Howard County held key to Senate race squeaker

Howard County was the state's star attraction this weekend.

While the rest of the state watched, Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray and seven assistants began hand counting 2,759 computer card ballots shortly before midnight Saturday while computer technicians from the area tried to figure out why a pesky county computer wouldn't do the counting.

Outside of candidates awaiting results, most interested were officials from the Secretary of State's office in Austin, Mrs. Ray said. The hand count was begun courthouse to find out what the pro-

Everyone in the state was interested, it was discovered, because results of the race were dependent on the Howard County vote. Although Hance was the overwhelming favorite in the county, he would eventually gain just enough votes here to win the race.

As word leaked out that the Howard County ballots had not been counted, newspapers from around the state began calling the blem was, Mrs. Ray said. About 12:30 a.m. Sunday, a reporter from an Odessa television station showed up with camera and lights in hand. Before the ordeal was over, more television stations and newspapers from San Angelo and Lubbock, as well as the Dallas Morning News and Dallas Times Herald and Lubbock would be calling. The Herald was also receiving calls from the state, including reporters from the Associated Press and the Abilene Reporter News hand-counting ballots for the hotly contested U.S. Senate race. When it was done, Hance had won 2,067 to Doggett's 627.

It was enough to close the total gap to 509, but not enough to put Hance in the lead again. For Hance - the West Texas

Cinderella with an underdog's vision of a seat in the U.S. Senate the dream faded. At Hance's "victory party" at the Hyatt Hotel, Hance made post-election plans for making up the difference. "We look forward to finding those additional 500 votes," he said, announcing that he would probably seek a recount. Hance, a Lubbock congressman who ran a surprising first in the May 5 primary, ended the party by

Winners Long, Smallwood

By RICK BROWN Staff Writer

Final results from Saturday's runoff election showed that KBST news director China Long won a landslide victory in her bid for the Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Place 1 position.

Saturday's runoff also decided that western-wear store owner Democrat Joneil Smallwood will face off against Republican incumbent Bill Crooker in the Precinct 3 County Commissioner race.

Due to a computer breakdown, the final Democratic results were not registered until 3:05 a.m. Sunday morning. Republican results that came in earlier in the evening showed that Crooker squeaked by Cosden Oil and Chemical employee Clayton McKinnon by 13 votes. The Republican votes had been hand counted.

Mrs. Long, who faced retired businessman Doyle L. Lamb in the Democratic Justice of the Peace runoff, will appear on the Nov. 6 election ballot as the sole candidate for the position, County Clerk Margaret Ray said this morning. Mrs. Long defeated Lamb 1,437 votes to 927, giving her about 61 percent of the ballots cast.

"Since there is no Republican challanger, it's common knowledge that she will be the new J.P.," Mrs. Ray said this morning.

Smallwood's margin of victory was much closer, with 500 voters casting ballots for him to 432 voters casting ballots for his opponant, Oliver B. "Bud" Nichols. 'My opponent ran a good race and a clean, respectable campaign and I'd like to thank him for that,' Smallwood said this morning.

'I would like to thank everyone for their words of encouragement and, most of all, for their votes in the past two elections," he added.

Mrs. Long said: "I am very appreciative and very grateful to the voters who took the time to return to the polls. I am very happy that

Sakharov still alive

MOSCOW (AP) - A source in Western diplomats in Moscow as Moscow said today that dissident Andrei Sakharov is alive and "all right" in the closed city of Gorky.

The source, who did not want to be identified and who has access to official channels of information, spoke to Western reporters following unconfirmed reports that Sakharov had died.

The Soviet Academy of Sciences, of which the physicist is a member, said today it had no information that Sakharov had died and did not believe the report of his death.

The Sunday Times in London quoted unidentified "reliable and unofficial" sources in Moscow as saying that Sakharov died Thursday night in a Gorky hospital. Today, The Times backed off its report, quoting unidentified saying Sakharov is alive.

On Saturday, an Italian journalist said she had received a telephone call from a woman who she was "almost certain" was Yelena Bonner, Sakharov's wife, saving Sakharov was "no longer with us."The journalist said she did not know whether the report meant Sakharov had died, was in a coma, or had left a hospital.

The Associated Press in Moscow was unable to reach Soviet officials to comment on the reports Sunday, and sources in Washington said they had no information on Sakharov's health.

