Celebrities stalk tournament

"It was like a five-ring circus," said a tournament official after picking up, delivering and checking in approximately 30 celebrities in town for the Signal Peak Shriners Pro-Am and Russell Erxleben Benefit for Steve Little Golf Tournament. Celebrities and professional golfers arrived yesterday and participated in a variety of activities kicking off the event, which officially got underway at 8:30 a.m.

ARRIVED IN MIDLAND A crew left Big Spring about 10 a.m. Wednesday to meet three planes at the Midland Regional Air Terminal. A sign hanging in the airport saying "Big Spring Pro-Am Golf Tournament Area" attracted numerous observers curious about all the hoopla. They left impressed.

Arriving first were Ron and Gerry Little of Rockwall (parents of Steve Little), Nashville countrywestern singer Lloyd Blanton and El Paso bootmaker and former Big Springer T.O. Stanley.

The New Orlean Saints players and staff, led by Erxleben, arrived next. Following them were Grand Ole Opry singer Charlie Walker and eight country songwriters, including Bruce Channel, Sonny Throckmorton, Cliff Cochran and Jimmy Pasquale.

It was a madhouse while the officials were trying to round up celebrities and their luggage, feed them and get them into the proper vehicles. For the celebrities it was like a reunion. They caught up on old times, talked golf and about the Earl Campbell Tournament in Houston last weekend.

Even though so much effort was spent in arranging first class treatment, one observer made the comment. "We shouldn't forget who all See PRO-AM page 2-A

Police, DA set up liaison for drug cases

RICK TURNER ...police chief

The Big Spring Police Department and the district attorney's office said they have named a liaison officer to improve communications between the two offices.

The officer is police Sgt. Bill Price, director of narcotics investigations and a member of the crimes against people division.

Two members of The Chemical People project, Jo Ann Guitar and Cindy Marshall, met recently with District Attorney Rick Hamby to discuss drug arrests made during the past two years that were not prosecuted by the DA.

Hamby said Mrs. Marshall, who formerly worked in a district attorney's office, suggested a liaison officer between the DA's office and police Chief Rick Turner

Hamby said he told Mrs. Marshall he had asked the City Council for a liaison officer several years ago but had been turned down because of problems in funding the office.

He said Turner agreed to appoint an officer. Additional funding will not be necessary because the position will become part of the officer's job description.

Price said, "We'll understand over here what he (Hamby) needs to present the cases to the grand jury to get a conviction. The problems that we've had in the past center around search warrants and case preparation, and now that we can sit down on a oneto-one basis and discuss what we need and don't need, that will end," Price said.

Hamby said, "We want to educate where education is needed in so far to what the fundamental duties of a law enforcement investigation must be...and we're certainly willing to be educated in areas where we're deficient.'

Price and Lt. Jerry Edwards said the only area of contention between the police and DA is over the number of drug arrests that later prove to be invalid because the suspect does not have a controlled substance in his possession at the time of arrest.

Both policemen said the officer in the field has no way of knowing if a suspected substance is illegal. A new law now makes it illegal to carry items resembling illegal drugs, they said.

"That, plus the input of the DA's office, will end this problem also,'

Reporter returns for 1st grade finale

The once new pencil boxes are now scarred and without lids. The crayons, so pointed and fresh on the first day, are nubs. The crisp tennis shoes and blue jeans are scruffed and faded.

Yes, all the signs are there. School is almost out. I knew I had to return. At the first of this year I visited Mrs. Linda Davis' first grade class at Washington Elementary School to relive the experience of the first day of school. With the year's end fast approaching, I became curious as to the progress of my classmates. Finally the suspense became too much and I broke my year-long spell of hooky to visit my friends. I was welcomed back into the fold with no questions asked. I was even permitted to sit by my old deskmate, Matthew Yeats. Matthew told me on the first day he thought we were working a bit too hard. He had expected things to start slowly. He was still complaining about the work.

'It's been a rough year and lots of hard work," Matthew whispered to me.

"But don't you think hard work makes you think and learn," I asked.

'What's the most important thing you've learned this year, Matthew? "I learned how to work hard."

Matthew, you learned well. Stevie Daughtery said her greatest accomplishment was learning how to read; however, she won't mind taking a break from reading. 'Are you going to practice reading over the summer," I asked. "Three months is a long time, you might forget how."

'I'll take a chance," Stevie said.

Most of my classmates expressed pride in finishing the first grade, which they feel is the longest step on the road to education.

However, while my friends do put a lot of stock in their first grade learning, they also feel the need to further their educations. "I imagine you could learn it all by the third grade," Augustin Gaitan said. "Maybe even the Most of us adults are aware of the education reforms being swatted around by various politicians

I guess that means Mrs. Davis will have to hold me

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) -Texas environmentalists and public officials cheered a decision by the Environmental Protection Agency to deny offshore toxic waste incineration permits that would have allowed tons of waste to be dumped off the state coast.

