3 plead guilty to drug charges

LUBBOCK — Three Big Spring men who pleaded innocent Feb. 23 to cocaine distribution charges entered plea-bargained guilty pleas today in federal court here to lesser cocaine-related charges.

Robert Mendoza, 35, of 903 S. Monticello, and Santos Arzola Mendoza Sr., 56, and Felipe Juarez, 55, both of 901 N. Gregg, entered guilty pleas to one count each of cocaine distribution before Federal Judge Hal Woodward at 10 a.m. this morning at the Lubbock Federal Courthouse.

As part of the plea-bargain arrangement, federal prosecutors dropped one count of cocaine distribution against Santos Mendoza Jr., 21, son of Santos Mendoza Sr. The dropped charge was the only count outstanding against the younger Mendoza.

Indictments against the three men were handed down Jan. 24 by a San Angelo federal grand jury.

The jury at that time charged Robert Mendoza with seven counts of distribution of cocaine on dates between Sept. 3, 1982 and Oct. 31, 1983.

In a four-count indictment, the jury charged Santos Mendoza Sr. with cocaine distribution on four dates between May 13, 1983 and June 1, 1983.

Charged with Mendoza, Sr. in three of the counts was Felipe Juarez.

The younger Mendoza was charged with his father in the final count.

In addition, Santos Mendoza Sr. was indicted May 6 by an Abilene grand jury on one count of threatening a government witness who provided information to law enforcement officers.

The occupations of the three men are not known.

In a 9:30 a.m. press conference called today to announce the impending guilty pleas, Police Chief Rick Turner said today's guilty pleas "establish the integrity and credibility" of the Big Spring police department.

Turner said that of the 11 Big Spring men indicted since November on drug-related charges, nine have pleaded guilty to the charges.

"The significant thing is that they pleaded guilty. That's something that we've never had before," he said.

Turner said the pleas and indictments are the result of cooperation between Big Spring police, the FBI and Midland and Abilene Department of Public Safety investigators.

"Our investigation is an illustration that officers in the Big Spring Police Department have the same abilities as those in other departments," he said.

"We've taken bad raps in the past because of lack of integrity. I think it's a bunch of hogwash," Turner said.

Turner also gave credit to City Manager Don Davis and the Big Spring City Council for providing funds for police drug purchases.

"Much of the credit that's going to law enforcement should go the folks that have made the tools available," he said.

The police chief declined to say how much money his department has spent for police drug purchases.

Turner said he could not confirm or deny if any further indictments would come out of the investigation.

Council runoff Saturday

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Voters in the city's District 3 go to the polls tomorrow to decide one and for all who will represent them on the city council for the coming three years.

Pitted against each other in the special runoff election are former councilman and local oil operator Harold Hall and bailbondman and car repair shop owner Danny Heckler.

The District 3 race was thrown into a runoff April 7 when the 345 votes Hall received in the regular election came up 50 short of the outright majority he needed to win. Hall garnered a total of 43.8 percent of the ballots cast.

Heckler, the next highest vote-getter in the four-man race, took 23.5 percent of the ballots cast, or 184 total votes.

An out-of-court settlement of a lawsuit between the city and a local minority rights organization created the northwest district of tomorrow's voting. Two other districts were also created by the settlement — District 1, which elected Henry Sanchez as its representative in the April 7 election, and District 2, currently represented by Larry Miller whose extended term will expire in 1986.

Where District 3 voters will cast their ballots has been determined by the precinct of their residence. Those who live in Precincts 202-W3 and 302W-3 will vote at the 18th and Main fire station. Those in Precinct 303-W3 will vote at the Wasson Road Fire Station.

Voters should consult their registration cards to find out what precinct they live in.

Polling places tomorrow will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Jury enforces eviction notice

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

A six-person jury Thursday took about 40 minutes to decide that a Northcrest Apartment tenant who has complained that apartment managers entered her apartment without permission should be evicted.

The jury, which included two Hispanics and one black, heard five hours of testimony before deciding that Della Dickson had broken her lease agreement.

Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin gave Ms. Dickson 14 days to vacate the apartment.

Medlock Properties housing director Thomas Barnes, who said the company was "well-satisfied" with the jury's verdict, said they consented to giving Ms. Dickson the additional time. "We are still trying to help her," Barnes said.

Jurors said they reached their decision after asking Heflin if he would postpone the actual date Ms. Dickson must move out.

"We were concerned that she might have to move out overnight," said County Auditor Jackie Olson, who served on the jury. She said they were concerned Ms. Dickson and her five children would not have any place to go if evicted overnight.

Evidence that Ms. Dickson might have violated a HUD regulation — the privately owned apartments are subsidized by HUD — was an important factor in the case, Mrs. Olson said.

A copy of a HUD regulation submitted on behalf of the apartment owners, Medlock West Texas Property Management of Lubbock, stated no more than seven tenants could reside in the size of apartment Ms. Dickson rented.

Ms. Dickson's attorney, Gerald Lopez of Odessa, said the extra tenant had moved from the apartment after managers objected.

Jurors also said testimony by the apartment owner and manager that Ms. Dickson was mailed an additional notice of eviction in a separate letter from the certified notice was a factor in their decision.

"You assume a letter, once mailed, is received by the other party," Mrs. Olson said.

But Ms. Dickson's attorney, Gerald Lopez, said his client told him she never received the additional letter, and that she did not pick up the certified letter, mailed March 12, until March 28th.

"It seems strange that if Mrs. Kirtrell (the apartment manager) gave her (Ms. Dickson) a letter that she would wait until the 29th to contact Mr. Barnes to set up a hearing," Lopez said.

"Somebody obviously is not telling the truth. I tend to believe it's the apartment manager," said Lopez, the managing attorney for the Midland-Odessa office of West Texas Legal Services.

Lopez said he is considering appealing the case and is investigating other complaints against the apartment complex managers.

He also said he thought the eviction notice came as a result of Ms. Dickson's attempts to organize tenants, a claim Barnes denied.

"No one has ever been and will ever be evicted because they try to organize a tenants' association," Barnes said. "We allocate room to have meetings, we listen to representatives of tenants."

"To date, no one has made any attempt to organize the tenants of the Northcrest Village Apartments," Barnes said. None of the guidelines HUD has set up for tenant associations have been requested from his office, he said.

Mrs. Olson said jurors "didn't really discuss" claims the eviction was retaliation for complaints Ms. Dickson has leveled at the apartment managers.

Banks fail as the Texas economy ails

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Like dual weights around a strong victim, the slumps in energy and agriculture dragged down Texas banks during a period when the nationwide recession has caused the number of bank failures to skyrocket.

Only one other state — Tennessee — had more bank closings than Texas since 1982.

While the recession generally has been blamed for the sharp hike in bank failures nationally, bank closings in Texas especially in 1982 and 1983 were tied to the bust in both energy and agriculture, industries on which many Texas cities rely.

Since 1982, Texas has had 13 bank failures, with the majority of those coming in 1982. Already this year, three Texas banks closed their doors, equal to the number that closed during the entire year in 1983. A total of seven banks in Texas in 1982 either shut down their operations or were saved with the help of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Tennessee has seen the failure of 16 banks since the beginning of last year. Almost all those closings were related to the collapse of the Butcher family's statewide banking system. Tennessee had three other failures in 1982.

Close behind Texas in the number of bank failures since 1982 has been Illinois with 12, followed by California with nine.

Prior to the 1980s, bank closings had been relatively rare, with an average number of about five or six bank failures each year. That figure climbed slightly higher between 1979 and 1981 when a total of ten banks closed in each of those three years.

In 1982, the number of failures quadrupled nationally, rising to a total of 42. The total climbed again in 1983 to a total of 48, and so far in 1984 there have been 18 failures, slightly more than the 15 closings that had occurred by April 15 in 1983.

Alan Whitney, a spokesman for the FDIC in Washington, said the nationwide increase in failures could be attributed almost entirely to the state of the economy.

The closings are "just a simple reflection of the fact that when the economy is depressed, borrowers experience difficulties in meeting their obligations and in due course that has to show up in bank balance sheets," said Whitney.

He described banks as "a lagging indicator of the economy. What happens in the economy tends to show up in the banking system from 12 to 18 months later," he said.

Whitney also noted that both Illinois and Texas are "unit banking states" that disallow branch banks, and that such states generally have a higher number of bank failures.

Fritz Elmendorf, a spokesman for the American Bankers Association in Washington, said the number of closings could not be described as a "trend that would mean the higher numbers of bank failures would continue to be on the increase."

"During this particular economic cycle, a particularly severe problem (has been) in the energy area, which has been perhaps a unique aspect of the last recession, and a few bank failures were attributed directly to a concentration of lending activity in the petroleum area," said Elmendorf. He noted that most of those closings had been in the energy-rich areas of the Southwest, such as the failure of Midland's First National Bank last October.

Abilene National Bank was also listed by the FDIC's Whitney as a

Sheriff's Log

Dog poisoning reported

Another dog poisoning was reported to the Howard County sheriff's office Thursday, deputies said.

A Gail Road resident told deputies his black Labrador died, possibly of poisoning, in January. On Thursday, his other Labrador came home carrying a piece of round steak, which they took from the dog.

Deputies are taking the meat to be tested for strychnine or other poison today. The dog does not appear to be suffering any symptoms of poisoning, according to the report.

Persons with information regarding the poisonings should contact the sheriff's office.

Today's topic

TEEN MOM — Edith Dougherty, 14, poses with her infant daughter, Laura Lyn, and counselor Jan Wheeler of Parents Too Soon.

Teen-age mothers

Illinois program aids unplanned parenthood

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Nine months ago, 14-year-old Edith Dougherty was finishing up the seventh grade at a central Illinois elementary school — and finding out she was pregnant.

At about the same time, 19-year-old Mary, who didn't want her last name published, was without a home of her own after being forced to leave her parents' house — only months before the birth of her child.

Today, both young women are mothers of healthy babies and have found help and support in dealing with their unplanned parenthood. They received the help through a new state program, called Parents Too Soon.

"In the past, teen-agers have been teen-agers until they get pregnant ... and so they're adults," said program coordinator Linda P. Miller. "But they are still children and they need more care and more help than an older person in the same situation."

The project, involving nine state agencies and administered by the state, is funded with $12.9 million in federal block grants, and offers services ranging from advice on contraception to job training. Though not all of the services are new, they haven't been united in one comprehensive program before. Ms. Miller said she knew of no similar program anywhere in the nation.

She said the need for the program is evident from the number of Illinois teen-agers who give birth each year. In 1982, more than 25,000 infants were born to teen-agers between the ages of 11 and 19 in Illinois, accounting for 13.9 percent of children born in the state that year. This year, one in 10 girls between the ages of 15 and 19 is likely to become pregnant, she said.

Parents Too Soon is intended to reduce the number of teen-age pregnancies, help teen mothers and their babies get health care and help young mothers learn the job skills they need to make it on their own.

