Drought grips area ranchers

RANKIN (AP) — The drought which grips West Texas again this year is causing ranchers to sell off breeding stock in record numbers, with some on the verge of liquidating their entire herds, officials say.

"There's nothing out here for the cattle to eat — nothing. And it's getting worse every day," said rancher J. Lane, 71, who lived through the droughts of the 1930s and the 1950s.

"We just thought it was tough last year," said Tommy Owens, another Rankin rancher. His neighbor, Dewayne Lindsey, predicts that "every head of livestock in West Texas" either will be moved or offered at forced sale by the end of the month.

Some movement has begun.

Although experts say it is difficult to specify the number of cattle and sheep being sold from the 22 West Texas counties that are the heart of the drought-hit area, extension service economist Richard Patterson Jr. estimates that herds are down by half this year.

One measure is sales at Producer's Livestock Auction in San Angelo.

On May 11, 1983, the auction sold 4,900 head of cattle, said auction official Jack Drake. Last Friday, 11,000 head moved through the auction. Sheep sales also have doubled from last year, Drake said.

Producer's normally sells livestock on Thursdays and Fridays. This week, livestock will

Light rain gives hope to farmers

Light rain fell on Big Spring for the first time in months this morning as cotton farmers and others weary of a months-long drought watched cloudy skies in hopes of heavier precipitation.

Forecasts for Big Spring and vicinity are calling for a 20 percent chance of rain this afternoon, increasing to 40 percent by tonight.

Normally, Big Spring would have registered 5.18 inches of rainfall as of today, according to Bill Fryrear, research leader at the Big Spring Experiment Station north of town.

Fryrear said farmers need between 4 and 5 inches of rainfall before they can plant cotton.

"Farmers need a couple of inches to wet the ground to get their land back into condition before they plant," he said today.

Dry conditions and high winds have whipped area farmlands into a poor condition, he said.

To condition land, farmers would have to plow under the fine, dry sand which covers area fields.

"They have to bury the loose, fine sand on the surface," Fryrear explained.

Under ideal conditions, farmers

Ex-cop accused of embezzlement by Chief Turner

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Police Chief Rick Turner yesterday accused a former Big Spring patrolman of embezzling $3,300 from a defunct policeman's union fund.

Jimmy Hensley, 34, resigned from the police force April 3 after almost nine years of service, Turner said. He now lives in Brady and is unemployed, Turner said.

Hensley, a sergeant who had earlier in his career asked for and received a reduction in rank to senior patrolman, was secretary-treasurer of the local chapter of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, an organization that officially disbanded in Big Spring more than a year ago, Turner said.

According to Turner, Hensley wrote checks on the fund throughout the last year. Although no one knew he had taken money from the fund, he was making efforts to pay back the money directly to the fund through payroll deductions from his own paycheck, Turner said. Records show he had made four $100 payments before resigning. He has made no payments back to the fund since resigning, Turner said.

Although the International Brotherhood of Police Officers disbanded in April 1983, several officers continued having the $11.92 monthly union dues deducted from their checks throughout the last year. In order to stop the deductions, officers had to notify the city's payroll clerk, Turner said.

Officer Ray Meek said, "A lot of officers forgot the money was coming from their paychecks. The money was still going into (the union) account. Only Hensley had the authority to take out the money."

The theft was discovered last week when an officer questioned why money was still being taken out of his check. Turner said an investigation was begun May 7. Deductions from the defunct fund were traced to Hensley, Turner said.

Because he was secretary-treasurer when the chapter folded, a monthly statement of funds was being sent to Hensley, the only person receiving a statement of the account, Turner said.

Turner said the case had been handed over to District Attorney Rick Hamby's office for evaluation. Turner expressed displeasure with the DA's handling of the case.

Turner said he was told the DA's office "would hold on to the case. They are hoping the money will be paid back. If so, the case will be dropped."

District Attorney Rick Hamby said today that Meek brought information about the case to his assistant, Don Richard. Hamby said no arrest warrant was requested.

"He did not even ask for a warrant," Hamby said. "They told them they were in the negotiating stage... They've got to tell us what they want."

Hamby said, "If they want a warrant, the case is not complete." More investigation is needed before an arrest warrant can be issued, Hamby said.

Hamby said officers have until the upcoming grand jury meeting at the end of this month to prepare their case.

Turner said, "If a police officer does something wrong, he should get the same treatment as everybody else. We are trying to build up our integrity. We're not

A new deal Perot stumps for educational reform

MIDLAND — Dallas millionaire and chairman of the governor's Select Committee on Education, H. Ross Perot, told a group of businessmen here yesterday that "I want to suggest a new slogan for the state of Texas: Millions for educational reform, but not one penny more for the status quo."

Perot, whose recommendations on reforming public school education have stirred heated controversy, said, "It's fundamentally important for the future of our state. I'm asking you to join me in what promises to be a good stiff fight."

"This is a fight worth getting into. It affects our children and will determine whether Texas will remain a rich state when we are old," Perot said.

Perot said opponents of his committee's report are organized while supporters are not.

"Educators have continually misrepresented the committee's finding to the public," Perot said. "They are a small, well organized minority that can beat a large, disorganized majority 10 times out of 10 at bat."

Businessmen were told to "organize and enact educational reform or you're going to continue to get your pocket picked."

And Perot said that 10 to 15 percent of Texas teachers are "grossly inadequate."

"How do I know? Other teachers throughout the state told me so during the committees travels," he said.

He said education was better 20 years ago when costs per pupil were about one-tenth of what they are today.

"For the first time we know that you can teach a pretty good course of English for about $300 per student while we've got things like pottery courses that cost $1,400 per student," he said.

"I haven't gotten to motorcycle riding for high school students, bachelor living, hunting, fishing or bicycle repair."

"We don't have to give up extracurricular activities, but we do have to reschedule them and balance the effort," Perot said.

He said he is not proposing to extend the school day.

Perot told the audience that there are vocational courses that are not only too expensive but often train children for jobs that don't exist on equipment that is technically obsolete.

Bullock: Tax hike would be largest in 2 decades

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says his plan to raise taxes for school reform and road repair is getting a favorable reception from lawmakers, but State Comptroller Bob Bullock says it would be the largest percentage tax increase in 23 years.

White's proposal would raise taxes by $1.3 billion the first year and $4.8 billion over three years.

Bullock said Monday the plan would be the largest percentage hike since the state sales tax was adopted in 1961.

Bullock, who has voiced interest in running for governor in 1986, charged that White's tax plan would fail to address the needs of the mental health system, the prison system, state government workers and other governmental services.

"Billion-dollar tax bills are rare, to say the least, but we've seen them in the states that run big deficit spending," Bullock said.

"But figures like $4.8 billion are what you usually hear coming out of Congress."