"This is a great victory," said Connie Reisinger, spokeswoman for the Gulf Coast Coalition for Public Health, a group representing some of the most vocal opponents of offshore incineration.

"It shows we really do have a voice in government and that government will listen. But the issue of ocean incineration is far from closed."

In denying ocean incineration permits to Chemical Waste Management Inc. of Oakbrook, Ill., EPA assistant administrator Jack Ravan said the agency would be conducting additional research and considering other offshore sites for future waste disposal.

The EPA plan would have allowed the burning of 3.3 million tons of toxic wastes on two ships 195 miles off the Texas coast.

More than 6,000 people attended EPA hearings in Brownsville last November to express opposition to the plan, including commercial and sport fishermen, farmworkers, tourist industry groups, doctors, representatives from the states of Alabama and Texas and environmentalists.

EPA officials said the hearing was the largest such meeting on an environmental issue in a decade. Attorney General Jim Mattox.

who said he had sued EPA in November for going ahead with hearings before making public their criteria for ocean incinerations, said he was happy with the EPA's decision.

Private lives

PEKING (AP) — Chinese leaders rarely offer a public glimpse of their private lives, but in a break from tradition, Premier Zhao Ziyang revealed to reporters that he jogs in the morning, appreciates his wife's flowers and argues at the dinner table.

The 64-year-old premier discussed his home life Wednesday at a news conference for Chinese and Western European journalists prior to embarking on a six-nation European tour next week. Excerpts were reported by the official news agency

Zhao said he got married during China's war against Japan in the 1930s, and has four sons and one daughter. Four of them are married and he has three grandchildren, he said.

"So I have a big family in Peking, which is in line with China's tradition," he said. "But there is no patriarchy in my family. We often argue at the table and sometimes have different views. But that does not matter. Each may reserve his

Guardsmen convicted

ZACATECOLUCA, El Salvador (AP) - A jury today convicted five former national guardsmen of killing four American churchwomen, reaching its verdict in the 3 1/2-year-old case after an allnight court session.

The five-member jury deliberated one hour before reaching its verdict. The guardsmen had been taken back to their jail cells and were not in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

The presiding judge, Bernardo Rauda Murcia. told reporters he has 15 days starting Friday to sentence the men, who face up to 30 years in prison. He then presents the sentence to the defense, which can appeal it but cannot appeal the verdict, he said

The verdict, together with the May 6 election of moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte as president, could help sway the U.S. Congress toward more aid for El Salvador in its 4 1/2-year-old war against leftist guerrilas. Congress has withheld $19 million in military aid pending a verdict.

Iraq said its warplanes today attacked and hit two naval targets southeast of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal in the Persian Gulf, less than 24 hours after Iraq's president vowed to tighten his blockade of the port.

The official Iraqi news agency quoted a military spokesman in Baghdad as saying two "big" vessels were "accurately and effectively but did not identify the stricken ships.

The use of the word "monkeys," a code word for cocaine, is the closest De Lorean comes to directly mentioning drugs in the tapes.

'It's very clear that John De Lorean referred to cocaine," Weitzman said in an emotional press room appearance after the tape was played.

"Isn't anyone concerned with whether it's proper for the government to do what it did here?" the attorney asked. "This case makes me outraged.'

In court Wednesday, Walsh also played 36 audio tapes recorded during the government's "sting" operation targeting De Lorean.

The secetly recorded phone conversations vividly depicted De Lorean's escalating anxiety over money and his willingness to talk with a drug dealer, Hoffman, sometimes six times in one day.

The Sakharovs' ideals won't die

During his 41 months of internal exile, Andrei Sakharov has remained a conspicuous symbol of courage in the Orwellian nightmare that is the Soviet Union. But the 62-year-old physicist's days may be numbered as he continues a hunger strike to protest the government's persecution of his ailing

On May 2, Dr. Sakharov promised to stop eating until Soviet authorities permit Yelena Bonner-Sakharov to leave the country for several weeks to seek special medical treatment that is unavailable in the Soviet Union. Ten days later, she joined his "fast until the very end."

The 61-year-old woman has already suffered three heart attacks and lost the sight of one eye. The Kremlin, however, has not only denied Mrs. Bonner-Sakharov an exit visa, it has charged her with "anti-Soviet activities." Her so-called crime is that she has served as the sole link between her husband and his many friends and colleagues in the scientific community who revere him as the conscience of humanity.

His credentials are impeccable. During the early 1960s, Dr. Sakharov was one of the few Soviet scientists to protest aboveground testing of nuclear weapons. The next decade saw him help launch the human-rights movement in the Soviet Union. In 1975, he was awarded the Nobel Prize for his efforts in behalf of fellow dissidents.

