Government drops one drug count against Talbot

By RICK BROWN Staff Writer ABILENE - Federal Judge Hal Woodward today granted a government motion to dismiss one count of the six-count federal drug indictment against Harold Gaida "Guy" Talbot of Big Spring.

Woodward did not state a reason for dismissing the one count, and denied a defense motion to dismiss all six counts of the May 8 federal grand jury indictment.

Jury selection began follow-ing the 8 a.m. pretrial hearing in which the single count was dismissed. At 11:10 a.m., the jury panel was recessed while jury selection was made for the federal court trial expected to last three days.

Talbot, 37, faces trial on the remaining five counts alleging both distribution and conspiracy to distribute cocaine between Nov. 10, 1981 and mid April to early May 1983. Talbot, a former Howard County chief probation officer and investigator for the district attorney's office, is president of Talco Inc., an electronics security firm at 701 FM 700 in Big Spring. During the hearing, defense attorney Ed Paynter of Abilene asked for dismissal because of a misunderstanding with federal agents. Paynter said Talbot was to receive a guarantee that he not be prosecuted in exchange for making statements about drug trafficking in Howard County.

The disagreement stemmed from a September 1983 meeting between Talbot, Big Spring attorney Gil Jones who had been hired by Talbot - and Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Stevens of Dallas, Paynter said. Also present at the Dallas meeting were two FBI agents. Both Talbot and Jones testified that they had the impression that Talbot would tell government agents what he See Trial page 2-A

Q. Do residents need to use plastic trash bags with the new trash cans?

A. Yes, trash bags should be used for wet trash, which includes any liquids or food items, according to Public Works Director Tom Decell. Bags are not necessary for dry trash, such as boxes, clothes, dishes, branches or grass, he said.

In addition, Big Spring and Howard County residents may use the landfill free of charge, Decell said. The landfill is open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Farmers race to meet June

crop deadline

Staff Writer With no relief from the weather or the Federal Crop Insurance Corp., area farmers finished dryplanting their cotton fields this weekend to meet a Sunday deadline.

Farmers had been working with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Texas) and Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Stamford) to convince U.S. Agriculture Department officials, including Secretary John Block and the president of the FCIC, to delay or eliminate the cropplanting requirements for drought stricken parts of West Texas. Their efforts failed.

Many Howard County farmers reported receiving less than 2 inches of rain for the entire year. Recent rains were not enough to "set-tle the dust," Howard County agricultural extension service agent Don Richardson said, let alone prepare the soil for planting cotton.

"I've gotten maybe 1 inch the whole year," said Andrew Bayes of Knott. "It's been spotted." In a Memorial Day meeting with farmers from Martin County and

Off the wall: A real scream

ATLANTA (AP) - Betsy Abrams thinks roller coasters are a scream - but instead of terrified, she's tantalized.

On Tuesday, to celebrate the 100th birthday of the rollicking ride in America, she'll be taking her 1,000th trip aboard the Mind Bender at Six Flags Over Georgia.

Ms. Abrams, a 27-year-old meteorologist, spends four days a week at the amusement park - she has a season pass — and rides the Mind Bender as many as 22 times in a visit.

Her passion for the stomachwrenchers is "somewhere in between an obsession and a hobby," she said.

other areas, Stenholm said he was SLIM PICKINS - A Howard County farmer kicks up the dust as he "cautiously optimistic" that the plants his cotton crop in drought-withered fields. Farmers, who say planting deadline would be extended

But farmers last week working in their fields near Knott said a delayed deadline no longer would help their situation.

"It's too late," said Ken Max-well, who rents 700 acres of land from Bill Shockley. "They might have a chance (to change the planting requirement) next year, but not this year. Nearly everybody's already planted."

"If they were going to do anything, they should have done it by June 1," said Kelly Gaskins of Knott. He had planted earlier, but was using a "chicken-picker" to knock the crust off the soil over his

gress may finally be ready to do something about the long-term soil erosion problem that has become a creeping threat to America's ability to feed itself and the world. House and Senate negotiators will get together next week to work out their differences on an ambitious new conservation program aimed at curbing the washing away of the topsoil which is the basis for the world's largest food production machine.

Known as the "sodbuster bill," it would deny federal farm program benefits to producers who plow up land designated as particularly subject to erosion. One version also would create a new three-year program paying farmers rent on fragile land they agree to idle for seven to 15 years.