Responding, White said his tax increase proposal would "not only make certain that Texas has the finest educational system in the nation and the finest highway system ... it also sets aside sufficient numbers of dollars to take care of any emergency needs in the foreseeable future."

White also said he is encouraged by the response from legislators and again said he expects to call a special session of the Legislature for early June.

Bullock said his analysis of the tax hike proposal White unveiled Friday shows that Texas would move near the top of the 10 largest states in levying the various taxes and above the 10-state average in many of the categories. However, Texas does not levy an income tax as do many of the other largest states.

Specifically, Bullock said: — Raising the sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent would put Texas above the 10 largest states' average of 4.7 percent and would mean that Texas ranks third among the big states.

— Increasing the gasoline tax from 5 cents per gallon to 10 cents means Texas would be above the average of 9.6 cents. It also means Texas would rank sixth instead of ninth now.

— Boosting the cigarette tax to 23.5 cents per pack would leave one big state charging more than Texas and put Texas well above the 16.25-cent average.

— Increasing the motor vehicle sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent would top the average of 4.6 percent. Instead of ranking seventh, Texas would rank third among the large states.

West, South Texas get a brief taste of rain

By the Associated Press
Light rain showers fell in parts of South and West Texas early today, but clear skies were reported over most of Texas.

Predawn temperatures were generally in the 60s, although readings in the lower 70s continued in deep South Texas. Gulf moisture in the form of middle and high level cloudiness had spread northward from South Texas into the central and western portions of the state.

A light south to southeasterly wind of 5 to 10 mph was reported at most Texas observation stations today, although an easterly wind of 10 to 20 mph was noted in far West Texas, the National Weather Service said.

The weather service said the outlook for today was for partly sunny skies statewide, with a chance of thunder showers over southern portions of South Texas. Highs were expected to reach into the 80s and 90s.

The already soggy Rockies got more bad news today as showers and thunderstorms add to flooding problems caused by unusually warm air that is rapidly melting snowpack.

Rain fell today across most of the Rockies and into the western Plains. According to Bill Sammler of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., the worst could be still to come.

Stealing from the fund is a third-degree felony, Turner said.

When confronted by local officers about the theft, Hensley indicated he had encountered financial difficulties, Turner said. "He Hensley resigned from the department "because of problems with discipline. He was abusing privileges. Rather than being disciplined, he resigned," Turner said.

be sold Monday through Saturday.

On Monday, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said the drought has reached every corner of the state, and he asked the Reagan administration for help.

"I'm calling on President Reagan and U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block to gear up now to administer the various federal disaster assistance programs authorized by Congress," Hightower said.

The government has declared 171 Texas counties eligible for low-cost emergency loans and reduced-cost feed.

Ranchers and agricultural experts are saying that even if it rains tomorrow, the economic and environmental effects of the drought will be felt for years.

"These pretty days are going to put us out of business," said state Sen. Bill Sims of San Angelo, a sheep rancher.

Allen McGinty, a Texas A&M range specialist at Fort Stockton, said native grasses in the hardest-hit areas are lost. The root systems have dried up and blown away in the high winds which have plagued the region.

Hightower noted that the spring rains failed to materialize this year, meaning the drought now is extending well into its second year and beyond in some regions.

County to reconsider dispatching contract

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

In a move that nullified earlier approval of a city-county contract, Howard County commissioners Monday agreed to reconsider approval of a dispatching contract between the sheriff's office and the police department.

Commissioners Monday delayed signing a contract paying the city $750 a month for dispatching between 7 p.m. and 8 a.m., and requested Sheriff A.N. Standard to determine the cost of hiring his own night dispatcher and the other duties the dispatcher might perform while at work.

Standard was also asked to meet with Police Chief Rick Turner to discuss the dispatching service.

The commissioners' decision to investigate the possibility of hiring a night-time dispatcher for the county followed a decision earlier that day not to approve a jailing contract with the city for county prisoners. Commissioners said they would be unable to sign the contract, which they approved 3-1 at the last meeting, because it would be illegal.

County Court Judge Milton Kirby said he was informed by a staff member with the state commission that the county jail's certification by the commission might be jeopardized if it approved a contract allowing a non-certified jail to house its prisoners.

After the county first approved both contracts against his recommendations, Standard had said he received complaints from county residents that the phones were not being answered.

In addition, Standard said he received complaints that police dispatchers had told residents to call the sheriff's office at 8 a.m. when the office would be open.

City Councilman Russ McEwen, present at the meeting with Mayor Clyde Angel, said the city was just trying to provide the county with services "at cost."

"We're not trying to get to you. All we're trying to do is recoup our pure costs," McEwen said.

Commissioners heard testimony from a former city dispatcher, Jeanette "Red" Meeks, who said she was instructed to always handle city emergencies first.

If the city receives two emergency calls, the priority should be to the one that came in first, McEwen said. "If the city gets precedence

Sexual assault reported

Big Spring police at 1:45 p.m. Monday received a report of a sexual assault of a child that occurred on the west side of the city, Lt. Jerry Edwards said this morning.

Officer Steve Fleckenstein took the report of the incident at the police department, Edward said. No further information about the incident can be released, he said.

In other police reports:

- Willie Greenwood, 37, was arrested at 11:19 a.m. Monday at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in connection with Midland County warrants for aggravated assault and sexual indecency with a child, police reports said.
- Jim Sator, used car manager at Highland Pontiac at 502 E. FM 700, told police someone between 11:30 p.m. Sunday and 7:55 a.m. Monday stole a red 1982 Pontiac Trans Am valued at $9,600, police reports said.

- Ronnie Love of 538 Westover told police someone between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday entered his residence and stole a gold chain and nugget valued at a total of $250, police reports said.

Deputies probe car theft

Howard County sheriff's deputies are investigating the theft of a 1979 Cadillac recovered Monday at a residence three miles southeast of Big Spring. No charges have been filed, according to Chief Deputy Bill Shankles.

The Cadillac, recovered at 7 p.m. Monday, was reported missing to the Big Spring police department May 5.

Sheriff's deputy John Wolf also recovered a stolen vehicle at 1 p.m. Monday. Wolf found the 1982 Pontiac Trans Am off Highway 33 south of Big Spring the same day the car was reported stolen to police.

An employee of Wes-Tex Auto Parts on the Snyder Highway told sheriff's deputies Monday that another burglary of a motor vehicle took place Sunday night at the yard.

According to the report, someone entered the yard from the west side and removed two speakers from a 1984 Dodge Colt parked behind the business in the wrecking yard.

The intruders also entered a large white transport truck and removed a tool box, according to the report.

Deputies arrested Dwayne Elmo Lovell, 45, of Sterling City Route on a Lubbock County warrant for suspicion of failure to display a manifest. He was released on $1,500 bond.