Soon thereafter, the Kremlin stripped Dr. Sakharov of his scientific awards, imprisoned and exiled many of his friends, and then forced his grandchildren and stepchildren to emigrate to the United States. When this harassment failed to silence his calls for social justice, he was banished in January 1980 to the closed city of Gorky, some 260 miles east of Moscow, where he remains under house arrest. To date, no charges have been brought against him, and the government has refused his repeated demands for a public trial. Instead, the Kremlin has waged a psychological war of attrition against him, hoping to break his spirit.

The communists are bound to fail because they underestimate the strength of the Sakharovs' spirit and the extent to which they are willing to pursue their principles. This courageous couple may starve to death rather than submit to Soviet repression; but their ideals will never die.

Color me Winter

Do you find that people ignore you when you come into a room? Are you one of those who is constantly being interviewed for jobs and never get them; or if you do have a job, you're the last one to be promoted? Is it possible that when you are trying to be admitted to a. good school, the admissions direcyou sit down?

The reason for all these snubs could be that you aren't "color coordinated." Your choice of colors, when it comes to clothing, may turn off the very people you're try-

How do I know this? I was just given a complete evaluation last week by a color coordinator from the firm "Color Me Beautiful," owned by Carole Jackson, who wrote the best-selling book.

My color coordinator was Diane Vlahovich, who works with large corporations advising their employees what colors to wear to make a better impression on their clients. It's turning into a big business. Miss Vlahovich had been hired by the Shearson American Express brokerage firm, which was holding a convention in Hawaii for its top salespeople. Even though these brokers had exceeded their sales quotas, Shearson brass felt they could do even better if their people improved their "Color Me Beautiful" experts break down people's skin undertones in to four seasons, "Spring," "Summer," "Fall" and "Winter." The secret of sartorial splendor is to wear the colors that fit the tones of your skin.

Miss Vlahovich took one look at my face and told me I was a "winter" person. This, she assured me, was nothing to be ashamed of. Other "winter" people included Dick Van Dyke, Rock Hudson, Gary Hart and Richard Nixon. Our problem, if we have a problem, is that we can never wear brown or yellow, because it clashes with our

I know she was right because every time I wear my hot turquoise sport jacket with shocking pink pants, no one will talk to me. Only a summer person like Dustin Hoffman in drag could get away with an outfit like that.

Miss Vlahovich told me, "You can either give a powerful image or a weak one, depending on what you're wearing. Also, if you are dressed in the wrong colors you subconsciously feel depressed. But if you have on the right ones you'll feel great, and therefore have much more confidence in yourself.

Once again I knew she was speaking truth. The evening before, I wore a lemon yellow Hawaiian shirt decked out with orange birds of paradise, and true red slacks, and brown moccasins. I felt awful and so did all the people around me. I thought it was the food, but those brokers who had already been evaluated by the 'Color Me Beautiful" consultants didn't have the heart to tell me I was in the wrong season for so-meone with my golden undertones.

What I learned from my hour with Miss Vlahovich is that if I wanted to really climb the ladder of success I must stick to charcoal grays, Navy blues, icy pinks, aquas and violets, though we "winter" people also give off very good vibes in magenta, fuchsia and royal purples, providing we don't use them to excess.

"Don't follow Reagan," she warned me. "He's an autumn person, and he can wear a lot of colors you can't."

"How about Paul Newman?" "Stay away from Paul Newman. You just don't have the skin or blue eyes to get away with the colors he can."

"That's funny," I said. "You're the fifth person who's told me that this week."

Jack Anderson

Army would rather spend than fix

WASHINGTON - I've cited evidence in the past that the Army would rather spend money on fancy new hardware than on making their existing equipment safe. So hundreds of GIs have died in accidents that might have been prevented

A case in point is the Army's workhorse helicopter, the venerable OH-58. My associate Donald Goldberg has seen the Army's internal safety records on the chopper, and they are disturb-ing. While the brass hats bicker over what to do about the OH-58, accidents keep happening, and they're often fatal.

According to the Army's own exts, the problem with the helicopter is that it has an alarmin tendency to lose power in the tail rotor while operating at low speeds and low altitudes. This is most likely to happen during takeoffs and landings. When the tail rotor's power goes, the OH-58 spins out of control and crashes.

This fatal drawback should have been no surprise to the Army. "The marginal effectiveness of the OH-58 tail rotor was documented through developmental testing prior to acceptance of the helicopter by the Army," one internal document states. But apparently no one regarded this as a serious problem at the time. From 1980 through 1982, the

Army's OH-58 choppers were involved in 47 accidents, resulting in four deaths and 11 major injuries. Of the 47 accidents, 34 began at altitudes lower that 100 feet, and 25 of these were due to either tail rotor or engine problems.

But the brass mysteriously delayed spending the several hundred million dollars that would have corrected the problem. Safety experts, in an "eyes only" response, cleared up the mystery, if not the problem. Allocating funds to make the OH-58 safe, the cable explained, would be "contrary to the aviation community's conscious decision to buy new assets at the expense of product-improving our current fleet."

