Borden judge still opposed to dump site

By JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

GAIL — County Judge Van York has returned from a trip sponsored by the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority to Barnwell South Carolina's low-level nuclear dump site.

'The trip did not change my mind. I'm still opposed to a nuclear waste dump site in Borden County.'

— Van York, Borden Co. judge

"The trip did not change my mind. I'm still opposed to a nuclear waste dump site in Borden County," York said today.

York said, "They certainly take a lot of precautions in receiving and handling the radioactive waste materials for something that's supposed to be safe.

"I believe that the people in South Carolina are experts, they've been around nuclear activity since the '50s, but they still don't know what will happen 50 years down the road," he said.

"No, they didn't change my mind. It's 50 years from now that I'm worried about," declared the judge. "What happens then? That's the question that nobody can answer."

"I don't know what the next move in Borden County will be," he said, "but, I do know that Dell City (Hudspeth County) is bringing an environmentalist down from Washington next week to help them in opposing a proposed site near there," he said.

The trip to the South Carolina dump site cost the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority $3,200, agency officials said. It was designed to show officials from proposed Texas dump sites how safe nuclear waste sites are.

FUN, FUN, FUN — Jennifer Fulton, 5, and Jason Draper, 6, enjoy recess time at Jack & Jill School on a warm Spring day, recently.

Rebate higher in April

April sales tax rebates for Big Spring increased from the same month last year, but still remain down for the year-to-date, according to figures released from the state comptroller's office.

Big Spring rebates were $66,516 this month, up from $49,431 last April. This year's to-date payments are $441,981, down 15.51 percent from last year's to-date payments of $509,132.

The rebates are money from the 1 percent city sales tax collected by the state comptroller's office.

Rebates for the state this April are up 16 percent from last year, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock. Bullock said local sales tax payments totaled $46.3 million this month.

Forsan, Coahoma, Howard County and other area counties' sales tax rebates from the state comptroller's office are up this month from rebates last April, according to the figures.

2 grandmas jailed for court contempt

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Two grandmothers, described by their friends as sweet, God-fearing and stubborn, have spent more than four days behind bars because they refused to tell a judge where another woman had stashed her money.

An attorney for Evelyn Hertzog and Dorothy Pauline Lindsay, both 65 and both of Denison, said the women would be released from their Grayson County jail cell today on the orders of U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice in Tyler.

They had been caught in a legal dispute between the sister of Mrs. Hertzog, Mary Ellen Bader of Sherman, and Mrs. Bader's children, who are seeking control of her estate.

Mrs. Hertzog and Mrs. Lindsay sided with their friend and against a county judge, who demanded that the women tell him where Mrs. Bader had hidden an estimated

The judge cited the women for contempt during a hearing Wednesday and ordered them to jail.

"They're great little old ladies," a jail spokesman told the Dallas Times Herald. "They're in a separate cell by themselves. It's a standard cell with a couple of beds, a toilet, a shower and a table to eat on. They're getting regular jail food."

Stephen Hefner, a lawyer representing the jailed women, argued before Justice on Sunday that the two women should be released. The judge agreed and said he would order the women's release, Hefner said.

He said the two women each would have to post a $500 bond to assure their appearance at an as-yet unscheduled federal court hearing.

Their saga began last Wednesday when they accompanied Mrs.

Bader, 55, to a court hearing in Sherman to offer moral support, friends said. Mrs. Lindsay is Mrs. Hertzog's next-door neighbor.

Mrs. Bader's son, Walter, was appointed a temporary guardian of his mother's estate in January after he convinced County Judge Lloyd Perkins she was mentally incompetent to manage her own affairs. Bader has been attempting to gather his mother's assets for safekeeping.

Mrs. Bader says she is not mentally incompetent and is resisting her son in court. She has refused to turn over $45,000 in cash she received when her husband, a retired building contractor, died four years ago.

"I'm not hiding it. I just say that it belongs to me and he has no right to have guardianship over me," she said Sunday. "I don't honor that."

During a court hearing Wednesday, Mrs. Bader refused to tell the probate judge where the money was.

Bader's lawyer, Scott Pelley, said he then decided to put Mrs. Hertzog and Mrs. Lindsay on the witness stand, a move he called "a stab in the dark."

"They indicated they knew where the assets were and refused to tell us," Pelley said.

Pelley said Perkins was "very patient with these ladies" and advised them to consult with an attorney. But after returning with their lawyer, the women again refused to tell where the money was, Pelley said.

Perkins said he then ordered the women to jail.

"I begged them to reconsider what they were doing," Perkins said. "I let them consult with their attorney before I cited them for contempt. I didn't feel I had any other choice."

Perkins said Sunday he had "not received any indication" that the women had changed their minds about testifying.

Mrs. Bader, who escaped the judge's contempt order because she allegedly is incompetent, said she is troubled that her friends are in jail on her behalf. But she said she had no intention of getting them out by revealing where the money is.

"We're standing for what is right," Mrs. Bader said. "They are trying to take over ownership of my property. We're standing for truth and justice."

Jonna Pelty of Sherman, a friend of Mrs. Hertzog, said she doubts the woman will change her mind.

"She is very strong-willed. She is a very godly woman. I believe she will stay in jail. I believe she has made a stand that she is not going to tell. This could go on for I don't know how long. She is very honest and truthful and does what she believes in," Mrs. Pelty said.

Six persons claim they were held captive by ranch family

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Authorities hope to receive results today of tests on bone fragments found at a Kerrville-area ranch where six people allege they were held as virtual slaves and where one man says he was forced to burn a human body.

"Obviously, those results will determine where our investigation goes and its intensity," Kerr County Sheriff Cliff Greeson said Sunday.

Greeson also said he is looking for at least one more person who apparently was held at the ranch, located about 20 miles northwest of Kerrville near Mountain Home.

"We really want to find him if we can," Greeson said.

Three people — Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 53; his son Wesley Jr., 31; and daughter-in-law Joyce Ellebracht, 29 — remained in the Kerr County jail on Sunday in lieu of $100,000 bond each. Greeson said their arraignment on aggravated kidnapping charges could come this week.

Five men and a woman, described by authorities as drifters who were picked up while hitchhiking, allegedly were kept at the ranch and forced to work there. Officials reported that the six said they had been chained to trees and threatened with cattle prods.

"There were kept down there in the barn. It's as remote as it can be," Greeson said. "It was terribly degrading. They were forced to sleep in a barn with a dirt floor. They slept on old mattresses and ate canned food they cooked in an old wash pot," he said.

Larry Todd, spokesman for the Department of Public Safety in Austin, said Sunday that DPS experts were working on the bone fragments. He described the case as "really weird."

If the tests reveal that the bone fragments were human, Greeson said law officers would return to the ranch for further investigation. He said officers armed with search warrants gathered evidence at the ranch on Friday and Saturday. The Ellebracht's were arrested Friday.

The 3,500-acre ranch is located on what Greeson described as "real hilly, real rough terrain." In the past, he said, lawmen only heard about the ranch "when we'd get calls about their cattle getting out and getting up on Interstate 10."

The six people "were drifters who hitchhiked from Florida to California and back. They weren't the type to have relatives who would report them missing," Greeson said.

The sheriff said the six do not want to discuss their ordeal. He said they are being carried by "a local organization that doesn't want its name released."

A man who notified the Texas Rangers about the allegations 10 days was also in seclusion, Greeson said.

Lawmen who freed the six Thursday night encountered no resistance, Greeson said. He said sheriff's deputies, the FBI, Texas Rangers and Department of Public Safety officials raided the ranch Friday and made the arrests.

Greeson said one man told authorities he was forced to burn the body of another man who he said died at the ranch.

New garbage pick-up system on city agenda

A change in the system of garbage collection in Big Spring that will require an investment of $1.4 million could be approved by city council Tuesday night.

If approved, implementation of the containerized system could begin by June 1 and could be completed within 90 days.

The council is set to consider a package of recommendations from the Public Works Department which includes these amendments to the city code:

- Restructuring of fees for garbage collection and for dumping at the city's sanitary landfill.

- A requirement that garbage be placed in lidded containers issued by the city.

- Regulations concerning the collection and disposal of certain types of garbage such as brush, manure and dead animals, and
- Regulations on where garbage containers can be placed.

Collection fees provided for in the proposals call for a $5 monthly charge for single family units and a $5 charge for each unit in a multi-family dwelling. Current charges are $3.50 per month.

Commercial collections will be charged according to the size of the container in use at the business. For twice weekly collection, charges, if passed by the council, will be $25 for a 1.5 cubic yard container, $35 for a 3-cubic yard container and $50 for a 4-cubic yard container. For trash pickup four times weekly, the charges will be $45, $75 and $100 respectively.

To implement the new program, the council will consider bids for 1,300 118-gallon trash containers, 1,600 1.5-cubic yard containers, and 700 3-cubic yard containers, as well as three new garbage trucks. The public works department has recommended the city buy the containers and trucks from Emco Corporation at an estimated total cost of $744,041.

Also, the council will consider the appointment of an engineer to oversee the conversion of the city landfill to a "balefill," where trash will be compacted into bales to extend the life of the present site.

The Public Works Department has estimated an initial capital outlay of $673,000 for setting up the baling system at the site, with annual cost of operating the baling system estimated at $134,000.

The council has appointed Crim Engineering of 711 E. Third as the consulting engineer in the conversion project.

Police Beat

Assault probe continues

Big Spring police today are continuing their investigation of an aggravated sexual assault on a juvenile boy that occurred last Tuesday afternoon near the intersection of FM 700 and Westover Road.

According to Lt. Jerry Edwards, two detectives have been assigned to the case and are following up leads that were called into police headquarters over the weekend following publication of a composite sketch of the suspect.

Police are looking for a blond 5-foot-4 inch to 5-foot-6 inch white male in his 20s in connection with the case. The assault took place April 3 between 3:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. A weapon was used during the assault.

● Eugene Clanton of 3229 Cornell told police at 3:42 p.m. Saturday that someone between 12 p.m. and 12:45 p.m. Saturday stole a garden tractor worth $3,500 from 1001 E. FM 700, police reports said.

● Police officer Tony Chavez, while on patrol early Sunday morning, noticed a door open at the Wagon Wheel #2 at 2010 Scurry. Investigation revealed that the business had been broken into between 9 p.m. Saturday and 4:50 a.m. Sunday. Taken were $122 in coins from the cigarette machine and the juke box, police reports said.

● Benjamin Deanda told police at 9:26 a.m. Sunday that someone between 9 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday stole his 1968 Chevrolet pickup worth $600, police reports said. The car was unlocked and the keys were in the vehicle, according to police reports.

● Jerry L. Ballard, 30, of Gail Route was arrested at 12:48 a.m. Sunday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police reports said.

● Frank Rubio, 25, of 621 N.W. Fourth was arrested at 10:19 a.m. Monday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police reports said.

Lounge burglary reported

Howard County sheriff's deputies are investigating an early Monday morning burglary at Red's Place Lounge on North State Highway 350.

Someone knocked a hole through cinder tile in the lounge and took beer and change from pool and game tables, according to sheriff's office reports.

The tile had been used to brick up a window that was broken in an earlier burglary, deputies said.

● Two men serving jail terms on county court sentences were released Sunday.