Today, a spokesman for the Soviet Academy of Sciences said when asked about the reports: "We See Sakharov page 2-A

Midland streets flood

MIDLAND - Heavy thunderstorms rumbled across drought-stricken areas of West Texas today, bringing both an end to the lengthy drought in this part of the region and a highly unusual problem to downtown areas of Midland and Odessa - street flooding.

Four sightings of tornadoes were reported near San Angelo at about 9:20 a.m. today, but none of the twisters touched down and no damage was reported, said Tom Green County Sheriff's Sgt. Mike McCarty.

A National Weather Service meteorologist in Midland said the 1.83 inches of rain recorded in a 24-hour period ending this morning pushed the annual rainfall total thus far in 1984 to 5.84 inches — the same figure that is average for the first six months of the year.

"The drought is over," the meteorologist said. "We're running a little bit above normal." The rain in Midland didn't spell an end to the drought in other areas of West Texas, however, the weather service said. A wide area from El Paso through the Big Bend region to Lubbock has been parched for many months. Lubbock recorded just six-tenths of an inch of rain, said just got a little bit of rain and the chances will be decreasing over the next several days for precipitation. I don't think you can say the drought is totally over for all of the area," Ott said.

Officials reported that several underpasses in Midland and Odessa were flooded just before rush hour today. Police in both cities reported no major problems as a result of the heavy rains. 'Some of the intersections are very high and Highway 80 at Airport Terminal has about 6 feet. It's closed down, said Midland police dispatcher Sandra Serrano.

Most people are delighted with the rain, she said, adding, "It's about time. Thunderstorms and light rain extended east from Guadalupe Pass to Lamesa, Big Lake and Sanderson. The storms formed along a trough of low pressure located over eastern New Mexico, the weather service said, and were triggered by an upper-level disturbance moving through northern Mexico.

The turbulence was moving easterly into Southwest Texas.

Winds over Texas were generally southeast to south with speeds averaging 5 to 15 miles an hour.

In a later call, the spokesman said the academy was still checking but added, "it is obvious that these reports are untrue." He would not elaborate.

Still later, the academy spokesman read the following statement: "The Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R. has no information at its disposal on Sakharov's death. That is all."

Sakharov, 63, had announced plans to start a hunger strike on May 2 to press authorities to grant his wife, Yelena Bonner, a visa to go abroad for medical treatment.

The official news agency Tass said on May 29 that Sakharov "feels well, takes regular meals and lives an active way of life."

It said Sakharov had announced plans for a "so-called hunger strike" to revive what it called flagging Western interest in his anti-Soviet statements.

The Soviets had earlier accused the U.S. Embassy in Moscow of collaborating with Mrs. Bonner on a plan that called for Sakharov to announce a hunger strike and for her

An articlé in Saturday's Big Spring Herald stated that Joseph William Diliberto, 23, of Route 1 was not indicted Friday by the Howard County Grand Jury.

According to the 118th District Attorney's office, Diliberto was indicted for involuntary manslaughtor for the March 27 death of Helen Ziegler, who died of injuries suffered in an accident March 19. Diliberto was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated at the time of the accident.

Saturday night started well for Hance. Asked in his hotel room at 9 p.m. if he was going to win he responded with a confident "Yep."

"I feel sure I will," he said. But he added the note of fear that permeated the victory party: "I guess the main thing I'm afraid is what precincts have not reported.'

The Hance camp knew he could be in trouble in the larger cities. The early lead was built in the rural areas

Four hours later, when the urban showed up around 10 p.m., when Hance had been scheduled to come down from his eighth-floor room. "It's tightening up and there's no reason to bring him down at 10,' said Ken Vest, Hance's press aide. "It's tight as wallpaper. The growd a the Mroom wat-

State Rep. Jim Rudd of Brownfield, a Hance backer, was among those wary of the urban surge - particularly in Doggett's home county.

"How did Travis County turn Flynt out?" he asked a friend at the victory party.

"A record vote," the man replied.

"Uhhh," Rudd grunted with negative authority. Albert Morales of Odessa had his own way of gauging the returns. "What's the word from Doggett headquarters? They still pretty happy over there?" he asked.

The word from Doggett head-quarters, Hance told the crowd, was recount.