In other words, the "aviation community" would rather buy new helicopters than make the old OH-58s safe. If the Army stalled long enough, maybe Congress yould give it money for new ones.

Understandably, this candid admission was not supposed to be spread around. The cable warned: 'No reference should be made to this message in other...channels."

Evidently in hopes of justifying the delay in making the helicopters safe to operate, the cable continued: "A careful review of OH-58 accidents...shows that pilot error was the primary cause 78 percent of the time. Admittedly, loss of tail rotor effectiveness was a contributing cause in 38 percent of the ... accidents."

Blaming the pilot was easy enough, since the Army admits that there is little or no margin for error in the OH-58. Anything short of perfection could lead to disaster. But the Pentagon Pollyannas suggested that such superhuman pilot performance was simply "a matter of training, discipline and leadership.'

So instrtuctions were wired to all commands using the OH-58 that it should not be flown at less than 35 knots when at altitudes below 500 feet unless absolutely necessary. As several commands were quick to point out, pilots were already painfully aware of this. Footnote: Belatedly, the Army has embarked on a $2 billion effort to give the aging OH-58s new engines, rotor systems and electronic gear. The program will be completed in 1989; the aging OH-58 will be phased out by the year 2000.

FAST FOR LIFE: I've reported before on the dubious evidence used to convict American Indian Movement leader Leonard Peltier for murder in the deaths of two FBI agents during a 1975 shootout on the Pine Ridge reservation in South Dakota. Affidavits by an Indian woman were self-contradictory, and the FBI allegedly doctored

The Indian leader recently won an evidentiary hearing to determine whether a new trial is warranted because of the challenged ballistics evidence. But it may come too late for Peltier.

In mid-April, Peltier and two other prisoners began a hunger strike at the federal pen in Marion, Ill., where Peltier was sent to serve two consecutive life sentences.

Sister's Day

Recently I read a story about a Rod David, 18, of Tucumcari, N.M., who killed himself because of the pressure he was put under to excel. He was a special case, but I believe there is a certain amount of pressure put on every child who has to live up to the standards of an older sibling — a pressure that shouldn't be there. Every individual is different, even when there are several similiarities. With this in mind, I pay tribute to my younger and only sister.

They don't have a Sister's Day? Well, how about a Sister of the Year award? No! Shucks, I was going to nominate my sister, Karen.

I think I have a pretty neat sister. She has survived 19 years of trying to live down the fact that she is my sister. Unfortunately, Karen has had to follow in my footsteps very closely because she was only a year behind me in school. Something that is nearly impossible because she isn't me.

We went to the same elementary school, junior high school and high school. We were involved in the same activities. We had the same teachers

I don't think people mean to, but unconsciously they compare siblings to one another. They don't see them as individuals but as a package deal. I know how Karen use to dread the words, "So you're Rhonda Woodall's little sister? She was a good student. I expect you to do as well as she did." She had to grin and bear the torture. If it had been me I would have screamed.

We come from a competitive family, which made it hard on her. I set high standards in school that she was expected to duplicate. Not from our parents, but from teachers. She had a hard time living up to their expectations. I was better in English and history. She was better in math and science. Most of the time her grades equalled mine, which was good enough Secretly, I was always proud of her when she did better in something than I had. It meant she had achieved something new. Or even better yet, she excelled in a field I hadn't bother to investigate.

One thing about us is that we are as different as day and night. An example is that I don't like to act silly around strangers. However, Karen is another story. She is a live wire. Because of her and her friends, I have friends that I would have never even spoken to on my

Also, while I have patience, Karen can be very impatient. I can spend hours drawing a picture or embroidering a quilt. She used to become angry after drawing for five minutes if it wasn't exactly like she wanted it. For a long time Karen thought it was unfair that could draw and she couldn't. think she finally realized that no everyone has the same talents While I thrive on creativity, she i scientific.

All seven children worked as pickers in fields and orchards around Portland. "My parents taught us the work ethic," Mrs. Lewis said. "They taught us that you can always make money doing something, and no matter what you do, you have to be proud of it and do it the best way you can."

But school was not easy for her, and the other students regarded her as an outcast.

"It's hard to describe how it feels when every kid knows what's going on and you don't," she said. "The hostility, the anger builds up.

"I started getting in a lot of trouble, skipping school, hanging out with a group of wild kids, drinking, rebelling." She spent two years in a reform school, where she was labeled incorrigible and retarded, she said.

Then, after being picked up in a stolen car at age 16, she was sent to the Hillcrest state reformatory in Salem, Ore. It was the turning point in her life, she said.

"A counselor — Karen Barr took an interest in me and got me into the Upward Bound program,' a federally funded tutoring program for low-income teen-agers. 'The counselors there told me I could do it, worked with me 16 hours a day and went all out to help me," she said. "I finally grasped reading and writing.'

In 1967, after getting her high school equivadncy diploma, she was flown to Washington, D.C., to meet President Lyndon Johnson.

