WASHINGTON (AP)- The nation's civilian unemployment rate held steady at 7.8 percent in March, breaking a six-month string of declines, as the expanding economy created just enough work to take care of new job seekers, the government said today. However, the Texas unemploy-ment rate jumped to 6.5 percent in March, up .8 percent from the previous month, because the number of people entering the state's labor market outstripped the number of new jobs, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics said today.

Economists had expected the past year's startling slide in unemploy-ment to slacken later in the year as economic recovery slows, but most had predicted small decreases in the jobless rate for at least a few more months.

Still, no one is expecting any significant reversal in the downward trend.

Despite the unchanged overall rate, the report showed "signs of improvement" in the labor market and "continued strength in the economy," according to Janet Norwood, commissioner of the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"The employment gains, though smaller than those of recent months, were quite widespread. This diffusion throughout the economy is, I believe, an additional sign of continued strength in the labor market," she said in testimony prepared for delivery to the con-gressional Joint Economic Committee.

The still-strong Texas economy was able to give jobs to more than 108,000 of those people, said Bryan Richey, regional commissoner for the bureau in Dallas.

"Most of the ones entering the job market found jobs. About 108,000 did, but a substantial number did not find jobs - about 77,000 did not," Richey said. The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for February was to 5.7 percent, he said, but was 6.9 in January and 7.7 last December.

"Last month there was an increase of 185,000 (people seeking jobs) and most of them found jobs. but a lot did not. However, the increase is a reflection of the dynamics of the labor market," Richey said.

He said he interpreted the increase of job-seekers as a "continued sign of improvement in the economy," but he said Texas trail-ed slightly behind the national economic picture.

The new report said that about 250,000 jobs were created in March while the civilian labor force increased by about 220,000. The resulting decline in total unemployment was too small to change the overall jobless rate.

Total civilian employment reached a record 104.1 million, while about 8.77 million people remained officially categorized as unemployed, the Labor Department The combined civilian-military rate also remained unchanged, at 7.7 percent, last month. That rate takes into account the 1.69 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States in addition to the 112.9 million-member civilian labor force. The Labor Department also reported that the number of "discouraged workers" - those without jobs but not counted as unemployed because they have given up looking - totaled 1.34 million last month, down from 1.46 million in December, when the quarterly calculation was last made. At its recession peak in late workers had totaled 1.8 million.

HOLDS STEADY - The U.S. jobless rate held steady in March at 7.8 percent. The rate had declined for five straight months before March.

Howard Co. water district may get to expand service

By JANET WARREN

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN - A Public Utility Commission official Friday prepared a staff suggestion to "breathe life" into the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 by letting it serve customers outside Coahoma.

If the commission allows the recommendation by Administrative Law Judge Angela Demerle, the utility could serve retail customers within district boundaries, except for customers in Coahoma and in a 200-foot corridor outside the city.

No retail water supplier is currently serving the outer area.

The district probably didn't need to ask commission approval in order to sell water outside the city service area, Administrative Law Judge Angela Demerle said in her recommendation to the commission. But customers will benefit by having a designated water supplier there, since the utility would be required to serve every customer seeking service.

Also, "cross-patch" pattern of city-district service would be avoided, she said. Once a utility receives a certificate fo

Demerle's motion Friday afternoon

Currently, the water district is mainly a wholesale water supplier, providing water to the city of Coahoma. It has only a handful of retail customers.

In essence, the Public Utility Commission gave the district and the city only part of what each wanted. The water district asked permission to provide retail water service within its boundaries, including the strip served by the city. Coahoma asked that the application be denied.

While the district wants to serve the outer area, Ms. Demerle said, the city has "remained silent" on its intentions to serve that area.

The district plans to issue bonds or certificates of obligation to build adequate water storage capacity and make improvements to the system, Ms. Demerle said.

Manslaughter charges filed on DWI suspect

A 23-year-old Big Spring man has been charged with involuntary manslaughter in the March 27 death of a Big Spring woman who was injured in an automobile accident of a week earlier.

Joseph William Diliberto of Route 1 was released Thursday on $15,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. Bond had been set a week earlier at the request of Diliberto and his attorney before the charges were filed.

Diliberto turned himself in to the Howard County Sheriff's office the day after Helen Zeigler, 60, of 4100 Connally, died from severe injuries suffered in an accident in the 2700 block of Wasson Road.

Diliberto's bond did not take effect until a warrant was issued Thursday for his arrest on the involuntary manslaughter charge, according to Heflin and Howard County sheriff A.N. Standard.

Diliberto previously had been arrested for driving while intoxicated. He was arrested after his release from the hospital. He was released March 21 from county jail on $2,800 bond in the same case.

According to police reports of the March 19 accident, Diliberto's car crossed two lanes of traffic and a median before colliding with a car driven by Mrs. Zeigler's daughter, 29-year-old Patti Zeigler.

Also injured in the accident was another passenger in the Zeigler car, 12-year-old David Zeigler Patti and David Zeigler had been released from the hospital prior to Mrs. Zeigler's death.