Maria Heredia Olivarez, 40, of 209 N.E. Seventh was transferred to the county jail after being arrested by the Department of Public Safety on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. Olivarez was released on $1,000 bond set by Daratt.

Pepper exhibits mementos

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — His legislative career has spanned five decades, but U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper holds a special fondness for his roots as a lawyer and state senator here — so he has chosen Florida State University as the resting place for his many mementos.

CLAUDE PEPPER

A collection of Pepper's documents, letters and other memorabilia — including correspondence from President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill — will be preserved in a library and museum on the FSU campus, officials said.

Opening ceremonies are tentatively set for September, to coincide with the oldest congressman's 84th birthday, said Hal Wilkins, president of the FSU Foundation, which contributed part of the $1 million cost of the project.

The papers will be housed in a reconstructed wing of Dodd Hall, the 1920s library where Pepper's late wife, Mildred, studied at what was then Florida State College for Women. Mrs. Pepper, a Tallahassee native, first suggested FSU as the place for the papers.

Upstairs, two rooms are being designed to recreate the Washington offices Pepper occupied from 1936 to 1951 as a U.S. senator, and from 1962 on as a member of the House, representing Miami and Miami Beach.

"I regretted that we didn't find a place in Miami, because I can never repay my debt to Miami and Dade County," Pepper said recently.

Job influenced Christianity

SHERIDAN, Wyo. — Former astronaut James Irwin says he is one of three astronauts who have become outspoken Christians — and he believes it is not just coincidence that all three were lunar module pilots for Apollo missions.

JAMES IRWIN

"I've always pointed out the lunar module pilot had the greatest change because he was in a position as an observer, while the other astronauts were so busy with other operations they were preoccupied," Irwin told Sheridan College graduates Saturday.

"Many people are looking for the answer, and after seeing the earth as I feel God would see it, I felt I found the answer," said Irwin, who founded the High Flight Foundation, a nonprofit Christian group.

SANCTUARY — Colorado religious worker, Stacey Lynn Merkt, convicted Monday of conspiring to transport illegal aliens, poses after the verdict with Salvadorans Mauricio Valle and Brenda Sanchez-Galan, and her attorneys Father Wally Kasuboski and Daniel Sheehan.

Merkt guilty of transporting 3 Salvadoran illegal aliens

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Supporters of church-sponsored sanctuaries for Central American refugees say the conviction of a church worker on charges of transporting illegal aliens will not affect the growing movement.

After deliberating for three days, a jury on Monday found Stacey Lynn Merkt, 29, of Colorado Springs, Colo., guilty of transporting and of conspiring to transport three Salvadoran illegal aliens.

"I am not a criminal and neither are those arrested and deported by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Ms. Merkt said after the verdict was announced. "It's a sad day when church people in this country are persecuted for helping refugees, but in El Salvador they'd be dead."

Jurors refused to comment on the verdict. Ms. Merkt remains free on bond until her June 27 sentencing. She said she plans to work in the garden at the halfway house and run errands for refugees as long as she is free.

She contends she transported the Salvadorans because of religious convictions and her belief that the aliens are protected by the Refugee Act of 1980 which grants asylum to those fleeing oppression in their homelands.

Federal immigration officials contend the Salvadorans are illegal aliens coming to the U.S. seeking jobs and are not necessarily entitled to political asylum.

Lee Holstein, a spokeswoman for the Chicago Religious Task Force on Central America, a network of churches which have agreed to act as sanctuaries, said the prosecution of Ms. Merkt has encouraged more participation. "In terms of the sanctuary movement, the sentiment for helping refugees is so strong, that no matter what the verdict, it wouldn't affect our sense of commitment."

She said task force membership has increased 25 percent since Ms. Merkt's arrest and the number of member churches is now 125.

The jury received the case Wednesday after hearing four days of testimony from border patrol agents, immigration officials, sanctuary movement supporters, nuns and the Roman Catholic Bishop of Brownsville, John J. Fitzpatrick.

Fitzpatrick said the verdict would not affect operation of the Catholic Diocese-sponsored Casa Oscar Romero refugee halfway house because the house offers only shelter and advice, not transportation.

Casa Oscar Romero director Jack Elder has been indicted on charges of transporting three Salvadoran illegal aliens and is scheduled to stand trial in July.

She faces a maximum of 15 years in prison and a $9,000 fine, but Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Guerra said that as a first-time offender, Ms. Merkt would probably be given probation.

During the trial, INS district director Hal Boldin of Harlingen testified that all Salvadorans who apply for political asylum are arrested and held in a federal detention camp until they post bail.

Ms. Merkt said she was serving as a translator and helping the Salvadorans get to the next closest INS office in San Antonio when they were arrested Feb. 17 on a rural South Texas highway before dawn.

Ammo dump proposed

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is proposing to build ammunition and fuel depots in Honduras to supply U.S. warplanes in the event of a military emergency in Central America, a Defense Department report indicates.

Plans for the ammunition and fuel depots appeared in a report to Congress breaking down $8.7 million the Defense Department has requested for military construction in Honduras in the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

The United States also plans to keep up Army intelligence flights from a base in Honduras and continue military training exercises there through 1988 and elsewhere in Central America through 1987, the report signed by Deputy Defense Secretary William Howard Taft IV said.

The intelligence planes reportedly have been operating over El Salvador to help government forces intercept arms shipments to leftist guerrillas and spot rebel movements.

Until now, the Reagan administration has insisted that its military construction projects in Honduras, such as extending airport runways, were designed for periodic deployment of U.S. forces for training exercises.

Marcos' party losing

MANILA, Philippines — Unofficial election returns today showed President Ferdinand E. Marcos' opponents unexpectedly leading in half the National Assembly races, but the official news agency said government candidates were ahead.

The government's Philippines New Agency said pro-Marcos candidates were leading in 99 of 183 races. The independent National Citizens Movement for Free Elections, conducting its own unofficial count, had Marcos' party ahead in 79 races and opponents leading 91 with about a third of the vote tallied.

Results for 13 races had not been reported to the independent organization.

Opposition leader Salvador H. Laurel, who had projected victories in only about 30 percent of the races, said the results "beyond our hopes and wildest imagination" and he warned against "monkey business" changing the results.

Official results were to be announced within the next few days.

MX battle lines drawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, declaring the MX missile and arms control to be his top priorities, has again drawn the battle line with Congress in a fight over defense spending.

The House was scheduled to begin debating the Pentagon authorization bill today, but no votes are expected until later in the week.

For the last two years, Reagan's personal lobbying has been credited by both MX supporters and opponents with providing narrow margins of victory in the Democrat-controlled House.

Reagan was lobbying again this time around. Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president would meet today with 12 Democrats who were considered undecided in an effort to get their vote.