Sabas Torres, 49, of Coahoma was given credit for three days served this weekend on a 10-day sentence from a driving while intoxicated conviction. He previously served two days on the sentence.

Raul John Rivas, 34, of 805 Lorilla was released Sunday after completing his two-day county court commitment.

● Tom Green County sheriff's deputies arrested Mattie Grothe, no age given, of San Angelo on a Howard County warrant for suspicion of issuance of a bad check. She was released on $500 bond set by Howard County Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

● Jerry Lynn Bullard, 29, of Gail Route was transferred from the police department to the county jail on suspicion of DWI. He was released on $500 bond set by Peace Justice Heflin.

300 persons turn out for symphony debut

Over 300 people turned out for the premiere of the Big Spring Symphony association concert Saturday night.

Johnny Lou Avery, a Symphony association founder, said that the group needed to "sell $500 worth of tickets at the door Saturday night to break even. We weren't a bit surprised when we sold $1,100 in tickets opening night."

Sam Woodward, symphony president, said that a representative of the Texas Arts Commission Orchestra from Lubbock "was very impressed" with the quality of the concert and community support.

Woodward said the Lubbock man told him the crowd was "as large as any recently seen in Lubbock."

Marianni Gabbi, musical director and conductor of the Las Cruces Symphony led 35 musicians through Mozart's Opera Overture "Don Giovanni," Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in D minor, Bartok's "Rumanian Folk Dances" and Pablo Casals' "Cant Dell Ocell."

Symphony Guild members presented Gabbi with a birthday cake during the wine and cheese reception that followed the concert.

Back home again

George Jones builds dream house in Texas

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Country singer George Jones vividly recalls his early childhood, growing up in a log cabin in Saratoga, Texas.

It was only fitting then after he made his way to the top of the country music field, having won virtually every country music award there is, that Jones should return to East Texas to share his fortune with "his people."

What resulted was Jones Country Music Park near Colmesneil in Tyler County, a nearly 100-acre park facility open April through October for country music concerts featuring Jones and some of the nation's top country entertainers.

The park opened last year and since that time, Jones has fallen so in love with the facility that he has decided to build his home there — and once again it will be a log house.

Joe Rogers of Nacogdoches will lay his claim to fame when the house is completed. Rogers, owner of Texas Log Homes in Nacogdoches, has been contracted by the country star to build the 3,600 square foot log home.

"There's just something about a log house," said the country music legend, on hiatus from a grueling schedule of concert appearances. "They're already cozy as soon as they're built. I was born and raised in a log house and I've always wanted to live in one again. Of course this one I'm building here isn't quite like the one I was born in — it had a kitchen and two bedrooms and would probably fit into the garage of this new one."

The house will not be a tourist attraction as much as it will be "home" for Jones and his new wife, Nancy.

"I'm a Texan and a country boy," said Jones, "and when I get off the road (from concert tours) I like to be able to enjoy the Piney Woods where I'm from. I built the park so I'd have a place to retire to. In couple or three years I want to start slowing down from the business. I'm not a spring chicken anymore and I've been away from home so long ... I've roamed the countryside here, there and everywhere and I wanted to move back home."

Jones and Rogers are distant relatives and thus knew each other before there was any discussion about building the log home.

When Rogers learned that Jones was building his country music park at Colmesneil, he sent the country music entertainer information about his log home business.

"One day, about the first of May, George and Nancy pulled up in front of my house and looked around," said Rogers. "They asked questions and George told me he wanted me to build him a log house."

Jones and his wife agreed on the plans for the house but just before Rogers was ready to start construction, Jones, while on a road trip, saw another log home he liked. He asked Rogers about the home and if he could build one like it for him.

"We took pictures of the house George liked," said the Nacogdoches builder, "and made lots of changes and started again. George just liked the overall appearance of the other house better than the one we originally planned. We ordered the logs in October and they came in right after Christmas."

The logs are all yellow pine and are ordered from Arkansas. Rogers said he did not know exactly how many board feet of logs were being used for the house, but "it took five tractor-trailer rigs pulling 40-foot lowboy trailers to get it all down here."

Rebates

Combined rebates for Howard County this month show the county receiving $68,047 this month; last April, it received $51,854. But year-to-date payments are down, at $441,981, from $522,797 last year, a decrease of 15.46 percent.

Coahoma's rebates for this month are $1,531, down from $2,423 last April. Payments for the year-to-date, $9,606, are slightly below the $9,760 of last year, a decrease of 1.58 percent.

Forsan did not receive a check this month or last April. Payments this year of $2,216 remain 43.24 percent less than last year's of $3,904.

Mitchell County rebates this April were up, at $13,264, from last April's rebates of $11,022. County rebates were up 15.37 percent for the year-to-date, at $80,892 from last year's figure of $70,115.

Colorado City's sales rebates this month are $12,358, up from $10,505 in last year. Year-to-date figures are up 13.66 percent, at $76,467, from $67,276 last year.

Lorraine received no rebate this month; last April they received $517. Rebates for the year-to-date, $1,616, are down 43.11 percent from last year's figure of $2,840.

However, Westbrook received $907 this April; last year, they did not receive any rebates. Year-to-date total rebates for Westbrook are $2,809.

Stanton received $1,830 this month, compared to $1,386 last April. Rebates are down 4.65 percent this year, at $12,784, from last year's figure of $13,407.

April rebates for Lamesa this year are $24,652, up from last April's total of $14,031. The year-to-date rebates are down slightly. Last year the city collected $142,662, compared to $140,112 this year.

USA Film Festival places Dallas in cinema spotlight

DALLAS (AP) — Alan Alda was convinced that audiences would like his movie "The Four Seasons," but studio executives disagreed and put it on the shelf.

Alda decided to ask Middle Americans what they thought of the picture. They saw it at the USA Film Festival in Dallas.

"The audiences loved it," said Sam Grogg, director of the film festival. "He got some studio executives in to see how much they liked it. All of a sudden the studio realized, maybe in Middle America. Most films open and are tested in Westwood (in Los Angeles). It's not the right perspective on the world. You can't tell them that, but it's not."

While most film festivals battle red ink, the USA Film Festival, fueled by Dallas dollars, prospers. Once an esoteric event for local film buffs, it has become a respected national film showcase.

"Diner," a sweetly comic story of late '50s male coming-of-age had only been seen in New York and its setting, Baltimore, before it was shown at the 1982 USA Film Festival, winning critical acclaim and national distribution.

"The Stuntman," starring Peter O'Toole as a charismatic movie director, and "The Ace," with Robert Duvall as a career military man whose son finally learns to love him, languished before earning second releases after appearances at the film festival.

Convincing studios to take Dallas seriously has been a battle against tradition, Grogg said. "The trade papers don't report grosses from Dallas," he said. "Variety still uses stringers and the sons and daughters and nephews of stringers who were in the old vaudeville towns. They'll report grosses from St. Louis and Kansas City but they won't report Dallas."

With the later box-office success of some of the films introduced at the USA Film Festival, that is changing. "It's only been in the last three or four years that Dallas has been considered a place where that initial break could be made," Grogg said.

"In terms of amount of money and acceptance in the industry, we're one of five or six film festivals in America that are really noteworthy, in that the industry pays attention," he said.

This year, the festival felt comfortable enough to shun big-budget, big-star premieres and featured instead independent films, artistic departures by known directors and first efforts by unknowns.

Grogg, who schedules the films to be shown at the festival, said the major studio films are usually not too hard to judge.

The independent films are a different matter. Grogg goes once a year to Los Angeles to wade through reels of film, not to mention anxious would-be movie moguls.

Brockman elected to Coahoma council

COAHOMA — Jerry Brockman, 401 S. Second, was one of four newly elected aldermen in Saturday's city elections. Brockman who received 149 votes. He is employed by Riley Drilling Company.

Brian Jensen and Lawrence Aberegg joined Brockman in defeating incumbent aldermen Ronnie Dodson and Billy Sullivan. Gary Roberts was elected to a one-year term on the council.

Brockman's name was inadvertently left out of the election story in Sunday's Herald.

Commissioners told they need plat requirements

By KEELY COGHLAN, Staff Writer

Developers may have to do more work on subdivisions before Howard County Commissioners will accept their plats.

County Engineer Bill Mims today appeared before the court to ask commissioners to establish plat requirements.

Currently, the county does not have any plat requirements; however, the county does have road construction standards.

According to Mims and County Clerk Margaret Ray, the county has a problem with plat records.

"Right now, we can't find plats in some areas that county roads go through," Mims said.

"There are a lot of areas like that," Mrs. Ray said. Mims is asking that the county adopt drainage, traffic, road construction and paving standards before the commissioners approve any more plats.

"If we had good standards in subdivisions we would not have to worry about dead-end roads and lack of access to some areas. The county wouldn't have to come back in to put bridges because of poor drainage," Mims said.

The county surveyor and county clerk have set similar standards in Tom Green, Martin and Midland counties, Mims said.

One requirement Mims has asked for would make developers responsible for paving main arteries through subdivisions.

He also is asking commissioners to require caliche covering on all county roads. Currently, developers have been putting roads through without paving them and telling buyers the county will pay for the paving, Mims said.

In other business the commissioners:
● Agreed to make a part-time employee full-time in the county clerk's office at a cost of $4,000 a year.
● Agreed to hire eight students to pick up litter on county roads.

Lawyers say Lucas incompetent

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Defense attorneys for Henry Lee Lucas want to convince a jury that the 47-year-old drifter was mentally incompetent when he confessed to a 1979 murder for which he now faces a possible death sentence.

The prosecution rested Thursday in Lucas' capital murder trial after presenting the only evidence against Lucas — five taped and written confessions.

Later Thursday, defense attorneys presented witnesses who said Lucas was in Jacksonville, Fla., the week of Halloween 1979, when an unidentified woman was killed and her body dumped along a highway near Georgetown.

The trial was moved to San Angelo on a change of venue. Testimony was scheduled to continue today.

Prosecutors said details Lucas gave in the statements were confirmed by the little material evidence found at the crime scene, such as objects located near the body.

On Friday, State District Judge John Carter called a recess at the request of defense attorneys after Lucas broke down and wept during a psychologist's testimony about the 47-year-old drifter's childhood.

Austin psychologist Tom Kubiszyn, who questioned Lucas for about 6½ hours in February, testified that Lucas suffers from chronic schizophrenia and has delusions "that he can read the thoughts of other people, that he can tell what other people are thinking."

Kubiszyn said Lucas lived in a one-room home with his crippled father and a mother "he described as a heavy drinker who had sexual relations with many men. He frequently witnessed his mother having intercourse with his father and strangers."

Lucas killed his mother in 1960 in Tecumseh, Mich., after an argument.

Kubiszyn said he considers Lucas dangerous and said he should be institutionalized.

Lucas, who has claimed responsibility for 150 killings, has been convicted in two Texas murders and is charged in eight others, four of them capital.

Evolution book stirs trouble

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas coordinator for People for the American Way said Monday scientists, educators, clergy and citizen groups have petitioned the State Board of Education to repeal "anti-evolution textbook" rules.

The board meets Friday and Saturday in El Paso. Michael Hudson of American Way, a national anti-censorship organization, noted that board rules require evolution to be identified as "only one of several explanations of the origin of humankind."