Senate negotiators will come to the table with the most lenient ver-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Consion of the bill. Theirs would penalize farmers only for the crops actually grown on highly erodible land, and it includes no payments for idling such acreage.

The House enters the discussions with a much tougher bill that would deny any federal help - price supports, crop insurance, disaster payments and the like - for any farm on which even a single acre of delicate land is planted.

And the House version, pushed by Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., would authorize $225 million to pay farmers to plant grass or trees on their fragile acreage under sevento 15-year contracts.

Both House and Senate committee aides said they do not anticipate great difficulty in reaching a middle ground.

The two sides probably will settle on a bill that denies a farmer benefits for all of the particular tion that a more long-term version designated by the Soil Conservation Service as highly erodible.

For example, a farmer who plants 100 acres of corn, 10 acres of it on newly broken erodible ground. would receive no program benefits that year for any of his corn. He could, however, still receive benefits on his wheat or other crops, so long as they do not involve acreage deemed delicate. And he would not be penalized for delicate land already under cultivation before the new law went into effect.

The Senate is likely to accept some form of the House's "conservation reserve" program, aides said. The only question is how much money to allocate. Negotiators are likely to go along with a pared-down temporary reserve program, with the assump-crop which he plants on land will be included as part of the fouryear 1985 farm bill.

The Reagan administration supports the sodbuster provisions of the measure but opposes the conservation reserve because of its cost at a time when budget deficits are out of control.

Past government conservation efforts, which have failed to keep pace with the problem, have used the "carrot" approach: offering farmers technical assistance and cost sharing to implement erosionstopping measures. The sodbuster bill represents an abrupt policy turn to using the "stick" of penalties.

That rather severe step is needed because of the growing seriousness of the problem, Jones says. U.S. farmland is eroding at 14 tons per acre annually, while natural processes replace only about 5 tons per acre.

Shotgun shoot-out kills 1, wounds 1

A 21-year-old Big Spring man died late Sunday night in a south side shoot-out that also wounded another man, according to police reports.

Authur (Mack) Saldivar of 609 N.E. Ninth was pronounced dead on arrival at 10:40 p.m. at Malone-Hogan Hospital, according to hospital nursing supervisor Wanda Brewer.

Saldivar died from a gunshot wound in the middle of his chest that also partially damaged his arm, Miss Brewer said. The wound apparently was caused by "one blast at close range," she said. Possibly the shot was fired pointblank, she said.

Police Lt. Jerry Edwards said Saldivar apparently walked into the house at 1604½ S. Main and shot Mike Herrera, 21, of 1400 Mesa in the arm with a shotgun at about 10:20 p.m. Sunday.

Herrera, who received a wound in the left elbow, remains in stable condition in the intensive care unit at Malone-Hogan Hospital, Miss Brewer said. "It's not a lifethreatening situation," she said of Herrera's wounds.

According to police, the person reporting the incident, Rosalinda Loya, lives in the house where the shooting occurred.

The police report on Herrera's wounds calls the incident an attempted murder and a questionable death.

"We don't know what caused the altercation," Edwards said. We're still checking it out.'

Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin has not yet ruled on the cause of death, according to his office.

Coahoma firemen get $1,000 boost

Howard County commissioners today agreed to grant an additional $1,000 in revenue-sharing funds to the Coahoma volunteer fire department.

Caohoma Fire Department Capt. Brian Jenson had told commissioners at an earlier meeting the fire department had problems maintaining its equipment. At one time, Jenson said, neither of the station's two fire engines were operable because of flat tires, dead batteries or other mechanical problems.

The condition of equipment at county volunteer fire departments was raised during recent party primary races for county commissioner Precinct 3. Challengers to incumbents claimed that equipment was inadequate and that response time was slow.

Coahoma now will receive $3,000 instead of $2,000 originally budgeted. The fire department is partially funded by the city of Coahoma

Commissioners also approved two resolutions concerning improvements to Highway 87.

The resolutions ask the Legislature, in special session this week to discuss highway improvements, that Highway 87 be upgraded to a four-lane highway from the Howard County line to Sterling City.

The highway already has four lanes from Sterling City to San Angelo

Commissioner David Barr, who made the motion to approve the resolutions, said the improvements would increase highway travel.