The following year, unmarried at age 18, she became pregnant. Two years later, while giving birth to her second child, she suffered a stroke and dropped from 160 pounds to 82 pounds, she said. After months of coaching by her father, she regained her ability to speak and write, she said.

She decided to try for medical school after working for a few years at odd jobs, including a stint packing rations for soldiers in Vietnam. In 1972, she went on welfare and enrolled in Mount Hood Community College in Gresham, Ore. While working for her two-year degree, she took in seven foster children — partly because she got paid for it, and partly because 'they were kids on their last step before the reformatory, and I didn't want them to go through what I did.'

While at Mount Hood, she met her husband, David Lewis, in a karate class. He told her a story about how, when he was writing for a military newspaper in Vietnam, he heard of soldiers unrolling their toilet paper to find notes of encouragement signed "Love.

"He couldn't believe it when I told him it was me who wrote those notes," she said with a highpitched giggle

She married Lewis in 1978, moved to Yonkers, N.Y., and earned her bachelor's degree in biology at Herbert H. Lehman College in the Bronx. Then she was accepted to Albany Medical College.

"When Albany picks a student, they really work to make you succeed," she said. "My first year was unbearable - I was facing repeating biochemistry, physiology and pharmacology. But they provided tutors and gave me

Overactive adrenals

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please let me know if it is possible to have an overactive adrenal gland. I have had a very rapid pulse and heartbeat as well as severe throbbing of blood vessels in the back of my head. I have been tested and my thyroid gland is not overactive. It is very difficult to live with this situation. Any advice you can give me would be appreciated. - K.J.K.

Sure, it's possible to have overactive adrenal glands. Different areas of those glands make different hormones, and any of those areas can become hyperactive and overproduce.

The outer part can produce too much cortisone. Blood pressure rises, the face becomes quite full, and muscles feel weak. That illness is called Cushing's disease, which I've discussed on other occasions. Another gland area may make too much aldosterone. That's another blood-pressure-elevating substance. It also causes potassium lose.

Protective summer eyewear from TSO.

However, I think, from reading your letter, that you are talking about overproduction of still another hormone, adrenalin, which is made in the inner part of the glands. That illness is pheochromocytoma. With this, blood pressure rises also and there are headaches, profuse sweating, and a feeling of the heart beating peculiarly. Blood and urine can be tested for adrenalin levels and the CAT scan will tell if the inner part of the gland is enlarged. The symptoms you report are certainly worthy of investigation, whether or not the fault lies in your adrenals.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual

Michael L. Salazar, Specialist I at Big Spring State Hospital, was named Psychiatric Aide of the Year by the Mental Health Association in Texas. Bob von Rosenberg, BSSH assistant superintendent, presented the award to Salazar at BSSH Alcohol Drug Abuse Unit, May 16.

Nominations for the Psychiatric Aide of the Year award were solicited from patients, their families, personnel and volunteers at Big Spring State Hospital. The award recognizes the contribution made by psychiatric aides in providing direct services to patients. In terms of human support and understanding, the psychiatric worker makes an inestimable contribution to the care of the patient. Frequently the aide or attendant is the person who has the closest daily contact with the patient and can

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the man I've been dating exclusively for nearly a year. He's been divorced for nine years and I've been divorced for a year. I'm 37 and he's 40. He is also my doctor. I switched to him about a year ago. He says he "cares for me" and needs me, but he never says, "I love you." (I tell him I love him constantly.) He has told me that his practice will always come first and he doesn't want to be pushed. His favorite expression is, "I need my space."

We live 50 miles apart, and I always have to drive to his place because he's always busy, his time is so valuable and he's too tired to drive. I am very much in love with him and will take him on his terms and he knows it.

What hurts me more than anything is that he charges me for my visits to his office. He has a thriving practice and doesn't need the money. Why do you suppose he does this? Should I hang in there, Abby? I want to be his wife.

DOCTOR'S SLAVE DEAR SLAVE: Perhaps he doesn't want his office employees to know that he is seeing you outside of the office. As for "hanging in there," I think you're about as close to marriage with this man as you're ever going MAYA TOMB — Workmen lower a ladder into the May tomb in the Rio Azul complex in Guatemala.

Guards stand at the site to prevent looting.

Researcher stumbles into tomb

WASHINGTON (AP) - For 1,500 years the man had lain in his circular tomb, surrounded by paintings of his time, an arm's length from the fine pottery that held food for his journey through eternity.

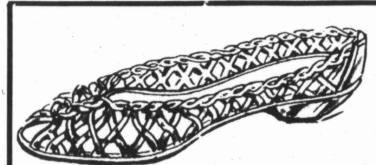

Time seemed to leave the chamber undisturbed; looters never found it. Then, last week, an archaeologist's assistant put his foot through the roof and almost fell into the tomb.

Now, with great joy about their remarkable discovery, scientists are confident that the vault near the Rio Azul in northeastern Guatemala is a find of great historical significance.

