Manhunt ends; Wilder kills self

COLEBROOK, N.H. (AP) — Christopher Bernard Wilder, a millionaire race car driver suspected of kidnapping and murdering young women, shot himself to death Friday when police confronted him near the Canadian border after a nationwide manhunt, authorities said.

Wilder's identity was confirmed by FBI spokesman Lane Bonner, who said the agency had made positive fingerprint identification.

Authorities said they believed Wilder was in northern New Hampshire to visit friends of a woman he knew years ago.

Wilder, 39, a Florida resident with dual U.S.-Australian citizenship, had been wanted for questioning by the FBI in a nationwide string of 11 abductions of young women, including four who were slain.

He was a millionaire electrical contractor from Boynton Beach, Fla., who raced sports cars as a hobby.

The abductions started Feb. 26 and reached from Florida to California and back to upstate New York, where the body of Beth Dodge, of Phelps, N.Y., was found Thursday and a teen-age Indiana girl was found walking along a road with multiple stab wounds.

It was "definitely one of the most (intense) and to the recent memory of many agents it is the most intense manhunt ever conducted," said Chris Mazzella, a spokesman for the FBI's Miami office, which was in charge of the Wilder investigation.

Deputy Assistant FBI Director Floyd Clarke said in Washington that FBI agents were continuing to search for four young women still missing in the case and added: "By no means is the case closed."

Wilder was driving a gold Firebird automobile owned by Ms. Dodge, 33, whose body was found in a gravel pit in Victor, N.Y. He said the FBI had put out an all-points bulletin for that vehicle, Clarke said.

New Hampshire state police spotted it and approached the vehicle, Clarke said.

Wilder, who was alone in the car, pulled a gun from the glove compartment after two state troopers identified themselves. He shot himself, and the bullet passed through his body and hit trooper Leo Jellison in the ribs, Cray said. The man then fired a second time, killing himself, Cray said.

No other shots were fired.

Jellison, 33, of Twin Mountain, underwent surgery at Colebrook Hospital and was in good condition, according to the attorney general's office. A detective, he was in plain clothes.

The other officer, who was unharmed, was not injured.

A 16-year-old, Tina Marie Risico, who had been believed to be with Wilder since she was last seen at a southern California shopping center on April 4, walked into the Torrance Calif., police station about 1 p.m. Friday, said Officer Ron Raber.

Wilder had placed Miss Risico on an airplane in Boston on Thursday night, FBI special agent Joseph Corless said at a Miami news conference. She arrived in Los Angeles on Friday morning and visited her

Borden Co. landowner still discussing N-dump

AUSTIN — Despite problems with mineral rights, state officials are continuing talks with a Borden County landowner about the possibility of putting a nuclear waste dump on his property.

Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority general manager Rick Jacobi said the entrepreneur has several tracts in Borden and Garza counties, with varying types of ownership rights. "It's a real mixed bag," he said Friday.

But the agency hasn't ruled out making a deal for some of the property, Jacobi said, noting the staff is working with the landowner to help resolve the ownership problems.

Jacobi said his staff will work more closely with local government officials to avoid a mistake made at other potential sites where politicians were not contacted until after officials began eyeing an area.

In addition, the agency has received permission to do some preliminary testing on state-owned land in Brewster County, Jacobi said.

Although Land Commissioner Garry Mauro is allowing those tests, Mauro is not necessarily supporting the idea of selling land to the agency if it turns out to be suitable, Jacobi said.

The agency is looking for land where it can build the state's first low-level radioactive waste landfill. One site will be chosen later this year.

Another new possibility is some property in McMullen County in South Texas. Agency officials also are talking with a landowner in Dimmit County. A lease option already has been signed with a different property-holder in Dimmit County, although area residents are adamantly opposed.

Although University of Texas-owned land in Hudspeth County was once considered a leading contender, university officials failed to take action Friday on the agency's request to buy or lease the land. Reports commissioned by a university board committee have shown the area to be "geologically complex."

Although it wouldn't be too late if the board voted on the issue at its next meeting in June, Jacobi said, the cost of doing extensive geological studies there could be prohibitive. One estimate said that testing could run as high as $7 million, Jacobi said. The agency will decide soon whether to pursue a site in the area, he added.

Krueger visits Big Spring

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

U.S. Senate hopeful Bob Krueger said Friday he favors a "very strong defense," but that it could not be achieved simply by increased defense spending.

He also called U.S. mining of Nicaraguan harbors a "mistake" in a short question-and-answer session Friday afternoon at the Big Spring Airport.

About 20 Big Spring residents heard Krueger tell them a strong defense was not tied to a large defense budget. Krueger is considered the Democrat front-runner in a field that includes U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock and State Senate president pro-tem Lloyd Doggett of Austin.

"We learned in the 1970s that just spending money on social problems would not solve them. We need to learn the same thing in the 1980s about spending money on defense," Krueger said.

Krueger called for new contracting procedures for the military, citing a $2,477 price tag a Texas defense contractor charged the military for a wrench. Eighty percent of replacement parts are not subject to competitive bidding, he said.

He also said he favored the Midgetman missile system over the MX missiles favored by President Reagan because the Midgetmans would be less expensive and less vulnerable to Soviet attack.

On the current Congressional furor over administration mining of Nicaraguan harbors, Krueger said he opposed U.S. mining of the harbors, calling it a "bad policy."

Local officers speed baby's recovery

By RICK BROWN Staff Writer

Time was of the essence, and the police officer was there when she needed him.

"I was hysterical; I was crying. The only thing I could think of was getting that little baby to Lubbock General," said Sue Schaa of 2502 Fairchild. Those were her feelings as she explained her problem last Friday to police officer Roger Sweatt.

Her 1-month-old grandson, Robert, had just been diagnosed at Malone-Hogan Hospital as needing a colectomy, a kind of intestinal bypass. The baby hadn't been able to pass his stool since birth, and doctors at the hospital had just found out why: dead nerves in the baby's intestinal system.

An immediate operation was necessary to save the child, and only two doctors in the state were able to perform the needed surgery — one in Galveston and another at Lubbock General Hospital.

A call to Lubbock revealed the hospital could not accept the child because the family lacked insurance. A call to Galveston revealed that the recommended doctor no longer practiced there. With a second call to Lubbock General, the Schaa's doctor, R.M. Schwarz, prevailed on the hospital to accept the young patient.

Mrs. Schaa, her daughter and the baby were on their way home from Malone-Hogan to pack for the trip to Lubbock when she saw Sweatt's police car at a four-way stop sign on Scurry.

She said, "I rolled down my window and I yelled, 'Can I talk to you please?'"

"He pulled up behind me and I asked if there was something he could do, give me a piece of paper or something so they wouldn't stop me for speeding on the way to Lubbock."

When she explained to the officer that her family couldn't afford an ambulance, he advised her to just call the police department before they left.

"I said thank you and he passed it off as if it were nothing. I didn't have time to explain to him how important it was to us," she said.

