which requires a justifiable interest and actual or representative presence at the hearing. If any party participation in the hearing desires a transcript of the proceedings, it will be done at the request and expense of the party requesting the transcript. Due to the technical nature of the hearing, it may be advisable for the protestant to have an expert witness, such as an engineer, available at the hearing. Persons desiring further information in connection with this application may contact Mike Rogan, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Garden City

- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp. soda

- 1/2 cup raisins

2 1/2 cups sifted flour
Cut dry ingredients together. Cream until light and fluffy. Add eggs; stir in fruit and nuts. Sift dry ingredients; mix well. Drop on ungreased baking sheet, and put in oven at 400 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from oven and cool slightly. Makes 150 cookies, which can be kept in the freezer for several weeks.

PUMPKIN BREAD

Mrs. P.M. Munn

- 3 1/2 cups flour
- 2 tsp. soda
- 1 1/2 tsp. cinnamon and nutmeg
- 4 eggs
- 3 cups sugar
- 2 cups pumpkin
- 1/2 cups water

- 1/2 cup nuts
- 1 cup Wesson oil

Mix all together. Fill four one-pound coffee cans to the second rim from the top, or use two cake loaf pans. Cook for one hour in oven at 350 degrees.

RICE BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

Mrs. P.M. Munn

- 3/4 cup chopped onion
- 3/4 cup chopped celery
- 4 1/2 cup cooked rice
- 1 package chopped broccoli
- 1 can cream mushroom soup
- 1 cup water
- 1 small jar of cheese whiz
- 1 can cream of chicken soup

Saute onions and celery. Cook rice and broccoli separately. Mix vegetables, add the soup and cheese whiz. Mix with rice and sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes before serving. This amount will make two casseroles. It may be prepared a day or two ahead of time, and can be frozen.

LOW SODIUM CORNBREAD

Carole Caswell

- 1/4 cup unsalted butter or margarine (for lowfat, low cholesterol diet use 1/2 cup unsalted special margarine)
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg (for lowfat, low cholesterol diet use only white of egg, substitute skimmed milk for whole)
- 1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup white or yellow cornmeal
- 4 tsp. low sodium baking powder

About 35 minutes before serving, preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease and flour lightly 9-inch square cake pan. In medium bowl, cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Stir in egg, then mix.

Sift together flour, cornmeal and baking powder. Add to butter mixture, then beat until just moistened. Turn into baking pan; smooth surface, and bake 20 to 25 minutes or until bread pulls away from sides of pan. Serve warm, cool, or split and toast until brown. Makes 16 servings.

Spice up your meals with Mexican dishes

Tired of the same old meal? Spice it up with some Mexican dishes. Below are some ideas.

ESTOFADO

- 2 1/4 pounds lean stew beef, cut in 2-inch chunks
- 3/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 2 Tbsps. oil

1 cup water (red table wine may be substituted)
1 cup (8 ounce) tomato sauce
1/4 tsp. minced garlic
3/4 tsp. oregano
1/4 cup wine vinegar
6 large carrots, peeled and cut in 1-inch pieces
6 large potatoes, peeled and quartered

Place all ingredients except carrots and potatoes in 5-quart saucepot. Cover and bring to a boil on medium-high setting; stir well. Reduce heat to lowest setting and simmer for 1 1/2 hours.

Add vegetables and cook on medium-high setting until just boiling; stir well. Reduce heat to lowest setting and continue simmering for 45 minutes to one hour, or until vegetables are tender. Serves six.

STACK UPS OLE

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/2 pound pasteurized process cheese spread, cubed
- 2 Tbsps. picante sauce
- 2 Tbsps. milk
- 1/2 cup pitted ripe olive slices
- 4 six-inch flour tortillas

Brown meat; drain. Add green pepper; cook until tender. Combine process cheese spread, picante sauce and milk in saucepan; stir over low heat until process cheese spread is melted. Add meat mixture and olives; mix well. Place one tortilla in baking dish; top with 3/4 cup meat mixture. Repeat layers, ending with meat mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Makes three to four servings.

To microwave, crumble meat in one-quart casserole or bowl; add green pepper. Microwave on high for five to six minutes or until meat loses pink color when stirred, drain. Microwave process cheese spread, picante sauce and milk in one-quart casserole or bowl on medium (50 percent) for four to six minutes or until process cheese spread is melted, stirring every two minutes.