The program is also aimed at reducing the incidence of child abuse and saving tax dollars by cutting the number of welfare cases. Ms. Miller noted that half the recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children are women who had their first child during their teen years.

"I think in the long run it ought to save money," Ms. Miller said.

Fiscal benefits aside, the program is best understood in terms of the basic services it provides to young mothers.

Edith, for example, needed a ride from her family's trailer in Auburn to her doctor's appointments, information about social service programs and someone to talk to about having a baby.

Mary needed more — help in finding an affordable apartment and furniture, getting public aid, learning to take care of a baby and how to stretch money. She also needed someone to talk to.

"I ain't grewed up all the way," she said.

Her problems started not long after she became pregnant with her daughter, Trixy. She didn't get along with her family and she was kicked out of their home.

"I was on the streets for six months with Trixy in my belly," living with friends and getting along as best she could, she said.

In January, after the baby was born, Mary shared a one-room apartment with her child and a swarm of roaches. Family Services found her another apartment, but she was forced out by fire. Parents Too Soon helped find her a new and better home and helped furnish it.

Edith lives at home in Auburn with her newborn daughter, her mother, brothers and sisters. She hopes to return to school.

"I want to make something out of my life ... not always be on public aid," she said. "I want to set a good example."

Banks

failed bank in Texas in 1982 since it was kept open with FDIC assistance when it was bought by the Mercantile Bank of Dallas. Energy lending was a major factor in the failure of the bank on Aug. 8, 1982, according to Jim Sexton, Texas banking commissioner.

Elmendorf said the failures related to the energy sector were "a cycle more than a trend because energy prices are going to go up and bank profits and banks with a lot of lending in those areas will recover."

He noted that "a general weakness of the economy ... continues to play out, and it continues to play out not only in bank failures but in the profit statements that are coming out of the banks."

He said that, "not unrelated to the (bank) failures," bank profits dropped in 1983 to their lowest point in 14 years with the exception of 1976, which was at the end of another national recession.

"Another factor is plain old bad management and fraud and that played a role in a lot of the bank failures, but there's not a trend in that regard," said Elmendorf.

Management has played a role in the failure of all three Texas banks in 1984, according to Judy Sinclair, regional counsel with the FDIC in Dallas. She said several members of the same management had been at all three banks.

The following is a chronology of bank closings in Texas since 1982. There were no bank closures in Texas during 1980 or 1981.

- The Bank of Woodson (Woodson), March 1.
- National Security Bank (Tyler), April 16.
- Guaranty Bond State Bank (Redwater).

• Bowie County State Bank (Hooks), both July 29.

- Abilene National Bank, Aug. 6.
- Texas Bank of Amarillo, Nov. 5.

- Ranchlander National Bank (Melvin), Nov. 19.

1983:

- Metro Bank (Midland), July 29.
- National Bank of Odessa, Sept. 30.

- First National Bank of Midland, Oct. 14

1984:

- Brownfield State Bank & Trust Co., Feb. 17.
- Seminole State National Bank, March 16.

Rate request won't be delayed

AUSTIN — A $304.2 million rate request filed by Texas Utilities Electric Co. will not be delayed, according to a ruling by two Public Utility Commission examiners.

Consumer and city representatives complained that the case, set for a June 20 hearing, should be dismissed or delayed. They contended that the company should have filed a cost-of-fuel allowance request with its rate case.

But the judges held that the utility is not required to request a new fuel factor. The fuel allowance was set for the utility earlier this month by the commission. That factor must be reviewed but not necessarily reset in the rate case, they said.

Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle, who is appealing the examiners' ruling, said that separate consideration of fuel and other operational costs could lead to inflated rates. The two categories must be looked at together, he said.

The utility, which filed a rate case in March, did not request consideration of its fuel allowance. "There is no need to re-determine fuel because we just did that," said company spokesman Dick Ramsey.

In 1983, the Texas Legislature abolished fuel adjustment charges, which allowed electric companies to pass on increases in fuel-related costs to customers without prior approval. Until that reform, the commission was limited to regulating other costs unrelated to fuel.

Under the new rules, fuel expenses are to be included in base rates and approved ahead of time. Refunds for overcharges will be made at the end of the year with interest. A company may request emergency increases.

Texas Utilities is a company formed in a merger of Texas Power and Light, Texas Electric Service Co. and Dallas Power and Light.

SWCID honors local residents who aided school

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

More than 70 people attended a "public expression of appreciation to honor our friends," hosted by the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf Thursday.

Sam Hill, vice president of SWCID, told the group the event was "to show our appreciation to a group of people who have done a lot for SWCID. We are 4 years old now. Thanks to the hospitality you've shown us, you've made us feel welcome."

"Many of us feel (Big Spring) is our community now," Hill said.

The evening began with sign-singing entertainment offered by Jim Haslup and Bob Coltrane, both SWCID interpreters, and students Teresa Janiece, John Marcel, Maria Gonzales, Linda Hobbs and Catherine Corrigan.

The sign-singers then invited the guests to join in on "All Night Long."

The group was served a steak dinner and given green and gold paperweights which read "In appreciation of your support — SWCID."

After the meal, Hill gave a dozen roses to Lynn Thorpe, food services director for the Howard County Junior College District. Hill said Mrs. Thorpe was always ready to help with special events at SWCID, and the roses were to thank her for her assistance.

Hill said, "We asked all of our staff and faculty members to submit the names of people who have done something on behalf of SWCID."

He then introduced instructional division heads, the SWCID and Howard College administration and members of the district board of trustees.

Among guests honored were John Aldman, Tom Arcand, Johnnie Lou Avery, Carol Baldwin, B.Y. "Bud" Butler, Bruce Carter, Don Davis, Lee George, Dick Helms and Gloria Jackson.

Also Cecelia McKenzie, Brenda Marsh, Doug Peercy, Burr Lea and Marchie Settles, Larry Don Shaw, and Charlene Voorhies.

Also recognized were LeRoy Tillery, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Joe Wallis and Tom Watson.

Hill presented roses to Diane Linhart, coordinator of the evening.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District, said, "On behalf of the district, we appreciate the help each one of you has given."

Hays said, "We have had a few rocky times... if it hadn't been for the city of Big Spring, we wouldn't have had the facility we are in tonight."

"A number of people have made it happen," Hays said.

He gave special recognition to Sam Hill, saying, "Sam has done us a great job. He put together a good group of people who are doing a great job."

Hays told the group that SWCID administrators and faculty had recently voted to remain a part of the Howard County Junior College District.

For several months, the district "debated whether SWCID wanted to be separate or not," Hays said.

Hill told the group, "We're proud of SWCID. We think the future is going to be bright."

For the record

Wednesday's "Open for Business" column said memberships in Big Spring's Heritage Museum start at $5.

According to Alice White of the museum, memberships start at $10.

Lamesa voters to pick

District B councilman

LAMESA — Voters in the eastern and southern areas of the city will be going to the polls Saturday to choose between businessman Ray Brewer and minister Henry Johnson in a runoff election for the city's newly created District B position.

District B has a 60 percent minority balance and was created to settle a suit brought against the city by the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Johnson is the minister of a Church of God in Christ church and is the first black to ever run for the council. Brewer is a partner in Lamesa Bearing and Supply Co.

The two led a field of four candidates in the April 7 election. Brewer won 39 percent and Johnson 34 percent of the total district vote.

Thirty absentee ballots have been cast in the race. Only 17 were cast in the April 7 election.

Deaths

Mary Womack

Mary J. Womack, 89, a resident of Fort Worth, formerly of Big Spring, died Thursday in a Big Spring hospital following a brief illness.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with burial in Trinity Memorial Park. Officiating will be Dr. James Bass, pastor of Richland Hills Baptist Church and Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church in Big Spring.

ULTIMATE REVUE — Robert Hughes, Pam Riddle, Tere Haslup and Kevin Watson rehearse a number from the "Ultimate Red Hot Revue." The show opens at 8 p.m. Saturday night at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Tickets are available at the door.

ANNIE GET YOUR GUN — Jim Cowan, as Frank Butler, star of the Wild West show, and Mark Corwin as an advance man for the show, are two of several high school drama students presenting "Annie Get Your Gun" at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the high school auditorium.

•HC revue troupe is red hot

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Tim Haynes, director of the "Ultimate Red Hot Revue," says the production is a spectacle featuring "a lot of singing and dancing."

The "Ultimate Red Hot Revue" is open to the public at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The doors open at 7:30 p.m. and the show begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the door. Students and senior citizens may purchase tickets at $2.50 and adults at $3.50.

Haynes, who is a theater instructor at Howard College, said the event will feature "very contemporary music and music from the past, as well as Broadway show music."

"This is the first time that I'm aware of that a production has been done in the coliseum," Haynes said.

The Red Hot Revue began last fall as a recruiting tool for Howard College.

"We toured to 20 high schools in the district and surrounding areas," Haynes said. "We received an excellent response from the schools. We got tons of letters from the kids that were very positive."

The Red Hot Revue "is a real physical tool for making that initial contact with potential students," he said.

Haynes said the energy the show generated made him wonder if it might be adapted into a revue for the community.

"The students (in the theater department) wanted to do a musical. Since we had the format for the Red Hot Revue, and the students knew what would happen in that situation" the show began to evolve into a full-scale production," he said.

"We thought this would be an ideal time to give students a chance to perform in a controlled situation" instead of touring to different locations," he said.

The show was expanded and adapted to interest people outside the college circle.

Laurie Churchwell and Kevin Watson choreographed the show.

"Many people in Big Spring, not only students, had heard about the Red Hot Revue" and expressed an interest in seeing the show, Haynes said.

Additions were made and the finished product is "what we consider the ultimate. We can give something to Big Spring that is exciting and show how talented and creative our students are."

Haynes said the Ultimate Red Hot Revue will begin with a "very sparse, skeletal set. We're going to build the set" as the show progresses. "It's all coming out of a box" which is brought in during the opening number," he said.

•'Annie' features good cast

By JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

Playgoers should have a really good time watching Big Spring High School students sing and dance their way through the Irving Berlin and Rodgers and Hammerstein classic, "Annie Get Your Gun."

It's always pleasantly shocking to see just how much talent there is to be found in one small town. This is Ethel Merman's play. Her rendition of Berlin's, "There's No Business like Show Business" became a classic and an industry trademark.

With period costumes from Dallas and Midland, scenery and backdrops flown in from Detroit and over 60 high school students, director Marjorie Dodson has recreated in Big Spring the musical extravaganza that Berlin wrote and Rodgers and Hammerstein rewrote for Broadway.

Of course, this is not a Broadway production, but the students have captured the spirit of Annie and turned it into a wonderful high school musical production.

Jim Cowan shows a great deal of talent as he becomes Frank Butler. Butler of course is the star of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show and instrumental in setting the pace of the classic musical. Cowan leaves you with the feeling that he's used to being a star attraction while maintaining a sincerity that is central to the role. The hard work and natural talent that Cowan has put into this role is evident.