"The thing is, he doesn't even realize what he did," she added. After dropping off her daughter and the sick baby at their Scurry address, two different police officers stopped Mrs. Schaa for speeding as she returned to her own house.

She said she felt incoherent as she explained her problem, but somehow the officers understood and told her to go on.

Packed and with the baby in the car, the trio stopped at the police station as they left town for Lubbock.

"We know all about you, Mrs. Schaa, just put on your blinkers and go," she said they told her.

"We passed police officer after police officer (on the way to Lubbock) and they just waved us on ... They didn't even try to stop us," she said.

She said Big Spring police had radioed ahead to each town along Highway 87 to warn other law enforcement agencies that they were coming.

"I guess when they saw someone going that fast they thought it had to be us," she said.

One officer waved to them as he was giving a ticket to another speeder, she said.

Robert was admitted to Lubbock General that evening and went into surgery under the care of Dr. Jane Goldthorn on Sunday, she said.

"The baby came through beautifully. He'll be all right," she said, although the child will need two more operations when he is older and larger.

"I don't know how to express my gratitude for everything (the police) did ... Those guys do have a heart and care about people in Big Spring," she said.

Police Friday were investigating the theft of $220 in room services from the Sands Motel at 2900 W. Highway 80. Van Patel, manager of the motel, told police Friday morning that several people had rented rooms between March 26 and April 4, then had left without paying. Patel told police he repeatedly tried to get the subjects to pay him.

Man harnesses the wind to pay electric bill

SANGER, Texas (AP) — The answer to high utility bills is blown in the wind for Bruce and Lois McDougal of Sanger. They installed a 100-foot windmill tower in their back yard this winter and have been producing electricity ever since.

BLOWIN' IN THE WIND — Bruce McDougal, standing with his 100-foot windmill tower in Sanger, Texas, points toward the direction of the wind.

"Soon as the wind hits eight miles per hour it starts making electricity," said McDougal, whose interest in wind power began 10 years ago. At the top of the tower is a 10-foot long tailpiece and three, 11 1/2-foot blades that create a 24-foot arc. It is designed much like the "old-fashioned windmills of long ago," he said, and can withstand winds up to 125 mph. However, when winds reach 40 mph the tail piece moves it out of direct winds so it doesn't blow apart.

The McDougals believe in wind power so strongly that they have become windmill distributors. "A lot of people could benefit from windmills," he said. "I already have 10 people who want to buy them, but the company has had so many orders lately that they're behind in making them."

Sir John Gielgud turns 80

LONDON — A day before his 80th birthday, Sir John Gielgud returned Friday to the theater where he began his acting career to celebrate the occasion.

Gielgud played a herald, a one-line part, in a 1921 production of Shakespeare's "Henry V" at the Old Vic.

Gielgud was feted by a theater crowd that included Trevor Howard, Glenda Jackson and Christopher Reeve of "Superman" fame, who carried in a cake with 80 candles.

Gielgud recalled his early days at the theater with the late Sir Ralph Richardson. "We had a little dressing room which was absolutely filthy and full of trash. There was a half-empty bottle of plonk (cheap wine) and an old couch, but we both said 'Isn't this wonderful, it's the real theater.'"

Idol find $250 for assault

HENRIETTA, N.Y. — British rock star Billy Idol has been fined $250 after pleading guilty in an assault of a 20-year-old woman in his motel room here.

BILLY IDOL

A lawyer representing the 27-year-old Idol entered the plea to a harassment violation Thursday in town court.

Idol was accused of assaulting a woman in his motel room on Dec. 17, 1983, after a concert that night at the Rochester Institute of Technology. The woman said that during an argument Idol threw her against his motel room wall and then against a hallway wall when she left his room.

The reduced charge in the guilty plea was recommended by the Monroe County district attorney's office and accepted by Town Justice Joseph Marticelli.

Ex-foes to do commerical

PHILADELPHIA — Former Mayor Frank Rizzo and City Councilman Thacher Longstreth, longtime political foes, have put aside their differences to plug a local cut-rate airline — but they still couldn't agree on argyle socks.

Longstreth, a Princeton graduate and a Republican, and Rizzo, a Democrat who worked his way up from a beat cop to police commissioner and then mayor, will appear in two spots for American International Airways.

Rizzo, whose political comeback effort was thwarted by W. Wilson Goode in the mayoral primary last year, claims in one of the 30-second blurbs that he never wanted to be a policeman or mayor.

"I wanted to be a pilot for AIA," Rizzo says. "I wanted to wear the wings of Philadelphia's first low-cost airline."

In the other ad, Rizzo and Longstreth say that although they have never agreed on anything before, they now agree on which airline to use. But the agreement stops there.

"And with all the money we save, just think of all the argyle socks we could buy," says Longstreth, showing off the hosiery that became his trademark.

"Real cops don't wear argyle socks," Rizzo retorts. They made the spots Thursday.

The news in brief

By the Associated Press

Tax increase almost final

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators must decide the final version of a huge package of tax increases that will force millions of Americans to share the burden of reducing federal budget deficits.

By a 76-5 vote, the Senate passed its $48 billion tax increase bill early Friday, after a 19-hour session, and joined the House in a 10-day Easter recess.

Besides tax increases, the Senate measure would trim federal spending by about $15 billion, chiefly in federal health programs. Medicare beneficiaries would see a gradual increase in the $14.60 monthly premium for insurance covering doctor bills and outpatient expenses, to $26.70 by 1989.

Forty-three Republicans and 33 Democrats voted for the bill. Two Democrats and three Republicans opposed it.

The House bill, which would raise $49.2 billion in tax hikes through Sept. 30, 1987, was approved Wednesday. That measure contains no spending cuts.

The tax bills are remarkably similar in their major provisions, although there are hundreds of minor differences between the 1,023-page House measure and the 1,334-page plan adopted by the Senate.

Whatever compromise finally emerges is a good bet to become law. That is because the tax increases would have a major effect on relatively few people, both bills won solid bipartisan majorities in both houses of Congress and both are supported by the Reagan administration.

But a compromise between the two is several weeks away. It will come only after the House and Senate agree on significant reductions in federal spending which, combined with the tax increases, would trim budget deficits by as much as $150 billion to $200 billion over the next three years.

During those three years, deficits could total between $500 billion and $700 billion, even if Congress acts to reduce them.

Tamil extremists wage war

JAFFNA, Sri Lanka — Tamil extremists are waging a new campaign of assassinations, firebombings and ambushes to press their demand for a separate state on the northern peninsula of Sri Lanka.

The attacks by the minority Tamils and the retribution of troops — from the Sinhalese ethnic majority — have raised fears that this island republic is heading for a repeat of the ethnic bloodbath that claimed hundreds of lives last July.

"It's like a boulder coming down a mountain," no one can stop it," said Gamin Navarantne, editor of the weekly Saturday Review newspaper in this capital of the Tamil heartland.

"We are headed for a catastrophe." At least 43 people have died in the past three weeks of violence in the Jaffna district, about 180 miles north of the capital, Colombo.

