Cauble due here

Camp awaits 'Cowboy Mafia' king

By JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

Big Spring Federal Prison Camp officials are expecting their newest tenant, "King of the Cowboy Mafia" Rex Cauble, to arrive on the wings of a million-dollar jet to begin a five-year sentence for drug convictions.

John Allman, on his last day as director of the federal prison, said this morning Cauble would arrive by June 22, probably in his newly purchased $1.2 million Citation fan jet.

"He will not be the first prisoner to arrive in a private jet," said Allman. "We've had two or three inmates who arrived in their private jets."

Allman said Cauble, a multi-millionaire rancher from Denton, was given time to get his business affairs in order before reporting to prison.

"Once they (prisoners) arrive and sign into the system, they can no longer conduct their business affairs, sign contracts or take part in business negotiations," Allman said. "They must appoint a conservator to act for them."

Cauble must serve 40 months at the camp before becoming eligible for parole.

Cauble was convicted on Jan. 28, 1982 of being the kingpin in the "Cowboy Mafia", a loosely-knit group that the government said smuggled 176,000 pounds of marijuana through Texas ports.

Under the Corrupt Organizations Act, the government has moved to seize Cauble's personal fortune, which it claims was built on the profits of drug traffic.

Cauble's 31 percent share of Cauble Enterprises, believed to be worth between $50 million and $75 million, will be the largest government seizure under act.

On May 14, Federal Judge William Steger granted Cauble a 30-day extension before reporting to the federal prison system.

During that time, Cauble has purchased the fan jet, had his bail raised from $250,000 to $1 million, has lost bids for a new trial in federal court in Tyler, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Downtown renovation gets boost

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Downtown merchants, property owners and other interested persons — including several local bankers — met for the first time last night to form a brand new organization that doesn't even have a name yet.

The group's object: to get the ball rolling on downtown renovation.

"Something's gotta be done," Gregg Brooks, meeting organizer and member of the Downtown Merchants Association, said afterward.

"And we're catching it before it gets too dilapidated," he said.

Councilman Robert Fuller said Big Spring's downtown is an asset, but "a deteriorating asset."

"At some point it will have zero value," he said, and then the city will lose money in taxes, he added.

To combat the area's deterioration, Fuller said the council "will consider anything that makes good economic sense."

In addition, the city has assigned Administrative Assistant Pat Hardy to the renovation project.

Hardy made a 45-minute presentation to the group, explaining the area's problems and assets and outlining what he believes needs to be done to turn the area around.

To get the business of renovation started, the group then broke up into five committees:

They are:

- A committee to promote downtown economic development.
- A committee for retail education among businesses.
- A committee to bring in new businesses and recruit new members to the group.
- A committee to develop and promote special events.
- A governing body to make bylaws and decide on a name for the group.

What was accomplished during the committees' first meetings?

"It would be premature to comment now," said First National

Turner blasts chief petition

RICK TURNER
...police chief

Police Chief Rick Turner said last night he is against a recent proposal for electing Big Spring's police chief and said he believes "there are some ulterior motives" behind a petition proposing the change.

Turner's comments came during the "Police Beat" program on KBYG radio station.

"I feel like it would be extremely difficult to do (the) job without prejudice, without bias, if you were elected. I think it would be a very difficult role to serve within the community," Turner said.

"We've taken on people in town...that have previously been untouchable and if I had to worry about running for office I don't know if I would have done that or not," he said.

"I feel like there are some ulterior motives behind (the petition) and...there are several people in town who are not satisfied with what we've been doing. They don't want things to change and they want the economics of the narcotics flow to keep flowing like it has been. And we're saying 'no,' something that nobody's said before," he said.

According to state law, if petition organizers can gather 567 signatures from the city's 11,340 registered voters, city officials must call a referendum election on changing the city charter. Whether the police chief becomes an elected position depends on the outcome of the referendum.

Petition organizer Danny Heckler said this week he and others have already gathered about 600 signatures on the petition. The names have not yet been presented to the city secretary for verification, he said.

Turner said he agreed with comments "against the elected police chief concept" contained in a Wednesday Herald column by local businesswoman Johnnie Lou Avery.

"If it comes down to an election for police chief, in my opinion, the people in town don't really want law enforcement. They want somebody that they can pull the strings on and say 'I'm not gonna vote for you if you arrest my son or my daughter or if you arrest me for dealing cocaine,'" he said.

However, Turner stopped short of saying the petition is being circulated by persons involved in illegal activity.

"I have been receiving a lot of political pressure from folks involved in narcotics trafficking, involved in a lot of different criminal activities, and I'm not insinuating that these people that are circulating (the petition) are involved in that," he said.

Petition organizer Mary Thomas, who listened to last night's program, said this morning:

"As one of the participants in getting this petition signed and filed, I categorically deny that it has anything to do with any type of illegal activity."

Doggett leads runoff recount

Local numbers unchanged

From staff and wire reports

In Howard County and across the state, Democratic Party officials are recounting the votes from Saturday's runoff U.S. Senate primary, and aides to Lloyd Doggett and Kent Hance said the numbers were fluctuating but the outcome hadn't changed.

In Howard County, Thursday's recount didn't change a single vote, according to County Clerk Margaret Ray. Hance still led with 2,068 ballots, 76.71 percent, to Doggett's 628 votes, 23.29 percent of the votes cast in the race.

"I was pleased it turned out the same," said Mrs. Ray. She said she expected no change in the recount figures because a hand-count taken election night was only one ballot off from a later computer count.

Howard County computers used to tally ballots broke down election night, causing her office to be the last county in the state to report results in the close Hance-Doggett run-off.

"We didn't have any trouble with the computers today," Mrs. Ray said yesterday. "We worked the last three days on the computer."

The local recount took a total of one hour to complete, starting at 2 p.m. Thursday, and finishing by 3 p.m.

The results were 63 ballots off from the total number of ballots cast in the Democratic primary in the county because persons either failed to vote in the Senate runoff or they voted for both Hance and Doggett, Mrs. Ray said.

Present at the local recount besides Mrs. Ray and computer operator Wayne Bristo were Bob Huff, a Doggett representative; Richard Palmer, a Hance representative; and Bill Tune, the 118th District Court bailiff and District Judge Jim Gregg's designee.

The recount results will be officially canvassed by the county Democratic executive committee at 5 p.m. Saturday in the county courtroom, Mrs. Ray said.

The recount requested in all 254 counties by Hance is "going to be a long, drawn-out process," said Doggett press secretary Rich Paul. "You pick up some here and you lose some there. It's really too early to tell."

Doggett won the Saturday runoff by just 467 votes, 489,927 to 489,460. Hance requested a recount in all 254 counties, and representatives of both were watching as that process was being carried out.

Camille Burger, director of primaries for the Texas Democratic Party, said most of the recounts would take place today and Saturday, and that the process should be completed by next week.

How soon the statewide recount is completed is up to the state district judges, who must set times and order the recounts, Mrs. Ray said.

Hance, in an interview with the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, said he would contest 238 votes reported in Duval County this week for Doggett, adding that 112 more Hance votes were found in South Texas.

'SLIPPIN' N' SLIDIN' — With school barely out, Howard County youngsters like Bryan Neary have had to find ways to beat the early summer heat wave. Temperatures today should reach into high 90's, according to the National Weather Service.

Our town's brown

Pollution threatens E. Texas community

MONTICELLO (AP) — The 60 residents of this East Texas community may have to leave their homes if officials of a coal-fired electric plant do not solve pollution problems, the town's mayor says.

City officials say the pollution is caused from smokestacks and from blowing ash from waste disposal sites at the plant, which is owned by Texas Utilities Generating Co.

Company officials, however, say the plant is in compliance with state standards and is not a health hazard.

Residents have complained of sore eyes and respiratory problems. Many have moved away, while others are encouraging the utility to buy their properties so they can afford to leave.

"What are we going to do, all sit here and die?" asked Mayor Harold Smith, 61. "They (Texas Utilities) should clear out a three- or four-mile radius around the plant."

"It's reached the point where we absolutely can't stand it anymore," Smith said. "There's not a one of us that's not stopped up, sinuses bad, and with kids that can't breathe."

Smith said the problem has become so bad that he believes the town's 60 residents will be forced to move.

In April, a state inspector tested the air near Joey Patterson's home and found that blowing dust from the plant's ash disposal site was at levels nearly 15 times the amount considered safe under state law, according to Texas Air Control Board data.

Another resident, Mike White, who has lived in Monticello since 1976, said his son's asthma has worsened since they moved to the area.

"You can see it pouring out of the stacks every day," said White. "We have special filters on our air conditioner, but it doesn't help much."