Mark Corwin is another Annie standout. As the Wild West show's "advance man," he literally controls the pace and mood shifts. The facial expressions, body movements and voice are all excellent. Of course, you can't miss Corwin: He naturally stands out in his red plaid suit.

Corwin and Cowan mesh together well, successfully imprinting the show with their personalities.

And then, how could you produce "Annie Get Your Gun" without Annie. Michelle Bowers ends her high school career in a role that has become bigger than life.

Annie Oakley was a real person who captured the hearts of a nation. The role is generally credited with turning Ethel Merman into the first lady of the American musical stage.

Let's not forget cowboy Mack, portrayed by Mark Slate. This boy seems a natural, though not a central character. His speech and body language are perfect for the part. You'll never know quite who he is, but you won't be able to forget seeing him either.

"Annie Get Your Gun" will be performed Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

BROOKE IN PLAY — Actress Brooke Shields is shown as she rehearses for a play at Princeton University's Triangle Club's annual stage presentation.

Elections ... and more elections

This is deja vu. Back in March we got calls from voters worried about why we didn't have any information in the paper about "all those people running for JP."

"Fear not," we told them. Their concerns, we told them, were for the wrong election. The city election was upcoming on April 7. The justice of the peace, commissioners court and district attorney elections weren't until May. We advised that after the city elections were safely behind us, there'd be plenty of time to concentrate solely on the county, state and national primary elections.

We lied. We failed to reckon on a runoff contest in the city race. It's precious close now to the May 5 primary elections, and voters have another city race to deal with.

Here's our chance to redeem ourselves. Following is the nutshell voters' guide to the next two weeks:

Saturday — that's tomorrow — there will be an election for the District 3 city council seat. The candidates are Harold Hall, who almost got us out of this runoff mess by winning a clear majority in the April 7 go-round, but missed by a few votes. The choice Saturday is between Hall and Danny Heckler, who secured only 23 percent of the vote but enough to force the runoff.

If we were operating under our old election system, Hall would have been declared the winner back in April because he earned a clear plurality victory among the District 3 voters. But we're not operating under that system this year. Please see our story on page one today for more information about this election.

Saturday week — that's May 5 — the contested local races are these: District attorney, justice of the peace, county commissioners. Everyone in the county (and in Glasscock and Martin counties) votes in the hotly contested race between incumbent Rick Hamby and challenger Bob Miller, the current county attorney.

Not so for JP and county commission. Most of the county is included in the JP jurisdiction, but only about one-quarter is included in each of the two county commission precincts being decided. More on these races is upcoming in voters guide stories to be published Saturday and Sunday.

But remember, in all this May 5 voting, "election" isn't the proper term. Whoever wins these races will have secured the blessing of the Democratic or Republican parties, but not the blessing of office. That won't come until the general election in November.

We forgot one thing. The winners May 5 must secure a majority of votes to win the primary election. The DA's race of two must have a winner. But with 17 contenders for the three other seats... Look for yet another election in June. Another runoff election.

Around The Rim

Special Olympians

I was in a quandary last night after visiting a Special Olympics practice of about 20 handicapped adults and children at Blankenship Field.

"How do I handle this story?" I asked two Special Olympics coaches over pizza following the practice. I didn't want to be inadvertently insulting in today's column. I didn't want to condescend.

To tell the truth, I hadn't been around handicapped people much before and I was worried about how to treat them.

"Well, what you saw was a bunch of kids giving 100 percent," Linda, one of the coaches, told me.

"Yeah, but there were a few that didn't," Mike, the other coach, added. Mike seemed to be one of those wonderful persons you run across once in a while: a counterfeit sourpuss.

The exchange between the two gave me a few clues as to what they were trying to accomplish and how they saw their roles in dealing with the handicapped.

The simple act of trying seemed to be the important thing. Linda, excited: "What matters is the hug and the handshake at the end of the race."

"What matters is that you did your best and you can feel good because you did," she said as if one of her kids were sitting right at the table.

Making the kids — and the adults, too — feel good about themselves also seemed to be central to what they were trying to accomplish.

What they told me brought into focus the feelings I had at the practice. Special Olympics is a labor of the heart.

The image first hit me when I saw the red-shirted congregation gathered for warm-up exercises at the field. The red color was for the heart all the Special Olympians (or almost all, if we can believe Mike) were putting into their participation.

I saw the heart in the way the Olympians cheered for each other as they ran trial heats in the 50-yard dash. The heart was there when they patted each other on the back for doing better in the race than they had before.

And for some, doing better was not winning or turning in a faster time, but simply staying within the race lanes.

It's not my policy to allow the people I interview to tell me how to write a story, but the two coaches were making an important point when they said, rather defensively, that I had better write that I was cheering right along with everyone else.

It was not something I really had to be told. It was a good feeling to be part of the heart. The heart was infectious.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, April 27, the 118th day of 1984. There are 248 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On April 27, 1822, the 18th president of the United States, Ulysses S. Grant, was born in Point Pleasant, Ohio.

On this date:
In 1521, Portuguese explorer Ferdinand Magellan was killed by natives in the Philippines.

In 1791, the inventor of the telegraph, Samuel Morse, was born in Charlestown, Mass.

In 1875, Archbishop John McCloskey of New York was installed as the first American cardinal.

In 1937, the first Social Security payment was made.

In 1965, broadcast journalist Edward R. Murrow died in Pawling, N.Y., at the age of 57.

And in 1973, FBI Director L. Patrick Gray resigned amid the Watergate scandal.

Ten years ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger left for the Middle East to try to persuade Libya and Israel to separate their forces on the Golan Heights.

Using psychics to spy on the Soviets

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence agencies won't talk about it, but they are rushing to catch up with the Soviet Union in what one scientist jocularly calls "the race for inner space" — psychic research.

Parapsychology is field so full of pseudo-scientists, flakes and outright charlatans that it's easy to debunk the whole idea as a comic-strip concept unworthy of serious scientific study.

In 1981, when I first began reporting on secret U.S. and Soviet programs using so-called psychics to gather intelligence, some of the government-funded projects were obviously off-the-wall. There was the "hyperspatial nuclear howitzer" that would "transmit" a bomb explosion from the Nevada desert to downtown Moscow with the speed of thought, or the "anti-missile time warp" that would send an incoming enemy missile into the past, blowing up dinosaurs instead of 20th century Americans.

But there are legitimate laboratory projects that may eventually unlock the mysteries of the human mind. One of the most promising is the testing of "remote viewing" — the claimed ability of some psychics to describe scenes thousands of miles away.

The CIA and the Pentagon have an obvious interest in this phenomenon. If they could get psychics to throw their minds behind the Iron Curtain, there'd be no need to risk the lives of human agents.

The CIA sent representatives to a parapsychology conference in Virginia last December. Besides the usual spoon-bending — which professional magicians have denounced as a fairly simple trick — there was serious discussion of remote viewing. In fact, the CIA is now seriously pondering the possibility of raising "psychic shields" to keep Soviet remote viewers away from our secrets.

I asked my skeptical associates Dale Van Atta and Joseph Spear to find out how remote reviewing has become almost universally accepted in the intelligence community. They gained access to top-secret briefings on the subject. This is what they learned:

The CIA's latest remote viewing project was code-named "Grill Flame," and was carried out in part by two respected academics: Harold Puthoff, formerly with the National Security Agency, and Russell Targ, formerly with the Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park, Calif.

Puthoff and Targ conducted at least two tests that produced astonishing results. They gave one psychic the latitude and longitude of a remote location and told him to project his mind there and describe the scene. He described an airfield, complete with details — including a large gantry and crane at one end of the field.

The CIA was impressed, but critical. There was indeed an airfield at the map coordinates the psychic had been given. The site was the Soviets' ultra-secret nuclear testing area at Semipalatinsk, Kazakhstan. But there was no gantry or crane there.

Still, it had been a while since U.S. spy satellites had taken pictures of the Semipalatinsk base. So the CIA waited for the next set of photos — and sure enough, there were the gantry and crane, just as the psychic had described them. No one in U.S. intelligence agencies had known the equipment was there, so the information couldn't have been leaked to him.

The second test involved a Soviet Tu-95 "Backfire" bomber, which the CIA knew had crashed somewhere in Africa. They were eager to find it before the Soviets did, so they could take photographs and perhaps purloin secret gear from the wreckage.

So one of Project Grill Flame's remote viewers was asked to locate the downed bomber. He gave the CIA the location within several miles of the actual wreckage.

FEUD OF THE WEEK: Officials at the General Accounting Office — Congress's investigative arm — are faced with a quiet but determined rebellion in the ranks. Disgruntled staff people are threatening to form a union unless the bosses heed their complaints.

One of the staff's major grievances is the way monetary grants for good work are awarded — or not awarded. A recent internal memo puts it this way: "The great imbalance in the distribution and size of outstanding achievement awards and SES (Senior Executive Service) bonuses does not seem justified. About one-third of the approximately 120 SESers received bonuses, while only 7 percent of the remaining 4,800 staff received...awards."

Furthermore, the memo complains, the average big-shot bonus was about $6,500; the staff awards averaged about $700.

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: The Secret Service is assigned to protect presidential candidates — and has to pay for the privilege. During the month of February, for example, the service was billed a total of more than $236,000 by the eight Democratic hopefuls for seats on their campaign planes. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, billed the Secret Service for $54,347; Rev. Jesse Jackson, $32,538, and Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., $6,071. Former Vice President Walter Mondale submitted a combined January-February bill of $95,000.

½ The national bipartisan nuclear freeze group, Freeze Voter '84, is cool to all the presidential contenders so far. "We haven't seen a candidate who has been an overwhelming freeze supporter," said the group's national director, Bill Curry. Mondale has appeared twice before the group, but his lack of vocal support for a freeze worries Curry. Hart has given them the cold shoulder. The freeze group's endorsement may be put off until after the Democratic convention.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

"We may have to be here for a while... We're waiting for the Libyan government to evolve to the point where it's ready for civilization."

The ghost of Richard Nixon

A wonderful thing happened to me last week. I turned on the set and got to see Richard Nixon on television again. After it was over I said to my wife, "He looks great. Doesn't he look great?"

"He looked just like the old Nixon," she agreed. "He hasn't changed one bit, except possibly he's mellowed."

"He seems to have mellowed," I said. "But every once in a while when he was talking about the people who gave him the shaft, you got the feeling the old Nixon spark was still there."

My wife took my hand in hers. "You miss him, don't you?"

"Of course I miss him. Who wouldn't miss Nixon? He was the greatest president we ever had. If it wasn't for him you wouldn't be sitting here tonight in your ermine-lined bathrobe, and I wouldn't be wearing Sulka silk pajamas and Gucci slippers."

"Watergate was good to us," my wife sighed.

"It was the best," I said. "Just seeing Nixon on the air brings back so many nostalgic memories."

"Do you think he's sorry?" she asked.