ADA campaigns for better nutrition

March is National Nutrition Time, and in a year dominated by the Olympics, the nation's largest group of nutrition professionals warns Americans not to imitate their heroes without properly fueling their bodies.

"There are a lot of armchair athletes who think they can go straight from their living rooms to the gym," says Marilyn B. Haschke, R.D., president of American Dietetic Association (ADA). "But getting in shape has just as much to do with good nutrition as flexing your muscles."

That's why the 50,000 members of ADA are promoting balanced diets for athletic prowess during the 12th annual campaign to improve American eating habits which started March 1.

National Nutrition Time, sponsored by the ADA, is a massive public education project designed to help Americans to get in shape sensibly.

"Everybody Wins With Good Nutrition" is the theme that dietitians and nutritionists are using during March to show that healthy eating is a major part of fitness.

"So many people get caught up in the excitement of the Olympics and think they can go out and start running two miles a day," Haschke says. "What they don't realize is that these Olympians have been training for years and good nutrition has a lot to do with their success."

Before starting any exercise program, ADA advises a complete assessment of your cardiovascular health through a stress test, especially if you're over 35, smoke and have high blood pressure. An exercise program should be planned around the results of the stress test and for most healthy persons, the ADA recommends 15 to 60 minutes of continuous aerobic activity three to five times a week.

The key is to begin a program realistically and comfortably and work up to a desired goal. ADA also suggests that each exercise session begin with five to ten minutes of warm up to avoid muscle and joint injury.

Aerobic exercise — jogging, brisk walking, dancing, swimming and cycling — should be strenuous to the point of conditioning muscles and the cardiovascular system without being excessive. A brisk walking program is recommended by ADA for persons of all ages. Jogging, however, is not for everyone and may cause foot, leg and knee injuries.

A balanced diet should be part of the fitness program for person at all levels of activity, Haschke says, contending that poor eating habits can detract from the benefits of exercise. Food choice should be made from the four food groups — milk, cheese and other dairy products; fruits and vegetables; enriched or whole grain breads and cereals; fish, chicken, beans or meat.

Extremely active people need additional breads and cereals for the extra energy they use in vigorous exercise programs.

Several multivitamin pills contain vitamin overdose

Editor's Note: This article is the second in a series presented by local dietitians in observance of National Nutrition Month which is March 1984.

by Teresa Warrington, R.D.

More than 80 percent of the adult multivitamins found on a store's shelf do not contain appropriate levels of vitamins and minerals, and many have dangerously high dosages.

That's what was discovered in a survey of 41 adult over-the-counter multivitamins, of which only seven contained levels between 50 and 200 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (U.S. R.D.A.). Findings of the test were presented at the 66th Annual Meeting of the American Dietetic Association in Anaheim, Calif., by Linda Bell, R.D., clinical nutrition research coordinator at Yale-New Haven Clinical Research Center in Connecticut.

"The ideal vitamin contains 100 percent of the U.S. R.D.A., but most vitamins we looked at exceeded the 200 percent mark," says Ms. Bell, "making the vitamins unnecessarily costly and perhaps dangerous."

Although water soluble vitamins — vitamin C, thiamine and riboflavin — taken in excess are generally eliminated by the body, in some cases, high doses can cause toxic symptoms.

Excess amounts of some fat soluble vitamins such as A, D, E, and K, however, can definitely be harmful because they are stored in the body and not excreted.

In addition to supplements containing overly high levels of vitamins, Bell also discovered some that do not offer adequate amounts of certain vitamins. In six supplements intended for use by pregnant women, two contained inadequate amounts of iron and one lacked folic acid, both recommended to help produce healthy blood in the mother and the infant. All six contained less than half the R.D.A. for calcium.

Since vitamin companies are required to list R.D.A. percentages on the label, the consumer is able to conduct his own research into the appropriate vitamin. "There is probably little harm in taking a well balanced vitamin supplement as long as the tablets aren't used to justify a terrible diet."

"All the vitamins the body needs can be obtained by eating (adequate servings of) foods from all four food groups — milk, meat, vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals. A healthy person who eats properly probably derives no benefit from a vitamin supplement."

A person not able to eat properly or on a special diet, however, may require a supplement at the recommendation of a physician or dietitian. "In any case, be advised that you can't just pull a vitamin from the shelf and expect it to do what you want it to. You must know what vitamins you need; and, if you can't change your diet, find a vitamin appropriate to you. Read the label."