Hart hopes for wins in Oregon, Nebraska

By the Associated Press

Gary Hart is pinning his hopes on Democratic voters in Nebraska and Oregon today to sustain his campaign's recovery while Walter Mondale and the Rev. Jesse Jackson concentrate on California's big primary three weeks away.

Latest polls gave Hart the edge in both Oregon and Nebraska, but with the race in the Cornhusker state appearing closer, the Colorado senator flew there for a final pitch, dropping the rest of his Oregon schedule.

Mondale did not campaign in Oregon and spent only a few hours in Nebraska.

There are 67 delegates at stake today, 43 in Oregon's primary and 24 in Nebraska's, with voting limited to Democrats only in both states.

Mondale was making a foreign-policy address today in San Francisco after sharpening his attack on Hart as he wooed Hispanic voters in Southern California.

Jackson, too, was out to win Hispanics, more heavily concentrated in California than anywhere else in the nation and representing 16 percent of the electorate.

And Hart was making a final appearance in Lincoln, Neb., today with Gov. Bob Kerrey, an early supporter, after chiding Mondale on Sunday for ignoring the state.

"I've been traveling around here and in Oregon looking for Walter Mondale, and I haven't found him," Hart told Nebraskans. "Have any of you seen Mr. Mondale out here?"

Jackson crossed into Tijuana, Mexico, on Monday and said he was not sure the flow of illegal aliens across the border is a problem.

"I know of no objective, scientifically legitimate study that has proven that undocumented workers take jobs from Americans, deplete our social service programs, cause undue crime, tax our educational systems or harm our society in any other way," Jackson said.

Mondale, who picked up the endorsement of the Mexican-American Political Association in San Jose on Sunday, spoke at an East Los Angeles school and chided his chief rival as a newcomer to Hispanic issues.

"Gary Hart is trying to introduce himself to you," Mondale said. "Where's he been?"

"He's been a senator for 10 years. He could have been involved in these issues we're talking about. He could have provided leadership."

By contrast, said Mondale, "I've been out front."

Later in Oakland, Mondale criticized President Reagan's call for the House to approve funds for the MX missile, which he called

"the most dangerous major weapons system deployed in the U.S. arsenal."

Let safety board write own rules

In 1972, Congress established the Consumer Products Safety Commission to keep off the market goods that could threaten the health and safety of the buying public. It was to do far more than just bark when harmful gizmos and gadgets strayed into the unwary consumer's path. Rather, it was to conduct studies, write standards and ban from store shelves any product found wanting — in short to bite.

The agency has, by and large, been effective: By its own claims, for example, 23,000 fewer children were harmed or killed by toys in 1982 than in 1977. It can't give ironclad guarantees that all 15,000 products in its jurisdiction are safe, but the very threat of sanctions has been enough to make safety a prime consideration in the minds of most manufacturers.

But its success is now cited as a basis for weakening the agency. A proposal drawn up by one commission staff member would have the agency endorse standards developed by trade groups rather than issue its own. Already, the commission defers to industry standards for most products. The safety code developed by Underwriters Laboratories offers a classic example of this practice.

Under the proposal, the commission would be able to give its stamp of approval to the industry standards. The chairwoman of the CPSC, Nancy Harvey Steorts, has noted this could confuse more than help consumers, who might not know which rules were legally binding and which merely voluntary.

The agency cannot draw up standards and ensure compliance of every item in its jurisdiction, but that is no reason for it to bow down before manufacturers, who will be all too happy to draw up their own safety standards. By giving its imprimatur to such standards, the agency would suffer an irreparable loss of credibility, powers of enforcement and effectiveness.

Cornball

The president keeps saying that inflation is way down, and he has government statistics to prove it. But if it is, President Reagan doesn't buy his corned beef sandwiches from the same delicatessen I do.

In 1980 a corned beef sandwich on rye at Ben's cost me $1.50, including a nice large slice of dill pickle. The same sandwich today costs $3, although I've noticed the rye bread slices are smaller and the pickle is much thinner.

"How come," I asked Ben, "if Reagan says he's cut down inflation to 5 percent, your corned beef sandwich costs twice as much as it did when he took office?"

Ben was steaming. "If you think I'm making more money on a $3 sandwich than I was when it was $1.50 then you're crazy."

"According to the Department of Agriculture, food prices have been holding steady."

"I don't know from food prices," Ben said. "But there is more that goes into a corned beef sandwich than bread, beef and Russian dressing."

"What's that?"

"City taxes, Social Security and health benefits for my employees. My electric bill looks like monthly rent, and my telephone bill now looks like my electric bill. How come those hot shot statisticians in the government don't take those things into account before they publish their figures?"

"Don't get mad at me, Ben. I was curious as to why your prices had doubled in a period of single-digit inflation."

I apparently opened a can of beans. Ben said, "You see that pipe up there that is leaking? In 1980 the plumber charged me $30 to walk in the door. Now he wants $60. So what does a government computer know about plumbers?"

Ben lifted one foot over the counter. "I bought these shoes last week. They cost me $75. The same shoe two years ago cost $45. Why don't you ask a shoe-store owner why it costs $30 more if inflation is so low?"

"I tried to change the subject. 'How's your wife?'"

"She just got out of the hospital. Her room cost $400 a day. The same room three years ago cost $190. They threw in a television set free then. Now they charge $5 a day for it. The doctor used to charge $25 a visit. Now you have to pay $50 up front, and wait twice as long to see him. That all goes into the price of a corned beef sandwich."

"You want to know about my kid? In 1980 his tuition was $6,000. This year it's up to $9,000. It's a bargain compared to how much more I'm paying for his automobile insurance. The president says interest rates are down to 11.5 percent. Maybe for Ed Meese. But own a delicatessen and see if you can get a loan for less than 14.5 percent. Put that in your corned beef sandwich and eat it."

"The price of gas is down," I said.

"So how come the guy who supplies my corned beef is now charging 20 percent more for delivering it? You see this brown bag? It isn't even made by human beings any more. It's made by robots. Every six months it goes up 2 cents."

"I'm sure everything you say is true, Ben," I told him, "but government statistics don't lie. Reagan has cooled inflation and he has the printouts to prove it."

"Then why has my laundry bill for aprons risen 15 percent?"

"Probably because aprons aren't included in the price index."

"Nothing that goes up seems to be included in the price index. If you want to make a big deal about what I'm charging now compared to 1980, why has the price of the Sunday paper you write for gone up 25 percent?"

"That's simple. We had to raise it, or no one on our staff could afford your corned beef sandwiches."

Senior-itis

In most area schools, graduating seniors will complete their public school careers this week. Those of us who have gone before know these seniors are both extremely happy and extremely frightened.