Suspected Tamil "Tigers," the militant nationalists, in the last week bombed an army convoy, set fire to a Sinhalese school, firebombed a Buddhist temple and police station and attacked government offices.

Residents said vengeful troops burned dozens of Tamil-owned shops. Curfews were imposed Tuesday. President Junius R. Jayewardene, a Sinhalese, says he will never allow the country to be divided. He charged last week that the separatists were trying to incite a "communist revolution." Police say they believe some separatists received PLO training in Lebanon. The two major extremist groups have leftist leanings.

Eighteen percent of Sri Lanka's 15 million people are Tamils, most of whom are Hindus of south Indian origin. Most of them live in the Jaffna region, where they predominate, and many people hope to win an independent homeland called "Eelam."

Drifters charged with murder

KERRVILLE, Texas — Three hitchhikers who contend they were held captive at an isolated ranch have been charged with murder in the death-by-torture of a fellow drifter, whose agonized screams were tape-recorded, prosecutors said Friday.

Three members of the ranching family accused of holding the men hostage by using guns, chains and cattle prods also were indicted on murder charges.

The drifter, Anthony Warren Bates, died March 13 after repeated jabs with a cattle prod, District Attorney Ron Sutton said. Bates' body then was doused with 10 gallons of gasoline and set on fire, the prosecutor said.

Charred bone fragments discovered on the rugged 3,500-acre ranch near Mountain Home were determined Friday to be of human origin, Sutton said.

"It's a strange phenomenon that takes place when you get a bunch of people associated only with each other and disassociated from the world," he said. "It does something to people's minds. Something strange and bizarre happened out there. They had their own little world."

The three family members — Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 52, his son, Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 31, and his daughter-in-law, Joyce Ellebracht, 29 — were charged last week with aggravated kidnapping.

Prosecutors say the Ellebrachts lured hitchhikers to the ranch with promises of work and hot meals, and then compelled them to stay.

Also charged with murder in Thursday's indictments were Mark Allen Hamilton, 22, of Los Angeles; Darryl Hunsacker, 21, no permanent address; and Carlton Robert Caldwell, 19, of Taos, N.M.

All six people were being held on bonds ranging from $50,000 to $100,000.

Hamilton and Hunsacker have given statements to the FBI and Texas Rangers in which they admitted participating in the torture of Bates, which Hamilton said happened "on 20 or 30 occasions, each session lasting about one or two hours."

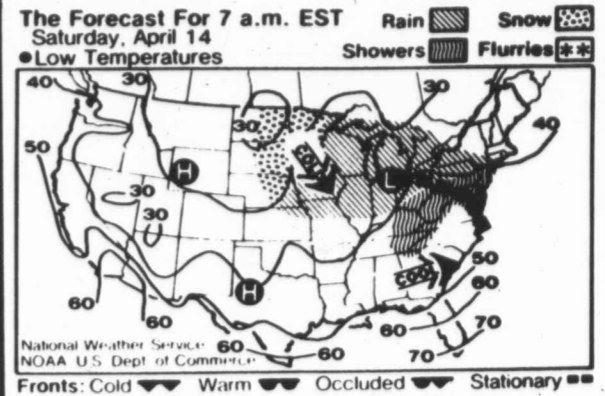

"I participated in most of these sessions and used the cattle prod on Bates. Bates was shocked on various parts of his body, including his genitals and his tongue," Hamilton said in his statement, which has been filed in district court.

"Eventually, Bates became very weak and died..." he said. "When Bates died, Junior made me and Carlton Robert Carson (sic) take the body and douse it with ten gallons of gasoline. We then burned the body..."

Hunsaker said that "Junior" often laughed during the torture sessions, which included beatings, and that the rancher's son taped them at least twice.

Eighteen audio cassette tapes were confiscated when lawmen raided the isolated ranch, court documents show.

Weather

By the Associated Press

Good weekend weather

Sunny skies and warm temperatures were reported across Texas on Friday, and little change was expected over the weekend, despite a surge of cool air that was headed toward the state from the north.

Texas was clear of clouds Friday afternoon except for a few between Laredo and Del Rio and along the upper coast. The leading edge of the cooler air was along a line from Wichita Falls to Lubbock.

Temperatures were in the 60s and 70s in the Panhandle and generally in the 80s elsewhere on Friday.

At 5 p.m., it was 90 at San Angelo, 89 at San Antonio and Austin, 88 at Waco and 87 at Midland. The reading was 81 at Dallas, 74 at Wichita Falls, 64 at Amarillo, 73 at Lubbock, 78 at Corpus Christi and 81 at Brownsville.

Winds were generally blowing at 10 to 20 mph, but were from the south in the south half of the state and from the north in the north half.

Light rain showers were falling in the Panhandle late Friday afternoon, moving toward the south at 15 mph.

The National Weather Service said Saturday's outlook is for temperatures of around 70 throughout West Texas, in the 80s in South Texas, and in the 60s in North Texas. But lows should be near 40 statewide Saturday night. Temperatures on Sunday should be in the 60s and 70s, the weather service said.

Whites are the minority in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Minorities are now the majority in Dallas, according to an estimate issued by city officials.

Dallas' white population fell from 51.9 percent in 1980 to 49 percent in 1983, the city's Department of Planning and Development estimated Thursday.

By 1990, the planners projected, the city's population will be 58.7 percent minority and 41.3 percent white, a vast change from 1960, when U.S. Census Bureau figures showed that the city was more than 75 percent white.

The figures were contained in an economic development issue paper presented Thursday at a city council workshop. The report did not contain an analysis of why the population shifts have occurred.

Garden checklist for April

Cankerworms are in season and may be attacking trees and shrubs. These leaf-chewing insects are sometimes called inch worms or measuring worms because of their measuring action as they move from place to place. The larvae are about one inch when full grown. They are very slender and spin a web when disturbed. Color varies from green to grey and black. Cankerworms are easily controlled with an application of bacillus thuringiensis, Sevin, Orthene, Malathion, or Diazinon.

Roses have high fertilizer requirements. Use a complete fertilizer for the first application just as new growth starts, then use ammonium sulfate every 4 to 6 weeks, usually just as the next growth cycle starts following a flowering cycle.

Continue to spray roses for black spot control using a spray containing either Benomyl or Triforine, or as they are more commonly known, Benlate or Funginex. Use every 7 to 10 days.

Prune back climbing hybrid tea roses as soon as they complete flowering.

Groom, train, and thin out spring flowering landscape trees and shrubs as soon as they finish flowering. On established shrubs it is best to remove about 13 of the oldest canes each spring.

If pyracantha, sycamore, and elm leaves are taking on a light tan appearance, look for lace bugs on the underside of the leaf. If control is needed, Diazinon or Malathion should do the job.

Spider mites can cause trouble on almost any plant. Kelthane is still the best control once populations build up to the point the plant is endangered.

Removing spent flowers, trimming back excessive growth, and applying fertilizer to an established annual bed can do wonders towards the rejuvenation of the bed.