Reagan: No criticism, please

WASHINGTON - President Reagan fired another round at Congress for second-guessing him on foreign affairs, saying the lawmakers should not meddle once U.S. goals are set. His blast at "activism" on Capitol Hill dominated a policy speech in which Reagan reaffirmed his determination to reduce nuclear weapons but offered no new initiatives to woo the Soviets back to the bargaining table. He ruled out "simplistic solutions" to the weapons buildup and informed the Kremlin that deterrence would remain the cor-policy In criticizing Congress, the president said "if we are to have a sustainable foreign policy, the Congress must support the practical details of policy, not just the general goals.

Couched in an appeal for bipartisanship, Reagan said "legislators must realize that they, too, are partners

Behind the criticism, which has already led to a feud with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., is White House irritation with efforts by Congress to limit U.S. operations in the Middle East and Central America. Reagan, in the remarks prepared for the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies, said Congress has a responsibility "to go beyond mere criticism to consensus-building that will produce positive, practical and effective action."

The president said his administration had taken the nation into a new era of stength.

FBI launches manhunt

WASHINGTON - The FBI says accused kidnapper Christopher Bernard Wilder may be headed for Southern California, but it has launched a nationwide manhunt for the 39-year-old race car driver suspected in the death or disappearance of six women from Florida to Nevada.

FBI officials put on an unusual news conference Thursday to add Wilder to their "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" list and to appeal to the public to help catch him

Assistant FBI Director Oliver "Buck" Revell said the bureau has no information about Wilder's whereabouts since he was seen Sunday in Las Vegas, Nev., "but the pattern would indicate he's heading west.

"Southern California is a hypothesis, because he's lived in California before and the Los Angeles area has a lot of women interested in modeling and those types of careers," Revell added.

Revell said Wilder is known to approach attractive young women in shopping malls, and to identify himself as a photographer, which he has been. He then comments on the young woman's appearance and potential as a model and tries to persuade her to accompany him for a photo session, the bureau said.

Despite the California theory, Revell said every FBI office in the nation had been assigned investigative tasks in the case "to ensure full coverage."

He acknowledged that FBI officials "don't normal-

Kennedy raps Salvador aid

WASHINGTON - President Reagan's emergency military aid package for Central America faces a tough fight in the House after a Senate vote the White House welcomed as a victory but Sen. Edward M. Kennedy branded as "shameful and dangerous." The Republican-controlled Senate approved the combination of $61.7 million in emergency military aid to El Salvador and $21 million for assistance to rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua by a vote of 76-19 on Thursday.

The action climaxed more than a week of debate in EDWARD KENNEDY which liberal Democrats, with a sprinkling of Republican support, attacked Reagan's Central American policies and sought unsuccessfully to slash the funds or attach stringent conditions to their use.

"In my 22 years in the Senate, I have never seen a more shameful and more dangerous piece of legislation," said Kennedy, the Massachusetts Democrat who led the attack and offered many of the amendments. "The Senate has voted for wider war in El Salvador, secret war in Nicaragua and the brink of war in Honduras."

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., by contrast, said, "I believe this is a fine hour in the history of the Senate."

It was a victory for the White House even though the funds for El Salvador were only a little more than a third of the $178.7 million in supplemental aid for the current fiscal year that the administration originally sought.

The amount was first scaled down to $93 million. Administration supporters narrowly got this through the Senate Appropriations Committee, but ran into Democratic foot-dragging on the floor. Two weeks ago, the White House struck a bargain with Sen. Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, the senior Democrat on the foreign aid appropriations subcommittee, at the $61.7 million figure

Cameroon soldiers revolt

PARIS - Soldiers guarding the presidential palace in Cameroon apparently revolted today in the West African coastal nation, informed sources said.

Information reaching Paris indicated the rebellion was underway this morning, said the sources, who requested anonymity.

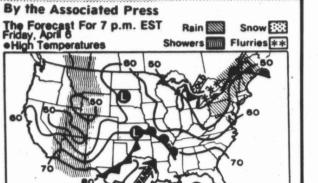

The sources said the palace guards apparently were angered by a presidential order Thursday requiring the transfer of all guards in the northern part of Cameroon. It was not known why they were ordered to transfer, or where.

The sources in Paris said palace guards who remained loyal to President Paul Biya apparently had re-quested reinforcements to put down the mutiny. There was no information on the whereabouts of Biya. The rebel guards may have attacked the presidential palace and military headquarters, the sources said. They said the mutinous soldiers apparently were being led by a colonel who originates from the north.

West Texas — Partly cloudy tonight becoming cloudy with scattered showers or thunderstorms Saturday. Lows 40s Panhandle and mountains to 58 southeast. Highs 70s north and mountains to 85 Big Bend valleys.

Rain to dampen weekend

A ridge of high pressure brought mostly fair skies to Texas today, but forecasters expected scattered showers and thunderstorms to dampen the weekend outlook.

Before dawn today, clouds were confined to southern sections of the state. Thin high clouds covered much of the Lower Rio Grande Valley, while low clouds hovered over the middle coast.