What comes now? I can remember asking that question the week of my high school graduation nine years ago.

First comes relief. I remember thinking I'd never make it through high school.

I thought about dropping out and taking a job somewhere at least a million times. I guess a lot of students think of dropping out during the middle of a long night preceding a huge exam that they're not prepared for.

But graduation is the light at the end of all those long, dark nights. All those students who battled their way through schools for 12 years are coming to the end of an era in their lives. That diploma is a prize they'll hang on to for years.

After relief comes fun. Graduation ceremonies, parties, gifts and thank-you notes will fill the seniors' days for the next few weeks. People will stop them and congratulate them for a job well done. May is the time for graduating seniors to take center stage and enjoy all the attention.

After fun comes fear. Suddenly, seniors will realize that a goal they've worked toward for 12 years has been realized and its time to set down new goals.

New goals mean taking up new directions in life. Seniors will be faced with the question of staying in Big Spring to work or to attend college, or of leaving town to work or attend a major university.

Students choosing to go directly into the workforce must choose what kind of work they want to do. Students continuing their education must decide what they want to major in. It's enough to shake anybody up a little.

All of the choices mean separations from people they've gotten to know throughout the years. Friends they've seen everyday will be making their own choices and sometimes the choices will mean separation.

That's one of the sad things about graduation. I left behind some friends after high school that I've never gotten close to again.

People I was close to nine years ago have scattered and I'm not sure where they live today. We chose different colleges and different careers and as we've gotten older we have never managed to recapture the way we felt about each other in high school. It's all a part of growing up, I guess.

But after fear comes adventure. Once you've made your choices and headed in new directions, your life will really begin changing and new friends and new experiences will begin filling up your life.

All of these feelings, the relief, the fun, the fear and the new adventures, will pass by very quickly. Congratulations, seniors.

Paying tribute to motherhood

WASHINGTON — Sunday was Mother's Day. And again, the nation paid lip service to motherhood. But it no longer honors its mothers.

Most working mothers cannot find adequate day care for their children. Most divorced and widowed mothers can't collect the full child support that the courts have ordered. Mothers who want to stay home with their children are treated as social inferiors.

The government offers tax incentives and pension benefits to mothers who leave their children during the day and find jobs away from home. Mothers who try to earn a living at home, where they can keep an eye on their children, may even run afoul of the labor laws.

The media is the worst offender. It glorifies sex but denigrates motherhood. Career women are portrayed as glamorous, homemakers as frumpy.

"We have fostered a generation of young people who have heard nothing but put-downs about childbearing," complains Linda Burton of Springfield, Va. "They have been encouraged to 'do something more important' with their lives. They are considered intellectually inferior and out of pace with the times."

Mrs. Burton gave up an office job to raise her two small children. She knew that many intelligent, gifted women prefer child-rearing to any other career, that they find homemaking more challenging than office routine, and that they can earn a living and broaden their talents at home.

So Linda Burton joined some other Virginia women in forming a non-profit group to set the record straight. They call themselves Mothers at Home. "We should be shouting from the housetops, saying 'I stay at home with my kids!'" she declares. She thinks it's best for them and for herself.

The group doesn't criticize women who choose a career; it merely upholds the right of all women to decide what they want to do with their lives. "But as it now stands," says Mrs. Burton, "many women are under economic and social pressure to work."

The group provides moral support for mothers who want to stay home and raise their children. These women are tired of the media telling them that rearing children is beneath the national dignity and that smart women don't stay home.

So last January, more than 50 volunteers combined their skills to publish a provocative little newsletter they call Welcome Home. No one is paid; it's a labor of love. They charge $12 a year to cover printing and mailing costs.

Overnight, they attracted national attention. They never got around to issuing their first press release; the press came to them. They never bothered to solicit subscriptions; yet the subscriptions began pouring in. Phil Donahue asked them to appear on his television show. ABC and CBS News filmed them in action.

Congress even solicited their views on day-care centers. Linda Burton listened to witness after witness call for more centers, better care and bigger federal subsidies. Politely disagreeing, she urged economic and social incentives to bring working mothers home "who would rather not have their children in day care in the first place..."

Later that evening, the CBS Evening News showed excerpts from the hearings. Mrs. Burton's testimony was dismissed cavalierly by CBS as "proposing that the problem be solved by a return to the ways of yesteryear."

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Express feelings through your vote

To the editor:
On behalf of our community, I believe that our feelings, thoughts and ideas should all be rolled up in one. That's one meaning of community to me. Working and socializing together.

When voting time comes around is when we should express our feelings. Not afterwards, it will be too late.

I've been wrong about certain candidates but as time goes by, it has taught me considerably and I'm proud to be a voting citizen and to be involved with the community.

It pays to be open-hearted and out spoken. It lets people hear you. Soon there will be a big election, hopefully, every citizen will express their efforts once more.

Dear Abby

Clean-cut employer never met a beard he liked

DEAR ABBY: I just read your column about young people who want summer jobs. As an employer, I think you missed an important point. This may appear prejudicial and discriminating, but I know it to be a determining factor in hiring help. The subject is beards!

I flatly refuse to consider applicants who sport beards and droopy mustaches. After several experiences with these types, I won't even interview them, regardless of their qualifications. They're arrogant, defy authority and give the impression that they're superior and more learned. When one of them comes in for an interview, I see nothing but eyes, a nose and teeth. (Not even ears!) I don't even know what his face looks like!

I want the clean-cut, freshly shaved, nothing-hidden type fellow working for me. Those with beards need not apply.

ONE MAN'S OPINION
DEAR MAN: Of course you're entitled to your opinion, but unfortunately your preconceived, prejudicial opinions are out-of-date. You still equate all bearded types with the rebellious, anti-establishment hippies of the '60s.

Wrong! If you disqualify all men with facial hair before even taking a second look to see if their beards are clean and well-groomed, you could be passing up some very bright and talented prospects.

Dr. Donohue

Simple reduction diet for teen

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 15-year-old girl who is way overweight. I would say about 20 pounds for my 5 feet, 1 inch body. I know of the dangers of the crash programs so many of my friends are trying. What's a good weight reduction program for me? P.S. I hate exercise. — Miss R.J.K.

First, you should find out exactly how overweight you are. Fatness is in the eyes of the beholder, and many times the eyes of young girls betray them into unwise weight loss. You find out where you really stand by consulting a standard weight-height-build table. Your school nurse should have one.

You are wise in ruling out any crash diet. The more we learn about them, the less attractive they become, specially for people your age. The effects of injudicious dieting in an adolescent can be disastrous.

If you truly are overweight, your goal should be modest loss without sacrificing the full range of vital nutrients, which are even more important at your age. A pound a week is not over ambitious and you can do that by cutting out about 500 calories a day.

