Big Spring city council members at their regular meeting Tuesday will set a date for the District 3 runoff, Ferguson said.

According to the city charter, the run-off election must be scheduled within a period "not less than 10 days and not more than 20 days," Ferguson said. District 1 winner Sanchez said he was "elated" at the results of Saturday's voting. He said he would work with the present council to improve conditions for his district and for the city as a whole. Sanchez will join the council starting with its next meeting. A total of 1,337 voters turned out Saturday in the two districts, which comprise two-thirds of the city. Last year, 1,751 ballots were cast for a city election in which all registered voters were eligible to participate. At that time, 145 voters cast ballots in the Northside Community center polling place, according to Ferguson. In this year's election, 354 persons voted at the polling place.

This is the first year voters have elected representatives from their geographical districts. District 1, a minority-populated district on the city's northside, and District 3 on the southwest, were the first districts to elect representative to the newly expanded sevenmember council.

Big Spring's at-large voting system was changed to a combination at-large and single member district scheme as a result of a voting rights suit settlement:

Official figures from other polling places showed that 325 persons voted at the 18th and Main Fire Station, 463 persons voted at the fire station on Wasson Road and 195 persons cast ballots at Marcy Annex (Airport) School.

In the District B city council race, Johnson garnered 132 votes to Brewer's 151 votes. Brewer is part owner of the Lamesa Bearing and Supply Co. The city's District B has a minority population of 3,932, of which 60.1 percent are minority residents.

Reinhard McKinney, a drug store operator, received 179 votes, and Dorothy Miller, former city judge, got 38 votes in the District C race.

Saturday's city council election was the first under a single member district plan forced by a voting rights lawsuit and settled out of court under the sanction of .U.S. District Judge Hal Woodward of Lubbock. The settlement added two seats to the council. Once all councilmen are seated, a mayor will be selected from among the council.

COAHOMA — Incumbents were defeated in two city council races and one school board position here

Ronnie Dodson and Billy Sullivan lost re-election bids for two-year terms on the city council. Others running for the one-year term and their vote totals were: Patricia Harrison, widow of former councilman Cliff Harrison, 67; Larry Kingsley, band director at Coahoma High School, 41; and Bill Thompson, oilfield foreman, 30.

Mayor Jim Rackley easily won re-election with 130 votes to 87 for John Jackson, a salesman, and 12 for Gary Grant, a truck driver.

Incumbent school board president Bruce Griffith, an agricultural loan officer at the First National Bank in Big Spring, was returned to the board with 306 votes.

and Urban Development currently is preparing a report on possible violations of lease agreements and civil rights by the managers of the apartment complex. The privately owned apartments are partially subsidized by funds from HUD.

If tenants do not agree with the HUD reports on their finding of facts, they can go through an administrative appeals process before going into court. Ms. Mercado said the attorney general's office would not be able to conduct an investigation unless it received a written complaint on the situation. So far, it has received no such complaint, she said. All three panel members said their offices could provide assistance in procedural handling of similar complaints, if persons would document their complaints by writing letters to restate conversations with public officials and landlords.

"Housing has got to be the number one issue in the country," Ms. Mercado said. "While we are developing new housing, we are not developing housing accessible to working people.'

The panel members told local NAACP members they should work to develop better low-income housing and a city housing ordinance with members of the local housing board, who were present at the Saturday meeting.

Housing board members include City Manager Don Davis; Davis' assistant, Pat Hardy; police chief Rick Turner; County Attorney Bob Miller; Salvation Army Lt. Carroll Braun and Mrs. Braun; Industrial Air Park director Hal Boyd; and the president and secretary of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Dockery outlined a plan of action for persons with housing problems to follow: communication, cooperation, instigation and to agitate until justice flows down like a mighty river," Dockery said. "We will employ all the diplomacy available, but we also will force compliance (with state and federal laws)."

A major problem in handling some of the complaints from Northcrest tenants is their failure to document conversations and actions from the beginning, Dockery said. Tenants should not rely on friendship with other persons such as city officials to resolve problems, he said.
"Put it in writing," he said.

'That alone will make a difference in his (the official or the landlord's) thinking.'

The three panelists recommended tenants apply for legal aid from the Odessa-Midland branch of the West Texas Legal Aid office.

And they told tenants who received eviction notices after registering complaints about the complex they had the basis for a lawsuit claiming retaliation by the landlord.

McGavin caught telling lie

NEW YORK — Actor Darren McGavin, who star-red in the television series "Night Stalker," must pay $20,000 within 30 days or face a year in jail for lying to keep his rent-controlled Manhattan apartment.

McGavin, 62, of Beverly Hills, Calif., pleaded guilty Friday to third-degree perjury stemming from false statements he made to the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and

The actor falsely told the agency on Aug. 20, 1981, that his third-floor, one-bedroom apartment was his primary residence and that he had not sublet the apartment to anyone.

Landlord David Walentas had sought to have McGavin's apartment decontrolled and evict the actor because he wanted to convert the building into a cooperative and sell the apartments.

"This crime was intended to benefit Mr. McGavin financially. I think it is appropriate disposition of this case if he is made to suffer financially," Criminal Court Judge Alan Marrus said.

Israeli jets bomb building

BEIRUT — Israeli jets Saturday bombed a building in the central Lebanese town of Bhamdoun in retaliation for a terrorist rampage in Jerusalem, and Lebanese Moslem and Christian factions traded heavy artillery fire in Beirut.

President Amin Gemayel and Syrian President Hafez Assad arranged to meet in Damascus on Wednesday to try to speed up an end to the fighting, reports from the Syrian capital said.

A Shiite Moslem leader said all militiamen are being ordered off the streets of west Beirut in an effort to promote civil order. The target of the Israeli air strike was a five-story wing of an abandoned hotel in Bhamdoun, on the Beirut-Damascus highway 14 miles southeast of the Lebanese capital. All planes returned safely from the dawn raid, the Israeli command in Tel Aviv said.

The command said the building was a base of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine — a Palestinian group that claimed responsibility for the terrorist attack Monday in Jerusalem's Jewish sector, where 48 people were wounded by machine gun fire and grenade blasts on a busy street.

However, pro-Syrian Lebanese militiamen told Associated Press correspondent Juan-Carlos Gumucio and other Western reporters who went to Bhamdoun that they controlled the five-story building, and that there were no Palestinian guerrillas in the town.

They said there were no casualties in the bombing, carried out by three Israeli jets in two runs. The building's top three floors were collapsed.

Cameroon coup put down

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Cameroon President Paul Biya said loyalist government forces achieved "complete victory" Saturday over palace guards attempting a government coup in the West African nation's capital of Yaounde.

"Regular units of our national army who remained faithful to the constitution ... fought methodically and with determination, and late Saturday morning they achieved complete victory," Biya said in an address on Radio Yaounde, monitored in Abidjan.

