Fire destroys city warehouse

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Almost 50 firemen, volunteers and city employees battled a fire which destroyed a city warehouse and threatened the lives of animals in the city shelter at Second and Donley Wednesday afternoon.

City employees today are clearing away the remains of the warehouse, which collapsed during the fire. Public Works Director Tom Decell estimated structural damage at $60,000. He had no estimate on losses within the warehouse.

The building is situated between a city welding shop, which housed tanks of oxygen and welding torches, and the city animal shelter.

As the adjacent warehouse burned, volunteers at the scene brought 18 puppies out of the animal shelter, which received only minor damage in the blaze.

Janie Edwards of the Big Spring Police Department said a cat inside the building was rescued later after workers realized she had been left behind.

"All the animals were taken out and put in the yard," Mrs. Edwards said. "Everybody grabbed the dogs and ran."

Two dogs, which escaped during the confusion, were later found and are now back at the animal shelter.

Three city fire trucks and three volunteer units responded to the fire, which sent thick black smoke billowing into the sky. Several blocks of traffic were blocked off to allow workers easier access to the area.

Residents and business people in the area were asked to evacuate for a short period while firemen tried to determine what was causing the thick smoke, later attributed to two burning spools of PVC sewer jet hoses.

One fireman, Paul Brown, was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital Wednesday afternoon for treatment of cuts he received on his wrists. Brown was taken to the hospital in a city vehicle, received three stitches and returned to the fire.

Efforts to douse the blaze were hampered when firemen plugged into a "busted hydrant" at Second and Donley streets. Fire Marshal Carl Dorton said.

Dorton said the hydrant, which had a broken stem, was discovered during an April 19 inspection of city hydrants and a work order was turned in at that time.

City workers "hadn't gotten to it yet. It's hard to tell who broke it," Dorton said.

"The person who laid the line (to the broken hydrant) was from out of the district. He didn't know it was dry," Dorton said.

Animal shelter damaged

Because the city animal shelter suffered minimal damages during yesterday's fire, plans for Big Spring's new shelter will not be accelerated, City Manager Don Davis said this morning.

City Public Works Director Tom Decell said the current shelter in its damaged shape is "serviceable" until the new shelter is built.

"We'll have to put a few windows back in," he said.

Although Davis could not name a specific date for the completion of the new shelter, he said he is hopeful it will be finished by early fall of this year.

According to the city manager, plans and specifications for plumbing, heating and ventilation at the new shelter were returned to City Hall this week by a Lubbock engineering firm.

He expects the City Council to authorize bids for the shelter next Tuesday.

Plans for the new shelter include 18 cages that will be able to hold as many as 36 of the animals separately at any one time, Decell said.

The shelter also will include an isolation area for quarantine of sick animals, a place for keeping cats, a puppy area, a food storage and preparation area and a euthanasia area, he said.

According to Decell, only one

Shaw joins tour to Latin America

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas delegation, including four state Legislators, will make a week-long trip to Central America for a first-hand look at the troubled region and to show Mexico that the Lone Star state wants to be a good neighbor, a legislator says.

"Basically, what we're attempting to do is to better inform the people in our state and to try to keep communications open between our state government and the government of Mexico and improving those relations to let those people know that we, in Texas, want to work as a positive neighbor," said Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, who will be among the 13 Texans traveling to the area.

"Many of us in Texas as well as the citizens of Mexico have become alarmed about the growing unrest in Central America," Shaw told a Capitol news conference Wednesday.

Shaw, whose district includes Hudspeth County, which borders Mexico, added, "The borders of Mexico and the United States are currently flooded with refugees escaping their war-torn homeland. The international trade we could be enjoying with our southern neighbors has stalled because of the continued fighting and turmoil.

"As conditions continue to deteriorate, it is important for us to unite our efforts with Mexico's to help in the negotiations for peace in order to avoid a possible conflict on a larger scale in the future."

Joining Shaw at the news conference was Sen. Humberto Hernandez Haddad from the Mexican state of Tabasco, secretary of international relations for PRI, Mexico's ruling political party.

Hernandez Haddad described the "Contadora initiative" as an effort by four countries — Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama — "to develop a long-term stable and durable solution, avoiding the mutation of an economic crisis into a political crisis."

The Contadora Group has proposed a 21-point peace plan that includes halting the arms race and terrorism.

"From Mexico to Argentina, the problem is how to deal successfully with (the) problem of economic factors without having a major political crisis," Hernandez Haddad said.

LARRY DON SHAW ...on fact-finding tour

He said he had visited with Texas Gov. Mark White, and "I was really impressed with the level of awareness (White) has ... with the whole impact the Central American conflict has on the hemispheric balance ... and the nature of the relationship of Latin America and the United States."

Shaw said, "I believe our government should be supportive of the efforts of the Contadora initiative, and I am looking forward to visiting Central America and learning more about this effort."

Miller outstrips Hamby by 2-to-1 in expenditures

From staff and bureau reports
Challenger Bob Miller outspent incumbent Rick Hamby by a two-to-one margin during the last month in his bid for election to the 118th District Attorney post.

Miller, the current county attorney, has spent $4,031 between March 27 and April 25, increasing the total amount of his campaign expenditures to $5,430, according to campaign finance reports made to the Texas Secretary of State's office.

In contrast, Hamby spent $2,001 in the same reporting period, raising his total expenditures to $3,648, according to the campaign finance report.

The reports must be filed with the Secretary of State's office 30 days prior to the election, and again seven days before and after the primary election Saturday.

Both candidates raised most of their funds in contributions of $50 or less, according to their reports. Donors of $50 or less do not have to be listed on the reports.

Hamby raised $1,870 of the $2,370 he received in the last reporting period in such contributions, while Miller raised $1,443 of the $2,543 he received that way.

Miller has raised a total of $4,640 during the campaign, slightly more than the $4,040 Hamby has raised.

Hamby's latest report listed only one contribution, $500 from Dr. J. I. Gaynor of Plainview.

Miller lists a $1,000 contribution from his parents, Don and Lynn Miller of Austin, and a $100 contribution from Jerry Hughes, owner of Hughes Furniture and Appliance at 1228 W. Third.

Individual expenses for both candidates shows the lion's share of their funds being spent on radio and newspaper advertising. Miller again outspent Hamby on advertising, listing $2,972.61 paid for ads, while Hamby paid $1,600 to a Big Spring firm, Multi-Media Advertising, which is handling his ad campaign. Hamby also writes non-political ads for other Multi-Media accounts, he said.

State's profile is changing

By DR. DAVID HILL
Texas Poll Director

The people moving to Texas in unprecedented numbers are also reshaping the state's political profile, ironically making it both more Republican and more liberal than before, according to findings released Sunday by the Texas Poll.

In a state long dominated by a single political party, newcomers have become the critical catalyst in Texas' transformation toward a competitive two-party system similar to the national level.

The Texas Poll found that among people who had lived in Texas 10 years or less, one in three identified with the Republican party. By contrast, only one in five lifetime residents said they were Republicans.

A similar difference exists regarding political orientation. Of the people who had moved to Texas within the decade, one in four said he was a liberal. But among lifetime residents, liberals numbered scarcely one in six.

Should these patterns continue in the expected influx of newcomers, it would eventually result in a larger Republican party and a more liberal Democratic party in Texas.

People moving to Texas are a study in contrasts. There is a white-collar segment that has strong Republican loyalties.

There are also blue-collar workers, drawn here by the promise of jobs. They bring with them ties to organized labor and the liberal wing of the Democratic party.

The poll shows that, taken together, these two groups hold opinions that at times significantly diverge from the views of lifetime Texans.

For example, the new Texans are more likely to profess support for candidates with characteristics traditionally considered liabilities in Texas politics.

Compared with lifelong Texans, the newcomers gave greater support to the idea of a black, Mexican-American, homosexual or atheist candidate for governor.

The views of this group may not have an immediate impact on state elections, however, because the poll shows they also tend to have less interest in public affairs and participate less in elections.

Reported voter registration by those who have moved here in the last decade lags behind that of lifelong Texans by 15 percentage points.

Twister warnings issued

By the Associated Press

Thunderstorm activity moved eastward out of Texas early today after the state was spared from the brunt of storms that spawned tornadoes in Louisiana, Arkansas and other sections of the southeast on Wednesday.