Hudson said if the board fails to repeal the rules, the "courts will be the next resort."

The petition also calls on the board to consider delaying adoption of new biology and elementary science textbooks as long as necessary to "insure that the textbooks reflect the highest standards of scientific excellence and integrity."

Hudson said in a statement that a schedule indicated the board would discuss the evolution rules in a closed session at El Paso, and he urged the board to hold the discussion in an open, public session.

Water board incumbents win

SAND SPRINGS — Voters returned three incumbents to the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 board in voting Saturday at the community center.

Jimmy Earnest received 142 votes, Oscar Cagle 138 votes and Richard Phinney 131 votes in their unopposed bids for re-election.

Beatles museum opened

LIVERPOOL, England — Queenie Epstein, mother of Brian Epstein, the late manager of the Beatles, has formally opened a museum dedicated to the Fab Four in the nightclub district where the musicians got their start more than 25 years ago. About 300 fans attended the ceremony Sunday in the former warehouse that now houses more than 1,000 pieces of Beatle memorabilia from the band's start to the death of John Lennon in December 1980. "The opening was an enormous success and very emotional for some fans who were in tears," said Ron Smith, spokesman for the museum. Items on display include the bus from the Beatles' film "Magical Mystery Tour," Ringo Starr's customized car, guitars, stage clothing, posters and world tour photographs. As many as 500,000 visitors are expected by the end of the year, said Smith.

Trip to Mars impossible

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — The oldest American to travel in space, Dr. William Thornton, says that a mission to Mars is possible, from a physiological point of view.

The 55-year-old physician was aboard the Challenger space shuttle last fall mainly to conduct experiments on space sickness, similar to motion sickness experienced on earth but compounded by absence of gravity.

The astronaut told 175 people at a University of North Carolina Medical School alumni luncheon Saturday that his experiments uncovered surprising effects of weightlessness on bodily functions.

"The gut shuts down," said Thornton. "It just stops functioning." That's why astronauts were experiencing vomiting without nausea, he said.

Scientists now are on the verge of conquering space sickness, he added. "I am now firmly convinced that we can put people up for long orbits or send them off on a Mars mission and have them come back physiologically sound if we do the right things," Thornton said.

Tip's wife honored by Nancy

WASHINGTON — Millie O'Neill, wife of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., has been honored by Nancy Reagan, wife of President Reagan, for her work in support of Ford's Theater.

"It is always a special pleasure to be in Ford's Theater and tonight I feel doubly honored to have the privilege of giving a unique award to a truly marvelous lady," said Mrs. Reagan in remarks prepared for presentation of the Lincoln Medal to Mrs. O'Neill Sunday night.

The speaker's wife has helped raise nearly $4 million dollars for the theater over the past five years.

Twister hits Arkansas town

NASHVILLE, Ark. — Used cars were destroyed and unoccupied mobile homes were scattered up to four miles away when a tornado ravaged two businesses, but no one was injured.

"It's a good thing it happened yesterday (Sunday). If it had been today we'd had some people killed," Ed McCrary said as he began cleaning up his car dealership.

The twister did an estimated $500,000 to $750,000 damage when it swept through the south end of Nashville early Sunday afternoon. Most of the damage was at McCrary's Jebco Ford Co. and the adjacent Nashville Home Systems.

The tornado carved a path a half mile wide and two miles long, said Howard McMullan, coordinator of the Office of Emergency Services in Howard County.

"We've got a mess here this morning," McCrary said. "We're trying to clean up our building. We've got three mobile homes on top of it."

McCrary said all 25 of his used cars were destroyed, along with several new ones, McCrary said. He estimated he suffered about $350,000 damage.

Eight mobile homes worth about $156,000 were destroyed at Nashville Home Systems, said owner Gary Schrader. Friends reported finding pieces of his mobile homes up to four miles from the lot, he said.

The National Weather Service Sunday had tornado watches in effect for much of the state Sunday and reported severe thunderstorms across southern Arkansas. Hempstead and Nevada counties reported tornado sightings but none touched down.

Reagan lectures lawmakers

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, facing a Congress balking at supporting its deficit reduction plan, is now lecturing the lawmakers about what it sees as their proper role in formulating foreign policy.

In the view of one of President Reagan's most senior advisers, when it comes to criticizing a foreign policy course on which the president has embarked, Congress's opinions should be heard — but not in public.

And if the House and Senate are seen at all, they should be seen in a show of support for the administration, particularly if American lives may be at stake.

Those views were offered by a top White House official, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified but was subsequently identified by White House spokesman Larry Speakes as Robert C. McFarlane, the president's national security assistant.

His remarks, and two subsequent speeches by the president, capped a week in which Reagan's ire at congressional criticism of the now-ended deployment of the U.S. Marines in Lebanon spilled out into the public realm after being bottled up for more than a month.

At the heart of the criticism was a strong feeling on the part of administration officials that Congress' unwillingness to give wholehearted support to the use of the troops encouraged Syria and other opponents of the deployment to continue chipping away at the Marines' positions.

In a briefing on the president's foreign policy speech Friday to the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies, McFarlane used unusually sharp language, and language more direct than Reagan's, when it came to Congress' role in formulating foreign policy and then supporting the policy on which the president has decided.

He told reporters that "full and open debate and criticism is fine before the decision" is made.

Then, stressing the word "private," he added: "Full and private criticism is fine after that."

Reagan denies troop plans

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, fearing a lawsuit over the mining of Nicaraguan harbors, says it won't abide by World Court decisions on Central America, and has reportedly devised contingency plans for sending combat troops to the region.

President Reagan's spokesman, however, flatly denied today that such a contingency plan has been devised.

In announcing its decision to renounce World Court jurisdiction in Central America for the next two years, the State Department cited Nicaragua's move in the U.N. Security Council last week to condemn the mining of Nicaraguan harbors. Congressional sources say the mining by anti-government rebels is directed by CIA operatives.

"We believe that, as evidenced by their appeal to the United Nations Security Council, recent Nicaraguan behavior has shown a lack of serious interest in addressing regional issues," the department said Sunday.

Kathleen Lang, a State Department spokeswoman, declined to comment when asked if the move was taken to preclude claims over the mining.

But an administration official, who requested anonymity, said the department's decision was made in anticipation of a Nicaraguan lawsuit in the World Court, known formally as the International Court of Justice.

Other administration officials, meanwhile, confirmed the drafting of contingency plans for the use of U.S. combat troops in Central America. The officials, however, stressed that the contingency plans do not differ from those drawn up for other trouble spots.

At the White House today, however, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes flatly denied such a move is even under consideration.

"We don't have any contingency plans that would involve U.S. troops in Central America," Speakes said.

Mondale holds slight edge

The Democratic presidential contenders are making their final pitches on pocketbook issues on the eve of Pennsylvania's primary, with Walter Mondale declaring "I'm for jobs" and Gary Hart telling unemployed steelworkers that his industrial revitalization plan could mean "guaranteed jobs."

"I'm going to be as strong for labor ... as Mondale," Hart promised Sunday while campaigning in steel country. "But I may not jump every time the leadership of the AFL-CIO jerks my chain."

Mondale, leading narrowly in the latest statewide poll, and Hart, trying to cut into the former vice president's labor strength, were flying across the state today in the last full day of campaigning before Tuesday's Democratic balloting.

WEST TEXAS — Fair and warm with some cloudiness in northern areas. Scattered thunderstorms east of the mountains. Lows near 40 in the Panhandle and mountains, rising to the 50s in the Big Bend. Highs in the 70s and mid 80s, except in the 90s in the Big Bend valleys.

Lightning kills man, hurts boy

A line of heavy thunderstorms that killed a Fort Hood soldier and critically injured an Arlington boy with lightning moved out of Texas early Sunday.

The soldier, whose name was being withheld pending notification of relatives, was riding his motorcycle when he was struck by lightning Saturday afternoon, a Fort Hood spokesman said. He was pronounced dead at 5:23 p.m. at Darnall Army Community Hospital, the spokesman said.

Nicky Schneider, 11, was in serious condition Sunday night at Parkland Hospital in Dallas. He was struck by lightning while playing soccer in Arlington about 4 p.m. Saturday, authorities said.

Schneider was still alive because of the efforts of a fourth-year medical student and another spectator, who administered cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, Arlington fire officials said.

Fire officials said the lightning knocked about a dozen people to the ground at the soccer complex. Four or five spectators went to nearby hospitals, but none was admitted, officials said. Most complained of headaches and hearing problems.

Avril A. Rush, the medical student who administered emergency first aid for Schneider, said she was watching her daughter's soccer game when she saw the lightning strike the youth.

"I saw the lightning hit him and he flew up into the air," said Mrs. Rush, a student at Southwestern Institute in Dallas. "I didn't see him come down because I was knocked down by the concussion (of the lightning). When I got up and looked around, I saw that everyone else who was knocked down was moving but him."

Much of the state was under a tornado watch Saturday evening as the severe thunderstorms marched across the state, producing half an inch of hail in Parker and Hood counties.

A possible tornado was reported in Atascosa and McMullen counties south of San Antonio between the towns of Tilden and Pleasanton, the National Weather Service said.

No injuries or damage were reported. The Jasper County sheriff's office reported receiving several calls of a loud roar resembling a tornado west and northwest of Jasper, in Southeast Texas, around 1:45 a.m. Sunday.

Plain-wrap rehearsal sets stage for Oscars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight's glittering Academy Awards telecast will be seen by millions of people in a record 75 nations worldwide, but the plain-wrap Oscar rehearsal was a far more exclusive event.

The Dorothy Chandler Pavilion was little more than two-thirds full for Sunday's run-through, during which such award presenters as Cary Grant, Sylvester Stallone, Mary Tyler Moore, Rock Hudson, Sammy Davis Jr. and Liza Minelli were put through their paces by director Marty Pasetta.

"This is all phony city today," Pasetta reassured acting nominees Jane Alexander and Michael Caine, who are also presenting an award, when they looked dubious about opening a realistic-looking Price-Waterhouse envelope.

All the envelopes opened during rehearsal named John Doe or Jane Doe as winner for a mythical film called "The John Doe Story."

In the real ceremony for the 56th annual Oscars, "Terms of Endearment" was considered the frontrunner for best picture. Its stars, Shirley MacLaine and Jack Nicholson, and writer-director James L. Brooks also were favored in their categories.

To keep the Oscar show from running over its allotted three hours, producer Jack Haley Jr. cut down on the live entertainment. But there will be a number of film tributes, including several honoring achievers of the 1934 Academy Awards.

Even without the evening gowns and black ties, the rehearsal was a glamorous affair for those who got tickets, mostly through connections to the academy, film studios, the show's producers or ABC-TV, which will televise the real event starting at 9 p.m. EST.

"If you can't get tickets to the awards, you come here," said one studio worker who refused to give her name. "It's exciting, it's a tradition, and I heard it's even funnier than the real show."

Security appeared about as tight as it will be tonight, and a knot of star-gazers and photographers gathered outside the Music Center's artist entrance to watch celebrities in bluejeans and windbreakers drive up.

On the bleachers outside the main entrance, a few hardy fans with sleeping bags, coolers and radios had already staked out choice seats near the red carpet that will be trod by most nominees tonight.