It's best to accomplish this through both food calorie loss and the calories you can lose from even a modest exercise program. For example, you can cut back on 200 food calories and lose the other 300 by just walking or swimming for 30 minutes a day. Giving up between-meal snacks (even just a couple of them) should be enough to provide the 200-calorie reduction. Between-meal snacking is said to account for up to 40 percent of the total calorie intake of a typical teenager.

This is a reasonable program for girls like you, who feel they need to lose fat weight. You should be able to measure success visually in a couple of months, and you'll feel better.

Brownies and their dads to spend overnights at camp

The West Texas Girl Scout Council has announced that Girl Scout Brownies and their Dads will be spending some overnights at Camp Boothe Oaks. A Big Spring WINNER!

Margaret shows antique "train orders hook."

Margaret Barnett, Retired T&P Railway Station Agent

Margaret Barnett has spent a lifetime giving of herself — and at age 84 she shows no sign of letting up.

Margaret took on a career as T&P telegraph operator in 1917, and retired 42 years later as station agent in Coahoma. She's a 50-year-pin member of the Order of Railway Telegraphers and helped organize the Natl. Assn. of Retired & Veteran Railway Employees, which she now serves as secretary-treasurer. One of the original volunteers at the VA Hospital, she helps with weekly birthday parties for vets, and recently earned her 1000-hour pin. She's currently treasurer of the VFW Auxiliary (another 50-year-pin!); was a founder of the local DAR in 1974 and just two years ago helped found the Colonial Dames. Margaret has sung in the First Christian Church Choir every Sunday for 25 years and is involved in all areas of the church's work. Her activities are too numerous to cover fully, yet this remarkable woman says "I'm not just a joiner." Margaret Barnett is a doer — and Big Spring is the better for it.

Doggett: Hance took no action

AUSTIN (AP) — Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett says that although his opponent has chosen to make amnesty for illegal aliens a key campaign issue, Rep. Kent Hance has done little to solve immigration problems.

"Kent Hance has chosen to run as a single-issue candidate on an issue he has never done a single thing about. He has not even so much as given a speech about it on the floor of the Congress in five years, much less offered a bill or an amendment to do anything about immigration problems," Doggett charged Monday.

Doggett said Hance several times was absent when key votes were taken on funding the Immigration and Naturalization Service and beefing up the Border Patrol.

"And when he has shown up, Kent has repeatedly voted against bills that included increased funding for the Border Patrol," Doggett said.

Ken Vest, Hance's press secretary, said the charges distort the congressman's record.

Vest said Hance had voted separately for more Border Patrol funds, but sometimes voted against the final appropriation because it was included in a larger spending bill which Hance couldn't support.

"That's an outright distortion," Vest said of Doggett's charges. "He was voting against it because there were other appropriations in there he felt he had to oppose."

Doggett comments followed Hance television ads before the May 5 primary in which Hance said he opposed amnesty for aliens while Doggett and candidate Bob Krueger favored it.

Doggett, who finished less than 0.1 percent behind Hance on May 5 and faces him in the June 2 runoff, said he opposes blanket amnesty for illegal aliens. He said he would support some form of amnesty for those in this country for many years, although he said he hasn't decided how long.

He alleged that Hance has done nothing on amnesty or immigration in Congress except put his name on a Republican-sponsored, non-binding resolution opposing amnesty.

Valley finally gets rain

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Showers and a few thundershowers in the lower Rio Grande Valley gave the parched area its first significant rainfall in five months, according to the National Weather Service.

Rainfall amounts Monday morning ranged from just over an inch in Laredo to measurable traces around Cotulla, as an upper-level disturbance passed through the area.

"It's usually dry in March," said meteorologist Greg Flatt in Brownsville. "But it's abnormal to have no rain in March, April and half of May. This is good news for all farmers, but especially sorghum farmers who have been hurting pretty bad."

The Rio Grande Valley has suffered unusually dry weather since Jan. 31, when 0.79 inch of rain fell in the area.

"That was the last rain that did any good," Flatt said.

The area received 0.06 inch of rain on March 19, the last measurable amount of precipitation reported before Monday's moisture, according to Flatt.

Farmers in Laredo were the biggest beneficiaries of Monday's showers, where nearly 1.6 inches of rains were reported. McAllen reported about 0.71 inch of moisture, while Del Rio had reports of 0.37 inch and Cotulla had 0.08 inch.

The weather service said most of the amounts reported were for the morning hours. Official daily amounts were not expected until Tuesday.

The rainfall was confined to the western and northern portions of the Valley, while the eastern portions of the area continued to suffer under hot, dry conditions.

Day-time temperatures reached the mid-80s throughout the Valley and were expected to drop to the

Steers on right track

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

It's May and footballs are flying and pads are popping at the Big Spring Steers practice field.

Coach Quinn Eudy's Steers are near the end of Spring football training and the third-year BSHS mentor has been putting some 100 troops through three weeks of workouts.

Practices have been going well, according to Eudy, with this young Steer squad climaxing the three weeks with the annual Black and Gold contest at 6:30 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium. The underclassmen will play their contest Thursday at 4 p.m. at Blankenship Field.

Although this coming Fall's team will have only 10 lettermen back from a squad of 35 last year, Eudy and his coaching staff are not in awe of the 1984 season awaiting them. Impossible you might say — a team that finished last season at 3-7 — with only a handful of lettermen, and the coaches are optimistic?

That's right. The main reason given Eudy — the players want to win. "These kids are competitive," said Eudy. "They will hit and they are not scared of hard work."

It's a good thing, because hard work is just what they have been going through by braving the three hour workouts each day. "I've always been a firm believer in tough conditioning during workouts," said Eudy. So if the players can survive a tough Spring training, they have conquered a major goal.

One of the most impressive things about Eudy is his patience, his ability to cope with frustration and trying to correct it over a period of time instead of all at once.

His coaching record at BSHS has not been that impressive when you look at the Steers' 7-13 record over the last couple of seasons. But what goes unnoticed by statisticians is that Eudy is finally getting the players back out in numbers.

This year over 100 players donned pads for Spring training, the most since Eudy has been here. What's even better is that 42 of the players are sophomores-to-be. In the past the Steers have been plagued by that problem — lack of underclassmen.

Eudy modestly says he has been lucky this season. "I guess I've been lucky, the kids are finally coming out. The freshman year is a very transitional one for the athlete. A lot of time they don't make the change."

The play of his sophomores has left Eudy pleased. The young players have done a good job so far. They are determined to compete.

So there is reason to be optimistic just with the number of players wearing the Black and Gold. And while numbers are not enough to guarantee a winning season, but it's like the saying — "You must crawl before you can walk."