Resolution honors Montford

Ferguson commended

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate adopted a resolution Monday commending Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, for "selfless and heroic actions" in attempting to save the life of the victim of a traffic accident.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, described Montford "good Samaritan" for administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Lisa Terrell, who later died following an April 21 accident near Decatur.

The resolution said, "It is a testimonial to the character of Sen. Montford that he stopped and rendered assistance with little regard for his own personal comfort and convenience.

After the resolution was adopted, Montford's colleagues stood and applauded him.

By The Associated Press Frost is proud dad

LONDON - British TV talk show host David Frost played the proud father as he announced to reporters that his wife, Lady Carina Fitzalan-Howard, had given birth to a healthy boy.

"Carina and I are just over the moon," Frost said Sunday while visiting mother and child at St. Mary's Hospital.

The baby was born Saturday, weighing in at 7 pounds, 11 ounces, and will be named Miles Paradine, he said. Paradine is Frost's middle name, and Miles is the name of Lady Carina's father, the Duke of Norfolk, who is Britain's senior Roman Catholic peer.

"Mother and son are doing just fine, splendidly, and both are in the best of health," Frost said. "He's got quite a head of brown hair already."

Frost, 45, married Lady Carina at a London registry office in March 1983. It was his second marriage and the first for his 30-year-old bride.

Career expansion

NEW YORK — Filmmaker Woody Allen, who has been playing jazz clarinet in Manhattan nightclubs for 14 years, says he's decided to expand his once-a-week performing schedule from nine months a year to year-round

"I'm not using ideas for films that require getting away from New York anymore," explained Allen, who plays every Monday night at Michael's Pub with the New Orleans Funeral and Ragtime Orchestra. "I'm working totally in New York so I can sleep in my own bed every night.'

The 48-year-old comedian said it was 'refreshing" to play at the nightclub, but admitted that his ideas about music are not always the same as those of others in the six-member group.

"I try to push the band to greater crudeness, he said. "They're all better musicians than me and they have to play down to be crude. I have to Allen began playing clarinet publicly in 1966. He has frequently used jazz as a backdrop in his movies, such as "Sleeper," and says he would be eminently qualified to do a film on the subject, should he ever decide to.

"I'd like to do a big, colorful jazz film, and I'd do it better than anyone else because I know more about it and I feel more connected with it," he

Friendly reunion

CHARLESTON, S.C. - Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, who heads the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese, met old friends and familiar places from his 13 years' service in this historic city when he returned to rededicate The Cathedral of Saint John the Baptist.

"I never dreamed back in the early 1960s that I would ever leave Charleston. And now I've been gone 18 years," Bernardin, archbishop of Chicago, said Sunday.

Reagan addresses Parliament

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — President Reagan said today the United States is willing to discuss Soviet requests for a treaty renouncing the use of force in Europe if Moscow agrees to consider other measures intended to reduce the risk of war.

In a speech before the Irish Parliament, Reagan said the United States wants "greater dialogue" with the Kremlin "to guard against miscalculation or misunderstanding in troubled or strategically sensitive areas of the world."

The president's address was the highpoint of his fourth and final day in Ireland. Later, he was to fly to London for talks with Prime Minister Margaret

As he left Dublin for London on the first sunny day of his visit to his ancestral homeland, Reagan told his hosts, "Your warmth has touched our hearts. You have made this traveler feel like one of the fami-... And as I leave I feel such a tug. America loves the Irish. I hope the Irish always love America." Irish President Patrick J. Hillery replied that Ireland takes "immense pride in the fact that a descendent of an Irish emigrant holds the most powerful office on earth.

Five thousand anti-Reagan demonstrators marched through central Dublin to the parliament but were kept 100 yards from the building by hundreds of police. They chanted "Reagan Terrorist," "Reagan Murderer" and "Arrest Ronald Reagan" and gave clenched-fist salutes.

As the president began his speech, three members of parliament - independent Tony Gregory and Thomas MacGiolla and Proinsias De Rossa of the socialist Workers Party - tried to interrupt. They stalked out and joined the protestors after being ruled out of order

Gregory told the demonstrators the walkout was staged "in solidarity with all the people around the world opposed to U.S. policies. We felt we had to make our protest in the place where we were elected Reagan, in a reference to the walkout, commented, "I can't help but say I wonder if there is an awareness by some that there are countries in the world where representatives would not have been able to speak." The audience applauded, and some cried, "Hear, hear,

News in brief

4 escapees sought

 $PASCHALL, N.C.-Shotgun-toting\ officers\ stood$ guard along country roads today as authorities brought in fresh dog teams to search for four convicted murderers who escaped from Virginia's death row four days ago.