"We meet here every year," said Dee Dee Dube, 21, of Torrance, motioning to Frances Marquez, 27, of Los Angeles.

He arrived at 1 a.m. Sunday and she at 2:30 a.m.

"We're good friends for one day out of every year — two days," she said.

Inside, audience members oohed, aahed and applauded as their favorite stars mounted the stage during the long afternoon.

Crowd-pleasers included Grant, Caine and Miss Alexander, Miss Moore and Timothy Hutton, Ray Bolger and Gene Kelly, the comedy duo of Cheech and Chong, Stallone and Dolly Parton, Rock Hudson and Liza Minelli and George "Spanky" McFarland, who is participating in a tribute to veteran director Hal Roach.

The pairing of "Dynasty" seductress Joan Collins and muscleman Arnold Schwarzenegger, who are presenting technical awards, got laughs as well as applause.

Pasetta and his crew briefed emcee Johnny Carson and each presenter on everything from making an entrance to what to do if a winner is not present. (Read a brief speech saying where they are and congratulating them.)

"Do we walk on here?" Kelly asked at one point.

"You can dance on if you'd like," Pasetta said with a grin.

Some of the presenters took advantage of the informal atmosphere to have a bit of fun. After announcing all nominees for the best actor award, Stallone named as the winner: "Erik Estrada!"

Three killed by gunfire in Houston bar

HOUSTON (AP) — Three people were killed when two gunmen opened fire in a bar in northeast Harris County, sheriff's deputies said.

The gunfire erupted about 9:20 p.m. Sunday at Lee's Spot when two men who had been ejected from the bar earlier in the evening returned with guns, investigators said.

Two people were killed immediately when the men opened fire and a third died late Sunday at Tideland Hospital, authorities said. The third man was identified as Donald Paul Brunk, 31, a spokeswoman at the Harris County Medical Examiner's office said today. She said officials were still trying to reach the other victims' families.

A bounce returned the gunfire, wounding one gunman who was in serious condition today at Northeast Memorial Hospital, deputies said. The other suspect was taken into custody, investigators said.

Detective Jim Wallace said today no charges had been filed in the case. He said deputies did not know details of the dispute that led to the ejection of the gunmen.

Welfare reform is uphill battle

The General Accounting Office has been studying the impact of welfare cutbacks enacted in 1981 and has found that they accomplished their purpose. Spending on the principal federal welfare program, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, is running 9.3 percent lower than what it would have been without the new eligibility standards, and there are 493,000 fewer cases than there would have been under the old rules.

This should give rise to some satisfaction, considering how the welfare system has resisted reform. Still, the GAO report only points up that a smaller welfare system is not necessarily a better one.

President Reagan's idea was to limit AFDC benefits to families that would be destitute without them. Benefits would be denied to working parents who were supplementing their income with welfare and could be expected to get along without it.

The GAO study shows that most people removed from the dole seek to work more hours and did increase their earnings, but they still wound up "poorer" than they had been as welfare clients. One of the main reasons is that many of the families lost their eligibility for Medicaid, Food Stamps and other non-cash benefits that came with their welfare checks.

What this demonstrates once again is that the most difficult welfare problem lies with people who are on the margin between total dependence on public assistance and the ability to hold a job and support a family. The various schemes for a new welfare system — a guaranteed annual income, the negative income tax et al — tend to falter on the question of how to make it more profitable to work than to stay on welfare.

The welfare system will stifle initiative if it offers a higher standard of living to those who don't work than a person can achieve by working. When Americans can be worse off as part of the "working poor" than they were as clients of a welfare program, welfare reform will remain an uphill fight.

Election craziness

"Any modern president is at best an orchestra-conductor waving a baton at a cacophony of sound that now and then produces a semblance of melody." — Eugene Jennings.

We should be suspicious of anyone who wants to be president and really suspicious of a president that wants to get re-elected. As far as I can tell the job is a headache, what with inflation, the Russians, the Mideast, and Congress to deal with every day. No one in his right mind would want those problems — so why are there people who actually want the job?

I don't know, but every four years we go to the polls to vote for a crazy person running for president.

It's a nice little ceremonial event in which we elect the candidate who looks the best on TV and can stir our patriotic souls with speeches about making America great again.

Almost unfailingly, (though it might be argued our memories have failed) we can be duped into the scam that a candidate, or even an incumbent given a second chance, can balance the budget, right the economy, dash unemployment and make peace in the world.

Surely we know these promises are the most fragile of window dressings, and not something to be pulled off in four or eight years. Still we believe it can be done which automatically sets us up for disappointment.

Of course, the candidates don't do much to discourage this myth, especially if running for office the first time. They wave the flag and make promises to whoever will listen. And if their act works they get elected. And two years later not many of those promises are working and America thinks the president is a bum. It's generally about this time that the current president says he's not going to be able to accomplish all that he thought he would in four years and would like four more years to iron out his mistakes.

Columnist Andy Rooney once said this about presidential candidates: "If a candidate is so conceited as to think he's got the brains it takes to solve this country's problems, I don't want to have anything to do with him. Of course, he can't solve all our problems. If he's honest, he'll tell us he's just going to do the best he can to keep everything from going to hell."

I agree with Andy. I don't want someone who has all the answers or that looks polished. I want a guy who might say "Look this job's pretty tough so I'm going to make a lot of mistakes. Gee, I just can't figure out those Russians and I'm not exactly sure how the economy works. But I'll work hard and be honest."

I could identify with a guy like that. But I doubt he'd get many votes. From the track record, it appears we favor flag waving, Fourth of July speeches and fairy tales from our presidents. I suppose crazy presidents get elected by crazy voters.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Street paving merits thanks

To the editor: After what seemed a "forever" time of driving over half-portion thoroughfares, detours, mud and car-damaging "chuck" holes, it is now a delight to drive on our newly refinished city streets. We are very proud of the appearance of most of our streets, and the smoothness with which we can now ride over them. So we say a thank you to our city manager and employees.

Take a trip down Washington Boulevard and notice the patch of bright tulips planted on the boulevard by caring hands. They are a real day-brightener and are much appreciated by the people who drive past.

Thais crack down on dope traffic

WASHINGTON — Thailand has redrawn the boundaries of the notorious Golden Triangle, the untamed hill region of Southeast Asia that for the past two decades has supplied tons of heroin to the world's junkies.

The Thais have finally gotten tough on dope traffickers.

In fact, with the encouragement provided by U.S. financing and expertise, the Thai government has cracked down so severely on drug exporters and opium-poppo growers that Thailand is now a net importer of heroin.

The 35 tons of opium produced in the country last year — half the amount produced in 1980 — weren't enough to satisfy the needs of Thailand's estimated 500,000 heroin addicts — roughly 1 percent of the population.

Production and refining of opium into heroin are now largely confined to Burma, which produces about 500 tons of opium a year. Laos, the third leg of the triangle, accounts for about 50 tons a year.

On a news-gathering trip to Thailand, my associate Dale Van Atta visited the dangerous area where Thailand, Burma and Laos meet. He talked with border guards, slipped into Burma briefly, and talked with intelligence sources in Chiang Mai and Bangkok. Here's what he learned:

• In bloody battles fought in January 1982, the Thais managed to push the 3,000-man army of drug warlord Chang Chi-fu across the border into Burma. Both sides suffered casualties.

• The expulsion of Chang effectively ended the local domination of mercenary armies in northwestern Thailand. As I reported five years ago, these drug traffickers had become so brazen that they almost succeeded in a plot to kill four U.S. congressmen who went to the Golden Triangle on a fact-finding trip.

• In the last four years, the Thai government has succeeded in cutting by half the acreage of poppy field in Thailand.

• The Thai crackdown is a joint effort with Drug Enforcement Administration agents. "We have pushed all active refineries back to Burma," a U.S. official in Chiang Mai boasted. "Our intelligence is pretty good, so they don't last long if they start up in Thailand."

• Chang and the other dope traffickers are still a threat. Thai government informants have been buried alive, drawn and quartered and suffered other grisly deaths. When the Thais offered a $23,000 reward for Chang's capture, he countered with an offer to pay cash for killing Americans. In 1980, a DEA agent's wife was gunned down in Chiang Mai.

• Much of the heroin that comes out of the triangle still travels through Thailand. But an American official in Bangkok noted that Thailand does a better job at interdiction than the United States does within its own borders. A single seizure usually brings in more drugs than a state-side DEA agent is likely to see in his entire career. In fact, the week Van Atta was there, the Thai government seized 265 kilograms of heroin from a single shipment — worth $500 million in the United States.

It's only fitting that the United States has taken a major support role in the Thai crackdown on heroin.

No one pushing nuke power

WASHINGTON — The accident at Three Mile Island five years ago started something. Since then, many diverse failures in all parts of the country have led most Americans to give up on nuclear power.

But analysis shows that a common problem underlies all the difficulties. A fix can be made — providing the country wants to keep the nuclear option as a source of energy.

At first glance, every part of the nuclear power venture seems unsound. At Three Mile Island, near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, a reactor went out of control. Construction flaws jinxed the Diablo Canyon plant in California, the South Texas project and the Zimmer plant in Ohio. Costs went through the roof at Shoreham in New York, and in the case of the Washington Public Power project in the Northwest.

But while the troubles are different, the underlying cause is the same. In each case installation and management of a new and complex technology were left to relatively small and inexperienced units of this country's highly fragmented electrical power industry.

The New Jersey utility running Three Mile Island had one previous experience in nuclear energy. The San Francisco utility responsible for Diablo Canyon had only worked with nuclear power once before — and in a trivial project. The Long Island utility which managed Shoreham, and the Houston utility that commissioned the Texas project, had no past in the nuclear field. The Washington venture was a coalition of 80 municipal utilities all virgins when it came to nuclear power.

"The fragmented utility structure" has been summarized by Commissioner Victor Gilinsky of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. According to his figures, the country now has 80 nuclear power plants "in the hands of 44 utilities, 19 of which have only a single operating reactor."

The inability of most local utilities to organize and manage nuclear power plants has been asserted with commanding force by Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, a trained engineer who served as a member of the national commission investigating Three Mile Island. In an article published in the Arizona Republic, Babbitt wrote: "The utility industry is highly dispersed and some local utilities do not have strong management. Electric utilities are natural monopolies, heavily regulated and undisciplined by competitive forces... Nuclear technology seems too complex to have much of a future in the dispersed hands of scores of local utilities."

Experience abroad makes the same point inversely. France and Japan and Korea and Taiwan have all been successful in the installation of nuclear reactors. Not because of superior technical skill. On the contrary, they have used American technology. But the management of their electrical utilities is centralized. It learns from each new project. So much so that the Japanese are getting ready to market in other countries their own improved version of American nuclear power plants.

Gov. Babbitt points out that Adm. Hyman Rickover managed development of a nuclear submarine fleet for the Navy and that NASA has successfully organized even more difficult scientific achievements in space. He suggests that if the U.S. wants nuclear power, it should vest research, development and installation in a single governmental entity, able to work with the most experienced private firms. There would be the energy equivalent of NASA, or the National Institutes of Health.

But does the country need a nuclear option in energy?