But with the added number of players, Eudy and his staff can experiment with two-platooning the team, playing each player at one specific position. "This is the first time I have tired this at Big Spring," said Eudy. If you train a player every day to do one specific thing he's bound to do a better job. He will be stronger in the fourth quarter than the man that has to play both ways."

The Steers' defense will have to carry the team for a while, since six starters return on a defense that likes to hit. The main strength is in the defensive line anchored by 220-pound defensive tackle Doug Walker, the strongest player on the squad.

Luis Puga, Derek Logback, Eugene Vanderbilt and Jerry Myer will aid Walker in holding down the front wall. Linebacker Jerry Anderson is a mainstay in his position. Jay Pirkle, a solid 170-pounder, has been moved from defensive end to safety to add quality and experience to a young secondary that has three sophomores, juniors and seniors in the crew.

Offensively the Steers will be very young as far as the line goes. Walker is the lone senior, flanked by three juniors and five sophomores. Although most of the trench people are untested Eudy says the group has been making vast improvement. "They have improved by leaps and bounds. They have improved as a unit. They see they are capable of getting the job done."

The Big Spring mentor entered the Spring with a good problem at quarterback — two good signal-callers in senior Tommy Gartman and junior Carl Speck. Both are capable of directing the Steers veer attack.

Eudy then made a smooth move, moving Gartman to running back and leaving Speck at QB. "They are both good players and we need both of them in the lineup. Carl has been throwing the ball well when he has time and is a good option quarterback. Tommy is a fine athlete, he has adjusted well to running back. He has made some fine cuts and some good catches out of the backfield."

Big Spring will miss wide receivers Dale Crenshaw and Robert Porras the most. Billy Russell, Mike Wilson, Mike Webb, Tommy Rodriguez and Ernest Moreno will try to step in and fill their shoes.

Eudy calls the upcoming season a, "Fun one, one that I'm looking forward to. We will work hard and get with some people. The older kids are hungry to be successful and the younger kids are determined to be competitive."

Right now the Steers don't strike me as a team that will go all the way in '84, but they seem capable of having an improved season. After all, Rome wasn't built in a day.

Ueberroth hoping to melt Soviet snowball

By The Associated Press

The president of the Los Angeles Olympic Committee, in the face of Soviet insistence that their pullout from the Summer Games is "irrevocable," says he hopes to stem the "domino" effect of other nations joining the boycott.

"We owe it to other athletes from other countries who want to be here to try and reverse" the Soviets' efforts to get others to join them, Peter Ueberroth said Monday. "We'll use resources and we'll use energy because we owe it to the U.S. athletes."

Ueberroth, also saying he has not completely given up on the Soviets coming to Los Angeles, will try to get them to reverse their decision at Lausanne, Switzerland, on Friday, where the International Olympic Committee has called an emergency meeting. The Soviets have announced that they also will attend the meeting, but their officials insist they won't change their decision to stay out of the Los Angeles Games.

Ueberroth said Olympics officials had discussed the possibility of extending the June 2 deadline for declaration of participation in the Games, but that decision remained up to the IOC.

Asked what he will tell the Soviets, Ueberroth replied:

"We will say some nice things and we will say some cooperative things, but we will also say that we were insulted by some of the things (they said), such as that we would try to drug their athletes."

Ueberroth also expressed concern about the list of boycotting nations growing. Seven other countries — East Germany, Bulgaria, Vietnam, Laos, Mongolia, Czechoslovakia and Afghanistan — followed the Soviets' lead in withdrawing from the Games.

"They are trying to influence the better part of the globe," Ueberroth said of the Soviets — a charge that was denied Monday at a news conference by Marat Gramov, chairman of the Soviet Union's National Olympic Committee.

Gramov also said, "We, in principle, are against all alternative, parallel games, or any other kind of games seen as a counter-balance to the Los Angeles Olympics." But a Polish journalist, who requested anonymity, says sports officials from the Soviet Union and its allies met last week to discuss organizing a "counter-Olympics" and decided instead to divide events among Communist nations.

Under the plan, boxing competition would be held in Poznan and the pentathlon and fencing events in Dzonkovo, both in Poland.

Mellowing Foyt eyes 27th Indy

By The Associated Press

A.J. Foyt is surprisingly amiable these days. The often fiery and always unpredictable curmudgeon of Indy car racing may be mellowing as he approaches his 50th birthday and barrels toward the end of his illustrious driving career.

In the past, the only four-time winner of the Indianapolis 500 has brawled with fellow drivers, punched cameramen, grabbed reporters, feuded with sanctioning bodies, pounded on and kicked balky cars, and generally snarled at anyone within close range during the month of May at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Racing fans always have been attracted or repelled by the combination of his enormous ability in virtually any kind of race car and his determined, win-at-all-costs ways.

When the burly Foyt explodes in rage, they shake their heads, smile and say, "That's of A.J." In either case, his detractors just shake their heads in disgust.

But now, at the age of 49 and approaching a record 27th consecutive Indy race, Foyt is having some fun, even at Indianapolis.

Foyt, always a showman, electrified a crowd estimated at more than 200,000 Saturday when he jumped into his traditional orange No. 14 race car and, after going no faster than 204-plus mph during a week of practice, ripped off a lap averaging more than 209 during the first day of qualifications for the May 27 race.

He appeared ready to challenge for one of the front-row positions in the sizzling field, but a burned piston abruptly ended that qualifying attempt. However, the roar from the crowd was deafening when Foyt stepped from the car in the pits.

The noise reached a crescendo when he came back later in the day in an almost untested backup car and put it into the race day lineup with a four-lap average of 203.860 mph, good for the outside of the fourth row.

"We didn't have time to change the springs around like I had on the other car," said the smiling Foyt.

"We took the wing off the other car and put it on the car. I was just very loose. I was an accident waiting to happen."

"I spun the first lap, then I hesitated and said, 'I gotta run faster than that,' and I got up a little more, and, I was just playing cat-and-mouse. I was in trouble all four laps."

"We weren't planning on running this car. I've had the car over 200, and that's all. Just kind of a secondary backup, and all of a sudden we had to make a quick decision, and I said, heck, let's go see what we can do."

Before the cheering had died away, the dynamo from Houston — that cherubic smile still fixed in place — already was on his way down pit road to try and help fellow Texan Johnny Rutherford get another of Foyt's entries ready for a qualification attempt.

He was totally in his element.

In the past few years, Foyt has driven fewer Indy car races, opting for an occasional foray to a Grand National stock car event, an International Motor Sports Association sports car endurance race or watching his latest love, his race horses, run at places like Louisville Downs.

And, unlike his usual business-first-and-always attitude at Indianapolis, when he's at a stock car track or preparing for an endurance race, Foyt often holds court for the media, offering racing tales and adventures for all who will listen.