Several tornado warnings were issued in far Northeast Texas late Wednesday, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

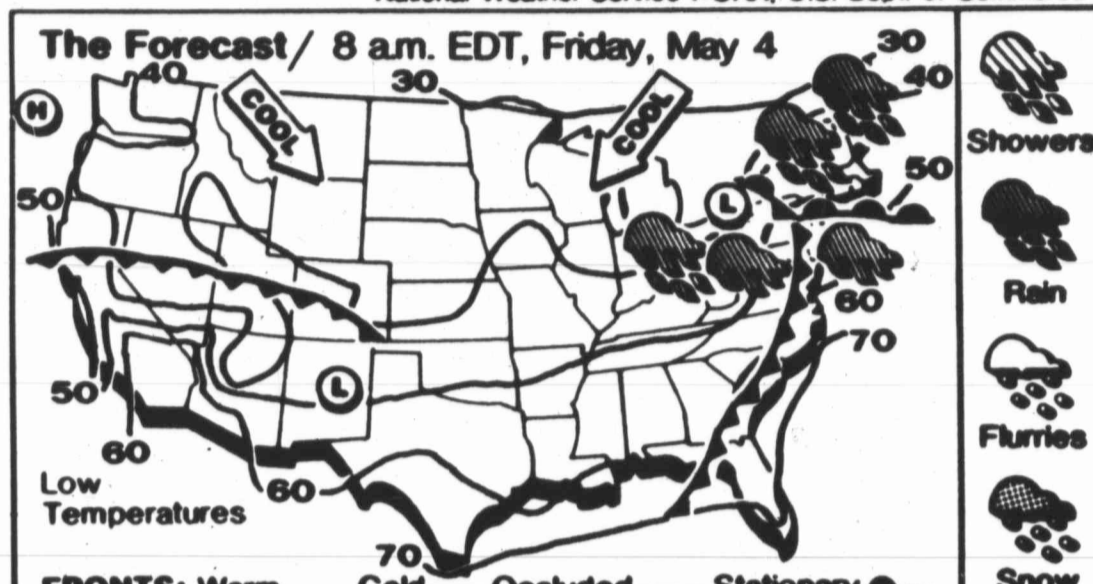

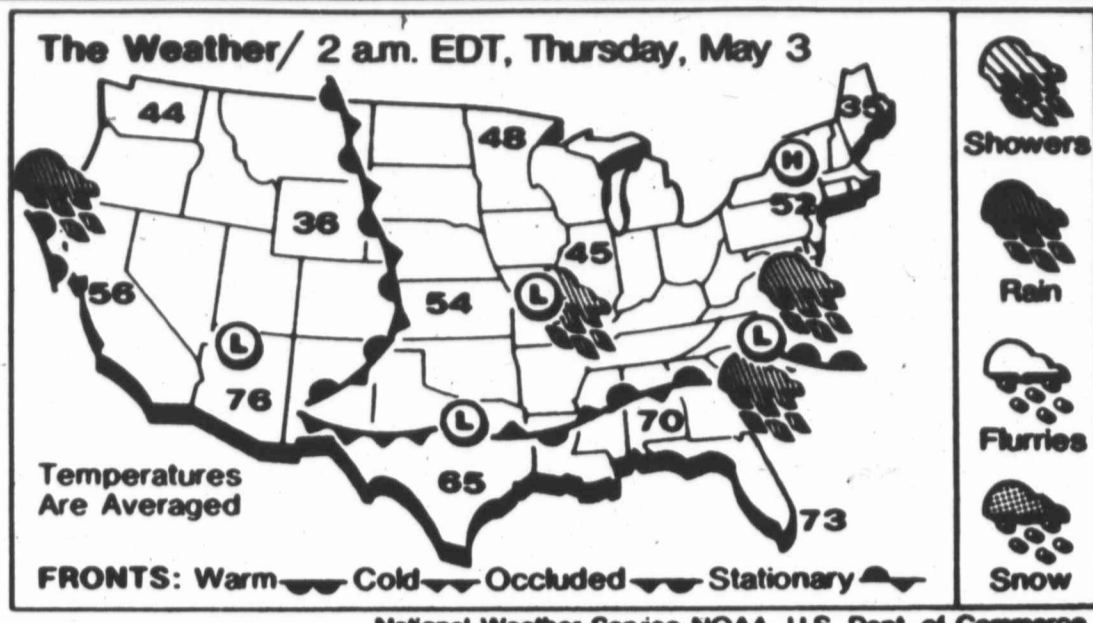

However, the West Texas community of Matador was forced to ask for federal and state assistance after a tornado cut a wide swath of destruction late Tuesday. The twister destroyed at least 27 homes and the town's high school.

Cloudy skies were the rule before dawn today over South and Southeast Texas, while clear skies dominated the rest of the state.

Early morning temperatures were generally in the 40s and 50s over the Panhandle and South Plains, the 60s over Southwest Texas and the 70s over South and Southeast Texas. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 48 at Amarillo to 77 at Brownsville.

Southerly winds were reported over South and Southeast Texas, while westerly breezes were noted over Southwest Texas. Northwesterly winds dominated the rest of the state. Wind speeds were generally 5 to 15 mph.

The forecast called for mostly fair skies tonight through Friday.

Theft suspects arrested

Big Spring police yesterday arrested two persons on suspicion of thefts that occurred at businesses near the intersection of Birdwell Lane and FM 700, according to Capt. Lonnie Smith.

Arrested in connection with a clothing theft at K-Mart was Belinda Lopez, 21, of 710 Douglas, police reports said.

A report turned in at 2:40 p.m. yesterday by Bobby Wood, assistant manager at the store, said someone yesterday afternoon stole clothing worth approximately $10 from the store. Wood and a clerk apprehended the person in the K Mart parking lot while she was in possession of the property, reports said.

Arrested in connection with a separate clothing theft at J.C. Penney at the Big Spring Mall was Angela Craft, 17, of Route 3, police reports said.

J.C. Penney employee Bill Nehls told police at 5:56 p.m. yesterday that someone took several articles of women's clothing worth a total of $53.48 from the store without paying for them, reports said.

In other police reports: George Theobald, 74, of 2301 Johnson was arrested at 3:05 p.m. yesterday in connection with an indecency with a child incident that occurred in the south-central part of the city, Capt. Lonnie Smith said this morning when contacted after Theobald was transferred to county jail. Neither the incident nor the arrest were noted on police records available to the public. According to Smith, someone exposed himself to a juvenile girl in an indecent manner sometime yesterday.

Cynthia Hernandez of 903 Rosemont told police someone entered her residence between 2:30 p.m. Wednesday and 12 a.m. Thursday, stole a Zenith 19-inch TV valued at $350 and left through the front door, police reports said.

Brian Averett of 2302 Marshall told police someone at about 5:25 p.m. Wednesday knocked out the back window of his 1977 Chevrolet Blazer while it was in the parking lot at the Winn-Dixie supermarket, police reports said. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $250, reports said.

Elizabeth Conway, 24, of 1202 Wood was arrested at 3:33 p.m. Wednesday at her home in connection with a capias warrant, police reports said.

Arthur Lopez, 41, of 608 Caylor was arrested at 5:53 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection of Fifth and Douglas streets on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police reports said.

Melvin Biddle, 21, of 1509 Main was arrested at the intersection of Fourth and Union streets on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, driving with license suspended and traffic warrants, police reports said.

Sexual assaults reported

A Clyde woman Wednesday told Howard County deputies her 12-year-old son had been repeatedly sexually assaulted by a married couple over a period of three years.

The sexual assaults began in the summer of 1981, when the boy was 10, and continued through Jan. 1984, the mother told deputies.

The man threatened to shoot the boy if he told anyone, according to the report.

The couple previously lived on Dow Street in Big Spring, and then lived in a trailer in Forsan, she said. The couple now lives outside the state of Texas, according to the sheriff's report.

Deputies are investigating the report and have suspects, they said.

A Big Spring man was transferred Wednesday evening to the sheriff's office from the police department on suspicion of indecency with a child.

George Theobald, 74, of 2301 Johnson was arrested Wednesday by police at his home. He was released on $10,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Robert Franklin Rutherford, 52, of 1502 E. Sixth was released from county jail Wednesday on the authority of the chief district probation officer, Frank Martinez. Rutherford Tuesday pleaded guilty to felony theft of more than $750 and less than $20,000 and was sentenced to 10 years probation, 90 days on a rehabilitation farm and $1,300 restitution.

Brian Ray Mann, 20, a hitchhiker remains in jail today after transfer Wednesday from the police department to the sheriff's office on suspicion of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Bond was set at $10,000 by Heflin.

The Posse and officials of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion will host a barbecue supper after the rodeo parade June 26.

Posse members also made plans for a camping trip to the mountains. The Posse will continue sponsoring youth playdays and horse shows at the Posse Arena.

Genetics to be discussed

Kay Morrison from the Genetics Screening and Counseling Service in Odessa will be on hand to discuss genetic disorders at the Big Spring Health Fair scheduled May 19 at the Big Spring Mall.

The Genetics Screening and Counseling Service is a division of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Genetics is the study of heredity. There are some 3,000 known genetic disorders. Some cause mild problems, such as color blindness. Others are so severe that the affected individual cannot survive.

More than 12 million Americans are affected with genetic disorders. Nearly half of all deaths are caused by genetic disorders.

When the possibility of a genetic disorder exists in a family, the members of the family need information on which to base decisions. In many cases, the existence of a genetic disorder may be ruled out.

The Genetics Screening and Counseling Service helps families by providing diagnosis of individuals having genetic disorders; identification of detectable carriers of genetic disorders; risk counseling to allow families to make decisions about pregnancies; counseling and support to help families understand and adjust to hereditary problems and cope with their emotional impact; and referral to programs which provide assistance and treatment for the affected individual and the family.

Matador asks for state aid

MATADOR (AP) — An officer of the state's Emergency Management Division has been sent to this West Texas community after the town requested state and federal assistance to clean up after a twister that destroyed a high school and at least 27 homes. Laureen Chernow, a spokeswoman in Gov. Mark White's office, said that an officer of the division had been sent to the town to survey damage in a 20-block area.

A volunteer group, tentatively called the Big Spring Humane Society, that wants to help at the new pound will hold its first organizational meeting at 7 p.m. May 8 at the Texas Electric Rddy Room, according to group organizer Margaret Lloyd.

One responsibility the group hopes to take on is "to supplement the services that are presently being rendered" at both the current and planned pounds, she said.

"We want to help as much as we can," she said.

Poll

Political scientists have found that transfer of residence is a major factor in citizens not registering to vote. Among persons not registered to vote in Texas, the poll found that 32 percent claimed not to be registered because of a recent move.