'Calm prevails all over the national territory," he said. He made no mention of casualties in the two-day Biya said dissident elements in the presidential palace guard "sought to seize political power through violence" in an armed revolt that started early Friday. In Paris, Cameroon Foreign Minister Felix Tonye M'Bog said, "The government is in complete control of the situation throughout the country and the attempt LITTLE FALLS, N.J. - Rescue crews patrolled by boat and damage estimates climbed to at least $35 million as the rain-swollen Passaic River, which has chased 5,000 people from their homes, continued to rise Saturday in parts of northern New Jersey.

Officials warned that some of the evacuees may have to wait several days before they can return home. Water from seven rain-gorged tributaries poured into the Passaic and submerged sections of Morris, Passaic, Essex and Bergen counties. Additional flooding downstream threatened communities in the southern parts of those counties near where the river flows into Newark Bay.

"It's like dominoes all along down the Passaic," said Col. Alfred DeMatteo, director of the Morris County office of emergency management.

some areas Wednesday and Thursday, combined with melting snow to push four rivers - the Wanaque, the Ramapo, the Pompton and the Mahwah — to record heights, the National Weather Service said.

The Saddle, Pequannock and Rockaway also rose above their banks, and all seven fed the Passaic.

The Passaic peaked at 12 feet in this Passaic County community about noon Saturday, one foot below the prediction, and began to fall back down toward its flood stage of 7 feet, said state police Sgt. William Buchwald in the state Office of Emergency Operating Center in Trenton.

But he warned that the river was still rising downstream. "The crest won't reach Newark Bay until tomorrow morning and we don't expect the river to fall back into banks until Wednesday," he said. "It'll go down slowly and that'll leave water in a lot of areas.'

Frank Church dies of cancer

"Frank Church was one of the great leaders of our generation. He was a courageous leader against the war in Vietnam, for the cause of peace and social justice. He was one of the truly eloquent senators of our time," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

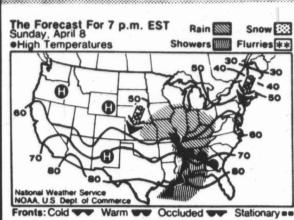

Church was the fifth youngest senator in U.S. history when elected in 1956 at age 32, and he became nationally known as an outspoken opponent of the Vietnam war and for investigations into the activities of the CIA.

However, he lost to Jimmy Carter for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination and was defeated for a fifth Senate term by Republican Steven D. Symms in the 1980 GOP landslide that swept Reagan into the White House. Since then, he had practiced law

The terms of the insurance policy are more fully described in the prospectus; no representation is made as to the insurer's ability to meet its commitments. Rain shortfall is of concern to all

Weather patterns of the last 15 months paint a portrait of concern for Howard County and the surrounding area. In a region of the state where civilization manages to thrive despite the inherent dryness, we have been particularly challenged since the Big Spring has been given only two-thirds its normal allocation of life-giving water. To compound the problem, 4½ of the 13 inches we've gotten in these 15 months fell in one month, October 1983. There has been less than ½-inch since then, and time is beginning to run out on cotton planting for 1984.

The most general need for the city is drinking water, and here we're doing all right. Because we're serviced by more than one lake in the Colorado River Municipal Water District system, we are not dependent on the "catch" from one area to supply our needs.

While Lake J.B. Thomas has fallen to an "extremely low" level, Lake Spence has an ample supply and can serve as a

A rain shortfall of the magnitude and duration of this one, however, has a potentially devastating effect on farming and ranching interests. A bad crop year in 1983 will run back-toback with one in 1984, unless sustaining rains come in the next month to six weeks.

Subsurface moisture in fields is being depleted, topsoil erosion is becoming a problem, ranchers' stock tanks are drying up and pastureland is showing little growth. Agriculture is the lifeblood of many, a significant portion of the Howard County economy and of pocketbook importance to us all at the supermarket.

There are other lesser effects, too, of this drought. Psychologically, for one, because rains are freshening and renewing to the spirit. Economically, for another, because the monthly water bill will increase as we attempt to give to our lawns what nature normally provides.

Around The Rim

By KEITH BRISCOE

May poll

I hate election time because everyone and his brother come out with results of a poll to tell me how I'm going to vote.

You know the kind I'm talking about like the New York Times—ABC—National Research Foundation-Yanklovitz poll that shows 95 percent of fat Albanian housewives in Buffalo, N.Y., are going to vote for Ronald Reagan.

I have one of these vile things in my desk at home. Not a fat Albanian housewife, but a poll. It lists various categories — income, race, religion, geography - and makes the bold statement that researchers can index voters according to these classifications and discover what kind of person is going to vote for a certain candidate.

The authors of this garbage claim their results are accurate prognostications based on a "scientific. representative sampling" of a cross-section of American voters.

To test the accuracy of this stupid formula, I indexed myself, picking the descriptions that defined me under each category: white, Democrat, college education, income less than $30,000, resident of a Southwest state. And surprise! I discovered that I'm going to vote for Gary Hart in the May Texas primary Wrong

The basic flaw in polls is that they pretend to be much more than they are. Like Gary Hart.

Some guy gets on a phone and calls a couple hundred white Anglo-Saxon Protestant males making more than $50,000 and finds 80 percent of them are going to vote for

Then this researcher extrapolates from this limited information to proclaim that 80 percent of all such persons are going to vote for Reagan.

All this pollster has told us is that 80 percent of those persons he contacted say they are going to vote in such a manner. That's all he can say, because that's all he knows. These so-called representative sampling polls only concern themselves with the very basic information about a few persons. They conclude that because one particular person is going to vote a certain way, then everyone meeting his general description is likely to follow suit.

That ain't scientific.
Polls can't take into account the subtleties, the complexities, the contradictions, the fears and the prejudices that make us so deliciously unpredictable and irrational.

The index that said I'm going to vote for Hart did not consider that because my beloved grandfather was a union organizer, I'm impelled to vote for the labor-endorsed candidate. It also did not take into account that I once got violently ill in Denver and the mere mention now of Colorado makes me want to throw up.

Political polls, I'm happy to say, are consistently proved wrong after the votes are tallied. As a recent example, the polls had Mondale and Hart running even in New York before the primary there, but Mondale crushed Hart in the election.

The real danger is that polls command great attention, and news organizations and politicians will pay big bigs to get the first line from the fortune tellers.

I fear that if the Washington Post says its poll shows Hart leading Mondale by 40 percentage points in New Mexico, the Minnesotan's supporters in Albuquerque might in disillusionment forego the primary. Tragic.

I may be, as my mother says, an aberration, but I believe I'm on fairly safe ground when I say I'm human. Except for physical dimensions and body mechanisms, I can't be measured, plotted or predicted. No scientist, and certainly no pollster, can plumb the depths of my soul

Polls cannot tell me what I'm going to do.