"Sure he's sorry. Didn't you hear him say he was sorry he didn't burn the tapes?"

"I mean sorry about Watergate."

"I'm sure he's sorry. He said it was a dumb thing to do in the first place and then he said it was a dumb thing to try to cover up, and then he said he was sorry the CIA didn't keep the FBI out of the inquiry, and you got the feeling he's very sorry about the people who talked when they should have kept their mouths shut. But he doesn't seem to hold any malice toward those who drove a stake in his heart. Then again Nixon never was a hater."

"I had the feeling he still holds a grudge against the media for driving him from office."

"I didn't get that," I said. "Nixon has been a pragmatic man all his life. If there is one thing he believes, it is that your enemies are always out to get you, so you have to get them first. But as far as carrying grudges, it's just not in the man's nature."

"Will you ever forget the night he told us on television 'I am not a crook'?"

"He was the first president in our history who said it. He reassured the country in its darkest hour."

"I wonder why he'd go on television at this time?"

"I suppose he wanted to set the record straight. There were so many illegal things they discussed during the coverup that Nixon wanted the public to know how much of it he personally rejected. What I liked about him tonight is that he said he didn't reject them because they were wrong, but because they wouldn't work."

"You can't be more candid than that," my wife said.

"No one ever accused Nixon of lacking candor. But he has nothing to lose now by personally taking the blame and saying the advice he got from his lawyers was what really did him in."

"I believe him," my wife said. "Why didn't he have better lawyers?"

"They were all on the other side trying to get the goods on him."

"I think it was very moving when he told about his last night in the White House and how he and Henry Kissinger got down on their knees and prayed together."

"It would have been much more fascinating if we knew what Henry was praying for."

Mom worried over daughter and cult

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We are worried about our daughter because she seems to be getting involved in a cult-like religious group. She moved to a new city, didn't know anyone, and when some of the cult members were friendly to her she got involved. How can we help her? — Mrs. T.Z.

DEAR MRS. T.Z.: This is not necessarily an easy problem that can be answered in a few words. However, one reason I have used your question is that I hope it will serve as a warning to some readers. What you have described is a very common approach of some of the cults — befriending people who are obviously lonely, helping them, even loaning them money — all with the goal of convincing them that the cult members are their friends and they have nothing to fear from the cult. It is a very deliberate scheme to ensnare unsuspecting people into the cult.

Help her first by letting her know of your love. Cults often try to turn converts against their relatives and loved ones, even claiming relatives do not love them at all and that they can only find true love and acceptance within the cult. You need to demonstrate this is not so, and your daughter needs to hear frequently that you love her and care what happens to her. If there has been some strain in your relationship in the past, you may need to be honest in confessing your sorrow over this and asking her forgiveness for anything you might have done to bring it about. If it is possible for her to move away from this group, encourage her to do so. But whatever you do, keep the lines of communication open.

Help landscape celebrate spring

Winter is a necessary time for trees and shrubs and other living plants. It's when their roots gain strength from nourishment in the earth without being in competition with the above-ground parts of the plant.

But sometimes, especially if the winter has been harsh, those growing gifts of nature can use a little help in the making the transition into the happy days of spring. The American Association of Nurserymen, the professionals who grow and distribute and design landscape beauty, have some timely advice on the subject.

Their first word of counsel is this: be patient. Even if plant materials had a hard time of it during winter, nature has remarkable healing gifts.

Don't uproot a tree or shrub or plant just because it appears to be an invalid. "Dr. Nature" is at work, and the best "recovery room" is right there in your yard.

Some plant patients may require discreet amputation for healthy survival. The gardener's word for it is "pruning". But don't be hasty. A brown leaf does not necessarily mean a dead plant; nature may be working on recovery, so wait until new growth begins.

For trimming some of your landscape plants, particularly the more mature trees, you may be wise to call in the services of a professional. That way you will know the pruning is performed correctly, safely.

There will possibly be some plants that are beyond hope, and it's wise to remove them now so their replacements have the spring to grow on. That shouldn't be a cause for dismay because it is simply a part of nature's cycle for living plants. The trees or shrubs you choose to take the place of those which have finished their usefulness are quite inexpensive, and can begin a new gardening adventure for you.

Dear Abby

Cook stretches panty hose a bit too far for friends

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a friend who cooks catfish to perfection. We have always enjoyed it until he recently remarked that he prefers to strain the grease (to be reused) through a large panty hose given to him by a heavyset ladyfriend.

This offhand remark has disturbed me to the point of being unable to enjoy catfish prepared by my friend. Is his method of straining in any way dangerous? Even if the panty hose were well-laundered, is there a possibility of germ infiltration, with the danger of hepatitis or some other disease?

Please contact your experts and let me know if I have reason to worry, or is it just a silly hang-up I should overcome?

It seems to me that catfish strained through my laundered shorts wouldn't be any different than catfish strained through panty hose.

LOVES CATFISH IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR LOVES: In all probability, you are needlessly worried because the high temperature of hot grease should eliminate the danger of germ infiltration. However, I can understand how the psychological aspect of the whole thing could conceivably spoil your appetite.

Buy your friend a pair of Fat Fanny Panty Hose (yes, there are such things) and ask him to replace the original panty hose "strainer" with a brand-new one.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. LEE IN SAN FRANCISCO: What did you expect? This is the year of the rat.

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Important ideas on landscape planning listed

Whether your home is new with no landscape design executed yet, or an older one ready for remodeling of outdoor rooms, there are some elementary considerations suggested by the professionals in the American Association of Nurserymen which can help you discover the pleasure of plants in your surroundings.

The first question in need of answer is usually: what should be kept?

Some trees or shrubs or rocks or hillocks or something similar deserve to be preserved for contributions they can make to the new design. On the other hand, there may be some familiar old trees or shrubs that are just the wrong size or in the wrong place and, no matter the pain, they'll have to go.

Second: be mindful of the view from the inside of your home.

Remember, you are designing the landscape for your enjoyment, first of all, so the plan for your exterior beauty needs to take that into consideration by including views you will be enjoying when you are indoors.

For instance, the area just outside the kitchen or dining room is an obvious place for outdoor cooking. The patio for entertaining can open off a living area. An exterior door off a bedroom might lead to a private, enclosed garden. Flower beds belong outside the windows of your most-used rooms. Those are the sorts of possibilities to consider as you plan your outdoor spaces.

The view from outside is equally important. Living plants — trees, shrubs, hedges — provide most efficient and attractive sight screens...screening that is as much a favor to the neighbors as it is to you.

There's no need to display unsightly views such as trash cans or air conditioning units or compost piles or the like for your neighbors or yourself. And there's no need to have your families life inside the house open to your neighbor's observation. Your landscape design should use nature's green, growing gifts as sight screens.

You will probably achieve the best results with little added expense by having a professional design and install your landscape. If you prefer to tackle the project yourself, though, it will be wise to consult with a nursery or landscape expert for additional ideas and for advice about which living plants are best for the different places and purposes included in your plan.

Dr. Donohue

Purpura: a rare strep complication

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My son came down with a disease you should write about in the paper, because everyone I talk to has never heard of it. It is called Henoch-Schonlein purpura.

He came down with a sore throat and three days later had red spots all over his legs. The doctor said he had a strep throat and his body was reacting, causing the blood vessels in the legs to break. His feet swelled and he had a terrible time walking. The doctor said he didn't like this disease because there was no telling when it would go away. My son could not play, go to school, or engage in any activity.

Well, it took four weeks for him to get over it and get back to normal. Mothers should be aware of this. — B.P.

Well, being aware of such illnesses is always a good idea, but I don't want readers to think that all strep infections lead to Henoch-Schonlein purpura. Only a very very few do.

Purpura are the bruise spots of which you spoke. Henoch and Schonlein were the two doctors who discovered the cause of this illness, where the entire body can be covered, especially the areas around the buttocks and elbows. It's called allergic purpura because it arises from an inflammation of blood vessels (seemingly on an allergic basis) in association with a strep infection. It's thought that the vessels become inflamed because of an allergy to the strep germ. There is also joint swelling, abdominal pain, and often kidney involvement.

The illness is usually one of children, and one from which full recovery occurs. In a few there may be relapses, especially when kidneys are involved. Fortunately, from your longer letter, I assume this was not the case with your son. Thanks for your suggestion that I write about it.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Movie dog is no Lassie

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — If Champ were human, he'd be Clint Eastwood. If he doesn't get cut out in editing, and the editor would be wise not to make Champ mad, the pedigree Doberman pinscher will soon be featured in the new Louis Malle film shooting in Rockport, "Alamo Bay." The movie is the story of a young woman living on the Texas coast where native fishermen and recent Vietnamese immigrants are in conflict. Last week, Champ, a.k.a. Wolfgang Von Brookhouse, made his film debut. The 85-pound "puppy" plays a deranged canine that bites anything that moves.

Champ's "master," R.H. Peterson, owner of a kennel and co-owner of a guard dog company, is donating the $200 he earns on the film to the Gulf Coast Humane Society. He hopes the money will save an "outlaw" dog.

Peterson says he is interested in changing the image of "bad dogs," those thought to be naturally and excessively aggressive. Dobermans, German shepherds, pit bulls and Rottweilers suffer from this reputation, he says.

Peterson says biting incidents reflect man's influence, not any natural meanness on the part of the dog.

Wilderness bill authored by Bentsen

Harte-Hanks Bureau WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Thursday introduced a bill to set aside 34,000 acres, mostly owned by the federal government, to become five wilderness areas in East Texas.

The land would become part of the National Wilderness Preservation System.

A similar bill is pending in the House, where it was adopted by the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee Wednesday.

The five areas are Big Slough Wilderness in the Davy Crockett National Forest; Turkey Hill Wilderness and Upland Island Wilderness in the Angelina National Forest; Indian Mounds Wilderness in the Sabine National Forest; and Little Lake Creek Wilderness in the Sam Houston National Forest.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, co-signed the bill. Bentsen told reporters land tracts that are privately owned will be acquired, with the agreement of current owners, by an exchange of other national forestlands of comparable value.

Truck carrying diesel burns

Two 55-gallon barrels of diesel fuel carried in the bed of a 1979 Chevrolet pickup caught fire and exploded yesterday afternoon on the south service road of Interstate 20 near the U.S. 80 business exit. No one was injured in the explosion and ensuing blaze that destroyed the pickup.

A passing state trooper called one engine of the Big Spring Fire Department to the scene, and the fire was contained in about 15 minutes.

Firefighters poured water on the truck from the engine's 1,500 gallon tank to cool the diesel below its 100-degree combustion point.

When firefighters arrived, one of the 55-gallon barrels had already blown up and was sitting in front of the truck. The other barrel had ruptured and was sitting on the back of the truck.

Flames were fanned by high winds, and smoke from the fire blackened the gas, food and lodging sign that stands about 50 feet west of the business exit.

The collapsed back frame of the truck stood on melted tires after the firemen had finished their work.