Migration from other states and regions has played a major role in the state's population growth since 1970. Migration accounted for 58 percent of the state's population growth in the 1970s, and 63 percent in the first two years of the 1980s.

The U.S. Census Bureau put the Texas population at 15.3 million in July 1982, and estimated that the state had averaged more than 300,000 migrants per year since the 1980 census.

A census study of the Texas migration patterns between 1975 and 1980 found that 1.4 million people in Texas said they had lived in another state in 1975.

Of that number, 39 percent came from the Northeast and North Central regions of the country, 36 percent came from other states in the South and 24 percent came from the West.

States that sent the most migrants to Texas during that five-year period were California (160,000), Louisiana (86,000), New York (80,000) and Illinois (77,000).

Landry greeted by protesters

AUSTIN (AP) — Supporters and opponents of President Reagan's re-election bid turned out to greet Dallas Cowboys football coach Tom Landry and Reagan's daughter, Maureen, while they were stumping for votes at the University of Texas.

In his low-key endorsement speech of Reagan on Wednesday, Landry was interrupted by protesters' shouts of "go back to your football team" and "hold that line."

Reagan supporters, who outnumbered the group of about 30 anti-Reagan protesters, attempted to block the demonstrators from the view of television camera crews. The protesters responded by interrupting the speeches of Landry and Ms. Reagan.

"No more Ron," the protesters chanted when Landry began to speak. They were drowned out by shouts of "Reagan '84, Reagan '84."

"We can be part of a winning tradition as great as the Dallas Cowboys or the Texas Longhorns," Landry told the audience. "Let us re-elect President Reagan and make America all that she can be again."

Landry accused past Democratic administrations of "paying homage to every two-bit revolutionary in a camel-hide suit." He said with Reagan as president, Americans are "proud of their country ... and confident about their future."

Willie Nelson turns 51

PHOENIX — Country music fans got their cake and ate it, too, at a sold-out concert by singer Willie Nelson on his 51st birthday.

About 17,500 fans sang "Happy Birthday" to the pigtailed Nelson as five giant cakes were rolled into Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum during his performance Monday night.

Each cake, shaped like the state of Arizona, was 6 feet long, 4 feet wide and weighed more than 300 pounds. They cost a combined $2,500 and were donated by a local radio station.

Everyone received a slice as they left the Coliseum following the 2½-hour show which also featured Waylon Jennings and Jessi Colter.

Iglesias is Coke's singer

NEW YORK — Coca-Cola Co. and Pepsi Co. appear headed for a battle of the superstars, pitting singers Julio Iglesias and Michael Jackson.

Coca-Cola announced Wednesday that it had signed the Spanish-born Iglesias, 40, to appear in commercials in English, Spanish and other languages and said the company would sponsor a seven-month world concert tour by Iglesias.

The deal with Iglesias, an international star who has sold more than 100 million records, comes only three months after rival soft drink maker Pepsi unveiled a series of television commercials made by Jackson, the recent winner of eight Grammy awards.

Jackson was reportedly paid $5.5 million for the commercials. Terms of the deal with Iglesias have not been revealed.

JULIO IGLESIAS

Maazel hooted by fans

VIENNA, Austria — American conductor Lorin Maazel was raked over the coals by opera fans and critics whose reaction to his production of "Aida" made it clear that they are glad his tenure as director of the Vienna State Opera is coming to an end.

The opera by Verdi opened Monday with tenor Luciano Pavarotti and soprano Maria Chiara receiving wild cheers. But Maazel's appearance for a curtain call was greeted by a chorus of boos from the audience.

Maazel announced last month he would quit in June, two years before his contract expires. He blamed unwarranted criticism and lack of cooperation from the government and cultural officials.

Graham's wife in hospital

OMAHA, Neb. — Ruth Graham, wife of evangelist Billy Graham, was hospitalized in good condition after several days of tests for a chronic cough.

"Mrs. Graham was referred to me from another physician regarding a chronic, persistent cough that has been present for many years," Dr. Tom DeMeester, chief of surgery for St. Josephs Hospital and Creighton University, said Wednesday.

She was admitted "simply for evaluation," he said.

Debate turns into chat

GRAPEVINE (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who once complained of being ignored by Democratic rivals Walter Mondale and Gary Hart, has found himself on the defensive for refusing to repudiate black religious leader Louis Farrakhan, a supporter who apparently threatened the life of a journalist.

During an hour-long appearance together Wednesday night which moderator Sander Vanocur termed more a conversation than a debate, the three candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination agreed as much as they disagreed.

The League of Women Voters debate marked the only joint appearance by the candidates in Texas before Saturday's party caucuses in which Hart is attempting to inject new life into his flagging effort to challenge Mondale for the presidential nomination.

Unlike some of the previous debates, there were no sharp exchanges between Mondale and Hart. Instead, much of the attention focused on Jackson and his association with Farrakhan.

At issue is Farrakhan's declaration in a March radio broadcast that Washington Post reporter Milton Coleman was a "Judas" for reporting Jackson's ethnic remarks against Jews. "One day soon we will punish you with death," Farrakhan said.

Farrakhan, who heads the Nation of Islam, a Black Muslim offshoot, is a longtime Jackson supporter who has campaigned with the civil rights leader and once provided him with bodyguards.

"You have not repudiated that message of Louis Farrakhan," said Vanocur.

"I disassociated myself from the message but not the messenger," Jackson said.

Jackson, appearing to grow uncomfortable under his rivals' criticism, said he hoped the debate would go on to other issues. In a previous debate, Jackson complained that the two other candidates were paying no attention to him as a serious contender for the nomination.

Jackson opened the debate by calling on the Democratic Party to reform its delegation selection process under which he said he will receive fewer delegates than he earned in the popular vote.

"I have won 18 percent of the popular vote, but only 7 percent of delegates," Jackson said. Mondale, meanwhile, will get 50 percent of the pledged delegates earned with 39 percent of the vote.

"He (Mondale) has 11 percent more delegates than his popular vote warrants, I have 11 percent less," said Jackson.

Hart, who has backed Jackson on the issue before, said the dual primaries should be evaluated on a state-by-state position, putting him close to Mondale's view.

It is a touchy issue for Democrats because of fears that some white voters will shift to the Republican Party rather than elect blacks to office.

Mondale said only some dual primaries are discriminatory. He said some of the Democratic Party's best leaders, citing Sen. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas and former Gov. William Winter of Mississippi, would not have been elected without the dual primary system.

On another issue, Mondale calmly answered Hart's criticism earlier in the week that the Iranian rescue operation and the hostage crisis it was designed to end would have been successful had their been better planning and better weapons and equipment used.

Hart said he supported the concept of the failed 1980 mission in which several Americans died, but not its implementation.

Mondale said, "We had to put the lives of our Americans first and we did. Hindsight is great but all those hostages are home now, living with their families."

Police baffled by triple slaying

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Family members and police investigators are struggling to comprehend the point-blank slaying of a young couple and their 21-month-old son, whose bullet-riddled bodies were discovered lying side by side on the floor of the infant's bedroom.

On Tuesday, relatives discovered Jerry Morgan, a 30-year-old plumber; his 26-year-old wife, Brenda; and their son, Devin Glenn Morgan, shot to death in their mobile home near Longview.

"Undoubtedly he surprised a burglar. That's all it could be," said Morgan's brother, Rayford.

So far, investigators have no leads or suspects. Tyler police found the family's abandoned 1978 blue Pontiac Catalina parked outside the Mother Frances Hospital just after 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Police said they would dust the automobile for fingerprints and search the inside today for any possible clues or items that might give investigators a lead in the case.

Longview police spokesman Gene Noble said authorities believe the three were killed sometime Monday afternoon, but he said he doesn't believe it was a burglary.

"It doesn't make sense," Noble said Wednesday. "There wasn't that much of value taken to justify taking three lives to cover it up."

Salvadoran aid delayed

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress have their eyes on Sunday's runoff presidential election in El Salvador as they prepare to decide on the future of military aid to the beleaguered Central American country.

"We shouldn't be making any wild promises of money to the military until we find out what kind of stability there is down there," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. told reporters Wednesday.

"We ought to wait and see whether the military will honor an election," said Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations.

At Long's suggestion, the Appropriations Committee deleted emergency aid for the Salvadorans from an appropriations bill providing funds for various government programs. He said the issue should go on hold until Sunday's runoff and possibly until the new president takes office June 1.

Import car quotas needed

WASHINGTON — American workers, and not their well-paid bosses, would end up being punished if the Reagan administration does nothing to extend voluntary quotas on imported Japanese cars, a union leader says.

United Auto Workers union President Owen Bieber said more than 200,000 American jobs would be lost if U.S. Trade Representative William E. Brock's view prevails and the administration fails to obtain an extension of the quotas, due to expire next March.

Brock said Wednesday that the voluntary quotas, which he helped negotiate in 1981, are no longer justified in view of the "unbelievable" bonuses Detroit executives have awarded themselves.

Brock singled out the $181.7 million bonus package that General Motors Corp. paid to a group of 5,807 executives.

"You have to feel a little bit 'had,'" Brock told reporters. "In the first year that we get back to a good profit you start having one-time bonuses that are larger on average than the average (auto) worker makes in a whole year."

42 face cocaine charges

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Forty-two suspects faced charges today in a ring that allegedly smuggled in 16,000 pounds of cocaine worth $2 billion, an amount which boggled one official so much he "almost fell out of the chair."