Some light fog was noted in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from the middle 30s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the lower 60s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Readings across the rest of the state were in the 40s and 50s. Southerly winds under 5 mph were the rule across the eastern half of the state, while southerly breezes at 10 to 15 mph were noted across the west.

The forecast called for fair skies to give way to increasing clouds tonight and Saturday. Scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected to develop Saturday across West, East and North Texas, as well as northern sections of South Texas. Along the coast, southerly and southeasterly winds at 15 to 20 knots were forecast tonight and Saturday. Patchy dense fog was possible near shore along the upper coast tonight.

Torrential rains from Maryland to Maine caused flooding in northeastern New Jersey, western Pennsylvania and New York today.

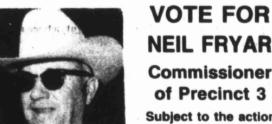

Thousands of New Jersey residents were forced from their homes by rising rivers in five counties after 4 inches of rain fell by this morning. The storm system over the Northeast was expected to linger through the weekend.

New York City was swamped with 4.15 inches of rain Thursday, breaking the record for the date of 1.95 inches set in 1947.

Fair skies dominated the Midwest, the Plains, the Rockies and the Southern states.

Showers moved through the Pacific Northwest into the northern intermountain region.

Rain lingered across the northern half of the Atlantic Coast states, and scattered rain and snow flecked the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley.

The university and Black Magic

In the annals of labor history, this one will surely be filed under "Only in California": Early in March, according to the newsletter of the California State Employees Association, an assistant dean of students at Cal State Northridge filed a grievance challenging her dismissal allegedly for practicing "black magic."

The assistant dean, whose job was to hear student discipline cases, says she was only cleansing the hearing room the night before a hearing, in order to "improve communications bet-ween all people at the hearing." But the cleansing ceremony performed by a professor friend who said he had learned it in his studies under Native American medicine men - involved the burning of sage, sweet grass and cedar in the presence of crystal and the waving of a feather to spread the smoke around the room. And this struck the dean of students, when he later heard about it, as "black magic." He, in turn, gave the matter "considerable prayer and thought" and found that he had no choice but to dismiss the assistant dean. She, for her part, says she finds his actions "bizarre."

The Los Angeles Times, in reporting this story, found several experts to quote - a medicined man from the White Earth Indian Chippewa Reserve in Minnesota, who vouched for the ceremony's authenticity, and an IBM scientist who said he's studied the ritual for 17 years and has scientific evidence that it could "create a positive environment for human relations by reducing the positive ions in the air." The professor involved also indicated that he is appalled that the dean of students could be so misinformed as to call this "black magic." "The blessing was for the room," he explained. "It was not intended for any particular person.'

However, when it came time to discuss the grievance, the university tried to keep the conversation focused on more mundane issues. The dean of students claimed his assistant had had other problems on the job that had prompted him to dismiss her. "They wouldn't even deal with the black magic issue," the union steward reported in outrage, amid promises not to let the matter drop. And because the university didn't take any action against the professor involved, the assistant dean has filed a sex discrimination complaint, as well, with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

There is talk of calling in the American Civil Liberties Union - on the side of prayer in the schools? - and talk of teaching Indian cleaning rituals more widely to avoid future misunderstandings. It only goes to show that it doesn't take a pie in the face to do slapstick.

The bank's very secret board of directors

WASHINGTON - U.S. intelligence and law enforcement agencies have steadfastly refused to cooperate in a three-year Australian investigation of an international bank that may have been handling illicit arms deals and laundering drug traffic profits.

A number of the bank's officers were highranking U.S. military and intelligence officials. The CIA denies any involvement with the bank, and the Australian investigators have dug up no solid evidence of ties between any U.S. agency and the Sydney-based bank, Nugan Hand. Officially at least, they express doubt that any connection existed.

But they base this conclusion on a rather shaky premise. Say the Australian investigators:

"If the CIA or any other intelligence organization had intended to use Nugan Hand as a cover for covert operations, it was a clumsy attempt, and one would have expected a more professional effort from an intelligence organization."

This flattering deduction does not, of course, cover the possibility that individual officers of the bank used their intelligence connections to further their questionable financial dealings -or that the "old boy network" was responsible for the stonewalling of Australian investigators by U.S. agencies.

The bank was founded by Frank Nugan, an Australian, and Michael Hand, an American. It collapsed in 1980 following Nugan's death — an apparent suicide. Hand disappeared at the same time, and hasn't surfaced since.

The roster of former U.S. officials with ties to the bank includes:

 William Colby, former director of the CIA. He was an attorney for the bank briefly, working on tax matters and other legal problems. His business card was found on Nugan's body. Retired Navy Adm. Earl Yates, who was at one time president of the bank. • Retired Army Gen. Erle Cocke Jr., whose consulting firm acted as the bank's Washington, D.C., office.

• A former CIA station chief in Bangkok. Thailand.

 Several other generals, admirals and former CIA officials.