With increasing water costs, one of the most important summer activities in the garden is mulching. Mulching has many benefits, not the least of which is conservation of valuable soil moisture. It also lowers soil temperature and reduces evaporation by the sun and wind.

Cutworms in the flower garden can be controlled by treating the soil and lower stems of young plants with either Sevin (Carbaryl) or Diazinon. Once the plants have grown to a larger size, the worms will not bother them.

Don't forget to turn the material in the compost pile to speed up decomposition. Water when needed.

Seeds of amaranthus, celosia, cosmos, marigold, portulaca, zinnia, and other warm season annuals can be sown directly in the beds where they are to grow.

Keep seeded areas moist until seed germinate. Thin out as soon as large enough to transplant. Surplus plants can be transplanted to other areas.

It will soon be time for bagworms to attack junipers and other narrow-leaved evergreens. Control measures such as Sevin dust or spray should be applied while the insects and the bags are about 1/2 inch in length.

Plant Bermuda grass seed or sprigs as soon as the soil warms up, usually in early to mid-May.

For instant color, purchase started annual plants. Select short, compact plants. Any flowers or flower buds should be pinched to give plants an opportunity to become established.

Check new tender growth for aphids. A few can be tolerated but large numbers should be controlled. Use Malathion, Diazinon, or Orthene. These will also control whitefly. Always follow label instructions.

Control powdery mildew on landscape plants with Benomyl or Funginex.

There is still time to plant any needed trees and shrubs if container-grown or balled-and-burlapped plants are used. Make sure to obtain quality plants and provide adequate care the first summer. Good container plants are in short supply this year due to the December freeze. You may want to consider using annuals for filler until plants become more readily available.

Check for suckers or sprouts that arise at or below ground level of grafted or budded plants. These new shoots frequently occur on roses, fruit trees, crabapple, and dogwoods. They usually come from the more vigorous understock and will soon spoil the appearance and health of the more desirable top.

Many flower or vegetable seeds left over after planting the garden can be saved for the next season by closing the packets with tape or paper clip and storing in a sealed glass jar in your refrigerator until needed.

Continue to plant gladiolus every 2 weeks for continuous bloom.

Be sure to water freeze damaged plants thoroughly. This especially applies to new trees and shrubs.

Start weeding early in the flower garden. Early competition with small plants can delay flowering. A mulch will discourage weed growth and make those that do come through easier to pull.

Soil purchased for use in beds, low areas, and containers should be examined closely. Often nut grass, other weeds, nematodes, and soil borne diseases are brought into the yard through contaminated soil sources.

However, some ERs are staffed by private doctors who do have their own practices in addition. So rather than deprive an apparently very worthy colleague of an admiring client, let me suggest you call the hospital and ask if that doctor has a private office.

Dye Easter eggs naturally

The first Easter trail Peter Cottontail hopped down was in Pennsylvania, and that first trip took place in 1728, long before commercial egg dyes became popular.

Back then, many Pennsylvania Dutch children used natural dyes from herbs and foods to dye the eggs that were then exchanged as tokens of good times to come. This Easter your children might enjoy making their own dye (with your help) as well as coloring the eggs. They might even learn something about the many uses of foodstuffs along the way.

For softer, lighter shades, prepare the dye and strain it to remove the herbs, roots or foodstuff used to obtain the color. Then, dip and turn pre-cooked eggs in the dye until you get a pretty shade. To create a deeper shade, simply make the dye and cook the eggs at the same time, allowing the eggs to simmer for as long as 20 minutes to reach the deepest hues.

Another method of dyeing eggs is to wrap raw eggs in bits of the dye-making plant or food, and then tie them in cheesecloth. When the eggs are boiled the dye is transferred directly to the eggshell, leaving a unique mottled effect.

Adding vinegar or alum to the dyeing mixture will increase the strength of the dye.

Here are some "recipes" for various colors:
For yellow dye use chamomile tea or dandelion blossoms, pour boiling water over the tea or blossoms, cover and let stand for half an hour. Strain the liquid and add a teaspoon of vinegar and the dye is ready.

Make gold dye by simmering two tablespoons of turmeric for 20 minutes. Add a teaspoon of vinegar before dyeing eggs. Since turmeric does not dissolve, the coloring will be slightly marbled.

A brass-brown shade results from onion skins, even red onion skins. Place the skins in a pan of water and simmer until the desired shade is obtained. Strain the liquid and add a teaspoon of vinegar and the dye is ready.

Lavender-blue eggs can be made with blueberries or grapes. Crush the berries or grapes by hand or in a blender. Add water and simmer for a few minutes. Strain the mixture and add a teaspoon of vinegar to complete the dye. Use a similar method to make robin's-egg blue from cabbage.

Mint leaves will make pale green Easter eggs. Pour boiling water over mint leaves, cover and let simmer for half an hour. Strain the mixture and add a teaspoon of vinegar to complete the dye.

Any of the dye-stuffs can be wrapped around or folded against a raw egg and enclosed in cheesecloth and then cook to obtain unusual patterns of color on the egg.

Hard cook eggs correctly to avoid an unappetizing green ring around the yolk. Put unbroken eggs in single layer in a saucepan and add enough tap water to come at least 1" above eggs. Cover and bring rapidly just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove the pan from the burner to prevent further boiling. Let stand, covered in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for medium eggs — adjust time up or down by approximately 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller. Cool immediately and thoroughly in cold water. Shelled hard cooked eggs may be marinated in beet juice to produce a red purple color. Or use food coloring in water to tint shelled hard cooked eggs pastel colors for an Easter egg platter.

Dear Abby

Yes, tell them about Grandpa

DEAR ABBY: I always wondered why my aunts and uncles never talked much about my grandfather's absence from 1908 to 1920. An indirect hint from a cousin led me to search the records of the state mental institution. Sure enough, there was Grandpa's name.

Should I tell the relatives where Grandpa was all those years, or keep the family secret? The problem is particularly pressing because I have children, one of whom is chronically mentally ill, and I understand that these tendencies are often inherited.

Should my children be old? It could involve future generations. WORRIED IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR WORRIED: Absolutely. To withhold such information would be unfair and unwise.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PATRIOTIC IN CHICAGO: Consider this: "We must face the fact that the United States is neither omnipotent nor omniscient, that we are only 6 percent of the world's population and that we cannot right every wrong or reverse each adversity, and that therefore there cannot be an American solution to every world problem."

JOHN F. KENNEDY

Dr. Donohue

Radioactive treatment OK

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My urologist recently treated my prostate cancer with radioactive iodine seeds in lieu of surgically removing the tumor and the gland. He feels this will reduce the tumor satisfactorily. However, I am nervous about this radioactive seed in my body. Have I traded one cancer for another? — G.F.T.

Don't worry about this. The cure is not worse than the disease, if that's what you're saying. You're not trading one cancer for another, or the potential for developing another one. This is a safe therapy. There is a rapid decline in the radiation level as it goes from the site where it was placed in your prostate toward surrounding structures. Such therapy has been used for many years effectively and safely.