Kindergarten sign-up set

Official registration for all kindergarten students for the 1984-85 school year will be Thursday, May 3.

Full-day kindergarten registration will be at the Lakeview school gym between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Parents should come without their children.

Half-day kindergarten students and their parents should attend orientation programs beginning at 2 p.m. at Kentwood or Marcy schools.

Students residing in the Kentwood, College Heights, Moss and Washington attendance zones, including rural students, will attend the Kentwood round-up. Students residing in the Marcy attendance zone will attend Marcy round-up.

Kindergarten students must be 5 years old on or before Sept. 1.

Students who qualify for the full-day kindergarten program include:

A child who cannot speak English, or who is from a family whose income would qualify him or her for free lunch, or who is receiving special education services requiring the full-day program.

Parents must bring a birth certificate and immunization shot records. Parents of full-day kindergarten students must bring current proof of income such as employee pay check stubs or statements from employers.

Those with questions may contact Dr. E.S. Morgan at Lakeview School, 267-7452; Wendall Ware at Kentwood, 267-5338; or J.B. Cushing, Marcy, 267-6414.

Head-Start registration is not scheduled until August.

Expenditure forms due

Opposed candidates for county offices must file their campaign expenditure forms with the county clerk's office by Friday, County Clerk Margaret Ray said.

Candidates must file reports of expenditures and contributions seven days before and after the election. Reports filed 30 days before the election are on record at the clerk's office, Mrs. Ray said.

Wheat program opened

Under provisions of a new federal farm bill, farmers can now graze their wheat crop while using the same land for set-aside acreage if the wheat was planted before Jan. 11, a local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service official said.

Deadline for certifying the wheat acreage in the set-aside program in May 4.

Farmers also will be able to use their wheat for haying purposes if they do so before the wheat reaches the "soft-dough" stage.

LULAC officers resign

Linda Arsiaga resigned as president of the League of United Latin American Citizens during a meeting Wednesday.

Henry Sanchez, vice-president, also resigned his position.

Mrs. Arsiaga said she resigned as president for personal reasons. Sanchez said he felt his office would conflict with his city council duties.

Both will remain members of the organization. Pat DeAnda, who recently completed a term as president, agreed to take the office again. Isidoro Gonzales was named vice-president.

Absentee vote totals still climbing

Absentee voting totals in Howard County for Democratic and Republican primaries have continued to climb, according to the county clerk's office.

Voting tallies through 10 a.m. today show 235 Democrats voted in the clerk's office, 60 ballots were mailed out and 17 ballots were returned.

Big Spring Health Fair to sponsor UBS blood drive

A blood drive will be held by United Blood Services (UBS) during the May 19 Big Spring Health Fair at the Big Spring Mall from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Fair visitors 17 years old or older who weigh a minimum of 110 pounds may donate blood for others if they have not had hepatitis, current active diseases of the heart, lung, kidney, liver, or stomach, or have not had an internal malignancy within the past 10 years.

Others may be temporarily deferred if they have had colds, flu, or an upper respiratory infection recently or close contact with hepatitis in the past six months.

Others who can't give blood temporarily are people who have gotten tattoos in the last six months, those with infections or diseases requiring medication, those who have had vaccinations in the past 24 hours before the Fair, those who have had major surgery or blood transfusion in the past six months or dental surgery in the past three days.

Others who will be deferred are women who have had a pregnancy in the last six weeks or anyone who has lived in a malaria area in the past six months.

Persons taking digitalis, dilantin, quinidine and anticoagulants will be deferred.

Free screenings for anemia, blood type and sickle cell anemia will be offered during the day-long health fair by laboratory departments of the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Big Spring State Hospital, and Malone and Hogan Hospital.

All three screenings will require only one "finger stick."

Results will be available in five to 15 minutes. Results will be recorded on a card available at the fair. Should further screening be required, results can be shared with their family physician.

Any agency not contacted and wishing to participate in the Fair should call Barbara Holdampf, director of allied health at Howard College, at 267-6311, ext. 216.

Elect Robert D. (Bob) Miller District Attorney May 5

I'm Robert Miller. I want to be your District Attorney. A 25 to 33% dismissal rate of cases after grand jury indictment is too high. If our Grand Jury Indicts, it is the District Attorney's duty to prosecute. A 33% dismissal rate for 1982 does not reflect strong prosecution. As your District Attorney, I will prosecute after indictment. I will not seek dismissals, and I will not succumb to defense attorney's intimidations. Likewise, I will seek bond forfeiture to insure the criminal appearance in Court and insure swift justice. Vote for Robert D. (Bob) Miller.

Burrito Brothers group flies again

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Working in the recording industry is like Indiana Jones whipping his way out of the snake pit in the movie, "Raiders of the Lost Ark," says Burrito Brothers guitarist John Beland.

"The record business is like a snake pit," Beland says. "I've sort of felt like I was in 'Raiders of the Lost Ark' — down in that pit with all those snakes."

"Yeah, we're sorta snakebit," adds fiddler Gib Guilbeau, who makes up the other half of the country duo.

In the past 1½ years, the Burrito Brothers have been dropped by one record label, their manager-partner-close friend committed suicide and they put out a record while their new record company was involved in a massive personnel shakeup. The bad timing sapped the support necessary to push the record up the charts and get it sold to the public.

But says Beland, "Everything happens for a reason."

The Burrito Brothers, who are not related, play country music, or as Guilbeau describes their style: "We're as country as anybody and more so than a lot. We're right in the middle of it."

The duo is what's left over from the Flying Burrito Brothers — a five-piece Los Angeles band that pioneered the rock-country sound. Formed in 1968 by Gram Parsons, who was with the Byrds, the band wore extravagant suits with marijuana leaves embroidered on them.

The four-piece band, Alabama, capitalized on a similar sound to become the No. 1 group in country music a decade later.

The Flying Burrito Brothers disbanded in the early '70s, but Guilbeau — as resourceful as the movie hero Indiana Jones — put a group by that name back together in 1974 when he discovered a thirst from the public for that kind of sound.

"All of a sudden, lines of people showed up to hear us," he recalled. "We did one album, then another. It was amazing."

Beland joined the group in 1979 after playing in backup bands for Dolly Parton, Kris Kristofferson, Kim Carnes, Mac Davis and the Bellamy Brothers.

He had heard the original band in Los Angeles in 1968.

"They were loud, drunk and lousy," Beland recalled. "Little did I know I'd be in the group someday."

It marked a reunion for Beland and Guilbeau, who had played together in Linda Ronstadt's band in 1969 and in Arlo Guthrie's band in 1973.

They then dropped "flying" from the group's name but retained the rest of the title to maintain tradition.

"A lot of people still think we're a five-piece band from L.A.," Beland says. "We're emphasizing that we're a duo."

Both Beland and Guilbeau live in Nashville.

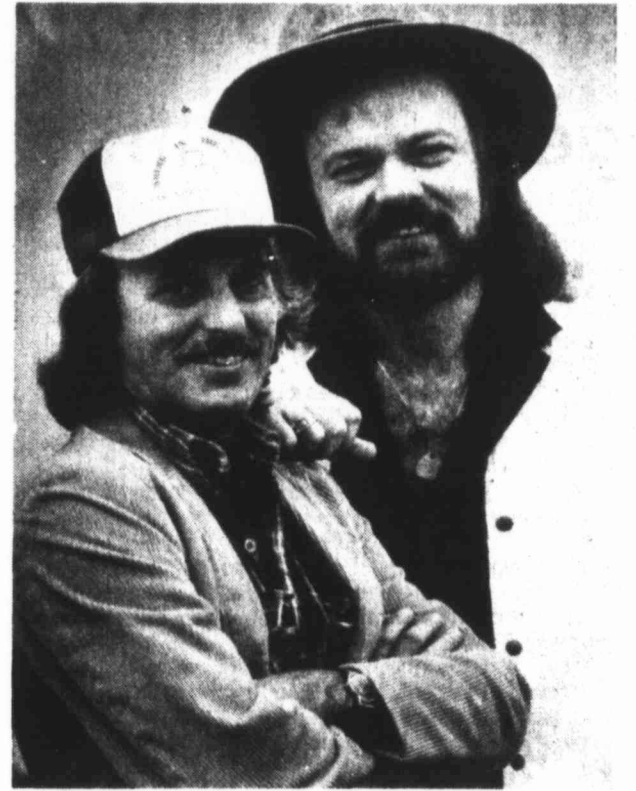

In March they had their first single release in 1½ years, "Almost Saturday Night," an uptempo song written by John Fogarty, formerly of Creedence Clearwater Revival. The record reached the middle of the country music charts and then lost steam during the personnel shakeup at MCA Records in Nashville.

"Our timing wasn't the greatest," Beland said in an interview with the Associated Press before heading for a studio to finish some recording work.

"We didn't get a fair shot," he said. "We had a record out and no record company."

Right now they also have three songs in the movie "Dream Chaser" starring Harold Gould.

Guilbeau, 45, and Beland, 34, say the old Flying Burrito Brothers left an impressive legacy.

State pushes Texas cooking

AUSTIN (AP) — State agriculture officials kicked off a "Taste of Texas" ad campaign Thursday by using those tastes to lure scores of state employees and reporters.

At a news conference followed by a barbecue lunch behind the House chamber, the Texas Department of Agriculture unveiled a "Taste of Texas" logo that will certify Texas-produced foods.

"The goal of the campaign is to encourage Texas food shoppers to support the state's agriculture community by buying products raised, processed and packed in Texas," said Susan DeMarco, assistant commissioner for marketing and agricultural development.

Lets Make Big Spring A Better Place to Live and Grow

Political Adv. Paid For By Danny Heckler, 403 Gregg, Big Spring

"IT'S NOT OVER UNTIL IT'S OVER..."

I am deeply grateful that the voters of Big Spring gave me such support that I barely missed a majority in the April 7, election for City Council, District 3.

But, in the words of that famous philosopher of the diamond, Yogi Berra, "It's not over until it's over."

Saturday is a new ball game. Your first vote won't count as you intended unless you vote again Saturday.

I have lived virtually all my life in Big Spring, and there is really nothing about myself I can tell you that you do not know. I do believe, however, that I have achieved a track record, including this office, that you can examine and rely on for steady, seasoned, progressive and commonsense administration of our city's affairs.

I know from experience that this is a solemn, serious business, and you know from my past service I will not take it lightly.

For the future of Big Spring, please vote Saturday, and go a step further in urging your friends and associates to do the same. I will treasure every bit of your support.

Former radical pleads guilty; gets 20-to-life

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — In a surprise plea bargain, one-time Weather Underground leader Kathy Boudin pleaded guilty Thursday to murder and robbery stemming from the 1981 holdup of a Brink's truck. "I feel terrible about the lives that were lost," she said.

Westchester County Court Judge David Ritter said he would sentence the 40-year-old former fugitive May 3 to a term of 20 years-to-life in prison on her guilty plea to one count each of murder and robbery. She could be paroled in the year 2001.