White said that the family will be forced to move unless his son shows signs of recovery.

Other families living near the plant say the pollution is damaging their health. Eighteen families

Weather

Humidity covers state

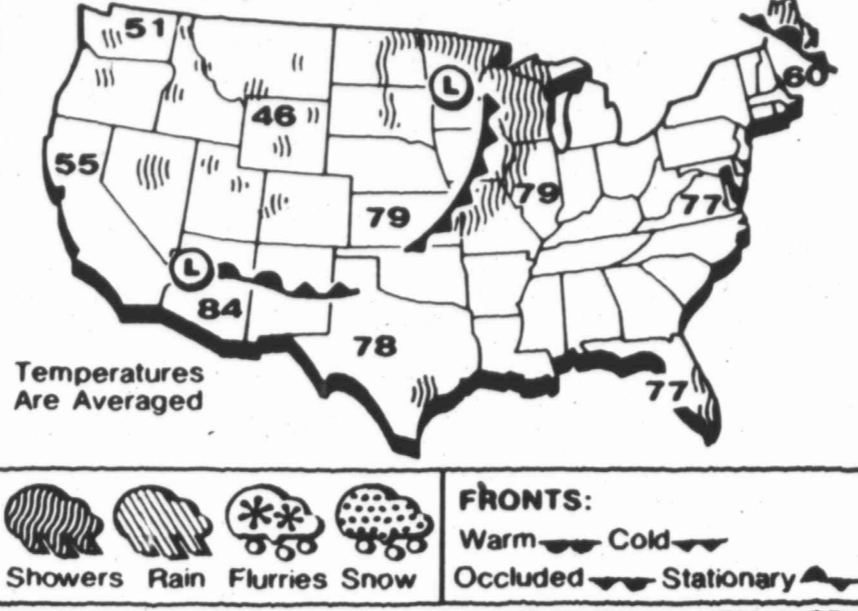

By The Associated Press
 Warm air from the Gulf of Mexico pushed across Texas early today as humid weather continued across much of the state.
 A blanket of low clouds covered the eastern half of the state while it was clear and dry across the High Plains and trans-Pecos regions.
 The remainder of Texas was under a veil of thin high clouds while widely scattered showers dampened the upper Gulf Coast.
 Temperatures early today were in the 70s, except for readings in the 60s in the Panhandle and higher elevations of far West Texas. Extremes at 4 a.m. were 62 at Amarillo and 80 at Cotulla and Laredo.
 Winds were southerly across much of the state with speeds ranging from 10 to near 25 miles an hour over the western half of North Texas.
 Thunderstorms that spawned more than 30 tornadoes from Kansas to Minnesota, killing several people and injuring dozens of residents, rumbled eastward today.
 More record-setting temperatures in the 80s and 90s and suffocating humidity were also forecast today for the East as the thunderstorm system moved over the eastern edge of the northern and central Plains through the Ohio Valley and the Great Lakes into New England.

Barneveld, Wis., took inventory of the damage from a tornado that struck that south-central Wisconsin town early today, leaving a trail of damage and at least nine people injured. Officials said more than 75 people were being sheltered in schools after the twister struck.

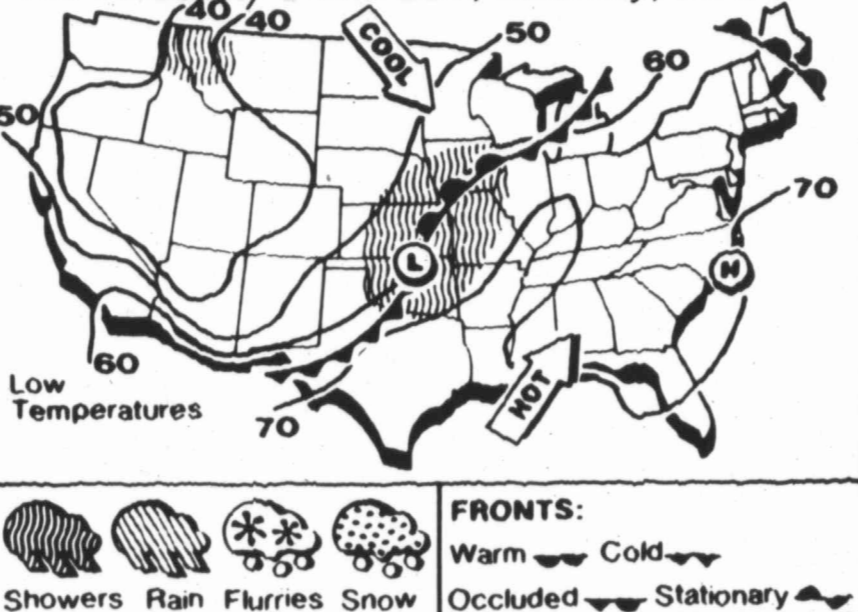

Iowa was hardest hit Thursday — a tornado destroyed most of the northern Iowa community of Burt, and two deaths were reported in southern Iowa. In Kansas, heavy rain flooded part of the community of Sparks, while water two feet deep blocked highways north of Topeka. And winds gusted to nearly 70 mph in Minneapolis and Rochester, Minn.

West Texas: Partly cloudy with widely scattered evening thunderstorms east of the mountains. Partly cloudy most sections Saturday. Highs in the 80s and 90s, except near 105 in the Big Bend. Lows ranging from the upper 50s in the Panhandle to the middle 70s southeast.

Firefighters battle car fire

A car fire that occurred at the intersection of 11th and State streets brought one unit of the Big Spring fire department to the scene at 5:18 p.m. Thursday.
 Reports said firefighters arrived to find smoke coming from the engine compartment of the 1963 Volkswagen, which is owned by Bob Smith of 3911 W. Hwy. 80 and was driven by Gail Birmelin of Gail Route. The fire incurred an unknown amount of damage to the car, reports said.

 Firefighters poured about 20 gallons of water on the vehicle to extinguish the blaze, according to reports.

Man refuses treatment

A Big Spring man refused hospital treatment early this morning after a one-car rollover accident in the 700 block of Lamesa Drive, police reports said.
 Fred Escabedo, 22, of 311 N.E. Eighth was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and ticketed for failure to control speed after the accident that happened at 12:46 a.m. this morning, reports said.
 Escabedo was heading north on Lamesa Drive when he lost control of his 1975 Chevrolet pickup, struck a traffic sign, rolled his truck onto a parking lot at 710 Lamesa and collided with a metal pole, according to police reports.

• Luan Stallings of 1103 E. Fourth told police at 5:23 p.m. Thursday that someone between 4 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Wednesday entered her residence and stole a refrigerated air conditioner and a TV valued at a total of $600 and a wheelbarrow valued at $100 from outside the residence, police reports said.
 • Kim Birklow and Jim Cordes of the Coronado Apartments at 801

Marcy told police at 7:56 p.m. Thursday that at about 7:45 p.m. Thursday someone they know incurred an unknown amount of damage to their 1979 Yamaha 650 c.c. motorcycle while it was parked in front of their apartment, police reports said. It was the second report of harassment filed by the pair in two days.
 • Debra Williams, a clerk at K-Mart at FM 700 and Birdwell Lane, turned in at 8:38 p.m. Thursday a report of someone impersonating a police officer at the store at 7:45 p.m. Thursday, police reports said. Ms. Williams told police that someone tried to get a refund for merchandise at the store by identifying himself as a police officer, reports said.
 • James Dwight Holbrook, 62, of Arlington was arrested at 11:14 p.m. Thursday by a Department of Public Safety Trooper on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police reports said.
 • Robert John Flohr, 25, of Gail Route was arrested at 3:57 p.m. Thursday in the 2100 block of 11th Place in connection with Department of Public Safety warrants.

 Bank President Jimmy Taylor of the economic development committee. However, Taylor said his committee will have some "definite proposals" for the group's next meeting, which is tentatively scheduled in two weeks.
 According to former Mayor

Wade Choate, the governing body committee will have the group's bylaws completed at that time.
 And decorator Marae Brooks said the special events committee will propose a combined flea market and farmer's market — including entertainment — for sometime this summer.

 have signed a petition asking company officials to buy their properties so they can afford to leave.
 Although company officials say they have no evidence that anyone's health is in jeopardy, they have spent $250,000 in recent months to control the blowing dust.
 "We feel like we have maintained compliance with applicable standards," plant manager Ned Baker said. "We have continued to do that all along."
 Before the tests for blowing ash were conducted, company officials and the Texas Air Control Board had maintained that the 750-megawatt power plant was in compliance with air-quality standards.
 After the tests, however, the TACB declared the ash a nuisance and ordered the problem corrected, said Richard Leard, TACB regional director in Tyler.
 Leard said that stronger action, including a fine, may be taken later.
 The plant's three generating units burn lignite coal, a cheap, dirt fuel strip-mined from more than 15,000 acres leased by the company around the facility.