Our election process values highly the political eccentricities of the electorate. Polls, which seek to decide an election before its held, depreciate the sponteneity, individuality and genuineness of our Keith Briscoe vote for Gary Hart? That's the worst poll-ish joke I've ever heard.

Saturday elections were hard work

If you are among the lucky souls who live in voter registration precinct 101-W1, on the northside, you had one-stop shopping in three elections Saturday.

That precinct was the only location so blessed.

In two voting precincts, the balloting setup bordered on the absurd. Precinct 301-W1 voters found themselves eligible to vote in three elections - city council, school board and Howard County Junior College District. But to fulfill their civic duties, they had to set this itinerary: Travel to the Northside Fire Station to cast a ballot for the District 1 city council election. Drive to the southside's 18th and Main Fire Station to vote in the District 3 school board race. Then trek east to Dorothy Garrett Coliseum to help decide who would govern the Howard County Junior College District. In Precinct 102-W1, the same complications were experienced by some voters who live in what was formerly Webb Air Force Base housing.

This is an age when governments work to make it easy to vote, thereby ensuring the widest possible representation in public affairs. Asking a voter to drive across town and make three election stops is asking too much. I don't doubt it had an effect on voter turnout Saturday.

While there was coordination between school and city polling places except where differences in precinct lines prohibited it, there was next to none in the Howard College district elections within the city limits.

The confusing voting procedure is the result of complications in our election system this year. Settlements in voting rights suits changed Big Spring's form of government from at-large (citywide) races to combination atlarge and district representation.

And that upset an apple cart that had just been righted. Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, said "we had just gotten" the polling places combined for city, school and HCJCD elections. Then everything went out of kilter.

Howard College district's polling places were tied to county voting locations in the federal court settlement it struck a few months back. Trouble is, Howard College district's elections are held at the same time as the city council and school board elections — the first Saturday in April. County (and regional, and state and national) primary elections aren't until May 5. Winners there come up for final vote in November.

Hays says he wants to seek an amendment to the college district's voting rights suit settlement which would tie HCJCD's polling places to city and school sites. That would be a great help. The discrepancies between school district lines and city lines will continue to force some voters to two locations in an election. But we can minimize the headache.

The change to single-member districts was an important step in bringing disenfranchised voters into the election process. It's ironic that the very process designed to help involve people in "the system" effectively served as a barrier to voting. Maybe we can do something about that before next year.

Billy Graham

You must resist world's tempting

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Have you ever heard the little joke that goes, "I can resist everything but temptation"? That describes me perfectly. I know I shouldn't get involved in a lot of things that I do, but I just can't seem to break away from them. -

DEAR G.S.: Would it surprise you to hear that the Apostle Paul perhaps the greatest Christian who ever lived — once experienced much the same problem? Listen to what he says: "I do not understand what I do...For I have the desire to do what is good, but I cannot carry it out" (Romans 7:15,18).

what is the problem each of us faces when we try to fight temptation? The problem is usually not that we don't know what is right, but that we don't have the moral and spiritual strength. And the reason we don't is because we are sinners. Sin is like a disease that cripples us and keeps us from doing what is right.

The first step for you--and the most important step you will ever take--is to admit your failure and turn to Christ for forgiveness and new life. You need Christ, and he wants to come into your heart if you will but turn to him by faith. He will cleanse you and forgive you, and then he will help you live as you should. This is what Paul

How will Christ help you? As you grow closer to Christ and his Word, you will find many of the things that once attracted you begin to fade. The Bible says, yourselves, then, to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Come near to God and he will come near to you" (James 4:7-8).

Then God will also help you in practical ways as well. He wants to give you Christian friends, who will help you to avoid temptation when it first arises. You know that there are certain situations which you cannot handle right now — you know you will be tempted beyond your ability to resist. If that is the case, stay completely away from them and don't even let Satan gain a foothold.

The greatest calling on earth is the calling to follow Christ. Give your life to him, and he will help you become the person he wants you to

Drilling deep for mergers

It's not every day that Congress does the right thing on energy policy, so when it does, it deserves notice. The Senate's vote last week against a moratorium on oil company mergers is a rare case of election year hyperbole yielding to economic sense. But there are thorns with this rose: the irrational panic generated by the recent spate of mergers, and the prospect that public fear eventually may produce legislation. Economic folklore usually depicts corporate mergers as nothing more than an attempt by rapacious and unscrupulous capitalists to monopolize a market. But there is nothing remotely resembling monopoly in the oil market. In fact, the mergers are more likely to promote competition than to stifle it.

A takeover ordinarily means that one firm has a set of assets that aren't being used to their full productive potential. That's the reason another firm is willing to spend money to acquire them. If the second firm couldn't make any more money from them than the first firm, there would be no reason to acquire it: the cost of doing so would just equal the value of the assets. Only if it can manage the resources better will it make money on the deal. That means stiffer competition for

The oil company mergers that have sprouted up in recent months fit this pattern. Each — Texaco-Getty, Socal-Gulf, Mobil-Superior - involves a company strong in the refining and marketing end of the business, but weak in exploration and production, joining with a firm with the opposite characteristics. Texaco, for example, will more than double its domestic oil reserves by acquiring Getty, which is sixth among American oil companies n reserves but only 17th in gasoline sales

Thus the logic of a takeover: A firm that knows how to find oil may need help in selling it, and a firm that knows how to sell has to have a product. A merger solves both problems. By taking advantage of economies of scale, it may also reduce costs. Lower costs eventually reduce prices, a boon to consumers.

Nor does the size of the companies involved suggest any conspiracy against the consumer. None of the origianl firms holds more than 3.5 percent of the total oil and gas reserves owned by U.S. firms. When combined, none of them will have more than 6.5 percent of

The picture at the retail level isn't much different. The Socal-Gulf merger combines two of the nation's top seven retailers, but together they account for less than 11 percent of all U.S. gasoline sales. Those shares of the crude oil and gasoline markets aren't likely to confer any real power over oil prices or output.

The charge that the loans required to finance these deals will drive up interest rates and reduce the supply of funds ot buy another firm, the money doesn't vanish: it goes into the bank accounts of the second firm's stockholders, who presumably will invest it in other ventures. No reduction in capital funds, so no increase in interest rates.

There is also at least one perverse reason for the mergers - though it's no excuse for the sort of moratorium proposed by Sen. J. Bennett Johnston (D-La.). One is uncertainty about government policy, particularly the windfall profits tax. If you're worried that the federal government will tax future oil sales at a higher rate than promised, as Congress is now considering, you're less likely to spend money trying to find that oil — a risky proposition in the best of circumstances. The attacks on the industry stimulated by the mergers is additional evidence, if any were needed, that the discovery and production of oil won't necessarily be rewarded.