Weather

Rain dots Panhandle

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms - some heavy - covered the northeastern half of the Texas Panhandle today and rain dampened the higher elevations of far West Texas as moist tropical air persisted over most sections of Texas.

The moist air brought low clouds and high humidities to many areas, the National Weather Service said. Other isolated heavy showers were located over the northwest section of the Gulf of Mexico south of Galveston, and low level clouds blanketed the south and northwest

The remainder of Texas had mostly clear skies.

Severe weather warnings were posted for much of Sunday evening in the Panhandle, including tornado and severe thunderstorms warnings, which were accompanied by damaging hail and high winds, the weather service said.

There were no reports of injuries or damage to property, officials said.

A tornado was sighted in Moore County, but did not hit the ground. However, Highway 287, about 18 miles south of Dumas, was under four feet of water, said Moore County Corrections officer Kenneth Faulkner.

'We're re-routing to the service road. It's one-lane traffic," said Faulkner.

In Deaf Smith and Roberts counties, funnel clouds were sighted but no damage was reported.

Predawn temperatures were generally in the 60s and 70s although the mercury had dipped into the upper 50s in the northern Panhandle. At 4 a.m., the low was 59 at Amarillo and the high was 78 at Brownsville.

A southeasterly wind of 10 to 20 miles brought a breeze to most of Texas. However, a light and variable wind was noted in East Texas and the lower Rio Grande Valley of Southwest Texas.

The NWS forecast calls for variable cloudiness with scattered thunderstorms northwest, south and southeast with afternoon highs today in the 80s and 90s in most areas and near 106 in the Big Bend valleys.

The Northeast today sweated through the fifth day of a heat wave that sent temperatures into the 90s, and thunderstorms packing high winds, hail and up to 5 inches of rain pelted parts of the nation's midsection.

The National Weather Service forecast more temperatures in the mid-90s along the Eastern Seaboard today. At 3 a.m. in New York City, it was a sultry 78.

Some relief from the pavement-buckling heat was predicted for the region later tonight as a band of thunderstorms was to gradually move east from the Great Lakes.

Record highs for the date were recorded in at least four cities Sunday - Atlantic City, N.J., 99; Binghampton, N.Y., 88; Scranton, Pa., 93, and Worcester, Mass., 91.

LONDON - By American standards, 77 degrees isn't that hot. But in London, the temperature was the highest in Britain and had even Queen Elizabeth II complaining about the heat.

A royal graduation

WILLIAMSTOWN - The 1984 class roster at Mount Greylock Regional High School in Massachusetts had one name that rang a familiar bell - Ali Reza Pahlavi, son of the late Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, Shah of Iran.

The shah's second son received his diploma along with 146 other seniors at the public school Sunday as his mother, the Empress Farah Dibah, and sister, Princess Leila, looked on with pride.

Prior to the family's 1979 exile during the Iranian revolution, the prince's European-style education was confined to the glittering Niaravan and Golestan palaces in Tehran, where he joined tutorials with about 15 carefully selected students. The shah died in 1980.

The prince spent more than three years at Mount Greylock taking college preparatory

The pipe bomber

Former mental patient claims he's innocent

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - A 24-year-old former mental patient, arrested in the planting of 24 bombs in three Midwestern states after he was burned by an explosion in his rented car, insists that he is innocent and "somebody set me up. Earl Steven Karr, who was in fair condition today in a secured ward for crime suspects at St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center, was charged Saturday with possession of unregistered firearms after authorities discovered pipe bomb parts in his Minneapolis boardinghouse room, said U.S. Attorney

James Rosenbaum Karr could appear in court as early as today, Rosenbaum said. If he is unable to leave the hospital, the hearing could be held in his hospital room, the prosecutor said.

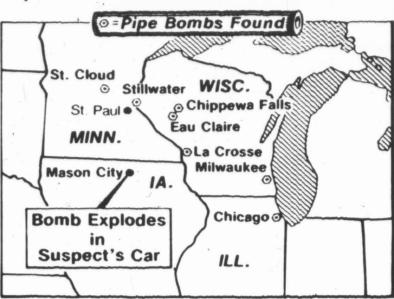

The suspect also may face charges in Wisconsin and Illinois, the other states where bombs have been found, Rosenbaum said at a news conference Saturday. Five people have been hurt in explosions that occurred since early May, with three bombs discovered May 5-6 and 21 found since Memorial Day weekend.