 Only one of the units is equipped with emission control devices. The two older units are exempt from the stricter standards under the Texas Clean Air Act because construction started before 1971. Because of that, the units are allowed to discharge three times as much ash and 2½ times as much sulfur dioxide, according to the TACB.
 Smith and other residents believe that smokestack emissions as well as blowing ash are responsible for their problems.
 Even the head of the state Public Utility Commission has questions about the plant's emission controls.
 "I'm tired of hearing they're not violating the law," said Alan Erwin, chairman of the PUC, which grants licenses for new plants. "If they're not violating the law, and these people are suffering dust pneumonia and leaving the land they've lived on all their lives, then something's wrong with the law."

 "I see no reason why an elected chief of police wouldn't be just as effective or more effective in enforcing the law."
 "I don't understand his reasoning when he says if people want an elected chief of police they don't want law enforcement. That's not logical at all."
 "We have a lot of people that are qualified to run for office and would be professional if they were elected," she added.

 Turner said he will take a "wait and see" attitude about his future should the election be held.
 "I think everybody has a right to air their grievances, and if 500 folks in Big Spring, Texas, feel like we should have an elected police chief and then the majority of the public goes along with it, then that's what we need, evidently," he said.

Infant's death investigated

WALLISVILLE (AP) — The Chambers County sheriff's department is investigating a family's claim that a toddler choked to death after officials at Chambers Memorial Hospital demanded payment before treating the child.
 The 14-month-old girl died Sunday en route to a Galveston hospital.
 Sheriff C.E. Morris said his department still is gathering facts.
 "Then we'll talk with the district attorney, who will decide whether to have a grand jury review," Morris said. "It's difficult to prove criminal negligence. Something like this may have to be settled in civil court."
 A hospital administrator said Wednesday that the couple left "of their own free will" after talking with a nurse's aide.
 The baby, Carrie Ann Banks, died on the way to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston. The girl's funeral was scheduled today in Wallisville.

 "They did me dirty," said the child's father, Elva Banks, 65. "The nurse said we needed to have cash money, and I told her we didn't have enough. So she said, 'I'm sorry, but that's all we can do.'"
 Hospital Administrator Dean Boebinger denied that the child, who was not examined by a nurse or a doctor, was refused treatment. He said the nurse's aide, Helen Heiman, was only stating the hospital policy.
 "There was never a statement made that, 'If you don't pay, we won't treat you,'" Boebinger said.

Fiberflex case back in court

The battle over corporate control of Fiberflex, Inc. moves back into the courtroom today to ask retired 118th District Court Judge Ralph Caton to rule on several motions in the complex case.
 District Court officials said they expect Caton to grant a motion for continuance to the original defendants, led by current company management, including president Tommy Rutledge.
 The trial was scheduled to be tried before Caton on Monday, and has already been delayed twice. The original plaintiffs in the case, joined by Charles "Chris" Christopher, are opposing the motion for continuance.

Christopher's group claims it has majority control of the company's stock, a claim disputed by Fiberflex management and company patent attorney Guy Matthews of Houston. Matthews claims that when he sold his stock to Christopher's group, he was told it was not "swing" stock. He also claims that he already had signed an agreement granting voting rights to the stock in his suit to other parties.
 Other parties in the suit, including Moncor, a Hobbs, N.M., bank, are asking Caton for severance of their suits from the main case, which will decide who controls a particular block of stock owned by Matthews.

Hendon wins runoff recount

LAMESA — E. L. (Gene) Hendon has been declared the winner of the Precinct 3 Dawson County commissioner runoff election that ended in a tie after the vote was first counted last Saturday.
 A recount today showed Hendon winning by one vote over Sanford Boardman. Hendon received 480 votes in the recount to Sanford's 479.

Saturday's ballot counts showed the two candidates tied with 479 votes each.
 Boardman led in three of the four boxes in the Precinct, but Hendon enjoyed a 3-to-1 margin of support at Welch, where he picked up 131 votes to Sanford's 42.
 Boardman led 171 to 132 in Box 3 at the Courthouse, 192 to 145 in Box 7 at the Fire station and 74 to 71 in absentee balloting.

New C-City police chief on duty

COLORADO CITY — Kenneth Farrow took over as chief of police here today.
 The 37-year-old Texas native replaces Ed Wheat, who resigned March 30. Wheat moved to Hillsboro, where he was named police chief.

Farrow was a captain in the U.S. Army and an investigator for the U.S. Treasury Department.
 He is a graduate of Roswell High School, has bachelor's and a master's degrees in law enforcement and is a qualified emergency medical technician.

Ballinger bids for more water

A request by the city of Ballinger for water from Lake Spence will be on the Tuesday agenda of Colorado River Municipal Water District directors in Big Spring.
 The board will also consider rehabilitation and development of Snyder wells for backup purposes.
 Also on the agenda is the Beals Creek project, which may be up for bids in the early summer. The board will consider wage-salary schedules for contractors who may bid on the job.

 The board may authorize funds for purchase of remote control equipment for the district's central control station.
 At least one new director, David Holt from Snyder, will be sworn in at the meeting, which also will see the election of new officers.

NAACP to conduct membership drive

The Howard County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) is conducting a membership drive through June 16.
 Georgia Chatman, chairperson of the local NAACP membership committee, is spearheading the drive.
 The NAACP, founded in 1909, is the oldest and largest civil rights organization in the U.S., counting almost 400,000 members from all races.
 "All citizens who believe in equal justice and equal opportunity for all Americans are invited to stand up and be counted as a civil rights partisan by becoming a card-carrying member of the NAACP," Mrs. Chatman said.

 There are several types of memberships available. The minimum adult membership is $10 annually, and youth membership (up to 21) is $3. All adult memberships include a subscription to Crisis, the Association's official magazine.
 Membership fees may be mailed to the Howard County Chapter NAACP, Box 2757, Big Spring, 79721. Contact Mrs. Chatman at 263-2981 for additional information.

Juneteenth beauty pageant scheduled

A beauty pageant will top the list of activities planned locally for Emancipation Proclamation Day (Juneteenth), June 19.
 On Monday, June 18, the Ada Belle Dement Civic and Art Club will sponsor a Ms. Ebony Pageant and Fashion Show at 7 p.m. at the Howard College auditorium. Admission is $2. Tickets are available from any club member or may be purchased at the door. The pageant will feature young women over 21 modeling casual, swim and evening wear. Some will perform talent presentations. Debra Woods is the fashion coordinator.

 After the pageant, a dance will begin at 9:30 p.m. at the Howard County Fair Barn. Admission is $4.
 A parade Tuesday (June 19) will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Lakeview School on the Northside and travel south on Scurrey to Gibson's parking lot.
 At 1 p.m. a barbecue dinner will be served at Comanche Trail Park.

Sheriff's Log

Bond denied local man

A 21-year-old Big Spring man who Monday received a probated sentence for felony delivery of marijuana was arrested Thursday for revocation of probation.
 Kenneth Wayne Robinson of 1511 Avion remains in jail after bond was denied. Robinson was sentenced in 118th District Court to seven years probation and a $2,000 fine Monday for a count of felony delivery of marijuana. He was one of seven persons accused of committing felony drug offenses in sealed indictments by the Howard County grand jury in January.
 • A 28-year-old Big Spring woman was arrested Thursday by sheriff's deputies on suspicion of issuance of a bad check.
 Vickie Lou Bumbalis of 904 Douglas was released on $200 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.
 • Thomas Harrell Bills, 21, of Ira was transferred Thursday to the county jail by the Department of Public Safety on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released on $500 bond set by Heflin.
 • Elvis Eugene Johnson, 27, of 109 N.W. 12th was transferred Thursday to the sheriff's office from the police department after being arrested when his bondsman went off bond on a charge of possession of marijuana. He was released on $3,500 bond set by Peace Justice Bobby West.
 • Andrew Aguirre, 32, of Sand Springs was transferred Thursday to the county jail from the police department on suspicion of driving while license suspended. He was released on $500 bond set by Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

Roy roars over Tigers

By the Associated Press

DETROIT — Actor Roy Scheider says filming "Tiger Town" made him a Detroit Tigers fan, so he returned to Tiger Stadium to root on the team and promote the movie's big-screen debut.

ROY SCHEIDER

Scheider tossed out the first ball Thursday in the Tigers' 5-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"Tiger Town," filmed in Detroit last summer, was shown in October on the 800,000-subscriber Disney Channel cable network and opens tonight in three Detroit-area theaters.