She could have faced 75 years to life if convicted of all 13 counts she faced.

Standing next to her father, civil liberties lawyer Leonard Boudin, Miss Boudin read a statement in which she said she regretted the $1.6 million holdup and its aftermath, in which two policemen and a guard were killed.

"I feel terrible about the lives that were lost as a result of this incident," Miss Boudin said. "I have led a life committed to political principles. I believe I can be true to these principles in various ways without engaging in violent acts."

But she insisted that her role in the crimes was limited — she was unarmed, she said — and according to her lawyer, she has no intention of testifying against others accused in the episode.

"Kathy is a strong person who's made deliberate choices. She made a big one today," said the lawyer, Leonard Weinglass.

Prior to her capture in the Brink's case, Miss Boudin was last seen fleeing naked from a 1970 explosion of a Greenwich Village townhouse police said was used by radicals as a bomb factory.

The plea came as a jury was being selected to try Miss Boudin. The judge said he would not accept the plea unless persuaded that Miss Boudin was actually guilty. He asked her, "What is it you did?"

In her statement, Miss Boudin detailed her involvement in the bungled holdup. It was her job, she said, to wait with getaway vehicles at a switch point, a distance away from the robbery.

Ritter said he accepted the plea because there was "no evidence Miss Boudin ever participated in a violent crime." Hers was a "secondary role," the judge said, and her plea would bring a "just end to this expensive and lengthy litigation."

"Also significant is that she is reported to be remorseful and contrite about the deaths and injuries ... That sets her apart from those previously sentenced," he said.

Three other defendants — Judith Clark, 33; Kuwasi Balagoon, 36; and David Gilbert, 39 — were convicted Sept. 14 of the crime by an Orange County jury. Miss Boudin married Gilbert, with whom she has a 3-year-old son, in a jailhouse ceremony on the day of his conviction.

Each of those defendants was sentenced to 75-years-to-life — three consecutive terms for the three murders. If she had been convicted of all the charges against her, Miss Boudin almost certainly would have faced the same.

Prior to her capture in the Brink's case, Miss Boudin was last seen fleeing naked from a 1970 explosion of a Greenwich Village townhouse police said was used by radicals as a bomb factory.

She spent 10 years in the Weather Underground, which bombed public buildings during that time of turmoil, but was quoted in an interview recently as saying she was a woman who "has made mistakes."

Miss Boudin said her role in the robbery was to "wait in the parking lot" at the switch point. When the suspects fleeing the holdup arrived there, they jumped into several vehicles, including a U-Haul truck in which Miss Boudin was a passenger.

It was that truck that police pulled over at a roadblock moments later.

"I knew, given the nature of the incident, the other individuals would be armed," she said. She jumped out of the truck with "my arms raised."

"Moments later, the shooting began," she said. Police say the gunmen were firing their weapons when they jumped out of the truck.

"I was unarmed throughout," Miss Boudin insisted.

Miss Boudin was neatly dressed in a wool skirt and vest. She answered in a strong voice in a Westchester County courtroom crowded with law enforcement officers and Miss Boudin's friends and family.

San Francisco wages battle of the ballads

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco leaders are waging a battle of the ballads by the Bay, with politicians singing the praises of two rival candidates for the title of official city tune.

Will it be the challenger, the zesty "San Francisco," made famous by carmine-lipped Jeanette MacDonald in the 1936 movie of the same name? Or will the city hang on to the super-sentimental "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," which Tony Bennett croons in such full, pear-shaped tones?

"To me, it's as plain as the Golden Gate Bridge: San Franciscans prefer 'San Francisco,'" Supervisor Quentin Kopp said Thursday.

On Monday, Kopp presented a proposal for the change to San Francisco supervisors, seven of whom co-sponsored the measure. The matter is slated for a May 3 public hearing before the board's Culture and Recreation Committee.

All of this has struck a sour note with Mayor Dianne Feinstein, who has jumped to the defense of "I Left My Heart," saying she has been greeted by bands playing the song in her travels throughout the world. A change would make the city appear indecisive, said Ms. Feinstein, who threatened to veto any such change.

On Wednesday, after an informal San Francisco Chronicle poll showed that 73 percent of 34,238 votes went for "San Francisco," she suggested a compromise that would give the city two official songs.

"Surely it does not behoove any city official to put down either of these marvelous melodies; instead, let's boost them both," she wrote to Kopp, who refused comment because he has yet to see her letter. "Let's admit it, Quentin: we're both right. So let's unite. Who knows, we may not only compromise — but harmonize."

The musical mayhem began when San Francisco Chronicle columnist Warren Hinckle wrote an April 18 article castigating "I Left My Heart" as a "sentimental piece of musical garbaggio with its infantile drool of 'little cable cars climbing halfway to the stars.'"

"When Hinckle wrote that column, it struck a nerve," Kopp admitted. "I've never been mesmerized by 'I Left My Heart.' It's a sweet, saccharine song. It's a song for tourists. Hinckle calls it a wimpy song."

The results of the Chronicle's informal telephone call-in survey have the clout of a "kind of a mandate," said Kopp, a longtime political nemesis of Ms. Feinstein.

"That's tantamount to an obligation. That's body politics speaking," said the supervisor, who rejected the idea of a city ballot over the issue as unnecessary. "It's all musical. It can't be construed as a life-or-death matter."

Kopp said one of his constituents recently gave him some decade-old newspaper reports that quoted then-Supervisor Feinstein as saying she would introduce legislation to change the official city song to "San Francisco" if public opinion went that way. She never followed through, despite a radio survey then that showed overwhelming support for the change.

On Saturday, May 5th, Howard County voters will choose a Justice of the Peace to represent them for the next 4 years.

CHINA LONG wants the job.

A 38-year Big Spring resident, church and civic leader, China worked at Webb Air Force Base over a period of 20 years, attaining a wide variety of administrative skills and performance awards. When the base closed, she earned a Bachelor's degree in mass communication from the University of Texas at the Permian Basin. She has reported local news for six years, winning seven state broadcasting awards. She is News Director at KBST.

For 27 years, she's been married to Frank Long, Energas supervisor and son of the late A.E. Long, longtime Howard County juvenile officer. Frank's grandfather was the first Big Spring police chief. The Longs have two daughters, Leslie Greer and Lisa Long, both college graduates. All four members of the family have been inducted into the Big Spring High School Hall of Fame.

China promises to bring honesty and integrity to the justice of the peace office. She will work closely with pathologist Bob Rember in performing her duties as county coroner. She will volunteer, cost free, to perform back-up services as municipal judge. She will work with businesses and individuals in resolving small claims cases and in collecting hot checks. She will routinely schedule hearings and process citations within her jurisdiction, as well as administer warrants and bonds.

Please vote on May 5th in the Democratic Primary, and vote for China Long, the candidate the people can trust to perform all the duties of the job after the election.

Fete honors Coahoma athletes

By BILLY NABOURS
Sports Editor

COAHOMA — Approximately 140 athletes in seven sports were honored here Thursday during the Coahoma High School All-Sports Banquet.

Tobie Henry was named the Bulldogettes MVP while James Sanders and Donald Ewing were honored as MVP co-winners for the boys during the event that recognized varsity and junior varsity participants.

Former Big Spring High School football coach, and a familiar face to 4-5A fans, Spike Dykes was the guest speaker for the occasion and he told an attentive group of young people they will face, "a lot of decision making in the next few years," he encouraged them to, "take advantage of your freedom of decision making here in America and like what you see in your self."

Now the defensive coordinator for Texas Tech, Dykes recommended five things for success, not only in athletics, but in life. "Life and athletics are so much alike," said Dykes.

To be successful, however Dykes said one has to have a strong faith — in one's self and above all God. An individual must also have intensity, establish realistic goals, be sincere and be tough. "No one should like to lose. It's what you do about those losses that will determine your success or failure," concluded Dykes.

OTHER AWARDS

In other honors handed out during the course of the fete, Mila Gellido was named the outstanding tennis player for CHS; John Swinney was recognized as the outstanding Bulldog golfer; Henry garnered girls outstanding track honors; and Jeff Dever won accolades as the outstanding boy trackster.

Janna Griffin and Melissa Paige were saluted as co-outstanding for the regional tourney Bulldogette basketball team. Robbie Phernetton won the boys share of basketball honors and Shawn Justiss was the winner of the outstanding football player award.

Henry and Sanders capped their evening by being named winners of the CHS Booster Club scholarship awards.