Freight plans announced

By JOHNNIE LOU AVERY

Pete Dear, executive of Central Motor Freight headquartered in Waco, is in town this week to lay plans for opening a freight office/service center in Big Spring. Central recently bought out Curry Motor Freight and Dear expects to open this office under the name Central-Curry Motor Freight Lines handling both bulk and single item shipping with overnight delivery anywhere in Texas. Before the office can be opened, after a state hearing to be held in Midland, to consider approval of Central's expansion to Big Spring, formal announcement will be made as to the opening.

Darlene Gifford, Public Relations Director for our Southwestern Bell district cleared up a matter for us. I reported in a recent column that changes, additions, or deletions for the next phone book had to be scheduled prior March 15th. I got this information from the district office; however, each local company can contract to change the date of the printing of their phone books. Our local office did that. Therefore, the deadline date for the Big Spring phone book changes is July 10th.

The Highway 87 Association, made up of representatives from communities along Highway 87, is dedicated to the improvement and use of Highway 87 with one goal being to get the road declared as the connector route for the interstate highway north and south. The route has been designated from the Canadian border to Lubbock on Highway 87 and from the coast to San Antonio/Austin on Interstate 10. This association is plugging to get the remaining middle stretch Highway 87 from Lubbock to connect with Interstate 10. This is logical route because it would be the shortest and least expensive. However, other groups are lobbying to have the route leave Lubbock and bend through Abilene or some other cities. The importance of the Interstate Route bringing travelers dollars to the communities is obvious. All we have to do is see the difference I-20 has made to Big Spring.

The Highway 87 association is meeting in Lubbock March 23-24. Big Spring's Arnold Marshall is president-elect (which means next year's association meeting will be held in Big Spring).

Paul Shaffer, 1984 Chamber President, has instituted a new Chamber committee that should have positive impact now and in the years to come. He calls it the President's Council and it is made up of handpicked members mostly past chamber presidents. This council will help in the overall plan of action and supplement other areas that are not covered by committees. They will act as "advisors to the president." The first meeting will be held Thursday, March 22, at 4:00 pm.

Important future events include in your planning: April 7 - Big Spring Symphony Concert. Big Spring is the first city in West Texas to boast a lady conductor? She is recognized as one of the few successful women conductor's in the nation. From Los Cruces, New Mexico Marianna Gabbi has enjoyed a successful international career. She is a very fine violinist as well as conductor.

This first concert will be dedicated to the memory of Bill Bradley who was Chairman of the Chamber Fine Arts Council when the Symphony Association was initiated.

This column is written by Johnnie Lou Avery, president of Avery and Associates, West Texas Program Bureau, Property Management Systems, and Professional Services Bureau. Her offices are located at 210 Permian Building and her phone number is 263-1461. She welcomes your comments about this column.

Estes testifies about 23-year-old shooting

FRANKLIN, Texas (AP) — After hearing Bille Sol Estes on the record for the first time in the 23 years since Henry Marshall's "suicide," a Robertson County grand jury has ruled that the agriculture official was murdered but that there is no one left alive to indict. Marshall, 51, then an employee of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, was found dead on his ranch near Franklin with five bullet wounds in his side in June 1961. His own .22-caliber, bolt-action rifle was found near his body. His death was ruled a suicide.

"He wasn't there (at Marshall's death), but he knew what happened," Paschall said Tuesday of Estes. "The ideal thing would have been for Estes to testify 22 years ago. But if he had, he would have been a dead man."

Texas Ranger Clint Peoples said he was convinced that Marshall was murdered because he knew about a swindling scheme that later resulted in a prison sentence for Estes.

"It is my personal opinion that it would have been beneficial to a vast number of shady operators for Mr. Henry Marshall to have been disposed of," Peoples said in his book, "Captain Clint Peoples - Texas Ranger."

Peoples, who investigated the case in 1962, also testified before the grand jury on Tuesday. He arrived at the courthouse carrying the gun that fired the fatal shots.

"If he (Marshall) can kill himself with this gun, I'll ride a jackass to the moon," Peoples told reporters.

Candy Man's trial appeal may reach Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A petition that could give a new trial to Ronald Clark O'Bryan, the Deer Park, Texas, man convicted of killing his son with poisoned Halloween candy, might be considered either today or on Friday by the U.S. Supreme Court.

