Q. Where might I write Jerry Mathers, Barbara Billingsley and Tony Dow of the old "Leave it to Beaver" series?

A. All three will be returning in the series this year on the Disney Channel. You might try writing the Disney channel magazine at 4111 Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif., 91505, for more information on their whereabouts.

Calendar: Registration

TODAY

- Overeaters Anonymous meets at 7 p.m. at Dora Roberts Rehab Center.

- Registration for the first summer session at Howard College will be in the Coliseum East Room from 9 a.m. to noon, 1 to 4 p.m., and 6 to 8 p.m.

SATURDAY

- Straight Talk for mothers and daughters meets at 10 a.m. to noon at First Presbyterian Church. Fees are $10 per mother-daughter couple. Call Dianne Murphy at 263-8351 for more information.

Tops on TV: Actors

"The Screen Actors Guild 50th Anniversary Celebration" at 8 p.m. on channel 7 celebrates the actor as a hard worker and dedicated artist. Clark Gable stars with Eleanor Parker in "The King and Four Queens" at 11:05 p.m. on channel 11.

At the movies: Splash

"Sixteen Candles" is showing at the Ritz. Michael Douglas stars in "Romancing the Stone" also showing at the Ritz. Harrison Ford stars in "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" at the Cinema. Also at the Cinema is "Splash" with Tom Hanks and Daryl Hannah.

Outside: Fair

Skies were partly-cloudy today becoming fair this afternoon. Highs was expected to be near 80. Tonight, look for fair skies and lows in the upper 50s. Highs for tomorrow are expected to reach the upper 80s.

Off the wall: Creature crush

BEAUMONT (AP) — If you've got a thing for The Thing, a crush on the Creature from the Black Lagoon, or if Darth Vader is your darling, then Beaumont could someday be the place for you.

Artist R.A. "Hap" Henricksen hopes to make this industrial city home of the National Hall of Fame of Science Fiction and Fantasy.

The museum would be a repository for science fiction literature, films and television shows with displays of science fiction art, movie sets and memorabilia, said Henricksen.

"Robots will conduct the tours," he said.

An 11-member board of directors soon will begin trying to raise $10 million to renovate a building in Beaumont to house the museum, Henricksen said.

"Science fiction and fantasy have millions of fans throughout the country," he said. "If Oklahoma City can have a National Cowboy Hall of Fame, we can have a hall of fame for science fiction and fantasy."

Hance dogs Doggett over Kennedy PAC

EL PASO — Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett has confirmed he got a $5,000 campaign contribution from a political action committee with which U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy is associated.

But the state senator said Monday that the money is not an endorsement. "I'm glad to have the money," Doggett told a news conference in El Paso. "But I don't believe any formal endorsement, as such, has been requested or provided."

With less than a week to go before Saturday's runoff election, the race for the Democratic nomination for retiring Republican John Tower's Senate seat heated up Monday as Doggett and his opponent, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, made campaign swings through the state.

Doggett predicted Monday the final days of the contest would be "as hot as the Texas weather."

But he denied charges from Hance that he has succumbed to mud-slinging tactics in a series of television commercials that attack Hance's voting record in Congress.

"I understand he's (Hance) been crying all over the state about those commercials," Doggett said. "He can run all the way to El Paso but he cannot hide that record."

In the controversial commercials, Doggett says Hance is not being truthful when he says he supports Social Security because he has voted three times for budget cuts in the program.

But Hance contends the advertisements misrepresent his record.

Doggett continued Monday to defend the commercials and to attack Hance's congressional voting record, saying Hance also has voted for education program budget cuts to pay for tax breaks for "selfish interests."

Doggett said he believes that no Social Security cuts should be made and that education needs to be improved. Yet he also said he does not favor raising taxes "one penny" for low-income Americans.

He also contended that his campaign is based on "issues important to the people," while Hance has opted to focus his attention on only one issue — amnesty for illegal aliens.

"He is making a single-issue campaign out of something he never did a thing about in Congress," Doggett said. "Kent may have been able to fool 31.2 percent of Texas Democratic voters one time, in the primary, but I don't think he can fool 51 percent (of the voters) in the runoff."

Hance and Doggett were the two top vote getters for Tower's Senate seat in the May 5 Democratic primary. The two will face each other in Saturday's runoff and the victor will take on Republican nominee Phil Gramm in the Nov. 6 general election.

Hance, who also was in El Paso Monday, continued to voice his opposition to amnesty for illegal aliens and said that Doggett's high ambitions were causing the race to become more heated than before.

Speaking in El Paso Sunday night, Hance said he was ambitious but not as much as Doggett. "I don't want to get something by misrepresenting (other people's records)," he said.

Saudis buy 400 missiles in U.S. deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, employing his emergency powers, has sent 400 Stinger anti-aircraft missiles and two KC-10 tanker planes to bolster Saudi Arabian defenses against attacks on Persian Gulf oil shipments, sources said today.

Two hundred launchers fitted with short-range Stingers and 200 replacement missiles arrived in Saudi Arabia Monday, a State Department official said. This official and other sources confirmed the dispatch of the missiles on the condition they not be identified.

A formal announcement was expected later in the day. But one official said Reagan had used his emergency powers to send the missiles so that congressional approval wasn't needed.

The Saudis, who had requested the Stingers, will pay cash for them. It was also understood that the Saudis have given guarantees the missiles will be safeguarded and will not be transferred to anyone else.