If it were not safe, can you imagine the justifiable howls of protest about its use? Your other questions related to this gland and its functions and problems are included in the booklet "The Pesky Prostate," which other readers may obtain by writing me care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for printing and handling.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please let me know what kind of a medicine this is: dipyrindamole. I never heard of this one before. — J.M.

Dipyridamole is used to increase blood flow in heart muscle arteries when a person has angina. In other cases, it may be used with blood-thinning medicines to prevent clot formation inside arteries. It works by stopping platelets from clumping.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please clarify something for me. Recently, I went to an emergency room and was seen by an emergency room physician. He wasn't a resident or intern there, like you sometimes get. I really was pleased with him and liked him very much. I am looking for a physician and wondered if an emergency room doctor does take on regular patients? I hear this is a relatively new field. — F.A.P.

Yes, emergency medicine is a relatively new specialty. I can't clarify your specific question about this doctor, but most emergency room physicians find their duties occupy more than enough of their time and do not have private practices. However, some ERs are staffed by private doctors who do have their own practices in addition. So rather than deprive an apparently very worthy colleague of an admiring client, let me suggest you call the hospital and ask if that doctor has a private office.

Mortgage investment tips

CHANGING TIMES

The Kiplinger Magazine Double-digit mortgage interest rates may be a persistent cloud hanging over home buyers, but for investors it's a cloud with a gilt-edged lining.

High rates have sparked an explosion in mortgage-backed securities, which generally are as safe as Treasury bonds, yield as much as 1.5 percentage points more, and can be purchased for as little as $1,000.

A mortgage-backed security represents a share in a pool of home mortgages.

As part owner of the pool, you're entitled to a portion of the homeowners' monthly payments.

Mortgage-backed securities don't behave like bonds and other traditional fixed-income investments, with a return of principal at maturity. Instead, you get monthly checks reflecting both principal and interest.

But like other bonds, mortgage-backed securities are sensitive to interest rates, so their value tends to fall when rates rise. And unlike Treasury securities, which generally are exempt from state taxes, mortgage securities are taxed by some states.

Pension funds and other institutional investors are the biggest market for mortgage-backed securities, but they're also available to small investors.

The three biggest issuers of mortgage-backed securities are the Government National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae), a federal agency whose bonds are backed by the full credit of the U.S. government; the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Association (Freddie Mac), and the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae), which are basically private corporations without full federal backing. Ginnie Mae bonds, enjoying the highest degree of investor safety, pay a commensurately lower yield than Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae securities. For as little as $1,000 you can buy into a GNMA mutual fund or unit trust sponsored by a number of fund managers and brokerage firms.

Freddie Mac securities, issued in denominations of $25,000, are available in smaller units through funds sponsored by Vanguard, Valley Forge, Pa., and Federate Investors, Pittsburgh.

Fannie Mae issues its own securities, which have characteristics similar to Freddie Mac "participation certificates" and cost $25,000 and up.

Monthly cash flows and high interest rates are two of the biggest drawing cards for mortgage-backed securities. Ironically, they can also be the biggest drawbacks.

That's because mortgages can be prepaid. And because prepayments can vary, there's no way of knowing exactly how much your monthly check will be. Prepayments amount to an unexpected return of the principal you invested, and that can be either good or bad.

On the plus side, if interest rates rise, you can reinvest your money at the higher rate. On the minus side, if interest rates fall, the long-term, high-yield investment you thought you had locked in could turn out to be short-lived.

The bad news would be compounded if you had paid a premium for the security. Because prepayments are made at par, you'd take a capital loss.

NOTICE

I am Garner Thixton, a lifetime resident of Howard County and I am asking for your support to be your FULL TIME Commissioner of precinct 3. I am fully aware of the assets and problems of our community. The assets are too numerous to mention. The few problems we have can be solved if we can get county and city to cooperate on this issue in question.

One of these issues is rural fire protection and my plan will increase the average response time to a rural fire by at least 15 minutes for the first truck on the scene.

Another issue is something that all citizens of Howard County can use. We have a small lake on the south edge of town that with close cooperation between governing bodies, could provide our young people with a place to meet for recreation and give our senior citizens, whether handicapped or not, an accessible place for picnics or fishing by erecting a pier into the lake with lighted ramps and guard rails.

None of this can be accomplished without close cooperation between the county and city governments. I believe that with God's help I can get the two governing bodies to cooperate on these and other things for the benefit of the community.

When elected, the only thing I can promise you is to prosecute those who dump trash on our streets and roads when they can be identified, and most trash can be traced to the original owners.

Remember, Garner Thixton will be YOUR FULL TIME Commissioner. Thanks for your support.

TRAIN WRECKAGE — This is an aerial view of a head-on collision between two Burlington Northern trains near Wiggins, Colo. on Friday. As many as five persons were killed and two injured in the crash.

Five killed in train collision

WIGGINS, Colo. (AP) — Two Burlington Northern freight trains collided head-on "in a big ball of flame" early Friday near a spot where one normally would be waiting on a siding. Five crew members were killed and two injured.

Six others escaped injury in the collision, which railroad officials said involved 149 cars and 10 locomotives traveling at a combined speed of 55-65 mph.

Schools were closed because of the smoky fire but no residents were evacuated from this small farming community about 60 miles northeast of Denver.

"When those cars started banging, you could hear a boom, boom, boom!" said Jim Vance, a Wiggins resident.

"You can't even tell they were engines anymore, they are so brown," said Vance. "It just wiped the whole top of them out."

He said flames from the engines burned for several hours before firefighters could put them out.

The fiery collision occurred on the western edge of town, several hundred yards from a scattering of mobile homes and houses, officials said.

Freight cars were stacked on top of each other on each side of the bent and broken rail, and a string of derailed cars stretched through town.

"It sounded like heavy thunder," said R.C. said. Toxic materials were being transported in cars far back in the trains and were not affected, officials said.

Five bodies were recovered, said Stafford, but none had been identified.

"We think we have recovered the two in the eastbound head engine," Morgan County Coroner F.D. Joliffe said. "There was almost nothing left. We hope for IDs through dental charts, that's the best we can do. They are pretty much skeletal."

One of the injured crew members was identified as Richard Sponsel, 53, of Denver. He was admitted for treatment at Fort Morgan Community Hospital.

"His condition is very, very good. He has a

Vance, a Wiggins resident. "It woke me up. I didn't know if I was dreaming or what ... There was a big ball of flame and black smoke rolling up. It looked like the whole side of Wiggins was on fire."

The two "hot shot" or high priority trains meet at Wiggins every morning along the main track between Chicago and Denver, said Bill Joplin, a Burlington Northern spokesman in Denver.

Normally, one will pull into a siding, but Friday the two collided at 3:55 a.m. about 1,000 feet from the siding, said Pat Stafford, a spokesman for Burlington Northern Railroad in St. Paul, Minn.