In the film, Scheider plays Billy Young, "sort of an aging right-fielder in the line of (former Tiger great Al) Kaline and (ex-Boston Red Sox star Carl) Yastrzemski, and he's playing with a club that's never won the pennant," the actor said at a news conference.

"I always thought the Tigers were a classy-looking team," he added.

Jimmy's revolting speech

DENVER — The AMC Cancer Research Center is considering whether to withhold sports gambling expert Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder's fee for a speech that the center's president described as "revolting."

JIMMY SNYDER

The center has sent out letters apologizing for Snyder's behavior at the fund-raising dinner, calling his remarks "about three minutes of verbal abuse, insults and bigotry."

Snyder spoke May 17 to about 500 people who paid $550 apiece.

Manfred L. Minzer Jr., president of the privately and publicly funded independent institution, said Wednesday that the center was considering whether to withhold part or all of Snyder's speaking fee of $6,500 plus expenses.

"They can do whatever they want to do," Snyder said Wednesday in New York. "This is the first time I've ever had a beef, and I've done maybe 500 (dinner speeches) in my life. I apologize if I hurt anybody, but I don't know who I could have hurt."

King gets a sheepskin

CAMBRIDGE — King Juan Carlos of Spain, who attended Harvard University but never graduated, was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree by the school at its 333rd commencement.

Juan Carlos, 46, delivered the commencement address Thursday to 25,000 graduates, alumni and family members at the ceremony.

The degree lauded the monarch with the citation: "Through democratic institutions he brings new hope to an ancient land."

"I feel deep humility and pride. My humility, of course, is due to the scholarly distinction conferred upon me by Harvard, an honor that I did not earn after years of study in its halls," said Juan Carlos, whose ascent to the throne in 1976 marked the return of democracy to Spain.

Among others receiving honorary degrees were musician Benny Goodman; Theodore Kollek, mayor of Jerusalem; Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Barbara Tuchman; Nobel Prize-winning economist Sir William Arthur Lewis; Nobel Prize-winning physiologist Sir Andrew Fielding Huxley; and surgeon Dr. Robert E. Gross.

CHUMS — West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl embraces President Reagan while talking to Canadian Premier Pierre Trudeau at an economic conference in London.

The summit

Europeans want U.S. concessions on economy

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of seven major industrialized democracies tackled their economic problems at the summit today, with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher expressing worry that high interest rates might undermine the economic rebound and worsen the debt burden of poorer nations.

"In the world outside our own countries, the level of international debt is a serious and pressing problem," Mrs. Thatcher told her colleagues at the first formal session of the 10th annual economic summit. "There are no easy or painless solutions" to these difficulties, said Mrs. Thatcher. But she added that the summit's "first message" must be that the current strategy of ensuring economic expansion without inflation "is the right one — and we intend to stick to it."

President Reagan and the other chiefs of state turned to economic issues at their first formal summit session at Lancaster House after discussions Thursday night about such pressing political concerns as terrorism, arms control and the deep chill in East-West relations.

It appeared likely that the seven leaders would endorse some form of political statement — possibly as early as today — apart from the final economic communique expected at the end of the summit on Saturday.

Although Mrs. Thatcher expressed confidence that the industrial allies of the West and Japan were on the right policy track, she said, "There is still much to be done."

She voiced concern about high unemployment levels and high interest rates "which may put recovery at risk in our own economies and add to the problems of the debtor countries."

Mrs. Thatcher, a close ally of Reagan's, did not single out the United States on the matter of interest rates, but some leaders — notably West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl — have done so. Most foreign officials and private economists say the enormous budget deficits in the United States exert upward pressure on interest rates, but the Reagan administration denies there is any direct link.

Mrs. Thatcher devoted much of her opening remarks to the problems of Third World countries which owe $800 billion in foreign loans. High interest rates are complicating these countries' efforts to repay their debts.

The British prime minister proposed encouraging commercial banks and international financial institutions to reschedule Third World debt payments over a longer period. The debtor nations "can ease their own problems" by undertaking economic reforms, he said.

She also proposed that major industrial powers give international guarantees for private investment in the Third World, and help poorer countries find ways to conserve resources, boost food and energy production and slow population growth.

"That way I believe we can show that the problem is manageable," she said.

Motorcades brought presidents, prime ministers, foreign ministers and finance ministers to Lancaster House, a 19th century mansion in the heart of London, for the first formal summit session in a gilded room decorated in ornate style of Louis XV.

As sunshine broke through an early-morning fog, the leaders posed for pictures on the front steps and then moved to the music room. They sat around an oblong table with floral centerpiece in the mansion near Buckingham Palace where Queen Victoria once heard Chopin play the piano.

As photographers snapped away, Kohl lit a pipe, Reagan joked and Mrs. Thatcher shuffled through papers. They and each of the other leaders from France, Canada, Japan, Italy and the Common Market had one aide in the room. Interpreters sat in nearby glass booths.

Economic issues were to dominate the first meeting, but before the summit ends Saturday the leaders will decide whether to make a statement on troublesome political issues facing the democratic alliance, according to U.S. And other officials who briefed reporters late Thursday.

Poultry quarantine lifted

COLUMBIA, Pa. (AP) — A poultry quarantine intended to halt the spread of the deadly avian influenza has been partly lifted, more than two months after the last case of the disease was reported.

Federal officials on Thursday lifted the quarantine from a 1,650-square-mile region of the state, but retained it over 3,850 square miles.

Sikhs protest shrine battle

Hundreds of Sikhs demonstrated in Hong Kong, Thailand, Britain and Canada against the Indian army's assault on the most sacred Sikh shrine — the Golden Temple in the Sikh holy city of Amritsar in India.

In Birmingham, England, police reported attempted firebombings at two Indian businesses.

Sikhs in the United States planned to march to the Indian Embassy in Washington this afternoon to protest the Wednesday storming of the shrine.

Iraq gets Soviet missile

The Soviet Union has supplied Iraq with sophisticated missiles capable of hitting Iran's main Persian Gulf oil terminal at Kharg Island and targets deep inside Iran, according to a foreign diplomat in Iraq.

The Baghdad-based diplomat said Iraq recently received shipments of Soviet-made AS-4, AS-5 and AS-6 guided missiles, along with shipments of modified surface-to-surface SS-12 missiles.

"The new AS missiles can easily score hits in Kharg Island and, if launched by the supersonic bombers, can reach any vital Iranian economic facility," the diplomat said Thursday.

Massacre toll hits 175

DHAKA — The death toll in last week's massacre of settlers in southeastern Bangladesh by tribal insurgents has risen to 175 with the discovery of more bodies, a newspaper reported today.

The English-language daily New Nation said 30 girls and three schoolteachers still were missing following the June 1 carnage in which tribespeople armed with automatic weapons swept through three settlements in the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

Initial reports had said 80 people were killed and 800 others injured in the attack.

2 killed in Beirut fighting

BEIRUT — Two Lebanese civilians were killed and seven were wounded in exchanges of rocket-propelled grenades and machine gunfire between Christian and Moslem militiamen in and around Beirut, police said today.

The overnight fighting brought the overall casualty toll to 15 dead and about 40 wounded since Parliament opened a debate Tuesday on a policy program by Lebanon's new government to end the nine-year civil war.

U.S. vows to protect ships

WASHINGTON — There have been no threats against U.S. shipping in the Persian Gulf but the United States would do "all possible" to protect those ships if the prospect of attacks arose, the Pentagon says.

Spokesman Michael Burch commented Thursday when asked about U.S. policy in event either the Iraqis or the Iraqis should attack U.S. ships. Ships flying other flags have been attacked in the war between those two countries.

So far, Burch said, "there have been no threats" of direct attacks on Navy tankers or other American ships and "there is no reason to believe there would be in the future."

Senators want N-test ban

WASHINGTON — A halt to all nuclear weapons tests is being sought by 40 senators who want President Reagan to approach the Soviet Union for an immediate return to test ban negotiations that were suspended in 1979.

Edward Kennedy, 31 other Democrats and eight Republicans are sponsoring a proposal directing the president to seek negotiations to stop nuclear weapons tests. It is not expected to be put to a vote until next week.

Don't even think of new oil taxes

Oil and gas industry representatives put their foot down, firmly, to squash any idea that the state Legislature might have about looking to the oil patch to boost tax revenues.

A spokesman for North Texas Oil and Gas Association headquartered in Wichita Falls told the House Ways and Means Committee this week in Austin that his industry is "already overtaxed by both state and local governments. To add more taxes now makes no sense."