Officers resumed searching at daybreak in 1,500 densely wooded acres along Lake Gaston, on the North Carolina-Virginia state line. Through the night, pairs of armed officers waited along three roads bordering the site near Paschall, a town of 400.

"We've at least got them running," said Max Powell, a spokesman for the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. "And if we've got them running, I believe we can get them eventually.

Officers used tracking dogs, helicopters and airplanes to pursue unsuccessful leads in the the 90-degree heat Sunday, but several possible sightings convinced authorities they were closing in on at least two of the escapees.

The four were among six murderers who over powered guards Thursday night, stole their uniforms and tricked gatekeepers into letting them drive out of the Mecklenburg Correctional Center in Virginia. Two escapees were caught Friday night in a Warrenton coin laundry.

Troops seal borders

AMRITSAR, India - Army troops sealed the borders of Punjab state, enforced a travel ban and extended a curfew today in an attempt to control Sikh violence.

At least 47 people have been killed and more than 70 injured since Friday in Sikh violence in the northern state. At least 350 people have been killed in the past three months and 600 in three years.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government sent tens of thousands of army troops to Punjab on Sunday to clamp down on Sikh terrorists, who have engaged in widespread killing, arson and looting.

All travel by road and rail was banned, and Indian President Zail Singh, who is a Sikh, declared a twomonth blackout on news coverage within Punjab of Sikh-Hindu violence and military operations there.

Harchand Singh Longowal, president of the Sikhs' Akali Dal Party, said Sunday that the party would not call off an announced blockade of grain shipments from the state despite an appeal from Mrs. Gandhi that it be canceled.

But there were no reports of a blockade on Sunday. Longowal said party leaders would meet today to discuss the army's deployment of troops and Mrs. Gandhi's request the main competition for "La Cage," got only two awards. Three of the actors from "The Real Thing" won their categories: Jeremy Irons, who finds real love with his second wife, and Glenn Close, the second wife, were named best actor and actress in a play. "La Cage," about two male Christine Baranski, the first wife, Hoffman, star of "Death of a Salesman," received a standing ovation when he appeared on stage to present the best play award to author Tom Stoppard for "The Real Thing.

Hoffman's revival of the Arthur Miller play was nominated only in the best reproduction category, which it won.

In his acceptance speech, Irons "extraordinary performances I've seen on Broadway, both those nominated and unnominated." Later, he said that he was referring to the lack of a nomination for Hoffman, which, along with the omissions, of co-stars Kate Reid and John Malkovich and "Salesman's" director and technical staff, had upset many in the theater community.

When "Death of a Salesman" was cited as best reproduction, no Presenter Tony Randall explained that one producer, Robert Whitehead, was in Australia and the other, Roger L. Stevens, sent word that he was "preoccupied in Washington.

But Hoffman, who appeared wearing a tuxedo and his Willy Loman hat, was enthusiastically applauded by the black-tie crowd.

Every ballot cast has importance

The adage "every vote counts" was never truer than Saturday, as statewide attention on Howard County made clear. All the eggs of the campaign of U.S. Rep. Kent Hance were sitting in the Howard County basket. The West Texas favorite looked to Big Spring to overcome a slight edge gained by his opponent statewide. When the votes were eventually counted here, he had made up a lot of ground - but came up 509 votes shy in what are still unofficial tallies.

What that literally means is that if 510 more Hance supporters had voted in Howard County, he'd be going to the general election in November to vie for the U.S. Senate seat rather than state Sen. Lloyd Doggett.

All eyes turned our way Saturday night and early Sunday as it became clear that Howard County would be pivotal in deciding the U.S. Senate runoff election - media from a number of Texas cities, the Secretary of State's office, and, of course, the candidates themselves. Big Spring, usually prompt in reporting its results, suffered a computer malfunction at the courthouse, and the vote totals remained in limbo far in-

At the time the Secretary of State's office ordered a hand count of ballots in the race, the race stood like this: Better than 99 percent of the precincts had reported, with only 30 voter precincts out. Twenty of those precincts were in Howard County. Doggett was ahead by 2,292 votes statewide. There were 2,759 votes outstanding in Howard County.