"There is some conjecture (the eastbound train) was traveling slowly to take the siding," said Stafford. "The collision occurred 700-1,000 feet west of the west switch of the "Scoop" Gilliland, who lives less than a mile from the collision site. "There was smoke and flames. One (crew member) crawled out and another one jumped out. I helped one to the police car. He said he didn't know how he got out of there alive."

Morgan County sheriff's deputy Evan Beecham said no evacuations were necessary in the town but schools were closed for the day because of thick, black smoke from the burning diesel fuel. Each of the diesel engines can carry about 2,000 gallons of fuel.

"All three schools were closed because of unknown chemicals on the trains," said Carroll Jacobson, superintendent of Wiggins School District RE50-J.

Two cars filled with a flammable material were part of the trains, but they weren't threatened by the wreck or the fire, Beecham broken hand and a slight burn of that hand," said Jim Albers, hospital administrator.

The second person, whom Albers declined to identify, was treated for scrapes and bruises, and released, he said.

Six crew members escaped with little or no injury, said Mike Martin, division supervisor for Burlington Northern in Denver.

All train traffic was being rerouted to Union Pacific tracks at Sterling.

Stafford said each train was being pulled by five diesel engines. The westbound train pulled 72 cars and the eastbound train pulled 77 cars.

The No. 100 eastbound train with 77 cars, bound from Denver to Chicago, was traveling 5 to 10 mph. The westbound train, No. 163 bound from Chicago for Denver, was traveling 50 to 55 mph, Stafford said.

Pet month activities planned in Big Spring

The Big Spring Animal Control Department has joined a nationwide salute to dogs and cats during Pets Are Wonderful (PAW) month, celebrated each April.

Janie Edwards of the Big Spring Police Department said the third annual celebration recognizes the benefits of pets to people and the need for responsible pet care.

Actress Betty White is leading the month-long event. The department here will conduct a meeting at 7 p.m. April 17 to discuss animals.

The meeting will be held in the Dora Roberts Community Center. Members of the panel will include Dr. H.E. Thompson, local veterinarian; Bebe McCasland, federally licensed to handle and rescue birds; Wayne Armstrong, Texas Game Warden; James Luck, public health officer for Big Spring; and members of the Big Spring Animal Control Department.

The meeting is open to the public.

April is divided into four week salutes. Recently completed was Pet Adoption Week, April 1-7. The week of April 8-14 is Pet Care Week. April 15-21 is Humane Education Week and April 22-28 is Human/Companion Animal Bond Week.

Pig in dog house with town officials

CATHEDRAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — The pig's in the dog house and has to leave, say city authorities.

Not fair, says Betty Drummond, who claims evicting her sightless pet porker Tita would be heartless.

"She's just too cute for words," said Ms. Drummond, who received notice this week that Tita has to go. "She's a big baby and she just loves everybody. Why can't they just leave her?"

Tita, who lives in a dog house with three dogs, is not defined as a domestic animal under state law, and it's therefore a public nuisance to keep the pet within 20 feet of a residence, said city spokeswoman Pamela Summers.

MAKING CONTACT — Montreal Expos' Pete Rose drives a fourth inning double off Phillies pitcher Jerry Koosman during Friday's game in Montreal. It was Rose's 4,000th career hit. Montreal also won the game, 5-1.

Rose hits 4,000 as Expos win

MONTREAL (AP) — Pete Rose doubled for his 4,000th hit and Tim Lincecum drove in two runs to lead Montreal past the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 Friday in the Expos' home opener before a crowd of 48,060 at Olympic Stadium.

In the fourth inning, with pitcher Charlie Lea on first with a walk, Rose lined Jerry Koosman's 1-1 pitch into the right-field corner for his milestone hit. Only Ty Cobb, with 4,191 hits in a major-league career which ended in 1928, has more.

Rose, who turns 43 Saturday, received a two-minute standing ovation and gave the ball to Montreal batting coach Billy DeMars, his batting coach in Philadelphia when he broke Stan Musial's National League record with 3,631 hits in 1961.

One out later, Lincecum drove both runners home with a single to center field to give Montreal a 4-1 lead. Andre Dawson's triple and Gary Carter's double made it 5-1 in the seventh. They scored two unearned runs in the second inning. Bobby Ramos scored from first when second baseman Juan Samuel threw Lea's grounder into right field. Lea, who took second on the error, scored on Bryan Little's single.

Lea, 2-1, who needed last-out relief from Gary Lucas, allowed a fourth-inning run on Glenn Wilson's double and Bo Diaz's single. Lucas got John Wockenfuss on a game-ending grounder to third with the bases loaded to pick up his second save.

Cubs 11, Mets 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Jody Davis cracked three hits, including a two-run homer, and Ron Cey and Gary Matthews also homered Friday to lead Steve Trout and the Chicago Cubs to an 11-2 home-opening victory that snapped the New York Mets' six-game winning streak.

Trout, 1-1, allowed only seven hits, four by Keith Hernandez, before a crowd of 33,436.

Larry Bowa and Ryne Sandberg delivered two-run singles to highlight a five-run fourth which chased 19-year-old Dwight Gooden, 1-1.

Cey hit a solo homer, his single by Matthews.

Gooden allowed no other hit until the fifth which started with Cey and Hall drawing walks. A bloop single by Davis loaded the bases and Bowa followed with his two-run single.

Trout's bunt single

Thon only hours earlier, led off the seventh inning with a double that broke up Mario Soto's no-hitter, then scored the game's only run as the Astros beat the Cincinnati Reds 1-0 Friday night.

Through six, Soto had allowed just one walk while locked in a duel with knuckleballer Joe Niekro. 1-2, who scattered five hits in 7 2-3 innings before yielding to Frank DiPino, who earned his first save with 1 1-3 innings of hitless relief.

Bass laced a liner in front of right fielder Dave Parker and beat the throw to second base. After Jose Cruz popped out to second baseman Ron Oester, Jerry Mumphy singled to right field.

Reds left fielder Duane Walker bobbled Mumphy's hit for an error allowing Bass to score, but then threw out Mumphy at second base.

reloaded the bases and Davis scored when Bob Dernier bounced into a fielder's choice. Dernier stole second and Sandberg followed with his two-run single.

The Cubs scored another run in the sixth on a two-out walk to Matthews and a triple by Leon Durham, who had struck out in his three previous at bats.

Detroit's best model of '84 runs down Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Chet Lemon keyed an eight-run first inning and the unbeaten Detroit Tigers went on to their eighth victory in a 13-9 decision over Boston Friday, spoiling the Red Sox home opener.

The Tigers, off to their best start in the club's 84-year history, withstood a five-run Boston first inning and then held on with the help of six double plays.

Detroit sent 13 batters to the plate in the first, shelling southpaw Bruce Hurst, 1-2, who had not allowed an earned in two previous starts on the road.

Hurst walked Lou Whitaker and Alan Trammell before Barbaro Garbay reached on an error by shortstop Glenn Hoffman, filling the bases. Lance Parrish Lemon lined a single over Hoffmann's head into left-center, scoring Trammell and Garbay with Herndon stopping at second.