American personnel will train the Saudis in the use of the missiles.

The Stingers have a range of three miles and could be used by the Saudis against low-flying attack planes. They already are armed with 62 U.S.-built F-15 jet fighters, but the missiles can swiftly hit back at raiding aircraft while the planes require time to scramble.

Plans called for deployment of the hand-held Stingers at the main Saudi oil depot of Ras Tanura, about Gulf tankers and around royal palaces, U.S. officials said.

One of the KC-10s was already en route to the Gulf while the other would follow later, the sources said. They said the planes, designed for midair refueling, will be used to extend the flying time of the F-15s, enabling them to patrol waters where shipping has been threatened in a spillover of the Iran-Iraq War.

The F-15s were sold to the Saudis with small fuel tanks to reduce their range and, thus, their value for an attack on Israel, whose Capitol Hill supporters almost blocked the sale under the Jimmy Carter administration.

The KC-10s, flown by American pilots, also would be used to extend the range of four U.S.-crewed AWACS radar planes that can monitor much of the Gulf while following orders to stay 50 miles within Saudi borders. The two KC-10s would supplement three KC-135 airborne tankers that refuel the AWACS.

A Pentagon official said over the weekend that the Saudis plan to set up an "air cap" in Gulf waters to protect shipping.

The Defense Department's chief Middle East expert, Maj. Gen. Edward Tixier, was in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, discussing the deployment of the U.S. planes. One option is to have American pilots fly the tankers, ensuring that the United States has a tight rein on the operation. Another is to put the tankers under temporary control of the Saudis.

20 die in holiday traffic; 9 drown

From staff and wire reports
At least 20 persons perished on Texas highways and streets during the Memorial Day weekend, and nine others drowned in Lone Star lakes.

The unofficial count began at 6 p.m. Friday and continued through midnight Monday. No deaths were reported in Howard County from highway accidents or other mishaps, but accidents claimed the lives of a Midland man and a Pecos man.

A Midland police spokesman said Robert Dennis Beard, 23, was killed in a Sunday morning traffic accident on Loop 250 when Beard apparently lost control of his car. A passenger, Linda Ellison, 24, received minor injuries.

Rosario L. Flores, 20, of Pecos, died about 7:30 a.m. Monday when his pickup truck overturned on a rural highway north of Barstow.

The worst accident of the holiday period in Texas occurred Saturday night about 55 miles west of San Antonio, near Sabinas. A head-on crash of a Volkswagen and a Corvette killed three people, and eight others were injured in two accidents that happened moments later when first a pickup truck and then a car drove into the wreckage.

The fatalities in the Sabinas crash were identified as Ramiro Musquiz, 39, of Uvalde, Pamela Deaton, 25, of Alice, and Edward Martinez, 32, of San Antonio.

A Brownwood man was missing and presumed drowned in Lake Brownwood after being hurled into the water during a Memorial Day outing on a boat with his wife and 10-year-old son, authorities said.

Eclipse fans frolic in special sun spot

ATLANTA (AP) — A solar eclipse that will dim skies in every state but Alaska is being greeted in this choice viewing spot with serious study by scientists and a little lunacy from amateurs holding candlelight picnics and "moon parties" featuring green cheese.

The eclipse Wednesday will best be seen in the Southeast, along a line from just north of New Orleans to just south of Richmond, Va. Atlanta, which expects sunny skies and a direct view of the maximum eclipse, will be ideal for skygazers.

The peak will come at about 12:20 p.m. here, but earlier to the west and later to the east.

The event is more precisely known as an annular eclipse because an annulus, or ring of sunlight, will remain when the moon crosses directly in front of the sun.

"People ask why someone looks at the stars or climbs mountains," said Walter Rebmann, secretary-treasurer of the Astronomy Club of Jackson, Miss. "It's just a gorgeous sight, awe-inspiring, a thrill."

Although 99.8 percent of the sun will be blocked at its peak, scientists are warning strongly against any direct viewing of the eclipse.

"I don't believe that any eclipse is worth a ruined pair of human eyes," said Dr. Ernest G. Reuning of the University of Georgia physics department. "... One or 2 percent of the main disc of the sun is still enough to cause blindness."

Two rare phenomena will be on

Sales will be singing

NASHVILLE — Tammy Wynette, Waylon Jennings and Ronnie Milsap are among the country music stars who have donated dozens of items to be auctioned off at a fund-raiser for a YMCA-sponsored charity.

TAMMY WYNETTE

The items go on the auction block Monday at the first annual Brenda Lee Celebrity Auction, with proceeds going to displaced homemakers seeking training to enter the job market.

One of the hottest items is expected to be a $4,000 gown worn by Miss Wynette when she performed at the White House in 1982.

"It has 500 yards of material — layers and layers," said Miss Wynette, known for her 1969 hit "Stand By Your Man." "It's like all the dresses in 'Gone With the Wind,'" she added.

Also up for auction will be a hand-crocheted silk stage outfit, covered with more than 1,000 diamond-faceted rose-colored rhinestones, worn by Milsap the night he was voted entertainer of the year by the Country Music Association in 1977.

Mayor's remarks collared

NEW YORK — State Republican Party Chairman George Clark says remarks made by Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo after Cuomo's father-in-law was mugged show that the governor is a "dogooder" who "would have been better off as a priest."