A writ of habeas corpus was filed with the full court last Monday and the nine Supreme Court justices are scheduled to deliberate on such petitions today and on Friday. If the court approves the writ, O'Bryan could receive a new trial.

O'Bryan, nicknamed "the Candy Man" by other death row inmates, is scheduled for execution by poisonous injection before dawn on March 31.

Houston attorney Will Gray, who filed the habeas corpus writ, also filed a petition for a stay with Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White. The justice denied the stay without comment.

Gray contends that the jury selection was improper in O'Bryan's 1975 trial.

O'Bryan was convicted of capital murder in the poisoning of his son, Timothy, 8. According to trial testimony, Timothy died within minutes on Halloween night, 1974, after eating a powdered confection that had been laced with cyanide.

At NFL meeting

Rule changes considered

HONOLULU (AP) — Some controversial calls by officials may be seen twice and some theatrics may not be seen at all during National Football League games next season if two rule change proposals are adopted by team owners.

The NFL's competition committee was expected to present a number of possible rule changes to the owners at today's session of the NFL winter meetings.

Among the proposals was one to use an extra game official to review television replays and reverse some calls, and another to end "excessive" demonstrations by players during a game — such as the "sack dance" of the New York Jets' Mark Gastineau.

Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula and Dallas Cowboys President Tex Schramm, representing the competition committee, briefed reporters Tuesday on the possible rule changes that will be discussed by the owners, who begin their third day of the week-long meetings today.

The proposal to have a game official review tapes to help eliminate bad calls has been made before, but the new approach is more limited — to change-of-possession decisions and sideline calls — and, according to Shula, would be used only if it did not affect the game's continuity.

Reviewing and changing a call thus would have to be done immediately following the play.

"There are a lot of pros and cons to be considered," said Shula, "and I'm sure there will be a lot of discussion on it."

Shula said that, in regard to the proposed change in the taunting rule to include overly demonstrative displays, the competition committee "takes the position that spontaneous demonstrations are OK, but prolonged, excessive or premeditated demonstrations should be banned."

Asked if the rule would cover the Redskins' "Fun Bunch" end zone ceremony, Shula grinned and replied: "I'll let Tex answer that; he's seen them in the end zone a lot."

The answer was yes. The revised taunting rule, like the present one, would impose a 15-yard penalty. Scores would not be wiped out by violations, however, with the penalty instead being assessed on the ensuing kickoff.

Other rule changes that will be considered include reducing the penalty for non-flagrant defensive pass interference from a first down for the offensive team at the spot of a foul to a loss of 10 yards and a first down; penalizing a punter, place-kicker or holder for unsportsmanlike conduct if he simulates being roughed by a defensive player; and permitting kickers to use artificial kicking tees on field goal and PAT attempts.

Shula said the main objection to the pass interference change is that it is difficult to determine what is a flagrant violation and what is not. Excessive "acting" by kickers trying to draw a roughing call also might be difficult to determine, he said.

On the question of tees, he said there is one group of club officials who feel that would help consistency in the kicking game, while the others believe kicking already plays too vital a role in deciding contests.

Another proposal would make it illegal for a defensive player to take a running start from beyond the line of scrimmage in order to leap and attempt to block field goal and point after touchdown kicks.

A few non-playing rule changes also will be considered, including one to give teams better access to players they have waived, and another to loosen restrictions on signing players coming from the Canadian Football League.

Also at the meetings Tuesday, the club owners voted to approve the sale of 40 percent of the Denver Broncos franchise to John Adams and Tim Borden, both of Denver.

Edgar F. Kaiser is selling the club for a reported $70 million — most ever for a sports franchise — to those two and to Canadian oilman and developer Pat Bowlen.

Bowlen, however, was disclosed as a potential buyer only Monday, and a vote on his purchase of the majority interest must await the league's routine background and financial check on him.

The owners thus will not vote on that part of the sale at these meetings, but probably will at their May 23-25 spring gathering in Washington, D.C., if not before.

Also at the meetings Tuesday, Wellington Mara, co-owner of the New York Giants, was voted President of the NFC, replacing the late George Halas.

Blue Grass rivals to square off in NCAA

LOUISVILLE, Ky (AP) — The good thing about college basketball is that on a given night, anybody can beat anybody, says Louisville Coach Denny Crum.

"And we're playing on a given night," Crum said of Thursday's NCAA Midwest Regional semifinal against No. 3 Kentucky in Rupp Arena.