Authorities said it could be the biggest cocaine indictment ever.

The indictments charged the group with importing cocaine on 13 flights from Colombia, the Bahamas and the Central American nation of Belize between June 1982 and November 1983, said Philip Ramer, a state law enforcement department spokesman.

Precinct 1: Brown for commissioner

County commissioners court is divided into precincts for a reason. In Precinct 1, incumbent O.L. "Louie" Brown has served his constituency well. Brown, a Democratic Party candidate, is in a competitive race for the Precinct 1 seat in Saturday's primary election. Since there is no Republican candidate, a victory Saturday will assure a win in the November general election.

With nearly eight years of experience behind him and a fulltime on-the-job commitment to his credit, Brown understands the workings of county government and can effectively represent his precinct.

He is as involved in countywide concerns — the library, the jail, rural fire protection and road surfaces — as any of the commissioners. But he cites some special satisfactions of his work, like his efforts to keep the lines of communication open with senior citizens and the county's youth. His advocacy for the Howard County Boxing Club — even though funding hit a snag — is laudable, and a positive force for Howard County.

Precinct 3: Crooker for commissioner

The axiom "If it's not broken, don't fix it," applies to Bill Crooker, the incumbent Republican county commissioner seeking re-election Saturday.

Crooker brings a thoughtful, concerned and even-handed approach to county government in his Precinct 3 representation. And though he faces a fistful of opposition, from within the GOP but especially from the Democratic side, there's no reason to change from the proven commodity.

County business is big business, a multi-million dollar a year operation. Unlike their city counterparts, commissioners deal more directly with the government they oversee. In city government, the city manager acts as the liaison between decisions and department heads. In the county, commissioners and the county judge deal directly with the departments that make up the government.

Crooker, a youthful 60, is a 30-year resident of Big Spring. He sees the next 1½ to 3 years as important ones in the county, as leaders confront problems of space in the courthouse, library and jail, and deal with new rules on payments for indigent care (which are likely to cost the county "a great deal more money" in the future, he says).

Crooker's legacy is one of a debt-free county and a substantial surplus which could lead to tax rate reductions as early as next fall.

As a Republican candidate, Crooker will face a Democratic opponent in the general election in November. But of the nine contenders in both primaries, there's not a better choice than the incumbent.

Steve Chapman

Pass the buck

In the movie "Breaker Morant," a soldier convicted of killing enemy prisoners during the Boer War turns to his comrade as they are being led away to be executed. "Well, Peter," he says with bitter humor, "this is what comes of empire-building." The same could be said of President Reagan's defense budget.

In the Democratic presidential campaign, and in most of the public debate on the matter, everyone pretends that it is possible to cut military spending by talking nice to the Soviets and running the Pentagon a little more efficiently. First, stop building so many nuclear weapons and sending aid to Central America. Then buy simpler tanks, smaller aircraft carriers and cheaper screwdrivers. Voila! — the same defense for fewer dollars.

Unfortunately, it's not so simple. Strategic nuclear weapons take up a much smaller share of defense spending than you'd think from listening to Walter Mondale — less than a quarter, in fact. The abandonment of projects like the MX missile and the B-1 bomber missile would be welcome, but it would hardly make a dent in Caspar Weinberger's budget.

Central America? Not much room for savings there. Our aid to El Salvador, if the President gets all he wants, amounts to just $133 million in 1985.

Nor is there much hope in the clever reforms proposed by Pentagon gadflies and embraced by Gary Hart. Some of their criticisms of prevailing battlefield tactics and procurement policies sound good. But their real aim is to re-invigorate our military power, not to reduce its cost. This sort of reform would yield only trivial savings. Likewise for restoring the draft.

Reagan's defense budget is extravagant, but for a reason. It has to be to pay for all the objectives the U.S. has decided to pursue around the globe.

What the presidential candidates should be arguing about this year is not which one could manage our military establishment better, but whether the U.S. should maintain its existing commitments. Reagan thinks it should. If the Democrats are serious about cutting his defense spending or bringing the deficit under control, they ought to explain why he's wrong.

Survival of an unlikely emperor

WASHINGTON — When Emperor Hirohito stepped out on the balcony of his palace in downtown Tokyo Sunday to greet thousands of adoring Japanese on his 83rd birthday, there was a CIA agent in the crowd — armed with binoculars.

It's one of the ways the CIA's Life Sciences Division can observe firsthand how the diminutive emperor looks. There have been recent hints that his health is failing.

Though he holds no direct political power, Hirohito has been a favorite subject of CIA surveillance for decades. My associate Dale Van Atta, who was recently in Tokyo, has had access to some of the secret CIA profiles of the emperor. They reveal that the CIA's remorseless analysts, like the Japanese people, hold this aged, bespectacled little man in awe.

"Despite all he has been through since he assumed the throne in 1926," notes the CIA, "Emperor Hirohito projects innocence and sincerity." The CIA describes him as "a shy, retiring man."

He and his 81-year-old empress like to watch soap operas on TV and putter in the imperial gardens. "Both the emperor and empress (enjoy pursuing) their personal interests — marine biology and botany for the emperor, art for the empress," states another profile, this one stamped "Confidential." In fact, Hirohito is the world's chief authority on jellyfish and related creatures, with 16 books to his credit.

According to the CIA, the emperor "is briefed regularly on domestic and foreign affairs." Yet he "plays no part in policy decisions." There have been proposals to make him chief of state, but "most Japanese would not like to see him take on any more than his present symbolic role."

The CIA acknowledges "a few complaints from younger Japanese" about Hirohito, but little audible grumbling about the cost of maintaining the imperial household — which now runs to more than $40 million a year.

At first, the Japanese had "grave doubts about the image the emperor would project" in the United States. But his reception during his 1975 visit to this country "greatly exceeded even the most optimistic Japanese expectations."

The CIA believes the visit contributed "significantly to popular (Japanese) support for continued cooperation with the U.S. (and) opening an era of 'good feelings' in U.S.-Japanese relations."

Characteristically, Hirohito expressed his approval of America not in words but with a gesture. For years afterward, he wore a Mickey Mouse watch that he picked up in Disneyland.

Hirohito is the 124th emperor in Japan's unbroken, 2,644-year-old imperial line. When he ascended to the throne in 1926, he was a "tenno" — the "emperor of heaven." The Japanese considered him a god.

When the Japanese warlords sought his approval for the attack on Pearl Harbor, according to one account, Hirohito voiced his apparent disapproval by reciting a 31-syllable poem composed by his grandfather, extolling universal brotherhood and asking: "Why, then, do winds and water of conflict...Disturb peace among us?"

The warlords went ahead with their plans anyway, and older Americans will remember Hirohito as a villain in propaganda cartoons, with buck teeth and Coke-bottle eyeglasses — features that took their place with Adolf Hitler's mustache and Hermann Goering's potbelly.

The emperor was able to reverse this image after the war.

Then he presented himself humbly, top hat in hand, to the new shogun of Japan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

MacArthur was "moved to the very marrow of my bones" by the Japanese emperor's humility. "He was an emperor by birth, but in that instant I knew I faced the First Gentleman of Japan in his own right," MacArthur wrote later.

Today, Hirohito remains the only — and perhaps the unlikely — survivor of World War II's leaders.

Leading the fight against a killer

To the editor:

With everyone worried about huge and seemingly unsolvable world problems, we tend to overlook concerns that touch us in our daily lives. Heart disease, the nation's number one killer, is one concern that this paper's readers should not overlook.

Here in Howard County, we all have a chance to help solve the problems of heart disease, thanks to our local American Heart Association Board of Directors and Volunteers. You can join the fight by participating in a special fundraising event, Dance For Your Heart scheduled for this Saturday, May 5, at the Big Spring Mall.

Aerobic dance students will dance for up to four hours after having recruited sponsors to make pledges. Dancers and sponsors alike will be fueling the fight against heart disease.

Hance has been good for Texans

To the editor:

In response to Mr. D.A. Brazel's editorial of April 29, I would like to take this opportunity to urge all citizens of Big Spring to vote for Kent Hance for the U.S. Senate. Instead of criticizing the other men in the race, as Mr. Brazel so easily did, I would rather be positive about my choice for the Democratic nomination.

Kent Hance has spent six years in the U.S. Congress, and, during that time, he has been a strong voice for all Texans. He co-authored the Hance-Conable bill, which gave us the largest tax break in this nation's history. At the same time, he voted against more than $400 billion in wasteful spending and fought for a balanced budget amendment. He has consistently supported legislation designed to preserve the family farm and has also taken a strong stand on support of education. In addition, Kent Hance is opposed to granting amnesty to illegal aliens and is against a "Gay Rights Bill." His opponents are FOR those measures.

In short, Kent Hance has been a strong leader with a sense of independence. He has voted with President Reagan when he thought he was right, and against the President when he thought he was wrong. Hance did the same with President Carter. Kent Hance talks like a Texan, thinks like a Texan, and above all, votes like a Texan.

I know the citizens of Big Spring would feel right at home with Kent Hance in their living room and representing them in the U.S. Senate. That is why I urge all voters to support Kent Hance on May 5.

Study up

The semester is ending, and it could be the end of you, too. It's time for final exams. That means time to study, study, study. Unfortunately, some students forget to study for the dreaded final exam until the very last minute.

Here is a story of a student whose life was destroyed by last minute studying for finals. It's chilling. It's terrifying; a real nightmare. College and high school students, don't let this happen to you.