MARIO CUOMO

Following the mugging and beating last week of 78-year-old Charles Raffa, Cuomo said, "I was angry, but anger is a sin."

"If it had been a relative of my family, I would have saved the city the cost of a trial if I got my hands on those muggers," Clark said Sunday on CBS-TV's "Newsmakers" program.

The hand that drew you

DECATUR — Smokey the Bear, who has helped educate millions of Americans about forest fire prevention, is bringing the U.S. Forest Service's highest honor to Harry Rossoll, the man whose pen gave him life.

Rossoll, who drew Smokey for the Forest Service for 35 years, will receive a 9-inch silver Smokey Award on Thursday at ceremonies at the service's Atlanta office marking his career in fire prevention.

Rossoll retired as Smokey's animator 13 years ago.

Smokey the Bear cartoons, designed to educate schoolchildren about fire prevention, were launched 40 years ago this September.

Unknown soldier

Ceremony entombs nameless Vietnam casualty

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unidentified American who fell in the Vietnam War now lies buried among the unknown dead of three other wars, eulogized by President Reagan as the symbol of a conflict that ended with "no parades, no flags and so little thanks."

The divisiveness of that war and the bitterness it engendered was much in evidence Monday as the Unknown Serviceman of Vietnam was placed in the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery.

The somber military ceremony, held under threatening and sometimes rainy skies, capped a day full of martial pageantry that included a 21-gun salute, a volley of rifle fire, and the mournful strains of "Taps."

"A grateful nation opens her heart today in gratitude for their sacrifice, their courage and their noble service," Reagan said of the 2.5 million men who fought in the nation's longest war. "Let us, if we must, debate the lessons learned at some other time; today we simply say with pride: Thank you, dear son, and may God cradle you in His loving arms."

Reagan awarded the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest military decoration, to the unidentified man before the silver coffin was laid to rest under a marble slab between the unknown servicemen of World War II and the Korean War and at the foot of the unknown soldier of World War I.

"Today we pause, to embrace him and all who served us so well in a war whose end offered no parades, no flags, and so little thanks," Reagan said. "We can be worthy of the values and ideals for which our sons sacrificed, worthy of their courage in the face of a fear that few of us will ever experience by honoring their commitment and devotion to duty and country."

One of the day's most poignant moments was unplanned. It came when about 300 Vietnam veterans, dressed mostly in jeans and fatigues, fell into step behind the horse-drawn caisson that carried the coffin from the Capitol three miles away to Arlington. They had not been invited by the Pentagon, which said Vietnam vets would be represented by some of the 4,000 people invited to the Arlington service.

The marchers were loudly cheered by many of the 250,000 people along the parade route. There were tears on some of their faces and there were answering tears in the crowd.

Reagan, in his eulogy at the memorial amphitheater behind the Tomb of the Unknowns, also took note of the 2,489 men who are still unaccounted for. The National League of POW-MIA Families had opposed the funeral for the unknown, arguing that the nation would see it as a symbolic end and not press for a full accounting of those still missing.

"We write no last chapters, we close no books, we put away no final memorials," Reagan said. "An end to America's involvement in Vietnam cannot come before we have achieved the fullest possible accounting of those missing in action."

Strike closes VW plant

FRANKFURT — More than 300,000 metalworkers were idle today, and Volkswagen became the latest automaker closed by West Germany's widening conflict over a 35-hour workweek.

Metal industry negotiators resumed talks this morning in Ludwigsburg, near Stuttgart, but neither side expressed much hope of achieving a compromise settlement in the country's biggest labor conflict in six years.

Ernst Eisenmann, Stuttgart district leader of IG Metall union, said the talks could break off "if they don't get anywhere." Hans-Peter Stihl, chairman of the Baden-Wuerttemberg employers' association, said he was entering the negotiations with "dampened spirits."

Some 95,000 Volkswagen workers at six plants began a layoff which will last through the week, said spokesman Orwin Witzel in Wolfsburg.

Hindu charged in riot

BOMBAY — Criminal charges have been filed against a militant Hindu leader in connection with his speeches and criticisms of Moslems prior to Hindu-Moslem rioting that killed 228 people.

Home Department sources reported Monday that the Maharashtra state government filed seven criminal charges against Bal Thackeray, a former newspaper cartoonist, for making speeches which allegedly incited disturbances. Details of the charges were not given.

His speeches were widely publicized and cited by Moslem leaders as a major cause of rioting broke out May 17 and continued for 11 days in the Bombay region.

SA's Botha tours Europe

JOHANNESBURG — Scores of dignitaries and a university choir joined in a sendoff early today as Prime Minister P.W. Botha left for Europe on the most extensive foreign tour by a South African leader in decades.

Botha, who hopes to lessen the international isolation of his white-minority government, said before leaving, "We will tell the world of the stability being created in the sub-continent and about the possibilities stability has for development in Africa."

Cabinet members, diplomats from the eight countries Botha will visit, and other well-wishers gathered at Jan Smuts Airport in Johannesburg for Botha's departure.

Mubarak party wins vote

CAIRO — Preliminary results of parliamentary elections indicated today President Hosni Mubarak's party would win decisively but that the opposition would have its biggest bloc of seats since a 1952 military coup.

The government's Middle East News Agency said returns from about a third of the country's 48 constituencies showed the National Democrats winning 70-75 percent of the vote.

In second place with about 15 percent, the agency said, was the center-right New Wafd Party.