'We have no evidence to indicate that he had an accomplice or was working with part of any organized group," Rosenbaum said.

Most of the bombs were planted in public places and were accompanied by notes saying they were the work of a "North Central Gay Strike Force." Authorities and homosexual community leaders say they have never heard of such a group tioned Karr and the motive for the bombs remains a mystery, Rosenbaum said.

but it's not for me," he said. "Somebody set me up or something," Karr told th Register. "I don't know what Karr told the happened ... because a person's the most important thing in the world. I wouldn't do it."

Rosenbaum said Sunday he had "nothing to say" about Karr's statements A female relative of Karr, who declined to be identified further, told The Associated Press that Karr grew up in a middle-class family in Chicago and began receiving psychiatric treatment at age 6 or 7. She said he was recently released from two Texas mental institutions, despite her fears that he had no friends. He's a loner." Karr came to police attention Friday when he was injured in an explosion in his rented car in a Mason City, Iowa, parking lot.

Rosenbaum said items seized from the car appeared to match items used to make the bombs. Search warrants were obtained to seize other devices or parts that could be used in bomb manufacturing from 'Karr's room, where disguises also were found, he said.

Karr told the Register he was on his way to Des Moines to see what the city looked like and had stopped in Mason City to check a map

Arabs vow to replace oil

MANAMA -/ The Persian Gulf's Arab oil ministers have agreed that their nations should replace all oil shipments lost due to attacks in the Iran-Iraq war, a Bahrain official said today, and the two combatant nations agreed not to strike one another's civilians.

Bahrain's industry minister, Youssef Ahmed Shirawi, said that the oil ministers of the sixnation Gulf Cooperation Council agreed that their oil exports must continue flowing smoothly and competitively to world markets, "without any price changes or any discounts because of high insurance premiums.

Sikh soliders desert base

NEW DELHI - The government confirmed today that about 500 Sikh soldiers mutinied in the state of Bihar, murdered their Hindu commander and deserted to protest the army assault last week on the Golden Temple in Amritsar.

Police and army sources said on Sunday that army battle with heavily armed militants inside the most sacred Sikh shrine, located in Amritsar, had killed 1,000 people.

Defense Ministry spokesman M.L. Juneja said the soldiers left their base Sunday in Hazaribagh town and joined "some Sikh civilians" in a protest march Sunday headed for New Delhi, the Indian capital about 600 miles to the northwest

Communist leader dies

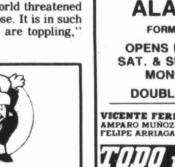

ROME - Enrico Berlinguer, who carved a popular and moderate image for the West's largest Communist Party and led it to the verge of power in Italy, died today at age 62.

Berlinguer suffered a stroke and went into a coma while making a political speech in Padua on Thursday. Dr. Francesco Valerio, medical director of the hospital in Padua, said Berlinguer died there today without regaining consciousness.

Italian President Sandro Pertini, a Socialist, visited Berlinguer's room early today

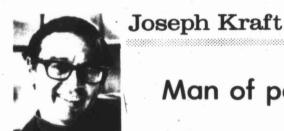

Dutch decision was viable one

As one Western diplomat in The Hague so correctly noted, the Dutch government's missile deployment scheme is "a plan with something for everybody.

Bucking strong domestic anti-nuclear feelings, the Dutch government has formally decided to proceed with the full deployment of 48 new ground-launched cruise missiles if there is no new East-West theater nuclear arms control accord by November 1985 and if the Soviets continue to deploy an additional number of SS-20 missiles. Given the present trends, the odds are that neither of those provisions will stop the Dutch deployment.

However — much to the distress of Washington and Bonn the Dutch government also engaged in a political and semantical sleight-of-hand by stating that the official deployment decision will occur in November 1985 and, because of that delay, the Dutch will not be able to meet the current operational plans to deploy the cruise missiles during 1986. However, the Dutch Cabinet did promise that all missiles would be in place before December 1988, the final date for the NATO missile deployment.

All things considered, this Dutch action is the best that can be hoped for at this point. Domestic Dutch anti-nuclear emotions are so high, that if the conservative-moderate Dutch coalition government had voted to proceed with the missile deployment, it would have faced a negative vote of confidence in the parliament. Any new regime would likely be against any missile deployment whatsoever. In that sense, the Dutch action was clearly in the best interests of NATO.