To swing the election back to Hance, Big Spring and area would have had to go better than 90 percent for Hance. We didn't. We went 76 percent for Hance. Doggett is the unofficial winner by a whisper — infinitesimal thousandths of a percent. Every vote does count.

Hart loves Jersey

NEWARK — "Wherever the U.S. is going, New Jersey will have to get there first." That comment comes from Sen. Bill Bradley, the former pro basketball star and likely Democratic candidate for president in 1988.

It suggests why the primary here on Tuesday poses both a crucial test and a great opportunity for Gary Hart. For this state is a colleciton of the delicately poised imbalances that have to be adjusted en route to the future Sen. Hart likes to talk about

The Jersey stereotype, to be sure, has recently been written out of existence by laureates who even compare the state with California. In fact, it is no longer correct to view Jersey as a mere dumping ground for such New York rejects as industry, dirt, the mob and Nixon. Indeed Hart stirred a fuss when he said that his wife was lucky to be campaigning in California while he was in New Jersey.

But New Jersey is still a long way from being the golden state. Its distinguishing feature is a tight mix of past and future.

The urban-suburban balance is a good example. Jersey is very much bedroom community for New York and Philadelphia. It has some of the toniest suburbs in the country - in Morris and Bergen counties across the river from New York, and in Mercer County around Princeton.

But it has also some of the most egregious examples of cities gone to seed. Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Camden and Paterson are towns that manifest all the troubles - race tension, low income, poor education, dwindling population - which have made for urban decline in the past three decades.

The white collar-blue collar balance fits the same pattern. The central corridor of the state from Trenton to New Brunswick has become a white-collar bastion. Bell and RCA both have huge labs in the area. Prudential, the vast insurance company, also calls it home. But the state still has a large slug of heavy industry - particularly in chemicals and drugs.

Problems of ecological balance also mark the state. Twenty-five percent of the territory is wilderness. Yet Jersey is the most densely populated state in the union, and it has probably suffered more than any other from the problems of mass transit and waste

Lastly, there is media balance. Northern New Jersey is part of the New York television market, and southern New Jersey is part of the Philadelphia market. Neither one pays excessive attention to doings in the state. So most Jerseyites get their state political news from the

One consequence of these tight balances is a series of highly salient local issues. Like all Americans, people in this state care about peace and the economy. But mass transit and environmental issues rank very high. Hart and Mondale, indeed, kicked off their campaign for the state with a fight about who had the best record when it came to cleaning up toxic

The play of issues among narrowly balanced interests makes political organization extremely hard. New Jersey has long since ceased to be a bossed state. Tom O'Neill of an excellent state political magazine, the New Jersey Reporter, says "nobody's in charge." A choice example is the mayor of Democratic Jersey City, Gerry McCann, who is apt to vote

Ticket-splitters and Independents who shift back and forth between parties abound. The state has not voted for a Democrat as president since 1964. But in 1973 it followed a Republican landslide by electing a Democratic senator.

Present registration figures list 40 percent Democratic, 20 percent Republican and 40 percent Independent. Anybody who is not a registered Republican can vote in the Democratic primary. So crossovers are easy.

Early polls give Mondale a slight lead. But because of the Independent factor, Hart figures to do very well among voters who make up their minds late and are hard to poll. One Hart backer says, "The reason we lost New York and Pennsylvania is that all the Independents moved to New Jersey.' So with both Independent voters and an approach for the future going for him, it is hard to see how Hart can have any hope for the nomination if he does not carry New Jersey Tuesday.

Russians are radioactive

WASHINGTON - Aside from the residents of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the Russians have been subjected to more nuclear radiation than any people on earth because of their government's callous disregard of safety

Intelligence sources say that thousands of Soviet citizens have died as the result of accidents on nuclear submarines and at Soviet nuclear power plants and weapons complexes. Many more have been exposed to heavy doses of radiation because of irresponsible nuclear waste-disposal methods.

The appalling story of the irradiated Russians has leaked out only in bits and pieces. But much of it is contained in secret and topsecret CIA and Pentagon documents seen by my associate Dale Van Atta.