Holiday's death toll tops 300 mark

By The Associated Press Traffic accidents claimed 322 lives across the nation over the three-day Memorial Day weekend, with bad weather across much of the country keeping holiday travel at a minimum.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 400 and 500 people might die on streets and highways during the period. Another 18,000 to 23,000 people might receive disabling injuries, the council said.

Rainy weather hampered travel on Monday over much of the eastern half of the country and forced cancellation of many Memorial Day activities.

The highest three-day death toll for the holiday was 585 in 1972. Last year's count was 437. The worst U.S. holiday death toll on record was 764 over the four-day Thanksgiving weekend in 1968.

HART DELEGATE — Gary Hart supporter Sarah Elder displays a button for her candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, earlier this week in Madison, Wisc. The 21-year-old University of Kansas student won a spot as a Kansas delegate to the Democratic National Convention by besting Hart's former brother-in-law in a cut of the cards.

Delegate beats odds to win convention seat

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Sarah Elder is still stunned by her improbable run of good fortune in becoming a Kansas delegate to the Democratic National Convention this summer.

Pledged to Gary Hart, she won the spot by besting Hart's former brother-in-law in a cut of the cards on April 14, two weeks after the University of Kansas coed's 21st birthday.

That lucky cut followed another split of the deck to determine whether the contested delegate slot should go to a Hart backer or someone supporting Walter F. Mondale in their fight for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I think it's the biggest honor I've ever had in my life," Miss Elder said in an interview. "I don't think there will be anyone else my age there. I've been very lucky, and I want to take advantage of every opportunity while I'm there."

Although Miss Elder comes from a politically attuned family, the odds against her becoming a Kansas delegate for Hart were staggering.

Originally from suburban Boston, she moved with her parents to Oberlin, Ohio, 10 years ago, then went to college in Beloit, Wis., before transferring to the University of Kansas, where she will be a senior in social work next fall.

While she helped stuff envelopes and lick stamps in her father's unsuccessful campaign for Congress 16 years ago, when she was five, Miss Elder had no other political involvement until this year.

She joined a group of Hart activists in Lawrence headed by Dr. Clifford Ketzler, a Kansas University political science professor who also is going to San Francisco as a

'Jedi' fascination ends in murder

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Leigh Matz had fallen so deeply in love with "Star Wars" that the teen-age boy fell equally hard for a hoax and believed his script ideas were being considered for a sequel to the science-fiction movie.

But the fantasy exploded when the boy learned it was all a joke played on him by an older youth he had once thought of as his best friend.

The result was as ghoulish as anything out of a horror movie: The older friend was stabbed more than 35 times with a kitchen knife, and his body dumped in front of his home.

A detective who investigated the killing last August called it "The Jedi Homicide."

Even the details were bizarre: The dead youth was buried in a T-shirt emblazoned with a design based on the "Star Wars" saga.

Leigh's father now says his son is "mentally ill," and the older friend, who was 20 at the time of his death, was a "psychopath." But when the two suburban Kansas City youths met, they were just companions sharing an intense interest in science fiction.

Like Leigh Matz, Ralph Cochran had a fascination with science fiction and the George Lucas film saga that began with "Star Wars." Cochran even had the word "Jedi" stamped on the license plate of his car. The Jedi are the knights of goodness who battle the forces of evil in the three-part series, the last of which is called "Return of the Jedi."

"Leigh followed Ralph around like a puppy dog," recalled Ralph M. Cochran, the father of the slaying victim.

The case was described Saturday in The Kansas City Times, based on a review of court documents and interviews with Leigh, his parents and others.

The friendship began in August 1979 when Leigh called the suburban theater where Cochran worked and asked for information about getting posters. Leigh was 12; Cochran was 16.

Science fiction was "his life," said Leigh's father, Stanford Matz of Shawnee, Kan. "He wanted to see his name up there with George Lucas in the 'Star Wars' sequels. It's all he thought about."

Cochran was more outgoing than his younger friend, according to those who knew the 6-foot-4 redhead. After high school he worked at a taco shop and continued filling his basement in Merriam, Kan., with movie memorabilia.

"He was such a charming and good person," said Anthony Daniels, the British actor who played the robot C-3PO in the "Star Wars" films. He spent several hours talking to Cochran at a Kansas City science fiction convention and corresponded with the young man.

"He was very excited about the film industry, and I've always been nervous of people becoming too over-interested in a subject," said Daniels.

The parents of both boys disliked the friendship. But the friends could not be separated.

In August 1982, Cochran told Leigh that he had met a Lucasfilm executive at a science-fiction convention in Chicago who invited him to submit design works for "Return of the Jedi," then in preparation. Cochran in turn invited Leigh to participate.

For much of the next year Leigh spent nearly all of his time working on drawings and stories for movies, often skipping school. Cochran told him he was sending his ideas to Lucas, and Leigh even began to receive notes of encouragement from the filmmaker, notes that turned out to be phony.

Not long before the slaying, Leigh was told by one of Cochran's fellow workers that he was the butt of an elaborate joke. The district attorney's office later asserted that the realization enraged Leigh.

Leigh, 16 by this time, recruited his 13-year-old brother, Jimmy, telling him Cochran planned to kill their father.

The brothers ambushed the person Leigh once called his "very best friend" at 2 a.m. on Aug. 27. Cochran was stabbed as he sat in his car.