The answer is far from evident. Oil prices have recently come down, and there is now an excess of supply over effective demand. Reserve stocks are very high. Sustained economic recovery through the industrial world would drive up consumption again. Still it would take a major political event — like the fall of the Shah in 1979 or the Arab-Israeli war of 1973 — to force another shortage.

Coal is abundant in this country and some other parts of the world. Extracting the fuel is messy and dangerous. Burning it has something to do with the destruction of lakes and forests by acidification. But, though the costs go up astronomically, the acid-causing particles can be washed away by scrubbing.

The great peril in burning coal comes from the "greenhouse effect" — the collection of enough carbon dioxide in the atmosphere to admit all ultraviolet rays, while imprisoning infrared. That process yields atmospheric changes of epic proportions. A recent study for the National Academy of Sciences projects a climatic catastrophe that might, among other things, cripple agriculture in the Middle West. But not for another 50 years.

So we are thrown back on the political leadership. Safe nuclear power is possible and makes sense. But events do not force development. It will be achieved only if the Reagan administration pushes ahead. But in nuclear energy, as in so many other things, that means admitting exceptions to the free market ideology and giving up the narcotic habit of mortgaging the future to the present.

Joseph Kraft's reports on Washington, national affairs and trends are distributed nationally by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Take high road to get off deadend

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: For years I have been wandering aimlessly through a maze of drugs, alcohol, and sex, trying to find happiness in any way I could. I feel like an empty shell, because I know now I have been on the wrong road. Is there a right road in life, or are we all destined to be empty and unhappy? — M.R.

DEAR M.R.: No, life does not need to be empty and unhappy, because there is a right road. It is God's road, and my sincere prayer for you is that you would find it and commit yourself to it. So far you have been on the wrong road, and as Jesus warned, "Wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it" (Matthew 7:13).

How can you discover that right road? First of all, realize that God loves you, and he has a purpose for your life. God did not put you here so that you would wander through life without purpose, just seeking to find a new thrill or a new pleasure every day. God put you here so that you could know him in a personal way, and so you could follow him.

Then realize that God has made it possible for you to come to him, in spite of your sins and your neglect of him. Yes, God wants you to be on the right path, and he has given that path to us in Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ came for one supreme reason: to take away our sins and reconcile us to God. "For Christ died for sins once for all, the righteous for the unrighteous, to bring you to God" (1 Peter 3:18).

Realize also that God now offers you salvation — both eternal life in Heaven, and the joy of new life right now — as a free gift. All you have to do is reach out in faith and accept Christ into your life as your Savior and Lord. You may not understand everything — but all you need to know is that Christ has promised, "Whoever comes to me I will never drive away" (John 6:37). Confess your sins to God, then ask Christ to come into your life and tell him you want to walk the path of life with him.

You are on a deadend road right now, and I am thankful you are realizing that. Don't stay on it. Instead, turn right now to Christ by faith, and you will begin to realize what Jesus meant when he promised, "I have come that they may have life, and have it to the full" (John 10:10).

JAZZ-A-THON — Robyn Drake instruct a class of jazzercise students in preparing for a Jazz-A-Thon benefit for the March of Dimes at Highland Mall, at 3 p.m. Saturday. For a $3 donation, people can participate in the event. All proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

Jazz-A-Thon benefits the March of Dimes

Jazzercise members are sponsoring a Jazz-A-Thon benefit for the March of Dimes at Highland Mall, at 3 p.m. Saturday. For a $3 donation, people can participate in the event. All proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

A large Jazzercise class will be held at the mall, which anyone can participate in. It will be like a normal Jazzercise class but with easier routines due to the extended time period involved. Other entertainment will also be provided.

Police chief Rick Turner, other officers will dance with Jazzercise instructor Robyn Drake, dressed as a hooker, to the tune of "She Works Hard for the Money." Quinn Eudy and other coaches will dance to the song "Sport" with the Jazzercise students.

Some male body builders will do a muscle man show for the ladies, and for the men we have belly dancers, Mrs. Drake said. "This will be a joint participation." Other skits will be included in the benefit. The students will dress as the Three Stooges for the "Curley Shuffle."

"We (Jazzercise) aren't here to take the money and run. We like to give back to the community as much as we like to receive from the community as far as class participation," Mrs. Drake said. All Jazzercise groups throughout the country annually sponsor an event to benefit a charity of each group's choice.

"We're all or most of us are young mothers at child-bearing age and we could relate to having children with birth defects," Mrs. Drake said about Jazzercise members. "We chose the March of Dimes to benefit because it's probably the closest thing we could all identify with. Mrs. Drake is covering all costs of the event so that all donations will go directly to the March of Dimes.

"Anyone wanting to see what Jazzercise is all about can see for themselves April 14 at Highland Mall," she said.

Dear Abby

Nursing six-year-old is not the cultural norm

DEAR ABBY: I totally disagree with your attitude toward breast-feeding a 6-year-old boy. (You said, "At his age he should be drinking from a cup — and I don't mean a D cup.") You also said that most pediatricians would agree with you. Which ones?

I am sending you a list of physicians on the La Leche League's Advisory Board. If you had called any of them you would have been told that is perfectly OK and very beneficial emotionally as well as physically for a 6-year-old to nurse. Please don't allow your own prejudices to interfere with your advice.

JUDY K., PATTERSON, N.J.

DEAR JUDY: My office telephoned pediatricians in Denver, Cincinnati, Washington, D.C., Des Moines, Iowa, Rochester, N.Y., Edmonds, Wash., Columbia, Mo., Miami, Chicago, Tucson, Ariz., and Toronto, Canada.

The consensus was that to breast-feed a 6-year-old in this culture would be highly irregular, bizarre, psychologically unhealthy and definitely not recommended. Most doctors indicated that the mother needed psychiatric treatment — that she is satisfying her own need, not that of her child.

Only one physician said he saw nothing wrong with a mother breast-feeding her 6-year-old son, but it would be considered somewhat "unusual" in our culture. He pointed out that he had read in the medical literature an 82-year-old man had been breast-fed by his daughter, but that occurred in Peru where the culture is different from ours.

In conclusion, shall we say the dairy bar should be closed to any child who is old enough to put his foot on the rail?

DEAR ABBY: This is for the man who didn't know how to handle his bigoted father-in-law who enjoyed telling "jokes" that put down some ethnic group: Whenever I hear an ethnic "joke," I say, "That's very funny. I heard the same joke, only the person was ()," then I insert the ethnic background of the person who told it.

It works every time.

C.G. IN HARTLAND, MICH.

Local artist portrays life of Mary Cassatt

"I was born in 1845 in the United States, at a time when few women became artists and when most artists lived in Paris," Virginia Whitten stated while portraying Mary Cassatt to the members of the 1905 Hyperion Club, March 15.

"But I was lucky because my father took our family to Europe when I was eight years old. After living there several years we had to come back the States. But I vowed I'd go back to Paris as soon as I could because I was completely enthralled with the wonderful museums and galleries as well as the painters," she said. "And when I was 24, I was able to fulfill that vow."

"I was particularly taken with the style of painting of one particular painter, Edgar Degas. In his paintings I saw something special. And, amazingly enough, he liked my paintings too, so we became good friends."

"Though I'd had some financial help when I first went back to Europe, I was later able to support myself, a rare feat for a painter, especially a woman."

"Perhaps my decision not to get married and bear children helped dedicate much of my subject matter: mothers and children. Nevertheless, I never regretted giving my life to my painting and to suggesting Impressionist paintings to American friends to purchase.

"When I became unable to see to paint, it was with great love that I taught others how to paint," she said.

Mrs. Whitten also is an artist. The club's next meeting will be at 3 p.m. April 19.

Dr. Donohue

Polymyalgia Rheumatica

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Thanks to your column of about a year ago, I guess, I was prompted to go to my doctor and he confirmed what you had suggested to the reader in question, polymyalgia rheumatica. You had an item on it earlier. The long and short of it was that I was treated with steroids, which eased the pain and seemed to provide a cure for me. Now I have noticed the same symptoms again. Is polymyalgia one of those things that keeps coming back for the rest of your life? I hope not. — M.M.E.

I can't tell you for sure that you won't get a recurrence of polymyalgia after having it controlled through medicine. Let me describe the problem for other readers.

Polymyalgia rheumatica is the development of a stiffness, and aching and weak feeling in muscles. Myalgia means muscle pain and poly refers to the many muscles affected, not just a single one. The symptoms usually appear after age 50. We don't know the cause.

The suspicion of PM is aroused when a person has had such strange muscle symptoms for about a month, usually in the neck, shoulders and hips, although other body locations can be involved. Confirmation of PM is pretty straightforward, by a laboratory blood test, the sedimentation rate test. That measures how fast a sample of blood settles to the bottom of a test tube. In PM the settling is extremely fast.

It's also one of those illnesses where the effectiveness of certain medicines helps confirm the diagnosis after the fact. In PM, there is a rapid positive response to steroids, like prednisone.

I'm pretty sure this is your medicine. Steroids must be given for very long periods, sometimes up to two years, so the illness doesn't reappear after premature ending.

In another part of your note you mention that you opted not to continue the steroids. I'm not saying that was what caused you to have a recurrence this long after, but it's a possibility.

Was it also mentioned in the earlier article that there is a companion illness to PM, temporal arteritis? That is artery inflammation -- a dangerous situation sometimes leading to vision loss if treatment is not received (steroids). You have to return to the doctor and begin treatment again, especially if you do have the inflamed arteries.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

China fights the West's 'spiritual pollution'

PEKING (AP) — In the view of China's leadership, Kafka's "The Trial" and Joseph Heller's comic "Catch 22" reflect the absurdities and abuses of the capitalist system, and therefore are good reading for Chinese comrades.

But Western literature in the stream-of-consciousness style and the existentialism of Jean-Paul Sartre are struck off the list for putting too much stress on the individual.

That's part of the literary fallout six months after the Communist Party launched a breath-catching campaign against "jingshen wuran" — spiritual pollution from the West.

Aimed primarily at the obscene and sexually explicit, the cleanup reverberated in libraries and bookstores where many contemporary Western works suddenly disappeared from shelves.

In January, Culture Minister Zhu Muzhi wrote a self-criticism admitting "weak and lax" leadership in failing to halt the spread of the bourgeois, cultural pollutants.

As the shutters came down after five years of post-Mao literary expansion, more than 100 detective novels published in the past two years were withdrawn. They had become the vogue and sold more than 30 million copies.

The clampdown alarmed intellectuals, but hasn't approached the xenophobia of Chairman Mao Tse-tung's Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution in 1966, in which Hamlet was condemned as a "poisonous weed."

Some of the "in" authors untouched by the latest purge include Shakespeare and Charles Dickens, whose works have sold more than a million copies; George Bernard Shaw, Romain Rolland, O. Henry, Graham Greene and Alex Haley with "Roots."

But the authorities have fallen back on a Soviet model for the most recommended reading: books should be optimistic and realistically portray social life and customs.

As the People's Daily, official newspaper of the Communist Party, put it: "Western modernist schools of literature lack a concrete approach to life."

The journal Red Flag updated this judgment in its latest issue, singling out stream-of-consciousness as the worst Western influence on Chinese writers.