For instance, one report mentions many "hairless" sailors in Soviet veterans' homes, suggesting that they had been overexposed to radiation from faulty nuclear reactors on submarines. Another report cites a group of 200 political prisoners suffering from radiation sickness after cleaning nuclear subs at a base near Paldiski, Estonia

There have been at least three major accidents involving Soviet nuclear subs. The latest occurred when one sank in the northern Pacific with most of its 90-man crew aboard. In 1980, a Soviet sub caught fire about 60 miles off Okinawa and at least nine crewmen died. The bodies were laid out on the deck by men wearing strange, ankle-length white cloaks. Another Soviet sub sank off Britain in 1970.

On land, the Soviet nuclear power industry is "plagued with manufacturing deficiencies and poor workmanship," according to a secret CIA report. It said the Soviets often cut corners on safety to eliminate delays in their trouble-plagued nuclear program. Intelligence reports suggest that there may have been nearly a dozen plant shutdowns. A reactor at Royno in the Ukraine is known to have gone "critical" in December 1981, while one at Shevchenko was shut down after faults developed in pipes and turbines

A Soviet official confided to a visiting congressman that at least two other "incidents" had occurred — one was the rupture of a coolant line and the other an explosion that spread radioactive steam outside the power plant.

The CIA has catalogued at least three major nuclear accidents in the Soviet Union since the 1950s. One happened in 1960 or 1961, another in the early 1970s.

But the worst occurred in the winter of 1957-58 near Kasli, Chelyabinsk province, in the Urals. A chemical explosion in tanks of radioactive wastes released Strontium 90 and other dangerous elements. The resulting radioactivity was about 1,000 times higher than bomb fallout. Billy Graham

The accident contaminated several hundred square miles, forcing the evacuation of 30 villages. It is today probably the most radioactive spot on earth. Three lakes, one 20 square kilometers (about 12.4 square miles) in size, were poisoned for 300 years. The Soviets tried to reduce the spread of contaminated water with a system of dams and canals.

Hundreds of Russians are believed to have perished in the explosion; many others died from longterm effects. The victims included 'death squads' of prisoners sent into the area on futile cleanup missions in the early 1960s. The Soviets finally gave up, razed the villages and now use the area to train soldiers for nuclear war.

Soviet disposal methods for nuclear wastes often look good on paper, but apparently are carelessfollowed. And some of their methods - injecting waste into water-bearing geologic strata deep underground, and solidifying it into camera? blocks stored in bunkers - are frowned on by U.S. safety experts.

Even more alarming is the Soviet propensity to simply classify inadequately treated lowlevel nuclear waste as "nonradioactive" and dump it into the nearest river. This is what's done with waste from the Moscow nuclear power plant on the Moscow

I appeal to all major industries in the Big Spring area. I beg of you, please, don't burn anything else during the daytime hours. My heart can't take much more.

Now don't get me wrong. I realize that these fine industries provide jobs, pay taxes and keep the economy of Big Spring from sinking into a quagmire. But you have to understand my point of

I'm the only photographer the Herald has, so my job is to shoot everything that moves in the city. I'm fairly new in the professional newspaper industry, so I want to make a mighty impression on my employers here in Big Spring. Since spot news constantly dominates photojournalism competitions, I want to bring the Herald to the level of finer photojournalistic excellence.

Therefore, bearing all that in mind, I lead a tough life, and when I see smoke of any kind, it's time to grab the camera and head out to the fire, if there is one.

A typical day has me crusing for feature photos in the afternoon, with my trusty police and fire scanner by my side. It may be a slow feature day and the pictures may be few, when off in the distance, a massive black column of smoke rises from the horizon. With an extreme increase in blood pressure, and my heartbeat racing as fast as the four cylinders underneath the hood, it's time to go into action.

Being on the opposite side of the city from the smoke, Gregg Street or FM 700 serves as an excellent autobahn. As the iron (or tin) titan beneath my feet speeds me to my destination, I wonder of the dangers that await me. Will smoke be so thick that it's impossible to get good pictures? Are chemical barrels going to be exploding around me? And what if I have a technical problem with my and closer, and no fire trucks in sight, I may be the first on the scene. As the tension builds with every passing second, I peer out the window towards the source of the smoke; old tires being burned in a shop yard, being tended by several men, making sure control is theirs.