Rod Allen and Rusty Kuntz followed with RBI singles and Mike Brown relieved Hurst. Tom Brookens bounced a ground-rule double into the right field stands, scoring Allen and moving Kuntz to third.

Whitaker grounded to third and when catcher Rich Gedman dropped the throw to the plate for an error, Kuntz and Brookens scored, the seventh and eighth runs of the inning. The Tigers reloaded the bases before Parrish grounded into an inning ending double play.

Boston kayoed Detroit starter Milt Wilcox by scoring five runs in the first on a single by Jerry Remy, a hit batsman, a walk, a two-run single by Jim Rice, and RBI single by Mike Easler and, after a Detroit double play, Rich Gedman's first homer of the season.

Detroit reliever Doug Bair replaced Wilcox and allowed just three hits, including a solo homer by Dwight Evans in the second, for 4 1/3 innings in earning the victory in his first 1984 appearance.

GETTING SET — Quade Weaver of Runnels Junior High gets set to handle a shot during the semi-finals in action from junior high tourney action in Big Spring Friday afternoon. Weaver is one half of the eight grade boys doubles team that also includes Aaron Allen.

Runnels duo is tourney champ

Quade Weaver and Aaron Allen claimed the boys doubles championship in junior high tennis tournament action Friday at Figure 7 Tennis Center.

The Runnels Junior High pair captured the semi-finals with a tough, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4 match against a Midland duo.

In the finals Weaver and Allen rolled to an easy win, 6-3, 6-1.

Both will be in action today as singles competition rounds out the two day tournament. All eighth grade matches will be played at the tennis center while seventh grade girls will take the courts at the air base and seventh grade boys try the courts at Big Spring High School. Action begins at 8 a.m.

For the Runnels girls, Angie Wilson and Lara Cunningham made the doubles quarter-finals before losing a very tough decision, 7-6, 6-7, 6-7.

Coach Kim Hood said the girls, "were at match points a couple of times in the last set," but could never quite clinch the victory.

Johnson strikes oil(ers) in trade with Houston

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys traded wide receiver Butch Johnson to the Houston Oilers Friday for wide receiver Mike Renfro, the club announced.

In addition, the Cowboys also will trade second-round picks with Houston in the 1984 college draft and will get an undisclosed selection in the 1985 draft, Cowboys spokesman Doug Todd said.

With the switch, Dallas will pick 12th and Houston 26th in the second round of this year's draft. Houston's pick was one the Oilers had acquired previously from Minnesota.

Johnson, an eight-year veteran in the National Football League, had his best season last year, catching 41 passes for 561 yards and three touchdowns. But he was openly displeased about playing in a backup role.

Renfro has six years in the NFL. Renfro, a three-time all-Southwest Conference player at Texas Christian University, spent the first four games of last season on injured reserve with hepatitis, but started seven games later in the year. He caught 23 passes for 316 yards and two touchdowns.

Renfro's career totals show 160 receptions for 2,183 yards and 11 touchdowns, including a 54-yarder against the Cowboys in 1982. Johnson, who gained fame for his "California Quake" end-zone celebrations that Dallas coach Tom Landry outlawed, has 132 catches for 2,124 yards and 19 touchdowns over his career.

"We were very reluctant to give up Mike, but it was the key to making the deal," Oilers head coach Hugh Campbell said.

"We recognize Mike as both an inspirational and talented player. This was an important move for us to make in our efforts to build the type of offense that we desire. We want to wish Mike well and much success with the Cowboys," Campbell added.

Johnson is 29 and Renfro 28.

Johnson, unhappy because he has not had a starting role on the Cowboys, asked Landry to trade him, and Landry agreed.

Spurs spurn Rockets by one

HOUSTON (AP) — Atis Gilmore's free throw with five seconds left in overtime offset a "triple-double" by Elvin Hayes in the final home appearance of his career as the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Houston Rockets 129-128 Friday.

Hayes, who played all 53 minutes of the game, will close out his 16-year career at Kansas City Saturday as the National Basketball Association's third all-time leading scorer and rebounder and the career leader in games, minutes, fouls and field goal attempts.

Hayes scored 16 points, grabbed 17 rebounds and passed out 11 assists.

Gene Banks, who led all scorers with 28 points, and Ron Brewer each scored four points for the Spurs in

BSHS golfers finish 14th

ODESSA — For the fourth consecutive year Abilene Cooper teams finished 1-2 in the District 4-5 A boys golf tournament.

The tourney completed its final stop here Friday with Cooper's A team taking a five shot victory over the Cougars' B bunch, 1,546 to 1,551 in the five leg journey through Abilene, Big Spring, San Angelo, Midland and Odessa.

Big Spring golfers carded a 353 score in the final round and finished the district schedule in 14th place with a total of 1,786 in front of Odessa's B team which shot 2,050.

Senior Ronnie Martinez led the Steers with a final round of 78, giving him 13th place among the district's top golfers — the top 10 of which are given all-district status.

Other final round scores had Robert Gilbert in with a 91, Marc Couch and Steve Ross at 92 and Larry Garcia going 98. Scores carded by Big Spring's second team had Gary Walls with a 92, Ryder White at 93, Mitch Griffin at 97 and Bryan Bailey at 104.

In the medalist and all-district race Cooper claimed five spots including the top three where Bob Estes won with a 297 after firing 73 on the final day of action. Brent Springer and Ryan Heller followed with 300. Todd Moore at 303 and Jeff Foster at 305 rounded out Cooper's golfers.

Big Spring coach Howard Stewart said the RONNIE MARTINEZ best thing about this year's squad is the fact it will virtually be intact next season with the exception of Martinez who graduates.

"This has definitely been a learning year for us," said Stewart. "I hope we have gained a lot of experience," he added.

California town quaking over seismic threat

PREPARING FOR DISASTER — Students at Parkfield School near Paso Robles, Ca., dive to the ground during a recent earthquake drill. The dreaded San Andreas Fault lays underground only a few hundred yards from the school.

PARKFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Children played outside a one-room school as oak trees rustled in the warm spring breeze, which wafted lazily through this quiet valley hamlet tucked away in central California's Coast Range.

On the surface, a tranquil scene. Yet just beneath the ground, only yards away, destructive forces were building along one of the most dreaded seismic faults in the world — the San Andreas.

"Yes, we have earthquake drills here," said teacher Duane Hamann. An instant later, he bellowed the command to his 16 students:

"Drop!"

The children abruptly fell to their knees, bowed forward in the sun-drenched grass and put their hands over their heads.

Hamann, 42, was preparing his students for the day when, once again, the fault will break as it has every two decades since settlers first kept records of tremors in the Cholame Valley.

Valley dwellers have heard the rumble of approaching quakes and watched the ground roll and the limbs of trees sway. They have seen clouds of dust rise in the moonlight as quakes set off landslides in nearby hills. And they have rebuilt their chimneys and replaced smashed dishes, then continued with their lives.