Man of peace

WASHINGTON - Can a few gestures make Ronald Reagan the Man of Peace in the presidential campaign? The answer - judging by his grand tour of Europe and the pit stop made by George Shultz in Nicaragua — is: probably yes. For the sincerity and effectiveness of the administration in foreign affairs are not about to be tested. The dumbness of the Rus-sians and the divisions of the Democrats give the Republican leaders a pass. Theoretically, to be sure, Reagan is highly vulnerable in international matters. Hard-line rhetoric dominated his first three years in the White House. His successes the American defense buildup; the deployment of modernized nuclear weapons in Western Europe; and the Grenada invasion — all fit the pattern of get-tough. But translating those achievements into tangible benefits proved elusive. On the one hand, many Americans and many people in friendly countries were terrified by what was called "cowboy diplomacy." The Europeans jumped all over the Grenada action and conspicuously failed to support American policies in the Middle East and in Central America. The Japanese backed away from promises to build more robust defense, capable of protecting sea lanes a thousand miles from the main island. On the other hand, the administration caved under pressure. The president pulled the Marines from Lebanon when the going got rough. He eased off his support for Taiwan in exchange for a visit to mainland China. He showed no stomach for engagement of American forces in the messy wars of Central America or the Persian Gulf. Adversaries, in these conditions, asserted themselves with relative impunity. The Russians broke off Big Two arms control negotiations and tightened the screws at home, in Poland and in Afghanistan. Castro and the Sandinistas of Nicaragua went right on making mischief in Central America. Radical nationalists in Iran, Syria and Libya kept up their efforts to upset balances in the Middle East at the expense of countries favorable to the U.S. So in foreign policy, Reagan seemed to offer the worst of all possible worlds. While allies edged away, adversaries felt their oats. Though there were no losses to the Soviet Union, neither - despite manifest internal troubles in Russia - did Washington make any gains at Moscow's expense. Early this year, however, Reagan changed his tune dramatically. In a speech on Jan. 16 he called 1984 "a year of oppor-tunities for peace." "We must and will engage the Soviet Union in a dialogue," he said, "that will serve to promote peace in the troubled to promote peace in the troubled regions of the world, reduce the level of arms and build a constructive working relationship.

That conciliatory emphasis has dominated the Reagan approach in international affairs ever since. On his visit to China, he showed that he was not blindly hostile to all communist regimes on purely ideological grounds. When serious fighting flared in the Persian Gulf last month, he emphasized local, as

Hand-wringing over Persian Gulf

WASHINGTON - There is Pentagon is that Iran's several contingency plans to keep foreboding in the Pentagon and the State Department that the Persian Gulf crisis is bound to end up a catastrophe. I have seldom seen the strategists so worried.

I believe the public has a right to know the undisguised truth about the glossed-over dangers. Here's what is troubling the experts:

 President Reagan's national security adviser, Robert McFarlane, has been described as "can do" man. He wants a show of strength in the Persian Gulf. He believes fiercely that the United States should tolerate no more humiliations in the Middle East. The weight of U.S. power behind Iraq, he apparently believes, would tilt the military balance against Iran. But the strategists have warned that there is no easy way for the United States to force a military solution in the gulf. They believe McFarlane is boldly in pursuit of the wrong policy. The best strategy, they argue, is to prevent trouble, not provoke it.

remorseless Ayatollah Khomeini will strike back at the United States, that he will cross the invisible tripwire and that U.S. forces will be compelled to take military action against Iran. The Soviet Union, which is committed by treaty to defend Iran, has 26 divisions massed near the Iranian border.

• The ayatollah is a villain of almost supernatural proportions, who has a history of hostile behavior toward the United States. It wouldn't take much to arouse Americans against him. This could create inflammatory conditions that would discredit saner public figures and inflate the firebrands. Yet my intelligence sources assure me that Khomeini is not as irrational and intolerable as he appears. Behind the wrathful scowl, he is shrewd and pragmatic. Iran trades with the Western world, scrupulously pays its debts and would prefer to keep the Persian Gulf open. The attacks on oil tankers were started by Iraq, not Iran. So war with Iran is by no means necessary, sources have told my associate Lucette Lagnado.

the strait open. But apparently no one anticipated that the Iragis and Iranians would bomb the oil tankers. The United States would be hard pressed to police the entire Persian Gulf. Strategists believe it would be difficult for U.S. forces to stop the random tanker attacks.