It "cuts the inherent ties between literature and social life," the magazine said, stressing that art should reflect communist ideology and portray the BOOK BAN — Chinese authorities make sure avid readers such as this bookstore browser buy only "approved" authors. Books reflecting the abuses and ab-surdities of the capitalist system are okay, but books stressing individualism or criticizing Soviet-style communism are banned.

pioneers of modernization.

Some 20th-century imports can and should be analyzed, it added, citing "Catch 22" and "The Trial." They not only "lay bare the conflicts in life under capitalism and some aspects of the insurmountable mental crises in Western society but powerfully thrash the social abuses of the capitalist world," the journal said.

In a January speech, Politburo member Hu Qiaomu, close to Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping, grudgingly approved other Western artists he termed "sympathizers of socialism." Anatole France, Thomas Mann, Bertolt Brecht, Theodore Dreiser, Charlie Chaplin, Pablo Picasso, Pablo Neruda and Rabindranath Tagore were among those named.

But Sartre, the French leftist philosopher, has been severely abused by the party for the sin of individualism. The Chinese party lays emphasis on sacrificing oneself for the group.

The foreign literature publishing house, replying in writing to questions from The Associated Press, said: "Sartre was a friend of China but even between friends there are often differences. We uphold Marxism and Sartre upheld existentialism and the alienation of the individual."

The publishers claimed "the only reason his books are unavailable is that they have been sold out."

"We publish those works that we think contribute to the progress of world culture and have a good influence on China's construction of a spiritual civilization. Those works that depict violence, sex and certain anti-communist works are definitely not published."

Ironically, the argument over what students and party cadres should read coincides with a boom in China's book trade.

The state publication bureau says book sales reached a record $1 billion last year, with 36,000 new titles and 5.8 billion copies of books and pictures printed.

The nation's best seller was the "Selected Works of Deng Xiaoping," which sold 54 million copies.

The major foreign item was the 20-volume "Selected Works of Gorky" in Chinese. Browsers can see books with the Russian author's portrait on many shelves in Peking's main Xinhua bookstore, where sales clerks said best sellers include the novels of Sinclair Lewis and the short stories of Somerset Maugham.

Puritanical China frowns on literary sex even in its own classics. "The Golden Lotus," a 16th-century tale of debauchery which scholars rate a masterpiece, is not for sale.

For bookworms, there are still surprises. Recently found in the Xinhua store was "A Handbook of Current Americanisms" including four-letter words and terms such as "drop acid."

Two killed in plane crash

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigators were trying to determine what caused a small towing plane to crash and explode, killing the pilot and a passenger, authorities said.

The plane, a Dellanca Scout, crashed about 6:30 p.m. Sunday in northwest Harris County, according to R.W. Rae, a communications operator for the Department of Public Safety.

Series on the Gospels stirs debate

LONDON (AP) — A three-part television series that questions the authenticity of the Christian Gospels has angered some Britons and sparked a lively debate among Britain's clerics, scholars and theologians.

One politician asked that the show be canceled. But a Church of England spokesman is advising viewers to "grit your teeth and see it through."

The first one-hour segment of the series, entitled "Jesus: The Evidence," aired Sunday night on national television.

It suggested that the writers of the Gospels invented incidents in the life of Jesus Christ because they knew nothing about him and that the virgin birth and resurrection of Jesus are myths borrowed from earlier religions.

Another proposition was that the Gospels were "ghost written" after the apostles died. The four Gospels of the New Testament are attributed to the apostles Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

The program cast doubt on the miracles attributed to Christ and said he might not have walked on water but instead on a sandbank.

The entire three-hour series, produced by London Weekend Television for the commercial Channel 4 network, was screened for selected groups before the national broadcast.

'One has seriously to consider whether Jesus existed. There is nothing in the evidence that commits us to accepting the historical figure of Jesus.'

— George A. Wells, London University professor

A 41-member group of the Anglican state Church of England's Evangelical Alliance denounced the program as "mischievous, misleading and imbalanced."

However, a Church of England spokesman advised laymen to "grit your teeth and see it through. Anyone unsettled by the program should talk to their vicar." The show prompted New Testament scholars to argue over the Gospels' reliability.

George A. Wells, professor of German at London University, said: "One has seriously to consider whether Jesus existed. There is nothing in the evidence that commits us to accepting the historical figure of Jesus."

However, theology professor Dennis Nineham from Bristol University — who appeared in the show — was quoted in Sunday's Observer newspaper as saying the series "fails to do justice to the views of a large number of scholars who don't have the power to shock, unlike some of those in the program."

A group of Roman Catholic scripture scholars, theologians and historians was asked by Archbishop of Westminster Cardinal Basil Hume to study the program. They issued a statement calling it "the latest example of a tendency to present religious questions in the media in a sensational and unbalanced way."

Janitor now wields stethoscope

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — As a high school student, Manuel Mendoza was known as Driscoll Children's Hospital as the guy who worked nights and weekends, sweeping, mopping and waxing the floors.

Now he's known as Dr. Mendoza, an accomplished medical resident on his way to becoming a pediatrician.

"I've been wandering these halls a long time without realizing where I was going to wind up at the end of it all," said Mendoza, 34.

The son of a migrant farm worker, Mendoza spent his childhood years traveling with his father to harvest crops in Texas, Idaho and Florida. He found custodial work at the hospital while attending a Corpus Christi high school.

"I was willing to take any job at the time because I wanted to work. But I guess I wasn't really tuned into medicine then," he said.

By the time he graduated the Vietnam War was near its height. Mendoza decided to go to nursing school, with an eye to enlisting as a military nurse.

The war was over when he finished school, however, so instead of enlisting he went to work in a Corpus Christi hospital.

Later, he joined the nurse practitioner and pediatric program of the Children's Heart Institute and worked for four years in the institute's Rio Grande Valley satellite clinic.

"Then I decided, well, why not go to medical school," he said.

While his interest in medicine arose by chance, Mendoza fit squarely into the plans of Dr. James Simpson. Simpson, director of cardiology at Driscoll and head of the Heart Institute, recruits Hispanic students for a program that "pays a small stipend to minority students studying health sciences to come work with us," said Laura Berlanga, heart institute spokeswoman.

"Lots of people brought up in rural areas don't come back after they become doctors which creates a shortage of trained doctors in South Texas," she said.

"Dr. Simpson feels that if we could train some of these students and let them see the work we're doing, perhaps some would want to practice at home."

Mendoza received a scholarship from the Mexican government and went to medical school at the University of Tamaulipas. He continued working part-time in the heart institute's clinic until 1982 when he went to work at Driscoll.

During the final year of his residency, Mendoza will decide whether to specialize further or enter private practice.

Meanwhile, he is glad to be carrying a stethoscope in the hospital halls instead of a mop.

So far in '84 White Sox are 'Losing Ugly' early

By The Associated Press

Last year, the Chicago White Sox coined the catchphrase "Winning Ugly" en route to the American League West championship.

Over the weekend, it was more like "Losing Ugly." Not only were the White Sox swept in three games by the surging Detroit Tigers, they were victimized by a no-hitter on Saturday, then dropped a 7-3 decision in a desultory effort Sunday.

Sunday's poor performance included an off-day by Tom Seaver, making his AL debut. The 39-year-old Seaver, a three-time Cy Young winner, failed to last five innings and admitted, "The bottom line is I pitched poorly, period."

The victory was the fifth straight for the Tigers, the AL's only unbeaten team. The defending world champion Baltimore Orioles and Milwaukee Brewers, meanwhile, can't buy a win so far. The Orioles extended their losing streak to four with a 7-3 loss Sunday to Minnesota, while the Brewers dropped to 0-5 after a 5-4 defeat by Seattle.

Elsewhere, the New York Yankees tripped the Texas Rangers 4-3 in 13 innings; the Kansas City Royals nipped the Cleveland Indians 5-4; the Oakland A's rolled past the Boston Red Sox 14-2 and the California Angels trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 4-3.

Rookie Barbaro Garbey drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to trigger Detroit's victory. Garbey's first double was his first major league hit, a two-run, pinch shot off reliever Juan Agosto in the fifth inning. He also doubled to drive in a run in a two-run seventh.

The White Sox, who were victims of Jack Morris' no-hitter Saturday, got solo homers from Ron Kittle and Harold Baines.

"He's an outstanding hitter and an excellent fielder," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said of Garbey. "He can run, swing and field. I don't know what else ball players are supposed to do."

Garbey, who was signed as an undrafted free agent by the Tigers in 1980 and spent the next four seasons in the minor leagues, said he was unaware that his two-run double in the fifth was his first major league hit. "I didn't think about it, I just thought about the two runs I drove in and felt that put the game away," said Garbey.

TWINS 7, ORIOLES 3

Mickey Hatcher collected four hits and knocked in three runs as Minnesota rallied to beat Baltimore. Hatcher gave an assist to the Twins' fans for his first four-hit day in the majors.

"As long as I keep hustling and doing my job, the fans will stay with me," said Hatcher. "They've motivated me and got me more into the game the last three days."

Hatcher went 4-for-5, with three singles, a triple and three runs batted in. His flyout to right in the seventh ended a streak of five consecutive hits over two games.

Noted Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli of his team's spin, "I'm not happy, period. I doubt I'm even content."

MARINERS 5, BREWERS 4

Jack Perconte ripped three singles, driving in one run and scoring three, as Seattle defeated Milwaukee and handed new Brewers Manager Rene Lachemann his fifth straight loss.

Seattle scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth to take a 4-3 lead and added a run in the seventh on an RBI single by Gorman Thomas, the eventual winning run.

"I'm just a contact hitter, and I tried to put the ball in play," Perconte said. "It just happened that I got a decent pitch in the fifth inning and I hit it where I wanted."

Lachemann, meanwhile, pointed to a lack of clutch hitting as being a key to his team's poor start.

"We've had a lot of people in scoring position who we haven't driven in, and we need to do that. We're just not playing good ball," he said.

cond base and center field with the bases loaded in the eighth inning, scoring two runs and lifting Kansas City over Cleveland.

Losing 4-2 entering the inning, the Royals cut Cleveland's lead to one run before Sanchez delivered his game-winner in his first AL at-bat.

"It was a blooper and we were lucky," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said of Sanchez's hit. "But Orlando is an aggressive hitter who doesn't strike out much. We were just looking to put the ball in play and get the tie."

YANKEES 4, RANGERS 3

Don Mattingly's pop-fly double down the left field line, his fourth hit of the game, scored Omar Moreno in the top of the 13th inning and New York salvaged the finale of a three-game series with Texas. Mattingly doubled off reliever Odell Jones with two outs after Moreno had singled and stole second with Dave Tobik, 1-1, on the mound. Tobik had gone 28 consecutive scoreless innings before Sunday's game.

ANGELS 4, BLUE JAYS 3

Reggie Jackson and Doug DeCinces homered on consecutive pitches in the eighth inning to rally California over Toronto.

Jackson hit his second homer of the year, a two-run shot to score Rod Carew ahead of him and tie the game at 3-3, and DeCinces hit the next pitch off losing reliever Roy Lee Jackson over the left field fence at Anaheim Stadium to smap the Angels' four-game losing streak.