Although many bank documents were ap-parently shredded after Nugan's death, the Australian investigators pieced together evidence of Nugan Hand's activities. The fourvolume report of the Australian task force has been reviewed by my associates Donald Goldberg and John Dillon.

Nugan Hand was believed to have been involved in drug traffic in the Golden Triangle of Southeast Asia. The bank had a branch office in the otherwise unpromising town of Chiang Mai in northwestern Thailand, not far from the Burmese border. Its office here was just down the hall from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

In fact, Nugan Hand officials told investigators they had offered to pass along to the DEA any information on drug smuggling they came across.

The investigators also found substantial evidence that linked the bank to convicted gunrunner Edwin Wilson, a former CIA agent who was then working with the Navy's super-secret Task Force 157, which used shipping companies as covers for espionage. The Aussies felt strongly about the lack of cooperation from the U.S. government. The task force report complains:

"During the course of the Nugan Hand inquiry, many links were found between individuals connected with the group and individuals connected in very significant ways with U.S. intelligence organizations, specifically the CIA and the Office of Naval Intelligence (Task Force 157). ... At times those links appear to have been an intrinsic part of the thenongoing activity and have the appearance of the direct involvement of the U.S. intelligence community itself.'

The Australian investigators were rebuffed by every U.S. government agency they approached for information. The big question is: Whv?

It's no secret to those who watch these pages that I have a certain place in my heart for the temptations of the culinary world. It should be no surprise, therefore, that two food-related articles in yesterday's Dallas Morning News should catch my eye and bring me to a clearer understanding of the great state of Texas and its rightful place among other states.

The articles, one happy and one rather sad, dealt with the origins of two venerable institutions of American foodstuffs, the hamburger and the corny dog.

Right off, I would like there to be no misunderstanding about my own standing with this state: I am no Texan.

I might add that I am not a Yankee or a Californian, either. As a matter of fact, I may, through a child and adulthood of incessant wandering, have come to have no home at all, but this is a state of affairs that I have chosen and rather like. It gives me a distance in viewing people and cultures and, with that, a certain clarity of thought.

Thus, when the News informed me yesterday that the nation's first hamburger, although introduced in St. Louis at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition of 1904, was actually developed by a Mr. Fletcher Davis in the small Texas town of Athens, I was rather shocked.

Perusing the article over lunch, I looked down with new respect at my Sonic #4 (no onions) and amid the smoke sauce and shredded lettuce, I knew I was seeing a genuine piece of Texana

It occurred to me then that the hamburger is perhaps the most influential concoction to come out of the state in at least the last 100 years, surpassing even the recent mystique surrounding Tex-Mex cuisine and its offshoots.

The hamburger is more than just the food that launched a thousand golden arches; it is the emblem of the go-go crowd. Those in the fast lane would surely run out of gas if they couldn't slow down long enough to make a pass through their local drive-through for the sustenance of a burger.

Sadness took hold of me as I turned to a different section of the paper to find that another Texan, Carl Fletcher of Dallas, "co-inventor" of the corny dog, died Wednesday at the age of 90.

Fletcher was the man who first had the idea of putting a wiener on a stick, dipping it in corn batter and frying it in lard, and my hat goes off to him.

Corn-found it,

It was an idea, like most great ideas, that seems obvious enough now that we have lived with it all our lives, but it was quite a breakthrough in its time.

Also like most great ideas, it needed tinkering. It wasn't until 1943, nine years after he first had the idea, that Fletcher and his brother, Neil, came up with the right batter to make the corny dog the success it is today.

To cap their ingenuity, the brothers introduced the delicious dog at the Texas State Fair of 1943 and it was an immediate success, prompting one fair official on hearing of Fletcher's passing to say, "if there is one thing that is symbolic of the fair - other than Big Tex - it's the corny dog.'

Is it just another case of native braggadocio for Texans to claim these two staples of the American diet as their own? If we can believe the Dallas Morning News, it is established fact.

And, perhaps, not so surprising. Considering the native-Texan fare that has prompted so many Taco Kings, Burrito Palaces and Mama's Tamales in places as far away as Washington D.C., and Seattle, (not to mention Paris, France and Tokyo, Japan), it seems only natural that Texans should have developed other great bastions of fast food earlier in the century.

One would be mistaken to believe this a case of on-the-go Texans needing dishes that could be prepared assembly-line fashion quicker than you can say "Where's the beef?." No, such thought goes against the laid back grain of most Texans.

The appeal must lie in the food itself: the greasiness and the satisfying lump in the stomach one feels after consumption.

We are not dealing with the delicacy of sushi or the richness of French cuisine grande. What we have is simplicity, wholesomeness, and a genius for using native ingredients to prepare food that will please the natives.

And it just so happens that as goes Texas in the culinary arts, so goes the world.

The good for nothin' Samaritan

But is he worth the money?

All I know about sports is what I read in the newspaper. The other day headlines bannered the signing of a Brigham Young quarterback, Steve Young, for $40 million by the Los Angeles Express, a USFL franchised football team.