Contrary to what some analysts argue, the deep perversities of the corporate income tax don't explain the rush to merge. Whatever wasteful behavior it promotes, it provides no special benefits to the purchase of oil companies by oil companies. Aside from the windfall profits tax, that leaves only one persuasive explanation for the phenomenon: it will enable companies to make more money by competing more effectively. Greater competition will benefit buyers. So the people in Congress who claim to represent the ordinary American ought to applaud these takeovers. When it refused to punish Big Oil for imagined sins, the Senate struck a blow for consumers.

A Closer Look

Bloody battle shapes up over funds

- Candidates for the Texas Legislature who can't stand the sight of blood better look for a way to take their names off the ballot this year.

It's beginning to look as though 1985 will bring one of those legislative sessions that leave everyone involved bruised, battered and bitter. The reason: money.

Faced with a persistent slump in the Texas economy, state legislative leaders are telling agency heads to prepare no-growth budgets for the two fiscal years beginning Sept. 1, 1985.

House Speaker Gib Lewis and House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jim Rudd recently sent agency officials a letter giving them the bad news. "We suggest that you not include any considerations for inflation, salary changes or growth," the letter said.

That instruction sent shock waves through the state bureaucracy, with each agency head claiming special circumstances make tight budgeting impossible.

At least two agencies have exceptionally strong arguments for special consideration in the 1985 session. The corrections and mental health-mental retardation departments are under federal court orders to improve their systems.

It's hard to understand why the budget problems came as a surprise to state officials. Comptroller Bob Bullock has been predicting hard times for several years. Even when he announced a record $5 billion surplus in 1982, he warned that there were "thorns among the roses.

But state officials have been cruising on easy street too long to pay attention to gloomy forecasts. The booming Texaseconomy, particularly in the oil and gas area, allowed dramatic spending increases without a tax increase. State officials just couldn't accept the predictions of harder

Also, for the past several months, Texans have been hearing warnings about the poor state of affairs in public schools. A special task force is proposing improvements - expensive improvements.

Gov. Mark White is committed to forcing a significant teacher pay raise through a special legislative session this year, and most legislators seem either supportive or resigned to the possibility of giving White what he wants. Since there is no surplus money for teacher pay, everyone knows that a tax bill will be necessary.

But a special session tax bill would place legislators in an unenviable position. They would have to come back in January faced with a hard choice between passing another tax bill to keep state services at least at their current level (with routine allowances for inflation and salary increases) or cutting those

A budget-cutting job would be even more difficult if, as many economists are predicting, the inflation rate rises rapidly the next couple of years. In a finance seminar at the University of Texas last week, Edgar Fiedler, vice president for economic research of The Conference Board in New York, predicted inflation rates of 12 to 15 percent in coming years. If that occurs, a spending freeze in the 1985-87 budget would significantly reduce state services and the personal purchasing power for all state employees.

State employees won't be happy about such a circumstance, particularly if they have just seen state taxes increased for teacher pay. Protest marches on the Capitol wouldn't be beyond the realm of possibility.

Most legislators also come to Austin with pet projects that their constituents want to protect and foster. They will be faced with either accepting funding cuts that will anger the folks back home or fighting a difficult battle to win legislative support for that

So, calling the 1985 legislative session a potentially difficult one is an understatement

But if you are a legislative candidate and, after reading the above, have decided to wise up and bow out of the May 5 party primaries, I have one last bit of bad news for you: it's too late to take your name off the ballot. But look at the bright side. Maybe

You want to be a cowboy

With the recent performances of the Howard College-Midland College Rodeo now history, the question pops up.

Ever wonder what it is like up on top of a bucking bronc or bull?

In talking to most cowboys they will tell you, "It's just something I got into." Most start riding steers when they are youngsters and began entering junior rodeos.

Rodeo is defined in the dictionary as an exhibition of the skills of cowboys for public entertainment; a roundup of cattle, but in today's breackneck pace world, rodeo is more of a business. It's not just a simple fact of going to the corral and jumping on a horse. Today there are cowboys and cowgirls on the professional circuit earning up into the thousands of dollars.

An acquaitance of this sportswriter, while attending junior college in Temple, said, "Probably the most outstanding people, however are the cowboys people never hear about."

My former classmate at good old TJC, Bobby said though that rodeo is not all rewards and glamour.

Many a time an injured cowboy or cowgirl will just wrap up and perform with pain. And since a competitor is not guaranteed a set salary, he or she has to compete in as many rodeos as possible.

The serious injury factor is rarer than might be expected, but Bobby told me once that after seeing two men die in the arena, he seriously asked the question, "Why am I doing this?

There is never an answer though.

REARING BACK - Big Spring Steers Eagles at Steers Park. Renteria was the pitcher David Renteria lets one loose in

Steers good first inning for naught in 16-9 loss

It was one tough loss for the Big Spring Steers to swallow as the Abilene Eagles rebounded from a 5-0 first inning deficit to beat the Steers, 16-9 in District 4-5A baseball action at Steer Field Saturday

The Steers looked to be on the road to their first district win in eight outings when they ripped Abilene starter Jay Gravens for five runs in the first.

John Hart led off the game with a single and scored when Danny Arista singled. Jay Pirkle had the big blow of the inning with a two run single that brought in Robert Porras and Arista, making the score 3-0. A passed ball allowed Pirkle to come home and starting pitcher David Renteria singled in Sammy Watson, who singled. Big Spring went on to collect 12

Gravens settled down, however and encountered no difficulty in the second and third innings when the Steers managed only one hit. Before he left in the fourth, Gravens scattered six hits, walked one and struckout two.

In the third Abilene's Mickey Russell hit the first of two homeruns - an inside the park job to leftfield that also brought in Steve Stacy. Russell's blast tied things in light of a run in the second and two more before the shot by the Eagles' first Things went from bad to worse in the fourth when the Eagles raked Renteria for two hits, plus getting some help in two Steers errors. After Stacy's triple made the score 8-5 Abilene, Renteria went to left while Pirkle came in from center to pitch. Abilene scored four more times before Pirkle was able to register the third out of the inning.

Big Spring made a rally in its own half of the fourth, getting within three runs at

Randy Hayworth led off the inning with a homer to left. A fielder's choice by Porras, a single by Arista and walk to Anderson loaded the bases. Pirkle sacrificed in Porras and Watson, who led all Steers with three hits, doubled in Arista and Pirkle pitched fairly well until the seventh when four singles, a walk and Russell's second homerun made the score 16-9 with two outs. Tommy Gartman came in and struckout Daniel Brewer for Watson led off the seventh with a single and advanced to second when Hayworth singled with two out. A fly to short ended an Steers comeback bid, however.

Big Spring is 0-8 and 6-17 overall. The Steers next game will be Monday, Apr. 9 in Midland against Midland High School.

Hawks ahead when rains come

That sums up the Howard College Hawks Region V baseball game here Saturday afternoon against Northwood

The Hawks were ahead 4-0 in the top of the eighth with Stephon Hodge at second and Bobby Behnsch at the plate with two strikes against him when the heavens sprung forth rain.