USFL Roundup

Arizona axed

By The Associated Press

On paper, George Allen's Arizona Wranglers look like one of the United States Football League's top teams. But the 61-year-old Allen has been around long enough to know that what looks good on paper doesn't mean much on the football fields.

The Wranglers, favored to walk away with the USFL Pacific Division, lost their fourth game in seven starts Sunday, blowing a 21-6 halftime lead to drop a 22-21 decision to the Philadelphia Stars on Chuck Fusina's 11-yard touchdown pass to Willie Collier with 1:40 left.

"I can't think of a loss over the years that was more disheartening and devastating as this one," said Wrangler Coach Allen. "It's like a morgue in this locker room. We worked hard all week for this game. It's wasted when you don't win."

Philadelphia's win, achieved without injured star running back Kelvin Bryant, was its fourth straight and improved its record to 6-1. That kept the Stars tied for first in the Atlantic Division with the New Jersey Generals, who topped the Memphis Showboats 35-10.

In the only other USFL game Sunday, the New Orleans Breakers edged the Pittsburgh Maulers 27-24 on Tim Mazzetti's field goal with 12 seconds left.

In USFL games played Saturday, Oklahoma handed defending champion Michigan its first loss in 12 games going back to last year, 20-17 on Efrén Herrera's a 32-yard field goal on the final play of the game; the Chicago Blitz beat the San Antonio Gunslingers 16-10 on Vince Evans overtime touchdown pass; the Birmingham Stallions topped the Jacksonville Bulls 24-17 on Joe Cribbs' 11-yard TD run with 2:17 left, and the Tampa Bay Bandits trounced the winless Oakland Invaders 24-0.

Los Angeles is at Denver and Washington at Houston on Monday night.

Bean takes tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Andy Bean, having won a tournament for the first time in two years, had a simple answer to the question.

"Are you playing well enough to win the Masters, he was asked.

"Yes," he said, a big smile on his face. It was some time before he got back to the subject, discussing instead his two-stroke victory Sunday over George Archer in the Greater Greensboro Open, the ninth victory of Bean's PGA Tour career and his first since the 1982 Doral-Eastern Open.

"I finally got it over with," he said of that long drought.

"Now, let's talk about Augusta (site of the Masters which begins Thursday)."

"I've definitely got my sights set on next week's tournament."

"I'm driving the ball good. I'm hitting my irons very, very good. I'm putting good. Things are going great for me."

His confidence began building over the last 18 holes at the Forest Oaks Country Club, which Bean played in 2-under-par 70 in chilly weather under threatening skies.

Although never headed, a birdie by the 44-year-old Archer on the 10th put them in a tie.

"I felt confident," Bean said. "I was determined to make a couple of birdies."

And he did, taking the lead alone with a 10-12 footer on the 13th, and then stretching it out with a 15-footer from the fringe on the 16th. He parred home for a 280 total, eight under.

"I had a chance, but it was not to be," said Archer, who missed several putts in the 10-12 foot range coming home.

Archer, a two-time winner of this old event and a former Masters champion, finished with a no-bogey 69 and second alone at 282. He won $43,200 to Bean's $72,000.

Ben Crenshaw came out of the pack with a 67 that lifted him into a tie for third at 285.

Also at that figure were Jack Renner, Scott Simpson, Buddy Gardner and Fred Couples, the winner of last week's Tournament Players Championship. Simpson and Couples had 71s, Renner 72 and Gardner 73.

Opportunity is Cubs game plan

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Cubs are proving to be a most opportunistic team in the early goings of the National League season.

In Sunday's 10-inning, 8-5 victory over the previously unbeaten San Diego Padres, the Cubs took a 5-3 lead in the top of the ninth on bases-loaded walks to Keith Moreland and Ron Cey only to see the Padres come back to tie it up in the bottom of the inning.

But a fielding error, a triple by Ryne Sandberg and his subsequent steal of home in the 10th were more than enough to put away the Padres.

In other National League play Sunday, Atlanta stopped Montreal 6-2, Cincinnati came from behind in the 11th inning to beat Philadelphia 8-7, Pittsburgh tripped Los Angeles 5-2, St. Louis belted San Francisco 9-3 and New York topped the Houston 3-1.

The tenacious Padres, who had won their first four games, came from behind three different times but couldn't put the Cubs away.

With the score tied 5-5 in the 10th, Steve Lake opened the Cubs half of the inning with a single and went to second on a one-out bunt by Bob Dernier. Rookie Henry Cotto then grounded to deep short and Garry Templeton kicked the ball into left field, allowing Lake to score the go-ahead run.

Sandberg followed with his bases-clearing smash to the center field wall, then stole home easily off Padre reliever Mark Thurmond, 0-1.

"Don Zimmer (the Cubs third base coach) pointed out that he (Thurmond) was fairly slow to the plate," Sandberg said. "All I wanted to do was get a big lead. As soon as I saw him move, I went."

"I think the key to play was (Tom) Veryzer not swinging. Otherwise I'd have been killed," Sandberg added.

San Diego Manager Dick Williams was philosophical about the tough loss.

"It would have been a nice one to win, but four out of five isn't bad to start out with," Williams said. "I'll take four out of five all year long and take my chances."

Reliever Lee Smith, 1-1, earned the victory despite being roughed up for a pair of runs in the ninth inning.

BRAVES 6, EXPOS 2

Right-hander Len Barker, 1-1, scattered four hits over 6 1-3 innings and Glenn Hubbard came up with his first two hits of the season, including a solo homer, to spark Atlanta.

Leadoff hitter Claudell Washington reached base four times, stole two bases, advanced two bases on an infield out, scored twice and drove in a run for the Braves.

"Stealing bases is my job," Washington said after his daring allowed the Braves to score their first two runs without benefit of a hit. "I've got the green light this year and I plan to take full advantage of it."

In both the first and fifth, Washington led off with a walk, stole second, was moved up by Rafael Ramirez hitting to right, first on a fly and then on an infield grounder, and was driven in by Gerald Perry, first on a fly and then on a grounder.

REDS 8, PHILLIES 7

Philadelphia staked three-time Cy Young winner Steve Carlton to a 6-1 lead, but it wasn't enough as the Reds took advantage of three Phillie errors to get back in the game and eventually win it on Eddie Milner's RBI single.

The Phillies pounded out 19 hits in the game, but wasted what looked like a sure victory by letting the Reds rally for three unearned runs in the bottom of the fifth for a 6-4 tie.

Philadelphia then went ahead 7-6 on Ozzie Virgil's pinch-hit single in the top of the 11th, but Dave Parker and Tony Perez cracked consecutive doubles to start the bottom of the 11th and Milner, a late-inning replacement, singled in Paul Householder with two out to end the game and snap Cincinnati's three-game losing streak.

PIRATES 5, DODGERS 2

Lee Lacy, who drove in only two runs in the last three months of the 1983 season, knocked in three against the Dodgers with four singles as Pittsburgh completed a three-game sweep.

HELMET SPINNER — New Orleans Breakers running back Buford Jordan (24) gets his helmet spun around by Pittsburgh Maulers linebacker Mike McKibben (53) during second half action Sunday in New Orleans. Jordan was stopped for a short gain, as the Breakers defeated the Maulers 27-24.

NBA Review

LA wins third straight division

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers left Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Jamaal Wilkes at home, although the Portland Trail Blazers didn't notice much difference.

James Worthy scored a career-high 37 points as the visiting Lakers beat Portland 118-113 Sunday to clinch their third straight Pacific Division title.

With Abdul-Jabbar suffering from a bruise near his left eye and Wilkes missing his third straight game because of a virus, the Lakers got the ball inside to Worthy.

"That's where I like to work," said the second-year pro, who bettered his previous high total by seven points. "My inside game is better than my outside game. I was taking the same shots I usually take, only they were falling."

In other NBA games, Philadelphia nipped New York 109-106, Boston downed Chicago 117-110, Seattle topped Houston 120-107, New Jersey routed Cleveland 124-97 and Phoenix defeated Denver 126-121.

Portland, second in the Pacific with a 47-31 record, raced to a 72-55 lead at halftime, but then ran into problems against the

Inkster takes Shore title

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Rookies are supposed to wilt under pressure. Apparently Juli Inkster hasn't been on the LPGA tour long enough to learn that.

The 23-year-old former amateur golf star, who joined the LPGA circuit last August, charged into a tie with veteran Pat Bradley on the final hole of regulation, then won the first playoff hole Sunday to capture the women's richest event, the $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore.

Bradley, 33, winner of 13 titles since joining the tour in 1974, appeared to feel the pressure. She began spraying her drives on the final holes of regulation, then drove into the trees on the playoff hole.

After Bradley took four shots to reach the green and made a 10-footer to salvage a bogey, Inkster made her 2-foot putt to collect the $55,000 winner's prize.

Inkster, who began the day two shots behind leaders Bradley, JoAnne Carner and Dale Eggeing, carded a closing 68, 4-under-par over the Mission Hills Country Club course.

She and Bradley, who shot a final-round 72, finished at 8-under-par 280. Eggeing, with a 72, was third at 282, with Beth Daniel pulling into fourth with a 69.

Carner struggled to a 74 to wind up tied for fifth with Sally Little.

Inkster said she was in her element during the final holes.

"I felt the pressure, but I get myself psyched up under pressure," said Inkster, who won three consecutive women's U.S. Amateur championships ending in 1982.

"I enjoy it and I think that's what golf's all about. I wouldn't be out here if I didn't like pressure."

Inkster, recalling Bradley's costly tee shot on the playoff hole, said, "I couldn't believe she hit her drive into the trees. I hit a good shot, so I was pretty confident."

"I felt down the stretch that I had the momentum. I felt she'd have to beat me. Pat's a great player and I'm happy to be able to beat her."

Inkster, playing in the threesome ahead of Bradley, had applied the pressure when she made a 3-foot birdie putt on the final hole of regulation to move into the tie at 8-under. Bradley still had a chance to win, but she missed a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th to set up the playoff.

If Inkster truly enjoys pressure, she should love the next LPGA tournament, this week's J&B Scotch Pro-Am in Las Vegas, Nev. If she's able to parlay her Dinah Shore victory with one in the Pro-Am, she will collect a $1 million bonus from the sponsors of the two tournaments.

Bradley collected $33,000 for finishing second. Eggeing earned $23,833.

Landry evaluating team by position

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, looking ahead to the next season, sees a renewal of the competition for starting quarterback and unresolved questions about how much he may need to shore up his corps of receivers.

Landry, in a position-by-position evaluation he wrote for The Dallas Morning News on Sunday, said the team first needs to find a replacement for third-string quarterback Glenn Carano, who jumped to the United States Football League.

He said the team also has a critical need for a reserve middle linebacker, a back-up tight end and a punter.

Gary Hogeboom, predicted Landry, will put a lot of pressure on Danny White for the starting quarterback position.

"Gary Hogeboom is trying his best to move into the starting role. He's a competitor, he wants to play badly, and I can't blame him for that. He'll be competing this year and he'll put a lot of pressure on Danny White because of what we've failed to do in the last few years, which I don't think is Danny White's fault at all," wrote Landry.

"Danny White's played well for us, but Gary feels like he's got a chance so he'll be competing," said Landry.

He said White had done a remarkable job following Roger Staubach, that he had performed extremely well and had done his part.