The president, meanwhile, is grappling with that most delicate of determinatinos upon which all leaders are finally judged — what to do. He came out of the Lebanon experience more cautious, less impulsive, more seasoned. But he still doesn't like to see the United States pushed around - least of all by the yatollah Khomeini.

Around The Rim

Polite light

By TIM APPEL Ever approach a certain intersection in the city, only to find that the light always changes to red just before you get there? You are obviously in bad relations with that light, and something needs to be done about it.

I believe the term "traffic light diplomacy" was coined by FDR in the same speech as the "New Deal," even though historians try to deny this little known fact. However, traffic light diplomacy does work in Big Spring during these times.

When I first arrived in Big Spring several months ago, every traffic light was against me. They would see the out-of-state plates on my car like a beacon in the fog, and would quickly change to red.

Being the emotional driver that I am, I would rant and rave, scream and yell, and basically cuss out the lights until I'd be blue in the face, but to no avail. The signals would always have the last say in the matter, and also the last laugh.

I figured that in time, the signals would come to know that I was here to stay, providing them with constant use, but I was wrong. They derived pleasure from seeing the brake lights come on, and watching my impatient waiting. The light got worse and worse, as did my temper towards the electronic devils.

Probably the worst light of all was at the intersection of 17th and Lancaster. I pass through this light at least eight times a day, and that signal would make me stop every time, usually sitting longer than anyone else. The situation was getting desperate.

One warm afternoon, I was stuck behind a slow moving semi on Lancaster, when we arrived at the site of my arch-nemesis. Since I was screened out by the truck, the light could not see me, and I was permitted to pass through. I could not believe this stroke of luck. I hoped that this would be the end.

And it was. An hour later, I approached the intersection once again. The light, reacting on my previous tributes to it, rewarded me by letting me pass uninterrupted. As the light grew smaller pected to be familiar to the RNC: and smaller in my mirror, I thanked it for being so generous. This light on 17th and Lancaster is one of my favorites in the city Not only does it stay green for me. but it will turn green early just to let me through. There are still a few lights in Big Spring that I would love to attach a thermonuclear device onto, but they may also change in time. Traffic light diplomacy is alive here, all it needs is a chance.

In Europe, on the present tour, he emphasized allied solidarity and the continuing need to engage the Russians. Secretary of State Shultz' visit to Nicaragua recently set the same tone in dealing with a government many administration figures have wanted to rub out.

Right-wingers around the president evinced distress at the new, soft line and assert — with alarm — that it is ''sincere.'' Many Democrats regard it as a charade put on for electoral purposes. A more likely interpretation is that the president truly wants international harmony but does not have a strong enough grip on his own right wing to force through accords easing tension.

But we shall not soon know which of those views is correct. For the Russians - almost certainly for internal political reasons - have dug in to positions of ferocious hostility toward the outside world. They canceled participation in the Los Angeles Olympics on the patently bogus claim that the U.S. would not protect the safety of Soviet athletes. They have resisted appeals for release of the saintly physicist Andrei Sakharov made by socialist governments which are genuinely soft on Moscow. So nobody can claim with confidence that a different U.S. policy would have yielded important benefits in dealing with Russia.

An explosive event of some kind might change the scene totally. But barring such an upheaval Reagan is in good position to stake a claim for the title of peacemaker in 1984.

It might mean a confrontation with Iran, and the implications are staggering, forbidding, unthinkable. The nuclear contingency has been discussed.

• The public has been assured that America is following a policy of strict neutrality in the Persian Gulf. But in secret, the White House has been issuing orders that can hardly be called neutral. Cables have gone out to U.S. allies, urging them to stop providing war material to Iran. As far back as July 5, 1982, I reported that Saudi

Endometriosis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I was operated on for endometriosis eight years ago, when I was 19. I would like a baby very much, but I'm worried that my previous endometriosis will prevent this. I've read that a lot of the times it does grow back after surgery to remove it. Is this true? What are my chances? If it does grow back, how can it be treated? - Ms. J.D.

Endometriosis is displaced uterine-lining tissue - the tissue which, as you know, is grown and sloughed off with each menstrual period. Such tissue may migrate to various points in the body where it doesn't belong - in the pelvis or even in very distant sites, like the lung, or rectum. It is tissue that responds to monthly hormone production, just as it would if it were at its normal site, the uterus. It can cause pain at such times.