"I take all the racin' I do serious," Foyt said before coming here this month. "But I take Indy very serious. That's a $2 million race."

"And there's some pride mixed in there (at Indianapolis) with the fact they (the fans and the media) expect you do miracles even when things are goin' wrong. They don't really understand. But I don't consider it a burden. It's just something I gotta live with."

The combination of Foyt's lack of success at Indianapolis in the past few years — he last won in 1977, finished second in 1979 and has ranged from 13th to 31st since.

Pro-Am gallery tickets are now on sale for Shriners

Gallery tickets are now on sale for golf fans, football fans, country music fans or just plain fans hoping to catch the sites at this year's Signal Peak Shriners Pro-Am Golf Tournament scheduled for May 25-26 at the Big Spring Country Club.

Tickets are priced at $5 and can be purchased at Skipper Travel, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce or any radio station within the city.

A parade Wednesday, May 23 at 4 p.m. will get things kicked off. The parade will assemble in front of Big Spring Savings, continue up Third Street and back to Gregg St. Practice rounds for the 53, six-man teams will also be held on Wednesday and play begins in earnest on Thursday, May 24 at 8:30 a.m.

Each team will be made up of one club professional from the Big Spring area plus a celebrity and four amateurs. All proceeds from the tourney go toward the Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children and Russell Erxleben's Benefit for Steve Little. Erxleben helped lineup the celebrity talent last year and decided to combine his benefit for Little with this year's Shriners event.

In addition to Erxleben, several members of the New Orleans Saints team and coaching staff are expected to attend, including head coach and general manager Bum Phillips.

Dallas Cowboys All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White and ex-Cowboy linebacker D.D. Lewis reportedly will be on hand for the tourney.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when a very great deal can be accomplished if you are careful to not be over-extravagant or to allow some personal prejudice to take over and control you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You get a flood of ideas that should be weeded out and the best of such utilized to your advantage.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A partner may have an eye on your mate, but don't quarrel over it and all will be fine. Find a better way of handling your debts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't be so concerned with work that you fail to gain a big favor from one who is generous in the outside world.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Ideal day for handling tasks you have agreed to do, but don't run off on any tangents. Be careful of your comments.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to enjoy entertainments that you like without family interference. Forget that home work that is not important.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be happy at home and don't let some outsider try to interfere with your pleasure. Invite charming persons to visit you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day for communicating well with associates and don't allow some monetary worry to deter you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Financial affairs are best handled during the daytime but concentrate more on acquiring than spending. Take it easy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do whatever is best to improve your well being even though some duties could be boring. Be happy and satisfied.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to see an advisor and make fine plans for the future. Don't permit a friend to take you away from the practical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Fine day for being with good friends and enjoying them. Get away from career pressures for awhile to regain equilibrium.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle vocational and credit affairs first and do not go off on some tangent. A powerful individual can give you the support you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to travel and study new philosophies, new interests, etc., and should have the opportunity to go to college and learn foreign languages in order to make a big success. One who can get along well with others.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, who claims he is a victim of religious and racial bigotry, is under orders to surrender on June 18 to begin serving an 18-month prison sentence for tax evasion.

The Supreme Court on Monday rejected an appeal by the Korean-born leader of the Unification Church, clearing the way for his imprisonment.

But Moon's lawyer, Harvard professor Laurence H. Tribe, says he hasn't given up. Tribe said he will return to a lower court to introduce new, unspecified evidence that he said could help overturn Moon's conviction.

'I am a victim of religious bigotry and racism.'
— Rev. Sun Myung Moon

Meanwhile, U.S. Attorney Rudolph W. Giuliani in New York City said, "We have notified his (Moon's) lawyer that his surrender date will be June 18."

Moon has been free on bail pending the outcome of his appeal and is living at a church-owned estate in Tarrytown, N.Y.

Takeru Kamiyama, an associate convicted with Moon and sentenced to six months in prison for conspiring to file false tax returns, also lost his appeal to the Supreme Court.

The court, without a recorded dissent, left intact an appeals court ruling that Moon received a fair trial.

Moon was sentenced to prison and fined $25,000 in 1982 after a federal jury in New York City, following a six-week trial, found him guilty of evading taxes on $162,000 in income from both a bank account and an importing business.

He also was convicted of conspiring to file false tax returns.

Moon argued he was prosecuted as a criminal because of his religious teachings. He said he was a victim of "religious bigotry and racism."

Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said he was "saddened, distressed and perturbed" at the court's refusal to hear Moon's appeal.

He called Monday's action "a serious assault on religious liberty and an ominous threat to constitutional rights of the church."

Lowery said many religious denominations, especially "small churches and black churches," feature the same administrative and financial practices as those that played a role in Moon's prosecution.

John Baker, a lawyer for the Baptist Joint Committee who said his organization "does not look on the Unification Church with favor," added: "We lament the government intrusion into church affairs and its efforts to decide for the church whether money is or is not being spent on church activities."

Tribe, Moon's attorney, said previously that public antipathy to the Korean evangelist prevented the religious leader from arguing effectively that he was managing millions of dollars in church funds rather than maintaining personal bank accounts that should be taxed as individual assets.

Tribe said the jury was "predisposed to view Rev. Moon as a 'charlatan' running a 'cult' for his own profit."

Moon claimed he was entitled to be tried by a judge rather than a jury. The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected that argument last September.

In other actions Monday, the court: —Ruled 5-4 in a Virginia case that individuals may sue judges to prevent or halt questionable policies and practices, and that judges may be forced to pay the legal fees of some people who win such lawsuits.

—Shielded administrators of state lawyer-licensing tests from potentially costly federal antitrust suits. The court's 4-3 ruling in an Arizona case is a blow to people who claim they failed a bar exam because administrators tried to limit the number of licensed lawyers.

Weight control help available

Obesity, weight control and good nutrition will be discussed at the Big Spring Health Fair May 19 at the Big Spring Mall. The booth will be sponsored by West Texas Dietetics Association, the Family Living Committee and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Visitors will be weighed and wrist measurements will be taken to determine frame size. Local dietitians will provide information and the ideal weight for each person and will give tips on how to achieve ideal weight.

Maintaining proper body weight is a matter of balancing food intake with energy output. A pound of body fat equals 3,500 calories. To lose weight, a person must reduce his food intake by 500 calories a day. This will reduce the weekly food intake by 3,500 calories and should result in the loss of one pound per week if activity level is kept the same. To attempt to lose weight too fast puts too much stress on the body and increases risk of illness.

To gain weight a person needs to increase food intake. An increase of 500 calories per day (3,500 per week) should result in the gain of one pound per week if activity remains the same.

Good nutrition is important. Everyone should eat two servings from the milk group each day, as well as two servings from the meat group; four fruits and vegetables; and four breads and cereals.