"I was so thrilled when I saw this, I started crying," said George E. Stuart, chief archaeologist of the National Geographic Society, which helped pay for the expedition.

Inside the tomb, the first such find in the area in 20 years, were an intact skeleton, 15 ceramic vessels, and several carved jade beads. The paintings on the limestone walls dated the burial between 450 and 500 A.D., a period of the advanced Maya Indian civilization of which very little is known.

The archaeologists knew the remains were those of a male; the spine of a stingray was in the pelvic area. Mayas believed in bloodletting and the stingray probably was a prized possession.

Break out the mourning veils — the third nail has been driven into the sports editor's casket and he's as good as

If you read last Sunday's Sports Nabourhood then you know about the 1984 Official Big Spring Summer Olympic Games. Well, the shark (Karen Bellinghausen) devoured the goldfish (when last seen, the sports editor was seen belly up in the YMCApool) in swim competition earlier this week leaving the sports department down 3-0. The only thing to salvage is pride at this point when racquetballand pool appear on the list of events — and it's up to yours truly to give the overall Olympic series to the sports department when I thrash staff photographer Tim Appel in video competition.

4444 All you rodeo fans get ready, because it's time for the 51st Annual Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion slated for June 27-30 in the Rodeo Bowl.

The annual fete is sponsored by the Big Spring Rodeo Association and this year's stock contractor is Mack Altizer of Sonora, a young and aggressive rodeo producer, according to a spokesman from the BSRA.

Veteran announcer Tom Hadley, who has announced more Big Spring rodeos than anyone else, will be at the microphone. The crowd can get plenty of laugh from Quail Dobbs and his exploding car and the clown chores of bullfighters Kirby Burney and and "The Ragin Cajun" Rick Young.

Some of the best cowboys in the country will be competing for $7,000 in added prize money, making this year's rodeo one of the top 50 PRCA Rodeos in the United States and Canada.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children. Box seats are $50.00, starting time each night is 8:30. A Main Street Parade at 4 p.m. Wednesday, June 27 will begin the rodeo activties.

 Colorado City basketball star Laura Baum has indicated that she is leaning towards Hardin-Simmons University to continue her basketball career.

It would be a good catch for the Abilene school as the 5-8 guard is one of the best shooters in West Texas. She led the Lady Wolves in scoring this season with a 21 point average while connecting on nearly 50 percent of her shots from the floor. She was named to the District 6-3A All-District squad, Mitchell County's Most Valuable Player and the All-Region squad.

Switching to the fishing news - Don Parsons of Abilene captured top honors in the Lamesa Jaycees' Open Bass Tournament May 12 at Lake J.B. Thomas.

Parsons caught three fish at a total weight of 18 pounds. The tourney drew 62 fishermen. Parsons also had the largest single bass, weighing seven pounds and seven ounces.

Other anglers that placed were Jerry Dudley of Big Spring, 11 pounds and five ounces and Coleen Swan of Colorado City whose catches totaled 10 pounds and five ounces.

Crappie fishing was good on minnows and jigs at the lake, black bass on minnows and jigs, and white bass trolling. Some Lake Thomas catches included Jim Perry of Ackerly, 20 crappie, up to two pounds on minnows, and five black bass weighing up to four pounds.

Little's hurt helped strengthen parents

By BILLY NABOURS Sports Editor

For Ron and Gerry Little the past three and one half years haven't been easy ones, but at the same time the Rockwall couple admits they have gained some inner strength in that time.

The Littles are the parents of former University of Arkansas and St. Louis Cardinal kicker Steve Little who was left paralyzed in an automobile accident in October of 1980. Part of the proceeds from this year's Signal Peak Pro-Am will benefit Steve of course with the rest going towards the Shriners Hospitals.

arose from Russell Erxleben's concern for his friend since the two became very close in the mid-70's when they formed part of a record setting SWC trio that also included Texas A&M great Tony Franklin. Franklin was invited to play in this vear's Pro-Am, but Erxleben and the Littles said Franklin is in the process of making the transition and move from the Philadelphia Eagles to the New England Patriots - he was traded earlier in the year - and was unable to attend.

According to Mrs. Little, however the attitudes shown by Erxleben and Franklin towards her son are those shown by true friends and not the fabricated fodder that has appeared in some newspaper and magazine articles.

"What has appeared in some articles about Steve, Tony and Russell not liking each other is not said Gerry. "I'm just thankful for someone like Russell who wants to help in any way he can," she added.

Although they now live in the Dallas suburb of Rockwall, the Littles are not native Texans

Mr. Little serves in an executive capacity with Caterpillar Tractor and Equipment Company. At the time of Steve's career with Arkansas the couple lived in Laurel, New Jersey. They moved there after Steve graduated from high school in Overland Park, Kansas.