"It's obvious that Kentucky's going to be the favorite," Crum said at a news conference Tuesday. "They're supposed to win and we're not, but that just means we're relaxed."

One key, Crum said, is that if Kentucky dominates on the inside, his Cardinals must prove master on the outside.

"We always have trouble with big men, because our center (Charles Jones) is only 6-foot-8," Crum said. "If we let them get the ball inside, it's going to be hard to beat them."

"If they dominate the inside, we have to dominate the outside. Hopefully, somebody (for Kentucky) won't shoot the ball well from the outside and we can sag and help out inside. Of course, Kentucky is so big, they can get the ball inside even if we're sagging."

Jim Master canned 19 points for Kentucky in the season-opening 65-44 rout, while Louisville's backcourt duo of Lancaster Gordon and Milt Wagner, the team's leading scorers, combined for only 12 points.

Louisville out rebounded the much taller Kentucky 41-36 in the game, but while Louisville's backcourt of Jones, 6-8 Billy Thompson and 6-7 Manual Forrest managed only 16 points combined, the Wildcats 7-foot Sam Bowie, 6-11 Melvin Turpin and 6-9 Kenny Walker had 36 points together.

Gordon, a senior, said Kentucky's guards applied a lot of pressure in the last game, and Gordon hopes that he and Wagner have adjusted to that.

ANGRY AT MISPLACED SHOT — Carling Bassett from Canada rebukes herself after hitting the ball out of bounds in her Virginia Slims match in Dallas against Virginia Ruzici Tuesday night. Ruzici went on to win 6-4, 6-2.

Error-prone Steers lose, 18-3

ODESSA — Big Spring was its own worst enemy here Tuesday in an 18-3 loss to the Odessa High Bronchos in a District 4-AAAAA baseball game.

The Steers committed nine errors and were shackled with nine strikeouts in dropping to 0-3 in district and 6-11 overall.

Big Spring did manage seven hits, led by two off the bat of Robert Porras, but the whiffs, errors and six walks issued by Big Spring pitching, were too much to overcome.

On five of the walks Odessa eventually scored runs. The Bronchos rapped the Steers for five extra base hits and collected a total of 15 hits in all. Odessa was guilty of two errors.

John Hart, Porras and Danny Arista scored Big Spring's runs. Tommy Gartman was tagged with the loss.

Big Spring's next contest will be a non-district game in Andrews Thursday beginning at 4 p.m.

NIT tourney gives Pitt redemption

By The Associated Press

Just a week ago, the University of Pittsburgh's basketball program was reeling from a late season slump and rumors of impending player defections.

Two victories later, hundreds of Pitt fans stood patiently in line for up to three hours Tuesday to purchase tickets for the Panthers' National Invitation Tournament quarter-final round game Friday against Notre Dame.

The 5,000 tickets allocated the Panthers for 6,500-seat Fitzgerald Fieldhouse went on sale at 9 a.m. and were gobbled up shortly after noon by many of the same fans who thought the Panthers' season ended with a first round Big East tournament loss to Villanova.

"Last week, everybody was saying we had a mediocre season," said Clyde Vaughan, who led Pitt to NIT victories over LaSalle and Florida State. "I said if we won this thing we could call it a great season. 'We're on the verge of a great season.'"

Lamesa routs Denver City, 17-4

DENVER CITY — The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes won their fourth straight game by routing Denver City, 17-4 here Tuesday with an eight run explosion in the sixth inning.

Until the sixth the game was tight with Lamesa controlling things by a slim, 5-4 margin. Denver City led 4-3 until the third.

Jacob Valderrama started and picked up the win for the Tors. He went three and one third innings before running into a snag. In the fourth with Lamesa leading by one, Valderrama had runners at first and second with no outs. Coach Lee Almaguer inserted Jimmy Scott in relief and Scott responded by picking the runner off second before retiring the next two men up. Scott finished the game with eight strikeouts. He did not walk a batter and allowed no hits. Valderrama was touched for four hits and issued six walks in running his record to 2-1.

Gilbert Arradondo continued his hitting pace with a triple, his seventh homerun of the year and five rbi's. Kenneth Williams aided the seven hit attack of Lamesa with a two for four performance.

Lamesa is 6-7 and will face Odessa High Thursday in Odessa in a non-district encounter. Game time is 4 p.m.