You've decided to spend your whole weekend studying for final exams which will be given next week. You don't have any other plans, so it really should be easy to ace all your tests.

It's 5 p.m., Friday, and grandmother calls to invite the entire family over for dinner. What else can you do but go to grandmother's. It's late when you get home, so you decide to sleep late on Saturday morning.

By the time you get up, get dressed and eat, it's one in the afternoon. It's really too pretty of a day to stay in to study, so you grab a book and head for the pool. Who studies at the pool? Anyway, you've still got tomorrow to study.

Sunday comes and you still haven't studied for any exam. Well, you had to go to church, and you couldn't study there. When you get home you really don't feel like studying, so you call a friend to go get a soft drink. You'll be in the mood when you get back. Then the movie of the week that you've been dying to see comes on.

It's 10:30 p.m., when you decide to do some serious studying. What subject are we studying, anyway? Next, you forget what chapters you are supposed to be studying. You make a quick phone call. Chapters 10, 11, 12 and 13. It takes an hour to find your notes for those chapters. You should have been studying all semester for this. It's 4 a.m. when you finish studying, and go to bed.

The continuous buzzing of the alarm clock wakes you up. "What time is it?" It's 7:45 a.m. You've got 15 minutes to get dressed and get to class for the first exam. It's a race against the clock. You are going to need the full testing period to complete the exam.

You walk in and everyone is hurriedly working their way through the lengthy exam. You apologize to the instructor for being late, and get your exam.

You walk in, take one look at the test, and almost faint. The instructor must be joking, there's no way you can answer these questions. Finally, after you calm down, you begin to work on the test and manage to put down some kind of answer for every question.

After you finish, you turn the exam in and go home to sweat it out. A week later, you get the test results in the mail. Sweating profusely, you shake nervously as you open it. You can't believe it. You passed the class with a B.

Dear Abby

Uprooted wife

DEAR ABBY: I would like to express my feelings about companies moving families. Our first move meant leaving my immediate family and adjusting to a new location. We were just nicely settled when my husband got another promotion and wham — we were moved again!

I was forced to give up a good job, my kids had to change schools and make new friends and it was really hard on us.

No one cares about what a wife has to go through. I can't find a job here; we now live in a farm community, and unless you work, you slowly rot. Don't suggest volunteer work. I'd done plenty of that until three years ago when I decided I wanted a paycheck for my time. It was a great feeling to have my own extra money.

Abby, shouldn't a company take into consideration that a wife has to give up a job when it transfers her husband? And shouldn't the company also provide a job for the wife? Do other families have this problem?

UNHAPPY IN MINNESOTA

DEAR UNHAPPY: Yes, other families have that problem, and it's becoming more widespread as the number of women in the work force continues to grow. While relocating is no piece of cake for the family, it usually means a promotion for the breadwinner, so roll with the punches. It comes with the territory.

Should the company provide a job for the spouse? That would be ideal, but it's too much to expect.

DEAR ABBY: This is my third marriage. My husband is 70 and I'm 44.

My problem is sex. I'm not getting any. My husband sat me down two weeks ago and said, "We both know that I am no good in the sack anymore, so you had better go out and find yourself a bed partner." He said as long as the man was clean, he didn't care who he was.

Well, I took my husband's suggestion, and now I feel guilty. I want to go out again, but I have this terrible guilt feeling gnawing at me.

What should I do?

ONLY HUMAN
DEAR HUMAN: Don't accept your husband's permission to sleep around. He should see an endocrinologist and a urologist before he declares himself permanently "no good in the sack." Much can be done for impotency these days.

Dr. Donohue

Kidneys, hypertension

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor checked me out and found my blood pressure somewhat high. Now he wants me to have certain kidney tests. I am not doubting him, but I am curious about why the kidneys are important to check out now. Can you explain? — Mrs. R.P.

The kidneys play a most important role in maintaining blood pressure at optimum levels. They produce a substance that causes blood vessels to narrow. This is a form of blood pressure control, but sometimes it can go awry. For example, a kidney may become diseased and excessively produce the vessel-narrowing substance.

When that happens the vessels narrow too much and blood pressure rises. You will find that discussed in the first section of the blood pressure material you asked for. My new booklet, "Practical Tips on Blood Pressure Control," is now available by writing me care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.25 for printing and handling. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Recently, you discussed Peyronie's disease. May this be brought on by too frequent sexual activity of the male? Your expert answer would be great. — P.A.

Too much sexual activity does not wear out your body or lead to Peyronie's disease. For newer readers, Peyronie's is an abnormal curvature of the penis when erect. The cause is unclear. There is a thickening of tissue, causing a contracture.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Feds rate hotel kitchens low

DALLAS (AP) — Government inspectors visited the hotel restaurants that will serve Republican National Convention delegates in August, and found unappetizing results in several kitchens — including one in President Reagan's hotel.

Among the unsanitary conditions found were roaches, rodents or employees' smoking in food preparation areas.

But some managers of the 46 hotels complained of culinary nitpicking and said the state and local inspectors spent a full day in their kitchens, compared to the usual 30 minutes.

The federal Food and Drug Administration said it asked for the inspections, carried out in early April, as part of a program designed to standardize food-inspection reporting nationwide. FDA officials said they wanted to be ready for Secret Service queries about food facilities used by people who are under federal protection.

However, the FDA said there was no similar inspection in San Francisco, where the Democratic National Convention will be held in July.

The inspectors gave scores averaging 60.8 on a 100-point scale. John Shafer, chief sanitarian for the Texas Health Department, said that was barely over the point that indicates immediate corrections are required.

Scores at the Loews Anatole Hotel, where Reagan and the California delegation will stay, ranged from 49 to 90 in its 16 kitchens. Problems included floor cleaners not being properly stored to foods not being kept at the right temperatures, according to WFAA-TV and the Dallas Times Herald.

Phone thieves investigated

AUSTIN (AP) — Investigators for a Dallas-based long-distance telephone company have been talking with parents of some University of Texas students who are suspected of making more than $11,000 worth of unauthorized phone calls.

"We've had some calls from some of the parents of the students. Some were quite defensive and others tend to be rather cooperative. Some have offered to make restitution," said Winston Kavanaugh, vice president of United Network Service Inc.

At least 11 or 12 UT students are suspected of making long-distance calls by using the authorization codes of United Network Service customers without permission, the company says.

The calls were traced to Jester Center, a large dormitory, on the university's Austin campus, Kavanaugh said.

Killer snails helpful

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Killer snails and bug-eating flies are being used by a citrus grower to crack down on crop-destroying pests as scientists try to find predators that can provide an alternative to costly and possibly dangerous chemical sprays.

The Irvine Co. has released millions of carnivorous flies on its sprawling citrus groves and have found they are getting the same quality fruit without spraying, company officials said.

Scientists say the use of insects to kill other insects could provide long-term protection for crops since the "good" bugs will continue to reproduce themselves.

Last year, 117 million Aphytis melinus flies, which eat the citrus pest known as California red scale, were released on more than 4,000 acres of oranges and lemons at Irvine's Orange County ranch 50 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Kerry Musgrove, pest management specialist for the Irvine Co.'s citrus crops, estimates the flies eliminated the need for chemicals that would have cost up to $100 an acre.

Irvine also unleashed 1 million killer snails — they cannibalize their garden-variety relatives, which cause crop damage — on 500 acres of citrus. They saved about $30 an acre in snail bait, Musgrove added.

"We've got it now where it's commercially not practical to spray," Musgrove said recently. "We've changed with the times and we're actually getting the same quality of fruit."

The Irvine Co., which has experimented with the predators for about three years, has no figures on the savings from using biological control. But since the biological control experiments began, Musgrove said, the company's pesticide costs have remained stable while chemical prices have risen by about one-third.

Agricultural experts in recent years have been looking for helpful parasites and other biological solutions to pest problems.

The U.S. Agriculture Department has reported significant progress in the rearing of a parasitic wasp that preys on about 75 insect families, including beetles, flies and moths. Scientists reported last year that a new chemical mixture was developed that helped promote mass rearing of the wasp.

In another example, the two-year effort to wipe out the Medfly in California ran up a tab of $100 million in crop damages and extermination expense. It was fought mostly through aerial spraying of the chemical malathion.

Since the mass spraying of 1981 and 1982, scientists have worked on a project to breed sterile Medflies that can eliminate the insect by breeding with them. Since flies can have sex only once in their life, scientists think they can drive the Medfly out of Mexico, Central America and eventually South America by making them mate without hope of producing offspring.

Bug-eating bugs have their drawbacks. Quick-growing crops like strawberries require fast action, and it takes several months to establish an insect colony. For some pests, natural enemies have not been identified or are too difficult to raise.

And for many farmers, chemicals are still the easiest and most accessible form of pest control.

"Don't get me wrong that I don't spray anymore," Musgrove said. "I've got trucks running out there right now."

2 illegal aliens killed in crash

HEBBRONVILLE, Texas (AP) — Two illegal aliens were killed and a U.S. Border Patrol agent was injured when the agent's car smashed into the car that was carrying 16 Mexican aliens during a chase, authorities said.

U.S. Border Patrol Agent Amaro Mjnoz said four other aliens injured in the accident Wednesday night were taken to Brooks County Hospital in Falfurrias, while two were transported to Memorial Hospital in Corpus Christi with broken bones and lacerations. Munoz declined to identify the dead, the injured aliens or the agent.