After the accident that paralyzed the young man from the waist down, "Ron requested a move to anywhere in the southwest so we can be close to Steve in Litle Rock," said Gerry

STEVE'S OUTLOOK HELPS Both parents admitted that they felt helpless at first when they learned of their youngest son's condition after his accident, but both were in accord when they said, "Steve's outlook helped us more than we ever helped him." Ron added, "Steve has been able to adjust real well and that's helped us and the rest of the family." Older brother Gene Little also lives in Little Rock where he works for Olan Chemical

"Oh, we've asked him to move in with us," said Ron. "But he has to live his life the way he thinks best," he added.

Gerry and Ron say Steve spends a good deal of his time on speaking engagements offering encouragement to young people who feel they have all the burdens of the world

too many Pro-Am type events other than Erxleben's tournament because as Ron said, "I'm a lousy golfer.

The Littles live in the Shores subdivision in Rockwall and have a golf course as a backyard, but Ron added, "That doesn't make us better golfers. We played the other day and Gerry tied me with a 103."

HC inks Barry

from Westfield Howard College Hawk Queens coach Don Stevens announced his fifth signing earlier this week when he inked Spring Westfield standout Kim Barry to a basketball scholarship. Barry, at 5-8, can play foreward or guard and will bring some solid credentials to the HC campus this

Barry lettered two years at Westfield, located in the Spring ISD near Houston, and started her senior year when she helped lead the school to the 16-5A crown and an area berth. She averaged 12.5 points per game and eight rebounds a contest as the Mustangs posted a 23-7 record. During her junior year Barry served as the sixthperson off the bench and contributed greatly to a Westfield team that also won district and advanced to the title game at the regional tournament before finishing with a 30-3 mark

She earned first team all-district honors thios past season and was voted the MVP for the Mustangs.

Barry took a tour of the city and HC campus and said, "I think I'll really like Big Spring." She added that knowing curent Hawk Queen Debbie Hall and another HC recruit, Tammy Winsman will help in making the transition from a bustling Greater Houston Area to Big Spring. Hall is from Cypress-Fairbanks and Winsmann played in the same district as Barry while Winsman was at Conroe Mc-Cullough. She said the trio will probably workout a lot at Rice and the University of Houston this

Barry plans to start working towards a degree plan in advertising when she begins her post-high school and basketball career.

Celtics gunning for 15th title

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird led a balanced attack with 21 points as the Boston Celtics, gunning for their 15th National Basketball Association title, moved into the final round of the playoffs Wednesday night with a 115-108 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Celtics led most of the way in the fifth game as they wrapped up the Eastern Conference final series 4-1. They will meet the winner of the Western Conference finals between Los Angeles and Phoenix in another best-of-seven-game match for the NBA crown.

Suns burn LA to stay alive

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) Something funny happened to the Los Angeles Lakers on their way to Boston and Sunday's National Basketball Association championship series opener against the Celtics.

The Phoenix Suns, given up for dead in the Western Conference final, played a suburb game Wednesday night to ambush the Lakers 126-121 and trim Los Angeles' lead in the best-of-seven series to 3-2.

The Lakers still can keep the date Sunday in Boston, but they must win Friday night in Phoenix, where the Suns already have dealt them one defeat in the series. A seventh Suns-Lakers game, if necessary, would be back at the Forum on Sunday afternoon.

'There was no tomorrow for us,' said the Suns' Walter Davis, who pumped in 27 points and had 10 assists in Wednesday's upset. "We had a job to do and we just went out and aid it."

Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley did not seem particularly disheartened by the loss, saying, "I still feel very confident about this thing. Our team has been down this road before. I feel good about our ability to get the job done, whether it's in Phoenix on Friday or here on Sunday."

The Suns never trailed, but they did have to stave off a rally by the Lakers in the waning moments of the contest. Los Angeles, which went into the final period down 100-87, came roaring back to pull to within 120-119 on James Worthy's layup with 53 seconds remaining.

Davis then hit a jumper, Bob McAdoo sank one of his own for Los Angeles, then Maurice Lucas - firing with one second left on the shot clock - made a 20-footer to give the Suns a 124-121 pad. McAdoo's three-point attempt missed, and the Suns' Kyle Macy made a pair of free throws to finish the scoring.

Macy, who had 20 points and 12 assists, said, "We're not out of the hole yet, but we have them on our court now. All five Phoenix starters scored 20 points or more. Larry Nance had 25, Maurice Lucas 23 and James Edwards 20 for the Suns, who hit 60.7 percent of their floor shots to the Lakers' 53.1 percent.

first quarter to grab a 62-52 halftime lead. The Bucks cut the margin to 70-63 before Boston took command with a flashy 13-point burst that gave it a 83-63 bulge with 5:24 left in the third quarter

Dennis Johnson, who had 17 points, started the run with two free throws with 17:42 remaining in the quarter. Gerald Henderson, who added 19, then sank a layup and Robert Parish hit a dunk.