The only thing spokesman L.D. Burns left out that we would have added is the industry's federal tax burden. President Carter's ill-aimed windfall profits tax has taken on a life of its own long beyond the original scope of the punitive legislation. To consider in today's oilfield economy adding new state taxes to the burden is muddled thinking.

Another industry spokesman told the committee that "Texas is the only state to impose a tax on producing oil and also levy a property tax on oil still in the ground." In 1983, the industry paid $2.2 billion in state taxes in addition to $1.2 billion in local property taxes.

Oil and gas taxes pay more state government costs than any other industry already. Enough is enough; let's not keep beating the favorite tax whipping boy.

No sure thing

It was the legendary Willie Sutton who, when asked why he robbed banks, said, "That's where the money is."

Willie's reason may no longer be valid. Recently a well-dressed robber walked into the Heritage Bank in Anaheim, Calif., and handed a note to a woman supervisor which read, "Give me all your money or I'll start shooting."

The supervisor indignantly informed the robber that Heritage had no money and had gone bankrupt in March. The man walked out in disgust.

What the newspaper story could not report was what happened when the robber got in his getaway car and drove off.

"So how much did you get?" his partner asked.

"Nothing," was the reply. "They have no money."

"What do you mean they have no money? All banks have money. The Heritage Bank is the largest one in Orange County."

"What are you yelling at me for? They're insolvent. The depositors have been paid off and the Feds are now liquidating the place."

"Why didn't you know that when you decided to pull the heist in the first place?"

"I cased the joint for three days. The reason I picked it was there weren't any guards around. I thought they were just being careless. It turned out there was nothing to guard. I should have been suspicious when nobody bothered to lock the doors at night."

"But how can a bank go busted?"

"I guess they made a lot of bad loans and couldn't collect them. It's going on all over the country. If it's a big bank like Chicago Continental the Feds get nervous and put more money in, so there won't be a run on it. But in this case they decided to let it go out of business. Don't drive so fast. Nobody is chasing us."

"Why should they chase us? We came away dry."

"Don't get sore at me. It isn't my fault the bank screwed up. I wasn't the only one in there that didn't know they were out of money. Three people were trying to get loans, and one lady wanted to know what happened to an electric blanket they promised her when she opened her account."

"Banks should put signs up when they run out of funds. We could have been killed or gotten 20 years for trying to stick up a place that went under because of bad management."

"You just went through a red light."

"I always go through red lights after a bank robbery."

"But we didn't rob the bank. Technically we have nothing to fear. If they didn't have money it's their fault, not ours. I wouldn't be surprised if they failed to report it. The lady I gave the note to wasn't even frightened. She was just mad I hadn't read the papers."

"You didn't by chance ask her what bank in the neighborhood might have some money in it, did you?"

"She was so rude to me, I just walked out. If she was typical of all the Heritage Bank employees it's no wonder they went belly up."

"So what do we do now?"

"I don't know. I guess we're going to have to read the newspapers more closely and find out which banks are still in business and which ones are in liquidation."

"Do you still have the note you gave her?"

"Yes, she handed it back to me and told me not to come in again. I assured her she had nothing to worry about on that score. I also told her I was going to pass the word to all my friends about robbing Heritage branches."

"What are you doing now?"

"I'm rewriting the note. I'm going to say, 'If by any chance you have any money in the bank, give it to me or I will start shooting. Otherwise, disregard this message.'"

Sad tale moves Reagan to react

WASHINGTON — Commerce Department lawyers have been using shoddy tactics to discredit a whistle blower who dared to stand up to her bureaucratic bosses. She encountered such harassment that it moved President Reagan to an emotional outburst when he learned of it.

The tactics of the Commerce lawyers — Irving Margulies, Gordon Fields and Thomas Conley — threaten to discourage government employees who may be thinking of exposing waste, incompetence and corruption in their agencies. In fact, their attempt to discredit the whistle blower could undercut the president's pledge to battle bureaucratic misbehavior.

For two years, my associate Indy Ballinwar has been following the case of Billie Garde, a young mother who exposed sexual harassment and political cronyism in the Census Bureau office in Muskogee, Okla.

About 10 weeks after starting her job in 1980, she began complaining about her boss, John Hudson, to his superiors. When Hudson found out, he first threatened her, then fired her. Also, according to a 400-page inspector-general report that examined Mrs. Garde's charges, Hudson helped her ex-husband to obtain custody of the Gardes' two little girls.

Hudson eventually went to jail because of the way he ran the census office, but the damage he had instigated lingered on. Mrs. Garde's long legal fight to regain custody of her children finally succeeded, but it left her broke.

As I reported three months ago, Reagan was told about the case at a Cabinet meeting. He reportedly pounded the table in anger and said: "Tell me this couldn't happen! Not in my country! Not in my country!"

The IG report — signed by Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and sent to the White House — concluded that Mrs. Garde had been sexually harassed and improperly fired. So she sought compensation for the legal costs she had to pay as a result of the harassment. But this elementary justice was apparently more than Commerce's lawyers were willing to give.

They set about to depict Mrs. Garde as a greedy, unscrupulous, dope-smoking, willing participant in the crimes she had exposed. At a recent Equal Employment Opportunity Commission hearing, for example, attorney Fields said, "If the Commerce Department had been aware of her conduct, we would have fired her ourselves."

At one point, the lawyers tried to show that Mrs. Garde had not been fired, but that her job had been abolished. Yet in an earlier statement, Fields had said, "We agree that she was fired illegally."

And in a letter dated Feb. 22, attorney Conley wrote to Mrs. Garde's lawyer: "I want to reiterate our sympathy for your client and our desire that she be compensated for the damages caused by the Commerce Department's employee..."

But the lawyers had a curious way of showing their sympathy.

For example, Fields told the EEOC that Mrs. Garde was trying to collect $900,000 in damages, a figure he termed "incredible."

It was not so much incredible as imaginary. The $900,000 figure was produced by a personnel consultant — in response to a letter from Conley — as the amount Mrs. Garde theoretically might have earned over a lifetime if her government career had not been illegally terminated. As the Commerce lawyers were well aware, Mrs. Garde's attorney emphasized in a letter to them that the $900,000 "figure is not a settlement demand."

On Oct. 19, 1981, presidential assistant Ed Harper wrote to Mrs. Garde: "It was your personal courage which provided the impetus to see that justice was done... I appreciate not only what you have already done, but also your willingness to tell others that, even while it may be difficult, the system does work."

Unfortunately, the Commerce Department's attorneys seem determined to show that the system doesn't work.

Footnote: Mrs. Garde's attorneys wanted IG investigator Don Gray to take the stand during the EEOC hearing to attest to the integrity of the IG report as well as to Mrs. Garde's credibility. But the Commerce Department's attorneys objected strenuously, and he was prohibited from testifying.

Visitor grateful for camp facility

To the editor: While visiting relatives in your city during Mother's Day weekend, we were indeed grateful to be able to enjoy your trailer campground facilities in Big Spring City Park.

In spite of the hot weather, the nights were pleasant and breezy and we greatly enjoyed our stay. Our disappointment lay in the inability of some people to find the trash receptacles, and the fact that some people didn't treat the rest rooms as reasonable people would treat their own.

You have a beautiful park and we hope your citizens are all proud of it. KELTON AND IRENE HUXFORD Anniston, Alabama

Election effort had help of many

To the editor: Last weekend Howard County and the City of Big Spring made National and State news. Even though we had computer problems which delayed our election count, we the Executive Committee of the Democratic Party, would like to extend our sincere thanks to each and every person who worked and helped on election day.

A special thanks to the Big Spring Independent School District for allowing the use of the various schools as polling places and having workers there to help our judges and clerks. A special thanks to the City of Big Spring for having the Fire Stations available for our use as polling places and allowing their employees to assist us.

A special thanks to Forsan Independent School District for allowing the use of the various schools as polling places and having their workers set up tables and chairs prior to the day of election.

Also, thanks to the County of Howard for the use of the Electronic Voting Systems for which to hold this election.

Hopefully in November our election will go smoothly and our voter participation will increase. We may not make National News, but we'll have the satisfaction of knowing we did our best.

Doing up downtown

With the addition of Administrative Assistant Pat Hardy to the staff at City Hall, it looks like good things will finally begin to happen for renovation of Big Spring's downtown area.

Hardy has been charged by City Manager Don Davis with coordinating downtown redevelopment. He's going at this task full out.

Along with Gregg Brooks of the Downtown Merchants Association, Hardy organized last night's meeting at the Coors Hospitality Center of persons interested in downtown renovation. He also served as the main item on the meeting's agenda.

"He's real action-oriented," Hardy said of Brooks yesterday, and the description seems to be a fitting one for the administrative assistant himself.