Details of the contract varied in different sports pages as to how the money would be paid. The one story I read said the payout would be over a period of 43 years. The article did not indicate whether Mr. Young would have to play for 43 years or not. But I can't believe a professional football owner shelling out 40 million bucks would not expect a quarterback to play out the full life of his contract.

Since Young is now 24 years old I can see him playing up to his reputation for the first 15 years.

But then things could start getting a little tough, when he approaches the 40 mark.

The first sign that he isn't the quarterback he used to be might come in a key game in 1999 against the Chicago Blitz. Young is intercepted for the fourth time and his coach is steaming mad.

"What happened?" the coach screams at him.

"I don't know. My shoulder seems to hurt. I could use a few weeks off.

We can't give a $40 million quarterback a few seeks off. You're costing us so much money we can't afford a backup quarterback. Now you go out there when we get the ball again and get us three touchdowns.

Ten years later Young, at 50, his knees having been operated on 14 times, hobbles on the field. He is sacked nine times. A new coach is frothing at the mouth. "Why didn't you scramble on that last play?" the coach cries. "I tried to but I just don't seem to have the moves I used to," Young says. "Don't give me that. You're the highest-paid quarterback in football. We wouldn't have signed you if we thought you couldn't scramble." 'My knees are killing me." 'We'll give you another operation when the season is over. But right now you better play football, or we'll trade you to the Alaska Eskimos. The owner didn't pay 40 million bucks to see his quarterback fall all over the ground.

Ten years later, at 60, Young, with two artificial knees, two artificial hips and one artificial shoulder, is still calling signals for the Los Angeles Express. He calls for a screen pass in the huddle, and then tries to hand off the ball to his fullback, whose assignment and is to block a tight end. The ball drops to the ground, Tampa recovers and still got eight years to go. I've got a lot of money invested in you, Young, and I'm not going to let you go now, just when you're hitting your prime.

Eight years later, it's Young's last game.

He has had two cataract operations, a pacemaker implant, a kidney transplant, and is taken in and out of the game in a wheelchair.

Two linemen have been assigned to hold him up when he gets the ball. On the first play the entire defen-sive line of the Georgia Gorillas breaks through and smashes Young to the ground.

When he doesn't get up after five minutes, the Express sends out the paramedics who wheel him off the field in a stretcher. As they work over him, the reporters say to the owner, "Was he worth $40 million?"

me, but I am genuinely sorry you feel this way - not because you hurt my personal feelings (which you don't), but because you hurt my personal yourself by your attitude and your refusal to examine the truth for yourself. You are missing out on the real meaning of life. More than that, I would be neglecting my duty as a Christian if I did not warn you that some day-whether you believe it right now or not-you will meet God face to face and be judged for your stubborn insistence on running your own life without God. "Man is destined to die once, and after that to face judgment' (Hebrews 9:27).

Your problem is not some deep, serious intellectual problem that keeps you from believing in God. Your problem is with your will. You refuse to believe in God, not because there is any lack of evidence of his existence and his love for us - for the evidence is abundant - but because you simply want to run your own life the way you want to. You know that if you were to believe in God and take him seriously, then you could not go through life acting as if you were independent and not accountable to him. Let me ask you this: If you were presented with absolute proof that God existed, would you turn your life over to him and serve him? I strongly suspect that your honest answer would be "No" - because your problem is your will, and your own desire to control your own life.

I challenge you to face up to this honestly, and then ask yourself if it really makes logical sense to go through life this way.

Prime lending rate up again

By JAMES F. PELTZ AP Business Writer

Major banks nationwide raised their prime lending rates by one-half percentage point to 12 percent Thursday, the highest level in more than a year.

The increase was the second in the key borrowing rate in three weeks. But some economists said they did not expect the rate to climb again in the next few weeks, and for interest rates overall to stabilize.

While the boost had been anticipated on Wall Street, stock prices nonetheless fell to their lowest level in nearly a year, with losers outpacing gainers by more than 3 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials tumbled 18.01 points to 1,130.55, its lowest close since it stood at 1,124.71 last April 8.

First National Bank of Chicago, the nation's eighth-largest commercial bank by deposits, led the latest round of prime-rate increases. It quickly was followed by second-ranked Citibank and No. 3 Chase Manhattan Bank in New York, and by industry leader Bank of America in San Francisco.

The move lifted the banks' prime, or base, lending charge to its highest level since October 1982, when it also was 12 percent.

The big banks had just raised their prime rates to 11.5 percent from 11 percent on March 19. But credit analysts said the latest increase was warranted given economic conditions.

The prime rate is a lagging indicator, in that it usually follows changes in other interest rates. Since rates in general have continued to edge higher in recent weeks, they raised the banks' cost of obtaining funds for lending.

For example, the federal funds rate, the interest on overnight loans between banks, has climbed to nearly 11 percent from 10 percent on March 19 and 9.5 percent at the start of the

Also, as robust economic growth has continued, so too has demand for loans. That rising demand, together with the huge credit demands of the federal government, is putting further upward pressure on interest rates.

as robust economic growth has continued, so too has demand for loans. That rising demand, together with the huge credit demands of the federal government, is putting further upward pressure on interest rates.