Court to rule on NCAA television

By The Associated Press WASHINGTON (AP) — Sometime before next fall, the Supreme Court is expected to decide a case that could have a wide-ranging impact on the viewing habits of the nation's millions of college football fans.

At issue in the case orally argued Tuesday before the nine justices was who will control the rights to televise college football, the National Collegiate Athletic Association or its member schools.

Andy Coats, representing the University of Oklahoma, told the high court that allowing the schools to set up individual contracts would have "a very wholesome effect" and could lead to more local and regional telecasts.

But NCAA attorney Frank Easterbrook said ratings — and eventually revenue — will drop if the current practice of having the NCAA negotiate for its schools is ended.

The most immediate impact of any ruling will be on the $207 million worth of contracts the NCAA has over the next three seasons with CBS, ABC, and Turner Broadcasting.

Two lower court rulings said the NCAA violated federal antitrust law, and that schools should be free to negotiate their own contracts.

The challenge from Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association arises from opposition to the NCAA policy by the College Football Association, a group of 60 of the biggest football schools.

Coats, the mayor of Oklahoma City, Okla., said the NCAA ban on televising any games besides those chosen by the association is a "classic violation" of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Solicitor General Rex Lee, speaking on behalf of the Reagan Administration, agreed with Coats and asked the high court to uphold the earlier decisions.

Coats said schools should be free to sell football games as they do basketball. Schools can make local deals to telecast basketball games which are not broadcast as part of a network or conference package.

"In basketball, the competitive balance has never been better," Coats said, noting that attendance and revenues have "doubled or tripled."

But Easterbrook said the NCAA exclusivity policy is necessary to help college football compete against other television programs.

The NCAA policy leads to higher ratings for college football, meaning higher ad rates for the networks and more money in future contracts, Easterbrook said, explaining that member schools thus benefit from the increased contracts.

PVA representatives to visit handicapped veterans

John A. Schmieedeke, Marie Kaye, and Ron Tribble will be at the Veterans Administration Medical Center from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. March 29. The purpose of their visit is to assist severely handicapped veterans and their families, and non-veterans get the care they are entitled to. Their visit is sponsored by Paralyzed Veterans of America Southwest Chapter and is sponsored by Mrs. Myrtle Bridges, a social worker at the hospital.

Paralyzed Veterans of America's main interests have been rehabilitation and quality hospital care for all paralyzed veterans and securing veteran's benefits once they are discharged. The organization also assists handicapped in getting the necessary adaptive equipment needed to increase mobility, sometimes free of charge. The group works closely with Veterans Administration hospitals and has representatives in all major VA facilities to represent clients. When veterans apply for non-service-connected disability or compensation, the group handles the red tape. The group also helps severely handicapped non-veterans and their families. Tribble is available for counseling. He has been paralyzed for 20 years and has dealt with the problems stemming from his handicap. His experience helps him help others in similar situations.

Remodeling Completed At T. Marquez & Sons

T. Marquez & Sons announces the completion of remodeling of its facility at 1010 Lamesa Highway.

The television-appliance showroom and the offices have been given new wall treatments and carpeting. In addition, merchandise has been rearranged so that the south side of the building now houses a complete satellite system center. New exterior signage has been added.

The firm announces that it now has a portable satellite dish it can bring to a customer's home to demonstrate the effectiveness of satellite installation, either in the city or in rural areas. T. Marquez & Sons can help arrange financing on a satellite dish system.

T. Marquez & Sons is one of those home-grown family businesses of which the community can be justly proud.

It was founded in 1956 as a parttime TV repair service by the late T. Marquez Jr.

Today T. Marquez & Sons, operated by the six sons, offers total sales and service for TV's, stereos, radios, auto radios and 8-tracks, appliances (refrigerators, stoves, washers, dryers), and satellites.

Their service area includes Vealmoor, Ackerly, Knott, Lenorah, Vincent, Garden City, St. Lawrence, Lomax and other communities in the area.

While they sell Quasar TV's exclusively, they service all brands of televisions from A to Z. They specialize in antenna work, service all makes and models of satellite dishes, and install the dishes.

In an era of declining customer services, T. Marquez & Sons still makes house service calls and still offer free delivery on appliances purchased from them. They have three trained technicians to service what they sell.

The Marquez sons — Bobby, Manuel, Raul, Jesse, Tony and Larry — still operate the company with their father's philosophy that "The customer is your friend — not just a customer."