Hardy did extensive groundwork in preparation for the meeting, pounding the downtown pavement in recent weeks to meet area merchants and bring their enthusiasm level up to his own.

Not that Hardy is any stranger to the tasks of organizing. He is an accomplished thespian and put himself through college by directing and producing plays outside of his studies in public administration.

Among plays he has organized are those written by Harold Pinter and Bertolt Brecht. Obviously, there is no lack of intellectual or creative depth here.

With cigar jutting comically from his expressive face, Hardy seems to go through about five emotions with every sentence he utters. No laid-back southerner, he has a Yankee's style about getting things done.

However, Hardy has ties to the city that his New Jersey accent would tend to hide. He is the son of former Big Spring YMCA general secretary Bobo Hardy and the grandson of retired dentist "Doc" Hardy, who maintained a practice in the downtown Permian Building for many years.

The 28-year-old Hardy spent a large portion of his formative years in the Garden State after his father went to work for the YMCA national staff.

With last night's meeting and his other activities, Hardy says he and others are aiming toward "using downtown as a catalyst for the economic development of Big Spring at large."

Among downtown events that he says he is excited about organizing are a Saturday farmers market, a weekly bag lunch at the courthouse with entertainment, street dances and perhaps a chicken fried steak cook-off.

He says he would like to help make downtown a place "that people can really be proud of and have fun in."

With so much creative energy from persons like Hardy and others who are involved in this most recent effort to bring some needed attention to our downtown, one can only hope that this time it really takes off.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Dear Abby

Army wife shares secrets

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Unhappy in Minnesota," the woman who was so upset about the moving required by her husband's job, really struck a nerve with me. It's a good thing she didn't marry a career Army man (or Navy, Air Force or Marine, for that matter)!

My husband is a career soldier. I've always joked that we've stayed married so long because he was never home long enough to fight with.

In 15 years, we've moved 11 times. Four of these moves were trans-Atlantic moves, and he was around to help with only one of them. Our daughter went to three different kindergartens, four elementary schools, two middle schools, and she will attend at least two different high schools. (Not unusual for Army families.)

While I'm never thrilled with the thought of another move, I've learned a lot from all the moves we've made. I turned the negatives into positives.

Rule 1: Laugh a lot. No humorist could possibly invent stories as funny as the ones we've experienced. Besides, moving a lot keeps your closets cleaned out.

Rule 2: Don't view it as "leaving," view it as "going to." We have a lifetime filled with friends and experiences we never would have accumulated had we stayed put.

Rule 3: Don't wait for a new community to provide you with what you want. Get out and find it. If it's not there, create it. No job in the community? Start your own business — a nursery school or babysitting service. And don't turn your nose up at volunteer work. How about the shelter for battered women, the PTA, a political party, church work or even a car pool? It's a good way to be accepted and welcome in a new community.

Rule 4: Remember, "home" is an attitude. Wherever we are together is "home." My attitude sets the tone of every move. If I am enthusiastic, my family will be. A positive attitude is not always easy to assume, but it's a must.

How are my children doing? Both are straight-A students, our house overflows with their friends, and a list of their combined activities would fill another page. My marriage? Terrific!

So tell "Unhappy" to get it together. She's not alone. Nobody claims that moving a lot is easy, but it can be fantastically rewarding.

NANCY E., ARMY WIFE, FORT HOOD, TEXAS

DEAR NANCY: Thanks for a wonderful letter. Your husband is lucky, and so are your children.

Dr. Donohue

Rectal itch can be problem

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 29-year-old male who has suffered from rectal itching for the past six years. I have been through a series of tests (lower G.I., rectal scope, etc.) and everything is normal. All I know is that I continue to suffer. It is driving me up the wall. I have tried the drugstore remedies. So far, nothing. Help! Please! — T.T.T.

Rectal itch can be a terrible nuisance. I'm sure I could unearth an example of its changing the course of human history through some famous sufferer. I don't know whether I can help, but I can try.

Your doctor has looked for the common causes — fissure, for an example. Others probably ruled out are fungal infection, pinworms, hemorrhoids. When these are not factors, then you have to consider the less genteel aspects. I will try to point out a few.

Overvigorous cleansing with tissue is an example of an unnecessary irritation to the area. Wearing non-absorbent, moisture-producing undergarments can be another. Remaining seated too long at the commode may permit the rectal muscle to relax and contribute by promoting contamination.

You cannot overlook diet in this. Coffee, cola drinks, beer, chocolate, citrus fruits, tomatoes and spicy foods in general should be eliminated on a trial basis. You should also try to get adequate fiber in your diet. That helps by assuring softer eliminations. And may I suggest switching to moistened cotton pads following by gentle drying (patting) with dry ones?

Here are some other tips: Readers have alerted me to the role of scented and tinted tissue in this problem. You can try sitting in a warm tub a couple of times a day. Use loose-fitting cotton undergarments with frequent changes. Tenseness can contribute, so relaxation efforts sometimes pay off. Do not scratch; that only causes more irritation.

Finally, your doctor can prescribe a lotion containing hydrocortisone. I distinguish lotion from creams and ointments. Creams and ointments tend to keep an area overly moist. I've given you a lot to think about, but I'm sure that attention to some of the factors I mentioned will help ease your itching problem. I truly hope for that.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Will you please explain the difference between tic douloureux and trigeminal neuralgia? — S.H.S.

They are the same illness. Tic douloureux is a French term used to describe the painful (douloureux) attacks that cause a facial wincing (tic). Trigeminal neuralgia tells you that the trigeminal nerve, the one that carries sensations from the face to the brain, is responsible for the excruciating, short-lived stabs of pain that characterize this illness.

The cause is unclear. It occurs most often in middle age or in the elderly. Certain trigger zones of the face area seem sensitive to the slightest disturbance, the slightest touch, for example. If you have this illness, I'm sure the various treatments to shorten pain episodes or to try to deaden the nerve involved have been discussed by your doctor.

City Extension Club program presents first aid instruction

First Aid in the Home was a program presented by Jean Cantrell, Dolores Norred and Frances Zant during the City Extension Homemakers Club meeting, June 1. The meeting was at the home of Mildred Callihan.

Emphasis was placed on home accidents such as cuts, heat exhaustion, poisons, insect bites, nose bleeds and eye damage. The quickest and safest way for aid to be applied also was stressed. "It is wise and helpful for every family to prepare and maintain a first aid kit for the home for the care of home accidents," Mrs. Cantrell said.

The next meeting will be a luncheon and program beginning at 11 a.m. Sept. 14 in the home of Jowili Etchison.

Pre-nuptial events honor couple

Vicky Lee Baggett, bride-elect of Allen Blain McCowell, was honored at four pre-nuptial parties recently.

A patio party honoring the couple was held at the Lanny Hamby home, Saturday. Hosting the event were Messrs. and Mmes. Hamby, Jerry Spence, Clyde McMahon and John Burgess. The hosts presented the couple with an ice cream freezer.

A barbecue supper and homemade ice cream was served. Guests relaxed around patio tables and enjoyed the evening's rain showers along with their meal.

A bridal shower tea honoring the bride-elect was held at the home of Maria Foust, May 27.

Hosting the event were Lilune Arnold, Maria Ernst, Barbara Landreth, Paula Talbot, Brenda Upton and Ms. Foust. The honoree was presented a silk floral arrangement.

The honoree and her special guests, Joyce Baggett, Nellie McDowell and Rosemary McDowell, were presented spring flower corsages.

The bride-elect was honored with a shower at Garden City High School Cafeteria, May 24.

Guests registered at a table covered with a white crocheted cloth and pink and burgundy silk flowers. Refreshments were served from a table covered with white lace.

Hosting the event were: Donna Hunter, Dorothy Brenneman, Darlene Calverley, Anita Calverley, Jo Ann Turner, Judy Kingston, Hazel Stringer and Jami Pirtle. The hostesses presented Miss Baggett with an electric skillet and a slow cooker.

Miss Baggett also was honored at a lingerie brunch at the home of Faye Welch, Tuesday.

Guests were served at a table centered with an arrangement of yellow gladiolus and burgundy flowers. Along with the entree, fortune muffins revealing the future of each guest was served.

Mrs. Welch presented the honoree with a white negligee.

Miss Baggett and McDowell will wed Saturday.

Paint your landscape with flowers

When it comes to growing flowers, the professionals in the American Association of Nurserymen are convinced that everyone has a green thumb. Success is not a matter of "luck" — but results from simply taking a few easy steps along the way.