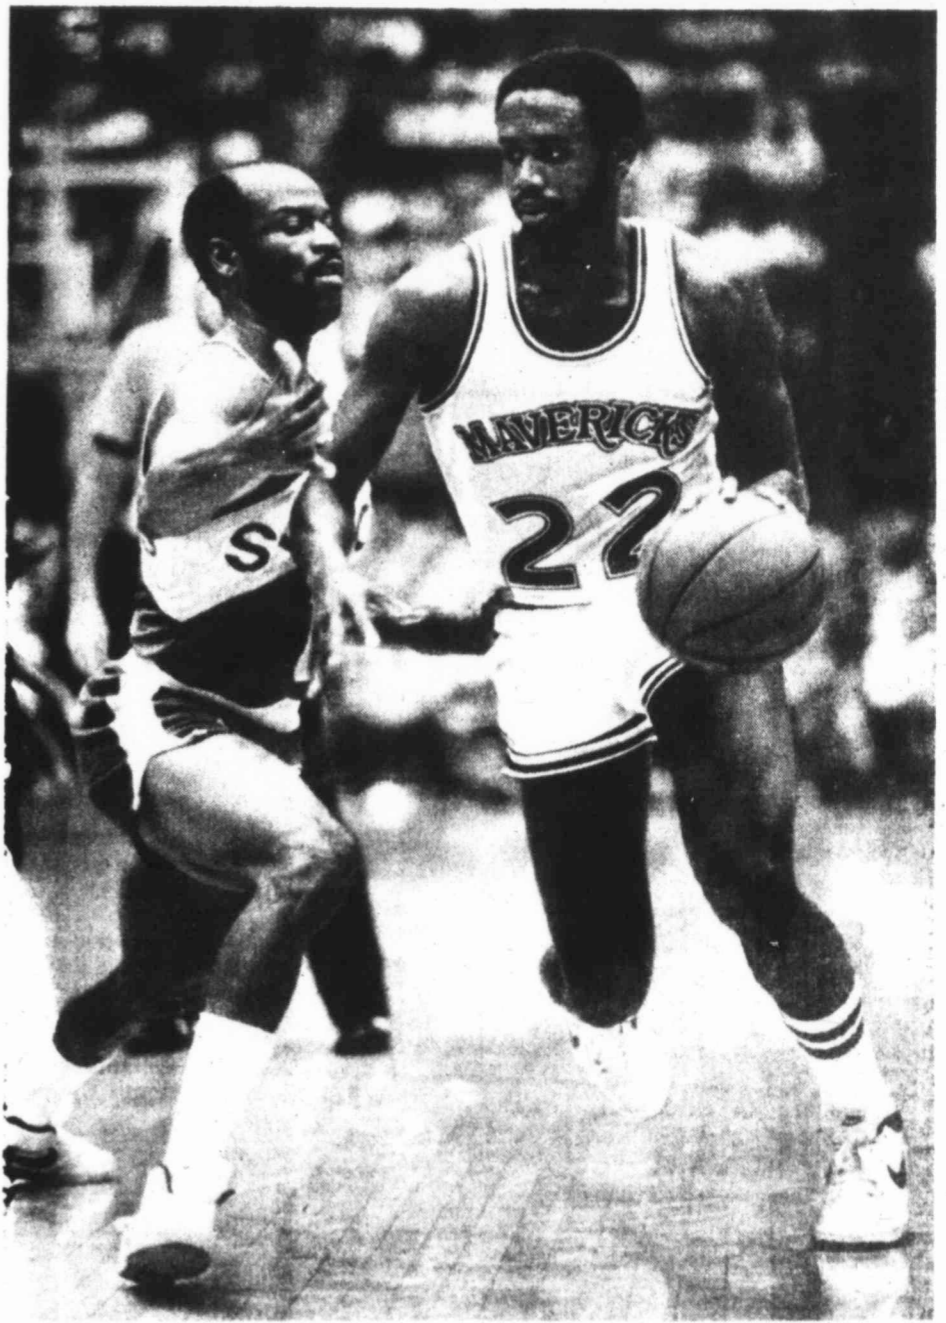

In several special presentations, coach Bill Dennis was given a plaque from the seniors on the 1983-84 Bulldogettes basketball team; coach Larry Baer was honored similarly by the boys basketball team; and former head football coach and athletic director Larry Hudson was awarded a plaque of appreciation by present AD Bruce Mitchell and his coaching staff. Hudson resigned after the Bulldogs grid season, but is still within the system as a counselor.

Long time CHS supporter Ronnie Dotson was also given a special award by the coaches.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Peter Uberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said Thursday that after meeting with Soviet officials, he is confident Russia will send its athletes to participate in the Olympics here.

But he called on the highest levels of U.S. government to extend a hand to the Soviet Union as an important step in assuring Soviet participation.

Asked what sort of response he wanted from the government, he said: "That's up to them. I have no authority or right to put words in the mouth of our government."

As for the Russians, with whom he met this week in Lausanne, Switzerland, Uberroth emphasized: "I feel they're going to be at the games."

On a separate matter, Uberroth announced that

Bangladesh had reversed its earlier decision not to come and now plans to participate in the Olympics.

As evidence of Soviet intentions, Uberroth noted that within the past 24 hours the Soviet National Olympic Committee and Intourist, the official Soviet travel agency, made a payment of $86,000 for spectator tickets for the games.

Uberroth said a deadline for a Soviet decision was June 2 but "I'm sure they will tell us some time before that."

Uberroth returned Wednesday from Lausanne, where he met with Soviet National Olympic chief Marat Gramov and members of the International Olympic Committee. The meeting was demanded by the Soviets, who had alleged violations of the Olympic charter by the United States. The Russians cited a U.S. request that the Soviets deliver a list of all members of their Olympic delegation to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

At the meeting, the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee headed by Uberroth agreed to allow the list of participants to be delivered directly to the LAOOC rather than through diplomatic channels.

Uberroth said the meeting also allowed for the two sides to discuss "problems that are real" as well as "problems destined to just irritate us, that don't have much substance."

One of the real problems, he said, was the availability of certain types of food, and he said the Russians' concerns about such things is further evidence they plan to participate.

"You don't go through those exercises without intending to be here," he said.

Another crucial issue, he said, was reassuring Soviets that their athletes would be welcome. The Russians have expressed concern about planned anti-Soviet demonstrations in Los Angeles.

Part of Uberroth's mission in Lausanne, he said, was "to clear up in their (Soviet) minds that the Southern California people are going to welcome the athletes of the world... to let them compete fairly and positively."

"If you want to judge the American people, judge them by their actions," he said he told them.

He said there will be no demonstrations at the sporting sites and the Soviets understand any lawful demonstrations elsewhere can't be interfered with.

Asked if Russia was worried athletes might defect, as some anti-Soviet groups are advocating, he said: "It's not major concern to them. Historically, they haven't had a problem." He said only one or two Soviet bloc athletes have defected since the 1956 Olympics.

After the meeting, Gramov affirmed that Russia intended to attend if the charter is upheld by the Americans. And Uberroth said Thursday that Soviet president Constantin Chernenko had also made a positive statement about hopes for Soviet participation in the Olympics.

Uberroth suggested the American response should come from a like figure in U.S. government, presumably President Reagan. But he refused to mention Reagan by name and said: "You figure it out. What level did it come from in the Soviet Union?"

Co-leaders emerge at Houston Open

By The Associated Press
THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Lou Graham and Gary McCord battled through light rain to score a pair of six-under-par 65s Thursday to share the early first-round lead in the $500,000 Houston Open golf tournament at The Woodlands Country Club.

Bobby Wadkins and Tony Sills also were among the earlier finishers with five-under-par 66s.

Graham tamed the par-71 7,031-yard West course with his best round of the year with four birdies on his first nine holes on the backside. Graham ran in birdie putts of 14 feet on his first hole of the day and added a 10-foot birdie on No. 15.

Graham's only bogey in the round came on the par-4 No. 6 hole when he hit a four iron into a bunker. Graham rallied on No. 7 however. After hitting a six iron to the fringe, he chipped in from 35 feet for a birdie.

McCord started slowly with a bogey on his first hole, No. 10, after hitting a poor drive.

WORKING OUT — Big Spring Special Olympic competitors work on getting a fast start as coach Mike Cowley looks on at a recent workout at Blankenship Field. The Special Olympics squad is gearing toward the area meet to be held in Monahans this Saturday. From area meets, participants will advance to the state meet later in May in Austin.

Final Tracksters of the Week named

The Big Spring Lady Steers record-setting 400 and 800 meter relay teams of Aretha Cork, Tina Smith, Latresa Cork and Pam Palmer have earned final Tracksters of the Week honors for their performance at the Region I—5A track meet held in Lubbock last week.

The foursome ran their way into the Big Spring High School record books with times of 48.55 in their fifth place finish in the 400 relay and 1:41.33 clocking in the 800 relay for a third place finish.

The old 400 relay record of 48.70 was set last year at the regional meet by the team of Shell Rutledge, Sylvia Randle, Tina Smith and Aretha Cork.

The previous 800 relay record of 1:44.40 was set at the district meet last year by the team of Rutledge, Aretha Cork, Latresa Cork and Paula Spears.

Palmer was a fifth place finisher in the 200 meters in 25.8.

For the second consecutive year Big Spring narrowly missed out on a trip to state by finishing four-tenths of a second behind second place finisher Fort Worth Southwest in the 800 relay.

Last season the Lady Steers missed the trip to Austin by one-tenth second in the 400 relay.

Lady Steers coach Anna Ezzell had a hard time explaining the feeling. "First of all I didn't think we could run a 1:41," said Ezzell. "It's a happy and disappointing feeling at the same time."

Rate increase seen for Big Spring park

AUSTIN — Effective May 1 the daily entrance fee at Big Spring State Recreation Area will rise from 50 cents per vehicle to $1.

The price increase at Big Spring is one of many increases in user's fees for most facilities in state parks across Texas.

The standard daily entrance fee of $2 per vehicle and the $15 annual entrance permit will remain unchanged, with the exception of the increase at Big Spring.

Among increases, however is the overnight fee for standard campsites. It will rise from $3 to $4, and campsites with electricity will rise from $4 to $6. Campsites with electricity and sewer connections will increase from $5 to $7, and screened shelters will be $8 instead of the current $6.50.

Changes are also in store for making reservations.

As in the past, reservations will be accepted daily at any respective park headquarters, by mail, telephone or in person between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Reservations for cabins, screened shelters and campsites cannot be made more than 90 days in advance of the occupancy date.

The new reservation procedure will require a deposit equal to one day's user fee for reservations made more than 10 days in advance of the occupancy date for cabins, screened shelters, more than two campsites and all group facilities.

Reservations made by telephone will be held five days pending receipt of the required deposit. If the deposit has not been received by the end of the five day period, the reservation request will be cancelled.

All reservation deposits will be applied to the total amount due at the time of registration. If a reservation or any part of a reservation is cancelled 72 hours or more prior to 2 p.m. on the arrival date, the deposit will be refunded; otherwise it will be forfeited.

Beginning May 1, reservations will not be held beyond 6 p.m. on the arrival date, instead of 8 p.m. which is the current policy. Late arrival privileges will be granted to those who call the park headquarters on the day of arrival or the day before 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

For more complete information on the reservation system and fees, individuals should call the park they are interested in visiting.

A complete wrapup of state park information, including the new fee schedule, will be included in the May issue of Texas Parks and Wildlife Magazine. For magazine subscription forms call toll free 1-800-792-1112.

Steinkunhler hits deal with Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Football League Houston Oilers announced Thursday they reached tentative agreement to sign Nebraska All-American offensive lineman Dean Steinkunhler, who will be the second choice overall in next week's NFL draft.

"What we must now do is get the contract written and agree to the exact language," Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog said. "This takes time but I am confident that we will get this matter settled and have Dean in town tomorrow (Friday)."

"I feel great," Steinkunhler said in an interview with Houston radio station KIKK. "I couldn't be more happy. It's the place that I wanted to go to and life I said before, Houston has a good program and they've got a lot of young players."

The New England Patriots, who own the No. 1 pick in Tuesday's draft, already have signed Steinkunhler's teammate, wide receiver Irving Fryar.

"But I think everything is pretty close at this time." The signing of Steinkunhler, who won the Outland Trophy and Lombardi Trophy as the nation's top college lineman in 1983, would make it three straight years that the Oilers, who are in need of defensive help, chose an offensive lineman as their top draft pick. Guards Mike Munchak and Bruce Matthews were first-round picks in the two previous years.

Herzog said the 23-year-old Steinkunhler, a 6-foot-3, 270-pounder, would be playing right tackle for the Oilers.

Besides Steinkunhler, the Oilers had been talking with Florida linebacker Wilber Marshall and Michigan State linebacker Carl Banks.

Player Profile

One of the younger Steers on this year's Big Spring High School baseball team, Mike Dodd is a sophomore pitcher-third baseman.

The 5-11, 150 pounder has been playing organized baseball since he was six years old and said he plays, "because it's the most competitive sport there is. It always keeps you thinking."

Hunting, fishing, skiing and football are other sports enjoyed by the son of Paula Dodd. He added that English and biology are his favorite classroom subjects.

When asked who the most influential figure towards him in terms of his athletic involvement is, Dodd stated, "my father, because he taught me how to play the game."

Although graduation is two years away, Dodd is pretty sure of his plans.