"Illness or accidents while traveling can be expensive," says Tom St. Denis, president of the company, Health Care Abroad, a Washington-based travel health insurance firm. "When it comes to traveling overseas, Americans tend to disregard the risks and don't plan for the potential costs.

"When you pay for medical treatment, it's not like paying a hotel bill," he points out. "Personal ANGE checks or credit cards - even those 'accepted worldwide' - may be rejected by foreign hospitals. Many doctors require payment in cash, and hospitals commonly ask for deposits. And if you can't pay the final bill, hospitals may withhold your passport until the expenses are met." Lakers' win forces seventh series tilt

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) -Los Angeles Coch Pat Riley never had any doubt that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar would play

Abdul-Jabbar, suffering from another excruciating migraine headache, was listed as ques-tionable for the Game 6 of the NBA Championship Series Sunday after missing the pre-game warmup and a team meeting.

But he was there when the game began, scoring 30 points, nine in the closing minutes, as the Lakers made up an 11-point deficit and beat the Boston Celtics 119-108 to force a deciding seventh game Tuesday night.

"I had no doubt that he would play," said Riley. "If two trucks ran over his head, he'd be out there. He was an inspiration."

Abdul-Jabbar said the headache cleared an hour before the game. The 37-yearold center scored 31 points in the series opener after overcoming another migraine.

"I'm going to try to order another migraine for Kareem on Tuesday," said Riley. He also said he had "hired 5,000 people to pray for rain" in Boston, remembering the stifling 97-degree heat in Boston Garden Friday night when the Celtics won 121-103 and took a 3-2 lead in the series.

The heat which has been baking Boston since Thursday is expected to break tonight and temperatures in the mid-80s are forecast for Tuesday.

The Boston arena relies on ceiling fans instead of air conditionin

While Abdul-Jabbar, the league's oldest player, led the way, the Lakers got a big effort from rookie Byron Scott, at 23, their youngest player. Scott provided some spark off the bench after the Lakers were trailing 84-73 with five minutes left in the third quarter. His outside shooting, a couple of key steals and two assists seemed to ignite Los Angeles, which then went on to outscore the Celtics 36-21 in the final period.

Scott, a rookie acquired from the San Diego Clippers in the controversial trade involving Norm Nixon, had spent most of the series on the bench but Riley said he called on him in this instance because he is the team's best outside shooter.

So, now it's back to Boston where the Celtics have won twice in three final series games there.

Riley, worrying about the heat there, said that the Lakers' medical staff was going to figure out what the players could do to minimize its effects on the players, including giving them nutrients.

Boston Coach K.C. Jones, whose Celtics let the Lakers off the hook with the fourth-quarter letdown, said he expects the seventh game "to be a bang-up, knockdown game."

Larry Bird led the Celtics' scoring in the sixth game with 28 points, and also had 14 rebounds and eight assists.

Gerald Henderson added 22 points and Dennis Johnson 20.

PARIS (AP) - Ivan Lendl, the consumate "money player," had just broken into the select circle of those men and women who had won a Grand Slam tennis tournament.

And the stony-nerved, steelyeyed Czechoslovakian was in what for him passed as an expansive mood after beating America's John McEnroe 3-6, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5, 7-5 in the all week.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - The climate of the College World Series changed drastically Sunday night. The main attraction, for a change, was pitching. Senior left-hander Eddie Delzer allowed two first-inning infield singles, then didn't allow another hit through seven innings as Cal St. Fullerton won the NCAA baseball championship, defeating defending "Offense, offense, offense, then the game turns out defensive," Fullerton State Augie Garrido said. "Baseball's a funny game. We go in with a starter who never starts and we win. I feel a lot older."

"I'm so glad we won," Delzer, 8-2, said. "I was throwing strikes and every thing went well.'

Things went well enough for the innings." third-ranked Titans to win their sein the first inning as Elanis Westbrooks reached on an infield hit, was sacrificed to second and scored on Rusty Richards' single behind second base

Fullerton State picked up its first run in the second inning when John Bryant was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on a single to center by Kirk Bates.

The Titans, 66-20, added two runs final of the men's singles at the French Open.

"It's great," he said. "I'll finally be able to answer some different questions.