So once again, I'm off on my merry way, trying to track down those great feature shots I'll never see again. Within an hour, my heart rate will be back to normal. and all will be as it once was.

So for all who must dispose of their materials by burning, please don't do it while I'm featurehunting. I just don't know how much more my heart can take.

DEAR MRS. T.T.R.: Our society often judges a person's success only by how successful he is in his career or business. This is unfortunate, because a person can be very successful in business and yet be a failure in life. Your husband needs to think through the real meaning of success and realize that he as other responsibilities (especially to his family - and most of all, to God) that are even more important than his work. "A man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions' (Luke 12:15)

You need to talk very frankly and directly - and yet lovingly, without anger - with you husband about your concerns. He needs to realize, for example, just what his absence might do to your children. They need his time and his example; without it, they may well become resentful and rebellious. At the very least, they will not have the advantage of his wisdom and guidance, and will be the poorer for

In 137-104 rout

akers intimidate Celtics far as Larry Bird is concerned, his Boston Celtics will have to change their on-court demeanor if they're going to win an unprecedented 16th National Basketball Association championship.

"Today, we were a bunch of sissies," Bird said after the Lakers demolished the Celtics 137-104 Sunday in the third game of the NBA Championship Series. "There's no doubt about that. We let them play their game.

'We're supposed to be a physical team, they're supposed to be a finesse team. We stood around and let them push us around and do what they wanted. They got all the rebounds and were off and running."

The one-sided triumph gave the Lakers a 2-1 advantage in the bestof-seven series. The fourth game will be played at the Forum sided ever suffered by the Celtics in a Championship Series. The issue was decided after the Lakers rolled up a record 47 points in the third quarter to take a 104-79

Los Angeles finished with a 63-44 advantage in rebounding. And, as Bird pointed out, once the Lakers got a rebound, the race downcourt was on. And it seemed to end every time with a layup or a dunk.

As usual, the maestro of the Los Angeles break was Earvin 'Magic'' Johnson, who set a Championship Series record with 21

"They caught us at our best today," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley. "It was just a great performance. But I don't think that losing by 33 will have any effect on them.

"This was just one game, we want to make sure we follow it up on Wednesday. We need two more

The setback was the most one- wins. They're going to have something to say about that."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led a balanced Los Angeles attack with 24 points, nine rebounds and four blocked shots. Seven Lakers scored in double figures. Johnson had 14 points and 11 rebounds to go with

"Magic took total control of the game," Bird said. "They just kept pushing the ball down our throats.'

Abdul-Jabbar had 13 points and Johnson had eight assists in the third quarter, when the Lakers expanded a 57-46 lead to their 25-point advantage.

The previous Championship Series record for points in a period was 46 set by Boston against St. Louis in 1960. And the previous assist record in a Championship Series game was 19, twice by Bob Cousy of Boston and once by Walt

East German women set new world 1,600 meter relay mark

ERFURT, East Germany (AP) -East Germany's powerful women runners, deprived of a start at the Los Angeles Olympics by the Soviet-bloc boycott, salvaged some glory with a world record in the 4 x 400-meter relay at the national track and field championships.

Anchored by 1980 Moscow Olympic gold medalist Marita Koch, the East German team sped to a time of 3:15.92 seconds, more than three seconds faster than the team's old