Leigh and Jimmy admitted their roles in the slaying to police.

Dear Abby

Wedding ritual

DEAR ABBY: I need a quick answer to this, and I can't ask anyone else because this is a small town.

Is it possible to leave out that part of a marriage ceremony that says, "If there is anybody here who has any objections to this marriage, let him speak up now or forever remain silent"?

Also, just in case somebody does speak up with an objection, what happens?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: The bride and groom should ask the person who will perform the ceremony to omit that question. The decision shall be left to the person officiating.

And if someone raises an objection, anything can happen, depending on what the objection is. Then the person who is performing the ceremony shall decide whether or not the ceremony should continue.

I have never known of a case where a marriage was halted for this reason, but if any of my readers have, please let me know.

DEAR ABBY: In your answer to "Suffered Enough in Wisconsin," whose problem was excess hair growth, you recommended electrolysis.

I was a little surprised that you didn't suggest that very often this condition in women is caused by the overproduction of male hormones that can be markedly improved by medication.

Although mustache hair in women is no cause for alarm, excess hair growth on the chin, chest and abdomen indicates that there is a hormonal abnormality.

Unfortunately, many physicians either ignore this sort of complaint or think it requires only cosmetic treatment. ("Get rid of the hair.")

Abby, please advise women with excessive hair growth to see an endocrinologist or a dermatologist.

E. J. PRZASNYSKI, M.D., TACOMA, WASH.

DEAR DR. PRZASNYSKI: Thank you for bringing this important medical fact to my attention. I confess it did not occur to me.

Dr. Donohue

Prinzmetal's angina

Dear Dr. Donohue: I first heard about Prinzmetal's angina in your column some time back. The next time was recently when my doctor diagnosed it in me. I have had attacks of chest pain that put me in the hospital. My angiogram showed a 25 percent blockage in one artery of the heart. Please comment on treatment and if you need medication daily to control it. — Mrs. B.J.C.

Prinzmetal's angina differs from the usual form in that the reduced blood flow to the heart muscle comes from a sudden spasm of a heart artery and not so much from a permanent blockage because of cholesterol buildup. It differs, too, in the setting of the attacks. The common form of angina happens during activity. In Prinzmetal's the pain can occur while you're at rest.

Treatment for the artery spasm form is often with nitroglycerin, the same drug used for the common form. And today, newer heart drugs, called calcium blockers, are quite effective in treatment of Prinzmetal's angina (named, incidentally, for the doctor who first described its characteristics).

Your doctor will prescribe the best medicine for your angina and its dosage schedule. Patients usually do require it on a day-to-day schedule. I should also add that it is not strange for the spasm problem to coexist with the artery blockage. You'll find a discussion in my new booklet, "You Can Control Angina," which other readers may order by writing me care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.25 for printing and handling.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you please clarify something for us? In our office we had a discussion on spina bifida, and one of the girls claims that most people who have this illness die from it. Is there any truth to her claim? — M.L.

It depends on the severity. Spina bifida is one of the most common of the congenital abnormalities. It means that bony part of the spinal column has not completely surrounded the cord within. The cord is left exposed and vulnerable to trauma. The skin of the body at the point of the abnormality is often absent and the cord itself may protrude.

The outlook for an infant with spina bifida depends on the extent of the abnormality and how extensive is the impairment of nerve transmission. Sometimes, other nervous system defects occur in conjunction with spina bifida. Lesser degrees of the problem are successfully treated and do not contract life expectancy. Serious forms usually do result in an early death.

Steve's
Stuff
By Steve Belvin

First up on Steve's Stuff is the question of who the Dallas Mavericks will draft as their number one pick.

Dallas has the fourth overall pick in this year's draft, but getting a good center might still pose a problem.

The Mavericks hopes for a dominating big man were dampened when Georgetown's Patrick Ewing decided to spend his final year with John Thompson and the Hoyas.

Now things get very interesting. The Chicago Bulls get the next pick, they are strong with guards and need a center also, but can they overlook North Carolina's Michael Jordan, who can play either guard or quick forward and is one of the most complete players to come out of UNC?

Now we come to the Mavericks. What if Chicago goes for a big man, will the Mavericks still go for the big center or draft Jordan instead? One Dallas Morning News writer said Dallas won't even think of drafting Jordan.

A pretty strong message, wouldn't you say?

But on the other side of the coin, when the Mavericks could draft Jordan and use him and unhappy forward Jay Vincent for trade bait.

So the wait goes on, just who will the Dallas Mavericks pick? Personally I'd love to see Michael Jordan in a Maverick uniform, but like the man said, don't ever complain again about not having a center.

It sure is good to see someone else atop of the American League East Standings instead of Baltimore, New York or Boston.

The Detroit Tigers have really made things interesting with their current 35-8 record, which is the best start in baseball by any team in a number of years.

The same thing is happening in the National League East, little regarded Chicago and New York are right near the top battling with the big boys.

As for the Lone Star State teams Texas and Houston, things are not looking very bright. The Rangers are saddled in last place barley playing over .400 ball; that's the bad news.

The same holds true for the Astros, they are playing just over .400 ball, in next-to-last place, but just six games out of first behind San Diego and Los Angeles.

Oh where or where is the Say Hey Kid, Willie McCovey and Juan Marichal? The bay area team needs help — fast.