Scientists say that within three to nine years, the next severe quake, measuring 5 to 6 on the Richter scale of ground motion, will strike the valley. And they say that someday a Parkfield tremor might "run away" and trigger a great quake measuring 8 or more in the Los Angeles area, 200 miles south, which could cause tremendous damage.

So they have set up an array of monitoring equipment to make the Parkfield section of the San Andreas the most closely watched segment of any earthquake fault in the world, said Bill Bakun, a geophysicist with the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park.

Researchers from the USGS and California's Division of Mines and Geology have converged on the valley because the earthquakes here are amazingly similar. Moderate tremors occur like clockwork about every 22 years, have nearly identical magnitudes, share the same epicenter and are preceded by similar foreshocks.

That makes the Cholame Valley an ideal place for geologists to study the events leading to quakes in an effort to predict them elsewhere in the world, Bakun said.

Scientists rarely know in advance where a quake will be centered, so Parkfield's next quake also will provide an unusual opportunity to learn more about strong ground motion close to a fault. A fault is a fracture in the earth's crust which causes the layers of rock underneath the surface to become displaced and movable.

Such knowledge "could make future design of dams, bridges, buildings, power plants earthquake-resistant.... It's a very life-saving sort of science," said state geologist Richard McJunkin.

Signs abound that the Cholame Valley is earthquake country. Bent guardrails and girders on a bridge into Parkfield betray movement of the fault below.

Nun challenges U.S. businesses

BOERNE, Texas (AP) — Sister Susan Mika wants to challenge the American way of doing business.

As executive director of the Texas Coalition for Responsible Investment (CRI), Sister Mika leads the efforts of 13 Catholic religious orders that try to pressure corporations to stop what the religious groups believe to be unethical practices.

In its first two years, CRI has instigated a stockholder resolution to stop construction of the South Texas Nuclear Plant, investigated the health of workers in Hanes factories and researched American companies' use of foreign-based factories.

"Some people feel women religious (nuns) should not be involved in all these things," Sister Mika said. "But if we're not raising these questions, there's not going to be anybody raising them."

Opposition to STNP has been the coalition's most visible issue.

Last year, CRI worked with the Sisters of the Sorrowful Mother, a Wisconsin religious order that owns stock in Houston Industries.

Houston Industries is the parent company of Houston Lighting and Power, the managing partner for the troubled nuclear plant.

The Sorrowful Mother sisters prepared a resolution asking for a halt in work on STNP pending an independent review of the much-delayed project.

Sister Mika said almost 7.4 percent of the votes in last May's stockholders' meeting supported the resolution, a figure she calls "fantastic" for a first effort at questioning management on its own turf.

More importantly, the vote met the government's requirement of at least 3 percent for allowing a question to be raised again.

The Sorrowful Mothers, together with the Christian Brothers of St. Louis, are asking this May's meeting for outright cancellation of the plant.

Now the religious groups have won credibility and respect from the management of Houston Industries, Sister Mika said.

The 35-year-old Benedictine nun said the company sent only two representatives last year for a meeting in New York to discuss their resolution.

But this year, five company officials, including board Chairman Don Jordan, met with the CRI delegation and provided a tour of the plant.

Sister Mika said that management wants the religious orders to withdraw their resolution to avoid more negative publicity for the plant.

"I was asked a lot of questions and saw a lot of red tags (that indicate work that needs to be re-inspected or re-done). And we're going ahead with our resolution," the nun said.

Sister Mika said her group questions the safety of the nuclear plant, its escalating cost and plans for disposal of nuclear waste. She became particularly incensed when an HL&P official suggested putting high-level nuclear waste into space.

"I wrote to him that we do not see space as the ultimate garbage frontier," she said.

The oldest of nine children, Sister Mika was born in Fort Lee, Va., into a military family. Her father drew duties in Texas, Louisiana, Japan and France before settling in San Antonio.

She first got interested in becoming a nun during an earlier stint in this city when she attended eighth grade at St. Benedict's School.

"I liked how the sisters went about things. They did things in a quiet way, but they were very dedicated," she said.

While her family was stationed in France, Sister Mika came to Boerne to attend St. Albert Hall, then a Benedictine school for girls exploring the religious life. She entered the convent after graduation from St. Albert's and took final vows in 1970.

Most of her ministry has been centered on parochial schools, teaching at Holy Spirit and St. Benedict's and serving as principal at the latter school from 1975 to 1981.

Sister Mika found it ironic not only to be running a school she had attended, but also to be principal while some of her younger siblings were in the school.

"You're always harder on them, because you want them to be the best. And they knew they would have to stay in line," she said.

Sister Mika said that she has spent much of her time working on "peace and justice issues," so her involvement in CRI has not been such a big switch from teaching.

She helped to organize a peace vigil in Mahneke Park last year and attended the huge demonstration for nuclear disarmament in New York in 1982.

Neighbor saves infant from fire

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin woman was described as "a hero in the true sense of the word" after pulling an 18-month-old infant from a burning apartment Friday just moments before trapped gases exploded.

"She braved the flames and rescued a child who would no doubt have died," Fire Department Capt. Danny Stamper said of Janice Ray, 24, a neighbor who pulled the infant through a bedroom window.

The fire was reported at 1235 a.m. in a south Austin apartment complex.

Miss Ray said she was in her apartment when she heard an exploding noise. She looked out the window and saw flames. She ran toward the burning apartment, passing a man who said the unit was on fire and a baby was inside.

Another apartment resident, Brian Calbat, 23, tried to enter through the front door but was forced back by the flames, she said.

Miss Ray said she ran around to the rear of the apartment. The man with whom she had spoken fumbled with the window for a moment.

"He couldn't get it open, so I just pushed him out of the way," Miss Ray said.

"The crib was close to the window and I was half in and half out and got the baby out. Then the smoke hit me and I got tangled in the curtains, but I got her out."

Stamper said that as Miss Ray pulled the child out, "the superheated gases inside ignited the furnishings and it all went up at once."

Lubbock bank declared insolvent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Security National Bank of Lubbock, Texas, was declared insolvent Friday by the acting U.S. comptroller of currency.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was appointed receiver.

Over the past year the bank experienced substantial deterioration in the quality of its loan portfolio and was unable to remedy its problems, said H. Joe Selby, acting comptroller.

The bank's losses finally exhausted its capital funds causing its insolvency, he said.

On April 11, 1984, the bank's deposits totaled about $46 million. The bank was chartered Nov. 29, 1963.

Judge jails photographer

DALLAS (AP) — A state district judge held a Dallas Morning News photographer in contempt of court Thursday for refusing to turn over negatives of a nuclear protest scene.

Judge Robert G. Moss, presiding over the trial of one protestor, ordered photographer Randy Eli Grothe jailed for refusing to release negatives of last September's demonstration in front of Dallas Power & Light Co.

Grothe was released after posting a $1,000 bond about an hour after the judge issued the contempt order.

"It's all part of being a photographer," said Grothe, 32. "I was a little nervous, but I kept thinking that everything would turn out all right."

The defendant, Mavis Belisle of Dallas, is charged with obstructing a passageway, a misdemeanor.