The game will pick up at that point at noon today as the Hawks try and finish the Knioghts off in the first game of a three game series. If they are able to play

today, a doubleheader will follow shortly after completion of the suspended contest

Howard will be trying for a sweep that would put the Hawks at 22-12 overall and 10-5 and firmly in second place in Region V. The top two teams make the playoffs.

Helping the Hawks to their situation over Northwood was a tough performance by Chuck Ashcraft on the mound. Ashcraft had a three hit shutout going and had eight strikeouts when play was interrupted. He had a no-hitter going through five and two thirds innings.

Morris no-hits White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Detroit's Jack Morris overcame a spell of wildness in the fourth inning when he walked the bases loaded with nobody out and went on to pitch a no-hitter Saturday as the Tigers defeated the Chicago White Sox 4-0.

Morris walked six batters and struck out eight en route to the first no-hitter of the 1984 season and the first for a Detroit pitcher since Jim Bunning did it in 1958. It was also the first no-hitter in Comiskey Park since Chicago's Joe Horlen nohit Detroit on Sept. 10, 1967. In the ninth inning, Morris locked up the no-hitter in fairly easy fashion, as the White Sox crowd of 24,616 starting stan-

Griffin finds rose garden in

By BILLY NABOURS Sports Editor

"Deep within my heart lies a melody, My rose, my rose of San Antone".

Words from the classic Bob Wills song probably sum up Howard Colege baseball coach Bill Griffin's feelings pretty well about the Alamo City - at least in terms of baseball talent.

As Griffin goes about his goal of building a com-petitive baseball program he does indeed have the Hawks smelling the roses. They are currently in second place in Region V action and while every player on this year's 21-man roster has contributed to that record there is something unique about one certain

You see, in his his quest to bring baseball to a competitive level at HC, Griffin has hit upon a San Antonio rose garden. There are eight players, almost one-third, playing for the Hawks. Three are full time starters.

Griffin explained his rationale behind having -Steve Carrasco, Jim Garcia, Bobby Behnsch, Kevin Kolodzie, John Friesenhahn, Kenny Spears, Gary Carr and Jeff Davis — so many players from the South Texas city on the roster.

Griffin, who came to Howard in 1982 after a long tenure at Panola Junior College in the East Texas city of Carthage, said he already knew the Dallas-Fort Worth area from his many years in that part of the state. "I was already pretty well in tune with the talent available in Dallas and Fort Worth and had a lot of contacts in that area," he said.

"I knew I would need more than just that one area in which to recruit though. So I spread out a map of the state and saw that San Antonio was the next largest Standard Metropolitan Area nearest Big Spring," said

Kenny Spears met with Griffin at 10 p.m., first baseman Bobby Behnsch met with the coach at midnight and catcher Gary Carr came by at 2 a.m. Later in the day Griffin met with John Friesenhahn and Steve Carrasco. Spears, Behnsch, Carr and Friesenhahn inked agreements to play for the Hawks. Carrasco went to the University of Texas, but is playing for Howard this season because the Longhorns thought it better for the centerfielder-pitcher to get some playing time in light of an already loaded UT roster. Carrasco is 4-1 on the mound. "These kids knew Big Spring was 300 miles away from home and that we were just starting our program at Howard, but they also knew they would get the tonio find himself 300 miles away in what some folks refer to as "the edge of baseball for a second year college team?

According to several of this year's eight Hawks that hail from the historic city, it's the chance to make a little history themselves.

There are eight players on HC's 21 player roster that call San Antonio home.

According to first baseman Bobby Behnsch, first on the team with 15 homeruns and 46 rbi's, "I was leaning towards Lubbock Christian College, but made up my mind to come to Howard after talking to coach Griffin (HC boss Bill Griffin). He gave me the opportunity to help build a program." Behnsch feels the program is heading "in the right direction. Howard College baseball is definitely on the way up. I just hope we continue winning and earn a spot at the state tourney." The Hawks are Friesenhahn and Spears agree that having almost one-third of the team hail from San Antonio is a unique experience. "Just be-

was just starting its program kind of put a damper on making up our minds I think," said Friesenhahn. He added that the damper didn't last very long though. Spears said that if future HC teams make the progress that 1984's squad has made, "Howard will become one of the top junior college programs in the state '

Catcher Gary Carr, third on the team in walks, from Lee High School, said he liked "Coach Griffin's style of recruiting and his background.'

Carr in turn told his former teammate at Lee, Kolodzie, about the chance to play at HC. Kolodzie. fourth on the team in strikeouts, said he is "Just now where I want to be in terms of pitching." The sophomore transfer was bothered early in the season with shoulder problems, but looked good in a recent game against Ranger when he scattered seven hits before leaving in the sixth with a 3-0 lead. He notched six strkeouts.

Jeff Davis knew Friesenhahn and Spears and learned about HC's hopes and progress. And like the others, Davis said he was "impressed by coach Griffin.'

All the San Antonio products indicated they would encourage any San Antonio schoolboys to continue their baseball careers wearing the Red and Grey of the Hawks should they desire to do so.

Behnsch summed things up when he said, "The door has always been open here at Howard.

INSTRUCTION (R) IBM COMPUTERS I will be available for sales and service of the IBM PC and its software through Agriplex, Lubbock, Texas. I will be teaching software in clubs and, perhaps, college. The Instructions are written out in the software step by step and can be accessable for any problem at any time, but for the major part it is just 2 or 3 steps and you are doing what you want to do. I guarantee that their software will be usable or i will get it changed. HOUSTON (AP) - A woman who was abducted and left in her trunk for 10 hours blames confusion for a police dispatcher's refusal to send help. Arlynea Shittli, 40, said she was not angry with the dispatcher. "I don't think they understood," she said. "The dispatcher who answered said they (police) only get kids out of trunks," said Vicki Campbell, a bartender who called police after hearing Ms.

Shittli's plea for help. An internal affairs investigation of the refusal to send help was dropped Friday, department spokesman Raul Correa said. He would give no reason for that action.

Shittli could free herself by releasing a latch inside the trunk, Ms. Campbell said. But Ms. Shittli said later that the car had no such latch.

Ms. Shittli, who was freed later by a friend who arrived with an extra key, was unharmed except for a few bruises.

Capt. Charles Bullock, head of the dispatch division, was not in his office Friday and could not be reached for comment.

Ms. Shittli said she stopped her Lincoln automobile at a west Houston intersection on Wednesday night and was bumped by a vehicle from behind.

She looked back and saw a woman driving the other car, accompanied by two men, she said.

Ms. Shittli said she opened her door and one of the men grabbed her neck and pushed her down on the car seat. He ordered her to lie still and be quiet, she said.