"Loan demand has definitely picked up in the last six weeks; as the economy expands, business develops a need for external financing," said Elliott Platt, an economist at the investment firm Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp. in New York.

At the same time, the Federal Reserve has tried to restrict the availability of credit to prevent the economy from overheating and fueling inflation. But the central bank's stance also has prevented a substantial decline in interest rates.

However, some economists now expect the economy's growth to slow in the second quarter, and for the Federal Reserve to avoid a further tightening of credit.

As a result, "I would expect stability in short-term interest rates in the next few weeks," said Ted Gibson, senior economist at Crocker National Bank in San Francisco, which was one of the banks raising its prime rate.

The latest prime-rate increase came one day after Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan predicted interest rates would soon reach a peak and then decline slightly by the end of the year.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Regan said he was "very concerned" about the level of interest rates, but said that if the prime rate did rise to 12 percent, "it will slow the economy but it won't kill it."

The prime rate is the base upon which banks compue interest charges on short-term business loans. Large, creditworthy borrowers frequently borrow at below the prime rate while smaller businesses typically pay one or two percentage points above the prime.

While the cost of an individual's loan might not be tied directly to the prime rate, the prime rate still is an indicator of how lending charges generally are moving.

The prime rate, which reached a record high 21.5 percent in December 1980, gradually worked its way down to 12 percent in October 1982 and then to 10.5 percent in February 1983. It then climbed to 11 percent last August.

NEW YORK (AP) - Oil prices, unusually stable for the past year, could nearly double in the next 10 years and increase more than sixfold in 20 years, one big oil company estimates.

Analysts said Thursday that the projections by Shell Oil Co. were realistic, at least through 1993, adding that for the most part oil prices would rise only as fast as the projected inflation rate for the next decade.

"After that, it's anybody's guess," said John Lichtblau, executive director of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, a private study group financed by oil companies.

Meanwhile, Conoco Inc., another large oil company, predicted that the non-communist world would become more dependent upon oil produced by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in the years ahead. 'Complacency about the U.S. energy situation is un-ing the period through the year 2000. It predicted oil prices would rise "moderately" faster than inflation in the 1990s.

Shell projected the price of Saudi Arabian Light, a grade of crude oil that is the benchmark for world prices, would remain at $29 a barrel through 1986, then rise to $52 a barrel in 1993 and $192 a barrel by 2005.

Shell's projection was made as part of the strategic forecasts the company makes twice a year for internal use by its management. But it was made public as part of an offering statement distributed Wednesday to shareholders in connection with a $58-a-share bid by the Royal Dutch-Shell Group of Companies for the 30.6 percent of Shell stock it does not already own.

Shell tempered the projection by noting that planning forecasts in general, "and the crude oil price

BIG SPRING

A MESSAGE FROM "THE GUYS WHO STARTED IT ALL"

WE THINK the VCR is the greatest thing to happen to America and Texas since the video tube.

ABOUT FOUR YEARS AGO, (with butterflies in our stomachs), we quit working for the other guy and opened Big Spring's first video movie rental store.

IT WAS FUN furnishing entertainment at home for a jillion families in our area. The nicest part of it all, was the friends we made. We are grateful to them. We are even grateful for the spotty competition that has emerged, because it means our industry is successful and has come of age.

EARLY THIS YEAR, our supreme court said it is okay to record programs at home for private use.

WE DON'T SELL VCR'S. WE DON'T REPAIR 'EM. WE DON'T RENT-TO-OWN." We are not in the furniture or appliance business. All we do is furnish family entertainment an an affordable cost. The profits we make are funneled back into our store, to buy more rental machines and more movies for you, our customers.

WE ARE NOT EXPERTS, but we believe we've learned a lot about the home video recorder in four years.

WE WELCOME YOUR QUESTIONS. We'll even clean the west Texas dust out of your VCR for you at no charge.

WE ARE LEERY of so called "Video Clubs", and you should be too. We considered this when we opened our store and decided against it. Too Complicated. Too costly for the consumer. Why plunk down fifty, seventy-five or a hundred dollars up front, to subsidize someone's business venture? You'll still be charged for rentals.

I GUESS WHAT WE ARE TRYING TO SAY is that we love our customers and potential customers. We love talking to John Wayne, Elvis, and old time movie buffs, and you are welcome in our store at any time, even if you don't spend any money with us.

Maid finds $4,000 in hotel room

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - A maid who was cleaning up the hotel room of former Kentucky Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. knew the $4,250 she found in a dresser drawer wasn't her tip.

"I couldn't believe it," said Loretta "Cookie" Rudolph. "People have left jewelry and a few dollars now and then, but never that much cash. I almost fainted.'

She found the 42 $100 bills and one $50 bill when she was cleaning Brown's room at the Hyatt Regency on Friday, and turned the money over to the management.

Danny Briscoe, a spokesman for Brown, said the former governor hurriedly left the hotel Friday night and forgot to take the cash.