The question that had been haunting the 24-year-old Lendl, among the top three players in the world for the last four years, was why he had been unable to win a Grand Slam tounament. He even became known as something of a "choke artist" - runner-up at last year's Australian to Sweden's Mats Wilander, runner-up at the last two U.S. Opens, both to Jimmy Connors, and runner-up here in 1981 to Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

But when money, rather than prestige, was on the line, Lendl's shots were too. In 1982, he won a single-season record $2,028,650.

But there was a peculiar price to be paid for going for the big money, and Lendl himself admitted that he burned himself out a bit and was in less than top form when the big tournaments rolled around.

But this year he acknowledged that his status as one of the world's best players would not be assured until he won one of the big events. He cut back his schedule and came into this tournament fresher than usual McEnroe was superb in taking the first two sets. But he tired under Lendl's relentless hardstroking game. Lendl's legs were still strong at the end, and that was the difference.

"We were both a little tired," Lendl said. "But I guess John was a little more tired . . . Maybe I'm in a little better shape than I was last year.

Lendl's victory meant American men will have to wait until 1985 to try to break a jinx on the slow, red clay at Roland Garros Stadium. No U.S. man has won here since 1955, when Tony Trabert sucessfully defended his title.

McEnroe, rated the best player in the world by the computers, was clearly disappointed by the defeat.

"I'm a little down now because I thought I had a chance to win it,' he explained.

McEnroe had forsaken the doubles competition to concentrate on his singles. The French Open and the Australian Open are the only two Grand Slam titles missing from McEnroe's trophy case.

Martina Navratilova, who was born in Czechoslovakia but is now a naturalized American, won the women's title on Saturday, defeating Chris Evert Lloyd 6-3, 6-1. In doing so, Navratilova won tennis' coveted Grand Slam - the French, U.S. and Australian championships and Wimbledon, all in a row

But she didn't do it in the same calendar year, something that some observers claim cheapens her accomplishement.

The International Tennis Federation, in a mighty effort to take any cheapness out of the feat, awarded Navratilova $1 million in recognition of her victories in four straight major tournaments.

Navratilova also teamed with Pam Shriver on Sunday to win their fourth consecutive Grand Slam women's doubles crown. defeating Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia and West Ger-many's Claudia Kohde-Kilsch 5-7, 6-3, 6-2. "To win them both is absolutely fantastic," Navratilova said. "But it's all the more satisfying to have done the doubles with a good friend."

The mixed doubles title on Saturday was won by Americans Dick Stockton and Anne Smith, while Frenchmen Yannick Noah and Henri Leconte took the men's doubles

One McEnroe did come away with a French Open title on Sun-day. Patrick McEnroe, John's brother, teamed with fellow American Luke Jensen to win the junior boys' doubles, defeating Boris Becker of West Germany and Eric Winogradsky of France 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. The junior girls' doubles went to Digna Ketelaar and Simone Schilder of the Netherlands, 6-7, 7-6, 6-2 over Argentina's Mercedez Paz and Garbriella Sabattini.

The junior singles were completed on Saturday, with Sweden's Kent Carlsson the boys' winner and Sabattini taking the girls' crown.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Look! It's raining up!"

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 12, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to consider what you must do to gain whatever wishes you have and to be articulate in stating them to others who can help you make the changes that are important.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are interested in new ideas and methods of operating, so accept new beginnings and get ahead faster.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your intuition in order to change the viewpoints of those who oppose you. Be more aleart to modern ways of operating.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) By associating with outspoken individuals you get fine ideas how best to make progress in the days ahead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't delay in any work you have committed yourself to and it is soon behind you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A day full of surprises where your pleasure comrades are concerned. Carry through with projects on hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to get weird conditions straightened out at home. Extend invitations to fascinating persons and entertain them. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You get communications that should be handled from a different stance. Be more direct for good results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are apt to want to get into some investment that needs more thought and study, so do not act too swiftly. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are all fired up to gain your ambitions, which is fine, provided you act quietly and wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have an anxiety that you want to get rid of, so turn it into a stepping stone to success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Know what it is your allies want you to do and then you can please them enormously. Seize an unexpected opportunity.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A fine day for improving your environment in some way and making it more operative. Be happy with your mate in the evening. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will automatically come out with ideas, thoughts and make comments at random, which is best curbed early for ownsake and the sake of others, otherwise your progeny could get into a good deal of trouble. . . .