He wants to attend Southwest Texas State University and concentrate on architecture. If, by chance, the opportunity arises to continue his baseball career, Dodd said he would more than welcome that.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Spiders sure waste a lot of thread."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 28, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Do not push matters. If you go along with whatever occurs, you will have a pleasant surprise. Not a good time to borrow nor to lend money nor to take any risks.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) It is best to be with good friends and not get involved with others. Any public work will not turn out well.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be more concerned with improving your image and don't go off on any tangents. A friend may come to you for help so do your best.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go out to new sites and meet interesting people, and avoid a business tie who is looking for trouble. Be patient with your mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Steer clear of a self-opinionated man today and be with persons who are more modern and progressive.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get into more modern ways of doing things and you can be more successful. Join with co-workers at leisure.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get out to fun places with your mate and have a delightful time together. Avoid grouches. Be imaginative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take a little trip with a good partner and put aside worries and tediums of everyday business for now. Drive with care.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A co-worker will join you in some plan you have that can be mutually helpful. You can accomplish a great deal of practical matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan to have as good a time today as you possibly can. Don't get involved in some monetary scheme.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Meet the one you like at a restaurant and be happy together. Handle only that work that is necessary in the morning.

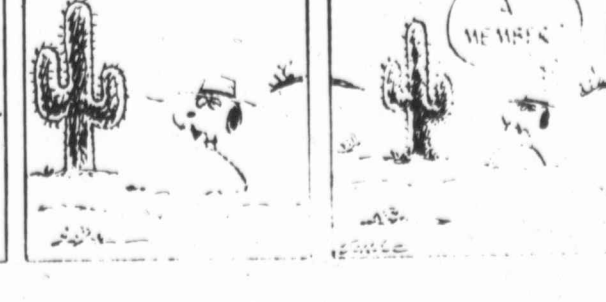

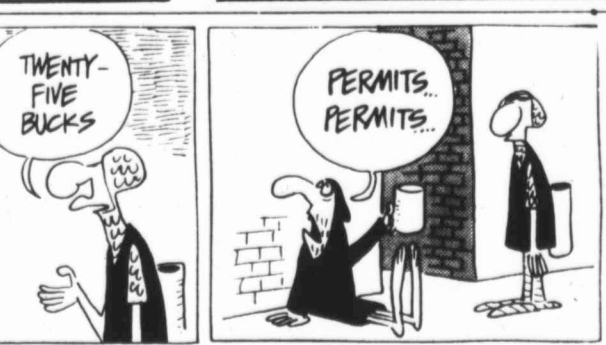

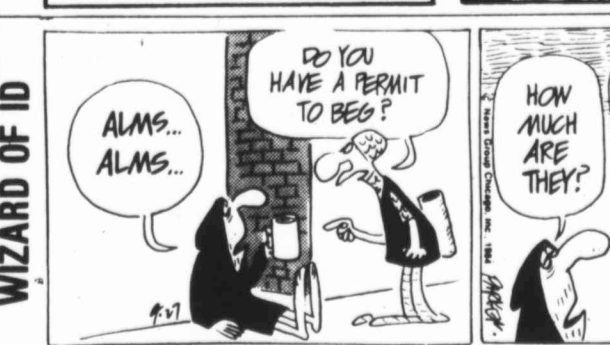

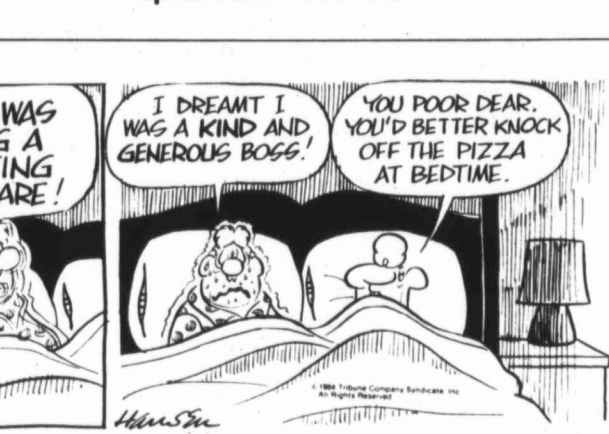

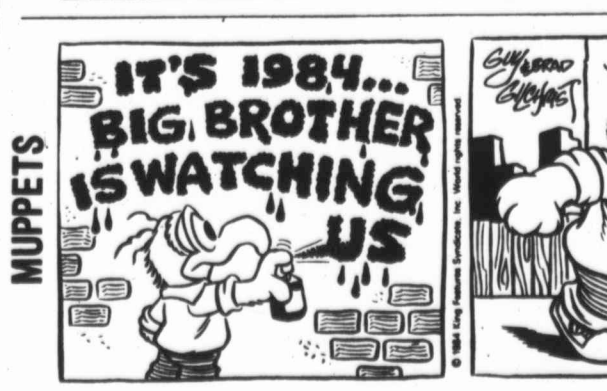

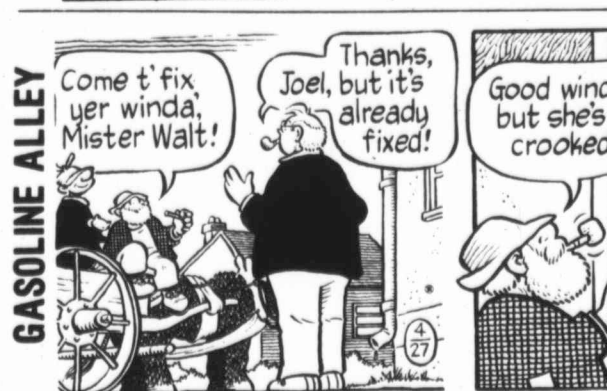

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't fume about some worrisome situation; do something constructive about it. Enjoy long-neglected pleasure.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Approach bigwigs for any favors you need. A friend can be too possessive, so avoid for the time being. Be wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who will have every opportunity to gain fame provided that early in life your progeny does not get enmeshed in something ultra, ultra modern that has no substance. Teach to be discriminating in all things.

Gary Bandy ministers to youth

By RHONDA WOODALL
Church Editor

Gary Bandy, associate pastor and youth director at Trinity Baptist Church, enjoys working with high school students.

Bandy said, "I love it. It's a blessing to me because of the challenge it presents." He teaches a Sunday school class which contains 40 youths.

Bandy says it's a challenge because "high school kids are hard to understand. High school is a hard area to reach, because they (the students) have a lot of freedom and less parental restraint."

High school students' spiritual needs differ from others because they are influenced by different things than adults, he says. "You have to be able to relate to them (the students) on any level."

Some goals Bandy would like to see accomplished at the church are "to see a steady increase in the bus ministry, and to see our youth department grow not only numerically but also spiritually."

Bandy believes that influence from others helped him to go into the ministry. "If it hadn't been for human influence, I wouldn't be where I am now."

His brother, Gene Bandy, who also is in the ministry, influenced Bandy's Christian life. "I was clear out of the church, and through his encouragement I got back in the Lord's work. My mother also had a real influence on me spiritually."

Bandy surrendered to preach at a mission conference in 1974. "I just felt God call me."

Before going into the ministry, Bandy had spent 12 years working as an electroplater and magni-flux inspector. "It was about all I knew in life."

Bandy never has any doubts "about this (the ministry) being what the Lord wanted me to do. If I did, I wouldn't do it."

Bandy pastored a church in Hereford, before moving to Big Spring. Bandy says he never thought about coming to Big Spring to minister. "I was just looking for the Lord's will in my life. I came to Trinity Baptist because I felt I needed the experience of working with a pastor that had experience."

"One of the highlights of being here is being able to visit so much with people. Steve (Moses, music minister) and I knock on doors 3½ days a week. It's certainly a blessing to have a pastor who will let you do that."

Bandy and wife Carol have four daughters, Diane, 17, Garielea, 19, Joy Hutson, and Kandra McBride of San Antonio. They also have two grandchildren.

Baptist chaplain supports nuns

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Southern Baptist chaplain says he has abandoned past stereotypes he had about nuns and has become a co-member of the Franciscan Sisters of the Poor as part of a pastoral ministry team at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center here.

The Rev. Allen Weimer, president of the greater Dayton Chaplains Association, says being a "co-member" of the Catholic order means sympathizing with its ideas and having a formal "covenant relationship" of mutual prayer with the sisters.

"They look at people in a very caring way and with special emphasis on the poor and needy," says Weimer, married and father of two. "I like that. I like what they represent. And I'm proud to be a part of that spirit as a co-member."

Franciscan Sister Lynn Gitzinger calls Weimer a "very caring person who is sure of himself as a person and as a minister."

Moslem worship resurgent in China

PHIL BROW
Associated Press Writer
KASHGAR, China (AP) — White-robed Moslem muezins now openly call their people to prayer. Like Christianity, Islam has rebounded in Communist China, emerging from a decade of suppression.

Nowadays, many of the one-time persecutors are worshipping participants, says Muezzin Kadir Kuparji, whose cries summon people to prayer five times a day at the central mosque in Kashgar.

Of the youthful "Red Guards" who had destroyed mosques and burned Korans, the Moslem scriptures, in the repressive 1966-1976 Cultural Revolution, he says: "They had orders from higher up. Now the old Red Guards come and pray for forgiveness. Allah welcomes the people who have corrected their mistakes."

During the persecution, Moslem leaders — like those of Christianity — were banished to other work and most houses of worship converted to other uses or shut. But in recent times, religious functions increasingly have revived.

Just two years ago, the central mosque in Kashgar, a district that is 90 percent Moslem, resumed use of a loudspeaker for the calls to prayer.

Those undulating, near-wailing sounds — and the throngs of people that come for daily prayer — signify the religious turnaround that has occurred in this country.

More than 10 million of its Moslem population are now reported practicing their faith, along with about 3 million Catholics and more than 3 million Protestants, far more than before the Communist takeover in 1949, with hundreds of mosques and churches reopened.

Some experts on Chinese church life estimate the Christian total now at an extraordinary 30 million to 75 million.

At Kashgar's 200-year-old central mosque, recently refurbished, Kuparji says about 10,000 people come for daily prayers and 50,000 on the sabbath on Friday.

A walk through the dusty streets of this city, China's westernmost, reveals a mosque in every neighborhood now.

Asked if there now were enough Korans, Kuparji said about 10 percent of Moslems had copies published by the government, but "everybody wants one because we do everything according to the Koran."

In addition to calling people to prayer five times daily at the mosque, Kuparji earns his living as a carpenter.

In a commune on Kashgar's outskirts, Tursun, 45, a farmer, says that during the Cultural Revolution "I couldn't go to the mosque. I was afraid for 10 years. I prayed at home."

But now, there are two neighborhood mosques that he can go to. He says he ordinarily goes to the central mosque on major holidays.

In Urumqi, the provincial capital, Osman Yunus Kari, secretary of the Sinkiang Islamic Association, says he was made a cleaner in a factory for five years during the Cultural Revolution.