The kidnapper began to drive her car off, with his accomplices following in the other car. Ms. Shittli said she offered money but when she lifted her head, he pulled a knife and ordered her not to move.

Her abductors later took $1,130 in cash and checks from her briefcase, tied her up and left her in the

The kidnappers drove Ms. Shittli around and left the car parked on a west Houston street, where Ms. Campbell heard her call

PUNK HACKER — An unidentified youth, sporting a punk hairdo, sits at a computer terminal recently at the Hanover Fair in Hanover, West Germany. The fair is the world's largest industrial exhibition.

Mexican soldiers find large quantities of heroin poppies

CIUDAD VICTORIA, Mexico (AP) - Mexican troops engaged in military maneuvers near the Texas border stumbled on a hidden poppy plantation and seized the largest quantity of the heroin-producing flowers found in Mexico in a decade, authorities said

Heroin made from the poppies would have been destined for Texas cities and for shipment through the state to points north, authorities said.

The discovery confirms rumors of increased drug cultivation in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas which shares about 200 miles of border with the State of Texas between Brownsville and Laredo, said Ken Miley, agent in charge of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration office in McAllen, Texas.

"The first we heard of poppies in Tamaulipas was two years ago," Miley said. "Since then we've been hearing of more and more fields in that state.'

Mexican officials also seized laboratory equipment used for processing plants into heroin and 50 kilograms of poppy and marijuana seeds at the plantation known as El Roble, about 200 miles south of McAllen, according to a report in the newspaper, El Mercurio.

Soldiers found lush citrus trees camouflaging bushy, 4-foot high marijuana plants and carpets of pastel poppie flowers filling space between the grapefruit groves.

More than 75 acres of marijuana and 40 acres of poppies were discovered March 31 about 1 p.m. by Mexican troops engaged in exercises in the verdant agricultural valley near the Sierra Madre mountain village of Llera, according to Gen. Alfredo Moran

Soldiers found lush citrus trees camouflaging bushy, 4-foot high marijuana plants and carpets of pastel pop-pie flowers filling space between the grapefruit

Authorities said the plants were worth at least $5.7 million, but did not estimate the value of the orchards, irrigation system, fertilizer, tractors or other farm equipment seized at the site.

Forty workers who had recently started harvesting the fields fled before troops arrived, according to other workers at the Ejido Emiliano Zapata, a collective farm adjacent to the drug plantation.

No arrests have been made, Capt. Marcelino Bravo

About 35 soldiers toting automatic weapons have been assigned to the plantation to keep visitors away.

The soldiers are also harvesting and burning the plants in hip-high stacks, an operation that is expected to take two weeks, said Bravo who is supervising destruction of the fields. He said 70 tons of marijuana were burned Friday.

Authorities are searching for the owner of the pro-perty, believed to be from the State of Sinaloa, a major drug-producing area, said Benito Montoto Villarreal, editor of El Mercurio.

Montoto said the seizure signals the beginning of a crackdown on increased drug cultivation in Mexico's Secretary of Defense has sent military officials instructions to intensify narcotics investigations in Tamaulipas, said Acevedo. Montoto said a crackdown on growers in notorious marijuana-producing states like Sinoloa and Oaxaca has prompted drug growers to look for safer soil. DEA's Miley agreed. "You stomp it out in Sinoloa and it comes out in Tamaulipas or Nuevo Leon," he

The land and climate in the mountains of Tamaulipas resembles that of Sinoloa, Montoto said. And, he said, rural Tamaulipas has the added attraction of being isolated from city-based law enforcement agencies and close to the border making it convenient for smugglers.

"I feel the increase in drug production here is going to continue unless authorities take stronger measures," he said.

Authorities said the owner of El Roble may own as many as five other large plantations in Tamaulipas and adjacent states.

And they are all likely to be just as secluded. The long trip on a rutted, dirt road from the highway to El Roble passes mud and thatch huts, ox-drawn plows, fields of head-high corn and crosses a clear, mountain creek impassable at certain times of the year.

Woman thanks EMTs for saving life

By RHONDA WITT Lifestyle Writer

Jimmie Ringener, 49, was excited to meet emergency medical technicians (EMTs) Dale Pittman and Shane Schaffner and EMT student Tina Parker, of Schaffer Ambulance, Wednesday afternoon. Hugs, smiles and words of appreciation were exchanged as the technicians gave Mrs. Ringener a plant for her

Although this was the second time for the group to be together, Mrs. Ringener doesn't remember the first time. She was lying on the bathroom floor unconscious from a cerebral hemorrhage. The technicians went to her aid at 11:16 p.m., Jan. 16 when she became ill at

MRS. RINGENER'S ORDEAL began that evening at 8:30 p.m. when she complained to her husband, J.C. about her head hurting. After watching television with her husband, she went to bed with a headache.

After her husband went to bed, Mrs. Ringener got up and took some aspirins then went into the bathroom. "In less than a minute, she screamed 'J.C.'," said Ringener. "I ran in there, and she was squatted down throwing up blood. She said 'J.C., my head is killing me and I'm numb all over,' then she passed out."

Ringener phoned the operator for help. In less than seven minutes, the technicians had arrived. The EMTs worked quickly, but Ringener thought his wife was "I had already given her mouth-to-mouth resuscitation three times. I was nearly sure everything that could have taken place already had."

'I had already given her mouth-to-mouth resuscitation three times. I was nearly sure everything that could have taken place already had.'

Mrs. Ringener had a weak pulse, little respiration and blood pressure so low a reading could not be taken when the EMTs arrived. "We were really scared she was going to arrest on us," Schaffner said.

While Pittman and Schaffner were giving aid to Mrs. Ringener, Mrs. Parker went back to get something from the ambulance. "At the time she was still a gopher. A gopher is really important. We had familiarized her with the ambulance from one end to another. She knew exactly what to get," Schaffner

WHILE MRS. PARKER was getting equipment that was needed, the other technicians moved Mrs. Ringener from the bathroom to the bedroom where they had more room to work. They put her on a backboard so that in case she arrested, the EMTs could assist her in breathing.

Schaffner continued to aid Mrs. Ringener. Pittman and Mrs. Parker tried to figure out a way to get the woman from the bedroom into the living room. The bedroom's doorway was too small for the stretcher to go through. They decided to carry her on the backboard into the living room and put her on the

The team was at the Ringener's house for nine minutes but "it seemed like it was forever," Pittman said. The ambulance took Mrs. Ringener to Malone-Hogan Hospital where daughter Judy Kays had been waiting for 20 minutes. "It's a long 20 minutes, when you don't know what is going on," Judy said.

After Mrs. Ringener was in the emergency room, the EMTs stayed and helped the emergency room personnel for two hours. The group works closely together when a severe case is brought in. "When we went into the emergency room the doctor said he didn't think she would make it through the night," Mrs. Parker said. "Everyone thought she had had a massive stroke until

"Even the doctor after examining her told us to call in the family. He didn't think she would make it through the night," Mrs. Kays said at the reunion. Then looking at her mother, she added affectionately, "But you're here ain't you, Momma? She's a fighter.