DJ SOARS — Dennis Johnson, guard for the Boston Celtics drives towards the hoop in Sunday's opening NBA championship game versus the Los Angeles Lakers at the Boston Garden.

Sprinter hopes to lead FSU to women's title

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — For a wisp of a woman, Randy Givens is carrying a heavy burden in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

The slender 5-foot-6, 121-pound senior from Amityville, N.Y. is the backbone of the Florida State team favored to win the women's title for the first time.

The Seminoles' chances depend very strongly on Givens, who is entered in the 100- and 200-meter dashes and will run on the 400- and 1,600-meter relay teams.

"I don't mind it," said Givens, who undertook the same work load in the 1983 meet, when the Seminoles finished second to UCLA, the team champion for the second straight year.

A year ago, she finished sixth in the 100, third in the 200, ran the anchor leg on the winning 400-meter relay team and led off the winning 1,600-meter relay team. This time, she again will be entrusted with the important anchor leg on the 400 relay and will run third in the longer event.

Running the anchor leg on the 400, has at times, proved discouraging for the lithe Givens.

Substituting for injured Evelyn Ashford, the world 100-meter record holder, proved disastrous for Givens in the semifinals at the 1983 World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland.

Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland.

Givens had barely started her run when Chandra Cheeseborough grabbed her left hand and placed the baton in it. The stunned Givens had to virtually stop, grab the stick and try to regain her acceleration.

The hesitation proved costly. Although Givens finished strongly, the team missed by .01 of a second of advancing to the final.

"It was very disappointing," she conceded. "We hadn't worked out as much as we should have, so I misjudged her (Cheeseborough's) approach and didn't take off fast enough."

Then, in this year's Penn Relays, last month at Philadelphia, Givens never even got the stick for the final leg of the 400, because of a dropped baton on the handoff between the second and third legs.

"Things like that happen," she recalled. Florida State's chances for victory in the NCAA meet, which begins in earnest Wednesday — only the decathlon and heptathlon were contested Monday and today — and ends Saturday, will hinge on its crop of swift sprinters.

In addition to Givens, the Seminoles are counting on big points from such speedsters as Marita Payne, Brenda Cliette, Michelle Finn and Janet Davis.

Celtics hoping to win one at home

BOSTON (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley says he fears Boston's Larry Bird and Kevin McHale more than any other Celtics.

"We could do a better job denying Bird the ball and we also have to contain McHale," Riley said at a news conference Monday. "He had no problem shooting over any of our forwards and he was superb on the offensive boards."

McHale led the Celtics with 25 points as Los Angeles won Game 1 of the best-of-seven National Basketball Association Championship Series 115-109 Sunday. Bird hit only seven of 17 shots from the field, but still had 24 points. Bird and McHale also had four offensive rebounds apiece to help the Celtics finish with 21 offensive rebounds to 12 for Los Angeles.

"I expect Game 2 Thursday to be an all-out war," Riley said. The Lakers coach said he believes his team has a good chance to become the first team in NBA history to win the first two games of the Championship Series on the road. In 1969, the Lakers lost the first two games of a playoff series in Los Angeles and went on to beat San Francisco 4-2, but that was in the Western Division finals.

"Many times in the past we have won the first game on the road, but we've never been able to win the second," Riley said. "But I think we're capable of it and are on the verge of it. We're a deeper team than we were in the past."

Riley said the Celtics "have three days to get angry, but on the other hand maybe the pressure to win at home will get to them."

The Lakers did not practice Monday after playing two games in three days, with a five-hour flight to Boston in between.

After the Celtics practiced, Coach K.C. Jones said his team has to "work harder defensively to stop the Lakers from running. They were getting fast breaks after we made free throws."

Jones said the fact that Bird was "missing shots he normally makes" definitely hurt the Celtics in Game 1, but he expressed confidence that his star forward would find his shooting eye in Game 2.

"I hope he gets the same shots Thursday," Jones said.

Bird said he was less concerned about his shooting percentage than he was about the Lakers' ability to dictate the pace of a game.

"I don't expect to score 25 or 30 points per game the way I have been," Bird said. "The Lakers are one of the prime teams in the league and they are good at making you do things differently than you're used to."

But he said he was looking forward to the rest of the series because "I enjoy playing a different team once in a while. Playing a West Coast team breaks the monotony."

The Celtics and Lakers played each other only twice in the regular season and they have not met in the playoffs since 1969, when Boston won the championship in seven games.

White Sox take two games

The White Sox pounded opponents' pitching for two victories in Coahoma Senior League play as they downed the Red Sox 18-2 and Grey Sox 34-9.

Ronnie Ruiz got the win against the Red Sox as Michael Sepada and Ray Uranga hit inside-the-park-homers for the winners. Donnie Barber, Dee Douglass, Chris Parker, Brandon Bentley and Craig Wallace all hit well for the winners.

Barber got the win for the White Sox over the Grey Sox. Parker hit a round tripper while Douglass, Wallace and Sepada led all hitters. The White Sox's record is 4-1 for the year.

HERSCHEL ON THE MOVE — New Jersey Generals' running back Herschel Walker gains 11 yards on a carry versus the Chicago Blitz Monday night.

Generals finally overtake stubborn Chicago, 21-17

CHICAGO (AP) — "Even if we were in Alaska," said New Jersey Generals Coach Walt Michaels, "it shouldn't be anything like this."