Bird connected on a three-point field goal, Johnson hit a layup and Bird converted an offensive rebound after missing a layup to end the surge

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 25, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a big opportunity today to shake off whatever burdens obsess you and to get into a new frame of mind whereby you can see and understand up-to-date ways of doing things. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you expand in career matters, you can have greater benefits coming to you.

Cultivate those around you. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Pursue whatever is uppermost on your mind and gain your aims with courage and confidence. Stop angling.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make those changes that can lead to greater success and happiness for you. Your intuition can lead you in the right directions. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Gain the assistance of outside contacts so that you have greater benefits in the future.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You get fine ideas that can be most helpful to you and also give you greater knowledge. Contact persons of a different background.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You need a more modern system for handling your affairs so that you get better results, so look for it. Be more alert.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to make new allies with whom you can agree easily and get good results in the days ahead. Drive safely

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to decide just how to be more efficient in daily routines and add more spark to them. Listen to ideas of co-workers. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be alert to new and interesting activities that can be just your cup of tea. Plan the weekend well tonight. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make plans for improving home conditions during the week and all can go smoothly. Don't be extravagant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get into the activities that you feel can help you to produce more and get cooperation of your partners.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study practical affairs better and then you can add to current prosperity. Your newspaper can be of much help to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be interested in every kind of project and will like to pioneer into new directions, so be sure to teach to finish one job before going into another one. The mentality here is great.

Dissident movement no longer organized

MOSCOW (AP) - The harsh reaction to the Sakharov Case suggests that Soviet officials are determined to prevent a resurgence of the public dissent that was all but crushed in the late 1970s.

The most prominent dissident leaders have been silenced and laws often used against critics of the regime have been strengthened. The organized, public human rights movement led by famous men and women who "turned dissident" no longer exists.

Yet the handling of Andrei Sakharov's reported hunger strike reflects the concern that Soviet officials still display about the dissident movement.

The Soviet Union has never brooked real opposition to government policies and therefore in the late 1970s, when organized dissent was in its flower, the government began a series of trials that led to the dissolution of the human rights committees

There are still Soviet groups and individuals who speak out against government policy, notably nationalists and religious rights activists in the Soviet Baltic republics. Arrests and trials

But the big names who brought

Soviet dissidents worldwide attention - including Sakharov, Anatoly Shcharansky, Yuri Orlov and Alexander Ginzburg - have been jailed, sent to cities closed to foreigners or silenced in other ways. In 1982, the group established to monitor the 1975 Helsinki accords on human rights ceased its activities when one of its three remaining members - 74-year-old lawyer Sofia Kallistratova — was indicted on anti-Soviet slander charges.

The two other members were Yelena Bonner — Sakharov's wife and Naum Meiman, a 69-yearold mathematician who had been active in the human rights movement for decades.

Now, Mrs. Bonner has been confined to Gorky, the closed city where her husband was sent in January 1980, and reportedly is under investigation on slander charges. Meiman has left the public arena

"All the connections, the old links are gone," a once-active dissident said Wednesday. "It's impossible even to get reliable information about Sakharov," who is said to have started a hunger strike May 2 seeking permission for his wife to get medical treatment abroad.

For 15 years Sakharov has been the symbol of Soviet dissent — a Nobel Peace Prize winner whose stature lent extra credence to the dissident community.

A laureled hero of the scientific world who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb, he was left alone while others were sent to jail until his banishment to Gorky.

Until this month, Mrs. Bonner acted as Sakharov's contact to foreigners by traveling between Gorky and Moscow.

But, in apparent reaction to Sakharov's hunger strike, Soviet authorities have accused her of plotting to use her husband to 'sneak to the West'' and also have accused her of conspiring with U.S. diplomats in anti-Soviet plots.

Swift action also was taken against Irina Kristi, a family

Some former dissident leaders, like scientists Orlov and Shcharansky, were sent to jail or labor camps. Orlov is now in Siberian exile. Others, like writers Ginzburg and Georgi Vladimov, were forced to emigrate. Authorities are still arresting and trying dissidents - in 1983, for example, at least 30 people were arrested or imprisoned on charges ranging from anti-Soviet slander to violating laws restricting religious activities.

But these cases have not involved the artists, scientists and other public figures whose trials at tracted worldwide attention in the

"With the big names gone or in prison, the authorities seem to be focusing on the rest," said a Western diplomat, who did not want to be named.

Should officials decide to take stronger measures against any emerging dissidence, Western diplomats believe a recent series of legal steps give them new weapons.

Tigers set record with 16th consecutive road win

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - For their latest trick, the Detroit Tigers came up with something completely different.

The Tigers had won 33 games this season prior to Wednesday night. But none of them came when they entered the seventh inning tied, a situation in which their record was 0-3.

Detroit's 34th victory broke the mold, as Lance Parrish's two-run homer in the seventh snapped a 2-2 tie and gave the Tigers their 16th consecutive win on the road.