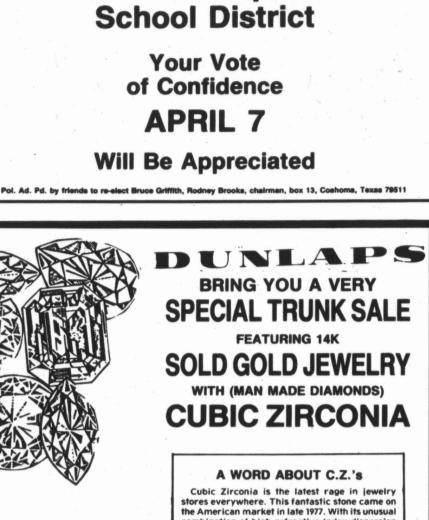

Brown called the hotel Saturday and got the maid's name. He sent Miss Rudolph a thank you note and a reward, Briscoe said.

Brown, a candidate for U.S. Senate, and his wife, Phyllis George Brown, checked into the hotel early last week and met with aides to plot strategy for the primary election campaign against Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston.

Briscoe said it was not uncommon for Brown to carry large amounts of cash.

HC cowgirls are fairly successful

By BILLY NABOURS Sports Editor

It was not a good night for Howard College cowboys during the first evening of action at the annual Howard College-Midland College Rodeo Thursday in the Rodeo Bowl at the Howard County Fairgrounds.

Of HC's four first night entries, none was successful. Ron Belew in bareback bronc riding and Jon Brockway in saddle bronc competition had no time for their efforts. Steer wrestler Perry Echols and bull rider David Conklin also had no time posted on their tries

The brightest spot for the HC men came in team roping where Gregg Stovall and David McCain are in second (14.8)

For the HC women, this year's rodeo queen, Cathy Cochran stands in second place in barell racing after one performance. She ran the barells in 18.17 to Tarleton State University's Angie Casbeer who had a 17.95.

Renee Blackwell is third in breakaway roping (6.3) behind Kelley Kyle of Western Texas (4.1) and Koger Smith of Eastern New Mexico University (4.6). HC's Karen Salter notched no time.

In goat tying Salter fared better, holding onto fourth place entering tonight's second performance that gets underway at 7:30. She tied her goat in 13.5. First through third are Paula Kay Lockhart of Sul Ross (12.3), Kim Todd of New Mexico Junior College (12.4), and Sunni Nance of ENMU (12.6). Sissy Doss, fifth in the Southwest Region in the event, is sixth in 14.5. LEADERS AFTER FIRST NIGHT

Besides Casbeer's showing in the barrels, Tarleton has the first place bull rider thus far in Mike King who scored a 76. Sul Ross has three first place individual competitors after one performance in Lockhart, calf roper Glenn Hutto (10.4) and steer wrestler Tuff Hedeman (9.8). Two former HC cowboys, Ed Fernandes and Freddie Lucero, paired up for a 6.5 time in team roping to hold down first there.

WTC bareback rider Max McGuire scored a 66 which is one point better than Texas Tech's Roy Jones. Derrick Clark grabbed a top place for Tech by scoring 72 in saddle broncs. Hedeman is in second with a 71.

Competition continues tonight and Saturday. Admission is $3 with children under six admitted free.

Jabbar likes records but places team first

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Somehow, the sky hook seemed appropriate.

A shot he patented and used literally thousands of times throughout hs pro career, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar turned to it again Thursday night to set a new alltime National Basketball Association scoring record, breaking Wilt Chamberlain's mark of 31,419 career points

The Los Angeles Lakers great took a feed from Earvin "Magic" Johnson near the baseline, faked a pass, and turned to his left to hit a soft 10-footer over two Utah Jazz defenders with 8:53 left in the game. The Lakers won 129-115.

His teammates hugged him as a sellout crowd roared its approval and Abdul-Jabbar had another place in the record books.

"I've always enjoyed being a scorer, I can't deny that," Abdul-Jabbar said.

The 22 points gave him 31,421 for a career that has spanned 15 seasons, first with the Milwaukee Bucks, then with the Lakers. But Abdul-Jabbar says he would like to be remembered more as being a key part of a series of successful teams than as a great individual player.

"That's what the game is all about," he said. "You see exceptional players that couldn't take their teams anywhere. I've always enjoyed doing well as a team."

With his parents on hand as well as NBA commissioner David Stern, Abdul-Jabbar started with a rush, scoring 12 points in the first quarter and adding four more in the second to pull within five points of the record.

85 and Garden City was 4:17.75.

The sellout crowd of 18,359 screamed in unison every time he touched the ball in the second half, but he scored only two points in the third quarter and, with the Lakers well ahead, coach Pat Riley asked if he would like to sit down for the rest of the evening.

"Pat asked if I wanted to be taken out," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I told him no, I'd rather get it done.

And get it done he did.

With 10:45 left in the game, Abdul-Jabbar took a feed from James Worthy and dunked to tie the record.