WHILE IN ICU at Malone-Hogan, Mrs. Ringener developed pneumonia from the blood she vomited going back into the lungs. On Jan. 21, Barry Criswell, Wiley Madewell and registered nurse Katherine Decell did "an excellent job," Ringener said of taking Mrs. Ringener by ambulance to Midland for a CAT scan. After Midland, they took her to Odessa then Lubbock Methodist Hospital. "It was an all-day process," said Criswell who also was in the Malone-Hogan's emergency room, when Mrs. Ringener was admitted.

While at Lubbock Methodist, Mrs. Ringener developed a kidney infection and a rare blood infection that settled in her knees and ankles. The blood disease is so rare the doctor found only one other case in the United States, a 12-year-old in Washington D.C.

Mrs. Ringener required one surgery on the left knee and two on the right. She also had fluid drawn off the right ankle. "I don't know how many times she had the fluid drawn off her knees before the surgery,' Ringener said.

While in the hospital, Mrs. Ringener was on the critical list for 32 days. Throughout Mrs. Ringener's hospital stay in Big Spring and Lubbock, her husband stayed by her side.

Although she was allowed to come home March 29, er ordeal isn't over yet. She is undergoing physical therapy and is unable to walk. She has lost 50 percent of the sight in her left eye, which may require surgery, and has trouble remembering things. During her

MRS. RINGENER WILL RETURN to the Lubbock hospital, Tuesday. "They want to do surgery," Mrs. Ringener said. The doctor plans to put a shunt in her head to drain off spinal fluid, which is causing pressure

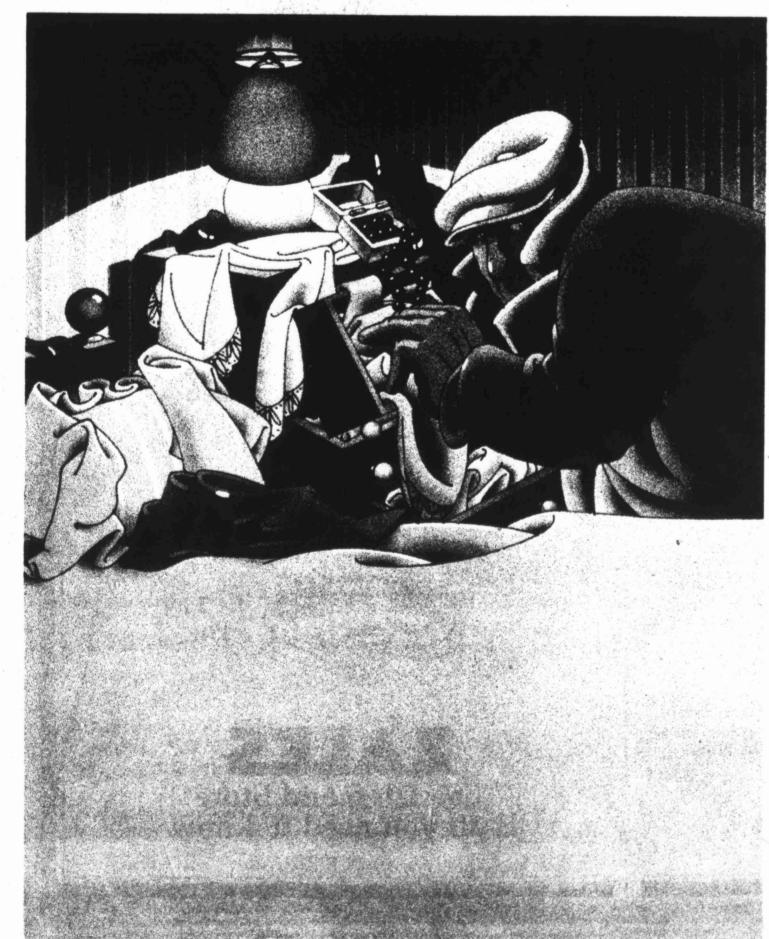

Mrs. Ringener believes she was well taken care of. "Everyone has been so nice," she said. She had nine doctors in Lubbock plus doctors in Midland, Odessa

After relating their experience, the group continued to visit. Mrs. Ringener told the EMTs and Mrs. Parker, "I want to thank you for saving my life."

Pittman responded by saying "We are just glad we got here in time." To which Mrs. Parker added "It's good to see you up."

Precautions can prevent burglary

By RHONDA WITT Lifestyle Writer

Before a person leaves his home or go on vacation, he needs to protect his home from the possiblity of burglary. If he doesn't protect his home, he could become a victim of crime.

In 1980, a burglary occurred every eight seconds at the average loss of $882 per incident. In Big Spring, 64 homes were illegally entered during January and

For a burglary to be committed, the criminal must have the opportunity, desire and ability, said Sgt. Fred Pace, crime prevention officer. By eliminating opportunity the burglary may be prevented. "The burglar wants to get in quick. If you can keep the burglar out of your home for three or four minutes you have defeated him.

When going out of town, even for one day, a person should notify the police department and a trusted neighbor, Pace said. "We (the police department) have a security house check form, which a person can fill out."

The form helps the police check on the empty home. "Officers assigned in the district where the house is located will check them daily for anything out of the ordinary, make a note of it and notify person watching the house."

NEIGHBORS CAN be helpful in preventing burglaries. The program, "Neighborhood Watch," consists of neighbors looking out for each other. The program unites a neighborhod in the job of crime prevention.

To help prevent a burglary, a person should take certain steps to protect his home. He should lock all windows and doors including the garage door. He should store all valuables in a safe deposit box or somewhere away from the home.

He should cancel or have someone pick up all home deliveries including mail and newspaper.

the person is gone may prevent a Police Department.

burglary from occurring. Place several lights and some appliances on automatic timers to give an occupied look to the home. Also, arrange for someone to cut the lawn or shovel snow from the walk while you are gone.

A PERSON SHOULD only tell trusted friends he is going out of town. Don't inform the local newspaper's society section of your plans beforehand.

By taking time to make a home safe from burglars and intruders before leaving, a vacation can be more enjoyable with less worry about the home.

'A person should always report it (a burglary) to the police, even if nothing is missing."

However, if a person is unfortunate enough to have his home broken into, he should call the police immediately. "A person should always report it (a burglary) to the police, even if nothing is missing," Pace said. Not reporting a crime can increases the chances of it happening again.

If a person thinks someone has broken into his home, he shouldn't go in, yell or walk around the house. The burglar may still be inside, and according to authorities, a trapped burglar could be dangerous. Instead, go to a neighbor's home and call the police.