Landry said the only reason to make a change at quarterback is if one player is playing better than another or because a change would be in the best interests of the team as a whole.

He said the running back situation was in capable hands with Tony Dorsett. He said overall, with running backs Timmy Newsome, Ron Springs, Chuck McSwain and Gary Allen, the backfield was in pretty good shape. But he said he may need reserve help if veteran Robert Newhouse decides to retire.

At this time, Landry said there were several unresolved questions about receivers.

"I told Butch Johnson I would trade him and this is my intention. Drew Pearson may retire. He hasn't made an announcement yet, but if he does and we trade Johnson, then this is an area we definitely need to beef up," wrote Landry.

He said Doug Donely is capable of playing more than he has, and that Tony Hill, who was injured some last year, was capable of making a big contribution.

He said the retirement of Billy Joe DuPree leaves the Cowboys with only one seasoned tight end, Doug Cosbie, and the team will need backup strength at the position.

Landry said nagging injuries troubled his offensive line last year, and the team let down at the end of the season.

"Any time you gain only two yards per carry, like we did in those last few games, it has very little to do with personnel. It's the mental attitude of your team that creates those situations," said Landry.

And Landry said the biggest problem with the defensive line was age. But he said he doesn't expect the performance to drop drastically because Ed Jones, John Dutton, Randy White and Harvey Martin have all played a lot of football and are good competitors. He said Martin would be pressed by Don Smerek and Jim Jeffcoat.

He said it is critical for the Cowboys to find a reserve middle linebacker. He said Scott McLean suffered a knee injury early last season and does not have a good chance of returning this season. He said they would look at Jeff Rohrer first behind starter Bob Breunig, then Mike Walter and Angelo King. Landry said the defensive backs made a lot of big plays last season, but their weakness was tackling.

"This is something we need to stress. We also need to cut down the number of big plays we give up," said Landry.

He said he is looking for improvement in the specialty teams, which last season featured the kick coverage of Bill Bates and the kicking of Rafael Septien.

"We're still looking for the punter to replace Danny White. We'll bring John Warren and Jim Miller and some other prospects to camp," said Landry.

Warren, who won the job last season, hurt his knee in the middle of the season. Landry said Warren needs to work on consistency.

"If we can find a satisfactory punter, then Danny can concentrate on quarterback," said Landry.

Lendl bests McEnroe in Tokyo Suntory Cup final

By The Associated Press
Ivan Lendl turned out to be in good shape in Tokyo.

Lendl, mixing strong service returns with lobs, beat John McEnroe 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 Sunday to win the Suntory Cup tennis tournament in Japan. Lendl collected $110,000 for winning the four-man, two-day event.

In the consolation match, Jimmy Connors withdrew after two sets because of a neck injury, giving third place to Yannick Noah of France.

Lendl, of Czechoslovakia, broke McEnroe's service once in the first set and twice in the final set. Lendl now enjoys a 9-8 lifetime edge over McEnroe, who has failed to win the Suntory in five appearances.

Prior to the Suntory, McEnroe had beaten Lendl in all the major tournaments they had opposed each other this year, including the Grand Prix Masters, U.S. Pro Indoor and Belgian Indoor Championships. McEnroe had topped Lendl in the finals of those events.

"Some days I feel like playing my forehead, some days my backhand passing shots," Lendl said. "If you can pick up something he isn't good with, you're in good shape, if not, you're not in good shape."

McEnroe, who earned $70,000, said he "wasn't coming in quite as strong, and he hits the ball harder than me."

McEnroe got into a five-minute argument with umpire Frank Hammond during Saturday's semifinal victory over Connors and again had trouble with the officiating Sunday.

"The worst thing you can do is be inconsistent in officiating," McEnroe sniped.

"And there was inconsistent officiating today."

Connors won the first set against Noah 6-2 before dropping the second 2-6. Noah got $40,000 while Connors, who won the Suntory four of the six times it has been held, received $30,000.

In Houston, Mark Dickson got two favorable line calls to down Sammy Giammalva 6-3, 6-2 in the $250,000 River Oaks tournament Sunday.

Dickson, who had beaten top-seeded Jimmy Arias and fourth-seeded Bill Scanlon in reaching the finals, earned $75,000.

Dickson twice challenged line calls in his match against Giammalva, and twice the calls were reversed.

"I just asked the linesman to look at the line. I would have accepted whatever call he made," Dickson said.

"The calls always even out," said Giammalva, who got $38,000. "Maybe there were a couple of mistakes but I almost trust their judgment better than mine."

Herik Sundstrom of Sweden beat Chile's Pedro Rebolledo 7-6, 6-4 Sunday to win the $75,000 Bari Grand Prix tournament in Bari, Italy.

The 20-year-old Swede, ranked 23rd in the world, won the first set tie-breaker 10-8 and then used a strong serve to earn the $15,000 first prize.

In Santa Rosa, Calif., second-seeded Wendy Turnbull beat top-seeded Billie Jean King 6-2, 6-3 to win the Snoopy Cup tournament for players 30 years and older.

The 31-year-old Turnbull, who won $8,000, reeled off 13 straight points against King, 40.

DIVING DEFENSIVE PLAY — Chicago Black Hawks' goalie Murray Bannerman dives on a puck as Minnesota North Stars' Willi Plett jumps over Bannerman's outstretched stick during NHL playoff action Sunday in Chicago. The Black Hawks defeated the North Stars 4-3, forcing a fifth playoff game in the best of five series which will be played Tuesday, April 10th in Minnesota.

NHL champs staying alive in playoffs

By The Associated Press
The Rangers' Pierre Larouche said he expected the Islanders to come out

"like a panther trapped in a corner" for the fourth game of their National Hockey League playoff series. It took the Islanders 40 minutes to prove that assessment correct.

By that time, the Rangers led 1-0 on Larouche's second-period power-play goal and seemed ready to end the Islanders' four-year reign as Stanley Cup champions. But the Islanders staged a fierce rally, getting goals by John Tonelli, Brent Sutter, Clark Gillies and Bryan Trottier in the final period for a 4-1 victory Sunday night that deadlocked the best-of-five series at two games apiece.

The decider will be played Tuesday night at Nassau Coliseum. That same night, the Chicago Black Hawks, who edged the North Stars 4-3 Sunday, will be at Minnesota for the fifth game of their series.

Elsewhere Sunday, Calgary downed Vancouver 5-1 to clinch their matchup three games to one, as did St. Louis, who nipped Detroit 3-2 in overtime.

On Saturday, Edmonton completed a sweep of Winnipeg, Quebec of Buffalo, Montreal of Boston and Washington of Philadelphia.

The Rangers have taken the Islanders through the ringer and have outplayed the champs for most of the series. But they could only get one shot past goalie Billy Smith — on a 5-on-3 man-power advantage — and the Islanders finally solved Glen Hanlon at 49 seconds of the third period. Tonelli pounced on a mistake by Rangers rookie defenseman James Patrick to tie it.

At 11:04, Sutter got the winner and Rangers captain Barry Beck suffered a separated shoulder on the play when checked into the boards by Pat Flatley.

"We hung tight until the third period," said Smith, who stopped 29 shots after being bombed in a 7-2 loss in Game 3. "I didn't stop too much last (Saturday) night. I needed to make up for that."

Black Hawks 4, North Stars 3

Troy Murray squeezed between North Stars defensesmen Brad Maxwell and Curt Giles and beat goaltender Don Beaupre with a wrist shot that just trickled in from 10 feet out with 5:51 to play, forcing Game 5.

"It was not only my most important goal of my career, but a goal that gave us new life," Murray said. "When Beaupre came out of the net, it looked like he was going to try to hit my stick, but he fell to the ice. I didn't have much room and the puck hit the post, but it bounced in."

Flames 5, Canucks 1
After being embarrassed 7-0 at Vancouver in the third game, the Flames turned matters around as Paul Reinhart scored three goals. Reinhart and rookie Hakan Loob combined for a pair of goals in a 90-second span of the opening period.

Next up for Calgary is Edmonton, which won seven of eight games with the Flames and tied the other.

Blues 3, Red Wings 2
Jorgen Pettersson registered all three of St. Louis' goals, including the winner at 2:42 of overtime. It was the second straight OT victory in Detroit for the Blues, who will meet the winner of Chicago-Minnesota.

Pettersson took a pass from Doug Gilmour, who assisted on each goal in the hat trick, skated in alone and beat goaltender Eddie Mio from 15 feet.

"The guys played super for me tonight, knowing I was in a tough situation," Mio said. "We played a heck of a game. The goals they got were by taking advantage of breaks."

NOTICE

I am Garner Thixton, a lifetime resident of Howard County and I am asking for your support to be your FULL TIME Commissioner of precinct 3. I am fully aware of the assets and problems of our community. The assets are too numerous to mention. The few problems we have can be solved if we can get county and city to cooperate on this issue in question.

One of these issues is rural fire protection and my plan will increase the average response time to a rural fire by at least 15 minutes for the first truck on the scene.

Another issue is something that all citizens of Howard County can use. We have a small lake on the south edge of town that with close cooperation between governing bodies, could provide our young people with a place to meet for recreation and give our senior citizens, whether handicapped or not, an accessible place for picnics or fishing by erecting a pier into the lake with lighted ramps and guard rails.

None of this can be accomplished without close cooperation between the county and city governments. I believe that with God's help I can get the two governing bodies to cooperate on these and other things for the benefit of the community.

When elected, the only thing I can promise you is to prosecute those who dump trash on our streets and roads when they can be identified, and most trash can be traced to the original owners.

Remember, Garner Thixton will be YOUR FULL TIME Commissioner. Thanks for your support.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 10, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day and evening to go after the plans which have your greatest inspiration to gain your aspirations. There may, however, be some delays that can take a while to work out.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't get involved in business affairs. Work on ideas that are creative and can bring fine results. Don't criticize.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't permit an outside partner to take over; concentrate on improving conditions at home. Keep busy at home and be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Work is quite tedious today so handle only what is absolutely necessary. Visit one who is cheerful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get into monetary matters and avoid seeking pleasure. Forget all that wishful thinking and be more practical.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get into outside duties and get away from home for awhile and restore your energies. Be happier. Don't overspend.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Have a consultation with a clever person who can give you good ideas for your advancement. Show true devotion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get out and shop with a friend; forget problems for the time being. Concentrate on the personal side of life and restore your energies.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Getting expert advice is wise now, since your own judgment is a little off at this time. Get involved in some public affair.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Fussing over some problem you cannot solve is not wise, so turn to something else that is more constructive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid that friend who likes to con you, and get busy at responsibilities ahead of you. Buy some thoughtful gift of love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more with dynamic partners who are generous and ambitious. Handle only those duties that are important. Be alert.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy at regular work and forget something new and unknown. Accept suggestions from co-workers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can only be happy when busily engaged in some outside work and mingling with all kinds of people and dealing with all kinds of projects. Prepare for some kind of executive position.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Father's version of Gaye shooting differs from cops'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The father of slain singer Marvin Gaye admits he fired a pistol at his son, but says he thought the gun was loaded only with "blanks or BBs." Marvin Gaye Sr. also said in an interview that his son kicked and beat him before the April 1 shooting, then started after him down a hallway saying: "Oh, you want some more, do you?"