The chase, which involved two vehicles and 39 illegal aliens, began about 9 p.m. on Texas Highway 285, east of Hebronville, said Larry Teverbaugh, Laredo sector chief for the Border Patrol. Two agents were at a lookout and observed a pickup truck carrying 23 illegal aliens and another car carrying 16 others, Teverbaugh said.

One of the agents got out of the car, and the other began pursuing the car, Teverbaugh said.

C-City ISD not interested in Loraine

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Thursday, May 3, 1984

9-A

By JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — School Superintendent Charlie Uselton said local property taxes would be raised by 12 to 13 percent if his district were to annex schools in Loraine.

But Colorado City school officials have no intention of enlarging their district, he said.

Colorado City's tax rate currently is 75 cents per $100 valuation, while the Loraine rate is $1.45 per $100.

Uselton said his prediction of increased property taxes was based on a report issued by Dr. Raymond Bynum, Commissioner of Education of the Texas Education Committee.

The study was prepared by the commissioner after the Loraine school board requested it.

The superintendent said that neither he nor the Colorado City board had ever discussed the annexation of Loraine.

"The only person from Loraine that I've talked to about this is their superintendent, Glenn Sanders, and I have never spoken to any of the citizens group about the matter," Uselton said. "There is no decision for us to consider, because we're not considering the annexation of Loraine."

Dr. Douglas Smith, a Big Spring

orthodontist who lives in Loraine, is the head of a citizens group attempting to force the school district consolidation. Other Loraine citizens who are members of the group are J.C. Hall Jr., Hugh Norell, Shorty Baumann, Doc Grey and Wayne Oliver.

Last Thursday the Loraine school board unanimously denied the group's request for annexation.

School board president Ronald Bruce said, "They can't get 10 percent of Loraine voters to sign their petition."

Smith and his group have not decided how to proceed.

In a letter sent to the Loraine school board Oct. 10, 1983, the group stated, "We are part of a group of citizens who have become increasingly concerned with the heavy tax burden, especially the escalating school taxes. We also want the children of our district to have the best possible education."

The group went on to say in the letter, "Our next step, in case of an unfavorable decision, will be to obtain a petition containing at least 10 percent of the registered voters and seek to initiate a referendum vote on the question."

Smith said Monday it was not only the rising tax base but also the lack of vocational programs in Loraine that concerned him.

But Sanders said Chapter 75 of the Texas Administrative Code and Texas Education Code 21.101 mandates the same type of curriculum in virtually every school district.

He also said that reforms outlined by the Gov. Mark White's Select Committee on Education would increase state aid to districts such as Loraine and would limit restructuring curriculum, possibly removing vocational education from high schools.

Sanders said his district is "doing a good job of educating its students."

Both districts must approve annexation before consolidation could take place. However, the Loraine district could vote to dissolve itself if the taxpayers group get 10 percent of registered voters to sign a petition calling for dissolution.

If the district dissolves itself, it would come under the jurisdiction of the Mitchell County judge, who would assign its students to other school districts. He would have the option of dividing the district or leaving it intact.

"If they precede with their petitions, I'm afraid that it will have a very disruptive effect on both the community and the school. I know it did when they started this in the fall," Saunders said.

Saunders said he believes the group will try to dissolve or consolidate the district.

I want to take this opportunity to thank the many people who have encouraged and supported me in my unopposed bid for County Attorney. I will work hard to justify your faith in my ability to do this job.

During my term as County Attorney, I will strive to reduce the backlog of cases in county court, as well as establish more efficient procedures for the administration of justice. The Hot Check Department will continue to be an integral part of the County Attorney's office, there being no plans to alter its successful operation.

I will present in all County Court proceedings, including juvenile prosecutions and state hospital commitments. While my prosecution of crimes will be aggressive, the constitutional rights of all Defendants will be protected.

With your cooperation, we can make the County Attorney's office an efficient, productive arm of our county government.

I encourage everyone to vote in the May 5th elections.

Gramm leads GOP pack

Harte-Hanks News Service
Four men are seeking the golden-ringed nomination in the May 5 Republican U.S. Senate primary, each hoping to ride the political merry-go-round to the seat being vacated by U.S. Sen. John Tower.

Two of the candidates, Phil Gramm of College Station and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson, already serve in the U.S. Congress.

One, Henry "Hank" Grover of Houston, is a veteran of regional and statewide election battles, a former member of the Texas House and the Texas Senate and the Republican nominee who came within 100,000 votes of beating Dolph Briscoe for the governor's seat in 1972.

The fourth, Rob Mosbacher of Houston, is a new name on the Texas political scene, but is not new to politics. From 1973 to 1976 and then again for the 1977-1978 term, he was administrative aide to U.S. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

Gramm represents the conservative end of the Republican political spectrum.

Paul combines conservative Republicanism with some aspects of the Libertarian philosophy.

Mosbacher is an untypical Republican, conservative in economics but espousing the Equal Rights Amendment and opposing a Constitutional ban on abortion.

tions with Office of Management and Budget Director David Stockman during the time the budget bill was being written.

Gramm made much of his White House connections, and wound up being ejected from the budget committee at the start of the 1983 session.

On Jan. 5, 1983, he dropped his Democratic ties, joined the Republican Party, resigned his House seat and went back to his rural, conservative Central Texas district to win re-election to the House as a Republican.

On the budget, Gramm says, "People in my district elected me to stop the growth of federal spending, to put more money back in the pockets of those who earned it." Whatever aspects of the economy have not been healed by the three-year Reagan economic program can be blamed directly on the U.S. Congress, Gramm says.

Like Gramm, Ron Paul has a reputation in Congress for being a loner. He calls for a return to the gold standard, opposes public education, foreign aid and the military draft.

He dislikes any suggestion that he is an ultra-conservative. "That really bothers me. It is imprecise. The traditional conservative is willing to intrude on personal liberties — like supporting the draft. And they try to protect the international banks and big business.

"We need a free-market and honest money and limited government," he said.

While he opposes public education, he says that, realistically, it is unlikely public schools can be phased out in the foreseeable future.

The draft, he says, is an intrusion on personal liberty. The United States should be defended by volunteer citizen soldiers.

He opposes ERA. "Women's rights" is not a viable concept. There are only individual rights for men AND for women."

Mosbacher has long been involved in Republican politics and in Houston civic matters. He is proud of his role in the private-sector initiatives in Houston which served the mutual goals of shoring up businesses and creating jobs without government intervention.

In budget matters he is a Republican traditionalist: increase defense spending, hold federal growth to 3 percent; allow deficit spending only upon a two-thirds vote of the Congress.

He knows his pro-ERA and anti-abortion stands aren't popular with today's Reagan Republicans but he doesn't hide his position. "I don't want (people) to be mistaken about where I stand on these things."

Beyond philosophies, Mosbacher sees himself as more electable than Gramm. "I appeal to a broader base of support; I am experienced in dealing with problems through private-sector initiatives."

Grover, a former high school history teacher and five-term state legislator, surfaced late on the campaign trail. His role in the campaign may well be that of a spoiler by drawing enough votes to force a June 2 runoff.

Grover has attacked Gramm as the "hand-picked candidate of the White House staff." Grover's campaign, he said, "is a struggle for the soul of the Reagan administration" which he claims is being misguided by top aides, including Chief of Staff James Baker, a Texan.

The number one campaign issue, Grover believes, is the threat of Communist aggression in Central America. He has called for covert CIA assistance to guerrillas attempting to achieve "the extinction of the Communists in Nicaragua."

Primary Countdown 1984

Grover calls for a heavy concentration on building the country's military defense system.

Gramm and Paul have been scampering across the state, speaking to civic groups, holding press conferences, maneuvering for television news coverage, shaking hands and generally making themselves as visible as possible.

Grover and Mosbacher concentrate more in the Houston area, where the bulk of Republican primary votes are expected to be cast.

Although Gramm left his professorship at Texas A&M to go into the U.S. House in 1978, he has never left behind his professional bent and takes huge pleasure in explaining to large crowds and small the intricacies of the federal budget.

Gramm, who was a Democrat when he drew 28 percent of the primary vote against U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen in 1976 and when he ran for Congress in 1978, 1980 and 1982, found his niche when Ronald Reagan became president.

Reagan's conservative economic philosophy is the twin of Gramm's, and Gramm rose to national prominence in 1981 when he co-sponsored the president's budget bill.

But Gramm's successes carried a price. He angered fellow Democrats on the House Budget Committee by his daily consulta-

RE-ELECT BILL CROOKER

Republican Candidate For: County Commissioner, Precinct 3 (May 5, 1984)

WHY IS THERE A DIFFERENCE IN CITY AND COUNTY SALARIES?

The citizens of Howard County have been deliberately misinformed on the salaries of the Howard County Commissioners. A statement has been made that the Commissioners receive approximately $1,000.00 per meeting and the Big Spring City Council members receive $50.00 per meeting.

The Annual City Budget 1983-84 reflects a salary of $5,450.00, office and food supplies of $1,300.00, and contractual services of $42,830.00, making a total of $49,580.00 per year. The Administrative Services, including the City Manager and personnel, have a budget of $118,900.00. The City Manager is responsible for the administration of City Council policy. Thus, to determine the cost of the City Council per meeting you must total the above figures, $168,480.00, divide by 12 to get $14,040.00 per month, and divide this figure by 7 — the number of council members — or $4,005.71 — and finally divide by 2 — the number of meetings per month — and you come up with $1,002.85 per Council member per meeting. So four County Commissioners cost $1,000.00 per meeting and 7 City Council members cost $1,002.85 per meeting. Howard County Commissioners manage and are responsible for all their own business.