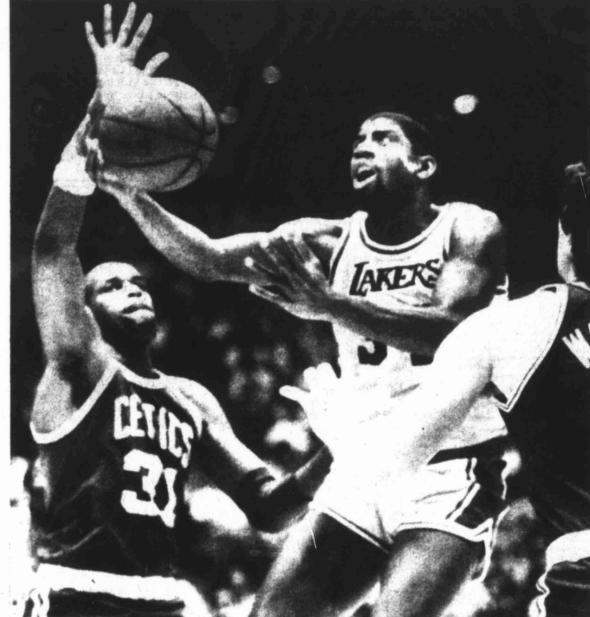

The 27-year-old Koch, who is rated one of the greatest women sprinters in history, ran her final leg in an unofficial time of 47.70 seconds. The official world record in the 400 meters is 47.99 seconds held by Czechoslovakia's Jarmila Kratochvilova, another non-starter at Los Angeles

Other team members, cheered by a ceowd of 20,000 on a sunny afternoon, were Gesine Walther, Sabine Busch and Dagmar Ruebsam.

Koch won the 400-meter national title Saturday with a time of 48.86 seconds - the world's best clocking of the year.

Although East German women were the stars of the final day, the men also turned in some fine performances.

Connors battles jitters for French win

PARIS (AP) - Third-seeded Jimmy Connors of the United States overcame some first-set jitters today and went on to crush Emilio Sanchez of Spain 6-4, 6-1, 6-1 to move into the quarterfinals of the French Open tennis championships.

With the victory, Connors next will play Sweden's Henrik Sund-strom, the No. 9 seed.

Chippers take tourney title for fifth time

The Cotton Chippers of Big Spring won the championship of the Eighth Annual Cotton Mize Fast Pitch Tournament held during the weekend with a 3-2 win over Whiteface.

The Potashers from Carlsbad, New Mexico took second while Cunningham Oil of Coahoma was

The title clincher capped a five game comeback for the Chippers, coached by Cotton Mize, who dropped their first game to Cunningham Oil of Coahoma. The Chippers beat Lubbock K&K, Goodfellows, Potashers, New Mexico and Big Spring before taking Whiteface. Against the New Mexico state champion Potashers Johnny Mize pitched a two-hitter.

The Chippers are now 15-4 after winning the tourney for the fifth time and will compete in a tournament in San Angelo June 8-10.

In other matches today, secondseeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia attempted to join tournament favorite John McEnroe in the final eight. Lendl, seeking his first Grand Slam title, played No. 11 Anders Jarryd of

In quarterfinal women's matches today, top-seeded Martina Navratilova took on No. 8 Kathy Horvath and third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia played 16-year-old amateur Melissa Brown of Scarsdale, N.Y.

Connors, having trouble finding his rhythm and missing the lines, fell behind the 19-year-old Sanchez

3-0 in the opening set. But after Sanchez held serve to take a 4-1 lead, Connors pulled himself together, playing virtually error-free tennis and winning the next 10 games.

Sanchez, ranked 87th in the world on the Atari-ATP computer, had trouble with his first serve all day. The 31-year-old Connors served well, however, and repeatedly caught the Spaniard flatfooted or going the wrong way on hard-hit cross-court winners.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 5, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find that the morning brings the chance to see your goals in a broad sense, but the afternoon and evening find some surprising conditions arising that keep-you from continuing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is fine for creativity but you may have trouble with details. Await a better time to get a co-worker to do what you wish. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You understand how to solve a home affair early but cannot do so until later because of interruptions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get your ideas across to allies in the morning, but later do not let family mat-ters upset you so that you can do nothing. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Find the best way to add to your present holdings and then later get the OK from experts. Be more careful in driving. LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You are inspired in the morning but later have to handle practical affairs and you cannot put new ideas across. Save money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) See what you can do to get rid of restrictions that annoy you; then put some new course in action that works to your benefit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get the aid of friends for gaining personal goals in the morning; then get rid of annoyances that vex you. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find new methods that will increase your efficiency. Don't bother any higher-up with small details. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to start a new enterprise, so follow your intuition. Later you may have to double back and complete unfinished business. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you understand new methods before you start on some new venture otherwise you could lose your shirt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) State your aims to a generous partner and you get fine backing in the morning and later handle the small details.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Everything goes smoothly at work in the morning, but after lunch don't be petty with a partner.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have every capability of understanding the idealistic thoughts or ideas behind any enterprise and will keep them in the subconscious for use upon reaching maturity and can turn them into practical assets.