When problems occur it's usually because the flowers have been planted in the wrong place, or they're the wrong flowers for the right place. Soil conditions, light and shade, and water run-off are the sorts of environmental considerations which must be taken into account. The rewards in store from the colorful beauty of flowers in the yard are well worth a bit of time and effort spent in getting information on those subjects before the planting begins.

Don't be stingy in your planting. Flower seeds or bedding plants are quite inexpensive so be bountiful in selections to assure making a real impact on the landscape.

Keep in mind that the spread of flowers is seen indoors as well as out. See if there isn't room and proper growing conditions for displays outside the most-used windows of your home. These may be the breakfast room, screened porch or study.

The retail nursery where you shop will be able to answer questions you might have and provide advice for your project if you wish.

Minister begins work at Baptist mission

By RHONDA WOODALL
Church Editor

Iglesia Bautista Central, a mission of First Baptist Church, opened its doors to the community six months ago. The Rev. Joe Torres pastored the mission, located at 7th and Scurry.

The mission began when "the First Baptist Church wanted to start a mission for Hispanics. They looked into the possibility of it with a consultant," Torres said.

After the mission had been planned, "they talked to me and explained what they had planned," he said. "They asked me if I would come. I felt very impressed that this is where the Lord wanted me to be, so I'm here."

Torres came to the mission from the First Mexican Church in Lubbock, which has 360 members. In Lubbock, the church had a part-time youth minister, senior adult minister, singles minister and music minister. Although he is the only employee at the mission, he is a member of the First Baptist Church staff.

On the mission's first Sunday, 27 people attended Sunday School classes and 44 were at the worship services, Torres said. Thirty-two people have joined the church. The average attendance in Sunday School is more than 40.

"Our ministry is to reach out to wherever there is a need," Torres said. "We feel this is where the Lord wants us to be right now, and we just want to do what we can for the Glory of God. I will make myself available whenever I'm needed."

"We plan to grow, and we hope in time that we will have a ministry to offer to the entire family. The mission does have classes for all ages."

For himself, Torres wants "to be the best possible minister the Lord wants me to be."

"I would like to serve the church and community to the best of my abilities." He also wants to know the people of Big Spring better and to continue his education.

REV. JOE TORRES

Torres' wife Benita assists him with his ministry. "She has been my right hand. We see my ministry not as my ministry, but as our ministry. She has really supported me throughout my ministry. She never complained. She has always encouraged me."

Mrs. Torres' ministry includes involvement in Women's Missionary Union, visitations, and teaching Sunday School, primarily to preschoolers.

Torres graduated from Lubbock High School in Lubbock and Wayland Baptist University in Plainview. He earned his master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He has pastored churches in Brownsville, Fort Worth and Lubbock. Torres enjoys bowling and watching his children play baseball.

The Torreses have five children: Yvonne Torres of Fort Worth, 21; Evelina Torres of Lubbock, 21; Eloy Torres, 19; Eli Torres, 16; and Imelda Torres, 7.

Draper steps down from convention's presidency

EULESS, Texas (AP) — Some worry his departure will mean an end to the storm's lull, but the Rev. James T. Draper is saying that "enough is enough."

Draper, 48, is stepping down from the Southern Baptist Convention's presidency after two years of relative calm in the once-turbulent organization of 14 million members.

The first president re-elected by acclamation, Draper says he's more than ready to return home to the First Baptist Church of Euless. Like his father and grandfather before him, he just wants to be a full-time pastor again.

Singles seminar announced

The 14th and Main Church of Christ Singles class will present "Learn to Live '84 Exploring Alternatives for the Single Person," a seminar aimed at expanding horizons for singles, at the church, June 16.

Classes will feature Tim Walker, Tom and Marti Vermillion, all staff members of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland. Doug Parsons, pulpit minister at Golf Course Road Church of Christ, will be guest speaker.

The seminar will begin at 9:30 a.m. with singing, and end before 5 p.m. A chicken dinner will be served at lunch.

Gil serves as church's new pastor

Ernesto Gil is the new pastor of Primera Iglesia Basista (First Mexican Baptist Church), 701 N.W. 5th. Gil, a native of Mexico, moves here from Harlingen. He will be honored with a reception, Sunday, following the 9:45 a.m. worship services. The public is invited.

The movie "God's Prison Gang" will be shown at 6 p.m., Sunday.

Draper says he traveled more than 300,000 miles to church suppers all over the country during his tenure.

"It's the kind of thing that you're glad you do," Draper explains. "But enough is enough. There's a responsibility with prominence that gets old after a while."

But his exit — scheduled for June 12 — could precipitate another storm when the Southern Baptist Convention meets next week in Kansas City to tap his successor, church officials say.

Carroll Braun promoted to captain

Lieutenant Carroll Braun of the Salvation Army was promoted to the rank of Captain, June 3. Commissioner Andrew S. Miller, on the recommendation of divisional commander Col. John Mikles, promoted Braun.

Society continues bingo game

The St. Vincent de Paul Society of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church will continue the Saturday night bingo which the parents club discontinued because of the closing of the school. The funds raised will be used for works of charity. Bingo is held in the parish hall, 1009 Hearn St., at 7:30 p.m. every Saturday.

Dr. Davis preaches at church

Dr. George B. Davis, professor and dean of under-graduate studies at Criswell Center for Biblical Studies, will speak at Hillcrest Baptist Church, June 10. Services will be at 8:30 a.m., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. The public is invited.

Church News Briefs

RHONDA WOODALL
Church Editor

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York has revealed completion of plans for a series of 119 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses during the summer of 1984.

Stanley Weigel, spokesman, said 65 sites will be utilized for the annual meetings. A total of more than 1,150,000 persons are expected to attend the conventions in the United States.

Local residents will be attending the convention at the Chaparral Center in Midland, June 21-24.

The theme for the 1984 conventions is "Kingdom Increase." Most of the program will center on the growth of the religious movement in recent years.

"Jehovah's Witnesses are marking a centennial this year," one delegate said. "The movement started 100 years ago with a handful of Bible students, and today is conducting ministerial and preaching activity in 205 lands with 2,600,000 now associated worldwide."

For further information, contact the Life of Christ Pageant, Route No. 2 Box 46, Cisco, Texas 76437 or phone (817) 629-8672.

Summer productions of religious pageant planned

Summer productions of the Kendrick Amphitheater, "The Life of Christ," will begin June 14 and will be presented each Thursday and Friday at 9 p.m. through August 17. The outdoor drama which is in its 20th year of production will be performed at Kendrick Amphitheater on U.S. Highway 80 between Eastland and Cisco.

This production is the complete Life of Christ from the birth through the resurrection, portrayed in 60 scenes by a cast of Christian people of all religious denominations. The production is nondenominational with the script being taken word for word from the King James version of the Holy Bible. Included in the cast is a grey donkey for the Mother Mary, a white donkey for the Triumphant Entry of Jesus, a camel for the wiseman, and sheep for the Shepherds in the field.

Admission is $3. Free parking and overnight camping is allowed.

Officers for the convention are Woodson Campbell of Lubbock, president; Grady Standerfer of Stanton, vice president; and Verla Doggett of Stanton, secretary.

CUBIC ZIRCONIA

A WORD ABOUT C.Z.'s

Cubic Zirconia is the latest rage in jewelry stores everywhere. This fantastic stone came on the American market in late 1977. With its unusual combination of high refractive index dispersion and hardness, it makes all other diamond simulants obsolete.

Our stones are guaranteed for a lifetime not to discolor or lose their clarity. They are hand-cut and polished with diamond dust just as the natural diamonds.

Each stone is mounted in 14K gold, available in rings, earrings and pendants.

Horns exercise Sun Devils, 8-4

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Droll Arizona State coach Jim Brock tried to make it sound as if he doesn't like Greg Swindell. But actually, Brock would like to have a pitcher just like the freshman left-hander who helped Texas beat the Sun Devils 8-4 in the College World Series Thursday.

"The guy's a jerk," Brock said following the battle between the only two unbeaten teams in the Series. "That was more hits, I think, than anybody has gotten off him; we got a lead on him; (he) had every reason for any decent, law-abiding freshman to fold.

"Obviously he didn't."

Swindell struggled through the first four innings, when Arizona State broke out to a 4-2 lead. But the 19-year-old from Houston shut out the explosive Sun Devils over the final five frames to improve his record to 14-1.

Brock's club entered the contest averaging over eight runs per game, and the Sun Devils had tied a Series record by scoring 23 times in their previous outing. They managed 10 hits against Swindell, but the southpaw gave up no home runs and walked only one.

"I was pumped up after the third or fourth inning, and when I get pumped up I throw a lot better," said Swindell, who relied primarily on fastballs.