Less than two minutes later, Johnson looked for the ball, waited for his teammate to get downcourt, and then hit the great center on the right baseline. Abdul-Jabbar turned to his left, and guarded by two defenders, hit his record-breaking shot

"When I got the ball I waved everybody out," said Johnson, who had made no secret of his desire to get an assist on the record-breaker. "The first time, (Bob) McAdoo threw it to him but he got tripleteamed and I said, 'Yeah.' He threw it back out and McAdoo missed. I said 'Okay, now's my chance. I'm going to make sure I give it to him.'

Abdul-Jabbar said the record-breaking shot was nothing special, but admitted he was glad to have the record behind him.

DALLAS - It won't be an entirely healthy bunch of Howard Hawks that will take the long highway here for a weekend Region V baseball series with the Northwood Knights.

hurt Northwood

The Hawks, currently in second place in the con-ference with a 7-5 mark, face the third place (4-5) Knights in one game Saturday at 3 p.m. and in a Sunday doubleheader that begins at 1 p.m.

And while Rick Sustaita, Mo Rubio and Steve Carrasco will either be out or see Imited action, the Hawks are by no means ready to go on Medicare.

Sustaita was hit on his left hand during the first game of the series last weekend against Ranger. He has developed a bone infection according to Howard coach Bill Griffin. Griffin said Sustaita "can probably pinch run," but that's it. Rubio has been hampered by shoulder trouble and is doubtful while Carrasco, one of the top two pitchers on the team, is also doubtful for mound duty due to a recurring right arm hurt. "Steve has been bothered by arm trouble since Tuesday and his pitching status is uncertain," said Griffin.

One sure thing, however is that Chuck Ashcraft will start one of the three games. Ashcraft owns a 5-1 record, tops for the 19-12 Hawks, and is the team leader in strikeouts with 40. He started the first game of the year against the Knights, was knocked out, and did not get the win in which Howard eventually prevailed, 9-8. Jeff Hodges took the win in relief ad Griffin did not rule out the possibility of Hodges (2-2) strting one of the games this time around.

Kevin Sturdy (1-1) is another possible starter. Stur-dy picked up a 13-3 win over the Knights in game three of the initial series between both clubs in Big Spring. "Since Hodges and Sturdy both picked up win against Northwood before, I'll give them some thought," said Griffin.

And despite the fact Northwood trails the Hawks in the standings, Griffin is wary. "Northwood is a better team than a year ago," he said. He also noted the fact that the Knights managed to beat McClennan Community College one out of three games and Ranger two out of three.

Vegetables cut cancer risk

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Women eating 20 or more servings of fruit or vegetables a week cut their risk of mouth and throat cancers in half, according to a new study by the National Cancer Institute.

Those cancers will strike an estimated 8,800 women and 18,700 men and cause approximately 9,350 deaths this year, according to the American Cancer Society.

The study of 227 women in North Carolina, which has among the highest rates of oral cancer and cancer of the pharynx in the country, also found that women consuming moderate amounts of fruit and vegetables - 11 to 20 servings per week - cut their risk by 35 percent.

Men were not included in the study, which was published in the March issue of Cancer Research and described Wednesday at the American Cancer Society's annual science writers' seminar.

"All too often people assume fatalistically that everything they eat has the potential to cause cancer," Regina Ziegler of the cancer institute wrote in a summary of her research. "They forget that certain dietary patterns actually seem to reduce the cancer risk."

Dr. Paul Talalay, a pharmacologist at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, said the studies by Ms. Ziegler, Robert Hoover and other colleagues were among the first to look carefully at the link between diet and cancer.

Earlier studies merely showed correlations between diet in certain parts of the world and cancers common in those regions, Ms. Ziegler said.

Bread and cereals were also found to have a smaller protective effect against those cancers, and meat and fish consumption boosted the risk, Ms. Ziegler said.

An earlier study by the same researchers of mostly poor black men in Washington, D.C., found that those who were well-nourished had half the risk of cancer of the esophagus as did those who were poorly nourished.

Both studies support the theory that vitamins A and C protect against cancer, the researchers wrote

Farmworker compensation

PHARR, Texas (AP) -The number of workman's compensation policies written by the Texas Farm Bureau has doubled since a court order issued in March, and consumers will be picking up the cost of the insurance at grocery checkout counters, a farm bureau official said.

State District Judge Harley Clark ruled March 7 that the Texas Workers Compensation law excluding farm and ranch workers from on-the-job injury benefits was unconstitutional. That ruling has been appealed.

If the ruling is upheld, the order could be retroactive, said Vernon Glassen, director of public affairs for the 300,000-member farm bureau.

'We are holding meetings with farmers around the state and advising them that the only safe course of action is to cover themselves," Glassen said. Glassen said that farmers could be held personally liable for injuries to workers occuring after the March 7 ruling.

Wayne Jay, head of the workman's compensation insurance program for the farm bureau, said his office is writing "more than 50 percent more" policies than it did four weeks ago. He said he has hired an growers of paying for insurance will affect the consumer in general, you can depend on it," Peacock said.

"And, when the cost of labor goes up, farmers start to mechanize more." Peacock, who has worked in the Valley for 29 years, said he has seen a steady decrease in the number of hand laborers employed in the field.