Compare the salaries of County Commissioners of surrounding counties:

Thursday Notes

By BILLY NABOURS
Sports Editor

A couple of corrections are in order to start off this week's Notes:

First and foremost, the Big Spring Church League softball season will start action May 7. Through an honest mistake, recent sports briefs read that the season would not start on that date because of a late light shipment. The briefs should have noted that the season would not start Apr. 30. It's a little late, but that's the story.

And a correction is needed over a story in Monday's sports section about the signing of HC basketball standout Jerry Stroman to a scholarship with the University of Utah.

The story said Stroman's teammate Al Holland signed earlier with Southern Illinois. It is Anthony Snooks that signed with SI and not Holland. Like to thank Melva Griffin for bringing that to my attention.

The Big Spring Red Sox didn't encounter the wind in Ozona last weekend that raked Big Spring. The Red Sox started their New Mexico-West Texas Baseball League season in grand style by taking two games from the Ozona Royals, 8-6 and 10-3.

Dave Anguiano's infield hit with two outs in the top of the seventh tied the score in the first game at 6-6. Abel MNorglion then knocked in two rbi's with a single to allow the Red Sox the win. Luis Rodriguez picked up the win in relief of Tony Ontivero.

In the second game the Red Sox dominated from the start with a James Walker homer in the first inning. Rodriguez was the winning pitcher. Anguiano with three hits paced the Red Sox at the plate.

And while on the sports of baseball or something similar thereof, don't forget this Sunday's showdown at 3 p.m. between the Herald Angels from your own city newspaper and the Steers baseball team. For the small price of $1 you can see some of the strangest softball ever played at Steer Field. All proceeds will benefit Big Spring's entry in this summer's Texas Teen Baseball League. Helping out in this production will be BSHS's "Homerun Honeys." The "Sometimes Goen Voice of the Howard Hawks Baseball Team," also known as Greg Henry is also lending his talents and expertise to the announcer's box.

And speaking of strikes, although the sport is not baseball — 11-year old Lana Dower can really bowl'em over.

The Marcy Annex student, took home four first place trophies during the YABA City Tournament held during March.

In only her first year to bowl in league competition, Lana was part of a first place team; was first in all events scratch action; first in singles; and first for all events total.

In only her first year to bowl in league competition, Lana was part of a first place team; was first in all events scratch action; first in singles; and first for all events total.

And in news about other potential stars at BSHS, the Big Spring Elementary Track and Field Meet held last weekend at Blankenship Field produced lots of fun and even a few winners.

There are so many names, that space does not permit them all in this column today, but they will appear here in the next few columns so all can be recognized by the readership.

In third grade girls competition individual first places went to: Missy Harris of Marcy School for best hang time of 54.54; Toka Friday of Washington in the standing long jump at 5-1½; Trevino of Moss Elementary in the 200 meters, 36.27; Casey Cook of Bauer in the 50-yard dash, 7.74; Roxanna Rodriguez of Moss in the 25-yard backward run, 7.49; FRiday again in the 75-yard dash, 11.56; Cook again in the running long jump, 9-6; Cassie Underwood of Bauer in the vertical jump, 15-0½; and Amber Fannin in the softball throw, 83-1.

Wining relays were Washington School in the 300 meter medley; and Bauer in the 400 meter event; The Bauer team of Cassie Underwood, Casey Cook, Syretta Shellman, and Michelle Simer set a new record for their division by turning a time of 1:11.64. Washington's winning team of Annie Rodriguez, Amber Fannin, Betty Newton, and M. Roetner won their event in 52:93.

Bauer won the third grade girls title with 59 points which was five better than Washington. Marcy, Moss, College Heights and Kentwood went 3-4-5-6.
Next week, the third grade boys.

Don't forget that entry forms for the SWCID 10-K and two mile run are available from the Herald sports desk. The 10-K map will be published soon so all perspiring aspiring runners can get familiar with the route.

Stanton's state hopes team up in 1984

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

AUSTIN — Competing here in the Class AA portion of the Girls State Track and Field Meet this Saturday will nothing new for the Stanton duo of distance runner Mary Beth Tollison and hurdler Dawna West, since each will be at the "big house" for the third time.

Both competed last year at the state meet, but for different schools in different classes. While Tollison was finishing fourth in the Class AA 3200 and 1600 meters for SHS, West was winning the 100 hurdles for Class A Klondike High School, by six-tenths of a second over the second place finisher.

Since that time Dawna's dad and track coach Bill West has taken over girls track coaching duties at Stanton, thus giving the Lady Buffalos one of the best hurdlers in the state.

Dawna said at first the move to Stanton put a lot on her mind. "I was kinda scared," said the senior hurdler. "I was worried about moving up to higher classification of competition, but it wasn't so bad."

And why should it be, since her times are comparable with anyone in any class in the state. She was unbeaten in 1983 as she breezed to a season-best 14.3 at the state meet.

At a state qualifiers meet in Hamlin last week Dawna suffered her first defeat in two years when Cathy Caldwell of Coleman nipped her for first. Dawna's time of 15.2 was her worst all year. It was only her fourth defeat in 38 high school hurdle races.

West said it was definitely not one of his daughter's better races. "But I'm glad she got that bad race out of her system," he added.

The hurdles will be one of the most hotly contested races Saturday at Memorial Stadium since the state field includes four of last year's top finishers, including two-time defending champ Dee Dee Suggs of Marion who has a best of 14.60 compared to Dawna's 14.58.

STATE BOUND — The Stanton High School duo of Mary Beth Tollison (left) and Dawna West will be competing in the Girls State Track Meet in Austin Saturday afternoon. This marks the third time that both young ladies have competed in the meet. West is entered in the 100 meter hurdles while Tollison will compete in the 1600 and 3200 meter races.

Dawna makes no bones about her goal of breaking 14 seconds Saturday. "I really want to break 14 seconds," she said. It's been my goal all year and I think I can get it with the tough competition."

Her dad also feels she can reach her goal. "She has a good chance to break 14 seconds," he said. "She has been improving every year. She is confident of what she can do, and that's the key to her winning."

As for Tollison, there was a time this season when it looked like the blonde-senior distance runner would not be making the trek back to Austin because of a strained muscle in her leg. The doctor told her and Coach West that she should stay off the leg six to eight weeks.

With her coach's help the gutty Tollison changed her workouts, training every other day, giving the leg rest.

But she struggled and fought her way back to Austin, although she questions the shape she is in. "I know that I am a stronger runner this year," she said. I am more in control, but I really don't know how good of shape I'm in because of the injury."

At regional she rose to the occasion by running her best times of 5:37.00 in the 1600 and 12:20.20 in the 3200, which bested the times she posted in state last year.

Tollison's comeback may have left others amazed, but West said he figured his star distance runner would buck the odds. "I still thought she could make it back to state," he said. "Mary Beth was disappointed at first, but she has the ability to comeback. She knew what she could do."

So West and Tollison will get a well deserved return trip to Austin, only this time they will be wearing the same uniforms and are in the same class with the same coach. They both hope to get the same reward — a gold medal at the state meet.

Surprising G-City girls headed to state

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

AUSTIN — When is the last time you heard of a relay team consisting of two freshmen and two sophomores qualifying for the State Track Meet?

Well if you haven't, you have now — in the form of the Garden City Lady Bearcats' 1600 meter relay team. That's right, Garden City is headed for the Class A 1600 relay finals that will be held here Saturday at the Girls State Track and Field Meet winds up.

That's pretty remarkable. What makes it even more remarkable is that over half of coach Peggy Eubank's track squad has qualified for state, since there were only seven members on the entire team during the regular running season.

And for the last surprise, this year is the first time that freshmen Jacque Jost and Michelle Pechacek have ever run 400 meters. Last year they were both sprinters.

The duo, along with sophomores Gena Schaefer, who is also making a return trip to Austin to compete in the 800 meters, and Carol Hoelscher earned the trip by finishing second at regional with a time of 4:11.49, the fourth best time in their class.

But the one person who is not not surprised by the team's success is Eubank. "Our goal at the first of the year was to make it to the state meet," said the Garden City mentor. "With the girl's hard work I knew we had a chance to get there."

Eubank says her young team does not feel the pressure of going to Austin. "They don't feel pressured because they are all so young, they feel they are lucky to be going."

Schaefer knows what it's like to compete at Memorial Stadium. As

Davis shoots Suns to 102-97 win over Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Walter Davis scored 26 points, four in the final two minutes, as the Phoenix Suns held off the Utah Jazz 102-97 Wednesday night to even their National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal series at one victory each.

The Suns also got 17 points from forward Maurice Lucas and 16 from forward Larry Nance as they outshot cold-shooting Utah 15-4 to take a 15-point lead late in the third quarter.

Adrian Dantley scored 26 points and Darrell Griffith 22 for Utah, which goes to Phoenix for the third and fourth games in this best-of-seven playoff series Friday and Sunday.

a freshman last year she finished fifth with a time of 2:24.60. She has a best of 2:25.10 this season but knows things won't get any easier at Austin.

At least two of the runners that beat her will be back, including defending state champ Darla Graham of Iraan who defeated her this year in meets at Mertzon and Miles.

To have a shot at beating Graham, Schaefer says she will have to go out and take the race to the defending champ. Last year Schaefer didn't run against enough tough competition to know what to expect at Austin, according to her coach.