A crowd of 12,469 watched the defending national champions, 60-12, take the lead for good when their first four batters in the fifth inning scored. David Wrzesinski's two-run double off the left-field wall put the Longhorns ahead 5-4.

Wrzesinski had grounded out with the bases loaded in his previous at-bat.

"That bothered me a little bit," the Longhorns' left fielder said. "I haven't been coming through with men on base. I was just trying to relax that last time."

Bill Bates and Doug Hodo followed Wrzesinski's double with RBI singles. Those were two of 15 singles Texas collected against five Arizona State pitchers, including loser Kendall Carter, 10-2.

"You have to give them credit for handling the bat awfully well," Brock said.

"With our hitting, I figured I could give up nine or 10 runs and win," said Swindell, who became the first pitcher in the 1984 series to go the distance.

Five Longhorns got at least two hits, with first baseman Rusty Richards rapping four of Texas' singles and Dennis Cook three.

The Sun Devils scored a pair of early runs, but three singles in the second inning resulted in a run for Texas as Jamie Doughty's RBI single knocked out Arizona State starter Mike Thorpe.

Cook's two-out RBI single in the third tied the score, 2-2.

Arizona State, 55-19, bunched four singles to score twice in the fourth. Oddibby McDowell drove in the second run with a two-out single.

Texas' victory assured the Longhorns of a berth in the championship final, either Saturday or Sunday.

"I'm not really surprised we're here," Texas coach Cliff Gustafson said of the Longhorns' beating Arizona State to become the only team still unbeaten in the double-elimination tournament.

"I knew this would be a tough game because they're a great ball club. But with Swindell pitching and us hitting the way we're capable, I knew we had a chance to beat them," Gustafson said.

If Texas wins its game against Oklahoma State, 60-14, at 7:10 p.m. CDT today, three teams would remain with one loss. Texas would get a bye Saturday, and the championship game would be Sunday. Saturday's game would pair the two survivors for the right to play Texas.

DUGOUT DIGOUT — Members of the University of Texas baseball team empty the dugout as they defeated the Arizona State team in the College World Series by a score of 8-4. The win left Texas as the only undefeated team in the series. Texas freshman pitcher Greg Swindell went the distance and has a season record of 14-1.

It's Martina against Chris in French women's tennis final

PARIS (AP) — Martina Navratilova recovered from a shaky, nervous start to down Hana Mandlikova 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 today and move into the women's singles final at the French Open tennis championships.

She will meet defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd in Saturday's title match.

Navratilova's hopes of capturing the Grand Slam — successive victories at the world's four major tournaments — were under threat for 1½ sets as she struggled to find her rhythm and was consistently passed at the net.

After losing the first two games, an inspired Mandlikova dominated the rest of the opening period, twice breaking her opponent's serve at love with spectacular returns.

Navratilova was completely off her game, hardly making a clean volley and overhitting her groundstrokes.

But with the Grand Slam seemingly slipping away, the match suddenly turned her way with two crucial service breaks in the last two sets.

After both players had traded breaks at the start of the second set, the tournament favorite and No. 1 seed got another in the fifth game. She held for 4-2, broke Mandlikova again when two disputed line calls went in her favor, and served out the set.

The final set was almost an exact replica of the second.

Both players gained a break, only for Navratilova to earn another and take a 3-2 lead as her opponent double-faulted twice.

Mandlikova's last chance came two games later when she had two break points to pull back to 3-4. But she hit a forehand long, netted a cross-court passing shot and instead found herself down 2-5.

Navratilova, whose service had improved steadily throughout the last two sets, won the first three points when she served for the match, and took her place in Saturday's final when Mandlikova netted.

Navratilova, who had reached the semifinals without dropping a set, said:

"I think the turning point was 2-1 in the second set when I said to myself, 'This isn't the Grand Slam; that's tomorrow, so go out and play the way you can,' and I did," said Navratilova, who had reached the semifinals without dropping a set.

"She played well in the first set. She was hitting half volleys and shots down the line. She just hit winners all over the place in the last two games.

"But I said, 'Don't panic, just hang in there,' and I did. Then she started making mistakes and that changed the whole match," the winner said.

Speaking of the final against Lloyd, who is going for a record sixth French Open singles crown, Navratilova said: "There'll be pressure on both of us — both of us will be making history in one way or another."

Mandlikova, the only player to have beaten Navratilova this year, blamed her defeat on her poor serving.

"I'm sure if I served a little better I would have put more pressure on her. I don't think I played my best game," the right-hander said.

HC's Stovall advances to rodeo finals

Howard County College cowboy Greg Stovall finished second in steer wrestling in the end results of the Southwest Region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association, thus qualifying him for a trip to the College National Finals this summer in Bozeman, Montana.

Stovall, a sophomore from McLean will travel to Bozeman June 17-24 where the top two teams from each region and the top two competitors from each event in each region will be competing for national titles.

The Howard College Men's team finished the season in seventh place. Stovall also competed in team roping and calf roping. Team member Jon Brockway, a freshman from Mesquite, made the regional standings with 10th place in the saddle bronc riding and 15th in bareback riding.

WOMEN TAKE THIRD
The Howard College Women's team placed third in the region behind Sul Ross and Western Texas College.

Cathy Cochran, a freshman from Aspermont, ended the season in third place in goat tying, eighth in barrel racing, 14th in breakaway roping and fifth in the All-Around division.

Sissy Doss, a sophomore from Big Spring placed seventh in breakaway roping, ninth in goat tying and eighth All-Around. Karen Salter, freshman from Palmer, finished the season with a third place in barrel racing.

The Southwest Region is composed of 20 institutions including junior colleges and major universities in Texas and New Mexico.

Bombers pound Gulf squad, 34-13

The First National Bank Green Bombers did just that as they bombed Gressett Gulf, 34-13 in a Division II United Girls Softball Association contest Thursday.

Tracy Schaffner took the win while Irene Jara suffered the loss.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"I'M GONNA MARRY SOMEONE WHO WON'T PUT ME IN THE CORNER ALL THE TIME!"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Oh, boy! It's gonna be like a bunch of Saturdays in a row!"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have some excellent ideas early for knowing just how to treat those about you and so take full advantage of this opportunity. Later delays occur.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to have more rapport with associates and later handle some problems wisely. Don't neglect your marketing.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can be efficient at some work in the morning and in solving health problem, but later you have to have a different attitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Morning is fine for planning entertainment for the weekend; then do last-minute errands with enthusiasm.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Morning starts out with a benign feeling at home, but don't take any risks later. Don't rush into anything blindfolded.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Find the best way to handle communications and travel matters in the morning; then make some needed changes at your home.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have a fine idea for better bookkeeping in the morning so put it to work. Be sure to use good judgment in driving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Pursue your greatest desire in the morning in a quiet but positive manner and gain it. Set up appointments for recreation in the p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Those who admire you will cooperate in just about any plan you have in mind, but iron out any wrinkles in it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go after those things you want in the future, but later some worry may come up that you can solve wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A bigwig can give you support you need in the morning, but later you have to convince a good friend to go along with your plans.

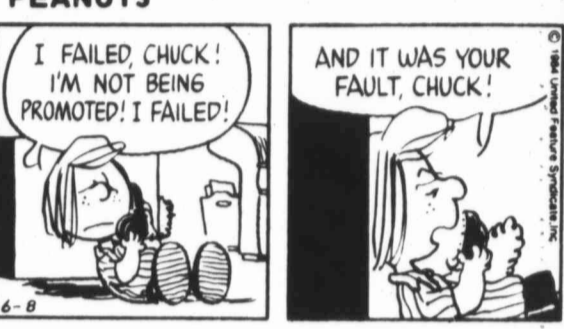

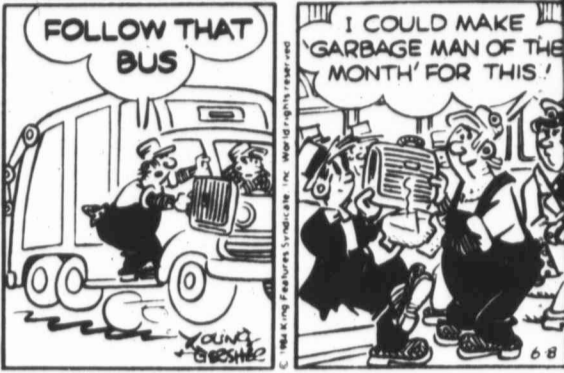

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are inspired early and can put some new idea across easily, then get into worldly tasks. Persistence is the key.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Fine morning to keep promises you have made and to pay bills; then try to please a person in business.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will like to cooperate with everyone and will have many friends and be very popular. Give as fine an education as possible. Your progeny may find it hard to get started in a career, but will persist and much success can come.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