But the occasional drizzle, a 42-degree temperature, 17 mph northerly winds and a 19-degree wind-chill factor didn't cool off Michaels' running game — otherwise known as Herschel Walker and Maurice Carthon — as the Generals downed the Chicago Blitz 21-17 Monday night.

Walker rushed for 148 yards and one touchdown, while Carthon added 118 yards and a six-pointer of his own to stake the Generals (11-3) to the fifth victory in their last six games. The Blitz, meanwhile, has now lost four of their last five outings, dropping to 4-10 for the season.

Walker, who says he plays hard "whether there's one person or 60,000 people in the stands," added that he didn't believe "anyone gave much thought" to the sea of empty seats in chilly Soldier Field. The announced attendance was 4,307.

He came into the game with 965 yards rushing and broke the 1,000-yard barrier late in the first quarter on a 17-yard run.

Chicago's Kevin Seibel put his team ahead with a 42-yard field goal in the first quarter, but Walker broke the longest run of the game, a 69-yard touchdown to put the Generals on top 7-3 early in the second quarter.

After the Blitz took a 10-7 lead at halftime on Gary Worthy's two-yard touchdown run and increased their lead to 17-7 in the third quarter on a nine-yard touchdown run by Larry Canada, it appeared Chicago was primed for an upset.

However, aided by the wind at their backs in the fourth quarter, the Generals came from behind to win with a one-yard touchdown run by Carthon and a 25-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Brian Sipe to tight end Jeff Spek.

"When we were down by 10 points," Sipe said, "I didn't think it was an urgency because we were going to have the wind at our backs in the fourth quarter, and that would be to our advantage. I felt we had enough time for two complete drives, and if we didn't commit any errors, two touchdowns were very possible."

Michaels added, "When you're down by only 10 points going into the fourth quarter, you're never out of the football game. There was no reason to panic. If we stayed with our plans, there was still plenty of time."

INDY CRASH — Patrick Bedard, driver of this car, a Mach-Buick, has his car disintegrating beneath him after hitting the retaining wall during the Indianapolis 500 Sunday. The accident occurred in lap 60. Bedard received a severe concussion and a broken jaw. The race was won by Rick Mears.

Morris and Tigers stop A's

By The Associated Press
When you've just spent a lost weekend, it's nice to find your top pitcher on the mound to put an end to the embarrassment.
So it really came as no surprise that Detroit's Jack Morris stopped Oakland 6-2 on six hits Monday night.
"The losing streak helped me prepare mentally. I wanted badly to win. Everybody was a little embarrassed by what happened in Seattle," Morris said after yielding a pair of unearned runs and striking out eight in snapping the Tigers' first three-game skid of the season.
The Tigers staked Morris to a four-run lead in the first inning and the right-hander, who has lost only once, went on to lower his earned run average to 1.79 and become the first 10-game winner in the majors. Orioles 7, Mariners 4

Storm Davis and two relievers combined on a six-hitter as Baltimore won for the 21st time in the last 29 games. Davis allowed two hits in six innings but came out because he felt some tightness in his arm.
Baltimore took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Eddie Murray's sacrifice fly and made it 3-0 in the third on a run-scoring wild pitch by loser Jim Beattie and a single by Wayne Gross.
Angels 6, Yankees 2
Reggie Jackson blasted a grand slam to support Doug Corbett in his first major-league start. Corbett went 5-1-3 in his first relief appearance, as a replacement for scheduled starter Tommy John, who came down with the flu. Royals 6, Rangers 1

Frank White's line drive hit the left-field foul pole for a tie-breaking home run and triggered a three-run seventh inning. Larry Gura, 6-2, scattered six hits, while the loser was Frank Tanana, who hasn't beaten the Royals since 1980 when he pitched for California.
After White led off the seventh with his sixth homer, Steve Balboni singled and was forced by Lynn Jones. Don Slaught doubled Jones to third and he scored on Onix Concepcion's suicide squeeze bunt. Willie Wilson's double drove in Slaught with the third run of the inning. Balboni hit his fifth home run in the eighth and Darryl Motley added an RBI single in the ninth.

Communist athletes can't compete individually

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The Summer Olympic Games are barred to all the athletes from communist countries who are trying to break the Soviet bloc boycott by competing individually, the director of the International Olympic Committee said Tuesday.
"It is impossible for the IOC to accept these entries," Monique Berlioux told reporters. "It would be a violation of Olympic rules. No athlete can compete unless he is sponsored by his National Olympic Committee."
The National Olympic Committees of the Soviet Union and at least 10 Soviet-influenced nations are boycotting the Los Angeles Games because of alleged American violations of Olympic rules and alleged "threats" to athletes from communist nations.
Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, told reporters that "between 10 and 20" athletes from countries boycotting this summer's Games have approached the organizers for permission to compete without the approval of their National Olympic Committees.
He said most of them were refugees or were simply living outside the Soviet bloc. He noted, however, that at least four athletes have written from inside their own countries to apply for individual admission.
Ueberroth refused to identify these athletes to protect them from possible reprisals, or even to indicate their sport or their nationality. He said he did not know how those who applied from within the Soviet bloc proposed getting the necessary permission from their governments to travel to Los Angeles.

BREAK DANCING THE HARD WAY — Two children in El Paso take time out of a hot day to cool off in a puddle. Temperatures of more than 100 degrees late last week kept El Paso residents on the lookout for cool spots, but these children decided to have fun and stay cool at the same time.