To increase the chance of recovering stolen property, a person can participate in the program, "Operation I.D."
Through the program, the person marks his valuables with his driver's license number. The police have a pencil available for people who want to use it. After marking the items, a person should make a list and take pictures of the valuables, and save them. "By doing this, police officers will be able to readily identify stolen goods," Pace said.

Q. Most of the monthly payment for a home is composed of interest, rather than principal, for many years. How can a young couple cost justify this expense?

How can a young couple cost justify this expense?

A. The interest payments which go to repay the loan needed to purchase the home are deductible from personal federal income tax. The greatest deduction comes in the early years of home ownership when it is most needed by the young homeowner. Together, with property taxes, which are also deductable, interest payments in those early, years go a long way toward reducing the individual's federal income tax burden. And, the couple have had their own home to live in while creating a sizeable equity—another solid reason why homeownership can never be considered as anything less than an excellent investment. anything less than an excellent investment.

new, however. In ancient Rome, errings were more popular with men than women. Julius Caesar gave the trend a strong fashion push by urging men to wear them. A portrait of Shakespeare shows him wearing an earring while his Othello sported a gold ring in one ear. Pirates, of course, took a special fancy to the single earring. The English macaronis, the fops who are mocked in our song "Yankee Doodle," flaunted their earrings to shock the Puritans. Charles I went to his execution wearing a drop pearl in his right ear, which seemed to end the fashion of earrings for men for a long while.

without our permission. He didn't have a job and neither did the girl he married. She's 19 and very lazy They lay around our house for a couple of weeks eating, listening to music and watching television. Neither one of them went out to look for work.

My husband finally told them they would have to get out because they were getting on our nerves, so our son went down and joined the Marines. He was ordered to go to boot camp, so I asked him where his wife was going to stay and he said, "With you, Ma."

I couldn't kick her out and she couldn't go to her own mother's because they had kicked her out for marrying our son. We put up with her for three weeks, then our son was sent back form the Marines. They said he wasn't Marine material, whatever that means.

Now we have the two of them lying around eating, listening to music and watching television all day. My husband is fed up and so am I. What should we do? I hate to be cruel.

BALTIMORE MOTHER DEAR MOTHER: If you continue to give them bread and board, they will not be motivated to earn their own. Sometimes we have to be cruel to be kind. Let them paddle their own canoe.

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader that in America one summons a waiter by first catching his eye, then raising his hand with one finger pointing heavenward, and if necessary calling, "Waiter."

I am astonished that they call me "Daniel" immediately. Some even go so far as to call me "Dan" or "Danny." I think I deserve more respect and I deeply resent this uncalled-for familiarity. I don't know how to confront these presumptuous strangers and demand to be called "Mister" without sounding offensive, so I

All my friends and associates to whom I've mentioned this tell me I'd be foolish to even mention it because that's the way people are nowadays. They say that to demand that business acquaintances call me "Mister" would put a strain on our professional relationship.

What do you think? WITHHOLD MY SURNAME DEAR WITHHOLD: I agree with your friends and associates. There is no way you can demand to be call-"Mister" without coming across as arrogant, pretentious and self-important.

Most young professionals just starting out would be grateful to be called anything, as long as they're

Dr. Donohue

Reducing calories slows metabolism

Dear Dr. Donohue: You name the diet and I've been on it. But I can't lose an ounce. Even when I semistarve myself I don't lose. When I tell this to friends, I get that, "oh yeah?" look. I suppose I would get that same look from you because you are constantly saying that when the number of calories eaten is lower than the number of calories expended, you lose weight. I just don't find it true. Please make an honest woman of me.-Mrs.

I believe what you are saying. It isn't the caloriesin-calories-out system that's wrong, it's our body's internal calorie counter that causes the mysterious failure to lose

When we cut the number of calories taken in, this regulator shifts our bodies into low gear. It slows all our metabolic processes (calorie burning). In this sense our bodies are like misers who want to save every penny (calorie) they ever earned. So when you cut calories, you're not going to be using the same amount as when you are eating more. Some people can beat this system because their body regulators are not quite as good as yours.

Over the long haul, you should be able to overcome you body's caloriehoarding tendency. But there's an easier and faster way to do it, and that's by adding exercise to your reduced calorie diet. And the exercise has to be of the aerobic type, at least 15 minutes of acitivity that employs large muscles activities like running, swimming, cycling, etc.

Mrs. Larry Hudson demonstrated drawing an Indian girl in pastel chalk during a meeting of the 1941 Study Club of Coahoma in the home of Mrs. Rod Tiller, Monday.

Mrs. Hudson pointed out the beauty that can be captured on a canvas. She enjoys painting people, as she finds more beauty in them than in landscapes. Her paintings will be displayed in Ruidoso, N.M. this year.

A Senior Party will be held May 8. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., May 7 in Colorado City for a tour of the A.W. Rowe's home.

FOOTPRINTS

One night a man had a dream. He dreamed he was walking along the beach with the Lord. Across the sky flashed scenes from his life. For each scene, he noticed two sets of footprints in the sand; one belonging to him, and the other to the Lord. When the last scene of his life flashed before him, he looked back at the footprints in the sand. He noticed that many times along the path of his life there was only one set of footprints. He also noticed that it happened at the very lowest and saddest times in his life.

This really bothered him and he questioned the Lord about it. "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you'd walk with me all the way. But I have noticed that during the most trouble times in my life, there is only one set of footprints. I don't understand why when I needed you most you would leave me.

The Lord replied, "My precious, precious child, I love you and I would never leave you. During your times of trial and suffering, when you see only one set of footprints, it was then that I car-

THINK SUN

But think smart! The sun we love can give us beautiful golden tans, but it can also provoke formation of some forms of cataracts. Medical experts now think that cataract formation occurs more frequently in sunny climates and among people who work and play outdoors. Poor quality sun glasses won't provide you adequate protection from harmful sun rays. In fact, they may even allow greater harm to your eyes. Be safe! Local CPA MAXWELL GREEN has an editorial comment published in the March/April 1984 issue of West Texas Business titled "Power of IRS 'Totally Awesome."

Green writes that the IRS may invade the privacy of our papers, cause us to bear self-incrimination, and confiscate our private property in a tax examina-tion. They can make us feel we have to pay something we originally thought was an allowable deduction, and make us feel we have no rights at all. Green also says the tax payer may seek help from his tax advisor, who may say "go ahead and pay it. It will cost you more to fight the case than the amount the agent says you owe." Another option he mentioned was to appeal the findings. However, no matter how high you strive to appeal the findings - even all the way to the Supreme Court of the United States - chances are you will lose the battle. And many of the judges that would hear your case depend on the IRS for your livelihood. Green concludes by saying, the power granted by Congress to the IRS is awesome. He believes the Congress should restore a person's Constitutional rights, and if they don't restore rights, then the people have one alternative — a

A rather interesting statement I believe. Read it and tell him what you think. I'm sure he would be glad to hear