Her race strategy has improved with a year's experience. "I know I will have to run a fast first quarter," said Schaefer. "I must run a 65 or 66 to have a good time."

Another added plus will be that she has her teammates with her this year. "With my buddies there, it will make it that much better," Hoelscher summed up the feelings of the rest of the relay team by saying "It feels good just to be going. Early in the year I never gave it much thought," (going to state).

Pechacek and Jost admit it was quite an adjustment switching from the sprints to the 400. "It takes more guts to run the 400," said Pechacek. It hurts more, but now I've gotten to where I like it.

Just developed into a top notch quarter miler this season, finishing third at regionals in 60.75. She says she is very excited about her first trip to state and admitted "I'm real nervous."

The foursome all agree that coach Eubank's tough workout schedule and motivation have been the key to their success. "Hoelscher summed it up best by saying, "It's a lot easier to believe in yourself when you have a coach that believes in you."

With that kind of attitude and togetherness, the Garden City Lady Bearcats might be full of more surprises in Austin.

Baum's state tennis chances are good according to coach

AUSTIN — According to her coach, Colorado City's Laura Baum, "has very good chances," here on Friday when action starts in the Girls State Tennis Tournament.

Baum, making her first appearance in the event, takes the court at 11 a.m. Friday in one step towards a Class AAA singles title.

She is in the tourney by virtue of a runnerup finish in the Region I-3A tourney two weeks ago and according to coach Carolyn Walker, "Laura just seems to be building momentum."

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with rules and orders promulgated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of a public hearing to begin at 10 a.m. on Monday, May 14, 1984, in the offices of the Public Utility Commission, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Austin, Texas, concerning proposals made by the company to add three optional services and delete two services from the list of local exchange services available to its Texas customers.

Proposed additions to the local exchange tariffs include an optional Local Measured Service under which all residence customers and single-line business customers could pay monthly rates less than flat rate for one-party service, with an additional charge for each completed outgoing call to be determined by the time of day, distance and duration of each call; and a subsidized LIFELINE local service to be made available to qualified individuals, as determined by the Public Utility Commission. The monthly rate for LIFELINE service would include an allowance of 25 outgoing calls per month, plus a charge for each additional call.

Proposed for deletion from the local exchange tariffs are one-element measured service offerings for residence customers and single-line business customers, but current customers would not be affected.

The company does not anticipate that these additional services will result in an increase in revenue to Southwestern Bell Telephone.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

'Celts K-O's King and Knicks

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird played basketball like a football player. Cedric Maxwell played it like a hockey player. And if New York doesn't play it any better it will have plenty of time to watch baseball.

Summer vacation could start Monday for the Knicks, whose most potent weapons — Bernard King and a pressing defense — have blown up in their faces.

The latest explosion came Wednesday night when the Boston Celtics crushed the Knicks for the second straight game, 116-102, and grabbed a 2-0 lead in their National Basketball Association playoff series.

If Boston wins the next two games in New York Friday night and Sunday, the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal will be over.

"I'm not crazy," said Dennis Johnson, the sparkplug of a decisive Boston surge. "I enjoy being up 2-0. You won't hear me talk against it."

In the Knicks-Celtics game, Bird led all scorers with a career playoff high of 37 points, including 21 in the first 13:50. King, who scored more than 40 points in each of the last four games of his previous playoff series against Detroit, was held to 13 for his second lowest total for the year.

"You have to be like a hockey player. We try to eliminate as many shots on goal as possible," said Maxwell. "We're trying to get Bernard out of the spots he wants to shoot from."

"It's hard to score when you don't get the ball," said King. "Part of the reason I didn't get the ball was the Celtics' defense."

Maxwell and Kevin McHale, who scored 24 points, held King to four field goals in 13 attempts. In his previous six playoff games, King averaged 16 field goals in 27 attempts and 39.8 points.

Bird hit 16 of 22 field goals and grabbed 11 rebounds. He also had four steals and two blocked shots.

"Bird reminded us tonight of a middle linebacker, the way he roamed around out there," said New York Coach Hubie Brown. "His ability to clog the lane, double-team and strip the ball were the keys to their defense."

New York, which was led by Bill Cartwright's 25 points, whittled a 49-39 Boston lead down to 59-57. But Johnson scored five of the next seven points, and the Celtics led 66-57 at halftime. Their lead ranged from seven to 17 points the rest of the way.

COMMENTS ON ONE-HITTER — Chicago White Sox pitcher LaMar Hoyt is interviewed Wednesday night following his one-hitter against the New York Yankees. Hoyt, who won the American League Cy Young Award last year with a 24-10 record, lost his bid for major-league baseball's 18th perfect game on a Yankees' hit in the seventh inning.

Twister resisters

Storm cellars still in style for a few

DENTON, Texas (AP) — She huddled deeper into her bathrobe as the cold, dank air settled in around her shoulders. Her mother's face, shiny with cold sweat, eerily reflected the glow from the coal oil lamp. The family was silent, sodden with sleep and wet with rain from the hurried midnight trip across the back yard.

A trickle of water ran from the trap door in back and collected in the corner. Something slithered among the canned goods on the shelves above her head. The wind aboveground grabbed at the heavy wooden door and banged it against its moorings. She pulled her feet under her as visions of spiders and scorpions scuttled through her head.

What a way to spend a spring night, she thought. Could weathering the storm outside really be as bad as sitting it out in this cellar?

Storm cellars, those concrete bumps in the back yard; those natural cold-storage vaults for home-canned vegetables; those clandestine playhouses for all the neighborhood kids; seem to have gone out of style.

Time was when most people hurried to the cellar as soon as the sky blackened with a spring storm. It became a sort of impromptu social event as neighbors gathered underground to wait out storms resentful, with talk of storms past. Those dark, drooping clouds in the northwest or southwest portended twisters, and hobnobbing with spiders and snakes was preferable to being "blown away."

Storm cellars, those concrete bumps in the back yard; those natural cold-storage vaults for home-canned vegetables; those clandestine playhouses for all the neighborhood kids; seem to have gone out of style.

A few remain, however. A few of the cave-like enclosures still provide dank refuge. And a few souls remain who accept that refuge with relief, if not enthusiasm.

Floyd Darnell dug his cellar by hand 30 years ago. Ever since, he, his wife Louise and assorted relatives and neighbors have gathered there when storm clouds loom.

"This cellar has one-inch steel in the concrete every six inches," he said. "You could drive a bulldozer over it and it wouldn't budge. We put a trap door in the back in case something happened we couldn't get out the front. We measured it when we put it there. We might have gained a little weight; we might not could get out of it any more."

Jonquils and garlic grow atop the Darnell's cellar, built beside their neat frame house on Bolivar Street. Inside, the room is cozily appointed with bunk beds, chairs, coal oil lamps and candles, and shelves for Louise's canning from their large garden.

The Darnells bring flashlights and a radio to keep up with the storm. They've spent many an hour there, but they never have stayed an entire night underground.

"I keep the bedding dry on the bunkbeds, but I never have slept in them," Louise said. "We haven't found a live snake down there, but you just never know what might be in bed with you."

Neighbors from down the block share the cellar. "Sometimes they wake us up before we even know a storm is coming," Floyd said.

Floyd grew up in the Friendship community near Pilot Point. His childhood memories are punctuated with nights spent in an earth-and-log-cellar.

"I remember one time when I was down there I saw a big snake moving up in the logs over my head," he said. "My mother said 'you don't bother him and he won't bother you.' I was just about as afraid of snakes as I was storms."

A cellar was part of the bargain when Whit and Johnnie Cullum bought their house in Ponder 16 years ago. In dry weather the concrete hump makes a good place to dry rugs and mops. Rainwater seeps through cracks and makes a stay in the cellar a bit unpleasant. But Whit doesn't mind when those tornado-looking clouds move his way.

"I can't hardly get my wife to go to the cellar," he said. "But I force her in when it gets really bad."

Burl Price remembers when his front-yard cellar stood him in good stead. About a dozen years ago a wind he describes as a twister took the front porch and roof off his house on Bonnie Brae street, then skipped over a mile or so and knocked down the drive-in movie screen. Price and his wife were snug in the cellar, though it seemed for a time the door would be ripped off its hinges.

"I had ahold of the end of that rope and I was pulling on that door to keep it closed," he said. "I never heard a noise like that. When it was over, I told my wife not to be surprised at anything you see." She saw the house like that and went to crying.

"I said don't cry about the way the house looks; just be glad we weren't in it."

Many people laugh at Price for his faithfulness to his cellar, he said. "But God gave us a brain to use to protect ourselves with and I might go to that cellar a million times and nothing would happen," he said. "But all it takes is once."

Carriers of the Month

Moises Luna (left) was named Carrier of the Month of District 200. He is congratulated by his Supervisor Frankie Hernandez.

Louis Soldan, right, Carrier of the Month for District 100, receives his check and award from Supervisor George Fauntleroy.

Moises Luna and Louis Soldan

Moises Luna and Louis Soldan are Big Spring Herald Carriers of the Month. Each earned a $50 Savings Bond and a plaque for outstanding sales record, customer service, bill collections and record keeping.

Moises was chosen because of the excellent job he's doing delivering his papers to a difficult part of town — the downtown area. Although he only started his route in February, he has developed good habits of porching his papers and keeping his collection books in order.

Louis has been handling his route for about seven months. In all this time he has never been late delivering his papers. And he has paid his bill on time (carriers buy their route's papers.) His supervisor says he is a "very nice young man."

The Herald is proud to have these young men as carriers.