Couple says work keeps them alive

SULPHUR SPRINGS (AP) — A visit with John and Willie Mae Harris of the North Caney community in Hopkins County is a celebration — a celebration of work, of community, of family, of life.

They are an example of how much can be done with very little if people are willing to work at it.

John Harris is an ebullient man who thrust his long muscular arms forward and spread work-knarlled hands before his visitor and said, "I work to live."

Harris made his statement with a kind of joy.

Although officially "retired" from his employment as a meat cutter for Pratt Packing Co., he has not retired from work despite the pain of arthritis.

"I told my boss when I left that I wasn't going home to just sit. And they wouldn't see me just running up and down the road in my truck. I had work just waitin' on me," he said with a laugh.

Some of the work waiting on Harris is the addition of four new rooms on the Cherry Grove Baptist Church. He took a short break from his volunteer construction project to talk about building a home and a community.

When Harris came to the house from his work, he was chided gently about his appearance by his wife, Willie Mae. Her offhand manner suggested that many times she had told him "to wash up and change clothes for company."

With equally familiar manner, he pleasantly ignored the urging and settled into his rocking chair and commenced his favorite activity — talking with friends about family, community and working.

Like many arthritis sufferers, he has found that activity is a powerful antidote for the crippling effects of the disease for both the mind and the body. "If I stopped (working), I'd be dead. I want to live. The more I do, the better I feel," he added.

For John and Willie Mae Harris, the will to work and faith in God and themselves is at the root of their success in not only raising 10 children, but becoming community leaders as well.

Their philosophy is quite simple; if you want a better life or a better community, all the help you need is at the end of your arms.

Harris said, "If you want something done, walk out there and with your hands and take hold. Somebody will come along and help, but you've got to get involved."

Mrs. Harris said that one of their involvements was, and still is, the county 4-H program.

She said as a girl growing up in the North Caney community she was deeply impressed with the opportunities for learning self-help skills and self-confidence in dealing with the world outside their close-knit community from 4-H.

"Children did not have the opportunities then in school that they have now. They have so much now, but then we had to organize something in the community to help young people become well-rounded. In the 4H program, we learned public speaking, how to plan meetings and community organization as well as how to garden, sew and can," she said.

Mrs. Harris observed that the larger role that schools are now occupying in the lives of children has reduced some of the interest in 4-H activities.

She said the irony of more and better educations and job opportunities seem to have made the younger generation even less independent than her own. The dependence is created by a need for wages to pay for goods and services, often purchased on credit, that she and her husband made or did for themselves. "And we believe in pay-as-you-go," she said. "So many of the young women work in factories now. They don't have time for gardens or quilting (one of Mrs. Harris's passions) or canning," she said.

But at the same time, she rejoices at the opportunities for education, material comforts and security that her children and grandchildren have today.

Harris said he was a third grader when his father died and he was forced to drop out of school to augment what little his mother could earn by taking in washing and ironing.

He grew up near Mount Vernon during the days of the "Great Depression."

World War II intervened. When he returned to Texas in 1945 from his tour of duty with the U.S. Army engineers, all of his family had left Mount Vernon.

Harris said one of his brothers lived in the North Caney community, so John settled in to take up farming with his brother and go to school at night on the G.I. Bill.

"I took classes in auto mechanics, tailoring and cabinet making that were taught in the old American Legion Hall and I was growing cotton on a piece of land that I rented," he recalled.

That memory of a cotton patch brought up another memory — a high school girl who lived in the neighborhood. She was the fourth of Dot and Betty Barry's 13 children.

John Harris recalled that he would drive his team of mules past the young lady's house on his way to the fields. She would usually be sitting out on the porch.

He said that once his brother teased him about driving that old mule and wagon in his old work clothes down the road where the young lady he was courting could see him.

He told his brother that she may as well get used to seeing him that way because he didn't go around in his Sunday clothes all of the time. He smiled at his wife and said, "I would stop and she would always talk to me, even though I was just as nasty as I could be. So I thought she must like me all right."

The couple had four daughters then twin sons, another daughter, another set of twins (a boy and a girl) and then another daughter. The oldest is now 35 and the youngest is 21. Two of their 16 grandchildren are twin girls.

"We just did what we could and had faith that it would turn out all right. It did," he said with satisfaction. His wife nodded in agreement.

A Big Spring WINNER!

M. C. (Cuin) Grigsby
Retired, C. R. Anthony Stores

M. C. (Cuin) Grigsby began his career with C. R. Anthony Stores in 1929 at Cleveland, Oklahoma. He moved to Big Spring in 1941 to open the first Anthony's store in West Texas. Cuin retired several years ago after 50 years with the company, but after only two weeks he returned to work in a supervisory position, buying and setting up new stores. He is the father of three children, Marlene Pierce of Big Spring, Cuin Jr. of Abilene and Wesley of Dallas. He has five grandchildren and one great grandson. Cuin was a member of the American Legion Service Office for 40 years. He's a member of the Elks, Lions Club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the First Baptist Church. He says he has "slowed his act down a little, but still has lots of advice to give." He enjoys his hobby of making boot plaques, symbolizing West Texas, which he gives to friends and others to mark special occasions. He likes to fish and hunt and is an avid gardener. Concerning Big Spring, Cuin says "Basically Big Spring Spring is an agricultural community and even though things are a little dry right now and the oil patch is no longer booming, we will sustain by working together. We always have."
